NCAA awards scholarships to women for graduate work

The NCAA women's enhancement program has awarded 10 postgraduate scholarships for 1990. Winners were selected by the Association's Committee on Women's Athletics.

The Committee on Women's Athletics was established by the 1987 NCAA Convention to study and make recommendations regarding opportunities for women in intercollegiate athletics at the institutional, conference and national levels, as well as other issues directly affecting women's athletics.

Postgraduate scholarships are available to women college graduates who have been accepted into a sports administration program (or a related program) at an NCAA member institution.

Recipients must express an interest in preparing for a professional career in the administration of intercollegiate athletics. Postgraduate scholarships are valued at $6,000 and are awarded for only one year of postgraduate study.

Following are the individuals awarded scholarships (with the institution awarding the undergraduate degree and the institution where postgraduate scholarship is intended to be used, if different):

Michelle L. Bohan (Mount Union College; Bowling Green State University)—Bohan was a four-year letter winner on the Raiders' basketball team. She was a first-team selection on the Ohio Athletic Conference all-academic team. She appeared on the dean's list six times. She also supervised the physical education work-study program at Mount Union.

Pamela A. Connell (Pennsylvania State University)—Connell was a standout on the Lady Lions' track team for four years. She received the Ernest B. McCoy scholarship for outstanding academic/athletics achievement and received recognition three times from the student advisory board as an outstanding student-athlete. With a major in accounting, Connell plans to become involved in the business management side of women's intercollegiate athletics.

Nicole Crepeau (Tufts University; Boston University or Harvard University)—Crepeau lettered on the Tufts women's soccer team for four years, receiving the most-valuable-player award in her conference tournament in 1985. She also finished ninth in the heptathlon at the 1985 Division III Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships. She received the Frederick Melvin Ellis Award for excellence in academics and athletics and strong potential for leadership. She plans to pursue a master's in education, specializing in sports administration, and wants to coach soccer and eventually serve as a director of athletics.

Leeann Crites (West Virginia University)—Crites worked as a student athletics trainer for four years and most recently was the trainer for the West Virginia gymnastics team. She is a member of the National Athletic Trainers Association. She was awarded the national Chuck Cramer Scholarship and the 1989 Albert Gwynne Scholarship. She graduated magna cum laude from West Virginia with a degree in general science education, specializing in athletics training. She plans to continue her career in athletics as a trainer.

Stephanie K. Drier (University of Oregon)—Drier was a middle

CFA members move to protect athletes from pro-team scouts

College Football Association coaches, under pressure from school presidents to improve graduation rates, called on the NFL during the CFA's annual meeting June 1-3 in Dallas to reschedule minicamps and combines to keep athletes from missing class time.

To that end, the CFA by resolution said NFL scouts are no longer welcome in film rooms and facilities of the more than 60 CFA member schools until the league becomes more sensitive to the problem, the Associated Press reported.

"Professional football teams should not require individuals, regardless of year in class, to attend any minicamp until such time as the student-athlete's academic year has been completed," the coaches said in the resolution.

West Virginia University coach Don Nehlen said coaches are under increasing pressure to improve their graduation rates.

"That can't happen if kids keep having their class time disrupted," Nehlen said. "Why can't the NFL do all its timing and have its minicamps in June? They take their vacations in June, so let 'em take them in May."

For the first time this year, the NFL unconditionally drafted underclassmen, if they declared for the draft, who still had eligibility remaining. The NBA has been doing that for two decades, and baseball and hockey also take college players who still have eligibility left.

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue, who made the decision to draft underclassmen because he didn't believe the league could win a court fight on the issue, said he hopes underclassmen will remain in school. Of the 38 who declared for the draft, 20 went undrafted.

"I think we're listening to what the colleges have to say," said Tagliabue, who said that members of the league's college relations committee will meet this month with NCAA officials to try to solve the problem.

Tagliabue cited the same problem raised by college officials -- that players entering the draft spend the whole spring working toward improving their pro prospects.

Charles M. Neinas, executive director of the CFA, said: "Significant courtesies have been extended to pro scouts. Those courtesies will no longer be extended unless something is done. The moratorium is in effect now."

"We're just asking that pro football pay attention to its farm system. The pros aren't giving the colleges the time of day. Let's face facts; pro football is interested in only pro football."

The resolution came on the final day of the three-day, 14th annual CFA meeting.

In the resolution, the coaches also said the NFL should pay for

Omaha will be host to CWS through '95 under new pact

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz and Omaha Mayor P. J. Morgan have announced a five-year contract to keep the College World Series in Omaha through 1995. The current contract assures Omaha of hosting the event through 1991.

Jack Diesing Jr., president of the nonprofit Omaha corporation that sponsors the CWS locally, said the contract would be an extension for four or five years instead of the current automatic one-year renewal plan.

Mayor Morgan said May 31 a tentative agreement had been reached and only finishing touches from attorneys for the city and NCAA were needed before signatures complete the agreement.

In Kansas City, Missouri, last November, Morgan requested an extension through 1995 in return for implementing "Rosenblatt 2000," an $8 million program of improvements to Rosenblatt Stadium and the surrounding area. Additional seating, parking and other stadium improvements are planned.

Schultz said college baseball has grown rapidly over the past 10 years and the College World Series deserves much of the credit.

Big Ten accepts Penn State, bans expansion for four years

Big Ten Conference presidents formally accepted Pennsylvania State University into the conference June 4, then imposed a four-year moratorium on expansion to a 12th school.

The presidents, known as the Council of Ten, tentatively had invited Penn State to join the conference earlier this year but delayed a final decision, handing over consideration of the expansion to a special committee.

University of Illinois, Champaign, President Stanley O. Ikenberry, speaking for the other presidents, said at a news conference that the Big Ten "welcomes Penn State" to the league.

"As the newest member of the Big Ten family, we want Penn State to experience a transition that conveys the sense of congeniality and fellowship the Big Ten typifies," Ikenberry said in a statement.

"We welcome Penn State, its administrators, its faculty, its student body and its loyal alumni to a partnership dedicated to the advancement of higher education and committed to quality athletics consistent with the teaching and research missions of our universities."

Ikenberry said a decision on a name change for the conference will be made within 60 days. The university presidents discussed some possible labels, but Ikenberry would not reveal them, United Press International reported.

Ikenberry said the Penn State decision required approval from seven of the 10 schools, but he declined to reveal the exact vote. The vote reportedly was not unanimous.

But Ikenberry did say the Big Ten presidents were unanimous in their desire to end conference expansion with Penn State, at least for now.

The four-year moratorium on adding members can be overturned with a vote of eight of the 11 institutions.

The Penn State expansion had opened speculation that another school would be admitted to balance the league at 12 institutions and create divisional play. But the Council of Ten squelched that talk.

Ikenberry said there was no consensus on the long-term implications of further expansion and divisional play and what that expansion would mean to the league's "character."

Ikenberry said, "In our judgment, there needs to be a great deal more thought given before we proceed with further expansion, including a question of whether we really want to move toward divisional play."

The Big Ten was founded in 1896 as the Western Conference. Its last expansion was in 1948, when Michigan State University was added.

Supporters of the Penn State expansion argued it would solidify the league's football and basketball rectors worried about the cost of making travel connections to Penn State, which is in central Pennsylvania and is not easily accessible by air.

Full participation in the Big Ten by Penn State will take several years. Commissioner James F. Delany said Penn State could take part in single-event championships in the next two to three years, meaning the first integration of Nittany Lion teams will come in sports such as wrestling and tennis that make schedules from year to year.

Full participation in major sports with long-term schedules will take until the mid-1990s, Delany said, with basketball integrated possibly by 1994 and football in 1995.

Asked about the 11-member conference, Delany said stranger things are possible.

"If the Berlin Wall can come down, I guess the Big Ten can have 11 members," Delany said.

Gymnastics dates, sites recommended

Selection of dates and sites for 1991 regional and national competition highlighted the May 29-June 1 meeting of the NCAA Men's Gymnastics Committee, which was held in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee voted to recommend Pennsylvania State University as the site of the 1991 National Collegiate Men's Gymnastics Championships, April 18-20. The committee also will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that 1991 regionals be held April 6 at the University of Oklahoma (West) and Ohio State University (East).

In other action, the committee the completion of a student-athlete's education if he does not graduate.

"CFA coaches believe it is only appropriate that a drafted underclassman be guaranteed educational financial assistance by professional football for the length of the term that he would have college eligibility remaining," the resolution said. "Also, any underclassman who is not drafted and who signs a free-agent contract should have in his contract a financial guarantee that would provide sufficient funds to complete his college education."

In another action, the coaches suggested ways of eliminating costs besides reducing scholarships and cutting staffs.

Some of the items proposed included:

- Eliminate telephone recruiting during an eight-month period.
- Eliminate all printed brochures, telegrams and mailgrams used in recruiting.
- Reduce the total number of prospective student-athlete visits to each campus from 85 to 75.

and productive relationship" between the NCAA and Omaha, Schultz said.

Dennis L. Poppe, NCAA director of championships, said the NCAA hasn't received a formal bid from any other community to host the CWS but some cities, such as Minneapolis, had expressed interest.

If neither the NCAA nor the nonprofit CWS Inc. had intervened before September 1, the agreement to host the CWS would automatically have been renewed, keeping the tournament in Omaha.

voted to recommend that the 1992 national championships be held at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, April 23-25, with regional sites to be determined later. The committee set the last qualifying date for regionals as March 24 in 1991 and March 29 in 1992.

The committee also voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that inquiries be eliminated at the NCAA national championships but be maintained for regional competition. In addition, only two inquiries per competition will be allowed during the regular season. If more than two inquiries are made, a 0.3-point deduction will be made from the individual's score rather than the team's score.

The committee decided that a 12-man team can be used during the entire regular season, but scores for team qualification to the regionals and for ranking purposes will be used only from competition where nine-man teams participated.

In an effort to break ties in optional sessions of the national championships, the committee will recommend that judges be allowed to score in increments of .05 for scores above a 9.5. The committee also determined that in the individual finals session of the national championships, two events will be run at the same time.

The committee decided that starting positions for teams participating in the national championships would be decided during a conference call on the Monday after regional competition. In even-numbered years, the first-place team in the East region would be given first choice, followed by the first-place team in the West region. A random draw then would be held for the four individual groups, followed by a choice by the second-place team in the East, second-place team in the West, etc. In odd-numbered years, West teams would be given priority over the East squads.

Committee members David R. Mickelson of Iowa State University and Fred Turoff of Temple University were selected to chair the West and East regional advisory committees, respectively.

News Quiz

The following questions relate to information that appeared in May issues of The NCAA News. How many can you answer?

1. True or False: Willie Scroggs resigned as men's lacrosse coach at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, to enter private business.

Revised 1990-91 National Letter of Intent signing dates

The Collegiate Commissioners Association (CCA), the group that administers the National Letter of Intent program, recently voted to approve an early signing period for all sports other than fall sports. The signing window of eight days will be conducted as a one-year pilot study program to be reevaluated at the conclusion of the 1991 National Letter of Intent signing periods. Listed below are the revised 1990-91 National Letter of Intent signing dates for all sports.

1990 Men's National Letter of Intent

Mid-year junior college football transfer: December 12, 1990-January 15, 1991.

Football: February 13, 1991-April 1, 1991.

Soccer and water polo: February 13, 1991-August 1, 1991.

Basketball: November 14, 1990-November 21, 1990, or April 10, 1991-May 15, 1991.

All other sports: November 14, 1990-November 21, 1990, or April 10, 1991-August 1, 1991.

1991 Women's National Letter of Intent

Volleyball and field hockey: February 13, 1991-April 1, 1991.

Soccer: February 13, 1991-August 1, 1991.

Basketball: November 14, 1990-November 21, 1990, or April 10, 1991-May 15, 1991.

All other sports: November 14, 1990-November 21, 1990, or April 10, 1991-August 1, 1991.

Baseball—summer participation

Divisions I and II member institutions should note that an institution's playing season in the sport of baseball is limited to a maximum of 26 weeks during the academic year. Subsequent to the conclusion of the institution's playing season, no member of a Division I or II institution's coaching staff may be involved in any way (e.g., coach, official, player) for the remainder of the academic year with an outside team that includes any student-athlete with eligibility remaining from that institution's baseball team.

Outside of the academic year, it would be permissible for a member of a Division I or II institution's coaching staff to be involved with an outside team that includes student-athletes with eligibility remaining from that institution's baseball team. In addition, outside of the academic year, there are no NCAA limitations on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team. (Note: Some summer developmental baseball leagues have imposed limitations on the number of student-athletes from an institution who may participate on any one team in that league.)

Regarding summer practice, an institution may provide expenses for baseball practice sessions during the summer vacation period only when the student-athletes report for regular squad practice under the following circumstances: (1) The sessions are announced by the institution through a member of its athletics department staff prior to the beginning of any quarter or semester, and (2) the sessions involve the entire baseball team.

A Division III member institution's playing season in the sport of baseball is limited to a maximum of 21 weeks (during the calendar year). Outside of the institution's playing and practice season, it is not permissible for a member of a Division III member institution's coaching staff to be involved in any way (e.g., coach, official, player) with an outside team that includes any student-athlete with eligibility remaining with that institution's baseball team. In addition, it is not permissible for the institution to conduct practice sessions unless such sessions are held in conjunction with preparation for a certified foreign tour (see NCAA Bylaw 30.6). Finally, outside of the playing and practice season, there is no limitation on the number of student-athletes from the same institution with eligibility remaining in intercollegiate baseball who may practice or compete with an outside amateur baseball team.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to William B. Hunt, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

blocker on the Ducks' nationally ranked volleyball squad for four years. She has received a scholar-athlete award for completing three consecutive semesters with a 3.000 grade-point average or above (4.000) since 1986. She received the Harry-Ritchie Award, presented to a volleyball player for academic achievement. She will pursue a master of business administration degree at Oregon and plans to become involved in athletics administration.

Gail A. Fryer (Indiana State University)—Fryer was a member of the Sycamore softball squad from 1986 to 1988. She also has volunteered with Special Olympics. Her list of honors includes being a member of Alpha Lambda Delta honorary society and being listed on the 1987 Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference presidents' academic honor roll and the 1988 athletics honor roll, and as a 1988 scholastic all-America. She has worked with Indiana State's academic coordinator for athletics as a mentor-tutor for learning-disabled student-athletes and wants to become an academic coordinator.

Christine W. Knight (Springfield College; University of Florida) Knight was involved in two aspects of competitive athletics at Springfield—she was a member of the softball team for four years and also was a student trainer. She received the Academic Honor Student Award for the highest grade-point average among athletics training majors. She was academic all-conference in softball and is an academic all-America candidate and a Rhodes Scholar candidate. She had a double major in physical education and athletics training and plans to major in training at Florida. She plans to pursue a career in clinical athletics training, possibly working with a collegiate or professional sport program.

Susan M. Leschinski (Springfield College)—Leschinski excelled for Springfield's track program, earning all-conference honors in cross country (12th place), indoor track (sixth place in the 3,000-meter run) and outdoor track (sixth place in the 3,000-meter run). She also set the school record in the 2,000-meter steeplechase. Leschinski was a physical therapy major at Springfield, where she earned Northeast-10 Conference scholar-athlete status. She also has been nominated for a Rhodes scholarship. She wants to use her education to become a physical therapist, specializing in the rehabilitation of major trauma patients.

Jeanne L. Orr (Buffalo, State University of New York; University of Massachusetts, Amherst)—Orr competed for Buffalo in basketball, softball and tennis during her undergraduate years. She also was on the dean's list six semesters during her four years at Buffalo. She was the Delta Kappa Phi nominee for academic excellence and received the Ruth Houston Award for athletics achievement. Orr became an English teacher after she received her master's in student personnel administration from Buffalo in 1982. She currently is an administrative assistant to the rector of the Calvary Church in Williamsville, New York. She plans to pursue a career in sports information or academic counseling for student-athletes.

Mary F. Wessely (Iona College; University of Massachusetts, Amherst)—Wessely played softball for four years for the Gaels. She made the all-academic teams of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. She was an honors-program graduate and a recipient of the Wall Street Journal Award and the Accounting Medal while at Iona. She plans to continue her athletics career as a coach and administrator at an NCAA member institution.

SEC gets unanimous OK from members to seek expansion

Presidents and chancellors of Southeastern Conference member institutions unanimously have recommended that Commissioner Roy Kramer be authorized to enter discussions with interested institutions for the purpose of expansion.

La Salle to help test Association's certification plan

Another NCAA Division I member institution has been selected to participate in the Association's two-year certification pilot program, bringing the total to 48 schools.

La Salle University will represent the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference and the Eastern College Athletic Conference in the program.

The Patriot League also will be represented in the pilot program, bringing to 29 the number of conferences represented. Previously, the U.S. Military Academy was selected as a representative of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, but La Salle will replace Army as the MAAC's representative as Army moves to The Patriot League, formerly known as The Colonial League.

Other institutions and conferences participating in the certification pilot program were listed in the May 30 issue of The NCAA News.

One of those institutions, the University of Dayton, erroneously was listed as an independent. The school is a member of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

invitation for membership was amended during the league's annual spring meeting, May 27-31 in Sandestin, Florida, to require a three-fourths vote of league members.

In other action, conference presidents supported reform initiatives recently proposed by a group of Division I-A conference commissioners, including:

- A maximum of 25 initial grants-in-aid in any one year for football, not exceeding 46 in any two-year period.
- A limit of four initial grants-in-aid in any one year for basketball, but no more than seven in any two-year period.
- A maximum of 20 hours per week that student-athletes may spend in competition, practice and all other related activities.

After reviewing the issue of athletics dormitories, the league's chief executive officers determined that they should remain an institutional matter.

The presidents also authorized Kramer to enter discussions with Birmingham, Alabama, city officials regarding the city's proposal to construct a building to house the conference headquarters.

Other actions taken at the business session included:

- A resolution adopting the revised SEC Manual, bringing its format into conformity with the recently revised NCAA Manual.
- Establishing a bylaw outlining the powers and duties of the league's CEOs.
- Allowing a student-athlete who has exhausted his or her eligibility in a sport to attend scouting-service tryouts in that sport and/or retain an agent for that particular sport and still be eligible for other sports as long as they meet NCAA requirements.

- Increasing SEC basketball tournament ticket prices to $100 per book.

- Renaming the SEC Scholar Athlete of the Year Awards in honor of H. Boyd McWhorter, SEC commissioner from 1972 to 1986.

- Continuing the six-team format for the league baseball tournament.

The SEC also approved distribution of approximately $16.3 million to league members in the revenue-sharing plans. The 1989-90 figure is the second highest total in conference history. The amount distributed to each school ranged from a high of $1.93 million to a low of $1.21 million.

Donald W. Zacharias of Mississippi State University was reelected president of the league for 1990-91. Charles B. Knapp of the University of Georgia will continue to serve as vice-president, and University of Florida faculty athletics representative Mandell Glicksburg will serve as secretary.

Joining the SEC officers on the executive committee are Louisiana State University Chancellor William "Bud" Davis; University of Tennessee, Knoxville, athletics director Douglas A. Dickey; University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, associate athletics director Sarah Patterson, and Joseph F. Boland III, faculty athletics representative at Auburn University.

Young athletes' steroid use extensive, report says

As many as 200,000 athletes in the United States between the ages of 10 and 14 have used anabolic steroids to enhance their performances, an exercise physiologist recently told delegates at the American College of Sports Medicine's annual convention in Salt Lake City.

Michael E. Gray, director of the National Youth Sports Research and Development Center at Northern Kentucky University, said that two percent of approximately 1,250 teens who responded to a national survey admitted using a steroid. There are approximately 10 million athletes competing nationally within the age group surveyed, Gray said.

According to the Los Angeles

Times, the survey also found:

- That 78 percent of the athletes had heard of steroids, but only 49 percent were told about the effects of the drug.
- That 43 percent believed steroids would not harm an athlete if used carefully.
- That 55 percent thought steroid use alone would improve muscle size and strength.
- That 68 percent believed Olympic athletes probably used steroids to make the team.
- That 12 percent knew where to obtain steroids.

Gray told the convention that youths get steroids from overzealous parents, family physicians and on the black market.

"Mom and dad perceive Johnny or Sally as the next Wilt Chamberlain," he said. "They want to push this kid on to be a professional athlete. They make them practice seven days a week, they will feed them like crazy, they will take them to all these games and they will give them steroids."

In one case, Gray found a 10-year-old who was injected with testosterone by teen-agers at a local gymnasium. "It's a trickle-down effect," Gray said. "We weren't seeing this five years ago."

In the study, 2,700 surveys were sent to teens in 17 states, and 46 percent of the questionnaires were returned. Athletes were selected in eight sports—basketball, baseball, soccer, football, softball, swimming, ice hockey and tennis. About 80 percent of those surveyed were boys.

Comment

Track coaches say grant cuts could endanger sport

By Bert Rosenthal

NCAA track and field coaches, admitting the sport is in trouble, are vehemently opposed to a proposal that would cut scholarships by 10 percent.

The coaches expressed their opinions during a news conference before the NCAA Division I Men and Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships at Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium.

"If we're cut back, it's going to be damaging to the sport," said Baylor University's Clyde Hart, president of the NCAA Division I Track and Field Coaches Association.

"The scholarships are a grand opportunity for young athletes to go to college and make an Olympic team," said Terry Crawford, women's head coach at the University of Texas, Austin, and 1988 Olympic women's coach.

Stan Huntsman, also of Texas and the men's Olympic coach in 1988, was very concerned that the proposed reduction in scholarships could result in many schools dropping track and field.

"I can't imagine there will be schools without track in the U.S.," he said. "But that's a possibility."

The 10-percent reduction in track and field is part of an across-the-board reduction for all sports scholarships expected to be voted upon during the January NCAA Convention in Nashville.

Hart said that his group was in favor of "cost reduction." But he said that track and field is being cut unfairly, noting that men's track and field scholarships originally were 23 and were reduced to 14 in 1975.

The proposed reductions, if adopted, would set men's scholarships at 12½ and the women's scholarships, currently 16, at 14.

"Basically, we are funding, through one grant-in-aid program, three of the countable NCAA sports: indoor track and field, outdoor track and field, and cross country," Hart wrote to Eugene F.

Corrigan, chair of the NCAA Special Committee on Cost Reduction.

"At the majority of U.S. colleges and universities, these three sports constitute almost half of the countable (seven) NCAA sports that are necessary for the school to be Division I. There can be no argument that this is a tremendous money-saver for the schools that have these as three of their countable sports," Hart said.

(Editor's note: It is expected that the 1991 NCAA Convention will vote on a proposal to raise the minimum number of sports for Division I membership to eight.)

Hart and several other coaches at the news conference also said that with 21 events in the men's NCAA championships and 19 in the women's, even the present number of scholarships is insufficient. The numbers also fall short for dual, triangular and quadrangular meets, where depth is most important.

Current rules call for schools to have at least 14 competitors in a meet for it to count as one of the required competitions in Division I.

"Any further cutbacks would put us in the category of specialization in certain areas; and the team concept, I am afraid, would virtually die," Hart said in his letter to Corrigan.

The coaches said that with fewer scholarships, many schools would be forced to drop one of the three track and field programs, probably cross country, and replace it with a more costly program.

Furthermore, the coaches said that the reduction in scholarships eventually would hurt the Olympic teams, especially since track and field is the Olympics' major sport.

"We no longer can develop our athletes," said LeRoy Walker, the 1976 men's Olympic coach.

"We've got to keep the college programs going," said Auburn University's Mel Rosen, the 1992 men's Olympic coach.

"We can't go on like this at a low level," Texas' Huntsman said.

Meanwhile, Prairie View A&M University's Barbara Jacket, the 1992 women's Olympic coach, said her school has decided to drop all sports except track and field.

"I think they didn't cut track and field because I'm the Olympic coach," Jacket said tearfully. "I believe that after '92, track and field will go—and there won't be any sports."

Until 1992, at least, Jacket said Prairie View A&M would have to leave the NCAA and join the NAIA.

"Prairie View already has made a statement," Huntsman said.

"Maybe some other schools will follow. But I can't believe the NCAA will give up track completely."

Rosenthal is the track and field writer for the Associated Press.

A proposal for mastering the rules

To the Editor:

With compliance being a high priority subject among our member institutions, may I suggest a new service that could benefit all of us greatly. Why not have a one-week biannual workshop devoted exclusively to rules education? Directors of athletics, faculty reps, compliance coordinators, coaches and anyone associated with a member institution could attend. Tuition would be nominal. All areas would be covered, with special emphasis on eligibility, recruiting and benefits. Questions would be encouraged.

Here's the controversial part: Participants would be required to take a closed-book exam at the end of the session. For a fee, nonparticipants who already feel confident about their knowledge (of the rules) could also take the exam. Failure to pass would carry no sanction, and one could retake the exam at the end of the next workshop.

Individuals passing the exam would be awarded a certificate of Master of NCAA Rules with names published in The NCAA News. These people should thus have institutional credibility as well as a nice resume item. Perhaps to maintain their certification, the participants have to retake the test every five years.

I think it's important that rules educators have to prove their knowledge; attendance at workshops isn't sufficient proof.

Looking Back

Five years ago

For the first time, a computer was used to randomly select recipients of Final Four tickets. About 1,000 applications for tickets to the 1986 tournament in Dallas—out of 38,000 received—were selected. (The NCAA News, June 12, 1985)

Fifteen years ago

National Collegiate Sports Services, the statistical arm of the NCAA, completed its move from New York City to the national office in Mission, Kansas. NCSS soon was renamed NCAA Statistics Service. (June 15, 1975, NCAA News and "NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Twenty years ago

The NCAA and the U.S. Department of Defense jointly sponsored the first Vietnam tour by NCAA student-athletes. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Thirty years ago

Professional baseball requested and the NCAA Council agreed that a committee be appointed to work out an equitable rule to eliminate the indiscriminate signing of college baseball players. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Kenneth A. Free, commissioner Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference The Atlanta Journal and Constitution

"In addition to the first-round money, the play-in teams (vying for a berth in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship) can split (gate receipts) from that one game.

"If this thing is handled right, each of those teams could make about $40,000 more. What's the most you spend on one game like this, $15,000? There's a chance to really make some money here."

Tom Osborne, head football coach University of Nebraska, Lincoln Knight-Ridder Newspapers

"On the whole (in college athletics), we're doing a better job academically than what the public perception is.

(Coaches are expected to win, but) "on the other hand, we're expected to graduate a very high percentage of our athletes. It's difficult to balance all the things we're being asked to do."

Dennis Green, head football coach Stanford University The Des Moines Register

"I don't see how cutting scholarships or coaching positions enhances the ability of student-athletes to get an education. In fact, it probably will do the opposite."

Robert M. Sweazy, faculty athletics representative Texas Tech University The Dallas Morning News

"I think it's healthy (recommendations by a special advisory committee for distribution of NCAA tournament revenue). I think it will help rid basketball of some of its evils.

"I also caution about getting the formula too complicated. Anytime you get too many variables, there's a way to manipulate the formula usually. I would rather see it simplified than complicated. But I think it basically takes away some of the lure of the pot of gold (in the tournament), and I think that is good."

Warner Alford, director of athletics University of Mississippi Athletic Administration

"I agree that athletes should be integrated fully into the fabric of university life. I think that it is the very uniqueness as athletes, their team spirit, their sense of 'family' and unity—each of which is engendered by living a disciplined life in a dorm of their own, designed to meet their special needs—that makes them contributing citizens and often role models within the greater academic, social and political life of the student body.

"Because universities are much like human beings in that no two are identical, what is right for one may not be right for another.

"My own philosophy has always been and will always be to do what is best for the student-athlete within the imperative guidelines of what our university truly is. Our chancellors, coaches, student-athletes, parents and myself feel that the current system has proven on every front to be best for us.

Kenneth A. Free

Ray Goff

"Therefore, I respectfully request that even though the NCAA perceptions are honorable, the decision as to whether to maintain an athletics dorm should be an institutional decision, not one regulated by the NCAA."

Opinions

Ray Goff, head football coach University of Georgia The Atlanta Journal and Constitution

"I think we might lose control if you have 10 great players and all walk in before spring practice and say they don't want to practice because they want to check out the draft.

"We'd lose all control and unity on our football teams.

"You want to know who's going to be playing for you every year. Those contract negotiations can stretch out until July or August. And if a guy goes and then comes back, maybe he plays to make sure he doesn't get hurt so he can try the draft again next year."

Poll shows public would readily accept I-A football play-off

More than two-thirds of the general public believe a championship play-off would add interest to college football, according to a Gallup poll commissioned by the College Football Association.

While 77 percent of the general public said "yes" to an NCAA play-off, college football fans gave an 84 percent positive response.

Thirty-seven percent of those polled said the current poll system wasn't a fair way to determine a Division I-A national champion.

The Gallup poll disclosed that 98 percent of the college football fans it polled said they would watch a national-championship game on television.

The average age of those polled — 52 percent of whom were women — was 46.8 years, with an average household income of $42,070. The poll showed that those from 25 to 34 years of age make up the largest group of college football fans, 21 percent, the Associated Press reported.

There were some sobering statistics to be pondered by those attending the 14th annual CFA meeting in Dallas June 1-3.

For instance, pro football is more popular than the college version. The Gallup poll showed that 46 percent of the general public polled preferred professional football, to 37 percent for college football.

"That shows we can't afford to stand still," CFA Executive Director Charles M. Neinas said. "The NFL is going for the jugular with its TV packages financially and really has little regard for college football. NFL expansion is a threat. We can't afford to lose our identity or popularity."

"Let's not lose sight of what we have and promote the hell out of it." The poll showed that four of every 10 Americans consider themselves college football fans.

It concluded that 64 percent of the college football fans are men, and 54 percent have some level of education beyond high school, with 35 percent holding college degrees.

Poll respondents indicated that drugs were the top threat to the game.

Fifty-three percent of those surveyed believe that college football players graduate at a rate lower than the average college student. Only 19 percent believe that football players graduate at a higher rate.

The CFA says college football players graduate at a rate higher than the male student population in general.

The Gallup poll was conducted randomly by telephone from last October through January. There were 3,000 respondents. The poll had a sampling error of plus or minus 3.1 percent.

The three-day CFA meeting began with an address by Haskell M. Monroe Jr., chancellor of the University of Missouri, Columbia, who warned that athletics department costs were soaring dramatically.

"I believe the time for action is on us," Monroe said. "If we don't act, someone will, because costs are increasing. Spending is bypassing income."

He said if college athletics reaches the point "where we have only the rich and the poor, then we will lose."

15 leagues recommended for automatic qualification

The Division II Women's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that 15 conferences receive automatic qualification for the 1991 championship and that two states be moved into different regions.

Conferences to be recommended for automatic qualification are the California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Empire State Conference, Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Gulf South Conference, Lone Star Conference, Mideast Collegiate Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-10 Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference and Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

The committee will recommend that South Carolina be realigned from the South region to the South Atlantic region and that Alaska be moved from the North Central region to the West region.

The committee, which met May 29-June 1 in Kansas City, Missouri, also will recommend that all quarterfinal games be played on Saturday. Participants have had the option of playing those games on Friday or Saturday. It was the sense of the committee that this change would provide consistency, eliminate some lost class time and provide all teams with the same amount of rest between regional and quarterfinal competition.

Allegheny's Sullivan to head NCAC

Daniel F. Sullivan, president of Allegheny College, has been elected to a two-year term as president of the North Coast Athletic Conference, effective July 1.

Sullivan, who has been serving as NCAC vice-president, was chosen to succeed David L. Warren, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, by a vote of the presidents of the nine-member NCAA Division III conference.

Agnar Pytte, president of Case Western Reserve University, was elected vice-president.

Elected to two-year terms on the Presidents' Council, the ruling body of the NCAC, were Nan Carney-DeBord, assistant athletics director at Ohio Wesleyan, as chair of the women's athletics directors; and Gordon Collins, psychology professor at The College of Wooster, as chair of the men's faculty representatives. Continuing in their posts on the Presidents' Council are David Hutter, athletics director at Case Reserve, as chair of the men's athletics directors, and Nancy Lowmaster, chemistry professor at Allegheny, as chair of the women's faculty representatives.

The six-year old NCAC, also is composed of the following institutions: Denison University, Earlham College, Kenyon College, Oberlin College and Wittenberg University.

In 1989-90, the NCAC had 43 teams in 16 sports advance or send individuals to NCAA postseason championships.

Lewis, LSU men win

Steve Lewis, the 1988 U.S. Olympic gold medalist in the 400 meters, felt that there was something missing in his portfolio of honors—an NCAA championship.

He took care of that at the Division I Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships, May 30-June 2 at Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium. Lewis won the 400-meter title.

Louisiana State, meanwhile, won its second consecutive team title after going 56 years without winning one. Coupled with the Tigers' women's championship, Louisiana State became the first school to sweep the men's and women's championships in consecutive years.

Lewis, a junior at UCLA, took the lead at the halfway mark of the race and cruised home to win his first Division I title. Lewis was not pleased with his time, but said that his reputation as the Olympic champion helped him win with less than his best effort.

"I'm not in my tip-top shape," he said. "But I felt that this race would have a lot to do with endurance, and I do feel strong. The people in my race expected me to take it out, and that had a lot to do with me being able to play with them."

One sprinter who wasn't playing with anybody was Houston's Leroy Burrell. Burrell continued the Cougars' streak of winning at least one individual outdoor title every year since 1979 by capturing the 100-meter dash in 9.94 seconds. The time was two-hundredths of a second slower than the American record, although it was wind-aided.

"That 10-second barrier is hard to run," Burrell said. "It's been unattainable to thousands of runners. I've been fortunate to realize it three times, twice legally, and I'm looking forward to more opportunities."

Louisiana State is taking advantage of its opportunities lately. Last year, the Tigers were picked to finish around 10th, but surprised the field by winning the meet. They were not going to let the field surprise them this year, when they were the favorites.

Despite having just one individual champion, long jumper Llewellyn Starks, the Tigers outdistanced 1990 indoor champion Arkansas, 44-36. Louisiana State scored points in six different events.

Indiana's Bob Kennedy won the 1,500 meters in 3:40.42—the best mark by a collegian this year. Texas-Arlington's McClinton Neal also accomplished that feat with a 49.23 in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

Edrick Floreal won his third straight title in the triple jump with a jump of 56-6½. The other repeat winner was Texas's Patrik Boden, who won the javelin with a throw of 261-10. Boden established a meet record in the preliminaries with a throw of 265-6.

Tiger women finish team sweep

And the beat goes on.

Louisiana State won its fourth straight team title June 2 at the Division I Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships, which were hosted by Duke. It was the second straight year that the Tigers won the women's as well as the men's championships.

Speaking of repeaters, Suzy Favor won the 800- and 1,500-meter runs, her eighth and ninth individual championships, establishing her as the all-time most-victorious female athlete in NCAA track history. It was the fourth straight title in the 1,500 meters for Favor.

And California's Sheila Hudson not only won her third triple-jump title in the past four years, but she did it in record fashion. Hudson's jump of 46-0¾ surpassed her own meet record of 45-2½ and her American record of 45-5¼. Upon breaking the records, she promptly said, "I'm definitely going for 47 (feet) this year."

"Going for it" seemed to be the rule at the ninth women's championships.

Louisiana State used victories by Esther Jones in the 100- and 200-meter dashes and a triumph in the 400-meter relay to collect enough points to bring a fourth title back to Baton Rouge.

"You don't dream about these kinds of things happening," Tigers coach Pat Henry said. "Last year, the women were supposed to win and they did. The women weren't supposed to win this year and they did."

"The same is true for the men. They weren't supposed to win last year and they did. We were supposed to win this year and they did."

"I won't even comment," he said when asked if the Tigers would "three-peat" next year. "We'll be back, that's all I can tell you."

Henry has been building a coaching dynasty at Louisiana State since taking over the women's program two years ago. The women had won two consecutive titles when Henry, who already coached the men, took over the program. Now, both teams have won two more titles.

A dynasty is what Favor has built for herself at Wisconsin. Besides her four 1,500-meter outdoor titles and her 800-meter title this spring, she has won the mile indoors three times and the 3,000 meters indoors this year. Besides being the first woman to win the same event four straight years, Favor became just the fourth Division I track and field athlete ever to accomplish the feat (Steve Prefontaine won the 5,000 meters from 1970 to 1973, Scott Nielsen won the hammer throw from 1976 to 1979 and Suleiman Nyambui won the 10,000 meters from 1979 to 1982).

"Right now, this is the best one because it was my fastest and my last," Favor said of her meet-record 1,500-meter performance. "The main thing was to win. Running a good time without the pressure to do it was great."

Although there is no official world record in a non-Olympic event, Hudson's triple jump was the fourth best effort ever recorded.

She actually had bettered her own marks with a jump of 45-7¾ three jumps earlier, but gave her best effort on her final jump of her career.

"I knew I could set the record," she said. "I was just trying to put everything together. Now I can celebrate. Now I can relax."

A fourth woman, Tracie Millett of UCLA, also won two events at the championships. She won the shot put with a throw of 53-7 and the discus with a throw of 183-9.

In the final triple jump of her career, California's Sheila Hudson sailed 46-0¾. She set a meet record with the jump, the fourth longest ever recorded.

Arizona State's Gea Johnson took first in the javelin portion of the heptathlon with a throw of 147-5. She went on to win the event by 277 points over second-place DeDe Nathan of Indiana.

Laurretta Miller of George Mason led the way early in the women's 1,500-meter final, but Suzy Favor (right) cruised to victory in a meet-record time of 4:08.26. Favor set the old record (4:09.85) three years ago.

Jacksonville State ends II baseball drought

Jacksonville State never again will have to explain why the Division II baseball crown seemed so elusive.

The Gamecocks won their first Division II Baseball Championship in six tries, overcoming a 6-1 deficit June 2 to defeat Cal State Northridge, 12-8, at Paterson Stadium in Montgomery, Alabama.

Troy State hosted the championship.

Center fielder Merritt Bowden hit a three-run home run that proved to be the game-winner, and Craig Holman held the lead by allowing only two runs in 6 1/3 innings of relief.

"We showed people that we can win the big game," said Bowden, who was named to the all-tournament team. "We won for coach (Rudy) Abbott. We won for the fans. We won for the football and basketball teams that came up short."

Jacksonville State reached the Division II finals in football and the "elite eight" in basketball during the past year but failed to win a national title.

Said Abbott, "I want to dedicate this national championship to all the players who have played for us over the last 21 years. Their winning tradition is what made this possible."

"We've had a lot of great teams. There were several teams over the last 21 years that were just as good as this one, but for one reason or another they were not able to pull out the big prize. I don't want to say that this one is better... but this is the only team that won a championship."

Craig Clayton homered and drove in five runs for Cal State Northridge, but he also gave up five runs, including Bowden's home run in the sixth inning that put the Gamecocks ahead, 9-6.

Said Cal State Northridge coach Bill Kernan, "They came back and did a great job offensively. We couldn't get it stopped."

Holman, who had two wins in the tournament and finished the season 8-0, entered the championship game in the third inning after Clayton's three-run home run gave the Matadors a seemingly comfortable 6-1 lead. He finished the game, allowing only seven hits.

"I told the team to get me the lead and we'll win the ballgame," Holman said. "The key was, when we started scoring runs, I wanted to get three quick outs so we could get back in and hit the ball again."

Jacksonville State placed four players on the all-tournament team, including pitcher Tim Vanegmond, who had one win and two saves and was named the most outstanding player.

In addition to Bowden, right fielder Brian Roberts and third baseman Todd Mixon also were named to the all-tournament team. The rest of the all-tournament team included designated hitter Scott Sharts, left fielder Clayton and shortstop Mike Solar of Cal State Northridge; first baseman Paul Russo and pitcher Sam Militello, Tampa; second baseman Sittichoke Huckuntod of Central Missouri State, and New Haven catcher Ron Perkins.

Craig Holman had two victories in the Division II baseball finals, and he scattered seven hits in 6 1/3 innings in the championship game.

Although it looks like the front end of a double play, this throw from Jacksonville State second baseman Steve Vogt was not in time to get the runner at first. Cal State Northridge shortstop Mike Solar was out at second.

track and field. He previously was a coach at Wesleyan... Howard Jenter named receivers and defensive backs coach at Hiram, where he will step down as head women's basketball coach but will continue to serve as head women's track coach. Jenter is a former football player at Hiram.

Men's ice hockey—Larry Pedrie appointed at Illinois-Chicago, where he was an assistant from 1984 until he joined the staff at Michigan in 1987. Pedrie also has been an aide at Ferris State, his alma mater... Jeff Jackson, who recently was selected as an assistant at Michigan State, will return to his previous employer, Lake Superior State, where he has signed a 10-month contract to serve as head coach. Jackson, who has been an assistant at Lake Superior State the past four seasons, replaces Frank Anzalone, who was dismissed by the school's athletics director as a result of what the AD described as Anzalone's "unhappiness" at the school. Anzalone, who coached the Lakers to a Division I title in 1988, led his teams to a 191-108-22 record at the school, including a 33-10-3 mark last season.

Men's soccer—Gary St. Clair named at San Jose State, where the former goalie still holds the school record for career shutouts that he set during the early 1970s. He previously was head coach for seven seasons at West Valley College in California, where his teams posted a 75-21-14 record and won four community college conference titles. St. Clair succeeds Julius Menendez, a former U.S. Olympic men's soccer coach who stepped down after 36 seasons at San Jose State with a 295-202-41 record... Ralph Ferrigno appointed at Tufts after five years as an aide at Dartmouth. Ferrigno, who also has been an assistant at West Chester, replaces Carl Christensen, who resigned to enter the ministry full-time.

Men's soccer assistant—Lorne Donaldson selected at Regis (Colorado). He has been a player for the Colorado Foxes professional soccer club.

Men's and women's tennis—Dan Holden Jr. appointed at Southern Illinois-

Edwardsville, replacing Russ Morris, who served during the past year as acting head coach. Holden, an assistant at Clemson since 1988 who also has been head women's coach at Texas-Pan American, has served as national-team coach for Tennis Europe Inc.

Men's and women's track and field—Charlie Thomas announced his retirement after 32 years at Texas A&M, where he has coached 101 all-Americans, 22 individual national champions and an Olympic gold medalist. Last year, his men's squad was the runner-up team at the Division I Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships... Li Li selected as men's coach at Mankato State, effective in August. The China native has been assistant men's cross country and track coach at Washington State since 1985. He replaces interim track and field coach Lee Loewen.

Men's and women's track and field assistant—Mark Robichaud named at Chicago, where he also will assist with football.

Women's volleyball—John Corbelli appointed interim head coach at San Jose State, where he has been an assistant for the past five seasons. He will step in for Dick Montgomery, who is taking a one-year leave of absence from the post to develop a master's program in sports management at the school.

STAFF

Fitness center coordinator—Michael J. Wolf, a football center on Penn State's 1986 national-championship team, selected as coordinator for the new campus fitness center at Lehigh, where his duties will include consulting on strength and conditioning with the school's intercollegiate teams.

Sports information directors—Jean Berger stepped down after five years at Wayne State (Nebraska) to become assistant SID at Wichita State, effective July 1.

Kansas State gets $800,000 gift

The football program at Kansas State University has received a gift of more than $800,000 for facility improvements and additions. Jon Wefald, school president, said the gift is part of the university's $100 million Essential Edge campaign.

The gift will finance remodeling and new construction for football offices, locker rooms and weight rooms. The donor has requested anonymity.

The first $200,000 will be used to renovate the lower level of the complex, including locker rooms. Plans also call for a 6,700-square-foot weight-room addition. Work is to begin immediately and to be completed this year.

Kansas State's athletics department plans to raise $15 million during the five-year Essential Edge campaign, which is coordinated by the KSU Foundation, the university's fund-raising arm.

Polk named coach of USA baseball team

Ron Polk, head baseball coach at Mississippi State University, was named June 1 by the United States Baseball Federation as head coach of the USA baseball team for the 1991 Pan American Games in Havana, Cuba.

The U.S. team will try to earn a spot in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain, by finishing as one of the top qualifiers in the Pan Am Games.

USBF officials told the Associated Press that it was expected that a team needed to finish in the top four of the Pan Am Games to earn a berth in the 1992 Olympics.

News Fact File

The Division I Men's Basketball Championship provides 77.7 percent of all NCAA revenues (current fiscal year), and all other championships combined produce 9.7 percent. Thus, 87.4 percent of NCAA revenues come from championships. The next highest income categories are merchandising (2.6 percent) and investments (2.1 percent). Football television assessments represent 1.6 percent of all revenues.

Ron Polk

Team USA did not earn an automatic spot despite its 1988 Olympic gold medal in Seoul, Korea.

In a news conference announcing his selection and the naming of his staff, Polk said the challenge would be great to seek out the top collegiate players in the United States.

He said he would count on the talent-searching abilities of assistants Jerry Kindall of Arizona, Mark Johnson of Texas A&M and Pat McMahon of Old Dominion in the final team selections.

Polk also announced that four regional teams made up of 14 NCAA Division I players and one each from Division II, Division III, NAIA, junior colleges—and in the West region, a California junior college player—would be invited to the November 2-11 USA baseball team national trials.

Polk said in the past the Team USA tryouts involved invitations to 40 approximately players, who then would travel to foreign countries to test their talents. He said this year's tryouts would allow more young players to show their abilities in hopes of earning a spot on Team USA.

Polk's staff then will make its decisions for the team to represent the United States in Havana August 3-18, 1991.

Bulldog infielders among baseball academic all-Americans

Burke Masters and Tom Raffo, infielders for College World Series participant Mississippi State University, were named May 31 to the 1990 GTE academic all-America baseball team.

Masters, a senior third baseman with a 4.000 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in mathematics, and Raffo, a senior first baseman with a 3.400 GPA in general business, are repeaters from last year's first team.

Joe Markulike, a senior shortstop at Bucknell University, was named 1990 GTE academic all-America of the year. With a 3.700 GPA in mechanical engineering, Markulike was the sixth leading hitter in the nation, with a .454 batting average.

Also selected to the first team for the second year in a row was Matt Mieske, a senior outfielder at Western Michigan University. Mieske is an accounting major with a 3.590 GPA.

Chosen as pitcher on the squad was Jeff Bluma, a senior at Wichita State University. A right-hander with a 3.660 GPA in mechanical engineering, Bluma posted a 3-0 record with 32 strikeouts and a 3.74 ERA.

Completing the infield were Tom Mezzanotte of Providence College, who finished in a tie with Raffo at first base, and Harry Brown of Grambling State University, who was chosen at second base. Rounding out the outfield were Todd Dextradeur of Holy Cross College and Mike Randazzo of Seton Hall University. The catcher is Doug Bayles of Evansville University, and the designated hitter is Mike Dermer, Markulike's teammate at Bucknell.

Mezzanotte is a biology/premedicine major with a 3.970 GPA. Brown has a 3.470 GPA in management.

Dextradeur has a 3.510 GPA in physics/premedicine. Randazzo has a 3.540 GPA in finance.

Bayles has a 3.290 GPA in civil engineering. Dermer has a 3.900 GPA in finance.

Sittichoke Huckuntod, a second baseman at Central Missouri State University, was named GTE academic all-America of the year for the college division. The junior has a 3.480 GPA in engineering.

Following are the remainder of the university division team and the college division selections.

NCAA champions earn 10 spots on all-America first teams

Syracuse seniors Paul and Gary Gait have been named first-team Division I United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association all-Americans for the third straight year.

Syracuse, which captured its third consecutive NCAA Division I Men's Lacrosse Championship this year, placed five players on the first team. Defenseman Pat McCabe, a junior, earned first-team honors for the second straight year. Yale, a semifinalist in this year's championship, had three players named to the first team.

Division III champion Hobart, which won its 11th straight title in 1990, placed five players on the USILA's Division III first team. Washington (Maryland), this year's runner-up, also had three players on the first team.

William Miller and Michael DeMaria of Hobart, Tim Hormes of Washington (Maryland), and Bob Martino of Ohio Wesleyan were repeat selections from last year's first team. Miller and Washington (Maryland) goalie Dave Slomkowski are the only juniors on the first team. All the other individuals on that squad are seniors.

The complete teams follow:

Division I

Huskies to visit Tar Heels in 1990 ACC-Big East Challenge

The second year of the ACC-Big East Challenge basketball series will shift primarily to home courts and send Connecticut to North Carolina in the top-seeded game.

Pairings were announced June 5 by Atlantic Coast Conference and Big East Conference officials, who promised to be more sensitive after poor attendance last year at some sites and criticism of the $30 ticket prices.

Four doubleheaders will be played on consecutive nights beginning December 3 with Virginia facing Pittsburgh and Maryland facing Boston College at the Richmond Coliseum.

Subsequent nights feature games at Syracuse's Carrier Dome; the Capital Center in Landover, Maryland, and the Smith Center in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

"I'm sure that was a misprint," Connecticut coach Jim Calhoun told the Associated Press when he learned the Huskies would face North Carolina on the court named after coach Dean Smith.

Jim Calhoun

ins said he had hoped to play in Atlanta's Omni, but knew when Dennis Scott opted for the NBA that the Yellow Jackets wouldn't be picked No. 1 in the ACC. "And not being number one put us on the road," Cremins said.

The Yellow Jackets, seeded fifth, will face St. John's (New York) December 5 at the Capital Center, which also will host Duke and Georgetown.

North Carolina State and Syracuse will play December 4 at the Carrier Dome, as will Clemson and Seton Hall.

Wake Forest will play Villanova to round out the final night in Chapel Hill.

Providence will sit out this year's series in favor of Boston College, which didn't play last year. The Big East and ACC split last year's series, 4-4.

Summer leagues approved

An additional 32 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing to 266 the number that have been certified by the NCAA Council.

Other lists of approved leagues appeared in the April 11, April 18, May 16 and May 30 issues of The NCAA News.

Questions concerning the application process or the requirements for NCAA approval of summer leagues should be directed to Robert A. Burton, legislative assistant, in the NCAA national office.

Following are the 19 men's and 13 women's leagues recently approved for participation.

Men's leagues

Arizona—Metro Phoenix Valley-Wide Pro-Am League, Phoenix; Metro Phoenix Valley-Wide Pro-Am League, Scottsdale. Connecticut—Connecticut Shoot-Out Summer Basketball League, New Haven. Florida—Riverfront Summer Basketball League, Tampa. Illinois—Little Egypt 3-on-3 Shootout, Benton; Hersey Hawkins Coca-Cola Summer Basketball League, East Peoria.

Maryland—Annapolis Recreation Department Summer Basketball League, Annapolis. Michigan—Metro Amateur Sports, Detroit. Nebraska—ITI Summer League, Omaha. Nevada—Reno Family YMCA Adult Summer League, Reno. New Jersey—Orange Recreation College League, Orange. New York—Chemung County YMCA Summer Men's Basketball League, Elmira.

Ohio—All-American 3-on-3, Middletown. Pennsylvania—Union Township Men's Summer Basketball League, New Castle; Connie Hawkins Summer Basketball League, Pittsburgh. South Carolina—Cleveland Street YMCA Summer Basketball League, Greenville. Texas—Lubbock Dr. Pepper BCI Summer League 1990, Lubbock; San Antonio College Development League, San Antonio. Wisconsin—Riponfest 3-on-3 Tournament, Ripon.

Women's leagues

Arizona—Metro Phoenix Valley-Wide Pro-Am League, Phoenix; Metro Phoenix Valley-Wide Pro-Am League, Scottsdale. Florida—City of Hallandale Parks and Recreation Summer Basketball League, Hallandale; Riverfront Summer Basketball League, Tampa. Illinois—Little Egypt 3-on-3 Shootout, Benton. Massachusetts—Women's Suburban Summer Basketball League, Easton. Michigan—Metro Amateur Sports, Detroit.

Missouri—Old Ladies' League, St. Louis. New York—Chemung County YMCA, Elmira. Ohio—Chagrin Valley Summer Girls'

Basketball League, Chesterland. Pennsylvania—Lehigh Valley Adult Women's Basketball League, Bethlehem; Peggy McLaughlin Open Division of Top Cagers Girl's Summer League, Turtle Creek. Texas—San Antonio College Development League, San Antonio.

"The Big East-ACC Challenge is now making, in some way forcing, schools to play tough early-season games," Calhoun said. "Not that I necessarily want to visit Dean in a building named after him. That really tells me everything I need to know."

Connecticut had been hoping to play Duke after the Blue Devils beat the Huskies in this year's NCAA tournament.

ACC Commissioner Eugene F. Corrigan said ticket prices still were being negotiated and would depend on what arena managers felt the market could support.

ABC gets Valvano

Jim Valvano, former head men's basketball coach at North Carolina State University, has agreed to a three-year deal with ABC for a reported $900,000.

Dennis Swanson, the president of ABC Sports, said Valvano will be teamed on basketball telecasts with Brent Musburger. Keith Jackson and Dick Vitale will be the other team for ABC, which will carry college basketball on 11 weekends next season.

"I understand more than most analysts what is going on in college basketball today," Valvano said. "I feel very comfortable in not just talking about a pick and roll and making a comical comment."

Clemson's football program placed on one-year probation

The NCAA Committee on Infractions placed Clemson University's football program on probation May 31 for one year for violations of NCAA legislation. The terms of the probation include:

- Prior to the end of its probationary period, the university shall report in writing the actions it has taken to ensure that its intercollegiate athletics program in general and its football program in particular are in full compliance with NCAA legislation.

- The university shall be required to show cause why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it does not disassociate a representative of its athletics interests who was involved in a violation found in this case.

The Committee on Infractions found that on at least two occasions during the fall of 1985, one student-athlete received and distributed cash payments ranging between $50 and $70 to another student-athlete under circumstances that the university acknowledged as a violation and for which it accepted responsibility. In addition, the committee found that in the spring of 1987, the same student-athlete who received the foregoing payments received an additional $50 cash payment from a representative of the institution's athletics interests. The committee also found several secondary violations.

The committee determined that the cash payments constituted major violations of NCAA legislation. Because these major violations occurred after September 1, 1985, the committee's findings normally would subject the institution to minimum penalties prescribed by the NCAA membership. Such penalties would include a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year, possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, and the loss of post-season competition and television opportunities for one year.

The NCAA membership has, though, given the committee the authority to impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is unique. The committee concluded that this case was unique because of the following mitigating factors:

- The case involved only two major violations, together with several secondary violations that were not argued to amount to a major violation. The major violations were somewhat limited in nature, and no pattern of cash payments was established.

- The committee determined that the major violations did not, in and of themselves, demonstrate a lack of institutional control and were violations that otherwise could have occurred in a program that was operating in accordance with NCAA legislation.

- The university presented evidence of its efforts to improve institutional control since its last appearance before the committee (1982), including the implementation of record-keeping and monitoring controls and rules-education programs for its staff and representatives of the institution's athletics interests.

- The institution was instrumental in identifying and producing the former student-athlete who received cash payments and whom the enforcement staff regarded as critical to the case.

As a result of these mitigating circumstances, the committee imposed penalties that differed from the list of minimum penalties set forth in NCAA legislation. The committee noted, however, that this case is major in nature, and the university will be considered a repeat major violator if any major violation is found within the five-year period following the effective date of the penalties in this case.

Members of the Committee on Infractions are Roy F. Kramer, commissioner of the Southeastern Conference; Beverly E. Ledbetter, vice-president and general counsel at Brown University; John E. Nowak, professor of law at the University of Illinois, Champaign; Patricia A. O'Hara, associate professor of law at the University of Notre Dame; Milton R. Schroeder, professor of law at Arizona State University, and D. Alan Williams (committee chair), associate professor of history at the University of Virginia, who excused himself from consideration of this case because Virginia, like Clemson, is a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Mr. Schroeder served as acting chair in this case.

The complete report from the Committee on Infractions follows.

I. Introduction.

On January 27, 1987, the NCAA enforcement staff received a telephone call from an anonymous informant who provided information regarding possible violations of NCAA legislation occurring in the football program at Clemson University. This individual was interviewed in person by the enforcement staff June 9, 1988, and reported specific information regarding the provision of extra benefits to enrolled student-athletes in the football program.

On January 6, 1988, the enforcement staff received a telephone call from a second informant. This individual also provided information regarding possible violations of NCAA legislation occurring in the Clemson football program. In addition, on March 17, 1988, the enforcement staff interviewed a third individual who furnished information about possible violations of NCAA legislation occurring in the Clemson football program.

As a result of the information provided by these three sources, the enforcement staff conducted numerous additional interviews. On August 23, 1989, a letter of preliminary inquiry was sent to President Max Lennon. On January 4, 1990, a letter of official inquiry was issued. The university submitted its response to the official inquiry March 16, 1990, and a prehearing conference was held with university representatives in Overland Park, Kansas, March 27, 1990.

On April 20, 1990, the Committee on Infractions met with institutional representatives to consider the nature of the violations in this case and the NCAA penalties, if any, that should be imposed upon the institution. Although not named in any of the allegations in the official inquiry, a former head football coach accepted an invitation to be present at the hearing and appeared along with legal counsel.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the committee deliberated in private, made the findings that are set forth in Part II of this report and imposed the penalties described in Part III of this report. Committee member Patricia A. O'Hara did not participate in the committee's deliberations on Allegation Nos. 10 and 11 of the official inquiry, which were not found by the committee.

This case reached the committee in a somewhat unusual posture. By the time of the hearing, there were significant changes in the allegations originally submitted to the university in the official inquiry, which resulted from stipulations by the enforcement staff and university representatives at the prehearing conference. Thus, the case presented to the committee for hearing consisted of two allegations that involved major violations of a somewhat limited nature and a number of allegations related to secondary violations, which were not argued to be repeated secondary violations that should be considered major.

In brief, the committee found that on at least two occasions during the fall of 1985, one student-athlete in the sport of football received and distributed cash payments ranging between $50 and $70 to another student-athlete in the sport of football under circumstances that the university acknowledged as a violation and for which the university accepted responsibility. In addition, the committee found that in the spring of 1987, the same student-athlete who received the foregoing payments received an additional $50 cash payment from a representative of the university's athletics interests.

Finally, the committee found several secondary violations, including a violation concerning the length of official visits; an illegal recruiting contact by a representative of the university's athletics interests; two instances in which student hosts furnished souvenir items to recruits during official visits, and several instances of members of the athletics department staff providing impermissible local automobile transportation and, on one occasion, arranging a meal for a prospective student-athlete who was attending a session of the university's summer football camp.

The committee determined that the three instances of cash payments to an enrolled student-athlete in the sport of football constituted major violations of NCAA legislation. Because these violations occurred after September 1, 1985, the committee's findings normally would subject the institution to minimum prescribed penalties, which would include a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for at least one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for at least one year, possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, the loss of postseason competition and television appearance opportunities for at least one year, and institutional recertification of compliance. Under the terms of the NCAA legislation that establishes minimum penalties for a major rules violation, however, the Committee on Infractions may impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is unique.

Ordinarily, unique circumstances that justify relief from the Association's mandatory penalties include factors such as prompt detection of violations; investigating and reporting violations to the NCAA; cooperating in the processing of the case, and initiating strong corrective and disciplinary measures before action by the committee. The committee gives great weight to such institutional actions in deciding the extent to which a case presents unique circumstances. Other circumstances, although not as significant as these institutional measures, also may warrant viewing a major case as unique for some purposes.

Three factors led the committee to find that this case was unique to some degree and to impose penalties that differed from the list of minimum penalties set forth in NCAA legislation. First, as mentioned previously, the case presented to the committee for hearing consisted of only two major violations involving three limited cash payments to an enrolled student-athlete, together with several secondary violations that were not argued to amount to a major violation. Absolutely no evidence of any other violation was presented to the committee. The two major violations were somewhat limited in nature, and no pattern of cash payments to enrolled student-athletes was established. Secondly, the major violations that were established do not, in and of themselves, demonstrate a lack of institutional control under the circumstances found in this case and were violations that otherwise could have occurred in a program that was operating in accordance with NCAA legislation. The university presented evidence of its efforts to improve institutional control since its last appearance before this committee in 1982 and pointed to the implementation of record-keeping and monitoring controls, as well as rules-education programs for members of its staff and representatives of the institution's athletics interests. The enforcement staff did not challenge any of this evidence, and there was no countervailing evidence adduced at the hearing. Thirdly, the university was instrumental in identifying and producing the former student-athlete who was the recipient of the cash payments involved in Parts II-A and II-B of this report and whom the enforcement staff regarded as critical to the case.

As described in Part III of this report, the university was placed on probation for a period of one year and ordered to show cause why the institution should not be further disciplined if the representative of the university's athletics interests involved in Part II-B of this report is not disassociated for the period of the institution's probation. It should be emphasized that this is a major infractions case under the provisions of Bylaw 19.4.2.2, and the institution shall be considered a repeat violator if any major violation is found within the five-year period following the starting date of the penalties in this case.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.3] On at least two occasions during the fall of 1985, a student-athlete received and distributed cash payments of between $50 and $70 to a selected member of the university's intercollegiate football team; further, at the hearing, the university admitted that given the circumstances surrounding the payments, a violation had occurred, and the university accepted responsibility for it. Specifically, during the fall of 1985, at the time the university's intercollegiate football team was participating in the 1985 Independence Bowl football game, the student-athlete gave an undetermined amount of cash to another student-athlete in the young man's motel room in Shreveport, Louisiana; further, on one other occasion during the fall of 1985, the first student-athlete gave an undetermined amount of cash to the second student-athlete for the young man's personal use.

B. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.3] On one occasion in the spring of 1987, a representative of the university's athletics interests gave $50 cash to a student-athlete for his personal use. Specifically, the representative gave $50 to the young man on the university's football practice field at the conclusion of an intrasquad football scrimmage.

C. [NCAA Bylaw 13.6.2] In November 1985, following the official paid visit to the university's campus of a prospective student-athlete, the young man was permitted to use the airline ticket provided by the university to return home, even though the young man remained on the university's campus for one night after the permissible 48-hour period.

D. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.2.1 and 13.1.3.5-(c)] During the summer of 1987, a representative of the university's athletics interests personally contacted a prospective student-athlete off campus for recruiting purposes at the young man's home during a period in which an in-person recruiting contact was not permissible.

E. [NCAA Bylaw 13.2.2] During the fall of 1987, while a prospective student-athlete was making his official paid visit to the university's campus, a member of the university's Bengal Babes organization provided a hooded sweat shirt and T-shirt to the prospect at no cost to the young man.

F. [NCAA Bylaws 13.1.2.1, 13.4.1 and 13.5.1] During the summer of 1986, while a prospective student-athlete was attending a session of the university's summer football camp, the assistant director of athletics arranged for a representative of the university's athletics interests to provide local automobile transportation to the young man; further, the representative entertained the prospect for a meal at no cost to the young man.

G. [NCAA Bylaws 13.4.1 and 13.5.1] On two occasions during the summer of 1987, while a prospective student-athlete was attending a session of the university's summer football camp, an assistant football coach and the assistant director of athletics provided local automobile transportation to the prospect at no cost to the young man.

H. [NCAA Bylaw 13.2.2] During the 1987-88 academic year, while a prospective student-athlete was making his official paid visit to the university's campus, the young man's student host purchased a hat for the young man at a local souvenir store at a cost of approximately $6.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

For the reasons set forth in Part I of this report, the Committee on Infractions has found that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation that are set forth in Part II of this report. Because this case involves major infractions of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985, NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted by the Convention of the Association, requires, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," minimum penalties that shall include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic, in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

The Committee on Infractions determined that this case was a unique case in which the institution should receive penalties that differ from the full set of minimum penalties otherwise required by NCAA legislation. The committee has determined that certain mitigating factors support the finding that this case is unique. These mitigating factors include the following:

- The case presented to the committee for hearing consisted of only two major violations, involving three instances of cash payments to an enrolled student-athlete, together with several secondary violations that were not argued to amount to a major violation. The two major violations were somewhat limited in nature, and no pattern of cash payments to enrolled student-athletes was established. Absolutely no evidence of any other violation was presented to the committee.

- The major violations that were established do not, in and of themselves, demonstrate a lack of institutional control under the circumstances found in this case and were violations that otherwise could have occurred in a program that was operating in accordance with NCAA legislation. The university presented evidence of its efforts to improve institutional control since its last appearance before this committee in 1982 and pointed to the implementation of record-keeping and monitoring controls, as well as rules-education programs for members of its staff and representatives of the institution's athletics interests. The enforcement staff did not challenge any of this evidence, and there was no countervailing evidence adduced at the hearing.

- The university was instrumental in identifying and producing the former student-athlete who was the recipient of the cash payments involved in Parts II-A and II-B of this report and whom the enforcement staff regarded as critical to the case.

Accordingly, the penalties imposed in this case by the Committee on Infractions are as follows:

A. The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of one year from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal, it being understood that should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Further, Clemson University shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. Prior to the end of its probationary period, the university shall report in writing to the NCAA enforcement staff and to the Committee on Infractions the actions the university has taken to ensure that its intercollegiate athletics program in general and its football program in particular are in full compliance with NCAA legislation.

C. The institution shall be required to show cause why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it does not disassociate (in accordance with Bylaw 19.4.2.6) one of the representatives of its athletics interests who was involved in a violation found in this case [reference: Part II-B of this report].

[Note: Should Clemson University appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided

Pitcher, infielder top academic all-America softball teams

Stefni Whitton, a pitcher for Southwestern Louisiana who was named to the National Softball Coaches Association all-America team, and Millikin first baseman Denise Fogle head the 1990 GTE academic all-America softball teams in the university and college divisions announced June 4.

Whitton, a marketing major with a 3.200 grade-point average (4.000 scale) who comes from Friendswood, Texas, and Fogle, a computer science major with a 4.000 GPA who lives in Montgomery, Illinois, were named the 1990 GTE academic all-Americans of the year. Fogle was awarded that honor for the second straight year.

A senior who owns virtually every Southwestern Louisiana pitching mark, Whitton posted a 21-4 record with an 0.28 earned-run average this past season. She also has thrown 116 shutouts and struck out 160 batters. Fogle, a junior, batted .383 and drove in 28 runs in 1990.

Rounding out the university division first team were Julie Sexton, a catcher for Northern Illinois and physical education major with a 3.690 GPA; Chinazo Opiya, a first baseman for Northwestern and psychology major with a 3.510 GPA; Connie Fiems, a second baseman for Indiana State and sports studies major with a 3.680 GPA; Melissa Sickmann, a third baseman for St. Louis and business administration major with a 4.000 GPA, and Cheryl Venorsky, a shortstop for Southern Illinois and administration of justice major with a 3.720 GPA.

Also selected were outfielders Jennifer Condon of Iowa State, a physical education major with a 3.720 GPA; Angie Fruits of Indiana State, a premedicine major with a 3.790 GPA, and Jill Rishel of Nebraska, a broadcasting major with a 3.630 GPA.

The designated hitter is Kathy Mohr of Towson State, a speech pathology major with a 3.320 GPA.

Following are the remainder of the university division team and the complete college division team.

to the institution prior to the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.

Also, the Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed; further, the committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case, and finally, should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.]

Mississippi College football coach John Williams joined members of his team recently for some clean-up work on land adjoining a shopping center in Clinton, Mississippi. Their efforts were part of a city-wide beautification project. "We wanted to help clean up an area that would require a lot of manpower, and this area certainly fit the bill," Williams said.

Members of the 1989 Division II champion Mississippi College football team pitched in to help with a beautification project in the city of Clinton, Mississippi. Players, coaches and football-team support personnel took part as a way to thank the community for the support the Choctaws received on their way to a first-ever NCAA team championship. "Our players are proud of the national championship," said coach John Williams, "but they also are proud to be a part of the Clinton community."

SWC-Big Eight merger topic of informal talks

Southwest Athletic Conference delegates, amid rumors that the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, may join the Southeastern Conference, called a meeting at the College Football Association's annual meeting and discussed a contingency plan involving expansion of the SWC to 16 or 17 teams.

SWC officials discussed the "Big Southwest," an alliance with the Big Eight Conference, The Dallas Morning News reported.

Together, the leagues would account for about 15 percent of the nation's television sets and 31 million people.

SWC President James Vick, faculty athletics representative at the University of Texas, Austin, would not confirm that an SWC-Big Eight alliance was discussed at the meeting June 2. But a league source said it was, the Morning News reported.

"Everybody is concerned about the health of the conference," Vick said.

A Big Eight-Southwest Conference alliance could be a lure to keep Texas and Texas A&M University if Arkansas decided to leave for the SEC.

Texas has expressed concern that the SWC would be severely weakened without the Razorbacks, who have said they would listen to overtures from the SEC.

In conjunction with the reported expansion plans of the SEC, Charles Cavagnaro, director of athletics at Memphis State University, said if the SEC decides to expand by four teams, his school would be a good candidate and could offer the SEC the 34th largest television market in the country.

Soccer popularity high with those under age 18

According to a release from the Soccer Industry Council of America, 15.3 million Americans over the age of six played soccer at least once during 1989. The council's latest national soccer participation survey indicates the sport ranks third overall in team-sport popularity in the under-18 age group.

Trivia Time: According to the survey mentioned above, basketball is one of the two sports more popular than soccer with those 18 and under. What is the other? Answer later.

From Angel Raponi in the University of Dayton sports information office:

"The University of Dayton's graduation is one of the earliest, if not the earliest, in the country. This year's commencement exercises took place Sunday, April 29.

"One of our graduates was Ray Springer, a basketball player... we believe was the first Proposition 48 student to graduate. Let us know if we are correct."

Central College (Iowa) football coach Ron Schipper and 51 of his players currently are touring England for a series of clinics and games against club teams. They left May 30 and will return June 14.

This is Schipper's third trip to the U.K. "The biggest difference between football in America and England is the commitment doesn't exist there yet," he said. "It's a social outing."

On its way to the final of the 1990 Division III Baseball Championship against Eastern Connecticut State University, Aurora University's baseball team was involved in what has to be one of the latest college baseball games ever played. Because of rain delays, the Spartans' game against North Carolina Wesleyan University didn't start until 10:55 p.m. May 25. It ended at 2:19 the next morning.

By winning the Southeastern Conference's men's and women's all-sports crown last year, the University of Georgia edged the University of Florida for the SEC's men's and women's all-sports crown for the decade of the 1980s. For the decade, Georgia piled up 969.5 total points, while Florida finished with 945.

Matt Hudik, who played baseball for only two seasons at Ohio University after transferring from Lakeland Community College, broke or tied seven Bobcat records during his abbreviated stay. "I wish I had two more years here," Hudik said recently. "Coach (Joe) Carbone helped me a lot with technique corrections, helped me as a person and showed me what discipline was."

Raycom Management Group has scheduled professional-development seminars for college football and basketball coaches this summer. Both events will be held at the Doubletree Hotel in Nashville.

The football seminar is scheduled for July 8-11, and the basketball seminar is set for August 15-20. Registration fee for either event is $195.

Bethany College (West Virginia) officials have named Jamie Hamm and Robin Sayre winners of the Hanna Award, given annually to the school's top student-athletes. The award is named in memory of William H. Hanna Jr., a 1937 Bethany graduate who played and coached football at the school.

Hamm earned letters in football and men's golf at the school, and he

League to use three officials

North Star Conference officials have agreed to experiment with three-person officiating crews during three preseason women's basketball tournaments next fall. Three-official crews will work games in the Coopers and Lybrand Invitational, sponsored by DePaul University (November 24-25, 1990); the Fast Break Fest, hosted by Northern Illinois University (December 1-2, 1990), and the Days Inn Phoenix Classic, hosted by the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay (December 7-8, 1990).

"We are eagerly anticipating this experiment," said North Star Commissioner Arnold D. Fielkow. "We believe that the use of the three-person crews will provide a good reading as to whether this format is beneficial to the game of women's basketball and whether it is a format that might be mandated in future years."

NCAA Visitors Center cited

During a May 17 luncheon in recognition of National Tourism Week, NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz received a Travel Industry Award from the city of Overland Park, Kansas. Wendell Lady, chair of the city's convention and visitor's bureau, told a crowd in excess of 300 that the NCAA was being honored "for contributing significantly to travel and tourism in Overland Park" through construction of the NCAA Visitors Center, which is scheduled to open next September. Featured speaker at the luncheon was Rockwell A. Schnabel, former U.S. Ambassador to Finland who now serves as Undersecretary of Commerce for Travel and Tourism.

Women's lacrosse coaches are honored

Carole Kleinfelder of Harvard University (Division I), Barbara Waltman of Millersville University of Pennsylvania (Division II) and Tracy Coyne of Roanoke College (Division III) have been named coaches of the year by the Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Coaches Association. Selections were announced May 25 by the IWLCA.

Kleinfelder led the Crimson to a 15-0 overall record and the 1990 National Collegiate championship.

Harvard, undefeated in four straight years of conference play, also won the 1990 Ivy Group title. Kleinfelder finished her 12th year at Harvard with a 152-49-3 overall record and a 64-1 record in league play.

Waltman earned her third consecutive coach-of-the-year award, as Millersville finished the season 12-2.

The Marauders won their third consecutive Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference title after posting a 6-0 conference record.

Waltman finished her 12th year with a 93-47-2 overall record.

Coyne, in her first year at Roanoke College, led the Maroons to an 18-1 record and the Division III semifinals.

Roanoke won the Old Dominion Athletic Conference title after posting a 7-0 league record.

In three years as a head coach, Coyne has a 39-7 overall record.

Guilford set to join the ODAC

Guilford College will become a member of the Old Dominion Athletic Conference in September. The Quakers will play a partial schedule within the conference in all sports during their initial season while making arrangements with other members to be fully scheduled in all sports for the 1991-92 school year.

Guilford will become the 14th conference member. The ODAC sponsors championships in 20 sports. All 12 of the Quakers' men's and women's athletics teams will participate in the conference.

Guilford's conference affiliation coincides with the school's September 1 date for becoming an NCAA Division III member. "We are pleased that we received such a positive response from the presidents and athletics directors in the Old Dominion Athletic Conference," said J. Phillip Roach, Guilford president. "This step concludes a period of restructuring that will enable us to compete against schools that have similar philosophies regarding student-athletes."
