First finalists named for Today's Top Six

Five NCAA individual champions, including a world record-holder, plus the captain of the reigning Division I ice hockey champions have been named finalists in winter-spring sports for the Association's Today's Top Six awards.

Six fall-sport student-athletes also will be selected later this year, and six honorees will be chosen from the 12 finalists. They and the six Silver Anniversary Award winners will be recognized at the honors dinner of the 1992 NCAA Convention as the College Athletics Top XII.

Winter-spring finalists are swimmer Michael Ray Barrowman, University of Michigan, tennis player Sandra Birch, Stanford University, heptathlete Gea Johnson, Arizona State University, gymnast Joy Selig, Oregon State University, ice hockey player Brad Werenka, Northern Michigan University, and swimmer David Wharton, University of Southern California.

Selection is based 50 percent on athletics ability, 25 percent on academic achievement, and 25 percent on character, leadership and extra-curricular activities. Nomination forms are sent to all member institutions, and selections are made by the NCAA Honors Committee.

Biographical sketches of the winter-spring finalists follow.

Michael Ray Barrowman

Barrowman holds the 200-meter breaststroke world record and broke the existing mark four times in his last three seasons. The 1991 Sullivan Award finalist was a three-time NCAA 200-yard breaststroke champion and holds the American record in the event. Barrowman was the 1990 NCAA swimmer of the year and a three-time U.S. swimmer of the year (1989, 1990 and 1991). He placed fourth in the 1988 Olympics 200-meter breaststroke and is a five-time U.S. swimming national champion.

An English major and an NCAA postgraduate scholarship recipient, Barrowman graduated in May 1991 with a 3.220 grade-point average (4.000 scale). Barrowman also is a Special Olympics volunteer and works at swim camps for youngsters.

Sandra Birch

A two-time NCAA singles champion (1989 and 1991) and a 1990 NCAA doubles finalist, Birch is a member of the NCAA women's

Brown's career path colorful

Investigator and NCAA enforcement department head. Bar owner. Cattle rancher. Administrator.

Those occupations have nothing in common, except that Warren Brown has held them in succession since he began his professional career 25 years ago.

While that career track is not average, Brown rarely has been accused of being average. He is a former NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement who now is an assistant director for the National Federation of State High School Associations. He is a former college basketball player who now is an avid golfer who recently took a trip to Scotland to play at The Old Course at St. Andrews.

"Warren is a fierce competitor in everything he does," said S. David Berst, current NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement. "That's one of the reasons I like him. But out of the office, he is very down to earth and has a good sense of humor."

Ask Brown how he achieved the position of NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement without a law degree or any experience in litigation, and you will get a straightforward answer. "I was hired because I was young, single and could travel," he said. "My dad was a high-school coach in Kansas City and worked with Art Bergstrom at the NAIA indoor track meet every year. Art saw my dad when I had just come back and asked how I was. When he found out I just returned, he told my dad to 'Have him come down and talk to me.' That is how that happened."

Brown, however, did not work for the NCAA for 11 years strictly because he was an easy fit.

"He was an extremely hard worker," Berst said. "He was very focused on the work he had to do. Whatever task he was given he did until he dropped. He has a tremendous ability to focus and find a solution."

Brown graduated from Kansas State University in 1962 with a degree in education. He earned a master's degree in education from Indiana University, Bloomington, and then joined the Air Force, where he was responsible for that service's European athletics program. When he returned from the Air Force in 1966, he

Bowl alliance meets to review options

Officials from four bowls, five conferences and the University of Notre Dame met October 21 to discuss their new alliance and to review potential postseason scenarios.

"We've probably done a good job of making this sound a little more complex than it needs to," Chuck Johnson, president of the Fiesta Bowl, told The Associated Press. "A lot of things that are going to evolve are not going to be a significant change from what's happened in the past."

The alliance, formed in July, also includes the Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowls, as well as the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Eight, Southeastern and Southwest Athletic Conferences. Officials are optimistic that the Pacific-10 and Western Athletic conferences will participate by making their runners-up available to the alliance.

The arrangement takes effect next season. Proponents say it will simplify the process of determining bowl matchups, delay that process until the end of the regular season and increase the likelihood that the two top-ranked teams will meet each January 1.

A framework is in place for determining postseason lineups in the four bowls, but some details remain to be worked out. One question is whether the guidelines will enhance the drama of the regular season or merely confuse fans.

"I guess it's like trying to learn how to ride a bicycle," said Harper Davidson, president of the Orange Bowl Committee. "It can be very complex at first, but once you get going, it's not that complex."

Under the agreement, the Big

Bowl alliance

Fight will continue to send its champion to the Orange Bowl. The SWC-Cotton Bowl and SEC-Sugar Bowl affiliations also will continue.

After the Big Eight, SWC and SEC champions are determined, the other slots for the four bowl games will be filled by a five-team pool, which will include Notre Dame, the champions of the Big East and ACC, and two other highly ranked at-large teams. The at-large teams could be independents or conference members.

"We have indications that the Pac-10 and the WAC are interested in being involved in this," said Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl.

The highest-ranked team in the pool will be invited to the bowl that offers the highest-ranked opponent. For example, if the University of Texas at Austin is No. 1 and bound for the Cotton Bowl, the highest-ranked team in the pool will be invited to play in Dallas on January 1.

If the teams ranked No. 1 and No. 2 are both in the five-team pool, they will go to the Fiesta Bowl.

The Big Ten Conference may be the only major conference not involved in the alliance. Its champion already is committed to the Rose Bowl, and the league recently announced an agreement to send second- and third-place teams to the Citrus or Holiday bowls.

"The Big Ten has removed itself," said Holmes. "That was a decision it made. Fine and dandy."

Unresolved is what happens if the nation's two top-ranked teams are committed to different bowls within the alliance. For example, if the University of Oklahoma is ranked No. 1 and the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, No. 2, it's uncertain whether the Sugar Bowl will allow Tennessee to play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

• In other bowl news, a proposed Alamo Bowl would be played in 1993 at the Alamodome in San Antonio, Texas.

Officials with the Southwest Conference and the game are trying to reach an agreement contingent on the bowl's certification, The Associated Press reported.

The bowl's formal application will be presented to the NCAA Postseason Football Subcommittee, which will meet in Tucson, Arizona, in April.

The bowl is targeting December 28-30, 1993, in the 65,000-seat Alamodome. Acting Executive Director Russ Bookbinder said the game will have a payout of more than $750,000 per team.

Lock Haven player has battles

By Patrick A. Donghia
Lock Haven University

Each week, freshman linebacker Chris Rogers prepares along with the rest of his Lock Haven University football teammates to do battle with a different football opponent.

But for Rogers, there is another battle, one that began December 26, 1990, and will not be over for years. On that fateful day, Rogers was diagnosed with Hodgkin's disease, a cancer that begins rather innocently then quickly erupts into a life-threatening malady that strikes the bone marrow, then the rest of the body.

During his senior season in high school, Rogers checked in at six feet, 225 pounds. He has always been quick, but his size made him a particularly formidable foe at linebacker.

When Rodgers noticed a lump on his neck, it was not painful, or even worrisome, but he had his trainers look at it anyway. Given the fact that Rogers was a near fanatic in the weight room, and that there was no pain nor any other symptoms to go along with the lump, both Rogers and the trainers assumed it was just an overdeveloped muscle. The team doctor, however, recommended that Rogers have the lump checked out immediately.

Fearing it might interfere with his final high-school football season, Rogers decided to wait until the end of the campaign. On December 26, the diagnosis was made and Rogers' world began to cave in around him.

"I was stunned at first," said Rogers. "I had heard of Hodgkin's disease, but I didn't really know what it was. It wasn't until they told me that it was a form of cancer that I became frightened."

Rogers feared for his football career, he feared for his future, and he feared for his life. But his main concern at the time was the reaction that his family was experiencing. "My parents were devastated," he said. "They were more upset than I was because, I think, they knew the gravity of the situation. All I knew was that I had this lump in my neck, but that I felt fine."

Then Rogers' health began to deteriorate. As he began treatment to combat any spread of the disease and eliminate the lump, Rogers developed third-degree burns in his throat from the radiation. As a result, he was placed on a liquid diet for three weeks, then after surgery to remove the lump, he was fed intravenously.

He lost weight so fast, he didn't know what was happening to him. "I lost over 50 pounds," recalled Rogers. "I first thought to myself, 'Well, this is what cancer does to you.' But it turns out that it was the cure that was causing my weight loss, not the disease."

Rogers' doctor at the Fox Chase Cancer Unit in Philadelphia gave him some advice that helped him understand what was happening. "The doctor told me that you had to get sick before you could get better," Rogers said. "I held on to those words as my situation worsened."

Rogers shrank to a low weight of 168 pounds. He was tired all the time, he was on a liquid diet, and his morale was sinking. But it was the time he spent in the hospital, around other cancer patients whose situations were more critical, that lifted Rogers' spirits and gave him the confidence that he could beat this thing.

"There were so many good people around me who were sicker than I was," he recalled. "These people—some of them were children—had been in this battle longer than I had.

Some were winning, some were not, but all the time the nurses kept telling me to look around to understand that if there was such a thing as 'good' cancer, then that was what I had."

Rogers still is sensitive to the battle that other cancer victims are waging. "I have seen people edge closer to death than I ever got and come all the way back," he said. "That gives me the confidence to fight this."

But he also understands the seriousness of his disease. He knows that cancer is as unpredictable as it is dangerous and that things can veer wildly out of control at any time.

"I'm in remission right now," he said. "The period of time from when you are officially in remission to the time that you get a clean bill of health is two years. I have to get a check up every three months to confirm that the cancer has not reappeared."

Although he has yet to receive an official clean bill of health (that will not come until 1993), he has been cleared to resume his football career, and that has been Rogers' passion for the past few months.

"When I realized that I was going to be able to play ball again and was given the OK to start training, I was so happy," Rogers said.

"I knew I owed it to myself, to my family who had been so supportive, and to Lock Haven University in particular, to come all the way back from this disease."

Rogers has a love for Lock Haven that runs deeper than the simple passion for one's alma mater. During his senior season, before the diagnosis, he was being recruited by a number of schools—bigger schools at the Divisions I-A and I-AA levels. But when news of his malady spread, the recruiting visits stopped, the mail stopped coming and the interest disappeared. All, that is, except for Lock Haven.

NCAA Bylaw 16.13.1—incidental-expense waiver

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 16.13.1, the NCAA Council, by a two-thirds majority of its members present and voting, or a committee designated by the Council, may approve a member institution's request to provide additional expenses incidental to a student-athlete's participation in intercollegiate athletics when the information presented persuades the Council that such a waiver is warranted because it: (1) may be applied on the basis of defined, objective standards; (2) does not create an unfair competitive advantage for the involved institution, and (3) would not compromise the intent of the governing legislation. Member institutions seeking an incidental-expense waiver are reminded that approval of the waiver is necessary prior to paying such expenses. All incidental-expense waiver requests, including those arising out of an emergency situation, should be directed to the legislative services department.

Student-Athlete Statement—correction— Divisions I and II

Divisions I and II member institutions should note the following correction on page 4 of the Student-Athlete Statement (Form 91-3) as it pertains to the application of Bylaw 14.8.1.1. The statement incorrectly indicates that in all sports other than basketball, a student-athlete is not eligible in a sport for the rest of the season if, during any year in which the student-athlete is a member of an intercollegiate team, the student-athlete competes as a member of any outside team in any noncollegiate, amateur competition in the sport during the institution's sports season. The statement should read:

"In Divisions I and II, you are not eligible in your sport for the rest of your season and the next academic year if, during any year in which you were a member of an intercollegiate team, you competed as a member of any outside team during the academic year in any noncollegiate amateur competition in the sport."

Please note this correction when administering the statement to your student-athletes. Form 91-3 will be revised for the subsequent academic year to reflect the correct application of Bylaw 14.8.1.1.

NCAA Bylaw 11.7.1.1.2—replacement of coach due to extenuating circumstances

Division I member institutions should note that per Bylaw 11.7.1.1.2, subject to Council approval, an institution may replace temporarily one of its countable coaches if the coach is unable to perform his or her duties because of circumstances beyond the coach's control (e.g., suspension, prolonged serious illness). A replaced coach is precluded from performing any coaching, administrative or recruiting duties, including the telephoning of prospective student-athletes. Division I institutions should note that it is not permissible to replace such a coach prior to receiving Council approval. All requests for replacement of a coach under these circumstances should be directed to the legislative services department.

NCAA Bylaw 13.1.4—one visit per week to the prospect's educational institution Divisions I and II institutions should note that during a contact period institutional staff members may visit a prospect's educational institution on not more than one occasion during a particular week, regardless of the total number of prospects enrolled in the institution. An institution is limited to three in-person, off-campus recruiting contacts per prospect at any site [which shall include contacts with the prospect's relatives or legal guardian(s) but which shall not include contacts made during an official visit to campus per Bylaw 13.7] prior to and on the occasion when the prospect signs the National Letter of Intent. During its October 1, 1991, meeting, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that the limitations restricting an institution from visiting a prospect's educational institution on not more than one occasion per week during the contact period, would not be applicable to any visits made during an evaluation period. Thus, it would be permissible in the sports of football and basketball to visit a prospect's educational institution on more than one occasion per week during an evaluation period. Please note, however, that in accordance with Bylaw 13.1.6, institutional staff members shall not evaluate a prospective student-athlete on more than four occasions during the academic year.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Nancy L. Mitchell, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Report is ready

American Youth and Sports Participation, an eight-page report on a study of more than 10,000 school-age students (ages 10-18) and their feelings about sports, is available from the Athletic Footwear Association, which sponsored the project.

The study sought to find out why students participate in sports, why they quit, how they feel about winning, how motivations differ and what adults can do to encourage participation.

The report can be obtained for no charge by writing to the Athletic Footwear Association, 200 Castlewood Drive, North Palm Beach, Florida 33408, or calling the AFA at 407/840-1161.

More detailed findings on each of the sections of the report are available in the form of a media kit containing three news releases, a pamphlet on understanding motivations and several detailed charts. The charge for the media kit, which can be ordered at the same address and phone number, is $10 prepaid.

Questions/Answers

Q What kinds of accommodations may be provided to prospects during their official visits?

A A prospect on an official visit shall be provided lodging and take meals as regular students normally do. Local commercial facilities may be used, but at a scale comparable to that of normal student life and only within a 30-mile radius of the institution's campus.

Forums' message may be going unnoticed

The message resulting from the NCAA's series of Professional Sports Counseling Panel Forums is a good one, but those involved in the presentations are concerned about whether student-athletes are benefiting as much as they could from the programs.

The final program in the six-part series was conducted October 17-18 in Chicago. The series began in December 1988.

"We need to change the way we approach these issues in the future," said Richard C. Perko, NCAA legislative assistant. "We have a good product in terms of guides and speakers, but we're not satisfied with the attendance."

Perko said attendance at the October 17 session was about 70 but that it fell about 40 October 18. The Professional Sports Liaison Committee, which oversees the forums, has directed the staff to provide alternatives to the existing format.

At the most recent forum, the NCAA Guide to Professional Sports Counseling was distributed. The loose-leaf guide contains information on agent registration, NCAA amateurism guidelines, disability insurance, financial planning and state regulations relating to player agents. Also included is specific information relating to professional baseball, basketball, football and ice hockey. A reading list and a section on drug testing and education also are included.

Perko said an October 17 panel discussion about creating and maintaining an effective professional-sports-counseling panel was especially informative. Those participating were Tom Condon, president of IMG Football of Kansas City, Missouri; Kent Hill, a member of the professional-sports-counseling panel at the Georgia Institute of Technology, and R. Michael Rogers, law professor and a member of the professional-sports-counseling panel at Baylor University.

Rogers said the on-campus panels have two functions. First, they help institutions avoid violations that occur when a student-athlete prematurely signs a contract with an agent. Second, they provide a service to student-athletes, who sometimes make bad business decisions because of their lack of experience.

"All of a sudden, these student-athletes are making multihundred-thousand- or multimillion-dollar transactions, and they've never even bought a car," Rogers said. "That's a horrible mismatch."

Rogers said the counseling panel at Baylor includes himself, a finance professor, the university treasurer and an associate director of athletics.

However, he said the most important element in determining the success of the program is support from the university's president and from the head coaches. "When (head football coach) Grant Teaff says, 'Mike Rogers is a good guy—listen to him,' that carries a lot of weight," Rogers said.

Rogers also said patience is a key to those counseling student-athletes about agents and financial matters. "It takes a while to develop credibility," he said. "I was disappointed with the results at first because I was making presentations, and nobody was coming to see me." After the student-athletes became accustomed to the program, they began to get involved, he said.

Perko said three preliminary alternatives have been formed to distribute professional-sports-counseling information more effectively:

- The staff will explore the possibility of a teleconference, possibly one involving a video link-up.

- The discussions could be conducted in conjunction with another meeting, such as that of the Faculty Athletic Representatives Association's annual fall forum.

- The forums could be conducted directly for those football, basketball and baseball student-athletes who might be drafted in early rounds. Perko acknowledged that funding could be a problem with that approach, and Rogers noted that such a collection of top athletes could ironically provide "one more opportunity for agents to hassle a player" since the top athletes in the country would be gathered under one roof.

The Professional Sports Liaison Committee is expected to discuss the situation at its next meeting in March 1992. If additional funding is required, it would be solicited at the August 1992 meeting of the Executive Committee.

Boise State University supporters gather at an auction conducted jointly by the alumni and athletics associations. The event raised more than $500,000 to purchase library books.

Boise State groups raise library funds

How important is a good library to the success of a university's athletics program?

Boise State University answered that question this summer when the athletics and alumni associations raised more than $500,000 to purchase library books.

Since 1983, the two groups have joined forces to hold a biennial auction to fund endowed scholarships. This year, however, they decided to purchase books for a library addition that will be built within the next two years.

Auction '91 made an important statement at a time when universities are being criticized for overemphasizing athletics, said Robert Madden Jr., executive director of the Bronco Athletic Association.

"Our desire was to financially support a special project that benefits the entire university community," Madden said. "An excellent library collection strengthens all aspects of the school, including athletics. We may have lost some scholarship money in the short term, but a better library will help us all in the long term."

The auction netted $540,000, enough to buy at least 15,000 books. It was the most successful charity auction ever held in Idaho, with 500 items for sale and 566 people attending.

The event's guest of honor was Warren McCain, the recently retired chairman of Boise-based Albertson's Inc., one of the nation's largest grocery chains. McCain played a key role in securing a $6 million gift from Albertson's to renovate and add to the Boise State library.

DEMONSTRATING WORTH

Athletics should teach values to fit in academic mainstream

By Hank Flick

History offers us this lesson: An institution will eliminate any structure that contradicts or does not appear to support its mission. If a department cannot articulate the role it plays related to the institution it purports to serve, the institution won't value its presence.

My message is simple: Intercollegiate athletics needs to do a better job communicating content and character related to making young people better or face extinction.

Certainly the sports establishment can be criticized for committing many sins. As a professor, I hear comments claiming Mississippi State University is placing too much emphasis on athletics and winning. Too much money is being spent. Others argue athletics adds little to the overall growth of young people.

My purpose is to recommend that representatives of the athletics community find the time to communicate in greater detail the place intercollegiate athletics holds within the objectives of higher education. First, those involved in intercollegiate athletics should take the time to communicate information concerning their role in making young people better. Second, they should display support for educational goals outside their departments. Third, they should take direct action in restricting self-centered behavior that is not value-oriented and directed toward promoting a sense of community action.

If the prevailing mood on campus is to reduce the size and influence of intercollegiate athletics, it probably is because the right people on campus are not being provided enough quality information regarding the complementary role of intercollegiate athletics. People cannot be expected to know things they aren't told. Professors are not mind readers.

The academic community isn't clear as to the outcome resulting from college sports. They ask, "What purpose does college football serve? What does it add to higher education?"

"Too many people assume that because college sports are popular, they will survive untouched."

These are questions in need of clear answers. I am afraid if relevant answers are not forthcoming and presented in ways that those not directly involved in athletics can understand and appreciate, college sports will face a series of dramatic changes.

A rising tide does not necessarily lift all boats. Too many people assume that because college sports are popular they will survive untouched by the winds of change. These people forget that many of the people with the power to make decisions related to the future of intercollegiate sports are nonathletes. They fail to recognize that each day, these decision-makers have to address complaints from those who reason that the university might be better off if the system of intercollegiate athletics was reduced in size and importance.

Even when these decision-makers gather together to talk among themselves, they are reminded of the relative importance of athletics. "Anyone who has trouble deciding whether education or athletics is more important should recognize that we could easily have higher education without athletics," said Charles Reed, chancellor of the University of Florida system.

The tradition of intercollegiate athletics originated in a concern for moral and physical excellence. Values and character must be the places where teaching begins and where student-athletes are strengthened.

Hank Flick is an associate professor in the department of communications at Mississippi State University.

Coaches: Players won't use study time

By Kelly Carter
The Sporting News

Say you are a college basketball player. Instead of beginning practice October 15, as your team has done in the past, you start November 1. Do you use spare time in those two weeks to go to the library and read Nietzsche or do you spend two hours a day on the court playing pickup games?

Most likely it is the latter, a bit of logic that is not lost on coach Denny Crum of the University of Louisville. He calls this new NCAA guideline, which pushes practice back to November 1 in 1992-93, the "look-good rule."

"It looks like we're doing something to help the student-athletes," Crum said in the Louisville Courier-Journal. "But the bottom line is that it's not going to change a thing."

"The intention is to give student-athletes more time for academics. And if they took two or three hours and added them to their studies, I'd be all in favor of it. But I assure you that's not going to happen. They're not going to study instead of playing."

The old rule allowed schools to begin playing games on the fourth Friday in November, with some exceptions. The new date for openers in 1992 is December 1, to allow for a month of practice.

A team such as the University of Connecticut, which has eight freshmen on its 1991-92 roster, will need every minute of available practice time this season. But under normal circumstances, Connecticut coach Jim Calhoun said he is not so sure that teams really need five or six weeks of practice, which the current system permits. Louisiana State University coach Dale Brown agreed.

"You have too much practice anyway," Brown said.

So the reduction in practice time may not pose any real problems, but don't expect it to solve any, either.

"(To say) 40 hours will be used for academic purposes is a little bit of a Pollyanna (attitude)," Calhoun said. "I don't think it's dealing with reality."

Steroid survey yields conflicting responses

The Atlanta Journal contacted 506 retired National Football League players for a survey on steroid use. Of that group, only seven percent admitted having used steroids, although 57 percent of those surveyed who played in the league at least four years said the use of steroids increased during their careers. Seventy-seven percent of those surveyed said steroid use is a serious problem. Some of their comments:

Mike Raines: "(Coaches and management) don't endorse it. They just kind of turn their heads. Anything that enables a guy to perform better or at all, they condone. That goes for any pain medication, any (anti) inflammatories, to steroids. Whatever it takes to play...."

"Whether a guy can play in the NFL is based on how fast he runs the 40, (his) vertical jump and bench press. Believe it or not, that weighs heavily on whether a guy makes the team, gets a tryout, is drafted high or low. It's ridiculous."

Steve Courson: "Most athletes don't want to talk about their steroid use because of the way society views the steroid user. In other words, some pumped-up freak who cheated to win. Admitting to steroid use while they played minimizes their athletic achievement...."

"Ben Johnson...didn't use these drugs to become the most muscular guy in the world. He used them so he could complete his interval training at a higher rate of efficiency. I know of quarterbacks in the (National Football League) who have used steroids. Why? To put a little weight on to increase their durability. Any sport where conditioning, endurance and muscular strength are a factor, these drugs are an advantage."

Sam Adams: "A lot of guys are afraid to admit they took (steroids) unless they have some kind of illness. Then they'll say, 'Well, I took steroids and that's the reason.' Like (Lyle) Alzado."

California no longer monopolizing women's volleyball

By Laura E. Bollig
The NCAA News Staff

Used to be that any intercollegiate women's volleyball match worth seeing involved two teams from the state of California and 12 athletes from the state of California.

While West Coast teams dominate the sport, the emergence of teams such as the University of Nebraska, Lincoln; Louisiana State University; the University of Florida, and the University of New Mexico as Division I powers indicates that national parity is within reach.

"California girls" remain as the nucleus of a strong team. However, another talent pool has surfaced. Several intercollegiate coaches are looking to Brazil, Australia and Germany for building blocks. Look no further than the NCAA coaches' top 20 poll for proof.

No. 7 Louisiana State's roster includes two Brazilians, one Canadian and an Australian. No. 8 Florida's roster includes two Germans and a Brazilian. No. 9 Nebraska has an Australian, and No. 10 New Mexico has four Australians. A Peruvian student-athlete plays for No. 11 University of Texas at Austin.

Even Division II schools are tapping the foreign source. West Texas State University, last year's national champion, cruised to the title on the strength of Brazilian sisters.

With the help of its own Brazilian sisters, Daniela and Luciana Reis, Louisiana State's volleyball program last year became the first Southeastern Conference team to reach the final four of the Division I Women's Volleyball Championship.

Scott Luster

Laurel Brassey

As a junior last season, New Mexico's Pauline Manser, an Australian, was the school's first first-team all-America selection.

LSU head coach Scott Luster and New Mexico coach Laurel Brassey have seen their teams achieve national recognition with the help of foreign student-athletes. And they aren't afraid to admit it.

Instant credibility

"If you have a new program, a foreign player could help you establish instant credibility," Luster said. "If you are at a higher level, say in the top five or 10 schools, but you are not in a visible market area or a highly concentrated area of high-school student-athletes, you may not be in a position to get that first look. In our case, that is true. Our name is just starting to become synonymous with the Nebraskas and the Illinois. Those schools are vying for the same athletes. There are very few athletes who can help us maintain our level. We may have to look to the international scene to help us stay at our level. We may not look there first, but it's an option."

Brassey, a former United States Olympic team member, concurs.

"Our philosophy is that we want to be the best we can be, and we will do whatever it takes," she said. "If our program remains strong, and American kids start noticing New Mexico, that's great, but I don't know if I would stop recruiting foreign kids.

"I would love to be training American kids for the national team, but if this is what it takes to make kids see that something is happening at New Mexico..."

Brassey and Luster don't make excuses for luring foreign players to the states. Their experiences have been nothing but positive.

Great team members

"They are good players, but beyond that, they have been great team members," Luster said of his foreign athletes. "They bring a maturity not often found in the American high-school graduate. It brings a lot to your program if you have the right individual. They have the right work ethic, and they are very goal-oriented."

"Normally, the foreign athlete is coming to a college for all the right reasons. They are going to take care of business," Luster added. "You can be pretty sure they are there to spend four years and be consistent in the classroom and at practice. They make a commitment and they are true to it."

Brassey has noticed the same maturity level in her Australian athletes.

"For the most part, kids in other countries are a little bit more mature than kids their age in America," she said. "At least, that's been my experience. In terms of volleyball, maybe they haven't had as much experience, but their overall maturity level is more than the average freshman. They handle things a little better."

Brazil and Australia have national teams. The Reis sisters and Manser trained with the intention of playing for their respective national teams. Those training techniques have been the only obstacles for both Luster and Brassey. The Reis sisters came from a strong volleyball background, which included year-round training.

"The only negative thing I could say is that they have been trained since they were very young," Luster said. "They have been trained in one style, so they can be a little stubborn."

Australia's national team is not one of the stronger, Olympic-caliber programs. Manser's training reflected that.

"When she first got here, she was kind of slow," Brassey said. "It was almost as if she was lazy. We had a more intense training program than she had ever been in. In Australia, they didn't really push their kids. Volleyball was pretty relaxed, and I think it was a big shock for Pauline."

After some training New Mexico-style, Manser's game came into its own. She participated with the Australian team in a world-class tournament during one summer vacation. Her national team coach, upset that she left her homeland to play in the United States, was stunned.

"After she played with his team in Spain, he could not stop telling us how pleased he was with her improvement. Now he's one of our strongest supporters," Brassey said.

Critics mostly foreign

Brassey said what little criticism she has heard about recruiting foreign players has come mostly from the foreign club coaches who are concerned that their players will "run off to America, get married and never come back."

Most of her fellow American coaches, she says, are not against bringing in foreign student-athletes.

"I haven't heard much criticism from coaches in the states. A lot of teams have foreign players, and a lot of times they are not the best players on the team," Brassey said. "It hasn't gotten to the point where we are taking national team players from another country. Most coaches are pretty open to it. I think recruiting has become such a nightmare for all of us. If there is a foreign athlete who is just dying to come to our school, why not?"

And, adds Luster, it's not as if foreign student-athletes don't make the most of their opportunities in the United States.

"They are very aware that they are foreigners. They are concerned that they do well in school and on the court so they are above criticism. They are very concerned about that kind of potential criticism. They are sensitive that this is not their home country. They want to do well so that they are appreciated."

If Brassey's comments are any indication, Manser, the Reis sisters and their counterparts are more than appreciated.

"They are wonderful to have. They add a great dimension to our team. We've had a great time this year."

Tiger star is a study in irony

By Laura E. Bollig
The NCAA News Staff

It's kind of ironic that Daniela Reis is a setter for the Louisiana State University volleyball team. The irony isn't that the Brazilian ended up in Baton Rouge. What's curious is that the Tiger setter, the person expected to be the best communicator on the court, came to Louisiana State to brush up on her English.

"My dad went to an American school when he was a kid, and he always emphasized the need to know English," she said. "I learned some in high school but not very much."

When volleyball coach Scott Luster got wind of Reis' athletics ability, he invited her to try out for the team.

In and around her English-speaking classes, Reis has helped elevate the Louisiana State volleyball program to new heights.

Reis, known as Dani to her teammates, is the school's all-time assist leader. Only a junior, she set the single-season record for assists with 1,701 last year. Through 14 matches this season, Reis has recorded 569 assists. The Tigers are 13-1 and ranked seventh in the latest NCAA Division I women's volleyball poll.

Last year, the Tigers participated in their first NCAA volleyball final four. Reis was a second-team all-America selection by the American Volleyball Coaches Association.

As a teenager in Rio de Janeiro, volleyball was Reis' life.

"In Brazil, people take volleyball much more professionally," Reis said. "Here in America, kids play two or three sports. In Brazil, you have to choose one sport, and it's not just for one season. It's all year long. I have played volleyball all my life. I had to dedicate my life to volleyball."

Reis and her sister Luciana are two of several Brazilian student-athletes who have made their way to the Bayou State to play for Luster. Lu, also a regular for the Tigers, is a sophomore and has recorded 157 kills in 14 matches.

Dani and Lu depend on their teammates to help them with the transition to American life.

"They are very friendly. They have helped me," Dani said. "I told them that if I say something wrong, correct me. They have never been mean to me because they understand."

Dani said she feels no pressure to prove that, as a foreign athlete, she has a right to play for Louisiana State. She thinks she has made solid contributions to her team.

"I want to be the best for the team. In Brazil, we don't have awards like all-tournament team or most valuable player," Reis said. "You just play. You don't have all-Americas or all-Brazilians. People are concerned about playing good and being the champion. I'm not worried about being better than the Americans. I just want to be the best I can be."

"I agree that the American system is probably the best in the world. There is a lot more support here for athletes - a lot of assistance. But I brought some new experiences to the team. I did some things they hadn't done before."

What has been Reis' biggest adjustment to life American-style? Surprisingly, it has nothing to do with the language barrier or strange customs. It was something a lot of American student-athletes can relate to as well.

"I come from Rio," she said. "It's a real big city. I used to live by the beach. How do I say this? I mean Baton Rouge is nice, but it is a small city compared to Rio."

Division I women's soccer

Tar Heels may be vulnerable in playoffs

Event: 1991 Division I Women's Soccer Championship.

Overview: North Carolina has dominated the division. The Tar Heels have appeared in all nine championship games, winning eight. They have never lost on their home field in NCAA competition, regular season or postseason (106-0-2 through 1990). The key for another crown for the Tar Heels is to fill the gap caused by the loss of coach Anson Dorrance and key starter Kristine Lilly, both of whom will be participating in the Women's World Cup in China. Only the first round of the tournament will be completed before they depart.

Field: Twelve teams will be selected November 3.

Dates and sites: All games will be played on the campus of one of the competing institutions. First-round games will be completed by November 10 and second-round games by November 17. Semifinals are November 23, and the championship is November 24.

Results: Championship results will appear in the November 25 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: The only time North Carolina did not win the championship was in 1985. George Mason used the home-field advantage to take a 2-0 victory and the title. . . . The Tar Heels also will be without three other players who played key roles in past championships. Mia Hamm sat out 1991 to participate in the World Cup. Rita Tower and Jill Jakowich were injured during the preseason. . . . Bill Palladino will coach the Tar Heels in the tournament. . . . Contenders are North Carolina, Stanford (11-0 through the middle of October), Connecticut (12-1 with only a loss to North Carolina), North Carolina State, Colorado College, Virginia and Wisconsin.

What they are saying

Anson Dorrance, head coach
North Carolina

1990 champion

"I don't think me not being there will be a problem. Bill Palladino (who will coach the Tar Heels in Dorrance's absence) has been my assistant since the inception of the program. The biggest loss will be Kristine. She's a franchise player. Losing a player of her caliber is an enormous loss."

Len Tsantiris, head coach

Connecticut

1990 runner-up

"Right now we're zeroing in on making the tournament. We're getting close. I think we are capable of winning. It all depends on if we keep healthy. Our players are mentally and physically prepared to play with anybody in the country. We are a young team, so it will be a challenge. North Carolina will definitely miss Dorrance and Lilly. Anson is a respected coach and Kristine is a great player. But they are well-rounded, and I think they will do well."

Berhane Andeberman, head coach

Stanford

"I think we have a good chance. I wouldn't consider us the favorites. We have won a couple of games when I didn't think we had a chance. North Carolina should be everyone's favorite. If we are selected, I think we have a decent chance. (Losing Dorrance and Lilly) will hurt North Carolina. They have an excellent staff, but there is a loss when you lose a head coach the status of Anson Dorrance. And losing the top player will hurt, too. However, losing the top player will hurt them the least because they are so loaded."

If North Carolina wins a ninth Division I title, the feat will be accomplished without key starter Kristine Lilly, who will join Tar Heels coach Anson Dorrance in China for World Cup competition

Alayne Rott is one of three forwards who leads the Barry attack

Division II women's soccer

Division II race appears to be wide open

Event: 1991 Division II Women's Soccer Championship.

Overview: In the three-year history of the championship, Barry and Keene State are the only teams to compete every time. Sonoma State, Barry and Cal State Hayward have won the championships. But a newcomer is making a mark this year. Mercyhurst defeated perennial contender Adelphi and tied previously No. 1-ranked Keene State in the Hamot Soccer Cup to thrust itself into the national picture. Defending champion Sonoma State is undefeated through the middle of October.

Field: The field was expanded in 1991 to include two additional teams. The six teams will be selected November 4.

Dates and sites: All games will be on the campus of one of the competing institutions. First-round games will be November 9 or 10. The semifinals will be November 16, and the championship will be November 17.

Results: Championship results will appear in the November 18 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: Keene State has lost in the championship game two consecutive years. The Owls lost in the first round of the first tournament. . . . Both semifinal games in 1990 ended in penalty kicks.

What they are saying

Peter Renault, head coach
Sonoma State

1990 champion

"The chances of repeating are hard to tell. I lost two very good forwards to graduation. Both players scored goals in the tournament. Our defense is solid, so we'll be contenders for sure. Whether we can repeat remains to be seen."

Mike Covone, head coach
Barry

"We're very optimistic about getting back into the tournament. We're very pleased with our progress. We have graduated 10 of 11 starters from the last two years. But we feel very good about the progress of our young kids."

Trevor Warren, head coach
Mercyhurst

"We're a senior-led team. We have five seniors who are quality players for us. We're peaking at the right time. We stop the other team from playing its game. We don't give the other team time to do things with the ball."

Division III women's soccer

Tradition may not prevail this season

Event: 1991 Division III Women's Soccer Championship.

Overview: For the past four years, the Division III women's soccer champion has been a first-time winner. And in each of those years, the winner was the previous year's runner-up. Will 1990 runner-up Cortland State be the latest to take the final step? Or will Ithaca become the first team since Rochester to win back-to-back titles? Or will somebody else break the streak?

Field: Sixteen teams will be selected November 3.

Dates and sites: All competition will take place at on-campus sites. The semifinals and final will be played November 17-18.

Results: Championship results will appear in the November 18 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: If this year's championship is decided by a penalty-kick shootout like last year's, the official results will look different. The game will be recorded as a tie, with one team declared the champion on the basis of the tie-breaker, according to a new rule passed by the NCAA Men's and Women's Soccer Rules Committee. . . . Contenders for the 1991 title include William Smith, UC San Diego, Cortland State, Ithaca, Mary Washington and Methodist. . . . Watch out for 1988 champion William Smith. It lost only four players from last year's 14-4-1 team, which was very young. William Smith has a year of experience and has not allowed a goal through five games, while scoring more than two and a half goals per game. "Their freshman class last year was as good as any, maybe in any division," Cortland State coach Chris Malone said.

What they are saying

Chris Malone, head coach
Cortland State

1990 finalist

"I think you have to look at the teams the year they lost in the finals. They were very young teams that gained experience. They also probably played in the playoffs the year before. The experienced teams usually end up winning, not always the most talented team. We may break the trend."

Patrick Farmer, head coach
Ithaca

1990 champion

"We benefited by that pattern to begin with, but it would be nice to stop it this year. Not to be greedy or anything, but that would eliminate us. So we hope that it doesn't hold true this year."

"We are pretty strong defensively. But we are having trouble putting it in the goal ourselves."

Aliceann Wilber, head coach
William Smith

1988 champion, currently ranked No. 1

"Once the game gets under way, (the trend) has no bearing. I believe that hosting has had more to do with who wins than being runner-up the previous year. Then again, the experience of having been there and been so close is important. The year we were runner-up, we had the whole next year to gear up for the championship. But with the growth of soccer in Division III, there is more and more parity and it's way too early to predict."

For this scene from the 1990 final to repeat itself, Ithaca will have to become the first team since Rochester in 1987 to successfully defend the Division III women's soccer crown tennis all-decade team. The 1991 Pacific-10 Conference champion and player of the year, Birch helped lead Stanford to the Division I national championship in all four years in which she competed.

An academic all-America and dean's list student who graduated in June 1991, she had a 3.700 grade-point average while earning a degree in economics.

She was a member of the Stanford athletic research committee and a recipient of the Pacific-10 Conference Medal and the Al Masters Award, Stanford's highest athletics honor.

Gea Johnson

Johnson won the 1990 Division I heptathlon and the 1990 Pacific 10 Conference heptathlon and long jump championships, but she was unable to defend her titles last year because of a late-season injury.

The 1991 Sun Angel scholar-athlete of the year, who graduated in May 1991, had a 3.970 grade-point average while earning a communications degree and was Arizona State's outstanding graduate from the College of Public Programs. A member of the Pacific-10 all-academic team, Johnson was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Outstanding College Students of America, Golden Key and the national dean's list.

An annual speaker for high schools and elementary schools in the Phoenix area and a speaker for the Arizona State Sun Angel booster club and DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education), Johnson also was a Sunday school teacher and an Arizona Senior Olympics volunteer.

Joy Selig

The 1989 and 1990 NCAA balance beam champion and the 1990 floor exercise champion, Selig also finished seventh in the 1991 NCAA all-around competition and third in the 1991 floor exercise. The 1991 Pacific-10 gymnast of the year was a nine-time Pacific-10 champion and a member of the 1991 World University Games team.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa and an academic all-America, Selig has a 3.510 grade-point average and is scheduled to graduate with a degree in psychology in June 1992. Early last month, she was named the NCAA Woman of the Year for Oregon.

A two-time team captain for Oregon State, Selig is active in Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the Big Brother/Big Sister program and an outreach program to motivate children to read. She also served as a teacher's aide and made anti-drug presentations to local schools.

Brad Werenka

Named the 1991 U.S. college hockey player of the year by The Hockey News/Bauer, Werenka was a 1991 first-team all-America and the runner-up for Northern Michigan's 1991 Hobey Baker Memorial Award. The captain of the 1991 NCAA Division I champion team, Werenka was named to the 1991 Division I championship all-tournament team and was the nation's top scoring defenseman during the regular season.

An academic all-America who was the 1991 Western Collegiate Hockey Association's student-athlete of the year, Werenka, who is a member of Mortar Board and Golden Key, has a 3.600 grade-point average while majoring in political science.

A Special Olympics and American Cancer Society volunteer, he initiated a "canathon" for local needy persons during the 1990 holiday season.

David Wharton

A four-time NCAA champion in the 400-yard individual medley, Wharton is one of only four college swimmers to win the NCAA championship in the same event four straight years. A 1988 Olympic silver medalist in the 400-yard individual medley, Wharton also is the American record-holder in the 200-yard individual medley, the 400-yard individual medley and the 200-meter individual medley. He also is a former world-record holder in the 200-meter individual medley and the 400-meter individual medley. A seven-time U.S. national champion, Wharton was the NCAA swimmer of the year in 1988 and 1989 and was the first Pacific-10 competitor to earn swimmer of the year honors four times. Last summer as a member of the U.S. national team, he won two silver medals and one bronze medal at the 1991 Pan Pacific Games.

An NCAA postgraduate scholarship recipient, Wharton has a 2.730 grade-point average and is working toward earning a business administration degree.

A member of the Southern California Skull and Dagger Honor Society, Wharton also is involved in numerous community activities in his hometown of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where he is living this fall and winter while training. He has volunteered his time running swimming clinics for local swim clubs and Boy Scout groups in San Diego and Philadelphia. He also visits Philadelphia-area schools for the deaf and is in the process of learning sign language.

Many Trenton State opponents have felt hemmed in, as Bloomsburg's Kristen Moyer probably did here during the 1990 championship game

Division III field hockey

Lions roaring toward title

Event: 1991 Division III Field Hockey Championship.

Overview: Trenton State has won the title in two of the last three years, including last season when the Lions claimed a 2-1 decision over previously unbeaten Bloomsburg in the championship game. The victory gave Trenton State a championship-best five titles. The Lions also have been runners-up twice. Bloomsburg has won twice and has finished second twice.

Field: The 16-team field will be announced November 4 and will include at least two teams from each of five regions and six at-large selections.

Dates and sites: Regionals will be November 9-10 on the campus of one of the competing institutions. The semifinals and championship will be November 15-16 on the campus of one of the competing institutions.

Results: Championship results will appear in the November 25 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: Can anyone end Trenton State's bid to become the first repeat champion? With five regular-season games left, the Lions had a 30-game winning streak. The last loss came in the 1989 championship game against Lock Haven. The Lions' last regular-season loss was a 2-1 overtime setback against Ithaca in 1987.

What they are saying

Jan Hutchinson, head coach
Bloomsburg

1990 finalist, currently ranked No. 1

"(Looking back to the beginning of the season), we thought the defense would be strong because it returned intact. On attack, three of the four players were new. I thought we had the potential to be good, (but not this good). The freshmen matured more quickly than I thought they would."

Doris Kostrinsky, head coach
Ithaca

Currently ranked No. 2

"Our biggest concern this year was to be strong offensively because our defense had been completely restructured (because of graduation). We hoped our offense could score to take pressure off our defense, and it has worked out like that. Even though I expect to see further improvement, our defense has held up against excellent pressure, and we have made the most of our offensive chances."

Sharon Goldbrenner, head coach
Trenton State

Defending champion, currently ranked fourth

"I'm not concerned about where we're sitting in the poll as long as we're improving on the field. We want to be respected, but we don't care about being No. 1 until the very end. It gives us something to fight for."

Ohio Wesleyan and Glassboro State, shown here in last year's championship game, are among the teams capable of winning the 1991 crown

Division III men's soccer

No clear favorite emerging

Event: 1991 Division III Men's Soccer Championship.

Overview: The favorite's role is wide open as Glassboro State and Elizabethtown, the top two teams in the division, lost their first games recently. Glassboro State lost to Kean, 4-3, and Elizabethtown lost to Trenton State, 3-2.

Field: Thirty-two teams from eight regions will be selected November 3.

Dates and sites: All games will be played at on-campus sites. First-round games will be completed by November 10. Second- and third-round games will be November 15-16 or November 16-17. The semifinals and finals will be November 22-23 or November 23-24.

Results: Championship results will appear in the November 25 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: Contenders are Glassboro State, Elizabethtown, Salem State, Ohio Wesleyan, MacMurray and Kean.... History does not bode well for Glassboro State and Ohio Wesleyan. No finalist has returned to the finals the next year since North Carolina-Greensboro won three straight titles from 1985-87.... If Glassboro State repeats, it would tie Babson for second with three championships.

What they are saying

Dan Gilmore, head coach
Glassboro State

1990 champion

"I think we have a good shot at going into the tournament ranked No. 1. I like our team's chances in the tournament. I think we're a better team than we were last year, talent-wise. We have to be more consistent. We know what it takes to win it. Once you get there, you have to be good and lucky."

John Martin, head coach
Ohio Wesleyan

1990 runner-up

"(The penalty-kick loss in the championship game) is something in the past. I've never spoken about it, and I've never heard the guys talk about it. We're 14-1, and we have a good team. In terms of depth, it's the best team I've had in my 15 years."

Arthur "Skip" Roderick, head coach
Elizabethtown

1989 champion

"The loss to Trenton State was our first regular-season loss in 41 games. I think it might help us. I would rather lose early on than in the playoffs. It brought our kids back down to earth. Our practices have been more intense and the kids have been more focused."

BYU's Detmer setting pace for passing-efficiency record

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Heading down the home stretch of their college careers, Brigham Young's Ty Detmer ranks No. 1, Holy Cross' Tom Ciacio No. 9 and Houston's David Klingler No. 17 in passing efficiency on the all-time NCAA collegiate (all-divisions) list.

Detmer's 159.8 rating, if maintained, would break the collegiate record for passers with at least 475 career completions. It is 156.9 by Brigham Young's Jim McMahon, whose career ended with the 1981 season.

Detmer soared to the top in collegiate passing yardage at 13,411 with his 375 yards at New Mexico October 26. That broke the 13,220 by Neil Lomax of Portland State, a Division II member his freshman year and a I-AA member his last three. With four games left this season, Detmer could increase his margin by another 1,000 yards or more (all NCAA official rankings include only regular-season play).

As the tables on page 9 show, Detmer ranks at or near the top in three more collegiate career categories.

Chris Petersen, whose last season at Division II UC Davis was 1986, holds the all-divisions career passing-efficiency record at 164.0 for quarterbacks with at least 325 completions but fewer than 475. Tony Aliucci, senior quarterback for Division II Indiana (Pennsylvania), has a chance to break this record. He is at 161.3 with two games left. The same is true for Western State's Jayson Merrill, providing he ends with enough completions to reach the minimum. A junior-college transfer, he now has 159.3 rating points for his 18-game career, with two games left.

High season marks

Merrill's amazing 182.6 rating this season in Division II is the sixth-highest in history on the all-time collegiate list. The record is 210.1 by College of Idaho's Boyd Crawford in 1963. Another super-high season figure is the 48.4-yard punting average by Texas Tech senior Mark Bounds. That is No. 4 on the all-time, all-divisions list. Above him are a pair of I-A punters, Iowa's Reggie Roby (49.8 in 1981) and UCLA's Kirk Wilson (49.3 in 1956) and Division III Shippensburg's Steve Ecker (49.1 in 1965). Bounds spent his first three years at West Texas State, which dropped football, and led Division II in punting while there.

Howard's TD catches

Michigan's Desmond Howard now has 15 touchdown catches in seven games—a pace that would break the Division I-A season record of 22 by Houston's Manny Hazard in 1989.

Howard is averaging 2.14 touchdowns per game and needs to average exactly two to break the record. Remarkably, his 15 touchdowns have come on only 40 total catches. Hazard caught 142 his record year.

The national scoring crown also is a good possibility for Howard, now second with 102 points on 17 touchdowns (having scored twice on other plays) for 14.6 per game.

Double duty

Most Division I-A teams have separate specialists for punting and field goals because different foot action is required, but there are some exceptions.

Most notable is Kansas sophomore Dan Eichloff, tied for second nationally in field goals per game at 1.71 and ninth in punting at 42.7. Only Daron Alcorn of Akron comes close to this double ranking. He is 12th in punting and tied for 10th in field goals. Three others rank between 20th and 38th in the two categories. They are Louisville's Klaus Wilmsmeyer, Washington State's Jason Hanson and Wyoming's Sean Fleming.

Short takes

Division II New Haven scored the most points ever by a losing team in any NCAA division in a 64-60 loss to Southern Connecticut State October 26, reports Jack Jones, New Haven SID. The former collegiate scoring record for a losing team was 57 by Division II West Chester in a 58-57 loss to New Haven last year.... At Millersville's Biemesderfer Stadium October 26, fog completely enveloped the field at the start of the fourth quarter. Officials kept time, and SID Greg Wyatt kept the crowd and press box informed via walkie-talkie from the sideline. Mansfield won, 31-30, by stopping a two-point try after a touchdown pass by Millersville in the last quarter.

Eligibility appeals

(Note: In cases involving prospective student-athletes, the NCAA Eligibility Committee has only the authority to either restore the involved prospect with all of his or her eligibility remaining at the violating institution, or, in the alternative, render the prospective student-athlete permanently ineligible at that institution.)

Accordingly, because the eligibility ramifications of violations that involve prospects and enrolled student-athletes are treated differently, those cases that involve prospects are published separately from the other matters.

Also, please note that any actions taken by the institution, conference or NCAA Committee on Infractions regarding the institution's responsibility for the occurrence of the violation that caused the ineligibility of the student-athlete now are reported along with the publication of the particular eligibility case.)

Eligibility Appeals Concerning Recruiting Violations

DIVISION I

Case No.	NCAA Rules	Facts	Action
1.	B 13.1.5.2-(a), 13.5.1 and 13.6.4	Student-athlete (SA) (women's volleyball) used head coach's automobile to transport then prospective student athlete (PSA) upon PSA's arrival on campus to enroll. Same head coach transported another PSA a distance of greater than 30 miles to her high-school contests and back to campus during PSA's official paid visit. Both PSAs now enrolled at institution.	Eligibility restored for both PSAs. (See Case No. 3 in the other section for actions taken.)
2.	B 13.2.4.2	PSA (men's basketball) was transported from the airport to his summer job by current SA. PSA previously had signed National Letter of Intent.	Eligibility restored. Institution required reimbursement for mileage.
3.	B 13.7.5.4	During official paid visits, PSAs (men's basketball) watched pay-per-view movies in hotel rooms, the cost of which was billed to athletics department. PSAs previously reached $20 entertainment limit.	Eligibility restored. Institution required PSAs to repay cost of movies.
4.	B 13.02.4.4	PSA's (women's soccer) official paid visit extended into the dead period prior to spring National Letter of Intent signing date by four hours.	Eligibility restored.
5.	B 13.02.4.2	During an evaluation period, head women's basketball coach had contact with PSA (women's basketball) and PSA's parents following junior-college contests. Coach believed contact was permissible because PSA previously had signed National Letter of Intent.	Eligibility restored.
6.	B 13.11.1	Head men's basketball coach commented publicly in local newspaper about athletics ability of three PSAs (men's basketball).	Eligibility restored.
7.	B 13.4.3	Institution's public relations department purchased a recruiting advertisement in high-school all-star game program. PSA (men's basketball) affected by violation previously had signed a National Letter of Intent with the institution.	Eligibility restored.
8.	B 13.02.4.4 and 13.6.3	Parent of PSA (softball) visited institution's campus during dead period and was provided transportation to off-campus site during visit. PSA had signed National Letter of Intent prior to parent's visit.	Eligibility restored. Institution issued written reprimand to coaches.
9.	B 13.7.2.1	PSA (men's basketball) was forced to leave departing plane when seat was given to another passenger and exceeded 48-hour limit during official paid visit.	Eligibility restored.
10.	B 13.7.2	PSA (football) remained on campus for 48½ hours because PSA's host coach had emergency surgery and could not transport PSA to airport.	Eligibility restored.
11.	B 13.6.2.2.2	Graduate assistant coach (football) reimbursed PSA's high-school coach for providing round-trip transportation to PSA and PSA's father to institution's campus for official paid visit.	Eligibility restored. Institution required PSA to repay impermissible travel expenses received.
12.	B 13.6.2.1	PSA (football) was provided one-way transportation to institution's campus during official paid visit by helicopter. Institution initially believed transportation would be provided by a company airplane and head coach reported violation upon PSA's arrival on campus.	Eligibility restored.
13.	B 13.1.2.3-(c)-(1)	Student-athlete engaged in off-campus recruiting contact with PSA (women's track). Assistant track coach requested SA to transport PSA part way to her home following conclusion of official paid visit.	Eligibility restored.
14.	B 13.7.6	Relative of PSA (softball) was permitted to stay overnight in PSA's hotel room at single rate.	Eligibility restored. Institution required relative to repay difference between single and double rate.
15.	B 13.6.1 and 13.7.1.2	PSA (women's swimming) received round-trip automobile transportation from airport during unofficial visit. PSA had taken five previous official paid visits to other institutions.	Eligibility restored. Institution required repayment of $25 and issued a letter of reprimand to coach.
16.	B 13.11.6	After PSAs (men's basketball) signed National Letters of Intent, institution announced spring signees and included additional statistical information.	Eligibility restored.
17.	B 13.7.2.1	PSA's (men's football) official paid visit exceeded 48 hours due to extreme weather conditions.	Eligibility restored.
18.	B 13.13.1.2	PSAs (women's basketball) were employed for 30 minutes at head coach's institutional summer camp prior to discovery of the violation. PSAs had signed National Letters of Intent well before employment.	Eligibility restored.
19.	B 13.11.1	Assistant men's basketball coach commented to local newspaper concerning whether PSA (men's basketball) would sign National Letter of Intent. PSA verbally had committed to attend institution prior to violation.	Eligibility restored. Conference imposed in-service training seminar for all coaches concerning media contacts.
20.	B 13.2.4.4	Assistant baseball coach evaluated PSA (baseball) during dead period prior to spring National Letter of Intent signing date. PSA previously had committed to attend the institution and had not made any other official paid visits.	Eligibility restored. Institution was admonished to avoid similar violations in the future.
21.	B 13.7.2	PSA's (men's swimming) official paid visit exceeded the 48-hour limitation. PSA failed to check in for departing flight and seat was reassigned. PSA spent evening in campus dormitory as no other flights were available that evening.	Eligibility restored.
22.	B 13.1.5.2-(b)	Assistant women's basketball coach handed greeting card to PSA (women's basketball) during PSA's participation in high-school basketball tournament.	Eligibility restored.
23.	B 13.11.1	Head coach (men's gymnastics) commented in student newspaper regarding PSA's commitment to attend institution prior to receiving PSA's signed acceptance of institution's written offer of admission.	Eligibility restored.
24.	B 13.1.4.4	Women's volleyball graduate assistant coach had brief contact with PSA (women's volleyball) during tournament. PSA had signed National Letter of Intent with institution prior to violation.	Eligibility restored.
25.	B 13.7.1.2, 13.7.2 and 13.7.4	During official paid visit, foreign PSA (men's fencing) was provided one night's lodging by head coach, who was a friend of PSA's family, and visit also exceeded 48-hour limitation. Coach was not aware that his actions would result in violations. Institution did not pay for PSA's travel for visit.	Eligibility restored. The institution took the following actions: During 1991-92 year, coach will not participate in off-campus recruiting and men's fencing program is allowed two official paid visits. Coach also is required to attend all rules meetings and receive one-week suspension, with pay, during fall of 1991.
26.	B 13.02.4.2	Head women's basketball coach self-reported evaluating PSA (women's basketball) during dead period that occurred the morning (two hours before noon) after the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship. Same coach contacted PSA during same two-hour period
27.	B 13.2.1	Prior to start of classes, assistant coach (women's basketball) provided round-trip automobile transportation between institution's campus and his home; coach also provided one meal at his home.	Eligibility restored. (See Case No. 40 in other section for actions taken.)
28.	B 13.1.1.1	Assistant coach (football) visited PSAs' high-school coach at PSAs' high school and had brief in-person contact with PSAs.	Eligibility restored.
29.	B 13.2.1	At request of PSA (football), assistant football coach purchased $57 worth of merchandise from campus bookstore and sent it to PSA. Assistant coach thought PSA would be reimbursing him for merchandise. Subsequent to enrollment, PSA repaid assistant coach after coach requested $57 be withheld from SA's scholarship check. PSA had signed National Letter of Intent prior to violation. SA was redshirted during initial year in residence.	Eligibility restored. Institution withheld SA from spring football practice because of violation.
30.	B 13.6.1 and 13.6.3	Assistant football coach transported PSA (football) in an automobile from PSA's hometown to institution's campus for interview with admissions department. PSA previously had made official paid visit to institution. Assistant coach was recruiting in local area when transportation provided. PSA was not interested in attending any other institution and indicated that if he was not admitted to the institution, he was joining the U.S. Navy.	Eligibility restored. Institution required repayment of cost of impermissible transportation.
31.	B 13.2.1	Head men's volleyball coach provided tickets to PSA's father, a representative of the university's athletics interests, to attend NCAA National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship. PSA's father indicated at the time that PSA would not be attending. PSA subsequently decided to attend championship with his father and receive one ticket.	Eligibility restored. Institution requested repayment of the value of tickets.
32.	B 13.11.6	Institution issued press release announcing foreign PSA's (men's basketball) commitment to institution prior to receipt of PSA's signed acceptance of written offer of financial aid.	Eligibility restored.
33.	B 13.13.1.2	PSA (women's volleyball) was employed at institutional summer camp by head coach and was compensated at same rate as other camp employees. PSA was admitted to school and accepted offer of aid seven months before violation.	Eligibility restored. Institution required PSA to repay compensation.
34.	B 13.1.6.2	Members of coaching staff (women's basketball) evaluated PSA on four occasions. Coaches believed two evaluations during a two-tiered tournament only counted as one evaluation.	Eligibility restored.
35.	B 13.2.1	PSAs (men's track) purchased T-shirts during official paid visits from two SAs for nominal amounts; SAs were instructed to do so by former assistant coach. PSAs now enrolled at institution.	Eligibility restored. Institution required PSAs to repay actual value of T-shirts. The involved coach resigned.
36.	B 13.13.1.2	PSA (men's basketball) attended institution's three-hour baseball clinic. Head coach did not recognize PSA or know that institution was recruiting PSA until after the clinic.	Eligibility restored.

37.	B 13.2.2 and 13.6.2	Head coach (women's softball) arranged for current SAs to lodge several members of high-school team who had competition on institution's campus. Institution later learned PSA intended to enroll at university as a walk-on.	Eligibility restored. Institution later counted PSA's lodging as an official paid visit and will not recruit remaining high-school team members.
DIVISION II
38.	B 13.11.1	On two occasions, head men's basketball coach commented publicly in two local newspapers about PSA's (men's basketball) athletics ability.	Eligibility restored. Conference admonished institution to avoid this type of violation in the future.
39.	B 13.11.6.3	PSA (men's tennis) appeared in photograph with an institution representative at site where PSA signed financial aid forms.	Eligibility restored.
40.	B 13.12.1 and 13.12.2.3(b)	PSA (men's basketball) was allowed to participate in scrimmage with current members of institution's team, which was arranged and observed by assistant coach.	Eligibility restored. Institution reprimanded coach for involvement in violation and institution notified PSA of violation; institution ceased recruitment of PSA for several-week period.
41.	B 13.02.4.4 and 13.1.4.4(b)	Head and assistant coaches dined at PSA's parents' home during a dead period. PSA (ice hockey) previously had signed National Letter of Intent with institution.	Eligibility restored.
42.	B 13.12.1	PSAs (men's tennis) were recruited and signed National Letters of Intent but did not meet initial-eligibility requirements. SAs practiced on adjacent tennis courts during scheduled practice times. SAs did not participate in team activities and did not receive instruction from coaching staff.	Eligibility restored.
43.	B 13.11.5 and 13.11.6.3	Photograph of PSA (women's track), PSA's parents and head coach depicting PSA's National Letter of Intent signing was published in local newspaper. PSA had signed letter of intent prior to publication of picture.	Eligibility restored.
44.	B 13.1.5-(d)	Head and assistant coaches had in-person contact with PSA (men's basketball) prior to PSA's completion of junior-college tournament. PSA initiated conversation and had informed other NCAA member institutions of his intent to attend this institution prior to violation. Institution learned of violation after SA had enrolled.	Eligibility restored.
45.	B 13.2.1	Former coach (women's cross country and track) provided one-way transportation for PSA to take SAT exam.	Eligibility restored. Cost of transportation was repaid. Coach is no longer employed at institution.
46.	B 13.13.1.2	Transfer SA (women's basketball) was employed at head coach's summer camp. SA had verbally committed to attend institution prior to employment at camp.	Eligibility restored. Institution issued written reprimand to coach. Institution required SA to repay cost of room and board received while attending campus and withheld her camp salary.
DIVISION III
47.	B 13.13.1.2	PSA (women's gymnastics) was employed at head coach's summer camp. Institution withheld PSA's salary. PSA had committed to attend institution prior to employment at camp.	Eligibility restored. Institution reprimanded head coach and required her to make rules presentation to athletics department staff.
Eligibility Appeals Concerning Recruiting Violations
DIVISION I
Case No. 1.	NCAA Rules B 14.2.1 and 30.5.1	Facts Transfer student-athlete (SA) (women's lacrosse) was unable to attend collegiate institution due to medical reasons.	Action Extension granted for period of time equal to number of days
2.	B 16.12.2.1	SA (women's basketball) received gift of clothing and two free haircuts from representatives of institution's athletics interest.	Eligibility restored. Institution required SA to repay cost of benefits.
3.	B 16.12.2.2.1 and 16.12.2.3	Head coach allowed 10 SAs (women's volleyball) to use his truck to transport their belongings. Coach also allowed three SAs to use his garage for temporary storage of their belongings during the summer. Three SAs were loaned a table owned by coach; coach also assisted SAs with painting and repairs of apartment. He also allowed one SA to use his truck to transport another SA's scooter. Finally, the coach allowed one SA to transport PSA from local airport to campus upon PSA's arrival to enroll at institution. Coach provided another SA with one-way transportation from her home to campus.	Eligibility restored. Institution withheld one SA, who was involved in several violations, from two contests during 1990-91 season. Coach was suspended from all team activities and prohibited from traveling with teams for two contests; also placed on probation for one year. All SAs have repaid $5 for the impermissible use of the automobile and truck. Institution required all SAs to repay value of storage and cost of transportation.
4.	B 14.2.1 and 30.5.1	SA (baseball) was unable to attend collegiate institution due to medical reasons.	Extension granted for period of time equal to number of days from date SA was unable to attend collegiate institution to next opportunity to enroll (approximately six months). SA was granted additional extension to complete traditional segment. (Note: In January 1991, the Eligibility Committee was granted the authority to permit SAs who have received an extension of at least four months and, as a result of that extension, are eligible at the beginning of official institutional practice in the traditional segment of a sport, to participate in the entire traditional season.)
5.	B 16.10.2.7	SA (women's golf) received round-trip automobile transportation from head coach on several occasions from campus to club at which SA and coach played golf on each occasion at no cost to SA.	Eligibility restored. Institution terminated coach's employment as a result of this and other violations and required SA to donate equivalent of value of benefit to charity.
6.	B 14.6.1	During spring of 1990, SA (baseball) was allowed to compete in 36 contests during year in residence. SA is no longer at institution.	Should SA decide to reenroll, eligibility restored after SA is withheld from next 36 baseball contests. Institution forfeited contests won during 1990 spring semester in which ineligible SA participated.
7.	B 16.12.2.1	During 1988 spring term, SA (women's track and field) received round-trip automobile transportation to Orlando, Florida, from head track coach in order to train for 1988 NCAA Track and Field Championship.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of transportation costs.
8.	B 16.12.2.3	SA (football) requested and received loans on two occasions (total $85) from a representative of the institution's athletics interests who is also an institutional employee. SA requested money for an away contest and to travel home for Thanksgiving. Representative informed head coach of loans because SA had not repaid money. Coach instructed SA to repay loans but coach did not disclose violations for approximately several weeks.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of loan and upon fulfillment of institution's actions. The institution issued letters of reprimand to representative and coach. SA no longer is enrolled at institution but institution will withhold SA from two contests if SA reenrolls.
9.	B 14.3.2.1.1 and 14.13.4.3	SA (men's track) received athletically related aid, practiced and competed prior to receiving waiver of initial-eligibility requirements; waiver later was granted and SA became qualifier.	Eligibility restored.
10.	B 14.3.2 and 13.14.4.3	SA (women's volleyball) competed in spring volleyball scrimmage against outside competition as nonqualifier. Coach did not check eligibility status prior to competition.	Eligibility restored after SA completes year in residence. (Note: SA used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 through limited participation.)
11.	B 12.5.2.1	SAs (various women's sports) participated in institution-sponsored fashion show attended by alumnae only; SAs were not paid.	Eligibility restored.
12.	B 14.8.1	SA (women's soccer) competed in one outside competition after nontraditional season had begun.	Eligibility restored upon fulfillment of institution's actions to withhold SA from first two regularly scheduled contests of 1991-92 season.
13.	B 13.7.5.4.1	SAs (men's basketball) received free meals while accompanying PSA and student host to restaurant during PSA's official paid visit.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of value of meals.
14.	B 12.1.1, 12.2.3.1 and 12.2.5.1	Foreign SA (ice hockey) participated as an amateur on Swiss amateur team that had several players who were under contracts as professionals to play ice hockey in Europe. SA received moneys for actual and necessary expenses only.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of moneys received in excess of actual and necessary expenses and after SA was withheld from 20 percent of 1990-91 season.
15.	B 14.2.1	SA (football) was unable to attend collegiate institution due to incapacitating illness, subsequent hospitalization and recovery.	Extension granted for period of time equal to number of days SA was unable to attend collegiate institution to next opportunity to enroll (approximately eight months).
16.	B 14.01.4.3-(c)	SA (football and men's track) initially competed in last two football contests of season after SA had dropped below full-time enrollment; violation was not discovered until after season had ended and after SA had exhausted his eligibility in football. SA knowingly violated legislation.	Eligibility restored in track upon fulfillment of institution's actions to withhold SA from entire indoor track season.

17.	B 12.5.2.1	SA (men's golf) appeared in local newspaper advertisement for local apartment complex and received $25 for his appearance. SA believed it was permissible for SAs in fourth season of eligibility to be involved in such activities.	Eligibility restored upon fulfillment of institution's actions to require repayment and be withheld from next intercollegiate contest.
18.	B 14.1.5.2	SA (men's lacrosse) competed in four contests while not officially enrolled at the institution. Institution would not allow SA to enroll due to outstanding balance for tuition payment. SA secured loan and was reinstated retroactively to beginning of semester.	Eligibility restored upon fulfillment of institution's actions to withhold SA from next five contests.
19.	B 16.12.2.1	SA (men's basketball) received round-trip transportation to local restaurant and meals from academic counselor.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of costs of meals.
20.	B 14.1.5.2.2	SA (women's track) competed in five contests while enrolled in less than 12 credit hours.	Eligibility restored after SA is withheld from first two intercollegiate contests of 1991-92 indoor track season and after SA is withheld from competition for remainder of 1990-91 season (three contests).
21.	B 12.5.2.1	SA (women's lacrosse) appeared in fashion supplement of university's newspaper.	Eligibility restored. Institution withheld SAs from next two contests against outside competition.
22.	B 12.5.2.1	SAs (men's track) appeared in fashion story in local newspaper. Institution believed appearances were permissible because SAs were not paid and gave them permission.	Eligibility restored.
23.	B 12.1.1 and 12.1.3(c)	SA (men's tennis) participated in tennis tournaments as a professional for at least one year and received $3,424 in prize money based upon place finishes. SA intended to professionalize himself, but later changed his mind.	Eligibility not restored. (On appeal, Eligibility Committee for Division I affirmed staff decision.)
24.	B 16.12.2.1	Assistant football coach provided SA (football) transportation from local bus station to campus after it was determined that SA did not qualify for incidental expense waiver and could not receive bus fare home.	Eligibility restored. Institution required SA to repay cost of travel.
25.	B 14.1.5.1.3	SA (men's basketball) was dismissed from institution for failure to have a measles vaccination and competed in one contest before he was reinstated by institution.	Eligibility restored after SA is withheld from first intercollegiate contest of 1991-92 season.
26.	B 14.3.2.2.1 and 14.13.4.3	Foreign SA (men's swimming) received athletically related aid during initial year in residence as a non-qualifier. Institution requested waiver of initial-eligibility requirements, which was denied.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of impermissible aid.
27.	B 12.1.1-(d)	SA (men's cross country and track) participated in road race and won $250 for place finish. SA knew NCAA amateurism rules but believed rules did not apply because race was in Mexico.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of prize money and after SA is withheld from first regularly scheduled cross country meet of 1991-92 season.
28.	B 12.5.2.1	SA (football) appeared in public service announcement that was cosponsored by commercial business. Institution gave verbal approval for appearance without knowledge of commercial involvement. SA did not receive remuneration. Institution requested that use of announcement be halted.	Eligibility restored.
29.	B 14.3.2.1 and 14.13.4.3	SAs (football), who were partial qualifiers, received athletically related aid during initial year of residence.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of impermissible aid.
30.	B 16.2.1.2	SA (football) received eight complimentary admissions to bowl game. Four admissions were transferred from another SA and were used for relatives of fellow student.	Eligibility restored upon fulfillment of institution's action to revoke SA's complimentary-admissions privileges for first two contests of 1991-92 season.
31.	B 15.2.4.1	SA (men's basketball) received $169 in excessive financial aid from Pell Grant.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of excess aid.
32.	B 16.8.1.4.1	In December 1991, institution provided SAs (men's basketball) with impermissible airline transportation in conjunction with special event. SAs received airline transportation from regular-season competition to their homes for Christmas, and transportation to special-event site and back to campus after Christmas holiday.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of value of least expensive portion of transportation received.
33.	B 14.3.2.1.1 and 14.13.4.3	SA (football) was a partial qualifier and received athletically related aid during initial year in residence. Institution questioned SA's test scores based on significant increase in final score and asked testing service to verify validity of results. Test score subsequently was canceled eight months later. Institution awarded aid until test score was canceled and SA became a partial qualifier.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of impermissible aid.
34.	B 12.1.1 and 12.1.2(i)	Foreign PSA (women's tennis) competed in several junior tennis tournament in Great Britain and received expense moneys based upon place finishes. PSA participated as an amateur under the governing body for the junior tennis circuit in her country; expenses were significantly greater than expense moneys PSA actually received for each tournament.	Eligibility restored.
35.	B 12.1.1 (a), 12.1.2(a), 12.1.1(k) and 12.1.2(f)	Foreign PSA (men's tennis) received $1,321 in 11 tournaments over a three-year period based upon his place finishes and $38,000 from a third-party sponsor.	Eligibility not restored. (On appeal, NCAA Eligibility Committee for Division I affirmed staff decision.)

38.	B 12.1.1(c), 12.1.1(d), 12.1.3, 12.2.3.2 and 12.2.5.1	After being drafted in 1991 professional baseball draft, SA (baseball) signed contract with team. SA received airline transportation to rookie camp and was provided meals and lodging while participating in practice and competition during six-day period. SA was examined by medical personnel and contract was voided because SA was considered medical risk. SA's action demonstrated intent to professionalize himself.	Eligibility not restored.
39.	B 16.12.2.1	Head men's ice hockey coach provided one night's lodging to SA (men's ice hockey) during the summer at no cost. Coach had done so upon the request of SA's father.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of cost of lodging received.
40.	B 14.3.2.1.1, 16.12.2.1 and 15.02.3.1(a)	Assistant women's basketball coach provided local round-trip transportation to SAs (women's basketball) on five or six occasions. One SA was employed at institution's athletics department facility; SA was required to return funds when institution learned of violation. Both SAs repaid value of transportation received.	Eligibility restored. This matter was one of several treated by NCAA Committee on Infractions as part of a secondary case. The committee adopted all actions taken by the institution, such as the women's basketball program not being allowed to add anyone to current squad list for 1990-91; allow a total of 13 grants-in-aid and no more than three initial scholarships over and above those who appeared on squad list in fall of 1990 for 1991-92 year; maximum of nine official paid visits for 1990-91; head coach and both assistant coaches placed on probation for one year and salary frozen for one year, and were informed that any violation of NCAA, conference or institutional rules will result in immediate termination; one assistant coach will not be allowed to recruit off campus until August 1, 1991.
41.	B 12.2.1.1, 12.2.3.2 and 12.2.3.2.1	PSA (ice hockey) attended major junior A training camp for more than 48 hours and received expenses during 1989-90 and 1990-91 seasons. SA also participated in five exhibition and seven regular-season contests as an affiliate player during 1990-91 season.	Eligibility restored after SA is charged with the loss of one season of competition, is withheld from intercollegiate competition during first year of attendance at NCAA member institution and is withheld from first 12 regularly scheduled intercollegiate contests during SA's first season of competition.
42.	B 14.5.2	SAs (wrestling) had not made satisfactory progress and competed in nine contests.	Eligibility restored after SA withheld from first nine contests of 1991-92 season.
43.	B 14.1.5.2.2	SA (men's basketball) dropped below full-time enrollment and was allowed to compete in five contests.	Eligibility restored after SA is withheld from first five contests of 1991-92 season.
44.	B 14.6.4.1.1	Transfer SA (men's golf) competed in one contest during year in residence.	Eligibility restored. (Note: SA used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 due to limited participation.)
45.	B 14.2.1	SA (men's soccer) was unable to attend collegiate institution due to hospitalization, surgery and rehabilitation.	Extension request granted for period of time equal to the number of days SA was unable to attend a collegiate institution until next opportunity to enroll (approximately seven months).
46.	B 14.6.4.4.7	During 1991 spring semester, transfer SA (baseball) participated in 10 contests for institution after having participated in a scrimmage for junior college during fall semester of same academic year.	Eligibility restored after SA withheld from first 10 regularly scheduled intercollegiate contests of 1991-92 season. (Note: SA used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 due to limited participation.) Institution offered to forfeit contests in which ineligible SA participated and placed written reprimand in head coach's file.

47.	B 12.5.2.1	SA (football) appeared in nine seconds of a 30-second television commercial promoting a local clothing store. SA was not identified by name or as a SA and was not compensated for his appearance.	On appeal from staff decision to withhold from first contest, the Eligibility Committee for Division I restored upon SA being withheld from half of first contest of 1991-92 season.
48.	B 12.1.1, 12.1.2(k) and 12.3	While training for 1988 U.S. Olympic team, PSA (women's gymnastics) employed an agent from August 1986 to May 1990 and received $15,395 that was placed in a trust fund account established under the auspices of the United States Gymnastics Federation. PSA had knowledge that these actions would jeopardize eligibility at NCAA institution. In September 1990, PSA received $1,000 along with transportation and lodging expenses for participation in television program featuring top gymnasts and figure skaters.	Eligibility not restored. (On appeal, NCAA Eligibility Committee for Division I affirmed staff's decision.)
49.	B 14.2.2.3	Transfer SA (baseball) withdrew from classes and chose to return to city where he previously attended a collegiate institution in order to receive rehabilitation for his shoulder injury.	Extension request denied.
50.	B 14.1.5.2	Walk-on SA (men's tennis) dropped below full-time enrollment and competed in three contests.	Eligibility restored after SA is withheld from first three contests of 1991-92 season.
51.	B 14.8.2 and 16.12.1.3.1(a)	SA (women's basketball) participated in three-point shooting contests at local mall for charity. One SA won prize money but refused to accept it because she knew accepting prize money was impermissible under NCAA regulations.	Eligibility restored.
52.	B 14.2.1	SA (wrestling) unable to attend collegiate institution for medical reasons.	Extension granted for period of time equal to the number of days SA was unable to attend a collegiate institution to next opportunity to enroll (approximately 25½ months).
53.	B 16.12.2.2.2	SA (women's volleyball) charged telephone calls totaling $11 to athletics department; student trainer initially provided number to SA to call SA's parents about a medical problem.	Eligibility restored upon fulfillment of institution's actions that SA must repay $11 and be withheld from first contests of 1991-92 season.
54.	B 14.01.2	SAs (men's soccer), after being cut, formed a reserve team for which coach helped arrange a match with an NAIA reserve team. Three SAs from the varsity team also were allowed to compete on team.	Eligibility restored after SAs are withheld from next three intercollegiate contests. (Note: SAs who were cut from team used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 due to limited participation.)
55.	B 16.12.2.3	Head men's soccer coach loaned SA (men's soccer) $50 to assist SA in returning home when SA's father suddenly died; SA immediately repaid loan.	Eligibility restored.
56.	B 12.1.1 and 12.1.2(i)	Foreign SA (women's tennis) competed as an amateur in several junior tennis tournaments in Europe and received expense moneys for place finished prior to enrollment at an intercollegiate institution. SA did not sign any contract and expenses for each tournament were significantly greater than expense moneys received in each.	Eligibility restored. Institution withheld SA from two contests.
57.	B 14.6.4.1.1	SAs (men's golf) competed in two contests during year in residence.	Eligibility restored. (Note: SAs used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 due to limited participation.)

58.	B 14.8.5.2	SA (men's basketball) competed in two contests during NCAA-sanctioned tournament without written permission from institution; SA saw other SAs competing but was unaware that they had received permission from institution.	Eligibility restored. Institution has requested that all coaches review legislation on summer leagues and SAs will be required to sign consent form prior to participation in leagues.
59.	B 14.8.5.2	SA (women's basketball) competed in five contests in sanctioned summer league without permission from institution. SA attempted to contact coaches on several occasions and subsequently received written permission.	Eligibility restored.
DIVISION II
60.	B 15.3.4.2	Head men's basketball coach directed student-athletes (SAs) (men's basketball) to use remaining book allowance to purchase books for other SAs. Additional financial aid was not included in SA's financial aid agreement.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of impermissible aid.
61.	B 12.1.1 and 12.1.2	From 1985 to 1990, SA (men's tennis) received prize money for his participation in several tennis tournaments. From 1986 to 1991, SA did not attend any collegiate institution. In 1989-90, SA was employed at a collegiate institution as an assistant tennis coach and received a salary. In spring 1991, institution allowed SA to practice, receive aid and compete on its intercollegiate team.	Eligibility not restored.
62.	B 12.1.2(k)	SAs (men's soccer) competed in one-day soccer tournament in which SAs' team won $500 for its place finish. SAs did not directly receive prize money, as it was retained by club to offset expenses.	Eligibility restored.
63.	B 14.3.2.2.1 and 14.13.4.3	SA (men's soccer) competed in two contests during non-traditional season as a partial qualifier. Head coach had organized nontraditional season without institution's knowledge.	Eligibility restored. (Note: SA used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 due to his limited participation.) Institution canceled remainder of nontraditional season. Coach resigned.
64.	B 14.3.2 and 14.13.4.3	SA (football) participated in spring practice as a partial qualifier. SA achieved required test score after initial full-time enrollment.	Eligibility restored. Institution issued written reprimand to coach.
65.	B 14.8.2	SA (men's basketball) participated in two contests during weekend basketball tournament conducted after conclusion of 1990-91 season.	Eligibility restored after SA is withheld from first two regularly scheduled contests of 1991-92 season.
66.	B 14.1.4.1	During spring of 1991, while at a previous institution, transfer SA (women's volleyball) competed in nontraditional contests while not enrolled as full-time, degree-seeking student.	Eligibility restored after SA completes year in residence.
67.	B 14.8.2	In March 1991, SAs (men's basketball) participated in three contests during three-day basketball tournament after intercollegiate season had been completed. NCAA legislation regarding outside competition had not been discussed with SAs.	Eligibility restored after SAs withheld from first two contests of season in which SAs become otherwise ineligible.
68.	B 15.1 and 15.2.1.2	Financial aid office waived a $194 health insurance fee for SA (men's basketball). Fee is required for all international students.	Eligibility restored upon repayment of $194.
69.	B 12.5.2.1	SA (women's track) appeared as a model in calendar produced by student on campus. Calendar was not produced for charitable purposes. SA was not identified as a SA and was not compensated for the appearance.	Eligibility restored after SA is withheld from first regularly scheduled intercollegiate contest of 1991-92.

70.	B 14.1.6(b)	Foreign transfer SA (men's basketball) competed in six contests while not accepted for enrollment as full-time student.	Eligibility restored. (Note: SA used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 through his limited participation.)
71.	B 15.4.9 and 16.12.2.1	SA (baseball) received payment for work not performed in the amount of $104.54.	Eligibility restored upon fulfillment of institution's actions to withhold SA from four contests and require repayment of $104.54.
72.	B 14.4.1	Institution determined that SAs did not meet institutional provisions of good academic standing; two SAs (men's baseball) competed in four contests and one SA (men's basketball) competed in 12 contests while ineligible.	Eligibility restored after two SAs were withheld from four contests of 1990-91 season and after one SA is withheld from first 12 competitions of 1991-92 basketball season.
73.	B 14.5.2	SAs (men's lacrosse) participated in three contests while not making satisfactory progress. Subsequent to beginning of season, institution discovered that SAs had not passed January intersession course.	Eligibility restored. (Note: SAs used entire season of competition per B. 14.2.4.1 through limited participation.)
74.	B 14.8.2	During March 1991, SAs (men's basketball) participated in three contests of two-day YMCA benefit basketball tournament. Media

ECAC hockey on regional cable network

For the third consecutive season, the ECAC Division I hockey tournament will be televised live on the New England Sports Network (NESN). The network will carry the two semifinal games from the event on March 13 and the championship game on March 14 from Boston Garden. NESN also will carry eight regular-season ECAC games.

Ivy League football on pay per view

Ivy League football games will be available on selected cable systems throughout the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states beginning October 26.

Atlanta-based TvOne will produce the telecasts, which will be carried as far north as Portland, Maine, and as far south as Washington, D.C.

The games that will be carried are Brown at Pennsylvania, October 26; Columbia at Princeton, November 2; Princeton at Pennsylvania, November 9; Brown at Dartmouth, November 16, and Harvard at Yale, November 23. All games begin at 1 p.m. Eastern time.

Games are expected to cost $9.95 each. Cable systems in Albany, New York; Boston, Massachusetts; New York, New York; New Haven/Hartford, Connecticut; Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Portland; Providence, Rhode Island; Syracuse, New York, and Washington, D.C., will carry the package. The signal is not scrambled, so fans throughout the country can receive the games.

Sports business

Big money spent on sports

Ten of the nation's largest corporations spent $2.145 billion marketing their products through sports last year. General Motors led the list with $445 million in expenditures. Others were Philip Morris, $405 million; Anheuser-Busch, $400 million; Nike, $200 million; Ford, $130 million; AT&T, $125 million; Chrysler, $120 million; RJR-Nabisco, $115 million; Procter & Gamble, $110 million; Coca-Cola, $95 million.

Northern Michigan's new domed facility seats 8,000

Northern Michigan opens domed stadium

Northern Michigan University opened its new $21.8 million wooden domed stadium on September 14. Northern Michigan defeated the University of Indianapolis, 31-20, before a Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference record crowd of 7,942.

Capacity for the 14-story, 536-foot diameter structure is 8,000.

Wooster's revitalized facility has been named John P. Papp Stadium

Wooster remodels, renames stadium

The College of Wooster has given its football stadium an $800,000 facelift that features a new press box, a restored stadium deck, a special section for the band, handicapped access and a new scoreboard. Also, the outside of the stadium has been trimmed to give the structure a classic look.

The facility will be named John P. Papp Stadium in honor of a principal supporter of the project.

Moravian's new field house is part of the college's Athletics and Recreation Center

Moravian to open new field house

The new Timothy H. Breidegam Field House will combine with Moravian College's Johnston Hall to form the college's Athletic and Recreation Center.

The 47,900-square-foot field house features a one-tenth-mile indoor track; jumping and vaulting pits; four tennis, volleyball and basketball courts, and men's and women's locker rooms. Johnston Hall is where the Greyhounds play intercollegiate basketball, wrestling and volleyball.

New tennis center to be dedicated

The Atkins Tennis Center at the University of Illinois, Champaign, will be dedicated November 2. Construction of the new facility, east of the track and baseball facilities, was aided by a $2.5 million donation from Clint and Susan Atkins of Champaign.

Beaver Stadium now accommodates 94,000 Penn State fans

Penn State stadium enlarged

Pennsylvania State University's Beaver Stadium has been enlarged by about 10,000 seats. The new seating is situated in an upper deck at the north end zone and brings capacity for the stadium to 94,000.

Bowling Green's new field house should be ready in early 1993

Bowling Green begins indoor facility

Bowling Green State University began construction in September of a $10 million field house that officials believe may become a model facility.

Expected to be completed in early 1993, the structure will consist of two rectangular-shaped wings. Between the wings will be a smaller area housing offices, showers, building operations and a weight room.

Clarkson opens new hockey arena

Clarkson University opened its 70th season of hockey October 26 with a game against Boston College in the new 3,000-seat Cheel Arena.

The Cheel Arena is a multipurpose arena in the $13 million Cheel Campus Center, which combines the arena with a student center. The arena features a regulation ice surface and 3,000 individually backed seats. It also features a four-sided Daktronics scoreboard above center ice.

Student fees are helping to pay for expansion of Wichita State's baseball facility

Wichita State begins baseball expansion

Expansion of Wichita State University's Eck Stadium-Tyler Field has begun after the university's student government association voted to use student fees from the 1992-93 and 1993-94 academic years for $365,000 of funding.

Baseball coach Gene Stephenson had appealed to the student government leaders for assistance after bids for the project came in higher than expected. Total cost of the project is $1.6 million.

The expansion will increase the capacity of Eck Stadium-Tyler Field to 5,665, including about 700 box seats.

Indians are protesting fans' chants

The use of Indian-like war chants by fans of sports teams is prompting protests from American Indian leaders.

The chants generally are acknowledged to have originated at Florida State University football games in the 1980s (see October 14 issue of The NCAA News) but have attracted widespread attention recently because of their use by fans of baseball's Atlanta Braves during postseason playoffs.

American Indian leaders organized protests throughout the World Series between Minnesota and Atlanta, which began October 19.

"People in Atlanta don't realize they're talking about an entire race of people, and it hurts to see these white boys in the bleachers singing and chanting like that," said Phil St. John, a Dakota Sioux and leader of a group called Concerned American Indian Parents, which in the past has campaigned against the use of Indian names and mascots in Minneapolis.

St. John told The Associated Press that Braves fans do not realize what they are doing when they wear headdresses, paint their faces and mimic Indian war chants.

"You wear a headdress only twice—when you honor a loved one or when a loved one passes on."

The publisher of an Arizona newspaper, The Navajo Nation Today, said he finds fans' use of tomahawk chops and chants especially offensive.

"I can't imagine any other race that would have to have something adapted from their culture in such a distorted way," said Mark Trahant, who also is president of the Native American Journalists Association. "Can you imagine fans painting their faces black like the old minstrel movies?"

Indian groups have protested the use of Indian symbols by sports teams for years and have prompted some changes. Recently, Eastern Michigan University dropped the nickname Hurons, the name of a regional Indian tribe, and began calling its teams the Eagles.

In December, the National Congress of American Indians will consider a policy statement regarding the use of Indian names and rituals during a meeting in San Francisco.

But not all Indian groups are offended by the currently fashionable tomahawk chop.

A spokesman for the Seminole tribe of Florida said the use of the name and rituals by Florida State does not bother many of the tribe's members.

News Fact File

At least 26 states will host one or more NCAA championships finals during 1991-92, and the number could be considerably higher. Several more states could host championships finals, since many NCAA postseason events are played at on-campus sites that are not determined until semifinalists or finalists are determined through competition.

Last-second heroics from deep in the corner . . .

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

Three ticks were left on the clock. The NCAA team was down by two points. After a timeout, time remained for only one shot to send the game into overtime.

As the last seconds ticked by, Warren Brown moved to his favorite spot in the corner. Tom Jernstedt found Brown, who launched the shot . . .

The U.S. Olympic women's basketball team, which later would win the silver medal in Montreal, was traveling the country, looking for competition before the 1976 Olympic Games. Women's basketball had not taken hold then as it has today, and the Olympians had trouble finding good competition. They began playing men's teams, and one of their challenges fell upon the NCAA staff team that included Jernstedt and Brown.

Brown's corner jumper swished. His shots often did, especially when it counted. Brown, a former letter winner at Kansas State University in the late 1950s and early 1960s, was a regular in the group of national-office staff members who played basketball over the lunch hour. "I was a good gunner," Brown said. "That doesn't mean I was a good shooter, but I wasn't afraid to shoot." And he would do anything to win.

"Warren is one of the fiercest competitors I have ever been around," said Jernstedt, NCAA associate executive director. "I say that in a positive way. He was a terrific athlete. He has left his mark in a lot of places."

He certainly left his mark in that game. He claims it was the only shot he made during the entire game. But for one shot in one of thousands of games, that sticks in his mind. His swisher enabled the NCAA team to beat the Olympians in overtime.

One of the players on that women's team was Pat Head Summit, head women's basketball coach at three-time NCAA champion University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and a fellow member of the board of USA Basketball, the United States' governing body for international basketball.

Brown never has forgotten that special moment, and he hasn't let Summit forget it, either. "I have always kidded her and tell her, 'We really won that silver medal,'" he said.

Brown's career

landed the job at the NCAA.

Three years later, Bergstrom became the comptroller and Brown was named assistant executive director. He helped develop the NCAA's enforcement policy, which remains virtually intact. That policy came under attack in Congressional hearings in the late 1970s, and although Brown had left the NCAA, his efforts underwent intense scrutiny, and survived.

"(The scrutiny) started just before I left, but, of course, heightened after I left because of the Nevada-Las Vegas case. I think the outcome (of the hearings) was favorable. Even through the times when there were challenges in the courts to the procedures, and there were several while I was still there, in the final analysis, there was never any finding by any court that our procedures were improper. And they still are the basis for the procedures the NCAA has now, although they have been refined and there is even more of an appearance of fairness."

One of the reasons the NCAA fared well in the hearings while Brown was representing the Association was his presence on the witness stand. "He thinks very literally," Berst said. "Whatever words are spoken he hears precisely. While I would not call him an orator, he was very sincere and honest in his thoughts, which made him good on the stand."

Brown agrees. "I had a lot of experience at it," he said. "It ended up toward the end of my time there, you would do your administrative work on a case and then invariably either the institution, a representative of its interest, the student or the coach would take you to court. That didn't happen every time, but it happened a lot.

"As a result of that, I got quite a bit of experience. I became the main witness representing the NCAA in the litigation."

Brown tells the story of a well-known college basketball coach who was involved in a suit. The case came up in a backwoods courtroom in front of an elected judge. "If you ever thought that there was going to be any kind of 'home cooking' in a situation, that would be it. And I was the only witness."

The NCAA won the case. Later, the coach told NCAA staff members he had not had much respect for the enforcement procedure before the case, but because of Brown, he did afterward.

Finally, the nature of the job became too much for Brown. "I hated leaving the NCAA, but the fact is, at the time, I just got burned out on the adversary work," he said. "When I was there, we had enforcement and legislative services all in one department. I had been there for a long while doing that, and I just got enough of that. I decided, 'I'm young enough I'll try something else.'"

Enter the family cattle ranch and Brownies', the bar in downtown Kansas City. He owned the bar for two years and still owns the ranch in west-central Missouri.

In 1980, he felt the itch to get back into athletics. He got a job at the national federation, where he now oversees the corporate sponsorship program, licensing program, litigation, eligibility, television, sanctioning of interstate and international competition, and any legislative efforts, such as the antigambling legislation now before Congress.

"Warren is a very humble, talented individual," NCAA Associate Executive Director Thomas W. Jernstedt said. "He is one of the real leaders of USA Basketball. He was a key in the transition with the infusion of the NBA."

Florida student-athletes promote drug-free living

University of Florida football players Brad Culpepper and Shane Matthews spoke to more than 1,000 youngsters earlier this month about the dangers of using drugs. They appeared at a Central Florida Community College rally promoting Red Ribbon Week, an annual event aimed at educating young people and their parents about living a healthy and drug-free life.

"I've always been occupied with other things and never had the opportunity to get involved with drugs," Culpepper said. "Getting involved in band, Boy Scouts, sports—that's the key to so many people being successful in life. You can't do anything when you're on drugs."

Success stories

• Thiel College's women's tennis program won the first match in the program's 11-year history this fall. "This also was the first season we were able to field a full squad for a match," said Jes Hutson, who took spring to earn his degree in criminal justice—in three years.

Brad Culpepper

Not bad for a former "Prop 48 freshman."

"I still think Prop 48 is a bum rap for black inner-city kids," said Woods, whose SAT score was too low to meet NCAA initial-eligibility requirements. "I have proved—and many others have proved—that you're not stupid if you don't get a certain score on one test. That test can't tell who is going to work hard in college and who isn't."

• Shane Hackney is another student-athlete who needed only three years to earn his undergraduate degree. The New Mexico State University football player posted a 3.980 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in secondary English education and graduated last spring with high honors. As he finishes his playing career as New Mexico State's long snapper, the one-time walk-on is pursuing an

MBA.

• Muhlenberg College student-athlete Felicia Perryman recently was honored as the school's 1990-91 sophomore athlete of the year. Named in memory of Sidney G. Weikert, a Muhlenberg alumnus and the school's former associate director of admissions, the award Perryman received recognizes athletics achievement, campus contributions and a strong academic record.

Billikens foil thief

During a recent practice, members of St. Louis University's baseball team heard a car window break and saw a thief running away with a bag. Imagine their surprise when the villain tried to sneak back into the area a short time later.

Players and coaches broke for the crime scene, surrounded the culprit and held him at bay until campus security arrived.

"It seems that we always hear about student-athletes when they get in a little trouble," said head coach Bob Hughes. "Here's a case where our kids jumped in and demonstrated their willingness to uphold the law."

'Doing his duty'

The way Southwest Baptist University student-athlete Todd Leach sees it, serving in Operation Desert Storm was his duty.

"Todd could have gotten out of serving," said head football coach Jim Hall, for whom Leach played defensive back. "He had a knee injury last season and could have opted to have surgery and repair it after the season—and as things heated up overseas."

"But, he chose to meet his commitments," Hall added. "That's the kind of person Todd is."

"Plain and simply," Leach said, "it was my duty. That's what I signed up for."

Leach served as part of a heavy machine gun platoon that transported Iraqi prisoners from Kuwait to holding camps in Saudi Arabia. "The Republican Guard (troops) we moved were disciplined, arrogant and mouthy," Leach said. "A lot of them spoke English."

Midwest regional sold out

Big Eight Conference officials have announced that the 1992 Midwest regional of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship already is sold out. Big Eight officials said orders for more than 11,000 tickets were received. A total of 9,000 tickets were made available to the general public.

More seats could become available if tickets are returned by competing teams.

Conference changes made

The Independent College Athletic Conference has changed its name to the Empire Athletic Association. The league also has formed a policy-making body, the senior administrators council, and has formed sports committees to get coaches more involved in conference administration and rules-making.

Hired as the league's first full-time staff member was Bruce Mosberg, who formerly worked for the Empire State Games.

Coaching milestones

• Florida Southern College women's volleyball coach Lois Webb earned career victory No. 500 October 12 when her team defeated Gannon University. Webb is in her 15th season at the school.

• Another women's volleyball coach, Lisa Herb of the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, earned career victory No. 400 (also October 12) when her team defeated the University of Wisconsin-Stout, in the second of two conference matches. Herb is in her 13th season as a head coach, the past seven at Wisconsin-Eau Claire.

For Exceptional Student-Athletes, The NCAA Sponsors a Disability Insurance Program.

Now there is an NCAA-sponsored disability insurance program specifically designed to provide coverage for exceptional student-athletes participating in intercollegiate football, men's basketball or baseball.

This program provides the student-athlete with a realistic means of protection against future loss of earnings, as a professional athlete, from impairment due to disabling injuries or illness that may occur during his collegiate career.

Eligibility

Student-athletes with professional potential likely to be selected in the first two rounds of the professional football draft or the first round of the professional men's basketball or baseball draft, are eligible for this program.

Pre-approved financing available

The program enables qualifying student-athletes, as approved by the underwriters, to purchase a Temporary Total Disability (TTD) Insurance contract with pre-approved financing, if necessary.

For more information, student-athletes, parents or institutional representatives should contact NSU at (800) 621-2116.
