Dallas Convention could be biggest in history

Convention highlights

- "State of the Association" address, opening session, 4:30 p.m. Sunday
- Reports by the special committees dealing with cost reduction and membership structure, opening session, 4:30 p.m. Sunday
- Presidential debate on freshman eligibility, 5:30 p.m. Sunday
- Annual delegates reception, 7 p.m. Sunday
- 25th annual honors program, 7:30 p.m. Monday
- Voting by divisions and subdivisions beginning at 8 a.m. Monday
- General business session voting beginning at 9 a.m. Tuesday

If preregistrations are an indicator, the 1990 NCAA Convention January 7-10 in Dallas may attract more than 1,900 attendees for the first time in history.

Through December 29, a total of 1,904 persons had preregistered for the sessions at Loews Anatole Hotel. When the number of news media representatives requesting credentials in advance is added, the total preregistration is more than 2,000—about 100 more than in any previous year.

Last year at a comparable time, the preregistration total was 1,875. The eventual attendance at the 1989 Convention in San Francisco was a record 1,896. So 1,900 or more appears likely for Dallas.

Some preregistrants do not actually attend each year, but they usually are offset, at least partially, by late registrations.

The last four annual Conventions have attracted more than 1,800 each. Before the record 1,896 in San Francisco last year, there were 1,816 in Nashville in 1988, 1,820 in San Diego in 1987 and 1,861 in New Orleans in 1986.

The Association began the 1980s with much more modest attendance at its annual meeting. A total of 1,075 registered in New Orleans for the '80 Convention. That number jumped to 1,314 in Miami Beach the next year; two years later, in San Diego, the total hit 1,500 for the first time (1,521). A year later, the 1984 Convention in Dallas jumped to 1,737.

Format

This year's Convention is one day shorter than in the previous three years, when an "extra day" format was employed. Strong membership sentiment caused the NCAA Executive Committee to pare a day from the schedule this time.

The newest feature at this year's gathering is the fact that the honors program, held as a luncheon for more than two decades, will be a dinner for the first time. Former President Ronald W. Reagan will receive the Theodore Roosevelt Award during the honors dinner Monday evening, January 8.

Another special attraction this year is a "presidential debate" on the issue of freshman eligibility. Sponsored by the NCAA Presidents Commission, the debate (see story elsewhere on this page) is scheduled at 5:30 p.m. Sunday, January 7, immediately after the opening business session.

Continuing features this year:

Two CEOs to debate freshman eligibility

The NCAA Presidents Commission is sponsoring a debate at the 1990 NCAA Convention on the topic of freshman eligibility for intercollegiate athletics.

Open to all delegates registered for the Convention, the debate will be held from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Sunday, January 7, in the Chantilly Ballroom.

The debate will begin immediately after the opening business session ends, in the same ballroom.

Taking the opposing sides will be two members of the Commission. Chancellor Charles E. Young of the University of California, Los Angeles, a longtime proponent of freshman ineligibility, will present his arguments, while Thomas K. Hearn, president of Wake Forest University, will argue for freshman eligibility.

Commission Chair Martin A. Massengale, chancellor of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, will serve as moderator.

The format calls for a presentation by each speaker, followed by a chance for each to respond to the other. If time permits, questions will be welcomed from the audience.

Hearn has been president at Wake Forest since 1983 and a member of the Commission since mid-1988.

Young, UCLA's chancellor since 1968, joined the Commission in early 1988.

The Commission has discussed freshman eligibility periodically throughout its six years of existence.

After a straw vote of the Division I Commission members in April indicated increased interest in declaring freshmen ineligible, the Commission decided to generate discussion of that concept in the NCAA membership by conducting the debate at this year's Convention.

Seven new Commission members will begin terms after Convention

The NCAA Presidents Commission will have seven new members upon adjournment of the 1990 Convention in Dallas, and four other Commission members have been reelected to serve full terms.

Elected by their peers at NCAA member institutions, all will begin four-year terms after the Convention. In accordance with NCAA committee procedures, anyone serving half a term or less is eligible for reelection or reappointment to a full term.

The roster of the Commission for 1990 will be distributed at the Dallas Convention.

CEOs in each division voted by mail ballot for candidates representing the various divisions, with that process ending in December. In addition, one new member and two reelected members were selected by Division I-A conferences, which are authorized to designate their representatives on the Commission.

The seven new members of the Commission:

- Division I: William H. Cunningham, University of Texas, Austin, replacing William E. Tucker, Texas Christian University (position designated by the Southwest Athletic Conference); Ronald E. Beller, East Tennessee State University, replacing Edward B. Fort, North Carolina A&T State University (Division I-AA South region), and Samuel H. Magill, Monmouth College (New Jersey), replacing Lattie F. Coor, University of Vermont (now at Arizona State University), (Division I-AAA at large).

• Division II: Arend D. Lubbers, Grand Valley State University, replacing James B. Appleberry, Northern Michigan University, and Bruce A. Samson, University of Tampa, replacing Thomas A. Bond, Eastern New Mexico University. Lubbers was a charter member of the Commission and is the first president to be elected to serve a second time.

• Division III: The Rev. Joseph A. Panuska, University of Scranton, replacing the Rev. William J. Byron, Catholic University, and Jon C. Strauss, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, replacing Nenah E. Fry, Sweet Briar College.

The following Commission members were reelected to serve full terms:

• Division I: Thomas K. Hearn, Wake Forest University (designated by the Atlantic Coast Conference); Charles E. Young, University of California, Los Angeles (designated by the Pacific-10 Conference), and Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, University of New Orleans (Division I-AAA at large).

• Division II: Rodney C. Kelchner, Mansfield University of Pennsylvania.

The other 33 members of the Commission continue their terms in 1990. The terms of one-fourth of the Commission members expire each year.

Photographs and biographical sketches of the new Commission members will be featured in the January 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Advisory committee to study revenue distribution

An Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues has been appointed by the NCAA Administrative Committee, as authorized by the NCAA Executive Committee in its December meeting.

The Executive Committee's action was taken in light of the Association's new television contract with CBS Sports, which will generate $1 billion over a seven-year period beginning in 1991.

Appointed to serve with the five elected officers were the following:

Marino H. Casem, director of athletics, Southern University, Baton Rouge. Casem is a member of the Executive Committee.

Eugene F. Corrigan, commissioner, Atlantic Coast Conference.

Corrigan is chair of the Special Committee on Cost Reduction, a member of the Executive Committee and a former chair of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

James E. Delany, commissioner, Big Ten Conference, and current chair of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

Thomas J. Frericks, vice-president and director of athletics, University of Dayton. Frericks is a former NCAA secretary-treasurer and a current member of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

David R. Gavitt, commissioner, Big East Conference. Gavitt is a former Division I Men's Basketball Committee chair and a current member of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure.

Structure.

Judith R. Holland, senior associate athletics director, University of California, Los Angeles, and chair of the Division I Women's Basketball Committee.

Roy F. Kramer, director of athletics, Vanderbilt University, a member of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

Martin A. Massengale, chancellor, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, chair of the NCAA Presidents Commission and a member of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure.

They will serve with NCAA President Albert M. Witte, Secretary-Treasurer Judith M. Sweet, Division I Vice-President B. J. Skelton, Division II Vice-President Jerry M.

Hughes and Division III Vice-President Alvin J. Van Wie.

The Administrative Committee appointed Sweet to chair the advisory committee and agreed that Executive Director Richard D. Schultz will serve in an ex officio capacity.

The committee's charge is to:

- Conduct hearings involving the NCAA membership to enable appropriate constituent groups to submit recommendations and commentary;

- Develop several plans for revenue distribution without establishing specific priorities, with the understanding that every substantive idea submitted by the membership would be included as appendices in any

Dallas meetings noteworthy in terms of legislation

The NCAA has not met often in Dallas during its 84-year history, but when it has, Big D has seen some big do's in terms of major legislative actions.

The 1990 Convention will mark only the fourth time that the Association has held a Convention in Dallas, although three of the four have occurred in the last six years.

Dallas first hosted an NCAA Convention in 1951 but waited 33 years before it had the chance again. The 1984 annual Convention and the 1987 special Convention are the only other times the NCAA has been to Dallas for its business meetings.

But remember the repeal of the "Sanity Code"? The battle over the proper structure for presidential involvement in the NCAA? The establishment and introduction of the National Forum? All those happened in Dallas.

Here is a review of the highlights of previous Dallas Conventions.

1951

The Association held its 45th annual Convention at the Adolphus Hotel in Dallas January 12, 1951, with Hugh C. Willett of the University of Southern California as the NCAA president.

That Convention, in effect, repealed the "Sanity Code" by dropping the provision governing financial aid to athletes and abolishing the existing enforcement mechanism. The Code was an idea whose time had not yet come, but its repeal eventually resulted in a more methodical, defensible and accepted approach to rules enforcement.

In another major vote at the '51 gathering, the Convention voted 161 to 7 to declare a moratorium on live telecasting of college football games for the 1951 season. The resolution called for member institutions to cooperate in experimental television and for the formation of a television committee.

1984

Loews Anatole Hotel, the 1990 Convention site, hosted the January 9-11, 1984, Convention. John L. Toner of the University of Connecticut was president of the NCAA.

The highlight of that Convention was a pitched battle between supporters of a Board of Presidents that would have had veto power over NCAA Convention actions and those urging a Presidents Commission that would work within the NCAA structure.

The Board of Presidents proposal, requiring a two-thirds majority vote for passage, received only 48.8 percent. It was rejected after two hours and 20 minutes of debate, still the longest time spent on a single proposal in NCAA Convention history. After that action, the Convention overwhelmingly adopted the proposal calling for establishment of the Presidents Commission.

A record turnout of 1,711 delegates including a record 687 voting delegates registered at the '84 Convention.

1987

The Presidents Commission that was established in Dallas in 1984 brought the NCAA back to the city—and to Loews Anatole Hotel—in June 1987 for the second special Convention to be convened by the Commission. Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University, was NCAA president.

The special Convention rejected proposals aimed at reducing grants-in-aid and numbers of coaches, and some labeled the affair a defeat for the Commission. But from that gathering came the 26-week limitation on playing and practice seasons in numerous sports and a series of in-depth studies of athletics issues.

Most significant was approval of the 18-month National Forum on the proper role of college athletics in higher education and related research studies, subsequently completed by the American Institutes for Research. The Forum and the studies, sponsored by the Presidents Commission, have spawned the Commission's major legislative efforts at the 1990 Convention.

A total of 1,117 registered for the June Convention, the highest total for any of the six special Conventions in the Association's history.

Reagan to receive Teddy Award

Former President Ronald W. Reagan will receive the Association's Theodore Roosevelt Award at the 1990 NCAA Convention in Dallas.

The "Teddy" Award is the highest honor the NCAA can confer on an individual. Traditionally, the award has been presented at the honors luncheon during the Convention, but the 1990 program has been scheduled as a dinner that will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, January 8.

Reagan, a 1932 graduate of Eureka College, worked briefly as a sports broadcaster and editor before pursuing a career in motion pictures. His film career, interrupted by three years of service in the Army Air Corps during World War II, included 53 feature-length motion pictures. He served six terms as president of the Screen Actors Guild and two terms as president of the Motion Picture Industry Council.

He worked in television in the 1950s as production supervisor and host of "General Electric Theatre." From 1964 to 1965, he was host of the television series "Death Valley Days."

Reagan began his public-service career in 1966, as governor of California. He chaired the Republican Governors Association in 1969.

After completing his second term as governor, he began a nationally syndicated radio commentary program and newspaper column and undertook an extensive speaking schedule. From 1974 to 1975, he served as a member of a presidential commission investigating the Central Intelligence Agency.

He was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976. Reagan joined the board of directors of the Committee on the Present Danger and founded Citizens for the Republic.

Reagan won the GOP presidential nomination in July 1980 and was elected to office the following

Ronald W. Reagan

November. He was sworn in as the 40th President January 20, 1981, and served two terms.

He has received numerous awards, including the Freedoms Foundation Award, the National Humanitarian Award from the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Distinguished American Award from the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame, and the Medal of Valor of the state of Israel.

He currently resides in Los Angeles, where he maintains an office.

Reasoner to emcee dinner

Harry Reasoner, coeditor of "60 Minutes," will emcee the NCAA honors dinner.

The dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, January 8, 1990, in the Chantilly Ballroom of Loews Anatole Hotel in Dallas. The College Athletics Top XII and the Theodore Roosevelt Award recipient will be recognized at the dinner, which is held in conjunction with the NCAA Convention.

Reasoner and Mike Wallace were the original coeditors of "60 Minutes," which started in September 1968. Reasoner left the series in the fall of 1970 and returned in August 1978.

From 1970 to 1978, he anchored the "ABC Evening News." He served as chief correspondent in Peking for the Emmy-Award winning coverage of President Nixon's trip to the People's Republic of China, and he returned to China with President Ford in 1975. He also coanchored special coverage of President Nixon's summit sessions in the Soviet Union in May 1972.

Reasoner began his journalism career in 1942 with the Minneapolis Times. After serving in the Army during World War II, he returned to the Times in 1946 and served as a drama critic for two years. He became a news writer for WCCO in Minneapolis in 1950, spent three years with the U.S. Information Agency in Manila and returned to Minneapolis as news director of KFSD-TV. In July 1956, he joined CBS News in New York and anchored "The CBS Sunday News," from February 1963 to November 1970.

Reasoner has received Emmys for his work, including the award for news broadcaster of the year in 1974. He also has received a George Foster Peabody Award; the honor medal from the University of Missouri; Columbia, School of Journalism; the Southwest Journalism Forum Certificate of Recognition from Southern Methodist University and the Press Club of Dallas, and the University of Southern California Journalism Alumni Association Distinguished Achievement Award.

Legislative Assistance

1990 Column No. 1

NCAA Bylaw 15.2.2.5—financial aid/ Sunday evening meals

Bylaw 15.2.2.5 permits a student-athlete who is receiving financial aid that includes board to be provided the cost of a meal (e.g., a Sunday evening meal) if the regular institutional dining facilities are not available for that meal. The meal (or the cost of the meal) must be consistent with those meals served at the institution's regular dining facilities and may not be excessive in nature. The NCAA Legislation and Interpretations Committee reviewed during its November 16, 1989, conference the provisions of Bylaws 15.2.2.5 and 15.5.3.3 (equivalency calculations), and confirmed that in computing equivalencies, an institution that does not provide a Sunday meal for any student-athlete receiving a full grant-in-aid may not include the value of such a meal in the institution's equivalency calculations.

NCAA Bylaw 14.6—Division III transfer

Division III member institutions are reminded that the provisions of Bylaw 14.6.4 (two-year college transfers), Bylaw 14.6.5 (four-year college transfers) and Bylaw 14.6.6 ("4-2-4" college transfers) are not applicable to Division III institutions. Thus, a student-athlete who transfers from a two-year college, a branch school or a four-year collegiate institution to a Division III member institution is not required under NCAA transfer rules to fulfill any residence requirement prior to participating in intercollegiate competition at the Division III institution. Please note that the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.1.3 would govern any contact between an athletics department staff member or other representative of an institution's athletics interest at a Division III institution with any student-athlete of another four-year collegiate institution for the purpose of transfer. Therefore, a Division III athletics department staff member or representative of the institution's athletics interest may not contact the student-athlete of another four-year collegiate institution directly or indirectly without first obtaining permission from the first institution's director of athletics to do so, regardless of who makes the initial contact. If permission is not granted, the Division III institution shall not encourage the transfer and shall not provide financial assistance (including need-based assistance) to the student-athlete until he or she has attended the second institution for one academic year.

NCAA Bylaw 13.4—contacts in sports other than football and basketball

Member institutions' coaches in sports other than football and basketball are reminded that the provisions of Bylaw 13.4 set forth the maximum number of in-person, off-campus recruiting contacts per prospect (which shall include contacts with the prospect's relatives or legal guardians) prior to and on the day when the prospect signs the National Letter of Intent. In accordance with Bylaw 13.1.4-(a), institutional staff members are allowed no more than three contacts per prospect at the prospect's educational institution and must receive approval for such contacts from the executive officer (or the executive officer's designated representative) of the prospect's educational institution.

In addition, institutional staff members may visit a prospect's educational institution on no more than one occasion during a particular week, regardless of the total number of prospects enrolled in the institution. This restriction would be applicable regardless of whether the coach visits the prospect's educational institution for purposes of contacting the prospect or evaluating the prospect's academic or athletics qualifications. For example, if a high school invitational wrestling tournament or track meet is conducted at a high school over a three-day period during a particular week, it would not be permissible for the member institution's coach to observe the wrestling event during more than one calendar day in a particular week. A week is defined as the seven-day period beginning at 12:01 a.m. Sunday and ending at midnight Saturday.

In addition, a member institution's coaches are permitted to make three contacts per prospect at sites other than the prospect's educational institution. Please note that there are no specified contact and evaluation periods in sports other than football and basketball, except for the dead periods outlined in Bylaw 13.1.3.9.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

NCAA should share wealth to improve athletics

By Larry Henze

An agreement signed November 21 presents the NCAA with a $1 billion opportunity. In the next few months, we will observe whether the NCAA chooses to support the student-athlete concept with some of its new-found wealth.

CBS, still smarting from the loss of NBA television rights to NBC earlier in the month, went to Kansas City prepared and willing to pay the price necessary to retain broadcast rights to the increasingly popular NCAA tournament. The cost—averaging $143 million annually for the next seven years—translates to $1 billion. On an annual basis, the rates increased by an astounding 260 percent.

In addition to the financial reward to be bestowed upon the NCAA and its member institutions, the fans of college basketball will also benefit, because all tournament games will be on free television, and not a mixture of CBS and cable. It remains to be seen how—or if—the student-athlete will benefit, although there are several potential uses of the increased revenue that would aid not only college athletes, but the image of Division I universities and the NCAA as well.

As a starting point, there is no need to increase the substantial sums given to the 64 teams that compose the tournament field. If sums are increased, they will subject the basketball coach to additional pressure to win and, subsequently, increase the incentive to violate NCAA rules to build a winning program. If, however, current financial awards are maintained (or even reduced), they will continue to reward success while leaving substantial resources available for other uses.

First, it would make sense to divide a portion of this revenue among all NCAA member institutions. Designate the money for athletics scholarships aimed at encouraging athletes with expired eligibility to remain in school until a degree is attained.

Further, award additional resources to institutions that graduate a predetermined percentage of their athletes. If financial incentives are to be associated with college basketball, it is right to reward institutions whose athletes are successful academically, and not just on the court.

The NCAA also should set aside a share of the television revenue to fund the practical education of the student-athlete.

In a meeting Ed Garvey, former executive director of the National Football League Players Association, and I had in April with Dick Schultz, executive director of the NCAA, he informed us that a top priority of his administration was the elimination of the abuses caused by unscrupulous sports agents.

Athletes should be trained to select competent, ethical representation in a manner that complies with NCAA rules and encourages open contacts between the athlete and the agent.

This educational program should include training in basic financial management, the process of entry into professional sports, the likelihood of securing a pro career and, of course, increased instruction in the prevention of substance abuse.

A further innovative approach would be to expand this practical-education component to high school athletes with aspirations to compete in college. Many blue-chip athletes and their families are courted by agents while still in high school—a

Control by default

The Indianapolis Star

An editorial

James Whalen, president of Ithaca College, says it is up to college and university presidents to clean up intercollegiate sports.

He urges them to begin by attending the annual meeting of the NCAA in Dallas in January.

Less than 25 percent of college presidents bother to show up for the Convention, says Whalen, so athletics directors dominate by default. It is the athletics directors and the coaches who write the rules and control the votes. And they are not about to deemphasize the glory and the gold of college sports.

For years, criticism has mounted over such sorry business as illegal recruiting, under-the-table money for star athletes, rigged grades, doctored transcripts and Mickey Mouse courses for athletes. Yet, reforms have been few and superficial, and only the most blatant violations have been penalized.

College athletics is big business, involving millions of dollars in ticket sales, television fees and the like. Also, winning teams inspire alumni giving. The hefty returns and the fat salaries paid coaches are at the root of much of the questionable, sometimes illegal, activities.

Of immediate concern to Whalen is the graduation rate of athletes. He is urging the presidents to get behind a proposal requiring colleges to disclose how many of their athletes graduate. If the NCAA doesn't adopt such a proposal, he warns, Congress will.

"Federal intrusion in this area would set a very dangerous precedent and would open a door that we will never be able to close again," Whalen said.

That kind of threat ought to scare NCAA members—whatever their position—into action. In too many instances, the scholastic record of athletes is scandalous. Only two percent of college players make the pros. Of the 98 percent who don't, many drop out of school or graduate with degrees that aren't worth the sheepskin they're printed on.

One star athlete caused a sensation a few years ago when he decided to go back to grammar school to learn to read and write.

The picture is not uniformly grim. Many schools are conscientious about providing athletes the best education possible. Many coaches have been outspoken advocates of higher ethical and academic standards for coaches and athletes alike.

But there are too many bad apples spoiling the game. Whalen wants them thrown out, and he is correct in urging college and university presidents to do it.

If school officials aren't dealing fairly with athletes, they should be made to answer for it—but by their peers, not by an interfering Congress.

Six committees will oversee Convention-related business

In addition to voting on legislation at the 1990 NCAA Convention, several representatives from member institutions will be active on the six Convention committees appointed to oversee several areas of Convention-related business.

Members of the Nominating Committee and Men's and Women's Committees on Committees, which were appointed last April by the NCAA Council, are responsible for nominating candidates for Association offices, Council positions, and vacancies on all men's and women's sports committees.

Nominating Committee

The Nominating Committee is composed of 16 members, including four women. Members serve one-year terms and are limited to three terms in any five-year period.

He raised more than $10 million to implement a youth development program for the NFLPA in 10 cities, and the program was cited by the Department of Education as exemplary.

Owens is a partner in the firm of Bennett and Owens and the founder and president of Brig Owens and Associates, which provides comprehensive career-management services for professional athletes.

Dr. Roberts was an all-America shortstop at Columbia University and Metropolitan New York Baseball Player of the Year in 1965. His career batting average of .371 is a school record. He was a two-way starter in football and led the nation in completion percentage in 1963. He received the Morningside Brotherhood award for his work as a volunteer coach, instructor and supervisor in the Harlem area.

He has been president of The Staubach Company since 1981. The company is involved in commercial land brokerage, corporate and retail services, and investment and financial services.

TOP TEAMS CHOOSE SONY FOR SPORTS VIDEO ...AND SO SHOULD YOU!

ED-Beta Camcorder

Few things have impacted sports and sports training in the way that video has. While nothing can replace hard work, discipline, and practice in creating a total team effort, the ability to quickly review a team's strategy can yield a definite competitive advantage. That's where a Sony® Video System for Coaching can fit nicely into your game plan. But if you're asking who else uses video for training, consider this...increasing numbers of college coaches are already using Sony Sports Video Systems for Coaching because of their viewing quality and flexibility. Sony ED-Beta™ professional Sports Video Systems have gained a great reputation among professional videographers, and now a Sports Video System can be configured to meet your team's requirements and budget.

THE SONY SPORTS VIDEO SYSTEM IS COMPRISED OF THREE MAIN ELEMENTS:

1. Field Acquisition System: a professional camcorder and lens from Sony. Like those used by news crews and TV broadcasters. Weather resistant, shock resistant, and tough — just like your players. Follow both teams at wide angle, or zoom in close at one touch of a button. The auto-iris lets you follow a play from sunlight to shadows with all the resolution you would expect from a Sony professional camera.
2. Dub/Edit System: allows you to make multiple copies of a tape in its entirety, or just specific plays — a valuable aid to your coaching staff. Just use one deck for playback and one additional deck for each break-down tape you wish to make. The results are smooth, high quality video, play after play.
3. Coaches' Viewing System: one ED-Beta Sports Deck coupled with a Sony high resolution monitor for the coach's office or a Sony large screen projection system for meeting rooms. A sports remote control handle lets you choose smooth forward or reverse play PLUS noise free slow motion and stop motion with full color reproduction.

Deadline is January 7 for amendments to amendments

Members desiring to submit amendments to the proposed legislation for the 1990 NCAA Convention must do so by 1 p.m. Sunday, January 7, at the Loews Anatole in Dallas.

That also is the deadline for submission of requests for review of interpretations per Constitution 5.4.1.4 and of resolutions per Constitution 5.4.2.4.

Constitution 5.3 specifies that submission of amendments-to-amendments must be by 1 p.m. "on the day preceding the division business sessions." Those sessions begin this year at 8 a.m. Monday, January 8, which results in the 1 p.m. deadline January 7.

Amendments-to-amendments, interpretations-review requests and resolutions should be submitted in Suite 1872 at the Loews Anatole.

The NCAA Council is the only entity authorized to submit amendments or resolutions after that deadline, and it can do so only by a two-thirds majority vote of its members present and voting, per Constitution 5.3.

Only a single sponsor is required for submission of items by the 1 p.m. January 7 deadline, rather than the six-institution requirement that applies to the original legislation submitted by the November 1 deadline. Such submissions are acceptable from any of the duly registered voting or alternate delegates of a voting member.

An amendment to one of the proposals in the Convention program will be ruled out of order if it increases the modification of the rule beyond the change proposed in the circularized amendment or if it attempts to treat an issue that is not treated in the original amendment.

An amendment does not increase the modification of the original proposal if what it proposes falls between the current circumstance and the change proposed in the circularized proposal. For example, the current number of permissible initial financial aid awards in Division I-A football is 25, and a proposal at this year's Convention would increase that to 30. To be acceptable, any amendment would have to propose a number between 25 and 30. It could not be lower than 25 or higher than 30.

Questions regarding the submission of amendments-to-amendments should be directed to the legislative services staff in Suite 1872 at the Loews Anatole.

News Fact File

The record registration at an NCAA Convention was 1,896 last year in San Francisco. The Association first reached the 1,800 mark in New Orleans in 1986 and has been over that number since. Other attendance milestones: first time over 1,500: 1983 in San Diego; first time over 1,300: 1981, Miami Beach; first to reach 1,000: 1976, St. Louis; first to 900: 1975, Washington, D.C.; first to 800: 1973, Chicago.

Legislation

All 130 proposals facing the 1990 Convention have been reviewed in detail in The NCAA News, beginning in the November 20, 1989, issue and concluding in the December 27 issue.

A total of 23 proposals appear in the consent package. Another 14 were identified by the Presidents Commission for placement in the agenda immediately after the consent package (Proposal Nos. 24 through 37). All 14 of those will be voted upon by roll call, including:

- The Commission's proposal to require disclosure of student-athlete graduation rates in Divisions I and II, as well as a comparable Division III proposal submitted by the Division III Steering Committee.

- The Commission's proposal to rescind last year's Convention Proposal No. 42 but to specify that partial qualifiers may receive only need-based financial aid, plus two other alternatives submitted by member conferences to the Proposal 42 issue.

- The Commission's attempt to begin to address the time demands on student-athletes by reducing the basketball season and the spring football practice period, plus requiring other sports to suggest similar actions for consideration in 1991.

- The Commission's proposal to permit incoming student-athletes to

B. J. Skelton

Jerry M. Hughes

Charlotte West

Alvin J. Van Wie

Kathleen M. McNally

receive institutional financial aid to attend the summer school or summer term prior to their first regular term, plus an alternative in that regard submitted by the membership.

Also in the Presidents Commission grouping are two proposals dealing with initial grants in Division I-A football, a Division II alternative to the spring football practice proposal, a proposal to increase the legislative autonomy within Division I and the Council's proposal to increase the Pell Grant "exemption" from $1,400 to $1,700.

Among the highlights in the other legislative groupings:

Academics

A Big West Conference proposal to permit nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers in Division I to earn a fourth season of eligibility for athletics if they are close to earning a degree at the start of their fifth academic year of enrollment.

Financial aid

An Atlantic Coast Conference amendment to add required course supplies to the current definition of a full athletics grant (tuition, fees, room, board and required books).

Eligibility

Three proposals from the Council and Executive Committee regarding drug issues: more stringent individual penalties for the use of banned drugs, team sanctions when individuals on the team test positive, and year-round drug testing. The Commission designated all three for roll-call votes, at the request of the NCAA Executive Committee.

General

Necessary procedures to implement the Association's new legislative calendar that goes into effect immediately after this Convention. Also, a proposal which may be withdrawn to establish a "play-in" procedure to assure that all eligible Division I conferences receive an opportunity to participate in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The latter will be voted upon by roll call if it is not withdrawn.

Amateurism

Recommendations generated by the Special Committee to Review Amateurism Issues to allow some greater flexibility in the Association's legislation as it relates to student-athletes involved at the top levels of international competition. One would allow such individuals to receive broken-time payments even when not enrolled in a member institution (they currently can receive such payments while enrolled). The other would permit college student-athletes to take advantage of the USOC's Elite Athlete Health Insurance Program.

Playing seasons

Numerous sport-specific proposals, with no single issue of overriding importance.

Recruiting

Again, no single proposal that stands out, although a number are significant to certain sports or certain constituent groups. The lead proposal would clarify the distinction between a prospect and a recruited prospect.

Association's revenue exceeds expense seventh year in row

The Association's 1988-89 revenues exceeded expenses—creating a surplus in operations for the seventh consecutive year and the 34th time in 35 years, according to the report of the treasurer, which will be presented to delegates at the 1990 Convention.

The report is published in the Association's Annual Reports, which will be available at the Convention.

The 1988-89 surplus of $6.1 million represents 7.4 percent of the general operating budget, according to Judith M. Sweet, NCAA secretary-treasurer.

The Executive Committee had approved a budget of $82,011,000 for 1988-89, with a projected surplus of $3.25 million, according to Sweet.

This amount previously had been allocated to the Division II and Division III championships reserves ($1.5 million each) and $250,000 to the Office Expansion Reserve. The remaining surplus was divided among the Division II and Division III championships reserves and the Office Expansion Reserve.

Revenues amounted to $87,826,856, or 107.1 percent of the budget. The total amount was an increase of 6.1 percent over the previous year.

The report showed expenses of $81,725,899, or 99.7 percent of the budget. Expenses increased by 17.6 percent over 1987-88.

Sweet noted that 66.2 percent of the Association's out-of-pocket payments went to member institutions, conferences, affiliated organizations, or programs for student-athletes and the nation's youth. In 1988-89, the NCAA spent $56.45 million in this manner.

The Association's assets totaled $38,913,152 on August 31, 1989, about $12.2 million less than the previous year due primarily to the transfer of funds to the NCAA Foundation. Fund balances at that date amounted to $26,279,260, or 67.5 percent of assets. Current and long-term liabilities were $12,633,892.

Assistance on legislation available from NCAA interpretations center

Answers to questions regarding current NCAA legislation and legislative proposals at the Association's 1990 Convention in Dallas will be as close as the Loews Anatole Hotel's Chantilly Foyer, where members of the legislative services department will be staffing the NCAA interpretations center.

"Many of the questions we handled last year were very basic, but it was obvious that people were happy to have someone from legislative services there with answers," said legislative assistant Stephen A. Mallonee, who will staff the center this year with legislative assistant Carol A. "Cappy" Powell.

Mallonee said that last year in San Francisco, he and former legislative assistant John R. Gerdy (now assistant commissioner of the Southeastern Conference) provided information to almost 400 institutional and conference staff members. "A lot of the inquiries we received last year were informational in nature," he explained.

"People were asking questions about the proposed Manual. In Dallas, we anticipate heavier interest in the interpretations center, since some proposals appear to be more controversial in nature."

Mallonee and Powell expect to see many Convention delegates after proposed amendments to amendments are available.

"The amendments to amendments probably will trigger inquiries," Powell said. "Also, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee dealt during its December 16 meeting with issues relating to several 1990 Convention proposals. We will have information available at the interpretations center on the committee's December 16 discussions."

Requests from member institutions and conferences prompted the legislative services department to initiate the center last year in San Francisco. "Many of the people who used the booth seemed to be happy to have the opportunity to put names with faces," said Mallonee, who added that breaks between 1989 Convention business sessions proved to be among the busiest times for the center.

"We had lines of people during those breaks," he explained, "and we anticipate similar demand in Dallas. For that reason, we would ask those who have questions to have patience."

"If somebody has a question that obviously will take some research," Powell added, "we will get back to them as quickly as possible. We will have resource materials available at the center."

Stephen A. Mallonee, left, a legislative services staff member in the national office, assists Shane Lyons of Big South Conference with a question concerning legislation during the 1989 Convention in San Francisco, where the interpretations center first was used at an NCAA Convention. The service again will be available at the Dallas Convention. Lyons now is a member of the national office staff.

Powell said Convention delegates also may stop by the interpretations center for a look at services available through the legislative services data base on the NCAA Communications Network. "We will have examples of the kind of information accessible through the network, which is available nationally through Dialcom," Powell said.

"Those institutions and conferences currently using the data base have found it helpful. Anyone interested in the service should visit the interps center in Dallas."

Mallonee and Powell will staff the interpretations center daily from January 6 through January 10 with assistance from legislative services staff members Daniel T. Dutcher, Richard J. Evrard and Nancy L. Mitchell. The following schedule will be observed:

January 6, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.;
January 7, 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.;
January 8, 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.;
January 9, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and
January 10, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Advisory

final report:

- Submit plans to the Executive Committee, via the NCAA Budget Subcommittee, not later than June 15, 1990;

- Concern itself with the 60 percent of Division I Men's Basketball Championship receipts that is earmarked for distribution to the membership (rather than the 40 percent allocated to the Association) and with developing new ways of disseminating those revenues to the membership, and

- Meet briefly during the NCAA Convention in Dallas to establish a schedule of meetings.

CWS revenue increases

Increased ticket sales and radio rights fees accumulated over two years helped boost College World Series net receipts 11.1 percent last year over 1988, CWS officials said January 2 in Omaha.

The NCAA and College World Series Inc. divided $423,249, compared with $380,933 in 1988.

Jack Dising, chair of CWS Inc., attributed the gains to a 4.6 percent increase in ticket sales and the fact that virtually two years' radio-rights fees were credited this year.

Ticket sales increased from $644,085 in 1988 to $672,222. Radio rights fees, entered as $1,875 for 1988, totaled $32,174 on the 1989 statement.

"The complete radio rights figure was not ready in time for the 1988 statement," Dising said, "so the amount this year really is for two years."

Credited television revenue remained $125,000, although CBS since 1988 has paid a reported $500,000 a year to televise the championship game.

Under the NCAA-CWS Inc. agreement, the two share TV revenue up to a maximum of $125,000, a figure that was reached with the fees ESPN paid before the first CBS telecast in 1988. Both networks will again televise the CWS in 1990, with the live championship game scheduled June 9 on CBS.

The NCAA pays all 48 teams that qualified for the regionals leading to the CWS. The two 1989 finalists, Wichita State and Texas, received the largest amounts, $62,376 each. The Shockers beat the Longhorns June 10 in the championship game.

The payoffs to the teams include funds from the regionals. Other amounts paid to CWS teams: Florida State and Louisiana State, $49,901 each; Arkansas and Miami, $43,663 each, and Long Beach State and North Carolina, $37,426 each.

Workshop planned

Workshops for new faculty athletics representatives will be included as part of the January 6 meeting of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association (FARA), which will be held at the Loews Anatole Hotel in Dallas, site of the 1990 NCAA Convention.

Charles Ehrhardt, faculty rep at Florida State University and FARA chair, will lead the afternoon session, which is set to begin at 1 p.m.

185 CEOs have preregistered for Convention

Nearly 30 percent of the NCAA member institutions sending delegates to the 1990 NCAA Convention in Dallas will be represented by their presidents or chancellors, according to preregistration totals through December 29.

As of that date, 185 presidents and chancellors had preregistered as voting, alternate or visiting delegates for their institutions. A total of 638 institutions had preregistered at that time.

Both figures are higher than at the comparable time a year ago, when 616 institutions and 153 CEOs preregistered. The actual CEO attendance figure was 137.

The record for actual CEO attendance at any NCAA Convention is 199 at the special "integrity" Convention in June 1985.

Among the 185 CEOs preregistered this year are 129 from Division I, 37 from Division II and 19 from Division III. Within the Division I total, 57 are from Division I-A (more than half of the members of that subdivision), 39 from I-AA and 33 from I-AAA.

Following is the CEO preregistration list as of December 29, in alphabetical order by last name in each division and subdivision. Presidents Commission members are indicated by asterisks; CEOs serving on the NCAA Council are indicated by pound signs.

phenomenon that is likely to grow as professional leagues' barriers to drafting high school and college athletes fall to legal challenges. While this program would be both extensive and expensive, the NCAA should be able to enlist corporate sponsors with vested interests in collegiate sports to help underwrite the cost.

Finally, the NCAA should invest some of the television revenue internally, using the money to enlarge the staff responsible for enforcement of its rules and regulations. Currently, the enforcement staff is woefully inadequate. Current staffing levels force the NCAA to depend on institutional honesty, and too many universities have proven to be unable to meet this expectation.

A $1 billion opportunity to institute meaningful reforms in intercollegiate athletics awaits the NCAA and its members. The next few months should demonstrate whether the NCAA is willing to invest in athletics and education with a substantive commitment.

survey by the American Football Coaches Association.

The survey solicited opinions about proposals to be considered at the NCAA Convention in Dallas, as well as topics that continue to generate discussion in collegiate athletics circles.

"This survey will give our presidents and athletics directors a good idea of what our coaches as a body think about several proposals on the NCAA agenda, and other things that may be there later," says AFCA Executive Director Charles McClen-don. "I believe the delegates will be open-minded enough to take those opinions and digest them before voting."

"Recruiting, getting ready for play-offs or bowl games and the holiday season caused our rate of response to be off a little," McClen-don adds. "The new earlier deadlines for submitting proposals that will go into effect this year will certainly help us in communicating with school administrators in the future as to how our coaches feel about proposed legislation."

Seventy-two percent of Division I-A head coaches responding to the survey were against a Division I-A championship play-off after bowl games. Sixty percent were against a play-off plan that incorporates bowl games.

Twenty-eight of the 67 I-A head coaches who responded were against a play-off in any form, while 10 head coaches were in favor of a play-off in any form.

Eighty percent of Division I-A head coaches responding to the survey favored freshman eligibility for varsity sports, while 81 percent of head coaches responding in Divisions I-AA, II and III supported freshman eligibility.

Head football coaches in Divisions I-A, I-AA and II strongly opposed proposals that would affect preparation time in some sports and would alter current spring-training limits in football, as follows:

• Against Proposal No. 30-A, a resolution calling for reduced time demands in athletics-related activities: Division I-A 91 percent opposed; Division I-AA 83 percent; Division II—73 percent.

• Against Proposal No. 30-B, which would reduce current spring-training limits: Division I-A—94 percent opposed; Division I-AA—83 percent; Division II—76 percent.

Two proposals—Nos. 26 and 27—that would rescind 1989 Convention Proposal No. 42 (legislation effective August 1990 that would eliminate the "partial qualifier" provision of Bylaw 14.3) drew support from 72 percent of Division I-A head coaches responding, while 60 percent of Division I-AA head coaches supported both proposals. Fifty-three percent of Division I head coaches responding favored Proposal 28, which would delay the implementation of Proposal 42 until

Visitors can always find something to do in 'Big D'

The NCAA returns to familiar, comfortable surroundings—the city of Dallas and its Loews Anatole Hotel—for its 84th annual Convention.

This year's Convention is the Association's fourth gathering in Dallas and its third in the past six years at the Loews Anatole, which was the site of the 78th annual Convention in 1984 and the sixth special Convention in 1987. The NCAA held its 1951 Convention in Dallas at the Adolphus Hotel.

Since the NCAA's first visit to this former frontier trading post, Dallas dramatically has grown to a city of approximately 1 million people. It also draws more visitors than any other city in Texas—more than 12 million annually.

Dallas also ranks as the nation's No. 2 convention city—trailing only New York City. The 1,620-room Loews Anatole, with its first-class convention facilities, is a major reason why.

The hotel, which just celebrated its 10th anniversary, is the largest in the Southwest. It bills itself as a village within the city of Dallas, featuring more than 240,000 square feet of meeting space, a world-class health and fitness center, 18 restaurants and lounges, and 13 shops on its 45 acres.

It is conveniently located on the Stemmons Freeway, 25 minutes east of Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and just minutes northwest of downtown Dallas.

Points of interest

Familiar as it is to NCAA Convention delegates, Dallas can boast that it offers even more attractions for visitors than in the past.

Even in January, when temperatures range on the average from lows in the mid-30s to highs in the mid-50s, there is a variety of opportunities for fun. In fact, the greater Dallas area has more restaurants per capita than New York City and more shopping centers than any other American city.

Several attractions, including points of interest downtown and professional basketball and indoor soccer games, are only a few minutes' drive from the hotel.

Downtown

Downtown Dallas features points of interest ranging from the historic to the cultural and entertaining.

West End Historic District—The restored warehouse and factory district at Market and Elm Streets features Dallas Alley, an entertainment complex. More than 150 boutiques, restaurants and clubs can be found in the district.

John F. Kennedy Memorial Plaza—The monument is located near the West End Historic District at Commerce, Main and Record Streets. A block west of the plaza is Dealey Plaza, where President Kennedy was assassinated November 22, 1963. An exhibit on Kennedy and the assassination is now open in the Texas School Book Depository.

Dallas Arts District—The 60-acre district in the vicinity of Ross and Harwood Streets is home to the Dallas Museum of Art and the Morton H. Meyerson Symphony Center, where guitarist Chet Atkins will perform with the Dallas Symphony January 12 and 13.

Reunion Tower Observation Deck—Offers a view of Dallas and the surrounding area from the top of the 50-story Reunion Tower at 300 Reunion Boulevard. There is an admission charge. The tower is near Reunion Arena.

Dallas Mavericks—The National Basketball Association team is scheduled to host Seattle January 8 and Utah January 13 at Reunion Arena. Call 214/658-7068 between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. weekdays for ticket information.

Dallas Sidekicks—The Major Indoor Soccer League's Sidekicks

State Fair Park

The recently renovated park, in addition to being the site of the Cotton Bowl, is renowned for its museums. It is located approximately two miles east of downtown Dallas, just off Interstates 20 and 30.

The Science Place—This science

Dallas Aquarium—One of the nation's largest inland aquariums. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily; no admission charge.

Museum of Natural History—The flora and fauna of Texas are featured in various collections. Open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily; no admission charge.

North Dallas

In addition to offering several attractions for sightseers, North Dallas is noted for such shopping areas as the Galleria (Dallas Parkway and LBJ Freeway), an upscale shopping mall, and Olla Podrida (12215 Coit Road), known for its arts and crafts.

Dallas Arboretum and Botanical Gardens—Features 66 acres of gardens, as well as tours of the 1930s-era DeGolyer Mansion. The attraction at 8525 Garland Road is open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; admission $3 adults, $1 age 12 and under.

Southfork Ranch—Possibly the area's best-known tourist attraction, this ranch as depicted as the home of the Ewing family in the television show "Dallas." The ranch is about 25 miles north of downtown Dallas on U.S. 75, on FM 2551 at Parker Road. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; admission $7.50 adults, $4.95 children.

West

Several points of interest are located in communities west of Dallas and in the city of Fort Worth. They include:

International Wildlife Park—Offers a safari-style view of hundred of animals along its seven-mile, drive-through trail. Located near Interstate 30 in Grand Prairie. There is an admission charge.

Kimbell Art Museum—This Fort Worth museum's collections focus on European painting and ancient and Mesoamerican art. Closed Mondays; no admission charge.

Corporate sponsorship is theme

Corporate sponsorship will be the primary focus of the January 4-6 NCAA Professional Development Seminar, which will be held at Dallas' Loews Anatole Hotel preceding the Association's 1990 Convention.

The first of two Professional Development Seminars planned for 1990, the Dallas event is expected to draw more than 125 representatives of member institutions. Cheryl L. Levick, associate athletics director at Stanford University, will serve as the seminar's moderator and also will lead a January 6 session on corporate sponsorship and women's sports.

Levick's is one of four seminar sessions that will focus on various aspects of corporate sponsorship. The others include "What the Corporate Sponsor Wants From You," a group session featuring Newton Frank, senior vice-president and director of sports marketing research for Bruskin Associates; "Play the Corporate Sponsorship Game: Find Out How You Can Be a Winner," another group session that will feature Christopher J. Peterson, assistant athletics director for marketing and sales at Kansas State University, and "The Corporate Sponsorship Program: It Can Work for Division II," a breakout session featuring Edward G. Andrews, head of the marketing and advertising-services division of the Iowa-based Williams and Company.

Host also featured

Another featured speaker at the seminar will be W. James Host, founder and president of Host Communications, Inc., of Lexington, Kentucky. Nationally known for its college sports marketing, publishing and broadcasting efforts, Host Communications administers the NCAA Radio Network for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship, publishes game programs for many of the Association's national championships and assists the national office staff in NCAA corporate marketing.

Other speakers scheduled to appear are Roy F. Kramer, Vanderbilt University athletics director; Len Gough, associate athletics director for public relations at Clemson University; Chuck Harris, director of

Chapman to work 16th Convention

His homework done, Alan J. Chapman is about to take his place as NCAA Convention parliamentarian for the 16th straight year.

Because of the complex nature of NCAA legislation, Chapman's preparation in recent years has included conferences with NCAA officers and staff weeks in advance of the Convention to study the parliamentary aspects of proposals and head off problems before they reach the business sessions.

Professor of engineering at Rice University, Chapman served as NCAA president in 1973 and 1974. He has served as parliamentarian at every annual Convention since 1975.

Chapman is a member of the National Association of Parliamentarians. He will serve in the 1990 general business session and in the Divisions I and I-A sessions.

Assisting as parliamentarians in other business sessions will be Francis W. Bonner, professor of English and faculty athletics representative at Furman University, Division I-AA; James W. Cleary, president of California State University, Northridge, Division II, and Armin P. Langholtz, faculty athletics representative at Capital University, Division III.

Highest possible vote total for Dallas Convention is 881

Not every NCAA voting member attends the annual NCAA Convention, but if all of them did, there would be a record 881 votes on any issue affecting the entire membership.

That is the total number of active member institutions and conferences with voting privileges. It is eight higher than a year ago.

And while it is true that not every member participates in a Convention, the vast majority do. Last year, 86 percent 755 of 873 voting members were at the Convention. That percentage also is a record, bettering the 85.7 percent at the 1987 annual Convention.

Included in the total of 881 are 802 active member institutions and 79 voting conferences. By divisions, the vote totals look like this:

• Division I: 293 institutions and 37 conferences, for a total of 330 votes. Included in that are 106 Division I-A institutions and nine I-A conferences (115 total on a I-A issue), 89 institutions and eight conferences in I-AA (97 total), and 98 institutions and 20 conferences in I-AAA (118 total). Division I-AAA cannot vote separately on any issue, however.

• Division II: 194 institutions and 15 conferences, for a total of 209.

Bowl pay-outs to go up next three seasons

By 1993, teams invited to play in postseason football bowl games will be guaranteed at least $750,000 each due to a recently adopted revision to NCAA Executive Regulation 31.5.1 (see Executive Regulations column on page 24 of this issue).

During its December 4 meeting in Kansas City, the Executive Committee approved the revision, which had been recommended by the Association's Special Events Committee.

Also added to Executive Regulation 31.5 was a paragraph mandating that agencies wishing to sponsor postseason football bowl contests secure a $2 million irrevocable letter of credit payable to the NCAA that will remain in effect from the time application for certification is made until the game is certified when a new letter of credit must be provided that guarantees the revenues to be distributed to competing teams, plus an additional 25 percent to cover game expenses.

The specific payment schedule adopted by the Executive Committee takes effect next year (1990-91), at which time bowls will be required to guarantee at least $600,000 to each competing team to gain certification from the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee.

Guarantees increase $50,000 annually until 1993-94, when they reach $750,000 per team.

Binders available for keeping News

Readers of The NCAA News are reminded that binders, which provide permanent, convenient storage of back issues of the paper, are available from the publishing department.

Each of the rugged, vinyl-covered binders holds 15 issues of the News. They may be purchased for $10 each, or two for $19. Orders should be directed to the circulation department at the national office (913/831-8300).

• Division III: 315 institutions and 27 conferences (342).

Generally, more than 95 percent of all Division I members attend Conventions (the record is 95.8 percent in 1986), and Division I-A members all attend virtually every year. In Division II, more than 80 percent attend (the record: 86 percent, 1987), while Division III generally reaches better than 65 percent and has hit 70 percent twice, including a record 71.3 percent last January.

Other factors

There are voting situations that complicate any analysis of the possible voting totals. "Restricted" members can vote on constitutional issues but not on most bylaw matters; those restricted in just one sport cannot vote on issues affecting only that sport.

Also, all-male institutions do not vote on issues involving only women's athletics; similarly, all-female institutions cannot vote on issues involving only men's athletics.

Currently, there are 10 all-male institutions (two in Division I-AA, one in Division II, seven in III) and 10 all-female conferences (one in I-A, three in I-AAA, one in II, five in III). There are 28 all-female institutions (three in Division II, the other 25 in Division III) and eight all-female conferences (three in I-AAA, five in III).

As a result, the highest possible vote on a men's-only issue would be 845, while the highest on a women's-only matter would be 861.

High-vote totals

Most issues at NCAA Conventions are decided by a show of voting paddles, rather than a counted vote. With that in mind, the highest vote count ever was 704 at the 1987 annual Convention on a proposal to move the Association's financial aid legislation from the constitution to the bylaws. The next highest were both at last year's Convention: 698 on the resolution to establish the Special Committee on Cost Reduction and 656 on a proposal dealing with the student-athlete drug-testing consent form.

After those come 641 (1984, unsuccessful proposal to create a Board of Presidents), 630 (1987 annual, exceptions to the four-sport membership requirement), 629 (1985, membership-dues proposal), 628 (1987 annual, also on the four-sport requirement) and 622 (1986, granting financial aid beyond the five-year eligibility period).

All-time high counts by division: • Division I-A, 113, twice. In the 1987 special Convention, that count was on a proposal to reduce the football grant limit from 95 to 90. In last year's Convention, the count was tied on a proposal dealing with football evaluation periods.

• Division I-AA, 93, 1987 special Convention, on a proposal to reduce football grants from 70 to 65.

• Division I as a whole, 319. That came last January on the controversial Proposal No. 42. The previous high of 317 also was topped last January by a 318-vote count on a Pell Grant proposal.

• Division II, 187 at the 1988 Convention on the Division II tryout issue.

• Division III, 235, last January. That came on an unsuccessful attempt to permit Division III members to consider athletics ability in formulating financial aid packages. The previous high was 233 in 1988, also on a financial aid proposal.

67th coaches' meeting set for San Francisco

More than 3,000 football coaches from all levels of coaching are expected to attend the 67th annual convention of the American Football Coaches Association in San Francisco January 8-11.

The meeting will feature a three-day coaching clinic, committee meetings and several other functions, including the AFCA Awards Luncheon January 10 and the Kodak Coach of the Year Banquet January 11.

Among the highlights of the convention:

- Presentation of the UPI Coaches' Trophy to the coach of the team selected as No. 1 in the final UPI poll of 50 AFCA head coaches.

- Presentation of the fourth annual Gerrits/Pepsi Cola Foundation Scholarship—worth $32,000—to the institution ranked No. 1 in the final UPI poll.

- Presentation of the Tuss McLaughry Award to actor and former Florida State University half-back Burt Reynolds.

- Presentation of the Amos Alonzo Stagg Award to Len Casanova, former head coach and athletics director at the University of Oregon.

Coaches

August 1991.

The Division I-A coaches were unanimous in their support of Proposal No. 37, which would affect institutions in Division I. The proposal would permit student-athletes to receive an increase in Pell Grant moneys combined with other school aid, with certain limitations. Division I-AA coaches also strongly supported the proposal, with 78 percent in favor.

A proposal that would require admissions and graduation rates to be published and provided to student-athletes, parent, high schools and other groups generally was supported by the coaches. Approval varied from 61 percent in Division I-A to 80 percent in Division III.

Other reaction to several proposals relating to specific divisions:

Division I-A—Proposal No. 34, which would increase grants from 25 to 30: 76 percent in favor; Proposal No. 35, which would establish alternate limitation on annual number of initial counters, with certain limits: 70 percent in favor.

Division I-AA—Proposal No. 44, which would reduce grants-in-aid from 70 to 60: 96 percent against; Proposal No. 45, which would reduce grants-in-aid from 70 to 65: 84 percent against; Proposal No. 75, which would reduce from six to five the number of full-time assistant coaches: 96 percent against.

In addition to the 67 Division I-A coaches who responded to the survey, 48 I-AA coaches, 42 II coaches and 90 III coaches responded. Some coaches did not respond to all questions.

Advisers to meet

Dallas is hosting the 15th annual conference of the National Association of Academic Advisers for Athletics.

The meeting runs January 3 through 6 at the Loews Anatole Hotel, site of the 1990 NCAA Convention.

Among the speakers at the meeting is Daniel T. Dutcher, NCAA legislative assistant, who will update NAAAA members on academics-related proposals for the NCAA Convention at 1:30 p.m. January 5.

- Announcement of the national Kodak coach of the year in four divisions, as selected by the AFCA active membership, and recognition of the 20 regional winners.

- Recognition of coaches whose teams won NCAA- or NAIA-affiliated conference or national championships, as well as coaches of independent teams ranked in the top 10 by the NCAA, NAIA and UPI.

- Recognition of 35-year members and new AFCA honorary members.

Current AFCA President Don James of the University of Washington will preside at the convention.

The American Football Coaches Association, formed in 1921, has more than 6,000 members.

Krause honored

Football attendance rebounds sharply

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Led by Division I-AA and the colleges in the lower divisions, 1989 college football attendance recouped the big loss of 1988 with the biggest increase since 1978 and reached 36,406,297—fourth highest figure ever.

The increase is 824,507, or 2.32 percent. That is close to last year's drop of 880,881—largest since the NCAA began official record-keeping in 1957. The figures cover all 673 four-year college varsity teams (524 are NCAA members).

In 1978, attendance jumped 1,346,428, the second highest on record.

Division I-AA increased 503,647 to more than 5.2 million total attendance, helped by 12 more games and a per-game jump of almost eight percent—nearly 800—to 10,839. That is a welcome change, but the per-game figure still is below every season in the seven-year, 1981-to-1987 period.

The 478 "grass-roots" colleges below I-AA increased almost 200,000 as a group to nearly 5.9 million—a healthy sign in a decade of declining attendance.

Division I-A enjoyed a per-game increase of 682 to 41,970—only the sixth highest total, but highest since 1986. However, I-A played seven fewer home games than last year, so its total increase is only 122,131 to 25.3 million.

The top-ranked Southeastern Conference and Eastern and Southern independents all had record highs in per-game attendance.

1984 still No. 1

Since the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the NCAA Television Plan in 1984 and brought back unrestricted televising of college games, attendance has stayed below the levels it reached under the NCAA plan.

The record figure remains the 36,652,179 in 1984 (season tickets had been sold before the court decision). Since, national attendance has been below 1984; in fact, below 1982:

Year	Attendance	Pct. Change
1982	36,538,637	Up 2.04
1983	36,301,877	Down 0.65
1984	36,652,179	Up 0.96
1985	36,312,022	Down 0.93
1986	36,387,905	Up 0.21
1987	36,462,671	Up 0.21
1988	35,581,790	Down 2.42
1989	36,406,297	Up 2.32

*All-time high.

With the advent of the NCAA plan, attendance went up 28 of the 29 years from 1954 until 1983. Only twice has I-A dropped in both total and average—in 1985 and 1988. Before the NCAA plan, there were huge drops in 1950 and 1951, based on spot checks and projections by a Chicago firm. Adding it up, four of the five largest drops in history all came during unrestricted television.

The 1989 increase was general and widespread, helped by good weather and, perhaps, by effective promotion. A component in Division I-AA's comeback was an increase in games at big-city, neutral sites. The top 30 teams played 14 such games, totaling 470,947 in 1989 vs. 10 for 287,358 last year. Gambling alone played designated home games at Dallas; Shreveport; Los Angeles; East Rutherford, New Jersey, and New Orleans—five in all, averaging 42,972.

SEC on top again

The Big Ten Conference had won every national attendance crown since official record-keeping began in 1957 until the Southeastern Conference squeezed ahead last year. This year, it is not close. The SEC wins by more than 6,000 per game at 65,445, breaking its own 1983 record (but topped five straight times by the Big Ten, starting in 1982, with the national record being 67,997 in 1984).

The Eastern independents at 44,991 and Southern independents at 42,890 both broke their record highs. The Pacific-10 Conference, after a record year in 1988, topped 50,000 per game for only the third time. The Big Eight at 48,214 reached its highest level since 1984.

In I-AA, the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference set records for both average and total attendance a second straight year. The Yankee Conference's 8,728 average is the second highest in its history. The Southwestern Athletic Conference's 18,110 is its third highest ever (behind 1981 and 1982), and it set a record in total, as did the Big Sky Conference. The Big Sky's average was its highest since 1983.

Below I-AA, the Lone Star Conference regained the No. 1 spot it lost to the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association in 1988. The CIAA is second.

Michigan extends its streak

Michigan won its 16th straight attendance championship and ran its streak of 100,000-plus crowds to 91 over 14 years since November 8, 1975 — a streak not approached by any team, college or professional. Its average this time was up a bit to 105,356.

Tennessee, Ohio State and Penn State again finished 2-3-4. Auburn jumped to fifth from 15th. Illinois is the only new top-20 team, up to 18th from 25th.

Stanford's 15,379 increase (to 54,253) is the largest in I-A, unless you count Southern Methodist, zero the last two years with no team. SMU averaged 21,992. Tulsa's increase of 14,038 (to 25,388) is next, then Louisville's 13,056 (to 40,009) and Auburn's 12,433 (to 82,508).

Jackson State at 32,269 is the I-AA winner a fourth straight year, edging Grambling. North Dakota State regains the Division II crown at 16,833, with Texas A&I next. Dayton at 5,962 wins in Division III for the seventh time since 1977. Williams is second.

Governmental affairs report

A review of recent Federal government activities affecting the NCAA membership is published quarterly in The NCAA News. These reports are prepared by Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, the Association's legal counsel in Washington, D.C.

Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act

On November 16, the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources favorably reported by a vote of 15-1, with Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Mississippi, dissenting, an amended version of the Student Athlete Right-to-Know Act (S. 580).

The amended version of the bill would require colleges and universities receiving Federal financial assistance and awarding athletically related student aid to report certain data annually to the secretary of education. The required data, broken down by race and sex, would include the number of recipients of such financial aid for football, basketball and all other sports combined; the total number of students; the average graduation rate (based on a five-year period from original matriculation) for the four most recent classes of students receiving such aid for football, basketball and all other sports combined; and the average overall graduation rate for the four most recent graduating classes. S. 580 also would require institutions to provide this information to recruited student-athletes and their parents, guidance counselors and coaches.

The bill would also permit, but not require, colleges and universities to report adjusted graduation-rate data accounting for transfers into and out of the institutions. Special provision is made in the bill for collection and reporting of data with respect to two-year colleges.

Immediately prior to the long holiday recess that began in late November, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, one of the two original cosponsors of the bill, and other proponents of S. 580 attempted to bring the bill to the Senate floor. Sen. Cochran, who believes that the matter of publication of graduation rates should be left to the higher education community and is not an appropriate subject for Federal legislation, refused to give his consent, and the bill thus did not reach the floor for a vote prior to the recess.

The Congress will not return until January 23, and it is clear that the proponents of both S. 580 and the parallel House bill (H.R. 1454) will watch with interest the outcome of NCAA Convention votes on the graduation-rate legislation proposed by the NCAA Presidents Commission and the Division III Steering Committee (Proposal Nos. 24 and 25).

Drug-abuse prevention

Drug testing: On November 17, Sens. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and David Boren,

D-Oklahoma, introduced S. 1903, the "Quality Assurance in the Private Sector Drug Testing Act of 1989," which would establish Federal standards for drug testing by private employers. The bill limits the circumstances in which drug testing may occur and restricts random drug testing to "sensitive" employees and, because of their special circumstances and visibility, professional athletes. Although the focus of the bill generally is on drug testing in the workplace, it is of interest because it would prohibit laboratories that are not certified by the Federal government from performing toxicological urinalysis for drug-testing purposes.

The Senate bill differs significantly from H.R. 33, a bill to establish standards for the certification of laboratories engaged in urine drug testing, that remains pending before the House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Health and the Environment. Unlike H.R. 33, S. 1903 focuses on circumstances in which private sector drug testing may be performed. H.R. 33 does not address those circumstances and instead focuses on standards for laboratories engaged in, and procedures for, drug testing. Other than requiring laboratories to meet whatever certification standards the secretary of health and human services may establish, the Senate bill does not address certification of laboratories.

Anabolic steroids

Legislative developments. On November 1, Senate Judiciary Committee Chair Joseph Biden, D-Delaware, introduced S. 1829, the "Steroid Trafficking Act of 1989," which would make anabolic steroids a Schedule II controlled substance, the same category as cocaine. This change would increase steroid trafficking penalties, require the Drug Enforcement Administration to attack the steroid black market and require U.S. agencies to in-

Santa Clara will give more grants

Santa Clara University officials have announced a plan to enhance the school's men's and women's intercollegiate teams by adding 11 scholarships over the next five years.

University President Paul Locatelli, S. J., spelled out goals in terms of performance both on and off the playing fields and for increasing financial support.

"Santa Clara has set its sights high and developed a plan that will exemplify the best characteristics of Jesuit education," Locatelli said.

The plan calls for an increase to 80 scholarships (from 69 currently) by 1994-95 in six designated sports.

Also in the plan is the upgrading of athletics facilities including a new weight room, renovation of locker rooms and the expansion of the Bellomy Street intramural fields.

Men's basketball is scheduled to receive an increase from its current level of 14 to 15 scholarships, the NCAA maximum, during the 1991-92 season. The goal, according to the plan, is to achieve consistently the highest possible competitive levels. At present, Santa Clara is the only West Coast Athletic Conference member that does not grant 15 scholarships to its men's basketball team.

Scholarship aid also will be increased in baseball, women's basketball, men's soccer, women's soccer and women's volleyball. The university plans to reduce football scholarships from 24.84 to 24 in 1991-92, but to maintain that level of support if fund-raising efforts meet established goals.

The intention, according to athletics director Thomas O'Connor, is to raise $3.3 million in endowment to fund the increase of 11 scholarships in the next five years.

"These scholarships will provide assured support in our priority sports," O'Connor said. "In those sports, we want to field teams that will excel; gain national recognition for Santa Clara, and be a source of enthusiasm and pride for our students, alumni and friends."

"Our intention is also to provide equity and balance in the athletics program. We define balance as meeting the spirit and intent of Title IX regulations on male/female intercollegiate participation and also being committed to an active intramural and recreational program."

Sports Medicine

Through the years, the medical profession and the rules committee of the NCAA and other organized sports associations have worked together to prevent injuries. The mandatory use of the mouthpiece is just one of the measures that have resulted from this cooperative effort. Others include outlawing the crack-back block, the elimination of the use of the head in tackling and the use of batting helmets in baseball.

The Hughston Sports Medicine Center has been leading the way in sports medicine research for more than four decades. In fact, the required use of the mouthpiece in football was first advocated during a presentation made at a Sports Symposium in Columbus, Georgia, organized by The Hughston Clinic in 1960.

Leadership in the treatment and prevention of musculoskeletal disorders, especially those relating to sports medicine has made The Hughston Sports Medicine Center an international resource and referral center.

clude steroids in their general drug-abuse prevention, education and treatment programs. It also would add penalties to the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act for the distribution or possession with intent to distribute of human growth hormone for any use in humans other than the treatment of disease.

In his introductory remarks, Sen. Biden said that "college and professional sports organizations have to make clear that any athletes who use steroids will be suspended or expelled from their leagues." He noted that the NCAA recently had announced a year-round steroid-testing program, which he characterized as having "great promise."

No action has been taken on H.R. 995 or S. 466, which would ban any solicitation by mail, radio, television or magazine—for anabolic steroids other than legitimate mailings to certified medical professionals. The House bill was introduced in February by Rep. Fortney Stark, D-California; the Senate bill was introduced in February by Sen. Biden. Similarly, no action has been taken on H.R. 3421, a bill introduced in October by Rep. Mel Levine, D-California, that would classify anabolic steroids as a controlled substance, making it a crime to sell steroids without a prescription.

Drug-free campuses. On December 12, President Bush signed H.R. 3614, the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act, which requires higher education institutions to implement programs to prevent the use of illicit drugs and the abuse of alcohol by students and employees in order to remain eligible to receive Federal financial aid.

Similarly, H.R. 3566, the final fiscal year 1990 appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and related agencies that was signed by President Bush November 21, contains language expressing the sense of Congress (without any enforcement mechanism) that colleges and universities should demand drug-free campuses and enforce strict policies to eliminate drug use by students.

Ethics in lobbying

A rider to the fiscal year 1990 appropriations bill for the Department of the Interior and related agencies, which President Bush signed October 23, imposes important new restrictions on organizations, including nonprofit entities, that seek or obtain funds from the Federal government. In brief, the new "truth in lobbying" law prohibits recipients of Federal contracts, grants, loans or other forms of assistance from using appropriated funds for lobbying the executive or legislative branch of the Federal government in connection with a specific contract, grant, loan or other form of assistance. It also requires each person who requests or receives such assistance to disclose lobbying activity of the same kind when it is paid for with private funds. Substantial civil penalties (from $10,000 to $100,000) are authorized for each violation of the prohibition on the use of Federal funds to pay lobbyists and for each failure to report the information required when lobbyists are paid with non-Federal funds. In addition, the law authorized imposition of any other applicable penalty, which would include the general criminal sanction for making a material false statement in connection with obtaining a Federal benefit. The law contains important exceptions to these general rules. On December 20, the Office of Management and Budget published guidance for Federal agencies issuing regulations implementing the law.

National Youth Sports Program

Fiscal year 1990 appropriations. As explained more fully below, the 1990 NYSP will receive a total of $10,519,634 in Federal funding.

The final Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and related agencies fiscal year 1990 appropriations bill, H.R. 3566, allocated $9.669 million for the NYSP under the Community Services Block Grant. As noted in the last report, this amount represents an increase of $3 million over last year's CSBG appropriation of $6.669 million, which would maintain the same combined level of funding as was provided in 1989 when $3 million was appropriated under the Anti-Drug Abuse Act. In addition, Congress provided another $1 million for the NYSP as part of the "emergency" funding for services necessary to the antidrug effort included in the 1990 appropriations bill for the Department of Transportation and related agencies (H.R. 3015).

The combined $10.669 million appropriation was reduced 1.4 percent ($149,366) by an across-the-board cut included in the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 (Pub. Law No. 101-239). This cut was necessary because Congress was unable to agree on other ways to reduce the Federal deficit by the amount required by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law.

New food-service program for institutions participating in the extended NYSP.

The final child nutrition reauthorization bill (H.R. 24), signed by President Bush November 10, contains a provision creating a new program providing Federal reimbursement for meals served during the academic year to participants in the extended NYSP. This provision is necessary because the Summer Food Service Program only authorizes payments for meals served during the months of May through September.

Specifically, the legislation authorizes payments to higher education institutions participating in the NYSP for up to two meals per day for up to 30 days for each child participating in the extended program at the school lunch (and for breakfasts and meal supplements at the school breakfast) rate. Several other provisions have been included to facilitate administration of the new program, which became effective October 1, 1989. The Department of Agriculture is required to issue implementing regulations by February 1, 1990.

Title IX

Investigator's manual. The Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights now hopes to release its new Title IX intercollegiate athletics investigator's manual shortly after the beginning of the new year. As previously reported, according to staff, the revised manual does not make major substantive changes in the current intercollegiate athletics requirements, but it does make the manual much less cumbersome and contains detailed worksheets that are expected to make it easier to assess compliance.

Administrative complaints. No new information is currently available concerning.

cerning the number of Title IX intercollegiate athletics complaints that have been filed recently. As noted in the last report, relatively few such complaints (21 as of July 24, 1989) involving even fewer institutions (15 as of that date) have been filed since the Civil Rights Restoration Act became law March 22, 1988.

Copyright and cable television

Legislative developments. On November 14, the Subcommittee on Antitrust, Monopolies and Business Rights of the Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing concerning the shift of sports programming from free, over-the-air television to cable and pay television. Although much of the testimony focused on professional sports events, some witnesses discussed college events and the high cost of viewing games on pay-per-view channels. The House Energy and Commerce Subcommittee on Telecommunications and Finance plans to hold a similar hearing, but it has not yet been scheduled.

1988 cable royalty fees. A distribution proceeding has not been initiated to distribute the more than $203 million in 1988 royalty fees. As previously reported, the NCAA filed a claim last July on behalf of itself, 14 conferences and 81 member institutions for a share of those fees.

Copyright Office inquiry. On December 1, the Joint Sports Claimants filed comments in response to a Copyright Office inquiry concerning the appropriate compulsory royalty payments when two cable systems merge with each other or when one cable system acquires an adjoining cable system. In brief, the comments stated that the act of merger should not reduce a cable operator's copyright liability.

Taxation of scholarships and interest paid on student loans

Congress recessed without taking action on the eight pending bills that would partly or fully restore the exclusion from taxable income of scholarships or would reinstate the deduction for interest paid on student loans.

St. Louis to host MVC tournament

St. Louis will host the 1991 Pepsi Missouri Valley Conference Basketball Tournament, marking the first time in the 83-year history of the league that the postseason classic will be held at a single neutral site.

The league's presidents' council and directors of athletics committee voted unanimously to accept a proposal by the St. Louis Civic Entrepreneurs Organization (CEO) to host the 1991 conference tournament at the 9,200-seat Kiel Auditorium. CEO is an organization of prominent business leaders whose purpose is to attract sports and cultural events to the St. Louis metropolitan area.

"We're tremendously excited to have an opportunity to bring our league tournament to St. Louis," said Commissioner J. Douglas Elgin.

Delaware will begin mandatory drug tests

Over the next two years, mandatory random drug-testing of student-athletes will be initiated at the University of Delaware.

As part of that phase-in, any Delaware athlete or team that qualifies for NCAA championships competition during the 1989-90 academic year will be tested for banned-substance use prior to leaving the Delaware campus for NCAA competition.

Beginning with preseason physical examinations in the 1990-91 academic year, all student-athletes at the university will be subject to "random screening for steroids and other drugs of abuse," according to athletics director Edgar N. Johnson.

Delaware President E. A. Tarrant, in making the drug-testing announcement during the semi-annual board of trustees meeting last month, said "all students who test positive for use of banned substances will be subject to mandatory counseling as part of the rehabilitation process and will be suspended from intercollegiate competition."

If a student-athlete tests positive, the school will state that the student did not meet NCAA eligibility standards, provide counseling for the student and allow the student to return to competition in the following year if future test results are negative.

Students receiving athletically related financial aid will continue to do so for the remainder of the academic year in which they tested positive.

Drug-test results will become part of the student-athlete's medical records and thus could not be released to anyone without the student's permission.

Helping Hand

About 50 University of Florida football players, including Emmitt Smith, above, helped collect funds for University of Mississippi football player Chuckie Mullins, who was left paralyzed after an injury during a game against Vanderbilt University last fall. The Florida players collected $6,944.20 during a December basketball game at Florida against the University of Illinois, Champaign. In addition, more than $1,000 was collected during the Gators' last two football games. Thus far, more than $600,000 has been collected nationwide for Mullins' long-term care.

Some ex-athletes can get more aid

Louisiana State University's athletics department is providing scholarship athletes with up to one additional year of financial support as they pursue their degrees.

Under the guidance of Mike Mallet, LSU has restructured its "ninth-semester" aid program to provide more and improved services to former athletes. Mallet, assistant to the athletics director, controls the Extended Aid and Financial Assistance Program that assists, monitors and advises athletes who have completed their eligibility but are still short on credits necessary for graduation.

"The demands on a college athlete's time are tremendous, and it's difficult to graduate in four years," Mallet said. "But when eligibility to participate ends, we don't want to send these people out onto the streets."

"Our commitment to these young people has to go further than just their athletics eligibility. We don't want to send someone away without a degree and without any job skills. That would be bad for them, and it would be a poor reflection on LSU."

Any student-athlete who is in good academic standing with the university and who shows adequate progress toward a degree may be recommended for the program by his or her head coach. Students within the program must take as many hours as they can each semester, and they are assigned student jobs related to their field of study.

Students in the program meet each week, and their attendance at meetings, classes and at work is mandatory. Mallet monitors each student's classwork and job attendance for disciplinary reasons.

Legislation and Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Legislation and Interpretations Committee took the following actions:

Eligibility

1. Student seeking second baccalaureate degree at second institution because of illness. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 14.1.7.2 and a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 3 of the minutes of the committee's August 17, 1989, conference); agreed that no authority exists to permit a waiver of Bylaw 14.1.7.2 in a situation in which a student-athlete who has graduated from one member institution wishes to participate in competition at another member institution while enrolled in a second baccalaureate degree program, even though the student's transfer in this instance was based on reasons of health.

Advertisements/endorsement

2. Name and trademark of commercial sponsor on wallet-size playing schedule. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 12.5.1.3-(b) and determined that an advertisement on an institution's wallet-size playing schedule may include language other than the commercial product's name, trademark or logo, provided the commercial language does not appear on the same page as the pictures of the student-athletes.

Transfer eligibility

3. Credits earned at four-year institution subsequent to graduation from two-year college (Divisions I and II). Agreed that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 14.6.4.4.2-(a) and (b), a two-year college transfer student who graduated with 42 semester hours of transferable degree credit from the two-year college would be permitted to utilize additional credits earned at the certifying four-year institution to meet the two-year college transfer requirements, provided: (a) Those credits were earned during part-time enrollment; (b) the courses would have been accepted by the two-year college and placed on the student-athlete's transcript but for the fact that he already had graduated from the two-year college; (c) no courses taken and used for credit at the two-year college were repeated at the four-year institution; and (d) appropriate academic officials at the two-year college provided documentation with the official seal of the two-year college that verified that the institution normally would have accepted the courses.

Conference No. 19
November 30, 1989

Financial audit

4. Use of another institution's auditor (Divisions I and II). Confirmed that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw

6.2.3, it would be permissible for a member institution to utilize the services of an internal auditor of another member institution to conduct the financial audit required per Bylaw 6.2.3 even when both institutions are in the same state university system; noted that the individual must be a certified auditor and could not be a staff member of that institution.

Awards and benefits

5. Travel to NCAA championships and special events during vacation period. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1 and made the following decisions to clarify the application of this regulation:

a. If the member institution provides round-trip team transportation for such an event (from campus to the event site and back to campus) and the student-athlete utilizes both legs of the transportation, the provisions of Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1 are not applicable. Accordingly, a student-athlete who utilizes such team transportation (from campus to the event site and back to campus) and also travels home during the vacation period must pay for his or her transportation costs to home and back to the campus. [Note: The only exception to this principle would be a situation in which a student-athlete previously has paid round-trip transportation costs to travel home during the vacation period. Under these circumstances, the institution may provide the actual round-trip transportation expenses for the student-athlete to travel between the campus and the student-athlete's home on a second occasion during the same vacation period, since the only reason the student-athlete incurred these expenses (for the second trip home) was due to participation in the special event.]

b. If a student-athlete travels directly to the event site from home or directly to home from the event site following completion of the event, the provisions of Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1 would be applicable. In such a case, the institution has the discretion of providing the student-athlete a travel allowance equal to the greater of the transportation costs for the student-athlete to travel from: (a) campus to the event site and back to campus; (b) campus to the student-athlete's home and back to campus; or (c) the student-athlete's home to the event site and back home. It should be emphasized that this is a formula designed to determine the permissible amount of the travel allowance the institution may provide, and the formula is not based on the student-athlete's particular arrangements to travel home and is not intended to match (dollar for dollar) the actual cost incurred by the student-athlete in traveling home.

An institution that provides one leg of actual team transportation to the student-athlete (i.e., campus to the event or the event to campus) must deduct the value of the actual transportation cost for that transportation leg from the allowance provided the student-athlete under Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1-(a), (b) or (c).

A member institution utilizing Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1-(a) shall calculate the value of the transportation cost based on the actual mode of transportation the institution utilizes to travel to and from the event. A member institution that utilizes Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1-(b) or 16.8.1.4.1-(c) shall determine the transportation costs by utilizing the regular airline coach fare from the campus to the student-athlete's home and back to campus, or the student-athlete's home to the event site and back home.

Finally, a member institution sponsoring or competing in a special event or NCAA championship in its home community during a vacation period would not be permitted to provide the additional personal transportation allowance associated with Bylaw 16.8.1.4.1 to its student-athletes. [Note: The only exception to this principle would be a situation in which a student-athlete previously has paid round-trip transportation costs to travel home during the vacation period. Under these circumstances, the institution may provide the actual round-trip transportation expenses for the student-athlete to travel between the campus and the student-athlete's home on a second occasion during the same vacation period, since the only reason the student-athlete incurred these expenses (for the second trip home) was due to participation in the special event.]

More minority students are earning college credits during high school

Record numbers of ethnic minorities are participating in college-level programs in high school, and about two-thirds of them qualify for college credit, the College Board has announced.

The Advanced Placement Program, traditionally considered an elite program mainly for middle- or upper-income students, is being adopted by a growing number of secondary schools with large enrollments of low-income minorities, said College Board President Donald Stewart.

Of the 310,000 students taking the Advanced Placement examinations in 40 percent of the nation's high schools in May, 61,354 were black, Hispanic, Asian-American and American Indian—almost triple the number five years ago.

Asian Americans had the largest number of participants over the five years, 11,413 in 1984 and 32,230 in 1989.

However, Hispanics showed the largest percentage increase—214 percent over the period, with 5,200 participants in 1984 and 16,357 in 1989. Black participants increased 165 percent, from 4,448 in 1984 to 11,792 in 1989.

The College Board said that taken together, the qualifying Advanced Placement grades of all the minorities have almost tripled since 1984 and are growing faster than the qualifying grades of other students who take the exams, the Associated Press reported.

The program offers examinations in 29 introductory college courses in 15 fields, including art, biology, chemistry, computer science, economics, English, physics, music and mathematics. It costs $62 to take a test in each course, and the exams are graded by several hundred college and secondary school teachers.

Results are placed on a five-point scale with three or better qualifying for college credit.

When viewed separately, the statistics showed that only about half of the Blacks taking the college-level exams qualified for advanced placement grades. 5,829 earned acceptable grades compared with 11,792 taking the exam. More than 14,000 Hispanics earned qualifying grades compared with 16,357 participants, about 86 percent.

The number of Asian Americans who earned grades of three or better increased by 191 percent, growing from 12,210 in 1984 to 35,563 in 1989.

According to the College Board, 13 states accounted for 85 percent of all of the qualifying grades earned by American black and Hispanic students in 1989. California, Florida and New York produced 72 percent of the qualifying grades for Blacks and Hispanics; and in South Carolina and California, the number of qualifying Blacks and Hispanics doubled in one year.

In 10 years, teacher pay, enrollments will climb

By the year 2,000, enrollment in the nation's elementary and secondary schools will increase dramatically, women will earn more doctorate degrees than men for the first time, and teacher salaries will reflect a 14 percent increase in real purchasing power, U.S. Secretary of Education Lauro F. Cavazos has announced.

These estimates accompanied the publication "Projections of Education Statistics to 2000," which contains projections for enrollment, graduates, instructional staff, and expenditures for elementary and secondary schools and institutions of higher education.

Among the report's findings:

• Total enrollment in the nation's elementary and secondary schools is expected to reach 49.5 million by the year 2000, an increase of about four million students over the current school year.

• To meet the needs of a growing student population, the number of classroom teachers is expected to reach 3.1 million by the year 2000, an increase of 15 percent over the current year.

• By the year 2000, the average public school teacher is expected to earn 14 percent more in real purchasing power (after adjusting for inflation) than today's national average of $31,200.

• Between 1990 and 2000, current fund expenditures for public and private colleges are expected to rise by 24 percent after adjusting for inflation. Current expenditures are nearly $127 billion.

• College enrollment will fluctuate within a narrow range in the 1990s and is expected to increase by four percent by the year 2000. Faculty is expected to increase at the same rate of four percent.

• Women will continue to earn more associate, bachelor's and master's degrees than men throughout the 1990s, as they have for the past several years. In 1999, for the first time, women are expected to earn more doctor's degrees than men, while men will continue to earn more first professional degrees in such fields as medicine and law.

Information on the awards came from East Tennessee State University, which announced that assistant baseball coach John Cloud was one of the 1990 winners. Others, according to the East Tennessee State release, are Ed Turek, University of Michigan; Greg Willman, Indiana University, Bloomington; Jeff Thieme, University of Missouri, St. Louis; Mike Trapasso, University of Missouri, Columbia; Andrew Kavulich, University of Virginia; George Kokinis, University of Richmond; Chad Stewart, Siena Heights College, and Larry Lundeen, Southern Arkansas University.

Calvin College swimmer Eric Boender recently discovered firsthand (literally) that danger sometimes lurks in the deep.

"I think they were sleeping," Boender said of the pair of pet piranhas he keeps in an aquarium he was cleaning. "And I woke one of them up. The next thing I knew, he had taken a piece out of my finger. It happened really quickly."

Five stitches later, and wearing a surgical glove, the Grand Rapids, Michigan, sophomore, swam to victory in the 100-yard freestyle during Calvin's first dual meet of the season.

Retired Big Ten Conference Commissioner Wayne Duke has been selected as a 1990 recipient of a Distinguished Alumni Service Award from the University of Iowa. The awards are presented to Iowa graduates and former students for specific and meritorious service to their community, state or nation.

Duke will receive the award June 2 during Iowa's Reunion Weekend.

The Lady Nanooks women's basketball squad, which had been scheduled to play at Central Washington University, got a break of sorts when a team from Whitman College was diverted to Fairbanks from Anchorage. The two squads played December 17 before an Alaska-Fairbanks hockey game.

That hockey game proved to be that team's last until after Christmas. Flight restrictions forced cancellation of the Nissan-Jeep Classic in Anchorage, which was to involve Dartmouth College; the University of Illinois, Chicago; Alaska-Fairbanks, and the University of Alaska, Anchorage.

According to a recent Associated Press report, several men's college basketball teams, among them top-ranked Syracuse University, are using "The Big Ball" basketball training sphere in practice. Sporting the same weight and feel of a regulation roundball, it is six inches larger than regulation—forcing greater concentration for consistent accuracy.

Respecting the wishes of several Native American groups, the school replaced its Indian mascot last year with a cheerleader in a red top hat and tux. Redmen fans were relentless in their show of disdain for the new sideline character.

Two College of Notre Dame (Maryland) women's basketball players faced a second opponent during recent preparations for a game at St. Mary's College (Maryland). A mumps outbreak on the southern Maryland campus forced Notre Dame players Beth Beall and Dana Keller, both starters, to receive immunizations prior to the game. Both requested and received the injections in their nonshooting arms.

Ice packs on "off arms" during the bus ride to the game apparently helped. Beall had 20 points, Keller 12, and Notre Dame won, 59-33.
