Commission's goal: tighter academic standards

Strengthening the NCAA regulations for initial and continuing athletics eligibility will be the primary topic for the NCAA Presidents Commission in 1991, but it won't be the only issue on the group's agenda.

R. Gerald Turner, chancellor of the University of Mississippi and new chair of the Presidents Commission, announced the Commission's major topics for the year after attending orientation meetings January 30-31 at the NCAA national office. The meetings included the Commission officers; the NCAA Administrative Committee, and new members of the Commission, the NCAA Council and the NCAA Executive Committee.

The Presidents Commission will take the lead in the development of academic-eligibility legislation for the 1992 Convention. The 1991 Convention last month in Nashville adopted a resolution directing the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee to develop recommendations to strengthen requirements for initial and continuing eligibility and to submit them to both the Commission and the Council for those groups April meetings.

Turner said the Commission will work closely with the Council in the academic area and will conduct hearings in May with a representative group of faculty athletics representatives, athletics directors, women athletics administrators, conference commissioners and coaches. He also said chief executive officers of all member institutions would be surveyed in the near future regarding academic issues.

"Everyone with credentials to address this issue should have that opportunity, especially faculty representatives," Turner said. He called the academic issues "a cornerstone of the Commission's work for this year."

Other topics

Turner also identified these other major agenda items for the Commission in 1991:

- A review of proposals to fine-tune the reform amendments adopted by the 1991 Convention. The Commission officers and the Administrative Committee agreed that the Council will handle the details of such proposals, which the Commission then will review to assure that they do not erode the intent of the reform agenda.

"We want to be sure that fine-tuning does not mean weakening," Turner said. "I think the Commission's view will be that there really has to be a strong case made to change the reform proposals."

He said the Council is in a better position to consider detailed suggestions for modification of reform proposals because it has representation from a broader range of constituent groups. The Administrative Committee agreed to appoint a Council subcommittee to begin work on the review of fine-tuning suggestions, some of which already have been submitted from the membership.

New member of Council is appointed

Richard A. Johanningmeier, director of athletics at Washburn University, has been appointed to fill a Division II vacancy on the NCAA Council.

Johanningmeier replaces Jerry M. Hughes, director of athletics at Central Missouri State University. Hughes, who served as NCAA Division II vice-president the past two years, resigned from the Council when he was appointed to a term on the NCAA Executive Committee.

The Washburn AD will serve the final year of Hughes' Council term and then will be eligible for nomination to serve a full, four-year term.

Before he was selected as athletics director at the Topeka, Kansas, institution, Johanningmeier was an NCAA enforcement representative from 1986 to early 1990. Prior to that, he was head football coach at Southwest Missouri State University for 10 years, compiling a 58-44-5

Members of the NCAA Administrative Committee and the executive committee of the NCAA Presidents Commission participated in an orientation session at the national office January 30-31 for new members of the Commission, NCAA Council and Executive Committee. Spotlight focused on women's basketball Coaches and players from some of the nation's outstanding women's collegiate basketball programs will participate in the ninth annual NCAA Spotlight on Women's Basketball press conference Tuesday, February 12, at the Grand Hyatt New York in New York City.

The participants will be coach Debbie Ryan and Tammi Reiss, University of Virginia; coach Rene Portland and Susan Robinson, Pennsylvania State University; coach Jim Bolla, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and coach Geno Auriemma, Kerry Bascom and Laura Lishness, University of Connecticut.

Members of the media are invited to interview the coaches and players beginning at 9:30 a.m. Debbie Byrne, Old Dominion University assistant athletics director for public relations and a member of the NCAA Communications Committee, will moderate a telephonic press conference from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Eastern time. Media interested in listening to the press conference should contact Cynthia M. Van Matre, NCAA assistant director of communications, at the Association's national office to obtain the telephone number.

The Spotlight is held annually to promote the sport of women's basketball. The event, developed by the former NCAA Public Relations and Promotion Committee, was initiated in 1983. The Spotlight affords members of the media the opportunity to meet with and interview some of the nation's top women basketball players and coaches in a setting outside of the competitive arena.

Following is biographical information about this year's Spotlight participants.

New form to include graduation rates

The NCAA's annual academic-reporting form has been substantially revised and given a new name as the Association implements its new graduation-rate-reporting requirements.

The form, which will be distributed to member institutions in mid-March, now is known as the NCAA Graduation-Rates Disclosure Form.

Beginning this year, the form will be distributed not only to Division I institutions, which are required by NCAA Bylaw 30.1 to complete and return the form by October 1, 1991, but also to Division II institutions, which will be required to submit academic data for the first time in 1993 as the result of action by the NCAA Council at its January meeting in Nashville.

Deadline changed

Originally, with the adoption of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24, Division II institutions were given until October 1, 1994, to report graduation-rate and other academic data, but the Council, which has the authority to adopt or revise administrative bylaws, approved several revisions to Bylaw 30.1 in order to make the Association's graduation-rate-reporting requirements consistent with the recently passed Federal Student Right-to-Know Act.

Among the requirements of the Federal act is a provision that institutions awarding athletically related financial aid must begin reporting student-body and student-athlete graduation rates by July 1, 1993. The act also requires all institutions receiving Federal assistance, beginning the same date, to compile biennially and report annually graduation rates for the student body as a whole; this requirement would apply to Division III as well as Divisions I and II institutions.

As a result of the new law, the Council moved up the initial Division II reporting date to July 1, 1991.

Play-off qualification waiver sought in view of realignments

A special NCAA committee will recommend that a waiver provision be added to the requirements that determine a conference's eligibility for automatic qualification to the Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

Currently, NCAA Bylaw 31.3.4.3-(a) includes a stipulation that at least six members of a conference must have held continuous membership in that conference for the five preceding years. A conference that does not meet that stipulation may not be considered for automatic qualification for at least five academic years.

The special committee, chaired by Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Eugene F. Corrigan, will recommend to the NCAA Division I Championships Committee that a conference that previously was eligible for automatic qualification and that does not meet the continuity-of-membership requirement per Bylaw 31.3.4.3-(a) may be granted a waiver of the continuity-of-membership requirement following a one-year waiting period, provided the conference:

a. Is composed during the waiting period and thereafter of at least six institutions that have been members of Division I during the eight preceding academic years;

b. Retains, during the waiting period and thereafter, at least three of its members that have held continuous membership in the conference for the five preceding academic years, and

c. Complies during the one-year waiting period and thereafter with the requirements set forth in Bylaw 18.5.1.1.

The automatic-qualification application timetable for the 1992 championship will be determined by the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee at its March 8-10 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Corrigan said the special committee formulated this recommendation after two in-person meetings and a review of responses to a questionnaire that was distributed to all Division I conference commissioners at the recent NCAA Convention. He said the special committee will recommend that the Division I Championships Committee study the concept of deregulating the current automatic-qualification criteria.

Corrigan also said the special committee will recommend to the Special NCAA Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues that a conference be defined as one that is composed of at least six institutions that have been classified in Division I for the preceding eight academic years.

Many members have not met self-study requirement

A large number of member institutions have yet to complete the required self-study of their intercollegiate athletics programs, according to Gary Karner of the Association's compliance services department.

According to the requirements of Constitution 6.3, adopted August 1, 1986, member institutions in all three divisions shall conduct a comprehensive self-study and evaluation of their intercollegiate athletics programs at least once every five years, thereby making July 31, 1991, the deadline for completing an initial self-study. If an institution became an NCAA member after passage of Constitution 6.3, the five-year study is due within five years of its membership effective date.

According to Karner, some institutions have completed the study by the appropriate deadline but have not submitted the required Notification of Completion form to the national office compliance services department. Karner stressed the importance of submitting the Notification of Completion form once the study is completed to properly document and communicate to the national office the institution's compliance with the regulations.

The only way the (Constitution

6.3) obligation can be fulfilled is by completing the NCAA Institutional Self-Study Guide (ISSG) and returning the Notification of Completion form (signed and dated by the institution's chief executive officer) to our office, Karner said.

Karner cautioned that if institutions have not yet begun the ISSG, which is designed to help institutional administrators identify and correct potential problems in the operation of their athletics programs, they ought to begin the process soon, since a meaningful self-study and completion of the ISSG can be a lengthy process.

Once completed, the ISSG and supporting documentation shall remain on file with the institution and be available for examination upon request by an authorized Association representative.

Once an institution has completed its initial self-study, its next self-study must be completed within five years of its first. For example, an institution that completed its initial self-study April 1, 1990, would be required to complete its next such study no later than March 31, 1995.

Member institutions and conferences may request the ISSG, the accompanying Users Guide and the Notification of Completion form from the national office circulation office. Questions regarding the ISSG should be directed to Karner in the compliance services department.

tions that will be forthcoming from the Presidents Commission's Advisory Committee on Coaches Compensation Issues, which Turner chairs.

The advisory committee—which includes chief executive officers, athletics directors and coaches—will meet in March and submit a preliminary report at the Commission's April meeting. Its final report is due in June, prior to the Commission's summer meeting.

• Development of a strategic-planning process for the Commission that will set forth a program of work covering the next several years, to be reviewed and modified annually by the Commission.

"This will provide a blueprint and a time line so we do not feel that everything has to be dealt with in a single year in order to make it to the reform agenda," Turner explained. The strategic-planning exercise was suggested by members of the Commission in their fall 1990 meeting.

Turner intends to appoint a Commission subcommittee to work on the strategic-planning project.

And more

Turner emphasized that the Commission's considerations in 1991 will not be limited to the major identified topics.

"Other topics already have been approved for our April agenda, and other things will come forward during the year," he said.

The Commission's 1991 meetings are scheduled April 3-4 in San Diego, June 25-26 in Kansas City and October 1-2 in Kansas City. Any legislation to be sponsored by the Commission must be submitted by August 15, and it can propose amendments-to-amendments by October 15.

Joining Turner as Commission officers for 1991 are William H. Cunningham, president, University of Texas, Austin, Division I chair; Asa N. Green, president, Livingston University, Division II chair, and David L. Warren, president, Ohio Wesleyan University, Division III chair.

Wilson to provide official tennis ball

Wilson Sporting Goods Company's tennis ball has been named the official ball of the NCAA championships.

Wilson and the NCAA have reached a three-year agreement, during which time Wilson championship tennis balls will be used for all NCAA championships, both men's and women's at all levels.

Wilson has been the official ball of the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association for five years, an agreement that was recently renewed for another three years.

"The NCAA ball adoption really solidifies Wilson's commitment to collegiate tennis. No other company in the industry supports these coaches and athletes to the level that Wilson does," said John Embree, director of tennis ball marketing for Wilson.

As part of the agreement, Wilson will donate practice balls, used tennis rackets and other products to the NCAA for use at YES clinics and in the NYSP, two of the Association's national efforts to promote youth fitness.

In addition, Wilson will work with the NCAA to provide members of its advisory staff as speakers at clinics and camps.

Hunt resigns from NCAA staff

William B. Hunt, a member of the national office staff since 1972 and head of the legislative services department since 1985, has resigned from the staff to pursue other opportunities.

Originally hired as an enforcement representative, Hunt became assistant executive director in charge of the enforcement department in 1977. In 1985, he moved to the legislative services department.

"I congratulate Bill Hunt on his years of service and the contributions he has made to the NCAA," Executive Director Richard D. Schultz said. "We wish him and his family well in their future pursuits."

record and posting seven winning seasons.

A graduate of Southwest Missouri State, Johanningmeier also has a master's degree in education from Springfield College. Before his head-coaching stint, he was an assistant football coach at the University of Connecticut and an assistant coach and faculty member at American International College and the University of Vermont. He also played two years of minor-league professional football and had a tryout with the Houston Oilers of the National Football League.

Johanningmeier currently serves on the NCAA Research Committee and the Memorial Resolutions Committee. He has served on the rules committee of the American Football Coaches Association and on the Lombardi Award selection committee.

Correction—1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 98—official visit—ACT or SAT score

In a recent edition of The NCAA News (January 16, 1991), it was reported that the effective date of 1991 Convention Proposal No. 98 (as amended by Proposal No. 98-1) is August 1, 1991. Please note that the correct effective date for 1991 Convention Proposal No. 98 (as amended by Proposal No. 98-1) is August 1, 1992. Thus, subsequent to August 1, 1992, a Division I or II member institution may not provide an expense-paid visit to a prospective student-athlete who has not presented the institution with a score from a PSAT, an ACT or an SAT test taken on a national testing date under national testing conditions. In addition, a foreign or learning-disabled prospective student-athlete who requires a special administration of the PSAT, ACT or SAT may present such a score upon approval by the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee or the NCAA Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers.

1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 91—Division II financial aid—summer school

Division II member institutions should note that with the adoption of 1991 Convention Proposal No. 91, it is permissible for an enrolled student-athlete in a Division II institution to receive institutionally administered, athletically related financial aid to attend an institution's summer term, regardless of whether the student-athlete received athletically related financial aid during the previous academic year. The requirement that institutionally administered, athletically related financial aid to attend an institution's summer term be awarded only in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid received by the student-athlete during the previous academic year is applicable only in Division I.

1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 99—unofficial visits—meals

Division II member institutions should note that with the adoption of 1991 Convention Proposal No. 99 (effective immediately), it is permissible to provide a prospect and the prospect's parents or guardians a meal in the institution's on-campus dining facility during an unofficial visit. In addition, the institution may provide a meal at an off-campus dining facility when all on-campus dining facilities are closed.

NCAA Bylaw 12.1.4—amateur status if professional in another sport

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 12.1.4, a professional athlete in one sport may represent a member institution in a different sport. The student-athlete, however, cannot receive institutional financial assistance in the second sport, unless the student-athlete: (1) no longer is involved in professional athletics; (2) is not receiving any remuneration from a professional sports organization, and (3) has no active contractual relationship with any professional athletics team. However, an individual may remain bound by an option clause in a professional sports contract that requires assignment to a particular team if the student-athlete's professional career is resumed.

Please note that, per Bylaw 12.1.4.1, if the individual later becomes involved in professional athletics while still a student-athlete with remaining eligibility, the individual would be considered to have violated the principles of ethical conduct per Bylaw 10, thus rendering the individual ineligible for intercollegiate competition.

In a related matter, an individual who agrees (orally or in writing) to be represented by an agent for the purpose of marketing his or her athletics ability or reputation in a specific sport would not jeopardize his or her eligibility to participate in another intercollegiate sport. An agency contract, though not specifically limited in writing to a sport or sports, would be deemed to be applicable to all sports, and the individual would be ineligible to participate in intercollegiate competition in any sport.

It should be noted that per Bylaw 15.3.4.1, it is at the institution's discretion whether to graduate or cancel the student-athlete's financial aid if the student-athlete agrees to be represented by an agent in a particular sport, even if the student-athlete has exhausted eligibility for intercollegiate competition in that sport; however, any compensation or bonus received by the student-athlete from the agent must be included in the student-athlete's individual financial aid limit for that academic year.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to the legislative services department at the NCAA national office.

Virginia

Coach Debbie Ryan, who is in her 14th season at Virginia, has brought the Cavaliers to national prominence. She is quickly approaching 300 career victories and is a three-time Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) coach of the year. Her Virginia squads have earned seven NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship berths. Last year's team (29-6) advanced to the Women's Final Four, bowing out to eventual champion Stanford in the semifinals. The Cavaliers have been ranked No. 1 through most of this season. Ryan is a 1975 graduate of Ursinus College, where she was a guard on the basketball team.

Tammi Reiss, a 5-6 junior guard from Eldred, New York, teams with all-America Dawn Staley to form one of the nation's top backcourts. Reiss was second on the Virginia squad last season in scoring and assists, with 15.3 points and 3.1 assists per game. In 1990, Reiss was named second-team all-ACC and to ACC and NCAA East regional all-tournament teams. She played on Olympic Festival teams in 1989 and 1990.

Penn State

Penn State is enjoying its most successful season ever and spent a week as the nation's top-ranked team after defeating Virginia, 73-71, last month. Last season, coach Rene Portland gained her 200th victory at Penn State and her 300th career win, the 20th active coach to reach that mark. Since becoming the Lady Lions' head coach in 1981, Portland has guided her teams to nine Division I championship appearances and five Atlantic 10 Conference championships. Immaculata College basketball team and earned her degree in 1975. This past year, she was the president of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association and continues to serve on its board.

Susan Robinson is a 6-1 junior forward from Center Point, West Virginia. She led Penn State in scoring in each of her first two seasons and became the first sophomore in school history to score more than 1,000 career points. Last summer, Robinson was the youngest member of the U.S. Junior National team that toured Italy and Czechoslovakia. The all-America candidate earned all-Atlantic 10 honors last year and was the conference's freshman of the year in 1988-89.

Nevada-Las Vegas

Coach Jim Bolla, in his ninth season as head coach of the Lady Rebels, has led them to five Division I tournament appearances. Bolla has averaged more than 20 wins each season and earlier this year earned his 200th victory. He began this season ranked eighth among active Division I women's basketball coaches, with a winning percentage of .788. Nevada-Las Vegas returns nine players from last year's squad, which advanced to the second round of the Division I championship. Bolla, a 1975 graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, was an assistant coach at the 1990 Olympic Festival.

Nevada-Las Vegas will host the

West regional in the 1991 Division I Women's Basketball Championship. Connecticut

Coach Geno Auriemma arrived at Connecticut six years ago in his first head coaching position and inherited a program that had only one winning season in its first 11 years. Auriemma's Huskies have since compiled four consecutive winning seasons and made two straight NCAA Division I tournament appearances. Last year, Connecticut set the school record for most single-season victories and became the first Big East Conference team to repeat as regular-season champion. The Huskies also made their first appearance in the Top 25. Before taking the Connecticut position, Auriemma was Virginia's primary assistant coach from 1981 to 1985. He is a 1981 graduate of West Chester University of Pennsylvania.

Connecticut is led by Kerry Bascom, a 6-1 center-forward from Epping, New Hampshire, and Laura Lishness, a 5-11 guard from Bristol, Connecticut. Bascom, a two-time Big East Conference player of the year, became the Huskies' all-time leading scorer earlier this year. The all-America candidate holds school records in several categories. Lishness is a three-year starter and Connecticut's floor leader. She was a second-team all-conference selection as a junior and led the Huskies in assists.

1993. It also approved a recommendation from the Division II Steering Committee that copies of the form be provided this year to Division II member institutions, to give administrators at those schools time to become familiar with the form before beginning to compile the required data during the 1992-93 academic year.

Other revisions

In Nashville, the Council also approved several revisions of Bylaw 30.1 that were recommended by the NCAA Special Advisory Committee to Review Implementation of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24.

The recommendations of that committee, which has met six times since it was formed in June 1990, also were designed to ensure that the NCAA's requirements for reporting graduation-rate data are consistent with those of the Federal legislation. Consistency is important because of a provision of the Federal act that permits the U.S. Secretary of Education to waive its requirements for institutions that disclose "substantially comparable" graduation-rate data through an athletics conference or association.

Bylaw 30.1, as revised in January by the Council, now will require Divisions I and II institutions to report graduation-rate data for student-athletes receiving athletically related aid, instead of for recruited student-athletes, as was originally required with the passage of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24.

Also, the bylaw now requires institutions to report the percentage of students in a given class who graduate within a six-year period, rather than five years. That data must be reported for an institution's general student body as well as for student-athletes receiving athletically related aid, and for the most recent single class for which that information is available as well as for the four most recent classes for which an overall average graduation rate can be calculated.

Schools also will be required to provide more extensive academic data for the general student body, in order to improve the comparability of student-athlete data to that for all students.

Another revision increases the number of specific sports for which graduation rates must be reported. Only two sports—football and basketball—were singled out for separate reporting with the adoption of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24, but the new Federal legislation also requires separate reporting for the sports of baseball and track. Now, member institutions will be required to report rates broken down by race and sex for each of those sports, as well as for all other sports combined.

The Council also decided that, beginning in 1993, Division I will have the same reporting deadline—July 1—as Division II.

As a result of the Council's actions, two proposals that had been submitted for action at the 1991 Convention—Proposal Nos. 77 and 78—were withdrawn by their sponsors. The proposals called for some of the same revisions that were approved by the Council.

Each of the revisions approved by the Council will appear in the 1991-92 Manual and will be reflected in the 1991-92 Graduation-Rates Disclosure Form.

Issues remain

The special committee will meet again February 11-12 in Coronado, California, to consider other issues related to implementation of the legislation. Among issues still to be resolved is the means by which graduation-rate data, broken down by institution, will be published and provided to prospective student-athletes and the general public as required by the adoption of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24.

The committee also eventually will have to consider the section of the Federal legislation that requires all institutions, and not just those that award athletically related aid for student-athletes, to report certain data for the general student body.

The act currently does not provide for the reporting of that data through an association such as the NCAA. The Association, through its Washington legal counsel, is seeking a clarification of the provision.

Consistency sought

"The goal of the special committee has been and will continue to be to work as closely as possible with representatives from Congress and the U.S. Department of Education in order to keep the Association's requirements 'substantially comparable' to those of the Federal act," said Daniel T. Dutcher, an NCAA legislative assistant who serves as a staff liaison to the committee.

Dutcher said NCAA staff members, in conjunction with the Association's Washington legal counsel, will meet regularly with education department staff members to help keep the NCAA legislation consistent with Federal requirements.

Despite those efforts, the Secretary of Education still could rule that the NCAA requirements are not sufficiently consistent with Federal law. As a result, NCAA member institutions still could be required to report graduation-rate and related data directly to the education department.

In January, the Council took the position that if member institutions are not exempted from Federal academic reporting and are faced with the administrative burden of a dual reporting requirement, it is prepared to reevaluate and determine the continued viability of the NCAA's academic-reporting requirements. Member institutions would be notified of any changes in their reporting obligations as soon as possible.

Easing transition

In addition to revising Bylaw 30.1, the Council also has recommended that the Association sponsor a series of regional workshops this spring to assist member institutions with implementation of the new reporting requirements.

Administrators from Divisions I and II member institutions will be encouraged to attend the workshops, which the Council hopes will help ease the additional administrative burden that will be felt by schools as they complete the Graduation-Rates Disclosure Form.

Information about dates and sites for the workshops will be announced as soon as possible, Dutcher said.

Also, the Council will closely monitor implementation of the reporting requirements, even to the point of considering justifiable reporting-deadline extensions during 1991.

Following receipt of the Graduation-Rates Disclosure Form and instructions, member institutions are encouraged to contact the Association's compliance services department with any questions.

News Fact File

The NCAA championship with the largest number of participating student-athletes in 1989-90 was the Division I Baseball Championship, with 1,056 student-athletes. That was the only championship with more than one thousand participants. Next highest: Division I men's basketball, 960; Division I-AA football, 832; Divisions II and III football, each 768, and Division I women's basketball, 720.

10 years with NCAA a boon to women's sports

By Marge Willadsen

This academic year, the NCAA is celebrating a decade of women's sports championships by planning a number of recognition and anniversary celebration events. The NCAA's association with women's athletics paved the way for the progress that has taken place over the past 10 years.

The once-popular slogan "You've come a long way, baby" accurately depicts the tremendous growth that has occurred on the women's collegiate sports scene.

Opportunities for women were virtually nonexistent prior to the mid-1970s. Following the passage of the Educational Amendments Act (Title IX) in 1972, women's sports exploded. Women athletes could now enjoy the same equality as men, in terms of equipment, practice time and facilities, locker rooms, travel expenses, coaches, and spring trips.

In an effort to promote women's collegiate sports and national championships, the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW) was organized in 1971. The AIAW sponsored seven national championships in its first year. By 1981, 39 championships were contested and membership grew from 278 to 950 members. More than 120,000 women were estimated to be participating in collegiate sports.

The AIAW started women's athletics in the right direction, and the NCAA launched women's collegiate sports to further success in January 1981. The NCAA, which had governed and promoted men's collegiate athletics for 75 years, voted to bring women's collegiate athletics under its jurisdiction, despite protests from the AIAW.

The NCAA could offer women athletes and their institutions the opportunities to compete at the regional and national levels, prestige, publicity, and a governing body to keep competition fair, equal and equitable.

Buena Vista College women's athletics has benefited greatly since its association with the NCAA in 1982. The Iowa Conference abides by the NCAA rules and regulations, thereby guaranteeing fair and equitable competition for all member institutions. Increased opportunities for women to compete at the regional and national levels are a direct benefit for our program.

Buena Vista women athletes have enjoyed the prestige and experiences that accompany competing in a national championship, namely in the sports of softball, basketball, track and swimming. The public image and the strength of our women's program are known statewide and nationally. Equality in this area has been important to Buena Vista athletics directors, and membership in the NCAA has helped to make equality attainable.

Competing in, winning and hosting NCAA national championships brings prestige and pride to both the student-athlete and the institution.

I salute the NCAA for its efforts of the past 10 years in providing and promoting participation opportunities for women student-athletes.

Its willingness and desire to work equally for the benefit of all student-athletes is an outcome many women coaches and administrators did not dream possible a short decade ago.

Willadsen coaches women's tennis and softball at Buena Vista College.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

I could not help but be amused at one of your recent letters calling for the elimination of football's PAT kick.

Part of the rationale for this was that "it's a nonfootball play." Actually, quite the opposite is true.

The PAT kick, along with the kick-off, field goal and punt, is one of the few true football plays remaining in a game with a format now far removed from its soccer (football) origins.

Legislation hurts charities

Recent NCAA legislation eliminating the popular preseason basketball games will cut off funds for charities, says Nolan Richardson, head men's basketball coach at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville.

"Can you imagine the money we have raised for the needy organizations and groups? All the money that is raised to help others? I don't see how you can cut away help, and that's what they've done," Richardson told the Associated Press. "I don't like that at all."

The legislation is aimed at reducing time demands on student-athletes. It bans preseason intrasquad scrimmages played off campus.

The ban was part of a proposal sponsored by the NCAA Council intended to limit an athlete's practice and playing time, including weight training and other such activities.

"We just want to try to clean up a lot of the distasteful aspects of summer recruiting; to remove the middle man operating in the summer; to bring some sanity back to recruiting. It's very basic, nothing intriguing.

"We hope to bring (the issue) to a vote at next year's Convention (have the NCAA sponsor summer camps). We don't want to rush it, but I'll say this: It's received enthusiastic response. The presidents I've talked to about it have reacted positively, and the coaches are overwhelmingly for it."

Furman Bisher, columnist
The Atlanta Journal and Constitution

"...today, the presidents of American colleges have let it be known who's running the campus, and that includes the athletics department. It's only about 25 years, or maybe a century, too late.

"My only regret is that I wasn't in Nashville to see it. But I'd heard that song so many times before, and it was always off-key. I'd made so many trips with great anticipation and come home with an empty bag. Now, God bless 'em, they've done it.

"One of the reasons this reform has taken so long has been the resistance of the 'people in the trenches.' Too long, these presidents have listened and allowed themselves to be twisted in the wind. All they had to do was take a closer look at budgets to see that cost reduction was due, or that athletics departments were on a downhill run to bankruptcy."

Joab Thomas, president
Pennsylvania State University

"One of the top issues on the minds of alumni and fans is the matter of institutional control of intercollegiate athletics. People want assurances that athletics departments are not operating independently...that their goals and ideals are consistent with those of the universities.

"We also must be vigilant that our student-athletes receive the quality education they've been promised and graduate with a meaningful degree. At Penn State, these two themes are central to our oversight of intercollegiate athletics."

Al McGuire, college basketball analyst
NBC Sports
Basketball Weekly

"I believe there should be a summit meeting between the executive director of the NCAA, Dick Schultz, and NBA Commissioner David Stern. They've got to work on a common ground. I think they have to straighten out the overkill of TV, straighten out the hardship rules and straighten out the Olympics.

"The Olympic thing is completely out of control. It's gone into the back rooms of smoke and cigars and political greasy spoons. On one end, the NBA is looking more to franchise in Europe in the next five or six years—and looking to control but not really looking to come home with the gold.

"But the thing with the summit meeting is this: They're the only ones who can save the budgets of high-school coaches. High schools can't breathe now.

They can't exist because they don't know where to put their games. We've got to get two hours twice a week in each time zone. Take any day you want. For example, from 7 to 9 p.m., no collegiate or pro basketball. That way, the high schools know for their hour and a half of entertainment, they can pack their gyms. That has to be straightened out."

Albert C. Yates, president
Colorado State University
The Denver Post

"At the intercollegiate level, an athletics program of quality and integrity can instill in both spectators and participants an appreciation of those values requisite to good sportsmanship: values such as fair play, competitiveness, perseverance, commitment, loyalty and understanding the nature of one's own limits.

Opinions

"Athletics teaches us that we can learn from failure, and that we can overcome obstacles to achieve our dreams. Athletics scholarships create opportunities for talented students to earn a college education, thereby drawing greater numbers of people from all aspects of society into the higher-education arena.

"Universities must respect and capitalize upon any avenue that creates educational opportunity where it has not existed before. A quality sports program also can become an important rallying point for a university, creating esprit de corps among students, faculty, alumni and the greater community. Athletics serves the entire university as an important adjunct to public relations efforts and as a recruiting tool to attract high-quality students and faculty.

"Quite simply, athletics puts the university's name in front of the public in important ways. When a national spotlight focuses upon the athletics program, much attention also is reflected onto other distinguished university programs. This attention has benefited the schools, and it has benefited the state as a whole."

The Long Range Planning Committee, meeting February 20-21, 1986, in Miami, voted to recommend to the NCAA Council that a standing committee be established to consider women's interests and that the Association reaffirm its intent to apply an affirmative-action approach to appointing women to NCAA committees. Radford, Butler, Nebraska top most-improved list

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Radford, Butler and Nebraska—with a total of just three NCAA tournament appearances among them—are the most improved teams in Division I men's basketball, in won-lost terms.

Radford leads the nation with an improvement of 13½ games through February 3. It is 16-4 vs. 7-22 last season (nine more wins and 18 fewer losses is 27, then divide by two). Butler is up 12½ at 14-5 vs. 6-22, and Nebraska 11½ on 18-3 vs. 10-18.

Three teams are tied at 11 games—13-6 Washington, 15-7 Lamar and 12-10 North Texas.

Radford never has made the NCAA tournament. Butler's only trip was in 1962 (2-1) under Paul "Tony" Hinkle, and Nebraska's only appearance was in 1986 (0-1) under Moe Iba.

All three have good NCAA chances this season. Butler is atop the Midwestern Collegiate Conference at 6-0. Nebraska is in a three-way first-place tie with Kansas and Oklahoma State at 4-2 in the Big Eight Conference, and Radford is a close second at 8-1 in the Big South Conference.

Oliver Purnell, an Old Dominion graduate and former assistant there and at Maryland, is in his third year at Radford and may be headed for the finest season in the program's 17-year history. This is Radford's seventh season in Division I.

Butler, in Barry Collier's second year, is enjoying only its sixth winning season since the legendary Hinkle retired 21 years ago. Hinkle, incredibly, won more than 1,000 games as a head coach in three sports—basketball (557-393), football (165-99-13) and baseball (335-309-5). He is in the Basketball Hall of Fame. Collier assisted at Oregon and Stanford before returning to his alma mater.

Nebraska, in Danny Nee's fifth season, is putting together what may become the finest season in its history.

Nebraska has not won an undisputed conference championship since 1916 (in the old Missouri Valley). In the Big Six-Seven-Eight, the Huskers shared the title three times—in 1937, 1949 and 1950.

Its only 20-victory seasons in the last 70 years occurred in 1987 (21-12 in Nee's first year—NIT runnerup); in 1983 (22-10) under Iba, and in 1978 (22-8) and 1966 (20-5), both under Joe Cipriano, who was 253-197 in his career there (Iba was 106-71 at Nebraska).

Most "experts" picked them for last place this season after a seventh-place, 10-18 finish in 1990, with just one road victory.

Nee knew better and advised his players to "pay no attention to that stuff." Seniors Rich King (7-2), Clifford Scales and Beau Reid had dedicated themselves to a winning season, junior Carl Hayes is back and leading the scoring, and talented newcomers Tony Farmer, Eric Piat-

Kent freshman Michelle Burden ranks third in Division I assists average at 9.2

(where he played on a high school team led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar—then Lew Alcindor). Nee was a member of Al McGuire's first recruiting class at Marquette, but he enlisted in the armed forces and served in the Vietnam War at its peak. After two medals and ailments

Missouri Southern State's Kenny Simpson is among Division II rebounding leaders

Pittsburgh (Charles Ridl) in 1974, Michigan State (Jud Heathcote) in 1978 and Kentucky (Eddie Sutton) in 1986.

Ten more reached the NCAA tournament. They are Pepperdine in 1979, Utah State and Xavier (Ohio) in 1983, Northeastern and Temple in 1984, Bradley and Fairfield in 1986, Loyola Marymount in 1988, Ball State in 1989, and South Florida in 1990. Several teams made the NIT, including Tulsa, which won it in 1981 in Nolan Richardson's first year as a head coach at the four-year level.

The record high is 16½ games by two teams—North Carolina A&T under Gene Littles in 1978 and Murray State under Ron Greene in 1980. Next at 16 games is North Texas under Bill Blakeley in 1976. As the chart shows, two more teams reached 15, three 14 and six more at least 13.

Only 10 of the 38 coaches still hold the same job. Chronologically, they are Blaney, Heathcote, Corbett, Crum, Chaney, Buonaguro, Olson, Young, Wallace and Paschal.

Ten on the chart are still Division I head coaches, but at a different school. Grant now is at Colorado State, Carlesimo at Seton Hall, Robinson at North Carolina State, Barnett at Tulsa, Colson at Fresno State, Richardson at Arkansas, Bliss at New Mexico, Calhoun at Connecticut, Sutton at Oklahoma State and Majerus at Utah. The other 18 no longer are Division I head coaches.

Records set

Providence senior Eric Murdock is well past the Division I record of 341 career steals. A complete run-down of career leaders comes next week.

Auburn's women made it 64 straight home victories February 4, breaking the Division I record. Stanford currently is next at 41, then Louisiana Tech 30 and Penn State 22.

It has been discovered that U.S. International's Isaac Brown scored 20 points the same night (January 5) that teammate Kevin Bradshaw hit his Division I-record 72. The combined 92 broke the 91 scored six days earlier by a La Salle pair. Loyola Marymount was the opponent both times.

Lamont Strothers has scored in double figures in all 107 games of his career, setting a Division III record. (Wayne Buck, Christopher-Newport SID)

Central State's (Oklahoma) top scorer, James Morris, among the national leaders at more than 22 per game, has been called to active duty. He is a freshman who spent four years in the army. (Mike Kirk, Central State SID)

Quotes of the week

Niagara women's coach Jim Coen on his team falling behind Manhattan, 20-5: "I felt like a mortician the way we were digging our own grave." (Bill Kellick, Niagara graduate assistant SID)

Cal State Fullerton's women, like many teams coast to coast, are wearing U.S. flag patches supporting the troops. One member is Anne Abramova of Leningrad, Russia, who says: "I feel good about it. The Soviet Union and the United States are on the same side now. There's been a lot of progress in relations with people." (Cindy Walton, Cal State Fullerton assistant SID)

500 for Louie

Lou Carnesecca of St. John's (New York) on February 2 became the 30th Division I coach in history to reach 500 wins. Next may be Fresno State's Gary Colson, who had 497 at that point.

Basketball notes

kowski and Jose Ramos have removed all doubts.

"We needed confidence early in the season," Nee says. "So when we beat Illinois and Michigan State, we wanted to make a big deal out of it."

Nee came to Nebraska after four straight 20-plus winners and two NCAA tournament teams at Ohio. A street-tough New York City native that cost him 55 pounds, he was discharged in 1968 and took a job loading trucks in New York. But he soon joined friends going to St. Mary of the Plains College in Dodge City, Kansas, where he became student-body president and started his coaching career as a graduate assistant. He went to Ohio after four years as an assistant at Notre Dame.

Below the top six are eight other teams up at least seven games. Stephen F. Austin State (8-12) is up 9½ games, Tulane (9-11) nine, and three are up 8½—Santa Clara (15-8), Georgia State (9-10) and 8-11 Loyola (Maryland). Utah (20-2) is up eight, Gonzaga (11-9) and Long Island-Brooklyn (6-12) seven each.

On this 14-team list, two veteran coaches—Lamar's Mike Newell and Stephen F. Austin's Ned Fowler—are the only ones in their first year. Rick Majerus, who coached the nation's most improved team at Ball State in 1989, missed most of Utah's 1990 season because of heart bypass surgery. His team was picked to finish near the bottom in the Western Athletic Conference this season, but leads the WAC at 9-1.

Majerus never lost his sense of humor. "The first time I jogged after the surgery was in Santa Monica (California)," he says. "I was apprehensive, but I picked that spot because I figured I was in a rich neighborhood, so I'd get good emergency service."

The history

The most-improved historical chart on this page (published for the first time) shows all 38 teams since 1974 (first year it was compiled) that have improved at least 11 games in one season.

Only three teams on the chart reached the Final Four—23-7 Kansas in 1974 under Ted Owens (after going 8-18 in 1973), 32-7 Louisville under Denny Crum in 1986 (up from 19-18) and 35-3 Arizona in 1988 under Lute Olson (up from 18-12). Only Louisville won the championship.

Three on the chart lost in the regional title game, thus missing the Final Four by one game. They are

Championships Corner

The NCAA Men's and Women's Tennis Committee continues to accept bids from institutions interested in hosting the 1992, 1993 and/or 1994 Division I Men's Tennis Championships. Proposals should be submitted to Daniel A. Calandro, assistant director of championships, at the Association's national office. Deadline for the receipt of bids for the 1992 championships is March 1, 1991. Bids for the 1993 and/or 1994 championships must be received by May 1, 1991.

Indiana proposal targets start times

Three Indiana lawmakers have introduced legislation that is popular with Hoosier basketball coach Bob Knight and Indiana University, Bloomington, fans, but might not sit well with other Big Ten Conference members.

The bill is designed to force cable network ESPN to change its policy of starting Big Ten games at 9:30 p.m. on its Big Monday broadcasts. The legislation would effectively forbid Indiana and Purdue University from playing regular-season basketball games after 8:10 p.m.

Rep. Jerry F. Bales, R-Bloomington, is one of the bill's sponsors. He said the sole basis for the 9:30 p.m. start is to generate money and television exposure for conference members, United Press International reported.

State Reps. Mark Kruzan, D-Bloomington, and Earle Howard, D-Kokomo, cosponsors of the bill, said the legislation would let stand agreements already in force.

'No-touch' rule is a hot topic in swimming circles

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

A new "no-touch" rule has become a touchy subject in NCAA swimming. And the reactions are as mixed as the styles of backstrokers' turns soon will be.

FINA (Federation Internationale de Natation Amateur), the international governing body of swimming, has adopted a rule that allows swimmers in the backstroke to touch the wall at any time during a turn, rather than having to touch it with their hands before turning. United States Swimming, the United States' national governing body, is required by its constitution to adopt the FINA policy automatically when it takes effect March 3.

But William W. Heusner of Michigan State University, secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee, calls the change "a lousy rule. It causes a great deal of difficulty in judging legal turns."

Currently, swimmers must stay on their backs until touching the wall with their hands, then be on their backs again before they come up from under the surface of the water. The new rule would allow swimmers to touch the wall with any part of their bodies at any time during the turn, as long as they do so in a continuous, fluid motion. Heusner says that is where the problem is.

Difficult to judge

"What is fluid motion?," he said. "If the swimmer starts his roll and is inches short of the wall, there will be a slight hitch in the turn. That hitch would disqualify him because it would no longer be fluid. If they start allowing a slight hitch, how slight is slight? The difficulty in judging is that the backstroke can start to roll before he reaches the wall. If he no longer is on his back, how do you define the backstroke?"

Eddie Reese, head men's swimming coach at the University of Texas at Austin, agrees. "It puts officials in a really bad position to judge," he said. "I'm a purist. I hate to see a rule changed to make an event faster."

FINA adopted the rule despite objections from the two United States representatives to the board. The only competition where the "no-touch" rule was used previously was in high school competition in the United States.

"The high schools were having a terrible time judging it. I would have liked for them to have made it easier for the stroke and turn judges."

The advantage to swimmers is in speed. It is easier to roll over and push off with the feet than it is to touch the wall before pushing off, according to Heusner. "The touch is definitely faster. There is a small contingent of coaches who would like to go to it. But most people think it's a lousy rule."

Some support

Not everybody does, however. Sue Walsh-Stankavage, a 1985 NCAA Top Five Award honoree from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and a 10-time NCAA champion in the backstroke from 1982 to 1984, likes the change. "I wish I had had it when I was swimming," she said. "I think it's exciting for the sport. I think you will see the times come down significantly."

But Walsh-Stankavage does not think the rule is flawless. "I think it's going to be tough on officials to determine what is legal. But I think as long as the majority of the race is on the back, you save the integrity of the stroke."

Despite FINA's ruling, the NCAA championships will be conducted according to the old rule in 1991. "There is no way we should consider going to it this year," Heusner said. "The rule book is printed and people are qualifying under the old rule. But it certainly will be discussed in Kansas City (when the swimming committee meets) in April."

Rich DeSelm, assistant swimming coach at North Carolina, says the change is "a sign of the times. Swimming rules continue to be altered. You used to have to have an open touch on the freestyle."

"I haven't decided yet (if he is for or against the new rule). I'm a traditionalist. On one hand, it's exciting for the swimmers because it helps their times. On the other hand, I would like to compare apples and apples. You can't compare the new times with the old ones."

"But I'm definitely in favor of following FINA rules so swimmers don't have to bounce back and forth."

Possible disadvantage

The urgency for the committee is increased by U.S. Swimming's acceptance of the ruling. Since a majority of the swimmers who will qualify for the U.S. nationals this spring and summer swim for NCAA member institutions, Heusner believes they could be at a disadvantage against competitors who swim for club or high school teams under the new, faster qualifying method.

"The old rule is more than legal," Heusner said. "The high school swimmers who have used the rule before will be at an advantage. I would say there will be five or six collegiate swimmers who will be displaced at the nationals by high schoolers who qualify using the new turn."

But Reese doesn't think there will be a problem. "Everybody will go faster. The relativity will be there," he said.

Reese and Heusner agree that FINA may have jumped the gun. "In the past, FINA has been largely reactive," Heusner said. "This is one of the few times that FINA has not been the last body to vote something in. This time, FINA acted prematurely. We (the NCAA swimming committee) will probably have to adopt it, although quite reluctantly. I imagine that we will have the rule only for a short time."

State legislation relating to athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 35 bills from 19 states. The report includes 31 bills that have been introduced and four pending bills on which action has been taken since the last report (see the January 16, 1991, issue of The NCAA News). Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of January 25, 1991. The listed bills were selected for inclusion in this report from a larger pool of bills concerning sports, and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in the report by subject:

Some earn varsity letters the hard way—behind the scenes

Tom Lutz is one of the legion of workhorses in college athletics, although he has never set foot on the field in uniform.

But when he graduates from Wabash College this spring, he will hold 12 varsity letters. That's not necessarily an unusual accomplishment, particularly at a Division III school, but Lutz has earned all of his letters away from the spotlight and cheers.

Lutz has been the student manager of Wabash's men's football, basketball and baseball teams since his freshman year.

"Being a manager is something that I need to do," said Lutz. "It's a stress release. I'm away from my books and I don't have time to think about all the homework I have to do."

"I try not to just be a manager. I try to provide any leadership I can. I'm always at practice, and I feel like I've always been available for players if they need to talk."

"The relationships and friendships that I have made through my work with the teams are the best part of my job. With 100 guys in football, 20 in basketball and 25 in baseball, I meet a lot of people and make a lot of friends," he told Jenny Miller of the school's sports information office.

"I feel like Tom is more than a manager," says Wabash's head baseball coach Scott Boone. "He takes care of stats and a lot of administrative things on the Florida trips. The players don't treat him like a manager; they treat him with respect because they know he does a good job."

With all of the time spent on the field or on the court, studying would seem to have to take a back seat to his responsibilities to the coaches and players; however, Lutz has managed to keep the two worlds of athletics and academics separated and has remained successful in each.

"Tom understands what is needed and usually takes care of it before I ask him to do it," says head basketball coach Mac Petty. "His initiative and industriousness are outstanding. That's due to a commitment to what he's doing and a great amount of pride in Wabash athletics," he added.

Good sports

Lutz boasts a 3.050 cumulative grade-point average. After receiving his major in chemistry, Lutz plans to teach high-school chemistry and coach at the high-school level.

"I will be doing my student teaching next fall at North Montgomery High School for first-year chemistry students," says Lutz. "I'm really excited because I will also be coaching football. I'll either be one of the two freshman coaches or a varsity assistant."

Lutz keeps all that he has gained from Wabash athletics in perspective, however. He doesn't look at letters and trips as anything more than just a nice extra that goes along with the job.

"I don't do this for the letter or for recognition," he says. "I've had the opportunity to go a lot of places and meet a lot of people that I otherwise wouldn't have had the chance to do. The relationships and friendships I have made are compensation enough for the work that I do."

"It's an honor to have 12 varsity letters, but I don't focus on that accomplishment. Managing is something that I need to do for me. I've enjoyed being around the coaches and working with the players and other managers."

And Wabash athletics no doubt has enjoyed the opportunity of working with Tom Lutz.

A triple-double in arena of life

It's too bad NCAA Division III women's basketball games aren't televised. Augsburg College player Andrea Haight could put a twist on the obligatory TV sideline shot that includes the "Hi, mom" greeting. Haight is one of America's few college athletes who could wave and say, "Hi, daughter."

To borrow some basketball-speak, Haight already has compiled a triple-double in the arena of real life. She's slam-dunked the stereotypes by skillfully juggling a career as a wife, parent and student-athlete. Credit the assist to her husband, Dan.

The 23-year-old Haight will graduate in May with a 3.600 grade-point average in social studies. She's closing in on career totals of 1,000 points, 500 rebounds and 175 assists in basketball, and has a shot at all-America honors in softball and academic all-America distinction. Despite some chaotic moments, sports and studies haven't detracted from her five-year marriage to Dan, and raising their 4-year-old daughter, Carissa.

"I feel very lucky," Haight said, "with Dan being as supportive as he is. Dan does the cooking—he's a good cook. My parents and my in-laws have been very helpful watching Carissa if I need a babysitter. The coaches have been very understanding."

"There have been times when something comes up and I can't find a babysitter, so I've had to take Carissa to practice," Haight said. "I set her off to the side with some toys, and it works OK. Once we were running sprints, and Carissa started crying. I thought I would have to stop and take care of her, but Pam (coach Pam Schreurs) made me keep doing sprints. Pam picked her up and held her."

Schreurs said, "I mostly had worked with high-school kids, so having players with babies was something I had never experienced. But I knew it would all work out with Andy."

Augsburg softball coach Carol Enke admits that "some coaches might see it as a distraction. I know I had to adjust to it my first year in softball. A few times, Andy had to bring Carissa out to practice, and she'd keep her safely behind the backstop. I thought, 'What am I going to do with this kid out there?' But I knew Andrea was trying very hard, and she only did it when she couldn't find a babysitter. The thing about Andrea is that she has never abused it or used the situation to miss practice or get special treatment."

"Being married and being a parent makes you grow up in a hurry," Haight said. "People that knew us before and see us now can't believe how much we've matured. But you have to when you have to support a family. We're happy with the way we are right now."

"There have been a couple of times when I thought, 'This is too hard on Dan with me being gone so much,'" she explained. "But we'd talk it over and we'd realize I won't get another chance like this, so I might as well do it now because it will be over soon."

"You have to give Andrea credit for being strong enough to pursue college and sports with her situation," Schreurs said. "Give Dan credit, too, for being strong enough to take on a somewhat atypical role at home. They're a unique couple. They've had to work very hard to make the arrangement work," she told Gene McGovern, Augsburg sports information director.

"You don't have a lot of free time," Haight said. "You have to study between classes and really manage your time. Sometimes, my teammates will talk about how busy they are and say they don't have time for something. I think, 'How can you say that?'"

Haight has been Augsburg's leading scorer and rebounder the last two seasons. In her 1990 softball season, Haight batted .492 in Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference play and .412 overall and had just one error in 134 chances as an infielder to earn all-MIAC honors. Her career batting average is .361; the school record is .365.

Dan Haight said he's comfortable in his role as fan, babysitter, cook, etc. "I'm living my college athletics career through Andy, since I didn't get to play college sports," Dan said. "Sometimes, it's tough to sit in the stands and watch her get pushed around when it's real physical. But I don't give her basketball advice—I was a wrestler."

Schreurs said Haight has the qualities to become a good coach. "She'll expect a lot from the kids because she expects a lot from herself," Schreurs said. "As a player, she never thinks things can't be done. She looks for ways to solve problems and make things work."

The crazy hours that zap most young coaches shouldn't faze Haight. "Getting a full-time job will be the easiest thing she's ever done," Enke said.

Revision of Association's handbook on sports medicine is group's goal

Revision of the Association's Sports Medicine Handbook was targeted as a goal of the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports during the group's January 21-22 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

As part of the full committee's discussions on the revisions, Dr. John Lombardo, Ohio State University, agreed to construct a new framework for presenting policies. Other committee members will review and update current policy statements for consideration at the committee's June meeting. Committee members also will review policy statements developed by other sports-medicine organizations and consider how these statements may be incorporated into the handbook.

The national office staff was asked to request topics for new policy statements through The NCAA News and the Sports Science and Education Newsletter. (Note: Topics for new policy statements for the revised Sports Medicine Handbook should be submitted to Randall W. Dick, assistant director of sports sciences, at the national office.)

Long-range plans

Revision of the Sports Medicine Handbook was just one area of emphasis in a long-range planning document reviewed by the committee. The document, which was prepared last year by outgoing committee members, outlined long-range goals of the committee. Specific areas of concern included research, the Injury Surveillance System, drug testing and drug education, and interaction with international groups and other NCAA programs. After reviewing the document, the committee voted to adopt the report as a working document to provide general guidelines for future committee direction.

Research

In a joint effort with the NCAA Research Committee to produce an alternative system in which to evaluate research proposals, the competitive-safeguards committee discussed revisions to the Association's guidelines for research proposals. Research Committee members Thurston E. Banks, Tennessee Technological University, and Kirk J. Cureton, University of Georgia, attended part of the meeting to assist with the discussion.

The committee documented several items that express its perspective on this topic that will be forwarded to the Research Committee. Key items included development of a mission statement reflecting the role of all committees involved in research, establishment of an annual research budget prior to review of proposals, adoption of a uniform proposal-rating mechanism, an expanded role of the NCAA Foundation, and structuring of the two committees such that one or more members belong to both groups to create better communication between the committees. Consideration of having the two committees meet at the same location in order that the proposed subcommittees could review all research proposals during their normal meeting schedules also was proposed.

Robert C. Khayat, president of the NCAA Foundation, discussed the Foundation's role, giving special emphasis to its research goals.

Injury Surveillance System

The committee reviewed and approved the 1990 fall Injury Surveillance System (ISS) data. It also recommended that ISS issues, including enhancements to the system, conference participation and alternative systems, be addressed in June by the research subcommittee.

Drug testing and education

The subcommittee approved funding for two drug-education program-development grants. One grant went to Oregon State University for "Drug Education and the Collegiate Athlete: A Decision-Making Model," and the other was awarded to the University of Virginia for "Athletic Prevention Programming and Leadership Education."

Pro-Cap football helmet

The committee reviewed information concerning Pro-Cap, a soft shell for football helmets, and referred the report, without comment, to the NCAA Football Rules Committee.

Smokeless tobacco

The committee reviewed the actions of the NCAA Executive Committee in banning tobacco products at all NCAA championships, and acknowledged the contributions of former members who had worked on the project.

School joins ice hockey conference

Union College (New York) has accepted an invitation to join the Eastern College Athletic Conference's Division I Ice Hockey League, starting next season.

Union has played at the NCAA Division III level since 1975.

Although Union could seek to provide either scholarships or preferential financial aid packaging for its hockey players, as some ECAC member institutions do, it will continue to operate under stringent financial aid guidelines, in which aid is distributed according to a family's demonstrated need, Roger H. Hull, school president, said.

The invitation to Union to join the league was made by the presidents of the member institutions December 17. The U.S. Military Academy had notified the league that it planned to pursue an independent schedule starting with the 1991-92 season.

During the 1980s, Union was one of the most successful Division III programs in the East.

Independent review of extended NYSP complete

The results of this year's evaluation of the extended National Youth Sports Program by the independent consulting firm, EMT Associates, will help the NYSP develop a model curriculum for its two-year-old program, according to Rochelle M. Collins, NYSP youth programs coordinator.

Extended NYSP, which runs on weekends and during lengthy scholastic vacations from October 1 to April 30 at 52 selected college campuses, is an outgrowth of the original NYSP summer program. Funding for the extended program comes primarily from Federal funds provided by the Anti-Drug Act of 1989. The thrust of the extended program is prevention of the abuse of alcohol and other drugs.

In the extended program's first two years, host institutions had flexibility in determining the individual formats; next year, after EMT's second evaluation, Collins said the NYSP will be better equipped to help with curriculum development, job descriptions for prevention specialists, counseling, referral and use of other community resources.

EMT's Joel Phillips presented his organization's 1990 report on extended NYSP and outlined evaluation procedures and objectives for the coming year at the Extended NYSP Committee Workshop January 18-20 in New Orleans, Louisiana. Phillips said this year's study will concentrate on five points.

One goal of the EMT study is to gain more complete data on the prevention goal of extended NYSP. Specifically, EMT will focus on the alcohol- and drug-risk involvement of program participants. Phillips said EMT also will target operation issues, seeking more systematic information on the planning and administration problems faced by extended NYSP staffs.

The relationship of the summer and extended programs is another EMT concentration area. Attendance, participant enthusiasm, staff morale, enrichment content (e.g. redundancy), planning difficulties, overuse of outside resources and changes in community perceptions are some of the areas Phillips identified for study.

The third point of Phillips' list of points of emphasis concerned the drug-prevention specialist's role. Phillips said that EMT, through its study, hoped to be able to recommend job responsibilities and qualifications for the position.

EMT's study also will try to identify the range of prevention education and training activities in use in 1990-91 projects and to assess on-site prevention activities in a sample of programs representative of this range, emphasizing assessment of staff and participant receptivity and achievement of immediate objectives.

Phillips said his group's study also would attempt to identify focused prevention strategies that are well-suited to the NYSP environment, including recommendations for progressions of the program for different age groups.

The keynote address for the workshop's 120 participants was delivered by Michael Cross of the Detroit Urban League. Two members of the Prevention Resource Center also made presentations. Lloyd Walton discussed planning education and intervention strategies, and George Lee spoke about instructional materials for active participation and involvement of NYSP participants. Betty Ward Fletcher of Jackson State University spoke about contemporary state-of-the-art prevention.

Postgraduate scholarship deadline near

Nominations for NCAA postgraduate scholarships for men's and women's basketball players must be mailed by February 22 to the appropriate district selection committee chair, as outlined in the instruction and nomination folder that has been mailed to all NCAA member institutions.

A total of 28 scholarships (14 each for men and women) of $5,000 each will be awarded by the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee, which, since 1964, has been honoring outstanding student-athletes from NCAA member institutions who excel academically and athletically.

Ten scholarships (five each for men and women) will be allocated to Division I student-athletes and 10 (five each for men and women) will be allocated to Divisions II and III. The remaining eight scholarships (four each for men and women) will be awarded on an at-large basis.

Faculty athletics representatives are responsible for collecting the completed nomination forms and forwarding them, along with an official transcript of the candidate's academic record, to the appropriate selection committee chair.

Each institution is asked to limit its nominations to one male student-athlete and one female student-athlete. Institutional representatives and student-athletes must complete the five forms included in the scholarship folder.

The Association annually awards 125 postgraduate scholarships of $5,000 each. In addition to the 28 scholarships for basketball student-athletes, 29 are presented to football participants and 68 (34 each for men and women) to varsity athletes in sports other than football and basketball in which the NCAA sponsors championship competition.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Baker elected Women's Sports Foundation vice-president

Merrily Dean Baker, NCAA assistant executive director for administration, recently was elected a vice-president of the Women's Sports Foundation. Baker's election was announced by WSF officials, who also outlined a restructuring of the organization's elected offices.

Baker is one of four vice-presidents who will serve two-year terms and head advisory board councils in the areas of athletes, coaches, organizations and the general public. She will serve as vice-president for organizations.

Elected vice-president for athletes was former Olympic swimmer Nancy Hogshead, who had served as the WSF's lone vice-president. Betty Jaynes, executive director of the Women's Basketball Coaches Association, was elected vice-president for coaches.

Martha Rudolph Nelson, marketing director of the U.S. Biathlon Association, was elected vice-president for the general public. WSF officials also announced the combination of the secretary and treasurer positions and the election of Sally Edwards to serve as secretary-treasurer. Edwards is president of the California sporting-goods chain Fleet Feet.

Reelected WSF president was professional race car driver Lyn St. James. Pro golfer Carol Mann was named to the new position of past president.

Among those elected to three-year terms as foundation trustees was Carole Oglesby, Temple University professor of physical education.

University of Pittsburgh soccer players Billy Trappen and Dave Stewart, taking advantage of low student air fares, were on their way back to school last December from the Division I championship in Florida by the "scenic route": Tampa to Pittsburgh, via Detroit.

Just as they were about to leave Detroit, however, the scene faded to terror. Trappen and Stewart were passengers on a Northwest Airlines jet that was hit by another plane on a runway shrouded in fog and mist. "The entire plane moved," Trappen said of the impact. "Something—I don't know what—hit me on the head... I was momentarily dazed. When I came to, the entire right side of the plane was gone. I saw the airport terminal in the background."

"I slipped my shoes on, got up, and saw that a bunch of people was packed together at the front of the plane. I thought I could swing around and go through the emergency exit (he and Stewart had seats one row in front of an emergency wing exit), but when I turned around, that's when I realized it was real bad."

Trappen quickly joined two other passengers in getting the emergency door open. They helped a couple of passengers out onto the wing.

"I wanted to go back deeper into the plane because I could see people struggling to get out, but I knew if I had, I would have combusted." Fuel from the other plane was everywhere.

"It was all over my sweater," Trappen said. "I could smell it. It was the worst smell—like a fire. And it was real hot. Someone jumped onto the wing, and I followed him. I rolled across the wing and fell to the ground."

"Then, we helped get as many people as we could as far away from the plane as we could."

Stewart made it out safely, and the pair eventually made it back to Pittsburgh.

"I really feel grateful for a lot of things," Trappen said recently, "especially since this happened before the Christmas holiday. I think I bought more presents this year than ever before."

Less than 24 hours after leading the Ohio Wesleyan University indoor track team, which he cocaptains, in the North Coast Athletic Conference relays, Mike King traded his Battling Bishops uniform

(10) in collegiate floor-exercise competition—and only the third college-meet 10 ever recorded. Preceding her in perfect college marks were Lucy Wener of the University of Georgia (uneven bars, 1989) and Kelly Garrison of the University of Oklahoma (balance beam, 1988).

"A 10 is something that never even crossed my mind," she said. "I knew it was a good routine. But I thought, 'Okay, there's the 9.9; that's what I wanted, and I got it.'" for one from the U.S. Marine Corps. By the time you read this, King, a certified paramedic and field medic stationed with an infantry unit, will be a part of Operation Desert Storm somewhere in Saudi Arabia.

Briefly in the News

King will be treating wounded Americans on the front lines. "If it gets hot and heavy," he said, "I just want to do my job and get back home safely."

From the Southland Conference comes word of the following Operation Desert Storm participants from league members: Greg Garner and Graves Lopez, McNeese State University football players; Christina Readori, Northeast Louisiana University diver; Matt Williams (sports information assistant), Brad Seivers (track athlete) and Freddy Noble (football player) from Northwestern State University (Louisiana), and Sam Houston State University basketball player Eric Rhodes.

During the University of Florida's First Union Bank Invitational gymnastics meet January 25, Florida senior Pam Titus earned what is believed to be the first perfect score

"When they said 10," Titus added, "I didn't know what to do or think. I just wanted to jump up and down."

St. John Fisher College women's basketball coach Phil Kahler recently earned career victory No. 400 when his team won the championship of the King's College (Pennsylvania) Lady Monarch Invitational tournament. In the process, Kahler became only the second Division III women's hoop coach to reach 400 victories, joining Laura Mapp of Bridgewater College (Virginia).

"It's very gratifying for the program here at Fisher," he said. "It's the teams that have done it. I've just been very fortunate to have had outstanding players down through the years."

"You always work hard and strive to win," he continued. "That's why they've got scoreboards. Luckily, we have come out on the high end of the scoreboard most of the time."

Three College of the Holy Cross basketball players scored the 1,000th point of their respective careers during the same week recently.

Women's guard Mary Helen

Walker got things rolling January 23 when she reached 1,000 career points in her team's 67-57 victory over the U.S. Military Academy. Next came men's center Jim Nairus, who scored No. 1,000 January 27 during a 98-94 loss at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Lady Crusader Kris Shield finished the 1,000-point week January 28, hitting the mark during her team's 66-65 victory over the University of Maine.

Among the 96 student-athletes named to Northeast Louisiana University's fall honor roll were a record 10 with 4.000s. "The most we ever had before was six or seven," said Karen Allen, coordinator of academic services. "Plus, this semester, every one of our sports had at least one person make the honor roll."
