Betty Ford Center program underway

One of the participants in the NCAA/Betty Ford Center program on alcohol and drug-addiction awareness called it one of the most powerful experiences of his life.

That was Carl Wartenburg, special assistant to the president of Princeton University. He was one of six NCAA delegates who spent three days earlier this year at the center in a program established to help coaches and administrators at NCAA member schools expand their awareness and understanding of alcoholism and addiction treatment.

The NCAA and the Betty Ford Center in Rancho Mirage, California, announced the program last December. It is being subsidized by Capital Cities/ABC Sports.

Another participant, A. P. Ferrante, psychologist for athletes at Ohio State University, called the program "Profound. Not only has my awareness and understanding of the disease grown tremendously, but in a special kind of way, so have I."

Other participants were Kristin Burns, associate director of women's athletics at Northeastern University; Henry VanSant, associate director of athletics at East Carolina University; Barry Kinsey, faculty athletics representative at the University of Tulsa, and Ron Orr, assistant director of athletics at the University of Southern California.

More than 40 representatives from NCAA member institutions have enrolled for this program through next fall. There are a limited number of openings in each session. The next program is scheduled April 16-19. Other dates are May 28-31, August 20-23, September 3-6, October 1-4, October 29-November 1, November 12-15, December 3-6 and December 18-21. About 80 openings in the program have been reserved by the NCAA for 1991.

The ABC Sports subsidy will allow officials and coaches representing every NCAA member institution to participate in the program. However, each member is limited to one representative during the next five years.

American Airlines offers a Meeting Saver Fare that provides participants of the Professional in Residence program a 45 percent discount on round-trip, unrestricted day-coach fares for travel on American to and from Palm Springs. In addition, American offers a five percent discount on the lowest applicable round-trip fare. For these fares, all fare rules and restrictions apply.

National Student-Athlete Day events set

Individuals and groups whose achievements exemplify the successes of support systems that promote academic as well as athletics success will be honored April 6 as part of the nationwide celebration of National Student-Athlete Day.

Giant Steps awards will be presented that day to the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics; Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey; Jerry Richardson, girls' basketball coach at Shiprock High School in Arizona; Shane Wood, a 13-year-old Texas soccer player who was born without hands; Mike Ilitch, head of the Little Caesar's pizza chain and owner and president of the Detroit Red Wings ice hockey club, and Nate "Tiny" Archibald, a recent Basketball Hall of Fame inductee who is active in youth programs.

The awards will be presented as part of the fourth annual celebration of the day that by a proclamation of Congress honors the achievements of student-athletes in the classroom and community.

More than 500 events are planned in all 50 states to mark National Student-Athlete Day, which is sponsored by Northeastern University's Center for the Study of Sport in Society and the National Consortium for Academics and Sport.

This year's theme for the day is "Teamwork." The theme "was chosen to assist young people in the understanding that by extending the concept of cooperation and lessons learned through sports into other facets of their lives, they can improve relations across racial lines," said Richard Lapchick, director of the Center for the Study of Sport in Society.

The Giant Steps awards are presented in the following categories:

• Academic Incentive: To the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics, for its role in helping student-athletes strike a balance between academics and athletics and its leadership in achieving improved graduation rates.

• Civic Leader: Sen. Bill Bradley, for his service as an honorary co-chair of National Student-Athlete Day and his sponsorship of the Student Right-to-Know Act, and Mike Ilitch, who is being honored for paying tuition for Detroit Red Wings players who wish to complete their education and for his sponsorship of summer youth athletics programs.

NACDA convention scheduled June 9-12

The most significant issues in intercollegiate athletics today will be topics of discussion at the 26th annual convention of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA).

NACDA members, including members of the Division I-A Directors Association, will gather June 9 through 12 at the Marriott Hotel and Marina in San Diego, California.

Convention topics include "Light and Shadows on College Athletics," "Image Enhancement of College Athletics" and "Slicing the Billion-Dollar Pie," as well as women's athletics and successful fund-raising projects.

Also scheduled is a session on "Economic Realities of College Athletics," with NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz as the featured speaker.

Athletics directors attending the Division I-A directors' meeting are expected to discuss reform measures adopted at the 1991 NCAA Convention, the report of the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics and other issues during their sessions on June 9, 10 and 11.

A luncheon June 10 will feature the presentation of the second annual NACDA/Disney Scholar-Athlete awards. The next day, NACDA will hold its James J. Corbett award luncheon, with longtime ABC sportscaster Keith Jackson as featured speaker.

NACDA has not yet announced who will deliver the convention's keynote address June 10.

"With all the changes occurring in collegiate athletics today, our annual convention is the perfect forum for administrators at all levels to come together for worthwhile, meaty discussions of important issues," said Frank Windegger, director of athletics at Texas Christian University and NACDA president. "The sharing of ideas and common problems is an important exchange that helps us all to do our jobs better."

In addition to various panel and round-table discussions, the convention also will offer displays of more than 100 athletics-related companies and services in the hotel's exhibit hall.

The convention officially opens with the keynote address at 8 a.m. June 10 and will be adjourned at 10:45 a.m. June 12. NACDA's annual Management Institute is scheduled for June 13 through 15.

• Coach: Jerry Richardson, who has coached his Shiprock Lady Chieftains to three state titles and in the process has been credited with renewing community pride on the Navajo Reservation, in addition to playing a role in cutting the school's dropout rate.

• Courageous Student-Athlete: Shane Wood of Brownwood, Texas, who refuses to wear prosthetic devices to compensate for having no hands, yet plays soccer, bowls, skates and skis and will play baseball this spring. He also maintains a B-plus grade average and is active in school and church activities.

• Community Service: Nate Archibald, a graduate of the University of Texas at El Paso who has worked as a commissioner and coach in youth-enrichment programs and is currently enrolled in doctoral studies at Fordham University.

In addition to recognition of the Giant Steps awards recipients, a variety of other events are scheduled around the nation on National Student-Athlete Day. The following are just a sampling:

• The public schools of Fairfax County, Virginia, will sponsor activities involving all of those schools' 299 sports teams and 115 cheerleading squads, including recognition of the top student-athlete on each of those teams.

• Student-athletes from the University of California, Santa Barbara, will speak at all of the 23 elementary, middle and high schools in the Santa Barbara school district, and each of those schools will honor members of their 129 winter sports teams and nine cheerleading squads.

• The University of South Carolina, Columbia, is joining with Big Brothers/Big Sisters to sponsor an event honoring 29 high-school student-athletes and all South Carolina honor roll students.

• Banquets honoring student-athletes also are scheduled at Loyola Marymount University, Texas A&M University and the University of Central Florida.

NCAA President Judith M.

Sweet, director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego, is an honorary cochair for this year's observance of National Student-Athlete Day, along with Bradley Rep. John Conyers, D-Michigan; Rafer Johnson, president of Special Olympics for the State of California; Joseph V. Paterno, head football coach at Pennsylvania State University, and Patrick Tyrance, a University of Nebraska, Lincoln, football student-athlete.

Study shows Indianapolis in right division

A strategic-planning committee made up of administrators, coaches, faculty, students and alumni has unanimously recommended that the University of Indianapolis continue to sponsor athletics programs in NCAA Division II.

The recommendation, based on an intensive study of the university's athletics program, was made in response to reform legislation adopted at the 1991 NCAA Convention in Nashville.

"Keeping in mind our fine athletics tradition in both men's and women's sports, the university believes that (Division) II is the most suitable division for all our programs," said Indianapolis President G. Benjamin Lantz Jr., who chaired the 10-member strategic-planning committee.

"Division II places a major emphasis on athletics, yet it also allows us to continue to award athletics scholarships in recognition of the accomplishments of our men and women athletes," Lantz said. He also cited Indianapolis' membership in strong conferences for football and other sports and advantages for women's competition as reasons for remaining in Division II.

Legislative Assistance

1991 Column No. 14

1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 103 evaluation periods—NCAA Divisions I-A and I-AA Football

Division I member institutions that conduct the sport of football should note that with the adoption of 1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 103, it is permissible for full-time coaches (head or assistant) to evaluate prospective student-athletes during any 15 consecutive weekdays (Monday through Friday) during the month of May. Such days shall be selected at the discretion of the member institution and designated in writing in the office of the director of athletics. Please note that it would not be permissible for any evaluation activities to occur on weekends during the 15-day period. Thus, a member institution's full-time head or assistant coach may not observe a football prospective student-athlete participating in any sport (e.g., track meet, all-star football game) that occurs on a weekend in the month of May, even if the weekend occurs during the institution's designated 15-day time period. Finally, in accordance with Proposal No. 21, effective August 1, 1991, coaching staff members shall not visit a prospect's educational institution on more than one calendar day during the May evaluation period.

Contacts subsequent to the National Letter of Intent signing

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 13.1.4.3 (1990-1991 NCAA Manual), subsequent to the calendar day on which a prospective student-athlete signs a national letter of intent, there shall be no limit on the number of contacts with the prospect, the prospect's relatives or legal guardian(s) by the institution with which the prospect has signed; however, the following conditions continue to apply:

(a) Any contact at the prospect's educational institution in Divisions I and II football and basketball shall be confined to the permissible contact period and shall not exceed one visit per week (Divisions I and II);

(b) No in-person on- or off-campus contact may be made during a dead period in the sports (Divisions I and II);

(c) No in-person on- or off-campus contact may be made with a nonqualifier enrolled in the first year of a two-year college by a Division I member (Division I only);

(d) No on- or off-campus contact (including correspondence and telephone calls) may be made by a representative of the institution's athletics interest in Division I except those involving permissible pre-enrollment activities (e.g., a discussion of summer employment arrangements) (Division I only);

(e) No in-person, off-campus contact may be made by a representative of the institution's athletics interest in Division II except those involving permissible pre-enrollment activities (e.g., a discussion of summer employment arrangements) (Division II only), and

(f) Contact at the site of a prospect's competition shall continue to be governed by the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.5.2 (Divisions I and II).

In accordance with Bylaw 13.1.4.3, any in-person, off-campus contact made with the prospect for the purpose of signing a national letter of intent or other commitment to attend the institution must occur during a permissible contact period and shall be counted as one of the institution's permissible contacts. Thus, an institution that has utilized all of its contacts would not be permitted to make contact during the calendar day in which the prospect signs a national letter of intent.

Finally, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that the provisions of Bylaw 13.1.5.2 governing contact with a prospective student-athlete at the site of the prospect's competition would not be applicable to the parents of the prospect subsequent to the prospect's signing of a national letter of intent. Thus, it would be permissible for a member institution's coach to observe a prospect's competition in the presence of the prospect's parents, provided the prospect has signed a national letter of intent with the coach's institution.

USA Basketball Olympic Festival Tryouts

Member institutions should note that in the sport of women's basketball it is permissible for full-time head or assistant coaching staff members in Division I to evaluate prospective student-athletes for official tryouts for the USA Basketball Olympic Festival. In addition, in accordance with Bylaw 16.8.1.3 (c), it is permissible in all divisions for a member institution to provide actual and necessary expenses to one of its student-athletes participating in the USOC Olympic Festival basketball tryouts. It would be permissible for a member institution's coaching staff member to transport a student-athlete to the USOC Olympic Festival basketball tryouts, provided the coach does not engage in any out-of-season practice activities and does not provide the student-athlete with any additional expenses or benefits (e.g., meals, lodging).

Further information on the program can be obtained by contacting Donna L. Hockersmith, administrative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Participants in the program will be able to demonstrate an understanding of the following primary objectives: How the multidisciplinary team treats alcoholism and drug addiction; how alcoholism and drug addiction is assessed, diagnosed and treated; how the peer interaction and unit management systems support the recovery process, and how the Alcoholics Anonymous program and its 12 steps are used as a basis for alcoholism- and drug-addiction treatment.

TBS will carry U.S. swim meet

Turner Broadcasting System has announced plans to broadcast live the U.S. national swimming championships April 6 from Federal Way, Washington. Coverage of the event, which will feature several current NCAA champions, is set to begin at 10:20 p.m., Eastern time.

Documentation of continuing-education hours are provided for participants at the end of the session.

Of the initial NCAA session, East Carolina's VanSant said, "This was truly one of the greatest events of my life."

Burns said, "I cannot believe I learned as much as I did in 3½ days; but more importantly, the insights I gained at the Betty Ford Center are unequalled to anything I've done."

Southern California's Orr described the work being done at the center as "a blessing."

The Betty Ford Center believes that "becoming aware and sensitive to the issues of alcoholism and drug addiction begin with a basic education followed by an adjustment in attitudes. It has long been said the best way to help the nonaddicted understand the process of recovery is for them to see it happen."

"When involved in the recovery process in a peer setting, adults experience a profound attitudinal change about the chemically dependent person.... Being a part of a process that fosters change strongly reinforces the belief that chemically dependent people can recover."

Student-athlete representatives discuss athletics concerns

Discussions with three members of the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee highlighted the March 27-28 meeting of the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning, beginning what may become an ongoing exchange between the two committees.

Attending the planning committee's meeting at airport at Kansas City, Missouri, were Elizabeth Fahey, a former diver at Pennsylvania State University; Matthew Galvin, Skidmore College soccer player, and Kristi Groteke, former track athlete at Manhattan College.

The student-athletes expressed concerns regarding certain aspects of intercollegiate athletics, including injuries, pressures placed on student-athletes by coaches and athletics administrators, the effects of receiving athletically related financial aid, isolation of some student-athletes from the rest of the campus, and the problems created when athletes are not qualified to succeed as students.

Also discussed were means of enhancing the work of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee. The Committee on Review and Planning offered several suggestions in that regard, which will be reviewed by the student-athlete committee in its meeting later this month.

The planning committee invited the student-athlete group to submit topics for discussion by the former at any time and indicated that it may wish to invite student-athletes to appear again at the fall planning committee meeting.

Other guests

Also discussing issues with the Committee on Review and Planning were Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, who explained the study of NCAA enforcement procedures that will begin shortly; Robert C. Khayat, president of the NCAA Foundation, who updated the committee on the progress of the Foundation, and NCAA President Judith M. Sweet, who presented her views of the key issues facing the Association in 1991 and expressed her intention to attend as many of the Committee on Review and Planning meetings as possible.

Sweet emphasized the need for effective communication among the NCAA Council, Presidents Commission, Executive Committee and Committee on Review and Planning, citing the desirability of using the planning committee's experience more effectively. The committee includes former NCAA officers (including four former NCAA presidents), former Presidents Commission officers and a current member of the Council.

More topics

The committee identified a number of topics that it will consider in its fall meeting, including reactions of the Council, the Presidents Commission and the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee to the recently released report of the Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics; the term of the NCAA president; titles of NCAA officers, and the role of conference commissioners as a new constituent group within the Association.

It also reviewed its annual compilation of sports participation and sponsorship data, which will be published in an upcoming issue of

The NCAA News.

Also discussed by the committee in the March meeting were a status report on enhancements in the Association's public relations program, means of strengthening the Association's governmental-affairs program, the likelihood of steps by the Presidents Commission to strengthen academic standards for athletics eligibility, the Association's governance system and attendance at NCAA Conventions, and the committee's regular review of developments and trends under the heading of futurism.

Three members of the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee met March 27 with the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning to discuss their views regarding college athletics: from the left, Kristi Groteke, former track athlete at Manhattan College; Matthew Galvin, soccer player at Skidmore College, and Elizabeth Fahey, former diver at Pennsylvania State University.

NCAA not the bad guy some like to think it is

By Bob Sands
Las Vegas Review Journal

Keep this in mind: The University of Nevada, Las Vegas, is a voluntary member of the NCAA.

Keep this in mind: Nevada-Las Vegas legal counsel, in dealing with the NCAA, says the system works.

Keep this in mind: The U.S. Supreme Court says the NCAA can discipline its members as it sees fit.

For some reason, folks just don't seem to understand this NCAA-university relationship. I've read some ignorant editorials, columns and stories and heard some ignorant statements, diatribes and discussions.

Folks should understand the system before launching a cause.

Posturing politicians open their yaps faster than you can say "ballot box" when they spot a cause that will garner votes. Even if they pop off without knowing what the heck is going on—or at least trying to understand.

Folks just don't understand that the NCAA is not the bad guy. Remember, Nevada-Las Vegas is the NCAA. With all due respect to Pogo, some Nevada-Las Vegas folks should look in the mirror and see they are the enemy.

If Nevada-Las Vegas administrators and coaches could put all that energy dealing with the NCAA Manual into educating young people, it would be far more productive.

Surely, the posturing politicians have things to do other than jump on the coattails of a popular, albeit misguided, cause.

Due process is a politically righteous phrase with all the positive symbolism of right to work.

Look, the NCAA has the right to discipline its members. And its due process is administrative, not judicial.

As Richard D. Schultz, NCAA executive director, has noted over and over, the NCAA strives for due process.

Yet politicians in several states, including Nevada, are pushing for more control of the NCAA. Schultz said if the states did pass restrictive legislation, the NCAA might not be able to do its job. Those who want to be part of the program will continue to be. But those states that make it difficult for the NCAA to enforce rules and regulations may be putting the schools' NCAA status in danger.

How do some of the legislators address that? Well, one, Assemblyman James McGaughey, R-Las Vegas, handles it by attacking the NCAA.

"I think the NCAA's implied threat is all the more reason to pass the bill," he said.

There's no threat. Schultz is simply trying to tell folks that the NCAA must discipline its members and restrictive government intrusion

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

For the past 34 years, men's Division II basketball has had championship play with a field of 32 teams selected for the competition. In recent years (since 1984), 12 to 15 teams have been automatic qualifiers through their conferences, with the remaining teams selected as at-large teams. Having served on the NCAA Division II Basketball Committee for six years (1983 to 1989), I have witnessed anywhere from eight to 12 teams each year with outstanding records of 20-plus wins that are not selected.

It is time to expand the NCAA championship for men's Division II basketball to, preferably, 48 teams, for many good reasons.

A. Men's NCAA Division II Basketball always shows a net profit and has since the beginning of college-division basketball in 1957.

B. A number of good teams normally not selected would have the opportunity to compete in NCAA championship play.

C. NCAA Division II membership has increased by 28 schools in the past 11 years. In 1980, there were 178 Division II members playing men's basketball; in 1991, there were 206 Division II members playing men's basketball.

D. As membership increases, opportunity to be selected as an at-large team diminishes.

E. An expanded field of teams would allow thousands of additional fans to see high-caliber championship competition.

Director of Athletics
University of Missouri, St. Louis

Graduation rates will improve

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz says he expects graduation rates of student-athletes to go up, but he cautioned that dramatic increases in those rates will not occur rapidly, and programs aimed at improving those rates should not be judged quickly.

"We're just starting to see the result of Proposition 48 (Bylaw 14.3)," Schultz told the Associated Press in Indianapolis before the start of the Final Four.

Schultz predicted higher graduation rates under changes proposed by the Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, which released a study March 19.

"When you take a look at the overall graduation rates of athletes, it looks pretty good," Schultz said. "It's substantially higher than the student body in general."

"But when you isolate it to the two most visible sports, Division I-A football and Division I basketball, it's not very good, and that's a concern."

John A. DiBiaggio, president
Michigan State University

The Des Moines Register

"I don't know if there is anything more important (than certification of athletics departments) that has been proposed."

"To me, the success of this reform effort resides in whether we can obtain a good, strong certification program."

Joseph V. Paterno, head football coach
Pennsylvania State University

Knight Commission hearings

"I think that every nickel that is involved in an athletics department ought to be handled through the normal channels of the university."

"I don't see how you can say you've got fiscal integrity if you don't have control over a director of athletics who has more money than your business school."

Rudy Davalos, director of athletics
University of Houston

Houston Chronicle

"We took as hard a hit (in NCAA penalties for rules infractions) as anybody, three years (of probation), and we didn't run crying to the state of Texas."

"A bunch of self-serving legislators are trying to make hay with their constituents (in approving legislation aimed at controlling NCAA infractions investigations). I think it's stupid."

"I think you'd find that 90 percent of the people (in college athletics) want strong enforcement. We got bashed, and I can still say that."

The New York Times

Excerpted from an editorial

"The NCAA and the Knight Commission seem to agree that this self-policing (of departments of athletics) will be enough. It won't. Hostile alumni, free-spending boosters and the powerful princes who run athletics fiefs are formidable opponents indeed."

"The Student Right to Know Act calls for useful information about graduation rates. A report on a proposal to mandate financial reports from athletics departments is due in Congress next month. The Knight Commission's effort is welcome and long overdue. But college administrators will need substantial help in getting control of their renegade athletics divisions."

Gene Frenette, columnist

Florida Times-Union

"In truth, the NCAA value system we suddenly find so disturbing is as much the result of our own misguided priorities as those who sit in power. If we're honest with ourselves, we care more about the how many of the NCAA tournament office pools than how many of those players make it to their graduation ceremonies."

"NCAA reform just isn't Dick Schultz's problem, or John Lombardi's (president of the University of Florida), or Bobby Bowden's (head football coach at Florida State University). The burden is on everyone who affects college athletics, from season ticket holders to high-school guidance counselors to the media."

"We're admitting more openly than ever that something needs to be done. Hopefully, it's not too late to tame this monster."

Tony Kornheiser, columnist

The Washington Post

"Being a sports fan has nothing to do with appreciating the games. It's not about feel, it's all about numbers. All you have to be is a bean counter."

"Unless you're surgically bonded to a laptop, it's simply impossible to keep up. There are too many games. Again, hundreds of years ago, when I was young, and somebody asked, 'Are you going to the game tonight?' you knew exactly what he meant."

"Now, the appropriate answer is, 'which game?' The three live, or the 18 on television?"

"And considering the difference in effort, why go to anything but a play-off game? You can't sit in the stands and have a conversation about the game. It's too loud."

"The sad truth is most of this new breed of number-cruncher sports fan would rather stay home and watch the games on TV, because they get much more of them."

Opinions

They troll through the channels picking up a slap shot here, a free throw there and a color man everywhere.

"So we go on, taking the fun out of sports, overcommercializing them, moving them out of the lively scent of the gyms and into the stale air of the family den, where people sit alone, bombarded by analysis, ordering their games and their pizza by phone, and waiting anxiously for everything in life to be delivered."

Clarence "Bighouse" Gaines, head men's basketball coach
Winston-Salem State University

The Associated Press

"Let's face it, people end up hiring people they know and people they will be comfortable with. It's not just racism; it's a system where they keep recycling the same coaches. Once you get on that mailing list, it's hard to get off."

"I'm not bitter. But, sometimes, I look back and wonder what would have happened if I had been given the opportunity. With my work ethic, I could have competed at any level."

Richard M. Bay, director of men's athletics
University of Minnesota, Twin Cities

Chicago Tribune

"I'm not saying there aren't abuses (in college athletics), because there are."

"But there are abuses in the banking business, too. More likely, there have been isolated disasters and public outcry, and the (college) presidents felt compelled to do something dramatic to show they're in charge."

"But a lot of times what they do is overkill. Some of it is helpful. And some of it is strictly overkill."

Looking Back

Five years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting April 14-16, 1986, in Kansas City, Missouri, announced that special committees would be appointed to develop possible legislation in four major areas: financial aid issues, recruiting, sports seasons and coaches' outside income. (The NCAA News, April 23, 1986)

Ten years ago

Results of a five-year study released in April 1981 indicated that male student-athletes at member institutions graduated at a better rate than did male nonathletes. The study was conducted for the NCAA by the American College Testing Program (ACT). ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Twenty years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting April 25-27, 1971, in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, revised an official NCAA interpretation to advance the start of the traditional football season from the second Friday in September to September 1. (April 15 and May 15, 1971, NCAA News)

Thirty years ago

The NCAA Council, meeting April 24-26, 1961, in Washington, D.C., authorized the NCAA officers to proceed with a plan by which voting and alternate delegates at NCAA Conventions would be seated apart from visitors and other delegates. (1961-62 NCAA Yearbook)

'Absolutely opposed' to accreditation

The president of Georgia Institute of Technology says he is "absolutely opposed to any move to accredit athletics programs," as recommended in the report of the Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics.

Georgia Tech President J. Patrick Crecine also says that putting athletics association budgets under the umbrella of the university's central budget—another recommendation of the Knight Commission—would violate Georgia law.

The athletics associations at Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia are set up as quasi-private corporations to prevent tax dollars from being diverted to sports programs at the schools. While presidents of both schools serve as chairs of their associations, the budgets are by law (passed after World War II) separate from those of the schools, reports David Davidson of the Atlanta Journal and Constitution.

Crecine said he believes some of the Knight Commission's proposals sought to fix things that may not need fixing.

J.
Patrick
Crecine

"Athletics association finances (at Tech) are at least as well-managed as they are in any other area of the institute," Crecine said.

"I'm not saying there aren't some things that could be improved, but it seems to me intercollegiate athletics may be No. 9 on a list of 10 important problems facing universities these days. I think the entire undergraduate educational programs at research universities are really where the trouble lies.

"The overall thrust of the Knight Commission (report) says greater presidential control is the single most important thing that can be done to address the ills of intercollegiate athletics. You can say we need more control, but I don't feel I need any more control. I have a lot more control of my athletics department than I do over most of the other programs.

"A lot of assumptions may be wrongly embedded in that statement. The first assumption is there's something seriously wrong with intercollegiate athletics and that athletics has more problems than other aspects of university life. I happen to believe that in every institution there's a lot more right about the way athletics are conducted than there is wrong," Crecine said.

NCAA

hampers the task.

There are rules; there are regulations. If the school does not like those regulations, then it should work within the system—legal counsel Brad Boone and many others say it works—and change them.

Nah, not McGaughey. He made the statement:

"The NCAA wouldn't dare kick Nevada-Las Vegas out of the organization. I think all the other universities across the country would come to the aid of a school that was selectively expelled."

Well, sir, who do you think the NCAA is? Schultz isn't going to kick anyone out. Not one NCAA staff member has the right. If, repeat, if Nevada-Las Vegas were to be kicked out, it would be done by the other universities: its peers.

The NCAA is not an office in Overland Park, Kansas. The NCAA is made up of more than 800 universities.

As big as it is, as unwieldy as it is, it makes some silly rules. Sometimes, the members overwhelm themselves with numbers. Sometimes, they make mistakes. But there's integrity.

Look, the enforcement process is difficult. Wouldn't it be more productive for a legislator to stand up bravely in Nevada and say: "If all coaches everywhere would stop bending the rules, breaking the rules, the NCAA wouldn't have to spend so much time with petty inquiries."

That would be courageous, indeed, what with all the popular support of a popular coach, Jerry Tarkanian. But it would be the best thing for the university.

The NCAA recognizes its problems. In fact, an oversight committee is being formed to study the enforcement process. The members are looking at such items as the use of tape recorders in inquiries. Members are questioning the enforcement process; they are trying to work within the system.

They don't need posturing politicians to muddle the process.

The fundamental purpose of the NCAA has not changed since the organization was founded in 1906. Inscribed on a mural in the NCAA Visitors Center in Overland Park, Kansas, are these words from the Association's first constitution:

"Its object shall be the regulation and supervision of college athletics...in keeping with the dignity and high purpose of education."

Try to understand that.

Ninth Final Four visit nets Duke first hoop title

Duke defeated Kansas, 72-65, April 1 in Indianapolis and won the school's first Division I men's basketball crown—in its ninth trip to the Final Four.

"We came here to win two games," said coach Mike Krzyzewski, who has guided Duke teams to five Final Fours in six years, including four straight. "I think we were much more mature than the previous teams that have come."

Krzyzewski did not think there was added pressure on his team to break Duke's and his streak of not having won a championship. Duke had the most Final Four appearances without taking home a title.

"I told them, 'You're not playing for anybody but yourselves; don't worry about me,'" he said.

Junior Christian Laettner, who was named the tournament's most outstanding player, scored 18 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. He set a championship-game record by hitting 12 of 12 from the free-throw line, including 10 in the first half, and tied the Final Four single-game record, which was set by another Duke player, Jim Spanarkel, in a semifinal game in 1978.

Sophomores Bobby Hurley and Bill McCaffrey also turned in performances that earned all-tournament honors. Hurley was the only player on either team to play the entire 40 minutes and had played 40 minutes in the semifinal contest. He scored 12 points, gave out nine assists and made only three turnovers in the title game. McCaffrey came off the bench to score 16 points. He hit six-of-eight from the field, including two-of-three from three-point range.

"Every one of his shots was so big," Kansas guard Adonis Jordan said. "We knew that when he came in, we had to go find him because he could shoot. But, I have to admit, he surprised me that he could shoot that well."

"He's done it before," Krzyzewski said. "Not in a game quite this important, though."

Before the championship contest, both Krzyzewski and Kansas coach Roy Williams said their teams might have difficulty scoring because both teams played such tough defense. That proved true for Kansas, which shot only 41.5 percent from the field.

"We had so many good shots around the hoop that didn't fall," Williams said. "That's why they're celebrating and we're not."

"It was very tenacious," Kansas senior Mike Maddox said, regarding Duke's defense. "They kept coming at us, and we didn't respond."

In semifinal action, Duke responded to one of the biggest challenges of the championship by upsetting defending champion Nevada-Las Vegas, 79-77.

Laettner scored 28 points and hit two free throws with just under 13 seconds left to provide the winning margin. Nevada-Las Vegas had one more possession, but Anderson Hunt's three-pointer, which he put up under pressure, was no good.

"I thought we were very prepared to be at our best," Krzyzewski said. "We stopped their break in the second half. I think that was one of the keys to the ball game."

The other semifinal contest matched Kansas against North Carolina. Williams had been an assistant coach for Dean Smith and each man was coaching against his alma mater. The Jayhawks came out on top, 79-73.

Mark Randall of Kansas and Hunt of Nevada-Las Vegas joined the Duke trio on the all-tournament team.

Lady Vols triumph in overtime

Tennessee coach Pat Summitt admonished her team to play with its heart and its head in the Division I Women's Basketball Championship's title game against Virginia March 31 in New Orleans. And one Head—junior Dena Head—was the critical factor in the Lady Vols' 70-67 overtime victory.

Head set a championship-game record with 28 points (which was matched by Virginia's Dawn Staley), made critical free throws at the end of regulation and in overtime, and made a key defensive play on Virginia's last possession in regulation.

"The free throws at the end of regulation were key to make, and I knew that," Head said of the shots that knotted the score at 60 and sent the title contest into overtime for the first time in this championship's history. "When Daedra (Charles) went out of the game (fouled out), I told her I'd make them for her."

Virginia had one more opportunity in regulation. Staley took the inbounds pass and went the length of the court, but Head got a hand on the shot.

"Dena Head did a great defensive job on the last shot; she blocked it," Staley said. "It was a great defensive play."

"Dawn Staley is a great player, and I was glad I got a piece of the ball in the play at the end of regulation," Head said. "She could have easily won it for her team."

The title game was a rematch of last year's East regional championship game, in which Virginia defeated Tennessee in overtime to reach the Women's Final Four for the first time.

"Last year, losing to Virginia in the tournament really hurt us," Summitt said. "We were upset losing to them in overtime and not having the opportunity to be in the Final Four on our home court and in front of our home fans."

"(This) win feels like the greatest of all the national championships,"

Summitt said about the triumph that gave her and Tennessee an unprecedented third championship. "But in 1986-87, we were the underdogs and that was Tennessee's first national title, so that was extra special. The 1989 championship was rewarding because we were ranked No. 1, and we were supposed to win. This win is a lot like 1987's because, again, we were the underdogs."

"I honestly feel we lost the game on a pick-and-roll play by Dena Head when she went to the base line before the end of regulation," Virginia coach Debbie Ryan said. "We had the lead by four, and she goes base line and gets fouled and knocks down two free throws."

"It seemed that we were behind most of the game, then we got up but we just couldn't hold on to it and keep it from going into overtime. Tennessee just did a better job in the overtime."

Tennessee had to stage a comeback to post a 68-60 victory in its semifinal game against defending champion Stanford. Despite losing the services of starting forward Julie Zeilstra just before game time, the Cardinal led 28-21 at the half. Stanford had lost center Trisha Stevens in the regional semifinal game.

Virginia held off a Connecticut rally to win its semifinal game, 61-55. The game matched Ryan against former assistant coach Gino Auriemma, who just completed his sixth year as head coach of the Huskies. It was the Huskies' first trip to the Women's Final Four.

Staley was named the championship's most outstanding player. She was joined on the all-tournament team by teammate Tonya Cardoza, Charles and Head of Tennessee, and Stanford's Sonja Henning.

Northern Michigan takes title in triple-OT thriller

In what was one of the most exciting finals in recent years, Northern Michigan won the 1991 Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship March 30 at the Civic Center in St. Paul, Minnesota, with an 8-7 triple-overtime victory over Boston U.

Northern Michigan forward Darryl Plandowski took a pass from Mark Beaufait in the slot and scored the game-winning goal 1:57 into the third overtime period. After 81 minutes and 57 seconds, Northern Michigan won its first national championship and finished the season 38-5-4.

"It would have been terrific to win it and be called national champions, but we had a nice ride," said Boston U. coach Jack Parker. "It wasn't just a hockey game. We created something different tonight."

They created momentum swings that bordered on the bizarre. Boston U. led, 3-0, after the first period and looked like the fresher team.

"If they had gotten to 4-0, we would have been in trouble," said Northern Michigan coach Rick Comley, whose team went undefeated the last 26 games (24-0-2) of the season.

At the intermission, the Wildcats knew they would start the second period in a man-up situation after Peter Ahola took a high-sticking penalty at the 20-minute mark.

Added Comley, "I was close to panic. But I did believe that if we got the next goal we would be right back in it."

At 1:33 of the second period, Dean Antos opened the floodgates and hit a backhand to get the Wildcats on the board. What ensued shocked all of the 12,564 in attendance. Northern Michigan reeled off another five straight goals, including three by the nation's leading scorer, Scott Beattie, to take what seemed to be a commanding 6-3 lead with 16:52 left in regulation.

"We played so well in the second period, maybe better than we've ever played," said Comley.

Plandowski, who also had a hat trick, scored the second of his three goals on a power play at 8:24 of the third period and the Wildcats seemed in control at 7-4.

But Boston U. fought back. Tony Amonte, who scored three first-period goals in the Terriers' 7-3 semifinal victory over Clarkson, scored at 12:24 of the third period and assisted on Shawn McEachern's goal at 14:59.

Parker elected to pull his goaltender, Scott Cashman, at 19:13 and eight seconds later David Sacco tied the game.

"It was a wild, unbelievable game to play," said Comley. "Two very talented teams went at it with the momentum swinging both ways the whole game. No lead was safe in this game."

"They dominated, 3-0, then we dominated, 5-3. I thought maybe half of the third (period) we still had complete control. Then all of a sudden, they took off again."

Regulation play ended dramatically as Amonte broke into the clear for a 20-foot shot with one second left. Northern Michigan goaltender

Bill Pye gloved the rocket shot. "I saw him coming in and I couldn't believe it," said Pye, who led the nation with 32 victories and set a school record. "I just tried to stand up and he slapped it. And it went into my glove."

Northern Michigan controlled the first overtime, although Boston U. nearly ended it twice. Kevin O'Sullivan hit the post with :49 left in the overtime, and McEachern followed with a rebound shot that hit the post and was covered up by Pye at the goal line.

In the third 10-minute overtime, Plandowski took the first shot and netted the game-winner, concluding the longest championship game since Bowling Green's 97-minute, 11-second, four-overtime victory over Minnesota-Duluth in 1984. It also was the highest-scoring championship game since Colorado College beat Michigan, 13-6, in 1957.

Beattie was named the tournament's most outstanding player. Also named to the all-tournament team were teammates Pye, defenseman Brad Wrenka and defenseman Lou Melone; Amonte, and forward Jean-Yves Roy of Maine.

Emma wins Hobey Baker

David Emma, a senior forward for Boston College's ice hockey team and the school's career scoring leader, is this year's Hobey Baker Memorial Award winner as the outstanding player in the sport.

The announcement of Emma's selection was made March 30 at the St. Paul Civic Center in St. Paul, Minnesota, site of the Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

Emma finished his career with a school-record 239 points in 145 games. He also set school records for most career assists (127) and most career goals (112).

The 1991 Hockey East Association player of the year, Emma averaged 2.25 points per game, which ranked fourth in the country. He also is one of only two players in Boston College history to score 80 or more points in one season and 70 or more points twice in a career.

"David approaches his academics and hockey as he does his life—totally committed both physically and mentally," said Boston College coach Len Ceglarski. "He has a purpose in everything he does and is not satisfied until his goal is reached. On the ice, he does all the little things that make for a great player."

David Emma

He is a powerful shooter, has a hard and accurate shot, sees the ice in every direction and plays with unusual intensity every shift on the ice."

Emma beat out nine other finalists, including runner-up Brad Wrenka from Northern Michigan University.

Other finalists were Scott Beattie, Northern Michigan; Peter Ciavaglia, Harvard University; Jim Dowd, Lake Superior State University; Denny Felsner, University of Michigan; Greg Johnson, University of North Dakota; Joe Juneau, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; Shawn McEachern, Boston University, and Jean-Yves Roy, University of Maine.

Texas men win fourth straight swimming title

Host Texas, led by Shaun Jordan, became the fourth school to win four consecutive NCAA Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships team titles by outdistancing Stanford March 28-30 for the second year in a row.

Texas amassed 476 points to Stanford's 420 to join Indiana, Michigan and Southern California as four-time defending champions.

Jordan was the catalyst for Texas' victory, winning five gold medals and a bronze en route to scoring 55 points for the Longhorns. The senior attributed his success to coach Eddie Reese.

"When I came here I wasn't good, I wasn't even all right," Jordan said. "But Ed is very individual with all the swimmers even when you come in as a freshman. That's why we have a close-knit team under Eddie. He is responsible for what happens."

Reese, who got the traditional victory dunking in the Texas Swim Center after the Longhorns won the title, has led Texas to five team titles. Texas became the fifth school to win five or more titles, joining Ohio State (11), Michigan (9), Southern California (9) and Indiana (6).

"Every year, you start all over again," Reese said. "I'm happy for this team. Sometimes you feel the efforts are more important than the end results. We got very good effort."

Texas won four of five relays in the three-day meet. Texas' 200-yard freestyle relay team of Jordan, Brett Stone, Alex Wittig and Doug Dickinson set an American and NCAA record with a time of 1:18.32.

In notable individual performances, Tennessee's Melvin Stewart set an American record in the 200-yard butterfly. His time of 1:41.78 beat the mark of 1:42.60 set in 1987 by Stanford's Pablo Morales. Florida's Martin Zubero, who was named Division I swimmer of the year, broke his U.S. open and NCAA record in the 200-yard backstroke with a 1:42.88 clocking to eclipse his 1990 mark of 1:43.40. Zubero's coach, Skip Foster, was named Division I swimming coach of the year.

Jason Rhodes, winner of the three-meter diving competition and runner-up in the platform-diving event, earned the Division I diver-of-the-year award. His victory in the three-meter event was Texas' first victory in diving competition since 1984.

Minnesota program receives two-year probation

I. Introduction.

In March 1988, the NCAA Committee on Infractions issued a report that found that the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, had violated NCAA rules concerning extra benefits to enrolled student-athletes and other NCAA rules in the operation of the university's men's basketball program. There were numerous violations that spanned the period 1982 to 1986. Although there also were limited violations in the football program, the committee noted that the violations in the men's basketball program were "serious in nature," and "many occurred because the men's basketball coaching staff did not seek guidance concerning rules interpretations." Among the violations found was a violation of the principles of institutional control. The March 1988 infractions report stated:

"Over a substantial period of time, there were repeated failures to exercise adequate institutional control over the administration of the university's men's intercollegiate athletics program. In addition to the findings set forth previously in this report, this failure of institutional control was demonstrated by: administrative procedures that allowed student-athletes to receive prepaid airline tickets; the provision of mileage expense money to the student hosts for prospective student-athletes during official visits; the disbursement of 'meal money' and other very small amounts of cash in a manner that may have constituted rules violations; the provision of meals to more than one student-athlete who dined with a prospective student-athlete during the prospect's official visit in a manner that violated NCAA legislation; inadequate administrative procedures to ensure that financial aid given to student-athletes in a school year following the completion of their competitive eligibility was in conformance with NCAA legislation. (NCAA Constitution 3-2)"

The committee also found in 1988 that the penalties imposed on the university for its violations should be mitigated because of "the thoroughness of the university's self-investigation, its cooperation in the NCAA investigation and its corrective actions (including taking disciplinary action against the involved coaches and the creation of a comprehensive compliance program)."

However, one month after the committee's report in 1988, the university uncovered information during the course of an audit of its Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs (OMSSA) indicating that the then director of the program had misappropriated university funds totaling at least $186,000. The director claimed the majority of these funds had been given to student-athletes as financial assistance. This director briefly had served as an academic adviser in 1984 to the football team and in 1986 to the men's basketball team, and he had extensive contact with student-athletes during his assignments with OMSSA. An investigation was launched by the university that eventually involved local law enforcement authorities. In November 1989, the former director was convicted on three counts of theft by swindle and has since served a term of imprisonment for these offenses.

During the course of the investigation of the activities of the former director of OMSSA, additional allegations of violations surfaced involving the university's men's basketball, football and wrestling programs. The university discovered and self-reported a number of these violations in the course of its own audits of its athletics program, which were initiated as part of the university's new compliance program.

By the time the university and NCAA enforcement staff concluded their inquiries, it became evident that the extent to which funds misappropriated from the university had been diverted for the benefit of student-athletes was substantial, but significantly less than the former director had claimed. As reflected in the findings in this case, approximately $3,700 was provided to student-athletes from the OMSSA special loan account (reference: Part II-A of this report); approximately $6,700 in benefits was provided to 10 student-athletes out of a total of $44,000 in 268 transactions through the manipulation of journal voucher payments (reference: Part II-B of this report), and there was at least $9,000 in other loans and payments to student-athletes by the former director of OMSSA (reference: Part II-C of this report).

The violations in this case, including those where the then director of OMSSA was involved, primarily concerned the university's football program. The violations occurred, for the most part, prior to the university's March 1988 case. Although the improper benefits the director of OMSSA gave student-athletes began as early as 1982, there was a pattern of violations from 1982 until their discovery in April 1988. In the committee's view, the university's failure to supervise and control the activities of the involved director of OMSSA relating to student-athletes during this period of time demonstrates a failure of institutional control over the conduct of the institution's intercollegiate athletics program. Although there was no evidence that any other university administrator knew of or authorized the actions of the director of OMSSA, the university agreed there were signals that the university did not detect that probably would have led to an earlier disclosure of the unauthorized actions. As a result, the director of OMSSA was able to pursue an independent agenda using university resources for a considerable period of time. That agenda, it turned out, involved many more students who were not athletes than students who were. Nonetheless, these actions dragged the university's athletics program into significant violations of NCAA rules concerning extra benefits and financial aid to student-athletes. To the university's credit, the university's own audit systems eventually led to the uncovering of these problems. Once the university became aware of them, it acted swiftly to remove the director of OMSSA from the institution and brought the matters to the attention of law enforcement agencies for investigation and prosecution.

The Committee on Infractions regarded the cluster of findings of violations involving the director of OMSSA as major in nature (reference: Parts II-A, II-B, II-C and II-D of this report). Most of the student-athlete recipients of these benefits were football players. A total of 23 football student-athletes from 1983 through 1988 were involved. Although there were reasons to mitigate some of the penalties, as discussed subsequently, the NCAA required minimum penalties for major rules violations were applicable to the university's football team because of these violations.

The football program also violated the rules specifying the minimum academic requirements for graduate assistant coaches (reference: Part II-E of this report). These violations gave the football program a competitive advantage over a three-year period because it gave the program the services of a large number of extra coaches that it was not entitled to use. Although the committee did not have to decide if this violation standing alone would constitute a major violation in light of the committee's conclusion that the other violations made the major violator penalties applicable, the committee believed this was a significant set of violations that continued through the 1989-90 academic year.

The violations involving the university's men's basketball team were of a different nature. A significant violation of recruiting and extra benefit rules occurred in the recruitment and enrollment of a transfer student-athlete from another university who was a nonqualifier and who was not eligible for athletically related financial aid in 1986-87 (reference: Parts II-Q and II-R of this report). The committee believed the circumstances under which this young man was recruited and enrolled indicated an absence of appropriate control by the men's head basketball coach over the recruiting process. No one within the basketball program adequately explained how this young man came to be recruited in violation of long-established rules regarding recruiting contacts with student-athletes at other institutions, or explained how the young man came to be assigned a dormitory room as a prospective basketball team member but did not have to pay dormitory fees from January until May. There was no information given to the committee that indicated the men's basketball program was monitoring the recruitment and enrollment of this young man to be sure correct procedures were being followed. The head coach is in a uniquely advantageous position to supervise and control the recruiting process to prevent violations of this nature from occurring. Although this violation occurred contemporaneously with other violations in the university's 1988 infractions case, it is different from the prior case in that it occurred under the leadership of the current basketball program.

There also was a recruiting violation involving a highly visible and extensively recruited men's basketball prospect that occurred in November 1990 when the prospect was entertained by the head men's basketball coach in the coach's skybox during part of a university football game (reference: Part II-P of this report). When an institution accepts the responsibilities inherent in recruiting at the Division I level, particularly when recruiting a major prospect, the Association's membership has every reason to expect the university's recruiters to be punctilious in avoiding a situation that creates an appearance of an attempt to gain an improper recruiting advantage through a violation of recruiting rules. Also, subsequent to the 1988 case, members of the men's basketball coaching staff provided local automobile transportation to basketball student-athletes (reference: Part II-I of this report). Although taken separately, these violations might be viewed as secondary in nature, they are of greater concern to the committee because improper local transportation was an issue in the 1988 case, and the failure of coaching staff members to seek guidance in interpreting NCAA rules contributed to many of the violations by the previous coaching staff.

Finally, there were violations from 1986 to 1988 in the university's wrestling program. These violations arose from the inappropriate combination of practice activities of the university's varsity wrestling team with those of an outside wrestling club, which resulted in the university's limited in light of the prompt institutional action by the director of athletics, and this violation also was isolated in nature. The 1987 violation was one that the committee believed could be regarded as part of the 1988 case for which the basketball program received appropriate penalties. Had the committee been aware of the 1987 violation when the committee determined penalties in the prior case, there would not have been any difference in the result. The wrestling violations, on the other hand, arose from a pattern of intermixing activities of the wrestling club with those of the varsity team over a significant period of time. Although any competitive advantage may have been limited, the violations were neither isolated nor inadvertent. They could not be regarded as secondary (reference: NCAA Bylaw 19.02.2.1). If they are not secondary, they must be classified as major (reference: NCAA Bylaw 19.02.2.2).

Having concluded that the football and wrestling violations are major, the penalties required by NCAA legislation for major violations (reference: NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2) must be imposed unless there are mitigating circumstances. The penalties for repeat major violators (reference: NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3) are not appropriate. The 1988 case primarily involved violations that occurred before September 1, 1985. Moreover, many of the significant violations in the present case occurred plemented a compliance program that goes beyond simply trying to employ individuals who personally are committed to rules compliance but also included administrative checks and balances in the men's athletics department to monitor and control individual sports programs.

e. The university has served an extended period of probation and institutional scrutiny of its men's intercollegiate athletics program beyond that mandated in the 1988 infractions case because the university remained on probation as a result of the discovery of the matters in this case.

The university protested the length of time it has taken to bring this case to the committee for hearing. The university began its review of the matters in this report in April 1988, as previously described, and sent the NCAA its findings in June 1989 and filed a supplemental report in March 1990. The former director of OMSSA went on trial in November 1989. Prior to this trial, there were constraints on contacts with potential witnesses that limited the ability to investigate fully. At issue in the trial were the extent of payments to student-athletes and the existence of knowledge by university administrators of the involved director's actions. The conviction for the offenses charged indicated the payments were made without university authorization, and the evidence during the trial of the amounts of payments to student-athletes indicated those amounts were substantially less than originally claimed.

Subsequent to the trial and the receipt of the university's reports, the NCAA enforcement staff continued its investigation. An official inquiry was issued December 13, 1990. The Committee on Infractions then heard the case February 1, 1991, at its first meeting following issuance of the official inquiry. The university contended that the NCAA enforcement staff wasted time in a fruitless pursuit of witnesses who lacked credibility. The committee did not agree. Had no effort been made by the enforcement staff to obtain direct information from individuals who not only were involved as principals in certain of the significant violations, but who also had been the source of serious accusations of violations, the committee would have questioned the adequacy of the staff's investigation. The committee appreciated the institutional frustration in being unable to bring the case to a speedier resolution, particularly when there had been an extended period of time of adverse publicity surrounding the criminal investigation and trial, but the committee could not conclude from the evidence in the record that the period of time from November 1989 when the trial of the former director of OMSSA was over to December 1990 when the official inquiry was issued was unreasonably long for investigating allegations as potentially serious and far-reaching as this case involved. That the committee now agrees with the university that the scope of the violations is more limited in nature than originally alleged by the former director of OMSSA and others is in no small part attributable to the committee's confidence in the thoroughness of the university and NCAA investigative efforts.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. [NCAA Bylaws 11.02.4-(a), 15.1, 15.1.1-(c) and 15.1.1-(g)]

From November 24, 1982, to January 14, 1988, the then director of the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs (OMSSA) who also was a representative of the institution's athletics interests provided $3,743 from the OMSSA emergency loan to numerous student-athletes and a graduate-assistant football coach without a regular repayment schedule being established for their loans. Several loans were not repaid and several were converted to grants. The provision of these loans to student-athletes and the graduate assistant coach who were awarded full athletics grants-in-aid resulted in the young men being awarded excessive institutionally administered financial aid. Specifically:

1. On November 24, 1982, and December 14, 1982, a student-athlete was issued a $20 check and a $150 check, respectively, for a "student emergency." The young man has not repaid these loans.

2. On September 19, 1986, the director gave a $400 check to a student-athlete. The young man has not repaid this loan, which the director converted to a grant on June 30, 1987.

3. On October 8, 1986, and February 24, 1987, the director gave a $400 check and a $150 check, respectively, to a graduate assistant football coach. On June 30,

Case summary

- Between 1982 and 1988, 23 football student-athletes received extra benefits and improper financial aid.
- Significant violations of recruiting and extra-benefit rules were found in the recruitment of a transfer student-athlete in men's basketball.
- Because of an inappropriate combination of practice activities involving the varsity wrestling team and an outside wrestling club, coaches observed and provided instruction to ineligible student-athletes.
- Several mitigating factors (e.g., implementation of a far-reaching compliance program) led the Committee on Infractions to deem this case unique. As a result, several penalties were waived.
- Imposed penalties include prohibition from postseason competition for the football team following the 1991 regular season; adoption of university-imposed personnel action in men's basketball, a program that also will forfeit one grant-in-aid for 1991-92, and adoption of university-imposed actions regarding the wrestling team, which also will be required to operate entirely apart from any outside club for one year.

coaches observing and providing instruction to ineligible student-athletes (reference: Parts II-K, II-M, II-N and II-W of this report). The committee believed that the tandem operation of the varsity wrestling team and the wrestling club in this manner provided an improper competitive and recruiting advantage to the university.

Because the violations in the three sports discussed above occurred either after September 1, 1985, or as part of a continuous pattern of violations extending beyond September 1, 1985, the committee had to determine if the violations were major. As noted earlier, the committee believed the cluster of violations related to the actions of the former director of OMSSA were major and required application of the minimum penalty schedule to the football program.

Classification of the wrestling and men's basketball violations was more difficult. The information reported to the committee indicated there was a potential recruiting advantage in the recruiting violations, as well as a degree of insensitivity to compliance requirements that is inappropriate in view of the types of problems manifest in the university's 1988 infractions case. Further, the committee did not believe these violations may be classified as inadvertent. They occurred because the basketball program used the skybox for the purpose of entertaining the basketball recruit and because the wrestling program used the wrestling club as a practice opportunity for prospects and ineligible student-athletes with the varsity team. The university's staff members who were involved mistakenly may have thought that NCAA rules permitted these arrangements (and the reasonableness of such a mistaken understanding is appropriate in deciding any penalty and its mitigation), but a staff member's mistake on the application of NCAA rules does not, by itself, make the violation inadvertent.

However, the committee believed any advantage obtained by the basketball program in the recruitment of the prospect involved in the fall of 1990 violation was contemporaneously with the violations addressed in the 1988 case. The committee views them as an extension of that case. If the committee had reservations about the vigor and thoroughness of the university's investigation of the 1988 case or of this case, it would be appropriate to apply the repeat violator rules, but the committee did not have such concerns.

There were several circumstances about this case the committee regarded as important in deciding the penalties for these violations.

a. The inability of the university to discover the violations from the activities of the then director of OMSSA prior to the 1988 case was not attributable to any lack of effort in the university's investigation in the former case. There were signals that the university missed, as discussed earlier, that allowed the violations to continue longer than they should have, but eventually the university's own auditor discovered the problems in April 1988. Thus, while the committee did not believe there were any deficiencies in the university's handling of its 1988 case, which should add to the penalties in this case, the committee also believed the evaluation of this case in setting a penalty took into account that it took a long time before the university discovered the violations committed by the director of OMSSA, although warning signs of problems were present.

b. The university conducted a thorough and wide-ranging investigation of its athletics program as part of this case. Most of the findings were the result of information reported by the university and were circumstances where the university agreed a violation occurred. Much of the information about violations came to light because of the university's audit and compliance practices established as a result of the university's experience with the problems in the 1988 case.

c. The institution took significant corrective and disciplinary actions with respect to its men's basketball and wrestling programs.

1987, the director converted the loans to grants. In the spring of 1987 and March 1988, the assistant coach gave $50 and $40 cash, respectively, to the director as partial payment for the loans.

4. On February 12, 1987, the director gave a $120 check to a student-athlete in order for the young man to purchase an airline ticket to travel to a friend's funeral. On February 24, 1987, the young man repaid the $120 loan to the director with money he obtained from his mother.

5. On January 7, 1988, the director gave a $120 check to the student-athlete in order for the young man to purchase an airline ticket to travel to his grandfather's funeral. By February 1988, the young man repaid the loan to the director.

6. On January 22, 1988, the director gave a $190 check to the student-athlete in order for the young man to travel to a cousin's college graduation ceremony. The young man later decided not to attend the graduation ceremony and, instead, kept the money for his personal use. The young man repaid the loan by September 9, 1988.

7. On March 6, 1987, the director gave a $200 check to another student-athlete in order for the young man to travel home for spring break. On June 25, 1987, the young man repaid the $200 loan to the director with money he received from his brother.

8. On March 9, 1987, the director gave a $200 check to another student-athlete in order for the young man to purchase a round-trip airline ticket for travel between Minneapolis, Minnesota, and his home for spring break. In the spring of 1987, the young man repaid the $200 loan to the director with money he received from his Pell Grant.

9. On November 3, 1987, the director gave a $500 check to another student-athlete after the young man asked the director for a loan to repay a $400 university emergency loan and a $100 dormitory fee he owed. On November 6, 1987, the young man used the money the director gave him to pay the balance due on the emergency loan and the dormitory fee. The student-athlete repaid the balance to the university on the loan the director provided to him.

10. On November 10, 1987, the director gave a $128 check to another student-athlete after the young man asked the director for a loan to help pay additional rent of $128 because his roommate moved out. The loan remains unpaid.

11. On November 17, 1987, the director gave a $200 check to another student-athlete after the young man asked the director for a loan to pay a $195 electric bill. The young man used the money to pay the balance due on the electric bill. The student-athlete has not repaid the loan.

12. On December 15, 1987, the director gave a $200 check to another student-athlete after the young man asked the director for a loan to pay his expenses to travel home during Christmas break. On May 20, 1988, the young man repaid the loan to the university from money his girlfriend gave him.

13. On January 14, 1988, the director gave a $465 check to another student-athlete after the young man asked the director for money to repay a $500 university emergency loan. The young man used the money to pay part of the balance due on the emergency loan. The student-athlete repaid the $465 loan to the director in two payments ($425 on February 25, 1988, and $40 on March 15, 1988) from money he received from his scholarship check and money provided to him by his mother.

B. [NCAA Bylaws 15.1 and 16.12.2.1]

From 1983 to 1988, the then director of the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs (OMSSA) who also was a representative of the institution's athletics interests provided numerous extra benefits to student-athletes. He authorized journal voucher payments totaling approximately $6,700 to other university departments on behalf of numerous student-athletes. Some of these student-athletes were awarded excessive institutionally administered financial aid as a result of these journal voucher payments because they also were receiving full athletics grant-in-aid awards. Specifically:

1. On January 5, 1983, $501.16 was transferred to Sanford Hall as payment for a student-athlete's 1983 winter-quarter meal plan. The young man did not eat in Sanford Hall during the winter quarter.

2. On April 29, 1983, the director transferred $609 to the Office of Student Financial Aid as repayment for the young man's $600 short-term loan taken out on November 29, 1982. The student-athlete repaid the $609 loan to the director.

3. In July 1983, the director transferred $253.75 to the Office of Student Financial Aid as repayment for another student-athlete's $250 university emergency loan.

4. On July 20, 1983, the director transferred $125 to the university's Continuing Education and Extension Program as payment for a course for another student-athlete.

5. In August 1984, the director transferred $326 to two university departments ($172 to Continuing Education and Extension and $154 to Independent Studies) as payment for a student-athlete's tuition for the fall semester of 1984. The director gave $75.20 cash to the young man in order to purchase textbooks. On January 15, 1985, the director gave a $148.80 check to the young man (after deducting the $326 journal voucher tuition payments and $25.29 for books) to reimburse the young man for a $500 scholarship check the student-athlete gave to OMSSA. These payments did not result in excessive aid being awarded to the young man, as he did not receive an athletics grant-in-aid award for these quarters.

6. On December 31, 1987, the director transferred $80.53 to H. D. Smith Bookstore as payment for textbooks and a notebook for another student-athlete. This payment did not result in excessive aid being awarded to the young man, as he did not receive an athletics grant-in-aid award for the 1987-88 academic year.

7. On July 22, 1985; August 26, 1985, and October 7, 1987, OMSSA transferred $411.90, $393.77 and $540.66, respectively, to the university as tuition payments for the student-athlete. These payments did not result in excessive aid being awarded to the young man as he did not receive an athletics grant-in-aid award for the spring or summer of 1983 quarters.

8. On May 13, 1983, $222.72 in OMSSA funds were transferred to Centennial Hall as payment for a student-athlete's meal contract for the period May 10 through June 10, 1983. This payment did not result in excessive aid being awarded to the young man as he did not receive an athletics grant-in-aid award for the spring or summer of 1983 quarters.

9. On February 2, 1987, the director transferred $505 to the Office of Student Financial Aid as payment for another student-athlete's university short-term emergency loan.

10. On February 16, 1987, the director transferred $83.72 to Centennial Hall as payment for the additional charge incurred by another student-athlete for residing in a single dormitory room during the 1987 winter quarter. The young man repaid the loan.

11. On February 27, 1987, and in May 1987, the director transferred $89.72 and $84.72, respectively, to Centennial Hall as payment for the additional charge incurred by another student-athlete for residing in a single dormitory room during the 1987 winter and spring quarters.

12. In March 1987, the director transferred $1,716.82 (that included an $800 personal loan from the director) to Pioneer Hall as payment for another student-athlete's 1986 winter- and 1987 spring-quarter dormitory fees. The director told the young man that he would lend $800 from his personal funds to the student-athlete in order to pay the young man's overdue 1986 winter-quarter dormitory fee, and OMSSA would provide grants and loans for the student-athlete to pay his 1987 spring quarter tuition and dormitory fees. The young man repaid the $800 personal loan to the director with two payments (a $200 payment in the spring of 1987 and a $600 payment in the fall of 1987). This payment did not result in excessive aid being awarded to the young man, as he did not receive an athletics grant-in-aid award for the 1986-87 academic year.

13. On or about March 7, 1988, $852 in OMSSA funds were transferred to Sanford Hall as payment for another student-athlete's 1987 fall-quarter room and board charges. In February or March 1988, the young man repaid $800 in cash to the director with money provided to him by his grandfather. This payment did not result in excessive aid being awarded to the student-athlete as he did not receive an athletics grant-in-aid award for the spring of 1988 quarter.

C. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.2.2-(e), 13.16.1, 16.12.2.1 and 16.12.2.3-(a)]

From 1982 to 1988, the then-director of the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs (OMSSA)—who also was a representative of the institution's athletics interests—provided numerous extra benefits to enrolled student-athletes and inducements to a prospective student-athlete, including cash, loans, local automobile transportation and meals. The source of funds for these benefits was either the director's personal funds or OMSSA moneys, including students' cash payments from the institution's Summer Institute Program. Specifically:

1. From the winter of 1982 to the spring of 1988, the director gave at least $2,000 to $2,500 cash from the institution's Summer Institute Program to numerous student-athletes. Specifically:

a. From the winter of 1982 to the spring of 1986, the director gave at least $478 cash to one of the student-athletes for the young man's personal use.

b. On approximately one to two occasions during the 1983 winter term, the director gave $10 cash to another student-athlete after the young man asked the director for money.

c. During 1983 and 1984, the director gave at least $1,000 cash to another student-athlete. The young man used a portion of this money to pay for repairs to his automobile.

d. On several occasions, from the fall of 1985 to the spring of 1988, the director gave approximately $500 to $1,000 cash to another student-athlete for the young man's personal use after the young man asked the director for money.

2. From the summer or fall of 1984 to the summer of 1987, the director gave approximately $1,950 cash to two student-athletes and a prospective student-athlete. Specifically:

a. On several occasions from the summer or fall of 1984 to 1986, the director gave at least $1,600 cash to one of the student-athletes after the young man asked the director for financial assistance.

b. On five to six occasions during the 1986-87 academic year, the director gave $10 to $25 cash to the second student-athlete.

c. On three occasions during the summer of 1987, the director gave $150, $75 and $25 cash to the prospect.

3. From July 13, 1987, to January 9, 1988, the director paid the American College Test (ACT) Student Financial Aid Services fee ($6) with personal checks for four student-athletes. Two of the young men repaid the $6 fee to OMSSA.

4. From February 1986 to 1988, the director provided loans to two student-athletes and a prospective student-athlete. Specifically:

a. In February 1986, the director lent $70 to one of the student-athletes after the young man asked the director for money to pay part of a $175 outstanding telephone bill he incurred during the 1984-85 academic year. In March 1986, the young man repaid $50 to the director with a money order he received from his mother and cash he had left from Christmas.

b. In the summer of 1987, the director lent $100 cash to the prospective student-athlete after the young man asked the director for assistance in purchasing textbooks for the 1987 Summer Institute Program in which the young man was enrolled. The prospect used the money to purchase books that cost $85 and he kept the remaining $15. In the fall of 1988, the young man repaid the loan to the university.

c. On approximately four to five occasions during the 1987-88 academic year, the director lent $5 to $20 ($50 total amount) to the other student-athlete after the young man asked the director for money in order to purchase food and do laundry. The director gave the money to the student-athlete after the director provided local automobile transportation for the young man. The student-athlete repaid these loans to the director.

5. On numerous occasions from 1982 to 1988, the director provided local automobile transportation and numerous meals at local restaurants and in his home to several student-athletes and their friends and family.

6. On numerous occasions from 1984 to 1988, the director provided local automobile transportation and, on occasion, paid the guest fee ($4 or $7) at a health club in order for several student-athletes to work out at the facility.

7. On several occasions from 1984 to 1988, the director provided local automobile transportation to several student-athletes at no cost to the young men.

8. On or about August 20, 1987, the director purchased a round-trip airline ticket (at a cost of $385.15) for a student-athlete for travel between Minneapolis, Minnesota, and his home. After the young man returned to the university, the student-athlete repaid the cost of the airline ticket to the director from money he received from his mother during this trip.

9. During the summer of 1987, OMSSA paid the dormitory fee (at a cost of $709.43) for a prospective student-athlete who was enrolled in the 1987 OMSSA Summer Institute Program. As a condition to obtaining restoration of eligibility, the young man repaid the cost of the housing to the university through a repayment schedule.

10. On two to four occasions between 1984 and 1988, the director purchased gasoline for two student-athletes at no cost to the young men.

11. From September 1984 to December 1986, the director provided gifts to three student-athletes at no cost to the young men. Specifically:

a. In September 1983 or 1984, the director purchased a fan (at an approximate cost of less than $20) and a radio (at an approximate cost of $50 to $60) for one of the young men after the young man told the director his apartment was empty and he could use such items.

b. During the winter of 1985, the director purchased a pair of shoes (at an approximate cost of $40 to $50) for a second student-athlete after the young man told the director he did not have any money to purchase a pair of dress shoes.

c. In November or December 1986, the director purchased two warm-up suits (at an approximate cost of $65 per suit) for the third student-athlete after the young man asked the director for a warm-up suit.

12. During January and February 1988, the director arranged for a student-athlete to store his automobile in the director's garage at no cost to the young man. On two occasions, the director provided local automobile transportation between his home, the garage and the campus for the student-athlete in order for the young man to start his car. In September 1988, the student-athlete repaid the cost of the garage rental ($60 total) to the university.

On numerous occasions from December 1983 to January 1988, several members of the football coaching staff and an athletics trainer provided local automobile transportation to numerous student-athletes at no cost to the young men.

During the 1987-88, 1988-89 and 1989-90 academic years, several graduate assistant football coaches failed to meet the minimum academic requirements set forth for such employment in that these coaches were not enrolled in at least 50 percent of the institution's minimum regular graduate program of studies. These graduate assistant coaches were not admitted to a degree-granting program. Three resident graduate assistant football coaches received financial aid based upon nonresident status. Specifically:

1. For the 1987-88 academic year, six graduate assistant football coaches were not enrolled in at least 50 percent of the institution's minimum regular graduate program of studies. Two of these coaches also were not admitted to a degree-granting program. Two other coaches received financial aid based upon nonresident status, even though the young men were Minnesota residents.

2. For the 1988-89 academic year, three graduate assistant football coaches were not enrolled in at least 50 percent of the institution's minimum regular graduate program of studies. One of these coaches also was not admitted to a degree-granting program. A graduate assistant received financial aid based upon nonresident status, even though the young man was a Minnesota resident.

3. For the 1989-90 academic year, three graduate assistant football coaches were not enrolled in at least 50 percent of the institution's minimum regular graduate program of studies. One of these coaches also was not admitted to a degree-granting program.

then-director of the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs who also was a representative of the university's athletics interests described in Parts II-A, II-B, II-C and II-N of this report demonstrated a lack of appropriate institutional control during the period of these violations in monitoring the administration of the institution's men's intercollegiate athletics program and the administration of a campus unit outside of the intercollegiate athletics program, specifically the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs, whose activities affected the university's eligibility and compliance responsibilities.

H. [NCAA Bylaws 14.3.2.1.1 and 14.3.5.1.1]

During the fall of 1986, members of the wrestling coaching staff provided instruction to three student-athletes during practice sessions where an outside wrestling club and the university's intercollegiate wrestling team practiced together. At this time, the young men were not eligible to practice and compete for the institution because the young men failed to meet the minimum academic requirements for freshman student-athletes.

I. [NCAA Bylaws 13.12.1, 13.12.2.4 and 13.13.1.2]

On several occasions from 1986 to 1988, several prospective student-athletes participated in practice sessions where an outside wrestling club and the university's intercollegiate wrestling team practiced together in the institution's wrestling room. On several occasions, members of the university's coaching staff observed the prospective student-athletes during these sessions and participated in workouts with prospects. Specifically:

1. On several occasions during the summers of 1986 and 1987, members of the wrestling coaching staff observed two prospective student-athletes work out with members of the outside club and the university's intercollegiate wrestling team. Members of the wrestling coaching staff also provided instruction to the young men.

2. For approximately three to four weeks during the summer of 1987, an assistant wrestling coach provided instruction to and wrestled with a prospective student-athlete prior to the young man's enrollment at the institution.

3. On several occasions during the 1987-88 academic year and fall of 1988, a prospective student-athlete who was attending a junior college near the institution practiced with members of an outside wrestling club and the university's intercollegiate wrestling team. Members of the wrestling coaching staff observed these practices, and an assistant wrestling coach provided instruction to the young man during several of these practices.

J. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.12.1 and 13.13.1.2]

During the 1986-87 academic year and the summers of 1987 and 1988, one prospective student-athlete was employed at a wrestling camp owned and operated by the head wrestling coach. A second prospect attended the coach's camp. Specifically:

1. During the 1986-87 academic year and the summers of 1987 and 1988, a prospective student-athlete was employed at the camp.

2. During the summer of 1987, a second prospective student-athlete attended the camp and participated in workouts with campers and members of the university's wrestling team, even though the young man had completed his senior year of high school.

K. [NCAA Bylaw 15.5.2]

The university exceeded the scholarship limits in the sport of wrestling for the 1988-89 academic year. A wrestling student-athlete had been employed for three years in the athletics department. Since the young man was a recruited student-athlete, his wages should have been counted toward the wrestling scholarship limit, which was not done. The student-athlete's wages were not counted against the wrestling scholarship limit in any of the three years he worked, and during the 1988-89 academic year, his wages made the university exceed the wrestling equivalency.

L. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.1]

On numerous occasions during the 1988-89 academic year, members of the university's men's basketball coaching staff provided local automobile transportation to several student-athletes. These violations occurred notwithstanding that the March 3, 1988, infractions report to the university found that: "On numerous occasions in the years 1982 through 1986, various members of the men's intercollegiate basketball coaching staff provided local automobile transportation to student-athletes."

M. [NCAA Bylaws 13.01.5.1, 13.1.2.1, 13.7.5.1 and 13.7.5.2]

On November 10, 1990, during the official paid visit to the university's campus by a prospective student-athlete, the head men's basketball coach allowed the young man and his father to visit a skybox at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome (Minneapolis, Minnesota) for a portion of the football game between the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, and Michigan State University. The prospect and his father also were introduced to a representative of the university's athletics interests during the football game.

N. NCAA Constitution 2.1 and Bylaws 13.1.1.3 and 16.12.2]

During December 1986 and January 1987, a member of the university's men's basketball coaching staff and an academic advisor had direct contact with a student-athlete prior to the time the young man enrolled at the university as a transfer student-athlete from another institution and without first obtaining the permission of the first institution's director of athletics.

Specifically, a part-time assistant men's basketball coach and an academic advisor had several telephone contacts with the young man or his family prior to his enrollment. The part-time assistant men's basketball coach then transported the student-athlete from the Minneapolis airport to Centennial Hall on campus where the young man resided. This transportation was for the purpose of assisting the young man in enrolling at the institution.

After arriving at the university, the young man was permitted to reside in a Centennial Hall dormitory room from January 10, 1987, until June 1987 without paying any dormitory fees until May 20, 1987, because he was a recruited student-athlete in basketball. Institutional policies required a deposit and an initial payment in advance to obtain a dormitory room, unless specific waiver provisions were met. The waiver procedures were not used in the young man's case.

Finally, the nature and scope of the information reported indicate a lack of appropriate control within the men's basketball program on the part of the men's head basketball coach over the process of recruitment and enrollment of this young man.

O. [NCAA Bylaws 16.01.3 and 16.12.2.1]

Beginning in the winter quarter and continuing through the spring quarter of the 1986-87 academic year, the university provided extra benefits to a student-athlete in order to assist the young man, who was a transfer student-athlete and still a 2,000 nonqualifier under NCAA legislation. Specifically, the young man received school supplies (book bag, books, paper and pencils) that were paid for by the director of the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs (OMSSA) who also was a representative of the institution's athletics interests.

P. [NCAA Bylaws 16.12.1 and 16.12.2.3(a)]

During the summer of 1985, the then head football coach gave approximately $250 cash to a student-athlete in order for the young man to pay the cost of a marketing course being offered by the Continuing Education and Extension Department. The course allowed the young man to reenroll at the university for the 1985-86 academic year and have one remaining year of competition. Although the student-athlete obtained the university's certification of eligibility in this manner, the young man had not participated in practice or competition with the team since the 1983-84 academic year and, at the time of the payment, the coach believed the young man would never be eligible to play for the university again. However, the young man did receive athletically related aid during the 1985-86 academic year.

Q. [NCAA Bylaws 16.12.2.1 and 16.12.2.3(a)]

During January 1985, while recruiting a prospective student-athlete, the then head football coach gave $25 to $40 to the young man as reimbursement for the loss or theft of his wallet and its contents that occurred during the prospect's recent official paid visit to the university. This cash was provided to the prospect in an automobile near the young man's high school while in the presence of an assistant football coach. This cash was never repaid by the young man.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

For reasons set forth in Part I of this report, the Committee on Infractions found that this case involved major violations of NCAA legislation that are set forth in Part II of this report. Because this case involves a major violation of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985, NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted by the Convention of the Association, requires, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," minimum penalties that shall include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic, in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year, or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

The committee has considered the scope and nature of the violations, which are set forth in Part II of this report, as well as the extent to which there are mitigating factors that should be taken into account. As explained in Part I of this report, the committee has determined that this is a unique case where it is appropriate to impose penalties that differ from the full set of minimum penalties otherwise required by NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2. Further, for the reasons stated in Part I, the committee has determined that it is not appropriate to apply the minimum penalties for repeat violators to this case. The committee's penalties are as follows:

A. Probation, monitoring and reports, institutional recertification and repeat violator provisions.

1. Probation: The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of two years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal, it being understood that should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions.

2. Monitoring and Reports: Prior to the end of this period of probation, the institution shall report in writing to the NCAA enforcement staff and the Committee on Infractions the steps it has taken to improve and maintain institutional control of its men's athletics programs in the areas of compliance involved in this report, including specifically those measures taken to supervise and monitor the administration of financial aid to student-athletes.

3. Institutional recertification: The university shall recertify that its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

4. Five-year period subject to repeat-violator provisions: The University of Minnesota shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. Football.

1. Prohibition on postseason competition: The football team shall end its 1991-92 season with the playing of its last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in postseason competition following that season.

2. Prohibition on television appearances: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

3. Prohibition on expense-paid recruiting visits: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

4. Prohibition on off-campus recruiting: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

5. Termination, suspension or reassignment of coaching personnel: This penalty is not applicable in light of the nature of the violations.

C. Men's Basketball.

1. Institutional Actions: The university has taken the following corrective and disciplinary actions with respect to its men's basketball program, which the committee adopts and incorporates as part of its penalties in this case.

a. The head men's basketball coach was placed on probation through the 1990-91 basketball season; further, the university gave notice to its men's basketball coaching staff that if further violations of NCAA legislation, no matter how minor or unintentional, occur, the result will be game suspensions or greater penalties for the involved coaching staff members.

b. The head men's basketball coach was prohibited from off-campus recruiting activities during the January 1991 evaluation period.

c. The men's basketball coaching staff was prohibited from recruiting one prospective student-athlete until his eligibility was resolved, which did not occur until the university's hearing before the Committee on Infractions.

2. Grants-in-aid: During the 1991-92 academic year, the institution shall award one less than the maximum number of athletically related grants-in-aid that otherwise would be allowed under Bylaw 15.15.2 in the sport of men's basketball.

D. Wrestling.

1. Institutional actions: The university has taken the following corrective and disciplinary actions with respect to its wrestling program, which the committee adopts and incorporates as part of its penalties in this case.

a. The head wrestling coach was placed on probation through the 1990-91 academic year.

b. The wrestling coaching staff was prohibited from off-campus recruiting activities until after the 1990-91 NCAA championship tournament.

c. The university prohibited the awarding of any new grants-in-aid in the sport of wrestling for the 1990-91 academic year.

d. The head wrestling coach's salary is frozen at the 1989-90 level for the 1990-91 academic year.

e. All wrestling practice sessions are limited to coaches employed by the university, student-athletes enrolled and certified as eligible by the university, and others who are approved on an individual basis by the office of the director of athletics.

f. The wrestling coaching staff shall be required to undergo an educational review of NCAA and Big Ten Conference legislation, including testing.

2. Separation of wrestling club from the university's wrestling team: For a period of one year, beginning with the effective date of these penalties, the university shall operate its intercollegiate athletics wrestling team entirely separately and apart from any wrestling club. This separation shall include a prohibition on any involvement of members of the coaching staff of the university's wrestling team with the wrestling club, a prohibition on the participation of any enrolled student-athletes in any activities of the wrestling club, and a prohibition on any appearances by the members of the university's wrestling team, individually or as team members, in matches or tournaments where members of the wrestling club appear.

3. Prohibition on postseason competition: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

4. Prohibition on television appearances: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

5. Prohibition on expense-paid recruiting visits: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

6. Prohibition on off-campus recruiting visits: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report.

7. Termination, suspension or reassignment of coaching personnel: This penalty, which NCAA legislation otherwise would require the committee to impose, is not imposed because of the mitigating factors described in Part I of this report, particularly the university's disciplinary and corrective actions with respect to the head wrestling coach.

E. Show cause order with respect to institutional personnel: Because the university has taken prompt and appropriate disciplinary and corrective action with respect to its head wrestling coach and men's head basketball coach for their responsibility for some of the matters described in Part II of this report, it is not necessary for the Committee on Infractions to impose any requirement on the university to show cause why additional corrective or disciplinary measures should not be taken. Similarly, the Committee on Infractions has taken note of the university's actions with respect to its former director of the Office of Minority and Special Student Affairs in separating him from the university and referring the matter to local law enforcement agencies. NCAA legislation applicable to violations occurring prior to September 1, 1985, does not provide any procedure for the Committee on Infractions to require disciplinary or corrective action with respect to individuals who are no longer associated with the university's athletics program.

With respect to any violations occurring after September 1, 1985, the Committee on Infractions has determined that no action is warranted with respect to any individuals in light of the university's actions.

F. Additional minimum penalties for repeat major violations: These penalties are not appropriate because of the nature of this case as explained in Part I of this report.

Players hope their stories inspire kids to play by the book

Some members of the University of Miami (Florida) football team have been making visits to the Dade County Youth Detention Center to try to make a difference off the playing field as well as on.

The Hurricanes' visits are part of a "Meet the Author" program conceived by English professor Joyce Speiller-Morris, who first encountered the players in a composition class. In that class, they shattered the illiterate jock stereotypes. They went to the detention facility not for credit, but because they wanted to.

Three players—Martin Patton, Jessie Armstead and Carl Richardson—all write different, but true, stories.

In Patton's fourth visit he shared a composition about what it's like to be on the field waiting for the snap of the ball, letting his listeners experience what a running back goes through.

Richardson, a defensive back, reads his story about his best friends and how one shot and killed the other accidentally after a run-in with a gang.

Jessie Armstead

A linebacker, Armstead tells how his best friend in high school asked him to join a group planning a robbery. Jessie said no; the others were caught and sent to prison. Armstead tells the boys in detention and 15- and 16-year-old repeat offenders, who are accused of crimes ranging from rape to murder.

In trying to help, the players get help, too. "For me, writing is a way to get a lot of animosity and rage out of my system," said Patton. His parents died at the hands of a drunken driver when he was 6.

has announced that he will donate $20,000 to the water polo program for student-athlete scholarships.

He made his announcement at a weekly meeting of the athletics foundation's spring fund drive.

"I have been in this business for 25 years and I have never made more than $53,000 a year," he said. "This is how strongly I feel about the future of these athletes, and I know that I might have to give this much next year."

The Anteater water polo program has won three national championships and produced 45 all-America selections, as well as five Olympians. Newland has compiled a 503-183-5 record in 25 seasons as head coach.

"All of my former players have told me that being involved with athletics was the most important thing they needed to get by in the real world. They learned to work as a team, interact with others, communicate and use time management. If I can continue to give these young athletes that chance to be successful in the future, then that is all I need," Newland said.

Armstead himself spent a day in detention after being caught stealing. That day, he told Gordon Eades of what it was like to be locked up.

State legislation affecting athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect or is otherwise of interest to the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 31 bills from 19 states. The report includes 16 bills that have been introduced and 15 pending bills on which action has been taken since the last report (see the March 27 issue of The NCAA News). Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state-legislation system as of March 22, 1991. Listed bills were selected for inclusion in this report from a larger pool of bills concerning sports, and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in this report by subject:

Anabolic steroids	6
Due process	5
Liability	5
Trainers	4
Athlete agents	3
Scalping	3

Wisconsin athletics board votes to drop five varsity sports

The athletics board at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, has voted to cut five sports teams, including the school's 116-year-old baseball program.

In one of several actions intended to wipe out a $1.95 million deficit in the school's athletics budget within the next four years, the board also voted March 22 to eliminate the men's and women's gymnastics and men's and women's fencing teams, effective next year.

The cuts will leave Wisconsin with 20 varsity sports. The board also imposed a spending cap of $180,000 for men's crew and $150,000 for women's crew as part of the school's new $16.4 million athletics budget.

Board members approved the cuts after rejecting compromise proposals that were offered to save all or some of the sports. One of the proposals, offered by a faculty member who is a member of the board, called for paying off the deficit over seven to eight years by increasing the cost of tickets to athletics events by 5½ percent.

However, other board members argued that the deficit must be eliminated sooner, citing pressure from the Wisconsin legislature.

The board also heard an emotional defense of the baseball program by head coach Steve Land, who gathered players from his team before board members. "You look in the eyes of each one of these kids," Land told board members. "Can you tell me, can you tell them to their faces, that what you are trying to decide here today is the right thing to do? If you can tell them to their faces, then make that decision."

In addition to cutting sports, the board approved the establishment of a reserve fund and approved increases in the price of hockey tickets from $9 to $10 and selected basketball tickets from $8 to $10.

The board also set aside $480,000 over the next four years to improve support services for Wisconsin student-athletes.

Prior to the board's adoption of the budget, Wisconsin athletics director Pat Richter said it is necessary for the school to cut sports to maintain a quality Division I athletics program. Board chair Roger Formisano, a business professor at the university, agreed.

"This isn't a budget for next year," Formisano told the Wisconsin State Journal. "It's a proposal to look beyond, a vision for our department, to shoot for quality. The only way that could be accomplished, the board believed, was to support the administration."
