Legislation deadline three months away

Now is the time for staff at NCAA member institutions and conferences to begin thinking about proposed legislation for the 1991 Convention. Because of passage by the 1990 Convention of Proposal No. 68, the traditional amendment-filing deadline of November 1 is history.

July 1 is now the Association's legislative deadline.

"What (passage of No. 68) has done is front-load the legislative calendar," said Daniel T. Dutcher, NCAA legislative assistant. "Most importantly, the new timetable will promote greater communication between sponsors of legislation and various groups. And it provides more time in the process for identification and resolution of issues relating to proposed legislation prior to the annual Convention."

Other changes

Proposal No. 68, which was sponsored by the NCAA Council at the request of the Association's Legislative Review Committee, does more than just build time into the legislative schedule. It also:

- Increases sponsorship requirements on amendments from six to eight.
- Increases sponsorship requirements on amendments-to-amendments from one to eight.
- Provides the ability for amendment sponsors to alter their initial

Women seek three FTs on three-point shot foul

The NCAA Women's Basketball Rules Committee has adopted a rule change, effective next season, that awards three free throws to a player fouled in the act of attempting a three-point field goal, when the shot is missed.

"The penalty now is consistent with the penalty for a foul during a two-point attempt that is missed," said Marcy Weston, Central Michigan University associate director of athletics and secretary-rules editor of the committee.

The committee also changed the penalty for goaltending on a free-throw attempt. Beginning next season, this infraction will result in one point being awarded to the team of the player attempting the foul shot, and a technical foul will be assessed the offending team.

Also modified during the committee's meeting March 28-30 in Knoxville, Tennessee, was the possession (jump ball) rule, which now would permit the awarding of the ball out of bounds at the spot closest to where the jump-ball situation

Three-point distance stays at 19-9

The NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee has decided not to change the location of the three-point line, but it did make changes concerning the length of time it takes to play the last few minutes of over the past three years," said Edward S. Steitz, secretary-rules editor for the committee and faculty athletics representative at Springfield College. "The committee feels that the college game has never been more exciting, as evidenced by the 30 games in the 1990 Division I Men's Basketball Championship that have been decided by five points or fewer. We think that at this time, there is not reason to alter the (three-point) distance."

The committee will allow, however, experimentation in moving the three-point line to 20 feet, six inches.

Addressing concerns about the last few minutes of games, the committee decided that with the 10th foul of each half, players will shoot two shots instead of one-and-one. In addition, teams will have three timeouts, not four, in televised games.

Steitz said the committee felt strongly that changes were needed to protect the image of the collegiate game. As a result, coaches or players

Tarkanian litigation ends

The District Court in Clark County, Nevada, March 28 dissolved the injunction in favor of Jerry Tarkanian, head men's basketball coach at the University of Swanson, Midgeley, Gangwere, Clarke and Kitchin, the Association's Kansas City, Missouri, legal counsel, the order:

- Vacates all injunctions previously entered against the NCAA.

- Vacates all awards of attorneys' fees and court costs against the NCAA.

- Awards to the Association reimbursement for court costs it has paid since the start of the case in December 1977. Included are deposition expenses, witness fees, filing fees on appeal and other charges allowed by operation of Nevada law.

- States that the injunction in favor of Tarkanian and against other defendants (the university, the board proposals in any germane fashion.

- Requires sponsors to include the name of a primary contact person (representing the sponsors) who may be reached to answer questions or provide additional information.

- Requires sponsors to submit statements of rationale and intent, no longer than 200 words, which will be published with the proposed amendments.

"I believe the focus of the legislation was to develop a legislative calendar that would provide more time for review (of proposals) by three groups," Dutcher said, "sponsors NCAA staff members who, in conjunction with the Legislative Review Committee, are responsible for developing the specific legislation, and interested third parties—nonsponsoring members of the NCAA, coaches' groups and so on."

Dutcher outlined the following schedule for 1991 proposed legislation:

- Sponsors will submit amendments by July 1.
- Between July 1 and July 15, NCAA staff members and the Legislative Review Committee will develop final language on proposed amendments.
- By August 1, proposals will be published and distributed to the membership.
- Any time between July 1 and September 1, sponsors may submit amendments to amendments that may alter in any germane way their initial submissions.

- From September 1 through October 15, "regular" amendments to amendments (i.e., those that may not increase the modification of a proposal), may be submitted—but will require eight sponsors instead of one.

- By two-thirds vote, the NCAA

Council may submit amendments to amendments and resolutions up to the Convention itself. Such submissions will be made with enough time to permit distribution to Convention delegates of the Council-proposed changes.

"I believe only noncontroversial items are likely to be submitted by the Council at the last minute," Dutcher said. "It's unlikely that anything of major importance would be approved by a two-thirds vote of the Council in the days immediately preceding the Convention business sessions."

"I believe the biggest change from the membership's standpoint is the need to begin considering legislative concerns now," Dutcher said. "Conferences, for example, generally have considered legislative issues during late summer or fall meetings. The new calendar is such that these matters will have to be considered in spring meetings—if sponsors intend to propose amendments to the 1991 Convention."

Additional information regarding the new legislative calendar will appear in future issues of The NCAA News, both in separate stories and in the Legislative Assistance column.

Three-point assessed two technical fouls for unsportsmanlike conduct will be ejected from the game. The head coach still will be ejected after three bench technicals have been called on his team.

Game control

A player now will receive a one-game suspension after his first fight and will be suspended for the remainder of the season after his second fight. Currently, a player receives probation for his first fight, a one-game suspension after a second fight and suspension for the remainder of the year after a third fight. This also applies to a player who comes off the bench to join a fight.

The committee also said that taunting, baiting or undesirable language by players will result in a technical foul. "We have a great game," Steitz said. "We do not want it ruined by the unnecessary actions of a few players or coaches."

Other changes include the following:

- A player fouled on an unsuccessful three-point field-goal attempt will receive three foul shots.
- The 45-second shot clock will not be reset when a blocked shot goes out of bounds.
- A player may grasp or hang on the rim only if fouled or to avoid an obvious injury to himself or another player.

- Only four players from each team may line up on the lane during a foul shot.

- The channels on the ball will be deepened and widened to improve ballhandling and shooting.

Points of emphasis for officials during the 1990-91 season are as follows:

- Coaches and players' decorum.
- Rough low-post play.
- Principles of verticality.
- Palming the basketball.
- The charge-block call.

The committee will allow the following two experimental rules this coming season: Teams will be permitted to move the three-point line from 19-foot-nine inches to 20 feet, six inches (the international distance). Also, teams will be allowed to test the "no-foul-out concept: on a player's sixth (and subsequent) personal foul, the fouled player will have three foul shots to make two. That replaces this season's six-four experiment, which only 21 percent of coaches favored in the rules committee's recent poll.

Recommendations from the Men's Basketball Rules Committee will be forwarded to the NCAA Executive Committee for its approval.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than April 25.

Women's Soccer Committee: Replacement for Dang Pibulvech, Colorado College, resigned. Appointee must be a Division I representative of women's soccer, preferably from the Central region of Division I women's soccer. Pibulvech also must be replaced as chair.

COMMITTEE CHANGES

The following changes should be made in the 1990 NCAA Committee Handbook. Some of the listings are included in order to supply full names and initials for those who need this information.

Council-appointed committees

Patricia A. Rogers' institution is the University at Albany, State University of New York. Change for the Council, Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports, Division III Championships Committee, Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals.

Basketball Officiating: Dean E. Smith, Gary A. Cunningham.

Eligibility Committee: Delete the asterisk on the term expiration for the "to be appointed" position, since the new appointee will be eligible for reelection.

Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism: Delete the asterisk on the term expiration of Janet Hunter.

National Youth Sports Program: Stephen W. Joyner instead of Jayner.

Recruiting: George H. Raveling.

Student-Athlete Advisory Committee: Regions for those elected to take office September 1, 1990, are: Elizabeth L. Fahey, Pennsylvania State University (Region 1); John Jackson, University of Southern California (Region 4); Barbara Winsett, University of Illinois, Champaign (Region 3).

Walter Byers Scholarship: Todd A. Petr is staff liaison, replacing Ursula R. Walsh.

Sports Committees

Men's Basketball Rules: Gary Colson, now at California State University, Fresno, instead of the University of California, Berkeley.

Women's Basketball Rules: Cozette R. Wallace.

Division II Football: James L. Sochor, University of California, Davis, has declined appointment.

Men's and Women's Track and Field: John H. Homon, Mount Union College, resigned from the committee. Laura Brewer, College of St. Benedict, has resigned to accept another position.

Wrestling: Lars A. Jensen.

Convention committees

Nominating Committee: Daniel G. Gibbens, University of Oklahoma (Region 3); Bradford E. Kinsman, University of Detroit (Region 3).

Special Committees

Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues: Richard D. Schultz, NCAA, is an ex officio member.

Special Committee to Review Relationships with Two-Year Colleges: George E. Killian, George H. Raveling. Staff Liaison: Delete Louis A. Onofrio and Charles E. Smrt, and add Richard C. Perko.

of regents and other UNLV officials named in the suit) remains in effect. UNLV could ask the district court to set aside the injunction against it.

"This order terminates any cause of action Tarkanian alleged against the NCAA," Kitchin added, noting that the agreement does not prohibit any future action the NCAA might take with respect to the Committee on Infractions' original show-cause order directed to the university.

At the heart of the case, which stems from infractions uncovered during a 1970s NCAA investigation, is a two-year suspension of Tarkanian originally imposed by the Association's Committee on Infractions. The injunction that remains in effect prohibits UNLV from suspending Tarkanian.

Under the show-cause order, the Committee on Infractions could review the case and impose other sanctions on the institution, since the university is banned by Clark County District Court from suspending Tarkanian.

Ending the NCAA's direct involvement in the litigation is an agreement drawn up as a result of a Nevada Supreme Court ruling issued last September in response to a motion by the NCAA and a counter-motion filed by Tarkanian.

The Nevada Supreme Court:

- Acknowledged a December 1988 ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court that the NCAA was not a state actor and, therefore, could not be charged with violating Tarkanian's right to due process during an investigation or hearings.

- Stated that, because of the Federal court ruling, Clark County District Court would have to rule on dissolving or continuing the injunction against UNLV (since it granted the injunction) that prevents UNLV from taking action against Tarkanian.

- Stated that Tarkanian is not entitled to an award of legal fees from the NCAA because he "simply cannot be considered as having prevailed against the NCAA."

Legislative Assistance

1990 Column No. 14

Participation on outside team during institution's nontraditional spring segment

Member institutions that conduct nontraditional segments during a spring term (e.g., soccer, volleyball) should note that subsequent to completing the maximum number of contests or dates of competition in the institution's sport, a member institution's coach and student-athletes may participate together on an outside team, provided the institution has time remaining in its nontraditional segment. Participation in competition for the outside team would not be contrary to NCAA regulations, provided none of the criteria set forth in NCAA Bylaw 17.02.7 (defining intercollegiate competition) is applicable and the outside team does not include prospective student-athletes. Subsequent to the conclusion of the institution's nontraditional segment, it would not be permissible for a member institution's coach to be involved in any way (e.g., coach, official, player) with the outside team.

In addition, in Division I only, there are limitations on the number of student-athletes who may participate on an outside team (subsequent to the institution's playing season) in the following sports: baseball—4 (during the academic year), field hockey—5, soccer—6, softball—4 (during the academic year), volleyball—2 and water polo—4 (during the academic year). There are no limits in Divisions II and III on the number of student-athletes who may participate on an outside team subsequent to the institution's playing season.

NCAA Bylaws 14.2.4.5.2, 17.02.1 and 17.02.7—practice with another institution's team

The NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed during its February 22, 1990, conference the provisions of Bylaws 14.2.4.5.2, 17.02.1 and 17.02.7 (intercollegiate competition) and confirmed that when a member institution arranges for one of its teams to participate with another institution's team members in a joint practice session, such an arrangement would constitute a date of competition for both institutions.

Division I football and basketball—athletics events that occur outside contact or evaluation period

Division I member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 13.1.5.2.2, in-person contact with a prospect shall not be made on or off the member institution's campus at the site of practice or competition for any athletics event (e.g., high school all-star game, state championship competition, AAU competition) in which the prospect participates outside the permissible contact periods in the sports of football and basketball. Also, under the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.6, on- or off-campus evaluation activities are not permissible at the site of any athletics event outside the permissible contact or evaluation periods in Division I football and basketball, except when the prospect is participating on the member institution's campus in a sport other than football or basketball.

Please note that the above-mentioned restrictions do not apply to a member institution's sports camp or clinic. Interaction (other than an attempt to recruit a prospect) during sports camps and clinics between prospects and those coaches employed by the camp or clinic is not subject to the recruiting-calendar restrictions. However, other coaches wishing to attend the camp as observers must comply with appropriate recruiting contact and evaluation periods. Finally, the provisions of Bylaws 13.1.5.2.2 and 13.1.6 would be applicable to privately owned football and basketball camps or clinics that utilize a member institution's facility.

Five-point proposal offered on revenue sharing

Distribution of revenue and the membership's perception of the Association's national office dominated discussions by members of the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning, which met March 28-29 in Overland Park, Kansas.

The committee, which includes six former NCAA officers and one former standout student-athlete, forwarded recommendations to an internal task force examining the Association's public relations efforts, the Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues, the NCAA Council and the Executive Committee.

The committee heard a report from Louis J. Spry, associate execu-

The five points called for (1) limiting the large payments to winning participants in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship; (2) creating a new system of direct payments based on an institution's commitment to a broad athletics program and its success in achieving academic as well as athletics objectives; (3) scrutiny of proposals and strengthened budgetary procedures in the Association's national office operation but discouraged arbitrary and inflexible revenue limitations; (4) saving a significant portion of the increase in revenue from the basketball television package in an endowment for long-term investment; (5) and providing financial support for the efforts of conferences, and accompanying attention to independent institutions, in the organization and control of athletics.

The committee also discussed what it considers to be a perception among the membership that the national office operation is too large and too bureaucratic with too many programs. The committee also noted that most of the new programs are either mandated or approved by the membership.

Members of the committee pointed out that in many cases, the membership is not aware of all the services the national office provides and encouraged an internal task force to develop a public relations program to include better public relations between the national office and the membership as part of its effort.

The committee also voted to recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that there be identification, implementation and communication of enhanced program evaluation and budgetary-accountability efforts at both the professional staff and Executive Committee levels.

Stephen R. Morgan, associate executive director, presented a report on the status of the enforcement, legislative services and compliance services departments and provided an update on the certification program.

In other actions, the committee:

- Recommended that the NCAA Council consider conducting a summer meeting of one or two representatives from each coaches association with the NCAA president, secretary-treasurer, chair of the Presidents Commission, executive director and steering committee chairs. The purpose of the meeting would be to seek ways to improve the involvement of coaches and coaches associations in the development of legislation.

- Heard a report on a long-range planning project in the national office and noted that while such efforts can be expansionary, they also can be helpful in evaluation and justification of programs.

- Received a status report on deliberations of the Special Committee on Cost Reduction and the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure.

- Reviewed the relationships between and among entities in the NCAA administrative structure.

- Reviewed sports participation data, including the annual compilation and an analysis of the decline in intercollegiate athletics participation based on Report No. 7 of "The Sports and Recreational Programs of the Nation's Universities and Colleges."

The committee's fall meeting is slated for September 17-18 in Hyanis, Massachusetts.

Review and planning committee also discusses perceptions among membership that national office is too bureaucratic tive director, regarding the financial operation of the Association and the deliberations of the Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues. A five-point memorandum was prepared by the committee and forwarded to the special advisory committee.

The review and planning committee presented the five points as "principles... based on our long and deep involvement with the financial affairs of the Association."

Busch donates $2.5 million

Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., has donated $2.5 million to the NCAA Foundation to support the development of alcohol-abuse prevention programs on college campuses. The contribution is the largest corporate gift to the NCAA Foundation since its founding in 1988.

"Anheuser-Busch has been the leader in the beer industry's efforts to promote responsible consumption among those who drink and to discourage alcohol abuse, including underage drinking," said August A. Busch III, chair of the board and president of Anheuser-Busch Companies.

"In joining with the NCAA Foundation, we are teaming with one of the most respected organizations in the campus community to make a really dramatic impact," Busch said.

"The NCAA Foundation has set an ambitious fund-raising goal, which, if reached, will enable it to reach out to campuses across the length and breadth of America. We are pleased to be able to support this goal, and we are especially pleased that our contribution marks the 'tip off' of this drive. We invite our friends throughout corporate America to join us in supporting the NCAA Foundation's effort," Busch said.

Sports problems no less solvable than society's

Patricia Viverito

I'd like to tell a little story that I think lets you folks (Knight Commission) know what you're up against, because I think primarily what you're setting out to do is to put sports in the proper perspective.

I have a young, 3½-year-old son at home. A couple of weeks ago, he was watching his favorite cartoon show on Saturday morning. He said, "Mom, Mom, come quick!"

I ran into the room where the television was, and he said, "I was watching my show and all of a sudden these men came on, and they're talking, talking, talking. Why are they on TV?"

It turned out that his favorite show had been interrupted by a press conference on South Africa dealing with the imminent release of Nelson Mandela. It did last for quite a while, and he was quite frustrated. He said, "Mom, why are these men talking and what are they talking about?"

Well, trying to be a responsible mother, I said, "Something very important is going to happen in a far away place." And he looked at me and said, "Oh, a basketball game?" Then it got worse. I said, "No, not a basketball game."

"Oh, a football game."

Well, I think we need to understand what we're up against... we can't ignore the society that athletics is involved in. We don't live in a vacuum. I think that sports is merely a reflection, albeit sometimes a rather amplified one, of society as a whole, with all its goodness and ills. I don't think that can be an excuse.

But I think as we look around and assess the last decade, we see the insider trading and scandals in the savings and loans and in HUD.

We have to say, "Is it any wonder that we have similar abuses in college sports?" We have point shaving and greed and wholesale cheating and drug-related deaths. It shouldn't come to us as a total surprise. Again, we don't live in a vacuum.

I think the temptation is for us to throw our arms up in the air and say, "Well, we can't do anything about it. We can't possibly change the course of athletics in this mess."

Well, I think there's evidence of positive changes all around us; Drexel is bankrupt, the Keating Five are under investigation, and Silent Sam is in the hot seat. All the surveys show that drugs are, in fact, on the decline. Perhaps, this is a signal that athletics is also ripe for reform... Critics will probably continue to say that basic changes are impossible. We've been operating big-time sports for too long, the system is ingrained, the rewards to surrender are much too great, the power and outside influences are in such a way that we can't do anything about it.

Well... I would say that such a position is pretty feeble in light of what's happened in Eastern Europe. If the Berlin Wall can come crumbling down and if all of Eastern Europe can throw off the shackles of communism, I find it hard to believe that the problems in athletics can't be dealt with.

Letter to the Editor

A way to solve academics problem

To the Editor:

I read with great interest articles entitled "Sports vs. Academics" or "Sports with Academics." Can they coexist?

In 1939, Bob Zupke, coach at Illinois, offered this solution (he was being facetious, as usual):

"Give eligibility to seniors only. No school would keep an athlete three years unless he was a bona fide student."

Schools should not exclude athletics from stated mission

By George W. Schubert

The defined mission of each collegiate institution should serve as the basis from which the institution's athletics program focuses its direction and goals.

Far too often, faculty, students and presidents of institutions do not examine the relationship of the student-athlete's experience in athletics in reference to the stated educational mission of the institution.

One mission of a collegiate institution is to educate students, whereas the department of athletics' mission may be to increase revenues.

For example, reducing the number of basketball games from 28 to 25 may add numerous classroom and study hours to the student's educational experience. However, the department's revenue may be reduced. Frequently, revenue generated from contests and time needed in the classroom pull student-athletes in opposite directions.

At far too many collegiate institutions, the athletics program is influencing, and frequently determining, the amount of time the student-athlete spends in the classroom, rather than the faculty and academic advisers determining how much time the student will spend participating in athletics.

It is clear from action taken at the 1990 NCAA Convention that there is a growing concern over the amount of time a student contributes to athletics at the expense of academics.

Certainly, the 1991 Convention will examine numerous pieces of legislation that will be directed toward reducing the amount of time that a student-athlete will commit to sports.

Academics and athletics should be and can be a rewarding and complementary combination. It takes much effort and planning to keep these two elements in sync. If this balance is to occur, it should originate at the institutional level. If institutions and athletics governing bodies don't assume the responsibilities of controlling this important balance, state and Federal governments will. A clear and recent example of this is the Federal government's involvement in the reporting of admission and graduation data.

The process of higher education is not static. It needs reform, and this includes an ongoing analysis of the role of collegiate athletics. In conjunction with direct educational endeavors, involvement in athletics can be one of the best extracurricular activities a student can experience. However, experiences in athletics should not be indulged in at the expense of the academic responsibilities of the institution.

Schubert is faculty athletics representative at the University of North Dakota.

Graduation-rate data should include academic status of athlete who leaves

"A five-year period may be a legitimate way to measure a school's emphasis on academics. At the same time, it is not the only way.

"You might have a graduate rate of only 40 or 50 percent; but often, you'll have a number of students who left school in good academic standing. That should be put into the equation."

"I was a little worried about the score (Rochester's 43-32 victory over DePaul for the NCAA Division III men's championship). It sounded like Gene Hackman in 'Hoosiers.' I was afraid people would think we played in black high-top sneakers and used an old canvas ball.

We actively recruit. I can't go through the library and the student union and put together a team. Our players' families file a financial-aid form and if they qualify, we put together a package of grants, work study, jobs and loans.

"We go to high school games, summer camps, where players go to get evaluated, like hookers at a convention. It comes off like a cattle auction.

"I just feel we have a responsibility to the kid; if there's any question (of health problems), we're not going to let them play. If there's any risk, we rule them out. I don't think you can compromise. The doctor does have the last word; the kid doesn't. And the coaches agree."

"Any agent who gives players money or gets them to sign a contract ought to be disbarred and put in jail.

"It's like the recruiting game. They're trying to get in there early; but to sign young men before their eligibility is up, or giving them money, is a thousand percent wrong... and it's got to be stopped.

Southern Cal challenges its athletes academically

By Jim Perry

For years, America's colleges and universities have wrestled with the graduation rate of their student-athletes—trying to elevate it. Most school officials would probably tell you they're still not happy with those rates.

At the University of Southern California, they're plunging into the problem head-on, like a fullback ramming over the goal line.

Last fall, the university started a program that requires all student-athletes, men and women, to earn 27 units a year—from their sophomore year on—to get them closer to graduation by the end of their athletics careers. The NCAA requirement is only 24 units a year, so Southern California is demanding more of its student-athletes than it has to.

Coupled with this new university rule is a Degree Achievement Program, begun in 1985, which pays for an extra semester—tuition and fees—for qualifying student-athletes who are within sight of graduation. Since the fall of 1985, to qualify for this program, athletes had to earn 28 units during their last three years.

Demand more

"If you ask people to aim high, they'll score high," Michael B. McGee, director of athletics, says, "but if you give them a lower goal, often they'll only reach that goal or fall below it. We weren't asking enough of the athletes."

"It's a nationwide problem that the minimum (12 units a semester and 24 a year) often becomes the standard. In some respects, it's the most critical problem in moving student-athletes toward graduation."

"In an effort to deal with that, we implemented the 28-unit requirement 4½ years ago and saw our annual hours earned increase across the board by five units. Now, we're in a position where most athletes after four years of eligibility are within striking distance—generally within one semester—of earning a degree."

Indeed, in 1987-88, the last year for which complete statistics are available, Southern California student-athletes actually averaged 29.2 units earned a year, up from 24 units three years earlier.

Proposal turned down

Realizing that the problem is universal, Southern California proposed a 27-unit rule to the NCAA Convention in 1989 (revising its own standard from 28 to 27 units to equal schools on the quarter system that offer mainly three-unit courses).

Michael B. McGee

"The policy was never adopted," McGee says in frustration. "We got voted down. But to address the graduation problem, nothing is more important than addressing the number of units earned annually."

In its two-pronged program, Southern California has reaped another big benefit: In the past 4½ years, 89 athletes—most of whom had completed their eligibility in four years—joined the degree-assistance program. Fifty-seven graduated; many others continue to make progress.

"You can feel fairly certain that the bulk of those 57 students helped by this program were at risk of not continuing in school," says Margaret Gatz, faculty athletics representative. "And about half of the rest are close to a degree."

Besides taking classes in the extra semester, student-athletes who complete their eligibility in four years must work 10 hours a week in the athletics department, while those who redshirt and stay five years must work 15 hours a week—a small price to pay to earn a degree.

Marvin Cobb, assistant director of athletics and a former Trojan football and baseball player who played cornerback in the NFL for six years, coordinates the Degree Achievement Program.

'The Numbers Game'

"I make a presentation on academic excellence to all athletes every year, and this part of it I call 'The Numbers Game,'" Cobb says. "I outline on the blackboard the progress you'd make just doing 12 units a semester, which is the NCAA minimum, and show them how—at 128 units to get a degree—that leaves you far short (only 96 units completed after four years, or 32 short). Even if you have a redshirt year—five years of eligibility—you're still short."

"And so, as an incentive for student-athletes to achieve their degrees, the Degree Achievement Program was instituted to provide an extra semester of tuition and fees. But one of the qualifying factors is you had to average 28 units a year.

If a Trojan athlete completed only 96 units in four years or even 120 in five (under the NCAA standard), he was looking at high tuition costs to finish his degree. As a private school, Southern Cal's tuition and fees are $13,606 this year.

"I think this program is great," says Gatz. "You know, when one starts talking about increasing the academic requirements for an athlete, the usual objection people raise is that athletes don't have time to take more units. They say competing in athletics is like having a full-time job."

'Something has to give'

"But something has to give on the athletics side—less time has to be spent on the sport. It takes some reorganization of the way people think."

"Give Mike McGee credit. He's an AD, struggling to put academics first while maintaining a winning tradition. He's doing this because it's right."

Pay for play would create more problems, Edwards says

By Jack L. Copeland

Assistant Editor, The NCAA News

Pay for play in major-college sports would do more harm than good because it would relieve universities of their obligation to provide education to student-athletes, sociologist Harry Edwards said during a March 29 lecture in Kansas City, Missouri.

Speaking at Rockhurst College, Edwards said universities should focus on providing education and achieving ethical behavior in athletics. He expressed doubts that pay for play would serve those purposes.

To the contrary, paying student-athletes probably would create more problems than it would solve and likely would result in exploitation—particularly of the black athletes who, Edwards said, make up the majority of participants in revenue sports.

"Black athletes won't live up to the level of income, but to the level of credit, just like anyone else," Edwards said. That likelihood simply puts Blacks in the clutches of their creditors, who may even be athletics administrators, Edwards said.

Harry Edwards

At any rate, universities are unwilling to pay athletes their true worth, even as the NCAA and its member conferences and schools negotiate multimillion-dollar contracts with television networks, Edwards said.

Raises questions

Pay for play also raises questions about college athletes' freedom to move from one school to "a higher bidder," how to deal with workers' compensation and how to compensate for sports that make the most demands on athletes' time.

"I am in favor of athletes having a standard of living similar to that of other students on campus," Edwards added, saying that universities should at least make it possible for athletes to enjoy the same leisure activities as other students.

Edwards' comments on pay for play came after a lecture on equality in American sports. In the lecture, Edwards urged Blacks—including athletes and their families—to "shoulder the substantial responsibility" for dismantling what he described as the "plantation system" in athletics.

Through American history, white and black people alike have come to accept that Blacks are occupationally inferior, "without consciousness of being afflicted by the disease," he said. The racial relationship that Edwards likens to plantation life, where whites are in the positions of authority, is attributable in large part to "lowered black self-esteem, resulting in lowered expectations."

Urges self-reliance

"At some point, we've got to do something for ourselves, if for no other reason than because no one else will," said the University of California, Berkeley, professor who is the product of an impoverished childhood in East St. Louis, Illinois.

In keeping with his philosophy of self-reliance, Edwards said he supported the intent of the NCAA's Proposition 48. "I supported it not because I believed in its integrity or its viability as a corrective measure, but because it sent a message to the black community—we expect (recruits) to be students as well as athletes."

If anything, the NCAA's standardized-test-score requirements are too low, Edwards argued; the black community should focus on doing whatever is necessary to ensure success on the tests, "rather than whining about the bias of these tests."

But Edwards denounced the subsequent passage of Proposition 42 as "a fraud and a complete and total compromise of any integrity that might exist in intercollegiate athletics." He rejected the view that the measure was adopted "under the aegis that it would augment, would put teeth into, Proposition 48."

"Proposition 42 had nothing to do with academics. It had to do with the financial commitment of the institutions involved," said Edwards, who charged the measure was passed by schools who decided, "if we can't put (athletes who fail to meet initial-eligibility standards) on the football field, we won't support them academically."

Edwards did not comment on the NCAA's action at its most recent Convention to rescind Proposition 42 and to permit need-based, non-athletically related aid to partial qualifiers.

Ethics devalued

During the lecture, Edwards also expressed dismay toward a society that increasingly devalues "ethical behavior." Ethical problems in sports reflect similar problems in other segments of society, including politics and academia.

ics and academia.

"Coaches are confronted with situations where ethical behavior is becoming increasingly irrational," Edwards said, noting that coaches risk being fired for failing to beat opponents not only on the playing field, but in recruiting.

Edwards also said the NCAA's enforcement staff is too small to do anything more than single out the most visible athletics programs for scrutiny, resulting in selective enforcement of Association rules. He added that the enforcement staff is forced to rely on coaches to "snitch" on other coaches.

"The NCAA doesn't have an enforcement system; it has a snitch system," he said. "The NCAA depends on a snitch system."

Looking Back

Five years ago

The NCAA Presidents Commission and NCAA Council submitted 12 legislative proposals—all addressing issues of integrity and economics in intercollegiate athletics—for consideration by delegates to the June 1985 special Convention in New Orleans. Included were a proposed revision of NCAA enforcement procedures to distinguish between "secondary" and "major" violations of Association rules and regulations, proposals to require each member institution to conduct a periodic self-study and annual expenditure audit of its intercollegiate athletics program, and a measure to establish an academic-reporting program. NBC Sports, NCAA Productions, the Entertainment and Sports Programming Network, and Jim Host and Associates provided the 1980 Division I Men's Basketball Championship with its greatest radio and television exposure to date. NBC televised 23 of 48 games played in the tournament and NCAA Productions covered the other 25 games, including 23 that were aired by ESPN. Jim Host and Associates teamed with NBC Radio to broadcast the Final Four to an estimated 17.5 million listeners over a 402-station radio network. (The NCAA News, April 15, 1980)

UNLV posts lopsided victory for first crown

By Fred Lief
United Press International

Nevada-Las Vegas won the 1990 Division I Men's basketball Championship April 2 by pounding Duke, 103-73, in the most lopsided championship final since the tournament began in 1939.

"It's one of those games you dream about," UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said. "I'm as proud as I can be."

With Anderson Hunt, named the Final Four's outstanding player, scoring 29 points and UNLV applying a crackling defense, the Rebels hit college basketball's jackpot in their first appearance in a championship game.

Championships Results

In a commanding show of strength, discipline and sparkle, the Rebels set a record for most points scored in the championship final and left no doubt as to the premier team in college basketball.

"They would have killed anybody tonight," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said shortly after the game, which was played in Denver.

The Rebels shredded Duke during an 18-0 run in the second half, silencing any prospects Duke had for winning an NCAA title.

"We think we are a great team," UNLV guard Greg Anthony said. "But to say that we are the best... we just can't say. Take into consideration that they weren't on the top of their game. We are the best team because we are the national champs."

Before this bombardment, the biggest margin of victory in a championship game came in 1968 when UCLA beat North Carolina, 78-55. This also marked the first time the winning team reached 100 points.

"Their half-court defense is the best in the country," Krzyzewski said. "It dictated the whole basketball game. We could not overcome their defense."

Hunt, whose three-point shooting carried the Rebels in the semifinals against Georgia Tech, was 12 of 16 from the floor and four of seven from three-point range.

All-America Larry Johnson delivered 22 points and 11 rebounds. Anthony had 13 points and Stacey Augmon 12—and the Rebels shot 61 percent from the floor.

UNLV, which played in two previous Final Fours without advancing to the championship game, finished at 35-5 and gave the season a sense of symmetry, having been voted No. 1 in preseason.

Duke, 29-9, was led by Phil Henderson with 21 points. Christian Laettner added 15 and Alaa Abdelnaby 14. The Blue Devils were betrayed by the three-point shot, making only one of 11.

"There was never any balance," Henderson said. "They played great and dominated the game."

Nothing was more telling than the 18-0 burst that began with Duke trailing, 57-47, with 16½ minutes to go. Hunt then went to work, scoring 12 points in the run. On consecutive plays, he teamed with Augmon for layups off the break. His three-pointer put UNLV up, 75-47, with 13:17 left.

"After you have any 18-0 run, you have to feel you are in control," Anthony said. "It was a pretty good feeling to look up and see that lead."

"This is the best," Tarkanian said. "All the pressure, championship on the line. It's just absolutely incredible."

Two UNLV players joined Final Four outstanding player Hunt on the all-tournament team—Larry Johnson and Stacey Augmon.

Duke's Phil Henderson also made the squad, as did Dennis Scott of Georgia Tech.

Duke advanced to the championship by outlasting Arkansas, 97-83, in the semifinals.

"I didn't think the altitude would

Nevada-Las Vegas' Larry Johnson keeps Georgia Tech defender Johnny McNeil at arm's length to score two of his 15 points in semifinal action play a role," said Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson. "But it played a big part. Every time I brought guys out, they were huffing and puffing."

Richardson watched as his Razorbacks, who led, 69-62, midway through the second half, scored only four points in the final 6:22—none in the final 3:22.

Duke's Phil Henderson led four Blue Devils in double figures with a game-high 28 points. Todd Day paced Arkansas (30-5) with 27.

In the other semifinal, Georgia Tech saw a pretty good first half overshadowed by a Nevada-Las Vegas team that, according to Runnin' Rebel Anderson Hunt, "turned it up a notch" in the second half and won, 90-81.

"We didn't have much intensity in the first half," said UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian, whose charges trailed, 46-43, after 20 minutes. "I don't know why. I thought the difference of the game was when we came out after them with our man-to-man (defense)."

In real terms, the Runnin' Rebels outscored Georgia Tech, 10-1, during that time span—taking a lead they never relinquished.

Dennis Scott had 29 points for Georgia Tech (28-7), to lead all scorers. Stacey Augmon, with 22, led five Nevada-Las Vegas players who hit for double figures in the game.

The 1990-91 season will mark the first year for a Division III men's lacrosse program and women's soccer program at Greensboro College.

John Burke, the new lacrosse coach at Greensboro, has begun recruiting for the team, which is expected to compete in the Dixie Lacrosse Conference, beginning in March 1991.

"Greensboro College can offer its women soccer players a chance to play next fall," Kim Strable, director of athletics, said. "This will be a great opportunity for players who want to make an impact in helping us build a competitive women's soccer program."

Sharpshooter spurs Stanford to first women's title

Katy Steding scored 18 points, including a record six three-pointers, in leading Stanford to its first Division I basketball crown with an 88-81 victory over Auburn. Tennessee hosted the 1990 Women's Final Four.

Stanford (32-1) hit 11 of 26 three-pointers and overcame an 11-point deficit and 11 turnovers in the first half to win the title and send Auburn (28-7) to its third straight defeat in a championship game.

Steding, whose three pointers broke the old record of two set in 1988, was named to the all-tournament team, while teammate Jennifer Azzi, who scored 17 points, was named the most outstanding player of the Women's Final Four.

"It means a lot to me," Azzi said of winning the national championship. "We lost a lot of games my freshman year, but we have been busting it for the last three years trying to get here."

"I feel so good, but I'm sad that I'll never wear a Stanford jersey again. We take pride in knowing we've come from nothing to a national championship in four years."

Sonja Henning led Stanford with 21 points.

Tied, 41-41, at halftime, Auburn opened the second half with a three-point lead—before Steding's three-pointer touched off a nine-point Stanford run that gave the Cardinal a 52-46 lead with 15:57 remaining.

Auburn cut the lead to four points with 12:01 left on Evelyn Thompson's two free throws, but that was as close as the Tigers came to the Cardinal in the second half.

Julie Zeilstra's three-point play, another three-point basket by Steding and a basket by Henning gave Stanford a 12-point lead with seven minutes remaining.

The Tigers, who used their full-court press to great advantage in the first half, were unable to cause trouble in the second half because Stanford refused to be rattled. In the end, Auburn was forced to foul to try to get the ball.

The Cardinal, who committed only two second-half turnovers, also scored 18 points off 19 offensive rebounds.

Auburn's Carolyn Jones led all scorers with 24 points. Other Tigers in double figures were Chantel Tremiere with 17, C. C. Hayden with 15 and Thompson with 10.

Tremiere also was named to the all-tournament team, along with Venus Lacy of Louisiana Tech.

The 20,023 who watched the game set a new record for attendance at a Women's Final Four.

Auburn advanced to the championship by upsetting previously undefeated Louisiana Tech, 81-69, March 30 in the semifinals. Jones, who led Auburn with 21 points, paced the Tigers to a 20-point half-time lead.

The Lady Techsters (32-1), hit only eight of 29 field-goal attempts in the first half and never were able to regroup. Lacy led Louisiana Tech with a game-high 26 points.

In the other semifinal, Steding (18 points) led four Cardinal players in double figures as Stanford defeated Virginia, 75-66. The Cavaliers (29-6) were led by Dawn Staley's 18 points.

Wisconsin powers way to fifth I hockey title

Wisconsin won the 1990 Division I Ice Hockey Championship April 1 with a 7-3 victory over Colgate. Michigan State hosted the championship, which was played at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

The final's deciding factor turned out to be the power play—Wisconsin cashed in on four of nine opportunities, including three of its first four.

John Byce scored three goals, and Rob Andringa had a goal and two assists, enabling Wisconsin (36-9-1) to become the first school to win five NCAA hockey titles, following national championships in 1973, 1977, 1981 and 1983. Colgate (31-6-1) was making its first appearance in the NCAA semifinals.

"It was a tough game," Colgate coach Terry Slater said. "Wisconsin deserves to be the No. 1 team in the nation after the way it played."

Wisconsin took control of the game in the first period by scoring on three of its four power-play opportunities.

Byce scored twice in the opening 3:23 to give Wisconsin a 2-0 lead. His first goal came on a power play at 1:30 when he deflected Sean Hill's slap shot from just inside the blue line through Colgate goalie Dave Gagnon's legs.

The Badgers went ahead 2-0 at 3:23 while shorthanded when Byce skated past Colgate's Marc Dupere, broke in alone on Gagnon and fired a shot into the left side of the net.

"It's always nice to get on top quick," Byce said. "I think when we get ahead, no one can beat us."

Joel Gardner pulled the Red Raiders to within one goal 95 seconds later on a power play when he took a pass from Dupere and flicked a shot into the wide-open right side of the net.

Wisconsin's Chris Tancill, named the tournament's most valuable player, and Andringa each added power-play goals to close out the period, giving the Badgers a 4-1 advantage.

Tancill netted his third goal of the tournament at 7:33 off a slap shot from the right face-off circle. Andringa scored at 14:53 on a slap shot from the top of the same circle.

"After we got ahead, the game seemed to last five hours," Tancill said. "The excitement just kept building."

gin to 5-1 at 5:03 of the second period on his 30-foot slap shot. Colgate's Steve Poapst cut the deficit to 5-2 on his power-play goal at 9:42, but the lead went back to four on Gary Shuchuk's score at 13:09.

The Red Raiders twice had a two-man advantage in the third period before Jamie Cooke scored with a 35-foot wrist shot on the power play at 9:34. Byce capped the scoring with an empty net goal with 42 seconds remaining.

"They're a pretty strong club," said Colgate defenseman Karl Clauss. "We knew what we were in store for."

Wisconsin's Tancill was stunned when informed he was named MVP of the tournament.

"I'm excited, it's awesome, but I can't accept this award by myself," Tancill said. "There's no one MVP on this team. There are 30 guys who perform all the time. I'm just happy I could help out."

Tancill "helped out" in the semifinals by scoring both Wisconsin goals as the Badgers defeated Boston College, 2-1. Colgate advanced by virtue of a 3-2 decision over Boston University. Gregg Wolf, Kelly Mills and Craig Woodcroft scored for the Red Raiders, who held Boston U. scoreless after Petteri Koskimaki scored the Terriers' second goal at 12:26 of the first period.

First combined fencing title goes to Penn State

Penn State edged Columbia, 5-3, in the finals of the men's epee team competition to claim the overall team title at the Men's and Women's Fencing Championships March 24-28 at Notre Dame.

The Nittany Lions became the first team to win the combined men's and women's championship. Before this year, separate team champions were crowned. Columbia was last year's men's titlist, and Wayne State (Michigan) won the women's crown.

Penn State entered the final team event with 24 points, two behind coleaders Notre Dame and Columbia and Columbia-Barnard. But the Nittany Lions got three victories from Geoffrey Russell and two from James Marsh to take the epee crown and finish one point ahead of Columbia and Columbia-Barnard (36-35) in the final standings.

First-place finishes in men's weapons are worth 12 team points, second place is worth nine points and third place earns six points.

The champions also finished second in men's team foil, fourth in men's sabre and third in women's foil.

Runner-up Columbia and Columbia-Barnard took the men's team foil title and finished third in men's sabre. Notre Dame finished third overall with 30 points despite claiming no team weapons titles; the Irish finished second in men's sabre and women's foil. Pennsylvania won the men's sabre crown and scored 28 points to finish fourth overall.

First-, second- and third-place finishes in the women's team event earn 16, 13 and 10 points, respectively. Wayne State (Michigan) earned all 16 of its team points by claiming the women's team foil title.

two women's championships, finished tied for fifth with Yale.

Under the new format, men's individual weapons events are held separately and are not counted in team scoring.

In men's individual foil, Stanford's Nick Bravin held off defending champion Edward Mufel of Penn State in the finals, 5-4, 5-1. It was the first men's individual title for the Cardinal and the first time since 1985 that the foil title went to a fencer from a school other than Columbia or Penn State.

Columbia teammates David Mandell and Peter Ciemins faced off in the individual sabre finals. The third-seeded Mandell, who finished second in last year's championships, captured the title with a 5-4, 5-0 victory. Ciemins had advanced from the loser's bracket and was the lowest seed among the final eight competitors.

Jubba Beshin of Notre Dame defeated Princeton's Dan Nowosielski to earn the individual epee title. Beshin's 5-4, 5-2 win avenged an earlier defeat by Nowosielski that knocked the Irish fencer into the loser's bracket and resulted in a No. 5 seeding among the final eight. Beshin's epee crown was the first for Notre Dame since 1983.

The women's individual foil competition, conducted under the same format as in past years, was won by Tzu Moy of Columbia-Barnard. The top-seeded Moy overcame a stiff challenge in the quarterfinals from No. 8-seed Anne Barreda of Notre Dame (5-0, 4-5, 5-4) and advanced to the finals by defeating Ute Schaeper of Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck, 5-4, 5-4. She defeated Notre Dame's Heidi Piper, 5-2, 5-2, to claim Columbia-Barnard's third women's individual title.

With national title, VanDerveer can feel at home at Stanford

By Chuck Schoffner

Tara VanDerveer is now on equal footing with her peers at Stanford University.

VanDerveer's team gave Stanford its first national title in women's basketball when it defeated Auburn, 88-81, April 1 to top off the Cardinal's first trip to the Women's Final Four.

The championship is the latest in a long list of achievements for a school that, while noted for its rigid academic standards, has produced many standout athletic teams.

"The first summer I was there, I went to the banquet and met with the swim coach, and they've won three national championships," VanDerveer recalled. "The tennis coach has won nine. That's the men's. The women have won three. The baseball coach won two national championships."

"Volleyball's been in the national semifinals the past six years. Men's volleyball was in the final two last year. It's really a situation where I feel like I'm just trying to keep up with everyone else around there."

The basketball team reached the top in VanDerveer's fifth year at the school. She left a successful program at Ohio State University, where she was 110-37 in five seasons, to take over a team that had won only 14 games in the two previous years.

There were some hard times at the beginning—13-15 her first year, 14-14 the next. But when this year's seniors were sophomores, the team took off.

It went 27-5 in 1987-88 but lost in the regional semifinals. Last year, Stanford was 28-3 and made it as far as the regional finals.

This year, the 32-1 team won the title with a multifaceted offense that could score inside or outside, on the run or in a half-court set. In the championship game, Stanford made 11 three-pointers, a tournament record.

"It seemed like every year, we came over a different hurdle," said senior guard Jennifer Azzi, voted the outstanding player of the Women's Final Four. "We beat Montana (in NCAA play) at Montana our sophomore year. Then my junior year, we made it to the regional finals against Louisiana Tech and still came up short."

"I just think we kept working and working and finally, everything has paid off all at once."

With veterans like Azzi, Kay Steding, Sonja Henning and Trisha Stevens returning, VanDerveer knew she had the makings of a championship team this season. So she sought advice from coaches whose teams have won title games, starting with Stanford women's swimming coach Richard Quick.

"Richard came in and talked to our team and said if you want it, you have to really believe it and it has to be your goal from day one," VanDerveer said. "I thought he was really inspiring."

"Every single coach has been very supportive of me. And when I wondered if I could ever do it, they assured me that I could."

It also helped to have the backing of the school.

"We're here because our administration believes in a great program for women and men," VanDerveer said. "They don't sit down at Stanford and serve steak to the boys and hot dogs to the girls."

Stanford won its title before record crowds at the University of Tennessee's Thompson-Boling Arena in Knoxville. There was some thought that because the local Tennessee team didn't make it past the regional finals, the local fans wouldn't turn out. They did.

Ticket sales for the two-day tournament totaled 39,490 and the actual number in the arena was 34,196. The previous high was 31,230 for the 1987 Women's Final Four at Austin, Texas.

Committee issues penalties

The NCAA Division I Ice Hockey Committee has imposed public reprimands and one-game suspensions against Shawn Walsh, ice hockey coach at the University of Maine, and Jack Parker, ice hockey coach at Boston University. The suspensions will be served in the next NCAA ice hockey championship contest in which each coach participates.

Walsh's reprimand and suspension comes as a result of his critical and negative comments regarding the officiating of Maine's March 23 loss to the University of Wisconsin, Madison, in the second round of the 1990 NCAA Division I Ice Hockey Championship.

Parker's reprimand and suspension comes as a result of a confrontation with an official following Boston's March 23 loss to Michigan State University, also in the second round of the championship.

In announcing the sanctions, Bruce M. McLeod, chair of the committee and director of athletics at University of Minnesota, Duluth, stated, "Both incidents were blatant acts of misconduct and tarnished the image of college hockey and the championship. The sanctions will send a strong message that the NCAA will not tolerate such acts of unprofessional behavior in the future."

CORRECTION

The NCAA enforcement department has corrected the reports of two eligibility appeals that appeared in the March 28 issue of The NCAA News. The appeals are the fourth and 12th cases listed under "Eligibility Appeals (Other Than Those Involving Recruiting Violations)." The first appeal, referring to NCAA Bylaws 14.01.4.3, 14.3.2.1 and 14.13.4.3, involved a student-athlete in Division I men's basketball who practiced and competed in 12 contests and whose SAT score later was invalidated; the student-athlete admitted that a friend took the test on his behalf. The result of that appeal was corrected to read: "Eligibility restored after SA withheld from 1989-90 season and first 12 intercollegiate contests of the 1990-91 season. (Season of competition used per B 14.2.4.1.) The second appeal, referring to NCAA Bylaw 14.4.2, involved a student-athlete in men's gymnastics who competed in an exhibition contest while ineligible under satisfactory-progress requirements. The result of that appeal was corrected to read: "Eligibility restored after SA withheld from next intercollegiate contest of 1989-90 season."

occurs. The ball had been awarded at the sideline.

Any rules-change recommendations in the areas of players safety, financial or image of the sport must be reviewed by the NCAA Executive Committee before becoming final.

"It is the sense of the committee that the condition of the women's game is healthy," Weston said. "Rules changes (like these) will maintain the integrity of the game."

Points of emphasis for next season will include taunting or baiting opponents, illegal use of arms when screening, the principle of verticality, and rough post play.

The use of three-person officiating crews in regular-season games was approved for experimentation next season.

WBCA criticizes Oklahoma's decision

Hundreds of coaches attending the NCAA women's Final Four in Knoxville, Tennessee, wore red ribbons to protest the University of Oklahoma's decision to drop women's basketball.

The board of directors of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association organized the action. WBCA members were given the ribbons as they boarded buses for semifinal games at Thompson-Boling Arena.

"We handed them out and gave them the option of wearing them," said North Carolina State University coach Kay Yow, the group's president-elect. "The overwhelming majority put them on."

The WBCA denounced Oklahoma for dropping women's basketball.

Balfour award goes to Watts, ex-BYU coach

The National Association of Basketball Coaches has presented Stan Watts, former Brigham Young University basketball coach and director of athletics, with its Balfour Golden Anniversary Award for his more than 50 years of outstanding service to the sport.

Watts, who was inducted into the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in 1985, was honored at the annual NABC awards dinner April 1 in Denver. Watts joined the Brigham Young staff in 1947 as head baseball and track coach and assistant basketball and football coach.

He was named head basketball coach in 1949. During his 23 years as head coach, the Cougars had a 433-258 record, winning two NIT titles and eight conference championships.

Watts served as president of the NABC in 1969-70 and was a member of the NCAA Division I Basketball Committee for four years, including two as chair. He also served as chair of the U.S. Olympic Committee for men from 1974 to 1976.

In addition to his membership in the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame, Watts has been inducted into the National Association of College Directors of Athletics Hall of Fame and was selected as the Western Athletic Conference coach of the decade in 1973.

Porter honored

Lonnie Porter, head men's basketball coach at Regis College (Colorado) has been presented with the NABC Merit Award by the National Association of Basketball Coaches for "outstanding contributions" to the sport.

In 13 seasons at Regis, Porter has a record of 207-155.

"He has done an outstanding job at Regis College over the past 13 years, not only in coaching basketball but in graduating his student-athlete," said Tom Dedin, director of athletics.

"Our board came up with this idea, and we presented it to 1,200 coaches at our luncheon," said Yow, who was honored at that luncheon as the Converse Coach of the Year. "They were strongly in support of it."

"It's one more way of showing that we believe what Oklahoma did was wrong."

Donnie Duncan, director of athletics at Oklahoma, said the decision to drop women's basketball came after a review by the university of ways the school could support the goals of the women's athletics program.

Duncan said all funds now being spent for women's basketball will be spent on women's athletics. The total budget for women's athletics will not change.

Duncan said the athletics department is considering reallocating funds for existing women's sports for other sports, such as women's soccer.

The basketball team had losing seasons the past two years after nine straight winning campaigns.

Women's team players said they were shocked by the decision and staged a protest on campus.

Head coach Valerie Goodwin-Colbert just completed her third season as head coach at Oklahoma, after four seasons as head coach at Southwest Missouri State University. She compiled a 32-51 record with the Sooners.

Oklahoma had a 7-22 record and attracted small crowds at home games this season.

Duncan said the university would honor current scholarships for a four-year period from the year of enrollment. He also said current coaching contracts would be honored.

English, Hancock honored

A. J. English of Virginia Union University and Colby College's Matt Hancock, guards who have won national scoring titles, were named players of the year in Divisions II and III, respectively, by the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

English, a 6-5 senior who averaged 33.4 points to lead Division II in scoring this season, was presented the Spalding Award.

The first team NABC all-America scored 2,396 career points, including 1,001 this season. English was a three-time Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association all-star selection. He was the only Division II player on a U.S. select team to China in 1988 and led that team in scoring.

A three-time NABC all-America, Hancock completed his career as the third leading all-time scorer in Division III history with 2,678 points in 102 games, a 26.3 average. He holds the Division III record for free throws made and attempted with 792-928, an .853 career percentage.

The 6-foot-2 senior from Casco, Maine, won a national scoring title as a sophomore. This season, he was the most valuable player in the Nissan-Hawaii and Eastern Invitational tournaments and helped the White Mules win their first ECAC New England championship.

Hancock received the Hershey Chocolate Co. Division III player award.

La Salle's Simmons gets Rupp trophy

La Salle University's Lionel Simmons has been awarded the Adolph Rupp Trophy by the Associated Press as the outstanding college basketball player of the year.

Simmons' 3,217 career points rank third on the all-time NCAA scoring list. He received 135 of 438 votes in a nationwide poll of sports writers and broadcasters conducted before the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

"Looking at the names of the players who have won the award in the past, I feel very honored," Simmons said. Previous winners include Michael Jordan, Larry Bird, Patrick Ewing, Bill Walton, David Robinson and Sean Elliott, last year's winner.

Simmons, a 6-7 senior forward, led the Explorers to a 30-2 record, averaging 25.5 points and 11.1 rebounds.

AP names Calhoun coach of year

Jim Calhoun, head men's basketball coach at the University of Connecticut, who led the Huskies from preseason also-rans to the Big East Conference title and within one game of the NCAA Final Four, has been named college basketball coach of the year by the Associated Press.

Calhoun is the first Big East coach to win the award.

Connecticut was picked eighth in preseason voting by the Big East's nine coaches as Calhoun began his fourth season with the Huskies.

The Huskies finished with a school-record 31 victories against just six losses and were ranked as high as third in the AP poll.

The Huskies played on three different home courts this season.

Calhoun, who coached at Northeastern University for 14 seasons before moving to Connecticut, has a career mark of 326-189.

Spartans' Miller gets Baker award

Kip Miller, a senior forward for Michigan State University's ice hockey team and the nation's leading scorer, is this year's Hobey Baker Memorial Award winner as the outstanding player in the sport.

The announcement of Miller's selection was made April 1 at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit, Michigan, site of the championship game of the Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

Said Miller, "This is a great honor for me to be selected when you play against great players. The field was very strong."

"Personally, I didn't think I could achieve this award. But I worked hard and it paid off. Coach (Ron) Mason showed great pride in me and let me play. Also, without a good team and a good environment, it could not have been done."

Kip Miller

Miller scored 48 goals and added 53 assists for 101 points while leading the Spartans (35-7-3) to the Central Collegiate Hockey Association title and the quarterfinals of the Division I championship. Miller also is the CCHA player of the year.

"Watching the development of Kip over four years is what makes me so proud," said Mason. "He had the type of motivation to become a great player. But he wasn't a great player just in the games. He was a great player in practice, off the ice and in the locker room, where it really counts."

Miller beat out nine other finalists, including runner-up Rick Bennett of Providence College.

Other finalists were Rob Blake and Nelson Emerson, Bowling Green State University; Greg Brown and David Emma, Boston College; Dave Gagnon, Colgate University; Joe Juneau, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; Russ Parent, University of North Dakota, and Dave Shields, University of Denver.

Illinois bill seeks due process in athletics groups' probes

More than half of Illinois' state representatives are cosponsors of a bill to require the NCAA and other collegiate sports groups to follow due-process rules in enforcement efforts, Rep. Tim Johnson, R-Urbana, said March 27.

Johnson said 72 of 118 House members had signed on to H.B. 3182 when it was filed March 26. Johnson's district includes the University of Illinois, Champaign.

Johnson said his actions are independent of the university. However,

Gopher coach on probation

University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, wrestling coach J. Robinson will be reappointed for the 1990-91 school year but has been placed on probation.

In addition to the coach's probation, the wrestling program will lose two grants-in-aid for the 1991 season, dropping it from 11 to nine.

Another penalty will be no off-campus, in-person recruiting contacts by any Gophers wrestling coach until the completion of the 1991 NCAA championships. The entire wrestling coaching staff will be required to undergo an educational review of NCAA and Big Ten Conference rules, including testing.

In a letter from Richard M. Bay, director of men's athletics, to Robinson, Bay referred to a number of alleged Big Ten Conference and NCAA rules infractions uncovered in a recent investigation of the Gophers' athletics program by Chicago lawyer Mike Slive.

The allegations included the provision of transportation and meals for athletes still considered to be prospects, practice between coaches and members of the Minnesota team with athletes still considered prospects, the provision of practice opportunities for university student-athletes still not certified as eligible to practice or compete, and allowing other institutions' teams the opportunity to practice with the team without the intent of counting such practices as dates of competition.

Bay said he did not view the alleged infractions as "necessarily willful or malicious," but he does consider them serious.

Bay said if it had not been for

Staley is only sophomore on all-star team

Dawn Staley, the University of Virginia's 5-6 sophomore guard, has been named to the women's Kodak all-America basketball team, which featured one player from each team in the Final Four.

Staley was the only sophomore chosen for the team by coaches from each region of the country.

Other members of the team from Final Four teams are Jennifer Azzi of Stanford University, the only repeat selection; Venus Lacy of Louisiana Tech University, a 6-4 center, and Carolyn Jones of Auburn University, a 5-8 guard.

Azzi averages 15 points and six assists.

Other seniors on the team are Portia Hill of Stephen F. Austin State University, Dale Hodges of St. Joseph's University (Pennsylvania) and Franthea Price of the University of Iowa.

Other juniors on the team are Daedra Charles of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville; Wendy Scholtens of Vanderbilt University, and Andrea Stinson of North Carolina State University.

Johnson holds two degrees from the Big Ten Conference school and frequently battles for it in Springfield, United Press International reported.

University of Illinois President Stanley O. Ikenberry distanced himself from the bill and said it appeared the measure puts investigations of athletics employees into a different category from other university workers.

"The university was not involved in the drafting of this proposed legislation, and we do not support

Robinson's cooperation in the investigation and that almost all of the violations occurred before Bay became athletics director in December 1988, his appointment would not have been renewed.

this approach," Ikenberry said in a statement. "If changes need to be made in NCAA enforcement procedures, we believe they should be addressed nationally."

Under the bill, the NCAA, National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, athletics conferences such as the Big Ten and all other collegiate athletics associations would be required to follow rules generally known as due process.

Provisions of the Illinois bill include a six-months' limit on investigations, a requirement that a violation finding be based on clear and convincing evidence, the right to legal representation, the ability to confront and challenge evidence, and protection against retaliation for complaints about NCAA procedure.

"The bill assures due process and equal protections," Johnson said.

"We (U of Illinois) have not been treated to total fairness and due process in the past."

Johnson specifically mentioned that time consumed by the current NCAA basketball investigation, which began in June 1989. He said the bill would not affect that inquiry unless it is continuing at the time the bill is signed into law.

Cosponsoring state Rep. John Cullerton, D-Chicago, said the bill is not designed to protect rules-breakers.

"The provisions in this law are not designed to shield anybody," Cullerton said. "It's to guarantee due process."

Johnson and Cullerton's bill must be declared an emergency measure to be considered in the General Assembly's spring session since House rules specify the current term is for fiscal measures.

The Nebraska Legislature passed a similar bill this session, allowing universities and colleges there to take the NCAA to court.

But, the U.S. Supreme Court previously ruled that the NCAA is not bound by Federal due-process laws because it is a private association.

The case involved University of Nevada, Las Vegas, men's basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian, who was accused of violating NCAA rules. He argued the NCAA did not follow due process in his case.

The high court said the NCAA is not under the constitutional requirement of due process, but the NCAA maintains it follows due-process procedures in all of its investigations.

The Revolutionary Gillette Sensor.

It senses and adjusts to the individual needs of your face for the best shave a man can get.

The remarkable Gillette Sensor shaving system creates an entirely new standard in shaving performance. It's a shave personalized to every man.

The revolution starts with the platinum hardened Sensor twin blades. They're individually and independently mounted on highly responsive springs. So they continuously sense and automatically adjust to the individual curves and unique needs of your face.

But innovation doesn't stop there. The ultra narrow metal skin guard is also mounted on springs. It moves in total harmony with the blades to set up your beard for optimum shaving performance.

Keeping this technology in constant contact with your face required another breakthrough. A dramatic redesign of the entire pivoting process creates a wider, more responsive, unprecedentedly smooth pivoting action. Innovation is everywhere.

You can feel it in the textured ridges and balance of the Sensor razor. You appreciate it in the easy loading system and the convenient shaving organizer.

Even rinsing is innovative. The new blades are 50% narrower than any others — water flows freely around and through them, helping to make rinsing and cleaning totally effortless.

But the true revolution of Sensor comes not with any one feature, but with the way the Sensor technologies work together. They combine to give your individual face a personalized shave — the closest, smoothest, safest shave you've ever had. Or, more precisely, the best shave a man can get.

Black enrollment decline reversed; private school gains biggest

Black enrollment at colleges and universities is higher after years of decline, with most of the increase at private institutions, an organization representing private schools has reported.

The National Institute of Independent Colleges and Universities citing Education Department figures said March 28 that there was a 7.1 percent increase in black enrollment at its institutions between the fall of 1986 and the fall of 1988. Black students increased 0.2 percent at public institutions over the same period.

The rise reverses a trend toward declining black enrollments. Between 1982 and 1986, black enrollment dropped 5.4 percent at independent colleges and 4.6 percent at public institutions, the institute said. A similar reversal occurred for native Americans.

Earlier this year, the American Council on Education reported overall enrollment declines of 9.5 percent for low-income Blacks and 16.5 percent for middle-income Blacks from 1976 to 1988 (see the January 24, 1990, issue of The NCAA News).

The private schools' organization said that minority enrollment at private schools increased 5.3 percent overall from 1986 to 1988, compared to 3.3 percent during the earlier period. At public colleges, there was a 4.5 percent increase, a slowdown from the 5.4 percent charted during the 1982-86 period.

Independent schools have recruited aggressively and have made 'a real commitment to financial aid'

Richard Rosser, president of the independent colleges group, said member schools have used aggressive recruiting tactics and made "a real commitment to financial aid" to achieve the jump in minority enrollment, the Associated Press reported.

Rosser said that since 1980, independent institutions have doubled their financial-aid commitment in real dollars, while financial aid rose only about nine percent from 1970 to 1980.

Frederick S. Humphries, president of Florida A&M University, said, "It's very gratifying to know there's an increase in minority enrollment in both public and private institutions. That needs to happen. Hopefully, all of us can grow because we need to grow. We need to better serve the minority students of America."

Florida A&M is one of 117 predominantly black colleges that belong to The National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education.

In a separate enrollment study released March 28 at the start of a four-day conference in Washington, D.C., that association said fall 1989 enrollment at the 117 institutions was 294,427 students—an increase of 9,747 (3.4 percent) over 1988 fall enrollment.

Association President Samuel Myers said he applauded the increase in minority enrollment but warned that all higher education institutions must find effective ways to address the needs of minority students once they are on campus.

"It's my hope that these institutions will not only bring those students in but that they do something to retain those students, give them the support they need to graduate," Myers said.

Rosser said that recent studies show independent institutions "have a higher retention rate and persistence rate for minorities in all programs at all our schools. The figures show how hard we've been working."

Native Americans' enrollment increased by 9.2 percent from 1986 to 1988 at private colleges and universities, compared with 3.6 percent at public schools. For the 1982-86 period, the institute said, native-American enrollment decreased 4.8 percent at the independent schools and increased only 0.9 percent at public institutions.

Enrollment of Hispanic students in independent higher education decreased by 4.4 percent, due primarily to enrollment declines in Puerto Rico. Enrollment of Asian students increased by 22.3 percent at independent colleges and universities and by 10.5 percent in public higher education.

Despite the bigger increase in minority enrollment at independent schools, minorities accounted for a greater proportion of the student body at public institutions—19.9 percent compared to 18.4 percent.

Northern Illinois drops gymnastics to renew baseball

Northern Illinois University will drop its 32-year-old men's gymnastics program to make way for a renewal of its baseball program, schools officials said March 28.

Northern Illinois, which joined the Association of Mid-Continent Universities last summer, is required by the conference to field a baseball team. The school dropped baseball after the 1982 season.

The decision to drop men's gymnastics was based on financial considerations and a decline in the popularity of the sport, said Gerald O'Dell, director of athletics.

"Basically, we had to generate substantial new revenues annually, or eliminate one men's sport," O'Dell said.

News Fact File

A total of 26 different Division I member institutions won NCAA team championships in 1988-89 (for men or women). Of the 26, 20 are members of Division I-A, three are I-AA members (Columbia University, Furman University, Harvard University) and three are in I-AAA (Old Dominion University, University of Vermont, Wichita State University).

Four of the 26 won more than one championship, and all four are I-A members. Louisiana State University and Stanford University won three each (men's and women's outdoor track and women's indoor track for LSU; men's and women's tennis and women's swimming for Stanford). The University of Texas, Austin, won men's swimming and women's volleyball, while the University of California, Los Angeles, won men's volleyball and women's softball.

The Big Ten and Southeastern Conferences each had four institutions win NCAA championships, while the Pacific-10 Conference institutions won three. The only other multiple winners were the Atlantic 10, Big Eight and Southwest Athletic Conferences and the Ivy Group, each with two institutions winning titles.

Plattsburgh State's ice hockey program goes on probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has placed the Plattsburgh State University College men's ice hockey program on probation for two years for major violations of NCAA rules. As a result, the team is ineligible for postseason competition after the 1990-91 season.

The NCAA also will vacate all team and individual records earned by ineligible student-athletes in the 1986, 1987 and 1988 National Collegiate Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championships.

The committee also will require the institution to show cause why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it does not disassociate eight representatives of its athletics interests who were involved in the violations found in this case.

The committee found that between 1985 and 1988, several student-athletes resided in the homes of representatives of the institution's athletics interests and received impermissible extra benefits from their host families. These benefits included free housing in some instances, use of automobiles, occasional meals and small cash loans.

The committee determined that the institution demonstrated a lack of institutional control over its men's ice hockey program due to the inadequacy of monitoring procedures in the athletics department. This lack of control was manifested in several ways, the committee said, including the unregulated use of athletics department telephones by student-athletes. The committee noted that violations in this case were discovered only one month after the committee's October 1985 report on previous violations found in the institution's men's ice hockey program.

In its report, the committee cited the "provision of extra benefits over a sustained period of time... in a manner that was not isolated and that resulted in a competitive advantage to the institution." Because the committee determined that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation, the committee is required by the membership to impose at least the following penalties, which are among the minimum penalties for such violations: a two-year probationary period; loss of postseason competition and live television appearances for at least one year; elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year, and the elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year. The NCAA membership, however, has given the committee the authority to impose lesser penalties if the committee determines that the case is unique.

The committee found that this case was unique for two reasons. First, the institution cooperated fully with the investigation and conducted a thorough investigation of the program. Secondly, the institution has taken steps to strengthen its athletics administration and to implement procedures designed to ensure that it will comply with the principles of institutional control and rules compliance in the future. The committee also noted the institution's "utmost candor and forthrightness at the committee hearing."

Because of these factors, the committee did not impose several of the penalties it was considering. Specifically, it did not:

- Eliminate expense-paid recruiting visits (by the institution) for one year.
- Prohibit all off-campus recruiting for one year.
- Prohibit the institution from participating in postseason competition after the 1991-92 season.

In addition, the committee adopted the institution's self-imposed corrective actions with respect to off-campus housing of student-athletes.

Members of the Committee on Infractions are: Roy F. Kramer, incoming commissioner of the Southeastern Conference; Beverly E. Ledbetter, vice-president and general counsel at Brown University; John E. Nowak, professor of law at the University of Illinois, Champaign; Patricia A. O'Hara, associate professor of law at the University of Notre Dame; Milton R. Schroeder, professor of law at Arizona State University, and D. Alan Williams (committee chair), associate professor of history at the University of Virginia.

The committee's full report follows.

I. Introduction.

On April 9, 1987, and again on May 8, 1987, the NCAA enforcement staff received anonymous letters from an individual who provided information related to possible violations of NCAA legislation occurring in the men's intercollegiate ice hockey program at Plattsburgh State University College. Information provided included potential violations of NCAA legislation regarding the provision of extra benefits to student-athletes on the men's ice hockey team.

On October 16, 1987, a letter of preliminary inquiry was sent to President Charles O. Warren, who had been appointed to the presidency at the institution three months earlier. Thereafter, the enforcement staff conducted an independent investigation, and on July 12, 1989, a letter of official inquiry was sent to President Warren. The institution submitted its response to the official inquiry December 14, 1989. A prehearing conference was held at the NCAA national office January 11, 1990.

On February 3, 1990, the Committee on Infractions met with institutional representatives to consider the nature of the violations in this case and the NCAA penalties, if any, that should be imposed upon the institution.

At this hearing, the institution reported to the committee that in its view, based on its internal investigation, many of the allegations in the official inquiry, as amended as a result of the prehearing conference, were substantially correct. At the conclusion of the hearing, the committee deliberated in private, made the findings that are set forth in Part II of this report and imposed the penalties described in Part III of this report.

In brief, the committee found that during the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, several student-athletes in the sport of men's ice hockey (who were Canadian citizens) resided in the homes of representatives of the institution's athletics interests and received impermissible extra benefits from their host families. One student-athlete received free housing, occasional meals and small cash loans that resulted in violations of the NCAA extra-benefit regulation, as well as an award of financial aid that was contrary to NCAA limitations applicable to Division III members. Another student-athlete received housing and occasional meals at a reduced cost. Several other student-athletes paid prevailing rent but received occasional meals, small cash loans and local use of automobiles. On several occasions during this same period, some of the representatives of the institution's athletics interests (with whom members of the men's ice hockey team were residing) also provided impermissible automobile transportation to student-athletes in the sport of men's ice hockey, in most instances to attend professional ice hockey games in Montreal. Another different representative of the institution's athletics interests waived the usual admission charge to his restaurant for student-athletes in the sports of men's basketball and ice hockey.

Of equal importance to the committee's findings of specific violations of NCAA legislation was the committee's determination that the institution demonstrated a lack of institutional control over its men's ice hockey program due to the inadequacy of monitoring procedures in the institution's athletics department during the period of the violations. This case is not the institution's first appearance before the Committee on Infractions in connection with violations relating to the men's ice hockey program. In October 1985, the committee issued a report in which it found that an out-of-season ice hockey scrimmage occurred in 1984 involving prospective and enrolled student-athletes, and that a student-athlete participated in several ice hockey practices while enrolled in less than a minimum full-time program of studies.

Only one month after issuance of the report in this earlier case, the institution received information that an institutional staff member had offered free housing off campus to a prospective student-athlete in the sport of men's ice hockey. The institution conducted an internal investigation, determined that an institutional staff member may have offered an improper inducement and self-reported this information to the NCAA. The institution naively assumed, however, that this self-reported information was confined to recruiting practices and concluded that its regular on-campus residence requirements would alleviate any difficulties. Notwithstanding its prior problems with the men's ice hockey team and this notice of a possible improper offer of housing to a recruit, the institution took no steps to implement monitoring procedures with respect to off-campus housing arrangements for student-athletes in the sport of men's ice hockey and took no steps to educate off-campus landlords who were housing student-athletes about potential extra-benefit problems. This absence of monitoring procedures created an atmosphere in which the continuing series of extra-benefit violations described in Part II-A occurred.

The lack of institutional control also is manifested in the unregulated use of athletics department telephones described in Part II-D and in evidence adduced at the hearing that indicated that some members of the coaching staffs of the involved sport knew or should have known of the waiver practice described in Part II-E. In summary, the absence of meaningful monitoring procedures for NCAA rules compliance exhibited at least an insensitivity on the part of the athletics department and the then men's head ice hockey coach to the potential for violations in a premier sports program that was highly visible in a small community.

The committee determined that the violations set forth in Part II of this report, in particular Part II-A, constituted major violations of NCAA legislation. In this regard, the case involved the provision of extra benefits over a sustained period of time that were significant in amount for a Division III member institution to student-athletes in the sport of men's ice hockey in a manner that was not isolated and that resulted in a competitive advantage to the institution. Each of the young men who received the impermissible extra benefits described in Part II-A competed for the institution in one or more National Collegiate Division III Ice Hockey Championships during the period of the violations. The institution's men's ice hockey team won the NCAA Division III championship in 1987, finished second in 1986 and participated in a quarterfinal contest in 1988.

Because these violations occurred after September 1, 1985, the committee's findings normally would subject the institution to a minimum prescribed penalty, which would include a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for at least one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for at least one year, possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, the loss of postseason competition and television-appearance opportunities for at least one year, and institutional recertification of compliance. Under the terms of the NCAA legislation that establishes minimum penalties for a major rules violation, however, the Committee on Infractions may impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is "unique."

Ordinarily, unique circumstances that justify relief from the Association's mandatory penalties include factors such as: prompt detection of violations; investigating and reporting violations to the NCAA; cooperating in the processing of the case, and initiating strong corrective and disciplinary measures before action by the committee. The committee gives great weight to such institutional actions in deciding the extent to which a case presents unique circumstances. Other circumstances, although not as significant as these institutional measures, also may warrant viewing a major case as unique for some purposes.

Two factors led the committee to find that this case was unique and to impose penalties that differed from the list of minimum penalties set forth in NCAA legislation. First, the institution cooperated fully with the NCAA investigation and conducted a thorough internal investigation of its men's ice hockey program; following receipt of the official inquiry, the institution suspended three student-athletes from participation in the men's ice hockey program pending conclusion of its internal investigation and determination of all eligibility questions, and the institution exhibited the utmost candor and forthrightness at the committee hearing.

Secondly, the institution has taken steps to strengthen its athletics administration and to implement procedures designed to ensure that the institution will comply with the principles of institutional control and rules compliance in the future. Specifically, with respect to off-campus housing: (a) the institution has informed all freshman and transfer ice hockey student-athletes that they may not request an exemption to the institution's on-campus residency requirements from the Office of Student Life without prior review and approval by the director of athletics; (b) the institution requires documentation from all student-athletes in men's ice hockey regarding their housing arrangements, including, in the case of off-campus housing, rent receipts and copies of either lease agreements or statements notarized by the student-athlete and the landlord reflecting rental arrangements; (c) the institution sends a letter to all landlords of ice hockey student-athletes informing them of NCAA legislation with respect to extra benefits, and (d) beginning in the fall semester of 1990, the institution will not allow ice hockey student-athletes to live in off-campus housing in which there is no history of rental to the general student body.

Although the committee found that this case was unique in some respects, the nature of the violations in this case required that significant penalties be imposed on the institution's men's ice hockey program. These penalties are described in Part III of this report.

In brief, the penalties include the following: a two-year period of probation; vacation of the records of the institution's participation and performance in the 1986, 1987 and 1988 National Collegiate Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championships under the terms of Bylaw 31.2.2.4; elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits by the institution and representatives of its athletics interests for one year; elimination of all off-campus recruiting for one year; a prohibition against postseason competition by the men's ice hockey team during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years; a show-cause order as to why the institution should not be disciplined further if each representative of the institution's athletics interests involved in the violations set forth in this report is not disassociated for the period of the institution's probation, and adoption of the institution's self-imposed corrective actions with respect to off-campus housing of student-athletes in the men's ice hockey program as described in the institution's official response. In light of the same mitigating factors discussed in classifying the case as unique, the committee immediately suspended: the penalty relating to elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits as to the institution, but not as to representatives of the institution's athletics interests; the penalty relating to off-campus recruiting, and the second year of the prohibition against postseason competition.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.1] During the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, several student-athletes in the sport of men's ice hockey who were Canadian citizens resided in the homes of several representatives of the institution's athletics interests and received occasional meals at little or no cost to the young men; further, several of these representatives provided cash loans to the student-athletes living in their homes and also allowed the student-athletes the use of their automobiles. Specifically:

1. During the 1985-86 and 1986-87 academic years, a student-athlete lived in the home of a representative of the institution's athletics interests and received housing and occasional meals at no cost to the young man; further, on a few occasions, the representative lent small amounts of cash to the young man and allowed the student-athlete to use his automobile.

2. During the 1985-86 academic year, and during the fall semester of the 1986-87 academic year, another student-athlete lived in the home of another representative of the institution's athletics interests and received occasional meals at no cost to the young man.

3. During the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, a third student-athlete lived in the home of a third representative of the institution's athletics interests and, on a few occasions, the representative lent small amounts of cash to the young man and allowed the student-athlete to use his automobile.

4. During the 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, another student-athlete lived in the home of another representative of the institution's athletics interests and received occasional meals at no cost to the young man.

5. During the spring semester of 1987 and the 1987-88 academic year, a fifth student-athlete lived in the home of a fifth representative of the institution's athletics interests and received housing and occasional meals at a reduced cost.

6. During the 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, another student-athlete lived in the home of another representative of the institution's athletics interests and received occasional meals at no cost to the young man; further, on a few occasions, the representative allowed the student-athlete to use his automobile.

B. [NCAA Bylaws 15.4 and 15.4.5] At least during the 1986-87 academic year, the institution's policies for awarding institutional financial aid to a student-athlete in the sport of ice hockey violated the criteria for Division III financial aid, in that as a result of Part II-A-1 of this report, a student-athlete received cost-free lodging and meals, which was not considered in the determination of financial need for this student-athlete when awarding institutional financial aid.

C. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.1] On several occasions during the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, several representatives of the institution's athletics interests provided round-trip automobile transportation to six ice hockey student-athletes between Plattsburgh, New York, and Montreal, Canada (a one-way distance of approximately 60 miles). Specifically:

1. On several occasions during the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, two representatives of the institution's athletics interests provided this transportation in order for two student-athletes to attend professional ice hockey games; further, during the fall semester of the 1987-88 academic year, one of the foregoing representatives and another representative of the institution's athletics interests provided this transportation in order for four student-athletes to attend a professional ice hockey game.

2. During the spring semester of the 1986-87 academic year, one of the representatives of the institution's athletics interests involved in Part II-C-1 provided this transportation in order for a student-athlete to visit the young man's home at no cost to him.

D. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.2] During the 1986-87 academic year, student-athletes in the sport of ice hockey made personal, long-distance telephone calls from the ice hockey coaches' office telephones at no cost to the student-athletes.

E. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.3] On numerous occasions during the 1985-86, 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years, a representative of the institution's athletics interests waived the usual admission charge to his restaurant for student-athletes in the sports of men's basketball and ice hockey because the young men were student-athletes at the institution.

F. [NCAA Constitution 2.1, 6.01, 6.1 and 6.4] The scope and nature of the findings in this report demonstrate a lack of appropriate institutional control and monitoring in the administration of the institution's intercollegiate ice hockey program during the period in which the violations in this report occurred.

This case is not the institution's first appearance before the Committee on Infractions in connection with violations relating to the men's ice hockey program. In October 1985, the committee issued a report in which it found that an out-of-season ice hockey scrimmage occurred in 1984 involving prospective and enrolled student-athletes, and that a student-athlete participated in several ice hockey practices while enrolled in less than a minimum full-time program of studies.

Only one month after issuance of the report in this earlier case, the institution received information that an institutional staff member had offered free housing off campus to a prospective student-athlete in the sport of men's ice hockey. The institution conducted an internal investigation, determined that an institutional staff member may have offered an improper inducement and self-reported this information to the NCAA. The institution naively assumed, however, that this self-reported information was confined to recruiting practices and concluded that its regular on-campus residence requirements would alleviate any difficulties. Notwithstanding its prior problems with the men's ice hockey team and this notice of a possible improper offer of housing to a recruit, the institution took no steps to implement monitoring procedures with respect to off-campus housing arrangements for student-athletes in the sport of men's ice hockey and took no steps to educate off-campus landlords who were housing student-athletes about potential extra-benefit problems. This absence of monitoring procedures created an atmosphere in which the continuing series of extra-benefit violations described in Part II-A occurred.

The lack of institutional control also is manifested in the unregulated use of athletics department telephones described in Part II-D and in evidence adduced at the hearing that indicated some members of the coaching staffs of the involved sports knew or should have known of the waiver practice described in Part II-E. In summary, the absence of meaningful monitoring procedures for NCAA rules compliance exhibited at least an insensitivity on the part of the athletics department and the then men's head ice hockey coach to the potential for violation in a premier sports program that was highly visible in a small community.

G. [NCAA Bylaws 30.3, 30.3.3 and 30.3.5] The institution's certification of compliance forms during the 1986-87 and 1987-88 academic years were erroneous because violations in this report indicate that the institution's intercollegiate ice hockey program was not in compliance with NCAA legislation.

Also, based upon erroneous information provided by at least one former staff member, and without intent to do so, the institution's chief executive officer erroneously certified the institution's compliance with NCAA legislation. Specifically, for the 1987-88 academic year, the institution's chief executive officer attested on October 1, 1987.

Finally, the institution failed to correctly complete its certification-of-compliance form for the 1986-87 academic year in that an assistant hockey coach failed to sign the form.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

For the reasons set forth in Part I of this report, the Committee on Infractions found that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation that are set forth in Part II of this report. Because this case involves major violations of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985, NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted by the Convention of the Association, requires, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," minimum penalties that shall include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year, or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

The Committee on Infractions determined that this case was a unique case in which the institution should receive penalties that differ from the full set of minimum penalties otherwise required by NCAA legislation. The committee believed that some elements of the prescribed penalties were not applicable to a Division III member. Moreover, the committee determined that certain mitigating factors support the finding that this case is unique. These mitigating factors include the following:

a. The institution cooperated fully with the NCAA investigation and conducted a thorough internal investigation of its men's ice hockey program; following receipt of the official inquiry, the institution suspended three student-athletes from participation in the men's ice hockey program, pending conclusion of its internal investigation and determination of all eligibility questions, and the institution exhibited the utmost candor and forthrightness at the committee hearing.

b. The institution has taken steps to strengthen its athletics administration and to implement administrative procedures designed to ensure that the institution will comply with the principles of institutional control and rules compliance in the future. Specifically, with respect to off-campus housing: (1) the institution has informed all freshman and transfer ice hockey student-athletes that they may not request an exemption to the institution's on-campus residency requirements from the Office of Student Life without prior review and approval by the director of athletics; (2) the institution requires documentation from all student-athletes in men's ice hockey regarding their housing arrangements, including, in the case of off-campus housing, rent receipts and copies of either lease agreements or statements notarized by the student-athlete and the landlord reflecting rental arrangements; (3) the institution sends a letter to all landlords of ice hockey student-athletes informing them of NCAA legislation with respect to extra benefits, and (4) beginning in the fall semester of 1990, the institution will not allow ice hockey student-athletes to live in off-campus housing in which there is no history of rental to the general student body.

Accordingly, the penalties imposed in this case by the Committee on Infractions are as follows:

A. The institution shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of two years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal, it being understood that should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Further, Plattsburgh State University College shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. During the period of probation, the institution shall report (prior to July 1, 1990; prior to July 1, 1991, and prior to the end of the probationary period) to the NCAA enforcement staff and the Committee on Infractions the actions it has taken to: (1) place its intercollegiate athletics program in general and the men's ice hockey program in particular under institutional control, and (2) monitor the men's ice hockey program in a manner that will include, but not be limited to, monitoring of off-campus housing.

C. The institution's men's ice hockey team shall end its 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons with the playing of its last regularly scheduled in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in postseason competition following those seasons. In addition, the men's ice hockey team may not participate in a foreign tour in the summer of 1990 or following the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons; further, the men's ice hockey team may not play any of its regular-season contests outside the continental United States during the 1990-91 and 1991-92 seasons. (NOTE: This penalty is immediately suspended for the 1991-92 academic year based on the mitigating factors set forth above.)

D. The committee found that, at least in part due to the institution's failure to exercise institutional control over its men's ice hockey program, student-athletes who were ineligible to represent the institution (and student-athletes whom the institution's coaching staff knew or should have known were ineligible) represented the institution in the 1986, 1987 and 1988 National Collegiate Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championships (reference: Parts II-I-A through F of this report). Therefore, under the terms of Bylaw 31.2.2.4, the records of the individuals' and the teams' performances in those championships shall be deleted.

E. The institution and representatives of its athletics interests shall be prohibited from providing any expense-paid visits to the institution for a prospective student-athlete in men's ice hockey during the 1990-91 academic year. (NOTE: Based on the mitigating factors set forth above, this penalty is immediately suspended as to the institution, but is not suspended as to the representatives of the institution's athletics interests.)

F. All members of the institution's men's ice hockey coaching staff shall be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting or evaluation activities during the 1990-91 academic year. (NOTE: This penalty is immediately and completely suspended based on the mitigating factors set forth above.)

G. The institution, as a self-imposed disciplinary measure, has instituted certain corrective actions with respect to off-campus housing of student-athletes in the men's ice hockey program. The institution's self-imposed corrective actions, as described in its official response and summarized in the discussion of mitigating factors set forth above, are hereby adopted by the committee for the period of probation as a penalty imposed by the committee.

H. The institution shall be required to show cause why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it does not disassociate (in accordance with Bylaw 19.4.2.6) the eight representatives of its athletics interests who were involved in violations found in this case (reference: Part II-A-1; Part II-A-3; Part II-A-4; Parts II-A-5 and II-C-1; Parts II-A-6 and II-C-1; Parts II-C-1 and II-C-2, and Part II-E of this report.)

I. The institution shall recertify that its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA legislation.

(NOTE: Should Plattsburgh State University College appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division III members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided to the institution prior to the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.

Also, the Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed; further, the committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case, and finally, should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.)

A good case for buying all your sports insurance from one source.

K&K's approach to sports insurance is a new concept in this specialized business. Now, for the first time, you or your broker can get all your insurance from a single source. And here's why that's a good idea.

Tailored coverage. A K&K representative along with your broker visits your facility. Inspects the buildings and grounds. Asks the right questions. With one company coordinating all your needs, you get exactly what you need. No more or less.

Coverage continuity. One company can obviously give you better continuity than several can.

One-stop shopping. It's easy and convenient, so you save a lot of time.

One-stop claim service. No delays in filing reports to several companies. Just call our claims experts for expedient service.

Coverage you can't get anywhere else. When your source is K&K, we'll provide general liability, property and casualty, worker's comp, equipment, auto, business interruption, and something you can't get anywhere else. Participant liability. We'll actually insure professional athletes while performing at your facility.

Cost savings. When you buy all your insurance from one source, we can save you money.

A representative who's a specialist. Your K&K representative will be someone who has specialized for years in the business of sports. Someone who knows how to identify and manage risk. And keep your premium cost down.

Easier administration. Don't you think that one company would be easier to deal with than several? You're right.

Transamerica Insurance Company. We combine the credibility and financial strength of Transamerica Insurance Company with our own solid commitment to the sports industry. Pretty impressive.

There are more good reasons, too. For complete details, call us today at 219-427-3000.

Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee:

Date of competition/practice

1. Institution's team practicing with another institution's team. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaws 14.2.4.5.2, 17.02.1 and 17.02.7 (intercollegiate competition), and confirmed a staff interpretation that when a member institution arranges for one of its teams to participate with another institution's team members in a joint practice session, such an arrangement would constitute a date of competition for both institutions.

Golf/seasons of competition

2. Determination of date of competition in "college-am" activities. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 17.8.4.1.1 (dates of competition) and a previous Council interpretation indicating that student-athletes would be permitted to participate in a "college-am" golf tournament without such participation constituting a date of competition, provided the "college-am" was held in conjunction with intercollegiate competition; agreed that under such circumstances, a student-athlete would not be permitted to receive awards or prizes in conjunction with the "college-am" tournament.

Expenses

3. Receipt of lodging, meal and travel expenses for practice activities. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 16.11.1.3, and determined that a student-athlete participating on an outside, amateur team normally could receive lodging, meal and travel expenses for practice activities only when such practice is directly related to a competition and is conducted during a continuous time period preceding the competition; noted, however, that if a student-athlete is involved in practice sessions conducted by a national team, the student-athlete may receive expenses for practice sessions for specific competition, even if the practice is not continuous and is occasionally interrupted for specified periods of time preceding the competition.

Conference No. 3
February 22, 1990

Videotapes/films

4. Conference recruiting videotape to prospects. Agreed that the provisions of Bylaw 13.3.1 would not preclude a member conference from selling to other institutions or conferences a videotape designed to provide general recruiting information to prospective student-athletes, it being understood that the videotape (which is identified with a particular conference) may not be given to any prospect.

Official visits

5. Transportation to site of high school or junior college contest. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 13.2.1 and 13.5.2.5, and determined that a member institution that transports a prospective student-athlete from his or her legal residence or educational institution to a member institution for an official visit also may transport the prospect (following completion of the visit) to the site of a high school or junior college athletics contest (instead of returning the prospect to the site where the official visit originated), provided the cost of such transportation does not exceed the cost of round-trip transportation between the prospect's home or educational institution and the member institution.

Outside competition

6. Four-year transfer student countable toward summer basketball league outside competition limitations (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 14.8.5.2 (a) and 14.8.6.2, and a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 1 of the minutes of the committee's March 16, 1989, conference), and determined that a student who has transferred from a four-year collegiate institution would not count toward that institution's student-athlete limitations in subsequent summer outside competition (i.e., the limits on the number of student-athletes from a particular institution who may participate in state or national multi-sport events sanctioned by the Council, sanctioned foreign competition involving an outside or all-star team, Olympic and national team development programs, and other outside competition and club teams); noted that this interpretation is consistent with the manner in which such legislation applies to prospective student-athletes generally.

Season suspended

Central Connecticut State University has suspended its men's tennis season after seven team members were injured when the team's van was struck by a car in Florida last month.

The team was in Florida for spring training. One team member is still hospitalized in Florida; the others have returned to school.

Judith A. Davidson, director of athletics, said competition would begin again next year for the men's team.

Colgate athletes share in MD victim's final weeks

Colgate University's ice hockey team has won the hearts of many this season—and not because of the teams' on-ice heroics.

Certainly, the squad put together a great year, won 31 games and advanced to the finals of the Division I Ice Hockey Championship. But other efforts have earned these student-athletes rave notices.

Like, for example, their work with Calvin Law, a local youth who lost his life to muscular dystrophy in early February—less than a month after Colgate hockey players helped him celebrate his 16th birthday.

"He'd come by practices," said goalie Dave Gagnon, a finalist for the Hobey Baker Award. "And we went out to his house and played Nintendo hockey with him. His bedroom was like the hockey hall of fame for Colgate. He had everything."

"We gave him his birthday party in our dressing room," said senior Joel Gardner. "His mom talked about it for weeks... he was on a great high. It was great to see him laugh."

Then, Calvin died.

"It was probably one of the toughest things I ever had to do," said Gagnon, of attending the youngsters' funeral. "It was overwhelming to see a little kid who only had 15 years to live."

Ever since, Colgate players have worn black shoulder patches. "We decided to put them on so everybody in the crowd can see that there's 25 big hearts on this team," Gardner told Associated Press recently.

Not that anyone had missed that message. Colgate hockey players drove that point home when a local family lost its home in a fire over the Christmas holidays.

"It needed to be done," Gagnon said, of the team's fund-raising effort (in excess of $1,500 was raised).

"We all pitched in together, dedicated a couple of games to raise money for the family," Gardner added. "Those are the things that you do in a small community."

Women's softball players at California State University, Fullerton, have dedicated their season to eight-year-old leukemia victim Christina Schnabl. A member of the Titan Tuffy women's softball fan club, Schnabl was a bat girl for the team last season.

A Cal State Fullerton student group, the Christina Schnabl Public Relations Agency, will join with softball players April 23 to conduct a blood-sampling drive in an attempt to find a compatible donor for the bone-marrow transplant Schnabl needs.

From sports historian Dick Kishpaugh, a regular contributor to The NCAA News, comes the following:

Is Mel VanDis the only player ever to start for a Class A high school basketball team and a Division I college team in the same season?

In the 1942-43 season, when Kalamazoo (Michigan) Central High School had midyear (late January) graduating classes, VanDis started at center for the Maroons during the first semester. He then received his diploma and enrolled immediately at Western Michigan University, where he started at center for the remainder of the Broncos' season. The team finished 15-4.

His high school squad went on to win its conference championship that season, Kishpaugh reports.

Wichita State University baseball coach Gene Stephenson earned career victory No. 700 March 22 when his Shockers defeated New Mexico, 15-1. His record through that game was 700-218-3 (.763).

Kevin C. Lennon, NCAA director of compliance, reports that registration for the series of regional seminars being held this month and next by the Association's compliance services and legislative services departments already has topped 300. "Preregistration suggests that attendance for the seminars will be high, and those of us involved in planning for the events are excited about that," Lennon said.

For $45,000 each, 20 University of South Carolina, Columbia, football fans have purchased custom-designed garnet and black railroad cabooses. The Associated Press reports that the cars will debut this fall as the "Cockaboos Railroad" on a rail spur next to South Carolina's Williams-Brice Stadium.

"This is the ultimate (in) tailgating right here," said businessman Ed R. Robinson, who marketed the cars with partner Carl F. Howard.

a mall recently when they spied a store manager trying to run down a suspected shoplifter. Noting that the manager was having trouble in the chase (turned out he was asthmatic), the pair chased down the suspect and held him for the manager.

"I wasn't going to catch him," said Kemboi, a Kenyan. "I was just going to chase him until he stopped."

Central State University (Oklahoma) fifth-year senior Jenny Marcos has continued to rack up impressive numbers on the tennis court—despite her pregnancy. In her first match since the birth of her first child last May, Marcos—five months pregnant at the time—captured her No. 1 singles match against Oral Roberts University's Melissa Whibley in straight sets (6-4, 6-3).

"Her (Marcos') doctor said this (her pregnancy) is a natural occurrence and she should continue her natural lifestyle," Central State (Oklahoma) coach Francis Baxter recently told writer Kelly Kurt of the Tulsa Tribune. "When this season is over, I might have to write a book about coaching pregnant women."

Basketball fans who live near Clark University (Massachusetts) probably had the time of their lives recently. The school hosted 24 hoop games in 16 days involving the men's and women's varsity teams and high school squads participating in the 51st Annual Clark High School Tournament.

Three ice hockey teams from the Eastern College Athletic Conference, including the Colgate club mentioned earlier, have made the Division I final four. The other ECAC members/NCAA semifinalists are Boston College and Boston University.

Trivia Time: What was Colgate's all-time record in the Division I play-offs going into the 1990 tournament? Answer later.

Petitions from gymnasts interested in trying out for the U.S. women's artistic gymnastics team that will compete in the 1991 World University Games are being accepted through April 28. The team also will need a coach, and resumes currently are being accepted from those with college coaching experience.

More information on the trials and the coaching position is available from the U.S. Gymnastics Federation (telephone 317/237-5050, FAX 317/237-5069).

More Report Cards: Among the 14 student-athletes named recently to the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's all-academic men's and women's basketball teams were three repeat selections. Two of them, Debbie Delie and Brian Gregory, are from Oakland University. The other, Lisa Jamula, attends Northern Michigan University. All of those named had grade-point averages of at least 3.000 (4.000 scale).

East Coast Conference officials recently honored seven student-athletes on winter sports teams for their academic efforts. Named ECC winter scholar-athletes were Kennell Jones, Towson State University (men's basketball, 3.200 GPA in business administration); Susan Jewell, Hofstra University (women's basketball, 3.990 GPA in biology/premedicine); John Garofolo, Bucknell University (men's swimming, 3.300 in accounting); Traci Morret, Drexel University (women's swimming, 3.880 in commerce and engineering); David Sheppard, University of Delaware (men's indoor track, 3.270 in accounting); Kelly Marsh, Bucknell (women's indoor track, 4.000 in history), and Chris Dimak, Drexel (wrestling, 3.800 in hotel and restaurant management).

Eastern Michigan University has announced that 152 student-athletes (82 men and 70 women) earned GPAs of at least 3.000 during the fall semester. Twenty of the men and 24 of the women had GPAs of at least 3.500.

Leading the 23 University of Idaho student-athletes who were named academic all-Big Sky Conference for the winter sports season was track athlete Greg Carlsen, a junior with a 4.000 in health-related professions. All of the honorees had GPAs of at least 3.000.

Fifty-four of the 413 student-athletes named to the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference's fall-semester honor roll posted 4.000 GPAs. All of those named earned at least a 3.200.

From Peter G. Manetas, sports information director at Trenton State College, comes word of the school's amazing on-field success so far this year. Fall and winter sports teams combined to produce a composite record of 124-33-3 (.789).

A scholarship endowment honoring Ruth Marske, South Dakota State University assistant to the athletics director, has been established by the school. Marske, who has been battling cancer, joined the staff 20 years ago.

Trivia Answer: In one previous appearance in the Division I ice hockey championship (1981), Colgate was 0-2.

Players' emotions after game need attention, researchers say

Educators at Valdosta State College say coaches need to "resocialize" players after games to reduce the risk that athletes will turn to drugs, alcohol or violence as a way of coping with depression, euphoria, hostility and other emotions.

"One of the most ignored areas of coaching is post-tension behavior of players," said James Conn, an assistant professor of health, physical education and athletics. "It leads to players going out and getting drunk because of their performance. To escape that frustration, they say, 'I'm going to get drunk or take drugs or beat up my girlfriend.'"

Conn and psychology professor Donald Foshee have studied high school coaches in south Georgia and written several articles on the importance of calming players down following games, the Associated Press reported.

"Most of the coaches are concerned about the welfare of the players, but more attention to this would be part of a good management program," said Foshee, a specialist on motivation and arousal. "We're arguing that coaches ought to assume the responsibility of checking players out before they leave the locker room."

Coaches often use sophisticated arousal techniques developed for Olympic players to get maximum performance from their athletes. Because of this, they have a moral obligation to help players get their arousal levels and exuberance under control, the professors said.

The coach should look for signs of withdrawal, apathy, lethargy, hopelessness, aggressiveness, rebelliousness and self-deprecation, Foshee said. He added that some players are likely to drive too fast, use drugs or engage in self-destructive behavior if their arousal levels remain high.

"Coaches should look at stress levels in athletes and try to make predictions of potential problems," he said, noting that a high school football player in Tennessee died after butting his head against a wall following a loss.

Conn, who coached high school and college teams for 17 years, said he thinks most coaches are sensitive to their players' emotions but need to be aware of the problems that could occur if the players remain "psyched-up" after the game.

"I don't think our job is done until we put them back on the street in the right frame of mind," added Conn. "If we freely manipulate the arousal of players so they can perform in sports, don't we have a responsibility to resocialize them?"

Conn conducts workshops in south Georgia. In addition, he and Foshee are conducting a stress study on football players and plan to survey coaches in the area to see what they are doing about post-game behavior.

"It's a very, very new area, and people know little about it," Conn said. "I think it's something we need to be more aware of and something we need to actively practice."

The goal of the research is to provide a safer environment for players and to reduce the potential for lawsuits against coaches.

Foshee said coaches are under intense pressure to produce winning teams and they are more vulnerable than ever before.

"There are players rebelling against coaches. There have been three or four coaches forced out because the players felt they were not responsive to their needs and the coaches were abusive," he said.

"Coaches need to be aware of the changing climate and the pressures."

$5.6 million in gym improvements planned

Renovation and enlargement of Northwest Missouri State University's Lamkin Gymnasium was approved in concept March 22 by the university's board of regents.

Regents approved a request from school President Dean L. Hubbard for permission to seek a funding package totalling an expected $5.6 million for the project, which currently is to include:

- New entries and exits and a lobby for efficient and safe crowd entrance and exit, and faculty and coaches offices on the south end of Lamkin.

- Remodeled lower-level area, including enlarged training room; multipurpose rooms; fitness center; laundry facilities; updated varsity and visitor dressing rooms, and heating, ventilation, and air-conditioning equipment.

- New seating around the main playing floor of the current facility, new lighting, sound system, and classrooms where current offices and the M-Club room are located.

- New addition to the north end of Lamkin that would include recreation areas for university students, office and storage for the director of intramurals, and an elevated jogging track.

Lamkin Gymnasium was built in the late 1950s and first put into use for the spring commencement ceremonies in 1959 when student enrollment was below 2,000. The structure now serves a campus that last fall grew to more than 5,900 students.
