Goal-post reduction can be achieved economically

Athletics directors at NCAA football-playing member institutions have received diagrams detailing an inexpensive way to reduce the width of goal posts from 23 feet 4 inches to 18 feet 6 inches.

The modification will be necessary to comply with a rule enacted last year that requires the distance between goal-post uprights to be reduced for the 1991 season.

Copies of the diagram were mailed from the NCAA national office February 21 with a memorandum from NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz. The diagram includes head-on, side and top views of additional uprights and the brackets needed to attach them to the existing uprights. It also provides a list of materials and a cost estimate of approximately $360 to modify two goals. A diagram appears on page 3 of this issue of the News.

The NCAA Football Rules Committee developed the diagram in response to objections from member institutions, particularly those in Division III, regarding the cost of complying with the rule. Some institutions reported that they received cost estimates in excess of $1,000 for goal-post modifications.

Objections also came from institutions that share fields with high schools, which use the wider uprights. The committee addressed these concerns by exempting from the rule games played by member institutions on fields used primarily for interscholastic competition. Also, a member institution does not have to modify its goal posts if its field is used for two or more home games by a high school.

Except under these circumstances, member institutions must play their games on fields with 18-foot-6-inch goal posts or they will be in violation of NCAA legislation requiring intercollegiate competition to be conducted under Association playing rules.

The narrower width was recommended by the Football Rules Committee in January 1990 to offset increased accuracy and proficiency of kickers on field-goal and extra-

Initial-eligibility criteria topic of pending report

What combination of core grade-point average and test scores is the best for an initial-eligibility standard? It's a question as hard to answer as it is to read.

The NCAA Research Committee, at its February 22 meeting in Chicago, addressed this question and others in preparing an initial report on its ongoing study of initial-eligibility standards.

Meeting with the committee were two members of the Academic Requirements Committee: Lorna P. Straus, University of Chicago, chair, and Jerry L. Kingston, Arizona State University. Also present were John J. McArdle, University of Virginia, who has served as psychometric consultant to the Research Committee for this study, and Daniel T. Dutcher, an NCAA staff liaison to the Academic Requirements Committee.

In addition to core-course grade-point averages and test scores, the committee also discussed the use of class rank as a predictive variable and the possible inclusion of additional core courses in the requirements. The additional-core-courses issue is a gray area, according to Ursula R. Walsh, director of research.

"We know from the College Board studies that numbers of core courses and SAT scores are positively correlated, and it is tempting to fall into the trap of assigning causality to that relationship... either direction is likely; i.e., it is possible that those with better skills, ab initio, will elect more core courses. And it is also within the realm of possibility that taking more core courses enables one to perform better on a test of

CEOs set record at Convention

A record 236 chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions—including more than half of all the CEOs in Division I—attended the 1991 NCAA Convention in Nashville.

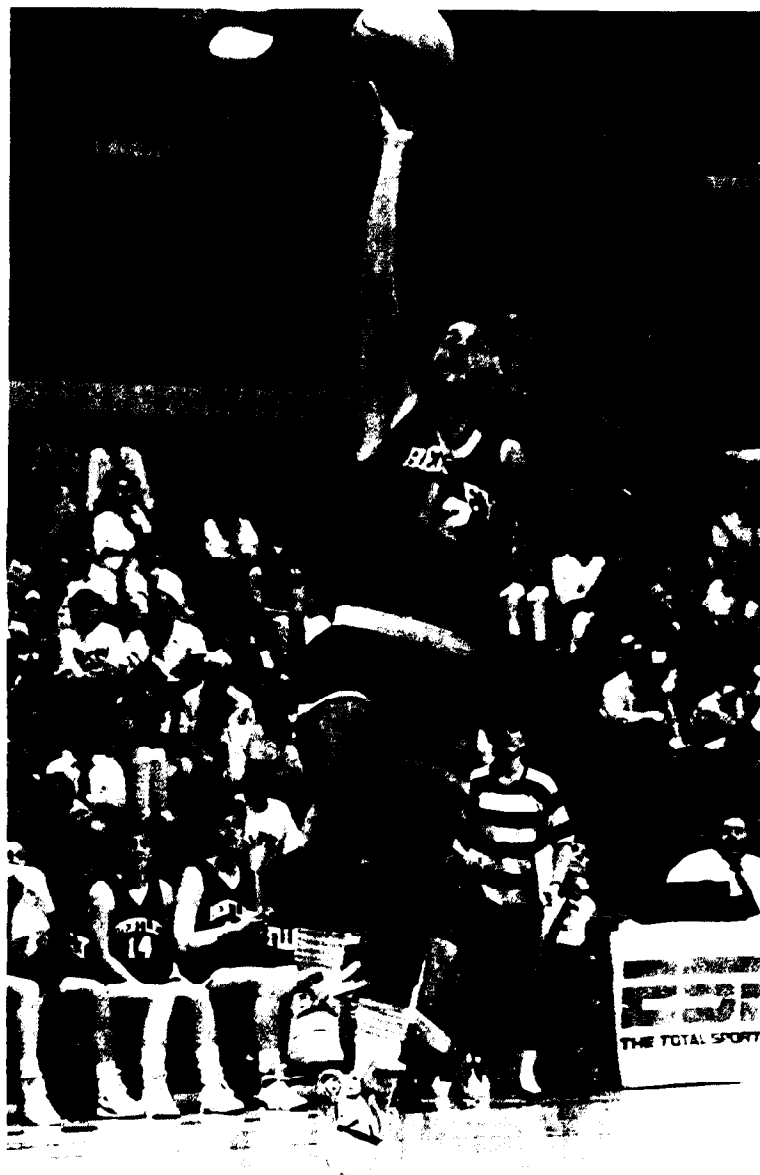

That number easily surpassed the previous high of 199 chief executives at the Association's special "integrity" Convention in June 1985.

A total of 169 CEOs attended the 1990 Convention in Dallas, and there were 137 a year earlier in San Francisco.

Prior to the Nashville session, a total of 266 chief executives had preregistered for the Convention. Each year, some preregistrants do not actually attend, while some others register at the last minute.

The Division I CEOs turned out in Nashville like never before, as 54.7 percent of all institutions in that division (162 of 296) had their

Bentley is back

Sophomore Kim Penwell has been Bentley's leading scorer and rebounder this season although playing a new position. She has been a key to the Falcons' ranking among the top teams in Division II all season and a major reason Bentley is expected to make a third straight trip to the championship semifinals. See Championship Preview on page 8.

Discussion continues on revenue plan

The Special NCAA Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues met February 21 in Chicago to discuss the grants-in-aid component of the broad-based plan, but no formal action was taken.

Instead, the special committee will continue to consider several alternatives for addressing the cost-of-attendance variance among Division I NCAA members, including such options as (1) basing the grants-in-aid component on dollar amounts, rather than on the number of grants awarded; (2) basing it on a combination of the dollar amounts and the number of grants awarded; (3) adjusting the unit values and/or progressive values for the number of grants awarded, and (4) increasing by some percentage the unit value of the grants awarded by private institutions.

Members of the special committee will review these alternatives on a future telephone conference and determine at that time whether an additional in-person meeting will be necessary.

Bill would tax some revenues

A bill has been introduced in the U.S. House of Representatives that would tax as unrelated income receipts by a college or university of various forms of athletics-related income, including broadcast revenue and booster contributions.

The legislation was introduced within the past week by Rep. Paul B. Henry, R-Michigan.

After an analysis of the legislation by Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, the NCAA's legal counsel in Washington, D.C., a report will be published in The NCAA News.

The chart on page 2 in the Legislative Assistance column of this issue of the News shows the effects of 1991 Convention Proposal Nos. 36 and 38 on Division I team sports. The proposals concern limitations on playing and practice seasons and coaching staffs.

In the March 6 issue of the News, a chart will be provided to show how the legislation affects individual sports.

I-AA committee discusses ways to control crowd behavior

The safety of spectators at Division I-AA play-off games and procedures for selecting championship sites and participants were major topics of discussion at the Division I-AA Football Committee's annual meeting February 19-21 in Orlando, Florida.

The committee discussed several measures to control crowd behavior both during and after play-off games with representatives of Georgia Southern University, which hosted the last two championship games and will serve as host again in 1991. The discussion was prompted by potentially dangerous celebrations after the last two title games when thousands of fans streamed onto the field and tore down goal posts.

As a result of the meeting, the committee agreed that the visiting team's bench will not be placed in front of the home team's student section at any play-off game. In addition, the committee asked Georgia Southern officials to prepare a detailed security plan to help ensure the safety of fans during and after games.

The committee commended Georgia Southern for the manner in which the last two championship games have been conducted, noting that attendance in 1989 and 1990 ranked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, in the history of the event. University representatives and committee members also critiqued the administration of last year's game and reviewed the schedule of events for 1991, which will be the last year of the current three-year agreement with Georgia Southern to host the championship game.

Potential sites for future championship games will be discussed with Georgia Southern and other interested parties at the committee's 1992 meeting.

Robert Griffin, Division I-AA president of the American Football

Coaches Association and head coach at the University of Rhode Island, reviewed issues discussed at the AFCA's January meeting. He said that while Division I-AA coaches endorse the current 16-team championship format, many are concerned that current procedures allow a team to play all of its games at home. The committee noted this concern but affirmed its current procedures for selecting

To improve communication with member institutions, the committee agreed to send a letter with information about the championship and the coming season to all Division I-AA schools after the first preseason poll. The committee felt that this letter, combined with the championships-handbook mailing in October and a letter to teams under consideration in November, will keep schools well-informed throughout the season.

In a related matter, the committee agreed on dates for the 1991 polls. The preseason poll will be issued August 19, the first regular-season poll will be September 16, and polls will be done weekly until the final selection poll.

The committee recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that the University of Idaho receive an additional day of per diem for expenses incurred traveling to play Georgia Southern in the quarterfinals of last year's tournament. It also recommended that similar exceptions to the per diem policy be granted in the future whenever a team travels from the Mountain or Pacific time zone to the Eastern time zone.

For the second year in a row, the committee recommended that $50,000 in championships receipts be allocated to NCAA Productions for a Division I-AA highlight film. In 1990, a half-hour highlight program was distributed through Prime Network. This recommendation also is subject to approval by the Executive Committee.

In other actions, the committee:

- Agreed to pursue further discussions on the concept of a Division I-AAA football classification with coaches and athletics administrators.

- Approved a policy that all 500 tickets reserved for the visiting team in play-off games be located between the 30-yard lines. Previously, half of the allocation could be outside that area.

- Voted to require that each play-off game is the first one played on the field on the day of the game.

Contract change

University of Georgia coaches will no longer negotiate their own television and radio contracts.

Vincent J. Dooley, director of athletics, said the agreements will be negotiated through the athletics department and that football coach Ray Goff and basketball coach Hugh Durham will be given a flat-rate minimum guarantee.

"We want to avoid the appearance of a potential conflict of interest," Dooley said. "In appearance, we think it's certainly a cleaner situation."

Before joining the Appalachian State staff, Thomas taught at a high school in Texas and also served as an academic counselor at Texas Tech.

II women's volleyball seeks expanded bracket

For the second consecutive year, the Division II Women's Volleyball Committee will forward to the Executive Committee a request for championship bracket expansion.

At its February 19-22 meeting in Key West, Florida, the volleyball committee agreed to recommend to the Executive Committee a bracket expansion from 20 to 24 teams. The Executive Committee denied a similar request at its May 1990 meeting.

Currently, the Division II volleyball championship field has a participation ratio of 1:9.6. An expansion to 24 teams would bring the ratio to 1:8, in line with guidelines established by the Executive Committee to determine championship-field sizes.

The Division II Women's Volleyball Championship saw its first field of 10 teams in 1981 increased to 16 teams in 1982. The Executive Committee then denied increases to 22 teams and 18 teams before expanding the bracket to the present 20-team field in 1987.

In other action, the volleyball committee will recommend a change in dates for the 1991 championship. The current dates are Friday, December 6, through Sunday, December 8. The committee will ask that the dates be switched to a Saturday-through-Monday format (December 7-9).

Committee members also discussed results of a recent survey of Division II volleyball-playing members regarding the use of rally-point scoring, which currently is an experimental rule. In early spring, members of the Divisions I, II and III committees will participate in a telephone conference to discuss whether to implement rally-point scoring in all 1991 championship matches.

In an effort to ensure that the best available officials will work the championship tournament, the committee will seek approval to provide air transportation for all four officials at the finals. Currently, two officials are approved to travel by air. The committee also will recommend the following increases in fees for the second referee for the 1991 tournament: regionals - from $70 to $90; finals - from $90 to $125.

The volleyball committee will recommend the following conferences for automatic qualification to the championship: Lone Star Conference, California Collegiate Athletic Association and the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

In other action, the committee approved the wearing of official white collegiate officiating shirts by match officials.

point attempts and to provide more balance between offense and defense. It originally was to take effect in the 1990 season.

But the NCAA Administrative Committee remanded the recommendation to the rules committee in March 1990 for additional study of costs to member institutions, goal-post warranty ramifications, coaches' opinions of the change, and kicking-accuracy data in all NCAA football-playing divisions and subdivisions.

In April, the Administrative Committee approved the change for 1990 on the basis that the cost of altering existing goal posts would be no more than approximately $400 per set. Later that month, however, the Administrative Committee reconsidered and directed the Executive Committee to consider the change at its May meeting. The Executive Committee approved the change but delayed its effective date until the 1991 season.

The Football Rules Committee confirmed its decision to change the width at its January 1991 meeting.

A school's legacy should be inviolate

By Jim O'Brien

I have been told that one of my faults is that I love the University of Pittsburgh too much.

So, yes, it bothers me when Pitt gets bad publicity because of the misbehavior of an administrator, a coach or any athlete in the program. It projects the wrong image of a school that deserves better.

Then again, it is far easier to get your name in the local newspaper or on film at 11 if you do something wrong rather than something right. That is also too bad.

I sent my annual contribution to the Golden Panthers a few months back because I still believe in the school and in its sports programs.

I must admit that I feel better when I am on the Pitt campus. To me, the Cathedral of Learning is like Cinderella's Castle at Disney World. I grew up just three or four miles away, but going to Pitt was like entering another world, a magic kingdom.

Pitt provided so many opportunities for me, opened up so many doors, and I learned so much there. So many others can say the same.

I thoroughly enjoyed my stay and prospered in my first four years there, as a student from 1960 to 1964; later as a graduate student in 1967, and again while working there for five years, 1983 through 1987, four of them as assistant director of athletics and sports information director, and one as director of the University Outreach Program, which I created.

During those last five years, I brought more than 20,000 grade-school students to the campus to introduce them to Pitt and its people. Wesley Posvar, the president of the university, called me the "Pied Piper of Pitt."

In 1955, Dr. Jonas Salk, a scientist doing laboratory experiments at Pitt, announced, "We have the serum," and he had discovered the antipolio vaccine—still one of the greatest discoveries in the world.

It should humble any football coach or ballplayer who comes out of Gate 3 at Pitt Stadium to see the sign on Salk Hall. Nobody at Pitt, not Tony Dorsett, not Dan Marion, not Bill Fralic, not Marshall Goldberg, ever did anything that rivals what Dr. Jonas Salk did in that building.

Nobody, not the president of the school, any administrator, any coach or any athlete has the right to bring shame or infamy to the University of Pittsburgh.

For more than 200 years, Pitt has been producing the kind of young men and women who have made Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania a better place to live.

Those of us who went to school there or worked there inherited a legacy. We were to cherish and enhance that legacy, not to soil it in any manner.

My 17-year-old daughter, Sarah, has asked me whether there will be as many athletes presently at Pitt who will become doctors, dentists, attorneys, teachers and successful businessmen as the ones I went to school with, and I think not.

But Pitt's sports program is not the only one that has changed to meet the challenges in today's college sports climate. Others have done the same. The standards are not the same anymore.

The schools themselves do not operate in concert anymore. Hostility and greed have replaced harmony and integrity. Schools should set examples for the rest of us regarding proper behavior and conduct.

Doc Carlson, Pitt's hall of fame basketball coach, talked about "blessed boomerangs," and how you get back what you throw out to other people.

All of us make mistakes. Through the years, people at Pitt have made mistakes. It will happen in future years. But Pitt will survive and thrive.

Jim O'Brien is the editor of Street and Smith's basketball magazines. He is the author of "Hail to Pitt: The Sports History of the University of Pittsburgh" and now is writing a book about the Pittsburgh Steelers called "Doing It Right," which will be published in September.

Freshman eligibility is likely to be next big issue facing Association

Chris Kennedy, director of academic support for athletics

"I would think that the next big issue that's going to come up (in the NCAA) is freshman eligibility. I think that probably will show up next year. I don't know if the presidents are going to be behind that or not, but I wouldn't be surprised if they are.

"That's going to be hotly debated, because it's a complicated issue. It's something that sounds easy, 'let's just make freshmen ineligible,' but nobody really knows exactly what that means or how you institute that.

"Do they practice? Do they have their own freshman teams? Well, then what's the benefit? I see that as maybe the next hot issue."

"Recruiting is becoming more competitive in women's basketball, and the best coaches thrive at that, too. Wouldn't some female coaches like to take a crack at the men's game, because, as the man said about Mount Everest, it is there?"

"(University of Virginia head women's basketball coach Debbie) Ryan was not amused when Terry Holland resigned as the men's coach last year and nobody at Virginia interviewed her for the job. At a news conference in New York, she said bluntly that she would not take a job with a men's team at a lower level, just to prove the point.

"I like it here," she said, meaning Charlottesville, not 42nd Street.

"The trick would be finding a school with existing high standards and a sense of imagination. Finding the right female coach doesn't seem hard at all."

"I used to be more interested in officiating by the book, was a little more rigid and inflexible in certain areas. The more flexible I've become, the more successful I've been, especially in dealing with players and coaches.

"Everybody's different and you can't take away their need to communicate. The more I've dealt with them on a personal basis, the more success I've had."

Dave Redding, strength coach

The Kansas City Star

"You don't see many guys (coming out of college) who stand out. Their size is down (since the NCAA and NFL began more stringent testing for steroids). Before, there were a lot of guys who stuck out.

"In this year's group, there weren't as many good body types. They are not shaped right. They are not real thick and muscular. They are kind of fat and sloppy.

"What you see with the big guys is that a lot of them haven't made the commitment to train year-round. You don't see them using the alternative to steroids....

"These guys have been told to gain weight, and they gain the wrong kind of weight. They don't go out and pound the iron all the time. They just eat like pigs to gain weight. Their eating and training don't go hand in hand like they should.

"It's tough for those kids (who are professional prospects). They have studies. They have classes.... But I want to say that they had better give up about two-thirds of their night life or other life or whatever life they have. There should be two jobs: One is school, and the other is you had better spend some time in the weight room."

Louis W. Spiotti, director of athletics

"The reform Convention represents a significant step forward in the restoration of balance in the conduct of collegiate athletics programs.

"However, changes made within the NCAA are but part of addressing the many ills plaguing our sports system in America. Until we, as a nation, can determine ways to exert the same influence on parents, communities, high schools and even professional sports, the reform movement will be hard-pressed to realize success. In my opinion, our lawmakers (Congress) should be looking not only at college sports but at the entire picture."

Jonathan Rand, columnist
The Kansas City Star

"No athletes in America face more unreasonable expectations. Recruiting is the ultimate example of the mind-set that the less we have seen of a player, the better he must be. The vast majority of recruits are pigs in a poke, yet almost all are future stars in somebody's eyes.

"You could find parents who will say their newborn is homely before you find a football coach who claims to have a poor recruiting class.

"Fanaticism about incoming recruits is puzzling because the returning players largely determine any team's fate. Many freshmen are redshirted, anyway.

"The funny thing about football recruiting classes is that for all the hysteria they generate, they usually are forgotten by October. Then, those perennial optimists start getting every bit as worked up over the next batch."

State legislation could hurt schools

By Doug Tucker

People who ask state legislatures to protect their schools from the NCAA may wind up disqualifying those colleges for NCAA membership, Executive Director Richard D. Schultz says.

"It would depend on how the legislation is written," Schultz said. "But it might be impossible for that state's institutions to be a member of the NCAA because there would be no way for them to comply with the rules."

States that are considering or have considered legislation dealing with the NCAA include Kansas, Florida, Illinois, Nevada, California and South Carolina.

The governor of Nebraska signed a bill into law last year stipulating that the NCAA must guarantee due process when dealing with Nebraska schools. It has yet to be tested.

"Under a bill introduced last year by the Illinois legislature, we couldn't have enforced any kind of rule in Illinois," Schultz said. "I wrote all the (college) CEOs and pointed out very carefully that if that bill passed, they would probably not be able to be a member of the NCAA. So that bill ended up being withdrawn. The institutions themselves got involved."

Schultz said any state regulation could run afoul of the U.S. Supreme Court decision of 1988, when the court ruled 5-4 that University of Nevada, Las Vegas, coach Jerry Tarkanian's rights to due process hadn't been abridged by the NCAA process.

"There's a big question as to the constitutionality of state legislatures getting involved in the enforcement process," Schultz said. "It's difficult—virtually impossible—for a state to come forward with legislation to circumvent the U.S. Constitution. But if states came out with certain regulations to place certain restrictions on the enforcement and investigative process in their states, it could be very damaging.

"The Supreme Court ruled that the NCAA is not a state actor," Schultz said. "What you have are states trying to make the NCAA a state actor. It's a voluntary association, a private organization, that has the right to establish rules of membership, and the members themselves make the rules. If the members want to vote out our entire enforcement process, they can do it."

Nevertheless, Schultz expects continued interest by state legislatures.

"Politicians have found there's a lot of visibility in taking shots at the NCAA, especially if schools in their states have come under the impact of the infractions committee. You get involved in the budget deficit or the Gulf War, and there are plusses and minuses. But there's no downside if your institution has suffered at the hands of the NCAA. You go out and you say, 'We're going to do this and we're going to do that,' and it gets you a lot of votes."

Tucker writes for the Associated Press.

Illicit drug use in high school, college declining, report says

Illicit drug use by young Americans in high school and college continued to decline for another year, according to University of Michigan social scientists Lloyd D. Johnston, Jerald G. Bachman and Patrick M. O'Malley.

Reporting on their 1990 study—the 16th national survey of American high-school seniors and the 11th annual survey of American college students—the researchers note a significant downturn in the use of crack cocaine in both populations, as well as among all young adults 19 to 28 who are high-school graduates, another population they have been tracking for some years.

"We are seeing a continuing decline in the proportion of these populations that are actively using any illicit drug, as well as in the proportions using a number of specific drugs such as marijuana, cocaine, crack, stimulants and sedatives," Johnston says. For some drugs, like marijuana and sedatives, these changes represent the continuation of long-term declines that began in the 1970s.

For stimulants, the long-term decline began in the early 1980s. Cocaine use did not start to decline in these populations until 1986 but has dropped substantially since then. Crack use began to decline a year later and also has fallen appreciably.

In 1990, a third (33 percent) of all high-school seniors said they had taken at least one illicit drug during the past year (down from a peak of 54 percent in 1979). More than a quarter (27 percent) reported marijuana use in the prior year (down from a peak of 51 percent in 1979), while one in 11 (nine percent) reported using prescription-type stimulants without medical supervision (down from a peak of 20 percent in 1982).

One in 20 high-school students (5.3 percent) reported using cocaine at some time in the prior year (down from a peak of 13 percent in 1986), while only one in 50 seniors (1.9 percent) reported any crack use during that interval (down from a high of four percent in 1987).

"Clearly our young people are gradually moving away from nearly all forms of illicit drug use. Put another way, there is slow but steady progress in our long-term efforts," concludes Johnston. "But we must not lose sight of the fact that even today a significant fraction of our young people are involved with these drugs and that there still remains much to be done."

The trends have been much the same among college students and among the 19- to 28-year-old high-school graduates.

In fact, college students show past-year usage levels in 1990 that are very similar to those for the high-school seniors: During the prior year, 33 percent had used some illicit drug, 29 percent had used marijuana and 5.6 percent had used cocaine. College students' annual usage rates for stimulants (at 4.5 percent) and crack cocaine (at 0.6 percent) were lower than the rates for high-school seniors.

are the largest in that group," Johnston states.

"It is often asserted that the declines in drug use are occurring only among the casual users; but among the populations we study, the proportions reporting active daily use of the key drugs have dropped appreciably," according to Johnston.

"For example, among seniors and college students the daily usage rates for cocaine, stimulants and marijuana—three of the most widely used illicit drugs—are down in each case on the order of 75 percent from peak levels.

"Admittedly, most of these are not crack addicts, but they could hardly be called casual users, either," he said. Daily use is down appreciably among the 19- to 28-year-olds as well, although the time period over which data are available is shorter.

The use of alcohol remains widespread among those under 21 years of age, although some modest declines have been recorded in use among the high-school seniors. The proportions reporting any alcohol use in the prior month fell from a peak of 72 percent in 1980 to 57 percent in 1990.

The proportion reporting at least one occasion of heavy drinking in the prior two weeks (i.e., having five or more drinks in a row) has also been falling gradually, from a peak of 41 percent in 1983 to 32 percent in 1990.

"Considering that the purchase of alcohol is illegal for all high-school seniors, these are still very troublesome levels of drinking, though the statistics have been moving very gradually in the right direction," Johnston notes.

The use of alcohol remains widespread among those under 21 years of age, although some modest declines have been recorded in use among the high-school seniors

Sixteen member institutions have received NCAA Council approval to designate one non-NCAA sport in order to meet the minimum sports-sponsorship requirements. Ten of those are Division I-AAA institutions. Of the others, two are in Division I-A, one in I-AA, two in Division II and one in III. The most common sport so designated is crew, for men or women or both, by 11 institutions, followed by sailing (three), equestrian (one) and synchronized swimming (one).

Arkansas men favored indoors; women's title up for grabs

While the Arkansas men are the heavy favorites to win their eighth consecutive indoor track championship March 8-9 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis, the women's competition looks to have a new champion—though who that might be is entirely up in the air.

The Razorbacks are strong in their traditional strengths—the middle distances and the horizontal jumps—and can score enough points in just those events to win the title. Depth in other events makes overtaking them nearly impossible without a total Razorback collapse.

On the women's side, however, the pattern of the last five years appears ready to be broken. Texas and Louisiana State have alternated as champions since 1986, which would make this year the Lady Tigers' turn. For a change, however, it looks like Florida, Villanova and North Carolina will fight for the top spots, with one of the three becoming a first-time champion.

Men's championships

Coach John McDonnell's Razorbacks lost triple jumper Edrick Floreal to graduation, but strength in the 800 meters, mile, 3,000 meters and the triple jump appears to give the Hogs more than enough ammunition to take home their eighth team title.

Using the best times to date of all athletes who have qualified for the nationals, the Razorbacks would run away with the men's championship with 68 points, which would be the most since Arkansas' second title in 1985 and the fourth most points ever. That total would nearly double projected runner-up Iowa State's 38 points.

Razorback athletes have turned in the top Division I times in four

Ruben Reina (No. 38, shown here winning the 3,000-meter run a year ago) probably could add 20 points to Arkansas' total, but he won't. Reina will skip the mile run to concentrate on defending his 3,000-meter crown.

different events so far this year. If all four athletes win their respective events, it would tie Arkansas with Villanova (1968 and 1969), UTEP (1975, 1981 and 1982) and Southern Methodist (1981) for the most individual titles in one year for a team.

With all that statistical support, one could assume that McDonnell is confident going in. "They always try to do that to us," McDonnell said, trying to deflect attention. "We have quite a few guys qualified. We are definitely one of the favorites. Iowa State will be right up there with us."

Told of the projected margin of victory, he responded, "It won't be that much of a blowout. We have one of our triple jumpers (Brian Wellman) with a strained hamstring. I hope he will be able to jump. We saved him in the conference meet so he would be ready for the NCAA meet."

McDonnell could get 20 points out of middle-distance man Ruben Reina, but he won't. The Razorback veteran has the best mile time (3:57.08) and is nearly a second better than teammate Johan Boakes, who has the nation's second-best time; but Reina will skip that race to conserve his strength for the 3,000 meters. Reina's 7:48.80 in the 3,000 is more than four seconds faster than John Nuttall of Iowa State, who has turned in a 7:52.94. "Ruben is in top form right now," McDonnell said. "He has had an outstanding year. He will run a good race."

While the Razorbacks figure to do what they did when they outdistanced the field at last fall's cross country championships, there are individuals from other teams who are certain to grab attention.

The best 55-meter dash time this year has been turned in by an athlete better known for running away and through people than running next to them. Raghib "Rocket" Ismail, the Notre Dame football flanker and Heisman Trophy runner-up, clocked a 6.07 in a meet at Purdue in early February, which is .07 faster than his nearest competitor.

As Team Ismail gets set to blast off in the NFL, the Rocket would like nothing better than to add one more jewel to his crown.

While his name is not as well known to the casual sports fan as Ismail's, Istvan Bagyula, a pole vaulter from George Mason, will hardly take anyone at the indoor championships by surprise. Bagyula has vaulted 19-0¼, 7½ inches better than Billy Payne of Baylor and a foot better than the third best vaulter this year.

The 200- and 400-meter dashes look to be close races between Jason Rouser of Oklahoma and Gabriel Luke of Rice. They matched up in January in the 200, with Rouser claiming victory in 20.90 to Luke's 21.03. One week later, Rouser clipped Luke in the 400 (which Luke won at last year's championships), 45.78 to 45.88. While the matchup doesn't appear to have much of a bearing on the team standings, the two most likely will create quite a stir, literally and figuratively, racing side by side.

Women's championships

Bev Kearney's Florida Lady Gators have just one projected winner in the women's championships, but that 1,600-meter relay team is made up of four of the six fastest 400-meter runners in the nation. Just combining 10 points from the relay with the eight-, six-, four- and one-point finishes Florida potentially could earn in the 400 makes the Lady Gators better on paper than all but three other teams in the meet.

Those 400-meter runners that Kearney will be counting on all are within .74 seconds of each other. Tasha Downing is the fastest so far, followed by Kim Mitchell, Michelle Freeman and Anita Howard. Freeman also figures to earn points in the 55-meter dash and 55-meter hurdles, and Nekita Beasley should be strong in the 800-meter run. Considering all that, Kearney is the odds-on favorite to claim her first NCAA coaching title.

While the Lady Gators expect to earn many of their points in those two races, Villanova's strength is in three middle-distance events. Sonia O'Sullivan, who claimed the individual title at the 1990 cross country championships and led the Wildcats to a runaway team championship, has the best time in the mile (4:33.49) and the 5,000 meters (15:17.28).

O'Sullivan will be helped in the mile by teammates Nnenna Lynch and Cheri Goddard and can expect to be pushed in the 5,000 by another Wildcat, Carole Zajak. The closest non-Villanova challenger, Monique Ecker of Oklahoma, is running more than a minute behind O'Sullivan.

The Wildcats' third victory should come in the 3,200-meter relay. Villanova is the only school to have qualified automatically through February 15. The closest competitor is Cornell, 11 seconds behind the 'Cats.

The biggest question seems to be whether coach Marty Stern's squad has enough kick to outrun the sprinter-laden Lady Gators and grab the title. But if both Florida and Villanova fall short, look to North Carolina. The Tar Heels are strong in eight events.

The Tar Heels especially are looking to Tisha Waller in the high jump and Penny Blackwell in the triple jump for possible firsts. Blackwell also has turned in the second-best long jump in the nation this season.

Texas doesn't appear to have the depth to successfully defend its championship, but Carlette Guidry looks to repeat her two victories of last year and add to her total of five indoor and one outdoor titles (counting relays). Guidry has the best times in the 55-meter dash (6.70) and the 200-meter dash (23.56).

Cinnamon Sheffield of Louisiana State is the favorite in the 55-meter hurdles, but she appears to be the only favored Tiger. Dahalia Duhaney has recorded strong performances in the 55-meter dash and the long jump, but they don't appear to be enough to bring a team title.

North Carolina's Rebecca Russell (No. 161) and three teammates earned fifth place in the 3,200-meter relay last year. The Tar Heels are strong in eight events and could challenge for the 1991 team championship.

Championships Profile

Event: Division I men's and women's indoor track.

Fields: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows filling the fields to a maximum of 270 men and 213 women. All eligible student-athletes who meet the automatic-qualifying standard in any event may compete. Performances meeting provisional standards will be used to develop descending-order lists for each event, which will be used to fill each field to a minimum size established by the Men's and Women's Track and Field Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Arkansas won its seventh straight men's title on the strength of Ruben Reina's 3,000-meter victory and Edrick Floreal's triple-jump triumph. Texas claimed its third women's title in five years.

Schedule: The championships will be March 8-9 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis.

The NCAA News Coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 13 issue of the News.

Contenders: Arkansas and Iowa State in the men's championships; Florida, Villanova and North Carolina in the women's championships.

Championships notes: If Arkansas wins, it will be just one victory away from tying the all-time longest winning streak in Division I history for individual/team championships. Iowa wrestling (1978-86), Southern California outdoor track (1935-43) and Yale golf (1905-1913) each won nine consecutive crowns... The championship also would be the 12th overall team championship for the Hogs, all coming in cross country/track and field... Texas' Carlette Guidry, who has the best times in the 55-meter and 200-meter dashes, looks to add to her five individual titles in indoor track (including relays). She also was on a winning outdoor relay team.

Picking II indoor track favorites almost automatic

It's getting almost automatic in Division II indoor track. Come championships time, pencil in George Williams and St. Augustine's as the men's champion and Wes Kitley and Abilene Christian as the women's champion.

With the indoor championships approaching March 8 and 9 at the University of South Dakota, 1991 doesn't look to be any different.

"St. Augustine's will win the men's championship, hands down," said Pete Zinno, head coach at New York Tech and the person who compiles the national best-performances list for Division II. "Norfolk State will challenge in the women's championships, but Abilene Christian still has to be the favorite."

Both St. Augustine's and Abilene Christian have won at least three straight championships, with the Mighty Falcon men having won four straight, counting a tie with Abilene Christian in 1988. On the women's side, Abilene Christian has won three straight, since St. Augustine's won the first two Division II indoor championships.

Men's championships

St. Augustine's is so loaded, 18 team members are found on the national top-six lists for events. The Mighty Falcons have the best performances in every event but the 5,000 meters, the pole vault and the shot put.

If the Mighty Falcons score at the championships as they currently are ranked, they would score 146 points, the most ever in Division II by 52 points. The next 14 teams together could only manage to tie St. Augustine's.

Certainly, it is doubtful that every Falcon will match his best performance this season at the national meet. And two-time defending champion Howard Burnett of New York Tech has not qualified for the 400-meter dash, because he has not yet run the race this year.

But even Burnett's coach, Zinno, concedes this meet to the Mighty Falcons. "If you ask me who will challenge St. Aug's, well, nobody will challenge St. Augustine's," he said. "Now, if you want to know who will be in the money, I can say New York Tech, Southeast Missouri State, Hampton and the Dakotas (South Dakota and South Dakota State)."

While the team championship apparently could be decided on a write-in vote, there are some interesting battles shaping up individually. Kenneth Brokenburr of St. Augustine's, the defending champion in the 55-meter dash, is one of six runners within .10 of the best time in the division. Brokenburr's teammate, Mark Mason, has the best time at 6.26. Brokenburr is fourth at 6.32 and Maurice Miller is sixth with a time of 6.34.

Mason also has the best performance in the long jump at 8.05 meters (26-5), nearly half a meter better than teammates Keith Holley (7.56) and Jeff Gary (7.54). Charles Johnson has the best 55-meter hurdles time (7.22) and Antonio Pettigrew leads the 400-meter dash pack. Other Falcons with front-running performances are Chris Silva (1:52.07 in the 800 meters), Matt Keison (4:08.72 in the mile), Holley (15.91 meters in the triple jump) and Darren Moore (2.23 meters in the high jump). Not surprisingly, the Falcons also have the fastest 1,600-meter relay team.

Women's championships

The women's team championship is not so open and shut. But Kitley's Wildcats still appear to be the team to beat. Four events look like Abilene Christian victories, including a double in the 55-meter and 400-meter dashes that could be scored by Yolande Straughn. Straughn won both races a rarity—last year and has the best times this season in each. Sylvia Dyer has the best 55-meter hurdles time this year and the Wildcats' 1,600-meter relay team also is the best in Division II.

But the Wildcats don't dominate the division like they have in years past. They appear set to score about 50 points, which would be the lowest winning total in the six-year history of the meet. Meanwhile, seven other teams appear able to score at least 20 points, and Norfolk State, St. Augustine's, South Dakota State and Southeast Missouri State all could finish with more than 30.

So who will be hot and challenge Abilene Christian? Kitley says, "I'm not that familiar with everybody in the country. The only one I know about for sure is Southeast Missouri State. The Dakota schools look good. Cal State Los Angeles has good distance runners. Of course, Norfolk State, St. Augustine's and Hampton are always tough."

Abilene Christian can expect to get points in six different events, while Norfolk State should score in five. The problem, and maybe the solution, for the Spartans is that their strengths also happen to be Abilene Christian's strengths. The Spartans only figure to get points in one event where the Wildcats don't pose a scoring threat.

If Norfolk State can exceed expectations and finish ahead of favored Wildcat performers, then the Spartans can lay claim to their first indoor championship.

Kitley realizes his team's chances are dependent on no one but Abilene Christian. "We just want to go there and take care of business," he said. "We don't have a lot of depth, but we have good quality. We have to win some events. If we do that, we will be fine."

"Being the favorite doesn't bother me. We're definitely excited about it. We feel like we have an opportunity to compete for the title."

Webber named

Steve Webber, who guided the Georgia Bulldogs to the national baseball championship in the 1990 College World Series, has been named Diamond National Baseball Coach of the Year for NCAA Division I.

The award was announced at the annual coaches' convention in New Orleans. Webber was selected by a vote of his fellow coaches.

Georgia won its first Division I Baseball Championship by defeating Oklahoma State, 2-1, and posting its best record at 52-19.

Championships Profile

Event: Division II men's and women's indoor track.

Fields: In the men's competition, 126 athletes will compete in 12 individual events and relays. In the women's competition, 114 women will compete in 11 individual events and relays.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: St. Augustine's won its fourth straight men's title in 1990. In the women's competition, Abilene Christian won its third straight title.

Schedule: The championships will be March 8-9 at the University of South Dakota.

The NCAA News Coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 13 issue of the News.

Contenders: In the men's championships, St. Augustine's, New York Tech, Southeast Missouri State, Hampton, South Dakota and South Dakota State; in women's competition, Abilene Christian, Norfolk State, St. Augustine's, South Dakota State and Southeast Missouri State.

Championships notes: St. Augustine's and Abilene Christian have dominated the Division II indoor track scene. In the five years of the men's and women's championships, Abilene Christian has won one men's title and the last three women's titles and St. Augustine's has won two women's and the last four men's titles. Abilene Christian has won eight men's team championships in its history—all in track and field (one indoors and seven outdoors). The Wildcat women have won seven titles, also all in track and field (three indoors and four outdoors). The same is true for St. Augustine's, which has five men's championships (four indoors, one outdoors) and two women's crowns (both indoors).

Sheila Trice no longer haunts III indoor track hopefuls

For the past three years, one name has haunted Division III women's track coaches—Sheila Trice. The multiple-event performer from Christopher Newport claimed eight individual indoor titles and four more outdoor titles (not counting legs on three winning relay teams), and led the Lady Captains to three straight indoor team titles.

But Trice is now only a bad dream for the rest of the division, and consequently, the women's title at the Division III championships March 8 and 9 at Wesleyan is up for grabs.

Meanwhile, Lincoln (Pennsylvania) finished second twice in the first five years of the men's Division III championships before finally claiming its first men's indoor championship to go with two outdoor titles. Now, as the Lions prepare to defend their championship, there are a number of teams ready to make their stay at the top a short one. Lincoln is one of three teams with a legitimate chance to win, but it will have to wrest the title away from Nebraska Wesleyan and Albany (New York).

Men's championships

Nebraska Wesleyan has just two athletes who currently claim division-best performances this year, but has the depth to be tabbed as the favorite. Gary Wasserman, who finished second last winter in the 5,000-meter run, is the fastest in the division this season, and Bruce Canterbury has long-jumped farther than anybody else. But the Plainsmen also have a second, three thirds and two fourths among their projected finishes, which could be enough to bring home the team championship.

Albany (New York) has one athlete with a season best, and like Nebraska Wesleyan, has considerable depth that could generate some points.

For Lincoln, however, the 1,600-meter relay team is expected to repeat and Mark Whitsett is projected as the winner in the 55-meter hurdles, an event in which he finished fourth a year ago.

Still, some familiar names in Division III track will have to come up big for Lincoln to retain its championship. Shannon Flowers, who joins fellow senior Whitsett in the 55-meter hurdles, and Clive Terrelonge in the 800-meter run will be counted on for points and leadership. Freshmen Jerome Johnson and Brandon Jones in the 55-meter dash have been impressive as well.

"I think our strongest area will come from the two upperclassmen, Whitsett and Flowers," coach Cyrus Jones said. "They always electrify the crowd at the nationals. Mark not only has the best time in Division III but on the entire East Coast in the 55-meter hurdles. I have two freshman sprinters: Jones, who has consistently run 6.1 and 6.2, and Johnson, who has seen-sawed with Jones in the dashes. And Clive Terrelonge is perhaps the best 800-meter man on the East Coast. He has already been clocked in 1:50."

"I think we have a super opportunity to repeat. But, as I've always told the kids, no matter how much talent you might have, you have to go in with the right frame of mind no nonsense. We'll be in the top three."

Mount Union has two front-runners in their events, Dave Forshew in the pole vault and LeShun Collins in the shot put. Forshew has vaulted 16-6¾ this year, which is nearly eight inches better than his nearest competitor. Collins will be tested much more in the shot put. But the Raiders probably don't have the depth to challenge for the team crown.

Women's championships

The women's team championship may very well come down to which school does better in the 1,500-meter run. Wisconsin-Oshkosh and Cortland State each have three of the six top qualifiers, and how they finish in the race will have a large bearing on how their respective teams finish in the race for the title.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh's three 1,500-meter runners are Laura Horejs, Nancy Darc and Pamela Weider. They finished fourth, 18th and 34th, respectively, at the Division III cross country championships and helped the Titans to a second-place finish behind Cortland State. But thanks to depth, Wisconsin-Oshkosh may be able to turn the tables on the Red Dragons. The Titans also have three of the six top qualifiers in the shot put, the top qualifier in the 800-meter run, and top six qualifiers in the 55-meter dash, 55-meter hurdles, high jump, 5,000 meters and 1,600-meter relay.

If strength in one area can win a championship, then Cortland State's 1,500- and 5,000-meter dominance is a good bet. The Red Raiders have three of the five top 1,500-meter runners and the top three 5,000-meter runners (Vicki Mitchell, who won the cross country title; Michelle LaFleur, who was fifth, and Rebecca Bieber, who was eighth). If those projected finishes hold up, it would be worth 40 points. But will that be enough?

Christopher Newport, even without Trice, will be a factor at the indoor championships. The Lady Captains have possible points in six different events, and with the right combination of performances, could repeat.

Pity Kim Oden. The all-purpose junior at Nebraska Wesleyan would collect 36 points by herself if she could duplicate her regular-season rankings at the national meet. Oden has the best high jump, by more than five inches, and the best 55-meter hurdles time. She also owns the second best long jump and triple jump performances of the season. Keep in mind, too, that there is no heptathlon indoors, an event in which Oden holds the Division III record.

But after Oden, Nebraska Wesleyan is short on scorers.

Championships Profile

Event: Division III men's and women's indoor track.

Fields: In the men's competition, 158 athletes will compete in 12 individual events and relays. In its third straight women's crown.

Schedule: The championships will be March 8-9 at Wesleyan University.

The NCAA News Coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 13 issue of the News.

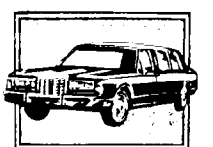

Contenders: Nebraska Wesleyan, Albany (New York), Lincoln (Pa.) and Mount Union in the men's championships; in the women's championships, Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Christopher Newport, Cortland State and Nebraska Wesleyan.

Championships note: Nebraska Wesleyan's Kim Oden has qualified for four different events, with the best qualifying marks in two events and the second best in the other two. If she wins all four events, it would give her six indi. She won the high jump indoors and outdoors each of the last two years as well as the heptathlon last spring outdoors. She has qualified for the high jump, long jump, triple jump and 55-meter hurdles at the indoor championships.

Title contender Bentley benefits from unselfish efforts

This year's women's basketball team at Bentley might be the most unselfish group that coach Barbara Stevens has ever had.

In November, senior cocaptain Cheryl Boettger went down with a knee injury. She led the team in rebounding a year ago and ranked fifth nationally in field-goal percentage (61.9). She also was the top returning player in Division II in career field-goal accuracy (60.5).

Suddenly, Stevens had to go to the shuffle, shifting players to different positions and inserting an experienced back-up player into a starting slot.

After losing the season opener, the team began to win. Through 26 games, the winning streak stood at 25. Bentley has been entrenched near the top of the NCAA Division II weekly poll throughout the year and has to be considered a candidate to make a third consecutive trip to the semifinal round of the Division II championship.

"This is a classic case of people not being intimidated by a situation that could have been harder than it was," Stevens said.

As often happens in such situations, the players responded to the challenges they faced and new leaders emerged. One of those is senior point guard Monica Odoj. She had seen considerable playing time as a backcourt reserve, but she became the starting point guard after Boettger's injury. Through games of February 17, Odoj ranked fourth nationally in assists with a 7.7 average. She also is an outstanding defensive player and sets the tone for the team at that end of the court.

Sophomore Kim Penwell went from playing the perimeter to the post "in a matter of about three days," according to Stevens. She has been the team's leading scorer and rebounder this season. She also was ranked 14th nationally in field-goal percentage (58.1).

Another sophomore, Patrice Misiano, moved into the starting spot at center. Through 26 games, she was averaging just under 14 points and six rebounds, second and third on the team, respectively.

Junior Missy Wolfe had been a two-year starter at point guard. She moved to shooting guard. According to Stevens, Wolfe still finds uses for the great court vision and leadership abilities she developed as a point guard.

Junior Tracie Seymour is the team's unsung hero. She is an outstanding athlete and a player who seems to come through in the clutch. Seymour averaged 14.8 points and 5.2 rebounds during last year's NCAA championship. She also earned all-tournament honors.

"We have taken the season one game at a time and I mean that literally," Stevens said. "We really are enjoying the situation as it is happening. The players are putting it together as well as any group I've had."

But the team doesn't lack confidence, especially in tough situations. That is attributable to Bentley's experience in last year's championship, where it advanced to the final before losing to Delta State.

"When you've had that kind of experience, you don't know when or where it is going to emerge but it does," Stevens said. "A lot of experience from the final four has emerged in big games."

Bentley senior Monica Odoj has become one of the division's top point guards. Odoj is averaging more than seven assists per game.

Stevens and her Bentley squad know both the challenges and rewards of becoming a national semifinalist.

"It is a difficult road to get to the final four, but that is as it should be," Stevens said. "Each step you take, you should be challenged more so the cream will rise to the top."

"It really is such a neat thing for the players. They get memories they will never forget. We've had two great experiences."

Championship Profile

Event: Division II women's basketball.

Field: A total of 32 teams will compete in the 1991 championship.

Automatic qualification: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Gulf South Conference, Lone Star Conference, Mid-east Collegiate Conference, Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, New York State Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-10 Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Defending champion: Delta State has won the last two titles.

Schedule: Regional tournaments will be conducted March 8 and 9. Quarterfinal games will be played March 15 or 16. The semifinals, third-place game and final will be March 22 and 23. All games will be played on the campuses of competing institutions.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings will be published in the News March 13 and 20. Championship results will appear March 27.

Contenders: West Texas State, Bentley, North Dakota State, Norfolk State.

Championship notes: Bentley, West Texas State and North Dakota State all have been runners-up in the championship but none have won a title... Cal Poly Pomona has reached the semifinals seven times and won three championships, all under coach Darlene May. It is the only team to have played in all nine tournaments... Bentley and Central Missouri State have played in eight tournaments... Cal Poly Pomona and Delta State have won consecutive championships. No team has won three in a row.

Elmira, Mankato State slight favorites in III ice hockey

In the annual battle of East vs. West, a number of schools have the talent to win their respective regions and advance to the Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

Top-ranked Elmira and highly ranked Mankato State, however, stand out slightly as favorites to win the title.

While the Elmira (23-2) offense has averaged seven goals per game and grabbed most of the headlines, its defense quietly has allowed less than three goals per game and is the main reason why the Soaring Eagles are ranked No. 1.

Coach Glenn Thomaris was pleasantly surprised this season by the play of sophomore goaltender Tom O'Brien. An unproven, third-string goalie last year, O'Brien has played in 15 games and has a goals-against average of 2.77.

Said Thomaris, "Tom has played extremely well the second half of the season, with one shutout and three games in which he allowed only one goal."

Defensively, Jules Jardine (five goals, 21 assists, 26 points), Matt Weir (7-29-36) and Sean Cowan (2-14-16) have been outstanding all season. Weir was moved to the blueline from the center position to take advantage of his puck-handling, as well as his ability to beat the first forechecker and get the puck up the ice. Cowan is a rugged player who, with a young goaltender at his back, "has been a real factor at the defensive end by staying home and providing extra help," said Thomaris, who in four years has a 93-26-1 record.

Center Joe Spinelli, an all-America last season, is having another season worthy of honors this year. An explosive skater, Spinelli (31-38-69) is "a smart, hard worker who is not afraid of scoring goals," added Thomaris.

Left wing Bob Holmes (27-24-51) recently came out of a mid-season slump to score 15 goals in 11 games.

Bernie Cassell (26-32-58) was moved from center to right wing, to put him on Spinelli's line. Cassell, said Thomaris, has been "burning up the league with Spinelli." Both have scored six short-handed goals this season.

Elmira has set its sights on the NCAA tournament. Thomaris said his team "talks about it quite regularly. We know how many good teams there are in the East and how many spots are left after automatic qualification. We shoot for 20 wins each season as a magic number. It's a little difficult for the NCAA committee to overlook a team with 20 wins."

In the West, Mankato State coach Don Brose has a veteran team, skating 10 seniors on a regular basis.

As with Brose teams of the past, the Mavericks are defense-oriented, while stressing a balanced offense. They also are tough to beat at home. Mankato State is 12-0-2 at home this season and is undefeated in its last 24 home games, dating back to 1989.

"We have a senior-dominated team with a great work ethic," said Brose, who has a career record of 382-199-41 in 21 years. "We have a very unselfish team—only three of our players are ranked on the list of top-25 conference scorers."

"Our forte, though, has been a great team defense. We have been able to keep teams right at 30 shots on net per game, and a lot of those shots are perimeter shots."

Goaltender Glen Prodahl (12-1-2 record, 2.35 goals-against average, .919 save percentage) has been consistent all season and is a strong candidate for all-America honors. He led all Northern Collegiate Hockey Association goaltenders in goals-against average (2.25) and save percentage (.922).

"Glen is very small (5-6, 190) but is extremely quick and has good technique," said Brose. "He also has great confidence that he can get the job done game after game."

The Mavericks have an experienced defensive team, led by senior Derek Cooper (4-12-16) and junior Craig Willmert (3-7-10).

"Cooper and Willmert are our best defensive unit. They really play outstanding together. They aren't flashy and they don't move the puck real well; they just don't get beat."

The top forward line is led by senior captain Bill Rooney (16-17-33), the team's top all-around forward, said Brose. Flanking Rooney will be left wing Mike Ciolli (14-20-34) and right wing Paul Gherardi (14-15-29).

Added Brose, "We throw four lines at a team and six defensemen. Everyone gets an equal chance to play. I like to spread out our best players over four lines. We roll the four lines and wear people down."

Over the past 13 years, Mankato State has made nine appearances in an NCAA tournament, including all six Division II championships before that tourney was discontinued.

"We feel very positive about where we are and how we are playing. We want to make our 10th appearance this year (in the NCAA tournament) and bring home a trophy."

Championship Profile

Event: Division III men's ice hockey.

Field: Eight teams will be selected for the 1991 championship.

Automatic qualification: State University of New York Athletic Conference, Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northern Collegiate Hockey Association.

Defending champion: Wisconsin-Stevens Point became the first Division III team to claim back-to-back men's ice hockey titles when it defeated Plattsburgh State in a championship minigame, 1-0. The Pointers won the opening game of the two-night series, 10-1, but Plattsburgh State charged back to take a 6-3 victory the second night, setting up the minigame showdown.

Schedule: On-campus sites will be used for all tournament games. First-round games will take place March 8 and 9 or 9 and 10. The four winners advance to an on-campus site for semifinal and championship games that will be played March 15-16 or 16-17.

The NCAA News Coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear in the March 13 issue of the News. Championship results will be published March 20.

Contenders: Elmira, Mankato State, Geneseo State, Bemidji State, Salem State, Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

Championship notes: Twenty-one schools have participated in the tournament through the first seven years... Babson is the only school that has participated in all seven championships... The home team has won the championship only three times in seven years.

Members' help with travel plans sought

NCAA championships travel for 1991 will increase dramatically due to larger traveling parties for team sports. The impact will be felt by Worldtek Travel, the NCAA official travel agency, as it continues to deliver service to greater numbers

Joins league

Commissioner Bob Vanatta of the Sunshine Conference has announced that the University of North Florida will join the conference in 1992.

Plans call for a $10 million, 6,000 seat gymnasium on the campus of North Florida. Groundbreaking is scheduled for April, with completion projected for the fall 1992.

The addition of North Florida will give the conference eight members. Current members are Barry University, Eckerd College, Florida Institute of Technology, Florida Southern College, Rollins College, St. Leo College and the University of Tampa.

of NCAA travelers.

The Division I Men's and Women's Basketball Championships present Worldtek with its toughest challenges.

Even though participating institutions are not officially known until the announcement date (March 10), many institutions reasonably have an idea ahead of time that they may be selected. If an institution feels there is a strong possibility it will be selected, the institution can assist Worldtek in the following ways:

- Prior to the announcement date, team administrators should prepare a list of individuals most likely to be included in the traveling party. These names may be changed at any time.

- Administrators should review, with members of the traveling party, alternatives should they have to be split up due to airline or charter availability; some may be traveling two days prior to the game, others one day before or on the day of the game. Administrators should indicate how the party would be divided.

- Administrators should FAX those names and possible configurations to the Worldtek/NCAA Travel Center (FAX phone 203/865-2034).

Another way to assist Worldtek in servicing the needs of traveling parties is by calling the NCAA Travel Center (800/243-1800, 800/243-1723 or 203/772-0470) on Selection Sunday.

As a rule, airlines will not hold group reservations without individual names, but the procedures discussed above will enable Worldtek to provide better service to the selected institutions. Institutions planning to utilize charters also would benefit by calling early.

Any questions about these procedures should be directed to Karen LaRose or Shelly Mongillo at Worldtek (800/243-1800) or Keith E. Martin, NCAA director of accounting, at the national office (913/339-1906, ext. 7435).

Initial-eligibility

developed skills," Walsh said.

Although the study, which began with student-athletes who entered Division I institutions in 1984 and continued through five classes to those who entered in 1988, is only at the halfway point in its data collection, Walsh said the richest part of the data set for addressing the initial-eligibility question is now in place.

"The 1984 and 1985 classes were uncensored by the 1986 Proposition 48 requirements," Walsh said. "In those groups, we have student-athletes who fell below the 1986 requirements. Studying them helps us to see what the effects of the new requirements were."

The Academic Requirements Committee will meet February 28 and March 1 to consider the report of the Research Committee.

CEOs

CEOs in attendance. Even more impressive was the Division I-A count — 71 of the 106 CEOs in that subdivision (67 percent) were in Nashville.

The other Division I subdivision figures were 52.9 percent of the Division I-AA chief executives (46 of 87) and 43.7 percent of those in Division I-AAA (45 of 103).

Division II also posted its highest CEO turnout ever, with 52 of the 209 in attendance (24.9 percent). In Division III, 22 of 323 were in Nashville (6.8 percent).

For the membership as a whole, 28.5 percent of all of the member institutions' CEOs attended 236 of 828.

NCAA Record

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Joseph B. Johnson, president at Grambling, selected as president at Talladega, effective July 1. Johnson is a member of the NCAA Presidents Commission. Paul J. Olscamp, a former Presidents Commission member, announced his retirement as president at Bowling Green, effective in June 1994.

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Chalmers W. "Bump" Elliott announced his retirement at Iowa, effective August 1. Elliott has been AD for 21 years at Iowa. The former all-America football halfback and head football coach at Michigan also served for a time during the 1950s as an assistant football coach at Iowa. Elliott is a member of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball and Communications Committees.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Kim Culligan selected at St. Peter's. She previously was head women's softball and volleyball coach at Jersey City State. Sue Jacobson hired at Northern Colorado, effective July 1. She is assistant AD at Central Missouri State, and a former women's tennis coach at Oregon and intern in the championships department at the NCAA national office. Cynthia Patterson, associate AD for compliance and academic affairs at Southern Methodist, named special assistant to the president at the university.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Mike Thomas promoted from business and operations manager to assistant AD for operations at Denver, where he has been on the athletics staff since 1986.

COACHES

Men's basketball Gordon Gibbons appointed at Florida Southern, where he has been interim head coach since last September. Gibbons, who previously was a Moccasin assistant for three years, has led the team to a top-10 ranking in Division II this season.

Men's basketball assistant Joe Niland received a contract for next season at Florida Southern.

Women's basketball Toni Roesch promoted from assistant at Marietta, where she has been on the staff for two years. Roesch, a former all-Big Ten player at Ohio State who also coaches women's basketball at Marietta, succeeds Debora Lazarik, who stepped down with a 122-137 mark after 11 seasons in the post to devote full time to her other duties as athletics director and chair of the physical education department. Roesch also has been an assistant at Stetson.

Football Ricky Diggs hired at Morgan State. The former Shippensburg running back previously was wide receivers coach at Air Force and also has served on the staffs at Citadel and South Carolina. Charlie Pravata promoted from offensive coordinator at Merchant Marine, where he has been on the staff for seven seasons. He is a former Adelphi player who also has coached high-school football and served as a scout for the Canadian Football League's Ottawa Roughriders.

Football assistants Don Morel joined the staff at La Verne as offensive coordinator. He returns to his alma mater after serving as offensive line coach at Cal State Fullerton. Carl Franks given additional duties as recruiting coordinator at Florida, where he continues to coach running backs. He joined the Gators' staff last year. Phil Elmassian joined the Syracuse staff after serving since 1987 as linebackers coach at Virginia. The former Ferrum and William and Mary player also has been on the coaching staffs at those schools and at Minnesota, East Carolina, Richmond and Virginia Tech. Andy Coen promoted from offensive line coach to offensive coordinator at Merchant Marine, where he joined the staff last year after serving as a graduate assistant coach at Minnesota. The former Gettysburg offensive guard also has coached at Widener and James Madison. Mike Working dismissed as offensive coordinator at Tulsa.

Also, Tom O'Brien appointed offensive coordinator at Virginia. Greg Gregory promoted from offensive coordinator to assistant head coach at Army, which also announced the appointments of Denny Doornbos as defensive coordinator and Ed Warinner as defensive line coach. Eric Campbell named running backs coach at Ball State. Mike Borich selected as wide receivers coach at Northeastern... Tim Ebersole given additional duties as assistant head coach at Lebanon Valley, where he continues to serve as offensive coordinator and as head baseball coach. The former Shippensburg quarterback has been on the Lebanon Valley staff since 1986.

Men's golf Steven Lester Johnson named at Greensboro, his alma mater. Johnson, president of Wells Trophy Manufacturing, Inc., coached Greensboro Day School to a state golf title in North Carolina last year.

Men's lacrosse assistants Dave Hope selected at Virginia Military, where he led the nation in goals scored as a player in 1987. Hope has been an assistant at Virginia Wesleyan for the past 1½ years. Mike Honey and Bob Persing joined the staff at Springfield. Honey, a former Springfield player, previously was head boys' coach at Fox Lane High School in Bedford, Massachusetts, and Persing is a 1990 graduate of Syracuse, where he was a starting midfielder on three Division I championship teams.

Women's lacrosse Robin Clark Cummings promoted from assistant to interim head coach at Northwestern. Cummings, a former field hockey and lacrosse all-America at the school who also assists with field hockey, replaces Cindy Timchal, who will become head women's lacrosse coach at Maryland. Timchal led her teams at Northwestern to a 76-40 record and five NCAA tournament appearances in nine seasons.

Men's soccer David Fall resigned after four seasons at Rollins to accept a position with a computer firm in Orlando, Florida. Fall coached his teams to a 30-38-4 mark.

Women's soccer Dave Wilson promoted from men's junior varsity coach at Binghamton, where he retains his duties as head women's basketball coach. Wilson replaces Hristos Dimitriou, who becomes associate men's coach at the school. Since 1985, Dimitriou has led Binghamton's women to a 51-37-13 record.

Women's softball Bruce Marquis appointed at Clark (Massachusetts). He has coached youth sports teams in Newton, Massachusetts, and has been a senior instructor in health professions at Northeastern since 1980. Pat Cole-Belmonte selected at Jersey City State, where she also will coach women's volleyball. Cole-Belmonte, a former assistant coach at the high school and community college levels, replaces Kim Culligan, who was named associate athletics director at St. Peter's.

Men's tennis Melissa Abbott named interim head coach at Clark (Massachusetts), where the former Principia standout is an assistant women's coach. Bob Lewis took a one-semester sabbatical leave at Albany (New York) to serve as assistant director of the National Sportsmanship Day Program for the Institute of International Sport at Rhode Island. National Sportsmanship Day, scheduled for April 24, will feature a forum on the issues of ethics, fair play and sportsmanship in high schools, colleges and universities.

Men's and women's track and field Sonny Jolly announced he will step down at Lamar at the end of the outdoor season. Jolly, who last year relinquished duties as Lamar's athletics director, will remain at the school as a professor in the health, physical education and dance department. Since taking the reins as track coach in 1971, Jolly has coached his teams to 22 conference titles, including an uninterrupted string of 14 outdoor track, indoor track and cross country titles in the Southland Conference between 1981 and 1985. He will assist with the U.S. track team at the Pan American Games in August.

Women's volleyball Rick Ware appointed to the part-time position at Shepherd after four years as head girls' coach at Martinsburg Christian Academy in West Virginia, where his teams have won state titles in two of the past three seasons. At Shepherd, Ware will coach his daughter, April. Stacey Maat-Recanati named at Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck, where she was the Northeast Conference's most valuable player as a team member in 1989, and a three-time all-conference selection. Pat Cole-Belmonte appointed at Jersey City State, where she also will coach women's softball. The former basketball and women's volleyball coach at Bloomfield replaces Kim Culligan, who was named associate athletics director at St. Peter's.

Women's volleyball assistant Steve Schlick joined the staff at Notre Dame after three years as an aide at Arizona State. He also has been a head coach at the high-school level, where he coached Mountain View High School to an Arizona state title in 1984.

Wrestling Ron Russo announced he will step down at Columbia at the end of the academic year. Russo, who is in his 18th season as the Lions' head coach and his 20th season at the school, coached his teams to Ivy Group titles in 1979, 1980 and 1981. The former Bloomsburg wrestler coached eight all-Americans at Columbia, as well as a Rhodes Scholar.

STAFF

Business and operations manager Denver's Mike Thomas promoted to assistant athletics director for operations at the school.

Sports information director Bryan Dangerfield resigned at UC Davis, effective after the spring sports season, to pursue his own consulting business. Dangerfield, who has been at the school since 1988, also has served as SID at Humboldt State and as an assistant at Air Force.

CONFERENCES

Michael L. Slive selected as the first commissioner of the Great Midwest Conference, which is being formed by Alabama-Birmingham, Cincinnati, DePaul, Marquette, Memphis State and St. Louis. Slive, an attorney specializing in sports law and a senior partner and founder of the Mike Slive-Mike Glazier Sports Group, was assistant executive director of the Pacific-10 Conference from 1979 to 1981. He also has been athletics director at Cornell and assistant AD at Dartmouth.

ASSOCIATIONS

Bob Condron promoted from assistant to associate director of public information and media relations at the U.S. Olympic Committee, which also announced the promotion of Jeff Cravens, coordinator of programs, to replace Condron as assistant director. Condron is a former assistant athletics director and sports information director at Southern Methodist and Cravens is a former assistant SID at Kansas.

NOTABLES

Five coaches and four former wrestlers have been selected for induction into the NCAA Division III Wrestling Hall of Fame by the National Wrestling Coaches Association. The coaches are Tony DeCarlo, former wrestling and current head football coach at John Carroll; Earl Fuller of Rochester Institute of Technology; Jim Howard, former coach at Oswego State; Jerry Petrofes, former coach at Lebanon Valley, and Budd Whitehill, former coach at Lycoming. The former wrestlers are Jim Weir of John Carroll, Chris Casey of Augustana (Illinois), Eric Mast of Elizabethtown and Brett Stamm of Wheaton (Illinois).

DEATHS

Travis Williams, an Arizona State football running back during the 1960s who went on to play for the Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams, died of heart failure in Martinez, California, February 17, after a long illness. He was 45.

CORRECTION

A story in the January 2 issue of The NCAA News listing the National Soccer Coaches Association's 1990 all-America teams incorrectly named the school where Division I second-team member Truong Nguyen plays. The back is the first player at San Diego to be named a soccer all-America.

Title talk misses mention of lengthy win streak

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

With all the focus on Nevada-Las Vegas' bid to become the first unbeaten Division I men's basketball champion in 15 years and the first repeat champion in 18 years, something else has been overlooked.

A 1991 sweep by Nevada-Las Vegas would extend its winning streak to 47, and that would equal the third longest in Division I history.

UCLA's 88-game streak from 1971 through 1974 is the record. It included three national championships, the last two led by Bill Walton. Second is San Francisco's 60-gamer from 1955 through 1957 that included two Bill Russell-led national crowns. Third is UCLA's 47-game streak from 1966 through 1968 that was led by Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar) and halted by Elvin Hayes-led Houston, 71-69, in the Astrodome.

Nevada-Las Vegas is 26-0 after that crucial win at New Mexico State, 86-74, February 25. A 36-0 finish is possible for Jerry Tarkanian's team. That would be the most victories ever for an unbeaten NCAA champion. The record is 32-0, set by the second of the seven unbeaten NCAA champions—North Carolina in 1957—and tied by the last, Indiana in 1976. The other five are San Francisco (29) in 1956 and four 30-0 UCLA teams in 1964, 1967, 1972 and 1973.

Five other Division I teams since 1938 (first year of the modern or no-center-jump era) finished their seasons unbeaten. The first, Long Island-Brooklyn (24) in 1939, won the National Invitation Tournament. The next two, Seton Hall (19) in 1940 and Army (15) in 1944, were not invited to either tournament. The fourth, Kentucky (25) in 1954, was coming off NCAA suspension and eligible as a team, but it declined an invitation when three players in their fifth years in college (Cliff Hagan, Frank Ramsey and Lou Tsipopoulos) were declared ineligible for postseason play by the NCAA. The fifth is North Carolina State (27) in 1973, when it was on probation.

Twelve more Division I teams ended regular-season play unbeaten, but lost in postseason play. The last two came in 1979, when Alcorn State lost in the NIT and Indiana State and Larry Bird lost the NCAA title game to Michigan State and Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

Summing up, 24 Division I teams in the 53 seasons of the modern era ended the regular season unbeaten. Twelve lost in postseason play, seven won the NCAA, one won the NIT and four did not compete in postseason play.

36 not the record

One record is out of reach for Nevada-Las Vegas—most wins in a season. That was set by Duke, 37-3 in 1986, and tied by Nevada-Las Vegas, 37-2 in 1987. However, neither won the NCAA crown. Duke lost the championship game to Louisville, and Nevada-Las Vegas lost to eventual champion Indiana in the semifinals. Only Kentucky's 1948 NCAA champions (36-3) won 36.

Five teams won 35 games, but only one—Nevada-Las Vegas last year—won the NCAA championship. Oklahoma in 1988 was upset in the title game (by Kansas), as was Georgetown in 1985 (by Villanova). Arizona in 1988 lost in the semifinals (to Oklahoma), as did Kansas in 1986 (to Duke).

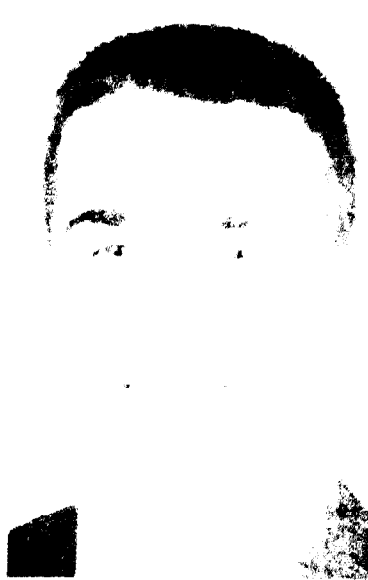

Division I in 1970

This is only the 22nd season in Division I for Nevada-Las Vegas. It reached that level with the 1969-70 season, a 17-9 success in Rolland Todd's fifth and final season. John Bayer was 44-36 for three seasons, then Tarkanian took over and has posted a 449-102 record for 17 seasons before the current one. A 1991 sweep would make the school 546-147 for .788 over 22 seasons in Division I and 485-102 under Tarkanian.

.758 all time

Entering the current season, Nevada-Las Vegas had a .758 winning percentage for 30 seasons of play at the four-year level. Kentucky leads the all-time Division I list at .752 entering this season, but the list includes only those with at least 25 seasons in Division I, so Nevada-Las Vegas will not be eligible until after the next three seasons.

Nevada-Las Vegas played mostly junior-college and service teams its first two years, in 1959 (5-13) and 1960 (13-8). Its all-time record does not include those seasons. Its first season at the four-year level was 1961 and it never has had a losing record at that level. A 1991 sweep

Mankato State coach Dan McCarrell had seen his team overcome a 91-78 deficit with 2:14 left to tie St. Cloud St. 97-all (as senior guard Bryon Lindsey scored 11 of his 12 points in that span) with 10 seconds left, then won in overtime, 108-106. Mankato State scored 16

Has any team ever set a school record for consecutive victories five straight years? Under coach Barbara Stevens, the Bentley women had a 13-game winning streak her first season in 1987, then a 19-game streak in 1988, 21 straight in 1989, 23 straight last year (snapped by Delta State in the Division II championship game) and 24 straight this season since an opening-day loss at Alaska-Anchorage, despite the loss to injury of the starting center in a preseason exhibition game. (Dick Lipe, Bentley SID)

Talk about turn-arounds—the Rider women, 6-50 in the East Coast Conference over the past four seasons, now stand 8-2 in conference play. (Bud Focht, Rider SID)

The Illinois-Chicago women have won nine games under first-year coach Eileen McMahon, equaling their victory total of the past three seasons combined (9-75). (Dave Matier, Illinois-Chicago SID)

The Franklin and Marshall men's and women's teams each: (1) won 20 games for the fifth consecutive season; (2) won the Middle Atlantic Conference Southwest Section a fifth straight year; (3) is three-time defending MAC Southern Division play-off champion. (Tom Byrnes, Franklin and Marshall SID)

Nine of 13 members of the women's team at Rensselaer made the dean's list the first semester. (Alan Shibley, Rensselaer SID)

St. Olaf scored its first 30 points on three-pointers in a 70-51 victory over Macalester before Greg Carstensen broke the "spell" with a pair of free throws. (Nancy Moe, St. Olaf SID)

Northwestern State (Louisiana) has had 12 of its last 14 games decided in the final minute of regulation or in overtime, and won only three times in that span. Has any other college been through such a series of nailbiters? Turnovers, inexperience and the early-season loss to injury of veteran point guard Roman Banks have hurt. Banks will be back as a medical redshirt and the young players will be a year older next season, but meanwhile, coach Dan Bell says, "It just seems like the same old record playing over and over." (Dan Ireland, Northwestern State (Louisiana) SID)

Campbell's Marvin Edmonds, a 29-year-old former Army sergeant, may be the oldest player in Division I. The senior center has played just two-plus years of organized basketball, but ranks third in the Big South Conference in blocks per game (2.3) and is on the verge of breaking the school blocks record he jointly holds, set last year. He did not play basketball while in high school in Washington, D.C., and served six years in the Army. (Stan Cole, Campbell SID)

The Richmond women's team was host to American February 9 and won, 79-59. At the same time in Washington, D.C., the men's team defeated American by—you guessed it—79-59. (Carper Cole, Richmond assistant SID)

Records set

Loras senior Chris Jans of Fairbank, Iowa, has set a men's Division III season record of 125 three-pointers made (in 23 games). Jans, a 28.4 scorer, is averaging 5.4 three-pointers made per game, well above the record of 4.3. (Howard Thomas, Loras SID)

Averett's Antonio Randolph shot 13-for-13 from the field vs. Methodist to equal the Division III record. (Rick Moyer, Averett assistant coach)

DePauw's Troy Greenlee set a Division III record of consecutive games with at least one three-pointer when he did it a 54th straight game vs. Anderson. (Bill Wagner, DePauw SID) would move its all-time percentage up to .767 (715-217).

As an NCAA Division II member, the team reached the tournament four times (1965, 1967, 1968 and 1969), with a 4-5 record. It lost in the regional finals to Indiana State in 1968. In 11 Division I tournament appearances, it is 26-10, reaching the Final Four three times.

A multicategory leader

Regardless of how it fares in the tournament, Nevada-Las Vegas seems certain to rank high among the great teams on a multicategory statistical basis.

The Runnin' Rebels lead the nation in scoring margin at 29.8—very close to the all-time Division I season record of 30.3 by the 1972 UCLA team.

In addition, Tarkanian's team, through February 25, was first in won-lost percentage, third in scoring (102.9), led in field-goal accuracy at 54.5 percent, ranked sixth (and eighth all time) in field-goal percentage defense at 39.5 percent allowed, fourth in rebound margin (8.1), 10th in three-pointers made per game (8.7) and 10th in three-point accuracy (42.6 percent).

1,500th victory

North Carolina became the first team in college history to win 1,500 games with a victory over Clemson February 23. Kentucky was at 1,499 going into its February 27 game vs. Alabama. North Carolina's next game is March 2 vs. Duke. Dean Smith has coached 709 of North Carolina's wins, and Adolph Rupp had 875 of Kentucky's. Both played under Forrest "Phog" Allen at Kansas, which is third in all-time wins at 1,453 through February 25.

Quotes of the week

Wofford's men have a winning record for the season, but when they recently dropped five of six, coach Richard Johnson was told to take comfort in the fact that his team's arena will have a new parquet floor (like the Boston Garden) next season. Johnson shrugged, then said, "Yeah, all I need now is Bill Russell, John Havlicek and Larry Bird." (Mark Cohen, Wofford SID) three-pointers—a North Central Conference record. His reaction: "For a spectator, it was a heckuva game, but for a coach, it makes you want to sell insurance." (Paul Allan, Mankato State SID)

UC Santa Barbara coach Jerry Pimm recently on his plans for Nevada-Las Vegas: "Just drop back 10 and punt... and try to punt it out of bounds."

Nevada-Las Vegas closes its regular-season schedule March 2 at Cal State Fullerton, where coach John Sneed, asked whether the 1991 Runnin' Rebels can be beaten, replied: "Everyone can be beaten. Mike Tyson can be beaten. But will Buster Douglas ever beat him again? I doubt it."

Oxford-bound

Randolph-Macon's Russell Turner again proved that his skills are not limited to basketball recently when he was awarded the Richmond English Speaking Union Scholarship. It will allow him to spend six weeks this summer studying at Oxford University in England. Turner has been a dean's list student all five semesters here and is a candidate for academic all-America. The same week, Turner earned another award—Old Dominion Athletic Conference player of the week for his two-game totals of 57 points and 29 rebounds in wins over Lynchburg and Emory and Henry. (Dean Hybl, Hampden-Sydney SID)

Can you top these?

Cincinnati leads the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference in rebound margin (six per game), despite fielding the smallest starting front line in Division I, with 6-4 forward Herb Jones, 6-5 forward Lavertis Robinson and 6-5 center Curtis Bostic. During a recent seven-game winning streak, Bostic replaced 6-7 Keith Starks as starting center, and the rebound margin was seven per game in that span. And with Bostic and Robinson on the court at the same time, Cincinnati also may have the safest front court. You see, both Bostic, a freshman, and Robinson, a senior, are black belts in karate as well as former kick-boxing champions. Both are

Georgia's Pen Pal Program gives pupils an academic boost

A three-year-old academic program intended to motivate middle-school students through correspondence with University of Georgia athletes has provided unexpected benefits for everyone involved.

The Georgia Pen Pal Program, started by Hilsman Middle School teacher Tom Simpson of Athens, allows student-athletes to help sixth-grade students practice reading and writing skills. Each student in Simpson's developmental reading class is paired with an athlete for weekly letter exchanges throughout that school year. Simpson explained the athletes are the most effective writing partners for his class because their high profiles build self-esteem for the younger students who boast about their new famous friends.

"Making the students in my class feel special is very important when you consider that, based on test results, they are generally at the lower end of the sixth-grade skills level," he told Susan W. Torrance of the Georgia sports information staff.

Simpson also collects newspaper articles about the participating athletes that are read by his students in class.

After communicating strictly by correspondence for five months, the students finally met each other recently when the Hilsman class visited the university for the program's third annual tour and luncheon.

"They were given the VIP tour and treated as extra-special guests," said Becky Galvin, Georgia Athletic Association counselor.

Later, the class met for an academic pep-talk by Andy Landers, head women's basketball coach. After visiting the academic center, the class had lunch with the athletes in McWhorter Hall.

Of the pen-pal relationships, Simpson said, "Letters offer some-

Aside from the obvious academic advantages, some pen pals become lasting friends.

Good sports

benefit equally from the experience. "They feel a greater sense of responsibility knowing they are role models. It's real hard to tell someone else to study without taking a look at your own habits," she explained. "Plus, not all of our athletes are

Senior Eddie Andrews, a cornerback on the Bulldog football team, has been helping students from Simpson's class for three years and claims that his current pen pal, Freddy Evans (12), helps him appreciate the little things in life.

Merchant Marine midshipmen have gulf role

Last fall, they were busy delivering bone-jarring tackles and hole-opening blocks for the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy football team or sliding tackles for the Mariner soccer team. Now, they're busy delivering supplies to the Persian Gulf as part of Operation Desert Storm.

Every year since the academy opened in 1942, midshipmen have been required to sail on a merchant vessel for 155 days during the sophomore and junior years as part of their education.

The year is split so that a midshipman sails either from January to June or July to December. Normally, the time is spent on U.S. flagged vessels sailing to all parts of the world.

But during times of war, such as during World War II and the Korea and Vietnam conflicts, many of the students received their training on ships taking supplies to the war zones.

Such is the case now, which makes the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy the only Federal Academy that currently has students employed in the Persian Gulf.

Since 95 percent of all supplies going to the troops in the Persian Gulf is shipped by cargo vessels, the need for skilled maritime personnel is being met by midshipmen from the academy.

The midshipmen are serving on vessels of the Ready Reserve Fleet (RRF) or the Military Sealift Command (MSC). The MSC is in charge of ocean transportation of military supplies.

A total of 65 midshipmen are receiving shipboard training on vessels that are sailing into the Persian Gulf, taking supplies to the allied troops. Included in this 65 are 19 Kings Point student-athletes (11 football players) who have left behind their equipment and picked up their gas masks and protective suits.

The midshipmen involved in supplying Operation Desert Storm routinely engage in attack drills, complete with the donning of protective suits and gas masks along with instructions on the use of Atropine injections.

Football and soccer gear is left behind as midshipmen pick up gas masks and protective suits while on ships carrying supplies to coalition troops in the gulf

An "ordinary" trip on a Persian Gulf supply ship begins when a Naval liaison officer greets the ship and directs the vessel through the war zone.

While in the zone, the ship is buzzed by British, French and U.S. warplanes as the crew of the cargo ship picks up Iraqi ships on incoming radio calls.

But the crew is not allowed to make outgoing calls. The ship is under radio silence for the duration of its trip into the Persian Gulf.

"The academy, since its inception nearly a half century ago, historically has sent its midshipmen to sea for shipboard training," said academy Supt. Rear Adm. Paul L. Krinsky. "This policy continued throughout the World War II, Korea and Vietnam sealifts. The Persian Gulf crisis is no exception."

According to Capt. Arthur Finley, who assigns the midshipmen to merchant ships as part of his duties in the academy's Shipboard Training Office, there is much enthusiasm among the undergraduates for Persian Gulf assignments.

"The breakout of the Ready Reserve Fleet has meant a dramatic increase in available shipboard training billets for our midshipmen," said Finley.

"The companies activating these vessels are anxious to have our students aboard. They need our help. Requests for midshipmen for Persian Gulf duty are given priority treatment."

The football and soccer players aren't the first Kings Point midshipmen to participate in supplying Operation Desert Storm.

The students who sailed from July to December 1990 also took part in the movement of supplies. A total of 65 midshipmen were assigned to ships bound for the Persian Gulf from July through December, including 15 student-athletes.

While most students at college basketball games are sporting signs that voice their support of the U.S. troops, many of the midshipmen sitting in the stands at a Kings Point basketball game can say that they really support the U.S. troops.

"I probably learn more from Freddy than he does from me—like how many things I take for granted," Andrews said. "These kids are at an age when things are tough, and there are always a lot of questions. Since Freddy's father lives in Detroit, I'd like to be here in case he needs one of those answers," he said.

Freddy said the writing program was fun and that he hoped to be a college football player like Andrews.

One student, Kyle Dvorak (12), was already excited to write her next letter describing the trip.

"It's fun to write someone and tell them about me and the things I like doing," she said. "I think it's really neat when they write back."

Football student-athlete Chuck Carswell said, "I never had a pen pal when I was young, although I needed a positive role model. This may not be the only way to achieve personal satisfaction, but through this program, I've gained a little brother."

Football player Bryant Gantt felt confident of his pen pal's improvement.

"I'm really encouraging Reginald (Cooper, 13) to get better grades. I think we're going to have a great influence on these kids—maybe more will get involved," he said.

Hilsman teacher Tad MacMillan, who helped organize the group, said the improvements in motivation are remarkable. "When they come to my social studies class, I can see a difference in their reading," he said.

Calhoun gives times for cause

University of Connecticut head men's basketball coach Jim Calhoun is lending his popularity to the fight against child abuse in a 30-second television spot entitled "They Can't Bounce Back."

In the public-service announcement, Calhoun bounces a basketball three times, each time listing a setback that children can overcome—a skinned knee, a bad report card or a school-yard insult.

On the fourth bounce, the basketball shatters like glass on the hardwood.

"But one thing they can't bounce back from is constant physical or emotional abuse from someone they love," Calhoun says.

He then urges viewers to report suspected child abuse to a toll-free hot-line run by the Connecticut Department of Children and Youth Services.

Benefit fund set for coach

Friends of former Northern Illinois University and University of Nevada, Las Vegas, assistant football coach Pete Peltzer have established the Pete Peltzer Benefit Fund at the First of America Bank in DeKalb, Illinois.

Peltzer, 39, suffered a massive coronary in January after jogging in Las Vegas and has been in a coma since. Early this month, he was transferred from Desert Springs Hospital in Las Vegas to Meadowbrook Neurological Hospital in Kansas City, Missouri.

All donations to the Peltzer Fund will go toward uninsured medical costs, according to Jerry Smith of Castle Communications in DeKalb.

The First of America Bank in DeKalb, Fourth and Lincoln Highway (telephone 815/758-7451), can provide information on the fund.

Kasavana, Michigan State University; David B. Keilitz, Central Michigan University, chair, and Doris R. Soladay, Syracuse University; Division I-AA—Irwin Cohen, Northeastern University; Division I-AAA—Craig Thompson, American South Conference; Division II—Richard A. Johanningsmeier, Washburn University of Topeka, and Chuck Lindemann, Humboldt State University; Division III—William E. Lide, Salisbury State University, and Jenepher P.

Conference No. 3
February 19, 1991

Shillingford, Bryn Mawr College. Also agreed to ask the following to serve as consultants to the Council subcommittee: Eugene F. Corrigan, Atlantic Coast Conference; James E. Delany, Big Ten Conference; Thomas C. Hansen, Pacific-10 Conference; Fred Jacoby, Southwest Athletic Conference; Charlotte West, Southern Illinois University; Carbondale, and Thomas E. Yeager, Colonial Athletic Association.

g. Authorized the executive director to select individuals to serve on the Special Committee to Review NCAA Enforcement Procedures, subject to final approval by the Administrative Committee.

h. Approved a letter to the Council from the Administrative Committee setting forth the major issues for 1991 and inviting the Council members' attention to those issues.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed the following to serve as chairs of the division championships committees: Division I, Eugene F. Corrigan, Atlantic Coast Conference; Division II, Jerry M. Hughes, Central Missouri State University; Division III, Rocco J. Carzo, Tufts University.

b. Appointed Phyllis L. Howlett, Big Ten Conference, as chair of the Special Advisory Committee for Women's Corporate Marketing.

c. Approved a recommendation to locate the 1993 annual Convention at Loews Anatole Hotel, Dallas, Texas, January 13-16, noting that negotiations with the previously approved site in New Orleans, Louisiana, had been mutually abandoned.

d. Approved a recommended renewal of the official championship soccer ball agreement with Brine, Inc., noting an increase of more than 300 percent in the value of the new three-year agreement.

e. Approved a request by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports to permit two Auburn University researchers to attend the committee's summer meeting to present the findings from their NCAA-funded study of drug-distribution systems in athletics programs.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(c) to permit student-athletes from 10 member institutions to participate in tryouts or competition involving national teams in field hockey, swimming and track.

(2) Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1-(d) and 14.8.6.2-(b) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in competition as part of the 1991 Bay State Games (Massachusetts).

(3) Granted six waivers per Bylaw 16.13 to permit institutions to provide incidental expenses in these situations:

(a) To student-athletes to attend funerals of members of the student-athletes' families.

(b) To a student-athletes' parents for lodging expenses associated with the student-athlete's hospitalization.

(c) To send flowers to the funeral of a relative of a student-athlete.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee:

Granted waivers for championships eligibility per Bylaw 31.2.1.3 to the University of California, Santa Barbara; Indiana University of Pennsylvania, and Centre College, which failed to submit sports-sponsorship forms by the specified deadline.

Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee:

Extra benefits

1. In-room, pay-per-view movies. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaws 16.12.2.1 (extra-benefit rule), 16.7.2 (team entertainment—film before home or away contest) and a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 5 of the minutes of the committee's February 1, 1990, conference) and determined that an institution may provide expenses for student-athletes to watch pay-per-view movies in the student-athletes' hotel rooms in conjunction with the student-athletes' competition; determined that limitations on the number of movies would be determined at the discretion of the member institution; recommended that the NCAA Legislative Review Committee clarify the provisions of 16.7.2 to indicate that although such entertainment must be in conjunction with the student-athlete's home or away-from-home contest, the entertainment is not limited to the night before the institution's contest (e.g., viewing pay-per-view movies may occur the day before a contest or during the day on an extended road trip when the institution has no scheduled competition the following day).

Contacts/transfer

2. Athletics department staff member contacting student-athletes of another institution that has been placed on probation. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 13.1.1.3 (contacting four-year college prospects), 14.9.2.2(c) (Council waiver of residence requirement) and a previous committee decision (reference: Item No. 27 of the minutes of the committee's August 22-23, 1990, meeting) and determined that an athletics department staff member may not contact a student-athlete who attends another four-year collegiate institution (that has been placed on probation with sanctions that would preclude the institution's team in that sport from participating in postseason competition during all of the remaining seasons of the student-athlete's eligibility) without first notifying the student's institution; further, determined that the student-athlete's institution may establish reasonable restrictions related to the contact (i.e., no visits during class time), provided such restrictions do not preclude the opportunity for the student-athlete to discuss transfer possibilities with the other institution.

Coaching limitations

3. Use of outside consultants. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 11.6.1.1.1 (definition of countable coach) and two previous staff interpretations (reference: Item No. 1-c of the minutes of the staff's December 12, 1990, meeting and Item No. 1-b of the minutes of the staff's May 23, 1990, meeting) and determined that a member institution may not utilize a consultant from outside the institution (e.g., former professional athlete, skill instruction specialist) who is involved in any on-court or on-field activities or instruction on an individual or team basis without counting the consultant in the coaching limitations in that sport.

Individual eligibility

4. Student-athletes called to active military service in the Persian Gulf. Reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 14.9.2.1 (waiver of general eligibility requirements) and determined that the Persian Gulf crisis would be considered a national emergency for purposes of the application of the waiver provisions of 14.9; accordingly, student-athletes called to active military service could apply to the Council for a waiver of any of the eligibility requirements (e.g., seasons of competition, satisfactory progress).

5. Recruiting materials. Reviewed the following issues related to the adoption of 1991 Convention Proposal No. 23 (effective August 1, 1991) and determined that:

a. Regular (as opposed to specialized) cards restrict a member institution to providing to a prospective student-athlete only postcards issued by the U.S. Postal Service (i.e., blank cards) or institutional note cards that conform to the restrictions governing institutional stationery (e.g., in Division I, one color of print, single university logo); further, confirmed that a member institution may not provide greeting cards (e.g., birthday cards, holiday cards) to a prospect.

b. The limit of one color of printing on institutional stationery would be applicable to conference stationery.

c. The one-color-of-printing limitation on institutional stationery would not be applicable to institutional staff members' business cards.

d. A member institution may utilize a different color of typing or writing than the print on the stationery; however, the stationery (absent any typing or writing) is limited to one color of print; further, such a restriction is applicable to institutional press releases.

e. A member institution's athletics department may utilize more than one university logo (e.g., one for football, one for basketball), provided not more than one logo appears on any one piece of stationery.

f. The restriction prohibiting photographs of enrolled student-athletes or any other promotional material on institutional stationery would preclude a member institution from highlighting on the stationery a specific team's accomplishments (e.g., national championships, conference championships, bowl games).

g. Member institutions that have purchased or printed stationery prior to January 10, 1991, with more than one color of printing may continue to use such stationery subsequent to August 1, 1991, until the supply is exhausted (but not later than August 1, 1992), provided all recruiting correspondence to prospective student-athletes meets the one-color restriction;

h. The restriction that limits a member institution to producing one generic all-sports recruiting videotape per year with a maximum of three minutes related to each sport would not prohibit an institution from producing a separate highlight film; also, confirmed that a member institution may not send or leave a highlight film with a prospect.

i. A member institution may produce only one generic all-sports recruiting videotape per year that covers both the men's and women's programs.

j. Institutional recruiting questionnaires are limited to one color of printing on the questionnaire.

Satisfactory progress

6. Nonrecruited, nonparticipant exception.

Reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 14.5.4-(c) (nonrecruited, nonparticipant exception) and 17.02.11 (definition of practice) and determined that a nonrecruited student-athlete who participates in limited preseason tryouts (and fails to make the institution's team) during the previous academic year may not later utilize the nonrecruited, nonparticipant exception to the satisfactory-progress rule if the student-athlete tries out and makes the institution's team in the subsequent academic year; recommended that the Council consider proposing legislation to permit an exception to 14.5.4-(c) when the student-athlete participates only in limited preseason tryouts.

Playing and practice seasons

7. 1991 Convention Proposal No. 38—limitations on maximum number of contests, preseason practice and first contest dates. Reviewed a previous Council-approved interpretation (reference: Item No. 15-1 of the Council's January 5, 1991, review of 1991 Convention proposals) and agreed that an institution may not receive a waiver of the September 7 starting date for practice and competition and/or a waiver of the maximum number of contests or dates of competition in a sport, unless that member institution was involved in a contractual relationship for a contest prior to that date. The institution may submit such written contracts to the NCAA for review by the Association's legal counsel in order to determine whether the institution may be permitted to participate in the contest. Such contracts must have been signed prior to November 15, 1990. In a related matter, determined that the provisions of Item No. 15-1 (from the Council's January 5, 1991, review of Convention proposals) also would be applicable to a member institution's traditional playing segment (in sports other than football and women's volleyball); finally, determined that a member institution that conducts its traditional segment in the fall and receives a waiver of the September 7 starting date would be entitled to 21 practice opportunities prior to September 7 (as opposed to the date on which the first contest is scheduled).

Field hockey playing-day changes sought

The NCAA Field Hockey Committee, which met February 19-22 in Marco Island, Florida, will make recommendations to the Executive Committee regarding playing days for preliminary rounds of both the Divisions I and III championships.

The Division I subcommittee will recommend that first-round games be played on Thursday and second-round games be played on Sunday. Last year, competing teams had a choice of two days to play games in each of those rounds.

The Division III subcommittee will recommend that regional games be played on Saturday and Sunday. These games have been played on Friday and Saturday.

Other recommendations by the Division I subcommittee include automatic qualification for the Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference and the North Atlantic Conference, and the provision of air fare for more officials.

This subcommittee also is making a recommendation regarding a scheduling requirement. At least one team from each of six regions receives a berth in the championship. The subcommittee is recommending that 20 percent of an institution's schedule must be played against teams in its region in order for the institution to be eligible to receive the regional berth.

The Division III subcommittee will recommend an increase in the squad size from 18 to 19 and realignment of the states of Kentucky and Tennessee from the South to the Great Lakes region.

This subcommittee also will recommend that the Division III poll be published weekly instead of every other week. The 1991 poll will start a week later than last year.

The full committee will request funds to revise the computer program that is used in determining power ratings.

All regular-season games that remain tied at the end of the sudden-death overtime period will be counted as a tie for selection purposes, even if a winner was determined because the game was part of a tournament.

The committee approved one new rules modification. Players in the bench area and all spectators must remain a minimum of five yards from the sideline.

Officials will be required to wear a black-and-white striped shirt and black skirts or slacks for tournament games.

The Penn Monto Elite Turf field hockey ball (white) will be used for NCAA tournament games. In case of snow, the Penn Monto fluorescent orange ball will be used.

School will retain four programs

Ten days after cutting four sports, College of William and Mary President Paul R. Verkuil said February 22 the college would reinstate women's basketball, men's wrestling and men's and women's swimming.

He said the reaction from students, alumni and fans opposing the cuts, along with new funding for the sports, led to the decision.

William and Mary spokesman

William N. Walker said Verkuil made the decision after meeting with athletics officials. He said contributions and future financial commitments saved the sports but would not elaborate on sources of the money.

The college had eliminated the sports in a cost-cutting move to begin the next school year.

Media-access issues reviewed

The NCAA Communications Committee has voted to include in its annual media-guidelines pamphlet a suggestion that locker-room access rules be established on each campus before the season starts. The committee also reaffirmed the importance of equal access.

The actions were taken at the committee's semiannual meeting February 19 in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee also:

• Suggested that the Guide to Printed Recruiting Materials continue to be published by the national office, and that guidelines for videos should be included.

• Voted to recommend to the Divisions II and III Championships Committees a change in the radio rights fees structure. Currently, a radio station broadcasting a Division II or III championship is charged $50 per contest.

With the change, a radio station would instead pay one $50 fee for all contests that it broadcasts. The committee believes that the current policy is disadvantageous to a radio station in two ways: 1) Because the station must pay a rights fee, and 2) because of the NCAA postgame media policy, under which a station cannot air an interview show with the head coach immediately after the game, depriving it of an important source of revenue.

• Encouraged and endorsed the NCAA's participation in the "Be a Sport Campaign." The campaign is a movement by four amateur sports organizations and four professional sports leagues to discuss ways to improve sportsmanship at all levels of athletics.

Hockey coaches suspended

The Central Collegiate Hockey Association has suspended the head coaches of the University of Michigan and Michigan State University one game each because of their teams' 15-minute brawl February 16 at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

The suspensions of Michigan coach Red Berenson and Ron Mason of Michigan State were announced by CCHA Commissioner Bill Beagan after a hearing February 20. He said his action was unprecedented in the CCHA.

He said he held the coaches responsible for their players' conduct in Michigan State's 6-2 victory over Michigan. Eleven players were ejected after 15 minutes of fighting. All were suspended, two for three games.

Beagan said the brawl was a "black eye" for college hockey and termed the incident "ugly and embarrassing" to the CCHA.

"We just don't want to develop a gunslinger mentality," he said. "If these things are allowed to manifest themselves without being nipped, I think it's going to get worse. We don't allow fighting, unlike the NHL."

Three major fights broke out among players while both teams were leaving the ice following the first period of the game. It took 10 minutes for game officials to break up the fights.

"The burden of responsibility for the conduct of players falls squarely on the shoulders of our coaches, and these suspensions are a signal to everyone that we will not tolerate further incidents of this character," Beagan said.

National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, Inc.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Organization:

Founded in 1947, The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame is dedicated to mobilizing the constructive forces of amateur football, at all levels, for the benefit of society as a whole.

The Foundation's purpose is to encourage and preserve the values of performance, scholarship and citizenship in America's youth.

The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame helps to bring together all of the organized groups that play, coach, administer, support and report amateur football. It seeks to establish the true concept of the game as an amateur sport, and to gain recognition of the important role it plays in the preservation and advancement of the American way of life.

Today, The National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame — with more than 8,000 members in over 75 chapters throughout the United States — conducts three major programs that make significant contributions in achieving these lofty goals:

1. Selection and induction of members into the College Football Hall of Fame.
2. Presentation of the National Football Foundation Scholar Athlete Awards.
3. Operation of the College Football Hall of Fame Museum, currently located in Kings Island, Ohio.

The Position:

The National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame, Inc., invites applications and nominations for the position of Executive Director. Salary level is negotiable based on qualifications and experience and will be competitive.

Responsibilities:

The Executive Director reports to the Chairman and President of the Foundation Board of Directors and is responsible for administering all programs, personnel, budgets and activities of the organization, to include the College Hall of Fame.

Qualifications:

Preference will be given to candidates who possess the following:

- A personal background in and appreciation of the role of amateur football in American society.
- Demonstrated excellence in a senior level management position requiring the generation and implementation of a strategic plan for organizational programs, fiscal management, fund-raising and public relations.
- Extensive knowledge of the current issues involving amateur football and the close working relationships of the national organizations which oversee the sport.
- Demonstrated leadership and communication skills to function effectively in national forums of decision making as a strong advocate for the ideals of amateur football.
- Excellent speaking and writing skills.
- A bachelor's degree as a minimum, an advanced degree is preferred.

Application:

Nominations and applications should be sent to:

Director of Intercollegiate Athletics University of the District of Columbia

The University of the District of Columbia, a fully-accredited, open admission institution, offers residents of the nation's capital access to affordable higher education opportunities within a multi-cultural, multi-ethnic campus community that accurately reflects the population of Washington, D.C. UDC, in its 14th year of operation as a comprehensive postsecondary institution, has a strong faculty and state-of-the-art facilities and places major emphasis on developmental education programs that bolster the efforts of highly-motivated students.

UDC invites applications and nominations for the contract position of director of intercollegiate athletics at a salary range of $49,715 to $63,050 per year. The athletics director, accountable directly to the Office of the President, is expected to plan, develop, organize and implement an effective intercollegiate sports program at the university, work closely with the Athletics Advisory Board in developing athletic policy and programs; recruit and provide leadership for competent professional and other staff members in the execution of athletic program policy; prepare and administer an annual operating budget; administer complex athletic eligibility criteria and assure their uniform application in accordance with the letter and spirit of regulations promulgated by the university's Board of Trustees, the National Collegiate Athletic Association, and the UDC Department of Intercollegiate Athletics; maintain effective liaison with Health, Physical Education and Leisure Studies academic programs; and provide support for and participate in the instructional phase of the physical education program.

Qualifications Required: At least six years of experience is required, including a minimum of three years as athletic director or tenure in a comparable position of preparation for athletic program leadership. A thorough knowledge of NCAA regulations is a must. Significant association with an athletic program with the following characteristics will be considered a plus: (1) High rate of degree completion by athletes and other graduates; (2) competitive performance by athletic teams; and (3) compliance with NCAA regulations. Also required are three years of general experience which will document the candidates' knowledge of principles of leadership, organization, human relations, governance, fiscal management and general management. A doctoral degree is preferred, but not required.

The Residency Preference Amendment Act, D.C. Law 7-203, provides that applicants who are bona fide residents of the District of Columbia may claim a residency preference at the time of application, and such a preference in fact will be awarded when the applicants submit proof of District residency. Any applicant certified under the law must maintain District residency for a minimum of five consecutive years following the date on his/her appointment to the position.

To apply for this position, submit a resume prior to the applications deadline, which is April 29, 1991, to:

Some NCAA members help Russians with football

NCAA member institutions have been contributing toward the improvement of the Soviet Union's offensive and defensive capabilities — on the football field.

"We desperately need equipment — used helmets, shoulder pads, cleats and so on," said Igor Tatourian, president of the fledgling USSR Football Federation. "Our long-term goals are to become competitive in the European Football League and, after that, in the National Football League. As you know, when we get involved in a sport, we do not like to be second best."

Although Soviet football has been around only three years, a six-team national league has been formed, and the Soviets have a team in the seven-year-old EFL, which includes teams in 15 countries.

A number of American coaches have conducted clinics in the USSR, and Harvard University alumni Tim Perry and Mark Bianchi are in Russia assisting with the game's development.

All of this information comes from Sports Marketing, a Connecticut-based company that is a division of a diversified company formed by former football star Andy Robustelli. The company handles North American marketing for the EFL and is the worldwide promotional and training representative for the league.

According to Sports Marketing officials, a number of NCAA members already have donated football gear to the Russians, including Brigham Young University; Dartmouth College; the University of Florida; the University of Miami (Florida); the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

Other institutions interested in the program should contact Sports Marketing at 460 Summer Street, Stamford, Connecticut 06901 (telephone 203/352-0500).

Has any college wrestler ever needed less than six seconds to pin an opponent?

Bo Smolka, Bucknell University sports information director, wants to know. Bucknell 167-pounder Tom Marchetti recently pinned an opponent in six seconds, and Smolka has found nothing to suggest that a record for the quickest pin exists.

Robert Stark has been on the move since he was 10 days old. Currently, he resides in Athens, Ohio, where he plays varsity basketball for Ohio University.

The son of an air-traffic controller, Stark has lived in Brazil, California, Colorado, Guam, Hawaii, Panama, Puerto Rico, South Carolina and Utah.

King's College (Pennsylvania) officials held American Flag Night recently when the men's basketball team hosted Delaware Valley College.

Fans who brought and displayed American flags were admitted to the game free.

Athletics trainers rarely get much attention during sporting events, but Hunter College trainer Chris Bartek is an exception. A graduate of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, and a professional musician, Bartek has sung the national anthem and America the Beautiful at several home games this season.

Hunter assistant sports information director Steve Kahn reports that Bartek also has performed at several New York City clubs.

Three sets of twins can be found on this season's Florida Southern College baseball roster — an increase of one over last year.

Moccasin relief pitchers Bill and John Buckley graduated last spring, leaving the Frick brothers, outfielder Chad and catcher Tod.

So, head coach Chuck Anderson recruited Steve Marchitto, whose twin, Jeff, already was on the team. And he added twin pitchers Chris and John DeClue.

Glassboro State College's field hockey team raised almost $1,100 last season simply by scoring goals. Donors were asked to pledge any dollar amount for every goal the Profs scored last fall. They scored 46.

Proceeds from the fund-raiser were split between the field hockey program and the Gloucester County (New Jersey) unit of the American Cancer Society.

Northwestern College's (Wisconsin) "Hoop Choir" has assembled for the third consecutive year to sing on campus. Comprising men's basketball team members and auxiliary staff, the choir performed an arrangement of the national anthem written for four-part male chorus at the 33rd annual Lutheran Invitational, a high-school tournament hosted by the school.

More Report Cards: Eighty-five Manhattan College student-athletes are maintaining cumulative grade-point averages of at least 3.000, according to school officials. During the fall semester, 93 Manhattan student-athletes earned GPAs of at least 3.000.

King's College (Pennsylvania) men's tennis coach Bill Eydlar soon will go to work producing the school's 10th straight winning season, but his players already have been working on some impressive numbers this school year. The team's combined GPA for the fall semester was 3.300, led by team captains Jerry Benz (3.800 in premedicine) and Scott Rauscher (3.500 in English).

Seven student-athletes with 4.000s were among the 80 at Missouri Southern State College who were named to the sports information director's honor roll for the fall semester. All of those honored earned GPAs of at least 3.000.

At the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, 92 of the school's 173 women student-athletes earned fall-quarter GPAs of at least 3.000 — including 17 who earned 4.000s.

Colorado School of Mines officials have announced that 95 of the 281 Orediggers receiving athletically related financial aid earned GPAs of at least 3.000 last fall. Notably, 20 of them were football players.

Dutch athlete finds NCAA swim competition to her liking

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

Kirsten Silvester is stuck between a snow drift and a cold place. And she loves every minute of it.

Silvester is a sophomore at Northern Michigan University, where she swims on the Wildcats' swimming team. A year ago at the Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships, Silvester claimed four first-place finishes, leading the Wildcats to a fifth-place team finish.

But the trip from Marquette, in the upper peninsula of Michigan, to Buffalo, New York, for the nationals was nothing but a quick run to the corner store for Silvester. Silvester came to Northern Michigan from Odijk, The Netherlands. "Nobody has heard of it," Silvester said. "It's near Utrecht."

Her specialty is the freestyle, although she has turned in the best Division II time in the 400-yard individual medley this year. "We've been swimming her in a lot of different events," said Anne James, the swimming coach at Northern Michigan. "Her best is the 500-yard freestyle. She has been good at the 200 and is getting better at the 1,650-yard freestyle. She is so competitive, she will excel at whatever she tries."

As a freshman at last year's championships, Silvester made a splash on the Division II scene with victories in the 200-, 500- and 1,650-yard freestyle events and the 200-yard butterfly. She earned swimmer-of-the-meet honors for her efforts.

There is quite a difference between Silvester's winning times and those of Division I (and Olympic) champion Janet Evans of Stanford University. But James says that Silvester is steadily improving and has a chance to make the Olympics in 1992, especially if the 1,500-meter freestyle is added as an Olympic event. She already has swum 11 seconds faster this season than her winning time in the 1,650.

But Silvester doesn't just excel in the pool. She earned a 3.760 grade-point average in math in the first semester this year and her cumulative GPA through three semesters is 3.400. Her goal is to earn academic all-America recognition as well as to win all-America honors in the pool.

"She only accepts the best of herself," James said. "She loves a challenge. If there is pressure — great. You can't put a better person in as your anchor. If there is a way to win, she will win."

Silvester experienced winning while competing on the junior national team for The Netherlands. She had placed in the top three in Europe in several events, and made the national team and competed in the European championships the year before arriving at Northern Michigan.

So what is she doing in Marquette, Michigan? "She was somebody we started recruiting about three years before she came," James said. James had a good friend in The Netherlands from her days as a coach at Texas Tech University. That friend made connections with the Dutch national team, and Silvester became interested and contacted James.

"A lot of swimmers in my country see that you don't have to be world-class to take advantage of the opportunities in America," Silvester said. "Over the years, we learned that there are lower-ranked teams that would give us a chance."

"A lot of my people come to the United States for swimming. At home, if you go to college, you either have to quit swimming or just do it for fun. Over here, you can take classes and practice and set your schedule that way. When I came, I just wanted to be an exchange student for a year. After a couple of months, I knew I wanted to finish my degree. You can't swim forever."

How long she swims depends on her development in the sprints, she says. "I came in as a distance swimmer. Coach started swimming me in the 100- and 200-yard freestyle events. I am not as good yet in the short races. I'm starting to not mind it but I shouldn't say that too loud."

James probably knows that Silvester is willing to adapt. "This is a totally different atmosphere than what Kirsten was used to in The Netherlands," James said. "We push the team. She was used to swimming for herself. She has really adapted. She's a great team swimmer."

Silvester likely will be making waves in Division II pools for the next few years. And she is happy to be doing it for James. "We have a great coach. We all love her," she said, and then, chuckling, added, "I'm really glad I got stuck here."

Quite likely, so is James.
