Members can qualify for drug-education grants

The NCAA Foundation has announced that funds are available for the NCAA's alcohol-education program.

The NCAA will award its first grants in August to member institutions and conferences for the development of campus alcohol-education programs.

Programs selected for funding will be built around a common theme "Choices"—and will use the high visibility of athletics as the means for promoting alcohol awareness and education on campuses.

The grants, ranging from $1,000 to $15,000 or more where justified, will be the first funded under an alcohol-education program underwritten by Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. Last year, the company announced it would donate $2.5 million to the NCAA Foundation for the program, specifying only that the funds be used for alcohol education under guidelines to be established by the NCAA and the Foundation.

Proposals for grants now are being solicited by the NCAA, and applications for the August grants are due June 30. Guidelines for preparing proposals are being mailed to chief executive officers at member institutions and to commissioners of member conferences.

Additional grants will be awarded in March 1992; applications for those grants will be due December 30, 1991.

The purpose of the grant program is to encourage member institutions to develop campus-wide education programs around athletics events, activities and/or personalities, said Betty Norrie, program coordinator for the Foundation.

"There are several alcohol-education programs available for implementation," Norrie said. "Many of these programs are excellent and successful. However, a national task force concluded that through the high visibility of athletics, powerful educational programs could be developed on our campuses."

"Because the NCAA is in the business of athletics, we feel that we should create these educational programs around athletics, and athletics events."

In addition to tying the programs to athletics, institutions should emphasize the choices that college students must make about alcohol use, Norrie said.

Proposed programs should be designed to emphasize the reality that students must make hard deci-

Convention attendance up 25 percent in two years

Attendance at the NCAA's annual Convention has increased nearly 25 percent in the past two years, with a record 2,366 in attendance at the 1991 Convention in Nashville.

The annual audit of Convention registrations shows a jump of 195 from the 1990 figure of 2,171 in Dallas—and the Dallas figure was 275 over the previous high mark of 1,896 in 1989 in San Francisco. So the total has increased by 470, or 24.8 percent, in the past two years.

Every Division I member institution except two (294 of 296) was registered in Nashville. In all, 333 of the 346 Division I institutions and conferences were there. Eleven Division I-AAA conferences—most of them nonvoting—were absent.

However, Division I was the only slice of the Convention attendance records that did not see a new high established. Last year, 334 Division I members were in Dallas, or 97.1 percent of that division's membership. This year, the 333 in attendance represented 96.2 percent.

Meanwhile, Division II had 189 of its 209 institutions and 18 of its 22 conferences in Nashville, while Division III brought 252 of its 323 institutions and 24 of its 37 conferences.

Other than the Division I marks (total and percentage), every NCAA Convention attendance record was broken in Nashville.

The records

Convention attendance records were established as follows:

• Total registrants 2,366. Old record: 2,171, Dallas, 1990.

• Organizations represented—1,004. Old record: 959 in 1990.

• Registered voters 811. Old record: 769 in 1990. The percentage of registered voters, 89.2, also is a record, bettering the 87.3 percent set in 1990.

• Active member institutions—735. Old record: 696 in 1990.

• Division II members—207. Old record: 191 in 1990. Division II percentage: 89.6, better than the 88.8 posted a year ago.

• Division III members—276. Old record: 251 in 1990. Division III percentage: 76.7, better than the 71.7 a year ago.

• Chief executive officers 236, as reported in an earlier issue of the News. Old record: 199, special Convention in June 1985 in New Orleans. The number of CEOs preregistered this year also was a record at 267.

Other data

The total registration of 2,366 included 1,944 from active member institutions, 133 from member conferences, 29 representing affiliated member organizations, 13 from those holding corresponding membership, 111 registered as visitors and 136 news media representatives.

Only one NCAA district had perfect attendance at Nashville. District 7—the smallest of the eight sions about alcohol use. For students under 21, programs should unequivocally affirm the importance of complying with the law; for those over 21, programs should be oriented toward helping students make informed choices.

Schools and conferences will be encouraged to design programs that best suit a campus and its student body, or a particular conference, Norrie said.

"If the educational program itself is determined by the institution, this will offer every opportunity for creativity and diversity and will enable the institution to complement or enhance an existing educational effort."

Eventually, the most successful programs will be selected for nationwide use.
"After two or three years, when one or more programs have been implemented and proven popular and effective, a national program will be developed that can be implemented throughout the membership," Norrie said.

Goals for the NCAA alcohol-education effort were established in a recent, one-day brainstorming session involving an alcohol-education task force that included students, educators, counselors and campus student-life officials, as well as NCAA and Foundation staff members. Leading the discussion were two representatives of Health Promotion Resources of St. Paul, Minnesota—Tom Griffin, director, and Roger Swendsen, training and program-development specialist.
Among the task force participants were Tommy Brown, a recent University of Mississippi graduate; Edward H. Hammond, president of Fort Hays State University; Gail S. Hanson, former dean of students at George Washington University; John Kaestner, manager of consumer awareness and education at Anheuser-Busch; Shane Murphy, head of sports psychology for the U.S. Olympic Committee; Tim Poole, after-care coordinator for the Betty Ford Center; Virginia Stahr, a former intern in the NCAA championships and communications departments; Sybil Todd, associate dean of students at the University of Virginia; Dr. John Turco, director of student health services at the University of New Hampshire, and Jaslene Williams, alcohol and drug specialist/health educator with the University Health Service at Columbia University.

Executive regulations

Editor's Note: The NCAA Executive Committee has adopted executive regulations consistent with the provisions of NCAA Constitution 5.2.3.2.1. Executive regulations may be amended at any annual or special Convention by a majority vote of the delegates present and voting in accordance with the procedures set forth in Constitution 5.2.3.2. Publication in this column of executive regulations adopted or revised by the Executive Committee constitutes official notice to the membership. Bold type indicates new wording; italicized type indicates wording removed.

Executive Regulation 31.3.4.3 was revised as follows:
31.3.4.3.1.1 A conference that previously was eligible for automatic qualification and that no longer meets the continuity-of-membership requirement per Bylaw 31.3.4.3(a) is excepted from that requirement following a one-year waiting period, provided the conference:
(a) Is composed during the waiting period and thereafter of at least six institutions that have been members of Division I during the eight preceding academic years;
(b) Retains during the waiting period and thereafter at least three of its members that have held continuous membership in the conference for the five preceding academic years, and
(c) Complies during the one-year waiting period and thereafter with the requirements set forth in Bylaw 18.5.1.1.

TV coverage of women's play-off to be expanded

CBS Sports' coverage of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship will, for the first time, include both Women's Final Four semifinal games March 30 from Lakefront Arena in New Orleans, as well as the championship game March 31.
Also for the first time, the network will broadcast an NCAA Division I Women's Final Four preview show March 30.
"The addition of three regular-season games, as well as both Final Four tournament games, shows our dedication to bringing women's college basketball to a new level," said Brian Fielding, director of programming for CBS Sports.

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than March 22.
Division III Women's Volleyball Committee: Replacement for Joan Chamberlain, Messiah College, resigned. Appointee must be a representative of Division III Women's Volleyball, preferably from the East Division III women's volleyball region.

Nevada due-process bill advances

A bill that would require the NCAA to provide due process to coaches and athletes has won unanimous approval in the Nevada Assembly Government Affairs Committee.

The bill, sent March 1 to the Assembly floor, was endorsed by the panel despite a recent warning by NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz that states passing such laws could find their universities being unable to comply with the obligations of membership in the Association.

The measure was backed by supporters of University of Nevada, Las Vegas, head men's basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian.

Government affairs chair Val Garner, D-Las Vegas, said the bill will work if other states also enact such legislation. Several states have such proposals, most of them with schools placed on probation by the NCAA.

The NCAA has always maintained that it provides adequate due process in its enforcement process.

The bill was sponsored chiefly by Assemblyman Jim McGaughey, R-Las Vegas, who said it's time lawmakers "stand up and tell the NCAA, 'You're not going to intimidate us.'"

McGaughey said the bill was amended to include the normal legal standard for due process and to cover any future disputes with the NCAA. That would leave out the pending flap between the Association and Tarkanian.

Tarkanian engaged in a 13-year legal battle with the NCAA over the due-process issue after Nevada-Las Vegas was penalized in 1977 for various violations. Nevada-Las Vegas served two years' probation and other penalties, including two years of sanctions prohibiting postseason play. In addition, the university was asked to show cause why Tarkanian should not be suspended for two years. But he obtained a state-court injunction and continued coaching.

The case went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled that the NCAA was a private entity and like any other private organization is not a state actor subject to suit for alleged violations of the due-process clause of the U.S. Constitution. The same ruling said state government agencies did have to provide due process.

The NCAA ruled last year that the Rebels could not defend their national title as a final resolution of the Tarkanian penalty. But the penalty was delayed to let the Rebels compete this year. The team is barred from television or postseason play-offs in the 1991-92 season.

Nevada-Las Vegas also faces new NCAA charges. The school is scheduled to answer those charges by May 1.

The other average delegations by division and subdivision: Division I-AA, 3.55; Division I-AAA, 2.99; overall Division I, 3.86; Division II, 2.26, and Division III, 1.52. Every division and subdivision average was higher than a year earlier.

Finally, one other Convention record was not broken. That is the total number of legislative proposals considered by the Convention. Counting all amendments-to-amendments and other proposals, both in the Convention publications and distributed at the Convention itself, the 1991 total was 189.

That was 21 more than in 1990, despite the fact that the Association's new legislative calendar was intended in part to reduce the amount of legislation coming forward. The total of 189, in fact, was the fifth highest of all time, trailing these: 257 in 1976 (St. Louis), 205 in 1977 (Miami Beach), 201 in 1984 (Dallas) and 200 in 1988 (Nashville).

Member institutions are sending more and more delegates to the annual Convention. The average per institution attending in Nashville was 2.65 delegates, up from 2.49 per institution a year earlier in Dallas and 2.30 per institution in 1989 in San Francisco.

Division I-A has the highest average per institution and is rapidly approaching five per school. The I-A average in Nashville was 4.94.

Comment

In a no-win situation, committee's record speaks for itself

By John Hendel

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee's basic charge is simple and guaranteed to be infuriating.

The committee meets for three days every March (to select the field for the Division I Men's Basketball Championship) with the intent to "select the 34 best teams in the country after the 30 automatic qualifiers are identified." This year, it meets March 8-10, with the teams and pairings announced in a program televised by CBS at 5:30 p.m. Eastern time March 10.

There is rarely any argument about the teams that are picked. The griping comes over the ones that are missed.

That, said James E. Delany, committee chair, is the most difficult part of the job. It might make a nice title for a country and western song: "You always remember the ones you forget."

"If you make a mistake in the seeding, or you make a mistake in the bracketing, at least that team's in the tournament and has an opportunity to play further," said Delany, who is commissioner of the Big Ten Conference. "The opportunity is there. Some people complain about where they're selected or seeded, but the fact is that they're in there."

"There are teams that are excluded that could make a reasonable case on why they should be in. I've never disputed that. No one disputes the fact that on those last few selections there are teams that look an awful lot like each other."

Delany and the eight other members of the committee will literally lock themselves into a suite of rooms on the 40th floor of the Hyatt Regency Crown Center in Kansas City, Missouri for three days and emerge with the bracket for the 53rd NCAA tournament.

And, even with several computer ratings services, coaches' suggestions — both sought and unsolicited — and enough other computer-generated data to choke a Univac, Delany admits that another committee could come up with several different teams, other than the 30 that receive automatic qualification.

The simplest answer seems to be to set criteria for tournament qualification. But the committee is hesitant to leave the realm of the abstract for more cut-in-stone methods.

"We've had a lot of discussion and debate over the years within the committee about sharing the information," Delany said. "One of the problems is that occasionally the computer will spit something out that doesn't make a lot of sense."

That is where the committee runs into the law of statistics that states that the smaller a sample group, the higher the possibility for error. The same principle makes the computer programs very good at ranking conferences, because of the hundreds of games considered, and horrid at ranking football teams, because of the relatively few games.

Delany said, "That's why we just want to use it in an advisory sense and not in a binding sense."

That is why the NCAA has no desire to go public with its own version of the computer rankings.

"Whenever you put NCAA on something—whether it's NCAA infractions committee or NCAA play-off or NCAA this or that, people tend to label it with a certain seriousness, a certain bindingness," he said.

"I think then a lot (more) of our selections would probably be second-guessed, third-guessed, fourth-guessed on the basis of: This is your information, why aren't you held to it?

... the committee actually does a good job. The tournament has grown into one of the biggest events in the country because of the level of play and competition....

"Our point is that we want to look at all the information that's available and then make a professional judgment because of all the factors."

And, despite occasional cries in the dark berating particular omissions, the committee actually does a good job. The tournament has grown into one of the biggest events in the country because of the level of play and competition more than anything else.

Even the specter of an overwhelming talent such as the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, doesn't appear to dampen Delany's enthusiasm for this year's bracketing process and the tournament in general.

"I would say that Nevada-Las Vegas has proven to be a fantastic team over time. They (Runnin' Rebels) were the national (tournament) champion of last year, and it's obvious by their performance (this season) that they are really a superior, superior team," Delany said.

"But as far as a distortion is concerned, I don't see that that necessarily follows. If they continue their performance over the remainder of the year, they're obviously going to be a very strong candidate for the No. 1 seed."

More needs to be said about what is right with athletics

Kenneth J. Weller, president emeritus Central College (Iowa)

Des Moines Sunday Register

"Because of the problems that have arisen in recent years, there are those who contend academics and athletics don't mix. But without question, together they are better than either one is separately."

"There is not enough defense of what is right about college athletics on the Division I level and of what value it serves. The reality is that this country cares deeply about sports, maybe too deeply. It is part of the national culture and character."

Hunter R. Rawlings III, president University of Iowa

The Des Moines Register

"If we can make enough progress on raising the standards for entrance so we don't have to deal with that problem we talked about earlier, the very poorly prepared student, then I think it (declaring freshmen ineligible for varsity competition) won't be necessary."

"I think the message has gone out to the high schools. These kids have to be well-prepared academically or they can't come in to play. I do think something is necessary for poorly prepared students, and that's something that we will put in."

Bill Bradshaw, director of athletics DePaul University

Chicago Tribune

"... America's college basketball and football programs are free farm systems for the NBA and NFL. We have to support all our other sports with the two sports that generate revenue—in our case at DePaul, it's only basketball—yet, the two professional sports leagues that use us as training grounds don't give us anything."

"... consider the investment colleges make in student-athletes. And consider, too, how much more difficult it is to keep these players in school. Salaries in the NBA and NFL continue to escalate. These kids see those numbers, and they feel intense pressure to try the pros before they finish their senior year, and who can blame them?"

"(Money from the NBA and NFL would go) to a scholarship pool for student-athletes who leave early to turn pro and want to earn their degrees later. To drug-awareness programs. To career counseling. Any number of ways.... The college system is strapped and striving to reform. Here come the NBA and NFL, riding in on white horses to help us make things better."

"The pros would stonewall it (plan to reimburse college programs). Too much merit. Too logical. I'd get laughed off the podium, if I ever got to the podium. But we can dream, can't we?"

"They (prospective recruits) know we want to have Division I programs, and they know we ought to try to win as much as we can."

"Recruiting here is unique. We have to have a 'special' kid who has interest in wanting to accept all that we give him. That includes obligation, commitment and discipline. We're not going to sell a kid on coming to the Naval Academy to play a sport."

"We see if there's an interest and, if there is, we develop that interest. It's more difficult in a lot of ways, primarily because there aren't as many out there to pick from. We have to throw more seed on the ground to get the response we want."

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

On Sunday, February 17, head coach Roy Williams and the Kansas Jayhawk basketball team hosted a clinic for more than 130 Special Olympians of Kansas Special Olympics.

The program, now in its eighth year, matched Special Olympians and squad members as they participated in a series of skill stations, learning the techniques of fitness and conditioning, shooting, dribbling, and free-throw shooting.

The station drills were followed by the squad's demonstrating a variety of drills. This was followed by scrimmages with teams consisting of KU players and Special Olympians, followed by an autograph session.

Both the Special Olympians and squad members left feeling better about themselves and proud of their accomplishments.

Law targets financial aid limits

Gov. Ben Nelson signed a bill March 2 to prohibit college athletics associations from imposing rules on Nebraska colleges or universities that limit how much financial aid student-athletes can receive.

The bill was passed by the legislature after lawmakers apparently dismissed fears that the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, would be unable to comply with financial aid requirements enacted by the membership of the NCAA.

"It is clear from the debate on this measure that a substantial majority of the representatives of the people of Nebraska want to send a strong message on behalf of students to the NCAA through enactment of this legislation," Nelson said in a letter accompanying the signed bill.

"By signing the bill into law, I have joined them in the fervent hope that this voluntary national organization will do the right thing and allow both needy and academically talented young Americans to draw all the student aid for which they qualify," the letter to the legislature said.

The bill removes caps on how much aid student-athletes can receive from other grants if they accept athletics scholarships. It also prevents state schools from withholding portions of scholarships because of athletics association rules, the Associated Press reported.

Crew chiefs sought for NCAA testing

The NCAA sports-sciences staff will conduct a training session in May for persons interested in being crew chiefs for the NCAA's drug-testing programs.

Crew chiefs are medical doctors or registered nurses who conduct specimen collection at NCAA testing sites.

Physicians or registered nurses interested in participating in the training session can submit a letter of interest with a curriculum vitae no later than March 15 to Patricia A. Schaefer, NCAA sports-sciences administrative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Crew chiefs from the Northeast are most needed.

Crew chief training will be held in Philadelphia May 18.

That means they'll be treated just like any other No. 1 seed.

"Beyond that, I think that all the games will be contested, and anyone who has watched this tournament closely over the past 15 years recognizes that this is single-elimination, sudden-death and there are opportunities for people throughout the bracket to compete for the championship."

Hendel writes for United Press International.

June 1, 1992.

"The delayed date will permit timely action on this issue. However, should there be an impasse, I will support legislation during the 1992 legislative session to extend the deadline. This will permit reconsideration by the NCAA and thereby avoid costly legal action for the state," Nelson wrote.

"The NCAA's desire to create as level a playing field as possible for athletes at a wide range of institutions across the country has some merit, and I am aware of the complexities of the organization's structure and governance process.

"Those circumstances, however, do not justify perpetuating the unfair effects of NCAA rules. Of particular concern is the uneven playing field that results for students within institutions from the imposition of restrictions that create obstacles to academic opportunity only for athletes," the letter said.

The bill appears to indicate a general misunderstanding of current NCAA regulations on the part of the Nebraska legislators, according to Stephen R. Morgan, associate executive director of the NCAA.

He indicated that NCAA financial aid restrictions do not limit the amount of assistance a student-athlete may receive from Federal or state entitlement programs. Instead, the rules restrict the amount of institutional financial aid the individual may receive in combination with that received from those entitlement programs. This allows a student-athlete's financial aid package to be structured much more like those packages, received by other students, Morgan explained.

Support for women's sports

Women's athletics programs at NCAA member institutions could receive as much as $10,000 each through a four-month promotional program kicked off this month by Leggs Products, Inc., a division of Sara Lee Corporation.

Sara Lee last fall became the first NCAA corporate partner specifically for women's athletics, and this national promotion is believed to be the first of its type to generate funds for women's athletics.

Through June, Leggs displays at food, drug and discount stores nationwide will include official mail-in designation forms for the fund-raising program. When a consumer sends four proofs-of-purchase from Leggs Sheer Energy pantyhose with one of the forms, the company will donate $2 to the NCAA member institution of the consumer's choice.

All donations made through the program will be earmarked for women's athletics scholarships or support of other women's sports programs at the school.

Leggs has committed to donate up to $200,000.

News Fact File

Fifty NCAA member institutions have been transferred per Constitution 4.7.1.1 to geographical districts other than their regular districts. Most of those transfers have been due to conference affiliations. The most frequent transfer has been from District 3 to District 2; next most frequent, District 3 to District 6. The only district not involved in any transfer, coming or going, is District 1.

Team effort boosts Buckeyes

Ohio State's emergence into national prominence this year has been a team effort.

"We've gotten good balance off of this team," second-year coach Randy Ayers said. "I have to give our players a lot of credit. They have worked hard and developed together, as a team."

All five of the Buckeye starters have been averaging in double figures; and through 25 games, only a single point separated the averages of four of those players.

"You've got to have players who are willing to sacrifice personal goals, personal statistics, to blend in for the team," Ayers said.

Sophomore sensation Jim Jackson is one player who took up where he left off last season. As a freshman, he led the team in scoring with a 16.1 average and played approximately 35 minutes a game. He also topped the squad in steals and assists. Jackson earned Big Ten freshman-of-the-year honors for his efforts. This year, Jackson again is the top scorer, averaging approximately 19 points per game. He is still averaging more than 30 minutes of playing time.

Senior Treg Lee stepped into a starting role this season. He has been averaging nearly 12 points per game and was second on the team in rebounding, averaging slightly less than six rebounds. He also has been hitting more than 60 percent of his shots and is shooting more than 80 percent from the line.

"Treg Lee is a big, strong athlete," Ayers said. "He has rebounded very consistently."

Senior Perry Carter is in his fourth year as a starter at center. He was the team's top rebounder and second leading scorer a year ago. He continues to hold down the same two spots this year, averaging slightly more than 12 points and fewer than eight rebounds.

Mark Baker is in his second year as a starter at point guard. He has been contributing 11.5 points per game and leads the team in assists with a 5.0 average. He also has been committing fewer than three turnovers per contest.

Junior Jamaal Brown is the Buckeyes' iron horse. The past two seasons, he started all 64 games. Through the 25-game mark this year, he also had started every contest. Brown has been averaging approximately 12 points per game and has been hitting 43 percent of his three-point attempts.

Junior Chris Gent is the key man off the bench. He is averaging more than 20 minutes of playing time. Gent has been contributing approximately eight points and grabbing nearly four rebounds per game. He also has been successful on more than 40 percent of his three-point attempts.

Ayers stresses the importance of defense and rebounding. The Buckeyes have been allowing opponents to score in the mid-60s and, through games of February 25, were ranked fifth nationally in rebound margin (7.8).

The team has showed great improvement in the area of field-goal percentage. Last year, the Buckeyes hit only .465 from the field. This year, they are hitting approximately 53 percent.

A year ago, Ohio State made the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1987.

"It was an exciting time for all of us," Ayers said. "It gave us some incentive (to go back) because we really liked the environment."

The Buckeyes recorded an 84-83 overtime win over Providence in the first round, then met up with eventual champion Nevada-Las Vegas in the second round.

"What more can you say," Ayers said regarding the Runnin' Rebels. "They come at you with so many weapons. The thing I love the most about them is that they play great defense."

A rematch of last year's second-round contest is a distinct possibility this year. However, it could take place at a different point in the tournament, like the Final Four or even the championship game.

Tourney journey fun for Virginia

If Virginia is successful in traveling the road to the Women's Final Four for the second consecutive year, it might be because the Cavaliers have concentrated more on the road than on the destination.

"One of our goals has been to enjoy the journey," coach Debbie Ryan said.

So far, the journey has been a pleasant one. Virginia has spent most of the year ranked No. 1. In addition, the Cavaliers completed the regular season undefeated in Atlantic Coast Conference play.

Last year, the Cavaliers journeyed into what had been uncharted territory for the Virginia program. The team captured its first Atlantic Coast Conference tournament championship and made its first trip to the Women's Final Four. In order to take that last step, the Cavaliers defeated Tennessee, 79-75 in overtime, in the East regional final.

"We were a very determined team and worked very hard," Ryan said.

The team also was young and had a tendency to play at the level of its competition rather than to go out and take control of a game. The team's youth showed going into the Women's Final Four as the excitement of the victory in the regional final stayed with the team.

"We were a little too young to put the Tennessee game behind us," Ryan said.

Last year's young players are this year's experienced veterans. All-America Dawn Staley averaged 24.8 points and 6.8 rebounds in last year's NCAA championship. Through 27 games this year, she has averaged approximately 14 points, six rebounds and seven assists. Tammi Reiss and Tonya Cardoza have been the two leading scorers, averaging nearly 16 points per game. Cardoza also has been the top rebounder, averaging 6.4.

Two players who attract a lot of attention are identical twin sisters Heather and Heidi Burge, both 6-5. Heather starts and Heidi comes in off the bench, but their playing time is almost the same. Heather is the fourth Cavalier starter who is averaging in double figures (13.2).

Other key performers include Melanee Wagener, Tckshia Ward and Dena Evans.

"This is a very focused and extremely unselfish group," Ryan said. "What truly makes us strong is the players coming off the bench."

Although many factors play a role in whether or not a team makes a trip to the Women's Final Four, Ryan can see a common denominator among the teams.

"The teams that get to the Final Four have exceptional chemistry," Tammi Reiss has been one of Virginia's top scorers all season

she said. "You could see it in Stanford, how good the players were together.

"Chemistry has a lot to do with the way the players interact on the floor and off the floor. It's everybody doing what's best for the team in order for it to win."

Mountaineers' rifle dominance based on team approach

It's difficult to imagine a more individual competition than lying prone, firing a .22-caliber rifle at a target — unless you're Marsha Beasley, second-year rifle coach at West Virginia, the perennial national shooting power.

Beasley said the Mountaineers' dominance of the sport (they have won the last three national team championships, six since the NCAA first sponsored a championship in 1980) is based on a team approach.

"Team unity is important — if we have a good day, we have a good day as a team; if we have a bad day, we have a bad day as a team," she said. "I think that sets us apart from a lot of other teams. Our team psychologist, Joe Richard, has been an important factor (in making us a team)."

As important as the team concept may be, it won't do much more than make road trips pleasant if you can't hit the target. West Virginia, which takes the top qualifying score to West Point, New York, March 15-16, obviously has the numbers to back up its coach's theory. The Mountaineers' combined score of

Marsha Beasley

6,180 (4,652 in smallbore and 1,528 in air rifle) leads challengers Canisius, 6,126 (4,597-1,529); Alaska-Fairbanks, 6,125 (4,582-1,543); UTEP, 6,121 (4,578-1,543), and Ohio State, 6,116 (4,599-1,517).

Leading the Mountaineers individually is Gary Hardy, last year's air-rifle champion, who posted the second-highest combined qualifying score (1,553). Hardy paced the nation in smallbore qualifying this year, posting a score of 1,169. Tied for second in smallbore qualifying scores were teammates Garrett Smith and Tim Manges (both at 1,165). In air rifle, the Mountaineers' top qualifying score was Ann-Marie Pfiffner's 390, third best in the nation.

Those numbers came during West Virginia's designated qualifying match at Murray State. Any one match falling between January 1 and February 17 can be used as the qualifier, as long as it is designated before the competition. If the team's score that particular day isn't among the top eight in either discipline, the team stays home, regardless of how the rest of the season went. West Virginia's qualifying performance was 20 points below its average, but still good enough to be the nation's best. Beasley said that despite her team's "poor" outing, she thought the Mountaineers would benefit from it.

"We looked at it as a dry run for nationals," she said. "We found out our problems and what we will have to do to solve them."

An inability to do that satisfactorily might open the door wide enough for one of the aforementioned teams to claim its first championship.

Canisius, a newcomer to the championships that missed qualifying last year by 18 points, could be that team. Top shooter Jeff Jock (1,159-385) qualified as an individual last year. He and coach Reynold Jennetti brought photographs back from the event and used them to inspire this year's team.

"We said, 'Fellas, this is what it looks like and this is what you have to do to get there,'" Jennetti said.

Jennetti's regimen for getting his team to qualifying level included much more than shooting. An overall fitness program including aerobics and stretching was routine for the Golden Griffins.

Jock and Jennetti will have plenty

Gary Hardy returns to defend his 1990 air-rifle crown of company at West Point this year, led by accurate smallbore shooters Scott Schultz (1,153), Greg Kohler (1,147) and Larry Scinta (1,138).

Those scores combined with Jock's score give Canisius the second-highest smallbore qualifying score in the country, but that figure (4,597) is still 55 points shy of West Virginia's. In order to unseat the Mountaineers' reign as king of the hill, Canisius will need to improve its smallbore score. Canisius' air-rifle qualifying score of 1,529 is third best overall and one point above the Mountaineers' score.

"We beat them at kneeling (one of three smallbore disciplines) at the preliminary tryouts for the U.S. shooting team in mid-January; now we have to beat them at standing and prone," Jennetti said.

The Golden Griffins had a dress rehearsal of sorts in a dual meet with the Mountaineers March 2.

Another team with a shot at West Virginia is Alaska-Fairbanks. Coach Randy Pitney said his squad might have the guns to take the title, but he has nothing but respect for West Virginia.

"West Virginia is pretty strong," he said. "I wouldn't predict it, but if there's a team that can do it, we're probably it."

Championships Profile

Event: Men's and women's rifle.

The NCAA News coverage: Complete results will be published March 20.

Contenders: West Virginia, Alaska-Fairbanks, UTEP, Ohio State, Canisius.

Championships notes: West Virginia has won the last three championships, each under a different coach... The Mountaineers also have won six of the last eight championships... Last year, Marsha Beasley of West Virginia became the first female to coach a team to the championship... Army last hosted in 1985. Murray State won that year... Gary Hardy of West Virginia returns to defend his 1990 air-rifle title.

Hockey interest reaches fever pitch in upper Michigan

Michigan's Upper Peninsula boasts of a proud ice hockey tradition, and rightfully so. Four teams from the U.P. have been crowned national champions in the 43-year history of the Division I championship. But this season, thanks to two of the country's finest hockey teams, the interest and excitement has reached a level not seen in more than a decade.

"The people up here take a special pride in the U.P., and they always have," said first-year Lake Superior State coach Jeff Jackson. "We have great hockey tradition here. Right now, with us and Northern (Michigan) having banner years, a lot of attention has been focused on the U.P."

Rick Comley, coach at Northern Michigan and, ironically, a former player and coach at Lake Superior

Jim Dowd

State, said the Yoopers are ecstatic. "When you cross the Mackinac Bridge, there are signs up that say 'Welcome to the U.P., home of the Lakers and the Wildcats.' There has been a great deal of talk about both teams; I just wish we could have played each other during the regular season." The top-ranked Lakers, 31-3-4 overall and 26-2-4 in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, extended their school-record unbeaten streak to 24 games February 23 with a 2-1 victory over Western Michigan.

Offensively, Lake Superior State is led by the all-everything Jim Dowd, who has scored 17 goals and assisted on 49 others. The senior center led the CCHA in scoring this season and tied for fifth among the national point leaders.

Added Jackson about Dowd: "He is a dynamic offensive player. But what makes him special is he closes plays at both ends of the ice. He has a great sense for the game; he can dominate games at times with his ability, and he is not afraid to sacrifice his body and pay the price defensively. That's why I think he is the best player in college hockey."

The Lakers' defense allowed only 77 goals during conference play (32 games) and was led by Mark Astley (16 goals, 25 assists, 41 points) and Karl Johnston (12-31-43). Jackson also credited his forwards' involvement at the blueline as a factor in their success. Darrin Madeley (24-1-3, 2.35 goals-against average, .904 save percentage) was the CCHA's top goaltender this season and has not lost a game in a school-record 20 outings (17-0-3). Said Jackson, "Darrin has been consistent all season long and has really taken over down the stretch. He stays on his feet well and plays sound positional goaltending. If he has to make the great save he can. And he plays with a lot of character, especially when the game is on the line."

Northern Michigan, 30-5-4 overall and 25-3-4 in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, finished its regular season with an 18-game unbeaten streak (16-0-2). During this stretch, the Wildcats allowed only 2.3 goals per contest.

"I honestly believe that there is nobody better than us in the country," said Comley, who has a career record of 381-281-33. "We do have a very good team. But I don't think we are any better than any of the top-10 teams. And I firmly believe that there are eight teams that could win the national championship."

The Wildcats have seven seniors who have provided an excellent work ethic and leadership to the team. Said Comley, "We are a talented, mature team that works very hard together. Everybody plays on this team. We have who I think is the highest-scoring fourth-line center in the country in Mark Beaufait (15-24-39)."

Sophomore center Scott Beattie, a 5-7 dynamo, leads the nation with 42 goals, said Comley. He also led the WCHA in scoring with 76 points. In the last 16 games, Beattie has centered Jim Hiller (18-34-52) and Kevin Scott (24-24-48) to 46 goals and 52 assists.

Brad Werenka (16-39-55) is the second-ranked scoring defenseman in the country and has earned high praise from opposing coaches as well as Comley.

"Brad Werenka is a classic," Comley said. "I think he has more impact on the game, night-in and night-out, than anyone I've seen this year. He also is a graduate student in public administration who graduated last year with a 3.600 grade-point average in political science. He epitomizes what the student-athlete should be."

Automatic qualification: Central Collegiate Hockey Association, Eastern College Athletic Conference, Hockey East, Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

Defending champion: John Byce scored three goals and Rob Andringa added a goal and two assists as Wisconsin defeated Colgate, 7-3.

Schedule: First-round games are set for March 15-17 and will be played at on-campus sites. Also to be played on campus are the quarterfinals March 22-24. The semifinals and championship will be played March 28 and 30 at the Civic Center in St. Paul, Minnesota.

The NCAA News coverage: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will appear in the March 20 and March 27 issues. Championship results will be published April 3.

Contenders: Boston College, Boston University, Lake Superior State, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Northern Michigan, Wisconsin.

Championship notes: Teams from 33 institutions have participated in the tournament... Only twice (1968 and 1972) has the championship game featured a shutout... Colorado Springs was the site of the first 10 championship games... Denver owns the largest margin of victory in a title game (10 goals). The Pioneers defeated St. Lawrence, 12-2, in 1961... Boston University set a championship record for goals in a tournament by scoring 30 goals in seven games in 1990.

Iowans agree with Dorothy—'No place like home'

Many athletes will tell you Dorothy—that famous, fictional Kansan—was right...there's no place like home. Count Iowa's Hawkeyes among that lot.

Not that Amateur Wrestling News' top-ranked team isn't dominant in any arena, but Carver Hawkeye Arena has been far short of Oz for Iowa's opponents. Only one dual-meet foe (Penn State, 19-18, 1988) has left victorious in the 69 dual meets held at the Iowa City facility.

Home-mat history, however, doesn't make for much more than good copy unless the current team has talent, and the Hawkeyes (25-0-1), who have three wrestlers ranked best in their weight classes and three more ranked in their respective weights' top five, would be one of the national-championships favorites no matter what the site.

Leading Iowa's lineup, from which coach Dan Gable said he hoped to qualify all 10 wrestlers, are defending champion twins Terry (126 pounds) and Tom (134 pounds) Brands. Terry was 35-1-0 entering the Big Ten championships, with his only loss coming to the New York Athletic Club's Ken Chertow in an open competition; Tom's record was 37-0-0.

"They are very sound in all areas and have no weaknesses," Gable said. "There is tough competition at their weights, but if anyone can repeat, they can do it."

At 158 pounds, Iowa has another No. 1-ranked athlete, Tom Ryan (33-1-2). The Hawkeyes' other wrestlers with top-five rankings include Chad Zaputit (118 pounds, 29-1-0, ranked sixth); their second set of twins, Troy (142 pounds, 31-3-1, fifth) and Terry (150 pounds, 30-7-0, fifth) Steiner, and Mark Reiland (167 pounds, 35-4-0, third). Heavyweight John Oostendorp is ranked eighth with a record of 24-8-0. Gable said that even his wrestlers with the "worst" records are capable of claiming a championship if they get hot, using 190-pound Travis Fiser, who is unranked but has a 24-8-0 record, as a prime example.

As powerful as his hand is, Gable knows his team is not infallible, though it has demolished second-ranked Oklahoma State (35-2), third-ranked Iowa State (25-9), fourth-ranked Arizona State (40-5) and fifth-ranked Ohio State (three times, 35-5, 30-7, and 43-2). The lone blemish on the Hawkeyes' dual record is a tie with Penn State at the Virginia Duals in mid-January. The Nittany Lions, who weeks before had lost a dual with Iowa, 32-6, advanced in the tournament on criteria and eventually claimed the National Dual Team Championship.

"I think the tie helped wake us up and give us the momentum we needed going into the conference," Gable said. "It turned out to be a positive because I think we were taking things for granted."

Since that "loss," the Hawkeyes' closest match was the 25-9 win over Iowa State. Given his squad's recent history, Gable, who has no seniors in his starting lineup, is confident about his team's chances, but the tie prevents overconfidence.

"We feel that we mostly need to do what we are capable of doing. If we're together those three days, we'll be in good shape," he said.

"If (some of the other teams get) hot, it will take a total team effort."

The most likely squad to catch fire is Oklahoma State, which is looking to become the first team to win three straight championships since Iowa's nine-year reign. Even though the Cowboys were dominated in their dual meet at Iowa, coach Joe Seay said that result has nothing to do with his team's chances at the national championships.

"It was a high priority for Iowa. We had a lot of injuries and hadn't started two-a-days yet," he said. "Beating Iowa in a dual meet was not a big goal of ours. We prepare to peak at the Big Eight and the national tournament."

"Because of injuries, illness and other factors, we haven't had a full team until recently."

Seay's full squad includes four wrestlers with top-five rankings, including Tony Purler (126 pounds, 21-5-1, ranked fifth), Alan Fried (134 pounds, 31-3, second), Chuck Barbee (142 pounds, 19-6, fourth) and heavyweight Kirk Mammen (263-2, fourth). Barbee and Mammen were all-America last year, as was 150-pound Todd Chesbro (7-5), who is ranked ninth. Three other Oklahoma State wrestlers are ranked in the top 12 at their weights.

Fried, a redshirt freshman who is the only wrestler ever to win four junior national titles while in high school, also has the distinction of being one of the few who own a win over Iowa's Tom Brands, a feat he accomplished in an open meet last year.

Seay said he thought having wrestled before a crowd of 13,000 in a dual setting at Carver Hawkeye gave his team needed experience before the national championship.

"(Being at home) gives Iowa an advantage—fans can help jack up individuals, but what it all comes down to is the athletes on the mat...we have good enough personnel to win it," Seay said.

Iowa's cross-state rival, Iowa State (13-3), which won the 1987 title, entered the season trying to climb back into the top four after finishing ninth last year, and coach Jim Gibbons' squad has met that regular-season goal. The Cyclones' only three dual losses have come to Iowa (twice, 25-9 and 37-6) and Oklahoma State (21-17).

"We have been able to get in the top four over the long haul; now we have to be able to do that in the tournament," he said.

As far as claiming the team title, Gibbons said the odds are against Iowa State.

"We'll have to have the top two teams fall on their faces," he said.

The Cyclones are led by two-time all-America Steve Hamilton (158 pounds, 19-2, ranked second), 1990 all-America Dan Knight (126 pounds, fourth) and Torrac Jackson (150 pounds, 26-5, fourth).

Arizona State coach Bobby Douglas, whose Sun Devils (11-6-1) were runners-up the past two years and won the championship in 1988, has seen a potentially powerful team decimated by injuries.

"We'd need something less than a miracle (to win the title)," he said. "We're really in a bind. One of the things we've always taken pride in is our conditioning. Now with the injuries, that has been thrown out the window. We haven't been able to train."

Hurting as his team has, the fourth-ranked Sun Devils' success has surprised Douglas, who said after losing so many points from last year's team that he expected to be in the top 10, but never as high as fourth.

Two returning all-America wrestlers, Shawn Charles (126 pounds, 25-9-1, ranked eighth) and Ray Miller (158 pounds, 24-5-1, ranked third), plus top-ranked 190-pounder Rex Holman (21-2-1), are Arizona State's chief threats to take individual titles, but all of them have missed numerous recent practices because of injuries. Still, Douglas' team has a recent history of doing well in the tournament.

"I'm hoping that's the case this year," he said. "We wrestled with a great deal of courage at the conference tournament. I'm biting my nails at practice hoping we can keep who we have healthy."

A newcomer to the top five is Ohio State (17-4). Two returning all-America athletes, Adam DiSabato (126 pounds, 34-7-0, ranked sixth) and Mark Marinelli (134 pounds, 27-7-0, ranked third), represent coach Russ Hellickson's top hopes for individual honors. As a team, however, the Buckeyes are inexperienced at the national level.

"This is new territory for Ohio State, so I don't know how we'll react," Hellickson said. "If we get enough people believing, we can be a factor."

As far as challenging for the team title, that's a different story for Ohio State, or anyone else, according to Hellickson.

"There's no doubt this is one of the best teams Gable has ever had. I can't see anyone beating them—they have too many people who can place," he said.

The only team that has had any success against Iowa, coach Rich Lorenzo's Penn State (17-6-1), led by top-ranked 118-pound Jeff Prescott (14-1), has fallen to the same demon as Arizona State—injuries. Since being proclaimed No. 1 after taking the Virginia Duals, the Nittany Lions have fallen to sixth in the rankings after dual losses to Oklahoma State, Arizona State, Iowa State, West Virginia and Bloomsburg.

All of which brings us back where we started Carver Hawkeye Arena. As if Iowa's dual record there and the ill health of some of the top contenders didn't stack the deck enough, consider this: The last time the Hawkeyes hosted also was the last time Iowa won the tournament in 1986, with a tournament record 158 points.

Attitude could lead Sioux to title

North Dakota men's basketball coach Rich Glas believes that attitude is a key to success. That key could open the door to a national championship.

Last year, the Fighting Sioux completed an incredible turnaround. In 1988-89, Glas' first year as head coach, the team finished last in the North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. In 1989-90, the team took the conference championship and made its first trip to the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Championship since 1982. It went on to take third.

"It was a good experience from the standpoint of the team not knowing where it stacked up," Glas said about the third-place finish. "We realized we are capable of winning a national championship. We want to go back to Springfield and get another crack at it."

If the regular season is any indication, North Dakota seems headed in that direction. The Fighting Sioux recently clinched their second consecutive conference championship with three regular-season games remaining. They also hit the top spot in the NCAA Division II poll in mid-February.

Two seniors have been vital to North Dakota's success, according to Glas. Center Dave Vonesh is the team's leading scorer and rebounder. He is the leading scorer in the school's history and through 24 games was only 27 rebounds short of the top spot on the school's career rebounding list. He was the leading scorer and rebounder in the Division II championship last year with 118 points and 48 rebounds in five games. He also earned all-tournament honors.

Rico Burkett is North Dakota's floor leader. Through 23 games, he was averaging 10.9 points and 5.0 assists.

"He is our heart and soul," Glas said.

Junior Scott Guldseth is another veteran who had an excellent tournament last year and has been performing well this year. Guldseth averaged 15.6 points and 7.0 rebounds in the 1990 tournament. This year, he has been second to Vonesh in both scoring and rebounding.

Glas admonishes his team to "play hard, play smart and play together." He wants his squad to be "as good a defensive team as it can be." Offensively, he likes to have his team push the ball up the floor.

"The critical point there is shot selection," he said.

Statistics show that North Dakota has been successful in doing the things its coach likes. Through February 24, the Fighting Sioux were ranked second nationally in field-goal percentage defense and 13th in field-goal percentage. The team is making 51.2 percent of its shots, but opponents are hitting only 40.2 percent of theirs.

After the trip to last year's Elite Eight, Glas' team knows the type of effort necessary to win a national championship.

"It's a matter of being on top of your game," Glas said. "You have to have all your people playing well. When you get to that point, (the team) has to be hitting on all cylinders."

One of two dominant coaches remains in II swimming picture

In the last 18 years of Division II men's swimming, two coaches have dominated the division. Oh, more than two schools have competed for national crowns, but Pete Accardy of Cal State Northridge or Ernie Maglischo, now of Cal State Bakersfield, have won every national title since 1973. Now, there is only Maglischo around to carry the torch. Accardy and Northridge moved to Division I beginning with the 1990-91 year.

"I don't think it was good for our division," Maglischo said of Northridge's departure. "The stronger the division, the more swimmers come up to the competition. But it still looks like this will be the fastest meet in our history."

The run of championships began with Maglischo, then at Cal State Chico, winning the 1973 and 1974 championships. Accardy then led Cal State Northridge to its first title in 1975.

Maglischo won his last title at Chico in 1976 and moved on to coach at Oakland. Accardy racked up three straight from 1977 to 1979.

Maglischo won his only title at Oakland in 1980. Accardy then ran off five more titles for Northridge while Maglischo built the program at Bakersfield. For the past five seasons, Maglischo's Bakersfield squad has dominated the relays and the Division II meet.

The two coaches each have won nine men's team titles (Accardy also has won four of the nine Division II women's team championships), but this year's meet at the Schroeder Swim Center in Brown Deer, Wisconsin, hosted by Wisconsin-Milwaukee, looks to be a good place for Maglischo to permanently move past Accardy.

But for that to happen, Bakersfield must get past an ever-improving Oakland squad.

In the women's championships, the state of Michigan has a strong contingent. Last year, Oakland stopped Cal State Northridge's three-year run with a heart-stopping 423-419 win. The Pioneers hope to retain their title, but Northern Michigan and, possibly, Florida Atlantic should challenge.

Men's championships

"We have to swim faster," was the response when Maglischo was asked what his Roadrunners had to do to defeat Oakland. "Balancing out where I think the two teams will place, it comes out very even. I can make us come out the winner by giving us a few breaks and, just as easily, I can make them come out the winner by giving them a few breaks."

"We all have strong swimmers in different events. We have some events where we have them beat, but they have some events where they have us beat."

The keys for Bakersfield may well be the performance of last year's four-time national champion Andrew Bures. Bures broke onto the scene last year with victories in the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyles, the 200-yard butterfly, and the 400-yard individual medley (IM).

"He'll definitely be challenged," Maglischo said. "UC Davis has a swimmer who will challenge him and we even have a couple who could."

Maglischo also has Brent Katzer, who is having his best year. "He has been a mainstay for his four years," the coach said. Other point-winners returning from last year are Chris Perier, who was second to Bures last year in the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyles; Kris Bruggert, defending champion in the 100-yard breaststroke and second in the 200 IM; Jim Glinn, third in the 200-yard backstroke; Derck Robinson, third in the 100-yard backstroke; Matt Kohr, who won the 200-yard breaststroke as a freshman last year, and Marc Brown who finished seventh.

Oakland's chances seem to rest on the relays and in the diving pool. The Pioneers finished second, third and fourth in the one-meter diving and second and third in the three-meter. (Jeff Kunselman of Cal State Chico, who won both diving events, has graduated.) And Oakland won four of the five relays.

"Our strengths are always our relays and diving," coach Pete Hovland said. "I expect those will be two of our strengths this year. We have to swim exceptionally fast. But our destiny is not in our own hands. We will have to have help from other teams and individuals. Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Shippensburg and UC Davis are closing the gap, but Bakersfield is in a class by itself."

Hovland also has Hilton Woods, the defending champion in the 50- and 100-yard freestyle. He has been academically ineligible during the fall semester but Hovland expects him back by the nationals. "We need him," Hovland said.

But Hovland doesn't think he has the squad to overtake Bakersfield. "I think Ernie's being a little generous," Hovland said when told that Maglischo was worried about Oakland. "I haven't heard all the results, but I heard they have about 21 guys qualified. With the people he brought in and as well as they have been swimming, they are the prohibitive favorites."

Still, Hovland, who won three individual national titles, swam on four winning relay teams and led his team to three national championships while swimming for Maglischo at Cal State Chico in the mid 1970s, is looking forward to the challenge of beating his mentor. "He set the standard in coaching," Hovland said. "He's one of the best coaches around, if not the best. I often wonder why one of the big schools hasn't snatched him up. It hasn't happened, so it's something I have to put up with each year."

"I think wanting to beat him is a combination (of Maglischo's status and Hovland's affection as a former swimmer). We go back a long way. If and when it happens, he will be upset, but he will be glad for me."

But this is not a man-to-man challenge. It is a team competition and Maglischo thinks it will be a two-team race. "Nobody else has the depth to challenge us for the title," he said. "UC Davis is vastly improved, as is Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. Both will move way up in the rankings and challenge Cal State Chico."

Women's championships

"Unless Oakland doesn't have a good meet, there is little chance of them not winning," said Anne James, coach of Northern Michigan, summing up the race for the Division II women's team championship. "Quite a few teams have five or six individuals qualified for the meet. Oakland has 18, counting two divers. They are the heavy favorites."

Northern Michigan's star is Kirsten Silvester. The sophomore from The Netherlands won four individual titles last year leading the Wildcats to a fifth-place finish. She will be challenged in her attempt to repeat in all four events. "I think it will be a lot harder for her to win four this year," James said. "One of Florida Atlantic's two top recruits is listed in the all-time top 25 in one of Kirsten's events. It will be tougher, but she still has a chance."

James can count on Jenny Klee-mann, the defending champion in the 100-yard backstroke, plus a second-place finisher in the 200-yard backstroke and the 200-yard freestyle and third in the 100-yard freestyle. Shao Hong, who finished second in the 100-yard breaststroke, and May Tan, who finished fifth and sixth in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly races, respectively, give James depth. "Put those four together and it makes a pretty good relay," James said.

But even if Silvester does repeat her feat and the others do well, it may not be enough. "We see ourselves coming in around third," James said. "That's pretty realistic."

Oakland is the favorite."

Oakland does not have a dominant swimmer like Silvester. Instead the Pioneers stock up the points with a lot of qualifiers in each event. "We don't go in with four swimmers we know will score extremely high in several events like the others do," Oakland coach Tracy Huth said. "We don't have any locks. We have to rely purely on the depth of our team. If we can score four or five consistently in the top eight, that's what it will take to be successful. We have to rely on the entire team swimming well."

Two swimmers that Huth will rely on are Lyn Schermer, a junior who was the 200-yard IM champion last year and also brought home second-, third- and fifth-place finishes, and Lisa Guilfoyle, who was a finalist in three different events. "We need those two to lead the way," Huth said.

"We've been No. 1 all year. There are some good teams. We probably will field the largest team. From what I've seen, just with the chance that we have to put people in scoring opportunities, if we're healthy and swimming well, I would have to give us a pretty good chance," he said.

Championships Profile

Event: Division II men's and women's swimming and diving.

Fields: Fields for the championships will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Cal State Bakersfield won its fifth straight men's championship. It was the ninth coaching title for Ernie Maglischo, tying him with Pete Accardy, who won all nine with Cal State Northridge. Oakland stopped Northridge's run of three straight women's titles with a 423-419 victory, the closest finish in Division II swimming history.

Schedule: The meet will be held at the Schroeder Swim Center in Brown Deer, Wisconsin, March 13-16. The meet will be hosted by Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 20 issue of The News.

Contenders: Cal State Bakersfield, Oakland, Cal State Chico, UC Davis and Cal Poly San Luis Obispo for the men's championship. Oakland, Northern Michigan and Florida Atlantic, for the women's championship.

Championships notes: Ernie Maglischo, head coach at Cal State Bakersfield, has a chance to become the winningest coach in Division II championships history. Presently, he is tied with Pete Accardy of Cal State Northridge with nine championships. The three top teams all have ties to Ernie Maglischo's days at Cal State Chico. Maglischo won three national titles from 1973-76, while at Chico. His star on those Chico teams was Pete Hovland, now the coach at Oakland, the other school at which Maglischo won a national title. Oakland is the favorite in the women's meet with Cal State Northridge having moved to Division I.

Kenyon coach may take extra set of dry clothes to finals

Check Kenyon women's swimming coach Jim Steen's luggage as he prepares to go to the 1991 Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships March 14-16 at Emory University. Though he would be reluctant to admit it, he probably will be carrying at least one extra change of clothes, and for good reason.

Steen likely will get the clothes he wears March 16 wet, just like he has for the last seven Division III women's championships, because his team likely will win the meet and give him the ceremonial victory dunk once again.

"I don't go to the national meet expecting it," Steen said about the dunking. "I don't ever think there's been a time when we expected to win. Others may have expected us to win. But our men and women don't go in expecting to win."

"I never prognosticate. I don't even do that in my mind. It's more interesting to imagine what type of a meet it could be rather than predict who is going to win."

It may be more interesting, but it isn't any more accurate. The Ladies have won seven straight championships under Steen and are the prohibitive favorites to make it eight in a row. "Don't let him convince you that he's not the favorite," said Doug Boyd, head coach of perennial runner-up UC San Diego. "They've won seven straight."

"We would probably have to swim perfectly—everybody—in order to win. And then, we would still have to catch a few breaks."

Boyd, in his first year at UC San Diego, does have one strong caveat on his side. He swam at Indiana University, Bloomington, for the legendary James "Doc" Counsilman. "I learned from Doc immensely," he said. "I patterned my coaching mostly after Doc—his mannerisms and the way he handled himself. I have been influenced by other coaches, too, but Doc was the biggest influence."

Kenyon coach may take extra set of dry clothes to finals

Steen has five swimmers back who accumulated significant points last year. Carrie Nealon, who has won the 1,650-yard freestyle the last two years, leads the group. "I have some swimmers who unquestionably are players," Steen said.

Others who earned points last year are Jen Carter, who finished second in the 100- and 200-yard backstroke and the 200-yard individual medley (IM) last year; Kami Matthews in the 200-yard backstroke and 200-yard IM; Kristie Stacy in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly and the 200-yard IM, and Ann Kelley, the three-meter diving champion.

Ann Kelley, the three-meter diving champion.

"I think our women's chances to win are very good," Steen admitted. "I think UC San Diego's chances are very good. I'm hopeful it will be a very exciting and competitive meet. It looks like it should be. We both have the personnel. I don't think San Diego lost many point scorers. Also, Allegheny has improved significantly."

"Around the country there is Williams, which dominates New England. There are a lot of teams coming to Atlanta with the expectation—teams who, in their season ended right now, would feel unfulfilled."

Championships Profile

Event: Division III women's swimming and diving.

Fields: The field for the championships will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Kenyon won its seventh straight championship, though by the closest margin yet. UC San Diego finished second.

Schedule: The meet will be hosted by Emory University March 14-16.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 20 issue of The News.

Contenders: Kenyon, UC San Diego, Williams, Allegheny.

Championships notes: With his 18 national championships, 11 in men's swimming and seven in women's swimming, Kenyon coach Jim Steen is the all-time most-victorious coach in terms of championships in NCAA history. He won his 18th at the men's Division III championships last year, surpassing Ted Banks of UTEP, who coached 17 national champions in cross country and track and field. Williams is the only other school to have won a women's Division III swimming title, winning the first two meets in 1982 and 1983.

Two individual titles help Mavericks to victory

Winning two individual titles and placing another entry in the finals, Nebraska-Omaha captured the first Division II wrestling team championship in its history March 2, scoring 79½ points to runner-up Central State (Oklahoma), which scored 64. The Mavericks' previous high finish was in 1988, when they were runners-up to North Dakota State, this year's host.

Coach-of-the-year Mike Denney's squad got its first individual title at 142 pounds, when Scott Ruff decisioned Marty Vigil of Northern Colorado, 5-4. In the 190-pound class, Pat Gentzler decisioned Virginia State's Warren Tucker, 8-5, for the crown.

The Mavericks' runner-up was Joe Wypiszewski (177), who fell, 3-2, to Portland State's Tony Champion, who won that weight for the third consecutive year. Three other Nebraska-Omaha wrestlers claimed all-America honors, including Jessie Smith, who was third (167); Ted Nelson, fifth (118), and Marc Bauer, eighth (126).

In addition to Champion, two other wrestlers were repeat champions, including Portland State's Dan Russell, who pinned 1990 champion Herman Moore of Central State (Oklahoma) at 1:40 in the 167-pound finals to claim that weight's championship for the first time. Russell, who was named the tournament's most outstanding wrestler for the third straight time, won the 158-pound weight class last year, and the 150-pound class the two previous seasons. In addition to his Division II exploits, Russell is ranked No. 1 in his weight class in Division I by Amateur Wrestling News.

Mike Pantoya of Northern Colorado, the other repeat champion, earned his second straight 134-pound title with a 3-2 win over Glen Frank of Colorado School of Mines. Frank had breezed to the finals by pinning his three previous opponents.

In the team standings, Northern Colorado, which had two finalists and one champion (Mike Pantoya, 134), finished third with 60½ points. North Dakota State (49½), which owned a dual-meet win over Nebraska-Omaha, finished fourth and had two finalists. Two-time defending team champion Portland State, the only other team besides Nebraska-Omaha to have two individual champions, finished fifth with 48¼ points.

TEAM RESULTS

1. Nebraska-Omaha, 79½; 2. Central St. (Okla.), 64; 3. Northern Colo., 60½; 4. North Dak. St., 49½; 5. Portland St., 48¼; 6. Cal St. Chico, 36; 7. Lake Superior St., 32½; 8. Colorado Mines, 32; 9. SIU-Edwardsville, 30½; 10. (tie) South Dak. St., Cheyney, 28.

Seven all-Americas lead Augsburg

Becoming the first team west of Cleveland to win the Division III wrestling title, Augsburg, powered by seven all-America athletes, ran away from the field March 2 with 92 points to runner-up Trenton State's 59½.

Trenton State had won the title the last time the meet was held at 1991 host Augustana (Illinois) in 1985. St. Thomas (Minnesota) was third with 50½, while Central (Iowa) was fourth with 46. The hosts were fifth with 44 points.

The title was Augsburg's first. The team finished second last year and third in 1989. The Auggies' winning margin of 32½ points was the largest since 1987, when Trenton State outdistanced Brockport State by 36¼.

The Auggies (16-0 in dual meets this season), who entered the tournament having won 48 straight dual meets, the longest current wrestling streak at any collegiate level, were led by heavyweight Chester Grauberger. The Augsburg heavyweight, who finished third last year, pinned Norwich's John Brigham at 1:08 in the finals to improve his record to 49-1. Two other Auggies, Matt Kretlow (158) and Tim Tousignant (150), were runners-up.

Augsburg had four more all-America wrestlers, including Nick Fornicoia (fourth at 118), Joe Hoalmen (sixth at 134), Bill Gabler (fourth at 177) and Kurt Habeck (seventh at 167).

For coach-of-the-year Jeff Swenson, who also serves as an assistant football coach for the Auggies, the wrestling title represents an about-face from the fall, when Augsburg went 0-10 on the gridiron.

Central (Iowa) was the only team with two individual champions, as Chad Beck (126) and Jon McGovern (167) won. Beck's string of victories included a 4-2 semifinal decision over Fritz Zagorski of Brockport State, the defending champion. Other teams with two finalists included St. Thomas (Minnesota) and Montclair State.

Individually, Wisconsin-Whitewater's Rob Llorca was named most outstanding wrestler for the second consecutive year. Llorca successfully defended his 158-pound title with an 8-3 triumph over Kretlow in the finals.

Buffaloes' balance makes the difference in skiing

Just as their coach had predicted before the championships, the Colorado Buffaloes' balance made the difference as they won their first National Collegiate Men's and Women's Skiing Championships team title in 10 years.

Defending champion Vermont was second, just 31 points behind, when the four-day event ended March 2 in Park City, Utah. The University of Utah, which hosted the tournament, was third.

"The bottom line is that Colorado made one less mistake than we did," Vermont coach Chip LaCasse said. "We were 78 points behind going into the final day and made up 47 of the points, but Colorado simply was more consistent throughout the four days."

Colorado scored 713 points, Vermont had 682 and Utah finished with 615. The Catamounts' downfall came in the men's freestyle event, where Colorado outscored Vermont, 104-64, and in the women's slalom event, where the Buffaloes were ahead, 97-47.

"We don't have dominating strength in any event," Colorado coach Richard Rokos said before the meet. "But we have good balance throughout, and that is our strength."

Balance made the difference for the Buffaloes. Colorado won only two events. Toni Standteiner won the men's giant slalom, and Bjorn Svensson captured the title in the men's freestyle. But Colorado's only bad showing was in women's diagonal cross country, where the team finished in fifth place.

Vermont, meanwhile, had four national champions, including double winner Laura Wilson in the women's cross country events. Wilson also is a repeat double winner; she won both events a year ago. The other Vermont champions were Keri Schloppey, who won the women's giant slalom, and Einar Boehmer, who finished first in the men's slalom. Boehmer won the men's giant a year ago.

The Catamounts, however, were ninth in the women's slalom and sixth in the men's freestyle event.

The other national champions were Heather Flood, Middlebury, winner in the women's slalom, and Colorado's Toni Standteiner took the men's giant slalom crown, one of only two individual championships captured by Buffaloes. Teammate Bjorn Svensson won the men's freestyle championship.

Colorado's team triumph was made possible by across-the-slopes consistency.

Stig Mattsson, Alaska-Anchorage, champion in the men's diagonal cross country.

This marked the first time in nine years that Utah has finished lower than second place in the tournament and the 11th time in 12 years that Vermont has finished no lower than second.

Two members of the U.S. Olympic Committee's sports-sciences staff and a member of the U.S. Cycling Federation staff were among the 25 passengers who were killed March 3 in the crash of United Airlines Flight 585 in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

The USOC's senior sports physiologist, Dr. Peter J. Van Handel, 45, and a sports biomechanist, Dr. Andrzej J. Komor, 39, died when the Boeing 737 jetliner crashed in a park while approaching the Colorado Springs airport. Dan Birkholz, 35, a development coach and coordinator for cycling's national governing body, also was killed.

According to USOC officials, the three men were returning from assignments related to the development of cycling athletes in Texas and Oklahoma. Van Handel had been on the USOC staff since 1981 and Komor, a native of Poland, joined the staff in September 1990. Birkholz had been with the USOC since 1989.

A memorial service was scheduled for March 6 at the Olympic Complex in Colorado Springs.

Van Handel's family requests that donations in his memory be made to the USOC Sports Science Division, 1750 East Boulder Street, Colorado Springs, Colorado 80909.

Time to renew, not settle, best-league argument

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

With the 53rd annual NCAA men's Division I championship coming up, it is time to revive (not settle) the perennial argument about which conference plays the best basketball.

In the process, memories of many great players, teams and coaches flood forth—too numerous to mention here.

There are two ways to look at the subject. We think using the actual conference lineups each season (as in the chart on this page) provides the most accurate historical perspective. Another way is to use the current conference lineups and project them back through the first 52 tournaments.

Either way, the same half-dozen or so conferences are at or near the top.

In both cases, the Pacific-10 Conference (before that Pacific-8 and Pacific Coast) leads in championships, 13-9, over the Big Ten Conference (UCLA winning 10 for the Pac-10 and Indiana five for the Big Ten). And either way, the Southeastern Conference is third with five (all by Kentucky). All three go back beyond the first tournament in 1939.

In all-time winning percentage using actual lineups, the Atlantic Coast Conference (first season, 1953) leads at .657, followed by the Big East Conference (first year, 1980) at .647, Big Ten .643, Pac-10 .613, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference (first season, 1976) .565, Big Eight (formerly, Big Seven and Big Six, going back beyond 1939) at .557, SEC .553, and Missouri Valley Conference .525. The MVC and ACC each won four championships.

Using current lineups, the ACC (171-93), Big Ten (identical at 169-94), Pac-10 (130-89), Big Eight (118-91) and SEC (104-84) are little changed at the top.

But the Big East (149-125), Metro (84-63) and Midwestern (55-50) show big gains, since their members were independents or members of other conferences before they were organized. So does the Metro Atlantic (21-24).

At the same time, some conferences show big losses—like the Ohio Valley (9-27), Missouri Valley (35-42) and Southern (6-24). Most others stayed about the same in winning percentage.

Ironically, the Metro and Sun Belt (first year, 1977), the first two conferences to organize on the basis of television markets, have lost members to others using the same idea; thus they are looking to add members. The picture will be much different next season after a major number of moves.

Note that current independents are 50-56 compared to 304-303 using actual lineups (most were Eastern or Southern, and regional comparisons using the chart do not reflect that).

+ Regional 2nd place, or one win from Final Four. # 8 teams in tournament, 1939-50.

teams in tournament victories have won 53.1 percent of all the games in history (180 of 308), account for 75 percent of the Women's Final Four teams (27 of 36) and eight of the nine champions (all but Stanford last season).

By contrast, the top 10 men's teams in victories have 26.2 percent of the all-time triumphs, 34.6 percent of the Final Four trips and 57.7 percent of the championships.

SEC, Pac-10 lead

The SEC dominates the picture for the first nine NCAA tournaments (using actual membership each season), but not quite to the extent it appears at first glance.

That is because current Pacific-10 Conference teams were in four different conferences over the first five years.

The SEC boasts a 79-48 record in tournament play for a .622 percentage, with 11 Final Four teams, two champions and five second-place teams.

The old Western Collegiate (25-12, with two champions the first four years), the Pacific West (4-1 the fifth year) and the Northern Pacific (2-5 during 1983-86) all had mostly Pac-10 teams. Add the current Pac-10 (16-11 the last four with one title) and the result is a 47-29 record for .618 with three champions and one second place.

All independents combine for 31-18 with one title and three seconds in six Final Fours. Most of that is Louisiana Tech, a member of the American South (11-2, one title, two Final Fours) the last three years. When those two are combined, Louisiana Tech has 31 of the 42 wins, all but one of the Final Fours and both titles.

Next in victories come the Atlantic Coast, 30-33 with three Final Fours, then the Southwest (mostly Texas) 22-14, Big Ten 20-23 with no Final Fours, Sun Belt (mostly Old Dominion) 19-13, Atlantic 10 17-20 with no Final Fours, Big West 13-12 with two Final Fours (both by Long Beach State) and Big Eight 10-17 with no Final Fours.

67 points and 38.4

Jackie Givens of Division II Fort Valley State set an all-time collegiate (or all-divisions) NCAA single-game women's record by scoring 67 points vs. Knoxville in a February 22 road game. Her final season average of Among teams not on the win chart, Cincinnati made five Final Four trips, Arkansas, Oklahoma State and Illinois four each (fewer tournament teams and games in their biggest years), and eight others had three trips each.

Women reach 10

This is the 10th annual NCAA women's Division I championship, and only 10 colleges have reached 10 tournament victories, four of them in the Southeastern Conference.

No other conference has more than one team in the top 10. Tennessee, Auburn, Georgia and Mississippi are the four SEC teams. But the SEC does not boast the top team of the first nine years. That honor goes to Louisiana Tech, with 31 victories, seven trips to the Women's Final Four and two titles. Here are the top 10 in wins:

Pair of 300s

The number of 300-game coaching winners in women's Division II basketball jumped from six to eight in one night when Bentley's Barbara Stevens and West Texas State's Bob Schneider both coached victories March 1 in conference play-off games on their home courts.

Stevens' team defeated Stonehill, coached by another 300-game winner, Paula Sullivan. Schneider's team beat Angelo State en route to its fifth straight Lone Star Conference tournament crown. In the process, the Lady Buffs finished another perfect home-court record, running their home winning streak to 81 games—a Division II record. Ironically, West Texas State (29-1) is ranked No. 1 and Bentley (29-2) No. 2 in the Division II poll after Bentley's 29-game winning streak was halted March 2 by 13th-ranked St. Anselm. Stevens, by the way, is the second youngest coach to reach 300. Long Beach State's Joan Bonvicini was 36 years and exactly five months old when she reached 300 last year; Stevens was 36 years, five months and nine days. Quotes of the week

Florida International's radio voice, Steve Michael, wanted to know if Dwight Stewart, Florida International's standout forward, would be able to play against South Florida despite a bad shoulder. Replied assistant coach Charles Payne: "Dwight is our American Express card—we don't leave home without him." (Stuart Davidson, Florida International SID)

New Mexico's 7-foot-2 center Luc Longley on life in Albuquerque: "It's difficult to keep any sort of privacy in public."

Duke's students are famous for their barbs directed at opposing players and coaches. One victim was former North Carolina guard Steve Hale, who had a collapsed lung. "In-Hale," screamed half the students. "Ex-Hale," screamed the other half. This season's North Carolina media guide fired a return salvo: "Duke... where Lefty Driesell was taught English and Richard Nixon studied law."

"On to victory"

First-year Hartford women's coach Mark Schmidt has only started to improve the team's won-lost record but he already has brought a sense of fun and spirit to the Lady Hawks. Early this season, he asked his team if it had a school fight song. The players said no, but in fact a Hartford music student had composed one when the school moved to Division I six years ago.

It was used only that first season. But assistant coach Julie Brown found the music on one of the few cassettes still on campus and the words were dug up from an old game program by assistant SID Jon Easterbrook. Prior to a game at Central Connecticut State, where Hartford never had won, Schmidt promised he'd sing the fight song if his team won. Sure enough, Hartford beat Central Connecticut State, 65-51, and on the ride home, over boxes of pizza, Brown brought out the boom box and Schmidt delivered a solo rendition of "Hartford

Can you top these?

A crowd of 6,789 for a regular-season, Division II women's game? It happened when then fifth-ranked North Dakota edged third-ranked North Dakota State, 61-59, in the final seconds in Fargo. Can any Division II team top that? (Jeff Schwartz, North Dakota State women's SID)

How is this for multicategory excellence? Long Beach State senior Dana Wilkerson, a 1990 academic all-America majoring in electrical engineering, had these career numbers: 522 assists (a school record), 255 steals and 1,521 points, leading the team to 11 straight wins. (Becca Wohlt, Long Beach State assistant SID)

San Francisco's Orlando Smart ended the season with 8.17 assists per game, setting a Division I freshman record in that category and breaking the 8.14 by Georgia Tech's Kenny Anderson last season. (Pete Simon, San Francisco SID)

Wabash, an all-male college with 830 men, was the birthplace of what now is called "Hoosier Hysteria." It was tiny Wabash 23, Purdue 13, in the first collegiate game in Indiana (1896-97 season). Mac Pctty now is the most successful coach in school history after getting his 195th coaching victory at Wabash. (Jim Amidon, Wabash SID)

Radio network for men's tournament continues to expand

NCAA/CBS Radio Network coverage of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship continues to expand.

This year, new programming includes play-by-play coverage from four second-round sites and live reports from the other four second-round sites.

The network will broadcast selected men's regional semifinals, all four men's regional finals and all games from both the Women's Final Four and the Final Four. The network also offers two nationwide call-in programs—Selection Sunday and The Eve of the Final Four.

According to Host Communications, the network is one of the largest of its kind. More stations will broadcast the Division I Men's Basketball Championship than broadcast the Super Bowl, World Series, Rose Bowl or Kentucky Derby.

The network will continue to grow throughout the championships. Approximately 450 stations already have cleared at least one of the network broadcasts. Since stations still are being cleared, it is likely that the record of 463, set last year, will be surpassed.

Stations already cleared include outlets in all of the top 50 markets and 94 of the top 100 markets. Nineteen stations are 50,000-watt stations, and nine of those are clear-channel facilities. They are WFAN, New York; WCCO, Minneapolis; WHAS, Louisville; WWL, New Orleans; WWWE, Cleveland; KMOX, St. Louis; WHAM, Rochester; WOAI, San Antonio, and WOGL, Philadelphia.

More than 200 stations have cleared the two call-in shows and approximately 120 stations have cleared the Division I Women's Basketball Championship game. It is estimated that clearances for the women's national semifinals have doubled since last year.

More than 400 radio outlets affiliated worldwide with Armed Forces Radio, including those reaching U.S. military personnel in the Persian Gulf, will join the network for selected games, including the Final Four.

Following is a list of network stations by state. A (w) indicates that a station has cleared at least one of the Women's Final Four games:

Following are the minutes of the January 5-6, 1991, meeting of the NCAA Council, which was held at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee. All actions taken during the meeting are included.

1. Previous Minutes. It was voted that the minutes of the October 8-9, 1990, meeting be approved as distributed.

2. Committee Reports. [Note: The Council received reports from a number of committees, including a number of information items. Only Council actions or points noted for the record are reflected in these minutes.]

a. Executive. The Council received a report of actions taken by the Executive Committee during its August and December 1990 meetings.

(1) At the Executive Committee's request, Council members considered questions posed by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports regarding the administration of the Student-Athlete Statement and Drug-Testing Consent. Specifically, the Council considered whether Bylaw 14.1.3.2 should be amended to require that the consent form be signed earlier than prior to intercollegiate competition each year, whether there is a satisfactory alternative to the use of squad lists for random selection of student-athletes for drug testing, and whether any action can be taken to preclude a student-athlete from rejoining a team after he or she presumably has quit the team to avoid a drug test.

(a) The Division I Steering Committee recommended that each of the issues noted be referred to the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports for further review and that, as part of this review, the committee consider the feasibility of obtaining a student-athlete's consent to be tested for drugs throughout the period of his or her collegiate enrollment, instead of requiring consent to be given annually. The steering committee also recommended that the committee consider whether it would be possible to avoid drug testing during institutions' scheduled final-examination periods.

(b) The Division II Steering Committee: (i) Supported an amendment to Bylaw 14.1.3.2 to require the Drug-Testing Consent to be signed before a student-athlete begins practice.

(ii) Deferred to Division I on the matter of whether a satisfactory alternative to the use of squad lists exists for random selection of student-athletes for drug testing.

(iii) Recommended that if a student-athlete quits a team after receiving notice that NCAA drug testing will occur, the individual should not be eligible upon returning to the team until he or she has been tested at the institution's expense.

(c) It was voted that these issues be referred to the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports, noting the recommendations and actions of the Divisions I and II Steering Committees.

(2) It was voted that the remainder of the Executive Committee's report be received.

b. Initial-Eligibility Waivers. The Council reviewed a report of the Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers, including a record of the subcommittee's actions on waiver requests related to the legislation's core-course and test-score requirements. It was noted for the record that since its inception, the Council subcommittee has processed in excess of 600 waiver requests. It was voted that the subcommittee's report be received.

c. Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics. The Council reviewed the final report of the Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics. The report summarized actions taken by the subcommittee during 16 meetings conducted between November 1987 and October 1990. The Council received the subcommittee's report, and on behalf of the Council, NCAA President Albert M. Witte commended members of the subcommittee for their dedicated efforts in completing the subcommittee's work.

d. Professional Sports Liaison. The Council reviewed a report of the October 17-18, 1990, meeting of the Professional Sports Liaison Committee and took the following actions:

(1) Approved a recommendation that the Council, through the executive director or president of the Association, communicate directly with the commissioner of the NFL, concerning the negative effects that an expanded NFL schedule will have on NCAA certified postseason bowl games, it being understood that this communication should be fully documented and reflect a general concern for the integrity and survival of the postseason bowl game structure.

(2) Approved a recommendation that the NCAA Special Events Committee consider whether the certification of all-star football and basketball contests should be discontinued, inasmuch as the endorsement of games that often result in excessive missed class time is inconsistent with the goals and purposes of the Association.

e. Implementation of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24. The Council reviewed the report of the October and December 1990 meetings of the Special Advisory Committee to Review Implementation of 1990 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 24 and took the following actions:

(1) Approved the following legislative amendments to make the Association's graduation-rate disclosure legislation substantially comparable to recently adopted Federal reporting requirements:

(a) Revised Bylaws 30.1.1.1 through 30.1.1.5 to change the focus of the Association's report from recruited student-athletes to student-athletes who received athletically related financial assistance.

(b) Amended Bylaw 30.1.1.4-(b) to require that separate graduation rates be reported in the sports of baseball and cross country/track, broken down by race and sex.

(c) Amended Bylaws 30.1.1.4-(a), 30.1.1.4-(b) and 30.1.1.5 to specify that graduation rates shall be based upon 150 percent of the standard time for completion of the students' programs of study (i.e., six years).

(d) Amended Bylaw 30.1.1.1 to require member institutions to report the total enrollment of the full-time, degree-seeking undergraduate student body as a whole, broken down by race and sex, and the total enrollment of student-athletes receiving athletically related financial assistance, broken down by race and sex and reported separately in the sports of basketball, football, baseball, cross country/track and all other sports.

(e) Amended Bylaws 30.1.1.4 and 30.1.1.5 to exclude from the graduation-rate computations students who meet the conditions specified in Bylaw 14.2 to qualify for an extension of the Association's five-year/10-semester rule.

(f) Amended Bylaw 30.1.1.4-(a) to require member institutions to report the average graduation rate of the student body as a whole, broken down by race and sex, for the four most recent graduating classes for which such information is available.

(g) Amended Bylaws 30.1.1.4-(a) and 30.1.1.4-(b) to specify that member institutions also shall report, for the most recent graduating class for which such information is available and based on a six-year period in which to graduate, the graduation rates for all students and for all student-athletes who received athletically related financial assistance.

(h) Amended Bylaw 13.3.1.2 to require that the graduation-rate information also be provided to a prospect's high-school guidance office.

(i) Amended Bylaws 18.4.2.2-(c), 18.4.2.3-(c) and 30.1 to reflect the effective date of the Federal legislation (i.e., first reports due July 1, 1993), except that for Division I member institutions affected by the act, the first graduation-rate disclosure form completed pursuant to 1990 Proposal No. 24 and Bylaw 30.1, as amended, shall be submitted consistent with the original effective date of October 1, 1991. (Note: The Council's action to amend Bylaw 18 constitutes a noncontroversial amendment under the provisions of Constitution 5.3.1.1.1.)

(2) Approved the following recommendations concerning certain aspects of the Association's graduation-rate disclosure legislation that are either optional or not specified in the Federal reporting requirements:

(a) Amended Bylaws 30.1.1.4 and 30.1.1.5 to delete the reporting of a refined graduation rate for all students.

(b) Retained the reporting of a refined graduation rate for student-athletes who have received athletically related financial assistance, with the understanding that Bylaw 30.1.1.5 would be amended to specify that in the calculation of the refined graduation rate, students who did not graduate in six years but who are enrolled in the institution on a full-time or part-time basis and are within 24 semester hours or 36 quarter hours of graduation shall not be included in the refined graduation rate.

(c) Amended Bylaws 30.1.1.1 and 30.1.1.2 to eliminate reporting requirements related to special admissions authorities and other reporting requirements except those specified in Minute No. 2-c-(1)-(d) above.

(d) Deleted Bylaw 30.1.1.3 related to student-athletes' satisfactory academic progress.

(3) Approved a recommendation that for the report submitted during 1991 only, member institutions, upon written request, shall be provided an opportunity to receive an official extension of the October 1 deadline (e.g., 90 days) to submit the completed reporting form.

(4) Approved a recommendation that the data-collection reporting process commence with the 1983-84 academic year, which would permit the Association's data to be in compliance with Federal legislation by its July 1, 1993, effective date.

(5) Approved a recommendation that, for sections of the report not required by Federal legislation, member institutions be permitted to procure relevant data gradually, using the most cost-effective procedures available.

(6) Approved a recommendation that, for purposes of Bylaw 30.1, exhausted athletics eligibility shall be defined to include students who used all available seasons of competition at the institution and students who competed at the institution during the final year of their five-calendar-year period of eligibility or during the final semester of their 10-semester period of eligibility, but who were unable to use additional seasons of competition because of the expiration of the five-calendar-year or 10-semester period of eligibility. It was noted for the record that this definition would not include student-athletes who did not compete during the final year (or semester) of the student's periods of eligibility but who had seasons of competition available.

(7) Supported the concept of regional one-day workshops for institutional administrators regarding the implementation of Bylaw 30.1, with the understanding that authorization for funding such workshops would be left to the judgment of the Administrative Committee, acting for the Executive Committee.

(8) Directed that the form developed for use by Division I member institutions in 1991 also be circulated to Division II member institutions for their information and review.

(9) Approved a recommendation that the Academic-Reporting Form be renamed the Graduation-Rates Disclosure Form.

f. Student-Athlete Advisory. The Council reviewed a report of the November 10-11, 1990, meeting of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

(1) The committee recommended that the Council and Executive Committee approve funding for special inserts in The NCAA News for student-athletes two times per year, similar to the insert that appeared in the September 17, 1990, edition of the News. It was voted that the committee's recommendation be approved.

(2) It was voted that the remainder of the committee's report be received.

3. NCAA Presidents Commission. Council members received information concerning actions of the Presidents Commission's executive committee during its October 1990 meeting, including decisions related to the ordering of legislative proposals and required roll-call votes during the 1991 Convention. The Council also heard a report of efforts by Wilford S. Bailey and John W. Ryan on behalf of the Commission to build support for the Commission's reform agenda. The Council received the report without taking formal action.

4. Compliance Services. The Council reviewed the 1991-92 version of NCAA Forms 91-1 through 91-5 and took the following actions:

a. Approved additional instructions on Form 91-2 to clarify that part-time staff members and graduate assistants should sign the form.

b. Approved a revision to the Drug-Testing Consent portion of the Student-Athlete Statement (Form 91-3) to reflect that the NCAA Executive Committee has authorized drug testing on a year-round basis only for Division I football participants.

c. Approved a change in the Summary of NCAA Regulations, which is a part of Form 91-3, to include specific language in Bylaw 10.3 related to student-athletes' involvement in gambling activities.

d. Approved revisions in the instructions for two columns in the Status of Student section of Form 91-5 to clarify that the institution should indicate the number of years a particular student-athlete has received financial aid and the number of seasons of competition a particular student-athlete has utilized, not including the upcoming academic year or season.

5. Miscellaneous.

a. The Council reviewed correspondence submitted on behalf of the Council of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators, in which concerns were expressed as to the potential adverse impact that the 1991 Convention's reform agenda may have on member institutions' commitments to gender equity in intercollegiate athletics and compliance with the specific provisions of Federal Title IX legislation. The CCWAA also requested that the Council support a resolution directing the Committee on Women's Athletics to study possible barriers within current NCAA legislation to member institutions' compliance with Federal Title IX legislation; to report its findings to the Council by July 1, 1991, and, if appropriate, to develop and sponsor legislation for the 1992 Convention to amend current NCAA legislation deemed to be hindering member institutions' efforts to comply with Federal regulations. The resolution also would require that the committee's recommendations be sponsored by the Council for action during the 1992 Convention.

It was voted that the correspondence and its accompanying resolution be referred to the Committee on Women's Athletics for its review and recommendations, with particular attention to financial aid implications.

b. The Council received a quarterly report of the Association's governmental affairs (Note: A summary of the report appeared in the January 2, 1991, issue of The NCAA News.)

c. As part of an ongoing attempt to refine and improve all NCAA procedures, Executive Director Richard D. Schultz requested that the Council approve a study of the NCAA enforcement process in 1991 and that the Council authorize the Administrative Committee to appoint a special committee for that purpose as soon as possible.

It was voted that the Council approve a review of the enforcement process and authorize the Administrative Committee to appoint a special committee for that purpose.

d. Schultz also requested that the Council commit itself to a review of the major legislative proposals contained in the Association's reform agenda that will be considered during the 1991 Convention. It was voted that the Council agree to give priority consideration to a review of the major legislative proposals adopted during the 1991 Convention in concert with representatives of the Presidents Commission and the so-called Conference of Conferences.

6. Membership.

a. The quarterly report of NCAA membership was received for the record. It reflected 828 active member institutions as of December 10, 1990 (unchanged from the October 1990 report), and 1,034 members in all categories as of that date (unchanged from October).

b. It was voted that the Council approve applications for corresponding membership submitted by the Amateur Junior Bowlers Association, Inc., Garfield Heights, Ohio, and St. Joseph College, West Hartford, Connecticut.

c. The Division I Steering Committee reported that it had approved a request submitted by Georgia Institute of Technology for a waiver of the sports sponsorship minimum criteria per Bylaw 20.9.3.3.7.1, with the understanding that a letter shall be forwarded to the institution expressing the steering committee's concern with institutions that sponsor only the minimum required number of sports with only the required minimum number of contests and/or participants.

d. The Division II Steering Committee took the following actions: (1) Denied a request by Houston Baptist University for a geographical waiver of the basketball scheduling requirement per Bylaw 20.10.4.4.1.

(2) Supported requests submitted by 13 institutions for Division II membership criteria waivers that would be considered during the Division II business session.

(1) Approved an application for active membership submitted by York College of the City University of New York, Jamaica, New York.

(2) Approved a request for athletics consortium membership per Bylaw 30.4 for Emerson College-Massachusetts College of Art, Boston, Massachusetts.

7. Dates and Sites of Future Meetings. The Council noted its 1991 meetings for the record:

a. Post-Convention, January 11-12, Opryland Hotel, Nashville, Tennessee.

b. April 15-17, Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza Hotel (formerly Marriott Plaza Hotel), Kansas City, Missouri.

c. July 31-August 2, Sun Valley Lodge, Sun Valley, Idaho.

d. October 7-9, hotel to be determined, Kansas City, Missouri.

8. 85th Annual Convention.

a. Council members took part in a demonstration of the electronic voting system that would be used for the first time during the 1991 Convention's business sessions. It was noted that member institutions' voting delegates would receive instructions concerning use of the electronic voting instrument at the time of issuance and at the beginning of each division business session.

b. The Council reviewed the legislative proposals printed in the Convention program. (Note: Each proposal was subject to review, but only those on which action ensued are mentioned in these minutes. Certain actions were taken after consideration by the steering committees, but all are reported here in numerical order of the proposals.) In addition, actions were taken by the Council regarding interpretations of the Interpretations Committee in reviewing various 1991 Convention proposals. The Interpretations Committee's actions are contained in the minutes of the committee's Conference No. 19, conducted December 17, 1990.

(d) It was voted that the Council sponsor an amendment to Proposal No. 20 for Division I only that would permit telephone calls made by enrolled students as part of an institution's regular admissions program directed at all prospective students, except that student-athletes would be prohibited from placing telephone calls as a part of such a program.

(e) It was voted that the Council support Proposal No. 20-1 for Division II and oppose the amendment-to-amendment for Division I.

(b) The Division II Steering Committee reported its opposition to Proposal No. 23-1.

(4) At the recommendation of the Division III Steering Committee, the Council agreed that an interpretation related to Proposal No. 27 would not affect a student who never had been involved in intercollegiate athletics prior to transfer. It was the sense of the meeting that this action should be incorporated in the compilation of interpretations circulated to the Convention.

(5) The Council agreed that an interpretation related to Proposal No. 28 should be revised to state that the requirement that the student-athlete qualifies to receive such aid on the same basis as other students generally would preclude the athletics department from establishing a specific program to provide financial assistance only to incoming student-athletes.

(6) The Division I Steering Committee reported its opposition to Proposal Nos. 30-1 and 30-2.

(7) It was voted that the Council sponsor an amendment to Proposal No. 32 to clarify that the exceptions to the restrictions governing time limitations set forth in the proposal are intended to permit travel more than 48 hours in advance of NCAA championship events or certified postseason football games but would not provide an exception to the time limitation for departure from the site of competition under such circumstances.

(8) The Division I Steering Committee reported its opposition to Proposal Nos. 36-1, 36-2, 36-4 and 36-5.

(9) The Council considered the provisions of Proposal No. 37.

(a) The Division I Steering Committee reported its opposition to Proposal No. 37-1.

(b) The Council agreed that an interpretation related to Proposal Nos. 37-C and 40-C should be revised to state that the adoption of both proposals would mean that the sports cited in Proposal No. 37-C would continue to be permitted two coaches who could recruit off campus at any one time.

(10) The Council considered the provisions of Proposal No. 38.

(a) The Division I Steering Committee recommended the following actions:

(i) That the Council move to reorder the agenda during the Convention's opening business session to place Proposal No. 38-10 prior to Proposal No. 38-7.

(ii) That the Council, at the time these proposed amendments-to-amendments are considered, state its preference for Proposal No. 38-10 and its intention to withdraw Proposal No. 38-7 if Proposal No. 38-10 is adopted.

(iii) That the Council oppose Proposal Nos. 38-5, 38-6, 38-8, 38-9, 38-11, 38-12, 38-13 and 38-16.

Roll-call voting

(Editor's Note: This is the first of two summaries of roll-call votes that were conducted at the 1991 NCAA Convention in Nashville. This week's summary reports votes cast by each NCAA member institution in 56 of the 111 roll-call votes at the Convention; the second summary, which will appear in the March 13 issue of The NCAA News, will report the remaining 55 votes.)

Because of the large number of roll-call votes, the summary reports votes by ballot numbers. Each ballot number corresponds to a proposal number as it appeared in the Convention program. a. The three steering committees reported their approval of all actions in the four telephone conferences.

b. It was voted that the Council approve all of the Administrative Committee actions.

10. Interpretations. The Council reviewed the minutes of 1990 Interpretations Committee Conference Nos. 14-19. Certain of the following actions were taken by the division steering committees or by the Council after review by those committees.

a. The Division I Steering Committee reported that it had considered an appeal submitted by California State University, Fullerton, concerning the Interpretations Committee's determination that no authority exists for a Division I member institution to use a summer course taken by a prospect subsequent to the completion of the student's eighth semester and preceding the student's initial full-time collegiate enrollment during the succeeding fall term to satisfy the initial-eligibility core-curriculum requirements.

The steering committee reported that it upheld the Interpretations Committee's position that such course work cannot be used and directed that the institution be informed of its opportunity to seek relief on the basis of an appeal to the Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers. (Conference No. 14, Minute No. 8.) It was voted that the Division I Steering Committee's action be approved.

b. The Council reviewed an interpretation of Bylaw 20.9.3.3 that an institution may count participation in a Division I regional cross country meet in meeting the minimum-contest requirement, provided the institution meets the minimum-participants requirement (i.e., live participants), inasmuch as the regional qualifying meet is open to any eligible institution in the region and no qualifying standards exist for participation in the meet.

(1) The Division II Steering Committee recommended that this interpretation also apply to Division II.

(2) It was voted that the Division II Steering Committee's recommendation be approved.

c. At the request of the Interpretations Committee, the Council reviewed its October 1990 decision not to extend the principles governing third-party distributorship of institutional highlight films (as set forth in Bylaw 12.5.1.7) to other institutional commercial items (e.g., player cards, posters, T-shirts) involving the name or picture of a student-athlete with remaining eligibility. (Conference No. 17, Minute No. 4.)

(1) The Division I Steering Committee recommended that the Council affirm its opposition to third-party distributorships for institutional items, except highlight films.

(2) It was voted that the Division I Steering Committee's recommendation be approved.

d. The Council reviewed an interpretation of Bylaw 16.12.1.4 that the occasional family home meal permitted under this legislation must occur at the home of the institutional staff member or the representative of the institution's athletics interests (as opposed to a restaurant) and the member institution (or a representative of its athletics interests) may not provide transportation to a student-athlete to attend the meal. (Conference No. 18, Minute No. 1.)

(1) The Division III Steering Committee recommended that the Council revise this interpretation to permit institutions to provide transportation to student-athletes to attend occasional family home meals.

(2) A motion to revise the interpretation consistent with the Division III Steering Committee's recommendation was withdrawn.

e. At the recommendation of the Interpretations Committee, the Council reviewed the application of Bylaws 13.7.2.1 and 13.7.5.1.1 as they relate to a prospective student-athlete who arrives for his or her official visit and receives meals and lodging the first night in the community where the institution is located. The committee requested that the Council review the language in Bylaw 13.7.2.1 and recommended that the language without delay be interpreted to require that the 48-hour period of the visit be initiated once the prospect arrives on the campus or the institution provides expenses (e.g., lodging, meals, entertainment) to the prospect in the institution's home community. (Conference No. 18, Minute No. 2.)

(1) The Division I Steering Committee recommended that the current approved interpretation remain in force and that the Interpretations Committee's recommendation be referred to the Recruiting Committee for its review and recommendation.

(2) It was voted that the matter be referred to the Recruiting Committee consistent with the Division I Steering Committee's recommendation.

f. It was voted that the minutes of 1990 Interpretations Committee Conference No. 14 through 19 be approved as amended by the specific actions of the Council and the division steering committees.
