Division I commissioners back enforcement process

Commissioners of the nation's Division I athletics conferences announced March 13 their strong endorsement of the NCAA enforcement program.

The joint announcement was made by the Collegiate Commissioners Association and University Commissioners Association, which represent all of the 36 conferences in Division I of the NCAA.

CCA President Joseph L. Kearney, commissioner of the Western Athletic Conference, and UCA President Thomas E. Yeager, commissioner of the Colonial Athletic Association, in forwarding the statement to NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, said:

"The members of the Collegiate Commissioners Association and University Commissioners Association wished to express their disagreement with criticism of the NCAA enforcement program and its Committee on Infractions that has come in the wake of several recent cases.

"The NCAA membership overwhelmingly supports the NCAA's process and the penalties that have been levied. Unfortunately, representatives of institutions found to have committed violations often criticize the Association and its procedures in an attempt to convince their fans that they are defending the institution against the charges, regardless of whether those charges are thoroughly documented or even self-disclosed.

"Earlier, those same individuals may have made statements of support for the NCAA's program.

"Accordingly, the commissioners believed it was time to make a statement supporting the NCAA's process and reminding the membership and the public that the NCAA is a body of institutions, and it is the constant element in the athletics program—the institution—that must be held accountable in the athletics area," Kearney and Yeager concluded.

The joint CCA/UCA statement follows:

The NCAA enforcement program and procedures have been commended and supported by the Collegiate Commissioners Association and University Commissioners Association, the organizations of the chief executive officers of the nation's major-college conferences.

The commissioners noted the complaints most often assertions that the NCAA does not afford due process to its charged members emanated from institutions found

Added security measures in effect for NCAA winter championships

Because of the threat of terrorism as a result of the Persian Gulf conflict, the NCAA has developed a security plan to protect participants and fans at winter championships competition.

In a letter to championships directors, NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz has outlined the security measures that were developed after consultations with the FBI, local public-safety officials and certain individuals involved with security at other major national events.

"We have been advised by the FBI that the threat of terrorism in the United States may continue for several months after the conclusion of hostilities in the gulf," Schultz said in his letter.

"The resulting tensions," Schultz said, "have convinced us of the need to take precautionary measures to protect our student-athletes, their families and the fans who attend NCAA championships."

Spectators will be prohibited from taking a number of items into facilities hosting nationally televised championship practices and competition. Among the banned items are emergency pagers, cameras, video recorders, television sets, radios, coolers, bottles, cans and other containers. Bomb sweeps are planned at some championships, and air space might be restricted above some major championships sites.

Those persons who rely on pagers for their work can make arrangements for notification during the competition by contacting the facility's administrative office.

Schultz said the NCAA will conduct an education campaign to inform the public of the security measures being taken. The campaign includes signs in the vicinity of the championships sites and in staff and team hotels; mailings to ticket-holders when possible, and information distributed at sites of advance ticket sales.

Spectators are being advised to arrive early at all rounds of NCAA championships to avoid inconvenience.

The security plan includes minimum requirements for all championships, with more strict procedures planned for events that will be nationally televised. A championship could be elevated to a more strict security level by the Measure seeks tax on revenues from athletics

As reported in the February 27 issue of The NCAA News, Rep. William Henry, D-Michigan, has introduced proposed Federal legislation (H.R. 969), which would render certain receipts of intercollegiate athletics programs taxable under the Internal Revenue Code, effective with tax years beginning after December 31, 1990.

The Henry bill would amend that section of the code dealing with "unrelated business income" of tax-exempt organizations to include within that term, as to colleges and universities, (a) radio and television broadcast revenues, (b) contributions from booster clubs or like groups to the athletics program, and (c) amounts contributed to an institution in connection with a preferred-seating program.

Under the terms of the bill, these amounts—minus institutional expenses that could be attributed to generating them—would be taxable income to the institution.

Rep. Henry last year introduced legislation requiring institutions awarding athletically related financial aid annually to report, by sport, receipts and expenditures in connection with intercollegiate athletics programs. Pursuant to Congressional mandate, the feasibility and

Commission appoints nominating committee

The Presidential Nominating Committee that will develop a slate of candidates for 1992 vacancies on the NCAA Presidents Commission has been appointed and will be chaired by Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, president of George Washington University.

The committee was appointed by R. Gerald Turner, chancellor of the University of Mississippi and chair of the Presidents Commission.

Early this summer, the Presidential Nominating Committee will place an invitation in The NCAA News for chief executive officers of all NCAA member institutions to nominate candidates for the Commission vacancies that will occur next January. Those vacancies will be listed in the News at that time.

The nominating committee then will meet in conjunction with the Commission's October meeting and will develop its slate of candidates to present to the Commission. Voting will be conducted by mail, with

CEOs will be asked this summer to submit candidates chief executive officers in the various NCAA membership divisions voting to elect their divisions' representatives who will become members of the Commission at the conclusion of the 1992 NCAA Convention in January.

Included on the Presidential Nominating Committee each year are eight members of the Commission whose terms do not expire that year. All membership divisions and subdivisions are represented, as are all geographical regions.

Serving with Trachtenberg (whose institution is a Division I-AAA member) on the committee are James R. Appleton, University of Redlands (Division III); Gene A. Budig, University of Kansas (Division I-A); Robert Dickeson, University of Northern Colorado (Division II); Joseph B. Johnson, Grambling State University (Division I-AA); Tyrone R. Richmond, North Carolina Central University (Division II); William E. Shelton, Eastern Michigan University (Division I-A), and Jon C. Strauss, Worcester Polytechnic Institute (Division III).

desirability of such a requirement is now under study by the Department of Education.

In his floor statement supporting H.R. 969, Rep. Henry stated his view that "intercollegiate athletics have little to do with the educational mission of the universities which sponsor them.... (T)hese programs are large-scale businesses, operating under the golden dome of higher education. I propose that tax policy simply reflect the reality that has become more and more obvious."

The bill has been referred to the House Committee on Ways and Means. Also pending in that committee is the bill (H.R. 538) introduced somewhat earlier by the late Rep. Silvio Conte, D-Massachusetts, which would expressly exclude from "unrelated business income" revenues from corporate sponsorships, the sale of broadcast rights and licensing of certain other rights in connection with an amateur athletics event sponsored by a tax-exempt organization. Hearings have not been scheduled on either bill.

Requirements reaffirmed

The Division I Championships Committee, acting for the Executive Committee as the final authority on Division I championships matters, reaffirmed the requirements of Bylaw 31.3.4.3 for automatic qualification into the Division I Men's Basketball Championship but added an exception for conferences that previously were eligible for automatic qualification and that no longer meet the continuity-of-membership requirement per Bylaw 31.3.4.3-a.

Such a conference is excepted from the continuity-of-membership requirement following a one-year waiting period, provided the conference:

a. Is composed during the waiting period and thereafter of at least six institutions that have been members of Division I during the eight preceding academic years;

b. Retains during the waiting period and thereafter at least three of its members that have held continuous membership in the conference for the five preceding academic years, and

c. Complies during the one-year waiting period and thereafter with the requirements set forth in Bylaw 18.5.1.1.

The provisions of the exception were recommended by the Special NCAA Committee to Study Factors Affecting Automatic Qualification into the Division I Men's Basketball Championship. They had been recommended as provisions for a waiver.

The championships committee also voted to study further the automatic-qualification criteria in Bylaw 31.3.4.3 to determine their appropriateness relative to the conduct of a quality Division I Men's Basketball Championship and to the movement of institutions into Division I. The Division I Championships Committee will ask the Division I Men's Basketball Committee to submit its recommendations in this regard.

Noting that the issues related to automatic qualification may affect Division I and National Collegiate Championships other than men's basketball, the committee also agreed to discuss at its May meeting automatic-qualification criteria for other sports.

TV special to coincide with Knight Commission's report

The Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics will release its recommendations for reforms March 19, the same day that the Public Broadcasting System will devote three hours exploring conditions in college athletics.

Bill Moyers will host a 90-minute documentary, beginning at 9 p.m.,

Eastern time, that examines major-college football and basketball programs.

The documentary, "Sports for Sale," will be followed by a 30-minute live roundtable discussion with members of the Knight Commission, including NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz. Most public stations then will continue with a live, 60-minute call-in program enabling viewers to join the discussion by toll-free number (1-800/243-0135).

Other participants are Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president emeritus of the University of Notre Dame; William Friday, president emeritus of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Clifford R. Wharton Jr., former chancellor of the State University of New York, Stony Brook.

The NCAA News will publish the Executive Summary of the Knight Commission report in the March 20 issue.

1991 Column No. 11

Spring football practice—Divisions I and II

Divisions I and II member institutions should note that in accordance with 1991 NCAA Convention Proposal Nos. 111 (as amended by Proposal No. 111-1) and 112, only 10 of the 15 spring football practice sessions may involve contact. The NCAA Council, during its January 7, 1990, meeting, determined that the prohibition against contact would limit such practice activities to those in which no football gear or protective equipment, other than headgear, shoes, pants, and porous, lightweight jerseys are worn by the involved players. Thus, in those five sessions that do not involve contact, member institutions must conduct such sessions in accordance with the above mentioned guidelines.

1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 23—recruiting materials

During its January 31, 1991, conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed 1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 23 (effective August 1, 1991) related to recruiting materials that may be provided to prospects, high schools and two-year college coaches. [Note: Division I or Division II institutions may not provide recruiting materials to a prospect (including general correspondence related to athletics) until September 1, at the beginning of the prospect's junior year in high school.]

The committee determined the following:

a. Regular (as opposed to specialized) cards restrict the member institution to providing to a prospective student-athlete only postcards issued by the U.S. Postal Service (i.e., blank cards) or institutional note cards that conform to restrictions governing institutional stationery (e.g., in Division I, one color of print, single university logo); further, confirmed that a member institution may not provide greeting cards (e.g., birthday cards, holiday cards) to a prospect.

b. The limitations governing institutional stationery (e.g. one color of print, single logo) would be applicable to conference stationery.

c. The one-color-of-printing limitation on institutional stationery would not be applicable to institutional staff members' business cards.

d. A member institution may utilize a different color of typing or writing than the print on the stationery; however, the stationery (absent any typing or writing) is limited to one color of print; further, such a restriction is applicable to institutional (or conference) press releases.

e. A member institution's athletics department may utilize more than one university logo (e.g., one for football, one for basketball), provided not more than one logo appears on any one piece of stationery.

f. The restriction prohibiting photographs of enrolled student-athletes and any other promotional material on institutional stationery would preclude a member institution (or member conference) from highlighting on the stationery a specific team's (or conference's) accomplishments (e.g., national championships, conference championships, bowl games).

g. Member institutions (or member conferences) that have purchased or printed stationery prior to January 10, 1991, that do not conform to the regulations set forth in Proposal No. 23 (e.g., one-color of print, single university logo) may continue to use such stationery subsequent to August 1, 1991, until the supply is exhausted (but not later than August 1, 1992), provided all recruiting correspondence to prospects meets the one-color restriction (Note: Member conferences are precluded from sending recruiting correspondence to prospective student-athletes).

h. The restriction that limits a member institution to producing one generic all-sports recruiting videotape per year with a maximum of three minutes related to each sport would not prohibit an institution from producing a separate highlight film; however, a member institution may not send or leave a highlight film with a prospect, regardless of the institution's policy with the general public.

i. The member institution may produce only one generic all-sports recruiting videotape per year that covers both the men's and women's programs.

j. Institutional recruiting questionnaires are limited to one color of printing on the questionnaire.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to the legislative services department at the NCAA national office.

NCAA staff and host, based upon the event's visibility, its location, or FBI intelligence reports and special situations.

The security plan is divided into three levels, with the NCAA Division I Men's Final Four among those placed in Level III.

Policies for Level I (all championships events, preliminary rounds and finals) are:

- To the extent manageable at the site, 24-hour security will be implemented beginning 48 hours before the competition and will continue until the competition ends.
- Hosts should develop an inspection plan for deliveries to the competition site.
- No "standing room only" will be permitted.
- Facility management must have an evacuation plan.
- Facility management must have a plan for dealing with bomb threats.
- Facility management must have a plan for assignment of security officers in and around the competition site.
- The host, working with the facility management and Federal, state, county and city law-enforcement agencies, must designate one individual to coordinate security efforts and to serve as a local spokesperson. It is recommended that this individual form a security committee with representatives from all appropriate agencies.

Additional requirements for Level II (sites with live or delayed national television):

- In addition to those items prohibited by specific policies at selected events, no one except credentialed media representatives will be allowed to carry bottles, cans, coolers, containers, cameras, video recorders, radios or televisions into facilities hosting indoor championship practices or competition. Other items may also be prohibited.
- Emergency pagers are prohibited at all practices and competition. Fans who request special paging service will be provided with a telephone number at the competition site and will register their seat locations with the individuals staffing the emergency telephone office. (For safety reasons, the items listed above must not be stored for safekeeping at the competition site. Fans should be instructed to return the items to their automobiles, hotels or homes.)
- Media entrance to the site will be limited to one predetermined gate.
- A bomb sweep must be conducted between 24 and 48 hours before the competition.
- A "hostage team" must be on call.
- A "SWAT team" must be on call.
- Deliveries to the arena should be made no later than three hours to have committed serious violations of NCAA rules and the lawyers for the supporters of those institutions, including members of their state legislatures and their representatives in Congress.

The commissioners countered with an expression of strong support for the members of the NCAA Committee on Infractions and their recent decisions and the process by which those decisions were reached. They added that this support was shared by member institutions, which have a high degree of confidence in the members of the committee, the CCA and UCA said.

They lauded the volunteer members of the committee for their contributions of time and talent and noted that the committee included a majority drawn from the faculties of NCAA member institutions, rather than from athletics programs, and approximately half of the members were on the faculties of schools of law.

The commissioners continued that while only those individuals who heard the full details of any infractions case were qualified to evaluate the findings in the case and the penalties assessed, their observations of recent penalties led to the conclusion that the Committee on Infractions had been acting in accordance with the directive adopted at the 1985 Convention in which the Association's some 900 voting members ordered stronger, more severe penalties be assessed for violations.

On balance, the commissioners agreed, the penalties could have been even stronger than in the recent cases, based on published summaries of the cases. They noted that the 1985 Convention adopted the so-called "death penalty," in which an institution's program in one or all sports can be completely suspended for a period of time. Since that time, only one such penalty has been assessed. They noted that the committee had announced on many occasions that prospective penalties had been mitigated because of cooperative investigative and punitive efforts by the involved institution, a primary compliance goal of the NCAA.

Reemphasizing that Committee on Infractions members were in the best position to render judgments, the CCA and UCA urged them to continue to demand effective compliance programs and vigorous compliance efforts from every NCAA member.

Addressing the issue of due process, the commissioners emphasized that NCAA procedures are not formal legal proceedings such as are available in criminal courts, but rather are administrative hearing procedures similar to those conducted by such national administrative bodies as the American Bar Association and the American Medical Association. They have been written over time by nationally recognized legal scholars who have served on the Committee on Infractions. Likewise, these procedures are scrutinized constantly by the legal community and are recognized as being consistent with the standards required of organizations conducting administrative hearings.

The commissioners also noted that Federal courts have held that the NCAA is not required to adopt judicial proceedings rather than its current administrative-hearings procedures.

They invited the public, Congress and state legislatures to join them in commending the efforts of the nation's colleges to self-police the highly competitive athletics programs conducted by Division I institutions. From presidents, faculty, athletics administrators and coaches, there is an overwhelming desire for honest, well-managed programs, they said. The public should look closely and observe that while occasionally an institution complains about a penalty, usually the infractions process and the decisions of the Committee on Infractions are accepted or commended, the commissioners said.

College athletics need public support to maximize the effectiveness of its compliance programs, and the NCAA has earned it, the commissioners concluded.

Indianapolis living up to sports capital image

No wonder Indianapolis Mayor William H. Hudnut III recently proclaimed March "NCAA Month" in the city. By the time April arrives, the city will have played host to three Association championships and be on the verge of completing a fourth—the 1991 Final Four, which wraps up April 1.

"The economic benefits are obvious," said Hudnut, noting that Indianapolis hosted indoor track championships for Division I men and women (March 8-9) and will host the Division I women's swimming finals (March 21-23) and the Final Four (March 30 and April 1). "The Final Four alone is estimated to bring more than $32 million into the city, but just as important is the sense of local pride that is generated and the national prestige that comes with hosting prominent sports events."

Local organizers also are going out of their way to notify Final Four hopefuls (i.e., fans without tickets) of other activities surrounding the championship of which they can be a part.

'Bummed out? Don't be'

Headlined "Everyone can participate in Final Four activities," a release issued recently by the local organizing committee began just that way:

"Bummed out because you don't have tickets to the Final Four? Don't be. With or without a ticket, you can be a part of the hoopla, excitement and festive events that will surround the most prestigious event in college basketball." Activities included in the report were:

• Open practice March 29. From noon to 4 p.m. that day, fans may attend practice sessions featuring the Final Four teams free at the Hoosier Dome.

• Plaza Fest and Final Four Road, downtown Indianapolis, from March 29 through April 1. Indianapolis' Pan American Plaza and Georgia Street (which will be officially renamed Final Four Road for the Division I championship). Everything from souvenirs to three-point shooting contests will be available in these areas throughout Final Four weekend.

• Final Four Exhibit. From March 21 through April 2, the Pan American Plaza's American Skating Rink will host a free multimedia exhibit on the history of the Final Four. Included will be a special section on the history of basketball in Indiana.

• NABC all-America game. Market Square Arena hosts the March 29 all-star game annually sponsored by the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC). Doors open at 5 p.m., and slam-dunk and three-point contests will precede the game, which tips off at 7 p.m. Tickets range from $8 to $10.

• Easter Service. Mayor Hudnut will join others in attendance at a special ecumenical Easter service March 31 at 10 a.m. in Indianapolis' Circle Theater.

Second edition of Title IX guide available

The second edition of the NCAA "Guide to Title IX & Intercollegiate Athletics" recently was mailed to directors of athletics of NCAA member institutions.

The guide, originally published in December 1988, is prepared by Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, the NCAA's legal counsel in Washington, D.C.

The new guide incorporates the changes in enforcement practices made by the "Title IX Athletics Investigator's Manual" issued by the U.S. Department of Education in 1990 and provides detailed information regarding the standards and methods used by the Office for Civil Rights in investigating Title IX complaints.

The guide is available for $10 from the NCAA circulation office (P.O. Box 7347, Overland Park, Kansas 66207-0347, 913/339-1900).

Trojan athletes view drug-testing program as a plus

By Jim Perry

In 1985, the department of athletics at the University of Southern California, under Michael B. McGee's leadership, was one of the first in the nation to institute mandatory drug testing for athletes. It is a program in which McGee and his staff profoundly believe.

Recently, Mike Garrett, associate director of athletics and Southern California's 1965 Heisman Trophy winner, interviewed 30 Trojan athletes as part of a special review of the drug-testing program. He received an interesting response from those with whom he talked.

"I asked the athletes, 'Do you want to stop drug testing?'" Garrett said. "And to a person they said, 'No. We like the drug test, because it gives us another reason to say no.' They see it as a constructive form of discipline."

"Peer pressure for athletes at all schools to fit in is as strong as it is for all other young people. They want to be one of the guys or one of the girls like everyone else. But we tell them you don't have to lower your standards to fit in."

"And if you don't resist, you're going to get caught and could lose your scholarship," Garrett said.

"I'm pleased that they acknowledge the value of the tests," says McGee, in his seventh year as director of athletics, "because we feel that it's part of our responsibilities to them and to their parents."

In mid-January, McGee appointed an eight-member committee, which includes three medical experts in the field of substance abuse, to study Southern California's athletic drug- (and alcohol-) prevention program. The review was given even more impetus two weeks later, (February 3) when a critical story, alleging that some Trojan football players were systematically cheating on their drug tests, appeared in the Los Angeles Times.

McGee was frustrated by the story, but not surprised.

"It's not unusual for higher visibility programs to be criticized," he says. "What is important is how one responds. Even though we believe the story was not on target, we have tried to use this as an opportunity for self-examination."

"When we began drug testing in 1985, it served as a statement not only to this university but to the athletics community at large that USC was going to fight drug abuse within its programs. We are not going to be deterred."

Garrett, who is one of the members of the review committee, was hired by McGee in January and recently placed in charge of the drug- and alcohol-prevention program. Selected as one of six 1990

NCAA Silver Anniversary Award winners, Garrett has a law degree and a long record of community service.

While eager to improve the anti-drug program which tests for street drugs and steroids, Garrett feels it generally has been successful already.

"The committee has interviewed more than 60 athletes," he says, "and while we discovered we didn't follow through with some of our procedures, we also found we don't have a drug problem at USC. As a deterrent, our program has worked well."

The committee recently finished the first part of its thorough two-part investigation and issued a report.

"In the first phase of its investigation," the report said, "the committee examined USC's drug-testing policy and the actual procedures, including sample collection, security and transportation to the testing laboratory. Members of the committee also interviewed student-athletes from a cross-section of sports."

"The committee concluded that, although there are certain issues that need to be addressed, there is no evidence of any regular or systematic cheating by USC athletes."

The committee will issue a second report this spring that will contain recommendations for improving the overall program.

Southern California's antidrug program for athletics includes education, testing and counseling, and it is backed by sanctions. After a first positive test, an athlete is counseled and tested regularly for a year.

After the second, the athlete's parents are notified, he or she is suspended from the team for a week, given additional counseling and tested on a regular basis throughout his or her career.

After a third positive, the athlete is permanently suspended from the team and the scholarship is revoked.

Garrett says many of the athletes found his talks with them therapeutic.

"That newspaper story was traumatic for a lot of them, because it cast suspicion on everyone, and they wanted to air their feelings," he says. "The talks were important for me, too, because I wanted to find out how to administer the tests better so they would be beyond suspicion."

Another indication that Southern California's drug-testing program has been successful is that school-sponsored test results are not significantly different from results on the tests administered by the NCAA before championship events and bowl games.

"The NCAA tests of our athletes are a validation of our program," McGee says.

"While there have been first positives over these 5½ years, second positives have been unusual. In 1985, the first year of testing, we had a significant number of first positives. Now, it's a fraction of that number."

Garrett realizes he has a challenging task.

"We're doing everything possible to make sure our athletes get a valid test," he says. "People think it's simple, and it's not. Professionals in the testing field say they can't guarantee that people don't cheat."

"But this possibility will not prevent USC's athletics department from continuing its drug-testing program."

Perry is a former sports information director at Southern California.

Tighter CEO control favored in Harris poll

Sports fans and educators believe college presidents should be given tighter control over intercollegiate sports, but coaches are against it, pollster Lou Harris said March 7.

In a report to the Knight Commission, which is studying possible reforms in college athletics, Harris said most groups it surveyed rated the NCAA negatively on controlling excesses.

"It seems evident that the most decisive step the NCAA could take to turn around confidence in it would be to give the college presidents firm control of intercollegiate sports," Harris said.

The Knight Commission will make its report March 19. The commission was created by the Knight Foundation, an independent private body that supports causes in communities where there are Knight-Ridder newspapers.

Harris said his organization polled a cross-section of the adult population, including college sports fans.

Also surveyed, he said, were 75 Division I college presidents, 75 Division I directors of athletics, 76 coaches of men's basketball and football, 75 faculty members, and samples of faculty athletics representatives and other groups.

"The NCAA is rated negatively on controlling the excesses of college athletics by relatively close majorities of every single group surveyed, except three: directors of athletics, coaches and faculty athletics representatives," Harris said.

He said majorities of every campus group, except for coaches, favored presidential control of athletics. He did not give figures in his prepared remarks, the Associated Press reported.

Only the athletics directors and the coaches who work for them rated athletics directors as effective in controlling excesses in college sports, Harris said. He said 81 percent of the presidents rated them negatively.

As for the faculty, he said, "They give themselves low grades by 79 to 15 percent on helping control excesses in sports programs. And they feel very guilty about it."

He said faculty athletics representatives were rated negatively, 77 to 11 percent, by their faculty colleagues on how they handled excesses in athletics.

Summing up findings as to what people think is wrong, Harris said they are "that the academic program is not being given a proper priority over the athletics program, big-time athletics is designed to get favorable publicity for the school and to please the alumni rather than to give the student-athletes a decent and sound education, and TV money is far too dominant a factor."

He said women athletes and sports administrators all condemned what they believe is sex discrimination.

Visitors Center worth a look

Ed Sherman, columnist

Chicago Tribune

"The NCAA gets criticized for many things, so it must feel good for the Association to get high marks for its Visitors Center in Overland Park, Kansas. If you're in Kansas City, a trip to the NCAA's new complex is recommended."

"The bottom floor has been turned into a 12,000-square-foot museum honoring intercollegiate athletics. It includes a number of vintage photos and exhibits and a theater that shows films highlighting college sports."

Bill Benner, columnist

The Indianapolis Star

"The U.S. Supreme Court has upheld the NCAA's right to investigate and discipline its own members. And (Executive Director Richard D.) Schultz continues to make the point, with little success, that the NCAA is a voluntary organization whose members make the rules."

"In other words, if NCAA members want to complain about the rules, they should remember that they not only wrote the rules but also voted them in."

"The cheaters, virtually across the board, cry foul when they're caught and found guilty. They complain of vendettas, witchhunts and uneven-handed treatment."

"To which I say, hogwash. Run a clean, above-board program, play by the rules, and the NCAA won't even come on campus to go to the bookstore."

"Yet the cheaters, when they're caught, moan about due process. I think the NCAA's process of identifying the cheaters and punishing them is not only due, but overdue. The cheaters are winning, you see. And it must be stopped."

"To see where women's basketball has gone is really, really exciting. To market something, you have to have a product. What's happened over the last 10 years is the level of play and the level of coaching have gone up, so now we have a product."

"The key is we've begun to put dollars into marketing play. You can't market something unless you're willing to say this is important. The University of Texas at Austin and the University of Tennessee have marketing directors and sports information directors whose responsibility is to tell the world what we're all about."

"It's a creative marketing plan. I don't think we can follow exactly what the men do, because I think our product is different. I think the pressure is on more, but that's what life is all about. The more you compete, the more exciting it is, and I think it's going to teach people to be more competitive."

"When I was (head coach) at Idaho, we played one of those double-headers with the men's team. Our game was close, and the men's game was about to start. This guy told me that if the game went past regulation, we'd just have sudden death. I told him, 'We'll have sudden death, all right. The first person who walks off this court, I'll kill.'"

"I thought I'd enjoy it more, to be honest (being a Division I head coach). I guess the thing I couldn't see back then (as an assistant) was how little time you have to take in what's going on around you... how you always have to be concerned about the future."

Tournament includes two of game's most successful coaches

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA Assistant Statistics Coordinator

The 53rd NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship will feature two of the most successful coaches of all time—as well as a stellar field consisting of two 500-game winners, five 400-game winners and 12 more with at least 300 career wins.

North Carolina's Dean Smith, with a 713-208 record in 30 years, has made seven trips to the Final Four (second only to 12 by UCLA's John Wooden) and surpassed the 700-win barrier earlier this season. He joined a select group of five other Division I coaches who have won more than 700 games.

The other five who have surpassed 700 wins include Kentucky's Adolph Rupp (875), Oklahoma State's Henry Iba (767), Western Kentucky's Ed Diddle (759), Kansas' F. C. Phog Allen (746) and DePaul's Ray Meyer (724).

Nevada-Las Vegas' Jerry Tarkanian, leading his undefeated Runnin' Rebels into his 16th tournament, is the all-time winning-percentage leader among all Division I coaches with a .595-119 record for .833. (Note: Tarkanian led Long Beach State to four tournament appearances and now has 12, including nine straight, at Nevada-Las Vegas.)

Indiana's Bob Knight, next with 559 career wins, has won three championships. He is followed in career victories by St. John's (New York) Lou Carnesecca (504), Georgia's Hugh Durham (465), Oklahoma State's Eddie Sutton (452), Georgetown's John Thompson (441), Temple's John Chaney (438) and Princeton's Pete Carril (432).

Trivia question

Who are the only two coaches to take two different schools to the NCAA championship game?

Frank McGuire, St. John's (New York) (second in 1952) and North Carolina (champion in 1957), and Larry Brown, UCLA (second in 1980) and Kansas (champions in 1988). Arizona's Lute Olson is the only coach in the 1991 field who has taken two different teams to the Final Four (Iowa in 1980 and Arizona in 1988).

Let us get the other trivia questions out of the way right now. If Nevada-Las Vegas (30-0) continues its undefeated season straight to the championship, it would be the first team since Indiana in 1976 to finish the season unbeaten. Nevada-Las Vegas also has a 41-game winning streak over two seasons, now tied for seventh on the all-time Division I list.

Two other teams were undefeated coming into the tournament—Rutgers (28-0) in 1976, which finished fourth with a 31-2 record, and Indiana State in 1979 (Larry Bird's senior season) (29-0), which finished 33-1 and second to Michigan State and Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

There have been seven undefeated champions (out of 16 undefeated teams that began the tournament) since the tournament started in 1939.

The Runnin' Rebels also are gunning for back-to-back titles, not accomplished since UCLA did it in 1972 and 1973 (actually the Bruins won seven straight, 1967 through 1973). Even though Smith, 60, has not taken a team to the Final Four since his championship year of 1982, four times since then his teams were runners-up in the regional, just one victory from the Final Four. This is Smith's 17th consecutive tournament—the record ahead of Georgetown's Thompson, with 13. Tarkanian and Syracuse's Jim Boeheim with nine straight appearances now are tied for fourth.

Smith's 21 total tournament appearances puts him first among all-time coaches, and St. John's (New York) Carnesecca is third with 17 behind Kentucky's Rupp with 20.

Smith's 43 tournament wins trails only Wooden's 47. (Tarkanian is next with 33.) In tournament winning percentage among active coaches, Duke's Mike Krzyzewski is the leader at .750 (21-7), edging out Indiana's Knight at .725 (29-11). Cincinnati's Ed Jucker tops all-time coaches at .917 (11-1), set in the midst of his back-to-back championships in 1961 and 1962.

Another coach who must be mentioned in the field is Indiana's Knight, who has coached four Final Four teams and captured the championship three of those times—in 1976, 1981 and 1987. Along with Smith, he is one of only five men who both played and coached in the Final Four. Knight was a reserve on Ohio State's 1960 championship team, and Smith was a member of Kansas' 1952 title squad under legendary coach Phog Allen. Only Knight and Smith have played for and coached tournament winners.

First year, new job
Only one coach, Virginia's Jeff Jones, is making the NCAA tournament in his first year as a head coach on the four-year level. Jones also is one of the youngest coaches in tournament history at 30 (born June 29, 1960) and he is fourth on the present Division I youngest-coach list. One other coach, East Tennessee State's Alan LeForce, has previous head-coaching experience (at Charleston) but is in his first year at his current job. Thirteen other coaches are making first-time tournament appearances but have previous head-coaching experience. They are Coastal Carolina's Russ Bergman, Louisiana Tech's Jerry Loyd, Pepperdine's Tom Asbury, St. Francis' (Pennsylvania) Jim Baron, St. Peter's Ted Fiore, Wisconsin-Green Bay's Dick Bennett, Georgia State's Bob Reinhart, Montana's Stew Morrill, Mississippi State's Richard Williams, New Orleans' Tim Floyd, Northern Illinois' Jim Molinari, Wake Forest's Dave Odom and Penn State's Bruce Parkhill.

Played and coached in tournament
Seventy-six coaches have both played and coached in the tournament. Fourteen of this year's tourney coaches also played in the tournament. Smith and Knight, as mentioned, were the only coaches in tournament history to have played for a national-championship team and later coach one.

Only five men in history have both played and coached in the Final Four. Dick Harp, who both played and coached at Kansas, was the first. Then came Bones McKinney (North Carolina and Wake Forest), Vic Bubas (North Carolina State and Duke), Smith and Knight.

Virginia's Jones and Pepperdine's Asbury are in the tournament for the first time as coaches, and both played for tournament teams in college. Asbury, a starting forward for Wyoming in the 1967 tournament, led his team with 20 points in a 109-60 second-round loss to Lew Alcindor-led UCLA. He hit eight of 20 shots and got 10 rebounds vs. UCLA, and fouled out early with six points against UTEP in a 69-67 regional-third-place loss.

Jones played in the 1981 Final Four for Virginia as a teammate of Ralph Sampson and Jeff Lamp and in the regional in 1982. He averaged 11.2 points for six games in the tournament, hitting over 59 percent of his field goals. The Cavaliers lost to a Smith-coached North Carolina team, 78-65, in the semifinals in 1981 and fell to Alabama-Birmingham, 68-66, in the regional semifinals the next year.

The other 10 coaches in this year's field who also played in the tournament include Ohio State's Randy Ayers, who played for Miami (Ohio) in 1978; Creighton's Tony Barone, who played for Duke in 1966; Syracuse's Jim Boeheim, who played for Syracuse in 1966; Seton Hall's P. J. Carlesimo, who played for Digger Phelps at Fordham in 1971; Vanderbilt's Eddie Fogler, who played for Smith at North Carolina in 1968 and 1969; Texas' Tom Penders, who played for Connecticut in 1965 and 1967; Brigham Young's Roger Reid, who played for Dick Motta at Weber State in 1968; Arkansas'

Nolan Richardson, who played for Don Haskins at UTEP (then Texas Western) in 1963; Oklahoma State's Eddie Sutton, who played for the legendary Henry Iba at Oklahoma State in 1958, and Georgetown's John Thompson, who played for Providence in 1964.

Boeheim, Jones and Sutton played in the tournament for the teams they now coach. Besides those three, six other tournament coaches now are at their alma maters. They are DePaul's Joey Meyer (who played for his father Ray), Mississippi State's Williams, North Carolina State's Les Robinson, Northeast Louisiana's Mike See Tournament, page 14

Division I women's bracket filled with top coaches

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA Assistant Statistics Coordinator

Nearly all of the top coaches in the nine-year history of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship will be involved in the 10th tournament. Coaches of the past six champions are on hand—Stanford's Tara VanDerveer last year, Tennessee's Pat Summitt in 1987 and 1989, Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore in 1988, Texas' Jody Conradt in 1986 and Southern California's Marianne Stanley (at Old Dominion in 1985).

That means the first three are missing, but Barmore was a top

Dunn (335), Maryland's Weller (328), Long Beach State's Bonvicini (324), Mississippi's Chancellor (312), Montana's Robin Selvig (311), Southern California's Stanley (305) and Georgia's Landers (302).

In tournament coaching, Tennessee's Summitt has the most victories with 28, while Louisiana Tech's Barmore is next with 26. Louisiana Tech's Sonja Hogg has the best tourney winning percentage with a 14-3 (.824) record from 1982 through 1984, while Tennessee's Summitt is next at 28-7 (.800) and Southwest Texas State's (formerly at Southern California) Linda Sharp is 19-5 (.792).

seven teams selected for the second time in history. The league's automatic berth went to Louisiana State (24-6), and at-large berths went to Auburn (24-5), Georgia (26-3), Kentucky (20-8), Mississippi (20-8), Tennessee (25-5) and Vanderbilt (17-11). In 1986, the SEC also had seven teams chosen.

Georgia and Tennessee also were selected as the top seeds in the West and Midwest regions, respectively, and Louisiana State was a second seed in the Midwest. Other top seeds were Penn State in the East and Virginia in the Midwest. Four SEC teams also received first-round byes, and two other tournament teams—Arkansas and South Carolina—are scheduled to begin play in the SEC next year.

In 1991, the Atlantic Coast Conference, Big Ten Conference and the Pacific-10 Conference all had four teams selected, while the Atlantic 10 Conference, Big West Conference and the Southwest Conference had three each.

In the 10-year history of tournament selections, the SEC has a commanding lead with 57 total selections, well ahead of the second-place ACC with 37.

Some women's tourney facts

Think there is domination in women's basketball? There have been only 14 different teams in the Women's Final Four in the nine previous tournaments since 1982. Louisiana Tech, with seven appearances, leads all teams, while Tennessee has six. No other team has more than three.

Louisiana Tech, Southern California and Tennessee all have won two titles each, with Old Dominion, Texas and Stanford each winning once. Southern California won the only back-to-back championships in 1983 and 1984.

Interestingly enough, Auburn has the most second-place finishes with three, and all have come the past three years. In fact, the Lady Tigers forged a 92-12 record over the three seasons, exceeded only by Louisiana Tech's 96-7 mark, and are still looking for a national title.

Texas' 1986 championship team (34-0) is the only perfect squad since assistant to Sonja Hogg on Louisiana Tech's 1982 title team. The field also includes five coaches who have reached the championship game—Iowa's Vivian Stringer (at Cheyney in 1982), Barmore (as co-head coach in 1983 and as head coach in 1987), Tennessee's Summitt in 1984, Georgia's Andy Landers in 1985 and Auburn's Joe Ciampi in 1988, 1989 and 1990.

Long Beach State's Joan Bonvicini, Western Kentucky's Paul Sanderford, Virginia's Debbie Ryan and Maryland's Chris Weller also have had Women's Final Four teams.

In all, coaches in the 1991 tournament have accounted for 30 of 36 previous Women's Final Four team appearances. Four of this year's coaches—Bonvicini, Mississippi's Van Chancellor, Landers and Summitt have led teams to all 10 tournaments.

Most improved

Santa Clara, in the Women's National Invitation Tournament at Amarillo, has the lead for the nation's most improved women's team, up 15 games over last year going into the tournament's first round. The Broncos finished 25-3 vs. 9-17 a year ago (16 more wins and 14 fewer losses is 30; divided by two) under third-year coach Caren Horstmyer. Mercer is second going into the tournament and up 14 games (5-23 to 18-8), but is finished for the year.

Oregon State is next with an improvement of 12½ games, from 5-26 to 15-11, and Kent is fourth at 11½ games, from 5-22 to 17-11.

Among tournament teams, Western Kentucky tops the list up 10½ games (from 17-12 to 28-2) followed by Michigan State up 10 (11-17 to 21-7), Cal State Fullerton up 8½ (14-14 to 24-7), Southern California up 8½ (8-19 to 17-11) and James Madison up eight (17-13 to 24-4).

Big winners abound

Texas' Jody Conradt, with 577 victories (the all-time women's career record), leads an impressive field of winning coaches. Five other coaches have more than 400 career victories—Louisiana State's Sue Gunter (458), Florida State's Marynell Meadors (442), Tennessee's Summitt (437), Iowa's Stringer (435) and North Carolina State's Kay Yow (423).

Twelve other coaches have posted more than 300 career victories. Rutgers' Theresa Greutz heads the list with 379, followed by Cal State Fullerton's Maryalyce Jeremiah (363), Auburn's Ciampi (345), South Carolina's Nancy Wilson (340) and Penn State's Rene Portland (338).

Also on the list are Purdue's Linn ances, both Summitt and Barmore have six to lead Auburn's Ciampi, Louisiana Tech's Hogg and Sharp, with three each. Both Summitt (1986-89) and Barmore (1987-90) lead with four consecutive Women's Final Four appearances.

Five in all ten

Five teams now have been in all 10 NCAA women's tournaments. They are Louisiana Tech, Tennessee, Long Beach State, Georgia and Mississippi.

Four teams are making ninth appearances—Auburn, North Carolina State, Texas and Penn State. Three teams are in the tourney for the eighth time—Maryland, Southern California and Virginia.

Thirty-six teams are making a return visit this year from the 1990 tournament, including defending champion Stanford, winner of the Pacific-10 Conference berth. Last year, 35 teams returned from the 1989 field.

First-time teams, coaches

Six colleges are in the women's tournament for the first time—George Washington, Lamar, Michigan State, Southwest Missouri State, Toledo and Washington State.

The chart shows seven coaches in the tournament for the first time. They are George Washington's Joe McKeown, Kentucky's Sharon Fanning, Lamar's Al Barbre, Michigan State's Karen Langeland, Southwest Missouri State's Cheryl Burnett, Toledo's Bill Fennelly and Washington State's Harold Rhodes. Fanning is making her first tournament appearance as a coach (she previously coached 11 seasons at Tennessee-Chattanooga), but Kentucky has been to three tournaments—1982, 1983 and 1986, all under former coach Terry Hall.

No first-year coaches are in this year's field, although Vanderbilt assistant Ada Gee was elevated to the top position immediately after the last regular-season game when head coach Phil Lee resigned.

Louisiana Tech's Barmore has the best winning percentage among all active women's coaches with a 261-35 (.882) record in nine years. But there are six other tournament coaches who have won more than 80 percent of their games, led by Long Beach State's Bonvicini with a 324-70 (.822) record. She is followed by Stephen F. Austin's Gary Blair (153-34, .816), Texas' Conradt (577-134, .812), Iowa's Stringer (435-102, .810), Montana's Selvig (311-75, .806) and Auburn's Ciampi (345-84, .804).

Southeastern gets seven

Combined-scoring fencing finals are realistic, coach says

Penn State fencing coach Emma-nuil Kaidanov could be excused for seeing the new format for the Men's and Women's Fencing Championships through gold-colored glasses. The combined-scoring system first used last year was ideally suited to his well-balanced 1990 squad, which claimed the first combined men's and women's crown.

But Kaidanov is realistic about the strengths and weaknesses of the format, which was developed by the NCAA Men's and Women's Fencing Committee in part as a response to dwindling sponsorship numbers.

"There are shortcomings in each (scoring) system, and this one is far from ideal," said Kaidanov, whose school will host the 1991 championships March 20-24. "Every system favors someone. This one favors the strongest programs, teams that don't rely on one individual. In order to succeed, you need a full, deep squad."

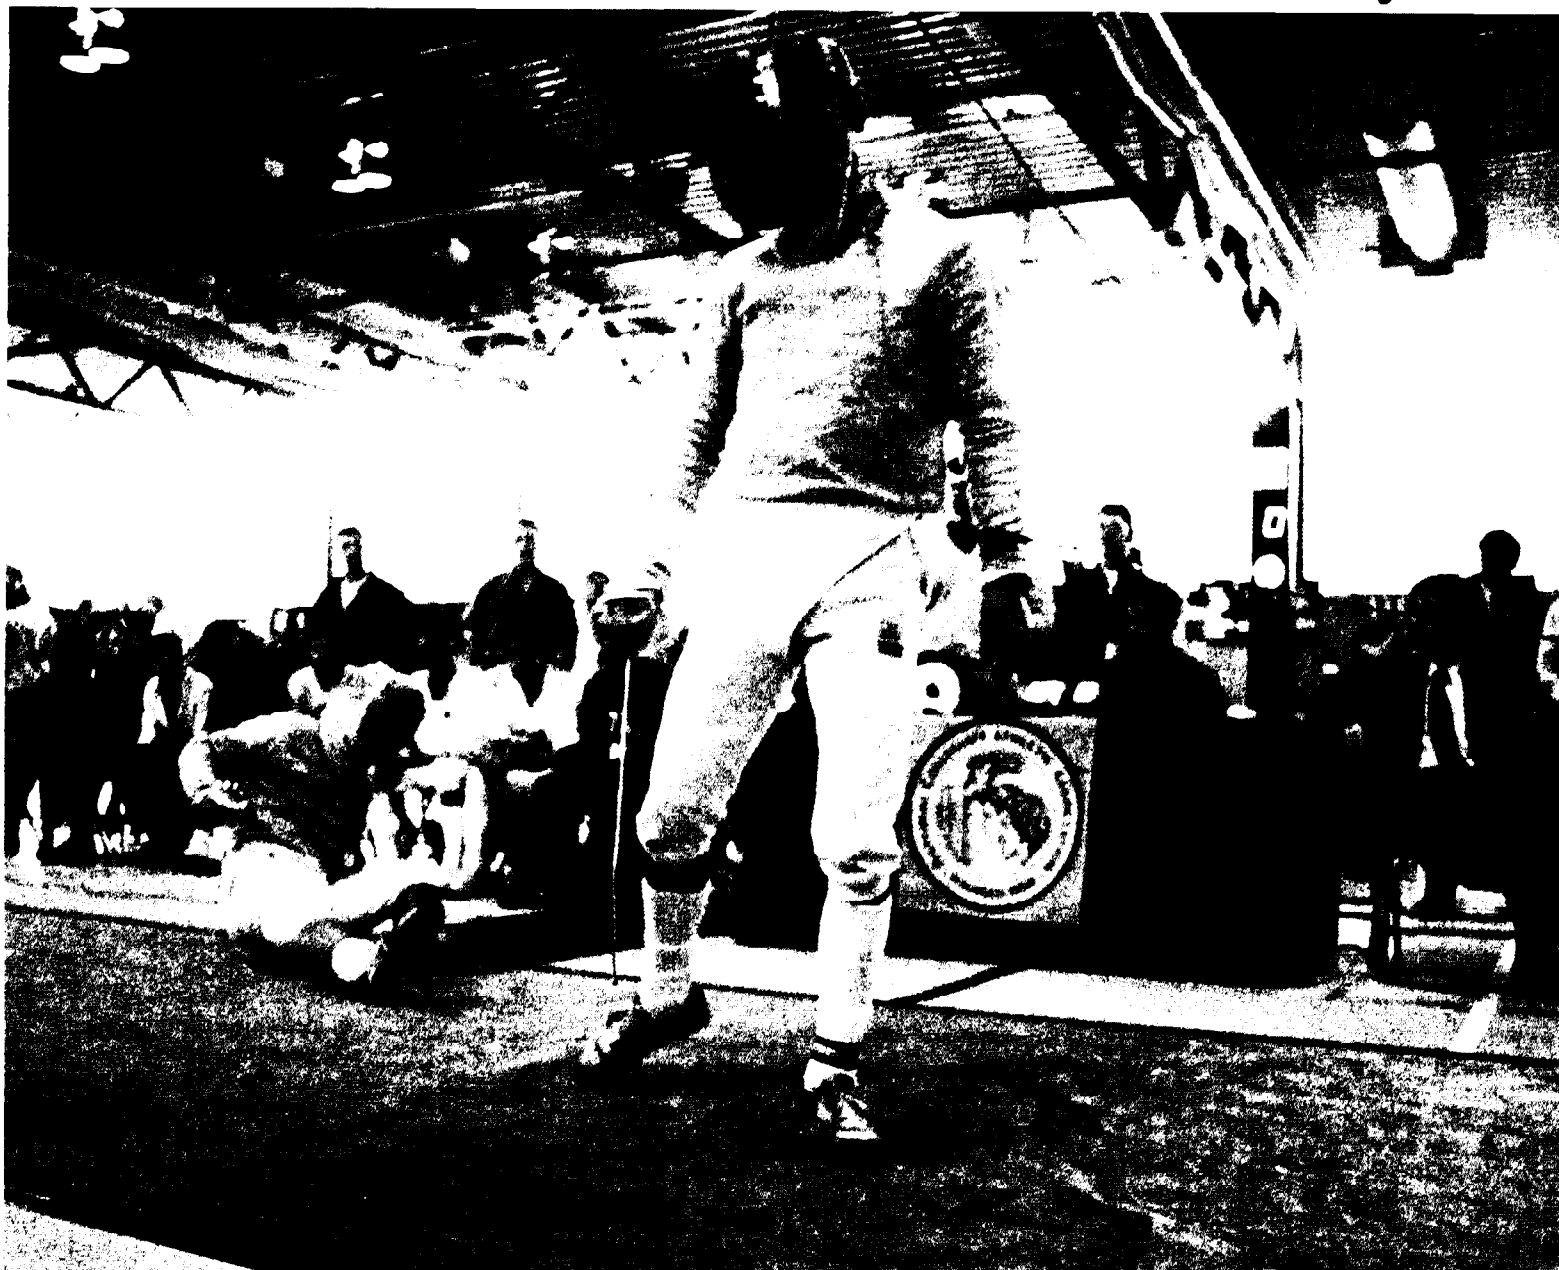

Separate men's and women's championships were held before 1990. In the men's competition, team scores were based solely on the results of the individual events. Under the new format, team finishes are determined by points earned in the four team-weapon events: women's foil, and men's foil, sabre and epee. A change approved this year also allows fencers not qualifying as part of a team to contribute a small amount of points to the team standings through their individual performances.

"In the old days, a team could lose most duals and still win the NCAA tournament with just a few top fencers," said Columbia/Columbia-Barnard cohead coach George Kolombatovich. "Now, you have to have depth in every single weapons squad. Probably only four or five schools even have a shot at accumulating the points necessary to win."

Championships contenders

One of those schools is Penn State, and the outcome of the team championship may hinge on the fate of the defending champion's epee squad.

In finishing the regular season at Notre Dame's Leszek Nowosielski finished third in men's sabre last year. He is shown at the 1990 championships in action against Yale's Seungjean Chai, who finished eighth in sabre. This season, Nowosielski—now a senior—is undefeated through 24 regular-season matches, and he should contend for individual honors.

16-0, including a 15-12 victory over Columbia, the Nittany Lion men have been virtually unstoppable in sabre (16-0) and foil (14-2). Kolombatovich calls the Penn State sabremen led by undefeated senior David Cox — "as close to unbeatable as you can get." And 1990 individual runner-up Edward Mufel (39-9) heads a group of foilists that shut out its opposition in five of 14 wins.

Meanwhile, the Lady Lions have lived up to their end of the bargain. Led by freshman Olga Chernyak, whose 50-3 regular-season record puts her among the contenders for the individual title, the women's squad defeated the top three teams in the tough Ivy Group on the way to a 15-0 regular-season mark.

The unknown factor in the team competition is Notre Dame. After finishing third last year, the Fighting Irish cruised to a 20-0 regular-season mark against mostly Midwestern competition. Their successful swing back East during early February did not include perennial powers Columbia/Columbia-Barnard, Yale, Penn State or Pennsylvania.

But the Irish are not going to sneak up on anybody; they are recognized nationwide as a well-rounded team with the balance necessary to claim the overall title. They return at least one top-three finisher from last year's individual championships in all four weapons.

Notre Dame may be strongest in epee, where juniors David Calderhead (36-4) and Jubba Beshin (24-4) head a squad that was undefeated going into the March 2 regional. Beshin is the defending individual champion in epee, and Calderhead is coming off a third-place finish.

Despite losing to Penn State's men and women during the regular season, Columbia/Columbia-Barnard has the balance and depth necessary to succeed in the new format.

"We are at least as strong as last year, and the other top teams may be a little weaker than they were," said Kolombatovich, whose team finished just one point off the pace in 1990. "We had several voids to fill, such as the loss of (1988 foil champion) Marc Kent and (1990 sabre titlist) David Mandell to graduation, but we had depth to fall back on and several good recruits."

The top freshman is Columbia-Barnard foil specialist Ann Marsh, who is the highest-rated collegiate fencer in the national open rankings. She led the women's squad with a 41-3 regular-season record and helped it to the Northeast regional team title by claiming the individual crown.

Individual championships

The biggest question mark for Columbia/Columbia-Barnard, and perhaps for the entire individual competition, is the status of 1990 champion Tzu Moy. The senior had a 20-0 record and was well on her way to a defense of her title before she injured a ligament in her wrist February 9, and she hasn't competed since. Her only three losses of the season came on the day she was hurt.

If she is present and at full strength, Moy is likely to face strong challenges from teammate Marsh, Penn State's Chernyak, Notre Dame's Heidi Piper (the 1990 runner-up) and Larissa Lehmkuhl of Wayne State (Michigan).

Other top returning individuals include Pennsylvania senior Alan Weber (33-3) and Stephan Schroder (31-1) of Wayne State (Michigan) in men's foil. Defending champion Nick Bravin of Stanford is red-shirted this season.

Championships Profile

Event: Men's and women's fencing.

Field: Eight three-man teams will compete for team titles in each of three men's weapons events: foil, epee and sabre. Twelve four-women teams will compete for the team title in women's foil. Minimum fields of 24 fencers will compete for individual titles in women's foil and men's foil, epee and sabre. The NCAA Executive Committee has authorized a maximum of 154 fencers to compete in the combined-scoring championships.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: Penn State won the combined team championship, and Columbia/Columbia-Barnard (men's foil), Penn State (men's epee), Pennsylvania (men's sabre) and Wayne State (Michigan) (women's foil) won weapons team titles.

Schedule: Pennsylvania State University will host the championships March 20-24.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 27 issue of the News.

Contenders: Columbia/Columbia-Barnard, Notre Dame, Penn State, Pennsylvania and Yale will contend for weapons team titles and the overall team championship.

Championships notes: This is the second year for a championships format in which nine titles are awarded: individual crowns in women's foil and men's foil, sabre and epee; weapons team titles in each of those four events, and an overall (men's and women's) team championship. Before 1990, separate men's and women's championships were held. ... Penn State's overall championship in 1990 was its first team title since 1983, when the Lady Lions won the women's championship. That also was the last time Penn State hosted an NCAA fencing championship event. The school never won a men's team title under the old format. ... Columbia/Columbia-Barnard, which finished one point behind Penn State in overall team scoring last year, had claimed the team title in the three previous men's championships. ... Wayne State (Michigan) finished tied for fifth overall last year after winning the two previous women's team titles. The Tartars earned all of their 16 points by claiming the weapons team title in women's foil.

Junior Heidi Piper is one reason Notre Dame's women's team went undefeated through its first 17 regular-season matches. Piper, who finished third in women's foil at the 1990 championships, is 39-1 in individual competition and is among the leading contenders for an individual women's crown.

Texas, Stanford again top contenders in women's swimming

A year ago, Stanford defeated Texas in a dual meet in Palo Alto, California, and headed into the NCAA Division I Women's Swimming and Diving Championships as the favorite to retain the title it won the previous year. It didn't happen.

Texas won a close meet, 632-622½, to retake a title it had held for five consecutive years (1984-1988). The Longhorns hope history repeats itself this year.

Stanford handed Texas its first dual-meet loss of the year, 158½-141½, February 8 in Austin behind Janel Jorgensen's four individual titles. The Cardinal now heads into this year's championships once again as the No. 1 team.

"This is a satisfying win," Stanford coach Richard Quick said following the meet. "Janel was the key to the meet. Not only did she swim her lifetime best (100-yard backstroke), but we put her into the teeth of Texas' strength—the sprints and she came up a winner.

"It's a good feeling winning the dual meet, but it only lasts three or four days," he added. "The NAAs are forever."

Forever is how long Texas and Stanford have dominated Division I women's swimming. Florida won the 1982 championship, but nobody other than Texas or Stanford has won the meet since. This year looks to be the same song, ninth verse.

Stanford and Texas are ranked Nos. 1 and 2, respectively. California and Florida appear to be the only other teams with a shot at the team crown.

Stanford boasts international competitors Janet Evans, Summer Sanders and Jorgensen. But Texas has swum against five top-12 teams and has defeated four of them.

Evans and Jorgensen combined for eight first-place finishes at the 1990 championships, counting legs on two winning relays. Evans set three meet records and two American records as a freshman last year. She eclipsed her own mark in the 1,650-yard freestyle and nudged Tracy Caulkins' 11-year-old record in the 500-yard freestyle. She set the meet record in winning the 400-yard individual medley (IM).

Jorgensen won the 200-yard IM and claimed both the 100- and 200-yard butterfly titles. Add to that duo Sanders, who won the 200-meter butterfly and finished second in the 200-meter IM and third in the 400-meter IM at the FINA World Championships in Perth, Australia, in January, and Quick has the talent assembled to possibly wrest the title away from the Longhorns. "I think we have a talented team throughout our lineup," Quick said. "But I think Texas does too. I think it will boil down to the team that swims the best at the meet.

"What we're looking for the most is team balance. We need to swim very well completely through our lineup. Texas has some pretty good swimmers on the team. It's not as though they have no talent. (Senior) Leigh Ann Fetter was voted the outstanding swimmer at the championships as a sophomore." Ironically, that was the one year in the last seven that Texas didn't win the title.

Texas is led by Fetter, who won four individual titles last year. She claimed top honors in the 50- and 100-yard freestyles and was the anchor on the winning 200- and 400-yard freestyle relays. Katy Arris, who took second in the 200-yard freestyle and third in the 500-yard freestyle; Jodi Wilson, who had third-place finishes in the 100- and 200-yard backstroke, and Amy Shaw, who was second to Jorgensen and Evans in the 200- and 400-yard IMs, respectively, lead a strong Longhorn contingent.

"We've got a pretty strong sprint corps with Leigh Ann, Julie Cooper and Dana Dutcher," said Texas coach Mark Schubert. "They all were in finals last year. We're also very deep in the backstroke."

But in order for Texas to repeat last year's turn of events, Schubert says his depth will have to shine. "I think primarily that we're going to have to swim consistently. Stanford will be favored to win more events than we are. We are going to have to surprise them."

California's Sarah Anderson won two events at a recent dual meet with Stanford. She claimed top honors in the 200-yard freestyle in a qualifying time of 1:48.59, then won the 1,000-yard freestyle. She also finished second to Evans in the 500-yard freestyle.

"I think Cal is a very improved team," Quick said. "They have a good chance to finish in the top three. It will be a battle between Cal and Florida for third, but it will be a two-team race for the championship. Cal and Florida are good teams, but they don't have the quality or depth to challenge for the title."

Florida's Nicole Haislett is one of eight Gators who have qualified for the national meet. Haislett won the 50-, 100- and 200-yard freestyle events at the Southeastern Conference meet to earn "Performer of the Meet" honors. The freshman also anchored all five winning relay teams.

"Florida was very strong in the meet against us," Schubert said. "They had the best individual performances against us. They could be a real spoiler in a lot of events. But I think it still appears that (Texas and Stanford in the battle for the title) will be the case."

Championships Profile

Event: Division I women's swimming and diving.

Field: The field for the championships will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Texas regained the championship after a five-year run was stopped by Stanford in 1989. Stanford coach Richard Quick had coached Texas to those five straight wins before moving on to coach the Cardinal, so Texas' win stopped a six-year streak for Quick.

Schedule: The meet will be hosted by Indiana at the Indiana University Natatorium in Indianapolis, March 21-23.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 27 issue of the News.

Contenders: Texas, Stanford, California and Florida.

Championships notes: No team, other than Texas or Stanford, has won the championships since Florida won the first NCAA women's Division I title in 1982. Texas has won six titles and Stanford two since then. Texas' 632-622½ victory over Stanford in 1990 was the closest in the nine-year history of the meet.

Kenyon coach Steen faces a difficult but enviable chore

Jim Steen has a difficult but enviable chore.

Steen, the men's swimming coach at Kenyon, has to find a way to convince his team that 12 straight Division III team championships is much better than 11 straight. But first, he must convince himself. "Absolutely no better than 11 straight," he said when asked how much better a dozen would be. "There is no motivation other than a desire to get out and do the absolute best you can, which you cultivate from the first day of practice."

Of course, Steen has this chore because his Lords have won 11 straight championships and will be going for their 12th straight at the Division III championships at Emory University March 21-23.

Steen will head to Atlanta with a "new" team. None of the swimmers on this year's squad have won individual championships, though some have swum on winning relay teams. "The motivation is that they will have to reestablish the direction of the team," Steen said. "There will hopefully be some new faces to emerge as leaders. Kenyon has always represented a team effort. In 1982, we won the national title without winning an event. We may have a repeat of that this year."

Jim Steen

But lest anyone start having sympathy pangs for Kenyon, it should be noted that although Kenyon lost three national champions, who claimed five individual crowns, the Lords are still loaded. Leading the pack are Brian Dowdall, who finished second in the 50-yard freestyle and swam the first legs of the winning 200- and 400-yard freestyle relays, and Patrick Kearney, who took third in the 200-yard freestyle and swam legs on two winning relays.

"We have a lot of new bodies," Steen said. "We have some good sprinters and some of the top two or three in everything. We have always had a lot of individuals who want to be 'players.'"

Besides losing 13 seniors from last year's team, 10 of whom were all-Americans, Kenyon lost Shawn Kelly, who won the 200-yard butterfly and the 400-yard individual medley besides swimming a leg on the 800-yard freestyle relay. Kelly died two days before school started in a boating accident. "Shawn would have been next in a long line of Kenyon swimmers," Steen said. "He would have only been a sophomore."

So Steen heads into the national meet with an experienced team, yet one that is driven by the memory of a fallen comrade and pushed by a coach who guards against complacency.

"It is something we look at day-by-day and minute-by-minute," he said. "Usually we're more concerned with that than anything else. Fortunately, it has not been a problem. I don't think it will be an issue if and when we do not perform up to par."

Championships Profile

Event: Division III men's swimming and diving.

Field: The field for the championships will be determined through qualifying standards set by the NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Committee and approved by the Association's Executive Committee.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champion: Kenyon won its 11th straight championship, 653½-535½, over UC San Diego. It has been six years since any team has come within 100 points of the Lords.

Schedule: The meet will be hosted by Emory University March 21-23.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the March 27 issue of the News.

Contenders: Kenyon, UC San Diego, Wheaton (Illinois), Johns Hopkins.

Championships notes: Johns Hopkins was the last team, other than Kenyon, to win the Division III championship. The Blue Jays won their third straight title in 1979 by defeating Kenyon, 340-241. Kenyon has dominated the individual honors as well. The Lords have won 78 individual championships. Johns Hopkins is second with 38. Only eight of Kenyon's championships occurred before their run of 11 straight team titles.

And does he expect to finish in the same position he has every year since Ronald Reagan's first year as President? "I really don't have a handle on it. I never go in expecting to win. We expect to do well.

"It could be within 100 points. Anything can happen. The teams that can keep their minds on business for three days can look back and be satisfied, win, lose or draw," Steen said.

"It's exciting to see people who are playing the game for keeps. Wheaton (Illinois) is one. Johns Hopkins is another. This may be their strongest team in 12 years. UC San Diego was hit hard by graduation, but I fully expect them to be right back into the thick of things."

Arkansas men save their best for last races

Arkansas and Georgetown saved their best for last in the Division I Men's Indoor Track Championships March 8-9 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. The Razorbacks and the Hoyas won two of the last three events and claimed the top two team spots.

Reuben Reina successfully defended his 3,000-meter run championship to give the Razorbacks 27 points heading into the final event, the 3,200-meter relay. Georgetown won that event, moving the Hoyas past four other teams into second place with 27 points. But the Razorbacks claimed second place in the relay to finish with 34 points and capture their eighth consecutive team championship.

Reina's 7:50.00 in the 3,000 meters established a meet record, bettering the old mark of Kevin King of Georgetown in 1985 by 1.46 seconds. It was one of four meet records. George Kersh of Mississippi ran the 800 meters in 1:46.19, eclipsing Earl Jones' (Eastern Michigan) six-year-old record of 1:47.26. Istvan Bagyu of George Mason exceeded by 6 1/2 inches a pole-vaulting record that he and Dean Starkey of Illinois had shared. Bagyu became the first athlete to clear 19 feet in the NCAA meet when he vaulted 19-0 3/4. And Jonah Koech of Iowa State ran the fastest 5,000-meter time in the three years the event has been contested.

The Razorbacks won just one event and scored points in only five, but it was enough to match the total it scored in winning in 1988 and 1989. The last time the winning team had scored fewer than 34 points was in 1978 when Washington State won the meet with just 25 1/2 points. Georgetown became the eighth team to claim second place in the Razorbacks' eight-year run.

Washington State proved tough in the short sprints, winning the 55-meter dash and the 55-meter hurdles. Tony Li defended his hurdles title from 1990 in the best time since Pittsburgh's Roger Kingdom also ran a 7.08 in 1984. Augustine Olobia won the 55-meter dash and defeated fellow football player Raghib Ismail of Notre Dame.

Olobia said he was inspired to play football by watching Ismail, a probable first-round draft pick in the National Football League in April, run kickoffs back for touchdowns. "He's my idol because he's so fast," Olobia said of Ismail.

Gabriel Luke of Rice defended his 400-meter dash title, though in the slowest time in eight years. Koech defended his 5,000-meter title, bettering his own one-year-old record by 1.30 seconds.

Tony Miller and Etheridge Green ran legs on Baylor's winning 1,600-meter relay team for the second straight year. And Bagyu continued to dominate the pole vault competition. Besides winning indoors in 1990, Bagyu won the outdoor championship last spring.

Louisiana State women hold off Texas for title

Texas and Louisiana State had alternated as team champions of the Division I Women's Indoor Track Championships for the previous five years. And although 1991 looked like the year to finally break the trend, Louisiana State upheld its end of the deal, claiming the championship in the closest finish since the year that trade-off began. The meet was held March 8-9 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis.

Louisiana State rode Mary Cobb's first place in the 55-meter hurdles and two second-place finishes to grab 48 points to Texas' 39. Carlette Guidry pulled off the 55- and 200-meter dash sweep for the second straight year for Texas.

Maicel Malone had the outstanding individual performance. The Arizona State sprinter bettered the American record in the 400-meter dash and ran the anchor leg on the Sun Devils' American-record-breaking 1,600-meter relay. Malone ran the 400 meters in 51.05, nearly three-quarters of a second faster than Diane Dixon's old American record of 51.77 and almost a full second faster than Malone's own collegiate record of 51.90, which was set less than a month ago.

"I am really excited—my first American record," Malone said. "I just wanted to run relaxed and fast. The time was a surprise."

Heading into the meet, it appeared that neither Louisiana State nor Texas had the strength to hold onto the top spots. Villanova, Florida and North Carolina all had stronger teams based on best times coming in. And Louisiana State had fallen to a tie for eighth place last year. But coach Pat Henry's Tigers rose to the occasion.

Dahlia Duhaney and Esther Jones finished second and third, respectively, to Guidry in the 55-meter dash, and Dawn Bowles finished fourth in the 55-meter hurdles. Jones also claimed third in the 200-meter dash. Camille Jackson finished second in the triple jump.

Texas scored points in more events than Louisiana State, but fell nine points short. Besides Guidry's two victories, the Longhorns claimed second in the 1,600-meter relay, Sandie Richards was third in the 400 meters, Eilene Vanis was fourth in the shot put, and Cynthia Rhodes was sixth in the triple jump.

Villanova proved strong in the middle distances, claiming all its points in the runs between 800 and 5,000 meters and the 3,200-meter relay. Sonia O'Sullivan, who won the cross country championship last fall, won the 5,000-meter run and finished sixth in the mile. Cheri Goddard took second place in the 3,000 meters and Michelle Bennett was third in the 800 meters. The Wildcats claimed fifth in the relay.

Tracie Millett of UCLA was the only other champion to repeat when she claimed the shot put title with a put of 16.54 meters (54-3 1/4).

Falcon men win crown with 98 points

St. Augustine's captured six individual crowns and ran away from the nearest competition in winning its fifth consecutive team title at the Division II Men's Indoor Track Championships March 8-9 in Vermillion, South Dakota.

The Falcons scored 98 points, which was four points better than their two-year-old record, and their 62-point margin of victory over Southeast Missouri State was just one shy of their 63-point victory over Mankato State in 1989.

Darren Moore got things off on the right foot for St. Augustine's on the first day of competition by winning the high jump. Teammate Ian Thompson claimed third. Mark Mason also scored 10 points for the Falcons on the first night by winning the long jump. He was supported by teammates Keith Holley and Jeffrey Gary, who finished second and third, respectively.

But the Falcons were not through. Before the competition was completed, Charles Johnson had won the 55-meter hurdles, Antonio Pettigrew had won the 400-meter dash, Holley had won the triple jump and the 1,600-meter relay team had claimed first place. The six first-place finishers also established a record for the most individual championships for a team.

Chris Silva of Augustana (South Dakota) defended his title in the 800-meter run, as did Luis Nunez of Long Island-C.W. Post in the 1,500-meter run.

Holley's triple jump of 15.99 eclipsed the three-year-old mark of James Browne (Abilene Christian) by .05 meters.

Wildcat women just keep winning

Just like coach George William's St. Augustine's men, Wes Kittley's Abilene Christian Wildcat women just keep winning. The Wildcats more than doubled the point total of their nearest competition in the Division II Women's Indoor Track Championships March 8-9 at Vermillion, South Dakota.

With Yolande Straughn personally accounting for 20 points plus one leg of the winning 1,600-meter relay team, the Wildcats won four events and scored 72 points in the most lopsided victory in Division II women's championships history.

Straughn repeated her rare double, winning the 55- and 400-meter dashes for the second straight year. She won the 55-meter dash in 6.96 and the 400-meter dash in 54.49, which broke her own meet record. Straughn also led off the winning 1,600-meter relay team. In just her second year of competition, Straughn has established a Division II record for the most individual championships with five.

Sylvia Dyer won the 55-meter hurdles and finished second in the triple jump for the Wildcats.

Cynthia Badgett claimed top honors in the long jump for St. Augustine's and teammate Irish Holmes won the triple jump. Holmes was second in the long jump.

The Wildcats scored points in seven of the 11 events.

Badgett's 20-1¼ established a meet record in the long jump, bettering 20-1 set in 1989 by Mazel Thomas (Abilene Christian).

Depth helps Eagles soar to victory

Wisconsin-La Crosse had only one athlete better than the rest of the field, but the Eagles' depth proved to be enough to regain a title it last claimed in 1988. The Eagles took first, second and sixth in the triple jump and won the Division III Men's Indoor Track Championships, held March 8-9 at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Connecticut.

The Eagles claimed four second-place finishes and two third-place finishes to go with Dean Cash's victory in the triple jump. Cash won with a leap of 51-0¾, followed by Bill Schroeder with a leap of 49-3¾. Todd Bruss also earned a point with a leap of 47-4¼.

Wisconsin-La Crosse finished second in the 1,600-meter relay. Schroeder was second in the long jump and Chris Mailand was second in the pole vault.

The Eagles' 58 points was the second highest score ever recorded at the Division III meet, but it was needed as runner-up and defending champion Lincoln (Pennsylvania) scored the third most points ever (47½) in the meet. Mark Whitsett won the 55-meter hurdles, Clive Terrelonge won the 800 meters and the Lions won the 1,600-meter relay.

Ben Bautch of St. Thomas (Minnesota) was the only repeat champion. Bautch won the 35-pound weight throw with a heave of 59-5, more than four feet farther than his winning distance of a year ago.

Cortland State women win first indoor title

Maybe Cortland State should make room for three trophies.

The Red Dragons claimed their first Division III Women's Indoor Track Championships team title March 8-9 at Wesleyan University. The last two champions—Massachusetts-Boston and Christopher Newport—each have won three straight titles before relinquishing the throne.

Cortland State used its strength and middle-distance running to amass the points necessary to claim the championship. The Red Dragons scored in only three events, but those three were more than enough. Vicki Mitchell, who won the cross country championship in November, won the 1,500- and 5,000-meter runs and teammate Becky Bieber won the 800-meter run. Michelle LaFleur finished second to Mitchell in the 1,500- and 5,000-meter runs and Beth Hemmett was fourth in the 1,500.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh scored in more events, but did not claim any champions. The Titans finished in second place with 44½ points. Defending champion Christopher Newport was third with 35 points.

Aside from the team competition, the meet developed into a "dual meet" competition between Vera Stenhouse of Tufts and Kim Oden of Nebraska Wesleyan. Each athlete scored all the points for her school. Stenhouse won the 400-meter dash and the triple jump, and was second in the long jump and sixth in the 55-meter dash. Stenhouse's 29 points earned Tufts fourth place.

Oden performed more consistently but her 26 points were only good for fifth.

Tournament

Vining, Rutgers' Bob Wenzel and St. John's (New York) Carnesec-ca.

Multiple teams, same coach

Oklahoma State's Sutton becomes the only coach in NCAA history to take four different teams to the tournament. He took Creighton in 1974; Arkansas in 1977, 1978, 1979, 1980, 1981, 1982, 1983, 1984 and 1985; Kentucky in 1986, 1987 and 1988, and Oklahoma State this year.

New Mexico's Dave Bliss and Southern California's George Ravcling join a select group of six other coaches who have taken three different teams to the NCAA tournament. Bliss took Oklahoma in 1979; Southern Methodist in 1984, 1985 and 1986, and New Mexico in 1991. Ravcling took Washington State in 1980 and 1983; Iowa in 1985 and 1986, and Southern California this season. The other six coaches were Gene Bartow (Memphis State, UCLA and Alabama-Birmingham); Eddie Hickey (Creighton, St. Louis and Marquette); Frank McGuire [St. John's (New York), North Carolina and South Carolina]; Ralph Miller (Wichita State, Iowa and Oregon State); Eldon Miller (Western Michigan, Ohio State and Northern Iowa) and Joe Williams (Jacksonville, Furman and Florida State).

Arizona State's Bill Frieder (Michigan), Nebraska's Danny Nee (Ohio), Vanderbilt's Fogler (Wichita State) and Utah's Rick Majerus (Ball State) are taking a second college to the NCAA tournament. That makes 80 coaches who have taken two different colleges to the tournament.

Father-son tandems

There are four father-son combinations competing in this year's tournament. Ronny Thompson is a junior at Georgetown for his father, John. Pat Knight is a freshman at Indiana for father, Bob. Sean Sutton transferred from Kentucky and now is a junior guard for father, Eddie, at Oklahoma State. Tony Bennett is a guard for Wisconsin Green Bay and father Dick.

Dean Smith

First time, long time

Five teams are in the NCAA tournament for the first time in school history—Coastal Carolina, Georgia State, St. Francis (Pennsylvania), St. Peter's and Wisconsin-Green Bay. With these five finally making the field, that leaves 70 of the 294 Division I schools who still have never made the tournament.

Other "long-timers" are Mississippi State, making its only other trip since 1963; Northern Illinois, making only its second trip, the first time since 1982 behind John McDougal; Penn State, making its first trip since 1965; Montana, making its first since 1975 under Jud Heathcote; Arizona State, a nine-time performer in the tourney but making its first trip since 1981; New Mexico, making its first appearance since 1978, and New Mexico State, making its first trip since 1979.

Breakdown by conferences

This year, the Big East Conference garnered seven selections (Seton Hall, the automatic) to tie the record, while the Atlantic Coast Conference got six, the Big Ten Conference and the Southeastern Conference five each, and the Pacific-10 Conference four. Last year, seven Big Ten Conference teams were selected, the most from one league since the field was opened up to multiple conference teams in 1975.

That same year, the men's basketball committee ruled that teams other than the conference champion could be chosen at large from the same conference for the first time. A year later, two teams from the same conference (the Big Ten) played in the national-championship game, with Indiana defeating Michigan, 86-68. In 1980, the two-team conference limit was lifted. This gave the committee maximum flexibility to balance the bracket as well as to select the best possible at-large entrants.

Most-improved race

Nebraska enters the tournament with an outside shot for the lead in the race for the national most-improved title. The Huskers are up 13½ games over last season, trailing only Radford's 15-game improvement. Nebraska is 26-7 vs. 10-18 a year ago (16 more wins and 11 fewer losses is 27; divided by two), while Radford finished 22-7 vs. 7-22 last season.

The Huskers would have to win five straight games and the NCAA title to surpass Radford, which is through for the season. Other most-improved hopefuls in the NCAA tournament field are Utah, up 11½ games; Georgia State, up 10 games, and Ohio State and St. Peter's, both up nine games. Butler, up 12½ games, is in the National Invitation Tournament field, and North Texas, up 12 games, and Tulane, up 11½, are both finished with their seasons.

Utah and Ohio State were the only most-improved candidates with winning records last year.

The all-time most-improved record is 16½ games, set by North Carolina A&T in 1978 (improved from 3-24 to 20-8) and Murray State in 1980 (improved from 4-22 to 23-8).

Historical perspective

Since the first NCAA men's championship in 1939, the number of teams in the tournament has increased from eight to 64 and the number of automatic berths has expanded from 10 in 1951 to 30 in 1991 (actually, there were 29 automatics this season because of Missouri's ineligibility and the Tigers' Big Eight Conference tournament title). Attendance for the tournament obviously is tied to the number of games and teams in the field. Since the 1939-1949 decade, when the tournament's 55 sessions attracted 593,032, attendance has increased more than nine-fold to 4,606,969 in the 304 sessions during the decade 1980-1989.

Last year's 553,337 tournament attendance (16,275 per session) was third in history, trailing just 1987 (654,744, 19,257 per session) and 1989 (613,242, 18,037 per session). Attendance for the championship game was projected to exceed the 1 million mark in 1991 after a 935,798 total (17,996 per game) through the 1990 tournament. The largest crowd for a game or session in tourney history was 64,959 in the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans for the 1987 championship game between Indiana and Syracuse and the national semifinals matching Indiana-Nevada-Las Vegas and Syracuse-Providence.

The largest first-round single session crowd was 39,940 in the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis for the 1990 Midwest second session between Texas and Georgia and Purdue and Northeast Louisiana.

The most-watched college basketball game was the 1985 championship game between Georgetown and Villanova, which was seen by 19.8 million homes. In financial terms, the 1990 tournament generated the most revenue for the teams as the 64-team field split $40,287,844, including $1,472,339 for the Final Four squads. Television revenue for the tournament has grown from $550,000 in 1970 to $63,505,000 (83.4 percent of the gross revenue) last year.

The seeding process for the bracketing began in 1978, when a maximum of four automatic-qualifying conference teams were seeded in each of four regional brackets based upon the team's respective conferences' won-lost percentage in tournament play during the previous five years. In 1979, the bracket was expanded to 40 teams and all teams were seeded for the first time.

Council minutes

Following are the minutes of the January 11, 1991, meeting of the NCAA Council, which was held at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tennessee. All actions taken during the meeting are included.

1. Introductory Remarks. NCAA President Judith M. Sweet welcomed the Council's newest members and noted for the record that a handbook of Council policies, procedures and related information will be provided to Council members.

2. Review of 85th Annual Convention.
a. The Council discussed the operation of the Convention just concluded, noting that Convention arrangements are the responsibility of the Executive Committee. It was noted that all of the Council's comments and suggestions would be reviewed by the Executive Committee in its May meeting.

(1) Council members discussed arrangements for seating during Convention business sessions.

(a) It was the sense of the meeting that assigned seating by division and by Division I conference for delegates during the general business session should be continued and that assigned seating by conference should be expanded to include the division business sessions.

(b) One Council member suggested that seating in the front of the room should be reserved for each institution's voting delegates, with others seated in the rear of the hall. It was noted, however, that senior women administrators and chief executive officers often are appointed as visiting delegates, and it would be inappropriate to separate those individuals from the voting delegates.

(2) Council members discussed means by which to improve the voting process.

(a) It was the sense of the meeting that electronic voting should be continued and the process refined.

(b) It was the sense of the meeting that printed results of electronic votes should be available promptly during the business sessions and in sufficient quantity to permit opportunities for reconsideration. It was noted that this is of particular importance in instances in which a specific roll-call vote is close.

(c) It was the sense of the meeting that the printed results of roll-call votes should be displayed in an area more convenient to the voting delegates than the media headquarters.

(d) One Council member suggested that a means be identified by which to establish confidence early that the vote is being recorded accurately for each institution. It also was suggested that because a substantial number of chief executive officers now serve as institution's voting delegates, consideration be given to establishing a simpler means by which someone other than the voting delegate is able to procure the voting equipment upon registration.

(3) Council members discussed matters related to the business sessions in general.

(a) Several Council members suggested that video screens be placed in the business sessions to display images of individuals speaking on the Convention floor.

(b) Several Council members suggested that the proposal under consideration be displayed on a video screen at all times during the business sessions.

(c) Other suggestions included:
(i) Numbering microphones during the opening business session.

(ii) Including in registration materials a reminder that voting delegates should bring voting paddles to the Convention's opening session.

(iii) Establishing a means by which Council members can communicate during the business sessions. It was suggested that a staff member be assigned to each division vice-president.

(iv) Preparing a legislative score card of the proposals being voted on in a given business session, including each proposal's intent.

(4) Council members discussed means by which to improve Convention registration.

(a) Council members suggested that consideration be given to starting Convention registration sooner, inasmuch as lines were long on Sunday afternoon.

(b) One Council member suggested that two registration lines be established, one for cash and one for credit.

(5) The Council discussed arrangements for the honors dinner.

(a) Several Council members suggested that assigned seating similar to that currently used at the Honda Broderick Awards dinner be established for the honors dinner.

(b) It was suggested that table tickets be provided for those who prefer to be seated together during the honors dinner and that seating at those tables be assigned.

(c) One Council member suggested that random and assigned seating be alternated by rows to ensure that those who prefer random seating not be seated in the back of the hall.

(6) One Council member suggested that extra banks of phones be installed for use during the Convention's busiest days.

(7) One Council member suggested that consideration be given to reducing the amount of time that delegates are required to be at the Convention.

b. Council members reviewed action taken by the Convention concerning proposals sponsored by the Council. It was noted for the record that 66 proposals were adopted (all or in part), two were defeated and two were withdrawn. It also was noted that all unsuccessful Council-sponsored legislation from the Convention will be reviewed by the Council in April.

3. Membership.

a. The Division II Steering Committee reported its election of the following 13 new active members, effective September 1, 1991: Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City, Tennessee; Catawba College, Salisbury, North Carolina; Francis Marion College, Florence, South Carolina; Gardner-Webb College, Boiling Springs, North Carolina; Lander College, Greenwood, South Carolina; Limestone College, Gaffney, South Carolina; Mars Hill College, Mars Hill, North Carolina; New Mexico Highlands University, Las Vegas, New Mexico; Presbyterian College, Clinton, South Carolina; West Liberty State College, West Liberty, West Virginia; Wheeling Jesuit College, Wheeling, West Virginia; and Wingate College, Wingate, North Carolina.

b. The Division III Steering Committee reported its election of the following four new active members, effective September 1, 1991: The Defiance College, Defiance, Ohio; Fontbonne College, St. Louis, Missouri; State University of New York College at Old Westbury, Old Westbury, New York; and Wiley College, Marshall, Texas.

Free, Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference, to replace Marino H. Casem, Southern University, Baton Rouge, and Jerry M. Hughes to replace Rosemary Fri, University of Northern Colorado. It was noted for the record that Hughes would resign his Council position upon assuming his new duties as a member of the Executive Committee.

(2) It was noted for the record that Douglas S. Hobbs and Anthony F. Coddia became Executive Committee members automatically by virtue of their elections as Divisions I and II vice-presidents, respectively.

b. Minority Opportunities and Interests.

(1) The Division I Steering Committee appointed Barbara Church, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference; Council member Joseph N. Crowley; C. Vivian Stringer, University of Iowa; Council member Shirley A. Walker, Rudy Washington, Drake University; and Charles Whitcomb, San Jose State University.

(2) The Division II Steering Committee appointed Emma J. Best, University of District of Columbia; Leon G. Kerry, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association; and Council member Douglas T. Porter.

(3) The Division III Steering Committee appointed Earl Edwards, University of California, San Diego; Mary Jo Gunning, Marywood College; and Council member William E. Lide.

(4) The Council appointed Whitcomb to serve as chair.

c. Olympic Sports Liaison.

(1) The Division I Steering Committee recommended that the Council authorize the Administrative Committee to make these appointments, with the understanding that there be active solicitation of women and minority nominees.

(2) It was voted that the Council authorize the Administrative Committee to make these appointments, noting recommendations submitted in this meeting by the Divisions II and III Steering Committees.

d. Two-Year College Relations.

(1) The Division I Steering Committee recommended that these committee appointments be referred to the Administrative Committee for action, taking into account the recommendations of the Special Committee to Review Relationships with Two-Year Colleges.

(2) It was voted that these committee appointments be referred to the Administrative Committee consistent with the Division I Steering Committee's recommendation, noting recommendations submitted in this meeting by the Divisions II and III Steering Committees.

e. Interpretations.

a. It was voted that the provisions of Proposal No. 27 would be applicable only to a student-athlete's academic eligibility at the institution from which the student transferred.

b. The Council considered an interpretation of the provisions of Proposal No. 51 that a majority of all Division I member institutions sponsoring the sport (not just a majority of those responding to the survey) must approve a Division II or III institution's petition to have one of its sports classified in Division I. It was the sense of the meeting that inasmuch as Proposal No. 51 was not adopted during the 1991 Convention, this matter should be considered during the Council's April meeting.

c. The Division I Steering Committee reported that it had reconsidered its action during the pre-convention meeting to affirm an interpretation of Bylaw 14.3.1.1.1-(a) that there is no authority to permit a prospective student-athlete in Division I to use a summer course taken for graduation subsequent to the completion of the student's eighth semester to satisfy the initial-eligibility, core-curriculum requirements. The Division I Steering Committee reported that it reaffirmed its earlier action, with the understanding that the institution be advised that it should file an appeal for a waiver in this case with the Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers.

d. The Council considered an appeal submitted by the Ohio Valley Conference on behalf of a student-athlete enrolled at Murray State University concerning action taken by the Eligibility Committee regarding an extension of the student-athlete's five-year period of eligibility under the provisions of Bylaw 30.5.1. Consistent with the recommendation of the Division I Steering Committee, it was the sense of the meeting that the Administrative Committee be authorized to act on the Council's behalf in relation to the specific case in question; further, that the Council review during its April meeting whether the current application of the provisions of Bylaw 30.5.1 results in inequitable treatment between fall- and spring-sport participants.

6. Postseason Football Ticket Allocations.

As a result of the 1991 Convention's adoption of Proposal No. 65, the Council considered a recommendation by the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee that the Council amend Bylaw 30.8.10 to specify that a member institution that participates in a certified postseason bowl game shall notify the management of the game regarding the number of tickets the institution shall be responsible for purchasing not later than noon on December 1 or one week after the Saturday the institution is invited or qualifies by contract to participate in the game. It was the sense of the meeting that the committee's recommendation be approved.

7. Legislative Review Committee. The Council reviewed recommendations of the Legislative Review Committee deferred from the Council's pre-convention meeting.

a. The Council reviewed policies recommended by the committee to improve the procedures used to develop and review proposed legislation.

(1) The committee recommended that the First and Second Publications of Proposed Legislation and the Official Notice be sent to the same individuals who receive copies of The NCAA News. It was voted that action concerning this recommendation be delayed until cost estimates can be obtained for the Council's review in April.

(2) The committee recommended the following:

(a) That information be included in the mailings related to amendments and amendments-to-amendments that the national office accepts copies (including facsimiles) of the amendment submission forms.

(b) That the first mailing concerning the submission of amendments include information as to the requirement for cost estimates and procedures related to the submission of resolutions (e.g., deadlines, sponsorship requirements, statements of intent and rationale).

(c) That in situations in which a primary contact person submits a proposal modification in accordance with the established deadline, space be included on the submission form to indicate that he or she has obtained the approval of all of the sponsors regarding the modification.

(d) That instructions regarding requested interpretations be included in the First and Second Publications of Proposed Legislation, as well as the Official Notice.

(e) That information related both to amendments-to-amendments and the Second Publication of Proposed Legislation be distributed in a single mailing.

(f) That sponsors of an amendment-to-amendment be required to include a cost estimate (if applicable), a statement of intent and (if the sponsors so desire) a rationale statement (not more than 50 words); further, that the sponsors be required to designate a primary contact person (for contact by the national office staff).

(g) That the sponsors of a proposed amendment be required to make any changes in the proposal's rationale statement by the deadline for the sponsor-modification process.

(h) That in the event sponsors of a proposal notify the national office of their intent to withdraw a proposal, and such notification occurs after the deadline for the sponsor-modification process but prior to October 15, information be included in the Official Notice to indicate the sponsor's intent to withdraw the proposal at the Convention.

(3) It was voted that the Council approve these recommendations:

b. The committee recommended a revised legislative timetable for the submission and consideration of legislative proposals.

It was voted that the committee's revised timetable be approved. (Note: Subsequent to this meeting, the Administrative Committee postponed implementation of the revised timetable for one year.)

8. Resolution Concerning Operation Desert Shield. The Council considered a request submitted by a member institution that the Council adopt a resolution that the NCAA supports the men and women of Operation Desert Shield and asks that all possible diplomatic and military means be used to end the war quickly, preferably within days. It was voted that the Council not sponsor such a resolution inasmuch as it is unrelated to the purposes and jurisdiction of the Association.

9. Division Steering Committees. The Division I Steering Committee reported that it had authorized the Administrative Committee to act on a request that the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.3.3 (1990-91 NCAA Manual) be amended to add a women's basketball evaluation period for a certain classification of high schools in the state of Virginia from November 2 through November 22, inasmuch as the adoption of Proposal No. 6 during the 1991 Convention placed the Association's recruiting calendars in the administrative regulations of the NCAA Manual.

10. Dates and Sites of Future Meetings.
a. The Council noted its remaining 1991 meetings for the record:

(1) April 15-17, Holiday Inn Crowne Plaza Hotel (formerly Marriott Plaza Hotel), Kansas City, Missouri.

(2) July 31-August 2, Sun Valley Lodge, Sun Valley, Idaho.

(3) October 7-9, hotel to be determined, Kansas City, Missouri.

b. The Council noted its meetings that will be held in conjunction with the 1992 Convention at the Anaheim Hilton Hotel, Anaheim, California:

(1) January 5-10 (1991 Council).

(2) January 11-12 (1992 Council).

11. Other Business.

It was voted that the Administrative Committee be authorized to appoint the Council Subcommittee to Review NCAA Legislative Procedures, as recommended by the executive director.

12. The meeting was adjourned at 12:16 p.m.

State legislation affecting athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect or is otherwise of interest to the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 47 bills from 24 states. The report includes 32 bills that have been introduced and 15 pending bills on which action has been taken since the last report (see the February 20, 1991, issue of The NCAA News. Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of February 22, 1991. Bills were selected for inclusion in this report from a larger pool of bills concerning sports, and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in the report by subject:

Better knowledge of national office operations is program's goal

Conference administrators wishing to learn more about how the Association's national office operates can do so through participation in the conference-exchange program, according to legislative assistant Shane Lyons, who serves as the program administrator.

"The whole point of the program is to enhance the membership's understanding of the day-to-day operation of the national office," Lyons said.

During a day-and-a-half visit, conference administrators have the opportunity to meet with representatives from as many as six departments, including administration, business, championships, communications, compliance, enforcement, legislative services and publishing. Every visit includes attendance at a legislative services staff meeting.

Conferences officials who have participated in the program have found it to be useful.

"I feel the program is long overdue," said Bob Vanatta, commissioner of the Sunshine State Conference. "There is no doubt in my mind that the program brings the NCAA office and NCAA members closer together. I can also see this as a plus for staff members to bring them closer to the everyday operation of the various conferences and NCAA members. The more contact they have with us, the better."

Lyons said that in addition to specifying departments in which they are interested, participants should consider which areas within the department interest them most.

He also stressed that the opportunity isn't limited to Division I member conferences.

"This program is for any conference in any division and is intended for the staff from member conferences," Lyons said. "We have averaged nine conference visits per year during the first two years of operation of the program and are looking to attract more this year."

Lyons said that hotel accommodations and meal expenses are covered by the national office while a conference is in Overland Park. Conferences are responsible for all transportation expenses incurred during the visit.

The visits are scheduled on a first-come, first-served basis. Conferences are given a two-week win-

Three sports eliminated at UCLA

As a result of an accumulated budget deficit of $3 million, the department of athletics at the University of California, Los Angeles, is eliminating men's water polo and men's and women's crew.

Peter T. Dalis, director of athletics, said, "We investigated every possible way to crase our accumulated deficit, and in an era of limited resources, the university's conclusion is that we cannot do it without eliminating sports. "Chancellor Charles Young and his executive budget committee have taken the position that the department of athletics, like other university departments, may no longer operate with a deficit and must take steps to ensure the reduction of the accumulated deficit," Dalis said.

CORRECTIONS

A headline appearing with a story in the March 6 issue of The NCAA News on the availability of grants for alcohol-education programs inadvertently referred to such programs as "drug-education" programs. The grants specifically are for programs addressing alcohol education.

A Championship Profile box that appeared in the February 20 issue of the News with a preview of the Division III Men's Basketball Championship incorrectly reported that only two players have been selected for the Division III all-tournament team two consecutive years. Four players have been selected two straight years—Michael Harper of North Park (1978 and 1979), Michael Thomas of North Park (1979 and 1980), Mark Linde of Wisconsin-Whitewater (1983 and 1984) and Dana Janssen of Nebraska Wesleyan (1985 and 1986).

Basketball player helps evacuate burning building

Augustana College (Illinois) basketball player Kevin Skillett was on his way to the barber shop February 16 before his team's big game against North Central College when he spotted smoke and flames spewing from an East Moline, Illinois, apartment.

Skillett told Ross Bielema of the Quad-City Times that he decided to stop when he saw no police or firemen at the scene. When he opened the stairway door on the lower floor, he saw three youngsters sitting on the stairs crying.

He grabbed two of the kids and delivered them safely to a nearby retail shop. Another (unidentified) man removed the third child. He and Skillett then returned to the burning building to alert other residents.

"It kind of puts everything in perspective," said Skillett, who eventually did get that trim. "I thank God I was in the right place at the right time."

Five Livingston University pitchers combined February 28 to toss a pair of no-hitters in a sweep of Miles College (4-0, 17-0).

Sophomore Eric Tyson went the distance in the first game, striking out 13 batters while walking only one. Tiger pitchers Terry Bauer, Jason Eatman, Tom Graham and Jesse Logan combined for the no-hitter against the Golden Bears in the nightcap.

"This is unbelievable," said Livingston coach Mark Hogan. "I don't know if this has ever happened before. It certainly hasn't happened here."

Armstrong State College baseball coach Joe Roberts earned career victory No. 500 March 6 when his Pirates defeated the University of Missouri, St. Louis, 13-0. According to information from Armstrong State, Roberts, 39, is believed to be the youngest active coach in Division II—and possibly in any division—to reach 500 career victories. Anyone know anybody younger who has coached 500 college baseball victories?

From Mike DiTullio, St. Lawrence University assistant sports information director: "In reference to Bucknell (University) SID Bo Smolka's request (for information) about the fastest collegiate wrestling pin—in 1936, the University of Oklahoma's Harley Strong pinned St. Lawrence's John Hamilton in 5.5 seconds. According to St. Lawrence coach John Clark, it is the collegiate record."

North Atlantic Conference Commissioner Stuart P. Haskell Jr. announced March 5 that the league's women's basketball championship trophy will be named in honor of retiring Northeastern University women's athletics director Jeanne L. Rowlands.

"Jeanne is a nationally recognized leader in women's athletics," said Denis E. Lambert, NAC president and athletics director at the University of Vermont. "I can't think of a more fitting action by our conference."

The Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) is sponsoring a conference on higher education, athletics and alumni April 4-5 at Chicago's Forum Hotel.

Among those on the conference faculty are Paula Bonnet, assistant executive director of the Wisconsin Alumni Association; Hiram Green, associate director of alumni affairs three multipurpose courts for basketball, volleyball and tennis; handball, racquetball and squash courts; a fitness center; a sports-medicine clinic; office and meeting space; team and locker rooms, and lounges.

Colby-Sawyer College officials held a ribbon-cutting ceremony February 22 to open the school's new $8 million sports center, which has been named in honor of college trustee Dan Hogan and his wife, Kathleen.

Included in the facility are a competition-size pool; a field house with a jogging track suspended above performance information as possible—even if it takes a while. Some of the following grade reports are somewhat dated—and there are plenty more than have yet to be typeset—but they'll all appear in this space eventually.
