Special committee revises revenue-sharing proposals

After conducting hearings at three separate sites June 14, the NCAA special committee charged with making recommendations for distribution of revenues has revised some of its recommendations and now will forward its proposals to the Budget Subcommittee for review at its July 10-11 meeting in Kansas City.

Meanwhile, the committee—Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues—will continue to work on the specifics of its proposals over the next several weeks.

Two basic revenue distribution pools have been reaffirmed, one based on conference performance in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship and the other (broad-based) on an institution's sports sponsorship and the number of athletics grants-in-aid it provides.

One of the three criteria listed in the special committee's recommendations for the broad-based pool in the May 23 issue of The NCAA News tentatively has been deleted—championships participation. The special committee now has agreed to explore a formula counting sports sponsored as one-third of the base and grants-in-aid as two-thirds. It also will give further consideration to incorporating an academics enhancement or incentive component in the distribution formula.

The committee agreed that the basketball pool should be based on a conference's performance in the men's basketball championship over a six-year rolling period beginning with the 1985-1990 period.

In another change, the special committee agreed not to recommend a graduation incentive. The $8 million originally earmarked for that proposal now will be used specifically for academic enhance-

During a recent NCAA regional drug-education workshop in Los Angeles, assistant athletics director Mary Grace Colby, nurse Sandy Appleby and counselor John Berberet of Santa Clara University answer a checklist designed for planners of drug-education and student-assistance programs for athletes. The checklist summarizes concerns and questions to be considered by member institutions planning a program.

Workshops aimed at helping members establish drug-education programs

Most of the more than 200 people who attended the NCAA's three regional drug-education workshops this spring came to the sessions thinking that "teamwork" and "game plan" were terms reserved for team huddles and locker-room pep talks. But by the time they left, workshop participants understood that the terms are as important outside of athletics as they are on the playing field.

The workshops were sponsored by the NCAA to help member institutions develop drug-education and student-assistance programs for athletes. One of the major themes of the sessions was that athletics departments need to utilize existing campus resources in providing services to athletes, rather than reinventing the wheel and trying to create programs from scratch.

At the end of the workshops, each participant developed an action plan—a "game plan for success," according to the cover of the seminar workbook—for dealing with the use of alcohol and other drugs by student-athletes.

The emphasis on teamwork and game plans was more than just a way to help trainers, coaches and athletics administrators relate to the workshop. In fact, participants came from all walks of campus life, including counseling, health services, academics and physical educa-

Revenue: 80 percent goes to membership

Nearly 80 percent of NCAA revenue will be returned directly or indirectly to member institutions and conferences, according to an analysis of the revised general operating budget for 1989-90.

The four components of the budget and their percentage breakdowns are as follows: 60.5 percent will be paid directly to the membership through distributions from championships, team transportation and per diem payments, grants, and royalties.

Members will receive 18.3 percent indirectly as a part of services provided by the Association.

Benefits for student-athletes and the nation's youth amount to 3.2 percent.

The remaining 17.9 percent will be spent in operation of the national office. The latter percentage is down from the 18.4 percent projected in the original budget approved in August 1989.

The above percentages include only direct costs; no overhead or cost accounting of staff expense has been added.

New legislation on Commission's agenda

The NCAA Presidents Commission meets June 26-27 in Chicago to decide on the legislation that it wants to sponsor for the 1991 NCAA Convention.

This is the first time that the Commission has scheduled a regular meeting in the summer, a development necessitated by the new legislative calendar that went into effect this year. The June dates were selected after a survey of Commission members indicated that they would result in the best attendance.

Because the June dates are seven weeks before the August 15 deadline for submission of proposals by the Commission and the NCAA Council, the Commission may decide to make preliminary decisions regarding legislative sponsorship and authorize its four officers to make final decisions by that deadline.

In February, the Commission officers recommended that the Commission restrict its direct sponsorship this year to proposals that would reduce the time demands on student-athletes in sports other than basketball and football, thus completing the Commission's major thrust from the January 1990 Convention when basketball and football time demands were addressed.

California schools dominate 1989-90 NCAA championships

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

California's gold rush is not over yet, thanks to NCAA championships competition.

During the 1989-90 academic year, California colleges and universities towered over the rest of the nation in terms of NCAA championships.

Stanford won three 1989-90 team championships and 13 individual championships, including 11 by Cardinal women. Stanford's tennis teams swept Division I team titles, and the women also won the singles and doubles titles—the first time ever that one school has won both women's individual titles and the team title in the same year.

The Cardinal, behind national player of the year Jennifer Azzi, also won its first championship in women's basketball.

On down U.S. 101, Santa Clara won a co-championship in Division I men's soccer by tying with Virginia. It was the Broncos' first title in any sport.

In the Bay area, California jumper Sheila Hudson carried the Bears' banner in track and field, winning the long jump and triple jump at the Division I indoor and outdoor track and field championships. The final jump of her career, the triple jump at the outdoor championships at Duke, was an American-record leap of 46-0¾. The Bears also won the doubles title at the Division I Men's Tennis Championships.

Cal State Sacramento, UC Davis and Cal State Chico combined to add five individual titles and the Division II women's tennis team title (UC Davis). And Cal Poly San Luis Obispo won three Division II team titles and eight individual titles.

But, lest Texas Longhorn fans who bleed burnt orange arise in protest, it should be mentioned that Texas won three Division I team titles (two women's and one men's) and 17 individual titles. Swimming was kind to the 'Horns. Texas won the men's and women's team titles, as well as six men's and four women's individual titles.

Many other feats, both team and individual, make up this year's championships season. Names like Hobart, Kenyon, North Carolina, Arkansas, Louisiana State, Stanford, Texas, Cal State Bakersfield and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo head the list of team accomplishments, while Favor, Hudson, Straughn, Bures, Silvester, Cado, Trice and Oden are among the individual names to remember.

Call this an NCAA travelogue—a tour of the outstanding achievements of the 1989-90 championships season, including the first-ever stop for an NCAA championship outside the continental United States. The Division I Women's Volleyball Championship was contested in Honolulu last December. The occasion marked just the second championship ever contested outside the contiguous United States, the first being the 1987 men's and women's skiing championships, hosted by Alaska-Anchorage.

NCAA, NFL huddle in effort to improve working relationship

A recent effort to strengthen the working relationship between collegiate and professional football is expected to gain momentum when representatives of the NCAA, the American Football Coaches Association and the National Football League meet together today (June 20) at the NCAA national office.

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue is expected to be one of the league executives on hand to meet with NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz and four head football coaches representing the AFCA—Terry Donahue of the University of California, Los Angeles; Hayden Fry of the University of Iowa; Dick Sheridan of North Carolina State University, and LaVell Edwards of Brigham Young University.

The purpose of the meeting is to seek agreements among the groups on such problems as the effects of minicamps, scouting combines and on-campus evaluation periods on class attendance and graduation rates of student-athletes; the drafting of undergraduates, and role of player agents in the drafting and evaluation process.

At its annual meeting in Dallas earlier this month, the College Football Association approved a resolution stating that NFL scouts were no longer welcome in film rooms and facilities at member schools until the league becomes more sensitive to the problem of disruption in athletes' class time and the graduation rate of athletes.

The resolution also called for the NFL to pay for the completion of a student-athlete's education if he does not graduate.

The coaches were invited by Schultz to participate in the discussion, which earlier was scheduled to bring NFL and NCAA representatives together. At the time of Schultz's invitation, the AFCA was working to set up a meeting between members of its board of trustees and NFL officials.

Earlier this month, four NFL executives attended the summer meeting of the AFCA trustees in Dallas, Texas.

"We discussed several areas of concern that college coaches have said were hurting their players from an academic standpoint, such as the increase in minicamps and on-campus evaluation of pro prospects," said Charles McClendon, AFCA executive director. "Those who represented the NFL in our trustees meeting were very forthcoming and cooperative."

The NFL representatives were Don Weiss, NFL executive director; Jim Finks, president and general manager of the New Orleans Saints and chair of the NFL Competition Committee; Jay Moyer, assistant executive director and legal counsel for the league, and Jan Van Duser, NFL director of operations.

"They asked for a specific agenda of the things that college coaches felt needed to be addressed, along with possible solutions. That's something we're working on and will have available at our next meeting with them. McClendon said.

"Our immediate goal is to make some progress toward finding solutions that are mutually agreeable to the AFCA and NFL."

Upon receiving Schultz's invitation to attend the meeting at the NCAA national office, McClendon and AFCA President Johnny Majors of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, asked Donahue, Fry, Sheridan and Edwards to represent the coaches.

"The last thing we want is to have an adversarial relationship with professional football," Donahue said. "The NFL has agreed to sit down with the AFCA and NCAA and hammer out some agreements that will bring order to a lot of the problem areas we have been discussing."

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than July 10.

Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports: Replacement for Charles Cavagnaro, Memphis State University, designated as the Council representative on the committee, replacing Patricia A. Rogers, resigned. Cavagnaro also continues to fulfill the requirement for a director of athletics.

Men's Gymnastics Committee: Replacement for Robert H. Dvorak, Houston Baptist University, resigned. Appointee must be from Division I.

Women's Softball Committee: Replacement for Penny Brush, Chapman College, who declined reelection. Appointee must be a Division II softball representative. New member will take office effective September 1, 1990.

Recruiting Committee: Replacement for C. M. Newton, University of Kentucky, declined appointment, which was to have been effective September 1, 1990.

Basketball Officiating Committee: Replacement for David R. Gavitt, resigned from the Big East Conference to accept a position with the Boston Celtics, effective September 1, 1990. Appointee must be a representative of Division I men's basketball officiating interests and must be a conference commissioner. Gavitt must be replaced as chair. Appointments will be effective September 1, 1990.

Men's and Women's Fencing Committee: Replacement for Gil A. Pezza, Wayne State University (Michigan), resigned from the committee. Appointee must be a representative of women's fencing from the Midwest women's fencing region.

Men's Lacrosse Committee: Replacement for David R. Gavitt, resigned from the Big East Conference to accept a position with the Boston Celtics. Appointee must be an administrator and would take office September 1, 1990. Replacement for Donald J. Zimmerman, resigned from Johns Hopkins University. Replacement for Jerry Casciani, Cortland State University College, who declined the appointment, which was to have been effective September 1, 1990. Of the three appointees, one must be an administrator, one must be from Division I and one from Division III.

Water Polo Committee: Replacement for Daniel B. "Tucker" DiEdwardo, Midwestern Collegiate Conference, declined appointment, which was to have been effective September 1, 1990. Appointee must be an administrator.

COMMITTEE CHANGES

General committees

Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports: Patricia A. Rogers, University of Albany, State University of New York, has resigned from the committee. Charles Cavagnaro, Memphis State University, already serving on the committee, has been moved to the designated Council position.

Recruiting: Sarah (instead of Sara) Patterson, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa.

Sports committees

Division I-AA Football: Gil Peterson, Western Illinois University, appointed to replace Bernard F. Cooper, retired. Walter Reed, Florida A&M University, appointed to replace Cooper as chair.

Men's and Women's Skiing Committee: Lloyd F. LaCasse, University of Vermont, appointed as chair, effective September 1, 1990.

Men's and Women's Tennis: Paul Kostin, Virginia Commonwealth University, instead of University of Arkansas, Little Rock, effective June 1, 1990.

Men's and Women's Track and Field: William Terriquez Jr., Carleton College, appointed to replace John H. Homon, Mount Union College, resigned.

Wrestling: Paul Kendle's membership on this committee becomes effective September 1, 1990. He is on leave from Augustana College (South Dakota) through July. He will return to Augustana this fall. His address through July will be: Mr. Paul Kendle, P.O. Box 358, Foxcatcher Farms, Newtown Square, Pennsylvania 19073.

Special committees

Special Advisory Committee to Review Implementation of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24: Council—Thurston E. Banks, Tennessee Technological University; Ollie Bowman, Hampton University; R. Elaine Dreidame, University of Dayton; Daniel G. Gibbens, University of Oklahoma; Karen L. Miller, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. Presidents Commission—Gail Fullerton, San Jose State University; Rodney C. Kelchner, Mansfield University of Pennsylvania. Academic Requirements Committee—Jerry L. Kingston, Arizona State University; Sara N. McNabb, Indiana University, Bloomington, chair; Lorna P. Straus, University of Chicago. American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers—Jack Demitroff, University of Rhode Island. Staff liaisons—Nancy L. Mitchell, legislative services; John P. Hardt, compliance services.

Employment at summer camps or clinics

Student-athletes

Member institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 13.12.2.1.1, a student-athlete who is employed at any sports camp or clinic must meet the following requirements:

1. The student-athlete must perform duties that are of a general supervisory character, and any coaching or officiating assignment must represent not more than one-half of the student-athlete's work time, and

2. Compensation provided to the student-athlete must be commensurate with the going rate for camp or clinic counselors of like teaching ability and camp or clinic experience and may not be paid on the basis of the value that the student-athlete may have for the employer because of the athletics reputation or fame the student-athlete has achieved.

In Division I, no member of an institution's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad who has eligibility remaining may be employed or otherwise participate in that institution's basketball or football camp. A member of an institution's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad who has eligibility remaining may be employed in any camp that specializes in the sport of basketball or football other than his own institution's camp, provided not more than one men's basketball or football student-athlete from any one institution is so employed by a particular camp.

A member of an institution's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad who has eligibility remaining may be employed as a counselor in any diversified camp, including a diversified camp conducted by the student-athlete's own institution, provided no more than one member with eligibility remaining from the previous year's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad of any one member institution is so employed.

In the sport of soccer, no more than six student-athletes with eligibility remaining from the same member institution's soccer team may be employed (e.g., as counselors) in the same soccer camp or clinic. This regulation would be applicable regardless of whether the camp is conducted by the student-athlete's own institution, another member institution or a noninstitutional (i.e., private) group. In all other Division I sports, there is no limit on the number of student-athletes who may be employed (e.g., as counselors) in camps or clinics.

In Divisions II and III, a member institution (or employees of its athletics department) may employ student-athletes as counselors in the institution's camps or clinics, subject to the following conditions:

1. The student-athlete may not participate in organized practice activities, and

2. The member institution's director of athletics must give prior approval to the student-athlete's employment arrangement.

Finally, it should be noted that a student-athlete with eligibility remaining is not permitted to conduct his or her own camp or clinic.

High school, preparatory school or two-year college coaches

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 13.12.2.1, a member institution may provide an honorarium or fee to a high school, preparatory school or two-year college coach who speaks or participates at an institutional camp or clinic, with the understanding that the member institution must be able to document that the honorarium or fee provided to the coach is commensurate with similar fees paid to other individuals for like services. A member institution may not compensate or reimburse a high school, preparatory school or two-year college coach based on the number of campers the coach sends to the camp.

Athletics department staff members

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 13.12.2.3, a member institution's head or assistant coach may be involved in any member institution's sports camp or clinic, provided the coach receives compensation that is commensurate with the going rate for camp counselors of like teaching ability. In the sports of football and Division I basketball, it would not be permissible for a part-time coach who has received compensation equivalent to the value of a full grant-in-aid (based on nonresident status) during the academic year or a volunteer coach to receive compensation during the summer from the athletics department for work performed in the institution's summer camp. Also, as noted in an earlier Legislative Assistance column (Column No. 10, March 8, 1990), it is not permissible for an athletics department staff member in the sports of men's basketball or football to be employed at any noninstitutional (i.e., privately owned) basketball or football camp.

Finally, in all divisions, no athletics department staff member may be employed (either on a salaried or volunteer basis) by a camp or clinic established, sponsored or conducted by an individual or organization that provides recruiting or scouting services (i.e., physical statistics or academic records) concerning prospective student-athletes.

Nicholls State joins Southland

Nicholls State University has accepted an invitation to join the Southland Conference.

It was the second recent expansion by the conference. Nicholls and the University of Texas, San Antonio, which accepted a Southland bid June 15, will become conference members with the start of the 1991-92 school year.

"This is a major step in the growth of the athletics program at Nicholls State and an important step for the university as well," said Phil Greco, director of athletics. "Being a member of the Southland Conference gives us credibility throughout the nation."

To meet conference requirements, Nicholls will add indoor track, while Texas-San Antonio will add baseball and softball for the 1991-92 season. Now a member of the Trans America Athletic Conference, Texas-San Antonio must give a year's notice before joining the Southland Conference.

Now an independent, Nicholls State belonged to the Gulf South Conference (1972-78), the Trans America Athletic Conference (1983-84) and the Gulf Star Conference (1984-86).

New NCAA legislative calendar will go into effect July 1

When this issue of The NCAA News rolled off the presses, less than 11 days remained for member institutions and conferences to submit legislative proposals for the Association's 1991 Convention—the first to use the new legislative calendar approved by the membership with adoption of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 68.

July 1 is the new filing deadline for proposals from the membership.

Other aspects of the legislative process also were changed by adoption of Proposal No. 68. With time running out, here is a brief summary of information needed to file amendments by the deadline (Note: Questions regarding any aspect of the new legislative calendar should be directed to Daniel T. Dutcher, legislative assistant, in the Association's national office):

- Eight sponsors now are required for proposals from the membership.
- Each proposal must be signed by the chief executive officer of every sponsor or by the CEO's designee. CEOs must notify the Association's national office in writing if and to whom they delegate this responsibility.
- Proposals from voting member conferences must be signed by the league's CEO on behalf of at least eight members who wish to sponsor the proposal.

- Proposals must be accompanied by a statement of rationale not to exceed 200 words, and the name of the sponsors' primary contact person must be included.

- Proposed amendments that are in proper form (e.g., with the necessary signatures) will be accepted by fax. Those filing proposals in this manner should do so through the legislative services department (fax number 913/339-0032) no later than 5 p.m. (Central time) July 1.

Between July 1 and July 15,

NCAA staff members and the Legislative Review Committee will develop final language on proposed amendments. Proposals will be published and distributed to the membership by August 1.

Any time between July 1 and September 1, sponsors may submit amendments-to-amendments that may alter in any germane way their initial submissions.

From September 1 through October 15, "regular" amendments-to-amendments (i.e., those that may not increase the modification of a proposal) may be submitted. However, amendments-to-amendments now require eight sponsors instead of one.

August 15 is the new deadline for legislative proposals submitted by the NCAA Presidents Commission and the Council.

Also under the new calendar, the Council (by two-thirds vote) may submit amendments-to-amendments and resolutions up to the Convention itself. Such submissions will be made with enough time to permit distribution to Convention delegates of the Council-proposed changes.

More information on the new legislative calendar and the amendment-filing process appeared in the April 4 and May 16 issues of The NCAA News.

Workshops

Workshop presenters Roger Svendsen and Tom Griffin of the Minnesota Institute of Public Health stressed team-building and planning because that's what works best.

"We didn't have to sell anybody on the idea that there is a problem out there," Svendsen said. "Clearly, there is an awareness that drug and alcohol use by college students, including athletes, is a serious problem. At the workshops, the people who work with students addressed this area comprehensively. They were looking at the big picture, not responding in a crisis atmosphere."

"Participants started planning a total team effort in which all areas of the athletics department and the entire campus collaborate to help educate student-athletes about the use and abuse of alcohol and other drugs," Griffin said. "They worked with us and with other participants to develop policies and procedures based on their own needs and situations."

Although Griffin, Svendsen and other experts provided a general framework for the development of drug-education and student-assistance programs, the workshops were driven largely by the participants. Many benefited as much from the presentation material as they did from interacting with each other.

"It was interesting to listen to the group-discussion sessions and hear what other schools have encountered and what they're doing with their programs," said Tammy McKenna, assistant trainer at the University of Northern Colorado. "The group discussions gave us the chance to throw ideas around with people from schools all over the country—East, West and everywhere in between."

"I didn't have a very good idea of what was going on in drug education across the country," said McKenna, who coordinates Northern Colorado's program for athletes. "I got some great ideas from schools that I never would have had contact with otherwise."

One idea that McKenna brought back to her campus is the development of a three-credit drug-education course that would be required for all incoming student-athletes. The course also would deal with other health and safety issues affecting students, such as AIDS and date rape. She already has met with university administration and faculty to build support for her program.

Jeff Compher, assistant athletics director at North Carolina State University, shares McKenna's enthusiasm for the discussion sessions.

"The entire workshop was fantastic," said Compher, who used to work in community drug-use prevention. "But the strongest session was when we discussed the roadblocks that we expected to encounter in developing our programs and brainstormed ideas on how to break them. From this discussion, we were able to see how a program could work in our own particular university."

Compher plans to enlist the help of North Carolina State's student-development office, health service and counseling center in his department's drug-education program. His goal is to make it part of the developing Student-Enhancement Program, which will help student-athletes in all areas of life.

Griffin credits the participants for the success of the workshops. Their needs determined the content of the discussions and the emphasis of the presentations. As a result, alcohol was a primary topic of con-

A checklist designed for planners of drug-education and student-assistance programs for athletes is reviewed during a recent NCAA drug-education workshop in Los Angeles by three representatives of the University of California, Los Angeles—Dr. Gary Green, a team physician; health educator Cece Freeman, and sports psychologist William Parham. The checklists contain questions member institutions should consider in planning a program.

"If you ask the people responsible for campus drug-education programs what their needs are, they say they need help fighting alcohol abuse," he said. "There was a definite focus on alcohol as the biggest problem, both among athletes and students in general."

This is another area in which Svendsen and Griffin had something unique to offer. They presented the concept of "chemical health," which acknowledges that alcohol can be used legally, moderately and appropriately. This concept tears down the wall between users and nonusers, allowing occasional, moderate users to be grouped with nonusers as people who are chemically healthy. Unhealthy users are those who develop problems in athletics, academics and interpersonal behavior.

This middle ground between non-use and irresponsible use is important because it is a "realistic look at providing guidelines for students and athletes regarding healthy, safe choices about alcohol use," Svendsen said.

Workshop materials included worksheets and guidelines for establishing what is appropriate alcohol usage and what is unhealthy and dangerous. Also included were suggestions for holding events both with and without alcohol.

Although an overwhelming majority of workshop evaluations were positive, several participants said they doubted their ability to return to campus and train staff or conduct sessions with athletes. Svendsen believes this is due to a lack of experience in dealing with drug-abuse issues.

"Historically, this area is not part of the training or expertise in athletics," he said. "People see the need, see what needs to be done, but it's not part of their training or responsibility. Therefore, they are a little uneasy about forming a team to tackle this issue."

Griffin acknowledged that helping participants feel more comfortable about leading staff training would be an area for improvement in future workshops, which would have to be approved by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

However, most participants had high praise for the workshops and their emphasis on team-building and planning. Compher's response was typical: "The idea of coordinating and incorporating the whole university in the drug-education program is great. I was aware of the concept and always thought it was a good idea. But the workshop gave us the tools to put it all together."

Special committee

ment. The specific way in which that will be accomplished is to be determined as the committee continues to refine and further develop its recommendations.

It was also agreed that a portion of the revenue should not be placed in a membership trust as originally proposed for consideration; instead, this concept will be reviewed in later years of the television contract with CBS Sports. If it appears necessary in view of future negotiations, it may be recommended that enough revenue be set aside to pay for one year's transportation and per diem for all championships.

In another significant change from the original recommendations, it is now proposed that the official travel party for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship be increased to 75 for first- and second-round games and regionals and to 100 for the Final Four. A per diem of $150 has been recommended for all rounds. Originally, the recommendation called for a travel party of 75 and a per diem of $120 for all rounds.

Membership representation was fewer than 50 at the three June 14 hearings combined.

Based on the special committee's preliminary calculations, it is expected that distribution to Division I members will be $70 to $75 million.

Revenue distribution from the 1990 men's basketball championship was under $40 million.

The revised recommendations are as follows:

Recommendations

- Provide catastrophic-injury insurance for student-athletes in all three divisions.

- Enhance funding for all Divisions II and III championships by increasing official traveling parties for team championships, providing reimbursement for nonathletes in individual-team championships and increasing per diem to $60.

- Allocate $3 million to increase the official traveling parties and per diem for Division I and National Collegiate Championships.

- Increase the official traveling party for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship to 75 for first- and second-round games and regionals and to 100 for the Final Four, and per diem to $150 for all rounds.

- Establish a fund for needy Division I student-athletes.
- Provide inflationary increase for conference grant program.
- Increase number and amount of postgraduate and degree-completion scholarships.
- Phase in a $3 million enhancement of Division II, with revenue to be distributed among all Division II institutions.

- Distribution formula—Recommended two pools: "Basketball pool," based on conference's performance in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship over a six-year rolling average (beginning with 1985-1990 period), and "broad-based pool," with specific criteria to be determined and refined.

News to publish every two weeks

This issue of The NCAA News completes the weekly publication schedule for 1989-90. The News will be published biweekly throughout the summer.

Issues will be published July 4 and 18 and August 1, 15 and 29. The weekly publication schedule for 1990-91 will begin September 10 with the first of 13 Monday issues that will be published during the college football season.

CWS might achieve status rivaling Final Four

By John Hendel

The College World Series is taking the same path to popularity as college basketball's Final Four.

The path is determined by television, with its millions of dollars and ability to take the game in places it has never before been.

The result is that the College World Series is one of the most popular college sporting events in the country and is on a course of great growth.

Like basketball, which grabbed the national attention with its 1979 title game between Earvin Johnson's Michigan State Spartans and the Indiana State team that featured Larry Bird, the CWS title game is gaining much more attention now that it is on a broadcast network.

"More and more people are having exposure to college baseball," said Gene McArtor, chair of the NCAA Division I Baseball Committee and head coach at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

Gene McArtor

"Television made a major difference there," he said.

"(Because of that) I think we are seeing a much greater commitment on the part of many institutions to build attractive facilities to try to get fans in the stadium. More people are seeing our game and being exposed to the games," McArtor said.

Money is another reason for the increased interest on college campuses and particularly in the department of athletics offices. With CBS-TV joining ESPN in television coverage of the CWS, teams are having to wade through the TV money strewn before them.

This year's CWS finalists — Georgia and Oklahoma State — will take home in excess of $40,000. While the figure is much less than the record $60,000 check pulled in by 1989 titlist Wichita State, the NCAA "flattened the pyramid" to give the teams that don't have good CWS showings good paydays, too. In 1989, the first two teams eliminated earned less than $9,000. The first teams out in 1990 left with more than $18,000.

The game is also prospering on the regional level of the NCAA tournament, although McArtor admits that that is the case only when teams in the tournament host regionals.

"We've got a lot of people who are interested in hosting (regionals)," he said. "So we have some tough decisions to make. And yet, the host situation is probably not as broad-based as we'd like it to be, because we're starting to achieve some tremendous financial results from our regionals and a lot of people just can't keep up with the tremendous bids that are being submitted by a certain number of institutions."

McArtor said the committee will consider going to completely neutral regional sites, but experiments along that line in recent years have not shown much success.

McArtor said expansion from the current 48-team field was almost a certainty — but he would not guess as to when — but the tournament will not evolve into one that invites every Division I team, although it would be possible within the double-elimination format to add 16 teams to the field.

But coaches do like the idea of trekking to Omaha every spring, and they like the idea of splitting the eight College World Series qualifiers into two brackets, a move that all but assures that the CWS can be completed on a certain day at a certain time — a must as far as network television is concerned.

McArtor said, "It's hard to get coaches to agree on anything 100 percent, but for most coaches, the name 'Omaha' is synonymous with the College World Series. It's gotten to the point many times that when a team establishes its goals at the beginning of the year, it talks about going to Omaha."

McArtor points out that not every one of the 270 Division I teams is "operating at the same level" and that there are many "that are having to scratch and fight for everything."

In general, however, the sport thrives.

"College baseball, rather than being a tag-along sport, or just something to offer in the spring," said McArtor, "has really come into its own as a unique sport that has its own appeal."

Some coaches might not be all that happy with super leagues

"Any coach who wants to go into a 'superleague,' man, I question the wisdom of that from the coach's standpoint.

"There is one given, and that is 50 percent are going to win and 50 percent are going to lose. Anybody who wants to line up against Tennessee and Alabama and Auburn and the four or five more schools they're talking about... gee, talking about butting your head against the wall.

I-A athletics directors support extra aid to needy athletes

The Division I-A Directors Association voted June 12 to propose legislation to the 1991 NCAA Convention that would permit needy student-athletes to receive financial assistance above the full athletics grant-in-aid.

The directors from Division I-A member institutions, meeting during the silver anniversary convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics on Marco Island, Florida, approved a proposal introduced by Georgia Institute of Technology athletics director Homer C. Rice.

The proposal, which must be sponsored by eight Division I institutions and submitted to the NCAA by the July 1 deadline for 1991 legislative proposals, would make student-athletes with exceptional financial need eligible to receive aid beyond tuition, fees, and room and board. Georgia Tech will be a sponsor of the proposal.

NACDA agreed to survey its membership on views about the working relationship between athletics directors and chief executive officers and to conduct a vote by mail on whether junior student-athletes should be eligible for the National Football League draft without loss of eligibility.

The survey on the relationship between athletics directors and presidents is intended as part of an effort to bring the two groups closer together.

"The ADs need to be part of the solution," said Milo R. Lude, director of athletics at the University of Washington. "The Division I-A ADs want to convey to the Knight Commission and the Presidents Commission that we want to help. We hear the message. There is going to be reform."

Regarding the NFL draft, a straw vote of directors present at the association's meeting indicated that the ADs believe a junior student-athlete who declares for the draft but does not sign a contract should be permitted to return to his school and participate in football.

"By no means do we encourage, nor do we wish the pros to encourage, young people to leave school early for the draft," said Lude.

The directors also discussed cost-containment issues and stated that they hope cuts in grants-in-aid will not be greater than 10 percent across the board.

Association members also said they realize cuts will be necessary both in grants and in athletics personnel but added that they hope those cuts will be smaller than have been proposed by the NCAA Special Committee on Cost Reduction.

Cost reduction concerns I-A ADs

Cost reduction is the foremost concern of Division I-A athletics directors, according to a poll conducted by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

The poll was conducted during NACDA's silver anniversary convention on Marco Island, Florida, June 10-13.

Recruiting is the No. 1 way the ADs think costs can be reduced. The poll result was 88 percent in favor to 17 percent opposed of reducing the number of paid campus visits by recruits in football from 85 to 70, and 94 percent to six percent for reducing basketball visits from 18 to 15. A reduction in the number of off-campus visits was favored by 85 percent of the I-A ADs (64 percent favored a reduction from five to four; 21 percent from five to three).

A reduction in the number of coaches was the next most popular method for cost reduction. The membership favored reductions in the number of assistant and graduate assistant coaches in each sport (except basketball), 83 percent to 17 percent. The results were 78 percent to 22 percent for reducing the basketball coaching staff.

On grants, the ADs were divided on reductions in football (51 percent yes, 49 percent no) and basketball (57 percent yes, 43 percent no). They were supportive of a 10 percent reduction in all other sports (except women's gymnastics, women's tennis and women's volleyball) but hope that cuts will be less than 10 percent.

"We hope that if it is agreed upon to make cuts, it's not 10 percent across the board," said Milo R. Lude, athletics director at the University of Washington. "We'd prefer it to be somewhat less, but we don't expect zero cuts."

The poll revealed that the ADs do not favor athletes' receiving stipends, but the questionnaire failed to ask the ADs whether they would support need-based stipends.

The ADs are also in favor of reducing the time demands on student-athletes. The poll results show 90 percent favor limiting the time each week an athlete can spend on a sport. They also favor a reduction in the length of playing seasons and the number of games played in all sports except basketball.

Of significant problems facing college sports today, substance abuse, academic eligibility and recruiting violations each were listed by 23 percent of the ADs as concerns. Some of the points of the 32 percent who chose "other" concerns include public perception of collegiate athletics, financial problems and cost containment.

NACDA elects TCU director

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics June 13 elected Frank Windegger, director of athletics at Texas Christian University, to serve as president for 1990-91.

The more than 800 NACDA members attending the organization's silver anniversary convention on Marco Island, Florida, also elected four other officers to 1990-91 terms.

Elected were: first vice-president, Sam Jankovich, director of athletics, University of Miami (Florida); second vice-president, Bill Byrne, director of athletics, University of Oregon, and third vice-president, James L. Jones, director of athletics, Ohio State University. In addition, Elizabeth A. Kruczek, director of athletics at Fitchburg State College, begins her second year as secretary.

Yale names Lim as assistant AD

Colleen Lim, a member of the Association's national office staff since May 1989, has been named assistant athletics director at Yale University. At Yale, she will be responsible for compliance, athletics budgeting and scheduling, and oversight of home-game management and team travel.

Colleen Lim

Lim has been an assistant youth programs coordinator in the NCAA administration department.

A California native, Lim was a two-sport (field hockey and women's basketball) student-athlete while an undergraduate at the University of California, Berkeley. She later earned a master's degree and teaching credentials in physical education from Stanford University.

Lim has taught at the high school and junior high levels. She joined the NCAA from Mills College in Oakland, California, where she served as head women's basketball coach and associate athletics director.

NCAA postgraduate scholarships awarded to 55

Postgraduate scholarships have been awarded to 55 student-athletes in sports other than basketball and football in which the NCAA conducts championships.

The $4,000 scholarships are awarded to student-athletes who maintain a cumulative grade-point average of at least 3.000 (4.000 scale) and perform with distinction in varsity competition.

Including the 1990 winners, the NCAA has awarded postgraduate scholarships to 2,104 student-athletes in sports other than football and basketball. These student-athletes have received $3,864,000 in scholarship assistance since the program began in 1964.

The NCAA annually awards 100 postgraduate scholarships. In addition to the following 55 winners, 25 awards were presented to student-athletes in football and 20 in basketball at NCAA member institutions.

Following are some of the accomplishments of the 1990 postgraduate scholarship winners in sports other than football and basketball:

Men's Division I

James W. Childs (tennis, University of Georgia, 3.970 grade-point average in accounting)—Childs is a member of the Golden Key, Zodiac and Blue Key honor societies. As a junior, he was named the university's outstanding accounting student and was selected as a GTE Academic All-America. Childs is a three-time all-Southeastern Conference academic pick and helped his Georgia team to the 1987 NCAA team championship. He is an SEC champion at No. 5 singles and No. 3 doubles. Childs plans to pursue a master's degree in business administration.

Andrew J. Dechet (soccer, Princeton University, 3.921 grade-point average in German languages and literatures)—Dechet is a 1990 Rhodes Scholar and will study English literature at Oxford for two years. He was given the Mary Chunningham-Humphreys Junior Prize, in recognition of his outstanding achievement in the German department. Dechet was the editor of Princeton's student literary magazine, the Wu Review, and served as a dormitory resident adviser for two years. On the field, Dechet led the Ivy League in scoring his final two years and was a first-team all-Ivy League selection.

Patrick W. Kirksey (gymnastics, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 3.617 grade-point average in finance)—Kirksey is a three-time academic all-Big Eight selection and is a member of the college of business administration's dean's list. He recently ended his collegiate career by guiding Nebraska to its seventh NCAA team championship. Individually, he finished first in the parallel bars, third on the pommel horse and fourth in all-around competition. Kirksey won 10 career Big Eight championships and led the Cornhuskers to three conference titles.

Brent D. Lang (swimming, University of Michigan, 3.820 grade-point average in industrial and operations engineering)—Lang is first-team GTE Academic All-America as well as a four-time Big Ten academic selection. He is a member of the Tau Beta Pi engineering honor society. Lang was an Olympic gold medalist in 1988. He is a four-time NCAA individual champion and was named the Big Ten's swimmer of the year in 1988. Lang plans to pursue his master's degree in business administration.

Ray L. Looze, Jr. (swimming, University of Southern California, 3.750 grade-point average in business administration)—Looze was a finalist for the NCAA's Walter Byers Scholarship and also was a Rhodes Scholar finalist. He is a four-time academic all-America and is a member of the Golden Key Honor Society. A second-place finisher in the 400-yard individual medley at the 1990 NCAA championships, Looze is a member of the 1990 United States Goodwill Games team and the U.S. national team. He plans to study law at Southern California.

Burke E. Masters (baseball, Mississippi State University, 4.000 grade-point average in mathematics)—Masters is a member of the Omicron Delta Kappa honor fraternity and the Society of Scholars, recognizing the top one percent of arts and sciences students. He was the GTE academic baseball player of the year in 1989. Masters led Mississippi State to four NCAA regional appearances and one College World Series appearance. He finished his career as the Bulldogs' career leader in hits with 295. Masters plans to study statistics at Duke or Vanderbilt.

Men's Divisions II-III

Stephen T. Adelman (track and field, University of California, Davis, 3.605 grade-point average in aeronautical science and engineering)—Adelman is a member of Phi Mu Epsilon (national math honor society) and Tau Beta Pi (national engineering honor society) as well as being a member of the Golden Key Honor Society. Adelman was the 1990 NCAA Division II champion in the hammer throw. He placed ninth at the Division I championships and owns the UC Davis school record for the hammer. He plans to pursue a master's degree in engineering at UC Davis.

David W. Clarke (rifle, University of Tennessee, Martin, 4.000 grade-point average in chemistry)—Clarke is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society and the University Scholars Organization. Active in student government, Clarke is the student body vice-president and senior class representative. He has received his school's outstanding student award in arts and sciences four consecutive years. Clarke guided his team to three NCAA championships appearances. The Pacers were fourth at the 1990 NCAA competition. Clarke was chosen as an all-America by the National Rifle Association. He will begin work in the doctoral program in chemistry at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in the fall.

Guy M. Genin (swimming, Case Western Reserve University, 3.810 grade-point average in civil engineering)—Genin is a three-time GTE Academic All-America and a member of the dean's highest honors list each semester. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi honor society and the American Society of Civil Engineers. Genin also participated in the marching band. An all-America in seven events, Genin owns school records in two individual events and is a member of four record-setting relay teams. He is currently enrolled in the master's program at Case Western studying for a degree in engineering mechanics.

Stephen G. Goodson (soccer, Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges, 3.490 grade-point average in mathematics)—Goodson was honored as an Achievement Rewards for College Scientists scholarship recipient twice. He was an honorable mention scholar-athlete selection by Adidas. Goodson was named first-team all-America and the Claremont-Mudd-Scripps athlete of the year. He holds school records for career-goals-allowed average, goals-allowed average in a single season and career shut-outs. Goodson will pursue a doctorate in mathematics at Wisconsin.

Theodore S. Price (wrestling, University of Wisconsin, Parkside, 3.230 grade-point average in psychology)—Price is a member of the dean's list and was twice selected to the NCAA Division II academic wrestling team by the National Wrestling Coaches Association. He was the alumni association's outstanding scholar-athlete. Price was an NCAA runner-up and national champion at 167 pounds during his career. He finished with a career won-lost record of 143-33-1 and broke school records for career takedowns and single-season takedowns. He plans to pursue a master's degree in education.

William E. Singhose (track and field, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 4.940 grade-point average (5.000 scale) in mechanical engineering)—Singhose is a Phi Beta Kappa and received the Dewitt Wallace writing prize as a senior. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. Singhose was the 1989 NCAA Division III decathlon champion and was the 1990 runner-up. He owns school records in the decathlon, pentathlon and pole vault. Chosen the MIT senior athlete of the year, Singhose is a seven-time Division III all-America. He will begin his master's degree work in mechanical engineering at Stanford in the fall.

Men's at-large

Jonathan A. Cordish (tennis, Brandeis University, 3.850 grade-point average in English literature)—Cordish received Phi Beta Kappa honors as a senior and was voted a GTE Academic All-America twice. He has been named to the dean's list eight semesters. Cordish was selected for the NCAA championships three years and accumulated a dual-match record of 30-18 at Nos. 1 and 2 singles. He was 24-12 in his career at Nos. 1 and 2 doubles. He hopes to pursue a doctorate in English literature at Harvard.

Robert R. Crawford (wrestling, University of Missouri, Columbia, 3.940 grade-point average in industrial engineering and business)—Crawford received the Industrial Engineering Award for Academic Excellence at Missouri and was a three-time member of the academic all-Big Eight team. Crawford finished seventh in the 118-pound weight class at the 1990 NCAA championships. He ended his career with a 97-34-1 record and was named Missouri's outstanding wrestler. He is currently enrolled in a master's program, studying business administration and industrial engineering at Missouri.

Gary M. Durham (golf, New Mexico State University, 3.978 grade-point average in finance)—Durham was recently named New Mexico State's male scholar-athlete of the year after being named an all-America scholar by the Golf Coaches Association of America. He has been on the national dean's list three straight years and was a second-team GTE Academic All-America selection. Durham plans to pursue a master's degree in business administration at Stanford, Duke or Northwestern.

Charles P. Heise (wrestling, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, 3.660 grade-point average in genetics and cell biology)—Heise graduated magna cum laude from the college of biological science honors program where he has been active in molecular biology research. He will co-author a publication on the subject. He is a four-time Williams Scholar and a three-time Big Ten academic team selection. Heise was ranked fifth in the nation in the 142-pound weight class. He was the Big Ten champion at that position. He will study medicine at the University of Minnesota medical school or at the Mayo Clinic.

Bengt A. Hunter (track and field, Louisiana State University, 3.690 grade-point average in international trade and finance)—Hunter is a member of the Beta Gamma Sigma, Phi Eta Sigma and Mortar Board honor societies. He has been named to the Southeastern Conference Scholar-Athlete Honor Roll three times. Hunter finished fifth in the decathlon at both the 1989 and 1990 NCAA championships. LSU claimed the team title both times. Hunter, a member of the Swedish national track and field team, finished seventh in the decathlon at last summer's World University Games. He hopes to begin work on a master's degree in business administration at UCLA, Southern California or Stanford.

Daniel M. Jansen (track and field, University of Wisconsin, Platteville, 4.000 grade-point average in history)—Jansen is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society and is a first-team GTE Academic All-America. He was active as a research assistant in the history department and served two terms as president of the history club. Jansen placed ninth in the high jump at the 1990 NCAA indoor championships. He is a five-time indoor and outdoor all-America and holds the school's high jump record. Jansen plans to earn a master's degree in history from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Raoul B. Karp (track and field, Rice University, 3.810 grade-point average in civil engineering)—Karp received the award as Rice's outstanding junior and senior civil engineer. He has earned both the Max Roy Engineering Scholarship and the L.J. Walsh Scholarship. Karp is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Rice Investment Club and the Rice University Honor Society. He served as the track team captain and was a two-time qualifier for the NCAA championships as a member of Rice's 1,600-meter relay team. He will study business management at Texas, Duke, Stanford or Rice.

Kenneth L. Kemper (gymnastics, United States Air Force Academy, 3.730 grade-point average in behavioral science—human behavior and leadership)—Kemper won the Western Athletic Conference scholar-athlete award four years in a row. He was on the dean's list for academic excellence seven semesters and was recognized as the top student in his major course of study. Kemper was the 1990 WAC gymnast of the year and was a Rhodes Scholar nominee. He plans to pursue a master of science degree in industrial/organizational psychology at Illinois.

Scott G. King (ice hockey, University of Maine, 3.400 grade-point average in biology)—King was a U Maine Presidential Scholar and a U Maine Scholar-Athlete. He received the Fay Hyland Outstanding Biology Student award his senior year and also received the Maine Hockey Academic Achievement Award. King holds 10 school records and was a 1990 first-team all-Hockey East and all-New England selection. He was the Hockey East goalie of the year in 1987 and 1988. King plans to study medicine.

Scott G. King

Paul H. Koenig (wrestling, South Dakota State University, 3.650 grade-point average in agricultural business and economics)—Koenig is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi and Omicron Delta Epsilon honor fraternities. He received the Kohlmeier Scholarship in 1989 and the Economics Faculty Scholarship in 1990. He is active in the economics club and W.E.I.S. campus ministry. Koenig finished his career with a 91-35 record, sixth on the all-time win list at South Dakota State. He is a two-time NCAA Division II all-America, finishing second in 1990 in the heavyweight division and fifth in 1989 at 190 pounds. Koenig plans to study accounting at Mankato State.

Richard A. Perugini (soccer, Yale University, 3.945 grade-point average in molecular biophysics and biochemistry)—Perugini graduated summa cum laude and with distinction in his major. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and received the Francis Gordon Brown Prize in 1989 for the Yale junior who is the best example of a scholar-athlete. As a fullback, he was first-team all-Ivy League pick twice and an Adidas first-team academic all-America. During his career, Yale won two Ivy League championships and made two NCAA play-off appearances. Perugini will study medicine at either Cornell or Connecticut.

William F. Reifsnider (baseball, Barry University, 3.676 grade-point average in political science)—Reifsnider was a Rhodes Scholar nominee as a senior and has been on the president's list twice and on the dean's list five times. He is a GTE Academic All-America selection and was chosen as Barry's senior scholar-athlete. He has served as a legislative intern and a judicial intern. Reifsnider was his team's most valuable player after starting four years at first base. He was voted Barry's male athlete of the year in 1989-90. Reifsnider plans to study law at Florida or Texas.

Christopher M. Scaglione (soccer, Washington University (Missouri), 3.340 grade-point average in electrical engineering and business)—Scaglione was named the John M. Olin School of Business Outstanding Student-Athlete and the Omicron Delta Kappa Outstanding Student Leader in 1990. Scaglione is a three-time NCAA Division III all-America selection and has been named to the all-Midwest team three times. He played in 72 career games and owns the school record for career-goals-allowed average (0.93). Scaglione is currently enrolled in the master's program at Washington (Missouri) working toward a degree in business administration.

James M. Surowiec (swimming, Oakland University, 3.430 grade-point average in journalism)—Surowiec received commendations every semester for his academic achievements. He was a staff reporter and cartoonist for the Oakland Post, the university's student newspaper. He earned all-America honors nine times, finishing second in the 100-yard breaststroke at the 1990 NCAA Division II championships. He was also a member of four national-championship relay teams and helped his team to four straight runner-up finishes at the NCAA meet. He plans to study law at Detroit or Wayne State (Michigan).

Ian R. Swift (cross country/track and field, Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science, 3.680 grade-point average in biochemistry)—Swift has been a member of the dean's list five semesters and recently received the Humanities and Social Sciences Award. He was active as a dormitory resident assistant and was a member of the Einstein Club. Swift qualified for the NCAA Division II cross country championships and was a two-time Midwest Conference champion. He holds school records in 1,500 meters, mile and 3,000 meters both indoors and outdoors. He will begin medical school in the fall at Penn State.

Mark A. Warburton (gymnastics, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 3.914 grade-point average in English)—Warburton is a three-time academic all-Big Eight selection and a member of the dean's list for three years. He was Nebraska's student-athlete of the year in 1990. Warburton was a four-time Big Eight champion and a three-time NCAA all-America. At the 1990 NCAA championships, he placed second on the parallel bars, sixth on the still rings and seventh all-around to help Nebraska to its seventh NCAA title. Warburton plans to study literature in the master's program at Nebraska.

Russell A. Wincheski (wrestling, College of William and Mary, 3.908 grade-point average in physics)—Wincheski is a member of Phi Beta Kappa honor society and has been on the dean's list four semesters. He is active as a camp counselor at the St. Andrews Camp for Learning Disabled Children. Wincheski qualified for the NCAA Division I championships three times. Wincheski's career record was 111-33-4 with 24 pins. He won the Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association's 150-pound weight class title in 1990. After working at NASA for a year, he plans to earn a doctorate in physics.

Brian Wujcik (baseball, University of Iowa, 3.380 grade-point average in communication studies)—Wujcik has been enrolled in the University of Iowa honors program and was a member of the dean's list for three semesters. He was a Pullman Scholarship winner and a Phillips 66 Classroom Champion. Wujcik led the Big Ten in hitting with a .459 average. He helped Iowa win the Big Ten championship and was nationally ranked in batting average for the year. Wujcik holds the conference records for runs batted in in a single game (10) and for doubles in one season (11). He plans to enroll in the graduate program at Columbia.

Women's Division I

Ann E. Colloton (swimming, University of Michigan, 3.537 grade-point average in sociology)—Colloton has been selected as academic all-Big Ten four years and as a GTE Academic All-America two years. She received the Marie Hartwig Scholarship in 1989 and 1990, recognizing her as the Michigan female student-athlete who excels in high academic achievement, varsity competition, and university and community involvement. Colloton is active in the Christian Service Commission at St. Mary's Catholic Church. She was first in the 200-yard breaststroke at the 1989 NCAA championships and third at the 1990 national meet. She was a four-time Big Ten champion and owns the conference record in the 200 breaststroke. Colloton was voted the 1989 Big Ten Swimmer of the Year and Michigan Big Ten Athlete of the Year. She is a member of the College Swim Coaches Association all-academic team. She plans to pursue a master's degree in social work.

Jolanda F. Jones (track and field, University of Houston, 3.730 grade-point average in political science)—Jones was a member of the dean's list nine semesters and was named a GTE Academic All-America three years. She received an NCAA Top Six Award in 1989 and was a Rhodes Scholar nominee. Jones was a member of the Southwest Athletic Conference Sportsmanship Committee and a member of the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics. Jones is a three-time NCAA Division I heptathlon champion. She placed first in that event at the United States championships in 1989. She is a three-time Southwest Conference high jump champion. She plans to study law at Stanford, Louisiana State, Houston or Howard.

Meredith L. Rainey (track and field, Harvard University, 3.330 grade-point average in social studies)—Rainey received the Harvard College Scholarship for high academic achievement in 1989 and was on the dean's list for six semesters. She is a co-chairman of the Harvard Radcliffe Foundation for Women's Athletics and a member of the Harvard Radcliffe Black Students Association. She set an NCAA record in the indoor 800 meters. She won the 800 meters at the 1989 NCAA championships and at the 1990 indoor meet. She is a two-time NCAA all-America and a member of the United States' team for the World University Games. Rainey hopes to pursue a master's degree in government at Stanford after trying out for the U.S. Olympic team.

Marie L. Roethlisberger (gymnastics, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, 3.690 grade-point average in biochemistry)—Roethlisberger won the 1989 Honda Broderick Inspiration Award and was a GTE Academic All-America selection. She is a member of the Golden Key National Honor Society and Phi Kappa Phi honor society. She also won the Donald R. Zander Leadership Award. Roethlisberger was chosen as the NCAA's outstanding senior gymnast in 1990 after winning the uneven bars at the NCAA championships. She was the Big Ten's all-around champion in 1987 and 1989, the Big Ten uneven bars champion, and the conference vault and beam champion in 1989. Roethlisberger hopes to attend medical school at Minnesota or Stanford.

Virginia M. Stahr (volleyball, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 3.907 grade-point average in psychology)—Stahr was a member of the dean's list for three years. She was Nebraska's student-athlete of the year in 1990. Warburton was a four-time Big Eight champion and a three-time NCAA all-America. At the 1990 NCAA champion-average in elementary education)—Stahr has received an NCAA Top Six award, the Woody Hayes Scholar Athlete award, the Delta Airlines Scholar Athlete award and was recently named the Big Eight's Female Athlete of the Year. She was the GTE Academic All-America of the Year in 1988-89 and was a finalist for the NCAA's Walter Byers Scholarship. Stahr has received a 1990-91 NCAA internship. She led Nebraska to a second-place finish at the 1989 NCAA Division I championships and was second in the nation in hitting with a .440 percentage. She holds school records for service aces (159), kills (1,395), career hitting (.401) and total blocks (555). Stahr is currently enrolled in the master's program for curriculum and instruction at Nebraska.

Women's Divisions II-III

Kathryn L. Cottingham (lacrosse, Drew University, 4.170 grade-point average in biology and mathematics)—Cottingham was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa in 1989 and was one of two New Jersey recipients of a Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship. She was the secretary for Beta Beta Beta Biological Society and has been on the dean's list every semester. She received a Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation Fellowship. She was a team captain and led Drew to two NCAA Division III tournaments. She is the sixth leading scorer in school history. Cottingham will pursue a master's degree in limnology at Wisconsin.

Ann C. Dannhauer (cross country/track and field, Williams College, 3.580 grade-point average in biology)—Dannhauer received the Class of 1960 Scholar in Biology award in 1989 and 1990. She also received the David Taggart Clark Prize for Latin. She is active in the student orchestra and volunteers at local hospitals. Dannhauer won the 1,500 meters at the 1989 NCAA Division III outdoor championships and was fifth at the 1990 meet. She owns school records in both the 800 meters and the 1,500 meters. Dannhauer will attend medical school at Rochester or Washington.

Yvonne M. Grierson (swimming, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 4.200 grade-point average (5.000 scale) in mechanical engineering)—Grierson is a three-time winner of the Douglas B. Martin Scholarship for Academic Achievement in Engineering. She is a four-time NCAA Division III champion and was voted the 1990 NCAA Division III co-swimmer of the year. She has 11 NCAA all-America honors to her credit and owns 11 MIT records. She has been named the MIT Female Athlete of the Year three times. Grierson has been accepted into the master's program in biomechanics at MIT.

Laurie A. Hiemstra (softball, Calvin College, 3.580 grade-point average in biology)—Hiemstra has been awarded a Faculty Honors Scholarship four consecutive years and was given the Class of 1964 Scholarship in 1989. She worked as a student trainer four years. Hiemstra led Calvin to the NCAA Division III finals and was the 1989 Division III batting champion. She owns eight Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association records and has been first-team all-conference three years. Hiemstra hopes to enter medical school at the University of Western Ontario in the fall.

Bente Moe (cross country/track and field, Seattle Pacific University, 3.900 grade-point average in computer science)—Moe was a member of the dean's list 10 quarters and won the Natural and Mathematical Sciences Faculty Scholarship in 1988. She graduated summa cum laude and was a member of Seattle Pacific's honors program. Moe is a 12-time all-America in track and cross country. She was the NCAA Division II cross country champion in 1985 and was runner-up in 1986 and 1987. She was voted Seattle Pacific's athlete of the year three straight times. She owns school records in the 10,000 meters and the marathon. She competed for Norway's Olympic team in 1984. Moe will pursue a master's degree in biostatistics at Washington.

Tamala Gdowski

Women's at-large

Rebecca L. Anderson (swimming, University of Iowa, 3.963 grade-point average in electrical engineering)—Anderson was a member of the University of Iowa president's list in 1988 and 1989. She has been on the dean's list seven semesters and has been an academic all-Big Ten selection three times. Anderson was the team's cocaptain and qualified for the NCAA championships in 1988 and 1990. She is a four-time finalist in the 50 freestyle at the Big Ten Championships. She holds school records in the 50 free, 200 medley relay and 200 freestyle relay. She qualified for the 1988 Olympic Trials in the 50 free. Anderson plans to pursue a master's degree in engineering.

Jill Andrews (gymnastics, University of California, Los Angeles, 3.415 grade-point average in communication studies)—Andrews was a 1990 nominee for the Honda Broderick Award, the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics Student-Athlete award, a Pac-10 Medal of Valor and the American Award for the top senior gymnast. She was on the director's honor roll 10 of 11 quarters and is a GTE Academic All-America pick. She is a Special Olympics coach, a counselor in the UCLA mentor program and a team representative on the Bruin Athletic Council. Andrews is an NCAA champion on the balance beam (1989) and the vault (1988). She finished fifth in all-around competition at the 1990 NCAA championships. She owns UCLA records in the vault and all-around. She was selected as the Pac-10 Gymnast of the Year. Andrews hopes to study law at UCLA, Stanford or California.

Tracey A. Brewer (softball, Mississippi College, 3.834 grade-point average in political science)—Brewer received the political science honorary award, the McEmore All-Sports Academic Award and a special award for outstanding service to the department of history and political science. She is a member of Mortar Board, Omicron Delta Kappa and Delta Sigma Pi in addition to being a student senator. She was selected first-team all-Gulf South Conference four years. She was nominated for the Honda Broderick Inspiration Award. She owns six school career records, including most wins (69), most strikeouts (265) and best earned-run average (1.52). Brewer plans to study law at Mississippi, Memphis State or Mississippi College.

Stacey J. Cotton (volleyball, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, 3.780 grade-point average in mechanical/aerospace engineering)—Cotton was one of 17 Worcester Polytechnic students chosen to conduct social science research in London, England. She also spent a summer doing research at NASA's Lewis Research Center. Cotton received the Aerospace Education Foundation W. Randolph Lovelace Award, recognizing her as one of the top five Air Force ROTC cadets in the nation. She was a GTE Academic All-America selection in 1989 and ended her career with 499 kills in 347 games played. She lettered in basketball and track as well. Cotton will begin graduate studies in aerospace engineering at Stanford in the fall.

Sharon L. Duffy (cross country/track and field, Moravian College, 3.740 grade-point average in political science and journalism)—Duffy has been a Comenius Scholar for four years and was involved in the honors project for two years. She was editor of the campus newspaper and president of Phi Alpha Theta. She was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and the Zinzendorf Society, an English honors society. She owns 10 school records in track and field and has been an all-conference cross country runner four times. She qualified for NCAA competition in the 10,000 meters in 1988. Duffy will begin a master's program in public policy formation and implementation at Rutgers.

Rebecca B. Frahm (track and field, University of Northern Colorado, 3.910 grade-point average in English)—Frahm has been on the dean's list every semester and received two letters of academic distinction. She was a member of the GTE Academic All-Region team and was given the Price and Gladys Hopkins Scholarship for the outstanding academic athlete. Frahm is an all-America in the indoor and outdoor long jump. She was voted her team's most valuable performer in 1988 and was selected as team captain in 1990. Frahm hopes to pursue a master's degree in counseling at either Arizona State, Alaska-Anchorage, Texas or Kansas.

Anke M. Friedrich (skiing, University of Utah, 3.280 grade-point average in geology)—Friedrich received the Scholastic Achievement Award from Utah and is a student delegate for the department of geology and biology. She is a three-time NCAA champion, twice in the giant slalom (1989-90) and once in the slalom (1990). She won the Torile Foreland Outstanding Skier Award and won the giant slalom event in Intercontinental Cup competition in 1990. She will study geology as a graduate student at Utah.

Tamala C. Gdowski (cross country/track and field, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 3.200 grade-point average in nutrition management)—Gdowski was an academic all-Big Eight selection in cross country and track and field three consecutive years. She is a member of the Student Dietetics Association, Phi Upsilon Omicron and the student-athlete advisory board. She finished fifth in the 5,000 meters at the 1990 NCAA indoor championships and fifth in the 10,000 meters at the outdoor championships. She is a five-time Big Eight individual champion, most recently winning the conference's outstanding performer award during the indoor championships. Gdowski will complete a dietetics internship at Minnesota before beginning a master's program in business administration.

Jennifer S. Larson (cross country/track and field, St. Olaf College, 3.350 grade-point average in English)—Larson has been on the dean's list for two straight years. She was an academic all-conference selection for both cross country and track and field in 1989 and 1990. She was a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the Student Honor House, and she was co-editor of a wellness publication. She participated in a semester abroad, studying at Oxford in 1989. Larson qualified for the NCAA Division III cross country championships four years and is an all-America in cross country, the 1,500 meters, 3,000 meters and 10,000 meters. She placed eighth at the 1990 outdoor championships in the 10,000 meters. Larson plans to pursue a master's degree in English.

Valerie M. McGovern (cross country/track and field, University of Kentucky, 3.510 grade-point average in nutrition and food service)—McGovern was an academic all-Southeastern Conference pick three years in a row and was on the athletics director's honor roll. She received the Superior Scholar-Athlete Award for track in 1988 and 1989. She was a member of the American Dietetics Association and Phi Upsilon Omicron honor society. She won the 5,000 meters at both the 1990 indoor and outdoor championships. Her indoor time set an NCAA record. She holds conference and school records in the 5,000 meters and 3,000 meters. McGovern was also the Southeastern Conference's cross country champion in 1989. She will pursue a master's degree in nutrition at Kentucky.

Kimberly A. Metcalf (field hockey, Northwestern University, 3.650 grade-point average in human development and social policy)—Metcalf has been on the dean's list five quarters and is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta scholastic honor society. She was chosen to the Field Hockey Coaches Association academic squad and is a two-time Big Ten academic pick. Metcalf was a CFHCA first-team all-America pick in 1990 and received the Big Ten Medal of Honor for Northwestern, recognizing her as the outstanding female student-athlete. She was a finalist for the Honda Broderick Cup and set a school record for save percentage. Metcalf plans to pursue a master's program in business administration at St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania), Temple or West Chester.

Jill R. Smith (track and field, University of Oregon, 3.370 grade-point average in school and community health education)—Smith was on the dean's list seven semesters and received the student-athlete scholar award in 1989. She is an all-America in the javelin, finishing first at the 1988 NCAA championships and eighth at the 1987 national meet. Smith participated in the TAC intermediate championships where she finished second and at the Olympic Trials where she placed 11th. Smith plans to pursue a master's degree in health education at Oregon.

Kerri Y. Tashiro (soccer, Colorado College, 3.560 grade-point average in biology)—Tashiro is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa honor fraternity, Blue Key national honor fraternity, and Alpha Lambda Delta. She was a finalist for a Rhodes Scholar and for the NCAA's Top Six award. She participated in the Colorado College woodwind quintet, chamber orchestra and choir orchestra. Tashiro was a member of the NCAA all-tournament team in 1989. She was picked as an all-America by the National Soccer Coaches Association in 1988 and 1989. Tashiro scored 60 career goals and had 17 assists in 76 games. Tashiro plans to study biology at Washington or Michigan State.

Anne M. Vaughan (lacrosse, Harvard University, 12.040 grade-point average (15.000 scale) in English and American literature)—Vaughan received the Harvard College Scholarship for Academic Achievement of High Distinction in 1988 and 1989. She also received the Elizabeth Cary Agassiz Certificate of Merit twice. She has been on the dean's list and was a representative on the Undergraduate Council. She led Harvard The Crimson won the 1990 NCAA Division I title, placed second in 1989 and was a semifinalist in 1988. Vaughan is a four-time Ivy League first-team selection. She was named as one of the 1990 NCAA tourney's most outstanding players. Vaughan plans to study English or education at Virginia.

Paige W. Wright (swimming, Northwestern University, 3.690 grade-point average in political science)—Wright was selected to the Mortar Board honor society and has received two scholarships for academic and athletics excellence. She earned the Northwestern University Director's Award, recognizing her as the senior female athlete with the highest grade-point average. She was an honors candidate in the department of political science. Wright was a member of four relay teams that qualified for NCAA competition. Her 800-yard freestyle relay team finished fifth at the 1990 NCAA championships and sixth at the 1989 meet. Wright was named an academic all-America by the College Swim Coaches Association. Wright will begin law school at the University of Chicago in the fall of 1991.

Robyn L. Bryant, Rice University; Clare M. Dirksen, Memphis State University; Diana M. Merrett, University of Texas, Austin; Marie A. Robbins, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa.

Bishops top golf scholars

Ohio Wesleyan's men's golf team stands tall with the accomplishments of its members. Four of the five members of the team are among the 66 golfers named all-America scholars by the Golf Coaches Association of America (GCAA).

"Ohio Wesleyan is the Duke of Division III, in that it combines excellence in both academics and athletics competition," Ohio Wesleyan President David L. Warren said. "Ohio Wesleyan is competitive nationally in its academic program and athletics. I believe that Duke exemplifies that in Division I. Ironically, Tom Butters, the athletics director at Duke, is an Ohio Wesleyan graduate."

To be named an all-America scholar, a golfer must have a 3.200 cumulative grade-point average (4.000 scale) in Division I or a 3.000 in Divisions II and III, play two years of varsity competition at a four-year school, play in at least 75 percent of his school's contests and carry a stroke average of better than 78 in Division I or 80 in Divisions II and III.

Ohio Wesleyan seniors Kevin Fill-man, Jon Whithaus and Greg Wilhelm and junior Barry Pry all qualified for the honor. The fifth member of the team, senior Todd Benware, had a 77.7-stroke average, but missed qualifying for the honor by two-hundredths of a point on his GPA.

"They are the kind of people you like to be around," coach Richard Gordin said. "They are pleasant people. I am very proud of them and what they have accomplished, especially academically, but on the course as well."

Thirty-one golfers qualified for the GCAA honor in Division I, including 12 who participated in the Division I championships at Tarpon Springs, Florida. Fifteen Division II golfers and 20 Division III golfers made up the rest of the team, which follows:

Division I

Trey Anderson, Arizona; Brian Backman, UC Irvine; Jeff Barlow, Florida; Chet Bozdog, Florida International; Brian Bridges, Kent; Donald Christensen, Stanford; Zack Deems, Ohio; Oswald Drawdy, Clemson; Gary Durham, New Mexico State; Steve Edgley, Northwestern; John English, William and Mary; Ben Furth, California; Gates Grainger, Davidson; Charles Greene,

Division II

Tim Adler, Central State (Oklahoma);

Bradley Champion, Troy State; Todd Clark, Indianapolis; Frederick Cornell, Tampa; Douglas Ford, Rollins; Wynn Hassan, Slippery Rock; Mark Hutchison, Cal State Stanislaus; Clint Johnson, Abilene Christian; Andrew Levering, East Stroudsburg; Tim Ling, Florida Southern; Steve Miller, Abilene Christian; Joseph Shahady, Troy State; Paul Shromoff, Minnesota-Duluth; Christopher Sinnott, Gannon; Billy Willis, Southern Illinois-Edwardsville.

Division III

Todd Boehm, Capital; Todd Cardwell,

Wittenberg; Ronald Dortch, Millikin; Steve Elkins, Hamilton; Kevin Fillman, Ohio Wesleyan; Bill Hanson, Nebraska Wesleyan; Lance Holbert, Rochester; Doug Linde, Delaware Valley; John List, Wisconsin-Stevens Point; John McCullough, Methodist; Jim Percherke, Methodist; Barry Pry, Ohio Wesleyan; Todd Reinhardt, Wartburg; Drew Van Meeteren, Buena Vista; Darin Vig, Grinnell; Jon Whithaus, Ohio Wesleyan; Greg Wilhelm, Ohio Wesleyan; Frederick Winsinger, Claremont-Mudd-Scripps; Jeffery Woods, Central (Iowa); Jason Zahradka, Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

California

she set the meet record in the 1,500-meter run at the 1987 Division I outdoor track championships at Louisiana State. Little did she know that she would win the 1,500 for the next three years and, in the process, set the all-time record for NCAA championships for a Division I female track and field athlete, with nine.

In her final race, Favor outkicked Jasmin Jones of Tennessee to win her fourth 1,500-meter title, again in meet-record time.

"Right now, this is the best one because it was my fastest and my last," she said after her final race. "The main thing was to win. Running a good time without the pressure to do it was great."

Coincidentally, the woman Favor passed in the records when she won her ninth NCAA individual title was the one Favor also passed on the track in their only head-to-head race. Vicki Huber of Villanova won three straight 3,000-meter runs indoors as well as outdoors and also won the indoor 1,500-meter title in 1988 but was beaten by Favor in the event in 1989.

Huber used up her eligibility after the 1989 fall season, but not before she won her eighth individual title — and helped Villanova to its first team title — in cross country.

Trice as nice

While Favor and Huber were stealing all the headlines, Sheila Trice of Division III Christopher Newport was doing them not just one better, but two and three. Trice finished her stellar career with 11 individual titles — not counting three first-place finishes as part of Captains relay teams.

Neither Favor nor Huber led her team to a national title, but Trice did. The Captains won indoor track and field titles from 1988 to 1990, while Trice was winning eight individual titles, and outdoor titles from 1987 to 1989, when Trice was winning two more crowns. The only one of Trice's 11 individual championships that did not also help lead the Captains to a team title was her third straight 100-meter championship, at the 1990 outdoor meet.

Certainly, Trice finished her career as the greatest track and field athlete in Division III history. But she may not hold that title for long.

Czech him out

When Jan Cado defected from his native Czechoslovakia in 1987, the news hardly made a ripple in the Chicago suburb of Naperville, Illinois. The Czechoslovakian national team was competing in Indianapolis at the world indoor championships, and Cado decided the time was right for him to make his break from the oppressive culture in which he lived.

Since then, he has been making another break, away from the competition in Division III track and field. Cado won the Division III long jump and triple jump titles indoors and outdoors last year, and he came within one centimeter of winning them all this year as a sophomore. In eight opportunities, Cado has won seven titles and finished second once.

Cado, 27, hopes to compete in the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona. If he can gain U.S. citizenship by then, he will try to make the American team (he would have to be a citizen before the trials). However, with the new political climate in Eastern Europe, Cado also feels safe in going back and competing for the Czech team.

But Cado plans to stay in America after his track and field days are over. "Back home, I was rich and famous, at least compared to other people," he told the Chicago Tribune. "Here, I'm just a poor student. But I found what I wanted — personal freedom. If you want to achieve something, you have to give up something."

Just don't expect Cado to give up winning.

Making a splash

When an Olympic gold medalist comes to town, he or she likely will be the center of attention. That was true when Janet Evans enrolled at Stanford last fall to pursue her education and continue her swimming career. And while Evans did nothing to dispel her fame, winning three events in her first NCAA championships and setting two American and three meet records, she was not the most successful newcomer to the collegiate swimming scene.

That distinction belongs to Andrew Bures of Cal State Bakersfield and Kirsten Silvester of Northern Michigan. Each won four individual titles at the Division II championships. Bures, a sophomore, won the 500-yard freestyle, 1,650-yard freestyle, 200-yard butterfly and 400-yard individual medley. Silvester, a freshman, won the 200-yard freestyle, the 500-yard freestyle, the 1,650-yard freestyle and the 200-yard butterfly.

Bures broke a record for the most individual titles in one year at the men's championships, eclipsing the old mark of three held by numerous swimmers. He set meet records in all of the events but the 500-yard freestyle. Silvester's four titles tied the meet record for women.

Paul Hansen (No. 18), Tim Miller (No. 6) and Joe Galanes (No. 3) all earned top-five finishes in the men's freestyle cross country event for Vermont, which won the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Skiing Championships team crown. Miller won the race. Hansen finished second, Galanes fifth.

Silvester is a native of the Netherlands, where she competed on the national junior team and, last summer, the national team that finished second in the European championships. "She had been a 400- and 800-meter freestyler, and we expanded to add the 1,650-meter freestyle," Northern Michigan coach Anne James said. "She adapted well. She's an incredibly determined young woman. She can't stand to lose. She makes every effort possible to win."

While Silvester has three more years of eligibility, James said those years may not come in succession. "We may have to look at an interruption in 1992 because of the Olympics, depending on her progress," James said. "At this point, she probably wouldn't make the team, but she is getting closer and closer. It is something we have to plan to consider... and hope for."

Strength and speed

If asked to describe Yolande Straughn and Kim Oden, legendary linguist Yogi Berra might say their similarities are different.

Straughn is a sprinter for Abilene Christian, a Division II women's track power. She burst onto the scene this year by winning the 55- and 400-meter dashes indoors and the 100- and 200-meter dashes outdoors. Her four individual titles tie her with Favor, Hudson, Bures and Silvester for the most won this year.

Oden is versatile. She has won the last four Division III high jump championships (two indoors and two outdoors) and this year added the heptathlon title. Her 5,136 points bettered the old meet record by 181 points. She also set a new high jump record by clearing 5-10½.

Oden accounted for 20 of Nebraska Wesleyan's 25 points at the 1990 Division III outdoor championships.

Both are full of competitive desire. Listen to their coaches.

Wes Kittley, Abilene Christian: "Yolande is an outstanding athlete. She always had a lot of natural ability. Even in high school, she was very strong. But she was not a great sprinter. We recruited her as a quarter-miler. We started using her as a sprinter at the indoors this year. She won the 55 meters. I knew she could win the 100 meters at the outdoor championships because her start is the worst part of her race."

"The thing that sets her apart is that she is a very hard worker. She works hard on her speed. She has come from being an average sprinter to being a national champion."

Ted Bulling, Nebraska Wesleyan: "Because (Oden) is so good, we use her in several events. But she doesn't want to quit her workouts to rest up for the meets. Kim is a very goal-oriented person. She is very intense in practice — so much so that I have to cut short her workouts."

"She wants to qualify for the 1992 Olympic Trials in either the high jump or the heptathlon. I think she's got a chance."

While these individuals have soared above the crowd, literally and figuratively, there is an almost endless list of other athletes who had outstanding years. Fifteen athletes won at least three individual

Sheila Trice (No. 49) claimed one of her 11 career titles in this race, the 55-meter final at the 1990 Division III Women's Indoor Track Championships. Trice finished

championships, and another 41 won two championships. Arkansas' Edrick Floreal proved he was for real by winning his third straight outdoor triple jump title and his fifth championship overall. Dan Russell of Portland State won his third straight wrestling championship in Division II.

Leroy Burrell of Houston won the long jump title indoors and the 100-meter dash outdoors at the Division I track championships. His time in the 100, 9.94, was .09 faster than the meet record—held, coincidentally, by two former Houston runners. But his time was wind-aided and therefore did not count as a meet record. Still, Burrell helped the Cougars extend a remarkable streak. Houston has had at least one individual champion in every outdoor track and field championships since 1979.

Teena Colebrook of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo won the sixth and seventh individual titles of her career. Colebrook finished ninth in cross country and won the 800- and 1,500-meter runs at the Division II track championships. Those performances helped the Mustangs win team titles at both championships.

David Wharton of Southern California won his fifth and sixth titles in swimming, while James Browne of Abilene Christian, Hilton Woods of Oakland, Leigh Ann Fetter of Texas and Beth Olsen of Colorado College each won fifth championships.

Streaks, firsts and sweeps

The 1989-90 championships season also featured some remarkable team achievements. For instance, Louisiana State completed its second straight sweep of both the men's and women's team titles at the Division I outdoor track and field championships.

Stanford's 11 individual women's championships put the Cardinal right on the heels of Texas, which holds second place in the category of most titles in history. Florida holds the lead with 70, including six this year. Texas' eight in 1989-90 give the Longhorns 58, just one better than Stanford.

The Arkansas men's indoor track team and the Kenyon women's swimming team won their seventh straight team championships this year. North Carolina won its seventh women's soccer title in the eight-year history of the championship.

In Division II, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and Cal State Bakersfield continued to lead the way. Cal Poly SLO's 20th men's title ranks the Mustangs first in history, and the two women's titles push them ahead of Cal State Northridge as the most victorious women's programs with 13 team championships. Bakersfield also won three team titles this year, tying the school for top honors among all NCAA members.

On the flip side, nine schools won their first team championship ever, and 12 more won their first individual championship of any kind.

Same song, 11th verse

The most remarkable story in team competition this year must rest in Division III.

Hobart's men's lacrosse team won the Division III championship—just as it did last year, the year before that and so on. In fact, no other school has won a Division III Men's Lacrosse Championship. Add the Statesmen's two Division II titles before there was a Division III championship, and Hobart ranks among all-time great collegiate programs.

Kenyon also won its 11th straight championship, in men's swimming. Although it is a team title, the distinction is that swimming is considered an individual/team sport.

Coach Jim Steen's squad defeated runner-up UC San Diego by 118 points, the sixth year in a row the Lords have won the meet by at least 100 points. The 653½ points scored were the most in the 11-year run.

With the victory, Steen became the first coach in any sport in any division to win 11 consecutive championships. Coupled with the Kenyon women's team, with its seven straight crowns, Steen has coached 18 team champions, which also places him at the top of that list.

There is an interesting twist to the Lords' and Ladies' domination of Division III swimming. The Lords have won 78 individual titles in men's swimming, the Ladies 70 in women's swimming. But no other Kenyon athlete—in any sport, in school history—has won an NCAA title. The same is true at Oakland, where the men's swimming team owns all 55 individual titles in school history.

Alive and kicking (and sticking)

The one-sport dominance story is not true at North Carolina, where the traditionally victorious women's soccer squad was joined last fall in the winner's circle by the Tar Heel field hockey team. In soccer, coach Anson Dorrance's squad breezed through this year's tournament without giving up a goal to win its seventh Division I title in eight years.

Senior Shannon Higgins broke collegiate records for points scored in a career (29), points scored in a game (seven), assists in a career (seven) and assists in a game (three). She also tied records for goals scored in a game (three) and a career (11) and assists in a tournament (four).

In the championship game, Higgins scored the game-winning goal a third of the way through the second half, as the Tar Heels defeated Colorado College. As proof of the squad's depth, Higgins was not named the offensive player of the tournament. Kristine Lilly, who scored the second goal of the championship game, received that honor. Lilly and Higgins were joined by four teammates on the all-tournament team.

Also last fall, North Carolina won its first field hockey title when goalkeeper Evelien Spee scored the deciding penalty stroke and the Tar Heels defeated defending champion Old Dominion, 2-1.

While North Carolina coach Karen Shelton's team was extremely talented, she said she had coached more talented teams in the past. But this one was different. "This team is the most cohesive," she said. "You put all that together and you win a national championship."

Winning a championship had become almost commonplace at Oklahoma State over the years. Oklahoma State won the first four NCAA wrestling titles and 14 of the first 16 contested. Through 1971, the Cowboys had won 27 wrestling championships.

Then, the Cowboys hit a title drought. From 1972 through 1988, Oklahoma State was nowhere to be found among the list of team wrestling titlists, although it was runner-up four times. But things are getting back to normal in Stillwater. In 1989, the Cowboys won their 28th wrestling title and successfully defended it this year to raise the total to 29—the most by one team in one sport.

The Cowboys' Pat Smith and Chris Barnes also won individual wrestling title Nos. 108 and 109 for the Cowboys.

Ours, at last

The thrill of claiming the title was experienced for the first time in 1989-90 by nine different schools. Mississippi College won the Division II Football Championship. Santa Clara won the Division I men's co-championship in soccer. New Hampshire College took home the Division II Men's Soccer Championship, while Barry won its first crown in Division II women's soccer.

Long Beach State's Division I women's volleyball crown was that school's first, while Washington (Missouri) won its first in Division III. Nevada-Las Vegas fulfilled expectations in winning the men's Division I basketball title, and Hope's women followed suit in Division III. The move of 12-time champion Cal State Stanislaus from Division III to Division II enabled Methodist to take its first-ever crown in Division III golf.

Much was made last year of the fact that Harvard, one of the oldest schools in the country, won its first-ever team championship with a 4-3, overtime victory over Minnesota in Division I men's ice hockey. The Crimson women apparently didn't want to be overshadowed, so they won the Division I women's lacrosse title this year with an 8-7 victory over Maryland. Jen Walser's goal at the 20:29 mark of the second half gave Harvard its only lead of the game.

Stanford players top tennis all-Americas

Five women and four men from Stanford's Division I champion tennis teams have been named to the 1990 Volvo Tennis/All-America Team selected by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association.

Stanford tied with Florida for the most representatives on the women's team. The Cardinal have the most all-America men of any institution, followed by four other schools with three each.

Fifty men from 28 schools earned all-America honors in singles, doubles or both; the women's squad contains 32 players from 12 institutions.

To be selected as a Volvo all-America in singles, athletes must be seeded among the top 16 at the Division I championships, reach the round of 16 at the championships or finish in the top 20 of the final Volvo Tennis/Collegiate Rankings. All-America honors in doubles go to athletes who are seeded among the top eight at the Division I tournament, reach the quarterfinals of the championships or finish in the top 20 in the final Volvo poll.

Women's all-Americas

Twelve women earned all-America status in both singles and doubles: Lisa Albano, California; Nicole Arendt, Florida; Sandra Birch, Stanford; Mamie Ceniza, UCLA; Susan Gilchrist, Texas; Debbie Graham, Stanford; Stephanie London, Southern California; Jean-Marie Lozano, California; Meredith McGrath, Stanford; Lupita Novelo, Southern California; Stacey Schefflin, Georgia, and Teri Whitlinger, Stanford.

Thirteen women were named all-America in singles only: Carla Cossa, Texas; Jessica Emmons, UCLA; Andrea Farley, Florida; Lisa Green, Stanford; Eveline Hammers, Kansas; Ginger Helgeson, Pepperdine; Janna Kovacevich, Pepperdine; Trisha Laux, Southern California; Shannon McCarthy, Georgia; Caryn Moss, Georgia; Patti O'Reilly, Duke; Emilie Viqueira, California, and Mary Young, Brigham Young.

Seven women earned all-America honors in doubles only: Jillian Alexander, Florida; Jackie Booth, Oklahoma State; Holly Danforth, Florida; Cathy Goodrich, Florida; Joanna Plautz, Texas; Stella Sampas, UCLA, and Monika Wanick, Oklahoma State.

Men's all-Americas

Eleven men earned all-America status in both singles and doubles: Byron Black, Southern California; Johan Donar, Miami (Florida); Conny Falk, Miami (Florida); Tom Furukrantz, Louisiana State; Brian Gyetko, Arizona State; Alex O'Brien, Stanford; Jared Palmer, Stanford; Al Parker, Georgia; Luis Ruetter, Texas Christian; Jonathan

Stark, Stanford, and John Stimpson, Alabama.

Twenty men were named all-America in singles only: Gilles Ameline, Wake Forest; Mike Brown, Arkansas; Steve Bryan, Texas; Tony Bujan, Texas Christian; Jeff Chiang, Columbia; David DiLucia, Notre Dame; Joby Foley, West Virginia; Steve Herdoiza, Northwestern; Brice Karsh, Tennessee; David Kass, Michigan; Trevor Kronemann, UC Irvine; Alejo Macisidor, Pepperdine; Todd Martin, Northwestern; Jason Netter, UCLA; Jose-Luis Noriega, San Diego; Bent-Ove Pedersen, California; Mike Shyjan, Harvard; Stephane Simian, South Carolina; Ty Tucker, Ohio State, and David Wells-Roth, Pepperdine.

Nineteen men earned all-America honors in doubles only: Doug Eisenman, California; Ellis Ferreira, Alabama; Doug Flach, Tennessee; Geoff Grant, Duke; Murphy Jensen, Georgia; Tim Jessup, Tennessee; Dave Lomicky, Arizona State; Matt Lucena, California; Mitch Michulka, Texas; Roy Moscatini, Mississippi State; Mario Pacheco, Louisiana State; Michael Penman, Texas; Juan Rios, Mississippi State; Jason Rubell, Duke; Kent Seton, Southern California; Ian Skidmore, Kentucky; Sandon Stolle, Texas Christian; John Yancey, Kentucky, and Jason Yee, Stanford.

NCAA Record

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Brad Rothermel resigned at Nevada-Las Vegas, effective December 31. Rothermel, who has been in the post for 10 years, plans to return to teaching in the university's school of health, physical education and recreation... Gary Gallup appointed at Lamar, just two weeks after Arkansas State officials announced that he had been selected as that school's assistant AD for marketing and promotions. Gallup, who has been acting AD at Lamar since early this year, came to the school last fall as assistant AD after serving as AD at Southern Utah State... Jim Garner selected at Oklahoma State after eight years as AD at Appalachian State. Earlier in his career, he was sports information director at Texas Christian and assistant AD at West Texas State and Texas Tech.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Dick Baddour promoted to senior associate AD at North Carolina, which also announced the promotions of Jeff Elliott, who will continue to direct the Smith Center, and Beth Miller, who moves from assistant to associate AD for nonrevenue sports.

ASSISTANT DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Bruce E. McCutcheon and Karen E. Broadway joined the staff at Lafayette, which also announced the promotions of Bill Russo and Pat Fisher in a reorganization of the school's athletics department. McCutcheon previously was assistant AD at Temple and also has been an administrative assistant at Ohio State. Broadway, who was a graduate assistant at Temple for the past two years, replaces the recently retired George Davidson at Lafayette. Russo and Fisher take on new duties in addition to their responsibilities as head football and women's basketball coaches, respectively... Rick Brewer promoted from sports information director to assistant AD for sports information and media relations at North Carolina, where he has been on the sports information staff for 22 years... Brian Baldea named assistant AD for facilities management at Chicago, where he also will be head baseball coach. He previously was coordinator of academic advisement in athletics at Illinois State, where he also served earlier as an assistant baseball coach.

COACHES

Baseball—Alex Nahigian announced his retirement at Harvard, where his teams have compiled a 249-152-3 record since 1979. His teams won three Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League titles and appeared three times in the Division I Baseball Championship. Earlier, he coached for 19 years at Providence... Dan Gallagher promoted from a part-time to a full-time position at Fordham, where this year's team won a berth in the Division I championship. Since taking the job in 1983, Gallagher has coached the Rams to a 165-129-5 record... Clarence "Shorty" Stoner resigned after nine years at Penn State to accept a full-time position on the university's health and human development faculty. Stoner's teams compiled a 216-171-1 record. From 1969 to 1981, he coached at Penn State-Berrend... Brian Baldea appointed at Chicago, where he also will be assistant athletics director for facilities management. He previously was coordinator of academic advisement in athletics at Illinois State, where he also served from 1983 to 1988 as assistant baseball coach... Bob Flynn promoted from assistant at Bates, where he will continue to assist with football but will relinquish duties as head men's and women's skiing coach. Flynn, who has been at Bates since 1965, succeeds William "Chick" Leashey, who retired after 36 years with a 302-349-3 record.

Baseball assistant—Tim Parenton joined the staff at Old Dominion after two years as game-management assistant at Mississippi State, where he earlier played baseball and football.

Men's basketball Michael Lebron Holmes named at Morgan State. He has been an aide at Florida A&M since 1987 and is a former head coach at Benedict... Alfred "Butch" Beard selected at Howard. The former Louisville and National Basketball Association player previously was an assistant coach with the New Jersey Nets and also has been an aide with the New York Knickerbockers... Neil McCarthy received a new four-year, renewable contract at New Mexico State, where he led the Aggies to a 26-5 record, the co-championship of the Big West Conference and an appearance in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship last season... Ken Bone promoted from assistant at Seattle Pacific, where the former Falcon player has been on the staff for four years. Bone, who also has been head coach at Cal State Stanislaus, replaces Claude Terry, who resigned after six seasons at Seattle Pacific.

Men's basketball assistants—Bernadette Locke appointed at Kentucky, where it is believed she will be the first woman to serve as a coaching aide for a Division I men's program. She previously was a women's assistant at Georgia, where she also was an all-America player... Bob Hawking hired at UC Davis, where Steven Wright and Foti Mellis also will serve on the staff. Hawking previously was an aide at Pepperdine... Rick Stansbury selected at Mississippi State. He previously was an assistant for six years at Austin Peay State... Ricardo Patton joined the staff at Arkansas-Little Rock after serving as an aide at Middle Tennessee State.

Women's basketball—Gary Hudson selected at Oklahoma after serving as an assistant at Oregon State last season. He previously was head coach at St. Gregory's College in Oklahoma, where the junior college squad compiled a 166-34 record through six seasons... Morningside's John Arnold named facility coordinator at Kearney State, where a new arena is under construction. Arnold had coached at Morningside since 1984.

Women's basketball assistants—Sandy Gordon given a full-time position at St. Bonaventure, where she was a graduate assistant coach. She is a former player at Manhattan... Lisa O'Connor resigned after one year at Georgia. She plans to resume her professional playing career in Japan... Carolyn Richard appointed at Missouri Southern State. The former Emporia State player served last season as a graduate assistant coach at Austin Peay State.

Women's cross country—George Rose named acting women's cross country and track coach at Bates, replacing Carolyn Court, who is taking a one-year sabbatical leave.

Football assistants—Robert Frey and Carl Smith hired as defensive coordinator and secondary coach, respectively, at MacMurray. Frey previously served in a similar position at Manchester and Smith was head coach at John F. Kennedy High School in Chicago... Jim Corrigan joined the staff at Lawrence as offensive coordinator. The former Wisconsin-Oshkosh and Ripon aide served last season as offensive coordinator at Xavier High School in Appleton, Wisconsin. Corrigan replaces Ron Roberts, who remains at Lawrence as head wrestling and men's track coach... Vince White named wide receivers coach at Pacific after one season as offensive coordinator at Tennessee-Martin. He is a former all-America receiver at Stanford... Frank Miriello returned for a second stint as a football aide at Washington and Lee, where he also will assist with men's lacrosse. Miriello, who will coach linebackers, assisted with football and track at the school from 1978 to 1982. Most recently, he has coached football and lacrosse at Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania... Pat Manzella promoted from tight ends and tackles coach to offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Canisius. Manzella, who also has coached at Buffalo, Alfred, Guilford and Marshall, replaces Dave Fleischman, who retired from coaching after nine seasons at Canisius.

Men's golf—Bruce Elder and Gary Claypool appointed at Kearney State, where Elder is a business faculty member who has assisted with the team for several seasons. Claypool is the golf professional at a local country club. The coaches replace Jerry Hueser, who stepped down after five years to devote more time to his duties as head men's basketball coach.

Men's ice hockey assistants—Ken Martel and Mark Leach joined the staff at Michigan Tech. Martel, who played on Lake Superior State's 1988 Division I championship team, was an aide last season at St. Cloud State, while Leach, who played at Lake Superior State in the early 1980s, has been a volunteer coach at Maine since 1986. The appointments are effective August 1.

Men's lacrosse Don Zimmerman resigned after seven seasons at Johns Hopkins, where three of his teams won Division I titles and another finished second. Zimmerman, who said he "decided to resign in order to evaluate my personal goals and the direction of my career," coached his teams to a 73-15 record during his tenure.

Men's lacrosse assistants—Shawn McDonald stepped down as assistant lacrosse coach and head men's soccer coach at Hampden-Sydney to pursue other interests... Frank Miriello appointed at Washington and Lee, where he also will assist with football.

Men's and women's skiing—Tim LaVallee, former director of men's and women's skiing at Colorado, selected at Bates. LaVallee, whose Colorado teams finished third at the last three NCAA championships, replaces Bob Flynn, who was named head baseball coach at Bates.

Men's soccer—Simon Davies named at UC Davis after serving as head coach at Albion. He replaces two-year interim head coach Jesus Rico... Mike Smolens appointed at Merchant Marine. He previously was head boys' coach for three seasons at Great Neck North High School in New York. Smolens replaces Dick Hogan, who resigned after 10 years to pursue other interests... Shawn McDonald resigned after three seasons at Hampden-Sydney, where he also stepped down as assistant men's lacrosse coach to pursue other interests. McDonald, who also coached soccer for six years at Stony Brook, leaves Hampden-Sydney with a career mark of 77-69-19, including a 22-29 mark with the Tigers.

Women's soccer—Marti Kingsley appointed at Bates after serving as head coach at MIT since 1988. She also has been on the coaching staffs at Siena Heights and Green Mountain.

Women's softball—Wilma "Willie" Rucker stepped down after seven seasons at Montclair State to become head coach at Western Oregon State. At Montclair State, Rucker coached her teams to a 209-87 record and seven appearances in the Division III Women's Softball Championship, including three regional championships.

Men's and women's swimming and diving—Neil J. Brophy appointed men's coach at Hobart after three seasons as assistant men's and women's coach at Virginia Tech. Brophy was a five-time Atlantic Coast Conference individual tist as a swimmer at Clemson in the early 1980s.

Men's and women's tennis—Allen Hope resigned after two years as men's and women's coach at Idaho State, where he led this year's men's team to its first conference title in 25 years. He said he will pursue other opportunities... Howard Endelman named at Columbia-Barnard.

Women's track and field—George Rose selected as acting women's cross country and track coach at Bates, replacing Carolyn Court, who is taking a one-year sabbatical leave. Rose is a Bates graduate who has coached most recently at Notre Dame Academy in Hingham, Massachusetts.

STAFF
Academic advisement coordinator

Illinois State's Brian Baldea named assistant athletics director for facilities management and head baseball coach at Chicago.

Assistant to the athletics director—Mike Murray appointed assistant to the AD for media relations at Illinois State after seven years as assistant sports information director at Michigan.

Game-management assistant Tim Parenton of Mississippi State selected as assistant baseball coach at Old Dominion.

CONFERENCES

Tom Lessig appointed director of publicity and Jeff Raymond named assistant publicity director for the Association of Mid-Continent Universities. Lessig, the son of Sun Belt Conference commissioner-elect James W. Lessig, previously was local sales director for U.S. Media, Inc., in California, and Raymond, who also will serve as sports information director for the North Star Conference, was assistant SID for the Trans America Athletic Conference the past two years. The Mid-Continent Conference also announced the appointments of former high school coach and athletics director Mary Struckoff as administrative assistant and former Miami (Ohio) sports information director and Northwestern associate athletics director Bob Kurz as part-time director of public relations.

ASSOCIATIONS

Baaron B. Pittenger, former executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, named executive director of USA Hockey.

NOTABLES

Kevin O'Brien elected as the 14th president of the Walter Camp Football Foundation, succeeding Ernest C. Williams Jr., who served two terms in the post. O'Brien is personnel director for the Marlin Firearms Company... Collie J. Nicholson, public relations and promotions director at Grambling from 1946 to 1978, awarded the Louisiana Sports Writers Association's Distinguished Services Award in Sports Journalism. Nicholson gained international attention for the Grambling football program during his tenure... Mike Waldvogel of Yale and Al Brown of Alfred named Divisions I and III men's lacrosse coaches of the year by the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association. The association also presented its Howdy Myers Man of the Year Award to retiring coach Dick Garber of Massachusetts, its Joseph R. Julien Service Award to Tommy Thomsen of Denison and Mort LaPointe of Bowdoin, and its USILA Media Award to Mike Kinney of the Newark Star Ledger... Men's lacrosse players of the year, as selected by the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association, are Gary Gait of Syracuse in Division I and William Miller of Hobart in Division III. Also honored as the best at their positions were attackman Greg Burns of Syracuse, defenseman Pat McCabe of Syracuse, midfielder Jon Reese of Yale and goalie Tony Guido of Yale in Division I, and midfielder Michael DeMaria of Hobart, attackman Tim Hornes of Washington (Maryland), defenseman Peter Bennett of Hobart and goalie Dave Slomkowski of Washington (Maryland) in Division III.

DEATHS

Dave Pasanella, director of player development at Georgia Tech, where he was in charge of strength training, was killed June 12 in a car accident in Atlanta. He was 28. Pasanella, who won the title "Strongest Man in the World" last year in powerlifting competition, played football at Georgia Tech from 1983 to 1984... Gary Snook, a football quarterback at Iowa in the early 1960s who set school passing records that stood for 20 years, died of throat cancer June 10 in Pomona, California. He was 46.

CORRECTIONS

Due to an editor's error, the Record section of the June 6 issue of The NCAA News incorrectly reported the institution where Warren F. Ilchman was appointed president. He will serve at Pratt Institute.

Due to an editing error, a story in the June 13 issue of the News about a meeting of the Division III Men's Basketball Committee incorrectly referred to the sectionals of the Division III championship as regionals. The term sectionals has been used since the format of the championship was changed last year.

Due to an editor's error, the Record section of the June 13 issue of the News incorrectly reported that new Bowling Green women's tennis coach Penny Dean previously has coached at the school. Dean was head women's coach from 1985 to 1988 at Toledo, where her teams compiled a 46-44 record.

Sun Belt ADs change policies

In an effort to reduce missed classes by student-athletes, directors of athletics in the Sun Belt Conference have voted in favor of restrictions that will affect travel policies for conference games in men's and women's basketball.

At their recent spring meeting in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, the athletics directors passed a motion that will prohibit basketball teams from practicing the day before a conference game at any site other than their own city, if classes are in session that day.

The restriction will not apply if there are no classes the day before a conference game, or on the second game of a two-game road trip.

"Our administrators are concerned with student-athletes missing class and, consequently, have begun to address this problem," said Sun Belt Commissioner James W. Lessig.

The ADs also discussed establishing limits on the number of class days missed in sports other than basketball and will be reviewing general conference travel policies.

New legislation

Therefore, paramount in the agenda for the June 26-27 meeting is another review of the time-reduction suggestions submitted by various constituencies in the membership, including those proposed in the "Conference of Conferences" recommendations developed by a group of Division I conference commissioners.

But the Commission also will have before it for further review all of the other reform proposals that are under consideration for the 1991 Convention, including:

- The recommendations of the Special Committee on Cost Reduction;

- The report of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Membership Structure;

- All recommendations from the "Conference of Conferences" report, recently updated by that group, and

- The reform suggestions offered by Executive Director Richard D. Schultz in his "State of the Association" address at last January's Convention.

The Commission continues to invite advice from various groups for consideration in its deliberations. Included in the agenda for the Chicago meeting are these consultations:

- Three members of the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee—Leslie Daland, University of Southern California; David Berkoff, Harvard University, and Kristi Groteke, Manhattan College—will meet with the officers of the Commission during that group's morning session June 26, primarily to react to time-reduction proposals.

- Several coaches have accepted invitations to discuss reform issues, especially those involving time demands, with the Commission during its dinner session on the evening of June 26. Those accepting the invitations as of June 19 were Mike Krzyzewski, Duke University; Johnny Majors, University of Tennessee, Knoxville; Tom Osborne, University of Nebraska, Lincoln, and Rudy Washington, Drake University. Washington also is executive director of the Black Coaches Association.

- The Commission will review a summary of the comments made May 16, also in Chicago, when its officers met with representatives of the Collegiate Commissioners Association, College Division Commissioners Association, Council of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators, Division I-A Directors Association, Faculty Athletics Representatives Association, National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics and University Commissioners Association.

Other topics

Also on the Commission agenda are these topics:

- A discussion of possible legislation to strengthen the Commission's role in legislative matters;

- A report on Congressional activities involving intercollegiate athletics;

- A report on the deliberations of the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, and

- A report on the work of the NCAA Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues.

Meanwhile, the officers of the Commission—Martin A. Massengale, University of Nebraska; Bernard F. Sliger, Florida State University; Asa N. Green, Livingston University, and David L. Warren, Ohio Wesleyan University—will discuss Commission strategy for the 1991 Convention, including plans for determining final Commission positions on legislative proposals and plans for identifying roll-call votes and specific placement of legislative proposals in the Convention agenda.

The officers also will discuss appointing two special committees that were favored by the Commission in its April meeting, one a Commission subcommittee to develop "guiding principles" for Commission decisions and the other a special advisory committee on coaches compensation.

Highlights of the Commission meeting will be reported in the July 4 issue of The NCAA News.

II all-Americas named in baseball

Tampa pitcher Sam Militello and Central Missouri State second baseman Sittichoke Huckuntod are among the honorees on the 1990 NCAA Division II all-America team selected by the American Baseball Coaches Association.

Entering the Division II Baseball Championship, Militello had a 15-1 record and an earned-run average of 1.76. He also notched 160 strikeouts in 128 innings pitched and was named the player of the year. Huckuntod hit .468 with four home runs, 36 runs batted in and 47 stolen bases.

Title IX applications for athletics explained

The Office for Civil Rights (OCR) May 31 briefed education, athletics and advocacy groups on its comprehensive new manual for Title IX athletics investigations. Over 30 representatives from organizations such as the American Council on Education, the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, the National Organization for Women and the NCAA attended the Washington briefing.

Published in April, the 1990 manual updates and supersedes the Interim Title IX Intercollegiate Athletics Investigator's Manual issued by OCR in 1980 and the 1982 OCR "Guidance for Writing Title IX Intercollegiate Athletics Letters of Findings."

It condenses over 360 pages of past Title IX interpretations, forms, and instructions into less than half that length, said William D. Kramer of Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, the NCAA's legal counsel in Washington, D.C.

The new manual covers high school as well as college athletics. While it specifies in great detail OCR's standards and procedures for measuring compliance with the athletics provisions of the Title IX regulation, it contains no changes in policy, and virtually no new compliance standards or investigative methods. With few exceptions, it simply better organizes and more concisely restates existing guidelines, Kramer said.

Dual purpose

The purpose of the manual is two-fold. It provides a step-by-step guide for OCR investigators, to simplify and standardize investigations of Title IX athletics complaints. It also is designed to aid institutions in assessing their own compliance with the Title IX standards applied by OCR.

The manual provides comprehensive instructions for OCR investigators, including standard data requests, interview questions, directions for analyzing information collected, charts on which to record the data and compare the men's and women's athletics programs, and cautions regarding differences between those programs that may be acceptable under Title IX.

This information is set forth for each of the 13 "program components" examined during a Title IX intercollegiate athletics investigation: athletics scholarships; accommodation of athletics interests and abilities; equipment and supplies; scheduling of games and practice time; travel and per diem allowances; opportunity to receive coaching and academic tutoring; assignment and compensation of coaches and tutors; locker rooms, and practice and competitive facilities; medical and training facilities and services; housing and dining facilities and services; publicity; support services, and recruitment.

Relevant information is repeated for each program component, so that each section is a self-contained explanation of how OCR measures compliance for that element of the athletics program.

'Proportionality' test

The new manual answers one important question—how OCR will determine whether an institution's allocation of athletics financial aid meets the "financial proportionality" test.

This test, in effect since 1979, requires that the total amount of athletics financial aid awarded to male and female athletes be "substantially proportionate" to the number of male and female participants in an institution's intercollegiate athletics program. For example, if an institution awards $300,000 of aid and has 200 male and 100 female participants in its program, about $200,000 in aid must be awarded to male athletes and $100,000 to female athletes, resulting in an average award of approximately $1,000 to both male and female athletes.

The manual provides the first full explanation of how OCR will determine whether a deviation from absolute proportionality is large enough to result in a finding that "substantial proportionality" has not been achieved. It describes two statistical tests that are used to determine whether a disparity in the allocation of aid is significant.

The "Z" test is used in calculating whether the difference between the percentage of total aid awarded to athletes of one sex and the percentage of participants of that sex in the athletics program is significant. The "T" test is used to determine whether the difference in the average award to male and female athletes is significant. Although OCR normally uses a computer to conduct these tests, both may be done using a calculator.

Update planned

In December 1988, the NCAA published a comprehensive "Guide to Title IX and Intercollegiate Athletics." The guide provides, in a concise form, a detailed explanation of the compliance standards and methods used by OCR in enforcing Title IX.

In most respects, the current guide remains an accurate description of the means used by OCR to assess compliance. However, to ensure that it is fully accurate and can conveniently be used in conjunction with 1990 OCR manual, the guide is being updated by the NCAA's Washington counsel.

Availability of the new guide will be announced in The NCAA News.

NCAA's Benson named commissioner of MAC

Karl D. Benson, a member of the NCAA staff since February 1986 and director of championships since 1989, was named June 18 as the fifth commissioner of the Mid-American Athletic Conference.

The announcement was made by Miami University (Ohio) President Paul G. Pearson, chair of the MAC council of presidents, at a press conference in Ypsilanti, Michigan, in conjunction with a regular meeting of the council.

Benson joined the NCAA staff in 1986 as a compliance representative. In June 1987, he was appointed assistant director of championships, and he was promoted last year to director of championships.

"The selection committee presented the presidents with an impressive group of finalists," Pearson said. "It was our judgment that Karl Benson will be an astute, warm and active commissioner for the Mid-American Conference. Our expectations are that he will enhance the prestige and status of the Mid-American Conference."

Benson, who will begin his duties with the MAC in late July, has a three-year contract with the MAC. Terms were not disclosed.

"I am extremely honored to be selected as the commissioner of the Mid-American Conference," Benson said. "The MAC has a long tradition of academic and athletics success. I look forward to maintaining that tradition, while at the same time enhancing the MAC's national recognition."

Benson is the fifth commissioner in the MAC's 44-year history. The late David Reese served from 1946 to 1964, followed by the late Bob James from 1964 to 1971. Fred Jacoby, current commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference, held the MAC post from 1971 to 1982. James W. Lessig replaced him when Jacoby took the Southwest Conference position. Lessig left the MAC earlier this month after being named commissioner of the Sun Belt Conference.

A native of Spokane, Washington, Benson received a bachelor's degree in physical education from Boise State University in 1975. He has completed course work toward his master's degree in athletics administration from the University of Utah and is in the process of completing his thesis.

Prior to joining the NCAA staff, Benson served as baseball coach at Fort Steilacoom Community College in Tacoma, Washington, for eight years and was director of athletics at Fort Steilacoom from 1979 to 1984. From 1984 to 1986, he was assistant baseball coach and administrative assistant in the Utah athletics department while completing graduate course work.

GLIAC to use three officials

The Executive Council of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference has approved the use of three officials in men's basketball for the 1990-91 season.

"With the pace of the game and the quality of the student-athletes in Division II, three officials are very necessary," said Greg Kampe, men's basketball coach at Oakland University. "It is very hard for two officials to keep up with the game and be in correct position to do a good job of officiating. Also, we have the three-point play that the officials have to call."

The executive council also announced that Lake Superior State University would have to forfeit its score in the GLIAC championships for men's cross country because of an ineligible runner.

Researchers urge American high school autonomy

Each American high school should be able to structure its own program because student achievement is being stifled by "heavy-handed politics and high-handed bureaucracy," according to a study released June 6.

John Chubb, a senior fellow at Brookings Institution, and Stanford University political scientist Terry Moe said in the study that states should provide high schools with tax-funded scholarships for every eligible student enrolled.

Parents and students, they said, then would be free to select either public or private schools in any district.

"We found that America's current system of public education stifles student achievement because of heavy-handed politics and high-handed bureaucracy," Chubb told the Associated Press.

School performance, he said, is unrelated to how much is spent on each student, teacher salaries, class size and graduation requirements — "the very things the government has worked for 30 years to change."

However, California schools Superintendent Bill Honig responded to the study by saying that improvements have been made in student achievement—especially when educators use a comprehensive approach that includes strengthening a voucher system that will isolate poor and minority children, and will cost more because parents now paying for private-school education will be subsidized by the government.

It is considered the largest survey of its kind ever conducted.

According to the study, "Politics, Markets, and America's Schools," an average student at an effective school has a 52-percent chance of taking an academic program of study, while that same student has only half that chance at an ineffective school.

Effective schools, according to the study, have 20 to 50 percent less interference from superintendents and central offices in matters related to curriculum, instruction, hiring, firing and discipline.

Acknowledging that their proposals are controversial, the authors included reports on successful experiments with public school choice in Minnesota, and in school districts in East Harlem, New York, and Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Schools can improve only if given the freedom and incentives to organize more effectively, Chubb said.

"Let the people who are in the best position to know what is good for students — parents, teachers and principals — make the key decisions, and let competition hold them accountable," he said.

Under the Chubb-Moe plan, each school would be given sole authority to determine its own governing structure, and the state could not dictate a school's internal organization.

Gary Watts of the National Education Association called the proposal impractical.

"The lawsuits alone could keep an army of lawyers busy for years (tackling questions like) who owns school buildings, what if a private entrepreneur takes over a school or what if one school only wants a high quality football team," he said.

"Effective schools, according to the study, have 20 to 50 percent less interference from superintendents and central offices in matters related to curriculum, instruction, hiring, firing and discipline."

the curriculum and teaching material, improving teacher salaries and training, and giving principals more control.

Honig called the scholarship idea

Chubb and Moe spent 10 years studying American high schools, using surveys of more than 20,000 principals, teachers and students at about 500 high schools nationwide.

Hall of fame will move to Memphis

Directors of the College Football Hall of Fame expect a whopping increase in attendance when the museum moves from Kings Mills, Ohio, to Memphis next year.

With the move, the hall of fame will become one of several tourist attractions in a 32-story pyramid arena currently under construction beside the Mississippi River in downtown Memphis.

Bill Pearce, president of the hall of fame and the National Football Foundation, announced the relocation plans June 6. Low attendance at Kings Mills, about 20 miles from Cincinnati, led to the decision to relocate, Pearce said.

The football museum now draws some 30,000 visitors a year, but Sidney Schlenker, manager of the Memphis pyramid, predicts annual attendance of 600,000 following the move.

Schlenker said the relocation will cost about $4 million, to be paid by the foundation and the Pyramid Companies, a group of private corporations through which he will run the arena.

Called the Great American Pyramid, the sports and entertainment arena is scheduled to become the centerpiece of a multimillion dollar tourist development in downtown Memphis. It will contain shops and restaurants, a Hard Rock Cafe, an American music museum organized by rock 'n' roll pioneer Dick Clark, and other attractions.

Construction costs for the pyramid, financed by city, county and state governments, total $57 million. Schlenker plans to spend $85 million on attractions in the pyramid and at a nearby city tourist park called Mud Island, which he also controls.

The pyramid will have a 20,000-seat basketball arena and is scheduled to open in May 1991. Pearce said the 32,000-square-foot hall of fame also will open then.

The cost of moving the hall of fame will cover the addition of new attractions and a general upgrading of the current displays, Schlenker said.

The hall of fame honors more than 500 players and coaches, and 11 inductees are added each year.

SIDs honor Boda with Ward award

Steve Boda, retired NCAA associate director of statistics, will be presented with the 1990 Arch Ward Award by the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

The award will be presented at the association's annual National Workshop in Houston June 24-28.

Other major awards presentations will include the Jake Ward Award for outstanding contributions to college athletics in the communications field to Bob Monahan of the Boston Globe, and the Warren Berg Award for outstanding contributions by a college division SID to George Ellis of North Dakota State University.

Langston Rogers of the University of Mississippi and Bob Kenworthy at Gettysburg College will be inducted into the CoSIDA Hall of Fame.

Boda received the association's Meritorious Service Award in 1983.

The Arch Ward Award is presented to a member of CoSIDA who has made an outstanding contribution to the field and has brought dignity and prestige to the sports information profession.

Rising costs cited in reorganization

Faced with rising operational and travel costs as well as expenses associated with Title IX commitments, the Metropolitan State College department of athletics has reorganized for the 1990-91 year.

While much of the reorganization deals with administrative areas, women's softball was eliminated despite having posted best-ever 26-16 records in each of the past two seasons.

"The decision to drop women's softball was an extremely difficult one, made even harder by the fact that the young women involved in the program not only had a terrific season but are many of our college's finest student-athletes," said Harry Gianneschi, vice-president for institutional advancement. "Unfortunately, we simply did not feel that we could maintain the quality of this program over time, given our anticipated budgets."

The school will honor all scholarship commitments to softball players who do not transfer for the remaining years of their college eligibility.

The athletics department also announced the reorganization of its priority system, which determines scholarship and budget allotments.

The women's volleyball and men's basketball programs will remain at priority one. Women's basketball has been dropped to priority two and will be joined by baseball. The priority-three sports will be men's and women's soccer, while the priority-four sports (men's and women's swimming) and priority-five sports (men's and women's tennis) round out the sports teams.

Change sought in women's gymnastics format

The NCAA Women's Gymnastics Committee has voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that the format for the National Collegiate Women's Gymnastics Championships be changed effective with the 1992 championships.

The committee, which met June 11-13 in Kansas City, Missouri, will recommend that 12 teams and 12 all-around competitors compete during the championships' first day, in two sessions of six teams and six all-arounders. Assignments to sessions would alternate from year to year, with the odd-numbered seeds competing in the early session in odd-numbered years and the even-numbered seeds competing in the early session in even-numbered years.

The top three teams from each session would advance to the finals, which would be conducted on the second day. If a tie for third place occurs in either session, the teams' national qualifying scores would be used to break the tie.

The order of competition for the team finals would be determined by a random draw. Individual-event champions would be determined during the team-championship competition on the first day.

Presently, the team and all-around champions are determined on the first day, and the individual champions are determined on the second day.

The committee is making the following recommendations for championships sites: 1991 regionals: Central Auburn University. Midwest University of Arizona. Northeast—University of New Hampshire. Southeast—University of Georgia. West—Oregon State University. 1992 national championships: University of Minnesota, Twin Cities.

An increase in judges' fees also is being recommended. For 1991, the fees would increase from $90 to $110 dollars for regionals and the first day of national competition, and from $45 to $60 for the second day of the national championships. For 1992, under the recommended format, the fee would be $110 for regionals and each day of nationals. The committee also is recommending an increase from $45 per day to $75 per day for the meet referee for each day that person must be in attendance prior to the competition. This would be effective in 1991.

Regarding countable competition, the committee is recommending that only results that have been submitted on either a typed NCAA score sheet or a computer printout be considered for the 1991 championships. In 1992, the committee would only consider results that have been submitted on a computer printout.

Subcommittee endorses economic proposals

A presidential subcommittee of the NCAA's Special Committee on Cost Reduction recommends eliminating athletics dormitories over a five-year period instead of three years, but otherwise endorses all of the economic measures proposed by the full committee in April.

The subcommittee—five university presidents—met in New Orleans June 13-14.

"This is another step in the process of trying to move the reform agenda forward," Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, chancellor of the University of New Orleans, told the Associated Press.

"The only recommendation that we're going to make that's a little bit different is on the phase-out of athletics dormitories. We're going to recommend that the phase-out occur over five years instead of three so that the student-athletes who were promised a residence hall will be able to have it for their college careers."

The Special Committee on Cost Reduction made recommendations on how Division I programs can save money in several areas, including recruiting, competitive policies and financial aid. That report appeared in the May 2 issue of The NCAA News.

The other presidents at the meeting in New Orleans were John R. Brazil of Southeastern Massachusetts University, Stanley G. Rives of Eastern Illinois University, Bernard F. Sliger of Florida State University and Margaret R. Preska of Manhattan State University. All are members of the NCAA Presidents Commission.

Part-time job is full-time passion for Girouard

Some people might consider her coaching position part-time, but Southwestern Louisiana's Yvette Girouard has one passion in life—her Lady Cajun softball team.

"There's no part-time about it," Girouard said. "It is the thing that I love the most. It has always been my program."

Girouard, who has been the only softball coach in 10 years at USL, led the 1990 Lady Cajuns to a 44-8 record and their first appearance in the NCAA Division I women's softball championship. For her efforts, Girouard was named the Division I national coach of the year by her peers in the National Softball Coaches Association—quite an accomplishment for a part-time coach whose other job is helping run her family's Cajun-style restaurant.

Girouard's teams have compiled a 295-122 record in 10 years. In 1985, she was asked where she wanted her program to be in five years.

"I said I wanted to be in an NCAA regional tournament. I thought I might be dreaming then because of the kind of money we had to work with. But we made it."

Not only did her team make it to the regional tournament, Southwestern Louisiana hosted the tourney. More than 1,000 people were at the final game of the tournament. Florida State defeated the Lady Cajuns, 2-1, in 10 innings to advance to the Women's College World Series.

"People really got excited," Girouard said. "We were the first USL women's sport to be ranked in the top 10, and the university had never hosted an NCAA event before. The town was just super about supporting us. The tournament was a huge drawing card."

Girouard played varsity volleyball at Southwestern Louisiana. Her success story extends beyond the playing field. In her 10 years at USL, she has seen all but one of her four-year student-athletes receive a degree. This season, pitcher Stefni Whitton was named the GTE CoSIDA academic all-America softball player of the year. Whitton was also a first-team all-America as selected by the National Softball Coaches Association.

Although she's already planning for next year, Girouard is still caught up in the excitement of the 1990 season.

"This has been a Cinderella season. This program has been built from the ground up. It is a culmination of 10 years of hard work. I hope it doesn't end here. I hope we're in the top 20 for years to come."

Yvette Girouard

Joining Girouard as national coach of the year for Division III is Eastern Connecticut State's Jeff Anderson. Anderson led his team to its fourth NCAA championship. The Warriors finished the year with a 35-4 record and defeated Trenton State, 1-0, in the championship game of the Division III tournament. The Division II national coach of the year will be announced June 20.

Following is a complete list of the regional and national softball coaching awards.

Division I

Regional coaches of the year: Northeast—Karen Mullins, Connecticut; South—Girouard, Southwestern Louisiana; Midwest—Sue Lilley, Kent; Midwest—Sandy Fischer, Oklahoma State; Central—Bob Brock, Texas A&M; Northwest—Sharron Backus, UCLA; West—Marjorie Wright, Fresno State.

National coach of the year: Girouard.

Division II

Regional coaches of the year: Northeast—Elizabeth Luckie, Sacred Heart; Mid-Atlantic—Jan Hutchinson, Bloomsburg; South—Chris Bellotto, Florida Southern; Midwest—Sandy Jerstad, Augustana (South Dakota); Central—Pat Lipira, Missouri Southern State; West—Kathy Welter, Cal State Bakersfield.

Division II coach of the year will be announced June 20.

Division III

Regional coaches of the year: Northeast—Jeff Anderson, Eastern Connecticut State; Mid-Atlantic—Cyndi Gramlich-Covello, William Paterson; Midwest—Bryce Boston, Millikin; Central—Brian Bodine, Muhlenberg; West—Jan Travis, Coe.

National coach of the year: Jeff Anderson, Eastern Connecticut State.

Bentley begins renovations

Work has begun on the renovation of the playing fields at Bentley College, including a new sodded football and soccer game field and a synthetic practice and intramural field.

The project is scheduled to be completed in September.

The new game field, which will be about 30 yards south of the old field, will be used exclusively for football and soccer games.

All practices will be held on the new synthetic field that will be between the baseball and new football fields. The area was previously used as an intramural field. It was undersized and overused, according to school officials.

In addition to football and soccer practices, the synthetic field will also be used for all field hockey and lacrosse games, as well as numerous intramural and recreational activities. Previously, the field hockey team played in the outfield of the baseball field, while the club lacrosse program played most of its games off campus.

Writers say Dayton graduates have some company

From Mike Strickler, sports information director at Virginia Military Institute, comes the following reply to Doug Hauschild, his counterpart at the University of Dayton, whose report on graduation of Flyer basketball players was published in the May 9 issue of The NCAA News:

"Doug said that (Dayton's) was the best graduation rate in Division I this past season, which aroused women). All five women graduated May 20 on time. They are Mary Fuchs, Kathy Kaczowski, Cindy Wyrick, Stacy Paridon and Meghan McCarthy. Jeffrey Robinson, the senior on the men's basketball team, will graduate in July. He needs just three credits to complete his degree."

King's College (Pennsylvania) student-athlete Larry Danko hit the ground running last month after my curiosity. So, I checked VMI's past basketball teams dating back to 1959, which is the first year an accurate roster appeared in a press guide. Over the past 31 years, only one VMI basketball player who completed four years of eligibility failed to graduate. That's not a bad track record from 1959 to 1990."

Also responding to Hauschild was Dayton alumnus John D'Argenio, sports information director at Siena College.

"Six players were listed as seniors on this year's men's and women's basketball rosters (one man and five completing a successful athletics and academic career at the school. Danko, a Division III all-America wrestler at 177 pounds, earned his degree and went right to work on Danko's Fitness Center, which he expects to open by September 1.

"Our plant will contain some 6,000 square feet," said Danko, "and will be a serious training locale for regional athletes and others." It also will house a wrestling club.

Coe College and Cornell College will meet on the football field November 3 for the 100th time. The two schools claim the oldest continuous college football rivalry west of the Mississippi.

Trivia Time: According to information from Coe, what is the oldest claimed rivalry in Division III football? Answer later.

Named Ohio Valley Conference athletes of the year recently were Jay Owens, a baseball player at Middle Tennessee State University; Lisa Malloy, a distance runner at Eastern Kentucky University, and Deena Wigger, a Murray State University shooter who won the NCAA individual air-rifle title in 1988.

lege (Colorado) student-athletes apparently know how to hit—the books, that is. The school's 137 student-athletes combined to produce a 3.030 grade-point average (4.000 scale) during the spring semester. Nine earned 4.000s.

While on their way to the 1990 Division III championship, women's basketball players from Hope College found enough time to study. The 13-member team posted a combined GPA of 3.310 for the 1989-90 academic year.

Fifty-one Trenton State College student-athletes were honored recently at the athletics department's annual academic honors luncheon for maintaining cumulative grade-point averages of at least 3.300. Among them were seniors Marianne Papay and Bruce Wolski, who were named top scholar-athletes for 1989-90.

Thirty Louisiana State University football players earned GPAs of at least 2.500 last semester—including 13 with GPAs of at least 3.000 (four with GPAs of at least 3.500). "A lot of hard work has paid off," said head coach Mike Archer, "and we hope we've laid the groundwork for more academic success in the future."

For the eighth consecutive semester, Beloit College women's tennis players have earned a combined team GPA above 3.200. The team's combined GPA for the spring semester was 3.310.

University of San Francisco men's basketball player Joel DeBortoli has been named West Coast Conference male scholar-athlete of the year. DeBortoli, who has a cumulative 3.710 GPA in business, received an award named in memory of George "Pat" Malley, the longtime athletics director at Santa Clara University.

Idaho State University student-athletes had their best semester ever in the classroom this spring. Twelve who earned 4.000s were among 71 who earned semester GPAs of at least 3.000.

Twenty-nine University of Illinois, Chicago, student-athletes were recognized May 23 during the athletics department's annual academic awards luncheon. Named student-athletes of the year were baseball player Craig Neidermaier (5.000 GPA (5.000 scale) for the school year in design communications) and gymnast Laura Mangan (4.880 for the year in athletics training).

University of Hawaii officials have announced that 136 student-athletes were named to the school's student-athlete honor roll for the spring semester. All earned GPAs of at least 3.000, and eight earned 4.000s.

DePaul University distance runner Theo Felts and women's softball player Michelle Fryatt were named the outstanding senior student-athletes at the school recently. They were among 10 Blue Demons who received athletics board awards for 1989-90.

Indiana State University football player Todd Jochem and distance runner Mary Lou Fazio have been named winners of the 1989-90 Hillman Awards, which are given annually to graduating seniors for academic service, character and service outside of competition. Fazio, a graphics design major, developed the logo to be worn next fall by the Sycamore football team.

Seven student-athletes have been named to the 1989-90 Trans America Athletic Conference all-academic team. Heading the list is Hardin-Simmons University men's basketball player Johnny Hudson, a senior with a 4.000 GPA in history.

Deena Wigger

Seven student-athletes with 4.000s are among the 64 who were named to the sports information director's honor roll at Missouri Southern State College for the spring semester. All earned GPAs of at least 3.000.

Forty-three women student-athletes at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, have been honored for earning GPAs of at least 3.000 for the spring semester. Among them were eight who earned 4.000s.

Among the 43 student-athletes named recently to the athletics director's honor roll at the University of South Carolina at Spartanburg are men's basketball player James "Bo" Keller and women's softball player Robin Elder, who earned 4.000s. All of those recognized had GPAs of at least 3.000 during the spring semester.

Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference officials have announced that Winifred McGarry, a three-sport (basketball, field hockey and softball) student-athlete at Bridgewater State College (Massachusetts) with a 3.930 GPA, has been awarded the 1989-90 Howard C. Smith Scholar-Athlete Award. Named in honor of Howard C. Smith, a former state college trustee who was instrumental in the league's formation, the award is presented annually to one or more senior student-athletes who have excelled in academics and athletics in the conference.

Led by Miki Rakovic, a sophomore women's tennis player who earned a 4.000, half of Rollins College's 256 student-athletes earned spring-semester GPAs of at least 3.000. School officials also announced that 32 senior student-athletes graduated, keeping intact Rollins, 99-percent graduation rate among all student-athletes.

The 13-member women's basketball team from the State University of New York, Binghamton, combined to produce a 3.360 GPA for the spring semester. The team's combined cumulative GPA is 3.230.

Trivia Answer: Williams College and Amherst College claim the oldest Division III football rivalry. The two schools have met 105 times.
