Nevada court orders hearing on injunction

Nevada's Supreme Court ruled September 28 that the NCAA is not liable for paying legal fees found to be in excess of $340,000 incurred by University of Nevada, Las Vegas, basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian in a 12-year fight against possible suspension from coaching, and it ordered a hearing in Clark County District Court on the validity of an injunction against UNLV that has allowed Tarkanian to continue coaching at UNLV.

Justices ruled on motions filed earlier this year by the Association and, in response to the NCAA, by Tarkanian.

The Association's motion sought to dissolve a district court injunction against the NCAA that prevented Tarkanian's suspension when UNLV's men's basketball program was placed on probation more than 10 years ago and to vacate the awarding of attorney's fees in favor of Tarkanian.

The motion also asked that the court consider whether the injunction against UNLV should continue.

In response, Tarkanian filed a counter-motion seeking payment by the NCAA of the attorney's fees he has incurred as a result of the litigation and arguing that the injunction against UNLV be continued.

Last December, the U.S. Supreme Court, on appeal by the NCAA, ruled that the Association had not violated Tarkanian's right to due process during its investigation and hearings because the NCAA as a private organization is not a state actor subject to suit for alleged violation of the due-process protection afforded in the U.S. Constitution.

The U.S. Supreme Court remanded the case to the Nevada Supreme Court for review with a mandate to handle the case in accordance with the U.S. court's findings.

To rule on the merits of the injunction against UNLV prior to a hearing by the lower court, "with its superior fact-finding abilities," would be inappropriate, Nevada Supreme Court justices said in the ruling.

According to the Associated Press, the state Supreme Court acknowledged the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling favoring the NCAA, saying, "That determination unquestionably stands as the law of the case, and this court, as well as the district court, is bound to carry the (U.S.) court's determination into effect according to its mandate."

"Therefore, we conclude that,"

Faculty reps urged to help schools seek sports reforms

Faculty athletics representatives meeting last week in Kansas City were urged to help their institutions be "proactive" in seeking meaningful reform in intercollegiate athletics.

The advice was offered by NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, whose speech opened the fall meeting of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association (FARA) September 29. The faculty representatives also were briefed by representatives of NCAA committees and the national office staff about current Association activities pertaining to initial-eligibility standards—including the controversy surrounding Proposal No. 42—and other academic issues.

Schultz said universities and colleges need to take a leadership role in dealing with problems confronting intercollegiate athletics, particularly as Congress begins to involve itself in those issues.

The process of building a consensus among NCAA member institutions begins at each individual campus, where the faculty representative can help the institution develop its own position, he said. Schultz agreed with a representative in the audience who suggested that faculty can contribute an "objective" view from the classroom to the debate.

Schultz devoted much of his speech to oft-repeated themes, including his contentions that media unfairly paint all student-athletes with their focus on the actions of a few and that colleges and universities are better equipped than the Federal government to deal with the prob-

Schultz joins national commission seeking reforms in college sports

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz has joined a national commission established by the Knight Foundation to develop and build support for reforms in college athletics.

Establishment of the commission, chaired by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president emeritus of the University of Notre Dame, was announced September 27 at a Washington, D.C., news conference. William C. Friday, president emeritus of the University of North Carolina System, will be vice-chair.

Other members of the commission will be selected later, according to Creed Black, foundation president, who said, "We're looking for a balanced and representative group, but we want it small enough to make sure it's not unwieldy."

Schultz said, "I am pleased to have been asked to serve on this commission. I believe there are areas of intercollegiate athletics that could be improved, and some of the improvement can come only through major reforms. To the extent that this commission takes an independent, balanced and informed view, it has the potential to make meaningful recommendations to the NCAA membership."

Foundation Chair James L. Knight said before the official announcement of the commission was made, "We have a lot of sports fans on our board, and we fully recognize that intercollegiate athletics has a legitimate and proper role to play in college and university life."

"Our interest is not to abolish that role but to preserve it by putting it back in perspective. We hope this commission can strengthen the hands of those who want to curb the abuses that are shaking public confidence in the integrity of not just big-time intercollegiate athletics, but the whole institution of higher

Convention legislation on Council's agenda

Legislation for the 1990 NCAA Convention will be discussed at the fall meeting of the NCAA Council October 16-18 in Indianapolis. The meeting represents the Council's final opportunity to sponsor proposals for the 84th annual Convention January 7-10 in Dallas.

Among the key legislative issues to be reviewed by the Council will be these:

- Whether to amend or delay the effective date of Proposal No. 42 as adopted at the 1989 Convention. A specific proposal to be considered by the Council would eliminate consideration of financial aid in the rule, allowing nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers in both Divisions I and II to receive nonathletically related financial aid.

The Council also will consider the Presidents Commission's reaction to the Proposal No. 42 issues from the Commission's October 3-4 meeting.

- Legislation to implement the new legislative calendar that is scheduled to go into effect in February 1990, as recommended by the Legislative Review Committee. The Council also will take into account the Presidents Commission actions regarding the recommendations relating to the legislative calendar that have been developed by the Commission's Advisory Committee to Review the NCAA Governance Process.

- Legislation to permit the Council to adopt certain noncontroversial amendments in the interim between Conventions, as the Executive Committee now can do with executive regulations in Bylaw 31.

The Council also will receive a report from the Presidents Commission of other actions taken in that group's meeting, including any legislative actions that the Commission decides to offer regarding the National Forum and the related studies conducted by the American Institutes for Research.

Committees and more

Among other agenda items are several dealing with committee appointments and membership classification:

- The Council will appoint individuals to vacancies on the Council-

The first televised football game was commemorated September 30 at Waynesburg College, which played at Fordham University September 30, 1939, before NBC television cameras. The game, played on Randall's Island, was telecast to several thousand viewers in New York City. The signal carried about 50 miles.

appointed committees set forth in Bylaw 21.3. Most of those vacancies are term expirations occurring September 1, 1990, although a few are current openings.

Discount fares available for '90 Convention

The NCAA travel service, Worldtek Travel, has announced special discount fares available from several airlines for delegates traveling to the 1990 NCAA Convention in Dallas.

Special discounts ranging from 40 to 65 percent off normal economy fares on selected carriers, with no restrictions, have been secured. Additional discounts of up to 75 percent are available with restrictions.

Reservations for these special rates to Dallas can be made by calling the NCAA travel service. The 24-hour, toll-free number is 800/243-1800. For those living in Alaska, Hawaii or Puerto Rico, the number to call collect is 203/562-6222.

Arrangements can be made with the travel service to have tickets billed directly to the individual or to the member institution.

Tournament director appointed

William R. Hancock, assistant commissioner of the Big Eight Conference, has been named director of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Hancock will serve as staff liaison to the institutions, conferences and local organizing committees that serve as hosts for all sessions of the championship. Other responsibilities include conducting site surveys, processing budgets and financial reports, public relations, marketing, and game management.

Hancock also will assist in the development and implementation of policies, procedures and special projects as assigned by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

A 1972 graduate of the University of Oklahoma, Hancock worked as the Sooners' assistant sports information director and later was editor of the Hobart (Oklahoma) Democrat-Chief and Big Eight Conference service bureau director before becoming Big Eight assistant commissioner in 1983.

Hancock's responsibilities as assistant commissioner included championship events in 20 men's and women's sports, promotion and corporate sponsorships, television, and scheduling. In addition, he served as the liaison for coaches' groups and the conference office.

their current form in last week's issue of The NCAA News.

• The Council will review all circumstances resulting in institutions' being placed in probationary membership status or restricted membership status for this year. That will be an annual Council involvement designed to assure that institutions are complying with the minimum requirements for sports sponsorship in their respective divisions, especially as those requirements relate to the institutions' women's athletics programs.

In its separate session, the Division I Steering Committee will take up current plans for a certification program for Division I athletics programs. The current intention is to have such a program begin on a voluntary, pilot basis, which would

Black said he expected the selection of the full commission and a staff would be completed by the end of the year and hoped the work of the commission could be wrapped up within two years.

He emphasized that the commission would be an independent body with no mandate except to make whatever additional study of the problem it considers necessary and then propose specific, workable solutions.

NCAA Bylaw 13.6—official (paid) visits

Member institutions are reminded of the following official interpretations regarding official paid visits provided prospective student-athletes per Bylaw 13.6.

Duration of visit

The 48-hour period of the official campus visit as set forth in Bylaw 13.6.2 begins at the time the prospect arrives on the institution's campus, as distinguished from the time the prospect's transportation for the visit is initiated, or the time of the prospect's arrival at the airport or elsewhere in the community.

This enables the prospect to receive a full 48-hour visit to the institution's campus, regardless of the transportation arrangements involved. The prospect's transportation to and from the campus under such circumstances must be by direct route, without delay for personal reasons or entertainment purposes; further, the institution may not pay any expenses for entertainment (other than the actual and reasonable cost of meals) in conjunction with the prospect's transportation to or from its campus.

Finally, the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.2.1 stipulate that at the completion of the 48-hour visit, the prospect must depart the institution's campus immediately; otherwise, the institution may not pay any expenses incurred by the prospect upon departure from the institution's campus, including the cost of the individual's transportation home.

Transportation

The provision of transportation for prospects by helicopter or limousine is contrary to the provisions of Bylaw 13.5.2.1, inasmuch as these modes of transportation would exceed the normal standard of automobile and commercial-air transportation and would represent excessive entertainment of a prospective student-athlete.

In accordance with Bylaw 13.5.2.4, any member of an institution's athletics department staff may provide transportation for the prospective student-athlete between the campus and the bus or train station or major airport nearest the campus on the occasion of the prospect's expense-paid visit. An institution also may provide local transportation between its campus and the nearest airport for the parents or relatives of a prospect making an official visit.

Publicity

The provisions of Bylaw 13.10.3 prohibit a member institution from publicizing or arranging publicity of the visit of a prospective student-athlete to the institution's campus. As set forth in Bylaw 13.10.4, a member institution may not introduce a visiting prospect at any function or gathering (e.g., the institution's sports awards banquet or an intercollegiate athletics contest) that is attended by representatives of the news media or is open to the general public.

In addition, it would not be permissible for a visiting prospect's name or picture to appear on an institution's scoreboard or electronic screen that is viewed by those in attendance at an intercollegiate contest.

Entertainment

Under the provisions of Bylaws 13.4.1 and 13.6.5, a prospective student-athlete's entertainment shall take place only in the area within a 30-mile radius of the institution's main campus, and such entertainment must be at a scale comparable to that of normal student life and not excessive in nature.

Additionally, in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.5.5 and an NCAA Council-approved interpretation, it is permissible to provide entertainment for a prospective student-athlete (as well as his or her brother or sister and parents or legal guardian) on an expense-paid visit in the form of a luncheon, dinner or brunch at the home of an institutional staff member (e.g., the director of athletics, a coach, a faculty member or the institution's president), it being understood that the entertainment is on a scale comparable to that of normal student life.

Finally, the provisions of Bylaws 13.4.1, 13.6.5.1 and 13.6.6 would preclude a member institution from providing additional housing and meals for the brother or sister of a prospective student-athlete on an official visit; however, the Council has agreed that these provisions would not preclude the brother or sister of a prospective student-athlete from staying in the same room, or from receiving transportation to view off-campus practice and competition sites within a 30-mile radius of the institution's campus with the prospective student-athlete or the prospect's parents (or legal guardian), provided the arrangement does not result in the member institution's utilizing any additional funds.

The Division I committee also will consider again whether it wants to recommend legislation to permit a student-athlete to receive institutionally administered financial assistance and Pell Grant moneys up to the cost of attendance at the institution.

The Council is scheduled to receive reports from the Academic Requirements Committee, the Special Committee to Review Amateurism Issues, the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports, the Eligibility Committee, the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, the Committee on Infractions, the Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Exceptions, the Legislative Review Committee, the Committee on Review and Planning, and the Special Events Committee.

Also on the agenda are the customary actions involving the decisions of the Administrative Committee and the Legislation and Interpretations Committee, membership waivers and other requests, and initial planning for the business sessions at the 1990 Convention.

Highlights of the Council's actions will appear in the October 23 issue of The NCAA News. A summary of all voting actions will appear in a November issue.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than October 23, 1989.

Women's Softball Committee: Replacement for Linda L. Arena, Wittenberg University, resigned from the committee, effective January 1, 1990. Appointee must be a Division III representative of women's soccer.

For purposes of Bylaw 13.6.5.2, complimentary admissions provided to prospective student-athletes by Division I member institutions must be issued only through a pass list, thus precluding hard tickets from being issued to prospective student-athletes or the student host during the prospect's official visit to a Division I member institution.

Complimentary admissions

Under the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.5.4, an institution may provide a student host with a maximum of $20 (Division I) or $10 (Divisions II and III) for each day of a prospective student-athlete's official campus visit for the purpose of covering the actual costs of entertaining the prospect. The money provided to a student host is for entertainment purposes only and may not be used for the purchase of souvenirs such as T-shirts or other institutional mementos. Also, each day of the visit is defined as a 24-hour period. Therefore, the maximum entertainment amount for the 48-hour visit would be $40 in Division I and $20 in Divisions II and III.

Student hosts

Additionally, according to a Council-approved interpretation, a member institution currently may provide a prospect limited entertainment (e.g., boat ride, horseback ride) that may involve costs beyond the student host's expense allowance, provided the entertainment is not "excessive" and any additional cost is handled directly by the institution. The establishment of a specific monetary limit on entertainment expenses during official paid visits will be addressed through Council-sponsored legislation to be considered by the membership at the 1990 NCAA Convention.

A nonqualifier per Bylaw 14.02.9.3 or a partial qualifier per Bylaw 14.02.9.2 would not be permitted to serve as a student host in Divisions I and II during his or her first academic year in residence under the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.5.4.2.

An institution is permitted to identify more than one student-athlete as a student host for a prospect per Bylaw 13.6.5.4.1, but no more than $20 per day may be allocated among all of the student hosts for one prospect, and only one student host may receive the complimentary admission to accompany the prospect to a campus athletics event.

Number of visits
Member institutions in all divisions are reminded of the application of Bylaw 13.6.1.3, which relates to the limitations on the total number of visits set forth in Bylaws 13.6.1.1 and 13.6.1.1.2 (i.e., that a prospect may accept not more than one expense-paid visit to a member institution's campus, and in Divisions I and II to not more than five member institutions).

These limitations would apply separately to the period in which the prospect is in high school and to the period beginning September 1 following the prospect's completion of high school. Accordingly, the opportunity to visit five member institutions exists when the prospect is in high school, and the opportunity to make five additional visits exists beginning September 1 following the prospect's completion of high school.

In this regard, a four-year college transfer student (as well as a two-year college transfer student) would be considered a prospective student-athlete per Bylaw 13.1.1.3 and could receive a paid visit only if it is counted within the five-visit limitation for the period beginning September 1 following the completion of high school enrollment.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee took the following actions:

Advertising/endorsements

1. Use of manufacturer's logos on ice hockey uniforms and apparel. Reviewed the application of the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 12.5.4 to a situation in the sport of ice hockey in which players from member institutions' teams have been wearing uniforms and apparel that display logos and manufacturer's labels that exceed the limitations of Bylaw 12.5.4; denied a request to "grandfather" any ice hockey uniforms and apparel purchased by the member institutions as of this date from the limitations of Bylaw 12.5.4; agreed that all ice hockey uniforms and apparel must be in compliance with the limitations of Bylaw 12.5.4 at this time; suggested that a general report of member institutions' ice hockey team members wearing uniforms and apparel displaying logos and manufacturer's labels that exceed the limitations of Bylaw 12.5.4 should be made to the NCAA Eligibility Committee for its consideration.

Financial aid

2. Waiver of fees for prospective student-athletes entering member institutions. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 15.2.1.4 and agreed that membership in a select group of incoming students (all of whom apparently will participate in extracurricular activities) does not appear to be an appropriate standard (under NCAA legislation) to serve as the basis for waiving admission fees for student-athletes; referred this matter to the division steering committees for further consideration.

Recruiting

3. Special seating arrangements during official and unofficial visits. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 13.6.5.1 (official visits) and 13.7.2.1 (unofficial visits), and agreed that special seating arrangements (e.g., special seating on the playing field or floor, team bench or dugout, or in a member institution's "sky box") for prospective student-athletes involved in either official or unofficial visits is a matter that should be left to the discretion of the institution and its playing conference, if any.

Promotional activities

4. Third-party distributorship arrangements regarding highlight films. Agreed that the provisions of Bylaws 12.5.1.1(d) and 12.5.1.7 would not preclude a third-party distributor of institutional highlight films from receiving a percentage of the revenue produced by the sale of the films; confirmed that an institution may determine its contractual arrangements with a third-party distributor of institutional products involving the use of student-athletes' names or pictures, and those arrangements would not be subject to limitations under NCAA legislation.

Advertising/endorsements

5. Student-athlete authoring magazine article. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw

12.5.2.1 and agreed that a student-athlete may utilize a pseudonym in writing a magazine article about the individual's athletics experience at a collegiate institution, noting that under such circumstances the individual is not acting in a capacity to promote the individual's athletics ability or reputation; further, agreed that no reference to the student-athlete's institution could be used in the article.

Coaches—high school/junior college

6. Institution's women's golf coach employed as high school golf coach (Division I). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 11.4.1 and a previous committee decision (reference: Item No. 14 of the minutes of the committee's November 18, 1987, conference), and determined that a Division I member institution's women's golf coach is permitted to serve in that capacity if the individual also serves as a men's golf coach at a local high school that sponsors only men's golf, even though a female student tries out and competes on the team; noted that in accordance with state high school rules, the team remains a "men's team."

Initial eligibility

7. Activities related to qualifier, partial qualifier and nonqualifier (Divisions I and II). Approved the accompanying initial-eligibility chart indicating how Bylaw 14.3 affects activities in which qualifiers, partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers may be involved; recommended that the NCAA Legislative Review Committee incorporate this chart into the NCAA Manual; requested that the Council review its November 20, 1986, interpretation prohibiting participation on a national team by nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers during their initial academic year.

Testing services to assist NCAA in analyzing data on academics

The NCAA, with the aid of national testing-service organizations, plans to shed some light on the debate on freshman eligibility and academic performance of athletes, a debate that, according to NCAA Director of Research Ursula R. Walsh, has been conducted "on an anecdotal level for more than 100 years."

Representatives of the Educational Testing Service, the American College Testing Program and the College Board will cooperate with NCAA researchers in the analysis of academic performance data now being collected under the direction of the NCAA Research Committee.

"Our data base will include approximately 15,000 student-athletes in Divisions I and II. The sheer magnitude of this study will allow us to make observations that have not been made before," Walsh said. While they do not expect to achieve a perfect solution, the researchers hope to provide reliable information concerning the issues.

The testing services offered to assist in analyzing the data because "they regard this study as a unique opportunity to assess the impact of specific legislation," Walsh said.

"Both the Educational Testing Service and the American College Testing Program have done a good deal of sophisticated work in this area, and we are happy to have the benefit of their expertise in our search for the optimal use of test scores in determining initial eligibility," Walsh said.

The American College Testing Program administers the ACT and the Educational Testing Service provides the SAT to those seeking admission to college.

In a recent meeting of representatives of the groups, it was agreed that the study will provide a wealth of information that has not been available regarding the question of initial-eligibility standards, Walsh said.

The study will be concerned with three primary areas:

• The overall impact of Bylaw 14.3 on the current student-athlete population, including improvements in high school preparation, college grades and progress toward a degree.

• An analysis of whether predictors (core-curriculum grade-point average and test score) are valid and whether they can determine outcomes (college GPA and graduation rates).

• A determination of whether another version of Bylaw 14.3 would have better predictive value. The study will examine possible variations and attempt to identify their potential for determining which prospective student-athletes are more likely to succeed academically.

"We are very enthusiastic about this study," Walsh said. "We feel that it is the first time there has been an attempt of this scale to research empirically the question of freshman eligibility and the overall academic performance of athletes."

Some campuses emphasize different kind of athlete

By Gary A. Sojka

After several seasons in which sports programs have been known more for their tarnish than for their glory, there are some of us who still love intercollegiate athletics competition.

Across the country, tens of thousands of college athletes are beginning a new season. Beyond the thrill of competition, they relish the opportunity for achievement that distinguishes athletics as one of the last links to the American dream. What player has trained without the hope of becoming the next sports star, the name known to everyone as an American hero?

Heroes seem in short supply these days, and sports heroes appear particularly vulnerable to charges of corruption and substance abuse. The widening stain of scandal has threatened the very justification of collegiate sports programs. But before we write the obituary for amateur athletics at the collegiate level, we may be able to marshal our efforts toward the development of a new image for college sports. Perhaps institutions of higher learning can present a new paradigm for the student who would play ball or run cross country or dive from a platform.

On some of our campuses, we are emphasizing a different kind of athlete. We prefer the term "scholar-athlete" because it places the emphasis on the central mission of the university and, at the same time, it acknowledges commitment to athletics competition. This is more than a semantic distinction. We mean that all of our intercollegiate athletes are students first and competitors second. It's a comfortable distinction in academe, where fitness of mind and body long have been characteristics of the wholly educated person.

Schools in the Ivy Group and in the more recently established Colonial League have been promoting the concept of the scholar-athlete. Colonial affiliates (Holy Cross, Lehigh, Lafayette, Fordham, Army, Colgate and Bucknell) have joined with the Ivies in requiring their athletes to be academically representative of the student body as a whole. These institutions offer no athletics scholarships, but they field teams in a variety of men's and women's sports at the NCAA Division I level. Athletics are highly visible at these institutions, but an appropriate balance is maintained with academic pursuits.

The model for the scholar-athlete is not new. In September, Bucknell went back nearly a century to rename its football stadium in honor of one of the greatest scholar-athletes of all time: Christy Mathewson.

Matty, as he was known, was more than a great athlete at Bucknell and more than a legendary New York Giants pitcher. (His records of 373 career wins and four seasons with more than 30 victories still stand.) Matty built a lasting reputation in the history of sports as a gentleman and a scholar.

At Bucknell, Christy Mathewson earned more than sports fame. Standing 6-3 and weighing close to 200, Matty also sang in the glee club and played the bass horn in the band. He belonged to the campus literary society and to two fraternities. He was historian of his freshman class and president of his junior class, and he played three varsity sports. As a starter for the football team, he earned honors as one of the nation's best drop-kickers. Even if he had not gone on to become a hall-of-fame member, Christy Mathewson would still be a hero at Bucknell.

Emphasizing role models such as Mathewson, we in higher education must elevate our expectations for collegiate athletes beyond the present minimal standards related to "normal progress" and graduation rates. We need to place more emphasis on student-athletes excelling, not just surviving, in the classroom. We should expect that a student-athlete will interact in a positive fashion with his or her peers, functioning as a contributing citizen of the campus community.

Why should we be surprised if students fail to graduate or make "normal progress" if we only challenge them to meet such minimal standards? Yet, if we expect and insist upon better overall performance from our scholar-athletes, urging them to make the dean's list and gain admission to Phi Beta Kappa, we may see our sports programs begin to regain the respect they should command as valuable components in a complete educational experience.

Whether students are enrolled in community colleges, large state institutions or private liberal arts colleges, all can benefit by being encouraged to excel in all aspects of their collegiate experience.

Heroes like Christy Mathewson inspired people as much for their values as for their abilities on the field. Today's scholar-athletes have the same opportunity to become heroes. By reestablishing the model of the scholar-athlete, we hope college athletes will gain new respect.

As universities begin the new varsity season, they're also beginning a new academic year. Education, like sports, is an American dream. They have much to offer each other, and we look to their union to give birth to new role models for the scholar-athletes of tomorrow.

Sojka is the president of Bucknell University.

Let NCAA handle it

By Tim Tyers
The Phoenix Gazette
Excerpted from a column

Here's one who hopes Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, delays the introduction of his Student-Athlete Right-To-Know Act to the Senate.

The act would make it mandatory for any of the nation's colleges or universities that receive Federal funds to include the institution's graduation rate for student-athletes on letters of intent.

No, not because the act won't serve a useful purpose. To the contrary, such a practice offers a good indication of the emphasis a school puts on academics and the quality of academic support services the athlete will receive.

But there's a reason to believe the NCAA will enact similar legislation at its January Convention and, that being the case, it should be allowed to police itself before Federal intervention. What comes next? Federal laws setting universal graduation or course-study requirements for higher education?

In addition, chances are extremely good that the NCAA will go a step further by instituting accreditation teams that will visit the nation's athletics departments and examine and certify or command changes in their academic support systems.

Finally, the NCAA changed its own course in 1986 with the introduction of Proposition 48.

Before the government even considers jumping into university academics, one freshman class should be allowed to run its full course, whether that's four years (1990) or five years ('91).

Six fouls will frustrate reserves

Phil Axelrod, columnist
Eastern Basketball

"The coaches who voted for the rule (Big East Conference's experiment with six fouls) apparently overlooked the effect it will have on the reserves whose playing time will be drastically cut.

"Thanks to the sixth foul, you're going to see many more disgruntled players, as coaches keep their starters on the court longer. Don't be surprised if that translates into more transfers.

"There will be other negative repercussions. Big East games will become even more physical, and the league's coaches and players will be forced to readjust their style of play, with one less foul allowed in the NCAA tournament."

Sonny Smith, head men's basketball coach
Virginia Commonwealth University
Richmond Times-Dispatch

"All the moneys from the Pell Grants should be given to athletes. Regular students who come in on financial aid have the total number of dollars needed to live for a year calculated, not just room, board, tuition, fees and books. Their budget also includes extras such as transportation to and from home, the basic essentials, some food expense and toiletries.

The NCAA earned $60 million from the 1988-89 basketball tournament. This makes college basketball far from being an amateur sport. Some of this money should go to the student-athletes as a monthly stipend to cover their basic needs.

"It has been estimated that this would add approximately $200,000 or more to the budget of 'big-time' programs. The added burden should not be placed solely on the athletics department and institution. The burden should be on the institution and the NCAA.

"It does not make good sense to take a student-athlete hundreds of miles away from home and give him books, tuition, room and board while not providing him some sort of spending money."

"All I want to do is see to it that a kid, especially a poor kid, is able to go to McDonald's and buy a hamburger when the other kids go."

The Washington Post
Excerpted from an editorial

"It's always a temptation to look to the annual scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, taken every year by about one million seniors applying to college, for a barometer on the quality of schools. This year, with the scores down slightly, educators have rushed to condemn the slow progress of education reform.

"In fact, the SAT isn't a good indicator of either overall school quality or school reform. The test is taken only by those who choose to, the numbers' meaning fluctuates with the participation of different groups of students, and the skills it measures—math and 'developed verbal ability'—are a poorly understood mix of long-term and short-term study, family background, and the quality of schools.

"But there aren't many precise numbers of any kind out there on student achievement, and so the information the SAT does offer is grounds for interest and, this year, mild dismay.

"Its clearest and most troublesome message is that fewer students took the SAT this year—four percent fewer, although the overall number of high school seniors dropped only a single percentage point. The implication is that fewer students are aspiring to college, a not entirely unexpected fallout from the years of rising college costs and shrinking aid sources."

Looking Back

Five years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting October 15-17, 1984, in Kansas City, Missouri, voted to affirm its support of the Association's amateurism legislation, stating that the Council did not intend to follow "the recent tendency of our Olympic movement to loosen those standards of amateurism." (The NCAA News, October 22, 1984)

Ten years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting October 16-19, 1979, in St. Louis, adopted a resolution calling for appointment of a Special Committee on NCAA Governance, Organization and Services and charged it to examine and make recommendations regarding the governance structure of the Association, including legislative processes, accommodation of women's interests within the NCAA and development of programs and services for women's intercollegiate athletics, and the present and future NCAA division and district structure. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Twenty years ago

The NCAA Council issued a strong reminder October 1, 1969, regarding the Association's legislation prohibiting institutional staff members from accepting compensation from professional sports organizations for scouting or evaluating talents of, or negotiating professional contracts for, student-athletes. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Thirty years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting October 26-28, 1959, in Boston, noted that the Special Committee on Recruiting and Financial Aid had mailed a questionnaire to the membership October 14, 1959. The special committee was chaired by Frank N. Gardner, immediate past president of the Association and faculty athletics representative at Drake University. (1959-60 NCAA Yearbook)

SEC teams winning against nonconference foes

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The Southeastern Conference, winner of six national titles in non-conference winning percentage during the first nine years of the 1980s, is comfortably on top again with a 15-4 record vs. outside Division I-A opponents for an excellent .789 percentage through September 30.

The Pacific-10 Conference, last year's champion with a decade-high .794 mark, now stands 13-9, close behind the Southwest Athletic Conference at 13-8-1. With eight games left, the Pac-10 has a mathematical chance to reach .700 in the regular season, but both Stanford and Southern California must face Notre Dame.

With 19 games left vs. outside foes, the SEC would need only 12 more victories to finish .711 in regular season. In that event, bowl games could determine the champion. The SWC has just three left vs. outside I-A teams and will be the underdog each time—Southern Methodist-Notre Dame, Texas-Oklahoma and Texas Christian-Air Force.

Independents strong

It seems likely the biggest threat to the SEC will come from the independent ranks. Eastern independents are 9-6-2 for .588; Southern independents are 18-15, and a group we label "other independents" actually is second to the SEC at this point at 15-8-1 (.646). That group includes four in the Midwest—Notre Dame, Akron, Cincinnati and Northern Illinois—plus two in the Southwest—Southwestern Louisiana and Tulsa. Collectively, all 25 I-A independents are 42-29-3 (.588).

All three independent groups have plenty of outside games left—thus, a lot of potential for overtaking the SEC. Last year, independents were 83-63 for .568.

Other six struggle

Of the other six I-A conferences, only the Big Eight Conference is above .500 vs. I-A foes—at 15-13 with just one game, Oklahoma-Texas, to play. The Big Ten Conference finished its nonconference schedule at 14-15.

Then come the Western Athletic Conference (9-13-2), Atlantic Coast Conference (6-9-1), Big West Conference (2-14-1) and Mid-American Conference (2-17-2). All games vs. Division I-AA teams are deleted in this compilation, since I-A teams annually win about 75 percent of such games (this year 18-6 for .750).

The 1980s

The Pac-10's big year in 1988 (27-7) ended a streak of five SEC titles. In 1986, the SEC needed the bowls to edge the Pac-10. In 1985, it needed its decade-high .755 to edge the Big Ten, which had its best record in 24 years. The Pac-10 won in 1982, the ACC in 1981 and the SEC in 1980.

Keep in mind that nonconference games often pair upper-division teams in one conference vs. lower-division in another. It is seldom best vs. best until the bowls, and the all-time bowl standings show all conferences just a few games above or below .500.

I-AA leaders

The nonconference picture always is scrambled in Division I-AA because some conferences play several I-A foes, some few and some none. The same is true for opponents below the I-AA level, which are deleted in this compilation.

The best way is to count games with other I-AA teams only. But even this is not perfect.

For instance, the Big Sky Confer-

Houston quarterback Andre Ware is the Division I-A total-offense leader

Jimmy Thomas, Alcorn State, is tied for the Division I-AA interception lead

Trenton State's Steve Ware is among Division III leaders in rushing

Jeff Frost, Northeast Missouri State, ranks high in Division II total offense

ence has played just three games vs. outside I-AA foes and leads at 3-0-0, but six against I-A teams—more than any I-AA conference—and is 0-6. Next vs. outside I-AA foes is the Colonial League (11-5), edging the Southland Conference (10-5). Then come the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference (6-4), Yankee Conference (6-4-1), Ohio Valley Conference (9-12), Southwestern Athletic Conference (3-4), Southern Conference (4-6), Ivy Group (4-10-1) and Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (3-8).

The Southern, 2-2 vs. I-A teams, is the only conference doing better vs. I-A teams than vs. I-AA teams.

career. No other player in Division I-A history ever has accomplished that since official NCAA compilation of kickoff-return figures began 51 years ago in 1938 (most other categories were started in 1937).

Ismail had back-to-back kickoff-return TDs of 87 and 83 yards vs. Rice last November 5 in the drizzle at South Bend. That made him only the fifth I-A player to turn the trick. Then, at Michigan September 16, again in the drizzle, Ismail shocked a crowd of 105,912 with TDs of 88 and 92 yards on two straight Michigan kickoffs in Notre Dame's 24-19 victory. Michigan had not allowed a kickoff-return TD in 42 years.

Brown of Purdue in 1970).

Davis holds the I-A career record of six from 1972 through 1974. In punt returns, the career record is seven TDs by Jack Mitchell of Oklahoma from 1946 through 1948 and Rodgers of Nebraska from 1970 through 1972.

Two punt-return TDs in one game has been done many times, the most famous being the back-to-back 70- and 66-yarders by Notre Dame's Tim Brown in 1987, his Heisman Trophy year. Combining punts and kickoffs, Rodgers had eight, as did Cliff Branch of Colorado in 1970 and 1971 (six punts, two kickoffs). Combining all runbacks to include interception TDs, Utah's Erroll Tucker also had eight in 1984 and 1985—three of them on interceptions (seven of the eight came in 1985).

Before 1937, the best source is the thousands of game statistics, many involving famous players, compiled from newspaper play-by-plays by the NCAA's recently retired Steve Boda. Admittedly, this is a small fraction of all the games played in 77 years, but his 40 years of research turned up no one who matched Ismail's feat.

Red Grange of Illinois started his famous 402-yard (all categories), six-touchdown day (five scored, one passed for) vs. Michigan in 1924 with a 95-yard kickoff return and had an 85-yard kickoff return vs. Iowa in 1925. Colorado's Byron "Whizzer" White in 1936 had a 102-yard kickoff return vs. Denver, then a 90-yard kickoff return and a 65-yard punt return vs. Utah. Army's Glenn Davis amazingly had 27 touchdowns on plays ranging from 37 to 87 yards in 1943-46 but did not match the specific feat by Ismail (who may get very few opportunities to do it again the rest of his college career).

Bailey vs. Dorsett

With 160 yards at Cameron September 30, Texas A&I's Johnny Bailey reached 5,768 career rushing yards, second on the all-time, all-divisions NCAA list behind the record 6,082 yards in regular-season play by Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett, the 1976 Heisman Trophy winner. Bailey already held the Division II career record entering this season. With three national division rushing championships, Bailey seems likely, barring injury, to surpass Dorsett's mark and become the first player in NCAA history in any division with three national rushing crowns.

Regular-season streak

Pittsburg State's 47-26 victory at Southeast Missouri State September 30 was its 39th straight regular-season victory—currently the longest nationally in any division—and made the team 5-0-0 in its first season in NCAA Division II. The Gorillas reached the NAIA semifinals three straight years before joining the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association this year. Coach Dennis Franchione, in his seventh head-coaching year (fifth at Pittsburg, his alma mater), stands 60-9-2. (Shawn Ahearn, Pittsburg State SID)

Quotes of the week

After Kansas State ended a 30-game winless streak with a final-play TD pass, 20-17 over North Texas, coach Bill Snyder said: "I'm proud of them, I love them. These kids and fans have suffered. I kept telling this team it's not responsible for the first 27 of those games, but I'm not sure they always believed me."

Radio play-by-play man Scot Johnson after the Humboldt State Lumberjacks had defeated the Whittier Poets, 29-6: "I guess the axe sometimes is mightier than the pen." (Tom Trepiak, Humboldt State SID)

Wofford coach Mike Akers on the running style of his 5-foot-6 fullback and senior co-captain, Keith Davis: "He runs like a runaway sewer lid." (Mark Cohen, Wofford SID)

Northwest Missouri State safety Jason Agee after blocking a South-east Missouri State field-goal attempt and returning it 80 yards for a tie-breaking touchdown to help his team win, 21-12, September 23: "I felt somebody on my back and I knew it was a lineman. I didn't want coach (Bud) Elliott getting mad if a lineman caught me." (Larry Cain, Northwest Missouri State SID)

Bowden and sons

When Dave Arslanian took over as head coach at Weber State, where his father, Sark, is the top-winning coach in school history, sports information director Brad Larsen asked if this had happened before (The NCAA News, September 11). Well, Florida State's Bobby Bowden, who likely will join the exclusive 200-victory club sometime next year, began his head-coaching career at Samford, his alma mater, in 1959. His son Terry is in his third year as head coach at Samford, a new member of Division I-AA (career record for five years entering 1989: 34-20-0, including three years at Salem).

By the way, Bowden's youngest son, Jeff, and his son-in-law, Jack Hines, are on Terry's staff (and oldest son Steve is on the religion faculty). Son Tommy is on Bill Curry's staff at Alabama. You might say the Bowdens have their own "Cradle of Coaches."

Football notes

The Gateway is 1-3 vs. I-A, Southland 0-2, and Ivy and Yankee each 0-1. The other four conferences have not played a I-A foe.

The 14 I-AA independents are 15-16-2 vs. outside I-AA foes and 3-3 vs. I-A.

All I-AA teams are 44-23-1 vs. teams below their level (all deleted). Mathis vs. Rodgers

New Mexico senior receiver Terance Mathis boasts some remarkable career figures. On the all-time career all-purpose chart, he can best be compared to Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers, the 1972 Heisman Trophy winner, because Rodgers is the only man in the top 20 with more receiving yards than rushing yards and leads this group at 13.8 yards per play (playing three years to Mathis' four).

Mathis is averaging 14.8 yards per play (5,356 on 363 plays) through games of September 30. By maintaining his current season all-purpose average, Mathis would reach 6,480 yards, moving him past two-time Heisman winner Archie Griffin of Ohio State and into sixth place on the all-time chart. That is remarkable when you consider each top-five player topped 4,000 rushing (Mathis: 314).

At 3,433 receiving yards, Mathis, now third, seems likely to surpass the I-A career record of 3,725 by Mark Zeno, Tulane, 1984 through 1987. Mathis is eighth all-time in receptions with 204 and fourth in TD catches with 27. Rodgers had 2,479 career receiving yards, far behind Mathis, but 1,515 punt-return yards to 115 for Mathis. In kickoff returns, Mathis has 1,494, Rodgers 847.

Raghib a rarity

Although just a sophomore, Notre Dame's fleet Raghib Ismail already has scored two kickoff-return touchdowns in a game twice in his

The first player to turn the trick in the modern era, or since 1938, was Paul Copolous of Marquette, 85 and 82 yards vs. Iowa Navy Pre-Flight November 6, 1943. Next was Ron Horwath of Detroit, with a pair of 96-yarders vs. Hillsdale September 22, 1950. The third was the legendary Ollie Matson of San Francisco, 94 and 90 yards vs. Fordham October 20, 1951 (interestingly, Marquette, Detroit and San Francisco no longer have varsity football).

It didn't happen again until 21 years later, when Southern California's Anthony Davis had 97- and 96-yarders vs. Notre Dame December 2, 1972, as the Trojans overcame a 24-0 Irish lead and won, 55-24. Then, 16 more years went by before Ismail did it against Rice.

Only one Division I-AA player has turned the trick—Western Illinois' Jerome Stelly, 99 and 97 vs. Youngstown State November 7, 1981. Only two Division II players have done it that we know of—Clarence Martin of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo vs. Cal Poly Pomona November 20, 1982, and Tom Dufresne of Hamline vs. Minnesota-Duluth September 30, 1972.

And we know of just one for certain in Division III—Grege Tate of Samford vs. Washington and Lee November 3, 1984. Undoubtedly, at least a few others in Divisions II and III turned the trick in earlier years, but the final forms used then did not ask for single-game returns (only season) and we were able only to investigate a small number of players with more than one kickoff-return TD in a season.

In fact, three kickoff-return TDs in an entire season has been accomplished by just one player in III, one player in II, none in I-AA and four in I-A (Davis in 1974, Forrest Hall of San Francisco in 1946, Tennessee's Willie Gault in 1980 and Stan

'David and Goliath' are teammates in Virginia

At Mary Washington College, "David and Goliath" are teammates, not adversaries. And this senior duo, Shane Shackford and Dave Lausten, are helping the Eagle men's soccer team turn back opponents of all sizes.

Tale of the tape: Shackford is 5-8, 145, and Lausten is 6-2, 220. Both hail from Springfield, Virginia, where they were teammates at West Springfield High School.

On the field, Shackford and Lausten are easy to distinguish. On

Briefly in the News

Mary Washington stat sheets, they aren't.

Through seven games, Shackford had racked up nine points (three goals, three assists), while Lausten was hot on his heels with two goals and one assist. Shackford already is in the school record book as career assist leader (40), while Lausten earned a spot with a single-season-record 20 goals in 1988.

Notably, Shackford and Lausten play on a team that also produces solid defensive efforts regularly. Mary Washington has not given up a goal at home since late 1987. Through September 25, the team had recorded 13 straight shutouts at home.

G. Lynn Lashbrook, director of athletics at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks, calls it "by far the most exciting challenge I've ever been involved with." Not the grass-roots approach he says he's taking in promoting the school's athletics program, but his role as leader of the community's United Way campaign. "I am to this day flattered that a community would even consider a new person in town," Lashbrook recently told Bob Eley of the Fair-lems of intercollegiate athletics.

He was pointedly critical of the current effort in Congress to require institutions to report graduation-rate data for student-athletes, saying that some who call for Federal intervention are "ignorant" of what is happening on college campuses.

"The question is, who has jurisdiction," Schultz told the faculty representatives. "I think you all agree, the best way we can do this is on our college campuses. But we really have to be proactive."

Like some of the speakers who followed him, Schultz discussed the controversy over Proposal No. 42. He offered a preview of proposals that may be forthcoming at the 1990 Convention in Dallas, including possible moves to delay or repeal the legislation.

"At a minimum, you'll see legislation affecting financial aid," he said.

Later in the program, one possible proposal was described by Robert R. Snell, head of the civil engineering department at Kansas State University and a Council member who chairs the Council Subcommittee to Review Proposal 42. The subcommittee is recommending to the Council that the consideration of financial aid be eliminated from the rule, allowing nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers in both Division I and II to receive nonathletically related financial aid.

On a related topic, Snell described

banks Daily News-Miner. "Not only am I flattered, but I take this as a very serious responsibility that I don't want to fail in."

Lashbrook, who was named AD at Alaska-Fairbanks last year, leads a United Way effort with a goal of $1 million—a 20 percent increase over 1988. "This will be a true test," he offered. "I'm counting on the spirit of cooperation that is in this community."

Trivia Time: In Fairbanks, Alaska, Lynn Lashbrook certainly enjoys different scenery than he had as an undergraduate. Where did he go to school? Answer later.

Last football season, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, head coach Tom Osborne passed former Oklahoma coach Bennie Owen and established a Big Eight Conference record for coaching the most games (193) at one school. When he led his 1989 Cornhuskers onto the field September 30 to host Oregon State University, Osborne began his 200th career game at the school.

A recent Briefly item concerned a new book about exercise addiction—something that University of Texas, Pan American, student-athlete Christie Ledbetter knows all about.

"I overdid it," she said recently, in recalling her high school weightlifting days. "I spent so much time in the weight room in high school that they put me in charge of it.

"I would open it after school at 5 o'clock and close it at 11 o'clock at night. I was lifting all the time, but not specific, and I bulked up real bad.

"I got anorexic and got anemic," the shotputter/discus thrower added. "But I'm OK now."

Longwood College will celebrate 70 years of women's basketball competition October 21. More than 370 alumnae have been invited to return to the Farmville, Virginia, campus for the 70th anniversary celebration. Events will include an alumnae game, a Blue-White scrimmage by the 1989-90 Lady Lancer team and a dinner.

For the first time in five years, University of Pittsburgh men's basketball fans who are not season-ticket holders will have an opportunity to purchase a multiple-game ticket package—thanks to a move by university officials to schedule five 1989-90 games in the city's Civic Arena.

The Panthers have sold out Pitt Field House (seating capacity 6,798) on a season-ticket basis for five straight years. And the team has recorded eight straight sellouts in the much larger Civic Arena.

"This is a chance to better showcase college basketball in the city," said athletics director Edward E. Bozik, who will complete service on the NCAA Executive Committee next January.

Awards: Former University of Kansas all-America Gayle Sayers had his college number (48) retired during the September 30 visit to Lawrence by the University of Oklahoma. Sayers joined John Hadl (21) and Ray Evans (42) as the only other Kansas football players whose numbers have been retired.

Jeff Tipping, men's soccer coach at Muhlenberg College, recently was named recipient of the prestigious Billy Award, given by the National Soccer Hall of Fame. Named in honor of William "Billy" Gonzales, who was viewed by many as the greatest player in the world, the Billy Award recognizes former professional players who have continued to give a total commitment to the sport and their community on and off the field.

An undergraduate standout at Hartwick College, Tipping played four seasons in the pro ranks and has coached Muhlenberg since 1986. Six games into his fourth season, Tipping's mark at the school is 52-11-4.

on remand, the (U.S.) Supreme Court's decision necessarily requires the district court to enter an order vacating the injunctive decree insofar as it purports to enjoin any action by the NCAA."

In other words, the state Supreme Court has ruled that Clark County District Court must hold a hearing and ultimately act to dissolve or continue the injunction against UNLV, since it originally enjoined both the Association and UNLV from taking action against Tarkanian.

In light of the U.S. Supreme Court ruling, the state Supreme Court also ruled that Tarkanian is not entitled to an award of legal fees from the Association because he "simply cannot be considered as having prevailed against the NCAA."

Information about NCAA research into the academic performance of student-athletes, including those subject to the requirements of Bylaw 14.3, was presented to the faculty representatives by Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research.

She noted that final data will be collected this year for the first of five freshman classes (beginning in 1984) under study by the NCAA, and that three years of data for the first class (1986) affected by Bylaw 14.3 also will be on hand.

Recent recommendations of the Academic Requirements Committee pertaining to the reporting of scores from standardized tests directly to NCAA member institutions were described by committee member Sara N. McNabb, registrar and director of admissions at Indiana University, Bloomington. McNabb also discussed the committee's support for the concept of an "initial-eligibility clearinghouse," which was rejected by delegates to the 1989 Convention.

In somewhat of a departure from the session's focus on NCAA activities, Yvonne L. "Bonnie" Slatton, associate professor of physical education and faculty athletics representative at the University of Iowa, discussed the concept of making all freshmen ineligible for intercollegiate athletics competition.

Referring to the debate that erupted in her home state after Iowa President Hunter R. Rawlings III suggested that the school might unilaterally declare its own freshman student-athletes ineligible, Slatton said she believes freshmen should be eligible to compete.

FARA's next meeting is set for 1 to 5 p.m. January 6 in Dallas, in conjunction with the 1990 NCAA Convention.

SPORTS MEDICINE: PROTECTING THE YOUNG ATHLETE

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1989

In view of the major role that participation in sports plays in the daily lives of Americans, we offer a one-day symposium for high school and college level sports trainers and coaches. Because of the real potential for any youngster to sustain a severe and even life threatening injury, it is essential for educators and supervisors of young athletes to know that correct initial or immediate treatment is available at the scene well before traditional care can be initiated.

Southeastern Louisiana program gets five-year probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions, citing "several major violations of NCAA legislation," has imposed a five-year probationary period on the men's basketball program at Southeastern Louisiana University.

The committee stipulated that during the probationary period, the institution shall:

- Develop and implement a system for administrative control and monitoring to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation.

- Design and implement a comprehensive educational program to instruct coaches and athletics department personnel on NCAA legislation.

- Submit a preliminary report by January 1, 1990, setting forth a schedule for establishing this compliance and educational program.

In addition, due to his involvement in certain violations, if a former men's assistant basketball coach who subsequently was named men's head basketball coach seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during the next three years, he and the involved institution will be asked to appear before the Committee on Infractions. The committee at that point will consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of NCAA legislation. Those procedures could limit that coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

The committee cited three series of violations at Southeastern Louisiana. One involved improper arrangements for summer housing and employment for enrolled student-athletes; the second included recruiting violations related to prospects on their official paid visits and inducements to attend the university; and the third involved the "almost total absence of supervision of the athletics department, a situation that was especially fraught with serious risks because the university had combined the position of men's head basketball coach with that of director of athletics."

Because these major violations occurred after September 1, 1985, the committee's findings normally would subject the institution to minimum penalties prescribed by the NCAA membership. These penalties include a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year, possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, and the loss of postseason competition and television opportunities for one year.

The NCAA membership has, though, given the committee the authority to impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is "unique." The committee concluded that this case was unique because of the following mitigating factors:

- At the direction of the university's president, the institution undertook an internal investigation of the men's basketball program in full cooperation with the NCAA enforcement staff.

- The university suspended the men's basketball program for the 1989-90 season, the men's basketball coaching staff is no longer employed by the institution and the university is in the process of reorganizing the athletics administration.

As a result of these mitigating circumstances, the committee did not apply the full scope of the prescribed penalties for major violations. In addition, the committee commended the work of Southeastern Louisiana University's investigator, its faculty committee on athletics, the university's responses to the allegations and its admission of rules violations.

The infractions committee did say, however, that if the university reinstates the men's basketball program for the 1990-91 season, the following conditions will apply:

- There shall be no initial grants-in-aid permitted during the 1989-90 academic year.

- During the 1990-91 academic year, the institution shall award no more than seven initial financial aid awards that are countable under Bylaw 15.02.3.

- Southeastern Louisiana shall be limited to 14 expense-paid visits to the institution for prospective student-athletes during the 1989-90 academic year.

- Only one designated member of the coaching staff may engage in off-campus recruiting activities until July 31, 1990.

A complete report from the Committee on Infractions follows.

I. Introduction.

On July 23, 1986, the NCAA enforcement staff received an anonymous telephone call from an individual who provided information involving the then director of athletics at Southeastern Louisiana University, who also served as the men's head basketball coach, and three men's basketball team members. The information provided by the caller included potential violations of NCAA legislation regarding the provision of extra benefits to the three student-athletes.

In the summer of 1987, an NCAA special investigator conducted interviews on and off campus. In September 1987, a full-time investigator was assigned to the case, and on January 11, 1988, a letter of preliminary inquiry was sent to President G. Warren Smith. An independent investigation was conducted by the enforcement staff, and on March 8, 1989, a letter of official inquiry was sent to President Smith. The university submitted its response to the official inquiry July 17, 1989. Prehearing conferences were conducted July 26 and 27, 1989, with appropriate individuals.

After the NCAA Committee on Infractions hearing August 12, 1989, the committee considered this case in private and made findings that are set forth in Part II of this report. In brief, the committee found three series of violations: One involved improper arrangements for summer housing and employment for enrolled student-athletes; the second included recruiting violations related to prospects on their official paid visits and inducements to attend the university; and the third series involved the almost total absence of supervision of the athletics department, a situation that was especially fraught with serious risks because the university had combined the position of men's head basketball coach with that of director of athletics.

In the first series, the then director of athletics who also served as the men's head basketball coach accepted responsibility for a security deposit for an apartment for three student-athletes and a loan of $200 to one of the student-athletes for one month's rent with the knowledge that these were violations. The director of athletics also arranged summer employment for a student-athlete with a representative of the university's athletics interests who then paid the young man more than the commensurate rate paid other employees.

In the second series, two former assistant coaches conducted tryouts for prospective student-athletes during their official paid visits; one of the assistant coaches provided funds for entertainment to four prospects and knowingly permitted these prospects to be transported outside the 30-mile radius permitted during official paid visits; an assistant coach offered a pair of basketball shoes to one prospect if he would sign a National Letter of Intent, and finally, a coaching staff member offered to provide transportation to two prospects as needed between their homes and the university (a considerable distance) if they would attend the university. One of these assistant coaches, who subsequently was appointed head basketball coach, was found to have been in violation of the principles of ethical conduct for knowingly and willfully violating NCAA rules and regulations.

In the third series of violations, the committee determined that while the violations were confined to the men's basketball program, they were allowed to occur because the university failed to exercise proper control over the athletics program. Moreover, the confused administrative environment in which the university was operating its program enhanced the likelihood that violations would occur. There were frequent changes in the director of athletics position, including the appointment of the then men's head basketball coach (a person who had no administrative experience). When the institution decided to separate the two positions, it appointed a then men's assistant basketball coach who had knowingly violated NCAA rules and who subsequently has been found guilty of a violation of ethical conduct as the men's head basketball coach. In fact, in such an atmosphere, it is most surprising that more violations were not committed. While in no way excusing the former director of athletics from full responsibility for his actions, the university also must accept responsibility for permitting these conditions to develop.

The committee determined that the violations constituted intentional major violations of NCAA legislation that were designed to secure recruiting and competitive advantages, which became more serious because of the lack of institutional controls. Because the major violations in this case occurred after September 1, 1985, the committee's findings normally would subject the university to the minimum prescribed penalties in NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2.

Under NCAA legislation establishing prescribed penalties for major violations, however, the committee also may impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is "unique." This is truly a unique case because the university already had suspended the men's basketball team from play for the 1989-90 season prior to its appearance before the committee. Moreover, the institution's investigation led the university to acknowledge most of the violations found by the committee, a further basis for the committee to determine that there should be significant but different penalties than the otherwise required minimum penalties. The committee's principal actions include: a five-year probationary period for the university's athletics program; a mandated self-study of the university's intercollegiate athletics mission, program and resources, and restrictions on the men's basketball program if it is reinstituted for the 1990-91 season.

The committee's findings are set forth in Part II of this report, and the committee's penalties are set forth in Part III.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.1] In June 1986, the then men's head basketball coach served as a guarantor for a security deposit on an apartment in Hammond, Louisiana, for three student-athletes. Specifically, the coach visited the manager at the apartment complex and wrote, "I will be responsible for $150 deposit" on the top of a security deposit receipt and signed his name below the statement.

B. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1, 16.12.2.1, 16.12.2.3-(a) and 19.01.1] In June 1986, the then men's head basketball coach provided approximately $200 cash for one month's rent for an apartment for three student-athletes based on assurances from the mother of one of the student-athletes that she would reimburse the coach at a later date. In July 1986, the coach requested that the mother reimburse him for the $200 he provided for the June rent, and she subsequently reimbursed him for the payment.

C. [NCAA Bylaws 12.4.1-(b) and 16.10.2.3] During the summer of 1986, a representative of the university's athletics interests employed a student-athlete at a wage that was not commensurate with the rate in that locality for similar employment. Specifically, the then men's head basketball coach contacted the representative who was the then owner and manager of a local restaurant and requested that she hire the young man. The student-athlete was paid $3.35 per hour, the normal rate for employees at the restaurant, from mid-June to early August. In addition to this wage, the representative computed the difference between $3.35 and $5 per hour and wrote a second check to the young man from the representative's personal company account for the hours the student-athlete worked; further, on several occasions during the summer of 1986, the head coach provided automobile transportation for the young man to his summer job at the restaurant.

D. [NCAA Bylaw 13.11.1] During the period November 6-9, 1987, during the official paid visits of four prospective student-athletes, two then men's assistant basketball coaches observed the four young men participating in basketball activities in the men's gymnasium. Specifically, prior to and following the men's basketball team practice, the coaches watched these four prospects shoot baskets at opposite ends of the court; further, one of the coaches asked one of the young men to perform a particular "move" while being guarded by another prospective student-athlete after which one of the coaches indicated that he was impressed with the young man's athletic abilities.

E. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1 and 13.2.2-(f)] During the period November 6-9, 1987, during the official paid visit to the university's campus of a prospective student-athlete, a then men's assistant basketball coach offered to provide a pair of basketball shoes to the prospect if the young man would sign a National Letter of Intent to attend the institution.

F. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1, 13.6.5.1, 13.6.5.3 and 19.01.1] On November 7, 1987, during the official paid visits to the university's campus of four prospective student-athletes, a then men's assistant basketball coach knowingly allowed these young men to be entertained off campus beyond the 30-mile radius when he knew it was impermissible under NCAA legislation; further, the then assistant coach directly provided cash for entertainment to each of the young men.

G. [NCAA Bylaw 13.2.1] During the period November 6-9, 1987, during the official paid visits to the university's campus of two prospective student-athletes, a coaching staff member indicated to the young men that transportation to their homes would be provided if they attended the institution. Specifically, a coaching staff member indicated to the prospects that he understood they would be a significant distance from home and that if they needed to get home, they would be provided transportation at no cost to the young men.

H. [NCAA Bylaws 10.1-(c), 10.1-(d) and 19.01.1] A then men's assistant basketball coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics. Specifically, the coach was involved in knowingly violating recruiting rules and in offering an improper inducement to a prospective student-athlete contrary to the requirements and provisions of NCAA legislation as set forth in Parts II-F and II-F of this report.

I. [NCAA Bylaws 30.3.3 and 30.3.5] The institution's Certification of Compliance forms for the 1985-86 and 1987-88 academic years were erroneous based upon the findings of violations in this report, which indicate that the institution's basketball program was not in compliance with NCAA legislation at the time of such certification. Also, with full knowledge at the time that certain practices of the institution's intercollegiate basketball program were not in compliance with NCAA legislation, the then men's head basketball coach and two then men's assistant basketball coaches attested on statements filed with the chief executive officer of the institution that they had reported to the chief executive officer their knowledge of and involvement in any violations of NCAA legislation involving the institution when, in fact, they had not done so.

Specifically, for the 1985-86 academic year, the head coach attested August 27, 1986, and for the 1987-88 academic year, two assistant coaches attested September 1, 1988.

Finally, based upon information provided by these coaches and without intent to do so, the university's chief executive officers erroneously certified August 29, 1986, and September 3, 1988, respectively, the university's compliance with NCAA legislation.

J. [NCAA Constitution 6.01.1 and 2.1.1] The scope and nature of the findings in this case demonstrate a serious lack of appropriate institutional control and monitoring in the administration of the institution's intercollegiate athletics program. The university's athletics program and its administration have been in a state of flux during and since the period of the violations found in this case. Specifically, the committee found:

1. There was an absence of administrative supervision of the directors of athletics.

2. There were frequent changes in directors of athletics, which created a lack of administrative continuity, including appointing to that position the then men's head basketball coach who was involved in this case and who had no prior administrative experience.

3. After deciding to separate the director of athletics, men's head basketball coach position, the university appointed a then men's assistant basketball coach who was involved in violations as the new head basketball coach.

4. There was an inadequate number of personnel for the intercollegiate athletics program being conducted.

5. There was an absence of educational and compliance programs regarding fundamental NCAA rules and regulations for coaches and staff members.

6. There were knowing violations of NCAA rules by the then director of athletics who also served as the men's head basketball coach in Parts II-A and II-B of this report, violations that he neither reported to his administrative superiors nor to the NCAA.

The sum total of these actions reflect an athletics program without institutional guidance as to purpose, direction or management resources for the operation of an intercollegiate program at the Division I level.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

The Committee on Infractions has determined that this case involved several major violations of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985. Accordingly, NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted by the Association's membership, requires prescribed minimum penalties, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," that include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic, in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position.

Scholarship nominations are open

Nominations for NCAA post-graduate scholarships in football must be mailed to district selection committee chairs by the October 27 deadline.

A total of 25 awards, each worth $4,000, will be given to student-athletes. Six awards will be presented to Division I student-athletes, and six will go to Divisions II and III student-athletes. The remaining 13 awards will be given at large.

The following guidelines should be followed in nominating candidates:

- Nominate no more than two candidates.

- Use the forms recently mailed from the NCAA national office, providing complete information.

- Include a copy of the nominee's transcript with each application. Also include any entrance or placement examination scores and a Graduate Record Examination score, if possible.

- Mail the complete forms and other information to the appropriate district selection committee chair by the October 27 deadline.

Final selections will be made by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee in December.

Scholarships will be awarded to 100 student-athletes during the 1989-90 academic year. In addition to the 25 football awards, 20 will be presented to basketball players (10 men and 10 women) and 55 (30 men and 25 women) will be awarded in sports other than football and basketball in which the Association conducts championships competition.

Rally-point scoring clarified

The NCAA Divisions I, II and III Women's Volleyball Committees have determined that scores submitted for championship-selection purposes can be from matches where the rally-point system is used, as follows:

Division I—Dual and tournament matches played according to the rally-point scoring system will be accepted for selection purposes, provided they are three-of-five-game matches played to conclusion.

Divisions II and III—Rally-point scoring will be accepted from three-of-five-game matches in tournaments; it cannot be used in three-of-five-game dual matches. The system cannot be used in dual or tournament two-of-three-game matches, although tournament two-of-three-game matches played before October 9 will be accepted since the issue had not been addressed. The use of the rally system is encouraged in the nontraditional season.

The rally-point scoring system was approved as an experimental rule for the 1989 season by the National Association for Girls and Women in Sport. Following that decision, the NCAA volleyball committees decided that although use of the system would be encouraged on an experimental basis, it would not be used in the 1989 Divisions I, II and III Women's Volleyball Championships.

The NAGWS system is as follows:

1. Rally-point scoring would be used in game five in a three-of-five-game match; the maximum score in all games is 17 points.

2. A point is awarded on each service.

3. If the serving team wins a rally or the receiving team commits a fault, the serving team is awarded a point and continues to serve.

4. If the serving team commits a fault or the receiving team wins a rally, the receiving team receives a point and the ball for service.

5. The winning score shall occur when a team scores 15 points and has at least a two-point advantage over the opponent. No game shall exceed 17 points. If teams are tied at 16-16, the first team to score the 17th point shall be the winner.

Allen's Morningside message: 'The future is now'

Looking to its past, Morningside College recently called upon the legendary football coach who coined the saying "The Future is Now" to help snap a 15-game Chiefs losing streak.

During a two-week stay, former National Football League coach George Allen left a lifetime of memories with players, coaches and fans, as well as the Sioux City, Iowa, community.

Allen, a leading football innovator and a highly successful professional coach for 14 years, did his version of Hollywood's "Back to the Future" by returning to the college that hired him for $3,900 a year in 1948 to coach football and track; serve as an assistant baseball coach, and teach classes in hygiene, kinesiology, anatomy and coaching theory.

This time, Allen's duties were more limited. He came voluntarily to help coach Dave Dolch and the Chiefs' staff prepare for the season opener against Northwestern College (Iowa), a strong Division II NAIA team, and to inject some adrenaline into a program that is determined to be competitive in what is possibly the best NCAA Division II football conference—the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Allen, the chairman and chief executive officer of the National Fitness Foundation who compiled a 116-47-5 record in 12 NFL seasons, did that and more.

Prowling the sidelines in the Chiefs' first game of the season like he did in his glory years with the Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins, Allen watched running back Jeff Smith bolt 69 yards on the Chiefs' first play from scrimmage for a touchdown that spurred Morningside to a 31-13 victory—the school's first win since midway through the 1987 season.

'Great experience'

"It was a great experience for my staff and our young people to have a coach like George Allen lend his time," said Dolch, who signed on recently at Morningside after turning Bowie State University around in three years from an 0-9 team to an NCAA Division II play-off participant.

"Coach Allen was involved in every phase of our preparation. It wasn't just a token appearance. He took an active part in practices, strategy sessions, meetings and game preparation. He offered his opinions in strategy sessions and was very supportive. Coach Allen made a tremendous impact on our program and our young people.

"It was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to talk football with one of the greatest coaches in NFL history," Dolch said.

Allen was lured back to Morningside by one of his former players at the school.

"I have stayed in touch with George over the years," said Leon "Shorty" Shortenhaus, an all-conference end and cocaptain on Allen's first Morningside team. Shortenhaus went on to coach high school football for 27 years before returning to his alma mater to serve as associate director of admissions.

"I was talking to him (Allen) before we hired Dave and half-kiddingly suggested that he come back and coach. George said 'You know, I might just take you up on that; let me think it over.'

"George was on the search committee and it worked out that he had a chance to get together with Dave for a luncheon at the Quarterback Club in Washington (D.C.). Dave told him that if he took the job, he'd like coach Allen to pay us a visit."

After Dolch was hired, Shortenhaus arranged Allen's two-week, part-time coaching assignment that subsequently set the Morningside community abuzz.

Busy schedule

Allen left his Palos Verdes Estates, California, home and found a whirlwind of activities waiting for him. Between two-a-day football practices during the first week and after-class drills once school started, Allen

George Allen, whose first coaching job was at Morningside College in 1948, returned to the Iowa school recently to help the football team get ready for its 1989 season managed to squeeze in several speaking engagements, autograph and photograph sessions, and television and radio interviews.

He also participated in a one-mile fun run with approximately 100 other joggers on a rainy Saturday, visited local high school football teams, attended a picnic sponsored by a booster club and visited hospitalized survivors of the crash of United Airlines flight 232.

Allen's hectic schedule was capped the night before the season opener by an appreciation banquet, which was emceed by sportscaster Ray Scott and counted Allen's family as honorees among the 450 people who attended, and by an "old timers" luncheon the following day with players from Allen's 1948-1950 Morningside teams.

"This school gave me a chance, and I just wanted to take the opportunity to give something back," Allen told Rachel Blount of the Des Moines Register. "Many things I learned at Morningside helped me all through my life. I spent three of the greatest years of my life here.

"What's nice about this place is that it's not based on big business, like so many schools now. They play football here because it's good for the kids, the college, the community and the state. This is typical America. That's why I love it here.

"I'd do anything to help turn this program around. If I thought climbing a flag pole could help Morningside win, I'd do it."

Despite his busy schedule, Allen took time out for his daily three-mile run and ran the steps of Roberts Stadium regularly.

Hasn't changed

"George's visit reminded me of when I first came to know him 41 years ago," Shortenhaus said.

"On the field, he hasn't changed a bit. He leaves nothing to chance and is a master of preparation. He still pays attention to detail and coaches players to do things right. He worked us hard but was always offering encouragement if he saw that you were trying your best. His practices were timed to the minute and very organized.

"It was great seeing how the kids reacted to him."

Allen's energy level was tempered somewhat during one practice session. Charged with working mainly with the defensive and special teams, Allen broke a finger in the line of coaching duty; however, he refused to make an issue of it. He did not bother to have the finger put in a splint until he returned home to catch his breath before departing for a series of speaking engagements in Israel.

After he was awarded the game ball for the season-opening victory, Allen passed it on to a young boy who remains in a coma from injuries sustained in the crash of flight 232. He then bid farewell to the college that took a chance on a young football coach more than four decades ago.

Although Morningside lost two of its next three games after Allen left, the return to the past has the Chiefs looking toward a brighter future.

"Things couldn't have worked out better," Shortenhaus said. "Winning that first game was like a fairy-tale ending to a storybook."

tion that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport; and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

The serious nature of several of the violations in this case normally would require penalties significantly greater than the prescribed minimum penalties set forth above. However, the Committee on Infractions is empowered to impose lesser penalties if it is determined that this case is unique. In this case, the committee determined that certain mitigating factors support that this case is unique and, therefore, that the institution should not receive the prescribed minimum penalties. These mitigating factors include the following:

a. At the direction of the university's president, the institution undertook an internal investigation of the men's basketball program in full cooperation with the NCAA enforcement staff. The work of the faculty committee on athletics, the university's investigator, the university's responses to the allegations and its admission of rules violations are to be commended.

b. The university suspended the men's basketball program for the 1989-90 season; the men's basketball coaching staff is no longer employed by the institution, and the university is in the process of reorganizing the athletics administration. The suspension of the team for a whole season is a more serious action than the committee would have imposed for the violations found in this case.

c. The committee imposed a five-year probationary period, rather than the minimum two-year period. It is the committee's view that the institution will benefit from a long period of supervision as it sets out to define its future athletics program, policies and practices in the light of defined academic goals, financial resources and management capabilities.

Accordingly, the committee did not apply the full scope of the prescribed penalties for major violations, but rather imposed the following penalties:

A. The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of five years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action as a result of an appeal by the university to the Council, it being understood that should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions.

Further, Southeastern Louisiana University shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. During this period of probation, the institution shall: develop and implement a system for administrative control and monitoring to ensure compliance with NCAA legislation; design and implement a comprehensive educational program (e.g., seminars and testing) to instruct coaches and athletics department personnel on NCAA legislation; submit a preliminary report by January 1, 1990, setting forth a schedule for establishing this compliance and educational program, and file annual progress reports with the NCAA enforcement staff by July 1 of each year thereafter during the probationary period with a particular emphasis on institutional control.

C. In addition, the institution shall prepare an institutional self-study and evaluation as set forth in NCAA Bylaw 6.3 with a particular emphasis on developing a statement of institutional purpose and athletics philosophy, an analysis of the level of intercollegiate competition compatible with that statement, and an analysis of the ability to provide financial and institutional management resources requisite to competition at this level. This report shall be sent to the committee by May 1, 1990. Such a self-study also should be a prerequisite to reestablishing a men's basketball program.

D. As set forth by the minimum penalties in Bylaw 19.4.2.2 and because of the severity of these violations, the committee would have required the university to reduce expense-paid recruiting visits; prohibited coaching staff members from off-campus recruiting; precluded postseason competition in the sport of men's basketball; reduced the number of grants-in-aid, and placed sanctions on "live" television. However, because the university, by its own actions for other reasons, suspended the sport of men's basketball for the time being, the committee will not impose these required penalties. However, the committee takes the term "suspended" to mean at the least that there shall be no competition in the sport of men's basketball prior to the 1990-91 season.

E. Should the university choose to reinstitute the men's basketball program for the 1990-91 season, the following conditions shall apply:

1. There shall be no initial grants-in-aid permitted during the 1989-90 academic year.

2. During the 1990-91 academic year, the institution shall award no more than seven initial financial aid awards that are countable under Bylaw 15.02.3 in the sport of men's basketball.

3. The institution shall be limited to 14 expense-paid visits to the institution for prospective student-athletes in men's basketball during the 1989-90 academic year.

4. The institution shall be limited to only one designated member of the men's basketball coaching staff who may engage in off-campus recruiting activities beginning the effective date of these penalties until July 31, 1990. The identity of this coaching staff member shall be reported to the NCAA enforcement staff and the Committee on Infractions prior to the beginning of any off-campus recruiting.

F. If the former men's assistant basketball coach who subsequently was named head coach had not been replaced, the institution would have been required to show cause in accordance with Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(1) why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it had failed to take appropriate disciplinary action against him.

G. Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case (reference: Parts H-F and H-F of this report), the former men's assistant basketball coach who subsequently was named head coach will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during a three-year period (September 15, 1989, to September 15, 1992), he and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(1), which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

(Note: Should Southeastern Louisiana University appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided to the institution prior to the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.)

Also, the Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed; further, the committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case, and finally, should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the intended effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.)

'39 game featured Waynesburg, Fordham and TV

By Alan Robinson

When he played for Waynesburg College in the first televised football game 50 years ago, Jack Wiley had no idea that he was witnessing the birth of a medium that would bring Monday Night Football, instant replay and the Ikey Shuffle to millions of homes.

Only a few hundred television sets were in operation September 30, 1939, when W2XBS, now WNBC-TV, telecast the Waynesburg-Fordham college game from Randall's Island to several thousand New York City viewers.

The legendary Bill Stern called the play-by-play, and a budding young broadcaster named Mel Allen did pregame interviews. The signal carried for about 50 miles, but most of the viewers of what The New York Times termed "a real curiosity" were at the nearby, futuristic World's Fair.

"It's a nice memory to think you were a part of sports trivia, the first game on television," said Wiley, a former Pittsburgh Steelers player who now lives in Pittsburgh. "Sometimes, I'll watch a game and think, 'Hey, we participated in that.'"

Sixteen members of the 1939 Waynesburg team returned to the Western Pennsylvania college September 30 for a reunion and dinner commemorating the 50th anniversary of the first telecast. Several Fordham players were invited but declined because of health reasons.

"It was a historic occasion when you think of how big TV has gotten, and it's amazing the changes that have been made. But, back then, it really didn't mean that much to us because we really didn't know what television was," Wiley said.

The Waynesburg student newspaper, The Yellow Jacket, mentioned the telecast in a September 30, 1939, story headlined "Broadcast By Television For Fordham Fray."

"The game will be broadcast on a television-wave band and will be the first football game ever to be broadcast on the newest radio-wave band," the story said. "It will be impossible for the broadcast to be received here since the science of television has not been perfected to the point where the broadcast can carry any great distance."

"I've never talked to anybody who saw the (Waynesburg-Fordham) game... and if anybody said they did, they probably were lying," Wiley said. "We didn't think much of it being on television, and the only reason we paid any attention was all the wires and cables on the sidelines."

"We were trying not to fall over the cables and look bad," said Michael "Mo" Scarry, a Waynesburg player who later coached 19 seasons with the NFL's Washington Redskins and Miami Dolphins. "But, in those days, we figured, 'What's TV?'"

RCA, then the corporate parent of NBC, televised the game with two newly patented iconoscope cameras mounted on portable dollies. One camera was wheeled out to midfield to televise the pregame coin flip.

The Fordham band's show also was televised, and band captain Ernest Hopf, watching on an eight-inch monitor, pronounced the images to be "clear and sharply defined."

Fordham, coached by "Sleepy Jim" Crowley and renowned for its "Seven Blocks of Granite" offensive line, was one of football's top powers and easily defeated Waynesburg, 34-7. But Waynesburg led 7-0 after 10 minutes, thanks to a 67-yard off-tackle touchdown run by 153-pound halfback Bobby Brooks.

"Waynesburg had been considered sort of a warmup, and we reacted accordingly," said Fordham running back Dom Principe, the nation's fourth-leading rusher the year before. "I do recall that we apparently had regarded them too lightly, because they scored the first touchdown. But it is rather difficult to remember anything about the game being on TV."

"When you see the way TV is today and what it means to college and pro football, it's sort of nice to say we were part of the first TV game," Scarry said. "I've been in five Super Bowls, but it's one of the thrills of my career."

Robinson writes for the Associated Press.

Although a lot more unwieldy, production equipment used in the world's first telecast of college football is not too unlike the gear used today. The fellow shown here, however, probably didn't sling that camera over his shoulder and roam the sidelines.
