Staubach, Butkus among Silver Anniversary honorees

Dr. Donald E. Baxter

Paul W. Bucha

Dick Butkus

Brigman Owens

Dr. Arthur Roberts

Roger T. Staubach

Heroes from the battlefields and the athletics fields are recipients of this year's NCAA Silver Anniversary awards, which honor former student-athletes who have gone on to distinguished careers since completing their college athletics careers 25 years ago.

The six recipients are Dr. Donald E. Baxter, basketball; Paul W. Bucha, swimming; Dick Butkus, football; Brigman Owens, football; Dr. Arthur "Archie" Roberts, football, basketball and baseball, and Roger T. Staubach, football, basketball and baseball.

These individuals and six of today's top student-athletes will be honored as this year's College Athletics Top XII. The group will be recognized at the honors dinner during the NCAA Convention in Dallas.

Following are biographical sketches of this year's honorees:

Dr. Donald E. Baxter

Dr. Baxter was a four-year starter on the Mercer University basketball team and was a Rhodes scholar finalist. He is remembered as the supportive roommate of the first black student at Mercer, where both endured campus unrest. During that time, the roommates were the subject of national media attention and were visited in their dormitory by Dr. Martin Luther King.

Dr. Baxter has been director of the Foot and Ankle Fellowship at the University of Texas Medical School, Houston, since 1982 and has been orthopedic foot and ankle surgeon at the clinic since 1974. He is the physician for the University of Houston track team and the Houston Ballet Company.

He also has worked with Houston Baptist University's athletics teams and the Houston Aeros, Houston Rockets and Houston Oilers.

Paul W. Bucha

Bucha, a graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, received the Congressional Medal of Honor in 1970 and was the recipient of an NCAA special tribute in 1971.

He was a three-year letter winner in swimming and team captain at Army. He earned all-America honors in 1964 and 1965 as a member of the 400-yard freestyle relay team. He set an NCAA freshman record in the 200-yard individual medley and was a member of the 400-free-style relay team that set a freshman record. He later coached swimming at Army and was an assistant coach at Stanford University when the 1967 team won the NCAA championship.

Bucha was a captain in Vietnam in 1967 and 1968. He has been active in many veterans' groups, including the Vietnam Veterans Me-

Convention agenda has 130 proposals

A total of 130 legislative proposals for the 1990 Convention were submitted in accordance with the November 1 deadline.

That number is down 17 from the 147 that appeared in the Official Notice of the 1989 Convention, and it is the lowest total since 1986.

The record high was 225 amendments at the 1976 Convention. Since then, the totals have been 175 in 1977, 161 in 1978, 132 in 1979, 103 in 1980, 121 in 1981, 122 in 1982, 132 in 1983, 162 in 1984, 145 in 1985, 110 in 1986, 151 in 1987, 163 in 1988 and 147 last year.

Assuming that all of the proposals are deemed to be in order and properly submitted, they will appear in the Official Notice of the 1990 Convention, which will be mailed to the membership November 29.

In the November 13 issue of The NCAA News, the 130 proposals will be separated to reflect the number that will appear in each topical grouping. Also in that issue, the proposals designated for roll-call votes will be identified, as will the sequential order of the topical groupings.

Delegate form

The official form to be used in appointing delegates to the annual Convention will be sent to the chief executive officer of each member institution and conference with the Official Notice. No one else at a member institution or conference receives the appointment form because only the CEO is authorized to appoint delegates and sign the form.

Each active member institution and each member conference with voting privileges may appoint up to four accredited delegates. All other members, including conferences without voting privileges, affiliated members and corresponding members, may appoint one delegate each. That single delegate has no voting privileges but can speak on the Convention floor.

All members, as well as non-member organizations, are permitted to register as many visiting delegates as they wish. Those individuals cannot vote or address the Convention.

Once the chief executive officer appoints the voting and alternate delegates, they may transfer the voting privilege among them because all have been authorized as voters by the CEO.

Because only the CEO can appoint delegates, no one may be added as a voting or alternate delegate without written authorization by the CEO—a letter or telegram generally is used for that purpose. Similarly, if no appointment form is received from the CEO, no delegates from that member will be registered as voting or alternate delegates until such authorization is received in writing from the CEO. They may be registered as visitors in Computer plan to assist members in handling student-athlete forms

The NCAA is developing a computer software program that will allow Division I members to save a significant amount of time and paperwork in generating and maintaining student-athlete forms relating to recruiting, financial aid and eligibility.

The program also is being designed to assure equitable application of NCAA rules among the participating institutions and their conferences.

By compiling this information in a single computer file, athletics administrators will be able to generate required conference forms automatically and to follow administratively a student-athlete's career from recruitment to graduation.

The program was originally intended to be operated by conference offices, but it was the sense of an ad hoc committee of conference representatives that the NCAA national office should assume the leadership role in the program.

"The national office staff pursued this idea and determined that it would be possible to develop a computer program within which NCAA rules would be incorporated so that the program itself would ask specific questions and then apply the applicable NCAA rules," said Carol P. Powell, NCAA legislative assistant and legislative services coordinator for the project.

"The scope of the project," she said, "is much more ambitious than what was originally contemplated by the conference committee."

"Still, it is more cost-effective for the national office to handle the program, and it will allow more timely updates for changes in legislation," said John P. Hardt, NCAA compliance representative and project coordinator.

Kelly G. Conway, a national office programmer/analyst, is developing the software program.

A select group of institutions will test the program in the spring, Hardt said, and the first phase of the program—computing the financial

NCAA exempt from state sales tax; annual savings is about $200,000

In a decision that will save the NCAA an estimated $200,000 annually, the Supreme Court of Kansas ruled October 27 that the Association is exempt from paying the state sales tax.

The court, in a 6-1 decision, agreed with the NCAA's contention that it is an extension of its member institutions and therefore is an educational institution entitled to an exemption from the 4.25 percent state sales tax.

As a result, the NCAA expects to recover $357,000 in taxes paid to the state from July 1986 to April 1989, said C. W. Crumpecker Jr. of Swanson, Midgley, Gangwere, Clark and Kitchin, the Association's legal counsel in Kansas City, Missouri. Crumpecker presented the Association's case before the Supreme Court September 14.

"It's a good decision," said Crumpecker, who suggested that it complements a 1984 Supreme Court of Kansas decision that real estate occupied by the NCAA national office is exempt from ad valorem taxes because it is used exclusively for educational purposes.

"The NCAA in Kansas has been declared to use its property only for educational purposes, and it now has been declared to be an educational institution," Crumpecker said.

The NCAA first applied for and obtained an exemption from the Kansas sales tax when it moved its headquarters from Kansas City, Missouri, to Mission, Kansas, in 1973. By statute, the tax is assessed for "all sales of tangible personal property or services."

The controversy began in 1986, when the Kansas Department of Revenue modified its definition of an "educational institution" and asked the NCAA to reapply for the exemption.

When the NCAA complied, the department denied the application, arguing that the Association does not have a faculty or classroom and does not conduct classes. The department's decision was upheld on appeal to the Kansas Board of Tax Appeals.

"The NCAA's argument that it is

Congress OKs more NYSP funding, food program

The House and Senate have passed a fiscal year 1990 appropriations bill for the Department of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and related agencies, providing $9.669 million in funding for the National Youth Sports Program under the Community Service Block Grant.

President Bush vetoed the bill October 21 because it contained an abortion-funding provision, and the House failed to override the veto. Nonetheless, it is expected that the NYSP appropriation will be included in the new bill that Congress must now produce.

The $9.669 million appropriation is a $3 million increase in funding under the Community Service Block Grant. Its effect, however, will be to maintain the increased level of funding first provided by Congress last year when it appropriated $3 million for NYSP drug-abuse prevention activities under the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988.

This new funding has been used to hire a drug-education specialist at each NYSP project conducted last summer, train other NYSP personnel in drug-abuse prevention techniques, double the amount of instruction devoted to substance-abuse prevention, and institute an extended NYSP under which participating colleges and universities bring youngsters on campus for NYSP activities on a periodic basis during the academic year.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Massachusetts, a longstanding NYSP champion in Congress, played a critical role in the decision to continue the antidrug-abuse funding by including it in the regular block-grant appropriation.

In separate action on a measure funding the Federal government's "war on drugs," House-Senate conferrees have agreed to accept a Senate provision that will provide an additional $1 million for the NYSP. The House passed the measure November 1, and the Senate is expected to approve it soon.

The NCAA plans to use the additional funding to strengthen the drug-abuse prevention effort begun this year by such means as increasing the number of NYSP institutions participating in the extended program, adding new NYSP projects in areas with high concentrations of drug abuse and taking other steps, to strengthen the NYSP.

As chair of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, HHS, and Education, which recommended the additional $1 million for the NYSP, Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, played a central role in the Senate decision to provide the funding. In the House, Rep. Conte's support for the NYSP was critically important in securing House agreement to the Senate allocation, according to Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, the Association's legal counsel in Washington, D.C.

Meal program

In addition to these two appropriations decisions, Congress has approved and sent to President Bush for signature legislation creating a new program under which the U.S. Department of Agriculture will pay for meals served to NYSP participants during the new, extended program. This legislation was necessary because the Summer Food Service Program for Children, under which NYSP institutions obtain USDA reimbursement for meals served to youngsters during the summer, only authorizes payments for meals served from May to September.

The new program, which is included in a bill reauthorizing child-nutrition and related programs, provides for USDA reimbursements for up to two meals or one meal and one snack per day for up to 30 days for each child participating in the extended program. Children and higher education institutions participating in the summer program will be automatically eligible to participate in the new program with application. Reimbursements will be at the national school lunch and school breakfast rates, which are slightly lower than the summer food-service program rates.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Arkansas, was responsible for inclusion of the NYSP provision in the Senate bill. Rep. Augustus Hawkins, chair of the House Education and Labor Committee, played an important role in the House-Senate negotiations in which the final version of the provision was developed. Their efforts will make it possible for NYSP institutions to provide nutritious meals to the youngsters participating in the new, extended programs.

Volleyball added

Women's volleyball will become Millersville University of Pennsylvania's 18th varsity sport in the fall of 1990, according to Marjorie A. Trout, director of women's athletics.

Millersville will become the 11th institution in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference to sponsor women's volleyball. The school is seeking candidates for the head-coaching position.

but an arm or extension of its member universities could well have been looked upon with more kindly department of revenue eyes had its proponent been a poverty-stricken association of university English departments whose annual purchases consisted of a box of stationery and a few paper clips," Justice Kay McFarland wrote in issuing the Supreme Court's decision.

"Under any fiscal standards, the NCAA is a plump fowl with temptingly luxurious plumage. However, this cannot be a proper consideration," she continued.

"The NCAA is a truly unique organization. The department of revenue likens it to a corporation claiming an exemption because some of its stockholders are exempt. The analogy is not well-taken.

"The activities of the NCAA are of the type the member universities and colleges could accomplish by committee except for the number of schools involved and the complexity of the world of major intercollegiate sports. The work of the NCAA staff is that which the members have decreed it shall do for the mutual benefit of, and assistance to, the member institutions' educational programs," McFarland wrote.

Although the court agreed that the board of tax appeals erred when it determined the Association was not an educational institution, it did not address the NCAA's additional argument that the department of revenue's definition of an educational institution is more restrictive than was intended by the Kansas Legislature. As a result, the department's definition of an educational institution remains intact.

The lone dissenting justice, Richard W. Holmes, did not file a written opinion.

the interim, however.

Meeting schedule

A composite schedule of all meetings scheduled to date in conjunction with the 1990 Convention was mailed to the membership October 30.

That mailing went to CEOs, faculty athletics representatives, directors of athletics and senior women administrators, as well as to conferences and affiliated members. It included the official hotel reservation form and information regarding catering needs for meetings.

Staubach, Butkus

He is director of the Vietnam Veterans Theatre Ensemble Company. He currently is a real estate developer in New York.

Dick Butkus

A two-time consensus all-America linebacker at the University of Illinois, Champaign, Butkus finished third in the Heisman Trophy balloting in 1964. That same year, he was named player of the year by the American Football Coaches Association.

He played professional football for the Chicago Bears from 1965 to 1973 and was selected for the Pro Bowl eight times. He was named to the 1960s all-decade team and was voted pro football's greatest linebacker by the fans.

An actor and sports commentator since 1973, Butkus is a regular on "The NFL Today" on CBS. He attends numerous charity functions every year and hosts a golf tournament for the prevention of cystic fibrosis. He received a life achievement award from the Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles.

Brigman Owens

An all-conference selection and team cocaptain in football at the University of Cincinnati, Owens started a Big Brothers program on campus and raised four youths to adulthood. He was drafted by the Dallas Cowboys in 1965 and played for the Washington Redskins from 1966 to 1977. He set a team record for career interceptions.

He was the Redskins' NFL player representative for seven years. He served as assistant director and associate counsel for the NFL Players Association (NFLPA) from 1979 to 1984 and developed the NFLPA's financial-planning, career-counseling, employee-assistance and substance-abuse programs. He also created the Professional Athletes Youth Foundation and Community Service Department for that organization. He raised more than $10 million to implement a youth development program for the NFLPA in 10 cities, and the program was cited by the Department of Education as exemplary.

Owens is a partner in the firm of Bennett and Owens and the founder and president of Brig Owens and Associates, which provides comprehensive career-management services for professional athletes.

Dr. Arthur "Archie" Roberts

Dr. Roberts was an all-America shortstop at Columbia University and Metropolitan New York Baseball Player of the Year in 1965. His career batting average of .371 is a school record. He was a two-way starter in football and led the nation in completion percentage in 1963. He received the Morningside Brotherhood award for his work as a volunteer coach, instructor and supervisor in the Harlem area.

He signed a contract with the Cleveland Browns, which financed his medical school studies. He did not join the team until after graduation. He played for both the Browns and the Miami Dolphins.

Dr. Roberts is director of cardiac surgery at Wilkes-Barre General Hospital and clinical professor of surgery at Thomas Jefferson Medical Center in Philadelphia. He developed cardioplegia, an innovative way of delivering cold blood to the heart during open-heart surgery.

Roger T. Staubach

The 1963 Heisman Trophy winner, Staubach was a consensus all-America and broke 28 school records at the U.S. Naval Academy. He lettered in baseball three times and basketball once. He is the only three-time recipient of the Navy's Thompson Trophy Cup.

He was on active duty with the Navy from 1965 to 1969. He played quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys from 1970 to 1979, leading the team to a 90-31 record and two Super Bowl victories. He was a five-time Pro Bowl selection and was the most valuable player in Super Bowl VI. He won the Byron White Humanitarian Award and the Vince Lombardi Sportsman of the Year Award during his career. He was inducted into the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame in 1981 and the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1985.

He has been president of The Staubach Company since 1981. The Dallas company is involved in commercial land brokerage, corporate and retail services, and investment and financial services.

Legislative Assistance

1989 Column No. 39

NCAA Bylaws 14.1.5 and 15.01.5—full-time enrollment/eligibility for practice, competition and financial aid

NCAA member institutions are reminded that to be eligible to participate in organized practice sessions, a student-athlete shall be enrolled in a minimum full-time program of studies as defined by the regulations of the certifying institution. Further, to be eligible for competition in accordance with Bylaw 14.1.5.2.2, a student-athlete also must be enrolled in at least a minimum full-time program of studies as defined by the institution, and that minimum program shall not be less than 12 semester or quarter hours, regardless of the institution's definition of a full-time program of studies.

It should be noted that a student athlete who enrolls as a full-time student at the beginning of a semester or quarter and drops below a full-time program of studies at any point during that term no longer is eligible to practice or compete after that point until he or she resumes enrollment in a full-time academic program; however, inasmuch as eligibility for financial aid requires only that a student-athlete be enrolled initially in a minimum full-time program of studies during a regular term, a student-athlete who enrolls as a full-time student at the beginning of a semester or quarter and who drops below a full-time program of studies at any point during that term remains eligible for institutional financial aid per Bylaw 15.01.5 (at the discretion of the institution), provided the student-athlete meets applicable NCAA, conference and institutional regulations to be eligible for institutional financial aid.

Special seating arrangements during official and unofficial visits

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee recently reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 13.6.5.1 (official visits) and 13.7.2.1 (unofficial visits), and recommended to the NCAA Council that special seating arrangements (e.g., special seating on the playing field or floor, team bench or dugout, or in a member institution's "sky box") for prospective student-athletes involved in either official or unofficial visits is a matter that should be left to the discretion of the institution and its playing conference, if any. During its October meeting, the Council reviewed this matter and concluded that sufficient recruiting concerns exist regarding special seating arrangements for prospects at campus athletics events to warrant the sponsorship of a proposed amendment in reference to this issue. Accordingly, the Council will sponsor an amendment to Bylaws 13.6.5.2 and 13.7.2.1 at the 1990 Convention to specify that prospective student-athletes visiting Division I member institutions shall not be provided special seating at campus athletics events (e.g., press boxes, special seating boxes or bench areas).

Promotional activities/third-party distributorships

The Legislation and Interpretations Committee has agreed that the provisions of Bylaws 12.5.1.1-(d) and 12.5.1.7 would not preclude a third-party distributor of institutional highlight films from receiving a percentage of the revenue produced by the sale of the films. The committee also confirmed that an institution may determine its contractual arrangements with a third-party distributor of institutional products involving the use of student-athletes' names or pictures, and those arrangements would not be subject to limitations under current NCAA legislation.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Florida governor calls for statewide athletics control

Gov. Bob Martinez of Florida has called for creation of a statewide athletics oversight office and other reforms and studies.

"Nothing is more important to an academic institution than its reputation, its integrity, its ethical standards," Martinez told the state board of regents, saying his proposals would "help restore much of the public support and confidence that have been shaken by recent events."

He noted that while the much-publicized problems at the University of Florida involve only one university, there are nine state universities and "Florida appears in all their names."

Martinez said the image of all state universities could be tainted by the University of Florida problems, which have seen the resignation under pressure of the football coach after admitted NCAA violations and the forced retirement of its basketball coach because of Federal and NCAA investigations.

The governor said he was satisfied with efforts by the University of Florida to clean up its athletics problems, the Associated Press reported, but he said the school's situation shows the need for "a preventive initiative" which calls for:

- An Office of Athletics Standards and Practices within the state university system. The office would serve as an internal watchdog for all state athletics programs, monitoring them and providing advice on how to avoid violations.

- Developing proposed NCAA athletics reforms to present to the collegiate athletics governing body.

- Study of the financial control of athletics programs, with attention to the role boosters play.

- A comprehensive study, going 10 to 15 years back, of state student-athletes to assess the outcome of their school experience. The study would look at whether the student-athletes were adequately prepared for life after college and how they've fared.

Martinez said he would leave it to the regents to "put the meat on the bones" of his proposals.

"You can cure the problem of wrongdoing with good standards, good enforcement," Martinez said.

Regents Chair Charles Edwards said the board was already working out proposed reforms and plans a workshop the first week of December for the presidents, athletics directors and other officials of the nine state universities. The University of Miami (Florida), a private school and a major athletics power, has agreed to participate, Edwards said.

"It's unfortunate that because of the actions of a small few, many of our student-athletes are receiving a bad reputation," Edwards said.

Charles B. Reed, chancellor of the state university system, last year proposed NCAA changes that include eliminating freshman eligibility and doing away with spring football practice.

"We're going to work very hard to put in proper perspective our athletics programs," Reed said, saying Florida wants to take a national leadership role in athletics reforms. He noted that the state reports graduation figures for its athletes, something that U.S. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, has proposed nationally.

Martinez cautioned, though, that he didn't want to see Florida schools crippled by stringent measures that are ignored by the nation's other colleges.

"The university system should not have one arm tied behind its back," Martinez said. "This needs to be done on a national basis."

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q Have cold medications been dropped from the NCAA list of banned-drug classes?

A The NCAA list of banned drugs (Bylaw 31.2.3.1) no longer includes the sympathomimetic amines category, which contained many over-the-counter cold and diet medications. As a result, student-athletes may use substances from this category without being subject to NCAA sanctions. However, many other national organizations that conduct drug testing continue to ban this category of substances. Therefore, student-athletes should continue to follow the more restrictive guidelines if they fall under the purview of these other organizations.

Of course, NCAA member institutions and/or conferences may adopt a list of banned drugs more extensive than the NCAA's, and student-athletes would fall under those guidelines.

Student-athletes should be reminded that over-the-counter medications may contain substances from drug categories that continue to be banned by the NCAA. Student-athletes should check with their athletics trainer, physician, pharmacist or the NCAA sports sciences division if they are unsure whether a medication contains a banned drug.

Kentucky wins CFA award for academics

The University of Kentucky has won its first College Football Association Academic Achievement award for graduating 90 percent of its class of 1983 within five years.

The CFA award was created in 1981 and is presented annually by the Touchdown Club of Memphis. The award recognizes the CFA member institution with the highest graduation rate for its football team. The award will be presented to Kentucky December 27 at the Liberty Bowl Luncheon.

In addition, 13 CFA member institutions received honorable mention for having graduated 70 percent or more of the football players who enrolled in 1983. The schools are Boston College; University of Colorado; Duke University; Georgia Institute of Technology; Kansas State University; University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; University of Notre Dame; Pennsylvania State University; Rice University; University of Tennessee, Knoxville; Tulane University; Vanderbilt University, and University of Virginia.

David P. Roselle, president at Kentucky, said, "This is a fitting tribute to the kind of football program we have at the University of Kentucky. It is also a fitting tribute to head coach Jerry Claiborne, whose emphasis on academics in a competitive athletics program has made this award possible. We are very proud of Jerry and the fine young men on his team who have earned this recognition for their university."

"We're very proud to receive this award," Claiborne said. "It is appropriate recognition of the players' academic efforts. Much of the credit belongs to Bob Bradley (director of the Center for Academic and Tutorial Services) and his staff, who are responsible for our academic support program."

In addition to Kentucky's award, the CFA will recognize Bradley for his part in working with the Kentucky football players toward earning their degrees. The athletic academic adviser award was established in 1987.

Prosecutor of Walters, Bloom to speak at forum

The prosecuting attorney who won the convictions in April of sports agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom on charges of defrauding two universities will be a featured speaker during the third in a series of NCAA forums on career counseling panels.

Howard Pearl, a former prosecutor in the U.S. Attorney's office in Chicago, will discuss the effect of the Walters/Bloom trial on the activities of unscrupulous agents when he speaks at the December 3-4 forum in Kansas City, Missouri.

The event is one of a series of six forums that the Association's legislative services department is presenting as part of a three-year program to assist member institutions in dealing with agents.

Chairs of existing career counseling panels and faculty athletics representatives from institutions that have not formed panels are invited to attend the event, which begins with registration from 4 to 7 p.m.

December 3 at the Kansas City International Airport Marriott.

Program sessions during the forum are planned from 7 to 9 p.m. December 3 and 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. December 4.

NCAA President Albert M. Witte, professor of law and faculty athletics representative at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, will present the forum's keynote address at 7:30 p.m. December 3. He will offer his views on career counseling panels.

NCAA legislation permits the establishment of on-campus career counseling panels to assist student-athletes in determining their options in professional sports and to provide information on player agents and related issues.

Members of two career counseling panels Jeff Potter of Duke University and Mike Rogers of Baylor University — also will be on hand to describe the operation of those panels and answer questions about starting a panel.

Also, a proposed Association program to assist student-athletes in obtaining disability insurance will be discussed by Richard D. Hunter, NCAA director of operations.

As previously announced, other speakers are Ed Garvey, the former executive director of the National Football League Players Association, and Tom Condon, a former professional football player and attorney who represents professional athletes.

Time will be set aside for participants to discuss issues of mutual interest.

Those planning to attend the forum must register by using the form that appears on this page. The registration fee is $15 in advance or $25 at the forum site.

Guests requiring hotel reservations must call Sherry Abels at the NCAA (913/384-3220) by November 27. Travel and hotel accommodations are the responsibility of those attending.

Further information is available from Richard J. Evrard, director of legislative services, or Richard C. Perko, legislative assistant.

Freshman ineligibility: Whose interests are served?

Bonnie Slatton is faculty representative for women's athletics at the University of Iowa. Following is the text of her remarks as a panel member during the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association meeting September 29 in Kansas City, Missouri.

When Chuck Ehrhardt (faculty representative at Florida State University) contacted me about participating on this panel, he suggested that since University of Iowa President Hunter Rawlings had taken such a bold position on freshman eligibility, it seemed appropriate to have someone from our institution speak about the issue. I responded that I would accept but that he should know that I disagreed with the Rawlings position and therefore would understand if he sought an advocate of that position. He suggested that since obviously we would have had lively debate on our campus, I should be able to frame the issue. Well, he was correct; we have had lively debates, and of course, the national discourse has been quite lively as well.

I wondered what I could say that would add significantly to this debate? Being a philosopher by nature and academic preparation, I seem to find more questions than answers in most issues — and since this one is no different, I will share with you some of the questions in my mind and also some of my general conclusions.

1. What are the consequences of making all freshmen ineligible — for the students? For the institutions?

2. Whose interests are being protected by such a ban? The student-athlete? The institution? The coach?

3. How do we justify restricting a student-athlete from continued development of talent when we don't place similar restrictions on other

5. Is the need for such a rule generated by acquiescence to the commercial, entertainment model of intercollegiate athletics?

6. What relationship does this

7. If such a ban were restricted to the "revenue" sports, how do we justify the disparate impact on minority athletes, who are overrepresented in those sports?

8. Why should talented athletes who are also good students be restricted in their athletics development?

9. Would this rule have a disparate impact on women?

10. If the problem is in the sports where professional opportunities exist, should we not address the question of why players are not allowed to become pro in football or basketball prior to graduation of their class?

11. Is there any evidence that freshmen who do not compete will perform better academically than

Limit Division II grants to tuition

To the Editor:

Division II would truly identify itself by limiting athletically related aid to tuition only. Additional aid could be received only if the prospective student-athlete meets Congressional guidelines.

What is right with the proposal is that it would identify the federation participants: full scholarships in Division I, tuition scholarships in Division II and no scholarships in Division III.

No one has suggested the reducing of scholarship dollars, only the amount allocated to an individual athlete. For example, at a Division II institution where it costs $10,000 for a full NCAA scholarship and where tuition is $5,000, a football program would have $400,000 to dispense in full, one-half or one-quarter tuition amounts.

Division II members must come to grips with the reality that they are not the minor league of Division I.

To continue to emulate Division I institutions is counterproductive. Let's come out of the shadow of Division I and into the fun of Division II.

Athletics intended to benefit school

To the Editor:

A university's athletics program can and should bring many positive benefits to the institution and its constituency. As we have seen in too many cases across America, it can also bring embarrassment and disrepute.

The negative influence of athletics upon a university almost always results from a program not meeting the basic and foundational standards set by the NCAA and the institution itself. That is, the program fails to comply with NCAA regulations and does not graduate its athletes at at least the same percentage as all other entering students. These are the

"There is a great deal of turmoil in collegiate athletics today, and it is hard to know where many of the issues will go. At the same time, I thought it was very important for me (as a member of the NCAA Presidents Commission) and for Drake to be part of the process that is likely to influence many changes.

"It will be advantageous for the university to have a member on this important national body on intercollegiate athletics. The high public and campus interest and concern toward college athletics require greater involvement of college presidents, and I am delighted to have been asked to serve on the Commission."

I don't know as much about whether it's fair to black athletes, but I know that in a case where English is an athlete's second language, it's grossly unfair. Those are guys who, to my mind, are more discriminated against in those tests than anybody else."

Education gains called modest since 'A Nation at Risk' report

Despite calls for less state regulation and more power for schools to improve themselves, most states are still calling the shots on education reform, according to a new report.

States have made only modest educational gains since the 1983 Federal report "A Nation at Risk" ushered in the reform era with its verdict that U.S. schools were mired in mediocrity, according to "The Progress of Reform: An Appraisal of State Education Initiatives."

The report concluded that state reform packages generally lacked coherence, and only a few states, such as Washington, Arkansas,

Maine and Massachusetts, have programs aimed at encouraging local districts to find ways to improve instruction.

Current rhetoric holds that the reform movement went through a "first wave" from 1982 to 1986, mostly dictated from on high by states, during which teacher and student standards were stiffened.

From 1986 on, a "second wave," often called "restructuring," is said to have moved beyond standards to improving teaching and learning at the school site.

At his education summit meeting with the nation's governors in Charlottesville, Virginia, President Bush put his stamp of approval on this "second wave," endorsing the principles of less educational red tape and more power for teachers and others at school sites to meet reform mandates.

But the study concludes that this second wave remains wishful thinking in most states. Objectives such as redistributing education money from rich to poor districts and giving teachers and parents more authority will be far tougher, if not impossible, to achieve.

"If we're going to get those kinds of things, people are going to have to be willing to stay at it for a long time," William A. Firestone, associate professor of education at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, and coauthor of the report, told the Associated Press.

"States are exhibiting no clear shift in direction from the first wave of reform to the second," the report said.

The study was produced by the Center for Policy Research in Education, a consortium.

The authors besides Firestone were Susan H. Furrman, professor of policy at the center, and Michael W. Kirst, an education professor at Stanford University.

"High school curricula are more academically oriented, standards for entering the teaching profession are more selective, teachers' salaries are higher, and state and local governments have boosted educational funding," the report said.

But "there are still doubts about the rigor and challenge of some of the new courses in academic subjects, the impact of reform on at-risk students, the quality of teachers and teaching, and the equitable funding of schools."

those who do compete?

12. Are there other solutions that would address more directly the academic progress of student-athletes?

Obviously, these questions are not mutually exclusive or exhaustive. But, as I read through some of the recent studies on this issue, these questions keep reoccurring. As I read the comments of coaches who argued for such a ban, I found myself being somewhat cynical in evaluating their motives, wondering if they would rather have the athletes mature a year and still have them for four years of eligibility, or if they were worried that other institutions were more likely to recruit the "blue chip" freshmen and thus gain a competitive advantage?

I also found that I was somewhat cynical about our institutional positions on this issue. We have created a commercial, entertainment enterprise on our campuses and have placed some of our student-athletes at its center. Rather than confronting the question of the appropriateness of that model for higher education, we continue to adjust our rules to fit and to protect the enterprise. When a president such as William Gerberding of the University of Washington argues for the payment of athletes in the revenue of sports, it seems to me that he has answered the question, and many in higher education seem to agree. If we accept the "minor league" model, as President Gerberding argues, most of our academic proposals will fail.

I have become convinced that proposals such as freshman ineligibility protect our institutions and the image of our programs far more than they protect the interests of student-athletes. It is easier to pass blanket rules such as this than it is to consider restructuring intercollegiate athletics, to reduce practice time and competitive seasons, or to

"just say no" to TV contracts that require students to travel and compete during the week as well as on weekends.

We build bigger and bigger stadia, sign more lucrative TV contracts, send our teams all over the world, and we act as though these insane schedules are out of our control. And, given that mind set, we accept the "world as it is" and set about to "protect the student-athlete" from our own insanity.

Can you imagine that we would tell freshman music students that they could not practice or take part in band or orchestra during their freshman year? Would we tell art students they could not take part in studio art, or drama students that they could not take part in theater, or dancers that they could not perform during their freshman year? How could these students possibly keep their performance "edge" if they could not perform? There is no way a human body can stay finely tuned unless challenged toward ultimate performance.

In denying freshmen such challenges, their only option would be to seek them elsewhere—in an unsupervised situation where serious injuries may occur. Additionally, certain sports would be uniquely disadvantaged. Peak performances for women gymnasts and swimmers frequently come at early ages and delays beyond the freshman year may place them at or beyond their peak performance years.

Again, the rationale generally given for this restriction on student-athletes and not on other talented students is that the intense public arena in which student-athletes perform places far greater pressures on them and therefore the institution must allow those students to acclimate to this public scrutiny. I would argue that it is a systemic problem that cannot be addressed adequately by limiting the development of individuals.

Over the past few years, we have had a heightened awareness of the problems in intercollegiate athletics. I think reasonable people have deliberated and attempted to find solutions. Bylaw 14.3, or "Proposition 48" as it is generally known, was one such solution. We are just beginning to see its impact. Certainly, there have been problems with that solution, a major one being the standard-test requirement and its inherent racial bias.

However, if we can solve that problem, it seems that requiring students to meet minimal academic standards upon entrance to an institution in order to compete is a fairer

In the sports where there are professional opportunities, educational institutions should encourage rather than interfere with the development of minor leagues or farm clubs so that those athletes who have neither an interest in nor an aptitude for a college education have another route to the pro ranks. Football and basketball players should be able to pursue their careers whenever they wish.

We may need to consider legislation that would allow such students who tried and failed in this professional pursuit to subsequently enter college and be eligible to compete, but surely this would be a better solution than saying to our students embedded in all reports that I have read on this topic, whether from national or institutional/conference analyses. It seems clear to me that our attention should be focused on our recruitment practices, standards for entry and academic progress once admitted rather than a blanket rule that, at least to me, misses the mark and disadvantages those students who are truly student-athletes.

The concluding comment of the 1983 ACE and ACT study on this topic seems quite appropriate in 1989.

"The task of setting standards that will at once minimize adverse impact upon minorities and maximize prediction of academic success lies before the NCAA in its upcoming meetings. Syndicated columnist William Raspberry identifies the objectives of such standards as 'soundness, fairness and practicality.' The results of the present report, as well as those of the recent NCAA-sponsored study, should give a firmer basis for a decision on the soundness and fairness of various policy alternatives, at least to the extent that they measure the adverse impact and predictive strength of these alternatives.

"The problems of practicality are not so easily resolved. According to Raspberry, they rest on (1) the fact that 'college athletes are the minor leagues' for basketball and football, (2) these sports are 'major income-producers for the universities,' but (3) 'nobody likes the idea of college athletes only pretending to be students.' To the extent that these three statements are true, there exists a tension that cannot be fully resolved by any standards, no matter how stringent or lax. The purpose of the present study, and of its predecessors, is to provide an empirical basis for a difficult decision."

As our esteemed NCAA president, Al Witte, would say in his "lawyer hat," this is definitely an issue about which reasonable people can disagree. I just happen to think that making all freshmen ineligible is not an appropriate solution to the problems facing us and that we must be willing to "look to ourselves" rather than to the students for the ultimate solution.

"It seems clear to me that our attention should be focused on our recruitment practices, standards for entry and academic progress once admitted rather than a blanket rule that . . . misses the mark and disadvantages those students who are truly student-athletes."

standard than banning a whole class from competition. Why should a 3,000 or 4,000 student be deprived of competition? If there is to be a freshman competition rule, surely an academic institution is capable of distinguishing between those who are academically competent and those who are academically at risk. In fact, I believe most of our institutions do this and have special programs for those students who are at risk.

Why do we not admit that the chief areas of tension that exist between academics and athletics performance are in those sports in which college competition provides the only route to professional sports? As President Gerberding argues: "Yes, we in higher education are the farm clubs for the NFL and the NBA." Why not address this root problem rather than attempting a quick fix that seriously undermines the rights of one particular group of our students?

that for the purposes of competition, you are an athlete first and a student second.

In reviewing the studies done on this issue over the past decade, several conclusions seem apparent:

1. There are simply no academic or sociological data to suggest that freshman athletes need a year to adjust to college life.

2. The data do support the notion that student-athletes who are academically underprepared perform at the same level as other underprepared students.

3. The data further support the notion that when matched with a nonathlete population, student-athletes perform at the same level and in some cases perform better than their matched peers.

4. The pressure to recruit underprepared student-athletes is intensified for the sports that are used to generate income and are used as avenues to the professional ranks.

These general conclusions are foundational standards that must be met to have the basic quality deserving of wide support within a university.

Our director of athletics, Nelson Bobb, has often reaffirmed our school's commitment to these worthy goals and to a highly competitive athletics program and has challenged all of us to maintain these standards as our measures of success.

Athletics programs must be committed to the strong foundation of compliance and sound scholarship and also to the commitment of distinguished achievement through competitive excellence. Those programs are worthy of support and bring distinction to the university, to their city and to all intercollegiate athletics programs across the United States.

In achieving these measures of success, we will have a distinguished and model program—a program that brings to the university the image, spirit, public support, vicarious experiences and, foremost, the student-athlete development, which adds greatly to a university.

"These recommendations will be put before the NCAA in January, and passage is expected. If, indeed, that comes to pass, it will be just about the first real sign of strength by the Presidents Commission, to date a prestigious but divided and toothless body.

December 8 deadline set for sports committee nominations

Nominations for NCAA sports committee vacancies, which will be filled at the 1990 NCAA annual Convention in Dallas, must be forwarded to each member's Men's or Women's Committee on Committee district representative no later than December 8. The nominations are for vacancies that will occur September 1, 1990.

In addition, a copy of the nominations for men's committees is to be sent to the chair of the Men's Committee on Committees, William D. McHenry, Chair, Department of Physical Education, Washington and Lee University, Box 928, Lexington, Virginia 24450 (At Large, Division III, District 3). Copies of nominations for women's committees should be sent to the chair of the Women's Committee on Committees, Elizabeth Murphey, Assistant Director of Athletics, University of Georgia, Box 1472, Athens, Georgia 30613 (At Large, Division III).

In order that a complete summary of nominations can be prepared, a copy of each nomination letter is to be sent to Fannie B. Vaughan, Executive Assistant, NCAA, P.O. Box 1906, Mission, Kansas 66201.

When submitting nominations, the nominee's name, title, institution, division, district and conference should be provided, along with a brief paragraph describing the candidate's qualifications. Nomination letters must be provided for each nominee and should indicate whether the nominee would serve if elected. Unless an unexpired term on a committee is involved, the positions to be filled by the Convention are three-year terms. Committee members who are eligible for reelection normally are reelected.

Nominees for committee service should have:

- A vital interest in, and current knowledge of, the sport or area involved;
- The reputation and character to indicate clearly that committee membership will be used to serve the sport and not the self-interest of the member of the member's institution, conference or area;
- The respect of others engaged in that sport, and
- The time and ability to perform the duties involved.

Particular attention should be given to eligibility requirements set forth in Bylaws 21.1, 21.4, 21.5 and 21.6 of the NCAA Manual.

The Men's and Women's Committees on Committees are responsible for soliciting from the membership nominations of individuals who are interested in serving. They then make their recommendations to the annual Convention. Other members of the Men's Committee on Committees (the chair is listed earlier in this article) and their divisions and districts are: McKinley Boston, Director of Athletics, University of Rhode Island, Route 138, Kingston, Rhode Island 02881 (I-1); G. Other members of the Women's Committee on Committees (the chair is listed earlier) and their divisions and districts are: Linda S. Moulton, Director of Athletics, Clark University, Worcester, Massachusetts 01610 (III-1); Susan W. Lubking, Associate Director of Athletics, West Chester University of Pennsylvania, Hollinger Field House, West Chester, Pennsylvania 19383 (II-2); Bettye Giles, Director of Women's Athletics, University of Tennessee, Physical Education Complex, Martin, Tennessee 38238 (II-3); Marnie W. Pacala, Director of Athletics, Occidental College, 1600 Campus Road, Los Angeles, California 90041 (At Large-III-8).

Several amendments affecting sports committees will be acted upon by the 1990 Convention. The proposals would:

- Specify that the membership of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee shall include at least one member from each of the four Division I men's basketball regions, that five members shall be selected at large and that no more than three committee members shall represent any single region.
 - Increase the membership of the Division II Men's Basketball Committee from six to eight.
 - Establish a Men's and Women's Fencing Committee with only championships-administration responsibilities and discontinue the Men's Fencing Committee and the Women's Fencing Committee.
 - Delete the requirement for Division II or III representation on the Men's Gymnastics Committee.
 - Permit associate or assistant athletics directors to count toward the minimum requirements for administrators on sports and rules committees.
- A list of sports committee vacancies follows. Committee members' divisions and districts are listed in parentheses. Other members of these committees are listed in the 1989-90 NCAA Directory.

WBCA opposes freshman ineligibility

The Women's Basketball Coaches Association board of directors says it opposes freshman ineligibility for women's basketball for the following reasons:

1. Women basketball players have demonstrated academic success, reflected in a 50 percent graduation rate, or 100 percent when adjusted for transfers in good standing, which is higher than the average university graduation rate of 47 percent.

2. Due to the developmental stage of women's basketball, women players are capable of contributing significantly in their freshman year; their absence would be detrimental to the growth of the women's game.

3. Extending a player's competitive experience into the fifth year impacts academic conflicts requiring full semester obligations, which could result in a sixth-year commitment to complete many degree programs.

grams.

4. There is a potential for increased costs as the desire for additional scholarships and competitive opportunities for freshmen develops.

The WBCA said it concurred with the current NCAA rules that provide the opportunity to redshirt freshman basketball players if individual circumstances apply.

Additional legislation restricting freshman eligibility is not necessary at this time, the coaches association said in a prepared statement provided to The NCAA News.

Betty Jaynes is executive director of the WBCA.

aid data for the squad list—will be available by the fall of 1990.

Phase II of the project, which includes certification of continuing eligibility and satisfactory progress—is expected to be in operation by January 1991.

Hardt said the program would be "user friendly," allowing schools to adopt it for specific needs without requiring a great deal of technical expertise.

It also will allow participating schools to input data from their existing computers on campus by providing interface capabilities with the admissions and financial aid offices. "There also will be a built-in security factor," Hardt said.

Hardt said the software program would be made available to the Division I membership for a nominal fee. The program initially will be available for IBM computers. Apple/Macintosh applications will be ready for the second phase in 1991.

Planning for the program first was announced to the membership in a December 5, 1988, article in The NCAA News.

The cost of the program was to be met through the conference-grant program.

Since it was decided that the NCAA would take over the program, the approval of NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz was sought because there were no funds budgeted for the project in the national office.

Schultz gave his full support to the program, and instructed staff members to proceed in its development.

Sun Belt forms compliance committee

For the first time in its 13-year history, the Sun Belt Conference has organized a compliance committee to help educate its membership in NCAA legislative matters.

The nine-person committee is chaired by Geraldine Garner, faculty athletics representative at Virginia Commonwealth University, and is composed of admissions directors, financial aid officers, registrars and athletics administrators from con-

18 teams unbeaten, untied—four in Division I-A

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Seven more NCAA football teams were bounced from the undefeated-untied ranks November 4, leaving 18 perfect teams—nine of them in Division III.

In Division I-A, Nebraska was knocked out by another perfect team, Colorado, while Fresno State barely stayed alive, 31-30, over San Jose State and Alabama and Notre Dame won by comfortable margins. That leaves four. The last year there were zero undefeated and untied teams in the top division was 1936.

In Division I-AA, Eastern Kentucky was bounced by Middle Tennessee State, leaving Georgia Southern as the only perfect team. All four perfects won in Division II, but five were knocked out in Division III—Augustana (Illinois) by Millikin (another perfect), Centre by Otterbein, Cortland State by Ithaca's defending national champions, Lycoming by Susquehanna, and Washington and Jefferson by Carnegie-Mellon. Here is the list, alphabetically by divisions:

Whizzer watches

Colorado's last undefeated-untied regular season was way back in 1937, first year of official NCAA statistics compilations. The leader of that team, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron "Whizzer" White, was in the ecstatic crowd that saw the Buffaloes win a 27-21 thriller. White won national statistics championships that season in rushing, scoring, total offense and all-purpose running. His 246.3 all-purpose yards per game lasted 52 years as the national record until Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders broke it last season.

The 1937 Colorado team lost to Rice in the Cotton Bowl. Now Bill McCartney's team hopes to be playing for the national championship in the Orange Bowl. He took over in 1982 with the program in the depths. His third team finished 1-10 in 1984. Most colleges would have fired the coach at that point, but Colorado stayed with him and in 1985, Colorado was the nation's most improved team at 7-5.

McCartney's current team has been on a well-publicized, season-long mission to go unbeaten for quarterback Sal Aune, who died of cancer in September. But it should be remembered that the success now is based on the decision to stay with McCartney five years ago.

Nearly all the current perfect teams were big winners last year. Not one had a losing record. Two broke even in 1988—St. John's (New York) at 5-5 and Union (New York) at 4-4. Bridgewater (Massachusetts) was a game over .500 at 5-4. Williams has won 12 straight for the first time in 109 years of football.

Pittsburg's "streak"

Pittsburg State soundly defeated Division I-AA Arkansas State November 4 and is just one victory

Wofford's Shawn Graves ranks among Division II leaders in rushing and scoring away from completing its fourth consecutive perfect regular season. That is a remarkable achievement in itself but constitutes its only streak in our book.

Pittsburg has won 44 straight games in regular season but lost four times in NAIA play-off competition since it started, the last time in 1988, so its winning streak is just 10 games—all this season. In our book, if a team lost a game, it does not have a winning streak. We do not compile regular-season streaks, thus do not know where Pittsburg's

Scott Frederickson, Wisconsin-Stout, is No. 3 in Division III pass catching divisions career rushing record, returned to action after missing two games with injuries and gained 221 all-purpose yards vs. Abilene Christian November 4 to break another all-divisions career mark. He now has 7,727 all-purpose yards, breaking the 7,623 by Colgate's (Division I-AA) Kenny Gamble in 1984-1987. Bailey now has 6,264 career rushing yards, 182 above Dorsett.

And who is No. 2 to Bailey in Division II career rushing among current players? The answer is St. Cloud State senior Harry Jackson,

Georgia kicker John Kasay leads Division I-A in field goals per game (both teams combined), second highest ever to 52.5 October 15, 1988; 754.9 total-offense yards, highest this fall and third highest ever, and 412.9 passing yards, tied for second and the sixth straight 400-yard Saturday (vs. two in history prior).

On the ground, Cal State Fullerton's Mike Pringle rushed for 352 yards vs. New Mexico State, third highest I-A figure in history. In the air, Brigham Young's Ty Detmer (470) and Oregon's Bill Musgrave (489), combined for 959 passing yards to break the record 926 by Duke's Steve Slayden and North Carolina State's Shane Montgomery November 14, 1987.

Houston's Andre Ware stayed on course to break several records, reaching 36 TD passes (the record is 47), while his favorite target, Emmanuel Hazard, has 17 TD catches (the record is 18) and 12.4 catches per game (record 13.4).

Quotes of the week

Wofford coach Mike Ayers, after reviewing films of defending Division I-AA national champion Furman, the team his players had to face that week: "It's like watching 'The Nightmare on Elm Street.'" (Mark Cohen, Wofford SID)

When the Georgia Southern Eagles beat the Central Florida Knights October 21, it was a family feud of sorts. Rusty Russell, defensive coordinator for the Knights, is the oldest son of Eagles head coach Erk Russell. And Mike Wagner, graduate assistant for the Knights, is the oldest son of Eagles athletics director Bucky Wagner. He just completed a four-year football career under Russell. Stories on the family angle were abundant during game week. Asked by Mitch Glick of WTOG-TV in Savannah if he'd been in contact with his son, Bucky Wagner replied: "Yes, I talked with Mike by phone. I told him once an Eagle always an Eagle, once a Knight is enough." (Matt Rogers, Georgia Southern SID)

California offensive captain Tony Smith, a 6-3, 290-pound senior guard, described the big earthquake that hit during practice October 17: "The turf just rippled all the way across the field, rolling toward the hill." Earlier that day, he noted the warm, muggy weather and predicted: "This is earthquake weather—we're going to have an earthquake today." Later he said, "It was just a feeling." (Kevin Reineau, California SID)

Eddie Robinson owns more career victories than any coach in football history at 356-124-15 over 47 seasons at Grambling. Asked if the reality of this was set in his mind, he replied: "No, I guess it won't until after I get out of it. I don't ever have time to sit and kind of enjoy it, so I haven't decided what it really means." Asked how he would define a legend, Robinson said:

"I really don't know, but something I read might fit. An essayist wrote: 'Man's greatest reward for his toil is not what he gets for it but what he becomes by it.' I think what's happened in our life at Grambling is important because of what it has made us become. It almost comes close to what Martin Luther King said about having gone to the top of the mountain. You see what guys like (Amos Alonzo) Stagg, (Pop) Warner and coach (Paul) Bryant and all those others had a chance to see. As long as I have my faculties, I'll do the right thing, because I wouldn't want to do anything that's not in the best interest of football, or anything that wouldn't stand for what's best in America."

Asked about retirement, Robinson said he and his wife planned for it long ago but he loves his job more than anything, next to his family:

"For 47 years, I've been having fun. It's like going to a movie every day. You see new runners, new blockers, great runs, great plays and great tackles. If I couldn't compete with the young coaches and if I were not a plus for the university, I'd get out of here tomorrow." (Robinson's team is 7-2 and leads the Southwestern Athletic Conference at 6-0 through November 4.) (Lonza Hardy Jr., Southwestern Athletic Conference SID)

Maine's first-year head coach Tom Lichtenberg about his arrival in Maine: "When I came here, somebody asked me if I had ever been to Maine. I told them no, but I felt like I had. My wife, Sue Ann, buys a lot of stuff from the L.L. Bean catalogue." Asked at a recent press conference about his reaction to a controversial call, he replied: "Hey, I like referees. They are the best thing since cheeseburgers." (Ian McCaw, Maine assistant SID)

Winning seasons streak

Central (Iowa) coach Ron Schipper, whose team is on the perfect-record list, is assured of his 29th straight winning season. That ties the all-divisions, all-time coaching record set by John Merritt. He had eight straight winning seasons at Jackson State starting in 1955 and 21 more at Tennessee State, ending with his death in 1983.

Schipper had been tied with Paul "Bear" Bryant entering the season. He never has had a losing season. He is 222-56-3 through November 4 since starting his career at Central in 1961.

Football notes

44 ranks.

Great confusion results when the media compare regular-season streaks to real, honest-to-goodness winning streaks. For instance, we often heard Miami's (Florida) 36-game regular-season run (ended last season by Notre Dame) being compared to the record 47-game winning streak by Oklahoma in the 1950s—an unfair, invalid comparison since Miami had two defeats in that span. The qualifying phrase "regular-season" almost never is heard on broadcasts (but usually in print). We took no note of Miami's 36-gamer, or of the 70-gamer by Augustana (Illinois), also ended last year.

In the late 1940s, great confusion resulted from reports about California's 30-plus streak—three Rose Bowl losses forgotten—and the Associated Press ordered its writers to cease mentioning it. If we compiled such "streaks," we would be, in effect, wiping out some great bowl or play-off upsets and match-ups, and that is not right.

Where does Pittsburg's four straight perfect regular seasons rank? That is a research project in itself.

Career records, leaders

Indiana senior Anthony Thompson got his 60th career touchdown November 4, a Division I-A record. He had shared the record at 59 with Glenn Davis, Army 1943-1946, and Tony Dorsett, Pittsburgh 1973-1976.

Air Force senior quarterback Dee Dowis reached 3,336 career rushing yards with 141 vs. Army, breaking by 37 yards the record for quarterback rushing set by Tampa's Fred Solomon in 1971-1974.

Duke senior Clarkston Hines, with three more vs. Wake Forest, reached 33 career touchdown catches, one short of the I-A career record of 34 by Houston's Elmo Wright in 1968-1970.

In Division II, Texas A&I senior tailback Johnny Bailey, who earlier this fall broke Dorsett's NCAA all-reports assistant SID Mike Dorsey. Jackson has 4,439—ninth on the all-time list through October 28. He has rushed for more than 100 yards in a game 25 times in his career and for more than 200 yards twice.

Saginaw Valley State's Kevin Mitchell, only a junior, has 3,416 career yards, reports student assistant SID Tod Hess. He gained 233 yards vs. Northern Michigan October 21, then 276 more vs. Wayne State (Michigan) October 28 to storm into the national Division II rushing lead with a 182.6-yard average. That was a blow to Bailey's hopes of becoming the first NCAA rusher in any division to win four straight national titles.

Wisconsin-Stout senior Scott Frederickson reached 3,087 career receiving yards October 28, moving him into sixth place on the all-time Division III list, reports SID Mike Wyatt. The current career leader among active Division III receivers, however, is St. Norbert senior Mike Whitehouse, No. 2 on the career list with 3,265—917 this season. Whitehouse also has 35 career touchdown passes, just four short of the division record of 39.

Season records

Simpson senior Ricky Gales had 222 yards rushing and three TDs vs. Loras November 4, breaking two Division III career records with one game to go. That gave him 1,880 yards and 158 points. Two more records are close.

His 208.9-yard average is above the record 201 by Wagner's Terry Underwood last season. And his 17.6 scoring average is above the record 15.3 by Widener's Billy "White Shoes" Johnson back in 1973.

Big games

Another big offensive Saturday brought more records and near-records November 4. Fifty Division I-A games averaged 51.1 points

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, a story in the October 16 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly identified a school whose men's and women's swimming teams were selected by the College Swimming Coaches Association of America for all-academic honors during the 1988-89 winter/spring semester. Wisconsin-Milwaukee's men's team was identified correctly as a recipient of all-academic honors during the 1988-89 fall semester, but the school's men's and women's teams also should have been listed as winter/spring honorees, instead of teams at Wisconsin.

An item in the Record section of the October 23 issue of the News should have identified North Carolina volleyball coaching staff member Don Van Zytveld as a part-time assistant. Also, information about Van Zytveld and fellow staff member Dave Markland appeared under the wrong heading in the Record. The coaches should have been listed as "women's volleyball assistants."

Voters suggest first-time cross country winners

If the coaches who vote in the Division I cross country polls are correct, two first-time national championships will be crowned November 20 at the 1989 men's and women's championships in Annapolis, Maryland.

Iowa State's men and Villanova's women have been ranked as the nation's best all season. Both teams routinely have captured the vast majority of first-place votes from the coaches who participate in the respective polls. Yet neither squad previously has won the championship it is now favored to capture.

Although Villanova has claimed four men's crowns, the Wildcat women have yet to win a cross country title. This is somewhat surprising in light of the school's recent success in the distance events at the women's indoor and outdoor track championships. Iowa State never has won either cross country title.

Women's championships

What a difference a year has made for Villanova coach Marty Stern, who has seen his team go from nonqualifier to odds-on favorite.

"Last year, I went to the NCAA championships by myself," he said. "I was pretty lonely. But I have a feeling I won't be so lonely this time around."

Indeed, Stern will be accompanied by perhaps the most talented group of distance runners in the nation. His program's resurgence was sparked by the return of four athletes who redshirted last season. Heading the list is senior Vicki Huber, who sat out last season to compete in the 3,000 meters in the Olympics, where she finished sixth. She holds six NCAA track titles at that distance.

Also back after a year's rest are fifth-year seniors Michelle DiMuro and Kathy Franey and sophomore Sonia O'Sullivan. The addition of key freshmen Cheri Goddard and Nnenna Lynch has further solidified this experienced squad.

"Last year, our No. 1 runner was Kim Certain," Stern said. "This year, she's No. 6, even though she has improved a great deal. The addition of heavy talent at the top has pushed her down and made us a very good team."

The Wildcats showed just how good they are October 21 at the Big East Conference championships. Huber and O'Sullivan finished first and second, respectively, and five of their teammates finished in the top 11. Villanova won the meet with 19 points.

"That victory was particularly satisfying for us because, at least right now, the Big East is probably the strongest league in the country," Stern said.

Other Big East teams likely to advance to the championships are Georgetown (second with 57 points in the conference meet) and Providence (third with 60). Providence is led by Geraldine Hendricken, who finished 77th in the 1988 championships but may vie for a place in the top 10 this year. Georgetown returns five of the seven runners who led the Hoyas to 10th place in 1988. Freshman Christi Constantin is a key addition who could push the Hoyas higher in the standings.

Defending champion Kentucky, ranked second in the coaches poll

all season, will make another strong bid for the title. The Lady Kats return three of the runners from their championship lineup, including junior Valerie McGovern. After finishing 12th overall in the 1988 cross country championships, McGovern went on to claim the outdoor 5,000-meter title in track. Her first-place finishes in the Loyola (Illinois) Lakefront Invitational and the Southeastern Conference championships indicate that she could mount a strong challenge for the individual title.

The Lady Kats, who posted 39 points to win their second straight SEC title October 30, also return seniors Sherry Hoover and Donna Combs. Hoover finished sixth and Combs placed eighth at the conference championships to join McGovern as repeat all-SEC performers. Sophomores Jennifer Kendall and Kerry Rink and freshman Christa Holms help make up for the loss of all-Americans Lisa Breiding (11th overall) and Kristy Orre (24th).

North Carolina State began moving up in the polls at midseason and appears ready to be a factor in the championships. Returning for her final season of eligibility is Suzie Tuffey, who won the 1985 individual title, underwent knee surgery in 1986, and came back to finish third in 1987 and 15th in 1988. She has been the Wolfpack's top finisher in all three of the team's meets, including a second-place overall finish to lead North Carolina State to the Atlantic Coast Conference title October 28.

The improvement of junior Nikki Cormack has added depth to an experienced Wolfpack squad that also returns sophomores Laurie Gomez and Katrina Price and senior Mary Ann Carraher from a team that finished just one point behind third-place Nebraska a year ago.

The Huskers showed that they have some depth of their own at the Big Eight championships October 28. Led by sophomore all-America Yvonne van der Kolk's fourth-place finish, the Huskers won the title by placing four runners among the top 10. Although two-time all-America Sammie Resh has used up her cross country eligibility, redshirt freshman Katie Fletcher has come through for the Huskers by placing no lower than seventh overall in each of the team's four meets.

With the return of individual champion Michelle Dekkers and a trio of strong junior runners, Indiana will make a bid to improve upon its sixth-place finish of a year ago. Dekkers, a senior from Capetown, South Africa, has not lost a race in two years. Her victories this season include the Indiana Invitational, the Kentucky Invitational and the Eastern Michigan Invitational. In addition, she set course and conference-meet records October 28 in winning her second straight Big Ten title and leading the Hoosiers to the team championship.

Men's championships

With defending champion Wisconsin decimated by the graduation of its top five runners, Iowa State has assumed the role of favorite in the men's competition. The Cyclones have shown they are deserving of the top ranking: In the three major meets to which they have taken a full squad, they have won with totals of 34, 15 and 22 points. The 22-point total enabled them to breeze to their third straight Big Eight title October 28.

"We have more depth and balance than ever before," said coach Bill Bergan, whose team finished sixth last year. "There are a couple of pretty outstanding runners out front and some very solid people in back of them. Overall, it's a competitive group that doesn't always finish in the same order."

The team's two best runners have been senior John Nuttall and sophomore Jonah Koech. Nuttall, the runner-up in the 5,000 meters at the 1989 outdoor track championships, raced to first-place finishes in the Minnesota Invitational and the Big Eight Conference championships this fall. Koech came in second overall in the University of Wisconsin Classic, just two seconds behind winner German Beltran of Alabama, who is considered a contender for the individual championship.

Alternating as the third through fifth runners on the team have been senior Darrell Smith, who placed 22nd in the championships last year; junior Roland Pauwels, an all-American in the mile run, and Andrew Hollens, who placed third in Minnesota.

"If we can stay healthy, we have a good shot at winning the title," Bergan said. "But Oregon's got to be considered a contender. We (Iowa State and Oregon) have had one common opponent this year—Nebraska—and we competed against them about equally well."

The Ducks are flying high after the return of senior Brad Hudson, who corrected some academic deficiencies and became eligible just before the Pacific-10 Conference championships October 29. In his first meet, Hudson very nearly defended his Pac-10 title, finishing just behind winner Marc Davis of Arizona. Four other Ducks finished in the top 10, as Oregon posted 31 points and won its second straight conference crown.

1988 individual champion Michelle Dekkers, who has not lost a race in two years, could return to the winner's circle at the 1989 championships

The Ducks are without Colin Dalton, their top finisher (31st) in the 1988 championships, who requested a leave of absence to try out for his native Australia's track team for the British Commonwealth Championships this fall. However, sophomore Pat Haller joined coach Bill Dellinger's team after blossoming in track last spring and promptly finished sixth at the conference meet. The Ducks' deep squad also can count on strong performances out of redshirt freshman Terrance Mahon (seventh at the Pac-10 meet) and senior Danny Lopez (10th in this year's conference meet and 13th in the 1988 regionals).

Tennessee, which finished second to Iowa State in the Wisconsin Classic, returns junior all-America Todd Williams and seniors Tim Peteric and Bob Thompson. Williams, the top finisher (19th) for the third-place Volunteers in the 1988 championships, led the team to the SEC title October 30 with a first-place finish. Sophomore Glenn Morgan, who missed last season due to an injury, has emerged as the Vols' No. 2 runner; he took third place in the conference meet.

With three team titles in the last five years, Arkansas always is a force to be reckoned with in the championships. An exciting blend of experience and youth gives coach John McDonnell's team a good chance of improving upon its uncharacteristically low 10th-place finish of 1988.

Two-time all-America Reuben Reina is the key returnee and the only senior among the team's top runners. He has proven to be a strong competitor at the championships, having finished 21st in 1986 and 18th in 1987.

Razorback junior Alex Hallock has returned to his old form after a disappointing year in 1988 and is a candidate to finish in the top 25. Third-year runner Eric Henry provides additional experience to complement the youth of freshman surprises Gilbert Contreras, Brian Baker and David Welsh.

After starting the season ranked 13th, Wake Forest turned in several impressive performances and cracked the top five in the coaches poll at the end of October. The Deamon Deacons earned their first Atlantic Coast Conference title October 28 by placing four runners among the top 10. Leading the way were senior Bill Babcock (second), junior Ben Schoonover (third) and senior Jon Hume (fourth). Hume, who placed fifth in the ACC meet last year, won the Maryland Invitational this fall and recorded top-five finishes in two other regular-season meets.

Top returning individuals include Indiana's Bob Kennedy, who took the crown last year as a freshman; Dov Kremer of Clemson (sixth); Thomas O'Gara of East Tennessee State (fourth), and Jacques van Rensburg of Nebraska (14th).

Championships Profile

Event: Division I men's and women's cross country.

Field: In the men's and women's championships, 22 seven-person teams and 30 individuals will fill the fields.

Automatic qualification: Although each region is guaranteed a certain number of team and individual qualifiers, there is no automatic qualification for conference champions.

Defending champions: Wisconsin won its third men's title in seven years, and Kentucky notched its first Division I women's championship in any sport. Individual champions were Michelle Dekkers and Bob Kennedy and both are competing for Indiana this season.

Schedule: The United States Naval Academy will host the championships November 20. The men's race will start at 11 a.m., and the women's championships will begin at noon.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the November 27 issue.

Contenders: Men's contenders include Iowa State, Tennessee, Oregon and Arizona. Women's contenders include Villanova, Kentucky, North Carolina State, Indiana and Nebraska.

Championships notes: When Indiana runners Michelle Dekkers and Bob Kennedy won individual titles in 1988, it marked just the second time in NCAA cross country competition that men's and women's titles have gone to the same school. Southeast Missouri State claimed both Division II titles in 1984... Wisconsin and Arkansas are the only teams to win men's championships since 1982 (UTEP's 1983 title was vacated)... This is the first year that Navy has hosted the championships... Kentucky's 53-point victory over runner-up Oregon was the largest margin in the eight-year history of the women's championships. The Wildcats did not qualify for the championships in 1987... Indiana runners have claimed the last two women's individual titles. Kimberly Betz won in 1987 with a meet record of 16:10.85... The men's race will be 10,000 meters, and the women will run 5,000 meters.

SLO Mustangs may dominate II cross country

No Division II school has won both the men's and women's cross country titles in the same year since the women's race was added to the championships in 1981.

That's primarily because Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, which has won every women's title since 1982, has not finished atop the men's field since 1979, when the Mustangs won their second straight crown.

But this year, with a highly regarded men's squad and a women's team that is favored to repeat, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo finally may add a championships sweep to its long list of cross country accomplishments.

Men's championships

Coach Tom Henderson's Mustangs return five of the top seven runners from a squad that finished fourth at last year's championships. Led by senior all-America Jim Sorensen, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo claimed its second straight California Collegiate Athletic Association championship October 28. Sorensen was named CCAA cross country athlete of the year for finishing first with a five-mile time of 24:09.32.

Sorensen crossed the finish line a split-second ahead of Jesus Gutierrez of Cal State Los Angeles, a finish that bodes well for an improved team score in the championships. Gutierrez finished fifth at the 1988 championships, a full minute ahead of the 28th-place Sorensen.

Seniors Tim Campbell and Steve Neubaum and junior all-America Mike Parrott round out a solid squad that has posted meet victories over several Division I programs and nationally ranked Division II foes Humboldt State, Cal State Northridge and UC Riverside. Surprisingly strong performances from freshman twins Scott and Matt Hempel have helped make up for the loss of two-time all-America Chris Craig, who now is an assistant coach.

But the Mustangs' path to a championship contains a major roadblock: defending co-champion Edinboro. The Fighting Scots have won or shared the last three team titles after finishing second in 1984 and 1985, and they have been ranked at the top of the coaches poll for much of the season.

"We're better up front our (numbers) one, two and three runners than any team I've ever had," said coach Doug Watts. "Our team has developed over the course of the year, and the potential for running better is still there."

Watts' top three are juniors Chris Rauber and Uriel Rivera and senior Mike Renninger. All are capable of finishing in the top 10, and Rauber is considered one of the runners to beat for the individual title.

Watts also expects Rivera to be in contention for first place. The transfer from Long Beach Junior College is a two-time California junior college 10,000-meter champion who turned in some outstanding performances early in the season.

"He was an underdeveloped talent who we really didn't realize was this good when we got him," Watts said. "He has run better than Rauber at times this season, but anytime you get a new kid, he's charged up to run well at the beginning of the season because it means more to him. Uriel will be up there (in the championship results), but Rauber knows how to train for the end of the season. He wants to win (the race), and he's trained specifically to win it."

Watts considers Cal Poly San Luis Obispo the top team "on paper" and says the Mustangs are running very well right now. But he likes the makeup of his team and the prospect of running in the chilly hills of East Stroudsburg.

"You win the big races up front," he said. "We've got the best top three runners, and our No. 4 runner (senior Mike Tonkin) is as good as SLO's. Cal Poly will have to overcome the hills and, hopefully, the snow, which they don't have to contend with in California."

South Dakota State, which claimed its third team title in 1985, has a cross country tradition that opposing coaches can't ignore. Coach Scott Underwood knows how to prepare his team for the national meet, and he has developed a corps of tough runners who are well-suited to the demanding hills of the East Stroudsburg course.

The Jackrabbits return three all-Americans from last year's third-place team: Nate Trebilcock (17th overall), Craig Cassen (20th) and Paul Morgan (25th). Morgan, a three-time all-America, has been less than 100 percent while working his way back from a stress fracture, but Tim Blackstone and John Czylowski have more than filled the gap. Blackstone was the second Jackrabbit across the finish line at the South Dakota State Invitational and in the college division of the University of Minnesota Invitational.

Two California schools have come virtually out of nowhere to make bids for the men's title. Neither Cal State Northridge nor Humboldt State was represented at the 1988 men's championships, yet both have been impressive enough to earn top-five rankings during this season.

Humboldt State's emergence as a Division II contender was sparked by the return of senior Dennis Pfeifer, who redshirted last year, and the arrival of a high-quality freshman class. Pfeifer finished a fraction of a second behind Cal Poly San Luis Obispo's Sorensen at the Humboldt Invitational in September and claimed the Northern California Athletic Conference title in late October. Three of the Lumberjacks' top seven finishers in their conference-meet victory are freshmen.

Cal State Northridge welcomes back two top runners who were injured last season. Junior Jorge Castro was an all-America in 1987, and junior Derik Vett was an all-West region performer in 1986 and 1987. The top returner from last season is sophomore Sasha Vujic, who is coming off a successful track season. None of the Matadors' top eight runners is a senior.

Runners likely to contend for the individual title include Rauber, Rivera, Gutierrez, Sorensen and Michael Moloto of Abilene Christian, who finished second last year.

Women's championships

Cal Poly San Luis Obispo is the clear favorite in the women's championships. History alone dictates that—the Mustangs have won seven straight titles, the longest streak ever in NCAA women's competition. But the present and future also look rosy for Lance Harter's squad, which returns three runners from last year's team while counting only one senior among its top seven performers.

Championships Profile

Event: Division II men's and women's cross country.

Field: In the men's championships, 17 seven-man teams and 13 individuals will fill the 132-competitor field. Eleven teams of seven women and 15 individuals compose the 92-competitor women's field.

Automatic qualification: Although each region is guaranteed a certain number of team and individual qualifiers, there is no automatic qualification for conference champions.

Defending champions: Cal Poly San Luis Obispo won its seventh straight women's team title. Edinboro and Mankato State finished in a tie for the men's championship. Neither of the individual champions will defend titles: Laura Byrne of Southeast Missouri State has graduated, and Doug Hanson of North Dakota State is redshirting this season to concentrate on his studies.

Schedule: East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania will host the championships November 18 at Mountain Manor Golf Course. The women's race will start at 1 p.m., and the men's championships will begin at 2 p.m.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the November 20 issue.

Contenders: Men's contenders include Edinboro, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Humboldt State, Cal State Northridge and South Dakota State. Contenders for the women's title include Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, South Dakota State, Air Force and UC Davis.

Championships notes: Cal Poly San Luis Obispo's streak of seven straight women's titles is the longest in the history of NCAA women's competition. Mustangs coach Lance Harter also has directed the school's track team to four outdoor titles, giving him more NCAA crowns than any other women's coach... The Mustangs' two-point victory was the narrowest margin ever in the women's meet... Last year's first-place tie between Edinboro and Mankato State was the first in NCAA men's cross country since Indiana and Penn State deadlocked for the Division I men's crown in 1942... Torrential rains the night before last year's championships caused a dam to burst and resulted in flooding on the meet site in Clinton, Mississippi. The men's course was shortened by approximately 200 yards, the women's by 100 yards... East Stroudsburg last hosted the championships in 1985... The men's race will be 10,000 meters, and the women will run 5,000 meters.

"This team looks to be even better than the teams of the last couple of years," said Harter. "Depth always has been a trademark of our teams, but this year our depth up front—in the top three runners—is of better quality than before."

Harter should know quality runners when he sees them. In addition to leading the Mustangs to seven straight cross country titles, he has coached the women's track team to four outdoor championships. His 11 NCAA titles are the most of any women's coach.

Returning are sophomore Melanie Hiatt, senior Jill Hoffman and junior Sydney Thatcher. Hiatt (sixth) and Hoffman (25th) both finished among the top 25 in the 1988 championships; Hiatt's finish was the team's best, and Hoffman was the sixth Mustang across the finish line. Although all of the runners who finished between the two are gone this year, the gap has been filled more than amply by the return of Teena Colebrook and the arrival of freshman Jamie Park.

Colebrook, a five-time track champion, is back after redshirting last year. She was the team's fifth-best finisher in the 1987 championships as a freshman. But the team has received the biggest boost from Park, a freshman who has stepped in to challenge Colebrook and Hiatt as the team's top runner.

Harter expects to face a stiff challenge from Air Force, which finished just two points behind Cal Poly San Luis Obispo last year. It was the narrowest margin of victory in the Mustangs' seven-year reign.

The finish could be just as tight this year, as the Falcons return six all-Americans and two of the top four overall finishers. The only significant change in the Air Force squad took place off the course: Gail Conway has replaced Mark Sperre as head coach.

Conway, an Air Force graduate who was named the U.S. armed forces female athlete of the year in 1987, was an assistant coach last season. She inherits one of the deepest lineups in Division II cross country.

National championship all that's left for Texas A&I's Bailey

Leading Texas A&I to its first NCAA Division II Football Championship is about the only accomplishment record-setting running back Johnny Bailey has yet to add to his impressive resume.

The two-time winner of the Harlon Hill Trophy, which honors the outstanding Division II player, owns nearly every division rushing record and recently became the NCAA career rushing leader.

Bailey and the Javelinas recently climbed to the top spot in the NCAA Division II football poll after St. Cloud State upset top-ranked North Dakota State and broke the nation's longest winning streak at 21.

Texas A&I's chances of becoming champion of the 17th annual tournament look good on paper. The Javelinas led the division through games of October 21 in rushing offense with 350 yards a game and were ranked second behind Lone Star Conference rival Angelo State in total offense by two-tenths of a yard with 473.4 yards a game.

The Javelinas also have a rugged defense to complement their running game. They led the division in scoring defense, allowing just seven points a game, and ranked second in total defense at 200 yards a game.

However, the Javelinas will need to prove they are championship contenders on the field before play-off invitations are extended the day after their season-ending November 11 clash with Angelo State—the division leader in scoring offense with a 39-point average.

Despite the loss to St. Cloud State, eighth-ranked North Dakota State, behind the one-two punch that led the Bison to last year's title—quarterback Chris Simdorn and running back Tony Satter—cannot be counted out of the play-off picture. The Bison have played in six of the last eight championship games and have come away with four titles.

Although North Dakota State

has an edge in play-off experience, its reign as the division's dominant team could be in jeopardy because of a crop of teams looking for their first play-off invitation.

Third-ranked Grand Valley State has a prolific offense that has averaged nearly 40 points a game and fourth-ranked Pittsburg State, winner of 43 straight regular-season games, appear to be good bets to make their first trips to the play-offs, along with sixth-ranked St. Cloud State and seventh-ranked Edinboro.

Championship Profile

Event: Division II Football.

Field: Sixteen teams.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Tony Satter rushed for 151 yards and quarterback Chris Simdorn scored twice to lead North Dakota State to a 35-21 victory over Portland State and the school's fourth Division II title in six years. The victory capped a 14-0 season for the Bison.

Schedule: First-round, quarterfinal and semifinal games will be played November 18, November 25 and December 2, respectively. The championship game will be played December 9 in Florence, Alabama.

The NCAA News Coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will be published in the November 20, 27 and December 4 issues. Championship results will appear in the December 11 issue.

Contenders: Texas A&I, Jacksonville State, Grand Valley State, Pittsburg State, Angelo State, St. Cloud State, Edinboro, North Dakota State, West Chester, Indiana (Pennsylvania), Winston-Salem, UC Davis, Mississippi College, Northwest Missouri State, Virginia Union and Augustana (South Dakota).

Championship notes: The championship game will be played in Florence for the fourth consecutive year... North Dakota State has won 20 games in nine play-off appearances to lead the division; Delaware, which now is classified Division I-AA, and UC Davis are tied for second in play-off victories with seven... Several individual and team tournament records fell in last year's play-offs thanks to the field doubling in size from eight to 16 teams. Notable records were set by Simdorn, who scored 54 points during the tournament, and Texas A&I running back Johnny Bailey, who rushed for a play-off record 580 yards. North Dakota State broke the team tournament records for net yards rushing with 1,660 and net yards rushing and passing with 1,824... North Alabama will serve as host institution... Eight teams made their first play-off appearances in last year's tournament, bringing the total number of institutions that have earned play-off berths to 67... There are 116 Division II institutions sponsoring football this year—the same number as last season.

Success truly 'runs' in this Titan coaching family

John Zupanc and Debbie Vercauteren have a lot in common. Avid distance runners, both have competed in the New York and Boston marathons. Both coach cross country at Wisconsin-Oshkosh. Zupanc heads the men's team, and Vercauteren coaches the women's squad. Both led their Titan teams to Division III titles last year.

And, they are married to each other.

After Wisconsin-Oshkosh swept the championships in St. Louis last November 19, Zupanc and Vercauteren returned to Oshkosh as the first husband-wife duo to coach cross country champions in the same year. Although collegiate records do not indicate the marital status of coaches, it is believed to be the first time spouses have coached separate teams to championships in any sport.

"It was a lot of fun, because we were able to share the excitement and the highlight moments of winning the championships," Zupanc said. "Because we are married, we get some recognition that we normally wouldn't; but that helps our program."

They also demand attention because their teams remain among the best in Division III. Zupanc's men have been atop the coaches' poll all season, and Vercauteren's charges have been running neck-and-neck with Cortland State for the top women's ranking.

It took each of them seven years to win or share a national title after taking over their respective programs. Vercauteren started the Titan women's team from scratch in 1981, and her team tied St. Thomas (Minnesota) for the championship in 1987 before claiming it outright in 1988. Last year also was the seventh for Zupanc, who began rebuilding the men's program in 1982.

Zupanc and Vercauteren, who have been married for eight years, say they have enjoyed sharing the ups and downs of developing successful teams. Each is familiar with the other's athletes, and they often turn to each other for coaching advice.

"At school, we basically keep our hands out of each other's programs," Vercauteren said. "In fact, our offices are in different buildings. But when we get home, we talk about our different problems and share ideas on coaching strategies."

"That's the best part about being married to another coach. You can 'talk shop' at home. You can tell stories about your day or your job, and you know the other person is very interested."

Women's championships

Vercauteren will have another title to talk about if she gets strong performances out of seniors Tiffany Fox and Marina Colby. Fox, a three-time all-America, finished sixth overall in 1987 and 16th last year. Colby placed 22nd in 1988 and was the third Titan to cross the finish line. Although they have struggled at times this season, they are experienced runners used to the pressure of championship competition.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh, which hasn't lost to a Division III opponent since the 1986 championships, will face a stiff challenge from Cortland State. The two teams know little about each other.

"We have had no common opponents and no common courses this year, so it's very difficult to compare the two of us," said Cortland State coach Jack Daniels. "I really don't know what's going to happen. They've been first in the rankings for a few weeks, and we've been first for a few weeks; and the points have been very close each time. That reflects how close the teams really are."

One of the reasons the Red Dragons started the year so highly ranked is that no one graduated from a team that finished third at last year's championships, just one point behind second-place St. Thomas (Minnesota). They are led by three cross country and track all-Americans: senior Marybeth Crawley, eligible graduate Judy Sparks and senior Mary Selleck. All have been very consistent and have improved since last season. The addition of junior Vicki Mitchell, who did not compete last fall, gives Cortland State a solid grouping of four quality runners.

Daniels also is keeping his eye on perennial power St. Thomas (Minnesota), which has finished first or second in every championship since 1982. "Even though they've lost their top two runners, I've got to believe they'll be a factor," Daniels said.

The Tommies have one of the Midwest's top Division III runners in sophomore Gretchen Farkas, who missed the last half of the 1988 season with a stress fracture in her leg. She won the La Crosse Invitational and the Luther Invitational, and was fifth in the National Catholic College Championships against predominately Division I competition.

Running behind Farkas are junior Michelle Auger, sophomore Jenny Church, and a pack of solid finishers that includes senior Rachel Lansing and juniors Eve Otto and Jenny Huelsman.

Carleton, which has produced the last two individual champions, finished one point behind St. Thomas at the La Crosse Invitational with a young, well-balanced team that features sophomores Anne Avery and 160 yards a game.

That is discouraging news for teams in the North region and those in the West region, which is in the same half of the bracket for quarterfinal pairings.

However, top-ranked Central (Iowa) in the West region made headlines in last year's semifinal game by defeating Augustana, 23-17, before losing in the final.

The Flying Dutchmen will be out to improve on last year's second-place finish behind an offense that is averaging 42 points a game and a defense among the division's best.

Cortland State, top ranked in the East region, also will be out to improve on last year's first play-off showing after losing a quarterfinal game to eventual champion Ithaca.

And if the saying that "defense wins championships" is true, the Red Dragons have an outstanding chance to claim the school's first title.

Cortland State's defensive unit had allowed opponents just 1.9 points after seven games and fewer than 135 yards in offense.

On the other side of the ball, the Red Dragons have one of the division's top quarterbacks in Dick Puccio, who is among the leaders in passing efficiency.

Washington and Jefferson, the No. 1 team in the South region, also has a well-balanced team that appears capable of reaching the 17th annual Stagg Bowl. The Presidents' defensive unit is ranked among the division leaders in total defense and scoring defense, and senior quarterback Phillip Sampson is having an outstanding year.

John Zupanc

Debbie Vercauteren

and Elizabeth Carpino. Carleton is expected to improve on last year's seventh-place finish with a more consistent lineup.

Wisconsin-La Crosse will rely on senior Sara Gilles (ninth last year) and a solid cast of underclassmen to vie for a top-five finish. Supporting Gilles will be sophomore Lynn Frise and freshman Deb Mayer, both of whom have been battling illnesses late in the season.

Senior Jannette Bonrouhi of Ithaca, who placed fifth overall in 1988, is the top returning individual finisher. Others likely to contend for the individual title are Meghan White of Smith, Jill Vollweiler of Colby and Marilyn Fredey of Bowdoin.

Men's championships

Zupanc's Wisconsin-Oshkosh team is favored to win a second straight men's title despite losing two of its first three finishers in the 1988 championships.

The Titans rely on two-time all-America Scott Steuernagel to secure a top finish.

Although he missed nearly three weeks of this season with an ankle injury, Steuernagel is expected to improve upon his ninth-place overall finish of 1988.

But the Titans are far from a one-man show. Four other runners return from last year's seven-man championship squad.

This strong supporting cast includes Dave Lambert, the top freshman finisher (25th); senior Ron Welhoefer (32nd); senior Randy Damkot (42nd), and junior John Paustian (118th).

Calvin may be the team most likely to thwart the Titans' efforts to repeat. "They've got a good, strong team," Zupanc said. "When we met them at the Notre Dame Invitational, we beat them by 45 points; but we beat them by just a few points at each (finish) place. They match up well against us."

Calvin is led by two-time all-America Adam Suarez, who is a strong candidate to win the individual title after finishing second overall last year as a junior. His first-place finishes in the last two Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association championship meets have boosted the Knights to consecutive conference titles.

Senior Dwayne Masselink and sophomore Thad Karnehm add depth to the Calvin squad. Both ran in last year's championships, and this year they have been dueling to replace ailing John Lumkes as the team's No. 2 runner.

Although Brandeis was hit hard by graduation losses, coach Norm Levine has his team in good position to equal or improve the fourth-place finish of last year's senior-dominated team. One of the few returnees is junior Jesse Palmer, who placed 17th last year.

Palmer teams with fellow junior Sean Dillon to form a strong pair at the top of the lineup. Palmer finished second and Dillon third at the Southeastern Massachusetts Invitational.

The championships will feature a "race within a race" as Brandeis and fellow University Athletic Association member Rochester continue their rivalry. Rochester finished third in the 1988 championships, one place ahead of Brandeis; this year, Brandeis is ranked ahead of Rochester in the most recent coaches' See Success, page 16

Vikings call on 'chip off the old block'

A chip off the old block is helping Augustana (Illinois) build the rock-solid characteristics that typified Vikings NCAA Division III Football Championship teams from 1983 through 1986.

The Vikings were conspicuous by their absence in the last two Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowls. However, coach Barry Reade's son, Barry, has quarterbacked and kicked Augustana to the top of the North region rankings and into position to win another Division III title.

Augustana, one of only three teams to win 100 games in this decade (North Dakota State and Nebraska are the others), should earn its 10th play-off berth when the field is selected November 12, thanks to a rushing offense triggered by Reade, who doubles as the Vikings' punter and place kicker.

Augustana has averaged more than 350 yards a game, and its swarming defense, which usually is well-rested because of the Vikings' ball-control offense, has limited opponents to fewer than seven points

Championship Profile

Event: Division III football.

Field: Four teams from each of four regions will be selected for the 16-team field.

Automatic Qualification: None.

Defending champion: Ithaca, winner of the 1979 NCAA Division III Football Championship and a play-off finalist in four other championships, defeated Central (Iowa), 39-24, to avenge a loss to the Flying Dutchmen in the 1974 play-off final.

Schedule: First-round, quarterfinal and semifinal games will be played at on-campus sites November 18, 25 and December 2, respectively. The championship game will be played December 9 at Phenix City, Alabama.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will be published November 20, 27 and December 4. Results of the championship game will be published in the December 11 issue.

Contenders: Cortland State, Union (New York), Trenton State, St. John's (New York), Augustana (Illinois), Dayton, John Carroll, Millikin, Washington and Jefferson, Lycoming, Rhodes, Centre, Central (Iowa), Concordia-Moorhead, Simpson, and St. John's (Minnesota).

Play-off notes: Phenix City has been the site of the last four championship games and 14 of the 16 play-off finals. The championship game, which is dubbed the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl, will be hosted by Columbus. Ithaca set team tournament records in last year's march to the championship for most first downs (91), net yards rushing (1,377), and net yards rushing and passing (1,719). Augustana (Illinois) leads the division in play-off appearances (nine), victories (19) and titles (four). After appearing in five consecutive championship games beginning in 1982, last year for the second year in a row Augustana failed to advance to the Stagg Bowl. Five teams made their first play-off appearances last year, bringing the total number of institutions that have participated in the play-offs to 73. There are 212 institutions sponsoring Division III football four fewer than last year.

Championships Profile

Event: Division III men's and women's cross country.

Field: In both the men's and women's championships, 22 seven-person teams and 30 individuals will fill the fields.

Automatic qualification: Although each region is guaranteed a certain number of team and individual qualifiers, there is no automatic qualification for conference champions.

Defending champions: Wisconsin-Oshkosh swept the men's and women's team titles. Men's individual champion David Terronez of Augustana (Illinois) returns. Women's titlist Anna Primeas of Carleton has graduated.

Schedule: Augustana (Illinois) College will host the championships November 18. The women's race will start at 11 a.m., and the men's championships will begin at noon.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the November 20 issue.

Contenders: Men's contenders include Brandeis, Calvin, Wisconsin-La Crosse and Wisconsin-Oshkosh. Contenders for the women's title include Carleton, Cortland State, St. Thomas (Minnesota) and Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Championships notes: Augustana (Illinois) hosted the men's championships in 1978 and 1979 when the race was run on Credit Island in the Mississippi River. Credit Island remains the school's home course, but this year's championships will be held six miles from campus at Highland Springs to better accommodate the needs of a championship meet. North Central has won seven of the 16 men's championships; St. Thomas (Minnesota) has won or shared four of the eight women's team titles. When Wisconsin-Oshkosh and St. Thomas (Minnesota) tied for the 1987 women's championship, it marked the first deadlock in the history of NCAA cross country, which dates back to the first Division I men's meet in 1938. The men's race will be 8,000 meters, and the women will run 5,000 meters.

Mustangs

The highest-flying Falcons are senior Jill Wood and junior Callie Calhoun. Wood, who finished second only to Laura Byrne of Southeast Missouri State in the 1988 championships, has won five meets this season. Calhoun (11th overall in 1988) heads a group of juniors who give the Falcons depth, experience and a bright future. These third-year runners include Shannen Karpel (20th overall in 1988 and 23rd in 1987), Suzanne Henke (20th last year) and Amy Reecy (28th last year).

Kelly Kirkpatrick, last year's fourth-place finisher, and promising freshmen Cyndi Craig and Cynthia Mahaffey round out the solid Air Force squad.

South Dakota State, the only school other than Cal Poly San Luis Obispo to capture a Division II women's cross country crown (1981), has shown signs that it will improve upon last year's eighth-place finish. Senior Susie Oster and all-America Christy Young, who is working her way back from a stress fracture, have come on strong late in the season to add punch to an experienced Jackrabbit lineup. When his team placed seven runners in the top 15 at the South Dakota

State invitational meet October 21, Underwood said it was the best the team had run in three years.

With a roster that includes three all-Americans and all but one of the runners who brought home a third-place finish in 1988, UC Davis undoubtedly will be a factor in the race. Senior Pam Bragg is healthy again after nursing an injury for most of last season, and she has been the team's top performer in five of its eight meets. Returnees Stacey

Wainwright (12th overall), Suzy Lehmkuhl (15th) and Valerie Bluett (42nd) add experience to a team that is gearing to peak at the regionals.

Others likely to contend for the individual title are seniors Bente Moe of Seattle Pacific and Darcy Arreola of Cal State Northridge, who sat out last season. Moe, who won the title in 1985 and finished second the next two years, returns after redshirting to compete in the Olympics for her native Norway.

Swedish runner testifies to boost from undetectable hormone

A Swedish athlete testing the hormone Erythropoietin said it was like being "connected to a turbo" when he ran a marathon earlier this year.

"It went too easy," said Lars Erik Palmgren, referring to his run in the Stockholm Marathon June 3. "Half-way through the race, I still felt so fresh and unaffected, so I told my (guinea pig) partner that we had to slow down."

Palmgren, 28, a former member of the Swedish junior cross-country ski team, was one of eight Swedish athletes who participated in a test program headed by Professor Bjorn Ekblom, the Associated Press reported.

Ekblom, the discoverer of modern blood doping in 1972 and one of the world's leading sports-medicine experts, said recently that the athletes showed a 10 percent increase in endurance after the test program of the undetectable hormone (The NCAA News, October 30).

It was the first time athletes were acting as guinea pigs for Erythropoietin, or EPO for short. Seven other Swedish athletes are currently being tested with higher doses of EPO. The program was approved the same effect on the body as the banned blood-packing practice.

Researchers say EPO disappears from the body in a matter of hours, making detection in an athlete's system almost impossible. But the

by the Swedish Sports Confederation, the governing body for sports in Sweden, and the Swedish National Social Board.

EPO, a naturally occurring hormone that is being manufactured artificially, boosts an athlete's performance by increasing the oxygen-storing capacity of the blood. It has red blood cells it creates live on for months.

Palmgren said he had 18 EPO injections six weeks before running the Stockholm Marathon. His test results showed significant improvements at the end of the testing period.

"It felt like being connected to a turbo when I ran the Stockholm Marathon, especially when I was running those tough uphill stretches," he said.

"I had only run a cross country before, and I never had the same feeling then. This was different. It's possible that higher doses could trigger even better results."

Palmgren, who is an opponent of drugs in sports, said he participated in the program because he wants EPO to be banned for athletes.

"But I don't think any athletes have cheated with EPO yet," Palmgren said. "I decided to talk because I want to stop all secretiveness surrounding EPO research. We're not trying to find a new drug, although other nations may believe that."

The drug is expensive, one dose costing about $3,000 and reportedly more than $15,000 on the black market.

The International Olympic Committee, which banned blood doping in July 1986, is investigating EPO.

Ekblom called for an immediate ban November 2 before leaving for a sports-medicine congress sponsored by the International Olympic Committee that started late in October at Colorado Springs, Colorado.

EPO, vital for kidney patients, could be on the market within a year, Swedish scientists say. There could be side effects, but scientists have not discovered any yet.

Dr. Arne Ljungqvist, a Swedish member of the IOC's medical commission, said that Ekblom's test results were not reliable.

"They're based on a research program that has not been concluded yet," said Ljungqvist, who also is a vice-president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, track and field's world governing body, and chair of the IAAF's medical committee. "And the test results have yet to be subject to a full-scale scientific study."

Amnesty considered for prep players who sign with agents

The NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee has agreed to study the concept of amnesty for student-athletes who sign with a player-agent while still in high school.

At its October 30-31 meeting in Kansas City, the committee agreed that the problem is widespread and must be researched before proposed legislation can be forwarded to the Council.

However, a plan was discussed at the meeting that would provide amnesty to any athlete who would disclose information to the member institution or the NCAA regarding an agreement with a player-agent.

The proposed plan would allow the student-athlete to begin his or her intercollegiate career without the pressures associated with such agreements and without acting contrary to NCAA legislation during his or her intercollegiate career.

Such a program also may supply the NCAA with a list of unscrupulous player-agents and would allow the Association to provide this information to conference offices and member institutions.

The committee unanimously recommended that the Executive Committee approve a plan for the NCAA to make available to student-athletes insurance against a disabling injury.

The disability-insurance program would be centralized and administered through the NCAA national office and assisted by National Sports Underwriters, Inc.

At its August 1989 meeting, the NCAA Council approved a recommendation that the Association's voluntary agent registration program be disbanded and that a program be developed in conjunction with the professional leagues' players associations that would assist in providing information to member institutions regarding player-agents who are certified with the professional leagues' players associations.

In this regard, the committee formed a subcommittee to coordinate meetings and gather information from the professional leagues concerning approved player-agents and salary information.

In other business, the committee voted to recommend that the rules pertaining to the administration of the summer baseball leagues and the eligibility of student-athletes in those leagues be included in the administrative regulations (Bylaw 30) in the NCAA Manual.

The NCAA Committee on Review and Planning recently recommended that the Council sponsor legislation to permit career counseling panels to include knowledgeable alumni, friends of the institution or others outside the campus community.

After the Council referred the issue to the Professional Sports Liaison Committee, the committee

Youths to be warned about steroids

Slippery Rock University of Pennsylvania will hold an all-day clinic December 10 designed to discourage high school athletes from using steroids.

The program, according to track coach John Papa, is aimed at "raising the awareness level of the steroid abuse problem in athletics, especially at the high school level, and to demonstrate proper ways of gaining strength and speed."

The program, titled the "Steroid-Speed-Strength Clinic," will include lectures and work sessions by Papa; Slippery Rock athletics director William Lennox; researcher Charles Yesalis of Pennsylvania State University; YMCA physical fitness director Gerry Benford of Columbus, Ohio, and Randy Smythe, who has invented more than 30 devices to help improve speed.

Yesalis has spent eight years researching the nonmedical use of anabolic and androgenic steroids and has directed a national study of their use among adolescents.

Papa said a recent national study concluded that as many as 500,000 adolescents may be using steroids.

Summary of NCAA Council actions

Following is a report of all actions taken by the NCAA Council in its October 16-18, 1989, meeting in Indianapolis.

Committee reports

Academic Requirements: The Council:

Reviewed its April 1987 interpretation permitting prospective student-athletes who repeat an entire year of high school to use courses taken during the repeated year to fulfill the core-curriculum requirements of Bylaw 14.3; modified that interpretation to specify that a prospect also may use appropriate courses during a repeated semester, provided the prospect does not enter the member institution until the next fall term, and to indicate that the repeated semester or year does not have to be required; voted to sponsor an amendment to Bylaw 14.3.1.1.2.1 (a) to indicate that the repeated semester or year could include postgraduate courses.

Reconsidered its April 1988 interpretation (effective August 1990) requiring all test scores used for purposes of certifying a student-athlete's initial eligibility per Bylaw 14.3 to be sent directly from the testing agency to the member institution; modified that interpretation to indicate that it applies only to prospects who have been offered athletically related financial aid or who have signed a National Letter of Intent.

Voted to sponsor legislation to permit member institutions to pay for the procurement of an official test score for a prospect without making that prospect a recruited student-athlete per Bylaw 13.02.9.

Reaffirmed its position that subscores from the ACT test in use prior to October 1989 may not be combined with subscores from the new version of the ACT for purposes of establishing initial eligibility.

Reaffirmed its position that courses labeled as remedial by a state agency cannot be considered core courses for purposes of Bylaw 14.3, regardless of whether the specific high school indicates that the course is not remedial.

Declined to reconsider a previously approved Legislation and Interpretations Committee action that did not support the Academic Requirements Committee's recommendation that a member institution should be permitted to provide financial aid to a student-athlete to attend the institution's branch school under certain conditions.

Approved distribution of posters to high schools by the national office setting forth the basic requirements of Bylaw 14.3, subject to review by the Executive Committee for purposes of funding.

Supported the committee's position that student-athletes' academic eligibility should be affected according to the institutional policy for all students; therefore, legislation in this area is not necessary.

Authorized the Administrative Committee to appoint a Council subcommittee to establish objective criteria for approving the various waivers for international competition.

Amateurism Issues: The Council:

Reviewed legislation that it had voted to sponsor earlier to permit an award or cash prize that an individual could not receive under NCAA legislation to be forwarded in the individual's name to a charitable or educational agency, provided the award receives prior Council approval. An unsuccessful motion to alter the proposal resulted in the Council's deciding not to sponsor the proposed legislation.

Expressed support for the committee's intention to recommend legislation for the 1991 Convention that would permit individuals to receive, prior to collegiate enrollment, certain appropriate and necessary expenses for developmental training, coaching, equipment and supplies, approved and provided by the U.S. Olympic Committee or the national governing body in the sport, without jeopardizing eligibility for intercollegiate athletics.

Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports: The Council:

Agreed to sponsor legislation to specify that the position on the committee previously designated for an undergraduate student-athlete instead be allocated for an individual active in sports-medicine research.

Received a copy of a national study of substance use and abuse habits of college student-athletes, as reported in the October 16 issue of The NCAA News.

Eligibility: The Council:

Approved a recommendation that the committee be authorized to withhold student-athletes from a designated number of regular-season contests as a condition for restoring postseason eligibility once a student-athlete is declared ineligible for postseason competition as required under Bylaws 18.4.1.5 and 18.4.1.5.1.

Supported the committee's recommendation that institutions be required to submit appeals for restoration of eligibility in drug-testing cases within a specified period of time prior to postseason competition, with the understanding that the committee will return to the Council to specify what it considers to be an appropriate period of time in which to submit such appeals.

Financial Aid and Amateurism: The Council:

Approved a recommendation that a study be conducted to identify clearly any situations in which needy athletes cannot receive the same consideration or amount of assistance as students in general.

Supported the committee's recommendation that financial aid administrators, registrars and admissions officers be involved in annual NCAA regional seminars and agreed that information regarding such seminars in 1990 be placed in the official publications of those constituencies.

Infractions: The Council:

Approved revisions of certain Bylaw 32 enforcement procedures concerning the committee hearing process and the public release of expanded infractions reports in the event of appeals. (Note: The revisions will appear in an upcoming issue of the News.)

Agreed to sponsor legislation to provide that a prospective student-athlete may be found to have engaged in unethical conduct under prescribed conditions and declared ineligible for competition at any member institution, subject to appeal, and to clarify that the provision of false and misleading information to the NCAA or to an institution during inquiries into a possible violation is contrary to the ethical-conduct legislation.

Initial-Eligibility Exceptions: The Council:

Directed the staff to study the difficulties encountered by the subcommittee in documenting the validity of learning-disability diagnoses in order to determine the feasibility of developing criteria by which to identify learning-disabled student-athletes.

Approved the subcommittee's decisions in August and September.

Changed the name of the subcommittee to the Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers.

Legislative review: The Council:

Approved the committee's proposed legislative timetable for the new legislative calendar that will go into effect after the 1990 Convention and agreed to sponsor necessary legislation to implement that timetable.

Reaffirmed its support of the committee's position that no regional hearing sessions be conducted prior to the Convention in the new legislative calendar.

Approved an alternative procedure regarding the incorporation of interpretations annually into the NCAA Manual. The procedure, in essence, would permit the Council to approve such inclusion and to publish those interpretations in the Convention publications, but instead of publishing them as legislative proposals, the Council's approval would stand unless a delegate successfully challenged inclusion of a given interpretation.

Approved a listing of interpretations for inclusion in the 1990-91 Manual.

Authorized the committee to withdraw any of the interpretations if it subsequently determines that they should not be included in the Manual.

Approved the committee's recommendation that certain portions of the Manual be published separately, especially a "pocket" guide to recruiting rules for coaches and a similar guide to academic standards and eligibility rules for other appropriate institutional personnel. The Council noted that the approval is subject to approval of funding by the Executive Committee in the 1990-91 budget.

Agreed to sponsor legislation to amend Constitution 4.2.2.2 to confirm that the Association's officers are exempted from the playing-conference restriction governing membership on the Executive Committee.

Agreed to sponsor legislation to permit a student-athlete to receive all properly personalized merchandise awards and to eliminate the list of permissible awards per Bylaws 16.1.2.2 and 16.1.3.2.

Amended Bylaw 30.6.8 to affirm that when an institution crosses the international date line during a foreign tour, the change of date will be disregarded and the equivalent time as measured by the United States will be used in determining the institution's vacation period.

Review and Planning: The Council:

Directed that the Executive Committee be informed, for consideration in the next budget, of the Council's support for a longitudinal study of the data base developed by the American Institutes for Research in the 1987-88 National Study of Intercollegiate Athletes, including the development of additional data regarding the time commitments of student-athletes and the effects of mandatory living arrangements on student-athletes' reported feelings of isolation.

Supported a recommendation that the Association conduct a study of the membership to determine the number of athletics dormitories currently in existence, with the survey to include a specific definition of the conditions that constitute an athletics dormitory.

Tabled a proposal to change the titles of the NCAA president, division vice-presidents and executive director.

Approved a recommendation that the national office staff develop a public relations program for the Association to guide its dealings with the membership, the general public and the news media, subject to review by an ad hoc committee of public relations experts from member institutions prior to submission to the Council.

Referred to the executive director for his consideration the views expressed by the committee regarding the proposed certification program for Division I athletics programs.

Considered the committee's views regarding distribution of revenues realized from the next contract for televising the Division I Men's Basketball Championship and referred to the executive director and the Executive Committee the planning committee's position that "it is extremely important that the interests of the Association as a whole and the interests of the higher education community be reflected in the procedures for making decisions regarding distribution of those revenues. The Council noted, however, that it may not be possible to announce plans for distribution of revenues at the time the new rights fees are announced, as suggested by the committee.

Referred to the Professional Sports Liaison Committee a recommendation that consideration be given to permitting institutional career counseling panels to include knowledgeable alumni, friends of the institution or others outside the campus community.

Supported, subject to approval by the Executive Committee in the next budget, the development of enhanced educational materials for distribution to student-athletes regarding careers in professional athletics and regarding the use of agents.

Special Events: The Council.

Supported publication of a handbook to place all NCAA regulations, policies and other administrative requirements for all-star contests in one publication that would be mailed to all institutions each year; referred the matter to the Executive Committee for consideration of funding.

Certified the following college all-star basketball games for the 1989-90 academic year: Japan Basketball Classic, Louisiana Association of Basketball Coaches, Metropolitan Senior All-Star Game, National Association of Basketball Coaches All-America Game, New England Hall of Fame All-Star Game, New Jersey Collegiate Coaches Association, Orlando All-Star Classic, Pizza Hut Shootout, Portsmouth Invitational Basketball Tournament, Southern Shootout and TA-WA-SI East-West All-Star Game.

Agreed to sponsor legislation to amend Bylaws 18.7.1.1 and 30.8.1 to require institutions that participate in a postseason football game to submit a written report on the conduct and administration of the event as a prerequisite for future bowl-game eligibility, and to specify appeal procedures pursuant to that process.

Amended Bylaw 30.2.2.7 to require the management of certified games to provide specific types of insurance for each participating student-athlete and to submit evidence of such coverage to the NCAA national office no later than 60 days prior to the game.

Amended Bylaw 30.8.1 to state that, beginning with the 1991-92 academic year, a "deserving winning team" shall be defined as one that has won a maximum of six games against Division I-A opponents.

Amended Bylaw 30.8.4 to permit the application for the inauguration of a contest to be received from a proposing sponsor only at the annual spring meeting of the Postseason Football Subcommittee, and to specify dates by which the proposing sponsor's application must be received at the national office.

Amended Bylaw 30.8.13 to clarify the subcommittee's obligation to forward to each of the institutions that competed in the contest any new revenues received as a result of the sponsor's payment of financial penalties.

Adopted a new 30.8.14 to specify the type and amount of insurance required for participants in certified postseason football contests and to specify that certification of such insurance be submitted to the national office no later than 60 days prior to the game.

Adopted a number of editorial changes to amendments to Bylaw 30 that were approved by the Council in August concerning official invitations, ticket allocations, awards and recertification requirements related to certified postseason bowl games.

Division I Steering:

The Council endorsed the concept of a certification program for Division I athletics programs and encouraged the staff to refine the program further for implementation during the 1990 calendar year, as recommended by the steering committee.

The steering committee denied an appeal by the University of Arizona for a waiver of the transfer residence requirement for a student-athlete whose eligibility was affected by a recruiting violation involving his former institution.

The steering committee determined that a transfer student-athlete at the University of Louisville should not be precluded by the residence requirement in effect during his initial year of residence from participation during the 1989-90 academic year, noting various mitigating factors in the case, including the fact that the confusion surrounding the application of the rule was based on the wording and organization of certain portions of the 1988-89 Manual, which since have been reorganized and clarified in the revised Manual.

Division III Steering: The steering committee:

Approved requests by Carthage College, the University of Evansville and Illinois College for approval of awards of circumstance.

Denied a request by St. Norbert College for approval of two awards of circumstance.

Agreed that once the financial aid office has calculated students' financial aid packages, the financial aid office may send a list to the Division III athletics department of the names of students who have received leadership and merit awards beyond need. The athletics department then may notify the financial aid office of those students who participate in intercollegiate athletics.

Miscellaneous

The Council reviewed and took no action on a report concerning NCAA scholarship and grant recipients, which it had requested in August.

It denied a request by the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics that nonvoting, ex officio membership on certain NCAA committees be granted to that organization.

The Council supported the position of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association that the title faculty athletics representative should not be changed to institutional athletics representative.

The Council received the quarterly report of the Association's governmental affairs, which was summarized in the October 23 issue of the News.

Presidents Commission

The Council received its regular report of the Commission's activities.

It reviewed the Commission's plans to sponsor certain legislative proposals at the 1990 NCAA Convention, as well as the division steering committees' reactions to those proposals. It was agreed that the Administrative Committee would communicate to the officers of the Commission the various comments and concerns reported by the steering committees. (Note: Based on authorization granted later in this meeting, it was agreed that the Administrative Committee would make final decisions regarding Council or steering committee sponsorship of any Convention proposals relating to the Commission's legislative initiatives.)

Administrative Committee

The Council approved all actions in 1989 Administrative Committee Conference Nos. 11 through 15, as published in earlier issues of the News.

Membership

The Council and the steering committees took the following actions regarding membership applications and requests:

Elected the United States Volleyball Association, Colorado Springs, Colorado, to affiliated membership.

Elected Raycom Management Group, Inc., Charlotte, North Carolina, to corresponding membership.

Granted a request by Chaminade University for a waiver of the minimum number of contests in women's tennis per Bylaw 20.10.3.5.7.1.

membership categories for 1989-90 and agreed to conduct such a review annually.

Committees

The Council appointed individuals to fill vacancies on Council-appointed committees, effective September 1, 1990. The appointments are not announced until next spring, when all appointees have had an opportunity to accept or decline. In addition, the following appointments were made, effective immediately unless otherwise noted:

Basketball Officiating Committee: Shirley A. Walker, Alcorn State University.

Infractions: Beverly E. Ledbetter, Brown University.

Review and Planning: Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University; Alan J. Chapman, Rice University, to serve as chair. Both effective January 1, 1990.

Delayed action on appointments to the Honors Committee and the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee until the Council's post-Convention meeting in January.

Received a report prepared by the Administrative Committee concerning the Association's committee appointment procedures; directed that the report be published in a future issue of the News and agreed that the Council would act on the suggestions therein in a 1990 meeting.

Legislation

The Council voted to sponsor the following legislation for the 1990 Convention, in addition to those proposals that it had voted to sponsor in its April and August meetings and in addition to proposals included in other portions of this summary. It also authorized the Administrative Committee to take final action for the Council, in accordance with the November 1 legislation submission deadline, on any proposal requiring such action.

Bylaw 13.3.1.1, to permit member institutions to provide pre-enrollment information regarding orientation, conditioning, academics and practice activities to prospects who have signed the National Letter of Intent or who have been accepted officially for enrollment by a member institution that does not participate in the National Letter of Intent program.

Bylaw 14.3.2.1, to retain the current provisions of that legislation for Division II and to permit nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers in the division to receive nonathletically related financial aid. For Division I, the Administrative Committee was authorized to take a final position after consultation with the Presidents Commission officers. After that consultation, it was agreed that no Council proposal would go forward for Division I.

Constitution 3.6.2, to delete the reasons for which the Association's annual membership dues are imposed.

Constitution 4.1.3 and 5.3.1, to permit the Council, in the interim between annual Conventions, to adopt noncontroversial legislative amendments necessary to promote the normal and orderly administration of the Association's legislation, to specify that such amendments cannot involve recruiting or eligibility matters, and to require the Council to submit legislation at the next annual Convention to confirm adoption of such amendments.

Bylaws 12.1.2 and 16.11.1.3, to permit individuals to receive from amateur sports teams or organizations (other than those specifically affiliated with member institutions) apparel and equipment for individual or team use for practice and competition without affecting their eligibility for intercollegiate athletics.

Bylaws 12.1.2 and 16.11.1, to permit individuals to receive the full benefits of the Elite Athlete Health Program established by the U.S. Olympic Committee without jeopardizing their amateur status or their eligibility for intercollegiate athletics.

Bylaws 12.4.2, 16.11.2 and 16.11.2.3, to permit an individual not enrolled in a regular term to receive broken-time payments from the USOC or the national governing body in the sport to compensate the individual for lost employment earnings resulting from participation on a national team without jeopardizing the individual's eligibility for intercollegiate athletics. The Administrative Committee was authorized to establish a maximum amount that may be so provided and subsequently set that amount at $250 per week for inclusion in the proposed legislation.

Bylaws 13.02.8 and 13.02.9, to clarify for purposes of NCAA recruiting legislation the distinction between a prospective student-athlete and a recruited prospective student-athlete.

Bylaw 13.1.3.2.2, to limit Division I institutions' women's basketball coaches to not more than one visit per week to a prospect's educational institution during an evaluation period, regardless of the total number of prospects enrolled at the institution.

Bylaw 13.1.4, to eliminate in Divisions I-A and I-AA football the current limit of three contacts per prospect at the prospect's educational institution, thereby permitting a member institution's football coaching staff members to visit a prospect's educational institution on not more than one occasion during each week of the appropriate contact period.

Bylaw 13.3.1, to eliminate the annual athletics recruiting brochure as a permissible recruiting item in Division II. The Division I Steering Committee did not support a similar proposal for Division I members.

Bylaw 13.11.2.3, to eliminate the restriction that a prospect visiting a Division III member institution may not participate in physical workouts or other recreational activities in the sport for which the prospect is being recruited and to state affirmatively that a prospect in that division may participate in such workouts or activities, provided they are not organized or observed by members of the coaching staff and are not designed to test the athletics abilities of the prospect for recruiting purposes.

Bylaw 14.1.7.2, to permit the application of the Association's legislation governing graduate-student eligibility on a division-by-division basis by changing the applicable regulation from a dominant to a federated provision.

Bylaw 14.3.1.1, to permit a Division II institution to obtain a prospect's ACT or SAT score from either the appropriate testing agency or an official copy of the individual's high-school transcript.

Bylaw 14.5.4, to clarify that the missed-term, midyear enrollment, and nonrecruited, nonparticipant legislation related to the Association's satisfactory-progress rule are exceptions (administered by member institutions) rather than waivers (administered by conferences or by the Eligibility Committee).

Bylaw 14.6.6, to specify that the minimum 24 semester or 36 quarter hours presented by a student-athlete who transfers from a four-year college to a two-year college and then to the certifying institution shall be transferable degree credit hours and shall include a minimum grade-point average of 2.000.

Bylaw 15.2.4.1, to allow student-athletes to receive Pell Grant assistance in combination with other institutional financial aid if the overall grant total does not exceed the value of a full grant plus $1,700 or the student-athlete's cost of attendance, whichever is less.

Bylaw 15.2.7, to permit the application of the Association's summer financial aid legislation on a division-by-division basis by changing the applicable regulation from a dominant to a federated provision. The Council voted to sponsor this proposal in August and rejected in this meeting a motion to reconsider that sponsorship.

Bylaw 15.4, to permit the Council to approve requests from Division III member institutions to provide student-athletes leadership and merit awards that meet specified criteria but are not based on consideration of financial need, deleting the current legislation governing leadership and merit awards in that division.

Bylaw 15.5.3.3, to confirm that member institutions may utilize either the actual or the averaging method in determining a student-athlete's equivalency value.

Bylaw 15.5.3.3, to permit Division II institutions to exempt from the institution's equivalency computations academic honor awards that meet specified criteria, even if such awards are received by freshmen.

Bylaw 17.5.4.2, to exempt participation in one postseason tournament (e.g., conference championship, regional tournament) other than the NCAA fencing championships from the maximum number of dates of competition in fencing.

Bylaw 17.7.6, to permit in spring football in Division II a maximum of 12 sessions in a 24-calendar-day period, to prohibit all contact in spring practice, and to limit any spring practice session (including meetings) to two hours per day. (Note: Subsequently, the Administrative Committee determined that the Division II Steering Committee would sponsor this proposal.)

Bylaw 17.10.3(a), to move the date on which a Division I institution may play its first ice hockey contest from the second Friday in October to the third Friday in October.

Bylaw 17.15, to limit the application of the 26-week playing-season limitation in Division I softball to the academic year, as is the case in baseball.

Bylaws 20.2, 20.3, 20.4 and 20.5, to specify that membership election, multidivision classification and reclassification are effective September 1 of the year the applicant member meets the appropriate criteria, or the September 1 following the Convention if an active member institution successfully seeks a waiver of the criteria for multidivision classification or change of division membership, and that during the two-year compliance period, a member institution seeking Division III membership or reclassification of a sport to Division III may not award athletically related financial aid to incoming freshmen or transfer students.

Bylaw 21.3.14, to change the name of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee to the Interpretations Committee inasmuch as the committee has no jurisdiction in legislative matters.

Bylaw 21, to establish a combined Men's and Women's Fencing Committee with only championships administration responsibilities and to specify the composition of that committee.

Bylaw 21.6.5, to specify that the membership of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee shall include at least one member from each of the sport's four geographical regions in Division I, with five members selected at large, and to specify that no more than three members of the committee may represent any single region.

Bylaw 21.6.7, to increase from six to eight the membership of the Division II Men's Basketball Committee.

Bylaws 14, 18 and 31, to offer the membership alternatives in regard to year-round drug testing, the consequences of positive tests by individual student-athletes and the issue of team sanctions for positive tests. The Administrative Committee was authorized to approve the final structure and sequence of the legislative proposals, and it was agreed that an introductory note with the legislation would specify the Council's support for year-round testing; more stringent consequences for individuals testing positive, especially for performance-enhancing drugs, and no change in the current team-sanction circumstance.

The Council decided not to sponsor the following:

Bylaw 13.12.2.1.2, to permit a Division I member institution to employ its own football and men's basketball student-athletes in institutional football and men's basketball camps or clinics under the conditions that already apply in Divisions II and III. Instead, the Council remanded the proposal to the Recruiting Committee and requested reactions from the American Football Coaches Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Bylaw 13.1.2.4, two proposals to limit recruiting telephone calls by institutional staff members in Divisions I-A and I-AA football. The Recruiting Committee, the AFCA and the Special Committee on Cost Reduction will be asked to review the proposals.

Bylaw 20.4.1.2.2, to confirm that the multidivision-classification opportunity therein is not available to a Division II member if a National Collegiate Championship exists in the sport. The Council accepted the Division III Steering Committee's suggestion that this be handled by interpretation, rather than legislation.

Bylaw 20.9.3, to specify that Division I member institutions that are able to sponsor and conduct athletics programs for only one sex (because the student body includes only members of that sex) need not meet the minimum sports sponsorship criteria for the other sex. This provision currently exists in legislation only for Division II membership criteria, but the Division I Steering Committee withdrew its earlier support for the proposal. Concurrently, the Division II Steering Committee declined to sponsor a proposal to delete that language in the Division II criteria.

In related actions, the Council:

Adopted a revision of Bylaw 30.11 to confirm that the summer basketball limitation against a player participating on more than one team in one league does not apply to student-athletes from Division III institutions.

Reviewed a statement regarding 1989 Convention Proposal No. 42 and authorized the Administrative Committee to distribute the statement if it appears appropriate to do so after its meeting with the Presidents Commission officers. [Note: Inasmuch as the Council will not present a proposal for Division I in this regard, the statement was not distributed.]

Requested that the Council receive a report on the discussions between the Administrative Committee and the Commission officers as soon as possible after those discussions occur.

Interpretations

The Council reviewed the actions of the Legislation and Interpretations Committee in its Conference Nos. 11 through 14 and approved all of those actions, with these exceptions:

Voted that admissions fees may be waived for student-athletes if those fees also are waived for other prospective student grantees and the fee waiver is not based on athletics ability or participation. (Conference No. 13, Minute No. 2.)

Agreed to sponsor legislation to amend Bylaws 13.6.5 and 13.7.2 to require that in Division I institutions, prospective student-athletes on official or unofficial visits shall be seated in the general seating area for the public and the student body, rather than on the playing field or floor, on the team bench or in the team dugout, or in a member institution's "sky box." (Conference No. 13, Minute No. 3.)

Remanded to the interpretations committee the matter of prohibiting participation on a national team by nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers during their initial academic year, especially as such a practice might relate to waivers of the satisfactory-progress rule. (Conference No. 13, Minute No. 7.)

Louisville's Smith making the best of second chance

By Ted M. Natt Jr.

Sitting in a jail cell after being arrested on cocaine-trafficking charges almost two years ago, University of Louisville halfback Dee Smith knew he had two choices—break down or fight. He chose to fight.

"If you fight and survive it, I think you become a stronger person mentally," Smith said. "I'd hate to have somebody experience what I went through, but I think I'm about to rise to the top again."

Smith, a senior, took the first step October 21 in a 31-24 loss at Tulsa when he accounted for 295 all-purpose yards and scored a touchdown in his debut with the Cardinals. He caught six passes for 81 yards, gained 52 yards on nine carries, and returned four kickoffs for 88 yards and three punts for 74 yards.

"I just went out and gave it my all. I was trying to do whatever I could to help the team come out with a win," he said. "I was ready because it was an accomplishment just being out there again."

Dee Smith

There was a time last year when Smith wondered whether he would ever play football again.

Smith, at the time a wide receiver at the University of Kentucky, was arrested February 26, 1988, in Cincinnati by agents of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration on two charges of aggravated trafficking and preparation to distribute.

He spent eight days in jail.

"It was a nightmare. There's nothing worse," Smith said. "I don't try to look back and think about that at all. I don't even really like talking about it.

"It's just a mistake that I made, and I paid for that mistake."

The charges eventually were reduced to permitting drug abuse, a misdemeanor, and Smith—who maintained his innocence throughout—was ordered by a judge to perform 60 hours of community service. He fulfilled that commitment last summer by working with a boys' club, a rest home and a community center in his home town of Paducah, Kentucky.

While awaiting trial, Smith enrolled at Louisville for the 1988 fall semester on the advice of his high school coach, Allan Cox.

"Dee wanted to go to school, work on his degree and try to straighten his life out," Cox said. "I don't think he realistically entertained any thoughts of getting to play again in college. I thought his only chance would be at Louisville."

Smith was given no assurances by Louisville coach Howard Schnellenberger regarding a tryout. But after his case was resolved satisfactorily, he was allowed to walk on because he was in good standing with the university.

Then, on the eve of Louisville's 1989 season opener at Wyoming, Smith was declared ineligible by the university because he hadn't met the NCAA's residency requirement for transfers. His mother had flown to Laramie to watch the game.

"It really got me down," he said, "but I'd been through so much already, and I just had faith that it would work out."

Smith took only three hours of courses last fall. NCAA rules require a transfer athlete to be a full-time student (12 hours) for two semesters, excluding summer school, and to accumulate 24 credit hours before becoming eligible. Smith earned 24 hours by adding 12 last spring and nine in the summer.

An appeal to the NCAA's Legislation and Interpretations Committee was turned down, and on September 29, a Jefferson Circuit Court judge denied Smith's request for a temporary injunction that would have forced Louisville to declare him eligible.

Smith finally was declared eligible by the NCAA Council after a last-ditch appeal before the Council's 22-member Division I Steering Committee earlier in October.

Schnellenberger, who had misinterpreted the rule in the first place, said he was very relieved at that moment.

"I was part of a grave injustice," Schnellenberger said. "If we had not found a way to repair it, it would have been something I would have had to live with for the rest of my life. Dee's reinstatement gives me renewed belief in right and wrong."

"I have the talent to play on the pro level. I've talked to several scouts this year," Smith said. "But I don't want to take that for granted too much. I'm just trying to take the right steps to get back on the path to success."

Natt writes for the Associated Press.

BYU joins men's volleyball league

Brigham Young University will join the Western Intercollegiate Volleyball Conference in January. The Cougars will play varsity competition for the first time this season.

The inclusion of Brigham Young follows the addition of the University of California, Irvine, and gives the WIVA 12 teams. Coaches and officials agreed to divide the conference into two divisions and create a WIVA postseason tournament.

The divisions are named for Harry Wilson and Col. Burt DeGroot, who were instrumental in the growth of volleyball when it was a fledgling sport, even in California.

Schools will play each team in their division twice and each team in the opposite division once, with overall records against conference teams counting toward selection to the postseason tournament.

The top three teams in each division will advance to the WIVA tournament, with the division champions receiving first-round byes. The winner of the WIVA tournament then will be the West region's nominee to the Final Four.

CAA signs sponsorship contract

The Colonial Athletic Association has signed a one-year corporate sponsorship agreement with Richfood, a wholesale grocer based in Richmond, Virginia.

Richfood will sponsor the league's conference basketball tournament and will promote the conference during the season through television advertising and other means, the Richmond Times-Dispatch reported.

Colonial Commissioner Thomas E. Yeager said, "This will give us the grass-roots contact with the public for promotion of our activities. It's going to help each of our eight universities and (Richfood's) markets.

Yeager said a one-year contract was signed "with options hopefully extending into the next millennium."

The company's involvement with the Colonial is expected to lead to the establishment of a postgraduate scholarship program and assistance in funding the league's planned all-star tour to Europe.

Tulane applies for SEC membership

Tulane University has formally applied to the Southeastern Conference to become a member again.

Athletics Director Chester S. Gladchuk said November 1 that the school would like to rejoin the conference it dropped out of 23 years ago.

"It is now difficult to be as effective as an independent," Gladchuk said. "The days are gone, with the rare exception, where an independent can really compete in the television market."

"Conferences, for the most part, offer lucrative revenue-sharing packages."

Tulane has asked the SEC to consider adding the university if the league is expanded, Gladchuk told The New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"It is my understanding they have reviewed Tulane, as far as a preliminary study they did regarding potential institutions if they were to take the step toward expansion," he said. "I have to believe we are somewhere in the mix and hope that we would be."

Gladchuk said SEC Commissioner Harvey W. Schiller was "very, very positive." Schiller has been named executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"I think he looked at Tulane as a school that made a lot of sense from a parity point of view," Gladchuk said. "That whole expansion concept with the big boys, the mega-conference, is, I think, totally unrealistic."

"The SEC has to look at its inventory.... They need a little bit of parity."

"Maybe a South Carolina, Florida State and a Tulane, to keep a semblance of balance, makes sense to me."

Tulane withdrew from the SEC June 1, 1966. The football program went through nine losing seasons before the school left the conference.

At that time, Tulane athletics officials believed Tulane could become more competitive as an independent.

Not so in this era, said Gladchuk.

Carroll men, women to join Midwest leagues

Carroll College will change its athletics affiliation from the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin to the Midwest Conference, beginning in the fall of 1992, school President Dan C. West has announced.

Although referred to as the Midwest Conference, the organization consists of separate and autonomous conferences for men and women. Men compete in the Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference, and women compete in the Midwest Athletic Conference for Women.

"The change to the Midwest Conference is being made for both philosophical and practical reasons," said Richard Watkins, faculty athletics representative. "It aligns Carroll with some very fine liberal arts colleges that share our athletics philosophy and that devote a similar amount of resources to their athletics programs. Practically, it will allow Carroll to compete against school of comparable size that are really our natural rivals in Wisconsin."

"This is not a question of wanting to leave the CCIW so much as it is a question of wanting to affiliate with the Midwest Conference," Watkins said.

The two Midwest Conferences are divided into northern and southern divisions. Carroll will compete in the northern division along with Lawrence University, Beloit College, Ripon College, St. Norbert College and Lake Forest College. The southern division consists of Coe College, Cornell College, Grinnell College, Illinois College, Knox College and Monmouth College (Illinois).

NABC retains firm to help coaches seeking better jobs

The National Association of Basketball Coaches, in an effort to assist its members with the many coaching openings occurring each year, has retained Raycom Management Group, Inc., as its exclusive agent for professional development and career enhancement.

NABC Executive Director Joseph R. Vancisin has announced that in 1989-90 his organization and Raycom, a collegiate sports marketing and management firm, will work together to assist coaches seeking to advance and schools looking for new coaches.

An integral feature of the program is the coaches advancement service in which NABC members have the opportunity to enroll by providing RMG with confidential information on coaching background, philosophy, geographical preference, won-lost record and coaching history. RMG then matches by computer qualified coaches with schools looking for candidates.

Schools in need of coaches actually initiate the service by contacting RMG for assistance with the search. In turn, RMG can access names of potential candidates from its data base. The cost of the service is incurred by the schools, not the coaches.

"Our service will assist coaches in advancing their careers by presenting their names and qualifications to interested schools," said Richard Giannini, RMG president. "For schools, the service will provide the confidential research involved in identifying strong coaching candidates. We can assist schools by providing a manageable list of potential candidates."

"Our board of directors sees the need for this service to assist our coaches in their professional development and career advancement," said Vancisin.

RMG, based in Charlotte, North Carolina, also provides career development and executive search services for the American Football Coaches Association.

News Fact File

Ninety-one of the 294 Division I member institutions sponsored only the minimum number of required sports (six) for men, for women or for both in 1988-89. Of those, 25 sponsored the minimum for both men and women, four sponsored the minimum for men but more for women, and 62 sponsored the minimum for women but more for men. Forty-one of the 91 were Division I-AA institutions; the other 50 were in Division I-AAA.

16 nominated for membership in Basketball Hall of Fame

Premier pivotmen Elvin Hayes and Bob Lanier were among 16 people nominated for election to the Basketball Hall of Fame Oct. 31.

Hayes and Lanier, dominant collegiate players at the University of Houston and St. Bonaventure University, respectively, were nominated for the first time, as were players Nate Archibald and Calvin Murphy and former Marquette University coach Al McGuire.

Players renominated for possible enshrinement were Earl Monroe, Dave Bing, Walt Bellamy, the late Larry Foust and two women—Ann Meyers, former University of California, Los Angeles, and Olympic star, and Nera White, who led her Nashville-based team to 10 consecutive AAU championships.

Also renominated were former coaches Jack Hartman, Jack Ramsay and Wil Robinson and sportscaster Curt Gowdy, who served as president of the Hall of Fame for seven years.

Former National Basketball Association Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien also was nominated but asked that his name be withdrawn because of his opposition to the hall's secret balloting process.

Election requires 18 votes from the 24-member Honors Committee. Inductees will be announced in February.

There are 168 players, coaches and contributors and four teams in the hall of fame. The first women were enshrined in 1984.

"Just to come this close is glorious. When I heard about it, I got those old high school butterflies in my stomach," said the 5-9 Murphy, a former Niagara University and Houston Rockets standout who serves as shooting coach and director of community relations for the Rockets.

Lanier, known almost as much for his size 19 sneakers as his playing ability, said the nomination was overwhelming. "It brings up a lot of emotional stuff," he told the Associated Press. "The first thing I thought of was how happy my dad would have been."

Lanier and Hayes each played in 12 National Basketball Association all-star games. The other nominated players also enjoyed successful careers in the NBA, including Archibald, who also played at the University of Texas, El Paso; Monroe, a former Winston-Salem State University standout; Bing, an all-America player at Syracuse University; Bellamy, a two-time all-America at Indiana University, Bloomington, and Foust, a La Salle University graduate and Minnesota Lakers captain who died in 1984.

Hartman, who coached at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, and Kansas State University, and Ramsay, who coached at St. Joseph's University (Pennsylvania) before embarking on a successful career in the NBA, are retired. Robinson, who became the first black collegiate head coach in 1970 at Illinois State University, is assistant to the general manager of the Detroit Pistons.

Notre Dame (Maryland) to dedicate sports complex

The new sports and activities complex at Notre Dame (Maryland)

The College of Notre Dame (Maryland) will formally dedicate its new $3.5 million Marion Burk Knott Sports and Activities Complex November 12.

Jim McKay of ABC-TV's "Wide World of Sports" will be master of ceremonies for the event.

The 44,000-square-foot Knott Complex is a major renovation and addition to LeClerc Hall. It features a regulation basketball/volleyball court, fitness center, training room, mirrored dance studio, racquetball courts, game room, weight-training facilities and indoor jogging track. It also includes quarters for student government and the campus newspaper and yearbook.

Begun in June 1988, the complex was totally financed by private donations, including a $2.8 million contribution from the Marion I. and Henry J. Knott Foundation and additional gifts from trustees, alumnae, friends and Baltimore businesses. A $200,000 challenge grant from the Kresge Foundation helped complete the financing.

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed Chick Hislop, Weber State College, to the Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee, replacing Harley Lewis, no longer at a member institution.

b. Took final action, in accordance with the November 1 deadline for submission of legislation for the January 1990 Convention, on a number of Council-sponsored proposals, revising some proposals and giving final approval to all, as authorized by the Council.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

Approved recommendations by the Men's and Women's Swimming Committee that the State University of New York, Buffalo, serve as host institution for the 1990 Division II Men's and Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, March 7-10, and that Williams College serve as host institution

Conference No. 17
October 31, 1989

for the 1990 Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, March 8-10. Williams would replace Northwestern University as host (approved in August) inasmuch as the latter has a scheduling conflict and is not able to host the event.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(c) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in tryouts or competition involving national teams in swimming, ice hockey, volleyball, gymnastics, rifle, fencing, modern pentathlon, skiing and baseball.

(2) Granted a waiver per Bylaw 15.2.4.2-(d) to permit Indiana University, Bloomington, to exempt from counting in the permissible amount of a full grant-in-aid for a student-athlete a state government grant awarded to the child of a disabled veteran.

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.13 as follows:

(a) Montana State University, to provide travel expenses for a student-athlete to attend his mother's funeral.

(b) St. Bonaventure University, to provide expenses for its basketball team to travel to the site of the funeral of the son of a teammate.

(c) University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, to provide expenses for a student-athlete to travel from his home to the institution due to a life-threatening situation involving his grandfather.

(d) University of Maryland, College Park, to provide expenses for a student-athlete to travel from the site of his grandfather's funeral to the site of intercollegiate competition.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee: Granted waivers for championships eligibility per Bylaw 31.2.1.3 to the following institutions that failed to submit institutional information forms, institutional compliance forms or Division I academic-reporting forms by the specified deadline: Bethune-Cookman College; University of California, Berkeley; Chicago State University; Cortland State University College; Eastern Mennonite College; Fairfield University; Georgia Institute of Technology; Humboldt State University; University of North Carolina, Charlotte; North Carolina State University; Occidental College; University of Oklahoma; Thiel College; Virginia Commonwealth University; and Western Michigan University.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee took the following actions:

Out-of-season practice/basketball

1. Basketball student-athletes involved in NCAA Youth Education Through Sports (YES) clinics. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 17.3.6-(c) and agreed that the principle set forth in this regulation could be extended to permit the involvement of members of an institution's basketball team in NCAA-sponsored YES clinics; referred this action to the NCAA Legislative Review Committee for inclusion in the NCAA Manual.

Conference No. 16
October 12, 1989

Eligibility

2. Senior student enrolled in less than full-time program during final year of college. Reviewed the application of Bylaws 14.1.5.1.2 and 14.1.5.2.2.1-(a) to the eligibility of a senior student-athlete who needs only six hours to graduate, but whose enrollment in the two three-hour courses required for the student-athlete's major must extend over two semesters (rather than starting and ending in the "final" semester); determined that there is no authority to extend the application of Bylaws 14.1.5.1.2 and 14.1.5.2.2.1-(a) to permit eligibility (while the student-athlete is enrolled for less than a full-time program of studies) for more than one "final" term of enrollment.

Eligibility

3. Foreign exchange student-athlete enrolled in a member institution's graduate program. Confirmed a staff interpretation of Bylaw 14.1.7.2 regarding a foreign exchange student-athlete who is classified as an undergraduate by his home institution (in Germany), but who is enrolled as a graduate student at an NCAA member institution; agreed that the student-athlete does not meet the requirement of Bylaw 14.1.7.2 that such an individual must be enrolled in the graduate school of the same institution he or she previously attended as an undergraduate and, therefore, would not be permitted to represent the member institution in intercollegiate athletics.

Amateurism

4. Number of professional teams that may provide expenses for tryouts per Bylaw 12. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 12.2.1.1 and agreed that an individual student-athlete would be permitted to receive an expense-paid tryout in a particular sport from more than one professional team in a league without jeopardizing his or her eligibility in the sport; confirmed that the student-athlete would not be permitted to receive more than one expense-paid visit from the same professional team.

Recruiting

5. Number of student hosts permitted to receive meals at institution's expense during prospect's official visit. Referred to the conference contact program the review of a staff interpretation regarding the number of student hosts who may receive meals at the institution's expense during the official visit of one prospective student-athlete.

Transfer

6. Transfer student from two-year to four-year institution (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the application of the provisions of Bylaws 14.6.2 and 14.6.4.4.5 to a situation in which a student-athlete initially enrolled in a junior college and then attended a Division I member institution prior to graduating from the junior college; noted that after the determination that the student-athlete must be a junior college graduate in order to be eligible under NCAA transfer regulations, the student-athlete withdrew from the four-year institution (before practicing or competing) and reenrolled in the junior college in order to complete his graduation requirements; agreed that the student-athlete is subject to the restrictions of Bylaw 14.6.4.4.5

regardless of whether he withdrew from the member institution before participating in intercollegiate athletics; further, that any student-athlete who meets the definition of a transfer per Bylaw 14.6.2 would be considered to have attended the member institution under these circumstances and would be required to serve a one-year residence requirement upon return to the member institution.

Ole Miss sets up fund to aid injured player

The University of Mississippi has established a trust fund to help provide lifetime care for Ole Miss defensive back Roy Lee "Chuckie" Mullins, who was paralyzed during a game October 28.

"Chuckie will require lifetime care, and neither insurance, state or Federal programs will provide for all of his needs," Chancellor R. Gerald Turner said.

Mullins, a 6-foot, 170-pound backup defensive back, fractured the third, fourth, fifth and sixth vertebrae of his neck when he took a blow on the top of his head during the game against Vanderbilt.

"The overall incidence of recovery for this is not good," said Dr. Clarence Watridge, one of two surgeons who operated for five hours on the redshirt freshman from Russellville, Alabama.

Watridge and fellow surgeon Dr. Marvin Leventhal operated on Mullins at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis to realign his twisted spine and fuse the broken vertebrae.

"For someone who has no feeling and no movement below a certain level, the general prognosis is quite poor for a return of function below that level," Watridge told the Associated Press.

Representatives of the Mullins fund were at each gate of Vought-Hemingway Stadium to receive donations before the Ole Miss-Louisiana State University game November 4.

The goal was to raise $50,000 at the game, said athletics director Warner Alford.

Alford said the university's insurance for athletes will cover all medical expenses during the first few years and will provide some additional support for the rest of the athlete's life. However, he said Mullins will need more help.

"Chuckie is one great kid, who has faced a life of adversity. By the time he was a teen-ager, he had lost both of his parents and was placed in the care of a guardian. When he was recruited and awarded a scholarship to Ole Miss, he didn't even have transportation to Oxford from his home in Alabama. We want to do everything possible to support him during recovery, which will possibly be years, and help provide the support he will require for the rest of his life," coach Billy Brewer said.

Tennis player proves age no barrier to college competition

Sophomore Lynn Forbes already has made a name for herself at Trenton State College, where she transferred after a year at Bucks County Community College in Pennsylvania. Carrying 18 hours as an English major, she became a member of the women's tennis squad, recently teaming with Kristen Wozniak to win a No. 2 doubles match against Janice Kluxen and Kristy Mowery of William Paterson College.

Not bad for a 47-year-old.

"She called me over the summer and asked if she could go out for the team," Trenton State coach Brenda Campbell told writer Rich Fisher of The Trentonian. "I was convinced she would fit in, and she has."

"She loves activity, and that's what she was looking for," Campbell added. "She has a lot of energy. She's in great shape. You'd never know she was 47. She looks like she's 30."

Buddy Fowlkes, director of men's and women's track at Georgia Institute of Technology, recently captured 86.2 percent of votes cast as he easily won election to an eighth consecutive term on Atlanta's city council.

Montclair State College's new baseball practice field kept head coach Norm Schoenig and assistant Charlie Honeker busy — they rebuilt the facility themselves, according to Al Langer, the school's sports information director.

Schoenig's and Honeker's efforts produced two large batting cages, one equipped with a pitching machine; four pitching mounds and catching pits, and two soft-toss batting screens.

meets. Each of these teams has identical twins.

At St. Olaf, Kirk and Kent Meyer start on defense. Kirk plays defensive end, and Kent is the Oles' middle linebacker.

Anne and Gloria Kuiken are seniors at DePaul, where they have produced the 20 fastest cross country times in school history.

International Corner: Warren Stanley introduced himself in Afrikaans to his Pace University football teammates last August. Christiane Reetz has learned English as a second language at the University of Texas, Pan American, where the West German native recently was voted top female student-athlete by the school's coaches.

"I've watched so many football games on television, I owed it to myself to try the game out," said Stanley, who transferred to Pace from San Diego State University, where he played rugby. Although he's never played the game before, the 6-2, 220-pound South African has seen regular action on special teams and on the defensive line — and he serves as Pace's back-up punter.

Reetz, a 23-year-old senior, received an award named in honor of the late Ann LaMantia, who served on the Texas school's board of regents. As a women's tennis player, Reetz won the American South Athletic Conference title while earning high marks in the classroom as a psychology major.

From Platteville, Wisconsin, comes word that Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison's, streak of consecutive football games without a tie (see Briefly in the News in the October 16 issue of The NCAA News) has been bested.

Terry Owens, sports information director at the University of Wisconsin, Platteville, reports that his school's season-opening grid deadlock (28-28) with the University of Wisconsin, Stevens Point, was the first tie for Wisconsin-Platteville in 161 games dating to September 15, 1973.

Trivia Time: What school was the last to produce a mythical Division I-A national champion with a season record that included a tie? Answer later.

Southeast Missouri State University officials have announced formation of The Tribe, a 102-member student support group for athletics. Representing 19 different on-campus groups, The Tribe will serve as a marketing network within the student body, according to athletics director Richard A. McDuffie.

"With our move to (NCAA) Division I coming up in 1991, we felt it was important to get the student body more involved with our athletics program," McDuffie explained. "We hope The Tribe will be able to help us market our athletics program on the campus. We have good student support at our games now, but we would like even more."

Trivia Answer: In 1974, the University of Southern California finished 9-1-1 and was named No. 1 by United Press International, the Football Writers Association of America and the National Football Foundation. The University of Oklahoma was named No. 1 that season by the Associated Press, meaning the Trojans earned a tie, of sorts, for the national crown.
