What's ahead for tournament? Delany offers views on '90s

(Editor's Note: James E. Delany, Big Ten Conference commissioner and chair of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee, discusses the future of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship in the following series of questions and answers.)

Question: In your view, what can be expected from the NCAA Division I men's tournament in the 1990s?

Answer: The tournament has experienced tremendous growth from every perspective over the past 15 years. In addition to managing and staying abreast of this growth, the basketball committee has adopted a mission statement that will guide the development of the tournament into the late 1990s.

In my view, the recently concluded seven-year television agreement, in conjunction with actions related to tournament size, number of conference automatic qualifiers and identification of Final Four sites through 1997, seems to have set the stage for a relatively secure and stable tournament format well into the 1990s.

Question: Could you amplify on the tournament size of the bracket and the balance of at-large and conference automatic qualifiers within the bracket?

Answer: The tournament will be composed of 34 at-large teams and 30 conference automatic qualifiers through 1997. There is a moratorium on both size and composition of the tournament, and CBS has been assured of this format relative to the seven-year television contract.

Question: Will there be a "play-in" when the number of conferences eligible for automatic qualification exceeds the number of available bids (i.e., 30)? If so, how will this be administered?

Answer: Pursuant to NCAA Executive Committee action, a play-in managed and administered by the affected conferences will be held when the number of eligible conferences exceeds the 30 automatic bids that are available.

The affected conferences will be notified annually on April 30, and play-in competition must be concluded by Saturday of selection weekend. Depending on the number of eligible conferences competing for the 30 automatic berths, there could be either a one-game play-in (31 vs. 30) or a two-game play-in (32 vs. 29 and 31 vs. 30).

Finally, each conference participating in the play-in will receive a first-round tournament share regardless of whether it automatically qualifies for entry into the tournament.

Question: You mentioned a mission statement for the tournament. What does that mean?

Base new benefits on need, committee says

Any proposed increase in benefits for student-athletes should be based solely on demonstrated financial need, the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism has concluded.

Meeting February 27-28 in Lake Tahoe, California, the committee considered the concept of increased benefits for student-athletes and developed the demonstrated-need position. The committee will communicate its position to the NCAA Council for its consideration in April.

It was the sense of the committee that student-athletes currently receive financial aid that generally exceeds demonstrated need and that also generally is preferable to the amounts and types of aid provided to institutions' general student populations.

Committee members also said they believe that moves to increase student-athletes' benefits on any basis other than need would raise the spectre of significant cost increases that could lead to institutional decisions to discontinue some varsity programs.

Manual to be delayed until April

The 1990-91 NCAA Manual, incorporating the legislative changes adopted at the 1990 NCAA Convention, will not be available until late April, at the earliest.

A combination of factors, including the move to the Association's new national office building and the first-time involvement of the NCAA Legislative Review Committee, will cause a delay of about six weeks in completion of the revised volume.

The Manual customarily is mailed to the membership approximately 60 days after the NCAA Convention ends.

"We have found that the revised Manual format, while obviously much easier to use, is considerably more difficult to maintain," according to Ted C. Tow, associate executive director and editor of the Manual since 1972. "That difficulty, combined with some unforeseen schedule conflicts and the time lost in moving to the new building, would have assured that the Manual would be late this year.

"Then the new procedures involving the Legislative Review Committee resulted in changes in the portions of the Manual that already had been prepared. That is a factor that has not been involved in the past," Tow said. The Legislative Review Committee was established at the 1989 Convention but did not play a role in production of the 1989-90 Manual because it had not begun its work at that time.

"The Legislative Review Committee is attempting to assure that the new Manual remains as accurate and user-friendly as possible, and that motivation is admirable," Tow emphasized. "The down side is that each additional review process results in additional revisions, and all of that requires time."

Tow also noted that the volume of the publications and other printing produced by the Association requires each publication to remain on schedule so it does not encroach on the time allocated for the next wave of publications on the production schedule.

"We now have to attempt to balance the remainder of the work on the Manual with the production of other publications," Tow explained. "We will make every effort to have the book available by the end of April."

Regional compliance seminars scheduled in April, May

Six regional seminars have been scheduled by the Association's compliance services and legislative services departments to provide opportunities for various institutional representatives to develop a better understanding of the application and administration of NCAA legislation and guidelines.

Seminars include:

Southeast—April 9-11, Nashville, Tennessee. Upper Midwest—April 18-20, Chicago, Illinois. East Coast—April 25-27, Charlotte, North Carolina. Southwest Plains—May 2-4, Kansas City, Missouri. Northeast—May 8-10, Cambridge, Massachusetts. West Coast—May 16-18, San Francisco, California.

"Any staff member at any member institution may attend one or more of the seminars," said Kevin C. Lennon, director of compliance services. "And there is no registration fee of any kind for the seminars. Those attending, however, will be responsible for their transportation and hotel expenses."

Lennon and Richard J. Evrard, director of legislative services, are coordinating their respective NCAA departments' efforts in organizing the seminars, which will include sessions for everyone from recruiting coordinators to institutional financial aid officers.

"We have identified two constituencies and have scheduled portions of each regional seminar specifically for them," Lennon explained. Group No. 1 includes admissions personnel, registrar's office personnel, financial aid personnel, institutional compliance coordinators, recruiting coordinators and coaches.

Group No. 2 includes institutional CEOs, directors of athletics, other athletics administrators, faculty athletics representatives and compliance coordinators.

Breakout sessions new

"This is the second year for the regional seminars," Lennon said, "and one difference this year will be the extensive use of breakout sessions. We hope, through use of these sessions, to encourage more interaction among those in attendance.

"The goal of the seminars is not for NCAA staff members to tell institutional representatives how to conduct their business," he added. "Our intent is to provide opportunities for people with similar interests and problems to work together, learn from each other, and have a chance to ask questions and get information from NCAA, conference and other institutional representatives."

Those attending from institutional registrar's offices, for example, will discuss various aspects of satisfactory academic progress. At the same time, their counterparts representing financial aid offices will be discussing equivalency calculations.

Both constituency groups will take part in general presentations at each seminar that will include a review of comments made by Executive Director Richard D. Schultz during his State of the Association address at the 1990 Convention in Dallas. Also during this session, representatives of the NCAA's compliance services, legislative services

College game could benefit from baseball's lockout

By Jeff Shain

A prolonged lockout in Major League Baseball could create a windfall for the college game.

With opening day of the 1990 major-league season in jeopardy, ESPN officials are beginning to look at alternative programming to replace the cable network's scheduled six games a week. College baseball is among those events being considered to fill the gaps.

"Those things are being discussed internally. We are starting to put together plans (for replacement programming during the regular season)," said Mike Soltys, ESPN's manager of programming information.

College baseball already stands to gain one telecast from alternative programming during spring training.

ESPN has scheduled a college game to replace a spring-training telecast March 27, should the labor impasse last that long. The teams involved in that game have not been determined.

The college game was given only one slot among the 10 spring-training games ESPN may have to reprogram, but Soltys said the ratio could increase in April as the college pennant races intensify and viewers become more starved for baseball programming.

programming.

"It could get particularly popular once we get past spring training and into the regular season when people are used to seeing baseball," Soltys said. "We're not going to get a big audience against a major-league telecast. But I think people will take an interest if there are no major leagues."

Because ESPN would have to fill six hours of baseball programming Tuesday nights and three hours Wednesday nights, colleges may be asked to reschedule games away from the weekend to accommodate the cable network. But Soltys said he didn't expect problems if the situation arises.

"The date we already have (during spring training) is on a Tuesday," he said. "Schools have been willing in the past to move the dates and times to get on television."

And they likely would be again, since ESPN's coverage of college baseball has been a major contributor to the sport's growth in popularity. The cable network has televised the College World Series since it first went on the air in 1979.

Shain writes for United Press International.

Ron Fraser

Fraser honored

University of Miami (Florida) head baseball coach Ron Fraser, who took the Hurricanes to the College World Series eight times in the 1980s and won two national titles, recently was named the Coach of the Decade by Collegiate Baseball magazine.

"Naturally, I'm very honored by this," said Fraser, whose 1,118 career victories entering the season are second to former University of Southern California coach Rod De- deaux's 1,332.

"It's not something one sets as a goal, but through the kind of players we've had over the last 10 years and the tremendous support of the South Florida community, I've been able to have success."

Fraser compiled a 534-177-2 record during the 1980s, winning the College World Series in 1982 and 1985.

Worldwide radio network ready to carry broadcast of Final Four

According to Host Communications, more radio stations (447) will broadcast the Final Four than broadcast the Super Bowl, World Series, Rose Bowl, Indianapolis 500 or Kentucky Derby.

A total of 463 radio stations already have cleared one or more NCAA Radio Network broadcasts. This total surpasses the previous high of 416 stations, and affiliates still are being solicited. In addition, more than 400 stations affiliated with Armed Forces Radio worldwide will join the NCAA Radio Network for the NCAA Final Four and other selected game broadcasts.

For the first time, more than 100 stations have cleared the Division I women's championship game and more than 200 stations have cleared the "Selection Sunday" and "Eve of the Final Four" call-in shows.

The stations that have been cleared include 92 of the top 100 markets and 49 of the top 50 markets. Seventeen stations are 50,000-watt stations and eight are clear-channel facilities. The clear-channel facilities are WFAN, New York; WCCO, Minneapolis; WHAS, Louisville; WWL, New Orleans; WWWE, Cleveland; KMOX, St. Louis; WHAM, Rochester, New York; WOAI, San Antonio, Texas; and WCAU, Philadelphia.

the Council, the financial aid committee reviewed the question of whether funds from athletics sources could be used to meet the financial assistance permitted by passage of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 32.

As passed, No. 32 permits the provision of nonathletically related financial aid under specific conditions to incoming student-athletes who attend summer school or a summer orientation program.

The committee will report to the Council that:

- It believes that if funds from athletics sources are contributed to an institution's general scholarship fund for use by the general student population, then those funds could be used to meet the assistance provided by No. 32.

- It believes that if the methodology used by institutional financial aid officials to determine receipt of aid is the same for student-athletes and the general student population, funds to provide assistance must be made available from institutional sources that are available to student-athletes and the general student population on the same basis.

It recommends that no funds from athletics sources be set aside specifically for student-athletes in order to meet the assistance permitted by Proposal No. 32.

and enforcement departments will discuss the specific responsibilities of each department and how they differ.

The Association's new legislative calendar also will be reviewed.

"We hope the seminars will permit those who attend to become more comfortable with NCAA legislation and to better understand how they contribute to the on-campus administration of intercollegiate athletics," Lennon said.

Conferences future focus

After the 1990 seminars, the compliance services and legislative services departments will review the current seminar format. "We're looking at expanding all of our educational efforts with conferences," Lennon said.

More information on any of the seminars is available from Lennon or Evard at the national office (913/339-1906).

1990 Column No. 10

Divisions II and III sports camps and clinics

Divisions II and III member institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 13.12.1.2, an institution's sports camp or instructional clinic shall be any camp or clinic that is owned or operated by a member institution or an employee of the member institution's athletics department, either on or off the institution's campus. The NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed the definition of an institution's camp during its February 8, 1989, conference and determined the following:

1. An individual coach must be at least a majority owner (51 percent of the camp or clinic) in order to be considered an "owner" of an institution's sports camp or instructional clinic.

2. An individual coach must be personally and directly responsible for the management and operation of a sports camp or instructional clinic in order to be considered an "owner" or "operator" of the camp or clinic.

A Division II or III institution's sports camp or clinic shall be one that: (1) places special emphasis on a particular sport or sports, and provides specialized instruction, practice or competition, or (2) offers a diversified experience without emphasis on instruction, practice or competition in any particular sport.

Per Bylaw 13.12.1.3, an instructional sports camp or clinic shall be open to any and all entrants (limited only by number and age) except that a senior prospect shall not be permitted to enroll, participate or be employed in such a sports camp or clinic. A senior prospect is a prospective student-athlete who is eligible for admission to a member institution or who has started classes for the senior year in high school.

Please note that a Division II and III member institution's football or basketball camp or clinic may be conducted only during the institution's summer vacation period unless such activities meet the provisions regarding developmental clinics set forth in Bylaw 13.11.3.1. Therefore, it remains permissible for a Division II or III member institution to conduct an instructional sports camp or clinic during the academic year in sports other than football or basketball, provided such camps or clinics do not include "senior prospects."

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than March 23.

Division I-AA Football Committee: Replacement for Bernard Cooper, retiring from Indiana State University, Terre Haute, effective April 1, 1990. New appointee must be a representative from the I-AA Central football region. Also, Cooper must be replaced as chair.

Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee: Replacement for Laura Brewer, College of St. Benedict, resigning effective August 1990. New appointee must be a Division III representative of women's track.

It should be noted that in operating a sports camp or clinic, a Division II or III institution, members of its staff or representatives of its athletics interests shall not employ or give free or reduced-admission privileges to any individual who has started classes for the ninth grade. Also, in accordance with Bylaw 13.12.2.3.2, no Division II or III athletics department staff member may be employed (either on a salaried or volunteer basis) by a camp or clinic established, sponsored or conducted by an individual or organization that provides recruiting or scouting services concerning prospective student-athletes.

Developmental clinics (including competition conducted in conjunction with the clinic) involving prospects may be conducted at any time during the year, provided:

1. They are designed to develop fundamental skills in a sport (rather than to refine the abilities of skilled participants in the sport);
2. They are open to the general public (except for restrictions in age or number of participants);
3. They are conducted by and subject to the control of the host member institution;
4. They are conducted primarily for educational purposes and do not include material benefits for the participants (e.g., awards, prizes, merchandise gifts);
5. Clinic participants do not receive a recruiting presentation, and
6. Clinic participants reside in the state in which the host institution is located or within 100 miles of the host institution.

Please note that senior prospective student-athletes may enroll or participate (but may not be employed) in an institution's developmental clinic.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Delay sought in use of Bylaw 14.3 interpretation

The NCAA Council agreed last October that courses labeled as remedial by a state education agency should not be considered core courses under Bylaw 14.3, even if a high school principal submits documentation indicating that the course is not remedial.

However, the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee now is asking the Council to delay the effective date of this interpretation so it first affects student-athletes being recruited during the 1990-91 academic year.

The committee made the recommendation at its February 28-March 1 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri. It will be reviewed during the Council's April 23-25 meeting in Overland Park, Kansas.

The original interpretation, which was approved by the Council on the committee's recommendation, took effect immediately after approval.

"The committee is recommending this delay because of its concerns about the timing of the interpretation and the effect it may have on member institutions, which previously relied on the word of the high school to determine if a course was remedial," said Nancy L. Mitchell, NCAA director of legislative services.

The committee believed that the timing of this change—in October, during the middle of a recruiting season—made it particularly difficult to administer.

In other actions, the committee:

- Discussed possible problems with the implementation of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24—the graduation-rate disclosure requirements for Divisions I and II—and Proposal No. 105, which allows institutions to pay the testing agencies to obtain a prospect's official ACT or SAT score. The committee discussed concerns about the logistics of graduation-rate disclosure and reviewed a proposed procedure for test-score payment prepared by the NCAA compliance services department.

- Received a report from Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research, on the NCAA Study of the Academic Performance of Student-Athletes. The report dealt specifically with initial eligibility and the effects of Bylaw 14.3.

- Received an update on a Price Waterhouse study of the feasibility of establishing a national clearinghouse for certification of initial eligibility. Price Waterhouse has requested proposals on how such a clearinghouse could be implemented.

Committee members noted that such proposals would provide cost estimates and an idea of how a clearinghouse would be operated. Such information could help the membership determine whether to approve the establishment of a clearinghouse.

What's ahead

letics director at the University of Arizona and last year's chair, believed it was imperative that the committee review all facets of the tournament operation with an eye toward establishing a series of principles that the committee might rely on in developing future tournament policies.

Basically, the committee agreed that the tournament had experienced and would continue to experience significant growth and that it was of critical importance to determine how the committee wanted the tournament to look in the 1990s.

Question: What did the committee decide?

Answer: In short, the committee believes it is important to ensure that the atmosphere surrounding the tournament reflects favorably on higher education and that, to the degree possible, evidence of commercialism should be eliminated at the various tournament venues. The committee agreed that the event should be projected as the "Masters" of college amateur basketball competition.

Question: Has the committee recommended new regulations governing eligibility of conferences for automatic-bid consideration?

Answer: Yes. The committee recommended and the Executive Committee adopted a series of regulations that increased the "wait periods" for institutions and conferences desiring entrance into the Division I tournament as automatic qualifiers.

Question: Why has the committee recommended the increase of these wait periods?

Answer: The committee was greatly concerned about the impact the tournament was having on institutions and conferences that were adjusting their philosophies and, in some cases, their divisional affiliations in an attempt to gain access to the tournament.

The wait periods were lengthened in an attempt to ensure that movement to Division I and conference formation were for purposes not solely related to meeting automatic-bid criteria.

Question: The basketball committee has tentatively selected 1994-1997 Final Four sites: 1994—Charlotte, North Carolina; 1995—Seattle, Washington; 1996—East Rutherford, New Jersey, and 1997—Indianapolis, Indiana. Contingent upon execution of NCAA agreements, two domed facilities and two conventional facilities have been selected as sites. Is the committee rotating the Final Four sites between these two types of facilities?

Answer: The overwhelming success of the 1986 and 1988 Final Fours in buildings with fewer than 20,000 seats reaffirmed to the basketball committee that in addition to the "basketball purists," many in the basketball community and membership are supportive of the Final Four being conducted in a conventional building. Following the 1988 Final Four, the National Association of Basketball Coaches board of directors recommended to the basketball committee that the Final Four be conducted in a conventional building every four years. At this time, the basketball committee does not have a rotation policy, but the current sentiment favors the inclusion of conventional buildings in the rotation.

Question: For the 1989 championship, the committee eliminated the possibility of a tournament team playing on its home court, a court on which it plays more than one-half of its regular-season home games. Does this policy eliminate a large number of potential tournament hosts?

Answer: I do not believe this policy discourages institutions from serving as hosts. Inasmuch as tournament hosts are selected far in advance of the year they host, athletics administrators at these institutions have a long period of time to prepare to serve as hosts.

Generally, even if their team is playing at another site, their advance preparation and planning allow them to adequately staff both sites. In an effort to assist tournament hosts, the committee recently added a provision to its bracketing principles that allows it to assign a participating institution to play at a site that is scheduled for dates that do not conflict with the dates on which it may be serving as host.

Question: What will the basketball committee's involvement be in determining how the revenue from the seven-year CBS sports contract will be distributed?

Answer: The basketball committee had a special meeting February 18-19 to begin to develop its recommendations that will be forwarded to the Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues. The advisory committee's recommendations will be submitted to the Executive Committee for consideration in August.

Question: What do you expect from the 1990 tournament?

Answer: Lots of excitement, drama and fun. We have a great event, and the committee members all feel privileged to have an opportunity to participate in the management of it. I believe that the players, coaches and fans are the heart and soul of this event, and I'm looking forward to watching the best amateur basketball in the world unfold over the next three weeks.

Fax numbers listed for members' use

Several facsimile machines have been set up in the new NCAA national office building to serve callers who want to send materials to staff members.

The telephone number for the NCAA's primary fax machine, which is supervised by the Association's office services center staff, is 913/339-1950. Materials sent to this number should include the name of the staff member who is to receive the message.

Callers also may send faxes directly to national office departments and other offices. The numbers are:

- Championships: 913/339-0026.
- Communications: 913/339-0027.
- Administration: 913/339-0028.
- Drug Testing: 913/339-0029.
- Publishing: 913/339-0030.
- The NCAA News (editorial and advertising): 913/339-0031.
- Legislative Services: 913/339-0032.
- Compliance Services: 913/339-0033.
- Enforcement: 913/339-0034.
- Business: 913/339-0035.
- NCAA Foundation: 913/339-0036.
- Visitors Center: 913/339-0012.

Also, the NCAA statistics service maintains a fax machine at 913/339-1800.

Frequent callers to the NCAA national office are urged to keep these telephone numbers for reference.

Groundbreaking held

New Hampshire weather turned recent the groundbreaking for Colby-Sawyer College's new Athletic and Recreational Center into a "snowbreaking" ceremony.

Still, about 200 trustees, graduates, students, faculty and staff attended the February 23 event, which kicked off construction of the 63,000-square-foot, $8 million facility at the women's college.

The center will house a swimming pool; a sports-medicine clinic; handball, racquetball and squash courts; a field house that can accommodate basketball, tennis and volleyball; a jogging track; training rooms; a fitness center, and offices.

Ticket order forms ready for '91 Final Four Ticket applications are being accepted for the 1991 Final Four at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis.

Each ticket will admit the bearer to two semifinal games (March 30) and the championship game (April 1). Tickets for individual sessions are not available.

The official order form (or a photocopy) must be used to apply for tickets. Requests without official application forms will not be accepted. Also, each application must include a personal check for the correct amount, payable to "NCAA Final Four." A $1 nonrefundable handling fee will be charged for each order. All checks should be made payable in U.S. currency.

A separate application form must accompany each payment. Applications for more than two tickets will not be accepted. Addressed, stamped envelopes should not be included with orders.

All ticket applications must be received no later than midnight April 30, 1990. Applications received after that date will be returned unopened to the sender stating "box closed." The NCAA will not make exceptions for late applications delayed by mail service. The NCAA or United Missouri Bank of Kansas City, N.A., is not responsible for returning incorrect applications to the sender before the April 30 deadline.

Each check will be deposited upon receipt. A check that has been deposited is an indication that the application has been received and will be included in the selection process. It does not mean that the applicant will receive tickets.

Interest income generated by ticket-application moneys will be used to support one or more of the NCAA youth programs (Youth Education through Sports Clinics and the National Youth Sports Program) and drug-education efforts.

In May, a random, computerized drawing from among all qualified applications will be held to determine the recipients of available tickets. Selection results will not be released.

Those successful in the drawing will be sent their game tickets about June 30, 1990. Tickets (at any price) are nonreturnable.

Unsuccessful applicants and those receiving lower-priced tickets than originally requested will be sent a full or partial refund about June 30.

No reason for pessimism about athletics reform

By Paul Hardin

(Editor's Note: In this column, Paul Hardin, chancellor of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, comments on recommendations by that school's Ad Hoc Committee on Athletics and the University. A description of that report, which is not yet in its final version, appears on page 5.)

Paul Hardin

Now that our faculty council has completed its important and timely discussion of the role of athletics in the academy, there is understandable interest in what comes next. Some have speculated that not much will come of the effort. That type of pessimistic appraisal may have been enhanced by a recent, quick telephone survey by one of our (area) newspapers of various coaches and other officials in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

No one should have assumed that our sister institutions would embrace automatically, or immediately, the recommendations of our faculty; therefore, no one should be discouraged that most people polled, not having even read the final report of the council, expressed reservations.

My personal conviction is that the national mood favors the kind of nondraconian but significant reforms envisioned by the faculty committee that issued the report and the faculty council that adopted it. Our faculty is out front of all other faculties, I feel, in stating a comprehensive call for reform, but these recommendations are not a forlorn, lonely cry. Let me point out what I see as grounds for optimism.

Many of the recommended reforms were being advocated by our own coaches, faculty and administration long before I came to (North) Carolina and even before the faculty committee was formed in February 1988.

The long-range planning committee of the Atlantic Coast Conference, of which Director of Athletics John D. Swofford is a member, is preparing sweeping reform proposals to present this spring to the conference. The plan is to seek approval of those proposals by the ACC, to seek endorsement of them by other athletics conferences and to present them to the NCAA.

The NCAA itself was in a reform mood at its most recent Convention.

Several steps were taken that were compatible with our faculty discussion; the executive director of the NCAA, Richard D. Schultz, made a hard-hitting, reform-minded speech, and the Presidents Commission showed signs of renewed strength. Furthermore, specific signs of "more to come" include an interim report of an NCAA cost-cutting study committee, headed by ACC Commissioner Eugene F. Corrigan.

One should not overlook other important voices and structures that support reform: public opinion, the Knight Commission, the U.S. Congress, and, not least, the president and Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina System—a system whose 16 schools represent several conferences.

As soon as I have copies of the final recommendations of our faculty council, I shall share them with the conference and other agencies I have mentioned above. I fully expect that other reform proposals will emerge, seconding, in effect, the principal thrusts of our deliberations here.

I predict, in fact, that the NCAA will move in the directions pointed by our faculty more quickly than the five-year timetable suggested in our discussions. I predict, further, that this will be done with the strong support of many coaches and directors of athletics across the nation (although surely with strong opposition by others).

Those who might tend instinctively to oppose reform should realize that the current movement is being led, with few exceptions, by people who support intercollegiate athletes, not by the strident few who would do away with intercollegiate competition.

They should realize, too, that the objective is a "level playing field" with sensible rules (being obeyed by all having as their objective the reduction of athletics demands on students and the accompanying enhanced assurance that our student-athletes are educated rather than exploited).

I have a longstanding personal commitment to nationwide reform of intercollegiate athletics. I will even be advancing one or two ideas not included in our faculty council's excellent and thorough deliberations.

I also have a deep appreciation of the integrity and dedication of our Carolina coaches and players and of their heroic and largely successful efforts to keep academic values paramount despite the sometimes ferocious demands of competitive athletics program.

Let's all join together to achieve soon the kind of reforms that will reduce those ferocious demands and promote throughout the nation a program of intercollegiate athletics that is truly a part of and not antithetical to a vital and successful educational experience for all students.

"Schultz mapped a nice detour around the problem. He points out that the existing college scholarship is more than room, board and tuition. It also calls for 'cost of attendance,' which Schultz presumes can include a clothing allowance and cost of trips home. He talked in terms of $2,000 to $3,000 annually for such incidentals.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I read in your December 11 issue the article, "Association to promote baseball on TV."

Very nice, but why don't you also try to promote track and field on TV?

Then, track could gain popularity. Wouldn't you like that? Remember, in the past, track has been bigger than college baseball, and it is a better product. College baseball is about the caliber of the minor league's class D.

I'll bet the finals of the NCAA (track) meet will draw more spectators than the finals of the baseball tournament.

If you would spend as much energy and effort on promoting track as you do everything else, that would help the financial situation in this time of fiscal crisis.

North Carolina committee recommends athletics reforms

The Ad Hoc Committee on Athletics at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, has compiled a series of proposed national and institutional changes for athletics programs that it recommends North Carolina consider adopting within five years, whether or not the recommendations are instituted by the Atlantic Coast Conference and the NCAA.

The committee, which was appointed after a resolution to examine athletics was adopted by the school's faculty council, says in a preliminary draft of its report that one option would be for universities to withdraw from intercollegiate athletics competition, even though such a proposal "is likely to shake the foundations of the Republic."

"Recommendations to abolish Congress or rescind the Louisiana Purchase would be less controversial than the proposal that any major university renounce intercollegiate athletics," the draft stated.

However, the committee report says it regards such a withdrawal as a serious alternative to the "present state of things."

While recommending a number of institutional reforms, the committee said such local reforms violate the NCAA principle of equity in competition by denying athletes the so-called "level playing field."

The reports suggest that an attempt be made to gain support for reform within the Atlantic Coast Conference and the NCAA membership.

Among the report's recommendations for national reform are the following:

- The season of play in each sport should not exceed the number of weeks in a standard academic semester, although a season might be divided between two semesters, if desirable.

- The number of competitive events additional to those required by the conference shall be considerably reduced.

- During a playing season, the time a student-athlete allots to practice, game preparation, travel, team meetings, etc., should not exceed 360 hours for the season. In no case should the required time exceed 30 hours a week.

- Spring practice in football should be eliminated.

- Freshmen should be ineligible for varsity competition, but they should be allowed two hours a day for conditioning and practice in their sports.

- Varsity eligibility should be limited to three years.

- By contract, coaches should be accountable for the regular academic progress of their student-athletes.

- The NCAA should make it clear that no institution is under obligation to admit outstanding athletes who are academically underqualified.

- An NCAA member institution should not admit any athlete whose qualifications, measured against the admissions criteria of the institution, fall below those of the least qualified nonathlete to be admitted the same year in the athlete's admissions category.

Among the recommended institutional reforms:

- The university should reduce the out-of-state quota of student-athletes who are noncompetitive in that admissions category.

- The number of athletics grants-in-aid in each sport should be increased in proportion as the average graduation rate of those student-athletes exceeds that of the student body and decreased as the graduation average falls below the student-body average.

- The Educational Foundation (known as the Rams Club) should present its annual budget to the chancellor for his review and endorsement.

- Financial statements and budgets of the Educational Foundation

- The faculty committee on athletics should arrange for exit interviews to include the evaluation of coaches when the student-athlete leaves an academic program, whether for graduation or other reasons.

The ad hoc committee consulted with Chancellor Paul Hardin and body, coaches, and several student-athletes.

The committee says it is encouraged about reform in intercollegiate athletics by recent developments nationally—the adoption of NCAA Bylaw 14.3 and actions by the NCAA Presidents Commission.

"To this evidence of progress," the draft report states, "must now be added the recent formation of the blue-ribbon (Knight Foundation) national commission...to define and study the problems of intercollegiate sports and make major recommendations to remedy them."

Another encouraging sign for reform, the committee notes, are the additions to the NCAA bylaws of "some progressive commitments" to student-athlete welfare and principles governing recruiting and eligibility, all of which are aimed at enhancing the higher educational experience of student-athletes.

"It remains to be seen, of course," the ad hoc committee said, "when and how they will be embodied into specific, enforceable bylaws."

While the committee noted the progress made toward reform, it warned that these and other efforts "will be strongly opposed by large and powerful groups."

The North Carolina faculty is urged to give its organized support to all "movements likely to result in the adoption by the NCAA of the general reforms the (faculty) council may choose to recommend to the chancellor."

The draft report also urges the North Carolina faculty to seek support through the national faculty organizations and to support national reforms, whether or not the Presidents Commission or the Knight Commission recommends them, unless the university is prepared to adopt immediate unilateral reform.

While the committee notes the progress toward reform, it warns that these and other efforts will be resisted by large and powerful groups dation should be open to the public.

- The university should provide to all students the same kind and level of academic support that is provided to student-athletes.

Big East, ACC tops in men's play-off victories

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA Assistant Statistics Coordinator

With "Selection Sunday" less than a week away, the Division I Men's Basketball Championship—otherwise known as "March Madness"—is about to add another chapter to its long and colorful history.

To start, let us examine the long-running argument over which conference or region plays the best basketball and produces the most great players and coaches.

From its beginning 51 years ago, the tournament has favored a geographically balanced field that included one team from each of eight districts throughout the country (as opposed to the National Invitation Tournament, which featured mostly teams from the East).

The all-time conference chart (see page 14) uses only the actual lineups competing for conference championships each season (as opposed to taking current lineups 51 years back).

It shows a tight race for No. 1 in tournament winning percentage, led by the Big East Conference, now in its 11th season, at .659. The Atlantic Coast Conference, now in its 38th season, is second at .651. The next two conferences are older than the tournament—the Big Ten Conference at .649 and the Pacific-10 Conference at .618. Fifth at .576 is the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, now in its 15th season.

Only three other conferences have winning records, and all three have been involved in the tournament since the beginning—Big Eight Conference .565, Southeastern Conference .554 and Missouri Valley Conference .529. The West Coast Conference is at .488 over 37 seasons, and the Atlantic 10 Conference rounds out the top 10 at .475 over 14 seasons.

Most championships

The Pacific-10 holds a big lead in championships with 13—10 by UCLA and coach John Wooden during a 12-year span ending in 1975. The Big Ten is next with nine titles, including last year's Cinderella romp by Michigan and then interim head coach Steve Fisher. Next is the SEC with five and the ACC and Missouri Valley with four each (all four MVC titles were won by teams now in other leagues).

Three titles were won by Eastern independents and two each by the Big East, Metro, Big Eight, WCAC, Midwest independents and the old Skyline Eight Conference, forerunner of the Western Athletic Conference; one was claimed by a Southwest independent (UTEP, formerly Texas Western, in 1966, before it entered the WAC).

Louisville's Felton Spencer ranks among Division I field-goal percentage leaders

Final Four leaders

The Big Ten has had the most entrants in the Final Four at 30, followed by the Pac-10 25, ACC 20, Eastern independents 19, Big Eight 17, MVC 16, SEC 13, Southwest Athletic Conference 11, Big East eight, Midwest independents seven and Metro five. Sixteen other conferences or independent groups made it at least once.

The Eastern independents lead in regional second-place teams (one

Pam Hudson, Northwestern State (Louisiana), leads Division I women in rebounding

Marquette, which won in 1977 in Al McGuire's last game as head coach (beating Dean Smith's North Carolina team).

Five-year leaders

Since adoption of the 64-team field, eight conferences have had teams in the Final Four. The Big East (54-25) leads with six, followed by the Big Eight (34-20), ACC (51-28) and Big Ten (42-26) with three each. The Metro (16-11) has produced two Final Four teams. The five years, and another Division I conference has not placed a team in the tournament yet.

Regional leaders

As the chart shows, each of four regions in the country claims at least one NCAA crown, and all can look back on many moments of glory. The Midwest region (Big Eight and Big Ten) has the best won-lost percentage, .524, followed by the East's .518, the West region's .474 and Southeast's .457.

The West has won 17 titles (remember UCLA's dominance from 1964 to 1975), Midwest 15, Southeast 7 and East 6. The West, specifically the Rocky Mountain area, also had six teams in the Final Four and two champions (Wyoming in 1943 and Utah in 1944), plus 21 other teams that missed the Final Four by one victory.

The last three NCAA champions have emerged from the Midwest—Indiana in 1987, Kansas in 1987 and Michigan in 1989. The East region had a run in the early 1980s when North Carolina won in 1982, North Carolina State in 1983, Georgetown in 1984 and Villanova in 1985.

Great coaches

The history of the tournament is a history of great coaches and their teams. The coach-pupil connections are endless. Wooden, as mentioned, stands alone with 10 championships. His teams made 12 appearances in the Final Four and were 47-10 in tournament play.

The 1980s ushered in a new group of coaches who are approaching some of Wooden's accomplishments. Indiana's Bob Knight (1981 and 1987) and Louisville's Denny Crum (1980 and 1986) have won two championships each in the decade, and North Carolina's Smith had the best overall record since 1980 (281-63 for .817 percentage).

Albert Kirchner, Mount St. Vincent, leads Division III men in assists

Knight has molded a first-class program; his 1976 title team was the last undefeated Division I men's team, a pinnacle many experts feel may not be reached again. Crum had four teams reach the Final Four in the 1980s, a feat unmatched.

Duke's Mike Krzyzewski has led the Blue Devils to three Final Four berths in the past four years, while Georgetown's John Thompson and Houston's now-retired Guy Lewis are the only other coaches with three Final Four teams in the decade.

Even though Nevada-Las Vegas' Jerry Tarkanian has made only one Final Four appearance, the towel-chewing "Shark of the Desert" piled up the second-best winning percentage (271-65 for .807) over the 10 years. Thompson is third on the list at 269-69 for .796, followed by Joey Meyer (since 1985) and his father, Ray, at DePaul .778; Temple's John Chaney .743 (since 1983); Syracuse's Jim Boheim .736; UTEP's Don Haskins .735; and Oklahoma's Billy Tubbs .731 (since 1981).

In tournament games, Knight has the best winning percentage among active coaches at 29-10 for .744. Krzyzewski is second at 16-6 for .727 and Villanova's Rollie Massimino is next at 19-8 for .704, followed by North Carolina State's Jim Valvano at 14-6 for .700, Crum at 31-14 for .689 and Thompson at 25-12 for .676.

North Carolina's Smith, with 685 career victories through March 3, is 41-20 (.672) in 19 tourney appearances, tops among active coaches. St. John's (New York) Lou Carnesecca has had teams in 15 tournaments, followed by Crum in 14; Thompson, Knight and Notre Dame's Digger Phelps, 13, and Boheim and Haskins, 12.

Basketball notes victory from the Final Four) with 25; then come the SEC with 18, ACC and Big Eight 17 each, Big Ten 15, Pac-10 and Old Skyline 12 each, and WCC 10.

Independents dwindling

With the formation of more conferences to gain automatic bids and television revenue, many prominent independents have disappeared from the scene. There were more than 80 independents in the mid-1970s; fewer than one-fourth of that number (19) are independents now, and many of them are waiting to get into conferences.

Since the tournament began, independents have a 304-302 won-lost record, with six winning the championship and 38 entrants reaching the Final Four. But during the past five years, since adoption of the 64-team field, independents have been only 11-12 and have made no Final Four appearances.

The last independent to reach the Final Four was DePaul under Ray Meyer in 1979 (losing a semifinal to Indiana State and Larry Bird). The last independent champion was SEC (33-25), Big West (11-7) and Pac-10 (8-14) have produced one each.

The Big Ten leads with two championships (Indiana in 1987 and Michigan in 1989), and the Big East (Villanova in 1985), Big Eight (Kansas in 1988) and Metro (Louisville in 1986) own the others.

Two more conferences reached the round of eight once each—the Atlantic 10 Conference (9-9) and the Colonial Athletic Association (6-7).

Thirteen more conferences won at least one game—Sun Belt Conference (7-11), WAC (6-11), Southwest (6-12), Association of Mid-Continent Universities (3-4), Midwestern Collegiate Conference (4-6), Southland Conference (2-5), Ohio Valley Conference (3-6), MVC (2-10), Trans America Athletic Conference (1-5), WCC (1-7), Mid-American Athletic Conference (1-5), American South Athletic Conference (2-2) and the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference (1-6).

Another eight conferences have a combined 0-50 record in the past

Louisiana Tech, Tennessee dominate women's tourney

Louisiana Tech has the best tournament record in Division I women's championship history at 28-6, including two champions and six teams in the finals and semifinals. Tennessee is next at 26-6, with two champions and six teams in the finals and semifinals. Southern California, with a 19-5 mark and two champions, is third.

Six more teams have 10 or more victories in NCAA play—Texas 17-6 with one champion, Long Beach State 16-8 with two semifinalists, Old Dominion 13-6 with one champion, Auburn 13-7 with two straight second-place finishes, Georgia 13-8 with two semifinalists and Mississippi 10-8.

Since the women's tournament began in 1982, five teams have won all the championships and 12 teams have split up 32 semifinals and finals berths.

This chart shows the dominance of those teams in the semifinals and finals:

Tennessee's Pat Summitt has led her Lady Volunteers to two titles in the past three years, including last year's 76-60 victory over Auburn in the finals. Over the past four seasons, no coach can challenge Summitt's two titles and two third-place finishes, but Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore has posted one championship plus second and third-place finishes.

Linda Sharp, now at Southwest Texas State, won two titles at Southern California behind the play of Cheryl Miller; she and Summitt are the only two-time winners.

Barmore was an assistant to Sonja Hogg in 1982 when Louisiana Tech captured the first NCAA women's crown. In all, Barmore has taken a Tech team to the semifinals as an assistant, cohead or head coach six times.

Jody Conradt's 1986 Texas team is the only women's team in any division to finish the season undefeated (34-0). Both Conradt and Barmore have averaged more than 30 wins per season since 1982.

Bridgette Gordon, Tennessee's Olympic gold medalist, led her Lady Vols to four consecutive appearances in the semifinals and finals as a player. She is believed to be the only Division I player, male or female, to appear in four national semifinals and finals.

For the women, the Division I tournament field grew from 32 to 48 teams in 1989, and tournament attendance has exploded from 56,320 in 1982 to 176,490 in 1989.

Vikings defend II wrestling title

After coasting to a convincing victory in the 1989 championships, Portland State needed every point it could muster to hold off runner-up Central State (Oklahoma) and win its second straight Division II wrestling title March 2-3 at Wisconsin-Parkside.

The defending champions finished with 100½ points, fewer than five points ahead of Central State (96). It was the smallest margin of victory since the 1983 tournament.

North Dakota finished third with 60½ points and Nebraska-Omaha totaled 56¼ points to finish fourth.

Central State, in its first season of Division II membership after claiming eight National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics titles, came into the championships as the division's top-ranked team and had qualifiers in all weight classes except heavyweight.

But coach Marlin Grahn's Portland State squad made the most of its six qualifiers—four Vikings earned individual titles, and one finished second. Two-time 150-pound champion Dan Russell claimed his first crown at 158 and was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler; defending 134-pound titlist James Sisson moved up to 142 and won, and Vikings Broderick Lee (118) and Tony Champion (177) defended their titles in those weight classes. Travis West, who won at 142 pounds last year, finished second at 150.

The team title was Portland State's third. The Vikings also won in 1967.

Mark Burrell of Central Missouri State was the only other wrestler to repeat as champion; he took the 126-pound title for the second straight year.

Claiming individual titles for Central State were Johnny Nimmo (150), Howard Moore (167) and Greg Oplotnik (190). Jeff Gowens finished third at 134.

David James, in his eighth year at Central State, was named Division II coach of the year at the tournament.

Top-ranked Bombers treat home-town fans to title

Top-ranked Ithaca celebrated its 50th season of wrestling by claiming its second straight team title before a home-town crowd at the Division III Wrestling Championships March 2-3.

The Bombers won only one individual title but got strong performances at several weights to earn 81 points and become the first team to win back-to-back titles since 1985. They outscored runner-up Augsburg by 17 points.

Cortland State finished third with 51½ and Buena Vista was fourth with 49¾ points.

Going into the final match of the tournament, it looked as if the Bombers would win the team title without an individual champion for the second straight year. But heavy-weight Mike Fusilli defeated Tom Fye of Luther to give coach John Murray's squad its first individual champion since 1988.

Ithaca got second-place finishes from Joel Lamson at 126 pounds and Marty Nichols at 150. Mike Cronmiller finished third at 158 pounds.

Cortland State and Brockport State both had two individual champions. Troy Monks (118) and Mike Yanosik (177) won for Cortland State, and Fritz Zagorski (126) and Brian Quick (190) claimed titles for Brockport State.

John Beatty of Augsburg won the 142-pound title to become the only repeat champion. He was the 134-pound champion in 1988.

Rob Llorca of Wisconsin-Whitewater was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler for defeating two former champions on his way to the 158-pound title. He beat Cronmiller, the 1988 titlist, 5-4 in the semifinals, and he earned the crown by defeating defending champion Mark Ambrose of Delaware Valley, 14-8.

Al Baxter of Buena Vista was named Division III coach of the year during the tournament.

Men's tournament often turns tables on No. 1-ranked teams

Often, expectations do not match results in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Teams that enter the championship with high hopes frequently end up watching the title contest from couchside instead of courtside. In fact, 1982 was the last time a team ranked No. 1 in the final Associated Press and United Press International polls won the tournament.

On the other hand, some of the teams that march through the madness of championship play are those whose highest aspirations are to be part of the final 64 rather than the Final Four.

Last year, Seton Hall's Pirates were aiming for a spot in the sweet 16—which they earned, on the way to an appearance in the 1989 championship game against Michigan.

The road to the Final Four was somewhat of a yellow brick road for the Pirates. Playing for the national championship was not on the mind of coach P. J. Carlesimo when he took control of the Seton Hall program for the 1982-83 season, although eventually playing in the championship was.

"We were concerned with going one step at a time," Carlesimo said. "We wanted to become competitive in the Big East Conference and get in the top half of the conference. We figured we could get to the NCAA (if we did that). It took us six years to do that."

The trip to the 1988 championship was the first appearance in the tournament for a Pirate squad. Seton Hall played in the West regional in Los Angeles and defeated UTEP, 80-64, in the first round before losing to eventual Final Four participant Arizona, 84-55, in the second round.

The Pirates did have some expect-tations going into last year's tournament. They reached their goal and went a step beyond.

"We wanted to get back in the tournament and go farther than we had ever gone," Carlesimo said.

Carlesimo cited three keys to the success of last year's team. First, the team was balanced and played good defense. Second, the tough competition of the Big East Conference was good preparation for the tournament. Last, the team was playing very well at tournament time.

Because he had a veteran squad and had confidence in the players' ability to stay focused on the competition, Carlesimo scheduled practices in the morning so that the team would have some time to go sight-seeing.

"We made the determination with our kids that we were going to have a good time," he said. "It's not something you're going to do too often."

The last two seasons, tournament time has been pretty good to Seton Hall.

"(The tournament appearances) have been incredible experiences, both of them," Carlesimo said. "I remember thinking (in 1988), it would never be as special (again); then, we turn around and have a year that dwarfs the year before."

Duke's Danny Ferry shoots over Seton Hall's Frantz Volcy during the 1989 Final Four. Seton Hall won the game.

Stanford, UNLV women have title hopes

Stanford and Nevada-Las Vegas may be ready to step up to the Women's Final Four in Division I women's basketball.

Both teams have been ranked as high as second nationally this year after leaving their most successful championships last year—Nevada-Las Vegas reached a regional semifinal and Stanford advanced to a regional final.

Since taking the reins of the Stanford program in 1985, coach Tara VanDerVeer has used the top teams in college basketball as teaching devices. Through videotape and competition, VanDerVeer has shown her players which factors distinguish the best teams from the rest. Now, her team can serve as an example to others.

"Our team has to do the right things to win," she said. "To rebound, we have to box out; to run our offense, we have to set screens. We have to be strong fundamentally, and this has made me a better teacher."

Two factors that she thinks come into play during the championship are defense and rebounding.

"Tennessee rebounds; Louisiana Tech rebounds," VanDerVeer said. "They get second and third shots, and their opponents don't."

Confidence and experience are other important factors.

In last year's regional final, "We were working to get in that game," she said. "Louisiana Tech was working to win it."

A strong suit of the Cardinal is leadership. Players have accepted different roles to make the team better.

"We have a very balanced team, and everyone makes sacrifices for the team goal," she said. "That might be the most important point."

Nevada-Las Vegas coach Jim Bolla points to last year's championship experience as one of the reasons for his team's success this year.

The Rebels had to travel to Colorado, where they took on the Lady Buffs in front of 11,000 fans. The Rebels came away with an 84-74 victory. In the regional semifinal at Austin, Texas, Nevada-Las Vegas continued to play well but lost to Texas, 88-77.

After that loss, the eight returning players made a commitment to improve over the off-season; all made good on that promise.

"It was a learning experience that was going to make us a better team this year, and I think it did," Bolla said.

Bolla believes tournament success depends on healthy players playing well with a little luck thrown in.

One other ingredient sets the good teams apart, he added. "Good teams are capable of making adjustments on the fly without missing a beat."

Event: Division I men's basketball.

Field: The field consists of 64 teams.

Automatic qualification: Association of Mid-Century Universities, Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Sky Conference, Big Ten Conference, Big West Conference, Colonial Athletic Association, East Coast Conference, Ivy Group, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, Midwestern Collegiate Conference, Missouri Valley Conference, North Atlantic Conference, Northeast Conference, Ohio Valley Conference, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southern Conference, Southland Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Southwestern Athletic Conference, Sun Belt Conference, Trans America Athletic Conference, West Coast Conference, Western Athletic Conference.

Defending champion: Michigan.

Schedule: First-round games will be played March 15 and 16, and second-round games will be played March 17 and 18. Regionals will be held March 23, 24, 25 and 26. The Final Four will be March 31 and April 2 at McNichols Arena in Denver.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear March 21 and March 28. Championship results will be published April 4.

Contenders: Missouri, Kansas, Duke, Nevada-Las Vegas, Georgetown, Michigan.

Championship notes: The decade of the 1980s saw 10 different champions... The last team to win consecutive titles was UCLA, which won seven straight (1967 through 1973)... The championship game has gone to extra periods only five times in 51 years, including last year's final... For three straight years, two teams in the Final Four have been from the same conference.

Championship Profile

Event: Division I women's basketball.

Field: Forty-eight teams will compete for the championship.

Automatic qualification: American South Athletic Conference, Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Sky Conference, Big Ten Conference, Big West Conference, Colonial Athletic Association, Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, High Country Athletic Conference, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Ohio Valley Conference, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southern Conference, Southland Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Sun Belt Conference.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear March 21 and March 28. Championship results will be published April 4.

Contenders: Louisiana Tech, Stanford, Tennessee, Washington, Nevada-Las Vegas.

Notes: Louisiana Tech or Tennessee could become the first team to win three championships... The Lady Techsters and Lady Vols have reached the Women's Final Four six times... Tennessee is looking for a fifth straight trip to the semifinals... Old Dominion and Texas played on their home courts in semifinal games in 1983 and 1987, respectively. Neither reached the title game... Southern California won the title in Los Angeles in 1984, but the games were at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion... Southern Cal is the only team to win back-to-back titles (1983 and 1984)... Venus Lacy of Louisiana Tech was a member of the 1989 all-tournament team.

Panthers on the hunt for historic sixth II hoop crown

Kentucky Wesleyan's Panthers could make some history in this year's Division II Men's Basketball Championship. They will be on the prowl for a sixth title, more than any other team has accumulated.

Currently, Kentucky Wesleyan is tied with Evansville, which now competes in Division I, with five championships. In fact, UCLA is the only men's basketball team in any division to win more than five titles. Indiana, Kentucky and North Park, which was selected to compete in the Division III championship again this year, also have won five championships.

Kentucky Wesleyan's success in the tournament dates back to the first championship in 1957. The Panthers played in the first title game but lost to Wheaton (Illinois), 89-65. They took their first title in 1966 and won championships in 1968 and 1969. Evansville is the only other team to win consecutive championships.

In 1973, the Panthers won a 78-76 decision over Tennessee State in overtime, the last time the championship game has gone to an extra period. They won their last title in 1987, under current coach Wayne Chapman.

Chapman credits some of the program's long-time success to great support from the city of Owensboro, Kentucky, and the city's location.

If Chapman decides to leave Kentucky to look for talent, he can hop across the northern border to Illinois, Indiana or Ohio. He does not have to do that often, however. This year, eight of his 12 players are from the home state.

Chapman lists talent, experience and consistency as common denominators among teams that are successful at tournament time.

"It's important that you've been there even if you haven't been successful," he said about championship play. "You have to know what it's like to play in that environment for all the marbles."

Chapman could have been describing this year's Panther squad, particularly if he added depth and balance to his list. Through 26 games, three players were scoring in double figures and three more were averaging more than nine points. Junior Corey Crowder leads the team with an 18.4 average and also is the top rebounder with a 7.5 average.

Kentucky Wesleyan's success this year truly has been a team effort. Even the 11th man on the squad averages 10 minutes of playing time (veteran Ty Stauffer has been out all year with an injury). Only four players average more than 20 minutes. Another four average between 17 and 19 minutes.

The quest for the championship begins in regional competition, and winning the regional is no easy task. In the five championships that Kentucky Wesleyan has won, the regional championship game has been decided by 10 points or less. In 1987, the Panthers had their slim-

"We have to concentrate on our regional," Chapman said. "If you look past the regional, you are in trouble."

Stanford's Janet Evans expected to make a splash

During the 1980s, several freshmen—including butterfly specialist Mary T. Meagher, diver Megan Neyer and sprint freestyler Jenna Johnson—made their presence felt with victories at the Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships.

It's doubtful, however, that any of those swimmers was greeted with the anticipation that awaits 18-year-old Janet Evans of Stanford this year.

Evans enters her first Division I meet as the winner of three gold medals at the 1988 Summer Olympics and as the holder of three world and three American swimming records.

Hers is the most recognizable face in American swimming today, and she certainly will be noticed in NCAA competition as the favorite in three events—the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyles (her 1,650-yard time of 15:44.98 is an American best) and the 400-meter individual medley.

In Evans' wake, Stanford is favored to win its second straight Division I team title and third overall.

The freshman will enjoy lots of experienced support. For instance, for all the attention that Evans generates, it's still tough to overlook Cardinal teammate Michelle Grigione, who won the 400-yard individual medley last year and is the only one of last year's 10 top individual scorers to return.

And Evans isn't Stanford's only world-class freshman. Another 1988 Olympian, Janel Jorgensen, will duel with Grigione for top honors in the 200-yard butterfly and should also score in the freestyles.

By winning, Stanford will give coach Richard Quick his seventh straight career title—his first five came at Texas—and the Cardinal has the extra incentive of doing so in its chief rival's home pool.

But if Texas chooses to play the rude host, it will use the opening

Janet Evans, Olympic gold medal winner, boosts Stanford's hopes for another title day's competition in the 50-yard freestyle as the jumping-off point. There, defending champion and American record-holder Leigh Ann Fetter (another 1988 Olympian) is the likely student.

Fetter, who also won last year's 100-yard freestyle, gives the Longhorns a slight advantage over Stanford in the sprint events. But the Longhorns won few other events in a February 3 dual meet at Stanford, losing 93-47.

Only one active coach besides Quick—Florida's Randy Reese—has been a winner at the women's meet (in 1982), but Reese's ninth appearance at the championships is scheduled to be his last.

Reese announced in February that he will give up his duties as the Lady Gators' coach to concentrate on coaching Florida's men's team. Armed with the incentive to give their coach a going-away present, as well as with considerable talent, the Lady Gators also could make a strong run at unseating Stanford.

Florida is led by Julie Gorman, winner of two straight 200-yard butterfly titles; sophomore Kristen Linehan, who swept the backstroke events last year, and freshman Whitney Hedgepeth (yet another Olympian), who with her victory in the 500 freestyle during the 1987 U.S. Swimming Short Course Nationals became the last American to beat Evans in one of her specialty events.

Stanford's chief Pacific-10 Conference rival, California, rounds out the list of challengers for the team title. The Golden Bears' top swimmers are junior Sarah Anderson and freshman Brooke Hanley.

Championships Profile

Event: Division I women's swimming and diving.

Field: The field will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Stanford ended Texas' string of five straight team titles, defeating the Longhorns by 63½ points last year.

Schedule: Texas will be host for the ninth annual championships March 15 through 17.

The NCAA News coverage: Results from the championships will appear in the March 21 issue of the News.

Contenders: Stanford, Texas, Florida, California.

Championships notes: Stanford coach Richard Quick led Texas to consecutive titles from 1984 to 1988 before moving west and leading the Cardinal to victory last season. Florida is the only other team to win a title, in 1982. Stanford won in 1983. Only two women have won a Division I individual event four times—Florida's Megan Neyer won both the one- and three-meter diving events in 1982, 1983, 1984 and 1986, and California's Mary T. Meagher was the 200-yard butterfly titlist in 1983, 1985, 1986 and 1987. Florida women have won 60 individual titles in the championships, followed by Texas with 37 and Stanford with 30. Seven of the Lady Gators' victories came last year when the team finished third.

Kenyon's dominance in III men's swimming could end in '90

It's been nine years since a team has come within 50 points of knocking Kenyon from its perch atop the standings at the Division III Men's Swimming and Diving Championships and five years since an opponent has been within 100 points of beating the Lords.

That's just another way of describing the way in which Kenyon—winner of 10 straight team titles—has dominated the meet since 1980.

Still, even after qualifying 22 swimmers for this year's meet, the Lords aren't a shoo-in to make Jim Steen the only coach in any NCAA sport or division to claim 11 straight team titles.

In fact, UC San Diego—last year's runner-up—is a threat to beat Kenyon.

Kenyon scored a record 630½ points at last year's championships and finished 143½ points ahead of the Tritons, but UC San Diego returns this year with what appears to be an improved team.

Although Kenyon lost several seniors from last year's team, including 100-yard backstroke champion Alan Schmidt, the Lords have filled the gaps. They boast at least three national qualifiers in each of seven events.

Championships veterans Jon Howell, the defending 50-yard freestyle titlist, and Nate Llerandi, this year's favorite in the 200-yard breaststroke, lead a Kenyon contingent that could score heavily in the sprint freestyle, individual medley and breaststroke events.

Howell should get help in the freestyles from freshman Brian Dowdell and sophomore Kris Osborn, while Michigan transfer Doug Mott should contribute in the breaststroke.

Although UC San Diego may not be able to match Kenyon; in sheer numbers, the Tritons have several swimmers who can score in a variety of events. Shannon Smith is a contender in the individual medleys who also swims freestyle, while Jason Vance will be a challenger in the 50-yard freestyle and the backstrokes. Another potential champion is Greg Goodrich, who was runner-up to Kenyon's Schmidt in last year's 100-yard backstroke.

UC San Diego also has a significant scoring tandem in the distance freestyles, where Brad Thomas and Dave Sacco could duel each other for the titles.

No other teams appear to have enough talent to challenge Kenyon and UC San Diego at the championships, but several squads could qualify as "the best of the rest."

One is the host, Wheaton (Illinois), led by Rob Emary, who won the 200-yard butterfly two years ago and also is strong in freestyles.

Another is Amherst, which pins its hopes on 1989 triple-winner Thomas Donley. He will defend titles in the 100- and 200-yard freestyles and the 200-yard individual medley.

Championships Profile

Event: Division III men's swimming and diving.

Field: The field will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Kenyon's victory last year gave the Lords an unprecedented 10th straight team title.

Schedule: The 16th annual championships will be March 15 through 17 at Schroeder Swim Center in Brown Deer, Wisconsin. Wheaton College (Illinois) will be the host.

The NCAA News coverage: Results from the championships will appear in the March 21 issue of the News.

Contenders: UC San Diego, Kenyon, Wheaton (Illinois), Amherst.

Championships notes: Kenyon's smallest margin of victory during its 10-year winning streak was 47 points over Johns Hopkins in 1981. The Lords' biggest margin was 260½ points over Claremont-Mudd-Scripps in 1984. Lords coach Jim Steen also has coached the Kenyon women to six straight Division III swimming titles. The only other teams to win Division III men's titles are Cal State Chico (1975), St. Lawrence (1976) and Johns Hopkins (1977, 1978 and 1979).

Another Kenyon victory celebration is not a sure thing

Tournament bid good medicine for Seawolf headaches

Has any team in college ice hockey had to persevere through more headaches this season than Alaska-Anchorage?

A volcano named Mt. Redoubt? Scheduling difficulties? No conference affiliation? Sixteen-hour road trips? Could all of this be an omen of impending doom?

Not for the Seawolves.

Nestled 1,500 miles northeast of Seattle, the city of Anchorage, Alaska, is home to the hottest Division I independent ice hockey team in the country. The Seawolves (20-8-2 overall, 16-8-2 against NCAA competition) are favored to receive the lone independent bid to the 1990 championship.

They have beaten Maine twice at home and notched road victories over Ohio State and Minnesota, last year's Division I runner-up. The win at Minnesota was "the biggest road victory in the history of our program," said coach Kelvin Christiansen, better known as "Brush."

So why all of the scheduling problems, especially when Alaska-Anchorage pays transportation costs for athletics opponents for all nine NCAA sports it sponsors?

Sports information director Tim McDiffett responded succinctly: "Unfortunately, Anchorage does not get any closer (to the lower 48 states) as the years go by."

The Seawolves' last conference affiliation was with the Great West Hockey Conference, but that collapsed in 1986 when Northern Arizona lost the use of its rink after a plumbing problem. One year later, U.S. International canned its program and with it any hopes of guaranteed competition the Seawolves might have had.

Since then, athletics director Ron Petro has applied without success for membership in both the Western Collegiate Hockey and Central Collegiate Hockey Associations.

Last October, Petro met with the commissioners of the four Division I ice hockey conferences in Boston and presented a scheduling plan that would benefit not only Alaska-Anchorage and rival Alaska-Fairbanks, but also the four conferences.

"We have proposed that beginning in 1991-92, each of the four conferences set aside one weekend as an 'Alaska Weekend,' whereby two teams from each conference would play in Alaska (one team would play a two-game series in Anchorage, the other in Fairbanks). Each conference then would set aside one weekend for (Anchorage and Fairbanks) to play two of their teams."

Petro admitted that while Alaska cannot rival Hawaii (which also offers transportation costs for home competition), it does have a certain educational value.

Added Petro, "It would be a great experience for the kids. It might be the only time in their lives that they get a chance to see Alaska."

The four conferences have not yet decided whether to accept the proposal.

From a budget standpoint, Petro estimated that it costs the athletics department approximately $80,000 for air fare for the men's ice hockey team. This season, the team has traveled approximately 55,000 air miles, or the equivalent of flying from Los Angeles to New York 18 times. Likewise, it costs at least that much to fly all of the Seawolves' opponents to Anchorage.

The saving grace is the support the Seawolves receive from their fans. Attendance has averaged close to 5,000 per game for 17 home dates, including 10 crowds over 5,000. That computes to $400,000 in gate receipts, which in turn pays for 20 full grants-in-aid that Christiansen can offer to recruits.

Because of Mt. Redoubt, Alaska-Anchorage had to cancel its four-team Nissan/Jeep Classic; after 25 silent years, the volcano decided to blow its top. The ash that spewed up to 40,000 feet grounded air traffic and five institutions' athletics teams for three days during the holidays. It also cost the Wolves two quality Division I contests, not to mention gate receipts.

However, Petro said that, all things considered, "Things are happening in a positive way. Sullivan Arena (200 feet by 100 feet; 6,250 seating capacity) in a social sense is the place to be Friday and Saturday nights."

"We still have to use our public relations skills to let people know it is not hard to get to Anchorage, that we have one of the most beautiful facilities in the country and great fans that enjoy ice hockey."

Said Christiansen, "We want nothing more than to get in a conference—any conference. Someone has to be the doormat for a while, and we could handle that. But I guarantee we would not be the doormat for long."

"The only way to know is to let us in a conference."

Championship Profile

Event: Division I men's ice hockey.

Automatic qualification: Central Collegiate Hockey Association, Eastern College Athletic Conference, Hockey East, Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

Defending champion: Ed Kray scored at the 4:16 mark of overtime and freshman Chuckie Hughes stopped 33 shots as Harvard defeated Minnesota, 4-3, for the Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship in St. Paul, Minnesota.

Schedule: First-round games are set for March 16-18 and will be played at on-campus sites. Also to be played on campus are the quarterfinals, March 23-25. The semifinals and championship will be played March 30 and April 1 at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit, Michigan.

Contenders: Boston College, Colgate, Lake Superior State, Maine, Michigan State, North Dakota, Wisconsin.

Championship notes: Teams from 32 institutions have played in the championship... Only twice (1968 and 1972) has the championship featured a shut-out... Colorado Springs was the site of the first 10 championship games... Denver owns the largest margin of victory in a title game (10 goals). The Pioneers defeated St. Lawrence, 12-2, in 1961... Minnesota has won 28 games in championship competition—more than any Division I institution... Michigan State set a championship record for goals in a tournament by scoring 25 goals in five games.

Tim Cohane wanted to demonstrate how easy it is to put a basketball through the hoop, so he brought a basketball rim into the locker room prior to a recent game against Stony Brook. He then proceeded to step through the hoop himself and allowed his biggest player, Brian Stackpole (6-6, 220), to step through the rim. Then Cohane asked his players, many of whom had been in shooting slumps, "If Brian and I can step through the rim, why is it so hard to put a ball through?" The demonstration backfired, however, as the Mariners had their worst shooting game of the year, hitting only 29 of 79 shots (36.7 percent). (Joe DiBari, Merchant Marine SID)

Prior to St. Mary's (Indiana) women's game with Bethel (Minnesota) February 24, senior guard Julie Radke joined sister Tammye (1984-88) as the only players in school history to have their numbers retired. Julie broke the school scoring record held by Tammye with two games remaining and is among the top Division III three-point shooters. (Ken Fox, South Bend Tribune sports writer)

Tennessee Tech's women's basketball program has had only 13 players score more than 1,000 career points during the program's history, and this year's squad has three of those in senior Melinda Clayton (1,633) and juniors Angela Moorehead (1,121) and Ranay Adams (1,008). (Rob Schabert, Tennessee Tech SID)

Salisbury State led Division III scoring with 104.5 points per game and had no player average 20 or more points per game. The Seagulls eclipsed the 100-point mark in 15 of its 27 games (14-13 record) and scored at least 90 points in 22 of the 27 contests. (G. Paul Ohanian, Salisbury State SID)

Oberlin junior Ann Gilbert finished the season with a scoring average of 31.1 points per game, becoming only the third woman in Division III history to average over 30 points. She joins Buena Vista's Jeannie Demers (1985, 1986, 1987) and Pine Manor's Catie Cleary (1988). (Scott Wargo, Oberlin SID)

An 84-46 victory over Southern-Baton Rouge February 22 gave Nicholls State's women's team its first-ever winning season in 16 years of basketball. Nicholls State closed the season with a 13-12 record. (Jan Winslow, Nicholls State sports information assistant)

Hartwick had a lead of 198 steals over its opponents through February 19. The Warriors had stolen the ball 343 times, while opponents had managed just 145 steals. Hartwick was averaging 8.3 steals a game more than its opponents. (Robert McKinney, Hartwick SID)

Holiday Bowl pays Penn State, BYU $1 million

For the first time, the Sea World Holiday Bowl has paid more than $1 million to teams participating in the game.

The bowl paid $1,009,038 each—a total of $2,018,076—to 1989 contestants Brigham Young University, champion of the Western Athletic Conference, and Pennsylvania State University. Penn State defeated Brigham Young, 50-39, in the 12th annual game December 29.

"We guaranteed early last year that each team would take home at least $1 million," said Bruce Moore, president of the 1989 Sea World Holiday Bowl, who announced the payments February 28. "Presenting a $1 million check to each of these outstanding institutions is a great thrill and a major accomplishment. "For the fourth consecutive year, the Holiday Bowl was a complete sellout (61,113), and each ticket sale helped put us over that magic seven-digit figure," he said.

The bowl's previous high pay-out was $907,613 to each of the contestants in the 1988 game—the University of Wyoming and Oklahoma State University.

NCAA Record

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

J. Barton Luedeke named president at Rider, effective this summer. He is the school's vice-president for academic affairs and provost... David W. Ellis, president at Lafayette, named president of the Boston Museum of Science... James H. Zumberge announced his retirement as president at Southern California, effective upon the selection of a successor... Phillip A. Sharp has withdrawn as the nominee for the presidency at MIT.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

G. Rankin Cooter resigned at Georgia State to return to the school's education faculty. He served as AD for six years... Richard A. Costello announced his retirement after 37 years as AD at Southern Maine, effective September 1. Costello, who also serves as commissioner of the Little East Conference, has coached baseball, men's and women's basketball, and men's soccer during his tenure at the school.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Robert A. Latour announced his retirement as senior associate AD at Bucknell, effective at the end of the school year. Latour also was the school's swimming coach from 1956 to 1968 and led his 1964 squad to Bucknell's only NCAA team title, and he was athletics director from 1968 to 1978. He has served on the NCAA Division II Football, Television and Academic Requirements Committees.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Mark Davy will step down later this spring as assistant men's AD for external operations at Minnesota. He plans to start his own fund-raising consulting firm.

COACHES

Baseball—John Tully named at Eureka, where he also will be head football coach. He previously was a football assistant at Southern Oregon State.

Men's basketball—Mike Martin dismissed after two seasons at Stephen F. Austin, where his teams compiled a 12-40 record. Assistant coach Andrew Prince is coaching the team through the remainder of the season... Jim Tribbett resigned after four years at Greensboro, where his teams were 51-55, including a 15-11 record this season... Colorado announced it will not renew the contract of Tom Miller, whose teams are 33-79 through four seasons as the Buffaloes enter the Big Eight Conference tournament. Miller previously coached at Cornell for six years, compiling a 71-85 record.

Men's basketball assistants—Lee Hood and Mike Elbe resigned at North Carolina-Wilmington, where Hood has served five seasons and Elbe for two seasons.

Women's basketball—Janet Gabriel resigned after two years at Missouri Southern State, where her teams were 26-30. She also has been an assistant at Pittsburgh and Oklahoma.

Football—Mike Rasmussen promoted from offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at St. Mary's (California). Rasmussen, a former all-Big Ten Conference quarterback at Michigan State who also has served as quarterbacks and receivers coach at California, replaces Craig Rundle, who left St. Mary's after four seasons to become head coach at Colorado College. During his tenure with the Gaels, Rundle compiled a 29-12 mark, including a 10-0 record in 1988... Karl Miran named at Swarthmore after five years on the staff at Amherst, where he was offensive coordinator... Randy Ball promoted from assistant head coach and offensive coordinator/line coach at Western Illinois, where he has been on the staff since 1983. He also has coached at Missouri Western State, Illinois State and Northeast Missouri State... John Tully named at Eureka, where he also will be head baseball coach. He previously was defensive coordinator at Southern Oregon State, where he has been on the staff since 1984... Chris Rippon stepped down after three years as head coach at Western Connecticut State to become defensive coordinator at Boston U. Rippon, who also was an assistant at Western Connecticut State for four years, coached his teams to a 6-22-1 record.

Football assistants—Don Golacinski named offensive coordinator at Morningside, where he also will be promotions director. He has been on the staff at Delaware State for six years, serving most recently as offensive line coach and recruiting coordinator... Larry Kueck selected as offensive coordinator at Southern Methodist. Kueck, who recently joined the New Mexico State staff, was at Lamar before that school discontinued its program... Chuck Reedy appointed offensive coordinator at Baylor, which also hired former Bears player Scott Smith as secondary coach. Reedy, who has been on the Clemson staff for 12 years, replaces F. A. Dry, who was reassigned to coach the offensive line. Smith, previously running backs coach at Southern Methodist, replaces Rick Smith, who joined the staff at Kentucky. Baylor also announced that Wade Turner has left the football staff to become the school's special events and facilities director... Skip Holtz named wide receivers coach at Notre Dame, where he will serve under his father, Lou Holtz. The younger Holtz served in a similar position at Colorado State last season... Andy Christoff hired as defensive backs coach at UCLA after serving on the staff at Tennessee. Also, UCLA announced the departure of offensive coordinator Greg Robinson, who was named defensive line coach by the New York Jets.

Western Illinois named Randy Ball head football coach

In addition, Delaware State announced it will not renew the contract of Sean Gibson, citing philosophical differences... Danny Fairbanks, LeRoy O'Neill and Stanford Ellsworth appointed at Shippensburg. Fairbanks will coach the secondary after serving at Samford, O'Neill will be defensive line coach after a stint at Wesley and Ellsworth will coach linebackers after serving on the staff at Arizona Western College... Arnold Jeter selected as associate head coach at Rutgers, which also hired former Marshall and Kansas State head coach Stan Parrish as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach. Jeter previously was defensive line coach at Arizona and is a former head coach at Delaware State. Parrish compiled a 57-41-3 record through 10 seasons as a head coach... Ricky Cruze promoted from a part-time to a full-time position at Virginia Military, his alma mater, where he will coach defensive linemen. He joined the VMI staff last year... Duane Akina promoted from defensive backfield coach to associate head coach at Arizona, where he has been on the staff for three years. Also, Arizona selected graduate assistant coach Bill Morgan to serve as recruiting coordinator, replacing Mike Flores, who will take on full-time coaching duties for the Wildcats.

Men's soccer—Bill Coulthart resigned after 20 seasons at Jacksonville, where his teams posted a 189-212-38 record. Coulthart, a former chair of the NCAA Men's Soccer Committee, will remain at the school as a member of the physical education faculty.

Men's and women's swimming and diving—Doug Naylor named men's and women's coach at Northeastern Illinois, where he also will be aquatics director. He has been head men's coach for three years at St. Cloud State, where his teams compiled a 17-6 dual-meet record... Margo Mahoney resigned after three years as women's coach at Eastern Michigan, citing personal reasons.

Women's track and field assistant—Wendy Granum joined the staff at North Dakota State. She was a standout track athlete at Moorhead State.

Women's volleyball—Shannon Reynolds promoted from part-time to full-time head coach at Florida Atlantic, where she has coached since the program was started in 1987. Reynolds, whose teams have posted a 59-46 record, also will be given fund-raising duties at the school.

STAFF

Development director—Don Brummer selected at Nebraska-Omaha. He recently retired as a manager at U.S. West Communications.

Marketing and promotions director—Rich Ripley appointed at Old Dominion. He is a former director of operations for the Sunkist Fiesta Bowl who also has served as events coordinator and ticket sales assistant at Arizona State.

Promotions director—Don Golacinski named at Morningside, where he also will assist with football.

Sports information director—Dave Hilbert appointed at Florida Atlantic, where he has been interim SID since August 1989.

Assistant trainer—Brad Brush selected as men's assistant trainer at Southern Illinois, where he has been a temporary employee. He replaces Ryan Kling.

NOTABLES

Dianne Jones, women's athletics director and head women's basketball coach at Wisconsin-Whitewater, received the Women's Sports Foundation Coaches Award, which recognizes accomplishments and dedication to sports at the grassroots level... Indiana's Tom Shoji, Minnesota's Stephanie Schleuder, North Carolina's Peggy Bradley-Doppes and UC Riverside's Sue Gozansky selected as head coaches for the women's volleyball teams at this summer's U.S. Olympic Festival... Bob Cousy, former Holy Cross all-America and Boston Celtics all-star player, resigned as president of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame, citing a heavy personal schedule.

DEATHS

Hank Gathers, a senior basketball player at Loyola Marymount who led Division I men in scoring and rebounding during the 1988-89 season, collapsed during a West Coast Conference tournament game March 4 vs. Portland and died shortly after. He was 23. The cause of death was unknown, although it was the second time this season that Gathers had collapsed on the court during a game. Gathers and Wichita State's Xavier McDaniel are the only Division I players to lead the nation in scoring and rebounding in the same year... Tony Penny, a former basketball player at Central Connecticut State, collapsed and died during a basketball game February 27 in Manchester, England. He was 23. Penny was diagnosed in 1986 as having an enlarged heart with a deformed left ventricle... Joseph F. "Big Joe" Dudzick, a Canisius basketball player during the 1930s who later served on the Buffalo (New York) Common Council, died February 24 in Buffalo. He was 75. He was the father of Paul Dudzick, men's athletics director at Stony Brook... Lew Erber, a football tailback at Montclair State during the 1950s who also served as an assistant coach at Iowa State, San Diego State and California, died February 6 in La Mesa, California, following a long illness. Erber, who also was an assistant with several National Football League teams, was 55.

Andrew J. Puplis, a Notre Dame quarterback during the 1930s who also played one season for the professional Chicago Cardinals, died January 25 in Maywood, Illinois, at age 74. He was a longtime Chicago high school teacher and football coach... James L. "Casey" Russell, co-captain of the 1934 Temple football team that played in the 1935 Sugar Bowl and a former Philadelphia Eagles player, died January 21 in Butler, Pennsylvania. He was 81... Marion G. McDonald, who coached baseball and men's basketball at Washburn from 1951 to 1961, died January 18 in Topeka, Kansas. He was 75. He also coached at Western Carolina and Fort Hays State... Donald B. Lourie, an all-America quarterback at Princeton during the 1920s who went on to become chairman of the board of the Quaker Oats Company, died January 15 in Longwood, Florida. He was 91... Fred W. Munde, who lettered three times as a football center at Notre Dame during the 1930s and also played for the Chicago Bears, died January 15 in suburban Chicago. He was 76.

Booklet on aid will be mailed

Athletics directors and directors of financial aid at NCAA member institutions soon will be receiving copies of the NCAA Guide to Financial Aid, 1990-91.

"Those receiving the guide should be aware that it does include changes resulting from actions taken by the 1990 Convention," said Michael S. McNeely, NCAA compliance representative. "The guide has been designed to supplement, not replace, the NCAA Manual."

Publication of the guide, which will be mailed to ADs and financial aid directors March 13, was authorized by the NCAA Council upon the recommendation of the Association's Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism. The book was developed in conjunction with the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (NASFAA) and the American Institutes for Research.

"What athletics directors and financial aid officers will receive is the result of 16 months of work," McNeely said.

Additional copies of the guide are available by contacting the NCAA publishing department at the national office (913/339-1906).

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

Approved the 1990-91 certification of compliance forms, as authorized by the Council, with the understanding that the form and the covering memorandum would be revised to include a statement encouraging institutions to provide the requested data regarding race and sex of institutional personnel.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Reviewed recommended changes in the football playing rules per Bylaw 21.3.4 and took these actions:

(1) Remanded to the Football Rules Committee its recommendation regarding a reduction in the width of goal-post uprights and directed that committee to study the issue further in regard to costs to institutions, goal-post warranty ramifications, coaches' opinions of the change, and kicking-accuracy data in all NCAA football-playing divisions and subdivisions.

(2) Noted that the Executive Committee in 1989 had denied the Football Rules Committee's recommendations regarding the use of "split" officiating crews and mandating use of a 25-second clock; declined to act on resubmitted recommendations in that regard, instead placing them on the agenda for the May meeting of the Executive Committee.

b. Approved a recommendation by the Men's and Women's Rifle Committee that the field for the 1990 Men's and Women's Rifle Championships be expanded from 56 participants to 58 inasmuch as the committee had granted an appeal to permit two competitors from a member institution to participate in the championships; noted that the appeal was based, in part, on the fact that the institution had received erroneous information from the national office; specified that approval of this recommendation is limited to this circumstance and is not to be considered a precedent.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1(c) to permit student-athletes from two member institutions to participate in tryouts or competition involving national teams in cross country and volleyball.

(2) Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1(d) and 14.8.6.2(b) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in competition as part of the 1990 Cowboy State Games (Wyoming).

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaw

Conference No. 3
March 1, 1990

14.8.6.2(c) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in international competition in basketball.

(4) Granted a waiver of the transfer residence requirement per Bylaw 14.9.2.2(a) to permit a student-athlete from the University of South Carolina, Columbia, to transfer for health-related reasons and be immediately eligible.

(5) Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.13 as follows:

(a) Pennsylvania State University, to provide expenses to the captains of its football team to travel to an off-campus site to receive a regional award recognizing the institution's football team; also, to send flowers to the funeral of a student-athlete's grandmother.

(b) Kansas State University, to provide expenses to a student-athlete to attend his grandfather's funeral.

(c) University of Wyoming, to provide expenses to a student-athlete to attend his mother's funeral.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee:

(1) Granted waivers for championships eligibility per Bylaw 31.2.1.3 to New York Institute of Technology and Southwest Missouri State University, which failed to pay dues and to submit the institutional sports sponsorship form, respectively, by the specified deadline.

(2) Confirmed the various exceptions to the Association's per diem policy for championships participants that have been in place for several years, noting that such approval was needed for the record (College World Series, Divisions II and III baseball, Divisions II and III men's basketball, Division III women's basketball, all football championships, and Division I men's tennis).

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q How does the NCAA define faculty athletics representative?

A According to NCAA Constitution 4.02.1, a faculty athletics representative is a member of an institution's faculty or administrative staff who is designated by the institution's chief executive officer or other appropriate entity to represent the institution and its faculty in the institution's relationships with the NCAA and its conference(s), if any.

Schultz on panel at forum on black athletes

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz will participate in the second annual Black Athletes in America Forum, scheduled April 5-6 at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

Segments of the 1990 forum, called "Shaping the View," will include The Black Female Athlete, The Role of the Media, Black Athletes and Drugs, The College Situation, and Life After Sports.

Joining Schultz as participants will be Gene Upshaw, executive director of the National Football League Players Association; Rick Telander of Sports Illustrated; Carolyn White of USA Today; former Georgetown University student-athlete Fred Brown; Sanya Tyler, Howard women's basketball coach, and others.

The forum will be coproduced by Charles S. Farrell, special-projects coordinator for the Center for the Study of Sport in Society at Northeastern University and president of Sports Perspectives International, an athletes-advocacy organization, and Lee A. McElroy, athletics director at the University of California, Sacramento.

More information on the forum is available from Farrell (telephone 617/437-5818), McElroy (916/278-6481) or Howard sports information director Ed Hill (202/636-7184).

Big Ten places Michigan baseball on probation for 40 rules violations

The University of Michigan baseball program has been placed on two years' probation by the Big Ten Conference as a result of a joint Big Ten and Michigan investigation that uncovered more than 40 violations of conference and NCAA rules over a six-year period. The probation includes a prohibition on postseason competition and live television appearances.

Among the violations cited were payments of excessive compensation and extra benefits to players from then head coach Bud Middaugh totaling at least $51,762, violations of NCAA and Big Ten recruiting legislation and grant-in-aid limitations, violation of Big Ten travel-squad limitations, and the failure on the part of the athletics department to implement proper systems and controls over the baseball program.

"The findings include serious violations that warrant substantial penalties," said Robert A. Stein, a dean and faculty athletics representative at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, and chair of the conference compliance committee. "Because of the outstanding cooperation by the University of Michigan in investigating these violations and instituting a number of self-imposed penalties, the compliance committee has reduced the penalties that would otherwise have been imposed."

Stein said the probation was reduced from three years to two years

Suggestions offered on fund sharing

The NCAA Communications Committee has developed four suggestions for the distribution of revenue from the Association's new $1 billion television contract.

Committee members indicated they would favor use of the funds to:

- Endow basketball scholarships in Division I.
- Increase Divisions II and III championships block grants.
- Provide catastrophic insurance coverage for all sports.
- Increase remuneration to institutions that host NCAA postseason events.

In other business, the committee voted to submit to the NCAA Council a recommendation that legislation be developed for the 1991 NCAA Convention to eliminate recruiting brochures from the list of approved materials that Division I institutions can send to prospective student-athletes.

A similar recommendation was sent to the Council last year, but the Division I Steering Committee chose not to sponsor the appropriate legislation. Similar legislation was sponsored by Division II Steering Committee and adopted by the 1990 Convention.

The committee also voted to recommend to the national office staff that promotional items for NCAA championships events be distributed to host sites at least six months in advance whenever possible.

Committee members expressed concern over coaches' use of mobile telephones to contact prospects from the team bench during postseason events. The committee will discuss this issue at its next meeting, and recommendations regarding possible legislation to regulate the practice may be developed.

a result of Michigan's cooperation.

Michigan's self-imposed penalties include:

- The university accepted the resignation of Middaugh.
- The university eliminated an assistant's position from the baseball coaching staff.
- The university obtained repayment of all excessive financial assistance received by the student-athletes in the form of charitable donations.
- The university will not award initial athletics grants-in-aid for the 1990-91 academic year.
- The university prohibited off-campus recruiting by any member of the baseball coaching staff through August 31, 1990.
- The university eliminated all expense-paid recruiting visits for prospective student-athletes during the 1989-90 academic year.

• The university will restrict the total amount of athletically related financial assistance awarded to student-athletes as follows: 1. Limit the total amount of athletically related financial aid to 1991-92 squad members to 10 full grants-in-aid (a reduction of three grants or 23 percent). 2. Limit the total amount of athletically related financial aid to 1992-93 squad members to 11 full grants-in-aid (a reduction of two grants or 15 percent).

• The university will conduct a recertification program for its current athletics policies and practices to ensure compliance with all NCAA and Big Ten regulations.

Division II seeks bigger play-off

Expansion of the Division II Women's Volleyball Championship bracket from 20 to 24 teams will be among the recommendations made to the NCAA Executive Committee as a result of the February 20-23 meeting of the Division II Women's Volleyball Committee in Kansas City, Missouri.

Also recommended are increases in officials fees for both regional and final games.

The committee also voted to:

- Expand selection of the all-tournament team at the championship finals to 12 players. Six players had been named to previous all-tournament teams.

- Increase from biweekly to weekly the frequency of the Division II women's volleyball poll.

- Expand from three to six members the advisory committee from the South Central region.

Men's basketball program at Maryland placed on probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has rendered the men's basketball team at the University of Maryland, College Park, ineligible for postseason play after the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons as part of a three-year probation for violations of NCAA rules. The team also will not be permitted to appear on any live telecast during the 1990-91 season.

In addition, because some ineligible student-athletes represented the university during the 1988 National Collegiate Division I Men's Basketball Championship, the record of the university's participation in that tournament shall be vacated. The institution also will be required to return more than $400,000 it earned from that participation.

The committee cited the provision of improper benefits to prospective and enrolled student-athletes and the unethical conduct of former members of the coaching staff who "knowingly engaged in activities that constituted violations of NCAA legislation." The committee also cited the university's "failure to meet the principles of institutional control and rules compliance, which are among the fundamental principles of the Association and its members."

Because the committee determined that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation, it normally would be required by the membership to impose at least the following penalties, which are among the minimum penalties for such violations: a two-year probationary period, loss of postseason competition and live television appearances for at least one year, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year, and the elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year. The membership, though, has given the committee the authority to impose lesser penalties if the committee determines that the case is "unique."

The committee said that this case was unique—and, therefore, imposed less than the prescribed minimum penalties—for two reasons. First, the University of Maryland conducted a thorough investigation of its men's basketball program, fully cooperated with the NCAA investigation and recommended substantial penalties at the committee hearing. Secondly, the members of the athletics department staff who were found to have violated the principles of ethical conduct no longer are employed by the university.

Because of these factors, the committee did not prohibit the university from providing expense-paid official visits to prospective student-athletes, nor did it prohibit off-campus recruiting activities by the coaching staff. The committee also said it considered eliminating for several years the awarding of institutional financial aid. Instead, the committee adopted the university's self-imposed limit of 13 grants-in-aid for the 1990 and 1991 academic years.

In addition, rather than the university being required to return 90 percent of the net receipts earned in the 1988 basketball tournament, the committee will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that the institution be required to return only its share of the receipts after distributions to the Atlantic Coast Conference and the other members of that conference. The university's net receipts totaled $479,269; after distribution, that figure was $407,378.

Members of the Committee on Infractions are Roy F. Kramer, incoming commissioner of the Southeastern Conference; Beverly E. Ledbetter, vice-president and general counsel at Brown University; John E. Nowak, professor of law at the University of Illinois, Champaign; Patricia A. O'Hara, associate professor of law at the University of Notre Dame; Milton R. Schroeder, professor of law at Arizona State University, and D. Alan Williams (committee chair) associate professor of history at the University of Virginia. Mr. Williams excused himself from this case because Virginia, like Maryland, is a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The full report follows:

Early in 1989, as a result of a newspaper article about the relationship between a prospective student-athlete at a junior college and members of the university's men's basketball coaching staff, the University of Maryland, College Park, began an investigation into its men's basketball program. The university requested that a member of the NCAA enforcement staff be present during a university interview with the prospective student-athlete who had been the subject of the newspaper story. As a result of that interview, the university expanded its investigation and the NCAA enforcement staff began its own investigation into the conduct and administration of the University of Maryland men's basketball program. Throughout the investigatory process, the enforcement staff and the institution shared information and conducted several joint interviews.

An official inquiry was sent to the University of Maryland in October 1989, and the university filed its response in December 1989. On February 2, 1990, a hearing was held before the NCAA Committee on Infractions, which was attended by university representatives and former members of the men's basketball coaching staff. At the conclusion of the hearing, the Committee on Infractions deliberated in private, determined findings and penalties, and prepared this report.

The Committee on Infractions found that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation, and these findings are set forth in detail in Part II of this report. Student-athletes in the University of Maryland men's basketball program sold their Atlantic Coast Conference men's basketball tournament complimentary tickets; they were aided in this endeavor by former university coaching staff members. In addition, during at least one basketball season, members of the basketball team provided complimentary admissions to regular-season away games for members of the university's athletics booster club. However, it was not established that the student-athletes who provided complimentary admissions to boosters received compensation for these complimentary admissions. Rather, the student-athletes reported that they provided their admissions to the boosters as a personal favor when the boosters contacted them.

The former men's head basketball coach, former members of the men's basketball staff and a car dealer who was a representative of the institution's athletics interests provided a variety of improper benefits to a young man who had been a member of the university's basketball team but who had left the university and enrolled in a junior college. The committee also found that the former men's head basketball coach, a former part-time assistant coach, a former graduate assistant coach and a former administrative assistant (whose primary responsibilities related to men's basketball) violated the principles of ethical conduct by knowingly engaging in activities that constituted violations of NCAA legislation.

As important as the findings regarding the provision of improper benefits to prospective and enrolled student-athletes or the unethical conduct of members of the staff were, the committee found that the university had failed to meet the principles of institutional control and rules compliance, which are among the fundamental principles of the Association and its member schools (NCAA Constitution 2.01, 2.1, 2.5 and 3.2.4.1).

Although even the best-administered athletics program might have rules violations, the principles of rules compliance and institutional control require each member institution in the NCAA to make significant efforts to avoid violations of NCAA legislation. The university's failure to ensure institutional control and rules compliance was demonstrated by the rules violations previously referred to and by other violations of NCAA legislation that are set forth in Part II of this report.

The Committee on Infractions determined that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985. Because of the findings, the committee normally would be required to impose at least the following penalties, which are among the minimum penalties for a major rules violation: a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits related to the sport for at least one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for the sport for at least one year, loss of postseason competition and television appearances for at least one year, and possible termination of the employment of staff members involved in the violations. Under the terms of NCAA legislation that establishes the minimum penalties, however, the Committee on Infractions may impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is "unique."

Ordinarily, unique circumstances that would justify relief from the Association's mandatory penalties would include such factors as: prompt detection of violations, thorough investigation and reporting of violations to the NCAA, cooperating in the processing of the case, and the institution's initiation of strong disciplinary and corrective actions (including the establishment of administrative procedures designed to ensure that the institution will comply with the principles of institutional control and rules compliance in the future). Other circumstances, although not as significant as the previously mentioned institutional measures, also may warrant the committee's finding that a case is unique for some purposes.

Two factors led the committee to find that this case was unique and to impose penalties that differed from the list of minimum penalties set forth in NCAA legislation. First, the university conducted a thorough investigation of its men's basketball program, fully cooperated with the NCAA investigation and recommended substantial penalties at the committee hearing. Secondly, the members of the athletics department staff who were found to have violated the principles of ethical conduct are no longer employed by the university.

Although the committee found that this case was unique in some respects, the serious nature of the violations, particularly the failure of the institution to exercise institutional control over its men's basketball program, required that significant penalties be imposed upon the university's men's basketball program. These penalties are described in detail in Part III of this report.

The committee placed the university's men's basketball program on probation for a three-year period.

During this probationary period, the institution will be required to file comprehensive reports documenting the steps taken to establish institutional control over the university's intercollegiate athletics program in general and the men's basketball program in particular. Additionally, the men's basketball program is prohibited from engaging in postseason competition for two years (the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years) and from appearing on a live television broadcast for one year (the 1990-91 academic year).

Because the committee found that the university was represented in the 1988 National Collegiate Division I Men's Basketball Championship by some student-athletes who should have been declared ineligible due to their involvement in rules violations, an NCAA bylaw requires that the record of the university's participation in that tournament be vacated. Normally, the institution also would be required by the NCAA Executive Committee to return up to 90 percent of the proceeds that it received from that NCAA tournament. However, because of the institution's cooperation in the investigation, the Committee on Infractions will recommend that the university be required to repay the share of the 1988 basketball tournament revenues that it received after distribution to the Atlantic Coast Conference. This reduction in the normally required monetary penalty will result in savings of approximately $70,000.

If there were no mitigating factors in this case, the committee would have imposed a significant reduction in the number of grants-in-aid that could have been provided to University of Maryland men's basketball student-athletes. However, due to the previously mentioned mitigating factors, the committee accepted a self-imposed penalty by the university that would reduce the number of athletics grants-in-aid for members of the men's basketball team from 15 to 13 for each of the next two years (the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years).

Two additional prescribed minimum penalties were imposed by the committee and immediately suspended. The committee suspended the minimum penalty requiring a prohibition of expense-paid official visits for prospective student-athletes to the university in the sport of men's basketball, and the committee

The Revolutionary Gillette Sensor.

It senses and adjusts to the individual needs of your face for the best shave a man can get.

The remarkable Gillette Sensor shaving system creates an entirely new standard in shaving performance. It's a shave personalized to every man.

The revolution starts with the platinum hardened Sensor twin blades. They're individually and independently mounted on highly responsive springs. So they continuously sense and automatically adjust to the individual curves and unique needs of your face.

But innovation doesn't stop there. The ultra narrow metal skin guard is also mounted on springs. It moves in total harmony with the blades to set up your beard for optimum shaving performance.

Keeping this technology in constant contact with your face required another breakthrough. A dramatic redesign of the entire pivoting process creates a wider, more responsive, unprecedentedly smooth pivoting action. Innovation is everywhere.

You can feel it in the textured ridges and balance of the Sensor razor. You appreciate it in the easy loading system and the convenient shaving organizer.

Even rinsing is innovative. The new blades are 50% narrower than any others — water flows freely around and through them, helping to make rinsing and cleaning totally effortless.

But the true revolution of Sensor comes not with any one feature, but with the way the Sensor technologies work together. They combine to give your individual face a personalized shave — the closest, smoothest, safest shave you've ever had. Or, more precisely, the best shave a man can get.

suspended a penalty prohibiting off-campus recruiting activities by the men's basketball coaching staff.

If the members of the athletics department staff who engaged in violations of the principles of ethical conduct still had been employed by the university, the committee would have ordered the university to "show cause" why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it had failed to discipline those staff members; however, the resignations of those staff members made this penalty inappropriate. Each former staff member who was found by the committee to have violated the principles of ethical conduct will be informed that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during the next five years, the individual and the institution that wishes to hire him will be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions to discuss actions that may limit the individual's athletically related duties for a prescribed period.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. [NCAA Constitution 2.01, 2.1, 2.5 and 3.2.4.1] The university did not meet its obligations to ensure institutional control of and NCAA rules compliance in its men's basketball program as evidenced by the following circumstances:

1. There were numerous violations of NCAA rules concerning complimentary admissions for student-athletes in men's basketball, as described in Part II-B, which involved: (a) arrangements by student-athletes for the sale of their Atlantic Coast Conference men's basketball tournament complimentary admissions for substantial sums of money for the 1987 and 1988 tournaments; (b) participation in arranging the sale of Atlantic Coast Conference men's basketball tournament complimentary admissions by persons who were close to the men's basketball program, including a student-athlete, a graduate assistant coach, and others, some of whom the university's investigation was not able to identify, and (c) violations in the designation of complimentary admissions for regular-season away games in the 1985-86 season by members of the men's basketball team, which involved student-athletes providing such admissions as personal favors to representatives of the university's athletics interests who directly contacted the student-athletes. These violations demonstrated a pattern of noncompliance with NCAA rules governing the administration of student-athletes' complimentary admissions and extra benefits, which reflects a lack of effective monitoring and control by those responsible for the oversight and administration of the men's basketball program, including the then men's basketball coaching staff and the university's athletics administration.

2. The university failed to have an effective program for overseeing and monitoring the extent to which its men's basketball program operated in compliance with NCAA rules. These deficiencies were apparent in the following areas:

a. There was a lack of administrative control and oversight of the conduct of basic recruiting activities such as official visits of prospective student-athletes. As a result, recruits on official visits were able to obtain souvenirs and apparel at little or no cost to them from a representative of the university's athletics interests under circumstances where the men's basketball staff should have been aware these violations were occurring.

b. There were extensive violations of NCAA rules governing recruiting contacts with and transportation of a prospective student-athlete, as described in Part II-D of this report. Various persons connected with the men's basketball program, including assistant coaches, provided improper transportation, and the circumstances were such that the then head coach knew or should have known that the men's basketball staff was providing such transportation, and the university's athletics administration should have been alerted to the problem if a more effective compliance program had been in place.

c. The university failed to oversee and account for the distribution of equipment and apparel to men's basketball student-athletes by its then head basketball coach and to require the student-athletes to return the items issued to them, although the then head coach obtained the apparel and equipment for the university's men's basketball program under a personal contract with an equipment manufacturer that the university had approved.

d. The men's head basketball coach directed the sending of money to a prospective student-athlete at the request of the recruit as described in the finding set forth in Part II-C of this report.

e. The university permitted an athletics department petty cash account to be managed in a manner that enabled at least one administrative assistant in the men's basketball program to withdraw large amounts of cash for stated athletically related expenses without having to provide a timely reconciliation of the advances with appropriate evidence justifying that the withdrawals were used for proper athletically related expenses.

f. The university failed to make a timely report to the NCAA of the violations described in Part II-F of this report concerning an improper promise and subsequent provision of videotapes of men's basketball games to the mother of a prospective student-athlete, when the university's director of athletics should have been aware that a violation had been committed.

3. The university failed to have an effective program for educating members of the men's basketball coaching staff and student-athletes on their responsibilities under NCAA rules. The seriousness of this deficiency was aggravated by the university's failure to recognize that heightened rules education efforts would be needed as a result of its appointment of a head coach for its men's basketball program who had no prior coaching experience at an NCAA member institution.

B. [NCAA Bylaws 16.2.1.2 and 16.12.2.1] In 1987 and 1988, men's basketball student-athletes arranged to sell their complimentary admissions to the 1987 and 1988 Men's Atlantic Coast Conference Basketball Tournaments. Specifically, for the 1988 tournament, numerous members of the men's basketball team arranged to sell their complimentary admissions for amounts of $200 to $250 for each of their four complimentary admissions. According to the information reported by the university, at least 10 men's basketball student-athletes made such arrangements to sell their complimentary admissions; further, members of the men's basketball team arranged to sell their 1987 Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament complimentary admissions, and finally, the student-athletes arranged for the sale of their complimentary admissions through various persons, including a then graduate assistant coach, a former men's basketball student-athlete and others close to the men's basketball program.

Further, during the 1985-86 regular basketball season, some student-athletes on the university's men's basketball team designated persons to receive complimentary admissions to regular-season away games who were not eligible to be designated by the student-athletes; further, the persons designated included persons who directly contacted the student-athletes to obtain the complimentary admissions and obtained them as a personal favor from the student-athletes.

C. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.2-(e) and 16.12.2] Prior to the enrollment of a former student-athlete, the then men's head basketball coach provided a loan to the young man that was prohibited by NCAA legislation. Specifically, during the young man's recruitment in the spring of 1987, the then head coach gave $40 cash to the institution's then men's basketball team manager and instructed him to wire the money to the prospect at his community college; further, the team manager drove the head coach's car to a Western Union office where he used a portion of the money to pay the costs to wire funds and sent the remainder to the prospect, and finally, the prospect reimbursed the then head coach several months later.

13.5.1] On at least 15 occasions, during the period September 1988 through February 1, 1989, a then administrative assistant, a then men's part-time assistant basketball coach and a then men's graduate assistant basketball coach provided automobile transportation to a prospective student-athlete; further, on some occasions, the then men's head basketball coach had knowledge of and arranged for this transportation. Also, as a result of this transportation, the then administrative assistant, the then men's part-time assistant basketball coach and the then men's graduate assistant basketball coach made in-person, off-campus recruiting contacts with the prospect, which were not permissible under NCAA rules.

Specifically, the then men's graduate assistant basketball coach, the then part-time men's assistant basketball coach and the then administrative assistant transported the prospect between the young man's home, the university's campus and two local community colleges, a round-trip distance of approximately 70 miles, where the prospect was attending classes while suspended from the university; further, on at least two occasions, the then head coach instructed the then graduate assistant basketball coach to transport the young man.

E. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2] During the fall semester of the 1987-88 academic year, a representative of the university's athletics interests and owner of an automobile dealership provided the use of an automobile from his dealership for a then student-athlete for at least two weekends each month at no cost to the young man.

F. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1 and 16.12.2] During the 1986-87 academic year, during an in-person recruiting contact with a prospective student-athlete and his mother in the young man's home, the then men's head basketball coach promised to provide a videotape to the young man's mother of each game in which the young man participated during his attendance at the university; further, a minimum of four videotapes were mailed to the prospect's mother during the 1987-88 academic year.

G. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.2.1, 13.2.1, 13.2.2-(b) and 13.2.2-(f)] In 1987, during the official paid visits to the university's campus of two prospective student-athletes and a friend of one of the prospects, members of the men's basketball coaching staff accompanied the young men to a sporting goods store located near the campus and owned by a representative of the university's athletics interests; further, the representative met the young men and allowed them to obtain several articles of clothing at little or no cost to them. Specifically:

1. In February 1987, one of the prospects and his friend were taken to the sporting goods store by a member of the basketball coaching staff and introduced to the representative, who permitted each young man to purchase several articles of clothing for a total cost of $5; further, the prospect selected two sweaters and one sweat shirt valued at approximately $100, and his friend selected a hat, shorts and several T-shirts.

2. In October 1987, a basketball coaching staff member accompanied the second prospect to the sporting goods store where the representative permitted the young man to obtain several items of clothing at no cost to him; further, the prospect received sweat shirts for his mother and father, a shirt for his sister, and a sweat shirt and two T-shirts for himself.

3. On November 30, 1989, the representative provided free hats for a prospective student-athlete and his student host.

H. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.6] During the 1986-87, 1987-88 and 1988-89 basketball seasons, the then men's head basketball coach provided items of clothing and accessories to members of the men's basketball team at no cost to the young men; further, the then head coach received these items directly from a basketball shoe company at no cost to him.

Specifically, on several occasions during the 1986-87 basketball season, the then head coach provided T-shirts to the members of the men's basketball team who participated in a "take the charge" drill during practice; further, in December 1987, the then head coach gave a garment bag, sweater, sweat suit and T-shirt to each team member without requiring that the items be returned; further, in December 1988, the then head coach gave a garment bag and three sweat suits to each student-athlete without requiring that the items be returned.

I. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2] During the second semester of the 1988-89 academic year, several members of the men's basketball team accumulated mileage on their individual frequent-flyer accounts; further, this mileage was accumulated by the team members at the university's expense as a result of their travel to men's basketball games.

J. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1, 10.1-(c) and 10.1-(d)] The former men's head basketball coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards of honesty normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics due to his involvement in findings of violations in this report and his provision of false and misleading information to the NCAA enforcement staff and the institution. Specifically:

1. The former head coach demonstrated a knowing and willful effort on his part to operate the institution's intercollegiate basketball program contrary to the provisions of NCAA legislation as shown by his involvement in the findings of violations in this report in which he is named.

2. The former head coach provided false and misleading information concerning his involvement in and knowledge of the matters addressed in Parts II C and II-D of this report during an interview involving NCAA enforcement staff members and the university's legal counsel.

3. The former head coach participated in a meeting on February 20, 1989, with other members of the men's basketball coaching staff for the purpose of providing false and misleading information regarding the transportation of a prospective student-athlete.

K. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1 and 10.1-(d)] A former administrative assistant, whose duties related primarily to men's basketball, acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with generally recognized high standards of honesty normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics due to his provision of false and misleading information to the NCAA enforcement staff and the institution. Specifically, this former administrative assistant provided false and misleading information concerning his involvement in and knowledge of matters addressed in Part II-D of this report during an interview involving NCAA enforcement staff members and the university's legal counsel.

L. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1, 10.1-(a) and 10.1-(d)] A former men's part-time assistant basketball coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards of honesty normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics in that during an interview involving NCAA enforcement staff members and the university's legal counsel, the former coach provided false and misleading information concerning his involvement in and knowledge of matters addressed in Part II-D of this report.

M. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1 and 10.1-(c)] A former men's graduate assistant basketball coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics. Specifically, this former graduate assistant coach demonstrated a knowing and willful effort on his part to operate the institution's intercollegiate men's basketball program contrary to the provisions of NCAA legislation as shown by his involvement in the violation cited in Part II-B of this report.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

For the reasons set forth in Part I of this report, the Committee on Infractions found that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation that are set forth in Part II of this report. Because this case involves major violations of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985, NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted

A good case for buying all your sports insurance from one source.

K&K's approach to sports insurance is a new concept in this specialized business. Now, for the first time, you or your broker can get all your insurance from a single source. And here's why that's a good idea.

Tailored coverage. A K&K representative along with your broker visits your facility. Inspects the buildings and grounds. Asks the right questions. With one company coordinating all your needs, you get exactly what you need. No more or less.

Coverage continuity. One company can obviously give you better continuity than several can.

One-stop shopping. It's easy and convenient, so you save a lot of time.

One-stop claim service. No delays in filing reports to several companies. Just call our claims experts for expedient service.

Coverage you can't get anywhere else. When your source is K&K, we'll provide general liability, property and casualty, worker's comp, equipment, auto, business interruption, and something you can't get anywhere else. Participant liability. We'll actually insure professional athletes while performing at your facility.

Cost savings. When you buy all your insurance from one source, we can save you money.

A representative who's a specialist. Your K&K representative will be someone who has specialized for years in the business of sports. Someone who knows how to identify and manage risk. And keep your premium cost down.

Easier administration. Don't you think that one company would be easier to deal with than several? You're right.

Transamerica Insurance Company. We combine the credibility and financial strength of Transamerica Insurance Company with our own solid commitment to the sports industry. Pretty impressive.

by the Convention of the Association, requires, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," minimum penalties that shall include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year, or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

The Committee on Infractions determined that this case was a "unique" case in which the institution should receive penalties that differ from the full set of minimum penalties otherwise required by NCAA legislation.

The committee has determined that certain mitigating factors support the finding that this case is unique. These mitigating factors include the following:

a. At the direction of the university's president, the institution undertook an extensive internal investigation of the men's basketball program, fully cooperated with the NCAA's investigation and recommended substantial penalties at the committee hearing.

b. The former men's basketball coaching staff members who were involved in the violations set forth in Part II of this report resigned.

Accordingly, the penalties imposed in this case by the Committee on Infraction are as follows:

A. The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of three years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal, it being understood that should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Further, the University of Maryland, College Park, shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. The university's men's basketball team shall end its 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons with the playing of its last regularly scheduled in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in postseason competition following those seasons. In addition, the men's basketball team may not participate in a foreign tour in the summer of 1990 or following the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons; further, the men's basketball team may not play any of its regular-season contests outside the continental United States during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons. Moreover, the men's basketball team may not take advantage of any exceptions to the limitation in the number of basketball contests that are provided in Bylaws 17.3.3.1 and 17.3.5.4 regarding preseason contests (or contests outside of the continental United States) during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons.

C. The men's basketball team shall be prohibited from appearing on any "live" telecast (as defined by Bylaw 19.4.2.5.2) during the 1990-91 academic year.

D. The committee has found that, at least in part due to the university's failure to exercise institutional control over its men's basketball program, student-athletes who were ineligible to represent the university (and student-athletes who the institution's coaching staff knew or should have known were ineligible) represented the university in the 1988 National Collegiate Division I Men's Basketball Championship [reference: Parts II-B and II-C of this report]. Therefore, under the terms of Bylaw 31.2.2.4, the records of the individual's and the team's performances in that championship shall be deleted, and the team's place finish in the final standings shall be vacated. Additionally, under the terms of Bylaws 19.4.2.1(k) and 31.2.2.5, the Committee on Infractions and the NCAA Executive Committee shall consider whether the institution should be required to return up to 90 percent of the net receipts earned by the university in that event. Due to the mitigating factors set forth above, the Committee on Infractions will recommend to the Executive Committee that the institution return the university's share of receipts after distributions to the Atlantic Coast Conference office and other institutions in that conference. This net share totals $407,378.

E. During the period of probation, the university shall report (prior to July 1, 1990; prior to July 1, 1991; prior to July 1, 1992, and prior to the end of the probationary period) to the NCAA enforcement staff and the Committee on Infractions the actions it has taken to: (1) place its intercollegiate athletics program in general and the men's basketball program in particular under institutional control, and (2) monitor the men's basketball program in a manner that will include, but not be limited to: (a) reviewing the use of complimentary admissions for all basketball games in which its men's basketball team is involved (including home and away games, regular-season and tournament games), (b) an economic audit of student-athletes' financial resources and financial expenditures, (c) monitoring on- and off-campus recruiting activities (including monitoring of the activities of prospective student-athletes and persons with whom they came in contact during visits to the university's campus) and (d) monitoring of university resources (including items such as courtesy cars and videotape equipment, as well as cash) that might be used to provide benefits to prospective or enrolled student-athletes.

F. The university shall be prohibited from providing any expense-paid visits to the institution for a prospective student-athlete in men's basketball during the 1990-91 academic year. (NOTE: This penalty is immediately and completely suspended based on the mitigating factors set forth above.)

G. All members of the university's men's basketball coaching staff shall be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting or evaluation activities during the 1990-91 academic year. (NOTE: This penalty is immediately and completely suspended based on the mitigating factors set forth above.)

H. The university, as a self-imposed disciplinary measure, has limited to 13 the number of grants-in-aid that may be awarded to members of its men's basketball team in the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years. The committee initially determined that it should eliminate new institutional financial aid awards in men's basketball for several years. Such a penalty would have significantly reduced the number of basketball players at the university. However, due to the mitigating factors listed above, the committee will impose no reduction in the number of grants-in-aid beyond the university's self-imposed limitations, which are hereby adopted as a penalty imposed by the committee.

I. The university shall be required to show cause why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it does not disassociate (in accordance with Bylaw 19.4.2.6) the two representatives of its athletics interests who were involved in violations found in this case [reference: Parts II-E and II-G of this report].

J. If any person who was found in this case to have violated the principles of ethical conduct had still been a member of the men's basketball coaching staff when the committee deliberated in this case, the university would have been required to show cause why it should not have been subject to further penalties if it had failed to take disciplinary action against that member of its staff. However, this minimum penalty is not applicable to this case due to the resignations of those former staff members.

K. The university shall recertify that its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA legislation.

L. Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case [reference: Parts II-C, II-D, II-F, II-H and II-J of this report], the former men's head basketball coach will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during a five-year period (March 5, 1990, to March 5, 1995), he and the involved institution shall be required to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-I, which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

M. Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case [reference: Parts II-D and II-K of this report], the former administrative assistant will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during a five-year period (March 5, 1990, to March 5, 1995), he and the involved institution shall be required to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-I, which could limit the former administrative assistant's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

N. Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case [reference: Parts II-B and II-M of this report], the former graduate assistant basketball coach will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during a five-year period (March 5, 1990, to March 5, 1995), he and the involved institution shall be required to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-I, which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

It didn't take her long to get into the swim of things

Lorri LaMagdelaine has done quite a job at Westfield State College—in class and in the swimming pool.

In three years at the school (to which she transferred from Elms College in Chicopee, Massachusetts), LaMagdelaine has a cumulative grade-point average of 3.650 (4.000 scale). She also has set eight school swimming records and has been a member of three record-setting relay teams.

"She is the best example of what a student-athlete should be, maintaining the balance between academic excellence and setting record times in the pool on a regular basis," said her coach, Dave Laing.

"In the eight years of the Westfield swim team, she is the best all-around swimmer and team leader we've ever had," Laing added. "The combination of setting so many school records and maintaining such a high GPA is an achievement that I don't expect to see equaled for some time."

To raise funds for the Wesley College W-Club, a basketball team of Philadelphia Eagles football players will take on a team from the W-Club March 22 in the school gym. Last year, in a game held at a local high school, the W-Club squad defeated the Eagles.

Kansas State University's Jim Kleinau, football equipment manager, has started the Golden Cats of Kansas State Football. Open to former K-State gridders, the program will help finance renovation of the football locker room.

For the first time, the U.S. Sports Academy's annual Awards of Sport will be televised live this year. TBS will air the event April 29.

Trivia Time: Prior to February 26, when the Association's new national office building opened for business, when was the last time there was only one national office building? Answer later.

John Carroll University and Heritage Sports of Cleveland, Ohio, have developed the Great Lakes Shootout, a men's basketball tournament that will be held November 16-18 in conjunction with the sixth annual Tip-Off Tournament for women.

Also scheduled is the selection of an all-academic team in addition to an all-tournament team. The academic squad will be honored November 15 at the tournament banquet.

Spearheaded by football lettermen, the University of Georgia recently (February 21) made an $18,000 contribution to the Chuckie Mullins Fund. Chuckie Mullins is the University of Mississippi football player who was paralyzed by a neck injury suffered during an October 28 game against Vanderbilt University. To date, in excess of $700,000 has been raised on Mullins' behalf through efforts like the one at Georgia and at other Southeastern Conference schools.

More Report Cards: At Marshall University, student-athletes outperformed nonathletes in the classroom last semester. Figures released by the school show that 293 athletes earned a cumulative grade-point average of 2.500 (4.000 scale), while the general undergraduate population earned a cumulative 2.350.

Fifty-three student-athletes with GPAs of at least 3.000 were named recently to the Heartland Collegiate Conference's 1989 all-academic team. Among them was Butler University football player Kevin Shomber, the only three-time honoree on the list.

At the University of Wisconsin, Stout, 30 of the school's 101 football players earned GPAs of at least 3.000 during the fall semester.

Fordham University officials have announced that 149 of the school's 390 student-athletes (93 men and 56 women) have cumulative GPAs of at least 3.000. Four teams (women's basketball, women's tennis, men's track and women's track) have earned cumulative GPAs of at least 3.000.

Franklin and Marshall College's men's cross country team produced a fall-semester cumulative GPA of 3.050.

Trivia Answer: The date was November 26, 1982—the day after Thanksgiving that year. Back then, the Friday after Thanksgiving was not a holiday for the NCAA staff. The "old" West building (6300 Nall Avenue in Mission, Kansas) opened November 29, 1982. Its offices supplemented those of the headquarters building (6299 Nall in Mission), which opened in April 1973.

this case [reference: Parts II-D and II-L of this report], the former men's part-time assistant basketball coach will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during a five-year period (March 5, 1990, to March 5, 1995), he and the involved institution shall be required to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(1), which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

[Note: Should the University of Maryland, College Park, appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided to the institution prior to the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.

Also, the Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed; further, the committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case, and finally, should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.
