Support exists for higher academic requirements

There is general support in the NCAA membership for strengthening academic requirements for athletics eligibility, based on hearings conducted May 9 in Dallas by officers of the Presidents Commission.

Commission officers heard from representatives of 10 constituent organizations at the Dallas gathering, including faculty representatives, athletics administrators, conference commissioners and coaches.

"Overall, I was pleased with the level of acceptance of the basic notion of increasing academic requirements," Commission Chair R. Gerald Turner, chancellor of the University of Mississippi, said after the meeting. "It is clear that there is general acceptance of the directions we're going."

Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, chancellor of the University of New Orleans, echoed Turner's view. "We're getting a lot less resistance to (academic) changes than I anticipated," he said. O'Brien attended the hearings in place of the Commission's Division I chair, William H. Cunningham of the University of Texas at Austin.

Turner noted that some "worthwhile refinements, modifications and additional reforms" had been suggested in the hearings. The Commission officers have asked the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee to review those and to present final recommendations to the Presidents Commission in its June 25-26 meeting.

Turner also emphasized that a summary of all suggestions in the Dallas meeting would be sent to all members of the Commission.

The Commission officers were pleased with the reaction to the hearings themselves. "Everyone now knows that we are not coming in with everything lined up, with no

NCAA scholarships go to ethnic minorities

The NCAA has awarded postgraduate scholarships through the ethnic-minority-enhancement program for the fourth year.

The enhancement program, established in 1987 as a result of a recommendation of the NCAA Council Subcommittee to Review Minority Opportunities in Intercollegiate Athletics, is aimed at creating more and better opportunities for ethnic minorities in coaching, athletics administration and officiating.

These postgraduate scholarships are awarded to ethnic-minority applicants who have completed an undergraduate degree and have been accepted into an institution's sports administration program or a related program that will assist the applicant in obtaining a career in athletics.

Recipients must express an interest in preparing for a professional career in administration of athletics. The scholarships are for one year only and are valued at $6,000.

In January 1991, the Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee, as a new NCAA standing committee, assumed the responsibilities of the special subcommittee. It has announced the following individuals (with the institution awarding undergraduate degree and, if different, the institution where postgraduate scholarship likely will be used) as recipients of the 1991 scholarships:

Monique E. Abbitt [Miami University (Ohio), undecided]—Abbitt received a bachelor's degree in mass communications earlier this month and wants to combine that experience with a master's degree in a sports-related program. She was a four-year letter-winner and captain of the women's softball team.

Damon I. Lee [Brandeis University, Loyola University (Illinois)]—Lee will graduate later this month with a bachelor's degree in English and African studies. Lee is the captain of the men's track team. He wishes to pursue a law degree. He expresses a concern for the minority student-athlete who may have difficulties getting through the system and wishes to utilize his law degree working with the problems of hard-ship cases.

Not even retirement can end Bill Flynn's service

By Michael V. Earle
NCAA Director of Publishing

Not even retirement can end William J. Flynn's service to intercollegiate athletics and the NCAA.

After 33 years as director of athletics at Boston College, Flynn will step aside June 1 from a career that transcends the physical growth and overall surge of excellence in intercollegiate athletics that he is credited with bringing to the campus atop the scenic "Heights" of Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts.

Flynn's contributions to Boston College athletics can be measured by the facilities that were constructed during his tenure and by the growth of the program.

Under his guidance, Alumni Stadium was built in 1957, expanded 6,000 seats to its present capacity of 32,000 in 1971, and improved in 1986 with an upper-deck addition that includes luxury boxes. The Silvio O. Conte Forum, home of the Eagles' basketball and ice hockey teams as well as athletics offices; weight, locker and equipment rooms, and sports-medicine facilities—was constructed in 1988.

An upper deck on the west side of Alumni Stadium housing an enlarged press box was built in conjunction with the forum. Recently, Flynn oversaw the reconstruction of the Jack Ryder Track and the Commander Shea Baseball Field.

Seven and six

Seven full-time athletics department personnel were on board when Flynn started as athletics director. The school sponsored six varsity sports. Today, nearly 100 people are employed in an athletics department that administers 32 varsity sports teams.

Flynn's contribution to the Association is equally impressive. His service on NCAA committees—he served on 25 of them—dates back to 1960, when he was appointed to the Football Television Committee. He served as chair of eight committees and was a member of the Executive Committee for 10 years. He was secretary-treasurer in 1969-70 and 10 years later was elected NCAA president.

Thirty people have served as NCAA president. Flynn is one of only four athletics directors who have held the Association's top office.

And Flynn will continue to serve after his retirement. He is a member of the Committee on Review and Planning, which has earmarked positions for six former officers of the NCAA (a certain number are permitted to serve on the committee even if they no longer are full-time employees of a member institution). Flynn modestly attributes his committee involvement with being in the right place at the right time.

TV exposure

"I didn't seek them (NCAA committees) out," Flynn said. "I think that I got to be known because I was fortunate enough to be on the Football Television Committee with so many big names."

"I enjoyed working on that committee the most. It was exciting to be a part of it because there was so much money involved. Back then, it was 'The Committee' to be on, much like the (Division I men's) basketball committee is today. The contract the committee negotiated kind of supported the NCAA back then. It was the start of big dollars in college athletics, but it was a long way from the price paid today."

During Flynn's tenure as chair of the Football Television Committee, a feature of the 1968-69 contract with ABC was the addition of two night-game telecasts with the stipulation that one of the games be played on the first Saturday of the season. At the time, Flynn explained, the feature had the dual purpose of "making the public conscious that college football is back in town ... and at the same time showing college football to a tremendous audience in prime time."

The plan succeeded, as Flynn put it, by "giving the fans enough television but not so much as to hurt the gate." Despite poor weather for much of the season, football attendance increased by more than a half million over the previous year and the game's popularity was on its way to reaching new heights.

Aiding reform

Flynn's service as chair of the Financial Aid Committee in the early 1970s added another notable chapter to his work for the Association. At the time, the move to base athletics grants-in-aid on need was gathering momentum and was a hot topic among the membership. After a two-year study, the committee released a report at the 1971 Convention recommending that future grants-in-aid be based on need.

"We took an awful beating when I was the chair of the Financial Aid Committee," Flynn recalls. "I wasn't necessarily in favor of all the committee was proposing, but in the end, as chair, I had to present its recommendations. The concept of having financial aid based on need and setting a limit on the number of athletes you could give aid to created a hell of a lot of arguments and debate."

"I remember football coaches—Duffy Daugherty, Frank Broyles, to name two—storming the Convention and standing in front of the podium. We were lucky to come out of there alive. The idea of need-based aid eventually lost out, but it was an interesting and controversial issue."

Between serving on the Football Television Committee and the Financial Aid Committee, Flynn found time to serve on the somewhat obscure Special Trampoline Committee. Nevertheless, his selection as chair ranks among one of his more memorable appointments.

"We were called upon by the championships committee to look into the trampoline event at the gymnastics championships," Flynn said. "I didn't know much about it, but we determined that the event was so dangerous that we ought to do away with it."

"I thought all hell was going to break loose when we recommended that scoring of the trampoline be separated from the scoring of the championships. We weren't too popular with a lot of the coaches."

However, Flynn's popularity with the membership was evident in 1979 when he was elected president. Flynn ended his term presiding over the historic 75th NCAA Convention in 1981, which adopted governance plans and included women's athletics programs and services within the NCAA structure.

Flynn's terms as the Association's secretary-treasurer and president—in addition to his service on NCAA committees—coincided with some of the most historic events in the Association's history. The scope of his service and involvement in NCAA affairs is one of the most comprehensive on record among athletics administrators.

Exciting times

"Those certainly were some exciting times," Flynn said. "I was fortunate to be involved in so many of them. Things are a hell of a lot more complicated today. There are a lot more conferences and organizations within the NCAA and so many more rules and regulations. Now, you have the CFA, Division I-A, Division I-AA, the Big East, Hockey East and so on. There are so many more organizations."

"Each has its own problems. But there were problems in athletics clear back with the Greeks and Romans. There always will be prob-

Participation on outside teams during the summer— Divisions I and II Summer 1991

Member institutions should note that during this summer (1991), there are no limits on the number of student-athletes from the same member institution who may participate on an outside team in all Division I individual sports and the Division I team sports of baseball, softball and water polo, provided participation on such teams begins prior to August 1, 1991, and concludes prior to the beginning of the 1991-92 academic year. In the remaining Division I team sports, there is a limit on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team as follows: basketball—1 (in sanctioned summer league), field hockey—5, football—1, lacrosse—5, soccer—6, and volleyball—2. In the sport of ice hockey, there are no limits on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team. Participation (practice or competition) on an outside team that exceeds the above-mentioned limitations would constitute out-of-season practice. It also is permissible for a member institution's coach to be involved with an outside team during this summer that includes student-athletes with eligibility remaining from that institution's team in all individual sports and the team sports of baseball, softball and water polo, provided the coach's involvement with the outside team begins prior to August 1, 1991, and concludes prior to the beginning of the 1991-92 academic year.

In Division II sports (other than basketball, football and soccer), there are no limits on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team, provided that in team sports other than baseball, no member institution's coach is involved in any manner with a team that includes any student-athlete with remaining eligibility from that institution's team. In the sports of basketball, football and soccer, the limitations on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team specified above for Division I are applicable. In all individual sports and in the sport of baseball, a coach from a Division II member institution may be involved this summer with an outside team that includes student-athletes with eligibility remaining from that institution's team, provided the coach's involvement with the outside team begins prior to August 1, 1991, and concludes prior to the beginning of the 1991-92 academic year.

Member institutions should note that in accordance with 1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 38 (effective August 1, 1991), summer practice (1992) that is organized or financially supported by a member institution is prohibited in all sports unless specifically authorized in the bylaws (foreign tour) or through official interpretations approved by the Council. In all Division I sports (including individual sports), there is a limit on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team during the summer as follows: baseball—4, basketball—1 (in sanctioned summer league), cross country—2, fencing—4, field hockey—5, football—1, golf—2, gymnastics—2, ice hockey—no limits, lacrosse—5, rifle—2, skiing—4, soccer—6, softball—4, swimming and diving—5, tennis—2, track and field—7, volleyball—2, water polo—4, and wrestling—5.

In Division II (in sports other than basketball, football and soccer), there are no limitations on the number of student-athletes who may participate on an outside team during the summer. In the sports of basketball, football and soccer, the limitations on the number of student-athletes from the same institution who may participate on an outside team specified above for Division I are applicable. Participation (practice or competition) on an outside team by student-athletes from the same institution that exceeds the above-mentioned limitations would constitute out-of-season practice.

Also, with the adoption of 1991 Convention Proposal No. 38-17, it would remain permissible for Divisions I and II coaching staff members in individual sports to be involved with outside teams that include student-athletes with remaining eligibility from that institution's team during the summer. However, the Interpretations Committee (during its April 4, 1991, conference) determined that such teams would continue to have limits (as specified above) on the number of student-athletes from any one Division I member institution who may participate on such teams without constituting out-of-season practice. It would not be permissible for Divisions I and II coaching staff members in team sports to be involved with outside teams that include student-athletes with eligibility remaining from that institution's team.

Division III transfer eligibility

Division III member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 14.6.1.1, a student who has not previously participated in intercollegiate athletics and who transfers from a two-year or four-year collegiate institution to a Division III member institution is immediately eligible, under the Association's transfer regulations, to compete for the Division III institution, including NCAA championships competition. If the student-athlete ever has participated in intercollegiate athletics, the student must have been academically eligible at the previous institution had he or she remained at that institution.

Financial aid—"barnstorming" tour

During its March 2, 1989, conference, the Interpretations Committee reviewed the provisions of Bylaws 15.1 (maximum limit on financial aid—individual), 15.1.1 (types of aid included in limit) and 15.1.3 (reduction when excess aid is awarded) and confirmed that an institution would be required to reduce the financial aid of basketball student-athletes who participate in a "barnstorming" tour (i.e., basketball competition against teams composed of former players from the same institution or against other outside teams) when the student-athletes receive remuneration beyond actual and necessary expenses for their participation on the tour. It should be noted that payments credited to a student-athlete's account that are not refundable by the institution to the scholarship office or other appropriate institutional agency shall not become the student-athlete's obligation.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Nancy L. Mitchell, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Wrestling Committee addresses holds, fleeing mat area

Rules restricting the use of two holds and problems associated with wrestlers fleeing the mat area were main issues addressed during the NCAA Wrestling Committee's annual meeting May 4-8 in Amelia Island, Florida.

Several changes to NCAA playing rules were made, subject to approval by the Association's Executive Committee.

The committee voted that the figure-four scissors, when used around the head in a neutral position, be ruled a technical violation. The new rule is an addendum to the current one, which states that the figure-four scissors around the body or around both legs of the defensive wrestler is a technical violation. The committee's intent is to prevent injury and also to avoid stalling, thereby creating more action.

The committee also addressed use of the cross-body guillotine. In order to comply with other illegal locking of the hands around the body, legs or head, the locking of the hands around the head prior to a wrestler meeting near-fall criteria in the cross-body guillotine was made a technical violation.

In addition, the committee addressed problems associated with wrestler fleeing the wrestling area. Currently, the rules state, "Penalty points shall not be awarded for fleeing the wrestling area in a pinning situation when near-fall points have been earned." The committee voted to rewrite the rule to read: "Fleeing the wrestling area or forcing an opponent out of the wrestling area as a means of avoiding being scored upon is a technical violation. Both wrestlers should make every effort to remain inbounds. When the referee feels that every effort was not made to stay inbounds under fleeing situations, the offending wrestler shall be penalized."

Control of the mat area during the time a coach has requested a match be stopped to discuss whether a rule has been misapplied was another of the issues addressed. In order to create consistency and compliance with the referee's instructions to keep either wrestler within the 10-foot circle, the rule was modified to remove the technical violation for failure to comply with the control-of-mat-area restriction from the wrestler, and put the onus on the coaching staff.

Sudden-death overtime

The sudden-death overtime period was a major point of discussion, but the committee decided to let the current rule, which applies only to tournaments, remain in effect while additional review is completed.

"We didn't make as many substantive changes as we did last year," said Robert A. Bowlsby, committee chair and director of athletics at the University of Northern Iowa. "Although we didn't make a change in the sudden-death overtime period, we did discuss it at great length. It was the feeling of the committee to let the current rule stand in order to be able to analyze it more."

"We tried to avoid making rule changes that would confuse fans."

The committee also unanimously passed a "consent package" listing nine other rules changes. Among the recommendations was giving the wrestler a chance to pin in the overtime period, even when the offensive wrestler takes his opponent directly to near-fall criteria. Currently, the match is stopped as soon as points are scored. The committee's philosophy is that the ultimate goal of wrestling is the fall. In keeping with that feeling, the committee recommended that the fall should be allowed to take place in the overtime situation.

Preventing delay of the match caused by ill-fitting equipment such as shoes, headgear or shoestrings also was addressed by the committee, which recommended giving the referee the power to call an injury timeout in that situation.

Other action

In other business, the committee reviewed legislation adopted at the 1991 NCAA Convention limiting the size of wrestling coaching staffs. Because the committee believes that wrestling places two people in a combative environment—a situation in which supervision is necessary to prevent injury—it voted to recommend to the Council Subcommittee to Review 1991 Reform Proposals that an additional full-time coach be permitted, giving wrestling two full-time coaches and one restricted-earnings coach.

The committee also voted to recommend:

- That volunteers be allowed to participate in practice.

- That supervision of student-athletes who wish to train on their own in the off-season be permitted.

- That the number of dates for wrestling competition be increased.

The preceeding procedure for all championships also was addressed. After reviewing the form for recording season individual records, the committee stressed that the information presented on these forms needs to be standardized.

The committee voted that, beginning next season, forms will not include matches against two-year schools, clubs, armed-services teams or noncollegians; matches scheduled for less than five minutes; matches that don't have three periods (neutral, top, bottom), and matches scheduled prior to November 1 of the current year. The committee also voted that during the preceeding period, lobbying or supplemental printed material beyond the wrestlers' records will not be permitted in determining seeding.

The committee recommended that athletics trainers and sports-medicine employees of member institutions be permitted entry to the championships as part of the official traveling party, if they can provide letters from their athletics directors certifying that they are there in an official capacity as athletics trainers.

The committee also voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that officials fees be increased for all three championships. It was recommended that the fees for Division I be increased from $70 to $90 per session, and the Division II and III fees be increased from $60 to $80 per session.

The Division I subcommittee, in discussion of future championships, decided to establish a rotation of sites between the Midwest and East Coast.

Sweet discusses NCAA academic-standards issue

By Cindy Simmons

Judith M. Sweet, who in January was elected NCAA president, said raising academic standards is the biggest challenge facing member schools.

"I think a school has a responsibility to the student that when that student is admitted, the student has chance to be successful in the classroom," Sweet said May 3.

An alumna of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Sweet was in Madison to receive an award from the university's school of education.

The Milwaukee native is the director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego.

Sweet said the No. 1 objective of presidents of NCAA institutions is raising academic standards. She said hammering out the specifics of those changes will be difficult.

"They desire to have national academic standards," Sweet said. "The difficulty will be determining what those standards will be."

She listed initial-eligibility standards and raising required grade-point averages as two areas where college presidents may agree. She said raising test-score standards will be more contentious.

"Institutions want to have their autonomy in selecting students," Sweet said.

Sweet said most schools are facing financial problems. Nonrevenue-producing sports are those that will be looked at first for cuts or reductions, she said.

"Stanford is considering a third tier of sports that would have to be totally self-supporting," she said.

She said she is saddened by Wisconsin's recent move to cut five sports—baseball, men's and women's gymnastics, and men's and women's fencing—for budget reasons.

NCAA President Judith M. Sweet

When she was at the university, there were no women's sports, only a recreation program. She said she played badminton.

"I tried all sports," she said. Sweet received a degree in mathematics and physical education from Wisconsin in 1969. She has been the director of athletics and supervisor of physical education at UC San Diego since 1975. She was secretary-treasurer of the NCAA in 1989 and 1990.

Finalists don't like draft with eligibility

If the 25 finalists for 1991 induction into the GTE academic all-America hall of fame could, a majority of them would vote against allowing undergraduates to make themselves available for a professional draft and retain intercollegiate eligibility.

At least, that's what the results of GTE's second annual finalists opinion poll, announced May 7, revealed.

Fifteen of the 25 finalists said they believe that college underclassmen who apply for professional drafts but ultimately do not sign with pro teams should not be permitted to retain their athletics eligibility.

A majority (13 of 25) also said they did not favor development of a Division I-A football championship playoff system.

The GTE survey covered a broad spectrum of issues relating to the NCAA and college athletics in general. Among other survey results:

- While 18 of the respondents said they believe colleges have shown a stronger commitment to stressing academic achievement by student-athletes over the past three years, 17 said the NCAA was not doing enough to stress academic achievement.

- Colleges should be required to disclose student-athletes' graduation rates, according to 22 of the finalists.

- Fifteen said freshmen should continue to remain eligible for intercollegiate athletics.

- The group split (12 for and 12 against, with one no-opinion) on the issue of whether student-athletes should receive stipends in addition to their athletics grants-in-aid.

- Eighteen agreed with Association action to shorten playing seasons, and 15 agreed with the move to reduce the amount of time devoted to practice.

- Sixteen said they did not believe that it was any more difficult today than it was for them to achieve academic honors and on-the-field success.

- Only eight of the 25 thought that coaches should be granted tenure.

- According to 17 of those responding, college presidents should take a more active role in directing the sports programs at their institutions.

Academic ineligibility was identified by eight of the finalists as the most significant problem facing college sports today. Substance abuse and recruiting violations (each identified by six respondents) were next.

Participating in the survey were the following former student-athletes:

Baseball—Thomas Bonfield, St. Leo College; Rick Cerone, Seton Hall University.

Basketball—Kathy Anderson, Central Missouri State University; Julie Biermann, College of Mount St. Joseph; Doug Collins, Illinois State University; Bob Elliott, University of Arizona; Dean Gravin, Illinois Wesleyan University; Kenneth Koenigs, University of Kansas; Mike Newlin, University of Utah; Susan Peters, University of Massachusetts; Amherst; Joan Thornton, Niagara University; Frederic Waldstein, Wartburg College; Kermit Washington, American University.

Football—Terry Baker, Oregon State University; David Casper, University of Notre Dame; Stephen Eisenhauer, U.S. Naval Academy; Jim Grabowski, University of Illinois, Champaign; Joseph Holland, Cornell University; Ralph Jackson, New Mexico State University; David Joyner, Pennsylvania State University; Paul McDonald, University of Southern California; Wade Mitchell, Georgia Institute of Technology; John Sciarra, University of California, Los Angeles; Lee Roy Selmon, University of Oklahoma; Brock Strom, U.S. Air Force Academy.

Some thoughts on special admissions

Editor's note: The Chronicle of Higher Education recently published an extensive feature on institutional policies on special admissions as they relate to athletes. Following are comments related to the issue. Some were published as part of the Chronicle report, and others have appeared in other newspapers.

Tony Kornheiser, columnist
The Washington Post

From a commentary

"According to a survey in The Chronicle of Higher Education, basketball and football players are six times more likely to get special admissions to colleges than the rest of the high-school population.

"Not artists. Not musicians. Not poets.

"Jocks.

"Mama, don't let your babies grow up to write iambic pentameter."

A. Kenneth Pye, president
Southern Methodist University
The Chronicle of Higher Education

"The question ought not to be whether the (institution's admission) standard is the same for athletes as for other students, but whether the school will commit the resources needed to enable them to graduate."

Keith R. Benson, professor of medical history and ethics
University of Washington

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"The issue (of special admissions for athletes) would not be nearly as acute if the graduation rates were higher. Most of us recognize that many athletes come from very poor educational backgrounds—and that we can turn that around if we give them a chance.

"But the question is, are we accepting athletes who have the ability to respond to that challenge?"

Chicago Sun-Times

Editorial excerpt

"Football and men's basketball players in the nation's big-time college sports programs are more than six times as likely as other students to have received special treatment in the admissions process. That is way out of bounds.

"Almost 27 percent of the football and basketball players admitted in the fall of 1989 to NCAA Division I-A schools were 'special-authority admissions.' That's the euphemism for saying they didn't meet their colleges' regular standards.

"But only four percent of all 1989 freshmen at those schools fell into that category, according to a recent report by The Chronicle of Higher Education.

"Even though colleges do make exceptions for other students such as musicians and artists, schools need to start treating athletes like other students if they are to regain control of their sports programs and give their athletes a decent chance at getting a college education.

"What colleges do in the admissions process isn't the only issue. The second part of the equation is what happens to those athletes later—how many go on to graduate from their universities.

"In its report last month, the Knight Foundation's panel on intercollegiate athletics recommended that colleges admit athletes in every sport under roughly the same standards they use to admit other students.

"They have a long way to go to reach that goal."

Robert H. Atwell, president
American Council on Education
The Chronicle of Higher Education

"I've always been uneasy about the simple proposition that it doesn't matter how many people you take in who are special admits—it matters what they do.

"You have to see to what extent some of these special admits end up in courses of friendly professors, in

A "three-sporter"

A 1939 graduate of Boston College, Flynn, a three-sport standout, earned a total of nine varsity letters. He played end and captained the 1938 football team and was a high-scoring forward in ice hockey and an outstanding outfielder on the Eagles' baseball team. After serving four years in the FBI, Flynn returned to Boston College in 1945 and taught math. In 1952, he became executive secretary of the BC alumni association and served as an assistant football coach. He was named athletics director July 1, 1957.

One of his first priorities was salvaging the football program. The Eagles were without a field after they were asked to find somewhere other than Fenway Park to play home football games. Flynn prevailed upon the Boston College administration to build Alumni Stadium. The football program got back on solid ground, and under Flynn's guidance and determination, the school's athletics programs flourished.

As the Eagles' athletics program grew, Flynn was instrumental in keeping pace with the planning and construction of first-rate facilities. It was not unusual to find Flynn at construction sites to get a first-hand look at how the facilities were progressing.

"Keeping football was very important after we got kicked out of Fenway," Flynn said. "I was in the right place at the right time. It was very exciting to be a part of the construction of all of the facilities."

"I'd like to be a consultant on the construction of athletics facilities. I was right in there while they were going up, no doubt. We'd change a lot of things. Architects can design a building, but they don't necessarily design them for athletics. I liked to go to other places and take ideas from their facilities."

Flynn's hands-on approach during the construction of facilities is reflective of the way he goes about his administrative duties, according to his coworkers and fellow administrators.

"To me, Bill stands for integrity. He always did the right thing... He is unique among today's athletics directors."

"Bill impressed me a great deal from the day I arrived," Clayton W. Chapman, Eastern College Athletic Conference commissioner, said. "Big time" athletics director denote negativism to some degree, but with Bill, no task was too small for him to get involved in. He is always available, supportive and extremely modest. He'd do whatever was necessary to help out and then give everyone else credit when the job got done.

"What is amazing to me is that he takes an active role in so many things and yet still is very much a hands-on type of director. He makes you feel like you're involved and that you're his equal. It made me feel good when I was a young squirt and Bill would call to ask what I thought about something. I'll never think of him not being at BC."

"When you think of BC, you think of Bill Flynn."

The Boston College community obviously thinks a great deal of Flynn, who is a member of the Boston College Hall of Fame. On October 14, 1979, Boston College President J. Donald Monan unveiled a bronze casting of Flynn at the school's multipurpose recreation facility and proclaimed that the building be known as the William J.

Flynn Student Recreation Complex. It is the first and only time in Boston College history that a building was named after a current employee.

The athletics community also has recognized Flynn for his work. In 1978, Flynn was named to the Honors Court of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame (NFFHF) and was selected as "Man of the Year" by the Gridiron Club of Boston. In June of 1982, the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) honored him by naming him winner of the James J. Corbett Award, symbolic of outstanding achievements and contributions to athletics administration, and in 1984 he was selected as the winner of the Distinguished American Award by the NFFHF.

Draft plan pairs college, pro aims

By Harry Atkins

When Bo Schembechler speaks, people listen. But sometimes, they hear what they want to hear.

When he spoke to the Economic Club of Detroit a few weeks ago, everyone heard what Schembechler had to say about the need for a new Tiger Stadium.

But lost in that address was Schembechler's plea to allow drafted baseball players a chance to get a college education. His plan would require a rules change by the NCAA. It also would require the backing of major-league teams.

At present, teams lose the rights to an athlete taken in the annual June draft if he decides to bypass a pro career for college. The system forces the player to make a choice — pro ball or college.

Drafted high-school athletes who bypass pro ball for college must wait until their junior years, or until their 21st birthdays, before reentering the draft — unless they choose to leave college and give sufficient notice.

Schembechler thinks young players can have both baseball and college.

"Major-league baseball is the only sport that drafts high-school athletes and loses them if they don't sign," Schembechler said. "It forces baseball to actually recruit against the kid going to college because you lose your draft rights to that individual as soon as he attends the first day of classes."

Under Schembechler's plan, the player who says he wants to go to college may do so. But the club that drafts him keeps the draft rights until there is a change in his eligibility.

"At that time, we would be given a certain period of time to sign him, or he would reenter the draft," Schembechler said.

Schembechler also would like these players to be able to play both for their college teams and in a summer league that would be subsidized by Major League Baseball.

"The kids would play, say, 60 college games, 60 games in summer league and get the equivalent of a year of training in pro ball," Schembechler said.

University of Michigan baseball coach Bill Frechan, a former all-star catcher for the Detroit Tigers, thinks the plan has merit.

"If it encourages more kids to go

"To me, Bill stands for integrity," Reid P. Oslin, Boston College assistant director of athletics for sports publicity, said. "He always did the right thing. He had so many positions with the NCAA, and other athletics directors think the world of him. He is unique among today's athletics directors. He's the only AD on this level that I know of who answers his own telephone."

"One of my favorite memories of Bill is after the Cotton Bowl a few years back. We had a tremendous year, great exposure, (Doug) Flutie had won the Heisman and we had just won the Cotton Bowl. We were delayed at the Dallas airport a few hours because of rain. We were on the plane with the trophy and everyone was partying. But Bill was in his seat with his briefcase open preparing for the next day's work."

As athletics director emeritus, the schedule for Flynn's next work day has yet to be determined. More time spend with his wife, Marie; seven children, all of whom are Boston College graduates, and nine grandchildren probably will be on his list of things to do. Work on the Committee on Review and Planning will keep his ties to the NCAA intact, and working in a fund-raising capacity for his beloved alma mater may be on his agenda. Whatever the future holds, Flynn will be missed in the day-to-day affairs of intercollegiate athletics among his peers as much as he will miss his daily work as an athletics administrator.

"I'd be lying if I said I won't miss it," Flynn said. "I don't know if my wife will know what to do if I'm home for lunch."

"I'll always have quite a few fond memories. Keeping football when we got kicked out of Fenway and being a part of building the football stadium... the excitement of being a part of building the hockey arena and baseball field... the growth of Boston College and the program... the Heisman and Outland Trophy winners. I made so many friends and have so many fond memories. But tomorrow, people will probably be saying 'who used to be the AD?'" to college, then I'm in favor," Frechan said. "I recruit every year, then hold my breath until I see who's coming and who's coming back. Sometimes, you have to go out and recruit again."

But Stan Sanders, the University of Toledo's baseball coach, thinks the Schembechler plan needs some fine-tuning.

"I'd like to see a clause that says the individual who chooses baseball over college and gets released (by the pro team) can play for his college team," Sanders said. "I can give you examples on both sides. But the kid who chooses baseball and gets released, he isn't as likely to think about college if you take baseball away from him."

Not surprisingly, money is a central issue in this debate, too.

"What happens if a kid goes out and gets injured in the summer league?" Sanders said. "Am I supposed to eat the grant-in-aid for the next three years?"

Freehan said, "If college is going to be used (as a training ground), college should be compensated."

Of course, any rules changes would require NCAA membership approval.

And in light of recent NCAA legislation calling for cuts in staff and practice time, there seems little chance of it happening soon.

Schembechler also said he has discussed the matter with some baseball owners. Given their track record on such issues as the designated hitter and runaway salaries for mediocre pitchers, it's doubtful the owners will come to an agreement soon, either.

Governmental affairs report

The following is a review of recent Federal government activities affecting the NCAA membership. These reports are prepared by Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, the Association's legal counsel in Washington, D.C. This report was presented to the NCAA Council during its April 15-17 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri. Certain portions of this report may have been affected by subsequent events.

Capitol Hill meetings

On February 5, NCAA President Judith M. Sweet and Executive Director Richard D. Schultz visited various offices on Capitol Hill to discuss the 1991 Federal legislative agenda and its possible impact on intercollegiate athletics. In addition to meetings with several members of the House and Senate education committee staffs, Sweet and Schultz met with Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Mississippi; Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey; Rep. Tom Coleman, R-Missouri, and Rep. Tom McMillen, D-Maryland. All four members were actively involved in development of the graduation-rate reporting legislation passed by Congress in 1990; Sen. Cochran and Rep. Coleman are members of the education committees of their respective chambers.

Student Right-to-Know Act

As previously reported, the Student Right-to-Know Act passed last year contains a serious technical problem in that it purports to require registrars at NCAA Divisions I and II institutions to compile student-body graduation rates in two different ways in order to conform with the terms of the act. In March, both houses of Congress passed a technical amendment to the act that would resolve this problem (H.R. 1285); the President was expected to sign the bill without delay.

Shortly after the first of the year, NCAA representatives met with officials from the Department of Education (ED) for the purpose of explaining the NCAA's graduation-rate reporting regulations, as amended by the NCAA Council at the time of the 1991 Convention. With minor exceptions, the NCAA's reporting standards—which for Division I go into effect this year closely conform to the standards of the act. If the NCAA standards are found by ED to conform substantially to the requirements of the act, institutions reporting through the NCAA program will not be required to make any independent report to ED. At present, nothing suggests that the NCAA standards are not sufficient, and reporting forms for 1991 have been mailed to NCAA Division I institutions.

The right-to-know act also contains a provision requiring the secretary of education to report by April 1 on the feasibility and desirability of requiring institutions awarding athletically related financial aid to report annually to the secretary their per-sport revenues and expenditures for intercollegiate athletics. In early March, NCAA representatives, including Executive Director Schultz, met with ED officials responsible for preparing this report. The principal purpose of the meeting was to share the NCAA's experience over the past several years in developing similar data on a "blind" basis from Division I institutions, and to point out the complexities involved in establishing uniform revenue/cost accounting procedures applicable to all institutions. It appears unlikely that the ED report will be issued in the immediate future; as of this writing, an initial draft has not been completed.

Tax treatment of bowl sponsorship payments

In our last report, we advised that the Dallas field office of the Internal Revenue Service had ruled that the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association was subject to unrelated business income tax on funds donated by Mobil Oil in exchange for title-right privileges for the Mobil Cotton Bowl Classic.

A few weeks before his death February 8, Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Massachusetts, introduced legislation (H.R. 538) designed to overrule any adverse final ruling by the IRS on the Mobil Oil donation. Under the Conte bill, revenues received by a tax-exempt organization from an amateur athletics event would not be deemed "unrelated business income" for Federal tax purposes. This bill is now receiving active support in the Congress from a coalition of football bowl associations.

On February 19, however, Rep. Paul Henry, R-Michigan, introduced contrary legislation (H.R. 969) that would tax as unrelated business income to a college or university (1) income derived from broadcasting of an athletics event, (2) a payment made in connection with a preferred seating program, and (3) income received from a booster club for athletics programs. In the last Congress, Rep. Henry introduced the amendment to the right-to-know legislation that would have required the annual reporting of revenues and expenses for intercollegiate athletics programs.

Hearings have not been scheduled on either bill.

Antigambling legislation

On January 3, Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas, introduced the Professional and Amateur Sports Protection Act (H.R. 74), which would authorize Federal courts to enjoin any state-sponsored or state-authorized gambling scheme that is based upon the outcome of, or performances in, professional or amateur sporting events. Only those mechanisms in place during the year ended August 31, 1990, would be exempted, specifically Nevada sports books and the Oregon and Delaware sports lotteries. Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-New York, was the original cosponsor of the bill; the bill now has 15 cosponsors.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Arizona, introduced a companion bill (S. 474) February 22; cosponsors include Sens. Bradley, Arlen Specter, R-Pennsylvania, and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. On that day, Sen. DeConcini also introduced S. 473, the Sports Service Mark Protection Act, which would protect the service marks of professional and amateur sports organizations from misappropriation by state lotteries. The House and Senate bills are pending before the judiciary committees in their respective chambers.

The NCAA is participating in a coalition with the major professional sports leagues in support of the Bryant-DeConcini proposal; a similar bill narrowly was defeated at the 11th hour last year. Legislation is now pending in three states to

Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee:

Tentative conference schedule

1. Confirmed the following dates for future conference calls: April 26, May 15, June 6, and June 18.

Seasons of competition

2. Participation as a member of an institution's club team or outside team in collegiate competition. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 14.02.6 (definition of intercollegiate competition), 1990 NCAA Convention Interpretation No. 1-16, a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 4 of the committee's March 19, 1987, conference) and a previous staff interpretation (reference: Item No. 1-b of the staff's February 1, 1991, minutes) and determined that a student-athlete enrolled in a two-year or four-year collegiate institution in a minimum full-time program of studies would utilize a season of competition if the student-athlete participated on an institution's club team (and the institution conducts a varsity program in the sport) or an outside team in an event that is characterized as collegiate competition (i.e., the event involves teams from collegiate institutions participating in competition to score points for their respective institutions).

Financial aid

3. Gratification of financial aid. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 15.3.4.1(d) (voluntary withdrawal) and determined that a member institution may cancel immediately the financial aid of a student-athlete who has signed a financial agreement for the full academic year, has participated during the institution's first term and for a period of time between terms, but withdraws from the institution's team prior to the beginning of the succeeding term; noted that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 15.3.4.1.3, the student-athlete has an opportunity for a hearing regarding the cancellation of the student's financial aid.

1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 38

4. Playing and practice seasons. Reviewed 1991 Convention Proposal No. 38 and took the following actions:

a. Determined that the hourly and weekly practice limitations would not apply to student-athletes participating in fund-raising activities, recruiting activities (e.g., serving as a student host for prospective student-athletes during official visits) or public-relations activities related to the student-athlete's sport (e.g., media days).

b. Determined that a member institution is not required to provide student-athletes with a day off during the playing and practice season during the institution's preseason practice that occurs prior to the first day of classes or the first scheduled contest, whichever is earlier.

c. Recommended that the NCAA Council, in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 5.3.1.1.1 (noncontroversial amendment), amend Bylaw 17.1.5.3.5 (athletically related activities between terms) to indicate that the daily and weekly hourly limitations would not be applicable to countable athletically related activities that occur during an institution's official vacation period, as indicated in the institution's official catalog; noted that if official vacation periods occur during any part of a week in which classes also are in session, the institution would be subject to the daily and weekly limitations during the portion of the week in which classes are in session; also determined that if an official vacation period occurs during a part of a week in which classes are in session, the institution must provide the student-athletes with a day off during the week; however, it would be permissible for the institution to utilize a vacation day to satisfy the day-off requirement, provided no countable athletically related activities occur on that day.

d. Confirmed that the adoption of Amendment-to-amendment No. 38-17, which permits Divisions I and II coaching staff members in individual sports to be involved with outside teams during the summer that include student-athletes with eligibility remaining from that institution's team, would not eliminate the restrictions that such teams have limits on the number of student-athletes who may participate on such teams without constituting out-of-season practice (see Item No. 6 of the committee's October 25, 1990, conference for limits on numbers of student-athletes who may participate on an outside team during the summer).

Permissible expenses

5. Surgical expenses to partial or nonqualifiers. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 16.4.2(b) (surgical expenses), a previous committee interpretation (reference: Item No. 2 of the committee's January 26, 1989, conference) and a staff interpretation (reference: Item No. 1-c of the staff's February 8, 1991, meeting) and determined that a member institution may not provide surgical expenses to a partial qualifier or nonqualifier who is injured during the first academic year in residence while participating in voluntary weight training or conditioning activities; recommended that the Council consider sponsoring legislation to allow member institutions to provide surgical expenses to student-athletes who are injured during the academic year while participating in voluntary physical activities that would prepare the student-athlete for competition.

Summer basketball

6. Foreign student-athletes participating in summer basketball leagues. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 30.11(b) (geographical limitations) and determined that the restriction that league play shall be within 100 air miles of the city limits of the student-athlete's official residence at the end of the previous academic year or the institution the student-athlete last attended as a regular student would be applicable to foreign student-athletes participating in summer basketball leagues in the student-athlete's country.

Players-counters/exempted

7. Counting a multisport participant who has exhausted eligibility in one sport during the previous academic year. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaws 15.5.1.7 (which permits a student-athlete to participate in organized institutional practice sessions after having exhausted eligibility, provided the individual has eligibility remaining under the five-year/10-semester rule) and 15.5.5.1 (which indicates that a counter who practices in the sport of football and in one or more sports must be counted in the sport of football) and determined that the provisions of 15.5.5.1 would not be applicable to an individual who has exhausted eligibility in the sport of football during the previous academic year; thus, the individual must count in the institution's financial aid limitations in the second sport even if the individual participates in practice sessions in the sport of football. [Note: This interpretation modifies a previous Interpretations Committee decision (reference: Item No. 8 of the committee's January 7, 1991, conference).]

Summer financial aid

8. Financial aid to attend an institution's summer term or summer school subsequent to initial full-time enrollment. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 15.2.7.1.1 (enrolled student-athletes), which indicates that financial aid may be awarded only in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid received by the student-athlete during the previous academic year, and took action regarding the following situations:

a. During its April 15-17, 1991, meeting, the Council reviewed a preliminary Interpretations Committee minute and utilized the provisions of NCAA Constitution 5.4.1.1.1 (modification of wording) to permit a nonqualifier or partial qualifier to receive athletically related financial aid to attend an institution's summer term or school subsequent to completing an academic year at that institution under the following conditions:

(1) The student-athlete has satisfied the NCAA satisfactory-progress requirements and, thus, would be eligible for competition for the succeeding year (i.e., the student-athlete must have successfully completed 24 semester hours or 36 quarter hours during the previous academic year and have a grade-point average that places the student-athlete in good academic standing at the institution);

(2) The student-athlete has been awarded athletically related financial aid for the succeeding academic year; and

(3) The student-athlete will receive athletically related financial aid to attend the institution's summer term or school only in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid the student will receive for the succeeding year.

b. Determined that the phrase "in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid received during the previous academic year" would require institutions to calculate aid to be awarded to a student-athlete during the summer term on an equivalency basis (as opposed to an element-by-element basis). For example, if a student-athlete received room and board during the academic year and the student-athlete's equivalency was 50 percent of the institution's full grant, the student-athlete would be entitled to receive athletically related financial aid equal to 50 percent of the student-athlete's actual educational costs for the summer term.

c. Determined that a student-athlete who attends an institution on a full-time basis for one regular term during the previous academic year would be eligible to receive the same percentage of financial aid during the following summer term as the student-athlete received during the term in which the student-athlete was enrolled on a full-time basis.

d. Determined that employment arranged by the athletics department for a student-athlete during the summer while attending the institution's summer term would not be considered in determining the amount of athletically related financial aid the student-athlete may receive for the summer term.

e. Confirmed that an institution that conducts multiple summer sessions may not award athletically related financial aid to any one session that exceeds the proportion of the amount of athletically related financial aid received by the student-athlete during the previous academic year; thus, if a student-athlete received 50 percent athletically related financial aid during the academic year, it would not be permissible for an institution to award a student-athlete a full athletically related grant to attend one session and no athletically related aid for the second session.

1991 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 37

9. Coaching duties/off-campus recruiting. Reviewed the provisions of NCAA Convention Proposal No. 37 as it relates to the number of coaches who may recruit prospective student-athletes off the institution's campus at any one time when the institution conducts a combined program in the sport (e.g., men's and women's track); recommended additional input from various coaches groups on this issue before reaching a conclusion on the matter.

1990-91 basketball injury rates above three-year averages

Overall injury rates for both men's and women's basketball were higher than the average rates for the past three years, according to the results of the 1990-91 NCAA Injury Surveillance System (ISS) for winter sports. These results can be attributed primarily to an increase in game injuries in both sports during the past season, according to Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences.

Both sports list the ankle and knee as top two body parts injured; however, knee injuries in women's basketball comprise a higher percentage of that sport's overall injuries than do knee injuries in men's basketball.

Game- or match-injury rates in wrestling, ice hockey, men's gymnastics and women's gymnastics also were higher than their averages.

Ice hockey, while showing a decrease in the practice-injury rate, showed a five-year-high game-injury rate of more than 18 injuries per 1,000 exposures.

Wrestling showed increases in both practice- and match-injury rates over the previous year, but neither value approached the six-year highs for the sport.

Knees and shoulders continue to be the top two body parts injured for both of these sports.

The practice-injury rate in women's gymnastics was the highest in six years, while the match-injury rate for both men's and women's gymnastics was the second-highest recorded by the ISS for each of these sports. The highest percentage of injuries continues to come from the floor exercises in both sports.

The survey, conducted as part of the NCAA Injury Surveillance System, is statistically reliable; but researchers should be cautious when comparing the results with injury data from other studies.

No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics injury literature, Dick said. Therefore, the information contained in this summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the NCAA Injury Surveillance System (ISS).

The ISS was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics. Injury data are collected yearly from a representative sample of NCAA member institutions and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The committee's goal continues to be to reduce injury rates through suggested changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques based on data provided by the Injury Surveillance System.

Sampling

Exposure and injury data were submitted weekly by athletics trainers from institutions selected to represent a cross section of the NCAA membership. The cross section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions, Dick said.

Dick said that it is important to note that this system does not identify every injury that occurs at NCAA institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross section of NCAA institutions.

Exposures

An athlete exposure (A-E) is one athlete participating in one practice or game in which he or she is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury. For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury in the Injury Surveillance System is defined as one that:

1. Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game, and
2. Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and
3. Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation for one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Injury rate

An injury rate is a ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete exposures in that category. This value is then multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete exposures. For example, six reportable injuries during a period of 563 athlete exposures would give an injury rate of 10.7 injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures (six divided by 563 times 1,000).

Additional information on the report is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

The following tables highlight selected information from the winter 1990-91 Injury Surveillance System. Injury rates and game-practice percentages are compared to an average value calculated from all years in which ISS data have been collected in a specific sport.

Two Arkansas athletes honored

The University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, has honored two student-athletes as part of a program funded by Arkansas Power and Light (AP&L) through the NCAA Foundation.

Mary Patricia Farmer of Shreveport, Louisiana, and Ted Shimer of Bentonville, Arkansas, received the Arkansas Power and Light Company-NCAA Foundation Scholar-Athlete Awards as the senior male and female student-athletes with the highest cumulative grade-point averages at the university.

AP&L has established an endowment with the NCAA Foundation that will enable Arkansas to make similar presentations annually. In addition, AP&L will donate $1,000 through the Foundation to the university in honor of the awards' winners. The donation will go into a general scholarship fund.

This year's awards were presented by Kay Arnold, vice-president of communications for AP&L, at the school's Honors Recognition Banquet April 19. Shimer and Farmer received framed bronze medallions and plaques.

Shimer is a senior in history in Arkansas' Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences, where he has a 3.820 grade-point average (4.000 scale). The Razorback football linebacker also has been very involved with a campus ministry program.

Farmer is a senior in mathematics with a 3.850 GPA in the Fulbright college. She is a member of the swimming and diving team.

The NCAA Foundation was created in 1988 to support the academic mission of intercollegiate athletics and to promote personal growth and development opportunities for young men and women. Foundation officials hope the Arkansas awards program will become a model for the establishment of similar programs in other states.

Administrative Committee minutes

1. Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed Donna M. Ledwin, College of Notre Dame (Maryland), to the Credentials Committee for the 1992 Convention, replacing Marion Wilkinson, no longer at a member institution.

b. Appointed Regina Cavanaugh Murphy, Houston, Texas (former Rice University student-athlete), to the Committee on Review and Planning, replacing Micki King Hogue, declined appointment.

c. Appointed Tina Hoffman, University of Alaska, Anchorage, to the Men's and Women's Skiing Committee, replacing William C. Marolt, University of Colorado, Boulder, whose term expires September 1.

d. Directed the national office staff to respond to a letter critical of the NCAA in a recent issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

In response to an earlier referral of a recommendation by the Committee on Women's Athletics, approved a recommendation by the chair of the Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee that the NCAA pay expenses for a representative of that committee to attend one meeting of the Committee on Women's Athletics, or vice versa, for one day once a year.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Approved 118 summer basketball leagues (71 for men and 47 for women) per Bylaws 14.8.5.2 and 30.11, as reported in previous editions of The NCAA News.

(2) Granted a waiver per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(a) to permit a student-athlete from a member institution to participate in tryouts for selection to a national team that will participate in the Pan American Games in basketball.

Conference No. 7
May 5, 1991

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(c) to permit student-athletes from 17 member institutions to participate in tryouts or competition involving national teams in basketball, field hockey, lacrosse, soccer, swimming and diving, track and field, and volleyball.

(4) Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1-(d) and 14.8.6.2-(b) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in competition as part of the 1991 Florida Sunshine State Games, State Games of Oregon and Prairie State Games (Illinois).

(5) Granted 11 waivers per Bylaw 16.13 to permit institutions to provide incidental expenses in these situations:

(a) To student-athletes and/or members of their intercollegiate teams to attend funerals of members of the student-athletes' families.

(b) To return home due to serious illness in the student-athletes' families.

(c) To send a remembrance to a student-athlete recovering from surgery.

(d) To return home due to the fact that the student-athlete's home was destroyed by fire.

(e) To attend an established awards ceremony at which the student-athlete was recognized as the collegiate male athlete of the year in his state.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee:

(1) Granted a waiver for championships eligibility per Bylaw 31.2.1.3 to Occidental College, which failed to submit its sports-sponsorship form by the specified deadline.

(2) Approved expenses for a one-day, in-person meeting of a subcommittee of the Division III Steering Committee to discuss playing- and practice-season legislation in that division.

(3) Approved a recommendation by the Men's and Women's Tennis Committee that the schedule for the individual competition at the 1991 Division III Women's Tennis Championships be extended by one day to obviate problems created by a participant's inability to participate on Sunday due to institutional policy.

Approval delayed

The NCAA Executive Committee has voted to delay approval of an NCAA Men's and Women's Swimming Rules Committee recommendation that would require minimum depths of diving tanks.

The rules committee voted during its April 27-May 1 meeting to require a minimum plummet depth of 16 feet for platform diving, 12 feet for three-meter diving and 11 feet for one-meter diving. Currently, minimum depths are recommended.

The Executive Committee has asked the rules committee to provide information regarding the number of pools affected by the proposed change and data concerning the safety of pools that are shallower than the proposed minimums.

Merger of conferences announced

The New South Women's Athletic Conference (NSWAC) has merged with Trans America Athletic Conference (TAAC).

Florida International University, Georgia Southern University, Georgia State University, Mercer University, Samford University and Stetson University will compete in both the men's and women's divisions of the TAAC. Florida A&M University will be an associate member of the TAAC and will compete only in the women's division. Rollins College will be invited to participate as an associate member of the TAAC in women's tennis.

In addition, Southeastern Louisiana University will join the TAAC for the 1991-92 season and will compete in both the men's and women's divisions.

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Jeanne Rowlands announced her retirement as women's athletics director at Northeastern, a post she has held since 1979. She also served as head women's basketball coach at the school for 12 years beginning in 1966.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Howell announced his retirement at Princeton, effective June 30. Howell—who estimates he has attended 18,000 athletics events at the school since 1935, when he was the 8-year-old son of a Princeton professor—has been an athletics administrator at his alma mater for 21 years. He earlier was the university's assistant dean of the faculty.

COACHES

Baseball—Ed Lyons retired after 19 years as head coach at Upsala, where his teams compiled a 473-256-4 record and appeared nine times in NCAA postseason play. Lyons also was an assistant at the school for 11 years before his promotion to head coach in 1973. Jimmy Shankle appointed for the new program at Texas-San Antonio, where the team will begin play next season. He has been head coach for the past five years at Lubbock Christian, where each of his teams has been nationally ranked in NAIA play, and also has been an assistant at Texas Tech. David Perkins resigned after five seasons at Lamar, where he coached his teams to a 120-152-2 record and his 1987 squad appeared in the Division I Baseball Championship.

His expanded duties will include responsibilities as director of intramural and club sports and supervision of summer camps. Michael P. Cal Poly Pomona 'doubles up' for II team title

The score was the same as last year, and so were the finalists. But this year, Cal Poly Pomona turned the tables May 5 and defeated UC Davis, 5-3, winning its first Division II women's tennis team title in the process at Rancho Cordova, California's, Gold River Racquet Club.

The top-seeded Broncos broke a 3-3 tie after singles play to take charge in doubles. At No. 1, the top-seeded duo of Cyndi Hurler and Donna Ewing combined for a 3-6, 6-0, 6-4 victory over second-seeded Alison Vidal and Reagan Solt. At No. 3, Diane Ewing and Cynthia Laird defeated Jenny Newman and Kim Borah, 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-1.

Cal Poly Pomona, coached by Ann Lebedeff, finished its season at 21-5, while UC Davis fell to 21-6.

The Broncos' dominance continued in the doubles tournament, as both of the qualifying Pomona teams advanced to the finals. In that 90-minute contest, second-seeded Onnaca Heron and Cindy Hamnquist beat Hurler and Ewing, 6-2, 7-5. It was the first doubles crown for the Broncos; they had won singles in 1987 and 1988, when Xenia Anastasiadou claimed the titles.

In singles, the top bracket went as expected, with top-seeded Chan Dixon of Valdosta State reaching the finals. But in the bottom bracket, unseeded Air Force freshman Laura Simmons scored two upsets on her way to the championship match.

In the second round, Simmons disposed of second-seeded Vidal, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4. Then, after beating Erin Green of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, 7-6 (10), 6-3, Simmons defeated eighth-seeded Christy Pohl of UC Davis, 6-3, 7-6 (1), to meet Dixon in the finals.

Using an all-around game, Simmons added Dixon, who was competing in her fourth national tournament, to her list of victims, 6-3, 7-6 (1). Dixon dropped the first eight points en route to falling behind in the first set, 4-0. She rallied for a 5-2 lead in the second set, but Simmons captured the next four

Ex-teammates share hitting-streak record

Within a week, two former junior college teammates now playing women's softball at different schools recently matched each other in establishing a Division I record for most consecutive games with a base hit.

News Fact File

According to a recent national survey by Dallas-based Sports Marketing Group, the five most popular spectator sports in the U.S. are pro football, college football, the winter Olympics, the summer Olympics and major-league baseball, in that order. College basketball ranked 14th (pro basketball was seventh) and college baseball was 18th; those were the only other college sports ranked in the top 20.

The five most unpopular sports, in order, were pro wrestling, LPGA golf, PGA senior golf, pro boxing and college wrestling. Also listed among the least popular was college ice hockey, 12th (pro hockey was 14th); that was the only other college sport listed in the top 20 least popular sports. High-school football ranked as the sixth most popular sport.

As reported in the May 1 issue of The NCAA News, Manhattan College's Stacy Cowen hit in a record 24 straight games through April 24. As it turns out, however, a former teammate of Cowen's at Onondaga Community College in Syracuse, New York, actually set the record five days earlier, only to be tied by Cowen.

On April 19, Dawn Melfi of the University of South Florida established what she thought at the time was only a school-record 24-game streak with a hit against Louisiana Tech University. The streak ended when she went hitless the next day against Stetson University.

But when South Florida assistant coach Ken Eriksen saw the item about Cowen's streak in the News, not only the number 24 but Cowen's name rang a bell.

Eriksen recalled that Melfi and Cowen had formed a pretty good double-play tandem as teammates at Onondaga. Melfi plays second base and Cowen plays third, in addition to pitching. Both have a similar hitting style, too—they are slap-hitting left-handers.

Melfi led South Florida in hitting this season with a .395 batting average. She set eight school records, including the hitting streak.

During that streak, which began March 20 against Michigan State University, she was 33-of-84 for a .393 average.

Illness dampens top-ranked golf team's hopes of capturing crown

Heading into a match, especially if it's for a national championship, it is normal for a coach's stomach to feel a bit queasy. But in the case of San Jose State women's golf coach Mark Gale, it's not his stomach that he is worried about.

Instead, he's concerned about 1989 individual titlist Pat Hurst, who has played just one 18-hole round since late March because of a stomach ailment that doctors have not been able to completely identify or cure. As a result, the top-ranked Spartans face the prospect of entering the National Collegiate Women's Golf Championships without their best golfer and only player with more than a year's experience.

Considering San Jose State's problems, UCLA appears to be sending the strongest team to the championships. In fact, if the tournament were played on the proverbial paper, it might not even be a contest.

But until the first paper golf course is created, the championships will be contested on grass this time on the Scarlet Course on the Ohio State campus — and the title will be up for grabs.

"I believe there are a number of teams that have a good chance to win," said Arizona coach Kim Haddow, whose team is in that group. "We have won six tournaments, finished second twice and third twice. I'm excited about our chances."

There are a lot of people sharing that sentiment heading into the championships.

UCLA is getting hot at the right time. The Bruins won the Pacific-10 Conference championship by 22 shots over Arizona in a tournament played partially in the rain. Then they went to the California Collegiate Championships at Stanford and beat the Cardinal by 30 strokes on a dry course with slick greens. San Jose State finished 36 strokes back with Hurst contributing only on the first day.

"I'm extremely confident right now," UCLA coach Jackie Steinmann said. "Beating Arizona by 22 strokes and San Jose State by 36 makes us pretty good."

UCLA did more than just win the Stanford tournament. They broke the tournament scoring record with an 8-over-par 884. Individually, Bruin golfers finished first, second, third and fifth.

Freshman Lisa Kiggins shot an even-par 219 to claim top honors, duplicating her performance at the Pac-10 meet. Sophomore Liz Bowman took second, followed by Debbi Koyama in third and LaRee Fugg in fifth.

Even the Bruins' fifth golfer, Christy Erb, won the Golf World tournament at Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, in the fall. That tournament featured many of the top teams in the nation.

"We're definitely peaking at the right time," Steinmann says.

Championships Preview

The team doctor may be the most valuable player at San Jose State. For Hurst, a senior whose individual title in 1989 sparked the Spartans to that year's team title, the Stanford tournament was the first time she had played a complete 18-hole round since she was invited to play as an amateur in the Dinah Shore Invitational on the LPGA tour.

"She's going to see three doctors to find a solution," Gale said. "She plans to play at nationals, but we'll see. She's really hurting out there."

If Hurst can't play, it puts a tremendous amount of pressure on Gale's young team. His other top players are two sophomores and two freshmen. But one of the sophomores is Tracy Hanson, who is ranked second nationally. Hanson has won three tournaments this year, including the Japan-U.S. friendship match and a tournament on the Ohio State course that will host the NCAA championships. Ninni Sterner, Lisa Walton and Nicole Horner round out the team.

While Gale admits that probably nobody could have beaten UCLA at the Stanford tournament, he does acknowledge that the loss of Hurst hurt his team more than just on the score card. "Those young players knew that every stroke they took would count," he said. "Psychologically, that hurt us."

Arizona comes in with a strong team, even without a significant showing this year by defending individual champion Susan Slaughter. Slaughter is on the team but is not among the top five golfers on Haddow's squad.

The team is led by Annika Sorenstam and Mette Hageman, ranked third and sixth, individually. Sorenstam is a freshman from Sweden who has won twice this year and is "coming on strong," Haddow said. Hageman "has been the backbone of the team for her four years" and also has won two tournaments.

Depth will be the key for Arizona, whose fifth player, Susan Pankau, has turned in the best round for the team on several occasions this year. "Our strength is in depth and consistency," Haddow said. "Those are the key elements necessary to win a championship."

College World Series' home getting new look

Its time has come.

After 43 years, Rosenblatt Stadium, home of the College World Series in Omaha, Nebraska, is undergoing a massive renovation effort. Over the next four years, taxpayers, through a lodging and occupation tax, will finance $8 million in improvements to create a bigger, safer and more accessible ballpark with a few added, modern amenities.

"I imagine this year some of the fans will be disoriented with the new look," said Terry Forsberg, public events manager for the city of Omaha. "When you make a change after 40 years, somebody ought to notice."

Already, fans attending this year will see a dramatic new look at Rosenblatt. No longer will the stadium's trademark advertising billboards occupy the outfield walls. For safety reasons, thick padding has been added to the walls to protect the outfielders. Also, the hitting background in center field has been increased to improve a hitter's ability to see the pitch out of a pitcher's hand.

An additional 25 parking places were established for tournament officials while 250 parking spaces were created for the general public.

Said Gene McArtor, chair of the NCAA Division I Baseball Committee and baseball coach at the University of Missouri, Columbia, "The expansion and improvement plans over the next four years are examples of the continuing commitment the city of Omaha has for the College World Series. It shows how much the city cares about the growth and development of the championship."

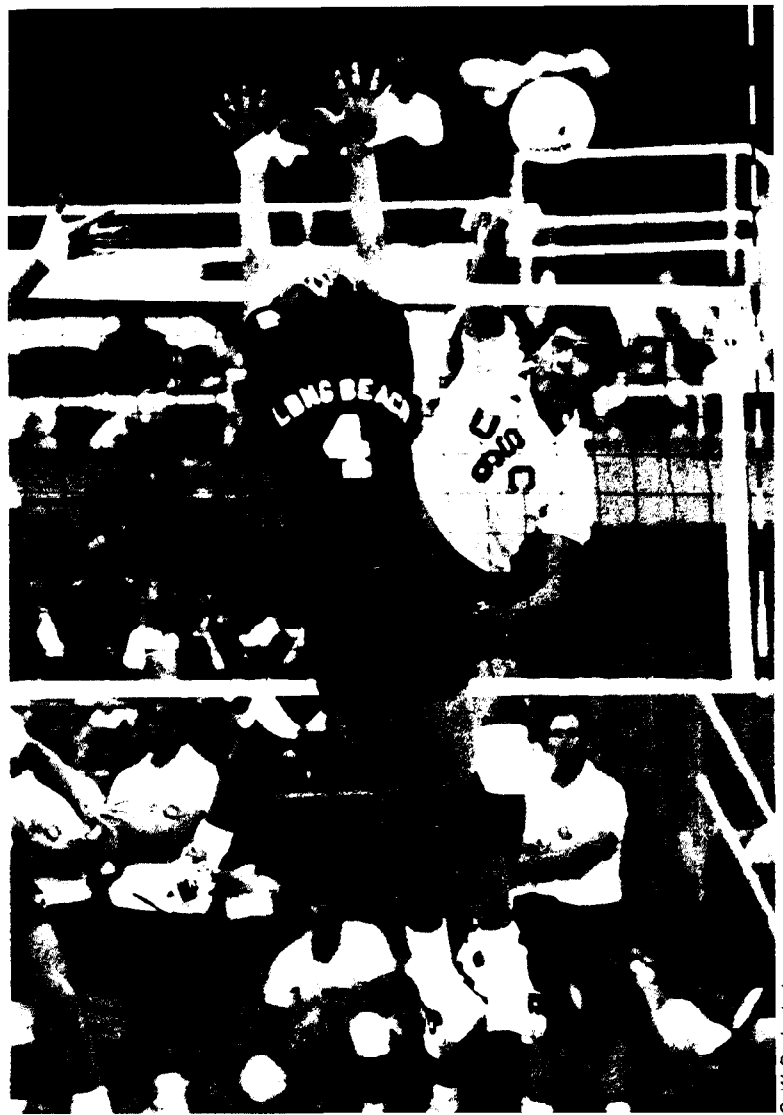

One of the key figures in the renovation effort was the mayor of Omaha, J. P. Morgan.

Said Forsberg, "The mayor and his staff recommended the tax and have been very supportive and involved in the renovation efforts. We also have received support from private foundations and all along have worked hand-in-hand with the College World Series board."

On July 1, further construction work will begin at the park, with an April 1, 1992, completion date. It will include:

- A new natural-grass playing field and drainage system. The field will be moved 12 feet toward center field and lowered eight inches to allow for the construction of an additional 650 box seats around the home-plate area. The dimensions of the outfield fences will be decreased from 343 feet to 335 feet down the foul lines and from 420 feet to 408 feet in center field.

- A Stadium View Club that will be used for dining and entertainment. "It will be a lot like the Stadium Club at Royals Stadium in

Not enough

The University of Southern California's Jen-Kai Liu scored 24 kills in the championship match of the National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship May 4 in Honolulu, but the effort wasn't enough to keep Jason Stimpfig (No. 4) and his California State University, Long Beach, teammates from winning the title in four games

Kansas City, but not as big and not as fancy," said Forsberg.

- New dugouts and on-field camera platforms.

- An elevator to the upper press box so that it is accessible to the handicapped.

Added McArtor, "The changes will be readily visible to the fans and viewers and I think it will enhance the championship a great deal. In the next year, we will have a whole new look and what I think will be a very positive addition to the College World Series experience."

Forsberg said the renovation was critical if Omaha was to continue serving as host city and to take the championship to a higher level.

"The College World Series has grown dramatically in the last few years and has become a premiere sporting event," said Forsberg. "This renovation plan was a must."

This time, Methodist feels like front-runner in III golf

It may sound strange for the coach of a team that has not been beaten in nearly two years to say that the role of favorite "feels different." But for Steve Conley, men's golf coach at Methodist, that is exactly the feeling heading into the Division III Men's Golf Championships in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Conley's Monarchs finished second to Cal State Stanislaus at the Division III championships in 1989, which happens to be the last time the Monarchs lost. With Cal State Stanislaus' move to Division II before last season, Methodist became the front-runner for the 1990 tournament, which the Monarchs won by 30 strokes.

But Conley said that Methodist was favored in 1990 almost by default. "It had been so long since anybody but Stanislaus had won it, they just made us the favorite since we were second a year earlier," Conley said. "This year, we definitely are the favorites."

For good reason.

Rob Pilewski won the individual championship in 1990, supplanting teammate and 1989 titlist John McCullough. Just a junior, Pilewski has a chance to become just the second repeat winner in Division III, joining Mike Bender of Cal State Stanislaus, who won in 1979 and 1980. "Rob has had an up-and-down season," Conley said. "He's been concerned with trying to finish too high. The expectations of being defending champion have been weighing on him. But he'll be ready."

So will Hank Klein, who tied McCullough for sixth place last year. Klein currently is the Virginia amateur champion and has been a first-team all-America each of the past two years.

Methodist also brings back two senior golfers who did not make the championship field last season but do have national experience. Bill Arlis went to the national tournament as a freshman, then placed second at a preseason meet that featured most of the top 12 teams from last year. Jason Cherry competed in the national meet as a sophomore.

In addition, Bill Anderson, a red-shirt freshman, made the all-conference team this year. "He suffers a bit from youth," Conley joked, "but he's a good player who will come through."

If it's beginning to sound like the same old story in Division III with just a different name at the top, guess again. Cal State San Bernardino finished second in that preseason meet by just two strokes.

The Coyotes switched coaches in the off-season when Greg Price decided to devote full time to his academic interests. New coach Fred Hanover inherited a sound program with two golfers back from last year's fourth-place team. Brad Casdorff, who finished in a tie for 10th, is in a battle for the fifth spot on this year's team. Charles DeLorey shot a 309 last year.

The Coyotes' leading golfer is Defending champion: Rob Pilewski of Methodist fired a 1-over-par 289 to become the Monarchs' second consecutive individual titlist and lead the team to its first-ever championship.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the May 29 issue of the News.

Four different schools, including Methodist, have won one team championship, while Cal State Stanislaus won the other 12 before moving to Division II in 1990. Pilewski's individual championship was the fifth won by a member of the championship team.

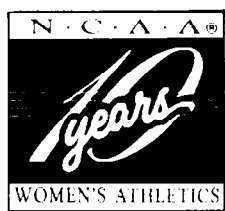

Division I women's tennis all-decade selections listed

The Division I women's subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Tennis Committee is recognizing an all-decade team as part of the Association's celebration of the 10th anniversary of NCAA women's championships.

Individuals who have made significant contributions to the Division I Women's Tennis Championships and to the sport of tennis are among the honorees.

Members of the all-decade team include Sandra Birch, Stanford University, 1989 singles champion; Patty Fendick, Stanford, 1986 and 1987 singles champion; Linda Gates, Stanford, 1985 singles champion, 1984 doubles champion (with Elise Burgin) and 1985 doubles champion (with Leigh Ann Eldredge); Debbie Graham, Stanford, 1990 singles champion; Beth Herr, University of Southern California, 1983 singles champion; Alycia Moulton, Stanford, 1982 singles champion; Gretchen Rush, Trinity University

(Texas), 1983 doubles champion (with Louise Allen); Lisa Spain, University of Georgia, 1984 singles champion, and Shaun Stafford, University of Florida, 1988 singles champion.

Also on the team is Frank Brennan of Stanford, coach of national championship teams in 1982, 1984, 1986, 1987, 1988, 1989 and 1990.

transfer Scott Fisher, who attended Riverside City College last year.

"This team has played well this year, but not to its potential yet," Price said. "They hope to do that the third week of May in Lincoln."

Ohio Wesleyan and Gustavus Adolphus tied for second last year, though far behind Methodist. Ohio Wesleyan returns Barry Pry, the individual runner-up in 1990. He fired a 2-over-par 146 to win the Muskingum Invitational in March, his first victory of the year.

Coach Dick Gordin also brought in transfers Galen Eckland from Duke and Matt Roth from Methodist.

Gustavus Adolphus' main competition probably has been Mother Nature. "This is the worst spring, weather-wise, we have ever had up here," Gusties coach Whitey Scoog said. "It's been cold, windy and wet. It's hard for the guys to get their games together."

Skoog is counting on Tim DeJarlais, who finished tied for 10th last year, and Jon Lindquist and Pete Anderson, who were honorable-mention all-Americans. The team has been good but inconsistent, as evidenced by a tournament at Drake a couple of weeks ago. The Gusties led the tournament, which included 12 Division I teams, after firing a 299 on the par-73 course the first day. On the second day, they shot a 320. "Which team are we?" Scoog asked.

The answer to that will make for some interesting clubhouse talk in Lincoln.

"It ought to be a great championship," Gordin said. "We won three tournaments in a row this spring. San Bernardino has a great team. Methodist is the team to beat, but there will be a lot of teams out there trying to beat them."

Among contenders in Division II, titles may hinge on track vs. field

There's a reason it is called track and field.

The Division II men's and women's outdoor championships May 23-25 at Angelo State both shape up as two-team races, each featuring a squad with a strong track representation against one that is strong in the field events.

If "track" proves to be the dominant side, then repeat will be the order of the day in San Angelo. If "field" is accented, then there could be a first-time champion on the men's side and a return to the top among the women's teams.

Two-time defending men's team champion St. Augustine's once again is strong in the sprints and the jumps. The Mighty Falcons' biggest challenge should come from host Angelo State, which will garner most of its points from the throws and the hurdles.

"Nobody can make a mistake and still win it," St. Augustine's coach George Williams said.

On the women's side, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo specializes in one area of the track events, but that specialization has been good enough to win five of the nine women's team championships. Which area?

Hint: The Mustangs have won nine straight cross country championships. They should win the middle distances and score support points there as well.

The other four women's team championships in Division II were won by Abilene Christian. The Wildcats stand to get no more than 25 to 30 points on the track, and 10 to 15 of those will come from relays. But they could clean up in the field events and challenge Cal Poly San Luis Obispo's two-year hold on the title.

Men's championships

"It's going to be real close," Williams said when asked to predict the championships. "Dave (Noble, Angelo State coach) is real tough in the field events and I'm tough on the track."

Some familiar names will bring Williams' team most of its points. He can legitimately hope for six or seven individual men's championships.

Currently, Antonio Pettigrew in the 400-meter dash, Ali Mahamdes in the 800-meter run, Wendell Edwards in the 110-meter hurdles, Mark Mason in the long jump and Darrin Moore in the high jump—plus the Falcons' 400-meter relay team—have the best reported performances in the division. That list does not include Kenneth Brokenburr, a winner of two championships indoors and one outdoors who finished second in both the 100- and 200-meter dashes a year ago, or Fitzroy Morrison, last year's champion in the 400-meter hurdles.

"I'll get my points where I've been getting them for years—in the jumps and sprints," Williams said. "There's no need to change my program now."

But Williams is concerned about Angelo State. "I have great respect for Dave's program," he said. "Plus, he's home, which is worth about five points. He won't take anything lying down."

"I just have to pray that some blue-chipper from another school has a great meet in Dave's specialty areas and that nobody does that in mine."

Angelo State's strength is just that—strength.

Patrik Hennings has put the shot more than a foot farther than anyone else in the division so far. "Nobody should beat him unless he gets hurt," Noble said.

Hennings' nearest competitor is teammate Anders Larsson, who is almost a foot beyond Matt Vardas of St. Cloud State. Larry Terry will contend for points, too.

Eric Cole holds the second-best performances in the discus and hammer throw. Ray Chambers in the javelin and John Nelson in the pole vault should score well, although other competitors are favored in those events.

But Noble isn't quite buying the close-meet stuff. "That's ridiculous," he said when told of Williams' prognostication. "He'll win by 60 points. I wish he were right."

"Some of his qualifiers will be submitted at the last moment. It's not scary; I know it's coming." Then, with just a twinge of optimism,

Antonio Pettigrew

Noble added, "We're looking forward to it. We're not going to surrender."

"Any time you live in the sprints, a lot of things can happen. I wouldn't be bothered if something did."

Women's championships

If Cal Poly San Luis Obispo wins its third straight team title and sixth overall, it will be because of the usual wealth of points in the middle distances. Former coach Lance Harter left for Arkansas but Deanne Johnson picked up where Harter left off, guiding the Mustang harriers to that ninth straight cross country title.

Kristina Hand has turned in this year's top performance in both the 1,500- and 3,000-meter runs. Melanie Hiatt is right behind her and Sydney Thatcher should contribute significant points as well.

Melissa White has the best recorded effort in the javelin and the fourth best in the discus. Johnson said she should qualify in the shot put before the championships as well.

The other event in which the Mustangs can count on points is the 400-meter intermediate hurdles. Gina Albanese, the 1989 champion, returns and will get support from Shanin Miller.

Abilene Christian's biggest problem is a lack of experience. Coach Wes Kittley has nine freshmen on his team and lost valuable experience in Yolande Straughn and Sylvia Dyer, who completed their eligibility after leading the Wildcats to this year's indoor championship.

"We've got to get some points in every event for which we're qualified," Kittley said. "We don't have a lot of first-place potential, which is something we've had in the past. For us to win, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo has to have a bad meet and we have to have a great meet. We'll have to 'nickel and dime' it."

But Kittley may collect a lot of change in the field events. Kelly Dixon and Candi Evans are at the top of the heap in the discus, and the Wildcats have three of the top five performances in the triple jump and three of the top 10 in the long jump. Wendy Ator is only a quarter-inch under the best performance in the high jump.

"Cal Poly is definitely the team to beat," Kittley said. "They have lots of quality and a tremendous amount of depth. It should be Cal Poly and then the next four teams battling for second. I would put us in that second group along with South Dakota State, Cal State Los Angeles and Alabama A&M."

"You'd better look out for Alabama A&M. They may not have turned in great times yet, but they will be great. They had almost all freshmen and sophomores last year and scored 56 points (good for fourth place)."

"But we always go to the meet with the plan to win. It may be too much to ask with nine freshmen, but we're going to try."

"It's going to be fun."

Championships Profile

Event: Division II men's and women's outdoor track and field.

Fields: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved fields of 236 men and 170 women for the championships.

Automatic qualification: None.

Defending champions: St. Augustine's won its second consecutive men's team championship, crushing runner-up Cal State Northridge, 111-60. Cal Poly San Luis Obispo won its second straight women's team title on the strength of its middle-distance runners. It was the fifth title overall for the Mustangs, the most in the division.

Schedule: Angelo State will serve as host May 23-25.

The NCAA News coverage: Championships results will appear in the May 29 issue of the News.

Contenders: In the men's championships, St. Augustine's, Angelo State and Abilene Christian. In the women's team championships, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Abilene Christian, Alabama A&M, South Dakota State and Cal State Los Angeles.

Championships notes: Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and Abilene Christian are the only teams to have won the women's championship. The Mustangs won the first three before Abilene Christian took the next four. Cal Poly San Luis Obispo has won the last two and is favored to make it three in a row. The two schools also lead the division in individual titles. Cal Poly San Luis Obispo has won 30 individual championships and Abilene Christian has won 26. Counting the indoor championships, St. Augustine's has a run of seven straight men's team championships. The Mighty Falcons have won or shared the indoor title for the past five years. The last team other than St. Augustine's to claim either title outright was Abilene Christian (outdoors) in 1988.

III track meet pairs versatile teams against specialists

It will be versatility vs. specialization in the Division III Men's and Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships May 22-25 at Baldwin-Wallace.

Among the women, the versatility of UC San Diego, which has the season's best performances in three events and potential scorers in 12, is pitted against Cortland State, which has only two qualifiers outside of the middle distances but is so powerful in those five events that it could "run away" with the title.

Defending men's champion Lincoln (Pennsylvania) has competitors at or near the top of the performance lists in five different events, while Haverford relies completely on the legs of Scamus McElligott and Matt Leighninger. The duo has qualified for three events each (both have qualified for the 1,500 meters) and each has the best times in two events.

Throw in Wisconsin-La Crosse in the men's championships and Occidental and Wisconsin-Oshkosh in the women's as teams that split the difference between diversity and specialty and the meet shapes up as a hot contest.

Women's championships

Using performances through May 6 to predict championships results, Cortland State would win easily with 99 points. But a closer look reveals that Michelle LaFleur's and Vicki Mitchell's performances alone would total 76 points. Considering that LaFleur's points come from five events, ranging from 800 meters to 10,000 meters, and that Mitchell's come from four of the same (excluding the 800-meter run), it is not practical to believe that the Red Dragons actually would earn all those points.

Mitchell and LaFleur each can be counted on to score well in at least two of those events. Furthermore, Becky Bieber won the 800-meter run at the indoor championships and has the best time outdoors, so don't pity coach Jack Daniels.

"We're not even going to nationals with the idea that we can win," he claims. "It's more up to the other teams to determine if our 50 or so points are enough to win."

And how will he use Mitchell and LaFleur? "I wish I knew," he said. "I'm leaving it up to them. Vicki is a senior and this is her last nationals. There is no telling what she is capable of. When she ran her 10,000 it was 86 degrees. My guess is that both Michelle and Vicki could break 34 minutes in the 10,000.

"It is not unreasonable to ask them to do two of the events. It may be unreasonable to do more than that. Vicki likes the 3,000 and the 5,000 the best. But I think she could be a great 10,000 runner. She probably is going to run the 5,000 either way.

"Michelle is an unusual athlete.

She may be the only athlete who has ever qualified in the five events. It is hard to imagine how anybody could do it. For a freshman, that's pretty amazing. She has tremendous speed. Ultimately she will be a better distance runner, but she has more speed than Vicki.

"If Vicki ends up running the 3,000 and the 5,000, Michelle could end up doubling in the 10,000 and the 1,500. I don't know if we have enough bodies to win the team championship. I would rather sacrifice team scores to let the individuals do what they want to do." But you can bet that those runners also want to win the team title.

UC San Diego has Shannon Quigley in the throws and Erica Washington in the sprints, with plenty of depth in between. Quigley finished second in the shot put and the discus last year and won both events in 1989. She also has the second-best performance in the javelin, an event in which she has not previously scored points at the national meet.

Washington has the fastest 100-meter dash time and the third best 200-meter dash. She finished second last year in the 100 and seventh in the 200.

Coach Mark Stanforth will build the rest of his effort on fourth-through eighth-place finishes.

Occidental is counting on some heavy production from the legs of Jacqui Dent. She has the fastest times in the 200- and 400-meter dashes and runs a leg on the 400-meter relay, in which Occidental also has the best time.

But Dent will have help. Mashairi Dunn and Binti Allen are ranked second and third in the 200 (Allen has equaled Washington's 200 time). The trio also are in the top eight in the 100-meter dash. Shannon Haack will compete in both relays and should qualify for the 800-meter run.

"I think we'll be top five, but I don't think we'll be a title contender. Somebody else would have to be worse than I think they are," coach Bill Harvey said.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh, which won last year's team championship, returns Laura Horejs and Nancy Dare, who finished first and second in the 1,500 to seal the victory. "Not only do their top-level people get points, but their second-level people do too," Harvey said.

Men's championships

Coach Cyrus Jones' Lincoln (Pennsylvania) squad was the proverbial bridesmaid for four straight years before claiming top honors last year by a four-point margin over Wisconsin-Oshkosh. The Lions captured the title despite winning just two events. Mark Whitsett won the 110-meter hurdles and the 1,600-meter relay team edged Wisconsin-Eau Claire by a half second.

Whitsett is back. Brandon Jones has the best 100-meter time and Clive Terrelong has the best 400-meter time. Plus, the Lions have the top times in both relays. The team's

Clive Terrelong (front) of Lincoln (Pennsylvania) and Matt Leighninger (No. 191) of Haverford are among the event favorites in Division III men's track degree of success in matching those qualifying times will determine whether the Lions mount the victory stand again this year.

"Our kids are prepared to master the track," Jones said. "We will be in the top three, and if we can overcome the field events of La Crosse, we have a chance to win. We're coming with no nonsense."

Haverford's McElligott is 13 seconds better than his nearest competitor in the 5,000 and 15 seconds better in the 10,000. Leighninger's times are not quite so dramatic, but he has the best 1,500-meter and 3,000-meter steeplechase times. He is 12 seconds faster in the steeplechase and two and a half seconds faster than McElligott in the 1,500. He also has qualified in the 800- and 5,000-meter runs.

But is there a title in the future for the 'Fords?

Not if you listen to their coach. "We should be in the top 10, but not in the top three," Tom Donnelly said. "Matt and Seamus certainly won't run all the events in which they qualified. Two events would be the maximum. I think they both will do pretty well and I'm hoping to get a couple more guys qualified."

Wisconsin-La Crosse won the indoor title in March with just one individual titlist, triple-jumper Dean Cash. Bill Schroeder finished second indoors and the duo has turned in the best two jumps this spring.

The deep Eagles also should get points in the 1,600-meter relay, the long jump, the pole vault and the 5,000-meter run. Lots of them.

In other words, it sounds like another close meet.

AVCA picks Trojans' Ivie

Bryan Ivie, a University of Southern California senior, is the first-ever national player of the year as selected by the American Volleyball Coaches Association. The 6-7 outside hitter finished his career as the nation's all-time kill leader (2,380). He led the Trojans to NCAA men volleyball titles in 1988 and 1990.

Ivie was named the NCAA tournament's most outstanding player in 1990. The Trojans finished second to California State University, Long Beach, in the 1991 championship match.

Ivie is a three-time all-America and is the Trojans' career leader in kills and blocks. With Ivie in the lineup, Southern California compiled a four-year record of 115-24. Ivie had 51 kills against the University of California, Los Angeles, the second-highest total recorded. He is a two-year member of the United States national team.

Joining Ivie for first-team all-America honors is teammate Dan Greenbaum, a 6-3 senior setter. Long Beach State sophomore Brent Hilliard and senior Brett Winslow also were honored as first-team selections. Hilliard, a 6-5 outside hitter, was the most outstanding player during the 1991 NCAA championship tournament. California State University, Northridge, which finished the year with its highest ranking ever, placed two players on the first team—hitter Neil Coffman and middle blocker Coley Kyman.

Following is a complete listing of the AVCA all-America first and second teams:

First team: Bryan Ivie, Southern California; Brent Hilliard, Long Beach State; Dan Greenbaum, Southern California; Neil Coffman, Cal State Northridge; Brett Winslow, Long Beach State; Coley Kyman, Cal State Northridge.

Second team: Mike Sealy, UCLA; Tom Sorenson, Pepperdine; Scott Miller, Penn State; Nick Becker, Southern California; Alan Knipe, Long Beach State; Jorge Perez, Penn State.

AVCA national player of the year: Bryan Ivie, Southern California.

Minority scholarships

In our last report, we noted the announcement by Assistant Secretary of Education for Civil Rights Michael Williams that colleges would risk losing Federal funds if they participated in race-based scholarship award programs. Williams subsequently issued a clarification to the effect that colleges could, at least for the immediate future, administer such awards, but could not fund them. Shortly after his confirmation March 14, Secretary of Education Lamar Alexander announced that the subject of minority scholarships would undergo intensive review in 1991 and that, until completion of the study, colleges could safely continue their existing practices of awarding race-based scholarships.

Earlier, on January 14, Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois, introduced a bill, S. 48, to amend the Higher Education Act to permit the awarding of minority scholarships. That bill is pending in the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources. According to his staff, Sen. Simon will wait to see what action the education department takes before requesting that a hearing be held on his bill.

On March 21, the day after Secretary Alexander's announcement, the Washington Legal Foundation filed suit in Federal court claiming that ED is violating Title VI of the Civil Rights Act by not taking action against colleges known to have minority scholarships.

Antidrug abuse regulations and legislation

Anabolic steroids. In mid-February, the Drug Enforcement Administration published a rule adding anabolic steroids to Schedule III of the Controlled Substances Act. The regulation implemented the legislation passed at the end of the 101st Congress as part of the 1990 omnibus crime bill.

On February 6, Rep. William Hughes, D-New Jersey, who is a member of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Crime and Criminal Justice, introduced a bill, H.R. 867, to amend the Controlled Substances Act to provide penalties for physical trainers and coaches who induce athletes to use anabolic steroids. A similar provision was dropped from the House anticrime bill at the end of the last Congress. To date, no hearings have been scheduled on the bill.

Drug testing. Again this year, House Energy and Commerce Committee Chair John Dingell, D-Michigan, introduced a bill, H.R. 33, to establish standards for the certification of laboratories engaged in urine drug testing and to regulate drug-testing programs. The section relating to drug-testing programs expressly provides that the secretary of health and human services shall take into consideration any special factors or circumstances applicable to amateur athletics competition in issuing regulations. Thus far, committee action on the bill has not been scheduled.

Government recognition of and support for athletics

National Student-Athlete Day. February 26 the Senate passed S.J. Res. 50, designating April 6, 1991, as National Student-Athlete Day. The resolution now is pending in the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee. Again this year, Sen. Bradley introduced the resolution, which states that there is a need to reemphasize the "student" in the term "student-athlete."

National Women and Girls in Sports Day. February 15 President Bush signed H.J. Res. 30, which designated February 7, 1991, as "National Girls and Women in Sports Day." The measure was introduced January 3 by Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine. Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Oregon, introduced a companion measure, S.J. Res. 66, February 6.

National Youth Sports Program

FY 1992 appropriation. For the first time in many years, the Administration budget submitted to Congress does not contemplate eliminating or cutting Federal funding for the National Youth Sports Program. Instead, it proposes to continue funding for NYSP at last year's level ($10.832 million). Except for funding for NYSP and the homeless, the budget proposes eliminating the Community Services Block Grant program through which NYSP is authorized.

The NCAA was scheduled to testify before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, HHS, Education and Related Agencies April 18, and before the comparable House subcommittee May 14.

On February 28, as part of an ongoing effort to inform Congress about the value and achievements of the program, NYSP project representatives met their congressmen and senators to discuss 1992 funding for the NYSP. These visits assumed increased importance this year because, under the deficit reduction law passed at the end of the last Congress, increases in all domestic discretionary spending are capped at a level that is just short of a four percent inflation adjustment.

Reception honoring HUD Secretary Kemp. Also February 28, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Jack Kemp was the guest of honor at a NYSP reception held in Washington, D.C. Representatives of 149 colleges and universities conducting NYSP projects attended the event. Secretary Kemp spoke about the common goals of the HUD youth sports program, which he initiated, and NYSP, both of which provide economically disadvantaged youngsters with positive alternatives to drugs and crime. He said that a Notice of Funding Availability soon will be issued under the HUD program announcing that $7.5 million in funding will be awarded on a competitive basis for programs like the NYSP. He promised that greater resources and support from the Federal government will be forthcoming for programs of this kind.

Title IX

Compliance reviews. According to Office for Civil Rights (OCR) staff, OCR headquarters has not authorized any regional offices to conduct intercollegiate athletics compliance reviews as part of a national compliance review program now under way. Last December, Assistant Secretary of Education for Civil Rights Williams announced that such reviews would be conducted as part of the Administration's national enforcement strategy, and that one of seven areas on which OCR would focus would be "discrimination on the basis of sex in athletics programs."

Governmental

plaints have been filed since July 1990 (the last date through which ED previously had provided information), four of which were filed this year. The institutions concerned are Rutgers University; CUNY/Brooklyn College; University of Maryland College (the name as listed by ED); Towson State University; and California State University, Sacramento. The complaint against Rutgers was withdrawn following successful early complaint resolution, and the complaint against Cal State Sacramento was closed for unidentified administrative reasons. The other three remain pending. These five complaints bring to 40 the number of Title IX intercollegiate athletics complaints that have been filed in the three years since the Civil Rights Restoration Act became law.

Oversight hearing. The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee had scheduled an oversight hearing on OCR activities for April 25. OCR has responsibility for enforcing four antidiscrimination laws, one of which is Title IX, and it was not known what topics were to be covered at the hearing.

Copyright

1989 cable and satellite royalty fees. The Copyright Royalty Tribunal requested that claimants file comments by April 19 concerning whether a controversy exists as to distribution of the more than $225 million in 1989 cable royalty fees. No settlement has yet been reached and it now is anticipated that a full-scale hearing will be conducted to determine allocation of the 1989 cable fees. The Joint Sports Claimants (JSC) filed a motion in late February requesting that the tribunal declare a controversy and accelerate the hearing schedule, but the comments filed in response were negative and the tribunal has not granted the JSC motion.

A proceeding to distribute the $2.6 million in 1989 satellite royalties has not yet been initiated. Because the satellite royalty scheme is new, the tribunal is being called upon to resolve several preliminary questions. In response to a request for a declaratory ruling filed by the program suppliers, a group of approximately 100 producers and/or syndicators of television programs and movies, the tribunal requested comments concerning whether the owners of network programs are entitled to share in the satellite carrier royalties. The NCAA and the professional sports leagues filed comments encouraging distribution of fees for network programming; the tribunal has not yet ruled on the issue.

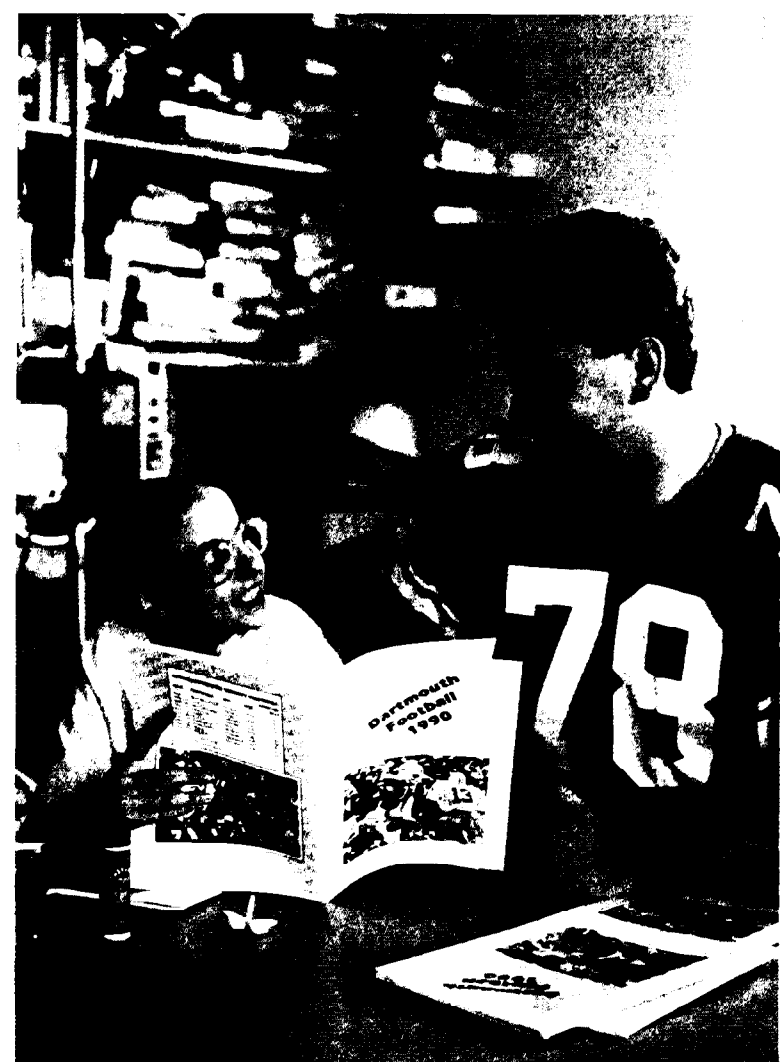

No cable royalty adjustment. Following preliminary posturing by the parties, the tribunal announced January 15 that it would consider adjusting the cable copyright royalty rates at this time, in view of the withdrawal January 11 of the many cable rate adjustment petitions filed by royalty claimants, including the JSC, in late December. The next "window" year for such an adjustment is 1995.

Taxation of scholarships and interest paid on student loans

Once again, a series of bills has been introduced to restore the deduction for interest paid on student loans and the exclusion from taxation for scholarships. Three bills would restore the deduction for interest paid on student loans. H.R. 728, introduced by Rep. Joseph Gaydos, D-Pennsylvania, January 30; H.R. 747, introduced by Rep. Richard Schulze, R-Pennsylvania, January 30, and a companion bill to Rep. Schulze's measure, S. 542, introduced by Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, March 5. H.R. 969, introduced by Rep. Henry of Michigan February 28, would restore the exclusion from taxation for certain scholarships (see previous discussion of H.R. 969). H.R. 394, introduced by Rep. David Price, D-North Carolina, January 3, and H.R. 792, introduced by Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-New York, February 4, address both issues. The House bills are pending before the House Ways and Means Committee; the Senate bill is pending before the Senate Finance Committee. No action has been scheduled of any of the bills.

New secretary of education

The Senate voted March 14 to confirm Lamar Alexander as the new secretary of education. Secretary Alexander is the former president of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and was a member of the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, which issued its report March 19.
