Go back to 28 games, coaches say

The Committee on Basketball Issues unanimously has endorsed a proposal by the legislative committee of the National Association of Basketball Coaches to restore the 28-game regular-season limit in Division I basketball.

The coaches' committee said a reduction in time demands on student-athletes could be more effectively achieved by a shorter playing season (in number of days as opposed to number of games) and by limits on the time an athlete can spend on the sport. The committee also said reducing the number of games from 28 to 25 would eliminate a "necessary source of revenue."

The 1990 NCAA Convention approved a proposal to reduce regular-season games to 25, beginning August 1, 1992, and to eliminate exemptions for home games against USA Basketball or foreign teams and for travel to contests or tournaments outside the continental U.S.

The Committee on Basketball Issues also endorsed a coaches' proposal to restore those exemptions, stating that home games do not result in lost class time and trips to Hawaii or Alaska occur during an institution's vacation period.

Mike Krzyzewski, head men's coach at Duke University and chair of the coaches' legislative committee, said student-athletes, if faced with a choice in reducing time demands, would rather participate in games than in practice.

He said the coaches' legislative committee endorses the cuts (effective August 1, 1992) in length of playing and practice seasons (October 15—preseason conditioning, November 1—first practice, December 1—first game), but he said the most effective way to deal with time demands on athletes is to shorten the playing season and limit the time per week an athlete can engage in athletically related activities.

However, the coaches are committed to working within the system and wish to be a part of the reform dialogue and process, Krzyzewski said.

Width of goal posts will change in '91

Kickers have one more season of aiming at a target more than 23 feet wide in college football, which will see the width of goal-post uprights shrink by almost four feet in 1991. Those are the results of an action taken May 7 by the NCAA Executive Committee, which met in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Because the Executive Committee is charged with oversight of playing rules published by the Association that may have a safety, financial or image impact, the group reviewed a change adopted earlier this year by the NCAA Football Rules Committee to narrow goal-post widths from 23 feet, four inches, to 18-6, effective with the 1990 season. The proposal was advanced in an attempt to offset increased accuracy and proficiency of kickers on field-goal and extra-point attempts and to provide more balance between offense and defense.

The change originally was considered March 1 by the NCAA Administrative Committee, which remanded it to the rules committee with a request for additional study of costs to institutions, goal-post warranty ramifications, coaches' opinions of the change, and kicking-accuracy data in all NCAA football-playing divisions and subdivisions.

The Football Rules Committee requested reconsideration by the Administrative Committee, which approved the rule change April 12 on the basis that the cost of altering existing goal posts would be no more than about $400 per institution.

During the Administrative Committee's April 22 conference, a member of the Executive Committee requested that the April 12 approval be reconsidered. The Administrative Committee directed that the Executive Committee consider the rules change in Colorado Springs.

In addition to approving narrower goal posts beginning in 1991, the Executive Committee also approved a rule change to require use of a visible 25-second clock in NCAA football, effective with the 1992 season.

Another Football Rules Committee recommendation, which would have eliminated the use of "split crews" of officials (i.e., assigning officials from different conferences to work together during a given game), was referred to NCAA member conferences, whose administrative duties include the assigning of officials for regular-season contests.

Other rules actions

The Executive Committee also:

- Approved a change recommended by the Men's and Women's Soccer Rules Committee to mandate shin-guard use, effective August 15, 1991.

- Decided that a soccer playing rule regarding substitution did not fall within the Executive Committee's oversight areas. This decision leaves in effect a change that eliminates restrictions on the number of players who can participate in a conference but prohibits a player who has been substituted for from reentering a game in the same period.

- Approved a number of changes recommended by the Men's Basketball Rules Committee, including one that increases the penalty for fighting to a one-game suspension for the first occurrence and suspension for the remainder of the season for the second occurrence.

In a rules-related matter, the Executive Committee directed the Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committees, or a group of

Letter of intent has new signing period

The Collegiate Commissioners Association, the group administering the National Letter of Intent program, has voted 17-2 to approve an early signing period for all sports other than fall sports.

The early signing dates will parallel the November basketball signing dates and were recommended by the NCAA Special Committee on Cost Reduction a group of Division I-A conferences regarding legislative reform.

The fall sports of men's and women's soccer and water polo now will have a signing period that begins February 13, 1991 (the same as football, women's volleyball and field hockey), and runs until August 1, 1991.

The early signing window of eight days will be conducted as a one-year pilot study program to be reevaluated at the conclusion of the 1991 national-letter signing periods.

Commissioners of participating conferences are asked to notify the directors of athletics of their member institutions and those independent institutions that they assist in administering and processing their signed national letters regarding the CCA's decision.

Registration forms for the 1991 national letter will be mailed to conference commissioners by July 10.

The 1991 men's and women's National Letter of Intent signing dates are listed below:

Council seeks to lift restrictions on bowl-game invitations

The NCAA Council will support a proposal at the 1991 Convention to eliminate existing restrictions on when an invitation to a postseason football bowl game can be formally offered or accepted.

Acting on a recommendation from the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the NCAA Special Events Committee, the Council recently agreed to seek the elimination of Bylaw 18.7.4, which restricts the formal negotiations that may occur between representatives of a bowl game and an NCAA member institution.

Under the bylaw, invitations to bowl games cannot be formally extended or accepted until the Saturday following the third Tuesday in November. The proposal would lift that restriction for the 1991-92 bowl season and thereafter.

At the 1990 Convention in Dallas, the membership approved a resolution directing the Council to review and consider as a legislative amendment for the 1991 Convention a proposal to either strengthen or eliminate the current limitations on the issuance and acceptance of bowl invitations.

As a result, the Postseason Football Subcommittee decided at its April meeting to recommend that the restrictions be eliminated.

Responding to another recommendation by the subcommittee, the Council also approved a related proposal dealing with bowl-game ticket allocations.

The subcommittee recommended that Bylaw 30.8.9 be amended to require a school accepting a bowl invitation to request its ticket allocation no later than noon December 1 or one week after the institution has been invited or qualifies by contract to participate in a bowl, effective during the 1991-92 season.

The Council also amended Bylaw 30.8.14 to require institutions to purchase basic accident-medical insurance and catastrophic-injury insurance in order to be eligible for participation in a bowl game. Basic insurance in the amount of $25,000 per injury and catastrophic-injury insurance providing lifetime medical, rehabilitation and disability benefits for each participating student-athlete would be required beginning with the 1991-92 season while student-athletes are traveling to and from the bowl site and while they are in the host city.

In considering other Postseason Football Subcommittee recommendations, the Council also amended Bylaw 30.8.13 to establish procedures by which the subcommittee or its representatives could audit the financial records of a certified bowl at NCAA expense.

The subcommittee, which has conducted three audits with voluntary cooperation from bowls during the past year, believes the audits will provide more consistent financial

Seven steals in inning give Illini a record

The University of Illinois, Champaign, baseball team set an NCAA record by stealing seven bases in one inning in a doubleheader at Northwestern May 3. In the first inning of the second game, Wil Parsons singled to start the game. He was sacrificed to second, and Brian Roberts walked.

After a fly out, Roberts and Parsons stole second and third, respectively. Don Cuchran then singled to right to drive in two runs. Cuchran then stole second. Emmitt Cohick walked. With Jason Moler at the plate, Cohick and Cuchran executed the second double steal of the inning.

Cuchran eventually scored on a wild pitch, and Cohick moved to third. Moler walked to put Illinois runners on the corners. Moler was then picked off first, or so it seemed.

In the rundown, Cohick broke for the plate and the relay was too late. Cohick stole home, and Moler took second, the third double steal of the inning and the sixth and seventh stolen bases in the frame. In the game, the Illini pilfered 10 bases.

The previous record was six steals in an inning by Nicholls State against Southern-Baton Rouge, April 2, 1989, and by Illinois-Chicago against Concordia (Illinois) May 5, 1989.

NCAA Bylaw 17.7.2.1—preseason football practice date

NCAA member institutions should establish their fall football practice schedules in accordance with Bylaw 17.7.2.1. Specifically, a member institution may not commence official preseason football practice sessions for a varsity, junior varsity or freshman team earlier than the date that will permit a maximum of 29 "practice opportunities" prior to its first scheduled intercollegiate game, except as provided for student-athletes who are first-time participants in Divisions I-A and I-AA (see Bylaw 17.7.2.2).

In accordance with Bylaw 17.7.2.1.1, in determining the number of "practice opportunities" in the sport of football, Sundays are excluded from the counting; but otherwise, there must be counted one opportunity for each day beginning with the opening of classes, one for each day classes are not in session in the week of the first scheduled intercollegiate game and two for each other day in the preseason practice period. The "week" of the first scheduled intercollegiate game is defined as the six days, excluding Sundays, preceding the day of the game (even if several of the days fall in two different traditional calendar weeks). In making these calculations, an institution's required freshman orientation is not considered to be the opening day of classes for the academic year.

The information below illustrates the application of Bylaw 17.7.2.1 and Figure 17-10 in determining permissible days to issue equipment, administer medical examinations and take squad pictures, and to establish, in Divisions I-A and I-AA, orientation periods for those student-athletes who are beginning their initial season of eligibility for football practice sessions at the institution.

The following example assumes that the institution's first contest is scheduled for Saturday, September 8, 1990, and the institution's first day of classes is Tuesday, September 4, 1990.

Divisions I-A and I-AA:

Sunday (August 12)—Freshmen, transfer students and other first-time participants may report for evening meal (no football-related meetings).

Monday (August 13)—Medical exams (if needed) and issuance of equipment for first-time participants, Orientation Day No. 1 (see Bylaw 17.7.2.2.1).

Tuesday (August 14)—Orientation Day No. 2.

Wednesday (August 15)—Orientation Day No. 3.

Thursday (August 16)—Orientation Day No. 4, members of the varsity team may report for evening meal (no football-related meetings).

Friday (August 17)—Medical exams (if needed), issuance of equipment to varsity team members and "picture day."

Saturday (August 18)—First day of practice.

Sunday (August 19)—Practice continues (optional; institutional discretion).

Divisions II and III:

Thursday (August 16)—Team members (including first-time participants) may report for evening meal (no football-related meetings).

Friday (August 17)—Medical exams, issuance of equipment and "picture day."

Saturday (August 18)—First day of practice.

Sunday (August 19)—Practice continues (optional; institutional discretion).

Please note that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 17.02.11, "practice" is any meeting, activity or instruction involving sports-related information and having an athletics purpose that is held for one or more student-athletes at the direction of or supervised by any member or members of an institution's coaching staff. Practice is considered to have occurred if one or more coaches and one or more student-athletes engage in any of the following activities:

1. Team conditioning or physical-fitness activities, except regular physical education classes and physical-fitness classes as outlined in Bylaw 17.02.11.2.

2. Field, floor or on-court activity.

3. Setting up offensive or defensive alignments.

4. Chalk talks.

5. Lecture on or discussion of strategy relating to the sport.

6. Activities utilizing equipment relating to the sport.

7. Discussions or review of game films, motion pictures or videotapes relating to the sport.

8. Activities conducted under the guise of physical education class work (e.g., any class composed of or including primarily members of an intercollegiate team on a required-attendance basis, or where the class utilizes equipment for the sport).

NCAA Bylaw 15.3.5—renewal of financial aid

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 15.3.5.1, the renewal of institutional financial aid must be made on or before July 1 prior the academic year in which it is to be effective. Institutions shall promptly notify in writing each student-athlete who has received an award the previous academic year and who has eligibility remaining for the ensuing academic year whether the grant has been renewed or not renewed. Notification of financial aid renewals and nonrenewals must come from the institution's regular financial aid authority and not from the institution's athletics department.

In accordance with Bylaw 15.3.5.1.1, if the institution decides not to renew or decides to reduce financial aid for the ensuing academic year, the institution must inform the student-athlete that he or she, upon request, will be provided a hearing before the institutional agency making the award. The institution must have established reasonable procedures for promptly hearing such a request and may not delegate the responsibility for conducting a nonrenewal hearing to the institution's athletics department or its faculty athletics committee. The decision to renew or not to renew the financial aid is left to discretion of the institution to be determined in accordance with its normal practice for students generally.

Per Bylaw 15.5.1.5, if the institution does not renew financial aid for a counter in the subsequent year, and a hearing before the institution's regular financial aid authority results in a successful appeal for restoration of aid, the student-athlete must continue to be a counter if the individual continues to receive athletically related aid. However, the student-athlete would not be a counter if he or she receives institutionally arranged or awarded nonathletically related financial aid available to all students, provided such financial aid was granted or arranged without regard in any degree to athletics ability. If the student-athlete ever participates again in intercollegiate athletics at the institution, he or she would be considered to have been a counter during each year financial aid was received.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Injury rates below average in four of six NCAA sports

Injury rates in four of the six winter sports monitored by the NCAA Injury Surveillance System were lower in 1989-90 than the average rates for all years that data have been collected in the respective sports, according to the annual report prepared by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

Wrestling and women's gymnastics injury rates in both practices and competition were lower this winter than the averages for the past five years, and the rates for women's basketball were below the cumulative averages for the two years the sport has been part of the program.

The total injury rate in men's gymnastics also was lower than the four-year average, although the rate of injury during meets was slightly higher.

Total injury rates in men's basketball and men's ice hockey were higher this winter than their two-and four-year averages, respectively. In men's basketball, injury rates were slightly higher than average in both practices and games; ice hockey injury rates were higher than average in games only.

Practice injuries accounted for two-thirds or more of injuries in every sport except ice hockey, in which 65 percent of injuries occurred in games.

Knee injuries were the most common type of wrestling and ice hockey injuries; ankles were injured most often in basketball (men's and women's) and women's gymnastics, and wrist injuries were most common in men's gymnastics.

The survey, which is conducted as part of the Injury Surveillance System, is statistically reliable, but researchers should be cautious when comparing the results with injury data from other studies.

"No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics injury literature," said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences. "Therefore, the information contained in the survey summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the NCAA Injury Surveillance System."

Dick also cautioned that any analysis of injury trends must take into account that the data cover only six years or fewer, depending on the sport.

Sampling

Exposure and injury data were submitted weekly by athletics trainers from institutions selected to represent a cross section of the NCAA membership. The cross section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions, Dick said.

Dick said it is important to note that this system does not identify every injury that occurs at NCAA institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross section of NCAA institutions.

Exposures

An athlete exposure (A-E) is one athlete participating in one practice or game in which the athlete is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury. For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury in the Injury Surveillance System is defined as one that:

- Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game;
- Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and
- Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation for one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Injury rate

An injury rate is the ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete exposures. This value then is multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete exposures.

For example, 11 reportable injuries during a period of 724 athlete exposures would give an injury rate of 15.2 injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures (11 divided by 724 and then multiplied by 1,000).

The Injury Surveillance System was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics. The NCAA annually collects injury data from a representative sample of member institutions, and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the competitive-safeguards committee. The committee's goal is to reduce injury rates through changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques.

Additional information on the report is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

The following tables highlight selected information from the winter 1989-90 survey. Injury rates and game/practice percentages are compared to the average values from all years in which data have been collected in that particular sport.

Injury-surveillance forms due July 6

Directors of athletics at NCAA member institutions will receive the participation forms for the 1990-91 Injury Surveillance System (ISS) in late May. The forms must be completed and returned to the NCAA office by July 6, 1990, to be considered for participation.

The ISS is a voluntary injury-monitoring system that evaluates injuries in 16 collegiate sports: football, field hockey, women's volleyball, men's soccer, women's soccer, ice hockey, wrestling, men's basketball, women's basketball, men's gymnastics, women's gymnastics, women's softball, baseball, men's lacrosse, women's lacrosse and spring football.

Athletics directors are being encouraged to discuss participation with the athletics trainer or another member of the sports-medicine group who will be completing the forms, said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences. Other athletics staff who are interested in participating in the ISS should make it a point to discuss this topic with their athletics director, he said.

Participants receive an honorarium as well as a review booklet that describes the system and summarizes selected injury information for all years in which the particular sport has been monitored. In addition, computer summaries of the current year's results are available by division, region, individual school and entire sample.

Further information is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

information than has been available under the current system that requires bowls to submit audited financial reports as part of recertification requirements. The subcommittee will employ the Price Waterhouse accounting firm to conduct the audits.

Council members also approved a proposal to authorize the subcommittee to fine an institution or bowl sponsor for failing to ensure that the appropriate personnel attend a pregame meeting at each bowl. The institution would be fined $1,000 for each of four representatives—the athletics director or a designee, the head football coach or a designated assistant, the sports information director, and the bowl management would be subject to a $4,000 fine for failing to properly administer the meeting.

Two other topics of concern also were referred to the Council by the subcommittee, but no action was taken.

The subcommittee asked the Council to consider opposing efforts by the Internal Revenue Service to tax income resulting from corporate sponsorship of bowl games. It is estimated that a tax on such income could cost NCAA member institutions from $5 million to $6 million.

Also, the subcommittee has expressed its concern that the National Football League's expanded playing schedule could have on serious impact on television revenues and the availability of playing dates for bowl games.

Already, the Mazda Gator Bowl has switched next season's game from Sunday, December 30, to New Year's Day to avoid a conflict with the Sunday-night telecast of an NFL game on the ESPN cable network. The subcommittee also is concerned about the effect the expanded season could have on collegiate all-star games.

Debate: Should Congress act on sports-academic balance?

Should Congress get involved in making sure collegiate athletes are academically prepared for the real world?

Basketball player turned Congressman Tom McMillen says yes; Pennsylvania State University football coach Joe Paterno says no thanks, according to the Associated Press.

"I think that we need standards up and down the ladder," beginning in high school, McMillen, D-Maryland, said at a National Press Club forum May 7.

Rep. McMillen introduced a bill in Congress recently that would encourage secondary schools to require students participating in extracurricular activities to maintain a C average. Schools would be rewarded with a 10 percent bonus in Federal money.

"I think our national legislature has the right to be involved in looking at the imbalance between academics and athletics," especially in high-revenue-producing sports such as football and basketball, McMillen said.

But Paterno countered, "Money, it's not a bad thing."

The coach, who conceded that he has a $200,000 endorsement contract with Nike that supplies his players with footwear, said, "There's nothing wrong with raising money from people who are interested in some good, competitive activities—as long as we handle it properly."

Paterno said it would be impossible for Congress to regulate all NCAA member schools with their varying needs.

Lee Fentress of Advantage International, a sports marketing firm, said he opposes congressional interference in collegiate athletics, but he supports McMillen's minimum-grade bill.

"It's a great idea," he said. "The colleges are in a bad position because they're inheriting students who have been poorly trained, and yet they're just compounding the problem."

Fentress pointed out that athletes have only a remote chance of making the pros, and most black athletes never graduate from college.

He also said recruited athletes often do not receive the education promised and consequently are poorly prepared for careers after college.

Fentress and McMillen said they were encouraged by a study into intercollegiate activities launched last November by a commission financed by a $2 million grant from the Knight Foundation. The Knight Commission, composed of McMillen, university presidents and others, expects to produce a report by early 1991, according to the congressman.

Other participants on the panel included Georgetown University athletics director Francis X. Rienzo; Pulitzer Prize-winning sportswriter Jeff Marx, who reported on alleged rules infractions in the basketball program at the University of Kentucky, and former ABC sports commentator Howard Cosell.

Play CWS in August, help sport

By Michael Kelly
Omaha World-Herald
Excerpted from a column

Gene Stephenson

The national champions have returned, along with their coach, who wants to mess with college baseball.

College World Series in June? No way. Play it in August, he says.

And another thing: Don't compete for attention with college basketball by starting the season so early, he says. Wait until the third week of March.

College baseball is a great game, says Wichita State University coach Gene Stephenson, but it needs to move faster. At his suggestion, the Missouri Valley Conference is experimenting with baseball's version of the shot clock.

The NCAA-approved rule means that pitchers have 20 seconds to throw after getting the ball from the catcher. If not, the umpire calls a ball. And teams have only 90 seconds to start play between innings.

"The clock is the best thing that's ever happened to college baseball," Stephenson said. "Opposing coaches, to a man, after playing with it have been enthusiastic and excited about the clock and have indicated they would like to see it in all college games."

Stephenson should feel at home in Omaha, a place that holds good memories for him and his Wheatshockers. Last June, they became the first team in 23 years not from the Sun Belt to win the College World Series.

The College World Series will be played June 1-9 in Omaha, site of the Division I national championship since 1950. Stephenson said it should stay in Omaha but the date should be changed.

"My idea of Utopia, he said, "would be to play the season until the last of July or the first week of August, and then have the College World Series in Omaha the third week of August."

"If it ever happened, we'd have a boom for baseball on the college level."

With the college baseball season finishing late in August just before the football season starts, Stephenson said, it would close the summer gap in college sports.

No matter how logical such a change might seem, coaches haven't universally embraced it. It's partly a regional dispute.

When it's 75 degrees in January, coaches at Sun Belt schools don't wait until March. Some administrators say housing the student-athletes during the summer would add costs. Major-league teams want players drafted in June to report to minor-league teams.

Stephenson has heard all the arguments and says the resistance to change is stifling a sport that has grown in popularity.

"If we continue to go at the same time of the year," he asked, "realistically how can college baseball grow much more? We can go head-to-head with Major League Baseball. Our product is different. It's exciting."

A move to end student-athlete sham

USA Today
An editorial

It's spring, so it must be time for football.

College players from Delaware State to Arkansas to UCLA have been hitting the gridiron—tackling dummies while classmates tackle their books.

Coaches call these drills spring practice. If they aren't strictly limited, they should be called exploitation.

Today, there's a big imbalance in college between education and sports. Football and basketball players spend more than 30 hours a week preparing to play their games, much more than the hours spent in class preparing for life.

No wonder graduation rates for athletes in major sports are below those for other students. No wonder fewer than four in 10 black student-athletes, some of the most heavily recruited players, graduate.

And no wonder the ideal of the student-athlete has become a sham. Fortunately, the governing body for most college athletics—the NCAA—is moving to end that sham.

Under consideration are proposals to shorten sports seasons and limit the hours student-athletes can spend on their sports.

Earlier, the NCAA Convention voted to require colleges to report graduation rates for athletes, cut back spring practice and reduce the basketball season by three games.

Those efforts are needed to vault the student ahead of the athlete again, despite the grumbles of some sports boosters.

Some boosters think colleges can end the sham simply by paying student-athletes to play: Give them a wage for their labor; don't cut back their effort.

That approach is a sham, too. It would continue to deceive student-athletes that a sport—not an education—is the best road to success.

Too many poor, young student-athletes think that's what college sports are all about—a ticket to the pros rather than a chance for an education.

They watch the Magic Johnsons and the Michael Jordans playing in the National Basketball Association play-offs. They see the 15 million bucks Illinois junior quarterback Jeff George was awarded as the first pick in the National Football League draft. And they dream that they can make it, too.

What they don't see is that it's a 10,000-to-1 shot for any high school athlete to ultimately make it as a professional, and then usually for less than three years. It's a 50-to-1 gamble for even a major-college sports star to become a pro.

Eugene Burkhalter of the University of Washington was one of 38 juniors who followed a million-dollar dream by entering the NFL draft. He was one of 20 whose dreams were shattered when they weren't picked. Now, they've lost their scholarships and will have a big struggle to finish their education.

Our halls of higher learning must make it easier for student-athletes to learn. They must limit the time students spend on sports so they can spend more time on classwork.

Colleges must teach student-athletes there's more to tackle in life than a dummy.

Rules compliance mostly an attitude

"Compliance is not so much paperwork, it's an attitude. No matter how many systems you set up, no matter how good your checks and balances are, if you don't create a compliance environment on your campus, you might as well throw the paper away."

Researchers say women's coaching, sports numbers down

The percentage and number of women who hold coaching positions at NCAA member institutions continue to decrease, and the decline was accompanied during the past two years by a slight reduction in the average number of women's sports programs offered at schools, according to two Brooklyn College researchers.

The decline in programs is noteworthy because it marks a slight reversal of a trend since the 1970s toward increased sports-participation opportunities for female athletes.

Campus life shows signs of breakdown

Alcohol, drug abuse, crime and bigotry are breaking down the social and intellectual fabric at many college campuses, according to a report released late last month.

"The idyllic vision so routinely portrayed in college promotional materials often masks disturbing realities of student life," concluded "Campus Life: In Search of Community."

The 148-page study was a joint project of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching and the American Council on Education.

The findings were based on visits to 18 campuses; interviews with teachers, students and administrators across the nation, and national surveys of 382 college and university presidents and 355 chief student affairs officers conducted in 1989.

Among the survey findings:

- 52 percent of the college presidents said the quality of campus life was a greater concern than a few years ago.

- Two-thirds of the presidents considered alcohol abuse a "moderate" or "major" problem.

- 43 percent said campus crime had increased over the past five years.

- One of four presidents said racial tensions were problems on their campuses.

- 62 percent of presidents at research-oriented universities said sexual harassment was a "moderate" or "major" problem, and 48 percent said the same of racial harassment.

- 60 percent of student affairs officers said their campuses had a written policy on bigotry, and an additional 11 percent said they were working on one.

"Since the '60s, the notion of universities having parental authority has greatly diminished," said Ernest Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation, in an interview with the Associated Press.

Brooklyn physical education faculty members R. Vivian Acosta and Linda Jean Carpenter reported in their latest study of "Women in Intercollegiate Sport" that 47.3 percent of coaching jobs within women's athletics are held by women, compared to 48.3 percent in 1988, 58.2 percent in 1977 and a high of over 90 percent before the enactment of Title IX in 1972.

The average number of sports offered for female athletes dropped slightly, from 7.31 per school in 1988 to 7.24 now, but remains notably higher than the 5.61 sports offered in 1977. (Note: The most recent NCAA study shows that women's participation increased since 1988 and the average number of sports was unchanged.)

There also are 39 fewer coaching jobs in women's athletics in 1990 than in 1988, according to Acosta and Carpenter. Currently, women hold 2,706 of 5,718 available coaching positions, compared to 2,780 of 5,757 positions two years ago.

Acosta and Carpenter noted an increase since 1988 in the percentage of women who serve as administrators in women's athletics programs, from 28.9 percent (528 jobs) to 32 percent (600 jobs). Still, the average number of women holding such positions is less than one per school (0.75 women per school), and only 15.9 percent of women's programs are headed by a woman.

Before Title IX, more than 90 percent of such programs were headed by women.

The researchers also said a Division III school is less likely to have a woman involved in the administration of a program than a Division I school. Approximately 32 percent of Division III schools have no female involved in administration, while about 21 percent of Division I schools have no woman administrator. Overall, about 30 percent of women's programs have no female administrators.

Although basketball continues to be the most common sport in women's intercollegiate programs, soccer and cross country have been the fastest-growing sports since 1977, according to the researchers. Soccer sponsorship has increased from 2.8 percent of the schools in 1977 to 41.3 percent today, while cross country currently is sponsored by 82.1 percent of the schools, compared to 29.4 percent in 1977.

Missouri measure aimed at NCAA

The NCAA would be required to follow legal due process in its investigations or face financial penalties under legislation sent to the Missouri Senate May 8.

The proposal's sponsor, Rep. Chris Graham, D-Jefferson City, said it was prompted by the NCAA's probe of the University of Missouri, Columbia, basketball program.

"We want to make sure we don't have a kangaroo court here or have people denied their rights," Graham said. "What we're interested in is ensuring that these people are treated fairly."

S. David Berst, the NCAA's assistant executive director for enforcement, said no official at Missouri had complained about due process, which he said the Association ensures through more than 30 pages of investigatory procedures. Legal due process means assurance of rights guaranteed by the Missouri Constitution.

The well-publicized Louis Harris and Associates poll on the public opinion of college athletics asked if those polled thought that intercollegiate athletics has gotten out of control. Seventy-eight percent said yes, 20 percent said no, two percent were not sure.

The responses were not much different when only those who considered themselves college sports fans were included. Seventy-five percent of those said yes, 24 percent said no, with one percent unsure.

Trojans conquer 49ers in men's volleyball final

Southern California won its fourth National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship by defeating Long Beach State May 5 in four games, 15-10, 12-15, 15-4, 15-6. Teams from the state of California have won all 21 NCAA men's volleyball titles.

The Trojans took advantage of the strong front court play of Bryan Ivie to upset the top-ranked 49ers. It was the first time in four tries this season that Southern California beat Long Beach State.

Ivie, a 6-7 junior who was a member of the United States national team, paced the Trojans with 35 kills and a .448 attack percentage and was named the tournament's most outstanding performer. He said his team was slighted in the polls early, but he recognized its potential.

"Coming into the season, I knew we weren't ranked as high as we should have been," Ivie said, "but I didn't think we'd be here. After a few matches, I saw our potential. And we kept improving and improving."

The second-ranked Trojans, who were in the tournament final for the ninth time, ended the year with a 25-5 record. First-year coach Jim McLaughlin's squad does not include a senior.

"I thought coming in that the advantage was to us," McLaughlin said. "We went 0-3 to them, but they (the games) were all close. I thought back to 1986 when I was at Pepperdine coaching and USC had beaten Pepperdine three times, and we came back in the NCAA final and won. Whoever pulls off the game plan best wins."

Long Beach State, in the tournament for the first time since 1973, finished the year with a 28-7 mark, setting a school record for victories in a season.

"It's really difficult to beat that good a team four times," 49ers coach Ray Ratelle said. "We picked the wrong night to have a bad match. Give credit to SC. We couldn't stop their offense. They passed well, and we never got our offense going. You can't run an offense from the 10-foot line. We weren't passing well enough to run an offense."

Southern California advanced to the final game with a three-game win over Ball State. The 49ers got to the finals by way of a three-game win over Rutgers-Newark. The Cardinals defeated Rutgers-Newark in the third-place game, 15-12, 15-4, 7-15, 15-6.

Joining Ivie on the all-tournament team were teammates Dan Greenbaum, Jason Perkins and Kevin Shepard and Long Beach State's Brent Hilliard and Mark Kerins.

Top-ranked Pirates could face 'Alabama anxiety'

Like most Division II schools, the unstated but often-thought-about goal at Armstrong State (41-5) is to play the "first season" to win the "second season."

However, if the top-ranked Pirates advance past regional action in the play-offs, do not blame coach Joe Roberts if he feels apprehensive as he packs his shaving kit.

As the site of the Division II Baseball Championship, Montgomery, Alabama, has earned the respect of players and coaches for its administration of the tournament. But while the city has been very hospitable, the results for Armstrong State have been disappointing.

"They run a great tournament in Montgomery," said Roberts, who has guided the Pirates to the championship round the past two years. "But each game, you face a good ballclub with a good pitcher. We just have not played well the last two years."

The Pirates certainly have played well so far this year.

After opening the 1990 season with a 5-4 loss to Division I Citadel, Armstrong State fashioned a winning streak—a Division II-record 30 consecutive victories from February 15 to March 25. The old record of 28 straight was set by Jacksonville State in 1979 and equaled by Florida Southern in 1981. During the streak, Armstrong State outscored its opponents, 341-102.

The depth of the Pirates' pitching staff is the key.

"We have a well-balanced staff from top to bottom," Roberts said.

Championship Preview

"I can go to the bullpen without a drop-off. That is probably one of our strengths; however, we do not have a dominating starter."

Roberts, though, has four senior starters that average just over three strikeouts for every base on balls. Paul Krafft (8-1 record, 2.57 earned-run average) leads the staff in wins, while lefthander Larry Owens (6-0, 2.68 ERA) has allowed only 41 hits in 57 innings. Chuck Thompson (7-2, 3.46 ERA) has been steady all season, while Rick Sawyer (6-1, 3.38 ERA) leads the team with 67 strikeouts in 61 innings.

In the bullpen, righthander Mike Ewing (2-0, 2.28 ERA, seven saves), who has walked only one batter in almost 24 innings, has held the opposition to a .196 batting average. Roberts also has turned to steady lefthander Jeff Pasquale (4-0, 1.56 ERA, three saves) for relief work.

The Pirates have a team batting average of .368, and that includes four players who are hitting over .400.

"Pitching and defense will take you a long way, but the aluminum bat can help you outscore a lot of mistakes," quipped Roberts.

Senior outfielder Chad Armstrong (.405 batting average, nine home runs, 58 runs batted in) leads the team in runs (70), hits (81) and RBIs and is tied for the team lead with 16 doubles and seven triples.

Said Roberts, "Chad is probably our best player, along with cocaptain Brad Squibb (.397, six home runs, 47 RBIs). The rest of the team feeds off of them."

Power hitting also has come from junior outfielder Jeff Hanna (.412, Field: A maximum of 24 teams will be selected to compete for the 1990 championship. At-large selections and nine automatic qualifiers will fill the bracket.

Automatic Qualification: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Gulf South Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, Northeast-10 Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Sunshine State Conference.

Defending champion: Cal Poly San Luis Obispo won its first Division II baseball championship with a 9-5 victory over New Haven.

Schedule: Regional competition will be completed by May 20 at on-campus sites. The eight regional champions will advance to double-elimination championship play May 26-June 2 at Montgomery, Alabama; Troy State will serve as host.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear in the May 23 issue of the News, and the championship results will be published June 6.

Contenders: Armstrong State, Cal State Northridge, Florida Southern, Lewis, New Haven, Northwest Missouri State, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville, Tampa.

Championship notes: Armstrong State's Brad Squibb racked up 15 total bases—a championship record—in an 18-2 victory over Northern Kentucky during the 1989 play-offs. Jacksonville State's Ted Barnicle notched the championship record for strikeouts (20) in 1975. His team lost to Southeastern Louisiana, 5-2. Lewis set the championship record for home runs in a single game (eight) in a 24-8 victory over Sam Houston State in 1984. Teams from 132 institutions have appeared in the tournament since its inception in 1968.

11, 51), while senior Steve Russell (.410, 2, 54) has 28 stolen bases.

"If I have learned anything in the last two years, it's that I would like to stay a little longer (in Montgomery)," Roberts said. "It's tough when you pack for seven days and stay for seven hours. I don't think I unpacked more than my toothbrush and toothpaste last year."

Marietta has become a special place for college baseball

Special people turn special places into special treasures. Take Marietta, Ohio, for example.

At Marietta College (32-4 overall, 13-3 in the Ohio Athletic Conference), baseball coach Don Schaly, the athletics department and the people of Marietta (pop. 16,000) have created what some say is a baseball nirvana.

The winning tradition at Marietta dates back to 1874, when baseball first was played at the college. "Some say I was here for the first game, too," chortled Schaly. But because of war and other extraneous reasons, this season marks the 100th year of baseball at Marietta. Since that first game, a 30-27 loss to

The program has flourished into one of the most consistent and successful athletics programs in the country. In the 1980s alone, the

Championship Preview

Pioneers won three NCAA Division III championships, eight Midwest region titles and six conference championships. Marietta's record for the decade was 469-92 (.836).

"People, people, people, pure and simple," said a modest Schaly, who after 27 years has a career record of 890-216 and has not coached a team to a losing season. "Take our facility, for example. No one gave it to us. Our community supported it unbelievably."

A new press facility, concession area, umpires' locker room and meeting area were constructed at a price of $250,000. Not surprisingly, 70 percent of the money was raised through private donors, generous alumni support and countless volunteers from the Marietta community.

Phase two of the stadium renovation, presently in the fund-raising stage, will be to install lights at Pioneer Park. The cost for new lights is $200,000.

Added Schaly, "We don't live in a metropolitan area, but our team is greatly supported and publicized. The number of people involved in our program is huge; the supporting cast is very involved. If there is anything I've done right over the years it's surround myself with good people. That is the secret for success."

"We have hosted so many tournaments over the years—the way the community gets involved it makes for a great experience for the student-athletes and the coaches. It's almost embarrassing the kind of volunteer support we get from the community. A coach will tell me after a tournament that every time he turned around one of our volunteers was there to see if he needed anything. I like to hear that."

Marietta's success off the field has correlated directly with the success the Pioneers have had on the field. While Schaly has coached his share of all-Americans, though, most of his players have developed into better ballplayers.

"There is a misconception that we get the superstar Division III players," said Schaly. "Nothing could be further from the truth. We get decent ballplayers with good work habits. We are very demanding, and we do a good job of teaching the game. With that, a lot of them have turned into pretty good ballplayers."

Schaly thinks the 1990 'Etta Express, though it lost five outstanding players to graduation, has a lot of potential.

Said Schaly, "We have not peaked yet. We are a good defensive team and we have solid pitching. At times we've been extremely explosive on offense but only at times. We are heavily junior-oriented; we only have three seniors on the squad."

Offensively the Pioneers are led by all-America first baseman Scott Barber (.469 batting average, 11 home runs, 49 runs batted in). Other leading hitters include designated hitter/outfielder/third baseman Matt Malario (.466, 5, 20) and outfielder Jim Thibodeau (.434, 5, 38).

Though not overpowering, both Aaron Emery (9-1 record, 2.06 earned-run average, seven complete games, two shutouts) and Marty Davis (8-2, 1.50 ERA, seven complete games, 46 strikeouts) "know how to pitch," said Schaly.

Doug Cook (6-1, 3.35 ERA), and all-America in 1989 after a 9-1 season, started slow but is back on track now.

Marietta's success in the championship is second to none. Overall, the Pioneers have won three NCAA Division III championships, won 76 games in the tournament and are one of only three Division III teams that have competed in all 14 championship tournaments.

The Pioneers will compete in their 15th consecutive tournament; do not be surprised if they win their fourth title.

Championship Profile

Event: Division III baseball.

Field: A maximum of 24 teams will be selected to compete for the 1990 championship.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: North Carolina Wesleyan won the 1989 championship in 13 innings, 8-7, over Cal State Stanislaus.

Schedule: Regional competition will be completed by May 20 at on-campus sites. Albion College will host the May 25-28 finals, which are set for C. O. Brown Field in Battle Creek, Michigan.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear in the May 23 issue of the News. Championship results will be published May 31.

Contenders: Ferrum, Johns Hopkins, Marietta, North Carolina Wesleyan, Otterbein, Southern Maine.

Championship notes: In Wisconsin-Oshkosh's 36-10 victory over Wisconsin-Whitewater in last year's Midwest regional, the Titans set or tied single-game team records for runs, runs in one inning (12), home runs (8) and total bases (57). No team west of the Mississippi has won the championship since Cal State Stanislaus claimed back-to-back crowns in 1976 and 1977. Eastern Connecticut State, Ithaca and Marietta have been selected every year. Through the first 13 years of competition, only one no-hit complete game has been turned in by a pitcher. Glassboro State's Norm Charlesworth did it May 15, 1980, although he did give up a run in his team's victory over Johns Hopkins.

Brayton earns 1,000th victory

Washington State University's Chuck "Bobo" Brayton on April 11 became only the fifth Division I baseball coach to reach 1,000 career victories when his 1990 Cougars defeated Eastern Washington.

Brayton joined a 1,000-victory club in division I that includes former University of Southern California coach Rod Dedeaux; Ron Fraser of the University of Miami (Florida); Cliff Gustafson of the University of Texas, Austin, and Al Ogletree of the University of Texas, Pan American.

Brayton, a Washington native who earned all-America honors as a Washington State undergraduate, has coached the Cougars since 1962. That team finished 18-12 overall—the only Brayton-coached team ever to win fewer than 20 games in a season.

Washington State never has had a losing season under Brayton, and 19 of his teams have won or shared the Pacific-10 Conference title.

In addition to serving as president of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches and as chair of the American Baseball Coaches Association's board of trustees, Brayton also has chaired the NCAA Baseball Rules Committee.

Division I men's tennis tourney sports new look at California site

"Ring out the old, ring in the new," a phrase most often associated with New Year's Day, also will be appropriate May 18 when the Division I Men's Tennis Championships begin at the Hyatt Grand Champions Tennis Resort in Indian Wells, California.

The 106th edition of the NCAA men's championships will feature a new site, a new format, a new scoring system and - possibly - a new champion.

Southern California will host the tournament, which will end with the singles and doubles finals May 27. Grand Champions will be the event's third neutral site since 1946. The tournament has been held at Georgia for the past 13 years.

"It was time for a change," said Paul Kostin, chair of the Division I men's subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Tennis Committee. "Holding the tournament at Grand Champions will not be an advantage for any school, because it's not in a campus setting; it's neutral. This will be kind of different, but everybody is really excited about it."

The move from Athens to the larger Indian Wells facility will enable the championships to use the traditional "6-3" format for the team competition. Under this system, all six singles matches are contested on different courts at the same time, followed by the three doubles matches. The old format, which required only three courts per dual match, scheduled the first three singles matches, then the second three singles matches and, finally, the three doubles matches.

The "6-3" format requires less time per match and is the traditional format for regular-season competition. Coaches and players say they are more comfortable with it, and it allows more singles players to compete without the psychological effects of knowing which team is ahead or behind.

The individual championships also will have a new format at Grand Champions. Instead of being spread out over 12 courts, as they have been in the past, the singles and doubles competitions will be confined to a block of seven courts in an attempt to direct more spectator attention to each match. Later rounds will be conducted on fewer courts to add even more emphasis to crucial contests.

The Division I men's tennis subcommittee approved this plan to add more prestige and drama to the individual championships, which some coaches feel have taken a back seat to the team event in recent years. Although it will be conducted on fewer courts, the individual competition is not expected to take any more time, because a pro-style, "next-available-court" system will be used.

Perhaps the most important change in the championships is the return to the regular-scoring system in place of the "no-ad" system that has been used at the tournament since 1972.

Under the no-ad system, the first player to win four points wins the game; to win a game in the regular system, a player must win two straight points after being tied at two points each or "deuce."

"With the no-ad system, I don't always know that the best player has won," said Louisiana State coach Jerry Simmons, who supports the return to the regular system. "The element of luck plays a much larger role in no-ad matches. With regular scoring, you have to get two points in a row to win, and luck plays a much smaller role."

The change follows a 1989 decision by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association to use regular scoring throughout this season.

"Regular scoring is the universal system," Kostin said. "They use it in high school, it's used on the pro tour and now it's used in the regular college season. It doesn't make sense to have a different system in the championships."

With a new scoring system, format and site, will this also be the year the tournament has a new champion?

Championships Profile

Event: Division I men's tennis.

Field: Twenty squads will compete for the team title, with 64 singles players and 32 doubles teams competing for individual titles.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Stanford won its second straight title by defeating Georgia, 5-3, in the finals.

Schedule: The University of Southern California will host the championships May 18-27 at Indian Wells, California.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the May 30 issue of the News.

Contenders: Georgia, Pepperdine, Stanford, Tennessee, UCLA.

Championships notes: Stanford has won all 10 of its team titles since 1973. Dick Gould has coached every Cardinal champion team... UCLA holds the lead in all-time team championships with 15, and Southern California is second with 12... This will be the first time since 1976 that Georgia has not hosted the championships. Southern California last hosted the event in 1974... Georgia is the only team from outside of California to win the team championship since 1972, when Trinity (Texas) took the title. The Bulldogs won in 1985 and 1987... This is the NCAA's oldest championship. The first tennis championship was held in 1883 in Hartford, Connecticut.

Coach Mike DePalmer's Tennessee squad hopes so. The Volunteers, who were the only undefeated men's team in Division I this spring (31-0), are rated first in the latest Volvo Tennis/Collegiate Rankings and are expected to challenge two-time defending champion Stanford for the title.

Although the Volunteers have no player ranked among the top 50 singles players, their deep, consistent lineup has earned 11 victories against teams ranked in the top 25. The Southeastern Conference champions are led by freshman Doug Flach, who has a 24-19 overall record against competition at first singles. Sophomores Tim Jessup (28-11), Brice Karsh (28-4) and Fabio Silberberg (28-5) have given the team several key wins at Nos. 2, 3 and 4 singles, respectively. The versatile Vols also have been successful with nine different doubles combinations this season.

Although beset by injuries and three dual-match losses through May 2, coach Dick Gould's third-ranked Stanford squad is expected to make its usual strong showing at the championships. If freshmen Jonathan Stark (foot stress fracture) and Jared Palmer (arthroscopic knee surgery) are healthy, it will be tough to deny the Cardinal its fourth title in five years. Not only are Stark and Palmer rated second and 42nd, respectively, in the national singles rankings, but they also are the third-ranked doubles tandem.

Second-ranked UCLA (22-3 through May 2), which split its two matches with Stanford this season, is similar to Tennessee, in that it relies on depth rather than individual stars. The Bruins' strength may lie in doubles, where sophomores Bill Barber and Mark Quinney and freshmen Mark Knowles and Fritz Bissell are ranked among top 30 doubles teams.

Coach creates another masterpiece season at Syracuse

Syracuse lacrosse coach Roy Simmons Jr., who is an artist as well as a coach, has a flair for the creative. Yet even he admits that this season has been beyond his wildest imagination.

A total of 58,619 spectators attended five regular-season home games for a record average attendance of 11,724. The previous average-attendance record, 7,308, was set in 1988.

Two games drew more than 18,000, including the regular-season record 18,458 who showed up for Syracuse's date with Central New York rival Hobart.

The Orangemen completed their regular season with a 10-0 record. They averaged 20.9 goals per game, while yielding an average of only 9.3.

A local bank has underwritten a publicity campaign and has its branch offices serving as satellite ticket outlets. Included in the campaign is a pamphlet about the game of lacrosse.

National media have been knocking on (or more accurately, down) the door. The New York Times, USA Today, People magazine, Sports Illustrated, the Associated Press, NBC Cable and "Good Morning America" have done or are doing stories.

On a more personal note, Simmons was elected to the Syracuse

Championship Preview

(city) Sports Hall of Fame, of which his father, Roy Sr., is a charter member. They are the first father and son so honored.

"It's been great for the game and great for Syracuse lacrosse," Simmons said. "Loving the game as I do, I always hoped something like this would happen."

With all that has happened this season, the Orangemen still have a major goal ahead—the NCAA championship. Syracuse could become only the second team to win three consecutive championships. Johns Hopkins did so in 1978, 1979 and 1980. In addition, Simmons would be the first coach to win four championships. The Orangemen won their first title in 1983, overcoming a 12-5 third-period deficit to post a 17-16 victory.

"The comeback is kind of our hallmark," Simmons said. "We never roll over and play dead. (This year) we are fairly deep, and that makes us dangerous in the fourth period. We still are able to run."

Two players who make Syracuse dangerous all the time are twins and midfielders Paul and Gary Gait. Paul was the leading scorer in last year's championship with nine goals and seven assists. Gary earned that honor the year before with 14 goals, a tournament record, and four assists. Like their coach, Paul and Gary are known for being creative.

"I never know when they might come up with something new," Simmons said. "They just seem to get better. One of their strengths is that they play great defense. The lack of the horn (this season) has helped Paul and Gary show a complete game."

The Gaits and the rest of the Orangemen would like nothing more than to complete the season with another championship.

"It means a lot to think that we could do three in a row," Simmons said. "I'd like to see the boys go out in a blaze of glory."

"We are a long way from Memorial Day (when the championship game is played)," he added. "There are a lot of stumbling blocks."

The championship-game attendance record, 23,893, was set last year at Maryland... Gary Gait holds the tournament record for most goals in a game with nine vs. Navy in 1988... He shares the single-game point record of 12 (also vs. Navy)... Coaches Willie Scroggs, Don Zimmerman and Richie Moran all have three titles to their credit... Syracuse will host the 1991 semifinals and final.

Women's softball title likely to stay on West Coast

The state of California has a stranglehold on the Division I Women's Softball Championship. Specifically, UCLA has dominated the tournament.

In the eight-year history of the tournament, only one team from outside California has managed to grab a national title. Texas A&M has won two championships (1983 and 1987). Other than the Aggies, Cal State Fullerton has earned one national championship. The Bruins own the other five NCAA titles.

With tradition like that, it's difficult to make UCLA anything but the favorite for the 1990 crown. Although Bruin coach Sharron Backus is used to her team playing that role, she says each year's team presents a challenge.

"I've always been one to believe that you create your own pressures," Backus said. "You know, half of our team this year has never been in a national championship. One year does not blend into another. Each day presents a new challenge."

Ranked first in the April 24 poll, UCLA has compiled a 50-5 record. The Bruins' strength has been in a pitching staff that is four deep. DeDe Weiman, Lisa Longaker, Heather Compton and Lisa Fernandez have a combined 0.42 earned-run average and 38 shutouts. Fernandez, a freshman, leads the team with a 0.30 ERA, but no UCLA pitcher has over a 0.57 earned-run average. Weiman paces the team with 105 strikeouts in 98²/₃ innings pitched. Longaker is 17-0 and has walked only nine in 122 innings. Compton has 10 shutouts and has allowed only five earned runs in 97²/₃ innings.

"That has to be the base we work from—a solid defense—and that starts in the circle with our young pitchers," Backus said, "and our senior, Lisa Longaker. We start with them, and the momentum carries forward to the rest of the team."

Yvonne Gutierrez paces the Bruins offensively. The sophomore outfielder is batting .378 with a team-leading 54 hits and 21 runs batted in. Kerry Dienelt, an NCAA all-tournament team member last year, is second on the squad in hitting with a .301 average. She is tied for second with 24 runs scored. UCLA is hitting a collective .273, while holding opponents to just a .123 batting average.

In winning the past two NCAA titles, UCLA has remained within the friendly confines of California, Sunnyvale to be exact. The Bruins will not have the luxury this year, since the finals move back to the Midwest and Oklahoma City's Amateur Softball Association Hall of Fame Stadium.

The home-field advantage could easily belong to Oklahoma State, which plays many games at Hall of Fame Stadium.

"We've played in that stadium enough that it feels like a second home field for us," Cowgirl coach Sandy Fischer said.

To have the chance to play in its backyard, OSU will have to look past a recent six-game losing streak.

It's all inexperience that has allowed us to make mistakes, and they have become collective," Fischer said. "We lost four all-Americans from last year, so we're young. Basically, we've got a young group of kids trying to pick up where a veteran group left off. We've had a lot of highs and lows this year, and that's due to inexperience."

The Cowgirls are led by Michelle Shean. The sophomore left fielder is hitting .395 through 43 games, is tied for first on the team with 19 RBI and is second on the squad with 47 hits. Shortstop Lee Anne Ketcham is second with a .345 batting average. She leads the team with 49 hits, including six doubles, one triple and two home runs.

All-America pitcher Michele Smith graduated, but OSU still has several quality players. Freshman Chrissy Oliver leads the squad with a 0.42 earned-run average. Oliver is 10-2 with six shutouts. Junior Dena Carter has a 19-5 record and a team-leading 84 strikeouts in 173 innings. Carter sports an 0.61 ERA.

In addition to the California schools vying for the NCAA title—including Fresno State, Cal State Fullerton and Long Beach State—Arizona will be a challenger. The Wildcats, ranked third in the April 24 poll, are 46-13 overall. Coach Mike Candrea's team is led by outfielder Kristin Gauthier. The junior is batting .342 with a team-leading 66 hits. Junior Julie Jones leads in RBIs with 34.

III men's golf play-off to have a familiar look

One familiar name will be gone from the top of the leader board at the Division III Men's Golf Championships at the Indian Mound Course in Jekyll Island, Georgia, May 22-25, but the rest of the names will be all too familiar to those used to chasing the top teams.

Only six-time defending champion Cal State Stanislaus' move to Division II has affected the upper tier of Division III men's golf. The next three finishers in last year's championships are the top-ranked teams in the latest Division III men's golf poll.

"If you ask all 20-plus coaches who will be going to the national tournament, each one will be happy," said Steve Conley of Methodist, which inherited the front-runner position the Warriors' exit. "Everyone knew that if they beat Stanislaus, then they beat the best. But I think it is very healthy for Division III golf. It will be wide open."

Methodist finished eight strokes behind Cal State Stanislaus in the 1989 championships at 1,210. Ohio Wesleyan was third at 1,216, and Skidmore was fourth at 1,219.

Conley thinks his team will be the favorite at the tournament, but is quick to caution about overconfidence. "If my golfers perform up to potential, then I am very confident," he said. "But they have to take care of business."

Methodist has returning national champion John McCullough to lead a deep squad. Behind McCullough, the Monarchs have Hank Klein, who finished fifth, and Rob Palusky, who finished 39th. Randy Shaw, a second-team all-America as a freshman, will make a return trip to the national tournament as will Jim Percherke, a junior who didn't even make the squad his freshman year, but won the conference tournament this year.

Ohio Wesleyan and Skidmore both expect to be challengers for the crown with Methodist. "I think we have a good chance," Ohio Wesleyan's Dick Gordon said. "We have four players who will be playing in their third national tournament. But any team that plays well that week has a chance."

"When you have a team that is as dominant as Cal State Stanislaus has been leave the division, the rest of the teams have a chance to step in."

Tim Brown of Skidmore added, "We will miss (Cal State Stanislaus). But it did get a little boring playing for second place."

"I expect it to be a five-team race with Methodist, Ohio Wesleyan, (Cal State) San Bernardino, Gustavus Adolphus and us. I'd like to think we have a good shot."

Gustavus Adolphus, which finished sixth in 1989, currently is ranked fourth. Golden Gusties coach Whitey Scoog says this may be his best team. "Our potential is there," he said. "But how we do in the tournament remains to be seen." Much of their hope depends on the play of sophomore John Lindquist, who is averaging approximately 74 strokes per round and recently won the Drake Relays Golf Tournament. Sixteen of the 24 teams in that tournament were from Division I.

Cal State Bernardino occupies the fifth spot. Although the Coyotes finished 17th a year ago, they finished third in 1987 and fourth in 1988. So the contender label is not a new one for them either.

"We're going back there to win a national championship," said Coyotes coach Greg Price. "We fell a little last year, and our returning players want to show that they were better than that. We know that there are a lot of good teams there,

Methodist's John McCullough is back to defend his 1989 individual title but we're confident."

All the Division III teams are breathing easier since coach Jim Hanny's squad made the move to Division II. The Warriors now are making a statement in Division II golf (see story in the May 2 issue of The NCAA News).

Individually, McCullough will return to defend his national championship. He shot a 7-over-par 295 last season to win Methodist's first individual title.

David Hathaway of Skidmore is the next highest returning finisher, tying for third place in 1989. Hathaway, just a sophomore, is averaging 75.4 strokes per round and already has won three tournaments this year. In the fall, he set a course record at the West Point Golf Course with a 66. He finished fourth in a field of 120 golfers, many of whom were from Division I schools.

Defending champion: Cal State Stanislaus, which is competing in Division II this year, won its sixth straight championship last season.

Schedule: Emory University will host the event at the Indian Mound Course in Jekyll Island, Georgia, May 22-25.

The NCAA News coverage: Results from the championships will appear in the May 30 issue of The NCAA News.

Contenders: Methodist, Ohio Wesleyan, Skidmore, Gustavus Adolphus, Cal State San Bernardino.

Championships notes: Cal State Stanislaus will not defend its title since the Warriors moved to Division II for the 1989-90 season. Coach Jim Hanny's squad had won 12 of the 15 titles since the inception of the tournament... The only other schools to have won Division III championships are Wooster (1975), Ramapo (1982) and Allegheny (1983)... Defending individual champion John McCullough of Methodist returns, as does the third-place finisher, David Hathaway of Skidmore. McCullough, a senior, won the event last year with a 7-over-par 295, two strokes better than Mark Hutchinson of Cal State Stanislaus. Hathaway, a sophomore, finished with a 10-over-par 298 and tied with Dan Wyant of Ohio Wesleyan.

Third baseman, cut twice, becomes one of nation's top hitters

By Steve Shutt

If for no other reason, give Joe Williams top honors for perseverance.

The fact that Williams is one of the top college baseball leaders in home runs and RBIs also might merit high marks.

Williams, New Mexico State University's senior third baseman, deserves the perseverance award after twice being cut in trying out for the Aggie baseball team as a walk-on. His third attempt was only slightly more successful; he made the team as a utility player, the 33rd man on a 33-man team.

What Williams has done over the past three seasons is enough to motivate any walk-on who gets the pink slip. He has set school records for home runs in a career, home runs in a season, and RBIs in a game. The career RBI mark is easily within his grasp. In a nutshell, this former two-time nonprospect has become one of the top offensive players in college baseball.

"Joe's a remarkable story," says Aggie head coach Elliott Avent. "The amazing thing is that he would even try out after being cut twice. Then to have the kind of career he's had and the banner year he's having this season is just remarkable."

Williams is second in home runs and ranks eighth in runs batted in in Division I.

His first attempt to make the team was less than memorable.

"I lasted two days, but I wasn't into it," said Williams. "I didn't actually get cut; I quit."

The fall of 1986 wasn't much different. He was a sophomore third baseman looking to make the club.

"I made it to the last cut. (Assistant coach Keith) Lytle told me that if I played the outfield, I would've made the team," said Williams.

After two unsuccessful attempts, most people would have called it quits to concentrate on schoolwork and the normal life of a college student. Not Williams.

"I was going to go out, get a job and work to earn some money," said Williams. "I talked to my parents, and they said that they would pay for my education if I made the team. That made it an easier decision (to try out a third time), because I wasn't under so much pressure."

A new coach was running the club in 1986, and Williams hoped that his past failures would not be a black mark against him. Mike Ryan, currently the athletics director at Eastern Illinois University, was in his first season as the Aggies head coach.

"I tried out as an outfielder because I figured that was the easiest place to make the team," said Williams. "I hit pretty well in that tryout, and I hadn't hit well the year before."

Ryan remembers Williams' position as tenuous at best.

"We had one uniform left, and he was the only one who fit it," jokes Ryan. "Actually, I was aware he had failed to make the team on a previous attempt. But we ran the tryout camp differently last year. You can't judge a player in one afternoon based on a couple of throws from the outfield, a couple of swings in the cage. I don't believe in one-afternoon tryouts. Over the course of a week, you get a pretty good idea of what a guy can do."

"The thing about Joe that swung it for him was his speed and the possibility of his being a multiposition player—someone who could play the infield or outfield."

"But if you had to rank all 33 players on the team, he was one of the last three."

In the first 20 games of the season, Williams made just two token pinch-hitting appearances.

"Joe came to us and wanted to play third base," said Ryan. "The more we worked him out, the more we liked him."

It took a tragedy to finally get Williams into the starting line-up. The mother of starting third baseman Benito Avalos was dying of cancer, and Avalos asked for a leave of absence.

That opened the door for Williams, and he made the most of it. On March 1, 1988, he earned his first career start against Western New Mexico and banded three hits, including a home run, and drove in three runs. In the second game of the doubleheader, he added a two-run homer. In his first seven starts, Williams hit five homers and drove in 11 runs.

Since that time, nobody has taken Williams out of the line-up. He finished the 1989 season with a .402 average, six homers and 25 RBIs.

He was a full-time starter at third for the Aggies in 1989 and responded with a .325 average, nine homers, 52 RBIs, 22 doubles and a team-leading 65 runs scored.

The 1990 season has been a dream come true. Williams has delivered the home runs and RBIs on a consistent basis. He broke the school records for home runs in a season and career, as well as the mark for RBIs in a game.

Williams earned Coppertone National Player of the Week honors April 2 after going 13-for-20 with four home runs and 11 RBIs as part of an Aggie six-game winning streak.

On March 5 against visiting Oklahoma City University, Williams clouted three-run homers in each of his first three at-bats. In his fourth at-bat, with the bases loaded, he was hit by a pitch. Chalk up your basic 10-RBI afternoon.

"That's the best game I've ever had as a college player," said Williams.

The record onslaught continues. He has set the school record for doubles in a career (41) and has equaled the season record for runs scored in a season with 72.

To what does Williams attribute his success?

"Lifting weights has helped me a lot because I'd never lifted before," he says. "But hitting with a wood bat all fall has really helped."

Perseverance has helped, too.

Shutt is assistant director of athletics for media relations at New Mexico State.

offered three proposals in conjunction with restoring the 28-game limit, which, it said, demonstrate its commitment to academics:

- No contests scheduled during an institution's examination period.
- No missed class time for athletically related activities during the week before exams.
- No more than 10 missed class days during the regular season (not including conference or postseason tournaments).

Krzyzewski said the coaches believe if these proposals are adopted, athletes would not be adversely affected academically by a 28-game schedule.

In endorsing the NABC's proposals, the Committee on Basketball Issues tried to look at the broad perspective of what is good for basketball, according to C. M. Newton, director of athletics at the University of Kentucky and chair of the issues committee.

"We do recognize the need for a reduction in time demands, but we felt there was a better way to approach the problem than by cutting the number of games.

"We looked at all components—from the standpoint of the administrator, coach, student-athlete and fan—to gain a perspective to do what is right," Newton said. "A reduction in games is not an answer."

The Committee on Basketball Issues met April 23 in Chicago. The committee is composed of approximately 36 conference commissioners, directors of athletics and coaches. Representatives of the NCAA and the Knight Commission attended the meeting.

"The major concern of the meeting centered on discussions of the well-being of the student-athlete," Newton said.

The basketball issues committee also took the following actions:

- Endorsed an NABC legislative committee proposal to retain the current number of five basketball coaches, but agreed that funding for the last two positions could not exceed the cost of one grant-in-aid at the institution. This would represent a 50 percent reduction in the funding level of these two positions. (The NCAA Special Committee on Cost Reduction has a preliminary proposal to reduce the coaching staff to four.)

- Voted unanimously to recommend that the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee survey participants in the NCAA tournament regarding the tournament experience and to request the NCAA Research Committee to survey participants in the Division I tournament regarding their overall college athletics and academic experience.

- Agreed unanimously to invite up to three members of the NCAA Presidents Commission to attend a meeting of the basketball issues committee.

- Agreed unanimously to draft a resolution recognizing the contributions of Victor A. Bubas, retiring commissioner of the Sun Belt Conference, toward the formation and development of the committee.

Newton said there was discussion on whether the committee should received by the Executive Committee, including one from the Special NCAA Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues. A detailed report on the special committee's work will appear in a future issue of

The NCAA News.

Approved by the Executive Committee were details of plans for year-round and (year-round and postseason) all-sports drug testing developed by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

On a one-year experimental basis, the Executive Committee also approved a recommendation by the NCAA Basketball Officiating Committee that officiating-clinic attendance requirements be amended to permit any full-time member of an institution's basketball coaching staff to attend the respective men's and women's clinic. Previously, head coaches had been required to attend.

Championships

The Executive Committee also

dealt with a number of recommendations submitted by governing sports committees regarding administration of various NCAA postseason events. Among actions taken were:

- Denial of requests to alter championships schedules in men's volleyball and Division I men's soccer to provide a day of rest between semifinal- and final-round action. The Executive Committee also asked the national office staff to develop data on missed class time by student-athletes as a result of regular-season and postseason competition.

- Approval of a request to expand the field of the Division III Men's Soccer Championship from 24 to 32 teams, effective with the 1990 championship. This was the only bracket-expansion request approved during this meeting by the Executive Committee.

- Approval of Bradenton, Florida, as site and the University of South Florida as host for the 1990 and 1991 Division III Football Championships. The Bradenton Kiwanis Club will serve as sponsoring agency.

- Approval of South Florida as host of the 1990 Division I Men's Soccer Championship and with it a switch from an on-campus to a predetermined site for the final. On-campus sites had been used for the past three years.

A summary of all actions taken by the Executive Committee will appear in a future issue of The NCAA News.

William J. Tietz announced his retirement as president at Montana State, effective December 31. The Rev. David T. Tyson selected as president at Portland. He has been vice-president for student affairs at Notre Dame. Marguerite Ross Barnett appointed president at Houston, effective September 1. She is chancellor at Missouri-St. Louis.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Dutch Baughman promoted from senior associate AD at Oregon State, where he has been on the staff since last October. Baughman, a former AD at Furman and Virginia Tech who also has been associate commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference, will take over the Oregon State director's post July 1. Jack Ingram selected at Pfeiffer, where he has been head women's softball coach in addition to serving as assistant AD. He replaces Tom Childress, who resigned after 13 years in the post. Wayne Szoke given additional duties at Monmouth (New Jersey), where he will continue to serve as head men's basketball coach. Szoke, who has coached at the school for three seasons, replaces Joseph A. Biedron, who resigned to pursue other interests. Jerry Schmutte stepped down from the director's post at Nebraska Wesleyan to devote full-time to his duties as the university's associate director of planned giving. Schmutte, who also coached men's basketball at the school for nine seasons ending in 1989, has been AD since 1986.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Dave Bircline, assistant AD for operations and assistant men's basketball coach for the past six years at Seattle Pacific, named head men's basketball coach at Indiana Wesleyan.

COACHES

Baseball assistant — Larry Cox named at Thomas More, where he also will be head men's basketball coach.

Men's basketball — Sam Hanger appointed at Greensboro after serving as an aide at Amherst for the past four years. He also has been on the staffs at St. John's (New York), Massachusetts and American International, in addition to serving as head coach at Greenfield Community College in Massachusetts. Hanger replaces Jim Tribbett, who resigned after four years at Greensboro. Jay W. Helman named at Western State after serving as interim head coach at the school last season. The former UCLA and Santa Clara player also has been an assistant at Sonoma State and Arizona State. Larry Cox selected at Thomas More, where he also will assist with baseball. Since 1983, he has been on the staff at St. Joseph's (Indiana), where he has held the title of associate head coach for the past four seasons. He also served stints as men's track coach, assistant women's tennis coach and assistant baseball coach at St. Joseph's.

Also, Longwood's Cal Luther stepped down after nine seasons at the school to become head coach of the Egyptian National Team. Luther, who also has coached at DePaul and Murray State, has led Longwood to a 126-105 record during his tenure. Mick Durham named at Montana State, replacing Stu Starnier, who was scheduled to take a leave of absence at the school but instead decided to accept duties as head coach at Texas-San Antonio. Durham, who has been on the Montana State staff for eight years, was to serve as interim head coach during Starnier's absence. Starnier replaces four-year Texas-San Antonio coach Ken Burmeister, who joined the staff at DePaul as an assistant. Burmeister also has been on the staffs at Arizona, Iowa and Texas-Arlington.

Men's basketball assistants — Jeff Reynolds joined the staff at North Carolina-Wilmington after four years as an assistant at Winthrop. The former North Carolina-Greensboro player also was head coach at North Carolina Wesleyan during the 1985-86 season. Chris Heimert appointed at Montana State after serving on the staff at Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck for the past six years. Tom Crews stepped down at Loyola (Illinois) to seek a high school coaching position. Dave Bircline stepped down at Seattle Pacific, where he also has served as assistant athletics director for the past six years, to become head men's basketball coach at Indiana Wesleyan. Dean Keener joined the staff at Southern California after two seasons as an aide at Drake. Women's basketball — Milt Raugust promoted from assistant coach at Alaska-Anchorage, where he has been on the staff for eight years. The former California player replaces Linda Bruns, who was named head coach at Northern Arizona after serving for 11 years at Alaska-Anchorage. Tommy Gates selected at Nevada-Reno, where he served last season as an assistant. Vic Schaefer named at Sam Houston State. Last season, he was an assistant boys' coach at Milby High School in Houston, and he is a former men's assistant at Sam Houston State. Jerry Cornwell resigned after five seasons at Guilford, citing family reasons. She coached her teams to a 66-59 record, including a best-ever 18-9 mark last season.

Men's cross country — Bernard Seifert named at Robert Morris, where he also will coach men's track and serve as administrative assistant to the athletics director. He previously was an assistant track and field coach at Western Michigan.

Football assistants — Andre Patterson selected as defensive line coach and run-defense coach at Cornell after serving last season as defensive coordinator at Western Washington. He also has coached at Montana and Weber State. William J. Taylor hired as a full-time football and track aide at Kenyon, his alma mater, where he has assisted with those teams for the past two years. Sean Kelly hired as defensive coordinator at Marietta. The former Ohio and William and Mary assistant has been defensive coordinator and assistant head coach for the past three years at McMurry College in Texas. Joe Philbin named offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Allegheny. He has coached at Merchant Marine for the past two seasons and also has been on the staffs at Washington and Jefferson, Tulane, and Worcester Polytechnic. Bob Junko promoted to assistant head coach at Akron, which also announced the appointment of Bill Cubit as running backs coach. Junko has been Akron's defensive coordinator since 1988 and Cubit previously was quarterbacks coach at Florida. Jack Ruvalo, a former boys' head coach at Solon High School in Ohio, joined the staff at John Carroll as offensive backfield coach and special teams coordinator. John Carroll also promoted Greg Debeljak from graduate assistant to quarterbacks and receivers coach.

Men's ice hockey — Thomas P. Pratt named at New England College. A former player with three National Hockey League teams, Pratt recently has been an assistant at Bowling Green.

Men's and women's skiing — Paul Crews Jr. promoted from Alpine to head coach at Alaska-Anchorage, which also announced the promotion of Tina Hoffman from assistant to head Nordic coach. Crews, who has been at the school since 1982, replaces Tom Besh, who will continue to assist the program on a part-time basis after accepting a full-time teaching position in Alaska-Anchorage's school of education.

Men's soccer — Peter Schachter appointed at Hunter. Schachter, who teaches physical education at Columbia Prep in New York City, was a member of Brandeis' 1976 Division III championship team.

Men's track and field — Bernard Seifert selected at Robert Morris, where he also will coach men's cross country and serve as administrative assistant to the athletics director. He previously was an assistant track coach at Western Michigan.

Men's track and field assistant — William J. Taylor hired full-time as a football and track assistant at Kenyon, his alma mater, where he has assisted with both teams for the past two years.

Women's volleyball — Steve Stratos named at Loyola Marymount after coaching the boys' and girls' teams at Woodbridge High School in Irvine, California.

He replaces Mike Normand, who coached the Loyola team to a 9-19 record through one season and who remains at the school as head men's volleyball coach. Pat Pettit stepped down after five seasons at Nebraska Wesleyan to devote full-time to her teaching responsibilities in the school's physical education department. During her tenure, Pettit coached her teams to a 151-82 mark, and last season, her squad appeared in the Division III Women's Volleyball Championship.

Women's volleyball assistants Jill Jolliff selected at Ohio Northern, where she played volleyball and basketball before serving as an assistant coach in those sports last year at Ottoville High School in Ohio. Therese Boyle joined the staff at Loyola (Illinois). She was a member of Pacific's 1985 Division I championship team before playing and coaching in the now-defunct Major League Volleyball circuit.

STAFF

Administrative assistant — Bernard Seifert named administrative assistant to the athletics director at Robert Morris, where he also will be head men's cross country and track coach.

Development and promotions director — John Bradarich selected at DePaul, where he has been the university's director of career planning and placement since 1983.

Publications director — Jan Burton announced her retirement at Oklahoma, where she also has served on the sports information staff and on the university's news services staff during a 15-year affiliation with the school.

Sports information directors — Glenn A. Hofmann promoted from assistant SID at Lehigh, effective July 1. Hofmann also serves as adviser to Lehigh's campus radio station. Zarko Ivkovic appointed at Hunter, where he also will serve as SID for the City University of New York Athletic Conference. He was an all-conference soccer player at Hunter, where he recently graduated.

Sports information assistants — Jon Turner and Steve Kahn named at Hunter. Turner, a former basketball player at the school, teaches at the High School for the Humanities in New York City, and Kahn is a former assistant and acting SID at Stony Brook.

Trainer — John Max Culp Jr. appointed at New England College. Culp, who is completing work on a master's degree at Arizona, has worked on the training staffs at Cortland State, Louisiana State and Ohio Northern. He replaces Kim O'Connor, who resigned to pursue a graduate degree.

CONFERENCES

The Rev. Aloysius P. Kelley, president at Fairfield, named president of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. Also appointed to MAAC posts were Brother Thomas J. Scanlan, president at Manhattan, who will chair the conference's policy committee, and Daniel P. Starr, athletics director at Canisius, who will chair the athletics administration committee. Zarko Ivkovic will assume duties as sports information director for the City University of New York Athletic Conference in addition to his new duties as SID at Hunter.

Southern, Howard paired for classic

Southern University, Baton Rouge, and Howard University will meet on the football field for the first time in 10 years September 2 in the second Los Angeles Football Classic.

Southern is coming off an 8-4 season, and Howard was 8-3 in 1989.

In last year's inaugural classic, Grambling State University beat Alcorn State University, 35-30, to give coach Eddie Robinson his 350th career win.

Cincinnati pushing for football as Metro Conference sport

The University of Cincinnati says it wants a decision on whether the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference should adopt football as a conference sport.

The university has lobbied unsuccessfully for years for football in the Metro Conference, which now operates in basketball and several other sports. But the football proposal is opposed by Metro members Florida State University and the University of South Carolina, which have successful independent football programs.

Cincinnati's director of athletics,

Charles F. Taylor, said he wants the issue resolved when the conference presidents and athletics director gather May 23-26 in Destin, Florida. He said if the Metro will not sanction football competition among its members, Cincinnati is prepared to look elsewhere for a conference basketball affiliation, the Associated Press reported.

"If they don't add football in May, we reserve the right to look elsewhere," Taylor said. "It's time to stop talking about it and act one way or another."

The other Metro schools are the University of Louisville, Memphis State University, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, University of Southern Mississippi and Tulane University. All eight members must agree to play football before it can be adopted as a conference sport.

This time, the schools pushing for conference football might have leverage they lacked before. DePaul University director of athletics Bill Bradshaw has proposed a Midwest basketball super conference that would include Cincinnati, Memphis State and Louisville—all charter members of the Metro.

If all three schools were to join the new league, they would effectively strip the 15-year-old Metro of its basketball drawing cards.

"We're happy with the arrangement we now have," Florida State athletics director Bob Goin recently told the Roanoke (Virginia) Times & World News. "It would take a number of Division I nationally recognized programs. It would take somebody who would make major contributions to Metro football revenue besides Florida State."

Taylor said he is concerned that the Metro is the only conference in the country that does not share postseason basketball revenue.

"Right now, we're more of an alliance of schools than a true conference where everybody is working in the best interest of one another," Taylor said. "I'm not sure the Metro Conference will exist in five years unless we add football and add revenue sharing like every other conference."

Taylor said he favors legislation that would require each Metro member to put up a $500,000 bond that it would forfeit if the school left the conference.

"A number of Metro schools have indicated possibly looking elsewhere," Taylor said. "That's not good. The only way to put a stop to all that is to strengthen the conference so we're not worried about where we're going to be in a few years."

Lone Star will propose contact in spring drills

The Lone Star Conference will propose legislation at the next NCAA Convention to reinstate contact drills in Division II spring football.

The league adopted the resolution regarding the proposed legislation May 1 at its spring meeting in Dallas. Also, the conference voted to establish a committee to propose conference policies for drug education and drug testing and to renew its contract with the Southwest Athletic Conference to perform the duties of a commissioner's office.

The 1990 spring training in football is the first for Division II members without pads and contact. The conference will propose that Division II adopt the same spring football practice as Division I (15 practice sessions, including 10 with pads, within a 21-day period).

Pence Dacus, faculty athletics representative at Texas A&I University, was reelected conference president.

Tony Stigliano of Waco was appointed new coordinator of officials for football, and he also was retained for men's and women's basketball. Linda Fletcher of Austin was reappointed coordinator of officials for women's volleyball.

Portland to get field for soccer

Construction has begun on a soccer field for the University of Portland's nationally ranked soccer program. The project is funded by nearly $1 million in gifts and pledges.

Adjacent to the Earle A. Chiles Center, the field is the first of a three-phase project that will eventually include permanent seating and a 400-meter running track to be constructed as funds become available.

"Now that our soccer program has emerged as a national force, we are very happy to be able to begin this exciting project for our teams and our fans," said Joseph A. Etzel, director of athletics.

The construction will include drainage and irrigation, redesigning access into Chiles Center, and expanded parking spaces.

News Fact File

Between 1981-82 and 1986-87, participation by women in varsity sports at NCAA member institutions increased by 20.1 percent and in club sports by 13.6 percent. Those gains apparently came at the expense of intramural participation, which declined by 7.2 percent during that span.

Meanwhile, men during the same five-year period increased in varsity participation by 8.9 percent, in club sports by 14.2 percent and in intramural participation by 13.6 percent.

The Revolutionary Gillette Sensor.

It senses and adjusts to the individual needs of your face for the best shave a man can get.

The remarkable Gillette Sensor shaving system creates an entirely new standard in shaving performance. It's a shave personalized to every man. The revolution starts with the platinum hardened Sensor twin blades. They're individually and independently mounted on highly responsive springs. So they continuously sense and automatically adjust to the individual curves and unique needs of your face.

But innovation doesn't stop there. The ultra narrow metal skin guard is also mounted on springs. It moves in total harmony with the blades to set up your beard for optimum shaving performance.

Keeping this technology in constant contact with your face required another breakthrough. A dramatic redesign of the entire pivoting process creates a wider, more responsive, unprecedentedly smooth pivoting action. Innovation is everywhere.

You can feel it in the textured ridges and balance of the Sensor razor. You appreciate it in the easy loading system and the convenient shaving organizer.

Even rinsing is innovative. The new blades are 50% narrower than any others—water flows freely around and through them, helping to make rinsing and cleaning totally effortless.

But the true revolution of Sensor comes not with any one feature, but with the way the Sensor technologies work together. They combine to give your individual face a personalized shave—the closest, smoothest, safest shave you've ever had. Or, more precisely, the best shave a man can get.

West Virginia, Big Ten are talking

West Virginia University has talked with officials about joining the Big Ten Conference should it decide to expand its membership, Mountaineer athletics director Ed Pastilong says.

"We have had informal talks with the Big Ten. We have talked with (Big Ten Commissioner) Jim Delaney and with some of the other member schools," Pastilong said.

"I think if the Big Ten does consider adding a 12th team that we would be given serious consideration," he told the Charleston Daily Mail May 8.

Big Ten CEOs have invited Penn State to join the conference, but that situation reportedly has grown shaky because of opposition from some members.

There also has been speculation, including a recent story in Sports Illustrated, that if Penn State gets in, the conference may add a 12th member and go to divisional play.

West Virginia's strong academic status—the school has turned out 23 Rhodes Scholars—and clean athletics image could help it should the Big Ten seek more members, Pastilong said.

"We have a very good academic record. I think there are only one or

SAC to apply for Division II status

Presidents of the eight South Atlantic Conference schools have voted unanimously to apply for membership in NCAA Division II.

The presidents agreed to seek Division II membership after a recommendation by the conference's directors of athletics.

Commissioner Doug Echols said the conference could be approved for Division II participation by September 1, 1991.

Speaking for the council of presidents, Kenneth B. Orr of Presbyterian College said, "The NCAA is able to offer a wide range of options, with several divisions of participation. The NCAA is also well-identified nationally with provisions related to academics."

The South Atlantic Conference consists of Carson-Newman College, Catawba College, Elon College, Gardner-Webb College, Lenoir-Rhyne College, Mars Hill College, Presbyterian College and Wingate College.

Lenoir-Rhyne already is an NCAA Division II member.

WCHA event set

Despite the addition of a new member, the Western Collegiate Hockey Association will not incorporate a ninth team into its postseason tournament, it was decided at the association's annual meeting in late April in Madison, Wisconsin.

St. Cloud State University will join the association next season.

For play-off purposes, the first round of the tournament will include the eight teams with the highest point totals at the end of the regular season.

Tie-breaking procedures for seeding positions in the tournament will include head-to-head competition, most victories in league competition and greatest winning margin during the regular season.

All WCHA teams will use a 15-minute warmup period before league games, a deduction of five minutes from previous warmups. Each member was given the option of starting games at 7:05 p.m. or 7:35.

The association approved a 10-month position for a coordinator of information, marketing and public relations.

two universities that have had more Rhodes Scholars than we have had," Pastilong said. "We have a good reputation as far as compliance with the NCAA. We have not been involved in any NCAA violation."

Pastilong also said the Mountaineers could compete on the field with any Big Ten team, the Associated Press reported.

"Our athletics teams, all of them, are competitive and would be competitive in the Big Ten," he said.

West Virginia is independent in football and an Atlantic 10 Conference member in basketball and several other sports. The university has been seeking affiliation with an all-sports conference and has talked with other leagues, including the Atlantic Coast Conference.

However, Pastilong said, West Virginia won't be joining another conference any time soon.

"Nobody knows what the Big Ten will do. Also, the ACC doesn't want to expand at this time," he said.

West Virginia officials are "going to do our homework to make sure these people know the good qualities of our university," Pastilong said. "And if and when a door opens, we want to be standing there."

MCC-member presidents reaffirm ties to league

The Midwestern Collegiate Conference Council of Presidents has affirmed that all nine institutions are firmly committed to their affiliation with the MCC, refuting published reports that members are pursuing other conference affiliations.

The council stated that no MCC institution has indicated the desire to explore other athletics consortiums, current or proposed. In addition, the council expressed its regret that statements have been made by individuals or organizations not affiliated with the MCC regarding the intentions of conference members.

Rev. Albert J. DiUlio, chair of the council, president of Xavier University (Ohio) and president-elect of Marquette University, indicated that the common interests and goals of the MCC members extend beyond athletics and include the fundamental missions and philosophical similarities of the universities.

Rev. DiUlio also said in a news release that league members are committed to the development of the conference, as evidenced by the activity of the long-range planning committee, which is reviewing possible membership expansion that could include other Midwest institutions.

SA did not sign player card or contract. SA also provided erroneous and misleading information about the extent of his participation.	Eligibility not restored.

Tennessee's Summitt named to receive hall's top award

The Basketball Hall of Fame's most prestigious single honor, the John Bunn Award, will be presented to Pat Summitt, head women's basketball coach at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

She will receive the award at the hall of fame's 31st annual enshrinement ceremonies May 15 in the Springfield (Massachusetts) Civic Center.

The John Bunn Award is named in honor of the late athletics director and basketball coach at Springfield College who was one of the founders of the Basketball Hall of Fame.

During the past six years, Summitt-coached teams have won an Olympic gold medal (Los Angeles, 1984) and two NCAA Division I championships (1987 and 1989).

The Tennessee coach was cocaptain of the 1976 U.S. Olympic silver medal team. She is a graduate of the University of Tennessee, Martin, where she developed her basketball skills. Despite a serious injury in her senior year, she made the 1973 U.S. team for the World University Games in the Soviet Union.

She began her coaching career immediately upon graduation. At the age of 22, she was named coach of the Lady Vols—while she was in graduate school taking four courses and teaching four. Within three years, her Lady Vols were in the Women's Final Four.

During her 16-year coaching career, coach Summitt's teams have won 407 collegiate games and appeared in nine NCAA women's championships.

In 1977, she coached the U.S. Junior National Team to two gold medals in international competition. Two years later, her U.S. National Team captured two gold medals and a silver in the Jones Cup, World Championships and Pan American Games. Her 1983 squad took the silver medal in the FIBA World Championship.

Davidson decides to pursue membership in Big South

The Davidson College Board of Trustees has directed Terry Holland, director of athletics, to pursue application for immediate membership in the Big South Conference.

The Big South is an NCAA Division I conference. Members are Augusta College; Baptist College; Campbell University; Radford University; University of North Carolina, Asheville; Coastal Carolina College of the University of South Carolina, and Winthrop College.

Davidson has had a competitive relationship with many of the Big South schools in recent years in a number of sports. The basketball team played six games against Big South opponents in 1989-90.

"The Big South can offer a number of our teams the opportunity to compete for conference and NCAA championships," Holland said.

"The geographical makeup of the league will allow us to compete while missing a minimal amount of class and study time, which is a critical factor to the Davidson student-athlete.

"This is a great opportunity. The Big South can become a strong league. This is a chance for us to be in on the ground floor of something good, and we sure don't want to miss the boat," he said.

Holland said Davidson will begin discussions with the Big South immediately and hopes to be competing for conference championships as soon as possible.

School panel considers varsity cuts

An eight-month study by a Kutztown University of Pennsylvania task force has recommended changes to strengthen the school's athletics program.

Before final recommendations are forwarded to David E. McFarland, university president, they will be discussed in an open forum and then by the school's administrative council.

One of the recommendations deals with the possible elimination of five sports. Wrestling, men's and women's lacrosse, women's volleyball, and golf no longer would be offered on the varsity level. The option would remain open for these teams to compete on the club level with reduced funding.

The possible reduction would leave the athletics department with 16 varsity teams.

Other key recommendations were the maintenance of four highlighted sports—football, men's basketball, women's basketball and women's softball—with scholarship aid and full-time coaching assistants. Other recommendations included the addition of graduate assistants in the athletics department and the appointment of a full-time assistant athletics director to replace the current part-time position.

The recommended changes are an attempt to make Kutztown more competitive in its NCAA Division II environment, according to David Valuska, chair of the task force.

The task force recommended that the highlighted sports receive enough scholarships to be competitive.

Football could be receiving 12 to 18 scholarships; men's basketball seven to nine; women's basketball seven to nine, and softball five to seven scholarships. The committee also recommended that the highlighted sports be given help in the area of full-time assistants. Football could receive two additional assistants; men's basketball one more assistant, in addition to the one in place; women's basketball one full-time aide, and softball a full-time assistant or a graduate assistant.

Other recommendations include academic support for athletes; additional funding and staff for the training room; a full-time person for intramurals and scheduling; adjustments in admissions, scheduling and housing policies for athletics, and more money for the athletics transportation budget.

Research confirms that business thrives on lots of sun and plenty of water.

The sound of water cascading from a fountain can help crystallize one's thinking.

A sunny room is infinitely more uplifting than a dim room.

Certain color schemes can warm you. Open, airy spaces can make you feel free.

Certainly, none of these thoughts is especially surprising. What is surprising, however, is that only one group of hotels seems to employ them to the fullest advantage of today's business traveller: Hyatt® Hotels.

Which may help to explain why everything, from our atriums to our guest rooms, has such a distinctive appeal.

Why business executives tend to feel more relaxed and more focused at Hyatt.

And why, given our competitive rates and the benefits of our Gold Passport® Frequent Traveller Program, enlightened

Governmental affairs report

(A review of Federal government activities affecting the NCAA membership is published quarterly in The NCAA News. These reports are prepared by Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, the Association's legal counsel in Washington, D.C.)

Congressional reception

In connection with its April meeting, the NCAA Presidents Commission hosted a reception for members of education-related committees of the Congress and other members of Congress having a direct interest in intercollegiate athletics. The reception was held in the Mansfield Room of the U.S. Capitol, adjacent to the Senate Chamber April 4.

Ten senators and four representatives attended, including Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-Rhode Island, chair of the Senate Subcommittee on Education, Arts and the Humanities; Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chair of the Senate Subcommittee on Antitrust, Monopolies and Business Rights and a member of the Senate Education Subcommittee, and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a member of both the above subcommittees and ranking minority member of the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources. Also present was Rep. Tom McMillen, D-Maryland, a sponsor of the Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act.

Legislation requiring disclosure of graduation rates and other data

Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act

Senate: On February 6, about four weeks after NCAA Divisions I and II approved legislation requiring comprehensive reporting on graduation-rate data by member institutions, the Senate passed the amended version of the Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act favorably reported late last year by the Committee on Labor and Human Resources. The act was adopted as an amendment to the Excellence in Education Act (S.695).

During floor discussion of the bill, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, termed the graduation-rate legislation adopted by Divisions I and II consistent with the bill and applauded that legislation. He expressed the view, however, that passage of the bill still was important because so many student-athletes are not enrolled at NCAA member institutions.

As noted in our last report, the bill would require colleges and universities receiving Federal financial assistance and awarding athletically related student aid to report certain graduation-rate data annually to the secretary of education. Institutions would also be required to provide this information to recruited student-athletes and their parents, guidance counselors and coaches.

In a direct reflection of the NCAA's action, the bill as passed authorized the secretary of education to waive the reporting requirements for any institution that is a member of an athletics association or conference that voluntarily published graduation-rate data, or has agreed to publish data, that is "substantially comparable" to what is required under the bill. The legislation passed by Divisions I and II in fact requires the publication of data more comprehensive than that called for by the bill; NCAA Division III institutions do not award athletically related financial aid.

House of Representatives: The House Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, during hearings last May on the state of intercollegiate athletics, received testimony on the House version of the act (H.R. 1454) sponsored by Reps. McMillen and Towns, D-New York. At the conclusion of those hearings, subcommittee chair Williams, D-Montana, stated that he would defer markup of the bill until after the NCAA Convention in January 1990. To date, no action on the bill has been scheduled, and it is now anticipated that any consideration of a possible markup will not occur at least until after the Easter recess. The NCAA is not taking an active position with respect to the bill — except to assure that if reported by the subcommittee, it would be amended to follow the Senate version, particularly including the provision relating to waiver by the secretary for those institutions voluntarily reporting comparable data.

National Collegiate Athletics Accountability Act

On March 6, Rep. Henry, R-Michigan, introduced the National Collegiate Athletics Accountability Act of 1990 (H.R. 4232). The bill would require each Federally assisted college or university to report to its students and (through the secretary of education) the public its sport-by-sport revenues and expenditures for athletics activities, as well as its total revenues and expenditures. The bill also requires these institutions to pass athletics-related revenues and expenditures through its general fund.

Because there was a suggestion that Rep. Henry, a member of the Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education, might seek to attach this legislation to the Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act when that bill was marked up by the subcommittee, NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz in late March wrote to subcommittee chair Williams, asking that hearings be held on this proposal before any consideration was given to acting thereon. The letter pointed out that existing NCAA legislation required that an institution's annual budget for intercollegiate athletics be controlled by the institution and subject to its normal budgeting procedures. To date, no action has been taken on the bill.

Drug-abuse prevention

Anabolic steroids

Hearings by Subcommittee on Crime: On March 22, 1990, the House Subcommittee on Crime of the House Judiciary Committee held an oversight hearing on the abuse of steroids in amateur and professional athletics. The purpose of the hearing was to gain insight into the problem of steroid abuse among athletes at all levels. Witnesses testifying included former college athletes, medical experts, and Paul Tagliabue, commissioner of the National Football League, and Frank D. Uryasz, NCAA director of sports sciences.

Uryasz discussed the NCAA's concerns about the use of anabolic steroids in college athletics and outlined the NCAA's drug-education and drug-testing programs. He stated that the NCAA is supportive of legislation that would deter the use of anabolic steroids by student-athletes.

Rep. William Hughes, D-New Jersey, chair of the subcommittee, advised during the hearing that he is planning to introduce legislation in the next several weeks to help curb the abuse of steroids. The legislation purportedly will have two major features: It will place anabolic steroids under the Controlled Substances Law, and it will provide felony penalties for coaches, managers and trainers who, directly or indirectly, knowingly encourage the use of steroids.

Pending legislation: In 1988, Congress passed legislation making it a felony to distribute steroids without a physician's prescription. Currently, there are four additional proposals pending — only one of which has been reported out of committee. S. 1829, the "Steroid Trafficking Act of 1989," was unanimously reported to the full Senate by the Senate Judiciary Committee March 8. Introduced by Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Delaware, S. 1829 would make anabolic steroids a Schedule II controlled substance, the same category as cocaine.

No action has been taken on H.R. 995, introduced by Rep. Stark, D-California, or S. 466, introduced by Sen. Biden; these bills would ban solicitation or mailing of steroids other than pursuant to a physician's order. Similarly, there has been no action on H.R. 3421, introduced by Rep. Levine, D-California, which would classify anabolic steroids as controlled substances and would establish an Interagency Coordinating Council on the Abuse of Anabolic Steroids for the purpose of developing a strategy for controlling the abuse of steroids.

Drug testing: On February 1, Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-New York, introduced H.R. 3940, the "Quality Assurance of Drug Testing Act of 1990." This bill is almost identical to S. 1903, introduced November 17, 1989, by Sens. Hatch, R-Utah, and David Boren, D-Oklahoma. Both bills would establish Federal standards for drug-testing programs, including limiting the circumstances in which drug testing may occur. However, S. 1903 would apply only to private employers (potentially including the NCAA's testing of student-athletes), whereas H.R. 3940 would apply to both public and private employers. Both bills are pending in committee; no action has been taken.

There also has been no action on the other pending drug-testing bill, H.R. 33, introduced by Rep. John Dingell, D-Michigan, which would establish standards for the certification of laboratories engaged in urine drug testing. As previously reported, this bill contains several provisions suggested by the NCAA, giving recognition to special circumstances of testing in connection with amateur athletics programs.

National Youth Sports Program

Fiscal-year 1991 appropriation: On March 20, Vivian Fuller, a member of the NCAA National Youth Sports Program Committee, and Aaron Moore, a senior honors student at Tennessee State University who is a former NYSP participant and staff member, testified before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor and Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies in support of an 1991 NYSP appropriation of $14.65 million.

On March 1, representatives of NYSP participating institutions met with members of Congress and congressional staff and requested support for a generous fiscal-year 1991 appropriation for the NYSP and for reauthorization of the program. That evening, Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Massachusetts, the leading champion of the NYSP in Congress, was honored at the first annual NYSP banquet. At the banquet, NCAA Executive Director Schultz presented Rep. Conte with a plaque, and participants in the NYSP project at the University of the District of Columbia performed a skit portraying the congressman's involvement in the program.

House subcommittee markup of the fiscal-year 1991 appropriations bill is expected to occur as early as mid-May. The Senate plans to wait for House action before marking up its version of the bill.

Reauthorization: The NYSP currently is authorized as a Community Service Block Grant (CSBG) discretionary program. The statutory authorization for all CSBG programs, including the NYSP, expires September 30. On March 1, Rep. Dale Kildee, D-Michigan, chair of the House Education and Labor Subcommittee on Human Resources, introduced H.R. 4151, the "Human Services Reauthorization Act of 1990." H.R. 4151 would reauthorize the CSBG, Head Start and other human-service programs for five years.

On March 1, the subcommittee held a hearing on the bill. Merrily Dean Baker, NCAA assistant executive director for administration and NYSP national program director, submitted a statement for the record of the hearing supporting NYSP reauthorization. This statement also requested that the current authorization be modified to describe the NYSP more accurately and to move the program out from under a statutory ceiling restricting appropriations to all CSBG discretionary programs combined.

The NCAA and NYSP supporters submitted to the subcommittee a proposed amendment that would make the requested changes in the NYSP authorization. The subcommittee marked up H.R. 4151 April 3. The bill, as amended by the subcommittee at markup, provides for reauthorization of the NYSP, increases the funding authorized for CSBG programs generally and incorporates requested changes improving the description of the NYSP, but does not move the NYSP out from under the statutory appropriations ceiling.

Application for fiscal year 1990 NYSP funding: On March 21, the NCAA submitted to the Office of Community Services, Family Support Administration, its application for the $10,519,614 in funding appropriated by Congress for the 1990 NYSP.

USDA regulations: On April 10, the U.S. Department of Agriculture published an interim rule implementing changes in the Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) mandated by the child nutrition bill enacted last November, including provisions making colleges and universities participating in the extended NYSP eligible to participate in the SFSP on a year-round basis. Comments on the interim rule, which is effective April 10, must be submitted by October 31.

Title IX

Investigator's manual: On April 2, the Department of Education, Office for Civil Rights (OCR), released its new Title IX intercollegiate athletics investigator's manual. The new manual, which has not yet been reviewed by NCAA Washington counsel, reportedly combines the interim investigator's manual issued by OCR in July 1980 with the March 1982 OCR guide for writing Title IX intercollegiate athletics letters of findings (LOF guide) and simplifies the methods investigators are to use in assessing compliance, without making any major substantive changes in the current intercollegiate athletics requirements.

Copyright

1988 cable royalty fees: Phase I claimants to the more than $203 million in 1988 royalty fees agreed to settle the 1988 proceeding and, on March 8, the Copyright Royalty Tribunal distributed all of the royalty fees to most Phase I claimants. The joint sports claimants will not be affected by the remaining Phase II controversies.

Adjustment proceeding: On January 10, the Copyright Royalty Tribunal commenced a proceeding to adjust the syndicated exclusivity surcharge in light of action taken by the Federal Communications Commission to reinstate its syndicated exclusivity blackout rules. Last year, cable industry representatives requested that the tribunal eliminate the syndicated exclusivity surcharge. Although the joint sports claimants have not received a portion of the syndicated exclusivity royalties in the past, the tribunal's decision in this proceeding could have the effect of reducing the amount of royalty fees available for distribution. Any adjustment will be effective for the first semiannual accounting period (January 1 to June 30) this year. The joint sports claimants (Major League Baseball, the NHL, the NBA and the NCAA) are participating jointly in this proceeding.

Taxation of scholarships and interest paid on student loans

There has been no action since our last report on the several pending bills that would partially and fully restore the exclusion from taxable income of scholarships or would reinstate the deduction for interest paid on student loans.

Tax on unrelated business income

As previously reported, the House Ways & Means Committee has been sporadically studying the issue of changes in the taxation of business income of tax-exempt organizations when such income is deemed unrelated to the exempt purpose of the organization. Although there have been suggestions that the committee would attempt to report a bill this year, this initiative has been dulled by the failure of the administration to express its views on the subject. Although we continue carefully to monitor committee activity in this area, it is becoming increasingly unlikely that any serious legislative effort can be completed in this session of Congress.

Changes sought in scoring in swimming; events order changed

The NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee has approved rules changes regarding scoring, bona fide competition and the order of events in championships.

The committee, which met April 30-May 3 in Destin, Florida, will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that the scoring system used in dual meets in racing courses of six lanes or more be the five-place scoring system of 9-4-3-2-1-0. If approved by the Executive Committee, other scoring changes will include:

- In double-dual meets in racing courses of eight lanes or less, each team will be allowed two entrants and the 5-3-1-0 scoring system will be used.

- In racing courses of at least nine lanes, each team would be allowed three entrants and the 9-4-3-2-1-0 scoring system will be used.

These actions eliminate the mutual-consent options in each of these rules.

In another action related to scoring, the committee voted to survey the membership this summer regarding scoring relays the same as individual events.

Rules regarding time-standard trials also were changed. Time standards, optional-entry standards and collegiate records may not be achieved over the initial distances in time-standard trials.

Time standards and optional-entry standards may not be achieved in any meet that is conducted on any of the same dates as and at the same site as a bona fide NCAA nonchampionship or championship meet.

In other major actions, the committee reversed the order of the 200 breaststroke and 200 butterfly events in championship meets, approved a change requiring the touch on the breaststroke and butterfly to be simultaneous and in the same horizontal plane and approved a change requiring the best actual relay entry time to be submitted. If an institution does not qualify for a relay event with an actual time, an aggregate time may be submitted.

The committee also voted to seed metric times in all championships according to their conversions.

Division I

The Division I subcommittee met with U.S. Swimming representatives to discuss the 1992 Olympic trial dates. The committee recommended that the trials be held in early or mid-February and that the NCAA championships be held on their normal dates (beginning the third Thursday in March for women and the fourth Thursday in March for men).

A recommendation will be made to the Executive Committee that key officials at the championships receive an honorarium.

Awards at the men's and women's championships will be presented between the consolations and finals of the following event. Also, the format of the rules meetings at the championships has been changed so that only controversial rules and issues will be discussed.

Division II

The Schroeder Swim Center in Brown Deer, Wisconsin, will be recommended as the site of the 1991 championships. No host has been named. Institutions interested in hosting should contact Gail D. Hunter, assistant director of championships, at the national office.

Teams with four student-athletes who have achieved time standards in individual swimming events may enter any of the championship's five relays. Also, there will be a 10-minute break following the 200 freestyle relay.

Proof of performance forms will not be required for optional swimming entries. In addition, the qualifying standard for the men's three-meter diving has been reduced by five points, from 475 to 470.

Division III

Emory University will be recommended as the site for the 1991 championships (women's championships March 14-16, men's championships March 21-23). Justus Aquatic Center in Orlando, Florida, will be recommended as the site for the 1992 championships, with Bowdoin College as host. The dates are undetermined.

Gregory A. Lockard of Montclair State College was named chair of the Division III subcommittee.

Manhattanville freshman establishes two lacrosse records

Manhattanville College freshman Anthony Persico wasted little time in making a name for himself in college lacrosse circles. In only 14 games (through May 2), Persico already had destroyed the old U.S. Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association records for single-season goals and points with 90 and 125, respectively. Both totals also lead the national all-divisions rankings.

Swarthmore College officials have announced that Robert E. Williams, professor and chair of the school's department of physical education and athletics, will be the first to hold the Marion Snyder Ware Chair of Physical Education and Athletics at Swarthmore. The endowed chair recently was established by the gift of $1.2 million from the family of former U.S. Congressman John H. Ware III. It is believed to be one of 27. They are Anthony Corbitt, Teri Gaerke, Negele Knight, Annette Melvin, Pam Ramsey, Tammy Ramsey, Noland Robinson and Ray Springer. Another, Bill Uhl, earned a degree in April 1989 and competed during 1989-90 while taking graduate courses.

The other two seniors, Troy McCracken and Cindy Frericks (daughter of Dayton athletics director and former NCAA secretary-treasurer Thomas J. Frericks) will receive their degrees in July.

went three-for-six, and all three hits were home runs—two of them grand slams.

And make no mistake... Virginia needed every one of the 10 RBIs Cunha produced. The Cavaliers won, 21-19, in 10 innings, and Cunha's second grand slam of the afternoon provided the winning margin. He hit it in the top of the 10th.

University of Dubuque basketball coach Jon Davison has been named small college/junior college coach of the year in Iowa, it was announced recently. Sponsored by the Iowa Basketball Coaches Association, the award was presented to Davison April 8.

Villanova University junior Jennifer Peacock has been named the school's female athlete of the year. She received the 1990 Sister Mary Margaret Cribben Award, which is presented annually to the "female athlete who unselfishly sacrifices time, effort, body and soul to lead and motivate her teammates in excelling for Villanova athletics through inspiration."

Peacock plays field hockey and women's lacrosse for the Wildcats.

Joe Restic, long-time Harvard University grid coach, has been named recipient of the 1990 Distinguished American Award to be presented May 14 by the Eastern Massachusetts chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Springfield College senior Kevin Norman has been named winner of the DeOrmond Tuss McLaughry Award, which is given annually by the Western Massachusetts chapter of the NFFHF to the area's outstanding scholar-athlete. The offensive lineman has earned a cumulative grade-point average of 3.600 (4.000 scale) in health/fitness.

Initial steps were taken recently to organize the National Coaching Education Association "to enhance the quality of the sports experience by identifying and sharing information to support and improve coaching education."

California State University, Fresno, senior shortstop Martha Noffsinger has become the first women's softball player to reach the 300-hit plateau for a career since the NCAA began keeping stats for the sport in 1982. Through games of April 30, Noffsinger had 314 career hits.

Although not an NCAA championship, the National Intercollegiate Riding Championship held April 28-29 in Pinehurst, North Carolina, deserves at least a note here because of a most interesting clement.

"One member of each team is required to compete in the written phase of the competition. A reading list of pertinent books will be furnished upon request. A special judge will be assigned to score these tests."

Pat Harmon, historian/curator of the College Football Hall of Fame, responded recently to an item published in this space in the April 18 issue of The NCAA News regarding Big Ten Conference football games played in Cleveland.

"Thanks for mentioning that Purdue University beat Ohio State University at Cleveland in 1942," Harmon wrote. "That Purdue team went undefeated and was co-champion of the Big Ten with the University of Michigan."

"There was a later Big Ten game in Cleveland, November 18, 1944—Ohio State 26, the University of Illinois 12. Ohio State had Les Horvath, who won the Heisman Trophy. Illinois had a freshman back, Buddy Young. Both are in the University of New Orleans student-athlete Gianna Jones has received an award of creativity in engineering from the National Science Foundation. Included is a $25,000 research grant to the school for the 1990-91 school year that is subject to renewal for two additional years.

Jones, a two-year member of the New Orleans track team, graduates this month in civil engineering. "I've always wanted to go to graduate school," she said. "I was considering some job offers, but this grant has changed all my plans."

According to research conducted by the American Volleyball Coaches Association, 1989 attendance at women's intercollegiate volleyball matches approached one million. Hope working on athletics complex

Work has started on the restoration and expansion of the Ekdal J. Buys athletics complex at Hope College.

When completed later this year, the college will have improved facilities for a number of programs, according to William K. Anderson, vice-president for business and finance.

Estimated cost of the work is $450,000, which has come from contributions.

Two soccer fields will be constructed; the running track, which will be resurfaced, will be converted to meters; a football practice field will be enlarged, and additional space will be provided for practice for field hockey, soccer and softball.

Plans are being developed for locker-room space for Hope and visiting teams.

The area was named in 1982 in honor of Hope graduate Ekdal J. Buys, Sr., who continues to be a supporter of the Hope sports program. His grandson, Matt, a sophomore, recently set Hope records in the shot put and the discus.

Penders suspended for one game

Tom Penders, head men's basketball coach at the University of Texas, Austin, has been suspended for one Southwest Athletic Conference game for his comments about the quality of league officiating.

The ruling by Commissioner Fred Jacoby is subject to appeal, and Texas will exercise that option before the SWC Compliance Committee May 16 in Dallas, The Dallas Morning News reported.

The suspension applies to the Longhorns' first SWC game next season, against Texas A&M January

2 in Austin.

Also, Penders and assistant coach Jamie Ciampaglio have been placed on probation for the entire season, and any further criticism of SWC officials could result in future suspensions.

Penders criticized the officiating after Texas' loss to Houston in the semifinals of the SWC tournament March 18.

Penders was reprimanded earlier by Jacoby for comments on the officiating in Texas' loss to Arkansas January 25 in Fayetteville.

Distances in cross country events to be alternated in NCAA skiing

Race distances for diagonal and forestall cross country events in the National Collegiate Skiing Championships will be alternated for both men and women every two years.

That was one of the decisions reached by the Men's and Women's Skiing Committee at its May 3-5 meeting in Kansas City.

The committee also developed a recommendation for a host institution for the 1992 championships, heard a report on the possibility of cable television coverage of the championships and made some minor rules changes.

Beginning in 1991, the men's cross country race distances will be 20 kilometers for the mass-start diagonal and 10 kilometers for the interval-start forestall events. The women's distances will be 15 kilometers for the mass-start diagonal and five kilometers for the interval-start forestall events. In 1993, the two men's distances and the two women's distances will be alternated.

The committee reviewed a proposal from the University of Alaska, Anchorage, to host the 1992 championships and will forward its recommendation that the proposal be accepted to the NCAA Executive Committee. The committee also announced that it is accepting proposals from the Eastern region to host the 1993 events.

The possibility of cable telecasting of the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Skiing Championships was reviewed. The committee expressed its optimism that some arrangement could be made to develop the coverage.

In another championships matter—as well as for regular-season individual competition—the committee determined that for the first-seed group, race order will be drawn randomly. Subsequent competition groups will be filled by alternating the starting order based on regional rankings.

In its review of playing-rules issues, the committee will recommend that flex-based turning poles be made mandatory. Because the change falls in the area of player safety, it will be reviewed by the Executive Committee.

The committee also agreed to the following rules changes:

- That situations not covered by the rules fall under the discretionary authority of the technical delegate (primary official).

- That on days when new snow has fallen or is falling, up to six forerunners should be used to help prepare the Alpine course.

- That in the event of a protest, the technical delegate and jury may review only the videotape provided by the host institution if one is available.

Former basketball player sues Drake, alleging fraud

Former basketball player Terrell Jackson has sued Drake University for fraud, alleging the school reneged on a promise to provide him an education.

Jackson was recruited by former coach Tom Abatemarco in 1988 after attending several schools, including the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, and the University of Cincinnati. He quit the team last winter in a dispute that led to the resignation of Abatemarco, now an assistant at the University of Colorado.

Jackson, 22, seeks punitive and compensatory damages in a suit filed May 7 in Polk County District Court in Des Moines that also accuses Drake of breach of contract, negligent misrepresentation and violation of Jackson's civil rights. The suit also says Drake was negligent in hiring Abatemarco, the Associated Press reported.

"Drake University is truly dismayed that Mr. Jackson would make such accusations," said spokesman Alan Cabbage.

Jackson, who is from Chicago, has received a full scholarship and room and board since the fall of 1988, benefits worth more than $25,000, Cabbage said. He said the school is committed to extending the scholarship until Jackson graduates, even though Jackson quit.

The lawsuit alleged Drake lured Jackson with promises of academic support to complete his degree, then made it virtually impossible to receive an education.

The suit alleged the school, through Abatemarco and his staff, asked Jackson to plagiarize term papers and urged him "to register for classes that detracted or conflicted least from the basketball schedule and would provide high grades essential to maintaining academic eligibility regardless of their academic worth."

Art Mascolo, a varsity basketball player at Franklin and Marshall College, discusses some of the finer points of the game with YES clinic participants

YES programs attract 3,000; nine clinics set for spring

Approximately 3,000 youths participated in the winter Youth Education through Sports (YES) clinics held in conjunction with five NCAA championships.

The program, which is free to the participants, entails participation, demonstrations and an enrichment period that focuses on the positive aspects of intercollegiate athletics.

The program brings together some of the most respected coaches in college athletics to help youngsters develop sport skills and to encourage them to discuss such subjects as peer pressure, substance abuse and academics with collegiate student-athletes and local educators. Participants also have the opportunity to attend a session of the NCAA championship (excluding the Final Four).

"Having student-athletes talk to the youths was a great idea because we are where they want to be," said Karen Dyer of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, one of the student-athletes who participated. "I like giving back some of what I have been given and hopefully help the young aspiring athletes... whether it be in athletics or self-confidence."

Participants and their parents were praising the effort after the sessions. "I wish I had time to go up to every coach and college player to say thanks," said Staci Robertson, who participated at the women's Midwest basketball regional clinic. "I am glad they all care about us as students."

The 15 corporate sponsors who fund the program—American Airlines, American Express, Coca-Cola, Gatorade, Gillette, Greyhound, Hyatt Hotels, Kodak, Mitsubishi Electronic Sales, National Car Rental, Oldsmobile, Pizza Hut, Rawlings Sporting Goods, US Sprint and Worldtek Travel—provide all instruction, T-shirts, printed materials and promotional items, enabling the NCAA to offer the clinics at no cost to those who attend.

The program is open to youths ages 10-18. The NCAA mails promotional brochures to schools within a three-hour radius of the clinic site. Each clinic accommodates 250 to 700 participants and lasts three to five hours.

"I learned a lot, especially how important it is to get a good education," said Kellie Winton, who attended the Women's Final Four clinic. "I love sports, and it makes education fun."

Paul James, whose daughter participated in the women's basketball regional clinic in Iowa City, said, "My daughter enjoyed the clinic. The (youth) need to see the college players up close.... Those players are good role models but are too many times not in contact with our youth."

"I feel that having the college students involved with the participants was a tremendous learning experience for both the youth and the college players," said Agnus Berenato of Georgia Institute of Technology. "My player, Theresa Gernatt, felt a great sense of pride working with the younger kids. Also, this gave her a new look at the NCAA...."

After sponsoring three clinics in the fall and six more in the winter, the NCAA jumps into the spring with nine clinics in seven different sports. Everything from baseball to volleyball, lacrosse to tennis, will be featured at nine championship sites, including eight Division I championships and the Division II Baseball Championship.

YES clinics for the spring are: Men's volleyball—George Mason University, Fairfax, Virginia, May 5; tennis—Santa Fe Community College, Gainesville, Florida, May 13; women's lacrosse—Princeton University, Princeton, New Jersey, May 20; softball—Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, May 26; Division II baseball—Montgomery, Alabama, May 26; track and field—Duke University, Durham, North Carolina, May 27; men's lacrosse—Rutgers University, Piscataway, New Jersey, May 28; baseball—Creighton University, Omaha, Nebraska, June 2; golf—Safety Harbor, Florida, June 3. For more information about a clinic, contact the NCAA at 913/339-1906.
