

Third option added to financial aid recommendations

The Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure has developed recommendations for three options that a Division I institution can choose to satisfy proposed minimum financial aid requirements.

The recommendations, which were developed during the special committee's June 5 meeting in Dallas, will be presented to the NCAA Council at its August 1-3 meeting and will become part of the committee's full report on membership-structure issues.

In its preliminary report, which was presented to the Council in April, the special committee had developed two options, both of which have been incorporated in the latest recommendations.

First option

Under the first option in the final recommendations, a Division I institution would have to award a minimum of 50 percent of the maximum allowable grants in each of seven sports for men and seven for women (if the minimum sports-sponsorship requirement increase were adopted) or a minimum of 60 percent of the allowable grants in each of six sports for men and six for women (if the current sponsorship requirement for all subdivisions of Division I except I-A remains).

Those institutions that use the sports of indoor track, outdoor track and cross country to meet the minimum financial aid criteria would be required to award the equivalent of at least 12 full grants for men and 13 full grants for women in these sports.

If an institution counts two of the three sports, it would have to award at least 10 full grants for men and 11 for women; and if indoor track or outdoor track is counted as one sport, an institution using the sport to meet minimum financial aid requirements would have to count the equivalent of at least seven full grants for men and eight for women.

If a Division I institution uses only cross country of the three to meet the minimum financial aid criteria, it would be permitted to award a maximum of five full grants for both men and women.

Second option

The second option permits a minimum aggregate expenditure of $250,000 for financial aid in men's sports and $250,000 in women's sports, exclusive of grants awarded in football and men's and women's basketball, provided the aggregate is not less than the equivalent of 19 full grants for men and 19 for women.

If men's basketball is not offered at an institution, the minimum aggregate expenditure must be

Division I athletes are graduating at higher rate than student body

Student-athletes at NCAA Division I member institutions graduated at a higher rate than the general student body over a five-year period ending in September 1988, according to data compiled by the NCAA research staff.

The graduation rate for student-athletes was 47.4, compared to 47.2 for the student body as a whole. The 1989 Academic Reporting Compilation prepared by the research staff includes 289 Division I schools.

The 1988 graduation rate for those students who entered college in 1983 declined in both categories compared to the 1981-to-1986 class, which had graduation rates of 50 percent for student-athletes and 47.3 for the student body.

The NCAA research staff attributes the decline to the rising cost of education and to the fact that many baccalaureate programs now require six years of study.

Todd A. Petr, NCAA assistant director of research, said the rates for both groups have been declining since the NCAA began compiling data in 1986.

However, Petr said it has been a consistent finding that the graduation rate for student-athletes has been higher than that of the student body.

The charts on page 12 show the graduation rates for Division I schools by region and by sport. Another chart also shows the median high school grade-point averages and median scores on the SAT and ACT for freshmen entering Division I schools in 1988-89.

The four geographical regions used in the charts are Region 1—Northeastern (Districts 1 and 2), Region 2—Southern (District 3), Region 3—Midwestern (Districts 4 and 5) and Region 4—Western (Districts 6, 7 and 8).

Of the three subdivisions of Division I, Division I-A was the only one of the three in which the student-athlete graduation rate was lower than that of the student body (44 percent to 49). Division I-AAA had the highest student-athlete graduation rate at 54.9 percent.

"The NCAA uses a very strict definition of graduation," Petr said. The graduation-rate formula is dictated by the provisions of Bylaw 30.1. The legislation was adopted in 1985 to provide a means by which an institution's CEO could compare the academic records, performance and graduation rates of student-athletes with students generally at his or her institution and with other institutions within Division I.

In the charts on page 12 showing graduation rates and adjusted graduation rates, the NCAA's formula for determining graduation rates is to divide the number of students who graduated in 1988 by the number of students who entered in 1983 and multiply that figure by 100 to determine institutional percentage. The median percentage of all institutions in the group is then reported.

To achieve an adjusted graduation rate, the same formula is followed, except those students who left the institution in good academic standing and those whose enrollment continues are not counted. Students who transfer into the class are counted.

"Student-athletes who compete for four years and turn pro and leave the institution in good academic standing do not have to be counted by the institution," Petr said.

Division I-A public schools showed a median graduation rate of 25 percent for men's basketball athletes and an adjusted graduation rate of 40 percent. At private Division I-A schools, the rates were 33.3 and 66.7.

In Division I-A football, the rates at public schools were 34.6 and 54.8

New process speeds up decisions in membership's eligibility cases

For many years, the NCAA process for eligibility-restoration appeals was time consuming and inconvenient for all parties involved.

Then, at the Association's 1987 Convention, the eligibility staff was empowered for the first time to act on appeals in eligibility cases instead of the Eligibility Committee having to handle all appeals cases.

Since that time, approximately 1,400 eligibility-restoration appeals have been received from the membership. Only 36 rulings in those cases have been appealed to the Eligibility Committee, and in all but about a dozen of those cases, the Eligibility Committee has upheld decisions by Director of Eligibility Janet M. Justus and her staff of two eligibility representatives and one intern.

Before the change in the process, an eligibility appeal might have gone something like this, according to Robert A. Oliver, chair of the Eligibility Committee:

It is Christmas Eve and a school discovers a violation of an NCAA rule that results in one of its basketball players losing his eligibility just before a Christmas tournament.

The school decides that circumstances warrant an appeal for restoration of the player's eligibility.

The Eligibility Committee is notified. Then, all members must be rounded up on the holiday eve to participate in a telephone conference to hear the appeal. Meanwhile, the player waits anxiously to find out if he will be able to play.

The foregoing might be an unusual example, but it indicates the problems that could be encountered, and often were, when the Eligibility Committee handled all appeals during a weekly telephone conference.

Now, if a basketball player were to lose his eligibility in a similar situation, one call to Justus at the national office and the use of a facsimile machine for a written appeal very likely would settle the matter on the spot.

However, if a school disagrees with a ruling by the eligibility staff, an appeal can be made to the 11-member Eligibility Committee, which has subcommittees to deal with each division's cases.

If an Eligibility Committee deci-

House approves bill on graduation rates

H.R. 1454, known as the "Student Right-to-Know and Campus Security Act," was passed by the U.S. House of Representatives on a voice vote June 5, setting up a possible conference between the House and Senate to reconcile their differing versions of the bill.

The version of the bill passed by the House covers a number of subjects in addition to the reporting of student graduation rates—the purpose of the original proposed legislation drafted by Reps. Tom McMillen, D-Maryland, and Ed Towns, D-New York.

Described during House debate as "a consumer rights bill,"

H.R. 1454 would require disclosure by colleges and universities of their revenues and expenses, athletics-related revenues and expenses, student graduation rates defined in at least two different ways, student-athlete graduation rates, campus security policies and law enforcement, campus crime statistics, and policies related to alcohol and illegal drugs.

Earlier this year, the Senate passed S. 695, known as the "Student-Athlete Right-to-Know Act," which addresses only graduation-rate disclosure and contains none of the additional disclosure requirements contained in H.R. 1454. The two bills must be reconciled before legislation can be finally adopted and sent to President Bush.

The House's version of the bill was summarized in detail in the May 30 issue of The NCAA News.

One of the supporters of H.R. 1454, Rep. William Goodling, R-Pennsylvania, described the proposal as "a consumer rights bill" that "provides students with information that will assist them in making decisions concerning college attendance and... information they need to protect themselves against becoming crime victims."

However, much of the floor debate focused on provisions of the bill dealing with intercollegiate athletics, according to the Associated Press.

Student-athletes have a right to know whether a school will treat them "as chattel properties" or as genuine students in need of preparation for life beyond the playing field, argued Rep. Paul Henry, R-Michigan.

"Sports are the top public relations vehicle for many colleges and universities," he said. "Thus, fielding winning teams becomes to a very large extent the consuming purpose $350,000 for men (and the same for women if women's basketball is not offered), but in no case fewer than 29 full grants for men (or 29 for women).

The special committee also recommended a built-in inflation procedure for the second option. The minimum figure would be adjusted annually by the Council based on changes in average national tuition charges for regionally accredited institutions and would be announced in the fall of each year for the school year beginning the following fall.

Third option

The third option available to Division I institutions under the recommendations from the special committee would be to award a minimum of the equivalent of 25 full grants in men's sports and 25 full grants in women's sports, exclusive of grants awarded in football and men's and women's basketball. If basketball is not offered, the minimum would be increased to 35 for each.

Also, the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure developed a definition of financial aid that can be used to meet the minimum requirements, noting that an institution would be able to count only "athletics department" aid.

A financial aid subcommittee was authorized to review all available information and submit its recommendations to the Council regarding interpretations of the special committee's proposed financial aid legislation, specifically the definition of athletically related aid in meeting the proposed legislation.

News Fact File

The NCAA "recognizes" 21 sports—those in which the Association conducts national championships. The non-NCAA sport with the highest sponsorship as a varsity sport is crew for women, sponsored in 1988-89 by 39 institutions. Next are men's crew, 35 institutions; men's squash, 18, and women's squash, 14.

of athletics programs. The better the team, the better the exposure, regardless of the cost."

Towns told the House that graduation-rate reporting requirements adopted by the NCAA at its 1990 Convention are "too limited," singling out only football and basketball and combining all others.

"Other sports must be covered as well," he said.

A major difference between the Senate and House versions of the bill is that the Senate version requires the reporting of graduation-rate data for football, basketball and all other sports combined, while the House version requires a breakdown of data for three additional sports—baseball, track/cross country and ice hockey.

Reporting requirements adopted by the NCAA appear to be substantially comparable to the requirements adopted by the Senate. But the House Committee on Education and Labor, in a report to the full House last week on H.R. 1454, specifically rejected the suggestion that the NCAA's requirements are substantially comparable to the House's proposed requirements.

The distinction is important, because the proposed legislation permits the Secretary of Education to waive the requirements of the act for any institution that is a member of an athletics association or conference that voluntarily publishes graduation-rate data deemed substantially comparable to the information required by the act.

Guidelines issued for providing financial aid for summer school

The NCAA legislative services department, in response to membership requests for clarification of Proposal No. 32 as adopted by the 1990 Convention, has provided the following information concerning implementation of the legislation regarding financial aid for student-athletes to attend summer school prior to their initial enrollment:

"Member institutions should note that with the adoption of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 32, a member institution may award summer financial aid to an incoming student-athlete prior to initial enrollment to attend the institution's summer term, summer school or summer orientation, provided: (1) the recipient is admitted to the awarding member institution in accordance with the regular, published entrance requirements; (2) the recipient is subject to NCAA transfer provisions (if the student-athlete was recruited by the institution) pursuant to NCAA Bylaw 14.6.2-(h); (3) during the summer term or orientation period, the recipient may not engage in any athletics practice activities (pursuant to Bylaw 17.02.11), and (4) the awarding institution certifies in writing that the student's financial aid was granted without regard in any degree to athletics ability. The written certification must be on file in the office of the director of athletics and must be signed by the faculty athletics representative and the director of financial aid.

"The NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed Convention Proposal No. 32 during its January 10 and February 1, 1990, conferences, and determined that summer-school financial aid awarded in accordance with Convention Proposal No. 32 would be available only to student-athletes enrolling in collegiate institutions for the first time and, accordingly, would not be available to junior college and four-year college transfer student-athletes. In addition, the committee confirmed that a partial qualifier or nonqualifier in Division I would be permitted to receive financial aid for summer school preceding the freshman year.

"Finally, the NCAA Council adopted (at its April 23-25 meeting) the following positions concerning permissible sources from which such financial assistance could be received:

"Funds could be made available for use by student-athletes under the terms of this legislation if those funds are derived from institutional sources that are available on the same basis for student-athletes and students generally and provided that the methodology for determining recipients of such assistance is the same for students and student-athletes.

"No institutional funds (from athletics or any other source) could be set aside specifically for student-athletes under the terms of this legislation. It would be permissible, however, for athletics funds contributed to the institution's general scholarship fund to be awarded to student-athletes, provided those funds are awarded without regard to athletics ability and are available on the same basis for student-athletes and students generally."

South Florida plans extensive athletics project

The University of South Florida announced June 11 a $12.2 million plan to add recreational and athletics projects at the state university and expand the Sun Dome sports arena.

Dan Walbolt, vice-president for student affairs, said the school will spend $9.2 million to add an auxiliary gymnasium, expand concession areas and enclose the entryways of the 10-year-old Sun Dome.

South Florida also plans to raise $3 million in private funds to build an athletics operations center, Walbolt said.

"These new additions will greatly improve our student facilities, which have been inadequate. It is a tremendous shot in the arm to our ability to provide instructional and recreational facilities for our students," he said.

NCAA Bylaw 13.6.5.4 and 1990 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 116—official visits/entertainment expenses

During its May 14, 1990, conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.6.5.4 and 1990 Convention Proposal No. 116 (effective August 1, 1990), and agreed that during an official visit, a member institution may provide three meals per day within a 48-hour limitation for the prospective student-athlete, as well as the prospect's parents or legal guardians, without having to use the $20 per day entertainment allowance provided to the student host. Further, dessert or an after-dinner snack at a coach's residence for the prospect or the prospect's parents or legal guardians would be considered an extension of the three meals and would not require the institution to pay for such entertainment with the $20 per day entertainment allowance. The committee also agreed that a host (or a coach) who owns a boat or other type of recreational vehicle would not be permitted to utilize that vehicle for the entertainment of the prospective student-athlete or the prospect's parents or legal guardians if the normal retail cost for the use of a similar vehicle or entertainment would exceed the $20 per day entertainment allowance. Finally, Divisions II and III institutions should note that with the adoption of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 117 (effective August 1, 1990), the daily entertainment allowance that may be provided to student hosts entertaining prospective student-athletes on official visits at Divisions II and III institutions has been increased from $10 to $20. In this regard, if more than one prospect is assigned during the same time period to the same student host, it is permissible to provide the student host with an additional $10 that allows for each additional prospect the host entertains.

Amateurism/outside participation

Member institutions should note that inasmuch as many student-athletes participate in outside competition during the summer, it is important to pay special attention to NCAA amateurism regulations. NCAA amateurism regulations [Bylaw 12.1.1-(a) and (b)] prohibit an individual from participating in intercollegiate competition in a particular sport if the individual uses his or her athletics skill (directly or indirectly) for pay in any form in that sport, or accepts the promise of pay even if such pay is to be received following completion of intercollegiate athletics participation. Any excessive or improper expenses, awards and benefits would constitute receipt of pay and would jeopardize the student-athlete's eligibility in the particular sport. In accordance with Bylaw 12.1.2-(e) and 1990 Convention Proposal No. 85, a student-athlete who participates on an outside amateur sports team or organization may not receive expenses in excess of actual and necessary travel, room and board expenses, and apparel and equipment (for individual and team use only) from teams or organizations not affiliated with member institutions, including local sports clubs (as set forth in Bylaw 13.11.2.4), for practice and game competition. In addition, it is permissible for a student-athlete who is participating in athletics competition (while not representing an educational institution) to receive actual and necessary expenses from the nonprofessional organization that is sponsoring the competition.

Several questions have been asked recently in reference to participation in a fund-raising event related to such competition. In this regard, it is permissible for student-athletes who are members of outside teams to participate in fund-raising activities for the team, including activities that involve the use of athletics ability to obtain funds. Any money raised through fund-raising efforts should not be earmarked for a specific student-athlete and should be contributed directly to the outside team of which the student-athlete is a member. Also, it would not be permissible for a student-athlete to have a personal "sponsor" (i.e., other than an individual upon whom the athlete is naturally or legally dependent, or the nonprofessional organization sponsoring the competition) to provide expenses or any other form of compensation for the student-athlete's participation in any athletics competition.

Finally, Bylaw 12.2.3.1 permits an individual to participate singly or as a member of an amateur team against professional athletes without jeopardizing the individual's eligibility for intercollegiate athletics in that sport. In many instances, student-athletes participating in individual sports (tennis, golf) participate (as amateurs) in professional tournaments. NCAA legislation precludes such individuals from receiving any payment (including actual and necessary expenses) conditioned on the individual's place finish or performance or given on an incentive basis. It would be permissible for such individuals to compete as amateurs and receive expenses not in excess of the same reasonable amount of expenses given to all individuals participating as amateurs. The amount of such travel, room and board expenses should be a uniform allowance (e.g., $100 per day) determined by the sponsors of the event prior to the individual's participation in the event and not conditioned on the individual's place finish in the event.

NCAA Bylaw 14.6.4.4.2—two-year college transfers to four-year institutions

Divisions I and II institutions should note that a student-athlete who transfers from a two-year college or a branch school that conducts an intercollegiate athletics program must complete an academic year of residence, unless the student meets the eligibility requirements applicable to the division of which the certifying institution is a member (see Bylaws 14.6.4.1 and 14.6.4.2).

If a student attends a two-year college and, prior to regular enrollment at a member institution, obtains additional credits as a part-time student or as a student enrolled during a summer term in a four-year collegiate institution, the hours accumulated at the four-year institution may be utilized by the member institution in determining the student-athlete's eligibility under the two-year college transfer provisions, provided: (1) These hours are accepted by the two-year college and are placed on the transcript or other official document by the two-year college from which the student-athlete transfers prior to the date of initial regular enrollment at the NCAA member institution, and (2) any official document (other than the student's transcript) utilized by the two-year college for this purpose includes the official seal of the two-year college, is signed by the appropriate academic official of the two-year college and is forwarded directly from the two-year college to the appropriate admissions official at the certifying institution. Hours earned as a part-time student (or during summer enrollment) at a four-year collegiate institution may be utilized toward meeting NCAA satisfactory-progress requirements only at that institution.

sion is not acceptable to the school, it can appeal the decision to the NCAA Council, which also has subcommittees to handle each division's appeals.

(A detailed explanation of the appeals process is provided by the chart below.)

Oliver, who is director of athletics at the University of Northern Colorado, describes the revised appeals process in one word: "Excellent."

As a member of the Eligibility Committee when it heard all appeals, Oliver says he remembers committee members spending several hours each week on conference calls.

"The (current) process is much more expedient," Oliver says. "Now, the appeals don't tie up the full committee on the phone for a number of hours each week."

When Thomas E. Yeager, commissioner of the Colonial Athletic Association, was NCAA director of legislative services, he participated in the Eligibility Committee's conference calls.

"They caused a lot of anxious moments for some people," Yeager says.

"It was usually a matter of juggling four or five institutions at a time. While you were dealing with one case, the other schools were waiting to get on the line to make their appeals; some cases would take longer than expected, and some school officials would be kept standing by the phone for quite a while," Yeager said.

Often, according to Yeager, the committee knew how it would decide a routine case but still had to go through the procedure of listening to the appeal on the phone before making its decision.

Yeager said that anything that would expedite that process "would be a very good step."

"The current process has been a responsive system," says Justus, who is a graduate of the University of Kansas law school. She has been an NCAA staff member since November 1984.

It is not unusual in the current environment that emphasizes institutional self-reporting for the staff to handle 25 to 30 cases a week during peak periods in the academic year.

Eligibility appeals cases often involve a lot of paperwork and telephone time, Justus says. Sometimes, a staff member will be sent to an institution if more information is needed to make a decision in a case.

Justus says the appeals process was changed by the membership "with the idea of streamlining the appeals process in order to arrive at decisions as early as possible because of the effect a delay in the decision may have on a student-athlete's participation in an event."

The majority of eligibility cases are reported by the institutions involved. In fact, the burden of reporting these situations is on the institution, even though it might not seek to have an athlete's eligibility restored.

Justus and her staff handle appeals that generally fall into one of four categories:

- Appeals resulting from violations in recruiting rules and general eligibility rules, including a variety of amateurism violations (1,200 of the 1,400 total in the past 3½ years);

- Institutions seeking an extension of the five-year or 10-semester rule (40 to 50 cases a year);

- Hardship and waiver requests from independent member institutions (70 a year);

- Appeals of ineligibility rulings resulting from drug tests at postseason bowl games or NCAA championships (about 20 since drug testing began).

"One of the most difficult cases," Justus says, "is one in which a recruiting contact is made with a prospective student-athlete during a 'dead period.' The difficulty lies in trying to determine whether the contact resulted in a recruiting advantage to the school."

If it is determined there was a recruiting advantage, that decision by the eligibility staff can have "seemingly harsh results," Justus says, because the prospect cannot be restored to eligibility for competition at the institution in question, even though the athlete still will be eligible for competition at other schools.

"Even though the prospect is innocent in the violation," Justus says, "he or she still is not eligible for competition at that school when a recruiting advantage has been found."

Justus and her staff are part of the enforcement department. She attends meetings of the Committee on Infractions to monitor situations in which student-athlete eligibility might be involved.

"Many of the serious eligibility cases arise out of enforcement department cases in which major violations can be uncovered," Justus says.

In her work, Justus often consults with S. David Berst, assistant executive director for enforcement. Berst also is a staff liaison to the Eligibility Committee.

When year-round drug testing is started by the NCAA in August, the Eligibility Committee will monitor the application of drug-testing legislation and the possibility of an increased number of appeals in that area.

Even if drug testing results in a considerable increase in the number of eligibility appeals, the Eligibility Committee still will have Justus and her staff in the national office to keep the appeals process operating as expeditiously as possible.

Three-man officiating crews sought for III men's play-off

The Division III Men's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that three-person officiating crews be used in all championship games, beginning in 1991.

Three-person crews currently are used in the Divisions I and II Men's Basketball Championships.

The committee, which met June 7-10 in Kansas City, Missouri, also will recommend the elimination of the use of alternate officials (in conjunction with the use of three-person crews) and of third-place games at regional competitions.

Wittenberg University, which was the site of the 1989 and 1990 semifinals and finals, is being recommended as the site for the 1992 championship. Wittenberg already has been approved as the host institution for 1991. Beginning with the 1993 championship, the committee will recommend host institutions for the semifinals and final in three-year cycles.

The committee will recommend 16 conferences for automatic qualification to the 1991 championship.

They are the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin, Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Little East Conference, Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference (two berths), Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, New Jersey Athletic Conference, North Coast Athletic Conference, Ohio Athletic Conference, Old Dominion Athletic Conference, Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, State University of New York Athletic Conference and University Athletic Association.

Realignment of five member institutions from the Atlantic to the Northeast region also is being recommended. The institutions are Connecticut College, Trinity College (Connecticut), Wesleyan University, Western Connecticut State University and U.S. Coast Guard Academy.

Lawless heads CFA board

Texas Tech University President Robert Lawless has been elected chair of the College Football Association's board of directors. CFA officials announced June 12 that Lawless was elected to replace Haskell M. Monroe Jr., chancellor of the University of Missouri, Columbia, who chaired the CFA board during the 1989-90 academic year.

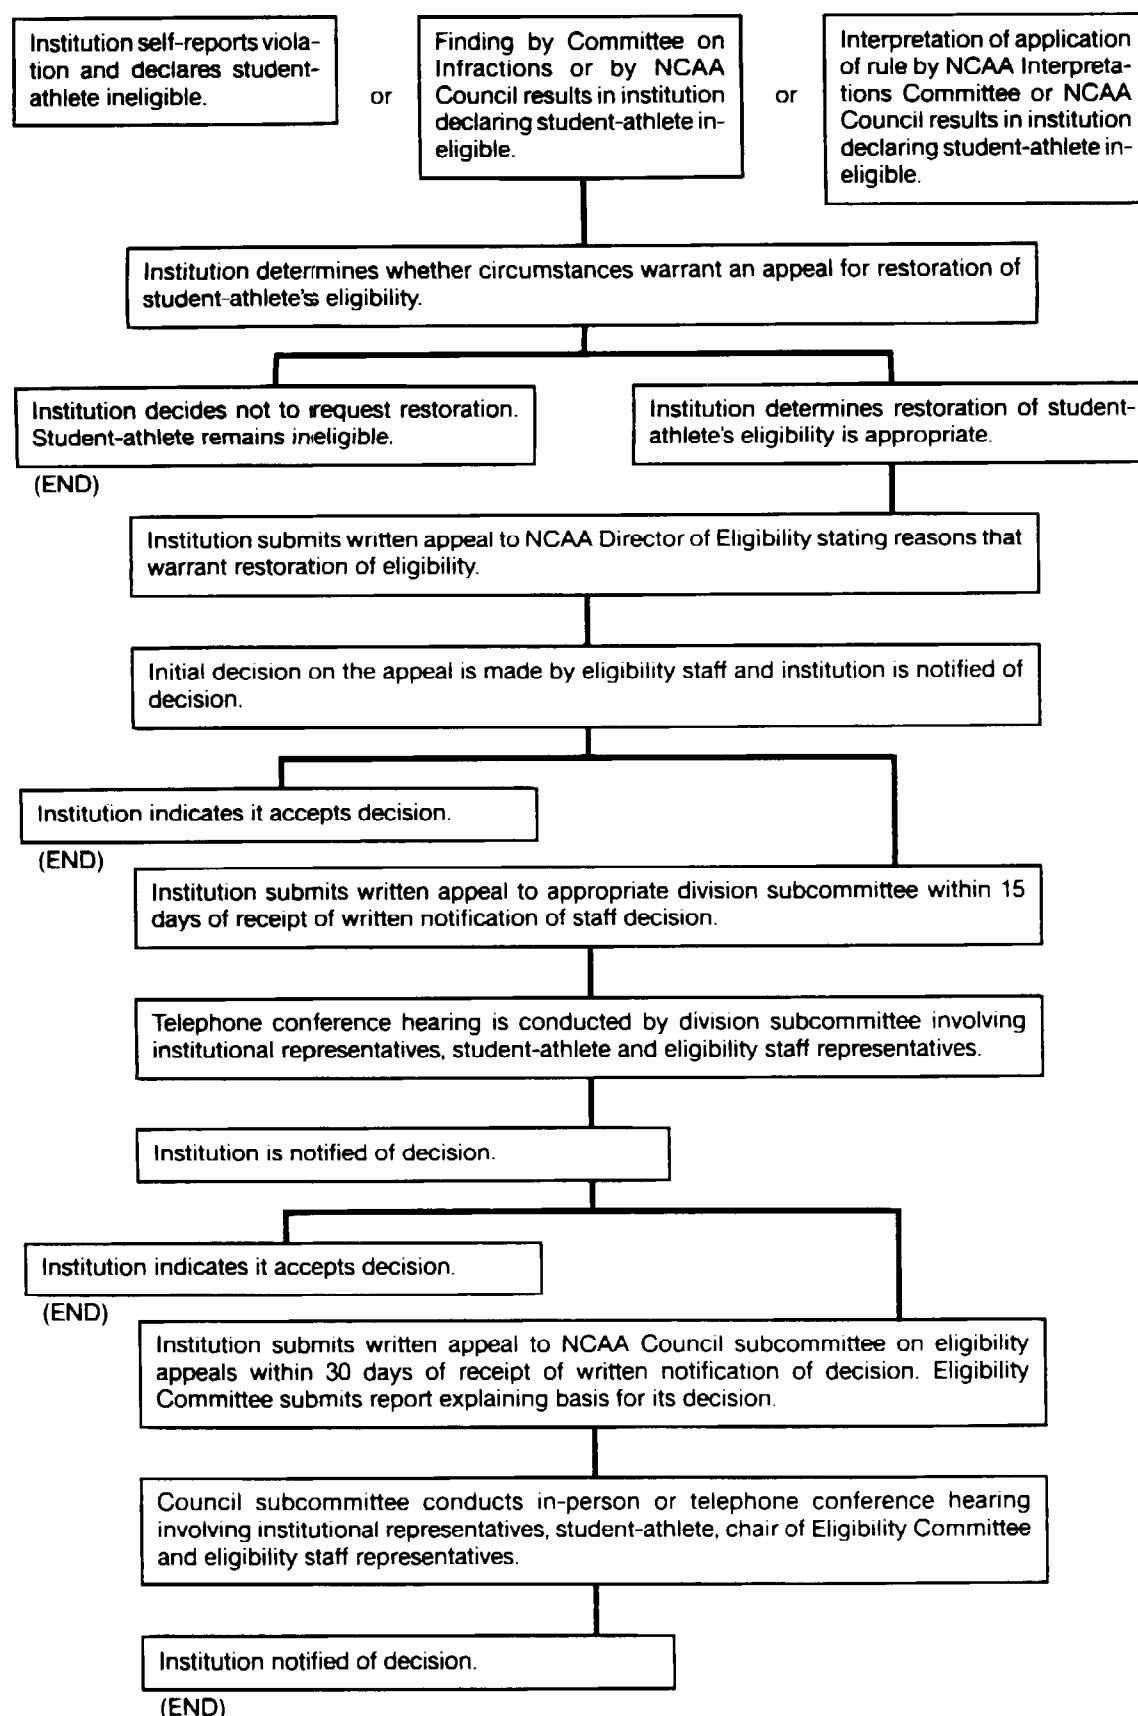

Elected secretary-treasurer of the board was James I. "Bud" Robertson, faculty athletics representative and professor of history at Virginia Polytechnic University. He replaces the Rev. E. William Beauchamp, executive vice-president at the University of Notre Dame.

W. James Copeland Jr., athletics director at the University of Virginia, was elected to a position on the CFA board replacing Clemson University athletics director Robert W. Robinson. Robinson completed a three-year term on the board.

Other CFA board members include Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference; San Jankovich, athletics director at the University of Miami (Florida); West Virginia University head football coach Don Nehlen; Roger Sayers, president of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa; Stanley B. Sheriff, athletics director at the University of Hawaii, and Texas Christian University athletics director Frank Windegger.

Change needed in NCAA rule on baseball draft

By Richard L. Shook

The grass isn't always greener on the other side of the fence.

Bo Schembechler insists it's exactly the same.

In fact, Schembechler says he was right on top of the fence all along, so how could the grass change color?

Schembechler is the new president and chief operating officer of the Detroit Tigers, and he's already had an impact on the Tigers' draft philosophy. Detroit is going after athletes, not just baseball players—like No. 1 pick Tony Clark, who has signed a basketball tender with the University of Arizona, and late-round pick Rodney Peete, who is a quarterback for the Detroit Lions, and Greg McMurtry, a high draft choice of the New England Patriots.

Some of us find it amusing Schembechler appears to have swapped one side of the fence for the other. As the head of a pro team, he is trying to sign talented high school prospects to contracts.

It's thinkable he would have been recruiting some of those same prospects if he were still football coach and director of athletics at the University of Michigan.

Not so, says Bo. He believes, wants, colleges and professional says he's not going to be charging into Tony Clark's house trying to get him to dump Arizona in favor of big money and a contract with the Tigers.

"I'm not in here to talk anybody out of going to college," he said.

Schembechler says major-league team should retain rights to player if he chooses college over professional draft

baseball to exist in a mutually beneficial atmosphere.

"I'm not wooing them," he said flatly. "You don't pit Major League Baseball against a college education. If they want to go to college, a major-league team should be able to retain the rights to them."

"I think that should be proposed to the NCAA, and I'd be more than willing to do that."

In other words, Schembechler

"First of all, I'm not going to be directly involved in negotiations with Clark. If Clark wants to go to college, let him go to college."

"If people think I'm going in there and tell him not to go to college, they've got another think coming."

He adds, humor coming into his voice and onto his face, "of course I'm not going to make him go to college, either."

Schembechler thinks teams should not lose rights to kids, the way the Boston Red Sox lost the rights to No. 1 selection McMurtry four years ago just because he elects to go to college.

"There should be a change in the rules," he said. "I said that when I was coaching at Michigan. If a baseball team drafts a high school senior, that high school senior should be given the opportunity to decide between professional baseball and going to college."

"If he chooses to go to college, the team that drafts him should retain the right to the kid until he graduates. Then it has a certain period of time to make him an offer and sign him."

Schembechler also thinks kids who go to college on a nonbaseball scholarship should be allowed to make baseball their summer job.

Instead of cleaning stables, mowing the football field, working at a clothing store, driving some millionaire around or working for the athletics department, Schembechler feels they should be able to get paid for playing baseball.

"During summers, all the kids who were the property of the Detroit Tigers would assemble on one team," he said. "They'd play in a league like the Cape Cod, or any of the summer leagues. Then we'd have the opportunity to see them play together."

"That would be their summer job. We'd pay them the same as what they would get at Cape Cod. We subsidize those leagues somewhat now."

A college education, Schembechler still believes, is something a youngster has all his life. It is especially valuable, taking into account how few players ever make the highest professional leagues.

Why pit one against another? Especially if they can be made to fit together so well.

Probably never happen, though. Makes too much sense.

NCAA revenue-sharing report: It's just business as usual

Ed Fowler, columnist

Houston Chronicle

"(After recommendations from an NCAA special committee on revenue distribution.) It all boils down to business as usual."

"The emphasis remains squarely where it has been ever since television turned college sports into a cash cow—on winning."

"Pressure to win, as we have clearly seen, has been widely interpreted as pressure to cheat."

"The proposal, which features no incentives to run a clean program or to improve graduation rates for athletes, fails to address the problems that have plagued campus sports for decades."

"The best that can be said for it is that it does provide some funds for Division II and Division III schools, which get no crack at the big-time TV pie but offer a chance to participate to thousands."

SEC will consider three schools for potential membership

Three schools have agreed to be placed under consideration for acceptance into the Southeastern Conference, according to the schools' directors of athletics.

The schools—the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville; Florida State University, and the University of Miami (Florida)—were not extended an official invitation to join but rather were asked whether they would consider joining if an invitation were extended. All three schools said yes, the Associated Press reported.

The ADs of the schools were attending the annual convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics on Marco Island, Florida, when the announcement was made June 12.

Arkansas has been in the Southwest Athletic Conference for 76 years. Florida State is an independent in football and a Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference member in other sports. Miami is an independent in all sports.

"There are very few schools that can make it as an independent," said Sam Jankovich, Miami's director of athletics. "We can make it as an independent. But you have to look at what is down the road 10 years from now."

Jankovich said he agreed to be considered while attending the College Football Association meetings in Dallas. Upon Jankovich's recommendation, university President Edward T. Foote II then telephoned SEC Commissioner Roy Kramer to accept the invitation for consideration.

"We're interested in looking into it," Jankovich said. "We have the responsibility to weigh all options. We're not going to overreact or rush into anything and neither is any conference."

Florida State President Bernard F. Sliger also has been in contact with Kramer, according to Bob Goin, the Seminoles' director of athletics.

"We're going to be reviewing our position," Goin said. "Florida State is going into formal review to see the advantages of joining a conference versus the advantages of being an independent."

"We weren't planning for that kind of review, but we have to in line with what is happening around the country."

J. Frank Broyles, Arkansas' director of athletics, confirmed that his school also has accepted an offer to be considered.

"I think realignment (of major conferences) is inevitable," said Joe Dean, Louisiana State University director of athletics. "This is somewhat of a television-driven thing."

Kramer would not reveal specifics, nor would he say what teams are being considered. He said the 10-team SEC, whose presidents unanimously voted to explore expansion two weeks ago, is only in the preliminary process of determining which schools might be interested.

Kramer said there is no timetable for when the SEC might extend formal bids to join.

Vincent J. Dooley, director of athletics at the University of Georgia, said the league probably will expand in pairs, taking either two or four new teams but probably not six. Dooley said the SEC would then split into two six- or seven-team divisions.

Administrative Committee approves play-in proposal

Three play-in games will determine the institutions that will fill the 28th, 29th and 30th automatic-qualifying positions for the 1991 Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

The NCAA Administrative Committee has approved a recommendation by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee to drop the waiting periods for automatic qualification for the Big South Conference and The Patriot League. These conferences had been granted waivers under Bylaw 31.3.4.3.3 and the automatic-qualification criteria outlined in Executive Regulation 1-6(b)-1 (1988-89 NCAA Manual).

Approval of the recommendation makes 33 conferences eligible to compete for 30 automatic-qualifying positions in the 1991 championship.

To determine the play-in participants, conferences were ranked on the nonconference ratings percentage index for the 1989-90 regular season. Since The Patriot League will conduct conference competition beginning in 1990-91, an accurate rating could not be calculated, and the league was placed in the lowest-ranked position.

The following contests, which will be administered by the participating conferences, have been set for the play-in games—Northeast Conference (28) vs. Patriot League (33), Southland Conference (29) vs. Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (32) and Southwestern Athletic Conference (30) vs. Big South Conference (31). The number in parentheses is the conference's rank. The higher-ranked conference's champion will serve as host institution.

The six conferences that will participate in play-in games have met with ESPN, and ESPN tentatively has agreed to air the conferences' postseason championship games as well as the three play-in games.

"The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee is pleased that ESPN plans to provide coverage of the play-in games," James E. Delany, chair of the committee, said. "This is a positive move for intercollegiate basketball."

The play-in format was approved by the NCAA Executive Committee at its December 1989 meeting. All play-in games must be completed

Hill sentenced

Scott Hill, former University of Oklahoma assistant football coach and recruiting coordinator, was sentenced June 8 to 15 months in a Federal prison after pleading guilty to a charge of distributing cocaine.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black also imposed a $10,000 fine and ordered Hill to serve three years on special probation after he serves his sentence.

Black issued his sentence despite pleas from Hill's attorney, Robert Sussman, who said his client "has done everything that a human being can do to get right." He could have been sentenced to a maximum of 15 years in prison and a maximum fine of $125,000.

Georgia upsets Cowboys, wins 1990 College World Series

Fans have come to expect the unexpected at the College World Series, and this year was no exception.

Fourth-seeded Georgia, behind the outstanding pitching of freshman Stan Payne and staff ace Dave Fleming, derailed a potent Oklahoma State offense and defeated the Cowboys, 2-1, to win its first Division I Baseball Championship June 9 at Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Nebraska.

The left-handed Payne limited the Cowboys to four hits in six innings and struck out six. He consistently got ahead of Cowboy hitters with curveballs and was able to move his fastball inside and outside for strikes.

"He's always around the plate with his pitches," said Georgia coach Steve Webber, who played in the 1969 College World Series for Southern Illinois. "He threw his breaking ball for strikes, and that's what you have to do against a great-hitting ball club."

The Bulldogs loaded the bases with none out in the fourth inning when Jeff Cooper walked, J. R. Showalter singled to right and Brian Jester was hit by Cowboy starter Dennis Burbank. Cooper then scored the game's first run on a sacrifice fly by Bruce Chick.

In the fifth inning, Georgia catcher Terry Childers singled, and McKay Smith doubled down the left field line. Cooper then put Georgia ahead, 2-0, when he singled to left field, scoring Childers.

Said Childers, "Nobody gave us a chance. I think it helped us relax. We were loose. Once we got the lead, our confidence seemed to soar. Stan had a great breaking ball today. He was getting it over for strikes early (in the count)."

Oklahoma State scored its only run in the sixth inning when Mitchel Simons scored on a sacrifice fly by catcher Michael Daniel. It was Daniels' 10th run batted in of the College World Series.

The key play of the game, however, came in the bottom of the seventh inning after Payne gave up a lead-off double to Brian Kelly. Kelly moved to third on a fielder's choice but was thrown out by Showalter trying to score the tying run.

In a jarring collision at the plate, Childers held onto the ball and Georgia players mob pitcher Dave Fleming after he struck out the side in the bottom of the ninth, preserving the Bulldogs' upset of Oklahoma State for the College World Series title. Georgia preserved the Bulldogs' victory.

"I think (Kelly) might have had a jump, because when I caught it he had plenty of time to stick his shoulder down," said Childers, who was knocked unconscious in a home-plate collision during a 4-3 loss to Rutgers at the Northeast regional earlier in the championship.

Childers hit only .181 during the regular season but hit .421 in five College World Series games.

"I was just trying to relax up there. I didn't have anything to lose. I knew the pitchers would come right at me, and I just tried to pick out something I could hit."

Fleming, who was named to the all-tournament team, extinguished Oklahoma State's last hope in the eighth inning. After Simons led off with a sharp single to center, Bobby Carlsen sacrificed Simons to second base. Brad Beanblossom walked, but Daniel hit into a double play to end the inning.

Fleming struck out the side in the ninth inning to clinch the victory in the Bulldogs' second College World Series. Georgia lost its only two games in 1987. The Bulldogs also became the first Southeastern Conference team to win the championship.

Said Webber, "There's a difference between talent in baseball players (comparing the 1987 team with this year's squad), and we've got a lot of baseball players who perform and who play hard and give it everything they've got on every out. In the final analysis, that is what it takes."

Joining Fleming on the all-tournament team were Bulldog teammates Mike Rebhan (pitcher), who was voted the most outstanding player, and first baseman Doug Radziewicz; Oklahoma State catcher Daniel, third baseman Carlsen and shortstop Beanblossom; Stanford second baseman Troy Paulsen and outfielder Jeff Hammonds; Louisiana State outfielder Tim Clark and designated hitter Lyle Mouton, and Citadel outfielder Jason Rychlick.

The tournament drew a record 138,426 fans, breaking the mark of 132,865 set last year.

Sun Devils grab golf crown

Phil Mickelson and Ben Crenshaw.

Mickelson likes the sound of that combination. And after the Division I Men's Golf Championships, June 6-9 in Tarpon Springs, Florida, he has the chance to make that pairing mean something.

Mickelson fired a 6-under-par 66 in the final round to win his second straight Division I individual championship and has the chance next year to become the only NCAA golfer besides Texas' Crenshaw to win a title in each of his first three years in college. Mickelson also led the charge as Arizona State overcame an 11-shot deficit heading into the final round and won their first team crown.

"I didn't come out ready to play," said Mickelson, who qualified for the U.S. Open June 4 and spent the next day making arrangements to play in that tournament instead of focusing on the Division I championships. He shot a 75 on the first day, but played the final 54 holes in 12-under-par 254.

"I think (the 75) was almost a blessing because there wasn't a whole lot of attention and talk about me repeating after that," he added. "I didn't lead any the first three days."

But when he turned up the heat on the final day, all the talk centered on the left-handed sophomore.

"On nine, I made a 15-foot putt for birdie and that gave me a lot of confidence," Mickelson said. "Prior to that, I didn't make a birdie putt over 10 feet. That was big. I played aggressively toward the end. When you have a team playing well, that gives you energy and pulls you along."

Florida led the tournament after each of the first three rounds, but the Gators shot a 4-over 292 on the final day. Even so, neither Florida coach Buddy Alexander nor Arizona State coach Steve Loy would say the Sun Devils snuck in for the title.

"We just had to keep the saddle on our horses," Loy said. "We didn't try to shoot for a number. We knew where we wanted to go. Florida didn't beat themselves; we went out and won the tournament."

Alexander added, "Obviously, if we had shot even par, which wouldn't have been too much to ask, they wouldn't have won. But you have to give them credit. They played a great round; they saved their best for last."

Arizona State's 72-hole score of 1,155 was three over par. Florida finished at 1,157, followed by Arizona (1,159), pretournament favorite Oklahoma State (1,163), 1989 champion Oklahoma (1,167) and Fresno State (1,167).

Fresno State's Terrence Miskell shot 70 on the last day to finish second in the individual standings at 283. Arizona's Manny Zerman and Duke's John Karcher were next

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Referred to the Interpretations Committee a request by the Mid-American Conference that Western Michigan University be permitted to utilize the provisions of Bylaw 20.9.5.3(b) in order to meet the Division I-A football attendance criteria for the 1989 football season.

b. Appointed William Terriquez Jr., Carleton College, to the Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee, replacing John H. Homon, Mount Union College, resigned.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Approved the recommendations by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee regarding automatic qualification for the 1991 Division I Men's Basketball Championship, noting that the Administrative Committee had delayed action on the recommendations earlier in order to afford ample opportunity for all views to be considered and that the committee now had considered all views submitted; further, the committee noted that the approved procedures will not have any adverse financial effect on any conference and probably will result in a favorable financial situation for those conferences involved in the approved "play-in."

b. Approved a request by the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association for funding and staff support for the organization's activities, noting that the group has no other funding source and has certain functions to perform that now are reflected in NCAA legislation.

c. Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1(d) and 14.8.6.2(b) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in competition as part of the 1990 South Dakota State Games.

d. Granted a waiver per Bylaw 16.13 to permit the University of Oregon to provide transportation and lodging expenses to the parents of a student-athlete who was critically injured while participating in track and field competition.

Lacrosse stick checks set

The NCAA Men's Lacrosse Committee has voted to require that officials conduct a stick check on each team once per half.

A crosse that is illegal due to a deep pocket may be returned to the game if the pocket is made legal. The player using the crosse will serve a one-minute, nonreleasable penalty. A crosse that is illegal because it has been altered will be removed from the game, and the player using the crosse will serve a three-minute, nonreleasable penalty.

The penalties are consistent with those assessed when a coach requests a stick check. The rule regarding a coach's request for a stick check is unchanged.

The committee, which met June 3-7 in Easton, Maryland, also changed rules pertaining to offensive stalling. When stalling rules are in effect, a ball that goes outside the box only may be recovered by the defense, unless it was deflected by the defense. During the last two minutes of the game, stalling rules will apply only to the team that is ahead or to both teams if the score is tied.

In another action, simultaneous fouls were clarified, and the link between releasable and nonreleasable penalty time in multiple-foul situations was eliminated. Previously, if a player was assessed a nonreleasable and a releasable penalty, all time became unreleasable. Now the releasable penalty will remain releasable.

Other rules actions:

• Each overtime period will start with a face-off, except when an extra-man situation exists. Previously, the second extra period was started by awarding the ball to the team that had possession at the end of the first overtime.

• All counts relating to advancing the ball will apply to both teams at all times. Last year, the counts did not apply to a team in a man-down situation.

The committee also adopted language relating to equipment approval that is consistent with the language in other NCAA playing rules. Stick inspection was added to the coaches-certification section.

Regarding championships, the committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that the traveling squad for the Division I championship be increased from 36 to 40.

Also, the committee continues to explore options available for the sport of lacrosse on cable television, including distribution of championship highlights.

New hockey format proposed

The NCAA Division III Men's Ice Hockey Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that a four-team, single-elimination format be adopted for the semifinals and finals.

The Executive Committee will consider the proposal at its August 13-14 meeting in Monterey, California.

With an eight-team field, the four first-round contests would be played at on-campus sites and utilize a two-game series with a "mini-game" tiebreaker. The four winners would gather at one site for single semifinal games and a championship game to determine the champion.

The proposal received unanimous support from the American Hockey Coaches Association.

Other committee recommendations include:

• Increasing linesmen's fees from $60 to $75 for championship competition.

• Granting automatic qualification to the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Northern Collegiate Hockey Association and the State University of New York Athletic Conference.

• Publishing the first 1990-91 Division III poll December 10; weekly polls then would be published January 7 through March 3.

tion's activities, noting that the group has no other funding source and has certain functions to perform that now are reflected in NCAA legislation.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2. Acting for the Council:

a. Approved 142 summer basketball leagues (92 for men and 50 for women) per Bylaws 14.8.5.2 and 30.11, as published earlier in The NCAA News.

b. Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1(c) to permit student-athletes from two member institutions to participate in tryouts or competition involving national teams in basket-

Millions made, but millions spent on athletics, too, Schultz says

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz spoke on a number of subjects at a June 12 press conference at the silver anniversary convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics at Marriott's Marco Island Resort.

One of Schultz's key concerns is the myth that collegiate athletics is a huge money-making machine.

"I think that's one of the biggest misconceptions," said Schultz. "There might be millions of dollars coming in, but there's more millions going out for the benefit of the athletes and the programs that they are a part of. Over 70 percent of Division I schools are operating in the red. There's a handful that are making what you might say is a profit or are able to put money in reserve.

"I'd say maybe only a dozen schools are putting major dollars in reserve. The schools that are generating a lot of revenue are also the same schools that have huge programs."

Other issues that Schultz commented on included:

NCAA reform

"The important thing in any type of reform or change is that you preserve the good things and deal with the negatives, the things that need to be corrected. Sometimes, in the zeal for reform, you not only deal with the negatives but also handicap a lot of things that have been good and positive.

"We need open, candid discussion of the issues. We need a lot of people talking about it and, hopefully, we can fine-tune the discussions into something that will really work.

"With the number of issues that are out there, if there is a priority at the NCAA Convention in January, I would say that, because it will be the focus of the Presidents Commission, the issue of time demands on student-athletes will take precedence."

Stipends for athletes

"We often jump to the conclusion that the university is making millions of dollars and the poor student-athlete is being used. In football and basketball, if they are being used at all, it is to generate revenue for the 19 or 20 other sports.

"With that in mind, we ought to provide at least the full cost of attendance to student-athletes. We have that in the NCAA constitution right now. The maximum amount of allowable financial aid is the cost of attendance at the institution. And the cost of attendance at any school is substantially more than the athletics scholarship.

"There are a lot of legal problems with giving an outright stipend. You immediately establish an employer/employee relationship, which creates other kinds of liabilities such as workman's compensation. It would probably also make all athletics income vulnerable to income tax, and then everybody would have a problem if they had to start paying income tax on money such as television revenue.

"If you go to the full cost of attendance, which includes a couple of trips home during the year, a clothing allowance, a living allowance, etc., we could really accomplish the same thing. I think the Division I-A schools would really like to do that; but right now, it's a total Division I vote, and the I-AA schools can't afford to do that."

Scholarship reductions

"I think scholarships is the last place we ought to go to reduce cost. Having spent most of my life as a coach and athletics administrator, I think there's a lot of other places where we could save money.

"There's another side of that, though, that is never brought out and that received a lot of consideration from the cost-reduction committee. The committee was taking a look at the number of sports being dropped. One of the thoughts was that the proposed 10 percent cut would not necessarily eliminate scholarships, but might take them from sports like football and basketball and slide them to other sports like track and field, wrestling, and swimming. You could really have more opportunities for athletes for the same amount of money. If that's what would happen, that would be great."

"One of the restructuring proposals zeroes in on the subsets of Division I. The problem is in Division I you have I-A, I-AA and I-AAA. The proposal is to further federate and allow those subsets to make their own determinations about financial aid.

"It's going to be a tough sell because I-AA still views itself as competing with I-A. Then there's the sport of basketball, which is not classified in a subset and you have all of Division I in there. We're pretty well federated except for the financial aid issue.

"With the proposal to strengthen criteria to be in Division I, some schools have the feeling that 'they're trying to get rid of us; they want us in Division II.' What the structuring committee is trying to do is set standards to assure that schools in Division I have made a total commitment to Division I."

Division I-A football play-off

"The fans would love it. With the NFL expanding its schedule, it will probably bring us closer to a play-off. I also think it will have an impact on a lot of bowls.

"The bowls are concerned that they'll lose their TV contracts because they're competing with the NFL on the same playing dates. With the higher criteria and payouts necessary for the teams, the bowls that don't have TV contracts are afraid that they won't survive.

"I think part of the holdup with the play-off is due to the bowls. But, the presidents aren't behind it, either. For them to get behind it, you're going to have to see some of these reform issues passed, some controls on the amount of time athletes spend on their sports. Once the presidents feel comfortable with that, I think they might be more open to the idea. I think the coaches see it as another pressure that they don't need in what's already a highly pressure-packed position."

Presidents vs. athletics directors

"I don't think any chasm between them is something that cannot be breached. I think it's been overplayed as a battle between the presidents and the ADs. I don't think the presidents have listened to the athletics directors enough. I'm glad that the presidents have had ADs in and are going to have coaches in the next meeting. The presidents need to hear more from the ADs. There will be much more communication between those two groups."

Cheating

"I don't think money is the cause of cheating. I was a coach for 25 years—16 in the Big Ten—and the biggest pressure I felt came from within. As a coach, you want to be successful, you want to win; you're a coach because you are competitive. Keeping your job is part of that.

"I think money is just a part of it, but that's why we have groups that are charged with coming up with imaginative ways to spend the money, to rid us of the '$300,000 free throw.'"

Mississippi State orders probe of gambling allegations

Mississippi State University President Donald W. Zacharias ordered immediate investigations June 7 into the professional conduct of a professor and reports of gambling on the school's campus.

"We consider this a grave situation," Zacharias told a news conference in the wake of the gambling reports, including an allegation that unnamed football players had been used to collect gambling debts.

Zacharias said he also had instructed athletics director Larry Templeton to contact the Southeastern Conference and the NCAA to "tell them about the situation, and begin a full investigation.

"Our purpose is to be sure that all illegal gambling activities have been eliminated," he told the Associated Press.

The professor, Jeffrey Topping, pleaded guilty June 6 before U.S. District Judge Glen Davidson in Aberdeen, Mississippi. In addition, former Mississippi State student Frank Michael House, 27, of Atlanta pleaded guilty June 5 to Federal gambling charges in an unrelated case.

Court documents said investigations into Topping's business revealed participation by athletes in several sports at Mississippi State and former employees of the school's athletics department.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John

Hailman said it appeared that no current Mississippi State athletes or athletics department employees had bet or worked with Topping or House.

Topping, a 46-year-old psychology professor, said June 6 that if he did place bets for athletes, "it was really unknowingly. I didn't say, 'Who are these bets for?' If an athlete would have called directly and said, 'I'm on the football team, and I want to place a bet with you,' I would have said no."

Starkville police Capt. David Lindley said the investigation started about two years ago. He said House and an unidentified girlfriend had a fight and "she got mad and came and turned him in."

Lindley said the investigation of House led to Topping, who has taught at the university in Starkville for two decades.

In his statement, Zacharias said he instructed John R. Darling, provost and vice-president for academic affairs, to supervise the university's investigation of Topping and "provide me with a report...."

Darling said June 6 that Mississippi State officials had known about the Federal investigation for almost a year but were waiting for the outcome before opening their own probe.

Topping pleaded guilty to using the U.S. mail between Mississippi and Alabama for bookmaking on sporting events in 1986. However, he said none of the gambling involved bets on Mississippi State games or involved coaches.

The professor also pleaded guilty to an income tax evasion charge, U.S. Attorney Robert Whitwell said. Topping allegedly owed $18,287 for hidden earnings in 1986.

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, a story in the May 23 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly reported that individual championships claimed by student-athletes from Tennessee-Martin during the 1990 Division II Men's Tennis Championships were the school's first NCAA titles in any sport. Tennessee-Martin's Rob Harbison won the individual air rifle title at the 1987 National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships.

Due to an editor's error, an item in the Briefly in the News column in the May 30 issue of the News incorrectly named the school that Mid-American Athletic Conference all-academic women's softball team member Shana Delp attends. She earned a 4.000 grade-point average (4.000) scale in mathematics at Kent.

Due to an editor's error, an item in the Record section of the May 30 issue of the News incorrectly reported the school where Connie Yori was named head women's basketball coach. She will coach at Loras.

Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee:

Contest limitations

1. Determining starting date for contest exemption privilege. Reviewed 1990 Convention Proposal No. 30 amending the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 17.3.5 (number of basketball contests) and agreed that for purposes of simplification, member institutions utilizing exemptions (i.e., Hawaii or Alaska, or Puerto Rico or Preseason National Invitation Tournament; contest against a foreign team in the United States; contest against a USA Basketball club member, or participation in the Basketball Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic) prior to the effective date of this legislation (August 1, 1992) would begin a new time cycle to utilize the same exemptions (in accordance with the new legislation) after August 1, 1992; further, noted that the foreign-tour exemption is not affected by the new regulation.

Advertising/endorsements

2. Member conferences' involvement with merchandise items featuring student-athletes' names or pictures. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 12.5 and a previous Council interpretation (reference: Item No. 4 of the minutes of the Council's January 7, 1983, meeting), and recommended that the Council consider either modifying its current interpretation, or proposing legislation to amend Bylaw 12.5.1 to permit member conferences to sell or distribute items featuring names or pictures of student-athletes.

Coaches

3. Part-time and volunteer coaches employed by a member institution's foundation. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 11.02.6

and 11.3.4.1, and agreed that a part-time coach (who has reached the limit of permissible compensation from the institution's athletics department) or a volunteer coach may not be employed for compensation by an organization that is funded in whole or in part by the athletics department, or is involved primarily in the promotion of the institution's athletics program (e.g., booster club, athletics foundation association).

Five-year rule

4. Full-time enrollment—noncredit courses. Agreed that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaws 14.2.1 and 14.2.2, a student-athlete enrolled solely in noncredit courses while attending a two-year college would initiate the application of the five-year or 10-semester rule if the two-year college considers such a student to be regularly enrolled in a full-time program of studies.

Printed recruiting aids

5. Member conferences' involvement in distribution of videotapes to prospective student-athletes. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.3.1, and agreed that a videotape developed by a member conference and carrying the conference's logo could be produced by a commercial organization and broadcast over an educational television network satellite to high school students generally; further, noted that a member conference would be precluded from distributing such a videotape directly to high schools or prospective student-athletes.

Conference No. 6
April 13, 1990

Publicity

6. Prospective student-athlete appearing on a telecast of a member institution's intercollegiate contest. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 13.10.2 and agreed that a member institution is not held accountable under the recruiting publicity rule if a television network televising the institution's contest identifies a prospective student-athlete attending the game; however, the institution may not arrange for the prospect to appear, be interviewed or otherwise be involved on the broadcast.

Expenses/entertainment

7. Picnic expenses for parents of student-athletes. Confirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 16.02.3 would preclude an institution from providing a meal for parents of student-athletes at the conclusion of its spring 1990 football game, unless the parents are charged for the cost of the meal.

Transfer eligibility

8. Student-athlete transferring when the institution's coach is released (Divisions I and II). Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 14.6.5.1 and 14.9.2.2, and agreed that no authority exists for a student-athlete to receive a waiver of the one-year residence requirement if the student-athlete's basketball coach is released by the institution the student-athlete currently is attending; requested that the staff draft a policy outlining procedures to be followed when student-athletes request a review of NCAA regulations as they apply to their individual circumstances (without the sponsorship of a member institution).

Initial eligibility

9. Payment for receiving ACT and SAT test scores (Divisions I and II). Reviewed 1990 Convention Proposal No. 105 and agreed that a member institution would be permitted to provide to a prospective student-athlete or the prospect's family a check from the institution made payable to the testing agency in order to cover the cost of receiving a test score from the testing agency, provided the check is not made payable to the prospect or the prospect's family; emphasized that a member institution may not provide cash to the prospect or the prospect's family for the payment of these services.

Contacts

10. Coaches contacting the parents of a prospective student-athlete during the prospect's competition after signing a National Letter of Intent. Agreed that the provisions of Bylaws 13.1.5.2 and 13.1.4.2(f) would not preclude a coach from contacting the parents of a prospective student-athlete during a prospect's competition when the prospective student-athlete has signed a National Letter of Intent with that institution.

(adjusted) and at private schools, 48.1 and 66.7 (adjusted).

The NCAA will mail the 1989 Academic Reporting Compilation to CEOs at Division I institutions this week.

Noting U.S. House approval of the Student-Athlete Right To Know Act, Petr said he foresees that disclosure of graduation rates publicly for each institution could cause some critical problems.

"If an institution makes a mistake in its reporting form, perhaps a computer error, and reports a graduation rate for its athletes of 33 percent instead of 53 percent, it could cause a great deal of embarrassment and possible harm to the institution.

"If the legislation becomes law," Petr said, "we are considering mailing to every school that is listed on a particular page of our reporting compilation a proof of that page before it is published."

After receiving the 1989 report, CEOs at member institutions can be provided with individual but anonymous listings of institutions with characteristics more similar to their own for further study, Petr said.

ADs' group elects Jankovich

Sam Jankovich, director of athletics at the University of Miami (Florida), was elected chair of the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association June 10 on Marco Island, Florida.

The election occurred during the I-A directors association's first of three meetings in conjunction with NACDA's silver anniversary convention.

Elected as first vice-chair was Jack Lengyel, director of athletics at the U.S. Naval Academy. James L. Jones, director of athletics at Ohio State University, was elected second vice-chair. Cedric W. Dempsey, director of athletics at the University of Arizona, was elected third vice-chair. Glen C. Tuckett, director of athletics at Brigham Young University, was elected secretary, and John Clune, director of athletics at the U.S. Air Force Academy, was elected treasurer.

Hurricanes, Gators agree to renew grid rivalry

University of Florida and University of Miami (Florida) officials have confirmed that the two schools will renew their football rivalry on an annual basis in 1996, according to the Associated Press.

AP reports, citing information published June 7 in The Miami Herald, say the Gators and Hurricanes already have scheduled games for 1996, 1997, 1999 and 2000. In confirming those games, Florida athletics director Bill Arnsparger said the schools also have agreed to play in 2001 and are negotiating for a 1998 game.

"We wanted to do 1994 and 1995, too," Arnsparger said, "but the contracts were just too tight."

As AP reported, the Hurricanes and Gators last met three years ago. Miami (Florida) won that game, 31-4. They next face each other in 1992 in Gainesville, as was announced earlier. A 1993 game at Miami also was announced previously.

"Obviously, we've been working very hard all along for this series," said Miami (Florida) athletics director Sam Jankovich. He said he contacted Arnsparger to initiate discussions regarding possible renewal of the rivalry when new Florida coach Steve Spurrier said getting the Hurricanes back on the schedule was "a top priority."

Brockport State University College professor William F. Stier Jr. is one of five American sport scholars selected by the U.S. Olympic Committee to present papers next month at the 1990 International Olympic Academy in Greece.

Stier, who will participate in the IOA's ninth educationalist session, will present a paper on women in Olympic competition (from 1896 to the present) and their involvement in Olympic governmental structure.

Also from Brockport State comes word that assistant wrestling coach John Leone has been named national collegiate assistant coach of the year by Wrestling USA magazine. A 1989 Brockport State graduate, Leone recently completed a master's degree in physical education from the school.

Former University of Oregon men's basketball player William Drozdiak delivered the 1990 commencement address at his alma mater. His speech, however, had nothing to do with sports.

Drozdiak, who earned an undergraduate degree in political science and economics in 1971, attended graduate school in Europe and began a freelance writing career there.

He has worked in various capacities for Time magazine and currently is foreign news editor of The Washington Post. Drozdiak discussed America's role in Europe in the 1990s.

Curtiss Stevens, a geography major and men's basketball player at Valparaiso University, has been selected to participate in the National Geography Institute for Talented Minority Undergraduate Students that will be held at Hunter College this summer. The program introduces students to computer and spatial analytical techniques, and the sciences of urban geography.

University of Georgia senior Kelly Parker recently was named winner of a contest sponsored by the College Football Association, which was looking for a new logo. Parker was taking a graphic design class in lettering when development of a contest entry was assigned as the final project of the semester.

Parker's was one of six designs from the class that were entered in the CFA contest (only six submissions per school were permitted). When hers was selected as the winning design, Parker received a $5,000 scholarship from the CFA. She will use the money to study next fall at the Cleveland Institute of Art in Florence, Italy.
