Payout estimated at $35.5 million

For the first time, an NCAA member conference will collect $5 million in proceeds from the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

The Atlantic Coast Conference will earn a projected record $5,157,000 from the participation of five ACC teams in the tournament, which ends with the Final Four March 31 and April 2 in Denver, Colorado.

Total projected proceeds from the championship are $35,526,000, according to Louis J. Spry, NCAA associate executive director.

Again this year, every automatic-qualifying tournament has in

Commissioners group plans to propose reform package

Commissioners of eight Division I conferences will meet in Denver April 2 to put the finishing touches on a set of proposals for reform in intercollegiate athletics.

The proposals, which concern academics, cost reduction, time demands on student-athletes and recruiting, will then be sent to the NCAA Presidents Commission for review, possibly at the Commission's April 4-5 meeting in Washington, D.C.

Details of the proposals are being withheld until after they are reviewed by the chief executive officers, but two of the conference commissioners say that the group is attempting to provide the Presidents Commission with specific approaches to achieving broad reforms.

"Our goal was to advance the reform movement and provide some specific ideas for the Presidents Commission so that it has some input from those of us out in the field," said Thomas C. Hansen, commissioner of the Pacific-10 Conference.

With that purpose in mind, the group has discussed specific proposals ranging from initial-eligibility and satisfactory-progress requirements to limits on grants-in-aid, playing and practice seasons, and recruiting contacts.

"I think the Presidents Commission has come to realize that the numbers are as important as the broad policy," Hansen said.

Started with meetings

The meetings that led to formulation of the proposals began last fall, according to another participating commissioner, Eugene F. Corrigan of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Eugene F. Corrigan

Thomas C. Hansen

In October, Corrigan and Hansen met with two other commissioners—David R. Gavitt of the Big East Conference and James E. Delany of the Big Ten Conference. The discussions continued in a series of telephone conferences. "The idea was, if the four of us could agree on something, we'd have a start," Corrigan said.

Commission will review various committee reports

A review of the time-reduction recommendations in sports other than basketball and football, including reactions by division subcommittees, and a report from the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure are among the topics on the agenda for the NCAA Presidents Commission's April 4-5 meeting in Washington, D.C.

The time-reduction recommendations were mandated by adoption of Proposal No. 30-A at the 1990 Convention. The proposal requires interest groups such as athletics administrators, coaches and NCAA governing sports committees to propose means of reducing the time that student-athletes must spend on their sports (other than basketball and football).

The commission also will receive a report from the membership structure special committee. The report

NCAA honors Congressmen for support of NYSP

NYSP. At right is Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Massachusetts, and Lucille Hester, activity director for the District of Columbia project. The NCAA also honored Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa.

The National Youth Sports Program recently honored Rep. Silvio Conte and Sen. Tom Harkin for their efforts on behalf of the program.

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz presented Conte with a plaque bearing the NYSP motto, "Walk Tall, Talk Tall, Stand Tall," at the first-ever NYSP banquet in Washington, D.C.

Participants in the NYSP project at the University of District of Columbia performed a skit portraying Conte's involvement with NYSP and presented him with several items of donated sports equipment symbolizing the sports instruction provided by NYSP.

The plaque honoring Harkin was presented by Edward A. Thiebe, NCAA director of youth programs; Michael Orfitelli, professor of physical education and NYSP activity director at St. Ambrose University, and Vivian L. Fuller, associate director of athletics at Indiana University of Pennsylvania and a member of the NYSP Committee.

place a revenue-sharing formula for tournament receipts. Therefore, 261 of 292 Division I basketball-playing institutions (89.4 percent) will receive a portion of the proceeds.

The previous record for proceeds to a conference was set in 1988, when the ACC and the Big Ten Conference each received $4,947,205. This is the third time in five years that the ACC has received the highest payout.

The Big Ten, which placed a record seven teams in this year's tournament, will receive $4,297,500.

The ACC's tournament teams, including its two Final Four teams, have earned 18 of 124 tournament shares, or units. The Big East Conference established the record for total units with 21 in 1985, when three of its teams played in the Final Four.

The 64-team tournament field represents 21.9 percent of Division I member institutions, for a participation ratio of 1 to 4.5.

Commission

will be mailed to members of the NCAA Council as well.

The Commission has invited an ad hoc group of major-conference commissioners to present recommendations regarding reform issues in intercollegiate athletics.

Among the other topics to be discussed by the Commission in the meeting:

- A report from the Special Committee on Cost Reduction.

- A report on the deliberations of the Special NCAA Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues.

- A report on the initial deliberations of the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics.

- Review of reform suggestions in the NCAA executive director's "State of the Association" address at the 1990 Convention.

The Commission's division subcommittees also have topics to discuss in their separate sessions:

- Division I—A report from the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism regarding financial aid available to student-athletes and a review of the Presidential Debate on freshman eligibility at the 1990 Convention.

- Division II—Discussion of a definition of a partial qualifier in Division II.

- Division III—A progress report on Division III graduation-rate legislation; review of Division III transfer legislation.

Martin A. Massengale, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, will chair the Commission session, while the division subcommittees will be chaired by Bernard F. Sliger, Florida State University, Division I; Asa N. Green, Livingston University, Division II, and David L. Warren, Ohio Wesleyan University, Division III.

Binders available

Readers of The NCAA News are reminded that binders, which provide permanent, convenient storage of back issues of the paper, are available from the publishing department.

Each of the rugged, vinyl-covered binders holds 15 issues of the News. They may be purchased for $10 each, or two for $19. Orders should be directed to the circulation office at the NCAA (913/339-1900).

Making a point

Legislative Assistance

1990 Column No. 13

NCAA Bylaw 14.8—outside competition/effects on eligibility

Member institutions should note that in the sport of basketball, once a student-athlete becomes a member of an institution's team, the student-athlete generally may not participate in any organized competition except while representing the institution in intercollegiate competition in accordance with the permissible playing season; otherwise, the student-athlete would become ineligible for any further intercollegiate competition in the sport of basketball. In sports other than basketball, a student-athlete will be denied eligibility for intercollegiate competition for the remainder of the season in his or her sport if, following enrollment in college and during any year in which the student-athlete is a member of an intercollegiate squad or team, he or she competes or has competed as a member of any outside team in any noncollegiate, amateur competition during the institution's intercollegiate season in that sport. A student-athlete is considered to be a member of an institution's team in the sport in any specified year if the student meets any of the conditions set forth in NCAA Bylaw 14.8.3.2, or reports for practice or competition in that sport in that year. Thereafter, the student is considered to be a member of that team for the remainder of the season. An institution's intercollegiate season includes any scheduled participation in the conference championship in the sport in question but excludes the period between the last regularly scheduled competition and the NCAA championship in that sport.

If an institution conducts separate fall and spring practice or playing seasons in a sport (e.g., soccer, volleyball), it is permissible for a student-athlete to participate in that sport on an outside team during the period between the two seasons without affecting his or her eligibility. Also, in sports other than basketball, the restriction against participation in outside competition during an institution's season would not preclude a student-athlete from participating as an individual during the institution's season in the student's sport, as long as the student-athlete represents himself or herself in the competition, and does not engage in such competition as a member on an outside team. In the individual sports, units such as pro-am golf teams, doubles tennis teams, and relay teams in track and field are not considered to be outside teams for purposes of this legislation.

In accordance with Bylaws 14.8.5 and 14.8.6, there are certain exceptions to the restrictions against participation in outside competition. In sports other than basketball, a student-athlete may compete in one game a year involving players from the student-athlete's former high school and its alumni team, provided the game takes place during an official vacation period in the institution's academic year. Further, a student-athlete may participate in the official Olympic Games and in final tryouts that directly qualify competitors for the Olympic Games.

NACDA's convention scheduled June 10-13

Directors of athletics and conference commissioners will meet to discuss issues in college athletics at the silver anniversary convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) June 10-13 at Marco Island, Florida.

More than 800 athletics administrators are expected for the four-day assembly. Included in the group is the Division I-A Directors Association, which will hold several meetings.

Featured speakers include Al Neu-harth, founding publisher of USA Today, Monday, June 11; nationally syndicated columnist Larry King; and Miami Dolphins Hall of Fame quarterback Bob Griese.

The James J. Corbett Award luncheon is scheduled Tuesday, June 12.

Division I-A athletics directors have set an agenda that includes all the major issues facing collegiate athletics today. Due to a revision of the NCAA's legislative calendar, this will be the final time that this group will meet to discuss proposed legislation prior to the annual NCAA Convention in January 1991 in Nashville, Tennessee.

The Division I-A Directors Association is administered by NACDA's national office. The group is chaired by Milo R. Lude, director of athletics at the University of Washington.

"The annual Convention is a tremendous opportunity for our membership to get together and discuss issues, ideas and problems that challenge athletics administrators at all levels," said Jack Lengyel, NACDA president and director of athletics at the U.S. Naval Academy. "We can learn a great deal from each other and apply this knowledge to our individual situations."

The list of convention topics includes cost reduction, performance enhancement, campus alcohol issues, academic monitoring of student-athletes and the role of national organizations. Additionally, more than 100 displays of athletics-related equipment and services will be exhibited.

The convention will open officially at 8:30 a.m. Monday, June 11, with Neu-harth's keynote address. The convention will adjourn at 11:15 a.m. Wednesday, June 13, following the election of NACDA officers and executive committee members.

NACDA's annual Management Institute is offered the following three days, June 14-16. The Marriott Resort in Marco Island is the convention headquarters hotel.

Committee Notice

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than April 18.

Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee: Replacement for John H. Homon, Mount Union College, resigned. Appointee must be a Division III representative of men's track. The replacement for Homon or Laura Brewer, whose resignation from the committee was announced in the March 7 issue of The NCAA News, must be from District 4 or 5.

The NCAA Council shall have the authority to waive the restrictions prohibiting participation in outside competition during the institution's season for all sports in the following: (1) official Pan American Games tryouts and competition; (2) officially recognized competition directly qualifying participants for final Olympic Games tryouts; (3) official tryouts and competition involving national teams sponsored by the appropriate Group A members of the U.S. Olympic Committee (or, for the student-athletes representing another nation, the equivalent organization of that nation or, for student-athletes competing in a non-Olympic sport, the equivalent organization of that sport), and (4) officially recognized state and national multisport events.

In addition, in the sport of basketball, a student-athlete attending a Division I or II member institution may compete during the period between June 15 and August 31 on a team in a league approved by the Council per Bylaw 30.11, provided the student-athlete has received written permission from the institution's director of athletics (or the director's official representative) for participation in the league. In Division III, there are no restrictions on the participation of Division III student-athletes in outside basketball competition during the summer. Also, a student-athlete who is a resident of Puerto Rico may participate in the Superior Basketball League of Puerto Rico. The Council shall have the authority to waive the restrictions prohibiting participation in outside basketball competition to permit student-athletes to participate in: (1) the United States against U.S. national teams, (2) officially recognized state and national multisport events sanctioned by the Council, and (3) other international competition that is sanctioned by the Council and is scheduled during a period other than the involved institution's intercollegiate basketball season.

NCAA Bylaw 17.1.5-(g)—NCAA championships participation in team sports/out-of-season practice

Member institutions are reminded that neither practice nor participation in any NCAA or NAIA championship event is considered part of the institution's declared playing season. A member institution that has reason to believe that it is under consideration for selection to participate in an NCAA championship event may continue to practice (but may not compete against outside competition) beyond its last regular-season contest, including the conference championship, if any, without counting such practice against the institution's declared playing-season limitation until it is determined by the appropriate committee whether the institution will be selected to participate in the NCAA championships competition. An institution that is not selected to participate in the NCAA championship may not continue to practice or compete until the end of that championship, unless the institution has time in its declared playing season.

Commissioners

In January, the group expanded to include four more commissioners — Fred Jacoby of the Southwest Athletic Conference, Carl C. James of the Big Eight Conference, Roy Kramer of the Southeastern Conference and Joseph L. Kearney of the Western Athletic Conference. Also, University of Notre Dame athletics director Richard A. Rosenthal has been involved.

The group's meetings culminated in a March 19-20 session in Chicago, where several athletics directors and faculty athletics representatives, as well as one chancellor, met with the commissioners to seek a consensus on several issues.

"We had great participation," Corrigan said. "I was really heartened by the meeting.

"As you work your way through these issues, it can be tedious, and you wonder if you've accomplished anything. But it's amazing how much we accomplished in a day and a half," he said.

'There is consensus'

"There is a consensus," Hansen said. "We were really pleased with the results of our meeting in Chicago.

"We (the Pacific-10 Conference) didn't go in... with a blank sheet of paper," he added. "We had had discussions within our conference. It was quite evident that with what the other conferences were coming up with, we were all on the same page.

"All we needed to do was fine-tune—how far do we go, how fast, and what are the numbers?"

Corrigan said the participants "were ready to take a good, strong look at necessary reform—not just to put soap powder on the sweat-socks."

The meeting produced a draft of proposals, which Hansen said will be "fine-tuned" further in the commissioners' meeting during the Final Four in Denver.

Then, the group anticipates presenting its proposals to the Presidents Commission and, later, the NCAA Council. Ultimately, the commissioners hope the proposals will be sponsored at the Convention by the Commission or the Council.

Avoiding duplication

In formulating the proposals, the commissioners attempted to avoid interfering with the work of the NCAA Special Committee on Cost Reduction, which is chaired by Corrigan, and the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure, chaired by Jacoby.

"We're trying not to duplicate the work of the cost-cutting committee, and maybe to do some things it hasn't done," Hansen said of the commissioners' proposals for cost reduction. Corrigan added that he believes the commissioners' recommendations "will mesh very well" with his special committee's report, which is ready for presentation to the Council.

"A lot of things we agreed to on recruiting—which also is a cost-reduction issue—are right on with what the special committee is thinking," Corrigan added.

Hansen believes the commissioners are the only group currently grappling with academic reforms, and that they also will offer "solid recommendations" for cutting time demands on student-athletes.

In fact, the commissioners have an advantage over the special committees in making reform proposals, Hansen said. "The conferences can take a little more of a chance," he said.

Still, the commissioners are optimistic that their proposals will have broad appeal.

"What's important is that we put proposals out there that can fly," Corrigan said.

"It's not how fast we do it or who gets credit, but that, when we look back, we can say 'boy, that was worthwhile.'"

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, center, holds a plaque presented to him by the NCAA for his efforts in behalf of NYSP. At left is Michael A. Defitelli, NYSP activity director and chair of the department of physical education at St. Ambrose University. Also pictured is Vivian Fuller, associate director of athletics at Indiana University of Pennsylvania, who is an NYSP Committee member.

Conte currently is serving his 16th term in the House of Representatives from Massachusetts' First District. He is the ranking Republican member of both the House Appropriations Committee and its Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education. He has received honorary degrees from more than 20 colleges and universities in recognition of his commitment to higher education, and President Bush has called him the "education congressman."

Conte has been instrumental in advocating increased Federal support for NYSP for many years. Last year, as a result of his efforts, Congress appropriated $10.5 million for NYSP, including $1 million in anti-drug-abuse funding as part of a special package of new drug initiatives.

Harkin chairs the Senate agriculture subcommittee, which is responsible for child nutrition programs, and the Senate appropriations subcommittee, which provides funds for NYSP and other human-services, education and anti-drug programs. The Iowa Democrat was instrumental in gaining the additional $1 million in Federal antidrug funding for NYSP.

Both presentations were made in conjunction with the NYSP national workshop, which is held annually in Washington, D.C. The workshop brings together project administrators or activity directors from all projects. This year, the workshop featured an orientation session for new administrators and representatives of 11 new projects. Frank B. Ashley, Texas A&M University, was the featured speaker.

NCAA paid less in legal fees last fiscal year

NCAA legal fees and expenses decreased more than 25 percent during 1988-89, and governmental affairs—not litigation—was the costliest area.

Figures developed by the Association's business department show that 1988-89 legal fees and expenses were $1,470,403—down 25.5 percent from $1,974,948 in 1987-88.

Last year's total was the fourth highest of the 1980s and was lower than spending in 1981-82 ($2.334 million), 1987-88 ($1.975 million), and 1984-85 ($1.903 million).

Fees and expenses for legal work related to NCAA governmental affairs activities last year amounted to $546,428, while fees and expenses related to litigation totaled $508,251. The latter figure represents fees and expenses associated with work handled by NCAA attorneys in 19 cases involving the Association.

Among the governmental affairs activities that involved NCAA counsel were matters pertaining to the National Youth Sports Program, gambling and drugs, Copyright Royalty Tribunal, and several other areas.

Sports have vital role in our nation's character

(Editor's Note: The following is excerpted from a speech by Vice Adm. William P. Lawrence, USN (Ret.), in a keynote speech to the National Military Fitness Conference at the National War College. Vice Adm. Lawrence is a past winner of the NCAA's Teddy Award and currently serves on the Association's Honors Committee. He is chair of naval leadership at the U.S. Naval Academy.)

Vice Adm. Lawrence

Once our nation was settled, our people turned to sports as a means of expressing and maintaining our national vitality.

Sports have immense value because, in addition to their contribution to physical fitness and health, they help develop other qualities so important to our national character, such as courage, teamwork, discipline and the will to win.

Nothing helped me more during my career as a military officer than my background in sports. During the most difficult times, such as tough combat and the POW experience, I called on those qualities and values developed on the athletics field more than anything else. The famous quotation of Gen. Douglas MacArthur conveys exactly what I mean:

"On the fields of friendly strife are sown the seeds which on other fields on other days, bear the fruits of victory."

There is a great role-model value of sports. Young people need heroes, examples, that help steer them away from the evils of society—such as crime, alcohol and drugs—and stay in school, attend church and engage in sports to develop those qualities that ensure a happy, productive, rewarding life.

I feel we should, as a high national priority, develop organized youth sports programs around our country, where young people as early as the age of 5 to 6 can play a wide range of supervised team sports.

We must engage in a concerted effort to restore the integrity of intercollegiate athletics and regain the student-athlete ideal that President Theodore Roosevelt had in mind when he established the NCAA in 1906.

Regrettably, the large revenues available from TV and ticket sales have prostituted college sports. In my playing days back in the late 1940s, most of the athletes I played with and against were in college first to obtain an education and a degree and, secondly, to participate in sports. Now, unfortunately, many athletes are in college solely to play sports and have no intention of obtaining a degree.

I recall during my college years when the salary of a football coach exceeded that of a college president for the first time.

Now, most coaches of the larger schools command salaries far in excess of the college president, staff and faculty, not to mention money derived from TV appearances, endorsement of sport equipment, youth sport camps and the like ... of all forms of endeavor, intercollegiate sports provide an upward mobility path for Blacks. For Blacks with sports skills, a college athletics scholarship can provide them a way out of the ghettos and economic deprivation on to a college degree and subsequent successful, rewarding lives. Regrettably because of the prostitution of sports by the big money I referred to before, too many of our black athletes today are being exploited by colleges.

The successful degree-completion by black athletes and entry into viable professional careers can be a self-sustaining process because of the previously mentioned role-model aspect of sports. Young Blacks will be inspired to emulate the example of fine black college student-athletes.

We can return college sports to the Teddy Roosevelt ideal. There is no magic as to what is required.

The service academies, the Ivy

League schools, Notre Dame, Georgetown, Duke, Stanford, and certain state schools require their players to be student-athletes, and essentially 100 percent of those athletes earn their degrees.

College presidents, school administrators, faculties and boards of trustees must have the courage to resist the lure of big money, stand up to the demands of coaches and alumni, and insist that the first priority for every student in the school is to obtain a sound education and an academic degree.

The efforts by the NCAA to establish and enforce eligibility, satisfactory-progress and degree-completion standards are worthwhile; but the integrity of intercollegiate sports will be restored only by schools setting and maintaining their own standards and placing a commitment to academic excellence above all other objectives.

Letter to the Editor

Don't let money spoil college sports

To the Editor:

I am simply a subscriber to The NCAA News and have no official affiliation with any member of the NCAA. I write because I read every issue of The NCAA News, and I am greatly concerned, as an observer, at the direction big-time athletics is taking.

I see Notre Dame going off on its own and signing a huge contract for televising its home football games. The excuse—so its fans can see more games; the real reason—money.

I see the NCAA sign a $1 billion, seven-year contract with CBS and kick ESPN in the teeth. If not for ESPN, the basketball tournament would not be as popular as it has been. ESPN has allowed us to see exciting first-round games we never would have known or much less cared about. Yet, ESPN is left out in the cold—for money.

I see changes in the rules on automatic qualification for the NCAA basketball tournament to make room for a seventh-place Big Ten team or a fifth-place ACC team and cut out the Big South, American South, Ivy League, MEAC. Why? Simply, money.

I see the major football institutions refuse to play a national-championships tournament. All other divisions do it, but not Division I-A. I doubt that the academic load at Southern Cal, Notre Dame or Clemson is heavier than at Furman, Georgia Southern, North Dakota State, Union, or Franklin and Marshall.

I don't see the Divisions I-AA, II and III schools asking for a termination of their tournaments. They are happy to play 15 games, but it's just too much for the "student-athlete" in Division I-A. Why? The bowl committee people want to travel to a lot of big games each year to scout teams. The schools are afraid to rankle the big pay-off bowls. Instead of incorporating the current bowls into a play-off system, we are stuck with the current system—no system. Why? The fear of losing a sure paycheck for the fourth-place Big Ten team or the sixth-place SEC team. There is no thought for fans, only a fear of loss of money.

Ironically, Division I-A is thinking of adding a 12th game. Why? If two more games are too much, wouldn't one more game be an unbearable burden on the student-athlete?

Meanwhile, Division I basketball will decrease the schedule to 25 games. This will deprive Georgetown and coach Thompson of games with St. Leo, Hawaii-Loa and Shenandoah, as they have now. The problem is not the scheduling of 28 games or the start of practice on October 15. The problem is lack of commitment on the part of the players and their inability to budget their time. The schools want to keep their image intact and keep the money flowing in. The schools really should be stressing academics; if the players don't qualify, they should be academically ineligible.

All I see in The NCAA News is how wonderful the institutions are. Stop firing coaches; pay attention to the academics; save college athletics. We the fans love you. Keep it that way.

"...the NCAA prattles on endlessly about the importance of educating athletes and wrings its collective hands about universities that graduate few of their players. But many 'student-athletes' are in school only because that is their sole route to the pros, not because they want to earn an advanced degree.

"Forcing a poor kid... who wants to start bringing in some money for his struggling family to go to college before he can join the (Washington, D.C.) Bullets or another NBA team is bad enough; claiming that the system is run for his benefit is insulting.

"The solution is a two-tier athletics program. Schools that truly believe in 'student-athletes' would form one league. Players would have to be students and would have to pay their own way. Interscholastic play would essentially be glorified intramural competition.

"Colleges that, instead, want to field the best teams possible would be free to attract players through any possible means, including paying them like pros and cooperating with professional teams to establish official farm clubs.

"Then, there'd be no need for hypocrisy that pervades the system today; the latter players wouldn't have to make a pretense of attending class unless they really wanted to."

"The money from the new (NCAA championships) TV contract needs to be spread out more to all Division I members and to financing other NCAA Divisions II and III championships. We are on the right track now because the NCAA is seeking input from all constituencies and has a blue-ribbon committee to make broad-reaching proposals. I think it will have some good recommendations.

"In general, I think we'll try to reach a compromise between socialism and capitalism. We must reward the final 16 and Final Four teams more than those that only reach the first and second round, but perhaps not as much as in the past. I feel good about reaching a happy medium."

Melvin Durslag, columnist

"...the rise of the NCAA tournament has been colossal, leading you to ask how the NCAA can do such promotional wonders with postseason basketball—and make such a botch of postseason football?"

"The NCAA has a runaway winner in its tournament, leading you to ask again how it can put together such a piece of custom jewelry, bringing its basketball season to a satisfactory close, and foul up the finish of football.

"In football, you see the NCAA as coloratura starting her aria grandly—and falling through the drum."

Michael Kelly, columnist

"Colleges invest a lot of money in players—from recruiting them to schooling them to feeding them to training them.

"Yes, some of those players help bring millions of dollars into athletics departments. But it's time for the NFL to help fund its 'minor league.'

"The pros should pay the colleges, collectively or individually, for developing the athletes."

"A lot of people tell us we can't bring college athletics under control because there is too much money, too many people trying to get a cut. I just don't believe that.

"After our first (commission) meeting in February, everyone was pretty depressed and not terribly hopeful that we could accomplish much. But I think that has changed now."

Two newcomers challenge veteran coaches for women's title

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA Assistant Statistics Coordinator

Two veteran coaches and two coaches making their first appearances in the national semifinals make a diversified group in the ninth annual Division I Women's Basketball Championship.

Leon Barmore of Louisiana Tech is making his sixth appearance in the semifinal round and fourth in a row. He was cohead coach with Sonja Hogg for the 1983 and 1984 tournaments but since 1985 has on his own headed one of the most successful women's programs in the nation.

Barmore, an outstanding player at Tech, reached the 200-win plateau faster than any women's coach in history; and his 243-23 (.914) overall record is the best among all active coaches, men or women.

Auburn's Joe Ciampi is making a third consecutive appearance and hopes to avoid a third straight second-place finish. In 1988, his Lady Tigers fell to Barmore's Louisiana Tech squad, 56-54, after leading most of the game. Last year, Tennessee handled Auburn, 76-60, in an all-Southeastern Conference final.

After seven appearances in the tournament, Virginia's Debbie Ryan has made it to the semifinals for the first time. In 13 years as a head coach, Ryan has a 270-118 (.696) record; but the Lady Cavaliers have lost to Tennessee four times in the tournament. An exciting 79-75 overtime victory over the defending national champion Lady Vols in the regional finals opened the door.

Stanford's Tara VanDerveer has led the Cardinal to a third consecutive tourney appearance. She has a 264-89 (.748) record in 12 years as a head coach and has led three different schools in postseason play—Idaho (AIAW), Ohio State (NCAA) and Stanford (NCAA). Stanford is 30-1 this season—the most wins in school history.

Two of four survive

No surprise that two No. 1 seeds—Stanford (30-1) and Louisiana Tech (32-0)—advanced to the big show, but No. 2 seeds Virginia (29-5) and Auburn (27-6) had to beat the No. 1 seeds in their regions to advance.

Louisiana Tech has been in seven of the nine women's semifinals and finals, while Auburn is making its third straight visit. Virginia and Stanford are in the Final Four for the first time.

If you keep track of rankings, Louisiana Tech is the top-rated team here. Stanford was No. 2 in most polls all year. Auburn, a perennial poll leader, was ninth, while Virginia was No. 12. Louisiana Tech has placed in the Associated Press women's top-10 poll for 193 consecutive weeks, dating back to January 1979; during the 1980s, Tech compiled a 320-27 (.922) record.

Coaches have experience

The four coaches in this year's semifinals are one of the most victorious groups in women's basketball history. Auburn's Ciampi has won 320 games, Virginia's Ryan 270, Stanford's VanDerveer 264 and Barmore 243. That is 1,097 victories and 46 years of head-coaching experience. This year's foursome has a combined 1989-90 record of 118-12, trailing only last year's all-time best of 125-8. Barmore and Ciampi are both repeaters from last year's semifinals.

Winning streaks

Louisiana Tech has the longest current winning streak of the four teams, with 32 straight victories. The Lady Techsters have not lost a game since the semifinals in 1989 when they fell to Auburn. Stanford is next with 10 straight wins, followed by Auburn with seven and Virginia with six. Louisiana Tech also has a chance to become only the second undefeated team in season Atlantic Coast Conference game at North Carolina State, 77-64, but then swept to the ACC tournament title.

Speaking of streaks, Louisiana Tech has been in the tournament all nine years and has won 31 of 37

Lady Techsters have rolled to 30 or more wins nine of the last 11 seasons and have averaged 31 wins since the tournament began in 1982.

Louisiana Tech features a strong inside game dominated by 6-4 center Venus Lacy. Lacy, a senior, averages 24.2 points a game and 12.7 rebounds.

Louisiana Tech leads

The Lady Techsters are leading the nation in five team statistical categories, including scoring defense; they allowed their opponents just 52.7 points per game. The other categories Tech led this year were scoring margin (34.3), won-lost percentage (perfect 32-0), field-goal percentage defense (33.0) and rebound margin (18.6).

More statistics

Stanford also was impressive with its scoring (No. 2 at 93.6), averaging 99 points per game in the tournament and finishing second to Tech in scoring margin (27.8) for the year. The Cardinal was fourth in field-goal percentage (50.6) and fifth in free-throw percentage (76.7).

Tournament victories

Louisiana Tech has won 31 tournament games (31-6) in nine appearances to lead Division I. Stanford is 6-3 in four appearances, while Auburn is 16-7 in eight and Virginia is 7-6 in seven. Stanford has improved each year, losing in the first round in 1982, winning one game in 1988, winning two games last year and winning its first three this year.

Easy so far

Only Virginia had any problem in the preliminary rounds, battling defending champion Tennessee into NCAA women's basketball history. The only unbeaten team was Texas (34-0) in 1986.

Auburn's last loss came February 21 against Alabama, and Stanford lost its only game February 10, an 81-78 decision at Pacific-10 Conference rival Washington before 7,704 fans. Virginia lost its last regular-games, the most tourney victories. The 1985 and 1986 Lady Techsters were the only teams that did not make the semifinals.

On familiar ground

While 20-win seasons are the standard of success for most teams, Louisiana Tech has posted its fourth consecutive 30-win season. The

Duke in Final Four a fourth time in five years

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA Assistant Statistics Coordinator

The Final Four coaches are a mix of veterans and first-timers.

Final Four veterans Mike Krzyzewski of Duke (only repeater from 1989) and Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas are facing newcomers Nolan Richardson of Arkansas and Bobby Cremins of Georgia Tech.

This is Krzyzewski's fourth Final Four in five years, a feat accomplished only by UCLA's John Wooden (12 in 14 years). Krzyzewski, who played under Bob Knight at Army and coached there before coming to Duke in 1981, finished second in 1986 at Dallas and tied for third in 1988 and 1989. Coach "K" has passed Knight as the most victorious active coach in tournament history with a .769 winning percentage (20-6).

Tarkanian, better known as the "Shark of the Desert," is the NCAA's all-time most victorious coach at 563-119 (.826). This will be Tarkanian's third trip to the Final Four (he had third-place finishes in 1977 and 1987).

Over the last 10-plus seasons, Nevada-Las Vegas has had the nation's best record at 304-70 (.813). This is Tarkanian's 15th appearance in the tournament (the first four times at Long Beach State), and he has a 31-15 tournament record.

Richardson, who is coaching his first Final Four team, tries to put all the basketball hoopla in perspective in light of losing a daughter, Yvonne, to leukemia in 1987.

"I think of an athlete like Hank Gathers (of Loyola Marymount) giving his life to the game of basketball," Richardson said. "It reminds me that life is not given to you, it is something to be appreciated and thankful for."

The 48-year-old former Tulsa coach has forged a 5-5 NCAA tournament record, including a 5-2 mark at Arkansas. He is new to the Final Four but definitely not new to championships. His 1981 Tulsa squad won the National Invitation Tournament and his 1980 Western Texas College team captured the national junior college title.

Cremins, the 42-year-old Georgia Tech coach, is nationally known as a recruiter but he seeks respect for his bench coaching in his first Final Four appearance. This is Cremins' seventh time in the tournament (1979 at Appalachian State and the other six at Georgia Tech).

He has posted a 281-168 record in 15 years (he was youngest head coach in the nation at age 27 when he took over at Appalachian State). He revived a Georgia Tech program that was 4-23 and took it to the ACC title less than 48 months later.

Close games abound

Close games are becoming the rule in the NCAA tournament; this year, there have been 23 games (of 60 played) decided by three points or fewer, which means the losing team usually had a shot at tying the game with a three-pointer.

Seven of the games were one-point victories, breaking the record of six set in 1981 and tied in 1982 and 1984. Ball State and Minnesota were involved in three of those games, while Clemson won two games by a total of six points and lost to Connecticut in the regionals on a last-second basket.

There also have been five overtime games, just missing the record of six set in 1975 (which, incidentally, came when there were only 32 teams and 36 games in the tournament). Michigan State played in two of the

Arkansas' Oliver Miller is one of five Razorbacks with double-digit scoring averages

Stacey Augmon of Nevada-Las Vegas is averaging 14.1 points and 6.9 rebounds this season overtime games, losing to Georgia Tech on a last-second shot.

Connecticut, recently crowned the new "Beast of the East," got an improbable winning basket from Tate George to edge Clemson, 71-70. Scott Burrell, a baseball pitcher drafted by the Seattle Mariners, made a perfect length-of-the-court pass to George, who whirled and hit a turnaround jumper as the Clemson players, trying to avoid fouling him, gave him just the opening he needed. So little time was left in the game that many argued George did not release the ball before the buzzer; but Clemson coach Cliff Ellis, after viewing the replays, conceded it was good.

"The bucket was good, count it," Ellis said. "You have to give Connecticut credit for getting the shot off within a second."

The irony is that 42 hours later, Jim Calhoun's Huskies died by the same sword in the regional finals as Duke's Christian Laettner drilled a 15-foot jumper with—yes—a second left in overtime to end Connecticut's dream season, 79-78.

Duke becomes the seventh team in tournament history to make the Final Four three straight years. The others? UCLA (actually nine in a row) 1967-75, Houston 1982-84, Ohio State 1960-62, Cincinnati 1961-63, North Carolina 1967-69 and San Francisco 1955-57.

The big question among tournament experts is, what happened to the high seeds in the tournament and especially the No. 1 seeds? The higher-seeded teams seemed to be involved in many of the nailbiters and overtime games, from which they failed to advance.

Ten of the top 12 seeds have been eliminated, including three of the No. 1 seeds—Oklahoma, Michigan State and Connecticut. Nevada-Las Vegas is the only No. 1 seed to advance this year. The 1980 tournament was the only time since seeding began in 1979 that a No. 1 seed failed to make the Final Four. Syracuse, Louisiana State, Kentucky and DePaul were beaten that year.

This is the first time that two No. 4 seeds—Arkansas and Georgia Tech—have made it to the Final Four in the same year. The only other No. 4 to get that far was Georgia in 1983. The lowest seed to win the championship was Villanova (No. 8) in 1985.

Lowest in four years

NCAA tournament scoring is down to 150.32 points per game (both teams combined)—lowest in four years—despite the popularity of the three-point shot, which is one of the reasons for the closeness of so many tournament games. That is a drop of nearly eight points in one year and probably is due to a drop in both two-point and three-point shooting percentages.

The same is true in the national statistics entering postseason play, where scoring was down to 149.91.

The tournament figure is not significant compared to others. The all-time record is 172.59 points in the 1970 tournament (29 games), followed by 161.22 in 1965 and 161.08 in 1975. Last year's 158.48 was the fourth highest in history.

Introduction of the 45-second clock in 1986 helped tournament scoring jump to 142.98 from only 127.38 in 1985—second lowest in 32 years. Introduction of the three-pointer helped it jump again in 1986 to 154.56. It edged up to 154.63 in 1987 and jumped to 158.48 last year.

Three-point accuracy has gone down, from 40.35 percent in 1987 to 36.92 in 1988 and 33.98 so far this tournament, mainly because more players are shooting it, instead of just one or two specialists. Better defenses against the shot also could figure in the drop, but attempts per game continue to rise.

Two-point accuracy from inside the 19-9 arc has gone down, from 51.60 percent in 1989 to 47.83 so far in this tournament. Before this year, there had been a steady rise each year.

The tournament figures track close to the national trends, as the chart below shows:

Another interesting angle—tournament scoring usually is not affected by a single game or even several games, but the high-scoring games in the tournament this year—the record-setting 149 for Loyola Marymount and UNLV's 131 to knock Loyola Marymount out—put the scoring figures to a test. That scoring is down despite these record-setting team performances indicates that the many close games in this year's tournament were not necessarily high-scoring affairs.

But tournament scoring had been well below national scoring for five straight years before the clock, as the table shows. Zone defenses played a prominent role, and the downward spiral of scoring and

ACC leads

The Atlantic Coast Conference, with two teams in the Final Four, slow-paced games prompted experiments with the clock and three-point. The Sun Belt Conference was the first to use the 45-second clock.

Before that, tournament scoring was below national scoring just nine times in 38 years and then almost always by a narrow margin.

The 1970s were the period of highest scoring, both nationally and in the tournament. The national record of 155.40 was set in 1971, a year after the tournament high. In 1973, the current free-throw rule (no free throws on the first six common fouls of each half) was established, cutting almost 13 free-throw attempts from the average game, and scoring fell to 150.86.

Duke's eighth

This is Duke's eighth Final Four. That ties the Blue Devils for fourth leads conferences this year with a 13-3 record in tournament play. The Big East Conference is next at 7-6 and the Big Ten Conference third at 8-7. No Big Ten teams remain after the conference placed a record seven teams in the tournament. The Big East had six teams selected; none remain.

Tournament attendance

Tournament attendance is headed for No. 4 in total attendance and fifth in average per session. After 32 sessions, the total is 517,987 paid for an average of 16,187. The high was 19,257 in 1987, when both Final Four sessions in New Orleans totaled 64,959 (paid plus media), the record paid attendance in history.

It appears that the 1990 tournament total will approach 550,000, with the average above 16,000. Denver's McNichols Arena seats 17,022.

Krzyzewski moves up

This will be the third Final Four appearance for Duke's Mike Krzyzewski since 1986.

Richardson is the only coach in the current Final Four who also played in the NCAA tournament, but he is just one of 74 coaches who have done so. Four first-time coaches in the 1990 tournament also played—Bob Bender of Illinois State, Jim O'Brien of Dayton, Randy Ayers of Ohio State and Roger Reid of Brigham Young. Twelve other 1990 tournament coaches played and coached.

First-time champion

Not one of the four teams in Denver has ever won the championship, so a first-time champion is assured. Duke has finished second four times in seven Final Four trips, Arkansas was third in all three of its trips and Nevada-Las Vegas third in both of its trips, and Georgia Tech is making its first trip to the Final Four.

Cowboys defend I wrestling crown with a strong finish

After opening the final day of the 1990 Division I Wrestling Championships tied for the lead with Arizona State, Oklahoma State made a strong showing in the afternoon consolation and won two individual titles in the evening finals to claim its second straight team championship.

The Cowboys, who built an 8½-point lead during the consolation, clinched their 29th title at the tournament when Thom Ortiz of Arizona State lost to Oklahoma's Joe Reynolds, 7-3, in the 142-pound final. Ortiz's loss eliminated the Sun Devils and made Oklahoma State the first team to repeat as champions since Iowa's nine-year streak ended in 1987.

The victorious Cowboys earned 117½ points, 13 points more than the Sun Devils. Iowa finished third with 102½ points, and a surprisingly strong Northwestern team was fourth with 66½.

The championships were held March 22-24 at Maryland.

Oklahoma State's individual titlists were freshman Pat Smith at 158 pounds and senior Chris Barnes at 177. Barnes was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler for recording one pin and two technical falls on the way to his second straight 177-pound title. The Cowboys also got third-place finishes from defending champion Kendall Cross at 126 pounds, Chris Owens at 134 and Chuck Barb at 142.

Arizona State's only title winner was 167-pounder Dan St. John, who won the 158-pound crown last year. St. John earned a 6-3 decision over Brad Traviola of Northwestern in the finals to finish his senior season with a 40-0-1 record. Ortiz and 118-pounder Zeke Jones earned second-place finishes for the Sun Devils, and Townsend Saunders placed third at 150.

Iowa was the only other team to win two individual titles as sophomore twins Terry and Tom Brands captured crowns at 126 and 134 pounds, respectively. They became the first brothers win individual championships in the same year since Nebraska's Bill and Jim Scherr, also twins, won in 1984.

Pat Smith's victory at 158 pounds added more family flavor to the tournament. His brother Lee Roy won the 142-pound title in 1980 and brother John won titles in 1987 and 1988 at 134 pounds. Both wrestled for Oklahoma State.

No. 1 seeds claimed seven of the 10 individual titles. In addition to Barnes, Terry Brands, Reynolds, Smith and St. John, Lehigh's Matt Ruppel (190) and Clarion's Kurt Angle (heavyweight) lived up to their top billings. The lowest-seeded champion was Jack Griffin of Northwestern, who claimed the title at 118 pounds.

Iowa's Doug Streicher, who finished sixth at 150 pounds, earned the Gorrarian Trophy for recording the most pins (three) in the shortest amount of time (5:42).

Texas men win another swim title

After jumping out to an early lead, Texas withstood a second-day charge by Southern California and then pulled away to win its third straight Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships team title.

The Longhorns, who won their fourth title since 1981 under coach Eddie Reese, outdistanced the Trojans by 83 points, 506-423. Stanford edged Michigan by 3½ points to finish third at the March 22-24 meet at the Indiana University Natatorium in Indianapolis.

Texas won four of five relays—setting two American records and one meet record in the process—and Longhorns senior Kirk Stackle successfully defended his title in the 100-yard breaststroke to lead the way to victory. Senior Doug Gjertsen also won an individual title for the Longhorns in the 200-yard freestyle.

After leading by 17 points at the end of the first day of competition, Texas briefly yielded the lead to Southern Cal when the Trojans' David Wharton and Ray Looze finished Nos. 1 and 2 in the 400-yard individual medley. With the victory, Wharton swept the individual medleys at the meet for the third straight year.

But Texas quickly recovered and established a 69-point lead at day's end, then never looked back on the final day.

"This was the best (meet) we've had, even better than in 1988," said Reese, who saw Texas become the sixth school in the championships' 67-year history to win three straight team titles. "Had we swam this year like we swam last year, we'd have been a second-place team."

The Longhorns won every relay race but the 200-yard medley, in which Princeton successfully defended its title and established American and meet records.

But Texas set its own American marks in the 400-yard medley and 800-yard freestyle relays, anchored both times by Gjertsen. The medley time also is a meet best, but the freestyle mark was one-tenth of a second short of Florida's 1984 meet record in that event.

Gjertsen, who also swam the last leg of the Longhorns' winning effort in the 400-yard freestyle relay, has anchored nine Texas relay teams to victory in the past three years.

Only one record-setting performance was turned in outside of the relays, but it struck down the oldest mark in the book. With his 1:53.77 victory in the 200-yard breaststroke, Michigan's Michael Barrowman broke American and meet marks set in 1981 by Steve Lundquist of Southern Methodist.

"It needed to be broken," Barrowman said. "It was too old. It was a good record, but its time had passed."

Lundquist's record in the 1983 meet's 100-yard breaststroke is now the oldest surviving mark.

Three other swimmers joined Southern Cal's Wharton as double titlists at the meet—Michigan's Brent Lang won the 50- and 100-yard freestyles, Florida's Anthony Nesty swept the butterfly events and Iowa's Artur Wojdat won the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyles. Wojdat also was a double winner last year, while Lang won the 50 freestyle for the second straight year.

Panthers wearing sixth hoop crown

Starter Corey Crowder scored 26 points, and LeRoy Ellis Jr. came off the bench to add 16 as Kentucky Wesleyan defeated Cal State Bakersfield, 93-79, March 26 to win an unprecedented sixth Division II Men's Basketball Championship.

The Panthers have won championships in four decades, including three in the 1960's. Kentucky Wesleyan had been tied with Evansville for most championships with five. Evansville now competes in Division I.

"The bench has been the key for us all year," coach Wayne Chapman said. "Anyone who has watched us play knows that, and anybody who looks at (the championship game's) stat sheet can see that."

The box score shows that all 11 players participated in the game, and nine played more than 10 minutes. Five players scored in double figures.

"Kentucky Wesleyan can be described as the most unselfish team that ever played," Chapman said. "(The players) sacrificed a lot to win a championship."

Ellis, the son of former National Basketball Association star LeRoy Ellis and brother of Syracuse center LeRon Ellis, could have been a starter on many teams but accepted his role as a reserve with the Panthers.

"Coach said we would go in, and he kept his word all season," he said, regarding his backup role.

Ellis entered the championship game approximately five minutes into the first half with his team trailing 13-7. He scored 11 quick points to put the Panthers up 24-19. He came in at about the same point in the second half and quickly hit a three-point field goal and a layup to extend a Panther lead.

"You have to take your hat off to Kentucky Wesleyan," Cal State Bakersfield coach Pat Douglass said. "They shot the three-pointer well and got good support from their bench."

The Roadrunners were paced by Wade Green, the tournament's most outstanding player. He scored 31 points and played all 40 minutes.

"Defensively, (Kentucky Wesleyan) did a good job of limiting the other players," Douglass said. "Wade had 22 points at the half, but I think the next man had four points."

The Panthers got a scare in the quarterfinals when they needed an extra period to defeat Southeast Missouri State, 91-90. Southeast Missouri State went to the line for a one-and-one with no time remaining on the clock in overtime, but the shot was no good. Crowder scored 26 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

In the third-place game, North Dakota, led by Dave Vonesh's 35 points, defeated Morehouse, 98-77.

Green was joined on the all-tournament team by Ellis, Crowder and Vincent Mitchell of Kentucky Wesleyan.

Delta State women cap challenging season with hoop title

By Charles Bentley
Special to The NCAA News

After a season of meeting challenges, Delta State battled through two final obstacles and won a second straight NCAA Division II Women's Basketball Championship March 25 at Cal Poly Pomona.

The Lady Statesmen overwhelmed Bentley in the title game, senior forward Crystal Hardy scoring 22 points and grabbing 11 rebounds in pacing Delta State to a 77-43 victory. For her efforts in the semifinals and finals, Hardy garnered most-valuable-player honors on the all-tournament team.

"When you have confidence in your coaching, confidence in your teammates and confidence in yourself, you're going to believe that the team is going to win," said Hardy. "We just wanted to prove to everyone else we could do it." A 12-2 start put Delta State ahead to stay, the Lady Statesmen eventually opening up to a 34-15 half-time lead. In the first 20 minutes, the DSU defense held Bentley to a 7-for-25 effort from the field.

"They are an outstanding team. They deserve to be ranked No. 1 and to win the national championship," said Bentley head coach Barbara Stevens. "We're just disappointed we didn't give them a better game."

Delta State finished the season 32-1, including a 57-53 victory over Cal Poly Pomona in the semifinals. The Lady Statesmen became only the second squad to earn back-to-back Division II titles. Cal Poly Pomona won titles in 1985 and 1986.

"For us, the key was just how hard these kids worked all year. Winning the first time was tough, but this was harder," said Delta State head coach Lloyd Clark, his team setting a new title-game record for margin of victory with the 34-point spread. "All year, we've been the team people have been shooting at, trying to knock us off. These kids never folded. They set their goals, kept them in sight and eventually accomplished every one."

Pam Lockett had 11 points and 10 rebounds to aid the Delta State effort, with Anita Robinson adding 11 points and nine boards.

Tracie Seymour scored 12 points and collected seven rebounds for the Falcons, teammate Cheryl Boettger grabbing 15 rebounds.

Bentley, in its first-ever visit to the title game, finished 31-4 overall.

The Falcons advanced to the championship game by outlasting Oakland, 72-68, in the semifinals.

Cal Poly Pomona, in its seventh trip to the semifinals in nine years, captured third place with an 87-68 victory over Oakland.

Top-ranked Delta State won the hard way in the semifinals, battling No. 2 Cal Poly Pomona on the Broncos' home court. The year before, the Lady Statesmen blasted Cal Poly, 88-58, in the championship game in DSU's gym in Cleveland, Mississippi.

This year, after building and impressive 19-point half-time lead, Delta State players failed to heed the warnings of their coach and allowed Cal Poly to battle back into contention.

"I told my players at the half, Cal Poly was too talented a team not to make a run at us," said Clark.

Behind, 44-26, with 16:37 to play, the Broncos outscored Delta State, 15-2, over the next seven minutes, freshman Danielle Carter's layup pulling the hosts to within 46-41.

But after the two teams traded baskets, the Lady Statesmen put together their own 11-2 run, Liz Wallace's 12-foot jumper producing a 59-45 Delta State advantage with five minutes remaining.

Wallace finished with 18 points and Pam Taylor 16 points, the two starting guards keying Delta State's semifinal victory.

"They didn't do anything we didn't expect, shooting far better than we'd hoped they might from the outside," said Broncos head coach Darlene May, the loss denying her team a chance at a fourth Division II title in the nine-year history of the tournament. "If (Taylor) doesn't shoot the way she did (in the first 20 minutes), we're only down four or five points at half time."

Hiki Bracken scored 13 points, pulled down seven rebounds, garnered five assists and blocked three shots for Cal Poly Pomona.

In the other semifinal, Bentley also had to overcome a second-half challenge to advance to the title game.

The Falcons built a 34-15 lead with 2:12 left before half time, only to see the Pioneers score seven unanswered points to close to 34-22 at the break.

Oakland continued its roll in the second half with an 18-3 start, trimming the Bentley lead to 40-37 just over four minutes in. And when Janice Kosman hit a layup at the 11:30 mark, the Pioneers took the lead, 46-45.

The battle remained tight the rest of the way. Boettger's basket inside with 38 seconds left giving Bentley the lead for good, aided by some clutch free-throw shooting in the final seconds.

Seymour scored 16 points and collected six rebounds to top the Falcons, who recorded a school-record 23rd straight victory with the semifinal triumph. Boettger added 15 points and Missy Wolfe 14 points to the cause.

For Oakland, Debbie Delie scored 27 points and grabbed five rebounds before fouling out with 12 seconds remaining.

The all-tournament team include Hardy (MVP) and Lockett from Delta State, Seymour from Bentley, Bracken from Cal Poly Pomona and Delie from Oakland.

Pointers defend III hockey title

By Rick Diny
Special to The NCAA News

Wisconsin-Stevens Point became the first Division III team to claim back-to-back men's ice hockey titles when it defeated Plattsburgh State March 24 in a championship minigame, 1-0.

The host Pointers, who finished the season at 28-4-6, won the opening game of the two-night series, 10-1, but the Cardinals charged back to take a 6-3 victory the second night and set up the minigame showdown.

Plattsburgh State goaltender Les Sirota, who stopped 32 shots in the second game, and Pointer goalie Todd Chin made several big saves during the minigame. But with 1:35 to play, Wisconsin-Stevens Point freshman Jeff Marshall deflected a shot by Mike Hess for the victory.

"That's the greatest feeling I've ever had," said Marshall. "That's why you play the game, for times like this."

Chin, whose own fairy-tale season last season helped lead the Pointers to their first title, had a stellar performance in the minigame after a lackluster performance in the second game. However, Wisconsin-Stevens Point coach Mark Mazzoleni never thought of pulling his goaltender in the minigame.

"In the 13 years that I've been involved in hockey, and I was a goaltender, also, I've never seen a better money goaltender than Todd Chin," said Mazzoleni. "He's won some very big games for us, and he's proven himself under pressure."

Following the 10-1 blowout opening night, the Pointers were by no means ready to let up against the Cardinals. When asked after the tournament at what point he realized that Plattsburgh State was a better team than it showed in the opening loss, Paul Caufield of the Pointers said, "We knew that last night. We knew there was no way that we were nine goals better than they were. They made the adjustments that they had to make, and they played a great game."

Caufield, who set Division III championship records for assists (10) and points (14) in the tournament last year, scored two goals and added an assist in the first game. Caufield's second goal, his 33rd of the season, tied the Wisconsin-Stevens Point record for goals in a season. He was named the championship's most outstanding player.

Freshman Todd Tretter added two goals in the first game for the Pointers.

Game No. 2 was a complete turnaround, with the Cardinals dominating from the outset. Even though the Pointers outshot Plattsburgh State, 35-25, the Cardinals made the most of their opportunities.

Jim Duran got Plattsburgh State started with a power-play goal midway through the first period and then assisted on Matt Furtado's goal at 5:39 of the second period for a 2-0 lead.

overtime before winning, 79-75. That was the closest game of the tournament for any of the four semifinalists. Louisiana Tech won by an average score of 84-58, Stanford by 99-76, Auburn by 79-57 and Virginia by 80-70.

Auburn facts

Auburn has the tallest player in the semifinals with 6-6 Linda Godby, a senior from Indianapolis .... Junior guard Carolyn Jones was chosen Southeastern Conference player of the year this season .... Ciampi's daughter Lisa is a reserve junior guard .... The Lady Tigers are matched with Louisiana Tech in the first round of the semifinals for the second consecutive year .... Ciampi's coaching record leads all active SEC coaches at 320-78 (.804).

Louisiana Tech facts

The Lady Techsters had one other undefeated season (34-0 as AIAW champions in 1981) .... Tech has been over 30 wins in a season six times since 1982 .... Barmore is the only former national-title winner in the field (Tech won in 1988) .... Tech has a 4-1 lifetime mark against Auburn but lost last year's semifinal game to the Lady Tigers, 76-71 .... The Lady Techsters have a 154-26 (.856) all-time record against the other teams in the tournament.

Stanford facts

Stanford has scored 100 points or more only 20 times in its 15-year history; but 10 of those games came this year, including the 114-87 victory over Arkansas in the regional finals .... The Cardinal women have the nation's second-longest home-court winning streak at 32 games, trailing only Auburn's 55 games .... Stanford has won 30 of its last 31 games and 52 of its last 54 overall, and 47 of its last 48 regular-season games .... Jennifer Azzi was chosen Naismith player of the year .... Dawn Staley had arthroscopic surgery on her left knee in December, but she has had five double/double games and scored 81 in three tournament games .... Staley also attended the same high school in Philadelphia (Dobbin's) as Loyola Marymount players Bo Kimble and the late Hank Gathers .... Heather and Heidi Burge are freshman twin sisters (both 6-4 centers).

The Revolutionary Gillette Sensor.

It senses and adjusts to the individual needs of your face for the best shave a man can get.

The remarkable Gillette Sensor shaving system creates an entirely new standard in shaving performance. It's a shave personalized to every man.

The revolution starts with the platinum hardened Sensor twin blades. They're individually and independently mounted on highly responsive springs. So they continuously sense and automatically adjust to the individual curves and unique needs of your face.

But innovation doesn't stop there. The ultra narrow metal skin guard is also mounted on springs. It moves in total harmony with the blades to set up your beard for optimum shaving performance.

Keeping this technology in constant contact with your face required another breakthrough. A dramatic redesign of the entire pivoting process creates a wider, more responsive, unprecedentedly smooth pivoting action. Innovation is everywhere.

You can feel it in the textured ridges and balance of the Sensor razor. You appreciate it in the easy loading system and the convenient shaving organizer.

Even rinsing is innovative. The new blades are 50% narrower than any others — water flows freely around and through them, helping to make rinsing and cleaning totally effortless.

But the true revolution of Sensor comes not with any one feature, but with the way the Sensor technologies work together. They combine to give your individual face a personalized shave — the closest, smoothest, safest shave you've ever had. Or, more precisely, the best shave a man can get.

consensus all-America basketball team.

Also named to the first team were Louisiana State's Chris Jackson, Oregon State's Gary Payton and La Salle's Lionel Simmons.

Coleman, a 6-9 senior who has rewritten all of the Orangemen career records, was a unanimous choice. Payton, a 6-4 senior, and Simmons, a 6-7 senior, also were unanimous selections. The organizations that compose the consensus selections are the Associated Press, United Press International, United States Basketball Writers Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Loyola Marymount's Bo Kimble, the nation's leading scorer, and his late teammate Hank Gathers top the second team. Other second-team consensus choices were Georgetown center Alonzo Mourning, Michigan guard Rumeal Robinson, Georgia Tech forward Dennis Scott and Missouri forward Doug Smith.

Others receiving votes were Georgia Tech's Kenny Anderson, Illinois' Kendall Gill, Georgia's Alec Kessler, Missouri's Anthony Peeler, Syracuse's Billy Owens, Kansas' Mark Randall, Purdue's Steve Scheffler and Michigan State's Steve Smith.

Arkansas notes

Arkansas has advanced farther in the tourney than any Southwest Athletic Conference team since Houston in 1984 (second place)...This is the first time a conference had two sets of teams advance to the Sweet Sixteen (Arkansas' men and women and Texas' men and women)...Lee Mayberry led the nation this year in assist-to-turnover ratio and also was first in fewest turnovers among the top guards.

Duke notes

Duke has had phenomenal success in the East region at East Rutherford, New Jersey. Of the eight times the Blue Devils have advanced to the Final Four, all of those trips started in the East, and Duke has an 8-0 record in Brendan Byrne Arena...The senior class of Alaa Abdelnaby, Robert Brickey and Phil Henderson has accumulated a 108-32 record in its four years. It marks the fourth straight senior group to graduate from Duke with 100-plus wins.

Georgia Tech notes

Guard Kenny Anderson became the second freshman ever to make the all-ACC team—the first was Clemson's Skip Wise in 1975...Tech posted a 17-0 record (including tournament games) outside the ACC this year...Lethal Weapon 3—Tech's trio of Dennis Scott, Brian Oliver and Anderson—has accounted for 80 percent of the Yellow Jackets' points in the tournament.

Nevada-Las Vegas notes

All five starters for the Rebels—Greg Anthony, Anderson Hunt, Stacey Augmon, Larry Johnson and David Butler—received all-Big West Conference honors...Since UNLV's first season of basketball (1958-59), the Rebels have assembled a string of 31 consecutive winning seasons...UNLV is 124-27 over the last eight seasons in away games (road and neutral-court games combined).

Other notes

Mississippi Valley freshman Alphonzo Ford scored 808 points and averaged 29.926 points per game. If he had scored one more point during the season, he could have joined Louisiana State's Chris Jackson as the only NCAA player to average 30 points or more as a freshman.

There really was no secret why

Ball State was so successful in 1990—defense. The Cardinals yielded only 58.4 points per game this season and held their first two tournament opponents, Oregon State and Louisville, to 53 and 60 points, respectively, before falling to UNLV, 69-67.

La Salle's 22-game streak, snapped by Clemson in the second round of the tournament, tied West Virginia's 22-gamer last year, and only Loyola Marymount's 25-game string in 1987-88 was longer in the last three seasons.

Loyola Marymount did not just break the previous team season-scoring record, the Lions fractured it. Paul Westhead's team used an all-out running offense with a relentless press to average 124.8 points. The old record was 112.5, set in 1989 by, you guessed it, Loyola Marymount.

MVC to use two baseball clocks

The Missouri Valley Conference will experiment with 20- and 90-second clocks in baseball this season in an effort to cut down on the time it takes to play college games.

The experimental clock will be used in all conference games, and the Missouri Valley will be the only conference in the country this season to use it. The MVC begins conference play April 7.

The clock limits the amount of time between pitches, (20 seconds) and the time teams have to change field positions at the end of each half-inning (90 seconds).

Defending NCAA champion Wichita State has used the clock in 10 of its 20 nonconference games so far this season, with an average time savings of 34 minutes in games played with the clock. The average game time without the clock was 3:09. That compares with a 2:35 average for games played with the clock, which produced only one game that exceeded three hours.

Wichita State head coach Gene Stephenson, a main proponent of the clock, says it is "the best thing that's ever happened to college baseball. Opposing coaches, to a man, after playing with it have been enthusiastic and excited about the clock and indicated they'd like to see it in college games."

"Granted, there are NCAA rules already in place that cover what we're doing," said Stephenson, "but in reality there's a big difference between what happens and what's written. You can see the results."

Once a pitcher receives the ball, a 20-second count starts on the clock. A ball will be called on the batter if the pitcher fails to deliver the ball in 20 seconds. A batter must be in the box and ready to take the pitch with five or more seconds left on the clock, or a strike will be called.

The 20-second between-pitch clock is used when bases are empty.

The 90-second clock is used for position changes after each half-inning. Teams will be allowed 90 seconds to take the field and have a batter ready after the third out of each half-inning. If the batting team isn't ready, a strike will be called on the first batter up. If the defensive team isn't ready, a ball will be called on the batter.

Clocks are positioned atop the outfield fence (either right center or left center) or next to the outfield scoreboard. The conference will monitor the length of games and the number of violations that occur during its conference season, and present that information to the NCAA Baseball Rules Committee.

CORRECTION

In its March 14 issue, The NCAA News erroneously reported the results of the 200-yard medley relay event at the Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships. The News unknowingly used unofficial results for that event and reported that Oakland's 200-yard medley relay team finished second. After the race, the Oakland relay team was disqualified. Unaware of Oakland's disqualification, the News suggested that Cal State Northridge's disqualification in another relay race cost the Matadors points that may have won the team title; in fairness, the story also should have reported Oakland's disqualification. The final team point totals that appeared in the story are unaffected by the error; Oakland is still a four-point victor over Cal State Northridge for the team title.

Research confirms that business thrives on lots of sun and plenty of water.

The sound of water cascading from a fountain can help crystallize one's thinking.

A sunny room is infinitely more uplifting than a dim room.

Certain color schemes can warm you. Open, airy spaces can make you feel free.

Certainly, none of these thoughts is especially surprising. What is surprising, however, is that only one group of hotels seems to employ them to the fullest advantage of today's business traveller: Hyatt® Hotels.

Which may help to explain why everything, from our atriums to our guest rooms, has such a distinctive appeal.

Why business executives tend to feel more relaxed and more focused at Hyatt.

And why, given our competitive rates and the benefits of our Gold Passport® Frequent Traveller Program, enlightened companies are happy to see their executives come back to a Hyatt Hotel. After all, what's good for business people invariably is good for business.

Houston Baptist's men's gymnastics program goes on probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has rendered Houston Baptist University's men's gymnastics team ineligible for preseason and postseason competition during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons, and has imposed a three-year probationary period for major violations of NCAA rules. Because it was determined that ineligible student-athletes competed for the university in the 1987, 1988 and 1989 National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships, the NCAA will vacate all team and individual records earned by the ineligible student-athletes during those championships.

In addition, the university:

- Shall be prohibited from awarding any new grants-in-aid in the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years.

- Shall not increase during those years the athletically related financial aid awarded to individuals currently receiving such aid.

In its report, the committee cited major violations that "gave the university extraordinary recruiting and competitive advantages." The committee said that prior to enrollment at Houston Baptist University, the university provided housing and meals to three highly talented foreign prospective student-athletes — contrary to both NCAA and institutional guidelines.

These arrangements were made with the knowledge of the men's head gymnastics coach, and the costs were paid with athletics funds after their enrollment, which resulted in the receipt of financial aid that exceeded the amount the young men were entitled to receive for that academic year.

The committee also found that the head coach arranged for one student-athlete to receive a round-trip airline ticket between Houston, Texas, and the student-athlete's native country, and also permitted a prospective student-athlete to participate in practice sessions with members of the university's men's gymnastics team.

The committee concluded that the head coach was "involved directly" in these and other violations and that he provided misleading information concerning his involvement in and knowledge of events relating to the extra benefits. The committee accepted the university's action to remove the head coach from all coaching and athletically related responsibilities until December 15, 1990; however, the committee also has instructed the university to show cause why additional penalties should not be imposed if it does not take further action against the coach. Such action, the committee said, should extend the prohibition against all coaching and athletically related responsibilities at the university until July 1, 1991, and should prohibit off-campus recruiting and evaluation activities until December 15, 1991.

In addition, should the head coach seek employment at another NCAA member institution within the next five years, both he and the new institution will be required to appear before the committee to consider whether action should be taken to limit his athletically related duties at that institution.

The committee also determined that the university's institutional controls were inadequate to detect the violations and to take corrective action against those responsible for them. As a result, during the probationary period, the university "must provide persuasive evidence of effective institutional controls for the intercollegiate athletics program."

Because the committee determined that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation, it is required by the membership to impose at least the following penalties, which are among the minimum penalties for such violations: a two-year probationary period; loss of postseason competition and live television appearances for at least one year; elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year, and the elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year.

The committee acknowledged Houston Baptist University's "exemplary cooperation in the investigation, its diligence in uncovering the most serious violation independently and its candor before the committee." Because of these factors, the committee suspended the final year (1992-93) of several of the penalties in this case.

Members of the Committee on Infractions are Roy F. Kramer, incoming commissioner of the Southeastern Conference; Beverly E. Ledbetter, vice-president and general counsel at Brown University; John E. Nowak, professor of law at the University of Illinois, Champaign; Patricia A. O'Hara, associate professor of law at the University of Notre Dame; Milton R. Schroeder, professor of law at Arizona State University, and D. Alan Williams (committee chair), associate professor of history at the University of Virginia.

The committee's full report follows.

I. Introduction.

The NCAA enforcement staff began an inquiry into allegations of possible violations in the men's gymnastics program at Houston Baptist University following receipt of information in November 1988 regarding the recruitment of prospective student-athletes and the possible provision of extra benefits to enrolled student-athletes. In response to a February 15, 1989, request, the university reviewed the potential violations and submitted findings to the national office May 8, 1989. The university reported violations regarding the payment of prospective student-athletes' precollege expenses.

A subsequent review by an enforcement representative, with the cooperation of the university, disclosed additional violations. A letter of preliminary inquiry was sent September 26, 1989, and an official inquiry was issued December 5, 1989.

On January 15, 1990, a prehearing conference was conducted in Houston, Texas. The university cooperated with the enforcement staff throughout all of the proceedings. A hearing was conducted before the NCAA Committee on Infractions February 3, 1990, and was attended by university representatives and the men's head gymnastics coach.

Prior to enrollment at the university, several highly talented foreign prospective student-athletes received lodging and meals in university housing. Although the young men later were billed for the costs of the lodging and meals, these costs were, in fact, borne by athletics department funds, resulting in the provision of institutional financial aid in excess of the amount of financial aid the student-athletes were entitled to receive for that academic year. These arrangements were made for the student-athletes by or with the knowledge of the men's head gymnastics coach and other institutional employees who were involved in the provision of housing and meals to the prospective student-athletes contrary to both NCAA rules and institutional guidelines. The violations in the case constituted major violations and gave the university extraordinary recruiting and competitive advantages.

The committee also found that one student-athlete received extra benefits in the form of a round-trip airline ticket between Houston, Texas, and the student-athlete's native country for the purpose of meeting with his country's Olympic committee to discuss his eligibility to compete with that country's gymnastics team. This trip was arranged by the men's head gymnastics coach who accompanied the student-athlete on the trip and arranged for the use of university funds for the purchase of the tickets.

Also in violation of NCAA regulations, the men's head gymnastics coach permitted a highly talented prospective student-athlete to participate in practice sessions on a daily basis with members of the university's gymnastics team. The coach was present at these practices and knew that the young man was not enrolled at the university. The young man subsequently enrolled at the university and competed in the 1987 National Collegiate Division I Men's Gymnastics Championships.

The committee's review of the allegations indicated that the men's head gymnastics coach was involved directly in several of the violations and that he violated the principles of ethical conduct by knowingly engaging in activities that violated NCAA regulations. Further, the committee concluded that the men's head gymnastics coach provided misleading information concerning his involvement in and knowledge of events relating to the provision of extra benefits to a student-athlete. In fact, the committee concluded that the coach provided reliable information only after hearing that others had corroborated the allegations. One student-athlete also was found to have violated the principles of ethical conduct by providing false and misleading information concerning his receipt of improper travel benefits.

During the review of the specific allegations, it became apparent that the institution's monitoring mechanisms either were insufficient to identify possible violations or were disregarded readily by several levels of administrative personnel. This finding is supported by an examination of the university's financial records, which clearly indicate an inadequate system for accounting for funds from an agency account. The system in place at the time of the violations did not permit timely monitoring of student-athlete accounts, failed to disclose the apparent misuse of funds, failed to provide for adequately documented receipts and was less than assertive in collecting money owed by student-athletes.

In addition, violations similar to those in the men's gymnastics program were found in the women's gymnastics program with respect to the provision of housing and meals to a foreign prospective student-athlete at no cost to the young woman. This prospective student-athlete also practiced with the gymnastics team while not enrolled. Both violations are acknowledged to have occurred with the knowledge of the women's head gymnastics coach, and the men's head gymnastics coach was involved in the arrangements of housing.

The repetitive nature of these violations led the committee to conclude that institutional controls were inadequate to detect the violations and to take corrective action against those responsible for the violations. The testimony provided and documentation supplied during the hearing support the committee's conclusion.

Prior to determining the appropriate range of penalties to be applied in the case, the committee noted that the participation of highly talented student-athletes who received the impermissible extra benefits enriched the institution's team and resulted in a significant competitive advantage. In fact, the performances of the involved student-athletes enabled the institution to enjoy substantial success in both team and individual competition during their enrollment.

The committee noted the institution's self-imposed sanctions, including disciplinary actions taken with respect to the involved coaches and administrative personnel and plans for strengthening institutional controls. In view of the institutional action and the cooperation of the university's administrative staff, the committee adjusted the penalties that it otherwise would have imposed.

The university was placed on probation for a period of three years. During the probationary period, the university must provide persuasive evidence of effective institutional controls for its intercollegiate athletics program, including its gymnastics programs. The university will not be allowed additional grants-in-aid for a period of three years, and no increases in the grants presently being received by student-athletes will be permitted. The NCAA will vacate all team and individual records earned by the ineligible student-athletes in the 1987, 1988 and 1989 National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships, and the university's men's gymnastics team will complete its 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons with the last regularly scheduled meet and will not be eligible for any postseason meets and tournaments during those academic years.

Because of the head coach's extensive involvement in the violations, the university also will be required to show cause why additional penalties should not be imposed against him by the university. It is the committee's present view that such actions should include a prohibition against all coaching and athletically related responsibilities until July 1, 1991, and all off-campus evaluation activities, including at international sites, until December 15, 1991. Each of the penalties is described in detail in Part III of this report.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.2.2-(h), 13.15.1, 15.1 and 16.12.2] During the period July 1986 to March 1987, prior to the enrollment in the university of three highly talented foreign prospective student-athletes, the men's head gymnastics coach arranged for these young men to receive lodging and meals in university housing. Further, the young men's student accounts were billed for this lodging and meals, and these costs subsequently were paid with athletics funds that were provided in addition to the young men's athletics grants-in-aid for that academic year. As a result of these payments, each student-athlete received institutional financial aid that exceeded the amount of grant-in-aid each young man should have received for that academic year. Specifically:

1. In July 1986, upon the arrival of two of the prospective student-athletes at the institution, the head coach contacted the then vice-president of student affairs and made arrangements for the prospects to move into a university dormitory; further, one of the young men resided in the dormitory prior to his enrollment from July 7 through September 6, 1986, and the $252 cost for this lodging subsequently was charged to the young man's student account; further, on October 2, 1986, moneys from the athletics department scholarship fund were utilized to pay these costs, and finally, the young man also was provided a full grant-in-aid for the 1986-87 academic year.

The second prospect resided in a dormitory prior to his enrollment from July 7 through December 2, 1986, and received meals in the university cafeteria from September 8 through December 2; further, after the young man's enrollment in December 1986, his student account was billed $1,017.85 for the cost of this lodging and meals; further, on April 7, 1987, athletics department scholarship funds were utilized to pay these costs, and finally, the young man also was provided a full grant-in-aid for the second and third quarters of the 1986-87 academic year.

2. In November 1986, the head coach contacted the vice-president for student affairs and made an arrangement that permitted the third prospect to reside in a university dormitory and to receive meals from December 2, 1986, to March 13, 1987 (the date of the young man's enrollment in the university); further, the head coach then contacted the then vice-president of business affairs and made arrangements for the young man to be billed for this housing on a deferred-payment basis; further, the cost ($581.80) for the lodging and meals during this period was billed to the young man's student account, and finally, on March 17, 1987, athletics department scholarship funds were utilized to pay these costs, and the young man also was provided a full grant-in-aid for the third quarter of the 1986-87 academic year.

B. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.1] In March 1988, the men's head gymnastics coach utilized institutional funds in order to purchase a round-trip airline ticket for a student-athlete to travel between Houston, Texas, and his home town in Europe at no cost to the young man in order for him to meet with his country's Olympic committee and discuss his eligibility to compete with that country's gymnastics team in the 1988 Olympics; further, the head coach accompanied the young man on the trip. Specifically, on March 15, the head coach submitted a requisition form to the then vice-president of business affairs who approved the use of university funds for the purchase of these airline tickets with the understanding that the United States Gymnastics Federation would repay the cost of the head coach's flight (which it subsequently did); further, the head coach obtained both tickets, and both the head coach and the student-athlete left on March 28 and returned on April 4, 1988.

C. [NCAA Bylaws 13.11.1 and 14.1.5.1] On a daily basis from September through the middle of October 1986, while recruiting a prospective student-athlete, the men's head gymnastics coach allowed the young man to participate in practice sessions with members of the university's gymnastics team, even though the head coach knew the prospect was not enrolled in the university.

D. [NCAA Bylaws 10.1-(c), 10.1-(d) and 11.1.1] The men's head gymnastics coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics. Specifically:

1. The head coach demonstrated a knowing and willful effort on his part to operate the institution's intercollegiate gymnastics program contrary to the provisions of NCAA legislation by his involvement in these findings.

2. The head coach provided false and misleading information concerning his involvement in and knowledge of events described in Finding No. 2 of this report during interviews involving an NCAA enforcement representative and university representatives.

E. [NCAA Bylaws 10.1-(d) and 14.01.4.3-(d)] A student-athlete acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct inasmuch as he did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards of honesty normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics in that the young man provided false and misleading information during interviews with an NCAA enforcement representative and university representatives.

F. [Constitution 2.1.2 and 3.2.1.2] The scope and nature of the violations found in this case indicate that the university clearly failed to maintain appropriate institutional control or to provide adequate monitoring and compliance programs to prevent and detect violations, permitted the head gymnastics coach to use university funds to violate NCAA regulations, and most seriously had several university administrative officers who were willing to find ways to circumvent normal administrative practices to achieve athletics goals, including the misuse of agency account funds, inadequately documenting receipts and not collecting monies owed by student-athletes on a timely basis.

G. The institution self-reported the following violations:

1. [NCAA Constitution 2.1.2, 3.2.1.2 and 6.2] An examination of the university's financial records clearly indicated that the university had failed to exercise an appropriate level of control over the expenditure of funds for recruiting in gymnastics.

Specifically, in the early phases of the recruitment of the foreign prospective student-athletes in 1986 and 1987, the expenses of a one-time employee of the university were reimbursed by the university with funds drawn from an agency account; further, adequate receipts were not provided for these funds.

2. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.2.2(h), 13.11.1, 13.15.1, 14.1.5.1, 15.1 and 16.12.2] In January 1987, prior to the enrollment of a foreign prospective student-athlete in women's gymnastics, the women's head gymnastics coach contacted the men's head gymnastics coach and asked him to make arrangements for the young woman to reside in university housing and receive meals in the university cafeteria from January 13, 1987, until her enrollment in the university on March 10, 1987; further, the young woman's student account was billed $458.41 for the cost of this lodging and meals; further, on March 16, 1987, university funds were utilized to pay these costs, and finally, as a result of this payment, the student-athlete received institutional financial aid that exceeded the amount of grant-in-aid the young woman should have received for that academic year.

Also, on an occasional basis during the winter quarter of 1987, while recruiting the young woman, the women's head gymnastics coach allowed the prospect to participate in practice sessions with members of the university's gymnastics team, even though the women's head coach knew the young woman was not enrolled in the university.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

The Committee has determined that the violations found in this case constitute major violations. Because these violations occurred after September 1, 1985, the committee's findings normally would subject the university to a minimum prescribed penalty, which would include at least a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for at least one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for at least one year, possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, the loss of postseason competition and television appearance opportunities for at least one year, and institutional recertification of compliance. The committee has applied a series of penalties that is at least as restrictive as those set forth in the legislation. In this regard, the committee wishes to acknowledge the exemplary cooperation of the university in the investigation, its diligence in uncovering the most serious violation independently and its candor before the committee. The penalties, therefore, to be imposed are:

A. The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of three years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal, it being understood that should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Further, Houston Baptist University shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. The university shall provide an audit to the committee by June 30, 1990, 1991 and 1992 of the university's actions to establish an ongoing compliance program, monitoring the rules education program for the whole intercollegiate athletics program. In addition, the university shall provide the committee with a complete roster of student-athletes in the intercollegiate men's gymnastics program, including the financial aid they are receiving from all sources (e.g., university sources and job-related income).

C. The university's men's gymnastics team shall end its 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93 seasons with the playing of its last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in preseason or postseason meets or tournaments; further, the number of regularly scheduled intercollegiate meets and tournaments in which the university competes may not exceed those in which it competed in the 1989-90 season. (NOTE: This penalty is immediately suspended for the 1992-93 academic year based on the mitigating factors set forth above.)

D. The university shall be prohibited from awarding any new grants-in-aid in the 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93 academic years. (NOTE: This penalty is immediately suspended for the 1992-93 academic year for the reasons set forth above.)

E. There shall be no increase during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 years in the percentage of athletically related financial aid awarded to individuals currently receiving athletically related aid that is countable under Bylaws 15.02.3 and 15.5.3.1.

F. During the 1990-91, 1991-92 and 1992-93 academic years, the university shall be prohibited from: (1) providing any financial, administrative or other support for its student-athletes to participate in gymnastics competitions other than those permitted in paragraph III-C above, and (2) allowing any student-athlete at the university to compete as a representative of any club or other organization with which any member of the Houston Baptist University gymnastics coaching staff has any affiliation (including, but not limited to, economic affiliation between any institutional staff member and the organization that supports or otherwise provides funds for such a gymnastics club.) (NOTE: This penalty is immediately suspended for the 1992-93 season for the reasons set forth above.)

G. The committee accepts the university's action to remove the men's head gymnastics coach from all coaching and athletically-related responsibilities until December 15, 1990. In addition, however, the university shall show cause why additional penalties should not be imposed on the university if it does not take further disciplinary action against the men's head gymnastics coach who was found in violation of ethical conduct legislation. It is the committee's present view that such action should include a continued prohibition against all coaching and athletically related responsibilities at the university until July 1, 1991, and a prohibition regarding off-campus recruiting and evaluation activities, including at international sites, until December 15, 1991.

H. Should the men's head gymnastics coach leave the institution and should he desire to be associated with another NCAA member institution in an athletically related position within five years after the date that the penalties in this case become effective, both he and the new institution will be required to appear before the committee to consider whether action should be taken to limit his athletically related duties at that institution.

I. The NCAA shall vacate all team and individual records earned by ineligible student-athletes in the 1987, 1988 and 1989 National Collegiate Division I Men's Gymnastics Championships.

(NOTE: Should Houston Baptist University appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided to the institution prior to the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.

Also, the Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed; further, the committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case, and finally, should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.)

NFL expands steroid tests

NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue has told members of Congress he believes stepped-up testing will help rid professional football of steroid use, saying, "we do a grave disservice to our young people if we fail to move aggressively."

Tagliabue cited the league's recently announced policy of "repeated stringent testing" and said he believes Congress can help by passing legislation putting tighter controls on distribution of anabolic steroids.

Tagliabue was among several organized sports figures who appeared as witnesses March 22 before a House Judiciary subcommittee examining efforts within the sports establishment to stop steroid use.

Separate legislation is pending in both the House and Senate to bring anabolic steroids under the umbrella of the Controlled Substance Act, which would treat them like cocaine for purposes of reining in their distribution and enforcing penalties for illegal distribution.

In children and teenagers, steroids can make bones stop growing prematurely and prevent a child from reaching normal height, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration warned last year.

Tagliabue told subcommittee members the league is cracking down on steroid use because, among other things, it is concerned about the image of its players.

"We do not want to encourage young athletes, still in their formative years, to emulate professional athletes by using steroids to increase their size and strength," he said.

Tagliabue reviewed the recently announced stepped-up NFL testing program, saying players "will not know when they will be tested" during the regular season.

He noted that "all players will be subjected to unscheduled testing during the off-season months."

In two seasons, Houston's Crosby set 10 SWC records

University of Houston women's basketball player Jana Crosby probably thinks the three-point field goal was developed just for her.

Crosby, who recently ended a two-year career with the Cougars (she transferred to Houston from Tyler Junior College), now holds 10 Southwest Athletic Conference records—eight of them for three-point shooting. Most impressive among the marks is her career three-point percentage of 46.7 (161-345).

Trivia Time: As many basketball fans know, it was possible at one time for teams to play in the NCAA postseason tournament and the National Invitation Tournament in the same year. Which current NCAA member is the only school ever to have teams play in both tournaments in two different years? Answer later.

University of Georgia women's golf coach Beans Kelly did it. She finished course work the week of March 19 for an undergraduate degree in recreation.

Kelly, who played golf for Georgia in 1982 and 1983, left school early to join the ladies' pro tour. When she was hired to coach the team in 1986, included was the stipulation that she finish her degree.

"I think I'm going to be overwhelmed with all the extra time I'll have on my hands," she said. "I'll have to reprogram my whole daily routine."

Five experimental rules changes were adopted March 19-20 for high school basketball by the rules committee of the National Federation of State High School Associations.

Experiments adopted by the committee for use during the 1990-91 season include:

- Combining personal and technical fouls for disqualification purposes.
- Combining personal and technical fouls to reach the bonus situation.
- Changing the bonus to begin with the seventh team foul of each half.
- Eliminating the bonus and penalizing (with two free throws) all common fouls after either five or seven per half.
- Changing the penalty for an intentional foul to three-to-make-two free throws without a throw-in.

"State associations will be encouraged to experiment (with these rules)," said Dick Schindler, National Federation assistant director and editor of the basketball rules. "The committee is hopeful that a number of states will experiment with one or a combination of the (rules) to collect meaningful statistics."

To date, $15,000 has been contributed to the scholarship fund established at St. John's University (New York) in memory of former sports information director Katha Quinn. The Quinn family and St. John's (New York) officials are hopeful that $100,000 can be raised to permanently endow the fund.

Beginning this year, a scholarship award will be made to a St. John's student, and a student-athlete will be recognized annually for best typifying the spirit and courage Quinn displayed during the battle with cancer that eventually claimed her life.
