Committee proposes year-round testing for steroids

Year-round NCAA drug testing and a ban on smokeless tobacco at all NCAA championships have been proposed by the Association's Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

The committee has proposed that the Association's drug-testing program be expanded to include year-round, short-notice testing for anabolic/androgenic steroids and drugs associated with steroid use.

Under the recommendation, testing for steroids, diuretics and urine manipulators could occur at times other than postseason championships. The current program stipulates that loss of eligibility can result from positive tests taken only in conjunction with NCAA championships or certified football bowl games.

The proposal was developed by the drug-testing and drug-education subcommittee at a June 15-16 meeting of the full committee in South Lake Tahoe, California. The Executive Committee will review the committee's recommendations at its August meeting.

"The committee felt that the abuse of steroids is a serious problem, but

"As individuals become more sophisticated in methods to avoid detection, telling them a year in advance that they're going to be tested before a bowl game is not a deterrent at all," McInnis said. "But one that we have a possibility of success in combating," said subcommittee chair Malcolm C. McInnis Jr., professor of law and faculty if they know that they can be tested at any time of year—particularly during training—that can be a very effective deterrent."

The committee agreed that the NCAA's current voluntary off-season testing program would need to be eliminated if year-round testing was instituted.

The committee further expressed its concern over the use of anabolic steroids, diuretics and urine manipulators by supporting the notion of levying team sanctions when a student-athlete has been shown to have used these substances or procedures. For all other positive drug tests, the committee supports the strengthening of individual sanctions.

The committee recommended that an NCAA member institution could avoid such team sanctions by operating a year-round, short-notice testing program with significant sanctions for positive tests or, if an institutional program is not feasible, by agreeing to have the NCAA conduct such testing on that institution's campus for all banned substances.

"The committee continues to support the concept of team sanctions," McInnis said. "One or more individuals taking performance-enhancing drugs may have given that team the unfair advantage that brought it to the championship in the first place. But the committee feels that institutions making good-faith efforts to control this cheating should be able to avoid team sanctions."

The committee also took action to combat the increasing use of smokeless tobacco. The committee recommended that the Executive Committee ban the use of tobacco products—including smokeless tobacco—on the field of play at all NCAA championships. The ban would apply to student-athletes, See Committee, page 8

Final Four applications third highest

The third highest number of applications in Final Four history was received for tickets to the 1990 Final Four in Denver.

A total of 92,946 applications requesting 184,695 tickets were received. The largest number of applications received was 140,000 for the 1985 Final Four in Lexington, Kentucky.

Colorado submitted 26 percent (23,989) of all applications, and 27 percent of the applications from Colorado were selected. The second highest number of applications came from California, followed by Illinois, Texas and New York.

Applications from approximately 280 cities and towns were represented in the applicant pool. A total of 6,319 applications were received from the host city of Denver, and 103 were selected to receive tickets. Applications were received from 141 cities in Canada and three in Japan. Applications also came from London; Nice, France, and Pago Pago.

Selection was based on a random-number generated computer program. Data Systems International of Kansas City, Missouri, used an IBM System 36 computer to select the ticket recipients. Applicants could apply as many times as they wanted, but only one application could be selected. Applicants could request only one or two tickets.

Refund checks and game tickets were mailed between June 23 and 28 by first-class mail.

Members to be surveyed on drug-test sanctions

Edward E. Bozik

NCAA conference commissioners and a selected number of athletics directors are being asked to provide recommendations on sanctions for the NCAA Drug-Testing Program.

A survey has been sent to those athletics administrators by the Executive Committee's Subcommittee to Review Drug-Testing Ineligibility Sanctions.

The subcommittee is seeking reactions to a series of five alternatives by which sanctions, if any, should be levied when a student-athlete tests positive as a result of a drug test administered as part of the NCAA Drug-Testing Program.

"We are seeking as broad an input as possible," said Edward E. Bozik, Executive Committee member and chair of the subcommittee. "We feel that action on this issue by the 1990 Convention is necessary," Bozik said.

In a letter accompanying the survey, Bozik writes, "The objective of the subcommittee and the Executive Committee is to present for a decision at the Convention appropriate legislation (after submission of a proposal to the NCAA Council) to show that a rational decision can be made" regarding sanctions.

Bozik said the NCAA has placed drug use in athletics competition in the same category as violations of rules governing amateurism and academic eligibility.

"In doing so, we place the onus squarely on the individual institution, and to a lesser degree on the individual student-athlete, for ensuring that the student-athlete who performs in NCAA championships and postseason football bowl competition has not used inappropriately any of the banned substances.

"It is this issue that lies at the heart of the controversy. There are divergent and strongly held views on this question, and the Executive Committee has the responsibility for proposing alternatives designed to address the problem in such a way that the membership at large can voice its choice at the 1990 Convention," Bozik wrote.

The alternatives are as follows:

A—Make permanent the current status quo. That is, no team sanctions would be exercised for team sports. Individuals would be subject to a 90-day suspension, and in individual-team championships (e.g., track, swimming), the individ-

Commission seeks slate of candidates

Chief executive officers of all NCAA member institutions are being invited to nominate presidents and chancellors to fill vacancies that will occur on the NCAA Presidents Commission in January 1990.

Commission Chair Martin A. Massengale has appointed a Presidential Nominating Committee to develop a slate of candidates for those vacancies. That nominating committee will be chaired by Bernard F. Sliger, president of Florida State University.

The deadline for receipt of nominations from CEOs is September 18, 1989. Nominations should be sent to Presidential Nominating Committee, NCAA, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

The Presidential Nominating Committee will consider all properly submitted nominations when it meets in conjunction with the Commission's October meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Any CEO receiving nominations from at least 10 presidents and chancellors automatically will be included on the ballot for the appropriate position. The nominating committee is authorized to develop the full slate of candidates for all

Recruiting Committee proposes permanent 30-95 grant limits

Recent actions taken by the NCAA Recruiting Committee could lead to proposed changes in NCAA legislation affecting summer camps and recruiting in Division I football, men's basketball and women's basketball, and a proposal to restore permanently the 30-95 grant-in-aid limitations in Division I-A football.

The committee voted to recommend to the Association's Council that it sponsor a number of legislative proposals in those areas.

Summer football and basketball camps possibly would be affected most by the results of the Recruiting Committee's June 20-21 meeting in San Diego.

During its August 2-4 meeting, also in San Diego, the Council will be asked to consider proposing legislation that would:

- Redefine an institutional camp for Division I football, men's basketball and women's basketball as any camp or clinic owned by a member institution or by a member institution's coach.

- Prohibit coaches from working at private camps (e.g., the Nike and Five-Star summer basketball camps). Coaches, however, still would be permitted to observe prospective student-athletes attending those camps during normal evaluation periods.

- Permit an institution to hire its own student-athletes to work in its Division I football and men's basketball camps, provided no organized practice activity takes place and the institution's athletics director gives prior approval to the hirings. This already is permissible in all other sports.

The committee endorsed a proposal from the recruiting committee of the National Association of Basketball Coaches that NCAA legislation be amended to require that prospective student-athletes (except foreign prospects), before making their official paid visits to member institutions, take a standardized test (SAT or ACT) and have the test results verified in writing by the prospect's high schools.

Committee members supported the contention that such legislation would positively reinforce the concept of adequate precollege preparation and help recruiters from member institutions identify legitimate candidates earlier in the recruiting process. Council members will be asked to sponsor such legislation, which would take effect August 1, 1991.

Another basketball-related issue involved NCAA Bylaws 13.1.3.1.1 and 13.1.3.2.2, which set numerical limits on the number of contests recruiters may attend to observe prospective student-athletes. The Recruiting Committee voted to seek Council sponsorship of legislation to eliminate high school all-star games and high school, prep school and junior college postseason games from those numerical limits (i.e., the limits would apply only to regular-season contests).

To remain unchanged, however, would be the requirement that attendance at any of the contests take place only during official evaluation periods.

The Recruiting Committee voted to recommend that the Council sponsor legislation to make permanent the 30-95 scholarship limits in Division I-A football currently in effect but subject to a reduction to 25-95 this year as a result of NCAA Convention action.

The vote to restore the 30-95 limits reflected support of a proposal forwarded to the committee by the American Football Coaches Association board of trustees.

That group also proposed, and the Recruiting Committee supported, a legislative change to prohibit recruiters in Division I (Divisions I-A and I-AA) from contacting prospects the day before a contest and on the day of a contest. If a high school football player has a Friday night game, recruiters would be prohibited from contacting the player at any time on the Thursday preceding the game and on Friday until the game is over.

Another proposed change in Division I football recruiting (Divisions I-A and I-AA) concerns limitations on contacts during evaluation periods.

Current legislation states that recruiters may contact prospects once a week during an official contact period, with a maximum of three contacts. The committee supports a proposal that would remove the limit on total contacts (recruiters could contact a prospect only once a week, but they could contact the prospect every week for the duration of the contact period).

Results of Council action on these recommendations will be published as part of The NCAA News' coverage of the August Council meeting.

DiEdwardo to head MCC

NCAA Director of Championships Daniel B. "Tucker" DiEdwardo has been named commissioner of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference, effective August 4. He will replace James W. Shaffer, another former NCAA staff member, who left the MCC to become a vice-president at Butler University.

DiEdwardo has been a member of the Association's championships department since May 1982. He has served as staff liaison to several governing sports committees, including those for men's and women's rifle, men's and women's skiing, men's lacrosse, wrestling, and men's ice hockey.

A 1970 graduate of Southern Connecticut State University, he was a member of the NCAA Men's Swimming Committee from 1979 to 1981.

Daniel B. DiEdwardo

When he was named to the NCAA staff, DiEdwardo was serving as assistant athletics director at Youngstown State. His responsibilities in that post included administration of basketball, swimming, soccer, field hockey, softball and some football activities.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than July 19, 1989.

Division III Men's Basketball Committee: Replacement for Edgar L. Green, formerly at Roanoke College, who accepted a position as director of athletics at Coastal Carolina College, a Division I institution, effective August 1, 1989. Appointee must be a Division III men's basketball representative and should be from the East Division III men's basketball region.

Communications Committee: Replacement for John D. Swofford, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, resigned from the committee. Appointee must be a Division I representative.

Legislative Assistance

1989 Column No. 26

NCAA Bylaw 12.1—amateur status

Member institutions are reminded that an individual must meet NCAA standards of amateurism set forth in NCAA Bylaw 12.1 to be eligible for intercollegiate athletics competition at an NCAA member institution. It should not be assumed that an individual considered an amateur by a sport's national governing body (or in the case of an international athlete, by the amateur rules for the athlete's country) is automatically eligible under NCAA legislation. Therefore, member institutions should continue to emphasize to their student-athletes and coaches that there are differences in various sports organizations' amateur regulations and that care must be exercised to ensure that the individual is and will remain eligible under NCAA amateur regulations.

Questions often are raised related to the provision of financial support to an individual for training and other expenses by national governing bodies (NGBs) in various sports and to the establishment of individual trust funds for the individual's training and competition expenses. In light of the differences between NCAA legislation and the regulations of some NGBs, institutions are reminded that the provisions of Bylaw 12.1 would be applicable to such activities and could affect an individual's eligibility for intercollegiate athletics competition at an NCAA member institution.

As set forth in Bylaw 12.1, an individual shall not be eligible for participation in any intercollegiate sport if the individual takes or has taken pay or has accepted the promise of pay in any form for participation in that sport. This includes the promise of pay when such pay is to be received following completion of the intercollegiate athletics career. This legislation also is applicable to the time prior to matriculation at a member institution. As indicated in Bylaw 12.1.2, the term "pay" specifically includes the receipt either directly or indirectly of any salary, gratuity or comparable compensation; division or split of surplus (bonuses, game receipts, etc.); educational expenses not permitted by the governing legislation of this Association (see Bylaw 15 regarding permissible financial aid to enrolled student-athletes), and excessive or improper expenses, awards and benefits (see Bylaw 16 regarding permissible awards, benefits and expenses for enrolled student-athletes). Expenses received from an outside amateur sports team or organization (e.g., an NGB) in excess of actual and necessary travel, room and board expenses for practice and game competition shall be considered pay.

In other words, it is not permissible for an individual to receive room and board and ongoing training expenses that exceed those permitted in Bylaw 12.1.2. As an example, if an individual resides 10 miles from the practice location, the individual could receive the actual expenses incurred to travel 10 miles each way between the individual's residence and the training location to participate in practice sessions. In addition, the individual can receive actual and necessary expenses (e.g., transportation, room and board) to travel to other sites for practice or for any competition in which the individual participates.

In recent years, many international amateur sports organizations have modified their amateur regulations to permit individuals to establish trust funds to be administered by the NGB in the involved sport. For the most part, these trusts would permit funds received by an athlete for participation in domestic or international competition and other donations on behalf of the athlete (including funds paid for commercial endorsements or for use of a particular manufacturer's equipment) to be placed in a trust account for the athlete. This type of trust fund arrangement would not be permissible under NCAA legislation. On some occasions, the funds deposited for competition would not be limited to actual and necessary expenses and could be related to the athlete's place finish in the competition, which also is considered a form of pay.

In addition to the restrictions of Bylaw 12.1, the provisions of Bylaw 12.5.2.1 prohibit student-athletes from being involved in commercial endorsements, and Bylaw 16.1.1 requires that awards received by individuals prior to enrollment or by a student-athlete participating in an event while not enrolled as a regular student during the academic year, or received during the summer while not representing his or her institution, must conform to the regulations of the recognized amateur organization(s) that govern or are associated with the competition, it being understood that at no time may the receipt of cash be permitted for this type of participation.

This legislation clearly indicates that an individual cannot protect his or her collegiate eligibility by designating that the improper expenses, cash or comparable prizes be forwarded to another individual or organization (e.g., under a proposed trust arrangement). This would be the case even if the funds were to be held in the trust account until the student-athlete had exhausted his or her intercollegiate eligibility. Further, even though a cash award may be permitted by the recognized amateur organization for the sport in question, its receipt by the student-athlete would render that individual ineligible for intercollegiate competition.

NCAA Constitution 5.4.1.2—interpretations process

As set forth in Constitution 5.4.1.2.1, the legislative services staff is to respond to a request from a member institution for an interpretation of NCAA rules. Such an interpretation is binding on the institution unless the interpretation is modified by the NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee. The institution may request a review by the Legislation and Interpretations Committee of any interpretation provided by the legislative services staff. Such a request must be processed in writing by the institution's conference or by one of the four individuals who are authorized to request such interpretations on behalf of the institution (i.e., chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of athletics, senior woman administrator, or designated substitute(s) for the chief executive officer and/or director of athletics, as specified in writing to the national office).

Please note that this policy would permit the director of athletics and the chief executive officer of a member institution to designate specific individuals (e.g., an admissions or financial aid officer) as substitutes for them to call the national office and request interpretations. Such an appointment or designation must be reported to the national office in writing in order for the designated individual to be properly authorized. Substitution will be permanent (unless the national office is subsequently advised in writing of an authorized change), and each institution (regardless of such substitutions) will remain limited to a total of four individuals authorized to request interpretations from the national office.

Individuals serving as chairs of all NCAA committees and current presidents of the various coaches associations also are permitted to contact the legislative services staff to request interpretations relating to their work with the involved committee or association.

Interpretations issued by the NCAA Council or the Legislation and Interpretations Committee shall be binding upon notification to affected institutions, and binding upon all member institutions after publication and circulation to the membership. Previously approved Council interpretations may not be revised by the Legislation and Interpretations Committee. The Legislation and Interpretations Committee may only recommend to the Council revisions of such interpretations. Any member of the Association to which an interpretation applies may request a review of the interpretation at the next annual Convention by making such a request in writing to the Association's Convention office prior to 1 p.m. on the day preceding the business sessions of the Convention.

No neighsayers to equestrian team's claim of uniqueness

One varsity team at Potsdam State University College has no equal on the NCAA sports roster. Potsdam State currently is the only school in the country with an NCAA women's equestrian team.

At the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay, you'll find an NCAA men's sailing team. It's not the only one in America—just the only one "on the mainland." The other NCAA men's sailing program is sponsored by the University of Hawaii.

These schools are three of the 13 member institutions that have taken advantage of a waiver provision in NCAA legislation that permits designation of one non-NCAA sport in meeting minimum sports-sponsorship requirements.

Road trip

"Maybe we can get over there (to Hawaii) to sail against them," said Daniel Speilmann, director of athletics at Wisconsin-Green Bay, when told of the Hawaii team. "That would be a nice road trip."

Speilmann said the Phoenix sailing team actually is coed, but it is listed as an NCAA men's sport.

"Although they don't have a lot of contact with much of the department because of the nature of their sport, I believe the sailing team members feel that they are a part of a Division I athletics program," he added.

"It was a natural for us," Speilmann said of the idea to add sailing to the school's list of NCAA sports. "It is a program that already was established on campus. And, the school is located in a good area for sailing activities... we're right on a body of water (Green Bay of Lake Michigan)."

Not all wet

With no disrespect intended, it must be pointed out that Potsdam State's is the only one of the 13 teams using the waiver provision that is not all wet. The other 12 are involved in water-based sports. There are nine crew teams, along with the two sailing programs and a synchronized swimming team.

"I certainly will make people aware of that," said Potsdam State's Charles "Chip" Hunter, chair of physical education and athletics. "We certainly have had a lot of positive feedback from the decision (to seek a waiver). The girls were thrilled by the thought of being (sponsored as an NCAA sport) and being in a more competitive mode.

"Not that they weren't competitive as a club team," he added. "But it's always been more laid-back than a varsity program. It's been thought of as a sport of kings, if you will. Now, the impression I get is that they feel like they're competing like any other (varsity) team."

Hunter said the only drawback to seeking sponsorship of the women's equestrian team was that some men participate on the club level who cannot be listed on the varsity roster, since the team is classified as an NCAA women's sport.

"We continue to maintain an active club program, however," he added, "so the men still have an opportunity to participate."

Using the legislation

All of the member institutions using non-NCAA sports to meet minimum sponsorship requirements have used waiver legislation contained in each division's membership requirements.

"The Council," that legislation states, "by a two-thirds majority of its members present and voting, may approve a request to designate one sport involving all-male teams or mixed teams of males and females and one sport involving all-female teams other than those in which the Association sponsors a championship to meet the division sports sponsorship criteria."

That language is the same regardless of NCAA membership division. It is published in the 1989-90 NCAA Manual as Bylaw 20.9.3.2.1 (Division I), Bylaw 20.10.3.4.1 (Division II) and Bylaw 20.11.3.1.1 (Division III).

Council requirements

When the legislation permitting non-NCAA sport waivers was adopted by the membership, the Council adopted a set of minimum requirements for use in approving requests submitted by member institutions. They are:

- The sport must be on the official regular competitive schedule of the Olympic Games.

- The sport must have been officially accorded varsity status by the institution's chief executive officer or committee responsible for intercollegiate athletics policy.

- The sport must be administered by the department of intercollegiate athletics, and the eligibility of student-athletes must be reviewed and certified by the staff member designated by the institution's chief executive officer or committee responsible for intercollegiate athletics policy.

- Qualified participants must receive the institution's official varsity awards.

- The institution must apply eligibility rules for participation in the sport at least as demanding as those for participation in the institution's other varsity sports programs and in NCAA championships.

- The institution must confirm sponsorship of the sport annually through the NCAA official information form.

- The institution must meet a limitation on financial aid awards for the sport as determined by the Council, and such awards must be included against any overall limitation in Bylaw 15.

- The intercollegiate team must involve all males or a mixed team of males and females to meet men's sports sponsorship criteria; the team must involve all females to meet women's sports sponsorship criteria.

- The institution must conduct a minimum number of intercollegiate contests as determined by the Council against four-year, degree-granting collegiate institutions. The competition must be in person rather than by mail or wire.

- The institution must meet the requirement as determined by the Council for a minimum number of participants in each contest for an individual sport.

- The institution must present schedules for the preceding year and the ensuing year.

- The institution must indicate the nature and extent of coaching to be provided.

- Participating student-athletes must have access to training and medical facilities.

- The institution's application for designation of the sport must be approved by the Council by September 1 of the appropriate year.

- A review of the program by the Council shall be required every two years.

- The Council reserves the right to reject any application on the basis of the quality of the institution's program or the nature of the activity.

The non-NCAA roster

Of the 13 member institutions that have taken advantage of the waiver legislation, 10 are Division I members (seven I-AAA, two I-A and one I-AA). Two are Division II members. Potsdam State is the lone Division III member.

Following is the complete list of institutions, with the non-NCAA sports they include on their sponsorship lists:

Division I-A—University of Hawaii, men's sailing, and Oregon State University, men's and women's crew.

Division I-AA—University of Richmond, women's synchronized swimming.

Division I-AAA—Iona College, women's crew; Jacksonville University, men's and women's crew; Marist College, women's crew; St. Mary's College (California), men's crew; Santa Clara University, men's and women's crew; University of Wisconsin, Green Bay, men's sailing, and Loyola Marymount University, women's crew.

Division II—University of Alabama, Huntsville, men's and women's crew, and Mercyhurst College, men's and women's crew.

Division III—Potsdam State University College, women's equestrian.

Eight leagues recommended for automatic bids

The Division III Women's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that eight conferences receive automatic qualification for the 1990 championship.

The eight conferences are the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin, Little East Conference, Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference, Middle Atlantic States Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, New Jersey Athletic Conference, Ohio Athletic Conference, and the University Athletic Association.

The committee, which met at Marco Island, Florida, June 19-22, will recommend that Johns Hopkins University and Western Maryland College be realigned from the South to the Mid-Atlantic region.

An increase in the fee for alternate officials, from $30 to $50, will be recommended. The committee also will recommend that 20 teams be ranked in the national poll. Ten teams were ranked last year.

It was agreed that the following items will be considered in evaluating a team's strength of schedule for selection purposes: number of games played versus teams ranked by the regional advisory committees, number of games played versus teams with won-lost records of .500 or better, number of opponents that already have been selected for the championship, and number of home and away games.

The committee voted to determine the home and visiting team in championship competition at the time of the pairings. For competition involving a second round of play (regionals and finals), teams that played in the first game of the previous round will wear dark uniforms and teams that played in the second game of the previous round will wear light uniforms. Uniform color had been determined by a coin flip.

The committee also developed guidelines and procedures for regional advisory chairs.

WAC to offer play-offs for women after merger

The Western Athletic Conference will offer women's championships when a July 1990 merger with the High Country Athletic Conference becomes effective.

A merger has been approved by the presidents' councils off the two conferences, and the combined conference will be called the Western Athletic Conference.

"It is the belief of the presidents' councils that the merger of the WAC and the HCAC will enhance both the visibility and identity of women's intercollegiate athletics," said Terry Roark, president of the University of Wyoming.

"Further, it demonstrates a continuing effort by the membership to improve both the opportunities and the quality of women's intercollegiate athletics," Roark said.

Current High Country members expected to join the new conference are Brigham Young University, Colorado State University, the University of New Mexico, the University of Utah and the University of Wyoming, along with Big West Conference member San Diego State University.

High Country members Utah State University and New Mexico State University will join their men's programs in the Big West, and the University of Hawaii, a WAC member, will continue its women's programs as a member of the Big West.

High Country affiliates expected to remain with the new conference are Boise State University; Creighton University; the University of Denver, and the University of Texas, El Paso. UTEP is expected eventually to become a full member of the conference.

The women's programs at the U.S. Air Force Academy will remain independent in NCAA Division II, while the men's teams participate in the WAC.

The headquarters of the WAC will remain in Littleton, Colorado.

News Fact File

The aggregate number of sports sponsored, on the average, at NCAA member institutions has increased since 1981-82. The all-divisions average in 1981-82 was 15.5 sports (9.1 for men and 6.4 for women). In 1987-88, the figure had risen to 16.1 sports (8.8 for men, 7.3 for women). The increase was entirely in Division III, which went from 14.9 in 1981-82 to 16.1 in 1987-88. In Division I, the average was 17.6 in 1981-82 and 17.5 in '87-88; Division II stayed the same, 13.4 sports per institution.

Trojans see endowment plan as answer to rising costs

By Jim Perry

In late 1985, University of Southern California athletics director Mike McGee and Don Winston, associate AD, were holding one of their frequent fund-raising meetings. They were searching for new ways to raise money.

Like all university athletics departments, Southern California was being thrown for a loss by spiraling costs.

"Don said to me, 'You know, I've got an idea that might be helpful,'" McGee recalls. "And the minute he told me his plan, I said, 'That's it!' And we took his idea and ran with it."

Winston's idea was to endow the positions on the football team.

The first one was endowed for $250,000 in the spring of 1986, and now, in what McGee calls "a three-year phenomenon," Southern California has announced that all 25 positions (offense, defense, punter, placekicker and a special teamer) have been endowed for a total of $6.25 million.

In addition, the head football coach's position has been endowed for another $1.5 million, bringing the grand total to $7.75 million.

"Our great success has surprised me beyond my wildest dreams," Winston says.

"If you asked me if I'm surprised, I'd say yes and no," McGee says. "Any time you're asking for a quarter of a million dollars, you're asking for a lot of money. But knowing of the affection our supporters have for the USC football team, we thought it was doable.

"It obviously was an idea whose time had arrived."

The way the plan works is simple. A fixed amount of interest from the endowment income is taken out each year and budgeted for scholarships. The rest is plowed back into the principal, enabling the original $250,000 to grow and keep up with inflation. This growth, coupled with any stock appreciation in Southern California's overall endowment portfolio, virtually guarantees the scholarships forever.

Winston, who came to the athletics department in 1983, had previously been a fund-raiser for the school's College of Letters, Arts, and Sciences, where he was a big Trojan fan.

"I thought about this idea even before I came to the athletics department," he says. "I wondered why no one had ever done it."

"I simply took the concept of the professorial chair and applied it to athletics. Over there, you endow a chair in English, history, chemistry, physics, whatever. Well, football is the most visible sport at USC—as it is at most schools—so I figured why not try to endow the positions for football?"

And, now, as McGee says, why not keep going?

"Our real goal is to endow the entire football team," McGee says. "That would take about $35 million from this plan and other athletics endowments in progress, but this has been a very good start."

"And we won't stop with football. We're taking the idea and applying it to other sports. We've already endowed the catcher on the baseball team."

"And, since we're always looking for ways to form a closer relationship between the athletics department and the academic side of the university, we've begun a plan for donors to jointly endow a scholarship for athletics and a particular school—like the school of business, or education, or journalism. The athletics department would hold the endowment, but it would have to be spent for tuition in that particular school.

"In this way, a donor can support academics and athletics at the same time."

Being a private university, Southern California has been particularly hard-hit by soaring tuition costs. The price tag has jumped an average of nine percent a year over the last decade. A total scholarship cost $19,300 in 1988-89.

"We offer 239 men's and women's scholarships," Winston says, "and just to pay for them in 1989-90, we'll need a little over $400,000 more than we raised this year. You can't keep increasing your fund-raising that much every year. We had to do something."

But McGee points out that his school is not unique.

"This is not just a private-school dilemma," he says. "We're all faced with costs that go up faster than inflation. It's just very difficult to balance your budget, and you have to look at new ways to generate revenue."

"Endowment income will insure a steady flow of revenue, which will keep pace with inflation. It can be a major part of a long-term financial solution for all of us."

In the McGee era, the athletics

Letter to the Editor

Raising initial-award limit won't help

To the Editor:

I note with sadness that we can anticipate legislative initiative in the coming NCAA Convention to move the initial-award limitation in the sport of football from 25 to 30. Proponents argue that this will help some of the less competitive programs field stronger teams.

Ironically, the passage of such legislation would ensure the opposite: The weak will get weaker and the strong will get stronger. The additional five annual recruiting opportunities will encourage "run-offs" and further dilute the talent pool for Division I-A.

The correct way to "level the playing field" is to eliminate the overall limitation of 95 and allow an annual maximum letter-of-intent signing limitation of 20. This will encourage retention, education and graduation. It will make stockpiling of talent difficult, thus enriching the annual talent pool available to Division I-A recruiters.

Creating parity, or at least a better competitive balance, is an urgent priority for Division I-A. Too many programs overall are careening toward financial ruin. Competitive opportunity is a much better option than the well-intentioned but likely fruitless effort at "cost containment."

If the established powers are allowed to recruit five more football players each year, it follows logically that the weaker programs will be attracting athletes of lesser ability than they currently are able to recruit.

The Division I Men's and Women's Basketball Committees, meeting July 8-12, 1984, in Colorado Springs, both recommended expansion of their championships brackets—the men proposed an increase from 53 to 64 teams, the women from 32 to 40. University of Arkansas, Fayetteville
The Dallas Morning News

"If expenses aren't cut nationally, we can't cut anymore ourselves."

"You can cut costs a dollar at a time, but you just don't have any major areas left to cut unless you drop a sport, and that's something that none of us really wants to do."

Billy Navarre, former tennis coach
McNeese State University
The Dallas Morning News

"I still have a real bad taste in my mouth (after McNeese State dropped tennis to cut athletics costs). But for sports like mine, nothing looks good for the near future. I don't see anything changing—except for the worst."

Thomas D. Wood, president
Orange Bowl Committee
The Miami Herald

"What really bugs us is that we made a commercial affiliation with Federal Express specifically in order to increase the payoffs to competing teams. We'll go from $2.9 million to $4.1 million for the next game."

"But before the ink is dry on that contract, the CFA comes along with this new proposal (for a Division I-A play-off)."

"I would support additional financial aid (for student-athletes) over and above the cost of attendance if it was based on demonstrated need so the athlete who has a real need would get direct help and the person who doesn't need it wouldn't get it."

Ben Hines, hitting instructor
Los Angeles Dodgers
The Associated Press

"I think there will be more use of aluminum and ceramic and graphite bats in batting practice in the minor leagues simply to cut costs. All organizations are trying to cut costs, and as wood becomes more and more scarce...you are going to go to more artificial things."

"I think it's been kind of a savior for amateur baseball."

"I hear scouts say it's very hard to evaluate a kid with the aluminum bat because of the extra force that the guys get off the bat. I think it is true that the aluminum bat will give you a little more carry, a little more power. But that's all relative."

"If everybody is using it, then the thing a scout is basically going to be looking for anyway, no matter what the kid is swinging, is bat speed, balance and timing."

Mac Wilkins, U.S. Olympics gold medalist
The Washington Post

"I don't think steroids are good for the sport (track and field), and they're definitely not good for society."

"But it seems like the values of our society all have been blown out of proportion. The punishments and the crimes don't seem to fit."

"Ben Johnson took drugs to improve his athletic performance, and he's gone through hell the last nine months. You'd think he blew up a whole town and killed a million people, the way everyone's reacting."

Athletics suffers from lack of direction, purpose, Yow says

By Ken Franckling

Kay Yow, women's basketball coach at North Carolina State University, compares the focus in collegiate athletics today to a Japanese view of American marketing: "Ready, Fire, Aim!"

"That says it all. We're way off track," says Yow, who coached the 1988 women's Olympic basketball team in Seoul. "We're not even close to the target."

"Where do we want to be? Where's the planning?"

"Selfishness. Greed. Fame. Fortune. Power. Position. Money. Recognition. That's what people think is important."

Money talks too often in college sports these days, when some basketball coaches pocket more from sneaker endorsements than they collect in salaries.

Coaches, faced with a blizzard of rules, regulations and conflicting interpretations, often look for "gray areas" to give them advantages in recruiting and competition and to keep their athletes scholastically eligible.

The subject of cheating—how to define it and how to stop it—was discussed at the Institute for International Sport's seminar on ethics and sportsmanship at the University of Rhode Island. About 200 athletes, coaches and administrators, kicked off the institute's three-year drive to adopt codes of ethics for all levels of sports.

The institute recently surveyed

Kay Yow

389 coaches on the most unethical behavior in athletics. Recruiting practices were cited by 382 coaches. Only three percent, a relative handful, cited a "win-at-all-costs philosophy."

Yow said those results show there is a big problem in perception even among coaches, because recruiting violations are part of a win-at-all-costs philosophy. "They're related," she said. "We need higher expectations and demands. Kids want discipline, and so do coaches."

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, a veteran coach and athletics administrator, said part of the solution rests in deregulating many of the things the NCAA now oversees.

"It's time to simplify the rulebook," Schultz said. "We can pass more rules; we can double the size of our enforcement staff, and that will not guarantee the integrity of intercollegiate athletics."

"The message has to start with the governing board at each university that it is responsible for the integrity of everything that goes on at the university, including intercollegiate athletics."

Donna A. Lopiano, director of athletics for women at the University of Texas, Austin, said it is time to hold coaches accountable for the academic progress of their athletes by rewarding the coaches for good behavior and high graduation rates as well as for winning.

At her school, an 11-point program imposes salary freezes, loss of bonus money, country club memberships and dealer cars for not knowing the rules. She said coaches who knowingly break the rules are fired. Other aspects of the plan certify coaches, set allowances for athletes, and educate alumni and boosters about what they can and cannot do.

Patricia Meiser-McKnott, assistant athletics director at the University of Connecticut, reminded the forum that coaches "are some of our most significant educators. They have ways to get into the heads and hearts of our student-athletes like nobody else can."

"A real problem in college athletics is that we do not demand enough of our student-athletes, and we don't take a stand when they let us down."

Ellie Lemaire, associate athletics director at Rhode Island, said administrators and coaches must watch for danger signs among their athletes that can signal rule-breaking, particularly in the form of gifts and money.

"You can't buy gold chains for $25," she said. "You can't afford a sports car if you don't have an off-season job."

Franckling writes for United Press International.

Trojans

department has increased in its total endowment from $4 million to more than $17 million in five years.

"The beauty of this football plan," McGee says, "is that since the endowment money pays for the scholarships, we can apply more of the revenue actually generated by football itself (from ticket sales, television, etc.) to women's sports and all other nonrevenue sports."

Why has Southern Cal had so much success? After all, $250,000 is a big, big donation.

"One of our position donors, Ray Irani, the president of Occidental Petroleum, said that if he had been asked to give the amount of a scholarship, which actually would have been a lot less, he probably wouldn't have done it," Winston says. "But what intrigued him was tying the gift to a specific position."

"He says he can identify with the player who plays that position (Irani chose the strong-side inside linebacker) and feel he is helping him to get his education. In a particular game, that linebacker might make the tackle on the goal line that saves the victory. Think of how exciting that is for the donor."

As Southern California has received publicity for its innovative plan, with stories in The NCAA News, Sports Illustrated and many other publications, Winston says that he feels like he's spent as much time talking to fund-raisers from other schools as to potential donors.

"I've had dozens of calls about this project—a fellow at Miami of Ohio even called it 'The USC Endowment Plan,'" he says.

"I've talked to fund-raisers from UCLA, Michigan, Illinois, Miami of Ohio, Miami of Florida, Washington State, San Diego State and Fresno State."

"The interest we've generated has been remarkable."

Penn State's Martin takes top men's academic honor again

For the second year in a row, Penn State wrestler Jim Martin has been named university-division at-large academic all-America of the year by GTE and the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

Wabash swimmer Joseph Turk was named college-division all-America of the year.

Announced June 22, the at-large teams consist of 63 student-athletes—32 in the university division and 31 in the college division.

University-division honorees produced a combined grade-point average of 3.801 (4.000 scale). By team, the cumulative GPAs are: first team, 3.866; second team, 3.831; third team, 3.706.

College-division academic all-Americans combined to produce a 3.784 GPA. By team, their cumulative GPAs are: first team, 3.911; second team, 3.772; third team, 3.668.

Four student-athletes with 4.000s were named to the teams, three in the university division and one in the college division.

Foreign student-athletes have a significant presence on the university-division teams at 25 percent. Only one foreign student-athlete was named in the college division.

Track and cross country athletes dominate the college division. Eleven of the 31 selections participated in one or both sports. Tennis and swimming were next, with five selections each. In all, eight sports were represented.

University-division selections reflect more sports and less dominance by one group. Of the 10 sports represented by the 32 honorees, tennis and swimming each produced six selections. Track and cross country produced five, wrestling four, and soccer and golf three each.

Business-related majors are noted for 14 of the 32 university-division selections—by far the most popular. Five are studying engineering, while three each are pursuing premedicine and science majors.

College-division at-large all-Americans do not bunch up quite so much in one field. Seven are pursuing business-related degrees, while six are studying sciences and five are in engineering. Only one listed premedicine as a major.

Like the other GTE/CoSIDA academic all-America teams, the at-large honorees were selected by a vote of the 1,400 members of CoSIDA. To be eligible, student-athletes must be varsity starters or key reserves and must have cumulative GPAs of at least 3.200.

No university-division selection has a GPA below 3.500. No college-division honoree is below 3.420.

Following are the complete teams.

University division

First team: Kenneth Chertow, wrestling, Penn State, 3.580 in premedicine; Jim Childs, tennis, Georgia, 3.960 in accounting; Kurt Freyberger, tennis, Western Kentucky, 4.000 in accounting; Glenn Jarrett, wrestling, Oregon, 3.810 in premedicine; Steven Jung, tennis, Nebraska, 3.680 in finance; Kendall Key, swimming, New Mexico State, 3.950 in electrical engineering; Brent Lang, swimming, Michigan, 3.830 in industrial engineering; Alan Leggett, ice hockey, Bowling Green, 4.000 in biology; Jim Martin, wrestling, Penn State, 3.950 in premedicine; Steve West, track/cross country, Bucknell, 3.900 in chemistry.

Huber, Erickson top women's at-large academic selections

Villanova's Vicki Huber, a six-time NCAA track champion with a 3.420 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in psychology, has been named university-division at-large academic all-America of the year by GTE and the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

St. Benedict tennis player Marcy Erickson, with a 4.000 GPA in liberal studies, was named college-division all-America of the year.

Announced June 26, the at-large teams consist of 63 student-athletes—32 in the university division and 31 in the college division.

University-division honorees produced a combined GPA of 3.788. By team, the cumulative GPAs are: first team, 3.869; second team, 3.834; third team, 3.660.

College-division academic all-Americans combined to produce a 3.802 GPA. By team, their cumulative marks are: first team, 3.943; second team, 3.789; third team, 3.673.

Six student-athletes with 4.000s were named to the three teams in the university division, and three were named in the college division.

Each division includes three foreign student-athletes among the honorees. In the university division, two are from Canada and one from Northern Ireland. College-division honorees include one student-athlete from each of three countries—Belgium, Brazil and South Africa.

Track and cross country athletes dominate the team in both divisions. Twelve in the university division and 13 in the college division competed in one or both sports.

Other popular sports in the university division include field hockey/lacrosse (five honorees), swimming (four), tennis (four) and gymnastics (three).

In the college division, nine honorees play tennis, and four are swimmers.

Business-related majors 13 of 32 student-athletes—are most prevalent in the university division. Also represented are premedicine, mathematics, education, criminal justice and engineering.

No specific area of study prevails among college-division honorees, who represent the most diverse of the four at-large academic groups recently announced by GTE and CoSIDA.

Among the college-division honorees are student-athletes majoring in premedicine, education, modern languages, sociology, business-related fields (including agricultural economics), mathematics and sciences.

Like the other GTE/CoSIDA academic all-America teams, the women's at-large honorees were selected by vote of CoSIDA's 1,400 members. To be eligible, student-athletes must be varsity starters or key reserves and must have cumulative GPAs of at least 3.200.

No selection in the university division has a GPA below 3.250. The lowest GPA in the college division is 3.330.

Bower is among 40 student-athletes picked for the program from a pool of approximately 750 applicants. Participants will complete two courses (research methods and data analysis) and an internship during the program, which has been designed to help minority students prepare for education at the graduate level.

vacancies. After the October Commission meeting, all CEOs in the NCAA membership will receive ballots listing the candidates to fill the vacancies in their respective NCAA membership divisions. The only positions not filled through the balloting process are those representing the Division I-A conferences, which are permitted to select their own Commission representatives.

Commission terms expiring in January 1990 (at the close of the 1990 NCAA Convention) are as follows:

Division I

Thomas K. Hearn Jr., president,

Wake Forest University. Division I-A. Eligible for reelection to a full, four-year term. The Atlantic Coast Conference designates this position.

Charles E. Young, chancellor, University of California, Los Angeles. Division I-A. Eligible for reelection to full, four-year term. The Pacific-10 Conference designates this position.

Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, chancellor, University of New Orleans. Division I-AAA. Eligible for reelection to full, four-year term.

William E. Tucker, chancellor, Texas Christian University. Division I-A. Not eligible for reelection. The Southwest Athletic Conference designates this position.

Edward B. Fort, chancellor, North Carolina A&T State University. Division I-AA. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement must be from the Division I-AA South football region.

Lattie F. Coor, president, University of Vermont. Division I-AAA. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement can be from any Division I region.

Division II

James B. Appleberry, president, Northern Michigan University. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement must be from Region 3 of Division II.

Thomas A. Bond, president, Eastern New Mexico University. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement may be from any Division II region.

William T. O'Hara, president, Bryant College. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement may be from any Division II region.

Division III

Rev. William J. Byron, president, Catholic University. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement may be from any Division III region.

Nenah E. Fry, president, Sweet Briar College. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement may be from any Division III region.

Nominating committee

Appointed to assist Sliger on the Presidential Nominating Committee are seven other members of the Commission whose terms do not expire in January 1990.

They are Asa N. Green, Livingston University (Division II); Edward H. Jennings, Ohio State University (Division I-A); Joseph B. Johnson, Grambling State University (Division I-AA); Margaret R. Preska, Mankato State University (Division II); Jack L. Stark, Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges (Division III); Catherine A. Tisinger, North Adams State College (Division III), and Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, George Washington University (Division I-AAA). Sliger's institution is Division I-A.

officials, coaches, trainers and other tournament staff.

The committee also took several actions related to the drug-testing protocol.

It recommended that the protocol preclude an organization other than the NCAA from conducting drug testing at an NCAA championship. The committee also noted that it may not be necessary to test for all banned drug classes each time a test is conducted, and it proposed that the drug-testing subcommittee be allowed to recommend which banned substances the NCAA would test for at a given event.

The committee proposed that the protocol give the drug-testing crew chief the authority to release a sick or injured student-athlete from the testing area. In such situations, the test would be administered after the athlete had received medical attention.

Other actions

In other actions related to drug education and drug testing, the committee recommended that:

• Student-athletes selected randomly for testing at NCAA wrestling championships be notified of their selection immediately after their final match of the championships; after notification, the wrestler would have one hour to report. Committee members felt it was necessary to postpone testing until after the individual's final competition because the hydration associated with providing an adequate specimen often conflicts with the wrestler's efforts to "make weight."

• The number of compounds listed as examples of banned psychomotor and CNS stimulants be reduced.

• Sympathomimetic amines be removed from the list of banned drugs.

• Blood doping and growth hormones be moved to the list of banned drug classes. The committee wanted to make a strong statement against blood doping and the use of growth hormones.

• All restrictions on asthma medications be removed.

• A section be added to the executive regulations banning urine manipulation, which would include urine substitution, tampering with the specimen-production process and inhibiting renal excretion. This section would specifically ban the use of probenecid and other compounds that affect the excretion of anabolic steroids into the urine. The new section also would identify the use of diuretics as a method of urine manipulation.

• Institutions investigate possible involvement of athletics personnel in drug use by a student-athlete who tested positive. Documentation of this investigation would be submitted to the Eligibility Committee as part of the process of restoring the student-athlete's eligibility.

All of the recommendations are subject to the approval of the Executive Committee.

In other action, the committee proposed that NCAA policy on medical evaluations and records be revised to recommend that institutions have student-athletes furnish, as part of their preparticipation medical evaluation, an appropriate immunization history. Student-athletes who cannot prove they have been immunized would then be recommended to follow a prescribed schedule of vaccinations.

The committee took this action in response to several measles outbreaks this past year that restricted or canceled intercollegiate events.

The committee also heard a discussion on research into playing surfaces and surface-related injuries.

Making presentations were Dr. I. Martin Levy, an orthopedic surgeon and member of the American Orthopedic Society of Sports Medicine research group; Ed M. Milner, president of AstroTurf Industries, and Benno Nigg, a University of Calgary researcher specializing in shoes, surfaces and loads on the body.

ual's performance would be deleted from the championship records; points that he or she contributed to the team total would be deleted, and any awards earned would be returned.

B -- Apply the full range of individual and team sanctions across the board, including withholding of net football-bowl and championships receipts. This alternative would require enabling legislation to apply financial sanctions to football-bowl receipts.

C -- Remove any consideration of team sanctions, including individual-team championships. Apply only the 90-day individual suspension and withholding recognition of individual performance.

D -- Sanctions would be applied to individual student-athletes, not teams, except where the student-athlete's contribution is readily measurable and team totals could be adjusted objectively. Individual sanctions would be made more stringent with a range of penalties up to the loss of one year of eligibility for a first-time offender and a permanent loss of eligibility for second- or multiple-time offenders. The NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports will be requested to consider a proposal to ascertain different penalties for use of street drugs and for use of performance-enhancing drugs.

E -- Same as Alternative D, except that team sanctions would be imposed when an institution's student-athletes (in the same team sport) tested positive for two consecutive years. The institution would be required to show cause to the Executive Committee why such sanctions should not be imposed if a pattern of repeated positive test results indicated that the institution was not discharging its responsibility for compliance with the objectives of the NCAA Drug-Testing Program.

"There are, of course, various permutations of these alternatives that could be employed," Bozik said.

Respondents are asked to return their comments no later than July 12 to Merrily Dean Baker, assistant executive director for administration, at the NCAA office.

Ineligibility sanctions for student-athletes who test positive for banned substances have been in effect at NCAA championships and post-season bowl games for the past two years, but team sanctions have not been applied.

In August 1988, the Executive Committee voted that "in view of the complexity of the... issues relative to the NCAA Drug-Testing Program, the suspension of the application of all executive regulations pertaining to team-ineligibility sanctions for positive tests resulting from the NCAA Drug-Testing Program be extended until the end of the 1989-90 academic year and that in the interim, the impact of the program on NCAA member institutions, conferences and student-athletes and the related issues continue to be evaluated."

68 wrestlers named to Divisions II, III academic teams

Two national champions and two runners-up are among 68 wrestlers named to 1989 Divisions II and III all-academic teams by the National Wrestling Coaches Association.

Title winners Dan Russell of Portland State (150 pounds) and Ted Price of Wisconsin-Parkside (167 pounds), and national finalist Doug Mooney of Ferris State (177 pounds) and national finalist Doug Mooney of Ferris State (177 Hayek of John Carroll, a national finalist at 126 pounds, joins 41 other student-athletes on the Division III team.

Russell is one of eight wrestlers honored in Division II for the second year in a row. Fifteen Division III wrestlers earned all-academic honors for the second straight year.

Division II honorees include 15 wrestlers who qualified for the national championships, while the Division III squad contains 20 qualifiers.

Although the criteria for selection differ for each division, both programs honor a combination of academic and athletics excellence.

To qualify for the Division II all-academic team, a nominee must have a 3.000 grade-point average (4.000 scale), be in his second full year at his high school, and be recommended by his academic adviser and coach.

A Division III honoree must have a 3.200 grade-point average. In addition, he must be a conference or regional place-winner or have won 67 percent of his matches while competing in at least two-thirds of his institution's dual meets and tournaments.

Dan Russell

Each all-academic team is selected by coaches association members within the respective division. No similar program exists for Division I.

Following are the 1989 all-academic teams for Divisions II and III.

Santa Clara passes Title IX review

Santa Clara University's intercollegiate athletics program has been found in compliance with Federal Title IX requirements after a review conducted by the U.S. Department of Education, Office of Civil Rights.

Santa Clara was one of the first universities to have its athletics program reviewed after the passage of the Civil Rights Restoration Act March 22, 1988.

"The university cooperated with the compliance review at every stage," said Thomas O'Connor, Santa Clara's athletics director. "We are committed to a well-balanced, high-quality athletics program for men and women, and the process of reviewing our achievement of those goals has been a positive experience."

The Rev. Robert Senkewicz, vice-president for student services, said the most recent ruling reflected "significant steps taken to enhance women's athletics at Santa Clara in the past three years."

O'Connor said a philosophy of balance in the athletics programs is

Binders available

Readers of The NCAA News are reminded that binders, which provide permanent, convenient storage of back issues of the paper, are available from the publishing department.

evidenced by considerable participation—nearly 75 percent of the student body is active in intercollegiate and intramural competitive teams in a wide variety of sports—and the school's graduation rate for student-athletes is one of the nation's highest.

"With all the challenges facing intercollegiate sports nationally," O'Connor said, "this OCR ruling demonstrates that universities such as Santa Clara can run first-rate, well-balanced programs that allow students to compete at high levels, while providing the opportunity for everyone to develop lifetime recreational outlets and sound minds in sound bodies."

Areas investigated during the compliance review included athletics scholarships; equipment and supplies; scheduling of games and practice times; travel and per diem allowances; coaching and academic tutoring; assignment and compensation of coaches; locker rooms, practice and competitive facilities; medical and training facilities and services; housing and dining services; publicity; support services, and levels of competitive opportunity.

NOTABLES

Dick Garber, head men's lacrosse coach at Massachusetts, named Division I coach of the year by the U.S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association after leading the Minutemen to a 13-3 record and the quarterfinals of the Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship last season. It marks the second time in his 35 years at the school that he has won the honor. Lewis S. Salter, chancellor and former president at Wabash and a former member of the NCAA Council, inducted into The Indiana Academy, which encourages and promotes scientific, literary, artistic, cultural and scholarly achievement and provides philanthropic support of and service to higher education. Also inducted into the academy was Steven C. Beering, president at Purdue. Vince Doolley, athletics director and former head football coach at Georgia, named to serve this fall as an analyst on ESPN's telecasts of College Football Association games. Allegheny's Sheila Lingenfelter selected as Division III women's softball coach of the year for the second consecutive year by the National Softball Coaches Association. She has coached Allegheny to three straight appearances in the final round of the Division III Women's Softball Championship.

DEATHS

Lee Calhoun, head men's track and field coach at Western Illinois since 1980, died June 21 in Erie, Pennsylvania, of complications from a stroke he suffered in May. He was 56. The former North Carolina Central track all-America was a two-time Olympic gold medalist in the high hurdles before holding head coaching positions at Grambling and Yale. Calhoun is a member of the National Track and Field Hall of Fame and the U.S. Track and Field Hall of Fame. Troy Cox, assistant women's softball coach at New Mexico State, was killed June 21 in an early morning automobile accident while working on a part-time job delivering newspapers. The 24-year-old coach's pickup truck struck a deer near Las Cruces, New Mexico, and rolled down an embankment. Cox was in his senior year of undergraduate studies at the school and had assisted with softball throughout his time as a student. Paul McKenzie, an MIT hurdler who earned all-America honors in two events at the recent Division III Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships, was killed June 19 in an automobile accident in Mexico, where he was participating in a summer Reserve Officer Training Corps program. McKenzie, who would have been team captain as a senior at MIT next year, earned all-America honors in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles and 1,600-meter relay.

Mark Petteway, a basketball player at New Orleans for three seasons ending in 1983, was found dead in New Orleans June 2 of an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound. He was 28. Patrick G. Gordon, a former all-America track athlete at Rice who was preparing to enter law school, drowned May 26 after he stepped into a deep hole while wading along a beach in Galveston, Texas. He was 23. Gordon was a member of the Rice indoor and outdoor 1,600-meter relay teams that won NCAA titles during 1987. Sid Scarborough, a quarterback and captain of the football team at Auburn during the 1930s, died of cancer May 22 in Atlanta at age 76. He went on to serve as the first manager of Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium and later was the facility's executive director until his retirement in 1979.

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, a story in the June 14 issue of The NCAA News on the West Coast Athletic Conference's scholar-athletes of the year incorrectly reported cross country runner Tracy Thorne's school. She was a senior this year at the University of Portland.

Due to an incorrect report received by the News, the Record section of the June 21 issue failed to note that Greg Stauffer's selection as athletics director at Washburn is an interim appointment. The school is assembling a search committee to seek a permanent AD.

Due to erroneous information provided to the News, a story on a Division III Men's Basketball Committee meeting in the June 21 issue incorrectly identified a conference that was recommended for automatic qualification for the 1990 championship. The Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference is among the Division III conferences recommended for automatic qualification.

Promoter seeks sponsorships to revive all-star bowl game

It will take $350,000 to revive the Freedom Bowl All-Star Classic, which traditionally showcases college seniors from predominantly black schools, a Houston sports promoter told the Associated Press.

Lionell Day said he is trying to line up sponsors for the event, tentatively scheduled January 13 in the Astrodome.

The first Freedom Classic, which matched seniors from the Southwestern Athletic Conference against seniors from the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, was played in 1984 in Atlanta. The game moved to Washington, D.C., three years later and then to Winston-Salem, North Carolina, where it drew about 9,000 for the last game December 12, 1987.

During a June 21 news conference attended by Grambling State University coach Edward G. Robinson, SWAC Commissioner Jim Frank and MEAC Commissioner Kenneth A. Free, Day said he hoped to make the game an annual event in Houston.

The Freedom Classic will be expanded to include black players from other schools this year. Day said he plans to apply for NCAA certification in August.

CoSIDA to honor Enberg, Schulthess for work in sports

NBC Sports play-by-play announcer Dick Enberg will join sports information directors from Brigham Young University and Gettysburg College as award recipients during the annual College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) Workshop July 1-6 in Washington, D.C.

The organization also will induct three recently elected members of the CoSIDA hall of fame.

Enberg will receive the Jake Wade Award, given annually to a person in the communications field who has made an outstanding contribution to college athletics.

Also receiving honors will be retiring SID Dave Schulthess of Brigham Young, who is this year's Arch Ward Award winner, and Bob Kenworthy, SID at Gettysburg, who will receive the Warren Berg Award. Both awards honor a CoSIDA member who has made an outstanding contribution to the sports information field and has brought dignity and prestige to the profession. The Berg award specifically honors a member of the organization's college division.

New members of the hall of fame are active SIDs Howard Davis of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and John Carpenter of Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania, and former SID Gil Heard of Northern Michigan University. With the elections, the hall's membership increases to 98 sports information directors who have been honored for distinguished service to their profession, their institutions and the news media.

Nearly 1,000 people are expected to attend the CoSIDA workshop, which will conclude July 6 with a brunch honoring the award recipients. George Wine, sports information director at the University of Iowa and third vice-president of CoSIDA, will preside over the 10 a.m. brunch.

Following are biographies of the honorees:

Dick Enberg

A longtime friend of college sports, Enberg has developed an even closer relationship in recent years as spokesman for GTE, the corporate sponsor of CoSIDA's academic all-America teams.

The former Central Michigan University honor student and baseball pitcher worked as a broadcaster in California before joining NBC Sports. His assignments included the first nationally televised college basketball game: the 1968 Houston victory over UCLA in the Astrodome.

Enberg has been named national sportscaster of the year six times and is the recipient of four television Emmys.

Dave Schulthess

Schulthess, the only sports information director in Brigham Young history, is preparing to retire from his alma mater after 37 years in the post. He recently received the school's Presidential Appreciation Award.

The CoSIDA hall of fame member and former president saw approximately 250 Cougar athletes earn all-America honors during his tenure. He also handled publicity for football teams that appeared in 11 consecutive bowl games and helped his school serve as host for NCAA championship events in track, basketball and wrestling.

Schulthess also was instrumental in the development and growth of the Western Athletic Conference.

Bob Kenworthy

Like Brigham Young, Gettysburg has known only one sports information director—Bob Kenworthy, who is marking his 30th year in the job.

Kenworthy has collected numerous awards for his publications, and his football press box has been cited as a model for NCAA Division III schools. He also has served six times as president of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference's sports information directors and has been active on conference and CoSIDA committees. His contributions to athletics have earned Kenworthy recognition by the South Central Chapter of the Pennsylvania Hall of Fame.

Little League and American Legion baseball; the Chamber of Commerce, and civic, church and school programs also have benefited from Kenworthy's involvement.

Howard Davis

Davis has served at Massachusetts, his alma mater, since 1980. He also has been sports information director at Springfield College and Kenyon College.

He was CoSIDA president in 1982-83 and currently serves as a member of the organization's board of directors. Davis also is a past president of the New England and Eastern College Athletic Conference Sports Information Directors Association.

A recipient of the ECAC's Irving Marsh Service Bureau Cooperation Award, Davis was the author in 1978 of the first textbook on sports information.

John Carpenter

Carpenter is completing his 20th year at Slippery Rock, where he joined the staff after working as a newspaper sports reporter and editor and briefly as a part-time SID at Geneva College. In 1982, Slippery Rock changed his title to director of sports promotion and information.

He was the first president of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference sports information directors and he has served the conference as publicist for football, basketball

Women's Gymnastics Committee makes recommendations on sites

The Women's Gymnastics Committee will recommend sites for 1990 regional competition and the 1991 finals to the Executive Committee.

The regional sites are Central—University of Minnesota, Twin Cities; Midwest—University of Oklahoma; Northeast—Ohio State University; Southeast—University of Florida, and West—University of California, Los Angeles. The University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, is being recommended as the site for the 1991 finals.

The committee, which met June 12-15 in Monterey, California, will recommend that regional competition be conducted in one session, the same format that was used through 1987. For the past two years, competition has been conducted in two sessions.

The committee also voted to poll athletics directors and coaches regarding proposed changes in the

Raycom reports viewer increase

According to figures released recently by the A.C. Nielson Co., Big Ten Conference basketball games reached an average of 904,000 TV households during 1989, marking a 23.5 percent viewership increase over the previous season. Raycom produced 22 games that were distributed to 36 markets for the Big Ten.

The company also produced a package of 52 games on a regional basis for Purdue University; the University of Iowa, and the University of Illinois, Champaign.

Metro Conference games were seen by an average of 418,000 households, an increase of 18.4 percent over 1988 figures. Raycom's Metro package included 24 games that were distributed to 21 markets in seven states and the District of Columbia.

Metro games also were picked up by the Sunshine Network in Florida, the Madison Square Garden Network in New York and Boston's New England Sports Network.

"We are extremely happy with the television numbers," said Ralph McFillen, Metro commissioner. "They show the continued growth and development of basketball within the conference."

CoSIDA

He also has served on several CoSIDA committees and currently is on the Ethics Committee. More than 50 of his publications have won CoSIDA recognition, including five that were named "best in the nation."

Gil Heard

Heard, a member of Northern Michigan's sports hall of fame, retired at the school in July 1988 after 23 years as sports information director. He also did radio play-by-play duties for the school's football and basketball teams for 19 years.

He also served as secretary to the university's athletics council, in addition to holding memberships in CoSIDA, the Football Writers Association of America and the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

Heard helped found and serves as secretary for the Upper Peninsula Sports Hall of Fame and was honored for his efforts in helping organize the Upper Peninsula All-Star Basketball Classic for high school boys and girls.

finals format. The survey will be mailed in September. Changes in the finals format would not take effect until 1992.

A recommendation will be made that $300 be allocated to each regional advisory chair to hire an individual to help review regular-season score sheets. Only arithmetic and transcription errors may be corrected once a score sheet has been submitted. Institutions will be fined in increments of $25 for each correction, up to $100.

The committee will recommend that for regional competition, four of the eight judges shall be from outside the region of competition, one from each of the other regions.

The committee also will recommend that for the team championship, all team members (a maximum of 12) be reimbursed for transportation expenses rather than only those who compete.

American Athletic Inc. equipment, including the reflex horse, will be used at the 1990 championships.

Beginning in 1991, the last day for meets that may be used for qualification purposes will be two weeks before regional competition. It has been a week before regionals.

The committee is working to change its division representation from one Division II and one Division III representative to one representative from either Division II or Division III. This change would have to be made through Convention legislation.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q Playing-season limits are defined in some NCAA sports through maximum number of contests, while others have limits defined by maximum number of dates of competition. What is the difference?

A NCAA Bylaw 17.02 defines contests and dates of competition as follows: A contest is any game, match, exhibition or scrimmage, regardless of its formality, in which competition in a sport occurs between an intercollegiate athletics team or individual representing a member institution and any other team or individual not representing the intercollegiate athletics program of the same member institution (Bylaw 17.02.1). A date of competition is a single date on which any game(s), match(es), meet(s), exhibition(s) or scrimmage(s) takes place, regardless of its formality, between an intercollegiate athletics team or individual representing a member institution and any other team or individual not representing the intercollegiate athletics program of the same member institution (Bylaw 17.02.4).

In some sports, playing-season limits are set by determining a maximum number of contests that may be played. In others, the limits are set by determining a maximum number of dates of competition on which contests may be played.

State legislation relating to athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 143 bills from 33 states. The report includes 57 bills that have been introduced and 86 pending bills on which action has been taken since the last report (see April 26, 1989, issue of The NCAA News).

Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of June 27. The listed bills were selected for inclusion in this report from a larger pool of bills concerning sports and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia Council and the legislatures in the U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in this report by subject.

Anabolic steroids	51
Civil liability of coaches and sports officials	20
Athlete agents	11
Particular sports at individual institutions	8
Individual institutions	8
Athletics facilities	5
Ticket scalping	5
Gambling	5
Recruiting	4
Athletics trainers	4
Rules violations	3
Propositions 42 and 48	3
Miscellaneous	16

Since the last report, 22 bills in 13 states have become law. These include eight on anabolic steroids; three on athlete agents; two each on gender equity in athletics, civil actions for an injury caused by a risk inherent in the sport and recreational sports fees at Texas A&M University, and one each on ticket scalping, athletics trainers, the right to train for an athletics event, cause of action against someone who violates an NCAA rule, and illegal inducements to enroll in a university.

Second of six career counseling forums is held

The need for more active career counseling panels at NCAA Division I institutions, as well as ways to increase the efficiency of the panels, were topics of concern at the second of six career counseling panel forums sponsored by the NCAA.

Held in Dallas, Texas, June 16, the forum was administered by the Association's legislative services department as part of a three-year plan endorsed by the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee. Four more forums—two in 1990 and two in 1991—are scheduled.

NCAA legislation permits the establishment of on-campus career counseling panels to assist student-athletes in determining their options in professional sports and to provide information on player agents and related issues.

However, of the 293 NCAA Division I member institutions, only 70 have registered career counseling panels with the Association's legislative services department, according to Richard C. Perko, legislative assistant. Of the 70 panels, only a handful contribute significantly to the education of student-athletes in this area.

Accordingly, the forums are designed to encourage institutions to establish panels and provide a mechanism for increasing the efficiency of those panels already in operation.

The first two forums enabled the NCAA staff to gather information regarding the administration of panels from representatives of member institutions' panels and experts in professional athletics.

Early education key

Forum participants agreed that the process of educating student-athletes must begin during the individual's freshman year, not when the student-athlete is entering his or her final year of eligibility.

Duke University's career counseling panel, which is one of the most successful panels in the country, was a significant help to former student-athlete Anthony Dilweg, a quarterback for the Blue Devils from 1986 to 1989. Dilweg told the forum about his experiences with the panel and how it helped him make decisions about a career in professional athletics.

Perko said too many schools lose interest in their panels after one or two years when support decreases and student-athletes fail to use the panel.

Attendees whose institutions sponsor successful panels indicated that their success is the product of three to five years of work, and that much of their time is spent establishing credibility with student-athletes and coaches. In the long run, the panelists indicated, it was time well-spent.

Grant Teaff, head football coach at Baylor University, spoke at the forum and indicated that he believes career counseling panels can be an effective means to educate student-athletes in this area. He agreed that the panel at Baylor, which has been in operation for approximately three years, is showing signs of contributing to the education of student-athletes. Teaff also agreed that coaches must support the panels and that he would take this suggestion to the American Football Coaches Association.

Policies and guidelines

Legislative services staff members also provided recommended guidelines for managing and administering successful on-campus panels. The management items included:

- A recommendation that the institution's chief executive officer exert considerable influence over the panel inasmuch as he or she appoints an institution's panelists.

- A recommendation that an institution's chief executive officer consider appointing to the panel individuals from the institution's law and business schools, as well as a member of the athletics department who is familiar with professional sports.

The optional activities discussed included allowing a panel to:

- Review a professional sports contract.

- Provide guidance to a student-

Committee recommends I and II track qualifying standards

The NCAA Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee has recommended the establishment of automatic and provisional qualifying standards for the Divisions I and II indoor and outdoor championships to ensure appropriate field sizes in all events.

All student-athletes who meet the tougher automatic standards would qualify for the championships. The remaining spots—up to the maximum for each event—would be filled from a list of student-athletes meeting the less stringent provisional standards. The list would be compiled in descending order so that the best performances fill the field first.

The committee developed its recommendation at its June 20-23 meeting in Ogunquit, Maine. The proposal will be reviewed at the August meeting of the Executive Committee.

The recommendation was made in response to an Executive Committee request that the track and field committee set standards for 1990 that would yield a total number of competitors equal to the average of the past five years. Should the proposal receive Executive Committee approval, Divisions I and II coaches will receive detailed instructions for submitting qualifying entries.

The procedure for Division III qualification would remain the same.

In other action related to championships qualifying, the committee voted to accept Divisions II and III qualifying marks in either metric or imperial measurements. Indoor and outdoor qualifying standards for these divisions would be listed both metrically and imperially.

Coaches in these divisions had expressed concern that metric marks are difficult to obtain at smaller meets, thus making it necessary to convert imperial measurements to metrics. Because of differences in rounding or possible inaccuracies in conversion, committee members felt it would be better for all qualifying marks to be submitted as they are measured. Any conversion necessary to create descending-order lists or to fill fields would be done uniformly by division subcommittees.

The committee did not approve a similar provision for Division I; all Division I qualifying marks still must be submitted in metrics.

However, the Division I subcommittee did approve changes in the procedure for submitting proof-of-performance (POP) forms for qualifying. As a result of irregularities that occurred at the the 1989 outdoor championships, the forms will be revised to require both the meet director and the coach to verify the authenticity of the performance with their signatures.

In addition, all POP forms must be submitted to the host institution no later than the Thursday before the Division I outdoor championships or the Monday before the indoor championships. Coaches will not be allowed to submit POP forms after arriving at the championships site.

The full committee recommended that its official name be changed to the NCAA Men's and Women's Track and Field/Cross Country Committee. Members of the committee felt that this is a necessary part of their effort to give cross country its own identity within the track and field community.

If approved by the NCAA Council, the recommendation would advance to the 1990 NCAA Convention as Council-sponsored legislation.

In other action pertaining to cross country, the Division I subcommittee proposed a formula to yield a new field size of 184 in the women's championships. Under the formula, the top two seven-person teams in each of eight regional qualifying meets automatically would advance to the championships. In addition, six at-large teams would be chosen based on current selection criteria.

Among runners whose teams do not advance, three individuals would advance from each region, and six would earn at-large berths.

The Division I subcommittee also voted to:

- Rescind an earlier decision that would have prohibited conference championships from being conducted as part of cross country regional qualifying meets.

- Conduct a survey on the feasibility of regional qualifying for the outdoor track championships.

- Recommend the University of Oregon as the site of the 1991 outdoor championships.

The Division II subcommittee agreed to:

- Set a participation cap of 126 men and 114 women in the 1990 indoor track championships and a limit of 287 men and 176 women in the 1990 outdoor championships. The indoor cap is the same it was in 1989; the outdoor cap is based on a five-year average number of participants.

- Recommend the University of South Dakota (1990 indoor), Hampton University (1990 outdoor) and Angelo State University (1991 outdoor) as host institutions.

The Division III subcommittee recommended Smith College and North Central College as the sites of the 1990 indoor and outdoor track championships, respectively.

All championships-site recommendations are subject to Executive Committee approval.

athlete in the selection or screening of an agent.

- Request information for a student-athlete from a professional sports team or organization regarding the student-athlete's market value and potential as a professional athlete (provided no negotiations are involved).

- Provide information to enrolled student-athletes in regard to purchasing insurance against a disabling injury.

- Educate student-athlete's regarding NCAA eligibility legislation.

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz gave the keynote address at the forum and confirmed the Association's commitment to the program. In addition, Donald Fehr, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association, and Doug Allen, assistant executive director of the National Football League Players' Association, discussed their respective agent registration and screening programs.

Any institution that sponsors a panel but did not attend the forum, or any institution interested in establishing a panel, may request a copy of the agenda materials distributed at the forum by contacting the legislative services department.

The department also is updating its list of panel members at NCAA institutions in order to produce a directory. Accordingly, each institution with a panel in operation is requested to provide a current listing of each of its panel members (including addresses and telephone numbers) to the legislative services department at its earliest convenience.

LSU athletics to give $2 million to academics

Louisiana State University's athletics department will make a one-time donation of $2 million to the academic budget of the school to offset a revenue shortfall for the 1989-90 fiscal year.

The transfer of self-generated athletics funds into the university's general operating budget was approved June 30 by LSU's board of supervisors, following a request from Interim Chancellor Grady Bogue and athletics director Joe Dean.

"This money will be a major help to offset a projected $4.5 million deficit anticipated in the university's budget for next fiscal year," said Bogue.

"It is virtually unprecedented for a major-college athletics program to make a contribution of this magnitude to the academic side of the university. It will be a major boost to LSU during these hard economic times.

"More importantly," he added, "it shows LSU is composed of concerned professionals who are willing to join together in tough times."

Bogue said that in 1989-90, the university is faced with additional expenses in insurance, utilities, fee exemptions, civil service requirements, and matching commitments on grants and contracts. At the same time, he said, a projected loss in enrollment this fall would mean about $2 million less in student fees.

Despite the $2 million transfer from athletics funds, LSU still is faced with a $2.5 million deficit. Bogue said university administrators still are looking at options on how to deal with that deficit.

Dean said, "Our university administrators are faced with some very difficult financial decisions that will shape the future of acad-mics at LSU. The athletics department, at this time, is fortunate enough to be in a position to help alleviate some of the financial problems facing the university.

"Our coaches are behind this move 100 percent," he added, "because they are committed to academics. This contribution is a credit to our fans, our coaches and our athletes. They know we are all in this together."

Dean said the athletics department has a surplus during the current year because of revenue generated by sold-out arenas for football and basketball and post-season play in football, basketball and baseball. LSU was one of three schools to have played in a major bowl game and participated in the NCAA basketball tournament and the College World Series in baseball in 1988-89.

"Credit should also be given to our coaches and athletes, who, through dedication, gave us one of the most successful athletics years in LSU history," said Dean. "Our success on the playing fields also means financial success."

Championship enhancement is discussed

Discussion regarding an enhancement program for the championship highlighted the June 26-29 meeting of the Association's Division II Men's Basketball Committee, which was held in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Elements of the enhancement program might include increased revenues through a grant from the Association, live television for tournament games and possible expansion of the bracket if additional funds are provided.

The committee also discussed increasing its membership from six to eight persons, a move that would require amendment of current NCAA legislation.

The committee voted to recommend changing the dates of the 1990 championship finals from March 22 through 24 (Thursday, Friday and Saturday) to March 24 through 26 (Saturday, Sunday and Monday). The dates for regional competition will be March 16 and 17, and host institutions must obtain approval from the committee to conduct competition on other dates. The recommendations will be considered during the Division II Championships and Executive Committees' August meetings.

In addition, the committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that three-person rather than two-person officiating crews be used in all championship games and that Armstrong State be realigned from the South Atlantic to the South region.

The following conferences are being recommended to receive automatic qualification to the 1990 championship: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Great Northwest Conference, Gulf South Conference, Lone Star Conference, Mideast Collegiate Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-10 Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and the Sunshine State Conference.

In other action, the committee voted to require an administrator to accompany each team to all rounds of competition in the championship and to make team attendance at certain championship functions, such as press conferences and luncheons, mandatory.

An institution may film a championship game for coaching or historical purposes; however, it may not provide a copy of the tape or film to other teams participating in the championship.

Teams will not be allowed to take the floor for warm-ups until 30 minutes before the start of their game, and officials must be on the floor for warm-ups.

Golf committee acts on uniforms and championships qualifications

Short pants may be the next fashion statement in college golf, based on action taken by the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee during its June 26-29 meeting in Jackson Hole, Wyoming. And as early as next year, the women's championships field could be determined under new criteria.

Another recommendation would continue the regional-qualifying format for the Division I men's championships that was used for the first time in 1989.

The 'short game'

The committee approved a recommendation to the NCAA Executive Committee that team shorts be permitted for all divisions, providing they are in compliance with the host golf club's regulations.

"Team shorts," as defined by the golf committee, must be of the same color and manufacture and must have an outside length of at least 17 inches. During any single practice or competition, if one player chooses to wear shorts, all players on that team must wear shorts.

Following are actions taken by division subcommittees.

Women's subcommittee

One of the major moves made by the women's subcommittee was the recommendation that, effective with the 1990 championships, the selection process be revised to reflect the following:

- Seventeen teams will be selected, with strongest consideration given to the top 10 teams with the lowest computer differential average using 50 percent of the rounds played. Differential average is defined as the average difference between a team's score and the U.S. Golf Association course rating.

- Additional criteria that will be applied are (1) computer differential averages (50-100 percent) and other computer data such as head-to-head competition, strength of schedule and tournament finishes; (2) recommendations from regional advisory committees, and (3) regional representation. Regional representation would be applied to ensure that each region is represented by at least one team. When two or more teams are considered essentially equal, the region with the least representation would be given priority.

- The above-mentioned criteria also would be used to select the seventeen individual participants. When two or more individuals from either Division II or Division III are considered essentially equal, the division with the least representation would be given priority. For Division I, individuals must be selected to represent each of the five regions.

In other actions, the women's subcommittee will recommend that Ohio State University serve as host institution for the 1991 championships. Also, Christine Voeller of the University of Wisconsin, White-water, was elected to replace Barbara Smith as subcommittee chair effective September 1.

Golfstat, Inc., was selected by the subcommittee to compile computer statistics for the 1989-90 golf season.

Division I men

- A recommendation will be made to the Executive Committee that regional qualifying continue as conducted for the 1989 championships.

- The committee voted to recommend that the number of participants in regional tournaments increase as follows: East—from 108 to 120; Central—from 100 to 111; West—from 85 to 93. Thirty teams and six individuals will advance to the championships as in the 1989 tournament, with two individuals being selected from each regional.

- Approved was a recommendation that the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, be moved from District 3 North to District 3 South for selection purposes.

- The following will be recommended as regional hosts and sites for the 1990 championships: East—Georgia Southern College, Savannah Inn and Country Club; Central—Ohio State University, Scarlet Golf Course; West—New Mexico State University, University Golf Course.

- The University of New Mexico will be recommended as the site for the 1992 championships.

Division II men

Abilene Christian University will be recommended as host for the 1990 championships, with the tournament to be held at Fairway Oaks Golf Course.

Division III men

- It will be recommended that the following teams be realigned from District 2 to District 1: Clarkson University, Hamilton College, Hartwick College, New Paltz State University College, New York University, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Skidmore College, U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, Union College (New York), Utica College and Yeshiva University.

Mark P. Jones promoted

Mark P. Jones has been promoted to the position of director of enforcement, effective July 10. Jones replaces R. Daniel Beebe, who recently was named commissioner of the Ohio Valley Conference.

Jones has been an enforcement representative with the NCAA since March 1986.

A graduate of the University of Missouri, Columbia, he was a three-year starter on the Tiger football team.

Jones attended law school at the University of Missouri, Kansas City, and received a master's degree in athletics administration from his alma mater.

Mark P. Jones

Before joining the national office staff, Jones was an assistant football coach at Tennessee Technological University.

Disk-based Manual ready

The NCAA Manual now is available on computer diskettes from the Association's publishing department. Also available this month are the 1989 NCAA Football Statisticians' Manual and football ditto forms.

In addition, the Divisions I, II and III Operating Manuals will be available later this month.

The Manual is available for $10 on six 360K, 5¼-inch diskettes in an ASCII format. It also will be available at a cost to be determined later on three 3½-inch, 720K diskettes. The diskettes only are compatible with IBM personal computers.

This year's edition of the NCAA Football Statisticians' Manual contains official statistics rules, including special interpretations and approved rulings. The book sells for $2.75.

Football dittos—quickie statistics

($9 for 25 copies), final team statistics ($6 for 12), final individual statistics ($6 for 12), official scoring summary ($6 for 12), defensive statistics ($6 for 12) and drive chart ($9 for 25) are available in individual units or as a complete set (in the quantities listed above) for $30.

The first editions of the Divisions I, II and III Operating Manuals, which contain specific operating bylaws (extracted from the "master" Manual) that relate to the primary responsibilities of coaches, athletics administrators and others involved with the day-to-day application of NCAA regulations, also will be available later this month for $7 each.

To order these or any other NCAA publications, contact the NCAA circulation department, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201 (913/831-8300).

College freshmen to get booklet on alcohol abuse

Again this fall, as many as 400,000 college freshmen across the country will receive a booklet from the NCAA about alcohol abuse.

Copies of the booklet, "News About Booze," will be included in "welcome packs" that are distributed by Host Communications, Inc., to incoming freshmen at college campuses. It is the NCAA's third year of involvement in the orientation-packet project.

The booklet was developed and produced by Hazelden Health Promotion Services of Minneapolis, a 40-year-old nonprofit organization that provides rehabilitation, education and professional services for chemical dependency and related addictive behavior.

The 20-page pamphlet addresses prevention, symptoms, consequences, intervention and treatment of alcohol abuse. The authors, Howard I. Thorsheim and Bruce B.

Roberts, hold faculty positions in the department of psychology at St. Olaf College.

According to the booklet's foreword, the NCAA is providing information about alcohol abuse to freshmen because of its member institutions' concern about the misuse of drugs by college athletes and nonathletes alike.

The foreword notes, "The abuse of alcohol is the most pervasive drug problem on college campuses today. Alcohol misuse disrupts lives, cuts short promising careers, and causes a variety of physiological and psychological damage."

Funds for the booklet were provided by NCAA corporate sponsors, including American Airlines, American Express, Coca-Cola USA, The Gillette Company, Greyhound Lines Inc., Mitsubishi Electronics, National Car Rental, Oldsmobile, Pizza Hut and Worldtek Travel.

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed Doris Soladay, Syracuse University, to the NCAA Council, replacing Della Durant, retired from Pennsylvania State University.

b. Assigned term expiration dates to the student-athlete members of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee as follows: September 1, 1990: David Berkoff, Harvard University; Leslie Daland, University of Southern California; Mark Deady, Indiana University; Bloomington; Forrest Barnes, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona; Kathleen Fitzgibbons, Bentley College; Jeffrey Hayes, North Carolina Central University; Robert Lipp, Ohio Northern University; Julie Zuraw, Byrn Mawr College. September 1991: Kristi Groteke, Manhattan College; Richard Lucas, University of Oregon; Sue Nissen, Central Michigan University; Todd Sandroni, University of Mississippi; Wendy Scholtens, Vanderbilt University; Cindy Erickson, Lake Superior State University; Matthew Galvin, Skidmore College; Ian Grover, Simpson College.

c. Directed the staff to draft amendments to Bylaws 21.3.1 and 21.3.23, for consideration by the Council in August, to clarify that one of the three Council representatives on the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee shall serve as chair of that committee.

d. Appointed Alfreeda Goff, Virginia

Commonwealth University, to the Division I Women's Basketball Committee, replacing Stanley J. Morrison, resigned from the University of California, Santa Barbara.

e. Appointed the following to serve as a special Council subcommittee to assist the executive director in developing a certification/peer-review program for intercollegiate athletics: Anthony F. Ceddia, Shippensburg

Conference No. 9
June 22, 1989

University of Pennsylvania; John M. Schael, Washington University (Missouri); Robert R. Snell, Kansas State University, and Charlotte West, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale.

f. Reviewed the Council policy that a non-NCAA sport used to meet the sports sponsorship criteria for division classification must be an Olympic sport; declined to revise that policy to permit rodeo to be used for that purpose.

g. Clarified the Council's 1988 action extending the timetable for the work of the Council Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics to specify that the extension was for calendar year 1989, and thus the committee will conclude its work by January 1990; agreed that all such extensions granted to special committees should be considered to include the next calendar year, unless otherwise specified.

h. Confirmed that a review of the Association's committee-appointment procedures will be a major agenda item for the Administrative Committee's in-person meeting August 1 in San Diego, California.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

Appointed Paul H. Brand, University of Alabama, Huntsville, to the Credentials Committee for the 1990 Convention, replacing Fran Curci, no longer at the University of Tampa.

3. Acting for the Council and the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Noted that the Administrative Committee and the President Commission's executive committee will meet during the afternoon and evening August 4, upon conclusion of the Council meeting in San Diego.

b. Scheduled Administrative Committee conferences for the following dates: July 13, August 1 (in conjunction with the Council meeting), August 13 (in conjunction with the Executive Committee meeting), August 31, September 14, September 28, October 15 (in conjunction with the Council meeting).

October 26, November 9, December 3 and December 28. Telephone conferences will be at 2 p.m. Central time except August 31, for which a time will be determined.

4. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Approved 171 summer basketball leagues (115 for men and 56 for women) per Bylaws 14.8.5.2 and 30.11, as reported earlier in The NCAA News.

(2) Granted a waiver per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(b) to permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in basketball competition in the 1989 Maccabiah Games.

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(c) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in basketball tryouts and competition involving national teams.

(4) Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1-(d) and 14.8.6.2-(b) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in competition as part of the 1989 Alabama Sports Festival, Cornhusker State Games (Nebraska), Colorado State Games, Empire State Games (New York) and New Mexico State Games.

(5) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.2-(c) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in foreign tours sponsored by the Timothy Project and Athletes in Action (all basketball).

(6) Granted a waiver of the transfer residence requirement per Bylaw 14.9.2.2-(c) for a student-athlete to transfer to Texas A&M University from an institution whose football program was placed on probation with sanctions that would preclude the team for participating in postseason competition during all of the remaining seasons of the student-athlete's eligibility, as recommended by the Committee on Infractions.

(7) Granted approval per Bylaw 15.2.4.2-(d) for Indiana University, Bloomington, to exempt from counting in the permissible amount of a full grant-in-aid for a student-athlete a state government grant awarded to the child of a disabled veteran.

(8) Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.13 as follows:

(a) East Carolina University, to provide a student-athlete expenses to travel home to his brother's funeral.

(b) University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, to send flowers to a student-athlete who was recuperating in a hospital from a gunshot wound.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee:

Denied a recommendation by the Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee that "special recognition awards" be given to two representatives of a member institution that has hosted recent NCAA championships.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee:

Eligibility

1. Branch schools. Reviewed several recommendations from the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee and took the following actions:

a. Agreed that the definition of branch school in NCAA Bylaw 14.02.1 be revised to state "...does not itself award degrees..." in order to emphasize that another entity, the parent institution, is the degree-granting authority; referred this issue to the NCAA Legislative Review Committee for incorporation in the next edition of the NCAA Manual.

b. Did not support a recommendation from the Academic Requirements Committee that a member institution be allowed to provide a student-athlete financial aid to attend the institution's branch school under certain specified conditions; suggested that such legislation would not be appropriate from a recruiting standpoint because it could result in a competitive advantage for those member institutions that have branch schools.

Conference No. 8
May 18, 1989

c. Did not support a recommendation from the Academic Requirements Committee that legislation be developed to amend Bylaw 14.1.5.2.5 (cooperative educational exchange program), noting that the proposed legislation would permit a student-athlete to participate under certain specified conditions in athletics at the parent campus while solely attending a branch school, or while simultaneously attending the branch school and the parent campus; suggested that such legislation would not be appropriate from a recruiting standpoint because it could result in a competitive advantage for those member institutions that have branch schools.

Transfer eligibility

2. One-year residence requirement (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 14.6.5.3.6-(c), a previous committee interpretation (Item No. 15-a of the minutes of the committee's March 23, 1987, conference) and Bylaw 14.6.5.1.2 in reference to a partial qualifier who attended a four-year institution (that did not sponsor intercollegiate football) for one semester and then transferred to a Division I-A member institution; agreed that normally such a student-athlete would be subject to the one-year residence requirement set forth in Bylaw 14.6.5.1.2, which would take precedence over the waiver provisions of Bylaw 14.6.5.3.6; noted, however, that in this instance the student-athlete could be considered to have met the one-year residence requirement at the end of the spring term at the Division I-A institution, since that institution relied on a conference interpretation (reviewed with the national office) that the combination of the fall term at the first four-year college and the spring term at the second institution would be sufficient to meet the one-year residence requirement; recommended to the Council that the waiver provisions of Bylaw 14.6.5.3 be amended to note that they are available in the first year of residence only to qualifiers.

Tryouts

3. Outside organization's tryout camp (Division I). Confirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 13.11.1 would preclude a member institution or conference from conducting a tryout camp devoted to agility, flexibility, speed and strength tests for prospective student-athletes; further, agreed that a member institution's staff members may not attend such a camp sponsored by an outside organization if the camp invites only coaches from selected member institutions or conferences to attend such tryouts.

Contest limitations

4. Baseball contests during the summer (Division I). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 17.2.4.1 (Division I baseball contest limitations) and determined that under this legislation, any number of student-athletes from a Division I member institution's intercollegiate baseball team would be permitted to play on the same team during the summer (after the completion of the National Collegiate Division I Baseball Championship) without affecting the institution's adherence to playing- and practice-season limitations.

Growing strong

Growing taller by the day, the Association's new national office building continues to take shape in southern Overland Park, Kansas. At press time, it was anticipated that the move into the new headquarters building would be completed by late February or early March 1990.

Report released on injury trends in spring sports

The annual report on injury trends in intercollegiate spring sports has been released by the Association's Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The report reflects data collected on baseball, men's lacrosse, women's lacrosse, women's softball and — for the first time — spring football.

Earlier this year, The NCAA News published reports on injury trends in fall sports (see the February 1 issue of the News) and winter sports (May 3).

"The information contained in this summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the NCAA Injury Surveillance System," said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences. "No statistical analyses of these data have been performed, and the information represents a descriptive reflection of injury tendencies in the sports mentioned."

The NCAA Injury Surveillance System (ISS) was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics.

Data are collected each year from a representative sample of NCAA member institutions, and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

The committee's goal is to reduce injury rates through suggested rules changes, additional protective equipment or coaching techniques.

No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics-injury literature. Therefore, the information contained in this article must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the ISS.

Sampling

Exposure and injury data were submitted weekly by athletics trainers from institutions selected to represent a cross section of NCAA membership. The cross section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and the four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions.

Dick said it was important to note that the system does not identify every injury that occurs at the institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross section of NCAA institutions.

Exposures

An athlete exposure (A-E) is defined as one athlete participating in one practice or game where he or she is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury.

For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury is defined as one that:

- Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game;
- Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and
- Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation for one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Each injury was described in detail, including type of injury, body part injured, severity of injury, type of field, field condition and special equipment used by the participant.

Injury Rate

An injury rate, Dick explained, is a ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete exposures in that category. This value then is multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete exposures.

For example, six reportable injuries during a period of 563 athlete exposures would give an injury rate of (six divided by 563 and then multiplied by 1,000) 10.7 injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures.

Additional information on the Injury Surveillance System is available from Dick at the national office.

Following are the results of the spring-sports survey.

More gridders hurt in spring than in fall, surveys say

Data supplied by member institutions as part of the NCAA's Injury Surveillance System reveal higher injury rates for spring football than for fall football.

The total injury results show an injury rate over 60 percent higher in spring football (four more injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures) than in the fall. Further analysis shows that most of this difference was reflected in injuries during practices as compared to injuries during games (a game in spring football was defined as the final intrasquad scrimmage). This result may be influenced by the more highly concentrated heavy-contact practices of the spring season.

The football seasons' top three body parts injured and types of injuries were identical and represented approximately the same percentage of total injuries. While the percentage of injuries that required surgery was only slightly higher in spring football, the percentage of more severe injuries (defined as causing a student-athlete to miss seven or more days) was 10 percent greater.

The increased injury rate in spring football appears to consist of an increased incidence of "typical" football injuries rather than a set of injuries unique to spring football.

The data are from a sample of approximately 17 percent of all institutions that sponsored fall and spring football in Divisions I-A, I-AA and II during 1988-89. Spring football was added to the NCAA Injury Surveillance System (ISS) in 1988.

All information must be evaluated using the definitions and methodology of the ISS, which are reported elsewhere in this issue of the News.

It is important to note that this system does not identify every football injury that occurs at NCAA institutions. Rather, it collects a sample representing a cross section of NCAA institutions. It also should be noted that not all schools that submitted data for fall football also submitted information from spring practices.

The fall season begins in mid-August and can last up to 20 weeks if a January bowl bid is extended. While most teams go through intense double sessions in preseason, heavy-contact practices may be limited during the traditional 10- to 12-game season.

The spring season involves a total of 20 practice sessions, only 15 of which can involve contact. One of the contact sessions usually involves an intrasquad scrimmage. This scrimmage is classified as a game in the accompanying table.

These injury data will continue to be monitored on an annual basis in an effort to reduce injuries in collegiate athletics.

Brigham Young University's Mike Smith, drafted by the Boston Celtics, was the 13th player selected in the June 27 draft. Taken by the Miami Heat with the 45th pick was Scott Haffner of the University of Evansville. Washington State University's Brian Quinn was taken by the New York Knickerbockers. He was the 50th player selected.

Austin Peay State University officials announced June 27 that the recently completed "Get in the Game" fund-raising campaign netted $305,472—well above the projected goal of $250,000 and $79,000 more than a 1988 effort by the Governors Club.

"What makes this drive so much more meaningful this year is (that) it followed an overhaul of the Governors Club—the separation of tickets and contributions," noted Tim Weiser, Austin Peay athletics director. "We realized (the separation) could hurt us in the short run, but the wounds we thought might occur never really materialized."

12 I-A schools discuss feasibility of Eastern conference

Discussions of the feasibility of forming a conference are under way among representatives of most of the Eastern independent Division I-A football schools, including four schools in the South.

Six of nine Division I-A schools in the Northeast are involved: Boston College; the University of Pittsburgh; Rutgers University, New Brunswick; Syracuse University; Temple University; and West Virginia University.

Officials from those schools have met with representatives of two service academies and four Southern independents—Florida State University, the University of Miami (Florida), the University of South Carolina and Virginia Polytechnic Institute—to determine whether a football-only or an all-sports conference is possible.

"We could find out that, A, it will work, or B, it won't work; and if the latter turns out to be true, then we can move on to something else," said Temple athletics director Charles Theokas, who emphasized that it is premature to consider the schools' deliberations as "anything other than talk."

"At least, there are groupings of schools that are talking about doing something, if only in football," he said.

According to The New York Times, the U.S. Military Academy and U.S. Naval Academy have shown some interest in joining such a league but may be prevented from doing so because of the academies' present scheduling policies. Theokas confirmed that Army and Navy have participated in the discussions.

The only Northeast independent that has not participated is Pennsylvania State University, which has been described as a longtime opponent of the formation of a football-only league.

Theokas said the interested Northeast independents, which already cooperate on such matters as assigning referees to officiate games, decided at one of their regular meetings to invite the Southern independents to participate in discussions about forming a conference.

Should the six Northeast independents join with the four Southern schools, the resulting 10-member conference could take advantage of the large television markets along the Eastern seaboard and forge ties with a postseason bowl game.

"That grouping makes a lot of sense to some of us, but there are inherent problems as well," Theokas said.

"Conference affiliation makes sense," Theokas said. "If you look at the country and block off the areas where there are conferences... you'd see a void in the Northeast."

The region is ripe for the formation of a major football conference largely because 30 percent of the nation's television markets are in the Northeast, according to Theokas. To date, the Northeast independents have not made significant inroads into those audiences, while the Southern independents are isolated from large markets.

Another attraction of conference play would be enhanced competition. Theokas believes that the rivalries that already exist among the independents would become even more important with conference standings at stake.

Other positive aspects of a conference would include the creation of a statistics bureau for the member schools and opportunities to honor student-athletes for athletics and academic achievements.

A potential roadblock to formation of a conference, however, is the difficulty of organizing an all-sports league.

"The ideal situation is to have an all-sports conference," Theokas said. "To develop a football conference, although it would be strong, wouldn't be as strong as an all-sports conference."

Because three of the six Northeast schools (Boston College, Pittsburgh and Syracuse) are members of the Big East Conference and the other three are members of the Atlantic 10 Conference, affiliation with one of those groups may be a possibility, Theokas said.

However, creation of an all-sports conference within the next three to four years will be more difficult than creation of a football-only conference, he concedes.

Discussions among the independent schools have advanced to the point that committees have been formed to study television potential, the all-sports concept and other ideas, Theokas confirmed.

"I would think that within a couple of months, we'll be pulling together that information and looking at it collectively," he said.
