Time to celebrate

This fall, 21 teams are celebrating victories at NCAA championships, including those in Division II men's cross country and Division III women's volleyball. Below, John Doherty (left) celebrates with teammates after his second-place finish at the Division II cross country meet in Edwardsville, Illinois, November 23 sparked the University of Massachusetts at Lowell to the team title. At right, Joanie Subar (left) and Kelley Meier show home-court fans the Division III women's volleyball trophy that Washington University (Missouri) won November 23. Longtime rules editor David M. Nelson dies

David M. Nelson, secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Football Rules Committee since 1962 and longtime athletics administrator at the University of Delaware, died November 30 after suffering a heart attack.

Nelson had returned to his home after watching Delaware's 42-35 double-overtime, home-field loss to James Madison University in the Division I-AA playoffs. The game ended in mid-afternoon, and the attack occurred about two hours later.

Nelson, 71, was serving as commissioner of the Yankee Conference at the time of his death. He had retired as dean of the University of Delaware's college of physical education, athletics and recreation in 1989. His career at Delaware began in 1951 when he was hired as athletics director and head football coach. He gave up the football duties in 1966 and retired as athletics director in 1984.

He joined the football rules committee in 1957.

"Davey Nelson was a tower of strength in the football community," said University of Tennessee, Knoxville, athletics director Douglas A. Dickey, chair of the Football Rules Committee. "He loved the game, loved the people and provided a tremendous insight into the history of the game."

Personnel, financial aid proposals will draw opposition at Convention

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of seven articles previewing the legislation to be acted upon at the 1992 NCAA Convention. This installment includes the proposals in the personnel and financial aid groupings.)

The amendments in the personnel and financial aid sections of the 1992 Convention agenda are among the most disputed proposals facing the delegates to the January 7-10 gathering in Anaheim, California.

Of the 13 basic proposals in the personnel section, the NCAA Presidents Commission opposes eight. That is because most of the proposals in that category attack the coaching limits that were adopted at the 1991 Convention.

Meanwhile, there are 14 primary proposals in the financial aid grouping, and eight of those currently are opposed by either the Presidents Commission or the NCAA Council. Again, that grouping is dominated by proposals that would undo or delay some of the reform actions taken at the Convention last January.

Personnel

Several of the personnel proposals attempt to rescind or seriously modify the limits that have been adopted regarding restricted-earnings coaches and sizes of coaching staffs in various sports.

Two of those came through the Council's "fine-tuning" exercise and are supported by the Council and the Commission. The more sweeping of the two would permit one volunteer coach in each sport except football and basketball. The other

Take Notice

As representatives of member institutions and conferences make plans to attend the 86th annual NCAA Convention January 7-10 in Anaheim, California, they are reminded to "Take Notice" literally.

For the first time, the legislation to be voted upon in Anaheim will not be reprinted in the Convention Program. Instead, Convention delegates will be expected to bring their copies of the Official Notice of the Convention. The Official Notice was mailed November 15.

The change in procedure was recommended by the Legislative Review Committee, which believes that large numbers of delegates already were using their Official Notices rather than the Convention Program because they had made notes in the former.

A limited supply of Official Notices will be available at the Convention site.

would add a coach in wrestling.

Most of the others, however, are opposed by the Presidents Commission, including Proposal Nos. 49, 50, 51, 52, 54, 56, 58 and 59.

The Commission's position throughout the year has been that it would be willing to accept modest adjustments emanating from the Council's "fine-tuning" committee, but it would not support changes that did not receive approval from that committee.

Financial aid

Among the more significant proposals in this grouping are Nos. 65 and 65-1. The former would eliminate the current cap of 95 grants (which will be reduced to 85 by 1994-95) in Division I-A football and reduce the initial limit from 25 to 21, which could result, over a five-year period, in 105 football players on grants. No. 65-1 would amend that to keep the overall limit in place.

Also of interest in this category are:

- A proposal (No. 66) to eliminate by 1996-97 the awarding of financial aid to partial qualifiers and non-qualifiers in Division I.

- A provision that would require all member institutions to provide tuition grants to former student-athletes who have completed their athletics eligibility but have not completed degree requirements.

- Two proposals that would delay by one year the already-adopted reductions in numbers of permissible grants-in-aid in a number of women's sports. The Presidents Commission opposes those delays, although it has agreed to review its position prior to the Convention.

The Presidents Commission, the Council or a division steering committee currently opposes Nos. 62, 63, 65, 67, 69, 70, 71 and 73.

Congress fails to consider reauthorization bills

Congress recessed November 27 without either the Senate or the House considering committee-reported higher-education reauthorization bills and with only the House adopting a conference-approved omnibus crime bill. One provision of the latter, which was adopted by a narrow margin, would sharply limit the expansion of state gambling schemes based upon the outcome of professional or amateur sports events.

The higher-education reauthorization bills (S. 1150, H.R. 3353) were reported by the respective education committees of the Senate and the House in late October. The Senate version of the bill does not contain a provision parallel or similar to that appearing in the House bill, requiring that postsecondary institutions awarding athletically related aid annually compile and make publicly available, on a per-sport basis, data as to the revenues and expenditures of their intercollegiate athletics programs. The NCAA has vigorously opposed this proposal for the past two years.

The antigambling provision of the omnibus crime bill produced by the last-minute Senate-House conference was almost identical to that contained in the original House bill. It prohibited all new state-sponsored or state-authorized sports gambling schemes, grandfathering the Oregon and Delaware professional sports lotteries and the Nevada "sports books" and providing a one-year "window" for New Jersey voters to authorize casino-based sports-book gambling in that state.

The original House bill had given New Jersey a two-year window; the final New Jersey exception represented a compromise between the House version and the antigambling bill (S. 474), containing no New Jersey window, reported a week earlier by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Both measures now await further Congressional action after the turn of the year. In the interim, the NCAA and the professional leagues will be exploring other legislative vehicles for passage of the antigambling prohibition, preferably without any exception for authorization of New Jersey casino sports books.

Players write conference preview

In an effort to provide a fresh perspective on the prospects of its nine men's basketball teams, the Northeast Conference chose to go to a unique source: the players.

A player from each institution wrote the outlook for his team, and the comments were included in the 1991-92 Northeast Conference Basketball Yearbook.

NEC Assistant Commissioner David Sirotty said each player selected was provided with preview articles from other publications, a roster of his team and statistics from last year. Each submitted a 500- to 750-word article.

"I didn't realize how difficult it would be to write the preview," said Jeff Hall, a forward from Mount St. Mary's College (Maryland). "It made me look at things from a totally new perspective. I had never before sat down and evaluated all the different players on our team."

Marist College forward Fred Ingles said the hardest part was accentuating the positive and eliminating the negative.

Others who participated were Brad McClain, guard, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Teaneck; Joe Griffin, forward, Long Island University-Brooklyn Center; Jim Fromhartz, guard, Monmouth College (New Jersey); Wade Timmerman, guard, Robert Morris College; Lynn Smith, guard, St. Francis College (New York); Harkeem Dixon, guard, St. Francis College (Pennsylvania), and Bobby Hopson, guard, Wagner College.

Some samples

• Fred Ingles (Marist): "A key characteristic of last year's team was that even though we struggled, we never quit. After what we went through last season, I think the young crop of players we had last season is more mature now."

• Joe Griffin (Long Island-Brooklyn): "The 1990-91 basketball season for the Blackbirds was full of highs and lows. LIU was trying to rebound from a 3-23 campaign the year before, and rebound we did, turning out a 10-18 record last year. That was the high. Losing to St. Francis (New York) in the first round of the Northeast Conference playoffs was a low."

• Harkeem Dixon [St. Francis (Pennsylvania)]: "I am confident that we will be very competitive and come to play hard every night. We realize that we are the defending Northeast Conference champions, and we have big shoes to fill. I expect us to start off slowly, but as the season wears on, our players will mature and good things will happen."

• Bobby Hopson (Wagner): "Obviously, we have a lot of work to do in getting to know all of each other, but it seems like we have a lot of talented players. Hopefully, the memory of last season, which certainly was not fun, will push us all season long. We think with the strong team unity, which we feel is important, we should be OK."

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than December 16, 1991.

Women's Soccer: Replacement for Mary Jo Warner, George Washington University, resigned, effective November 24, 1991. Appointee must be from Division I.

Delegates advised to plan for ground transportation

Delegates to the 1992 Convention can obtain ground transportation from any of four airports serving the Los Angeles area to the Anaheim Hilton and Towers, but some of the shuttle firms recommend or require advance reservations.

Two shuttle services—Airport Coach and Airport Cruiser—offer regularly scheduled buses from Los Angeles International Airport to Anaheim hotels. Airport Coach also offers scheduled bus service from John Wayne/Orange County Airport, which is the airport closest to Anaheim. Reservations are not required for those services.

Two other firms offer van service by reservation at both of those airports and at Long Beach Airport and Ontario International Airport. They are Airport Express (telephone 800/677-8887 outside California) and Super Shuttle (dial 800/554-6458 outside California).

A fifth service—Prime Time Airport Shuttle (dial 213/558-1606) is available by reservation at all of the airports except Ontario.

Delegates wishing to obtain further information about Airport Coach can call 800/772-5299 inside California or 800/491-3500 outside California. The telephone number for Airport Cruiser is 714/761-3345.

Countable athletically related activity—regular physical-education class

Member institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 17.02.1.2 participation in a regular physical-education class, with or without credit, that is listed in the institution's catalog and open to all students is not a countable athletically related activity, provided the student-athlete does not participate in practice activities under the guise of physical-education class work. During its September 17, 1991, conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that a student-athlete's enrollment and participation in a regular physical-education class that utilizes equipment in the student-athlete's sport is not considered to be a countable athletically related activity, provided the class is part of the institution's regular academic offering and the student-athlete does not participate in practice activities under the guise of physical education class work (i.e., the student-athlete participates in normal class activities as outlined by the instructor for all students). Further, during its November 7, 1991, conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that a conditioning class (e.g., aerobics) conducted by an institution's athletics department staff member that is part of the institution's regular academic offering is considered a regular physical-education class per Bylaw 17.02.12.2-(a) [as opposed to a physical-fitness class per Bylaw 17.02.12.2-(b)]; thus, a student-athlete's participation in such a class is not considered a countable athletically related activity, provided the student-athlete does not participate in practice activities under the guise of physical-education class work (i.e., the student-athlete participates in normal class activities as outlined by the instructor for all students). Finally, please note that participation in a physical-fitness class conducted by a member of the institution's athletics staff as specified in Bylaw 17.02.12.2-(b) is considered a countable athletically related activity and, thus, must be counted in the weekly or daily time limitations specified in Bylaws 17.1.5.1 (during the playing season) and 17.1.5.2 (outside the playing season) in Divisions I and II sports.

Noncountable athletically related activity—individual consultation with coach

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 17.02.1.2-(j) individual consultation with a coaching staff member initiated voluntarily by a student-athlete is not considered a countable athletically related activity, provided the coach and the student-athlete do not engage in athletically related activities. During its November 7, 1991, conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that under such circumstances, discussion between the coach and the student-athlete is limited to general counseling activities and may not involve activities set forth in Bylaw 17.02.12.1 (e.g., chalk talk; use of equipment relating to that sport; field, floor or on-court activity).

Postseason football competition—expenses and awards

In accordance with Bylaw 16.8.1.2, an institution may provide actual and necessary travel expenses (e.g., transportation, lodging and meals) to a student-athlete for participation in athletics competition, provided the student-athlete is representing the institution and is eligible for the competition. Thus, an institution may not provide actual and necessary travel expenses to attend NCAA championship events and certified postseason football games to student-athletes who are not eligible to represent the institution in athletics competition. Also, per Bylaw 16.6.1.1, the institution may provide the cost of actual and necessary expenses (e.g., transportation, lodging and meals) for the spouse and children of an eligible student-athlete to accompany the student-athlete to a certified postseason football game or NCAA championship in the sport of football.

Per Bylaw 16.7.1, an institution may provide the actual cost for reasonable entertainment that takes place within a 100-mile radius of where a team plays or practices with the NCAA championship event or certified postseason football game. It is not permissible for a team to depart more than 48 hours prior to or remain more than 36 hours after the championship event or postseason football game, or to transport the team to another area for entertainment purposes. [Note: In accordance with Bylaw 16.7.1.1, the time limitations (i.e., 36-hour departure limit) do not apply to travel prior to NCAA championship events or certified postseason football games.] Further, the Interpretations Committee, during its November 29, 1990, conference, determined that a member institution may provide entertainment expenses (beyond the permissible transportation, lodging and meals expenses) for the spouse and children of a student-athlete to accompany the student-athlete to a certified postseason football game or NCAA championship in the sport of football, provided such expenses are associated with organized team entertainment functions.

Please note that per Bylaw 16.8.1.5, an institution may provide $10 per day to each member of the squad to cover unitemized incidental expenses during travel and practice for championship events, during a period limited to the maximum number of days of per diem allowed for the involved championship, or for certified postseason bowl contests, for a period not to exceed 10 days. Also, per Bylaw 16.8.1.5.1, when a sponsoring agency provides a per diem in excess of a student-athlete's actual and necessary expenses, it is not permissible for the institution to provide the student-athlete with the cash difference between the amount allocated for per diem by the sponsoring agency and the actual cost of the individual's room and board expenses.

Finally, only those student-athletes eligible to compete in the postseason football game or NCAA championship competition may receive awards from the management of the event or from participating member institutions. Further, it is not permissible for an institution to provide to student-athletes team travel outfits, blazers or other items of clothing that are not sports-related practice or competition apparel.

This material was provided by the NCAA legislative services department as an aid to member institutions. If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Nancy L. Mitchell, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Basketball coach uses sports as teaching tool

Can anyone explain the concept of average?

• Say you go to the store and you spend $50 one week, $100 the next week and $80 the third week. What is the average amount of money you spent over that three-week period?

Say what?

• OK, say in 10 games Michael Jordan scores 200 points. What's his average?

Twenty.

Now you're talking.

Athletics a combination of athletics and academics.

Former high-school principal Jim Catalano thinks he's on to something. The sample math problem above is an example he uses to explain how his summer camp uses the message of athletics to teach inner-city children basic academic skills such as reading, math and writing.

Catalano is in his 13th year as the head men's basketball coach at New Jersey Institute of Technology. He also is the coordinator of intercollegiate athletics at the Division III school. But above all, he and his wife, Pattie, are educators.

"For about three years, we had been researching and playing with academic instruments to give inner-city kids the ability to learn basic skills," Catalano said. "The one common denominator we kept coming up with was sports.

"We use basketball-related information and materials as the learning tools to teach skills. An example would be, to teach comprehension skills, we would use as the tool for this particular lesson a paragraph about basketball. We would fit various things into this paragraph that deal with basketball. Immediately, kids would become tuned to this paragraph because it's something they are knowledgeable about. They don't feel inhibited. Then, we use the paragraph to ask various comprehension questions."

Catalano's camps are three one-week sessions. What started out as a group of 50 kids has turned into a camp for 300 inner-city children. The visibility of his camp has increased so much that Catalano received a grant from Bristol Meyers-Squibb Corporation, a pharmaceutical company, which allowed him room for more campers. The campers, ages 10-16, spend half the day in the classroom and half the day on the court.

"The athletics end of it is the fact that we teach fundamental skills," Catalano said. "But you must come to the academic portion in order to experience the athletics portion of it."

Pattie Catalano, a basic-skills instructor at a New Jersey vocational-technical school, is the camp's primary administrator. She helps coordinate lesson plans and even teaches one of the eight sessions.

Examples of some of the tools the Catalanos use in their lesson plans include NCAA and NBA basketball statistics, top-25 polls, and top-10 lists of scorers and rebounders.

"Kids listen to who the top 10 scorers and rebounders are. Again, they learn because it's something they are interested in," Catalano said.

What used to be a well-kept secret in New Jersey has the possibility of

Jim Catalano, head men's basketball coach at New Jersey Institute of Technology, uses examples from athletics to teach academic skills to inner-city youths becoming a model for similar camps around the nation. One mention in Sports Illustrated was all it took for Catalano's camp to gain notoriety and sponsorship from companies like Bristol Meyers-Squibb.

Catalano has received phone calls from educators, corporations and even the NBA, which would like to incorporate the techniques of his camp into its education program.

The basis for Catalano's lesson plans has been the High School Proficiency Test, a basic-skills test administered to New Jersey 11th graders. Expanding the camp to other states would require becoming familiar with their measurement tools. His goal is to design academic material to meet standards similar to the HSPT. Another goal is to expand the camps to include other sports as learning devices.

"The thing that makes me most proud, being an educator myself, is that we can actually measure the results. You can base the success of the program on how the kids understand the material," he said.

Thus the story of how Catalano walked into one of his wife's camp classes and asked a young Newark, New Jersey, boy if he knew what an average was.

"He really didn't know what I was talking about," Catalano said.

"I said 'Last week in 10 games, Michael Jordan scored 200 points. Do you know what his average was?' He said 20. I said, 'Who said you didn't know what an average was?' If you could have seen the smile on that kid's face!

"It's that simple. Ironic, but simple the fact that I said Michael Jordan and immediately had his attention. Education works when you have that motivation and attention."

Administrators or coaches interested in learning more about "athletics" should contact Catalano at New Jersey Tech.

Sugar Bowl sued by music group

The USF&G Sugar Bowl has been sued by seven copyright owners, claiming infringement in the use of music at the annual post-season football game.

The suit, filed in Federal court, claims that the Sugar Bowl and its corporate sponsor refused to pay for licenses from the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers for the 1989 and 1991 games.

But an attorney said university bands that play at the Sugar Bowl have ASCAP licenses and are not the responsibility of the game's organizers, according to The Associated Press.

ASCAP said that since 1987, it had made unsuccessful efforts to license ASCAP-covered music at the Sugar Bowl. The suit, filed as a class action on the behalf of all ASCAP members, seeks an injunction barring the use of ASCAP-licensed music without a license and unspecified monetary damages.

Barry Knittel, ASCAP director of licensing, said the Sugar Bowl and USF&G "have willfully infringed the copyrights of our members by refusing to obtain permission to perform their music."

"We find it ironic that with the many millions of dollars in revenues generated by the USF&G Sugar Bowl, its sponsors have refused to pay what amounts to token fees to ensure compliance with the Federal copyright laws," Knittel said in a news release.

Steve Doody, an attorney for the Sugar Bowl, said universities that play at the game have ASCAP licenses and the organization should be talking with them if it does not believe the permits go far enough.

"We want to respect everyone's rights," he said. "We think the ASCAP licenses cover the university bands. If they don't, ASCAP should go to the universities."

Doody called the dispute "a relatively minor legal matter" and said the licenses involved only several hundred dollars.

New bowl gets television pact

Raycom has signed a five-year television contract for broadcast rights to the Alamo Bowl.

The target date for the first Alamo Bowl college football game is December 31, 1993, at the Alamodome, which is under construction in San Antonio, Texas.

The Alamo Bowl's executive committee is searching for an executive director for the bowl in addition to working on meeting NCAA bowl-certification requirements, according to The Associated Press.

"Our agreement with Raycom is a very important step in the process of establishing a bowl game that will be financially competitive with other major bowl games from the start," said Russ Bookbinder, acting executive director of the bowl.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q What happens if a student-athlete fails to complete the student-athlete statement mentioned in NCAA Bylaw 14.1.3?

A Failure to complete and sign the statement shall result in the student-athlete's ineligibility for participation in all intercollegiate competition.

HIV threat intrudes on sports' training rooms

By Phill Casaus

It is habit, reflex, instinct. Larry Willock sees an open wound and is compelled to close it by whatever means necessary.

He's an athletics trainer, a health-care professional. Blood is part of the job description.

"In a year?" muses the University of New Mexico trainer. "Oh, that's tough. Maybe 100 times. I probably come into contact with whole blood that much in a year."

One hundred times. It used to be nothing more than a statistic — and a task for the spin cycle of the family washing machine.

Now, it's 100 spins of a roulette wheel.

The end of the innocence arrived with shocking finality when basketball hero Earvin "Magic" Johnson was declared HIV-positive.

As soon as he heard Magic's brave, sad words, Willock knew this was one of those once-in-a-decade watershed events that changes lives forever.

"We were making phone calls within minutes of the announcement," says Willock. "We've got to emphasize the protection."

Every American home, office or psyche probably has been altered in some way by Johnson's announcement that he has the AIDS virus. But in New Mexico's training room, his news was particularly shattering.

Though HIV primarily is passed through sexual contact or intravenous drug use, some health-care workers have contracted HIV through direct contact with infected blood.

For Willock and other trainers, that harsh reality — plus the news that AIDS is encroaching into the college-age population — makes HIV a personal Vietnam of the 1990s.

"At every practice, you're going to have skinned knuckles," says Willock, in his 24th year at New Mexico. "You see blood wiped on pants. It's on hands, foreheads. It's all over. You see it every day."

And that, sports fans, is just football. Check out a wrestling match, or a baseball game... anything. New Mexico trainers and physicians, some of them students, must be at almost every practice and game.

"Even golfers get cut sometimes," said Dr. Ed Libby, director of medical care for the athletics department.

Another worry, less trumpeted than HIV but just as important, is a disease known as Hepatitis B. Also transmitted primarily through blood and other bodily fluids, Libby said the strain can cause serious liver disease and even liver cancer.

"It's a serious disease that a lot of people don't really know about," Libby says.

Fortunately, protection is available. New Mexico has long made latex gloves available to its sports-medicine personnel, though getting into the habit of using them hasn't been easy.

In Willock's first 25 years in the business, gloves weren't his first priority. Moving to a wound, applying a bandage, wiping away the blood — they've all been involuntary responses for as long as he can remember.

Now, all that's got to change.

"We'll definitely encourage their use," Willock said of the gloves. "Then, we won't be neglectful. It's a lot like using a seat belt. We ourselves will have to buckle up, learn that habit."

"But there are a lot of ramifications. What are you going to see on the sidelines of a Lobo game when somebody has a bloody nose? Can you imagine what people will say when they stop to see me get rubber gloves? The first reaction will be, 'Oh, he must know something.'"

Sadly, such a reaction would miss the point. As Willock notes, protecting one's self from potential exposure to HIV isn't an editorial comment on another person's health. It's just common sense.

"I might be saving my life and someone else's," he said.

The ethical and legal fallout from AIDS might find sports as a perfect battlefield.

"There's no rule that says someone who's HIV-positive can't participate," says Willock. "And until the powers-that-be make a decision on it, you couldn't hold an athlete out. When you think about it, the ramifications legally are incredible."

But it's the personal side that hits home. Athletics training always has been a noble profession, albeit a difficult job. In the 1990s, it becomes a bloody frightening one as well.

Casaus is a columnist for the Albuquerque Journal.

Coaches, others fear AIDS' impact

University of Nebraska, Lincoln, wrestling coach Tim Neumann said the AIDS scare could kill contact sports, even though medical experts believe it is highly unlikely the virus that causes AIDS could be transmitted in athletics competition.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome "could be the death of contact sports. There's not much we can do about it," he said in a story by The Associated Press.

Dan Gable, University of Iowa wrestling coach, said he favors mandatory testing for AIDS.

"I've been for testing for several years," he told the Omaha World-Herald. "I realize there are constitutional rights, but I'm for prevention. In our sport, when we do have a lot of close contact, I would think HIV testing would be a mandatory thing."

Neumann said the sport's options are limited.

"You'd almost have to wrestle in a plastic glove to cover yourself," he said.

Chuck Fallis, a spokesman for the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, said it is highly unlikely that HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, could be transmitted during athletics competition. He said there have been no reported cases in the United States.

"When exposed to open air, the virus doesn't live outside the bloodstream," Fallis said.

"Although there is a theoretical possibility of HIV being transmitted in that setting if a lot of blood is

"The greater the threat to the public health, the more likely you are going to get mandatory testing."

involved, it would be very unlikely that could ever occur."

Mandatory AIDS testing doesn't appear imminent, said a medical official from an NCAA committee.

There is no need to test college athletes for the AIDS virus because it isn't widespread enough, said Dr. Paul W. Gikas, a pathologist from the University of Michigan and a member of the NCAA's Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. About 1.5 million people in the United States are infected with the AIDS virus and about 110,000 have died, he said.

"Sooner or later, as the disease becomes more prevalent, we're going to have to face the music," Gikas told the World-Herald. "The greater the threat to the public health, the more likely you are going to get mandatory testing."

Gikas, however, said mandatory testing could lead to a false sense of security.

"They tell me that you can go as long as two or three years where the person has been infected but he has not developed HIV antibodies," he said.

Dr. Jack Harvey, chief medical officer for USA Wrestling, said his sport is leading the way in HIV testing. Wrestlers are not allowed to compete if they have skin infections or open wounds. USA Wrestling oversees the U.S. Olympic team.

"Wrestling has already been interested in making changes," Harvey said. "I don't think every sport needs to be tested, but I think you've got to decide high risk — wrestling, boxing, tae kwon do, maybe basketball, maybe football."

Tranghese says rampant lies making bowl system a farce

Despite tragic injuries, football safety improves

By Hal Bock

It is easy to indict football for the tragic spinal-cord injury that left Detroit Lions guard Mike Utley paralyzed.

Easy and wrong.

"All sports have catastrophic occurrences," said Dr. John Powell, a research associate in the department of orthopedic surgery at the University of Iowa. "They're tragic in nature. They occur in a split second, not by design or intent."

Powell, who tracks injuries for the NFL and reports on safety issues to the league's competition committee, said that while Utley's injury is a tragedy, football at all levels generally is becoming safer.

"Prior to 1976, we produced 30 to 40 catastrophic neck injuries in the sport each year, primarily when initial contact was with the top of the head," he said. "When the rules were changed, it went way down."

It's consistently seven, eight, nine, 10 now. If you take 1.2 million high-school kids, times the number of games, times the number of hours of contact, the injuries are relatively few."

Classic accident

Utley's injury was the classic accident. He lost his balance pass blocking, stumbled forward and fell on his head. It is just that kind of contact that causes spinal-cord trauma. His neck snapped forward, forcing the disc between his sixth and seventh cervical vertebrae to slide back and compress the spinal cord.

"The vertebrae is there to protect the spinal cord and under normal circumstances, it does a good job," said Dr. Susan Fitzpatrick, associate executive director of the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis. "There are two vulnerable areas—C6 and T12."

C6 refers to the rotator bone that controls pivotal movement of the head. T12 is its thoracic counterpart. "Unfortunately, we need those vulnerable areas because that's where the flexibility is," Fitzpatrick said. "They allow us to bend at the neck and the waist."

"Because they are vulnerable, that is where injuries are most likely to occur. The body is not designed to take hits at 60 mph in a car or on a football field. The amazing thing to me is that these accidents occur as infrequently as they do. You just need the right sequence—the head in a certain position, the force coming in a certain way, the vulnerable area exposed and the injury occurs. The body can do a lot, but it can't do it all."

'Something has to give'

Fitzpatrick likened Utley's injury to exerting excessive pressure on an object that cannot endure it. "You're putting tremendous pressure on a tube of links," she said. "If you press the top of a soda can, something has to give below."

There are approximately 10,000 new cases of spinal injuries each year but only 13 percent occur as the result of sports. Utley's injury was the first on-field paralysis in the NFL in 12 years, the league said.

Dr. Joseph Torg, professor of orthopedic surgery at the University of Pennsylvania and an expert on sports-related injuries, said Utley's injury was unusual in that he was an offensive lineman. "Characteristically, a defensive back making a tackle sustains this injury when he lowers his head," Torg said.

Prevention comes from the rules—no spearing, the tactic where a player lowers his head and uses it as a weapon; no head-butting.

When the head is thrust forward, Torg said, the neck flexes, straightening the natural curve of the cervical spine. When force follows, the discs are compressed, causing the injury.

cal spine. When force follows, the discs are compressed, causing the injury.

"It's difficult to tell people not to play football," Torg said.

Utley's doctors have said they do not expect him to regain mobility from the chest down. Is there any hope for him?

Research continues daily in an effort to find a solution. Last summer, researchers at the Miami Project succeeded in regenerating nerve fibers in the central nervous system, a tentative first step to restoring movement to patients with spinal-cord injuries.

"We won't have a cure tomorrow," Fitzpatrick said. "The spinal cord is a complex system. We're only beginning to find our way through its normal function. It's an active area of research but there's still a lot of work to be done."

Hofstra building new field house

Hofstra University has broken ground on a new field house that is expected to be completed in spring 1992.

The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, citing statewide problems that prompted it to impose a freeze last spring on all new university construction, voted, 6-4, to deny Texas A&M University permission to build a $40 million sports arena, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Texas A&M regents chairman Ross Margraves said he will seek approval again when the coordinating board meets in January.

Researchers find even seemingly minor head injuries can be fatal

Sports-related head injuries can kill even if a player wears proper protective equipment and never loses consciousness, according to researchers.

The danger exists when a player suffers successive and seemingly minor head injuries.

University of Colorado, Boulder, researchers reported the case of a 17-year-old high-school player who died from brain swelling after being tackled in a football game one week after suffering what was thought to be a minor head injury.

The player never lost consciousness and played in the next week's game, during which he sustained another blow to the head. He appeared fine until he collapsed during a huddle and died a short time later, the researchers said in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"As a halfback carrying the ball, the player was struck on the left side of his helmet by the helmet of his tackler," said Dr. James P. Kelly, a Colorado neurologist. "He was obviously stunned but mental func-

Three levels of brain injury

In a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. James P. Kelly urges those involved in sports programs to study guidelines developed by him and the Colorado Medical Society.

The guidelines define three grades of concussion:

- Grade 1: Confusion but no loss of consciousness or amnesia. A player suffering this kind of concussion should be observed for at least 20 minutes before returning to a game.
- Grade 2: Amnesia or other symptoms are observed during the first 20 minutes. Such a player should be kept on the bench.
- Grade 3: A concussion causing unconsciousness. Immediate hospitalization required.

tions appeared to clear quickly during a brief timeout on the field of play."

He collapsed after making what the doctors described as "light contact" with one of several tacklers on a subsequent play. He was wearing what Kelly called a professional-quality helmet.

"There is a general misconception that by wearing a helmet you are protected from these injuries. That's not the case," Kelly said. "This patient rapidly succumbed to the effects of severe brain swelling."

He said such swelling after traumatic brain injury is most common in young people and occurs when a person sustains more than one blow to the head.

Based on this case and others like it, Kelly added, coaches and team physicians need to recognize that concussions can occur in sports without causing unconsciousness and that successive blows to the head within a short span can lead to death.

"It is the same thing that happens in child-abuse cases with nonaccidental trauma, where a baby is struck about the head over and over," Kelly said.

NFL steroid crackdown prompts use of different drugs

As officials crack down on steroid use in professional football, some players are turning to less detectable alternatives that may be more dangerous, a newspaper reported.

The Philadelphia Inquirer reported in its December 1 editions that players and officials were concerned about the growing use of human growth hormone, or HGH, and other performance-enhancement drugs.

HGH, a genetically engineered protein that accelerates the growth of bone and tissue, is approved for use only in children facing dwarfism.

Its longterm side effects on adults are unknown, although initial research suggests that the hormone down," Forest Tennant, who was the NFL's drug adviser from 1986 to 1990, told the newspaper. "In fact,

"... there may be just as many drugs being taken now for performance enhancement as ever before. It's just that they're different."

Forest Tennant

could cause heart and kidney enlargement.

"There is a false sense of security that the (drug) problem is way

there may be just as many drugs being taken now for performance enhancement as ever before. It's just that they're different."

In recent years, the league has cracked down on the use of steroids, increasing random testing and toughening the penalties. As a result, the number of positive tests has declined from about 150 in 1988 to just one this season.

But the crackdown has led players to untested alternatives such as HGH. Some players have used masking agents that can be bought in gyms or through the mail.

"HGH is what scares me now because there are no tests for it," Jim Williams, the Philadelphia Eagles' strength coach, told the Inquirer. "It's very difficult to tell who's on and who's off."

Tennant said, "I think there's a huge demand for HGH." He added that its use is extensive in the NFL, according to The Associated Press.

"I'd like to say that the problem is becoming less," said John A. Lombardo, the NFL's current drug adviser. "And I can say that in certain avenues, such as high-dose testosterone and synthetics, that would definitely give a positive test."

"But anything further than that—there's really no way of proving it one way or another."

Western Kentucky's Sean Dollman became the second Hilltopper to win the Division I men's individual title, finishing 18 seconds ahead of the runner-up finisher

Arkansas men capture cross country crown

The Arkansas Razorbacks placed four runners in the top 10 team finishers to claim their second consecutive Division I Men's Cross Country Team Championship and fifth overall November 25 in Tucson, Arizona. Sean Dollman of Western Kentucky won the individual championship with a time of 30:17.1.

Niall Bruton, Arkansas, finished second to Dollman, 18 seconds behind. However, Bruton and teammate Brian Baker were the two top team finishers. Razorbacks Graham Hood and David Welsh earned a sixth- and 10th-place finish, respectively.

Arkansas finished with 52 points, 62 points better than runner-up Iowa State and the second-lowest winning total since Michigan State's 44 in 1959. The only team to finish with fewer points in the last 32 years was UTEP, with a record of 17 points in 1981. The victory margin of 62 points was the largest in five years.

Dollman was the second Hilltopper to claim the individual crown. Nick Rose won in 1974. Defending champion Jonah Koech of Iowa State finished fifth.

The victory moves Arkansas into third place in championships within the division. Michigan State leads with eight titles, all won between 1939 and 1959. UTEP won seven, all between 1969 and 1981. Arkansas' five championships all have come since 1984.

Villanova's O'Sullivan, teammates repeat as I champions

Sonia O'Sullivan successfully defended her 1990 individual championship and led Villanova to its third straight team title at the Division I Women's Cross Country Championships November 25 in Tucson, Arizona.

O'Sullivan defeated teammate Carole Zajak by 4.6 seconds. Her victory was the third straight for a Villanova runner (Vicki Huber won in 1989).

The Wildcats easily outdistanced Arkansas, scoring slightly more than half of the Lady Razorbacks' total, 85 to 168, respectively. The victory moved Villanova into the top position in the division in terms of championships won. The Wildcats had been tied with Oregon, Virginia and Wisconsin with two titles.

Right behind Villanova and Arkansas, five teams finished within nine points of each other. Northern Arizona (184 points), Cornell (189), Oregon (191), and Georgetown and Wisconsin (193 each) claimed finishes third through sixth, respectively.

Although O'Sullivan duplicated her 1990 winning effort, the finish this year was closer. Zajak, who finished 14th last year, was the only threat to O'Sullivan at the finish.

California holds off challenge for water polo title

Heavily favored California, trailing UCLA 6-4 after three quarters, rallied December 1 with three fourth-quarter goals to claim its second consecutive National Collegiate Water Polo Championship with a 7-6 victory at the Belmont Plaza Pool in Long Beach, California.

Chris Oeding scored the game-winner, his second goal of the game, with 35 seconds left in regulation. The Bears' Troy Barnhart had brought the defending champions within one goal with an unassisted score at 5:33. German National Team member Dirk Zeien had the tying goal at 4:49.

"We came back from behind five or six times this year like that," said California coach Steve Heaston. "It takes a lot of character to be rated No. 1 all year and play like we did in the fourth quarter."

UCLA, which had handed the Bears their only loss of the season October 5, led, 2-1, after the first quarter with goals coming from Gary O'Brien (assisted by Oliver Will) and Will (unassisted). California's only score of the quarter came from all-American and U.S. Olympic Team member Chris Humbert, who went on to win tournament most valuable player honors for the second straight year, but was held to just the first-quarter goal in the championship game.

A second-quarter California goal by Oeding, assisted by Humbert, with 10:38 left in the half, tied the score before Will gave the Bruins a 3-2 lead with 2:20 left in the half.

Heaston said his team was not playing aggressively enough on offense in the first half, and he let the Bears know it at intermission.

"We talked about our tentativeness on offense, tentativeness while driving, and about how to get back to our style of offense in the second half."

Despite the talk, UCLA increased its lead to 4-2 on a goal by Philip Hadfield with 4:57 left before Zeien scored on another assist from Humbert with 4:14 remaining in the quarter. UCLA's Mike Wilink scored an unassisted goal with 3:08 left, then Bill Lenihan scored on an assist by Will at 1:41 to give UCLA its short-lived 6-4 lead.

Ludovic Sales made six saves for California, which finished the season 26-1. The Bruins' Dan Hackett made 10 saves. UCLA, under first-year coach Guy Baker, finished the season 19-10.

"For me, it was my first year; for the seniors, it was their last year. It was tough," Baker said. "We were confident in the third quarter, but we were also confident before the game. I had no doubt we could win."

California's championship was its 10th, an NCAA water polo record. It was the second for Heaston. The Bears have won four of the last five championships.

Take it away

Keeping the ball away from North Carolina proved to be a problem for Melissa Stobermann (No. 18) and her Wisconsin teammates. Pam Kalinoski (right) and the Tar Heels beat Wisconsin, 3-1, November 24 for North Carolina's sixth straight Division I Women's Soccer Championship title. Tape-delay coverage of the game will be presented on ESPN at 1 p.m. Eastern time December 9.

Bucknell harriers find 'dual' success

Art Gulden's cross country squads at Bucknell University have been winning dual meets for 22 years. In fact, Gulden's record at Bucknell is 234-9, with seven of the losses coming in his first five years at the Lewisburg, Pennsylvania, campus.

Recently, the Bison finished 13th out of 22 teams at the Division I Men's Cross Country Championships November 25 in Tucson, Arizona.

But the Bucknell cross country team has been successful in "dual endeavors" somewhere other than the cross country course. While succeeding over the rivers and through the woods, the Bison runners have been achieving in the classroom as well. The combined cumulative grade-point average of the team entering the fall 1991 semester was 3.240 (on a 4.000 scale).

"We have always had this kind of kid at Bucknell," Gulden said. "We don't have kids come here who think of running first. I've never coached outside of this atmosphere, so I don't know what it would be like to coach that kind of kid. It obviously is very rewarding to coach this kind.

"The senior class has a 3.700 GPA. They have worked real hard. None was a great high school runner. But they all have a great work ethic."

"We don't have kids come here who think of running first"

Art Gulden

Our philosophy always has been to be the best you can be in academics first, athletics second and social existence third."

The top four runners all have impressive academic records as well. Matt Deardorff, a senior from Chambersburg, Pennsylvania, leads the team. He won the Patriot League championship this fall and finished 43rd in team scoring at the NCAA championship meet. He has a 3.900 GPA in biology and is a Rhodes Scholar candidate.

Tom Wuchenich was the top Bison at the national meet, finishing 35th among team scorers. He has a 3.600 GPA in international relations and Spanish. Jason Cahilly has a 4.000 in economics and international relations and Bob Kelly has a 3.900 in electrical engineering.

"This year's version of the Bison continues a tradition that would be impressive, even without the fact that Bucknell does not offer athletically related financial aid. The Bison have won 17 straight Patriot League cross country championships and had a streak of 167 consecutive dual-meet victories snapped in 1989.

"The kids work hard and compete hard," Gulden said. "We were ranked 23rd going in to the national meet and finished 13th. There were some folks who said we didn't belong there. We showed them that we did."

Moving out

Christie Allen (No. 115) of Pittsburg State took the lead early at the Division II Women's Cross Country Championships and eventually pulled away from Kristina Hand (No. 25) of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo to win the individual title. Hand, however, shared in Cal Poly San Luis Obispo's team title at the November 23 meet at Southern Illinois-Edwardsville.

Winning football team boosts California coffers

By William D. Murray

The University of California, Berkeley, has discovered that in the economic formula of college sports, nothing pays a bigger return than winning.

The Golden Bears are having their finest football season in more than three decades. The success has brought long lines of fans to the Berkeley campus and considerable interest from network television. The economic trickle-down has turned into a torrent for the athletics department and nearby businesses.

"It's a madhouse in here on the weekends," said Mary Ann Galvez, a clerk in the student bookstore. "People are buying everything in sight. There is a constant stream of stuff coming in here from our warehouse starting every Wednesday. It's amazing."

Grid assistant gets reprimand

An assistant football coach at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, has been reprimanded by the Big Eight Conference for criticizing officials after the Cornhuskers' 19-19 tie with Colorado November 2.

Milt Tenopir, an offensive line coach who has been at Nebraska 17 years, made his critical remarks during a November 7 talk to about 200 people at a Cornhusker football breakfast in Omaha.

"The league needs to get more young officials," Tenopir said. "It's like a fraternity. Once they're in, you can't get rid of them."

Tenopir said officials missed a clipping call and an unsportsmanlike conduct call in the game, according to The Associated Press.

Tenopir also had criticized the conference for not enforcing what he thought was a conference rule that officials remain at game sites until they have viewed videotapes of games they have just worked.

The Big Eight's supervisor of officials, John McClintock, said there is no such rule.

Coaches handed league probation

The head men's basketball coach and an assistant at the University of Scranton were placed on one-year probation November 21 by the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference for unsportsmanlike conduct, according to The Associated Press.

Conference President William B. Manlove Jr. of Widener University declined to provide details of the incident involving head coach Robert Bessoir and assistant Bob Walsh, other than to say it occurred February 23 against King's College (Pennsylvania) during the league's Northern Division championship game.

Ken Buntz, Scranton's sports information director, said in a statement that Scranton already had taken "appropriate disciplinary action" and was disappointed at the conference's announcement.

Binders available

Readers of The NCAA News are reminded that binders, which provide permanent, convenient storage of back issues of the paper, are available from the publishing department.

They may be purchased from the circulation office at the NCAA (913/339-1900).

rath, who took the job just months ago, has also been pleasantly surprised.

"We knew in September we were going to have a good team," he said. "But they have gone far beyond our expectations. As a result, we are well ahead of the budget we projected heading into the school year."

"At the same time, I want to emphasize the infusion of money from increased ticket sales and television revenues gets us healthy only on the short term. The challenge now is how to turn it into a long-term gain."

The Golden Bears, with a stifling defense and the explosive running of Russell White, have become the darlings of ABC Sports. Four of their home games have been televised on a regional basis. Also, a game at the University of Arizona was picked up by a regional sports cable network.

The payday to the athletics department for the added broadcast exposure will be in the neighborhood of $700,000 by the season's end.

Attendance at California football games also has shown a dramatic increase. Once a victim of the fickle Bay Area sports market, the Bears have played before crowds of 46,000, 70,000 and 74,500.

"I really believe that people want to see a team that wins," Bockrath said. "They don't come to see a team that is not competitive. We've given them a competitive team this year and that's what we have to continue to give them."

The team's success was rewarded further with a bid to the Florida Citrus Bowl and a payday of more than $1 million January 1.

Last season the Bears went to the Copper Bowl, their first bowl since the 1959 Rose Bowl. The move was made despite the prospect of a break-even payday and the controversy in Arizona over the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday. But David L. Maggard, then Cal's athletics director and now AD at the University of Miami (Florida), gambled on the decision.

"I can't tell how important that was for our program," Bockrath said. "It showed bowl committees that California fans would travel to support their team, and that's what they look for."

Marshall, Weber State stars set season records in I-AA

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Marshall quarterback Michael Payton set a Division I-AA season record in passing efficiency, and Weber State running back Geoff Mitchell broke Jerry Rice's season scoring record as a talented 1991 field revised the Division I-AA records and charts.

Mitchell, 6-2 and 220 with 1,170 yards rushing, scored 28 touchdowns (24 rushing), 170 points and 15.45 points per game. Rice, the famed Mississippi Valley athlete who owns many NCAA collegiate (all-divisions) receiving records, gives up his I-AA marks of 27 TDs and 162 points but still holds the per-game record of 16.2.

Payton, 6-1, 203 and a junior, posted 181.3 rating points, smashing the 171.1 by Lafayette's Frank Baur in 1988.

Others came close to season records, notably Jamie Martin, the prolific Weber State quarterback with 4,337 yards in total offense. In all, five major records were broken—three season and two career.

Several players finished high on the career lists, led by Holy Cross quarterback Tom Ciaccio, Northern Iowa kicker Brian Mitchell and a pair of receivers—Idaho's Kasey Dunn and Connecticut's Mark Didio.

It was a big year for punters, as Harold Alexander of Appalachian State set a season record (47.0) and Pumpy Tudors of Tennessee-Chattanooga established a career mark (44.4). The other career record was set by Indiana State's Charles Swann in kickoff-return average (29.3).

Appalachian State's Harold Alexander set a Division I-AA season record for punting average (47.0 yards per punt)

Rushing, scoring and all-purpose

Dartmouth senior Al Rozier is the rushing champion at 143.2 yards per game. He edged two other seniors, Jerome Bledsoe of Massachusetts and Derrick Franklin of Indiana State.

New Hampshire's little (5-7, 165) Barry Bourassa, a junior, is the all-purpose champion at 195.6 yards per game. His 2,152 total yards is fifth-highest in history. Rozier finished second and Bledsoe third.

Bourassa ended up a distant second to record-setting Mitchell in scoring, but his 126 would be first most other years—including 1990, when he was I-AA scoring champion and all-purpose champion.

On the career rushing charts, two seniors made the list. Middle Tennessee State's Joe Campbell reached 14th at 3,823 yards and Maine's Carl Smith 15th, eight yards behind. A junior, Eastern Kentucky's Markus Thomas, already has 3,651, and thus has a chance to become the third 5,000-yard rusher in I-AA history. Campbell is the only senior who makes career scoring by non-kickers. He is tied for ninth at 272 points.

Passing and total offense

Martin, 6-4, 210, is the total offense champion a second straight season—and by a wide margin. His 394.3 rushing-passing yards per game, 4,337 in total offense and 4,125 passing yards all rank second in I-AA history to the 1984 figures posted by Willie Totten when he and Rice played at Mississippi Valley. Martin, only a junior, racked up I-AA single-game records of 643 yards total offense and 624 passing in his last regular-season game.

He led the country with 35 touchdown passes and ran for 12 more (but that total of 47 is well short of Totten's amazing 61 in 1984).

Payton, the passing-efficiency champion, missed two games with injury, but helped his team to the playoffs, as did Martin. Bourassa, Campbell, Thomas, Tudors, Alexander and both Mitchells mentioned above. Eriq Williams, who helped James Madison to the playoffs, was second in passing at 164.8—sixth highest ever.

With a year to go, Martin already has an even 9,000 yards passing, 9,158 total offense and 142.9 passing efficiency. Another year like this one would put him above 13,000 in both categories and make him a threat to the all-time I-AA career records.

Ciaccio led five seniors who made the career passing efficiency list, finishing fifth at 142.2 North Carolina A&T's Connell Maynor (139.3), Alabama State's Ricky Jones (137.5) and William and Mary's Chris Hakel (136.7) reached Nos. 9-10-12, respectively, while Lehigh's Glenn Kempa, second this season in total offense, reached 19th at 132.3.

In helping Holy Cross to a I-AA-record 20 straight victories, Ciaccio reached 11th in career total offense (9,066) and 17th in passing yards (8,603).

Receiving and all runbacks

Another big Weber State weapon, tight end Alfred Pupunu, is the receiving champion in catches per game. One of the biggest receiving champions ever at 6-3 and 250, Pupunu averaged 8.45 catches per game—sixth-highest ever in I-AA.

Didio, the runner-up at eight catches per game, is the receiving champion in yards per game at 123.1. Dunn, the 1990 champion in both categories, is second at 114.8 and Pupunu third. Didio's 1,354 yards is fifth highest ever.

In career catches, Dunn finished second (268 to Rice's 301) and Didio fourth (239). In yards it was the same—Dunn second (3,847) and Didio fourth (3,535).

The interceptions champion is Delaware junior Warren McIntire at 0.82 per game, and his 208 return yards just missed the record of 216. Florida A&M's William Carroll reached a tie for seventh with 21 career interceptions.

Ashley Ambrose of Mississippi Valley is the champion in punt-return average at 18.4. His three punt-return touchdowns is one short of the record and his 514 yards is 47 short.

Alabama State junior Paul Ashby won the title in kickoff-return average at 30.6. The runner-up, Florida A&M senior David Lucas, set a I-AA season record with three kickoff-return TDs.

Swann's career 29.3 smashes the 28.5 by Eastern Washington's Craig Richardson (last season, 1986).

Field goals and punting

Northern Iowa's Mitchell, who tied the record with 26 field goals in 1990 and set an accuracy record of 96.3 percent in the process, made it two straight championships with his 1.73 per game.

His career 64 field goals is tied for fourth, and his .790 accuracy ranks fourth. He also reached second in career kick-scoring (322), with Idaho's Thayne Doyle third (307) and Marshall's Dewey Klein tied for sixth (300).

In punting, season record-setter Alexander was pushed by career record-setter Tudors, whose 45.55 is fifth on the season chart. In addition, Idaho's Tom Sugg (44.74) reached seventh and Northern Arizona's Terry Belden (44.37) 16th.

as did South Carolina State in defense.

Weber State's 578.6 total offense yards per game is second highest ever in I-AA (to 640.1 by Mississippi Valley State in—you guessed it—1984), and it won a second straight passing title (389.1).

But in scoring, 11-0-0 Nevada edged Weber State by one point, 496 to 495 (45.1 to 45.0 in average). Virginia Military won the rushing crown at 316.9.

South Carolina State, a 7-4 team, won in passing efficiency defense (70.0 rating points) and total defense (208.9) but narrowly missed in rushing defense at 85.3 to 84.4 for champion Boise State. South Carolina State also led in scoring defense going into its final game, but then was beaten by 9-2 North Carolina A&T, 49-21. Villanova, a 10-1 playoff team, emerged as scoring-defense champion, 12.0 to 12.2 for McNeese State, another playoff team, and South Carolina State fell to seventh.

North Carolina A&T won the title in turnover margin at 2.27, gobbling up 45 fumbles and interceptions combined while losing only 20.

Appalachian State won in net punting (41.3), Mississippi Valley State in punt-return average (17.0) and Marshall in kickoff-return average (24.9).

Scoring, offense soar

Division I-AA offenses were the most efficient and productive in division history this season. To put it another way, it was a nightmare for defensive coordinators.

It was not just a rushing thing or a passing thing. Yards per rush set a record high of 3.95. So did yards per attempted pass at 6.87. The result was record highs in scoring (48.1 per game, both teams combined), total offense (710.5 rushing-passing yards per game) and total offense yards per play (5.07), as the chart on this page shows. Touchdown passes also set a record.

Middle Tennessee State senior Joe Campbell soared to 14th place on the I-AA career rushing chart with 3,823 yards

Faulk becomes first freshman to win scoring, rushing titles

By James M. Van Valkenburg
Director of Statistics

San Diego State's Marshall Faulk, the first Division I-A freshman to win the national crown in either scoring or rushing, did it with an impressive 154-yard game November 30—the most gained all season against unbeaten Miami's (Florida) defense.

Faulk averaged 158.8 rushing yards and 15.6 points per game in becoming the country's only double winner. He averaged an outstanding 7.1 yards per rush.

Four other individual statistics champions are in this year's 36-team bowl field, along with many others high on the season and career charts. The champions are Brigham Young's Ty Detmer in total offense (333.4), Michigan's Elvis Grbac in passing efficiency (169 rating points), Florida State's Terrell Buckley in interceptions (one per game; his 238 return yards also leads), and California's Doug Brien in field goals (1.73 per game). The field includes scoring runner-up Desmond Howard, Michigan receiver averaging one touchdown every 4.3 all-purpose plays.

Bowl streaks

This is Nebraska's 23rd consecutive bowl season, Michigan's 17th in a row, Brigham Young's 14th, Florida State's 10th, Miami's (Florida) ninth, Alabama's seventh and Clemson's seventh. And it is Alabama's 44th bowl team—the record.

The list of bowl regulars is even more familiar. Alabama is making its 31st bowl trip in 32 years (missing only the 1984 season), Nebraska its 28th in 30 years (missing only 1967 and 1968), Penn State its 22nd in 25, Ohio State its 18th in 20, Oklahoma its 14th in 17, Washington its 13th in 15, Tennessee its 11th in 13 and Iowa its 10th in 11.

UCLA's seven the record

UCLA's seven bowl victories in seven seasons through 1989 is the record. Florida State, with six straight the last six years, can tie it with a victory over Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl.

Four other colleges had six bowl victories in six seasons—Georgia Tech (through the 1956 season),

*Repeater from last season's bowl field. *Ties computed as half won, half lost.

Nebraska (through the 1974 season), Southern California (through 1979) and Alabama (through 1980). Clemson has a streak of five still alive.

Southern California won the first nine bowl games in its history, but not in consecutive seasons. Florida State has an unbeaten streak of nine (8-0-1) still alive.

Bowden on select list

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden, already one of history's 200-game winners, has joined an even more select list.

This is his fifth consecutive season with at least 10 victories, a feat achieved by only two other coaches in modern history (since 1937). They are Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson (fifth season 1958) and Paul "Bear" Bryant (fifth year 1975). Wilkinson's teams lost only twice in 53 games, Bryant's six in 60 and Bowden's eight in 59.

Before 1937, Pennsylvania's George Woodruff had an amazing seven in a row (seventh season 1898) playing 14- and 15-game schedules. He lost only six times in 100 games.

Michigan's Fielding H. "Hurry Up" Yost was 55-1-1 in five straight through 1905 and Yale's Walter Camp was 67-2-0 in five through 1892. In most years before 1937, teams played fewer than 10 games a year.

Seven other coaches since 1937 enjoyed four straight seasons with at least 10 victories. They are (fourth year in parentheses) Nebraska's Tom Osborne (1989), Miami's (Florida) Jimmy Johnson (1988), Georgia's Vince Dooley (1983), Oklahoma's Barry Switzer (1980), Penn State's Joe Paterno (1974), Michigan's Glenn "Bo" Schembechler (1974) and Arizona State's Frank Kush (1973).

On a team basis since 1937, the leader is Miami (Florida). This is its seventh in a row, the first four under Johnson (44-4), the last three under Dennis Erickson (32-3).

Before 1937, Yale had an incredible nine straight, going 119-4-2 through 1896—the first five under Camp, the last four under three different coaches.

Interpretations Committee minutes

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

Daily, weekly hour limits/out-of-season practice

1. Physical-fitness class vs. regular physical-education class. A conditioning class (e.g., aerobics) conducted by an institution's athletics department staff member that is part of the institution's regular academic offering is considered a regular physical-education class per NCAA Bylaw 17.02.12.2-(a) [as opposed to a physical-fitness class per 17.02.12.2-(b)]; thus, a student-athlete's participation in such a class is not considered a countable athletically related activity, provided the student-athlete does not participate in practice activities under the guise of physical-education class work (i.e., a student-athlete participates in normal class activity as outlined by the instructor for all students). The committee recommended that the Council consider eliminating the physical-fitness class as set forth in 17.02.12.2-(b), inasmuch as a class is included in the institution's limits on countable athletically related activities. [References: 17.02.1.1-(d) (participation in physical-fitness class countable athletically related activity); 17.02.1.2-(b) (participation in regular physical-education class noncountable athletically related activity); 17.02.12.2-(a) and 17.02.12.2-(b) (activities not considered practice); IC 9/17/91, Item No. 3]

Out-of-season practice

2. Practice vs. countable athletically related activity. The committee reviewed the following issues associated with athletically related activities conducted outside the in-

Conference No. 18
November 7, 1991

stitution's playing season and determined that:

a. It is permissible for student-athletes to participate in a physical-fitness class conducted by a member of the institution's athletics staff during the summer vacation period in accordance with 17.02.12.2-(b) (1) (i.e., the student must be enrolled in at least one additional course for degree credit during the summer term).

b. It is not permissible for student-athletes to participate in required weight-training and conditioning activities held at the direction of or supervised by institutional staff members per 17.02.1.1-(c) during the institution's summer vacation period.

c. In the individual sports listed in 17.02.1.2.1, it is permissible for an institutional staff member to provide skill or safety instruction to student-athletes who are participating in voluntary workouts during the summer without such activity constituting a countable athletically related activity.

d. In spring football, a Division I or II member institution may not participate in more than 20 hours of countable athletically related activities per week (as opposed to 20 hours of practice per week); thus, participation in a physical-fitness class per 17.02.12.2-(b) is included in the 20-hour-per-week limitation.

The committee recommended that the NCAA Legislative Review Committee incorporate these interpretations in the applicable areas in Bylaw 17. [References: 17.02.12.2-(b) (physical-fitness class not considered practice); 17.02.1.1 (countable athletically related activity); 17.02.1.2.1 (safety exception); 17.02.1.2.1 (summer practice); 17.6-(a) (spring practice - Division I)]

Daily, weekly hour limitations

3. Individual consultation with a coach initiated voluntarily by a student-athlete.

Individual consultation with a coaching staff member initiated voluntarily by a student-athlete is not a countable athletically related activity, provided any discussion between the coach and the student-athlete is limited to general counseling activities and does not involve activities set forth in 17.02.12.1 (e.g., chalk talk; use of equipment relating to the sport; field, floor or on-court activity). [References: 17.02.1.2-(j) (non-countable athletically related activities); 17.02.12.1 (activities considered as practice)]

Outside competition/partial qualifier or nonqualifier

4. Partial qualifier or nonqualifier practicing with an outside team. A partial qualifier or nonqualifier is not permitted to participate (practice or compete) on an outside sports team during the student-athlete's initial academic year of residence. The committee recommended that the Legislative Review Committee editorially revise the provisions of 14.3.2.4 to reflect this interpretation. [Reference: 14.3.2.4 (outside competition - partial qualifier/nonqualifier)]

Recruiting

5. Test to certify coaches who may recruit off campus. A standardized national test covering NCAA recruiting legislation is not limited to information contained only in Bylaw 13, but may include information from other areas of the NCAA bylaws [e.g., 15.3.3 (institutional financial aid award), 14.3 (freshmen academic requirements)] that directly relate to the recruitment of prospective student-athletes. [Reference: 11.5.1.1.1 (certification administration)]

20-year-age rule/practice

6. Participation in out-of-season conditioning activities prior to starting date for permissible on-court or on-field practice. A prospective student-athlete, prior to collegiate enrollment, who participates in organized competition subsequent to the student's 20th birthday, but enrolls in a member institution and begins permissible conditioning activities in a sport during the 12-month period after the student's birthday, is not charged with an additional season of competition for the current academic year. In a related matter, the committee noted that participation in conditioning activities held at the direction of or supervised by institutional staff members does constitute "regular" practice activities for purposes of applying NCAA transfer regulations. [References: 14.2.4.5 (participation after 20th birthday); 14.6.2-(f) (conditions affecting transfer status)]

Personnel, financial als, including indication of the sponsors and the business sessions in which the proposals will be handled.

Personnel

No. 49: To permit a restricted-earnings coach to receive unlimited compensation from the athletics department for performing duties not related to coaching. Sponsored by eight Division I institutions. Division I business session.

No. 49-1: To amend No. 49 to limit its provisions to one restricted-earnings coach per sport and to exclude football and men's and women's basketball. Sponsored by eight Division I institutions. Division I business session.

No. 50: To exempt from the $4,000 summer-earnings limitation applicable to restricted-earnings coaches compensation and remuneration from the institution's camp or clinic, camps or clinics owned or operated by institutional employees, or another institution's summer camp. Sponsored by the Atlantic Coast Conference. Division I business session.

No. 51: To permit one head coach, nine assistant coaches and two graduate assistant coaches in Division I-A football, rather than one head coach, eight assistant coaches and four restricted-earnings coaches. Sponsored by 12 Division I-A institutions. Division I-A business session.

No. 52: To permit institutions to combine three or four restricted-earnings positions into one higher-paid position in Division I-A football. Sponsored by the Atlantic Coast Conference. Division I-A business session.

No. 53: To permit Division I-AA institutions that have junior varsity football programs to employ two additional restricted-earnings coaches. Sponsored by the Ivy Group and six other Division I-AA institutions. Division I-AA business session.

No. 54: To permit Division I-AA institutions to employ an unlimited number of restricted-earnings coaches in football, provided the total remuneration provided does not exceed the current compensation limits applicable to such coaches. Sponsored by the Southern Conference. Division I-AA business session.

No. 55: To permit Division I-AA institutions to combine two restricted-earnings positions into one football coaching position. Sponsored by the Southern Conference. Division I-AA business session.

No. 56: To permit an institution to employ three full-time coaches, instead of two, and no restricted-earnings coaches in Division I ice hockey. Sponsored by eight institutions classified in Division I in ice hockey. Division I business session.

No. 57: To permit an institution to employ two full-time coaches, instead of one, in Division I wrestling. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Subcommittee to Review 1991 Reform Proposals; also sponsored by eight Division I institutions. Division I business session.

No. 58: To permit institutions with junior varsity programs in sports other than football that meet the contest requirements established in Bylaw 20.9.3.3

Many of the proposals in the personnel and financial aid groupings would undo or delay reforms adopted at the 1991 Convention in Nashville to employ two additional restricted-earnings coaches in such sports. Sponsored by eight Division I institutions.

No. 59: To permit institutions to restructure one assistant coaching position into two restricted-earnings positions in sports other than football, with such coaches subject to compensation and recruiting limitations similar to those applicable to restricted-earnings coaches. Sponsored by eight Division I institutions. Division I business session.

No. 59-1: To amend No. 59 to exclude basketball from its provisions, as well as football. Sponsored by the Patriot League and two other Division I institutions. Division I business session.

No. 60: To redefine a volunteer coach and to permit the use of one volunteer coach in each sport other than football and basketball. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Subcommittee to Review 1991 Reform Proposals. Division I business session.

No. 61: To limit the scouting of any opponents in Division III to official games played during the traditional segment of the playing season, rather than scouting at exhibitions and scrimmages. Sponsored by the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference. Division III business session.

Financial aid

No. 62: To delay from August 1, 1993, to August 1, 1994, the effective date of reductions in numbers of grants-in-aid in women's equivalency sports in Division I. Sponsored by the Big Ten Conference. Division I business session.

No. 63: To delay from August 1, 1992, to August 1, 1993, the effective date of reductions in the number of grants-in-aid in Division I women's basketball. Sponsored by the Big Ten Conference. Division I business session.

No. 64: To reduce the permissible numbers of grants-in-aid in most Division II sports by 10 percent, with a graduated two-year reduction in football and basketball. Sponsored by the Lone Star Conference. Division II business session.

No. 65: To reduce from 25 to 21 the maximum annual limit on initial grants and to eliminate the limitation on the total number of grants in Division I-A football. Sponsored by eight Division I-A institutions. Division I-A business session.

No. 65-1: To amend No. 65 to reinstate the overall limit on grants in Division I-A football. Sponsored by eight members of the Pacific-10 Conference. Division I-A business session.

No. 66: To reduce gradually over a three-year period the number of grants-in-aid that may be awarded subsequent to the first academic year in residence to student-athletes who initially were non-qualifiers or partial qualifiers, with such grants eliminated beginning in 1996-97. Sponsored by nine Division I-A institutions. Part A, affecting football, Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions; Part B, affecting all other sports, Division I business session.

No. 67: To permit athletically related aid to be awarded to incoming freshman student-athletes to attend a summer term, summer school or summer orientation period, provided the aid is granted in proportion to the amount of athletically related aid the students will receive during the succeeding academic year and the recipients become counters during that year. Sponsored by nine Division I-A institutions. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 68: To permit immediate cancellation of institutional financial aid when a student-athlete voluntarily withdraws from a sport prior to the institution's first competition in that sport. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism. General business session, all divisions voting together.

No. 68-1: To amend No. 68 by specifying that any graduated or canceled aid under those provisions may not be awarded to another student-athlete during that term. Sponsored by nine members of the Big West Conference. General business session, all divisions voting together.

No. 69: To require institutions to provide full tuition awards to former student-athletes who have received athletically related aid and who have exhausted eligibility for such aid, with such awards to be provided until the student-athletes have completed their degree requirements for graduation or have been dismissed for academic or disciplinary reasons. Sponsored by the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. General business session, all divisions voting together on the primary portion.

No. 70: To exclude honorary academic awards and research grants from the determination of the permissible amount of a full grant-in-aid or cost of attendance for a student-athlete. Sponsored by the Western Athletic Conference. Divisions I, II and III business sessions.

No. 71: To establish a definition of "athletics financial aid" and to specify that equivalency computations for counters shall be based only on "athletics financial aid." Sponsored by the Big East Conference. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 71-1: To amend No. 71 by deleting the proposed definition and specifying that the equivalency computations be based on the countable financial aid formula used for minimum financial aid requirements for Division I membership. Sponsored by the Big East Conference. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 71-2: To amend No. 71 by excluding from the definition of "athletics financial aid" any application to the minimum financial aid requirements for Division I membership. Sponsored by the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 72: To permit a Division I institution to count only unearned, nonrepayable financial aid, awarded and administered by the member institution (including the athletics department) and based on athletics ability, for purposes of meeting the minimum financial aid criteria for classification in that division. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism. Division I business session.

No. 72-1: To amend No. 72 by eliminating consideration of athletics ability from the type of aid that can be used to meet the minimum Division I financial aid criteria. Sponsored by the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. Division I business session.

No. 73: To revise the minimum financial aid requirement for classification in Division I by specifying that only unearned, nonrepayable financial aid shall be counted. Sponsored by the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. Division I business session.

Longtime

Before the 1987 season, Nelson listed his choices for the most significant rules changes of the preceding 50 years. They were, in no particular order:

• Unlimited substitution. The rule was put in after the 1941 season but not fully exploited until 1945. Strict one-platoon football returned in 1953 before full two-platoon football was instituted in 1965. "It increased the tempo and intensity of the game," Nelson said. "Just look at the (statistical) trends."

• Two-point conversion option. The rule was enacted in 1958. Along with the conversion change, Nelson also listed the 1959 widening of the goal posts from 18 feet, six inches to 23 feet, four inches. They were subsequently narrowed in 1991.

• Safety and equipment for safety. A 1939 rules change made head gear mandatory. Since then, many changes have been enacted, most over the last 25 years, in an attempt to enhance safety. "Safety is still No. 1," Nelson said. "It will always be the No. 1 consideration of the rules committee."

• Forward passing. Nelson noted the first significant rules change affecting the passing game came in 1945 with the elimination of the requirement that the passer be five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

• Number of officials. There were four in 1937, five in 1955, six in 1972 and finally seven in 1983.

• Coaching from the sidelines made legal. Previous to 1967, the practice was illegal, although the rule was widely abused.

• Statistics. "Statistics (trends) are the gauge, the barometer for stabilizing the game," he said. "They are absolutely critical and essential for the rules committee for stabilizing the game and have served us well for the past half-century."

Nelson's family asked that memorials be made through donations to the Bob Carpenter Sports/Convocation Center (University of Delaware Development Office, attention Kathleen Houghton, Academy Building, Newark, Delaware 19716).

NCAA Record

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

A week after Michigan State announced that it would split the posts of athletics director and head football coach, George Perles announced that he would step down as the school's AD but retain his coaching duties. The school asked Perles to step down as football coach and serve full-time as AD (see November 25 issue of The NCAA News), but Perles, who has coached at Michigan State for nine years, elected to give up the director's duties that he assumed 1½ years ago.

COACHES

Men's basketball assistant—Jason Qua joined the staff at Wheaton (Massachusetts). Qua, who was a two-time all-American player at Clark (Massachusetts), has worked for an insurance firm in Japan and as an intern in a shelter for the homeless since completing his playing career in 1990.

Women's basketball—Stephanie English promoted from assistant to interim head coach at CCNY, where she also played. English, who is a registered nurse at a local hospital, replaces Debra Logan, who coached CCNY to two City University of New York Conference titles in three seasons.

Field hockey—Helen Glick selected at Oswego State, where she has held coaching positions for 13 years. Glick currently also serves as assistant women's softball coach at the school.

Football John Cooper received a three-year contract extension at Ohio State, where he had one year remaining on his original five-year pact. As the Buckeyes prepare to play in the Hall of Fame Bowl January 1, Cooper holds a 27-17-2 mark through four years, including an 8-3 record this season. Peter Mazzaferro received a two-year contract extension through 1993 at Bridgewater State (Massachusetts), where he recently completed his 23rd season in the post. His record is 111-99-6. Idaho State officials said the school will not renew the contract of Garth Hall, who compiled a 9-34 record through four seasons. Web Harrison stepped down at Bates, where he will continue to serve as head men's lacrosse coach. Gary Steele resigned after three seasons as head coach, where he also was an assistant for six years before his promotion in 1989. His teams were 9-21. Francis Peay dismissed after six years at Northwestern, where he coached his teams to a 13-51-2 record, including a 3-8 mark this season. Arizona State officials said the contract of Larry Marmie will not be renewed after this season. Marmie coached his teams to a 22-21-1 record through four seasons.

Football assistants Ken Hite stepped down as defensive backs coach and special teams coordinator at West Georgia, where he had served for two years. Harry Hiestand promoted from offensive line coach to run game coordinator and Rusty Burns promoted from quarterbacks coach to pass game coordinator at Cincinnati, where both have been on the staff since 1989.

Men's golf—Greg Sankey of Northwestern State (Louisiana) named assistant commissioner for compliance at the Southland Conference. Sankey coached for two years at Northwestern State.

Men's lacrosse assistant—Don Zimmerman, who coached three Johns Hopkins teams to NCAA Division I championships during the 1980s, joined the staff full time at Loyola (Maryland), where he was a part-time assistant last season. Zimmerman was an assistant at Princeton and North Carolina before beginning his seven-year stint at Johns Hopkins in 1984.

Women's tennis—Gwen Tamayo named at Oswego State, where she assisted with the team from 1985 to 1989.

Women's volleyball—Dani Martin selected at Oswego State, where she also will serve as sports information director. She is a former player at Hamilton.

STAFF

Compliance and academic services director—Greg Sankey of Northwestern State (Louisiana) will join the Southland Conference staff January 1 as assistant commissioner for compliance.

Sports information directors Steve Waller appointed at Texas-Arlington. Waller, who has served as director of communications for Little League Baseball since 1989, is a former SID at Central Missouri State and Southern Illinois

Jason Qua joined Wheaton (Mass.) basketball staff

Southland Conference named Greg Sankey to staff

Edwardsville and a former president of the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association. Kenneth Skinner Jr. named at West Georgia, where he is a recent graduate and has served for four years as a student assistant. He succeeds Susan Hite, who resigned after serving as SID at West Georgia since April 1990. Dani Martin selected at Oswego State, where she also will be head women's volleyball coach. Martin, who played volleyball at Hamilton, is a staff writer for the Hudson River Boating News.

Trainer—Jennifer Stefenko selected at Oswego State. She previously was a graduate assistant trainer at Slippery Rock.

CONFERENCES

Greg Sankey appointed assistant commissioner for compliance at the Southland Conference, effective January 1. Sankey previously was director of compliance and academic services at Northwestern State (Louisiana), where he also coached men's golf for two years.

NOTABLES

Nine coaches have been named American Volleyball Coaches Association/Tachikara regional coaches of the year. They are Gerry Burbules of Gannon, Chris Catanach of Tampa, Deborah Chin of New Haven, Sue Gozansky of UC Riverside, Frank Lavrish of Regis (Colorado), Joan McDermott of Morningside, Jim Moore of Northern Michigan, Jeff Mozochi of Portland State and Marlene Piper of UC Davis. Desmond Howard, a football wide receiver at Michigan, received this year's Walter Camp Trophy as the most outstanding player in college football.

DEATHS

Bob Johnson, whose 30 years of coaching ice hockey at all levels included stints at Colorado College and Wisconsin, died November 26 in Colorado Springs, Colorado, at age 60. Johnson, who had been diagnosed with brain tumors in August, led three Wisconsin teams to NCAA Division I titles (1973, 1977 and 1981) and compiled a 412-225-29 overall record in 18 years at the collegiate level, including 15 with the Badgers. Johnson, who also has been executive director of USA Hockey and was coach of the 1976 U.S. Olympic men's ice hockey team, became head coach of the Pittsburgh Penguins last year and led that team to the Stanley Cup. Andre Sherrod, a senior football linebacker at Cincinnati, died November 24 of what authorities believe was a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Sherrod, who was found lying in a hallway of the residence hall where he lived, was 23. John Magee, an all-Southwest Athletic Conference football guard at Rice during the 1940s who also played on NFL championship teams with the Philadelphia Eagles, died November 22 in Kaplan, Louisiana. He was 68.

HONG KONG SPORTS INSTITUTE WATSONS DISTILLED WATER HEAD ATHLETICS COACH (TRACK AND FIELD)

The Hong Kong Sports Institute (HSKI) is the focus of sporting excellence in Hong Kong. The HSKI aims to provide an environment in which athletics talent can be identified, nurtured and developed.

Athletics is to be added as a full-time sport to the HSKI program substantially supported by Watsons Water. The aim is to commence a program, if possible, by December 15, 1991. The head coach is responsible for overseeing the program, supervising other coaches, raising standards of performance of the athletes in the program, identifying new talent and working closely with the other parties involved in athletics in Hong Kong especially the Hong Kong Amateur Athletic Association. The head coach needs to have a genuine interest in young athletes, be able to help them define their sport and career goals, and relate well to parents and local schools. He will also need to be able to coach top athletes with a view to improving standards at the international level.

The successful applicant will most likely have the highest coaching qualification in athletics, a minimum of 10 years developing high performance athlete programs in cooperation with governing bodies of sport, extensive international experience, a high level of personal fitness, and be able to plan and implement individual programs for athletes in the program. He may also have been a successful international athlete. It is likely that the program will have a specific focus on sprints, hurdles, jumps and middle and long distance events, at least in the early years. Whilst the fundamental aim is to develop top athletes, the person selected will have the capacity to work in a cooperative manner with others, take an interest in the total development of athletes in the program (including academic achievement) and have a fundamental knowledge of the sports sciences and strength/fitness training programs.

The head coach will also be able to work closely with other coaches, scientists and administrative staff to further the goals of HSKI.

This is a significant and challenging position and the salary and package negotiable will reflect its importance.

Expressions of interest with supporting information, should be forwarded by December 15, 1991, if not sooner, to:

Navy fans of North Carolina coach use Smith Center for reenlistment

U.S. Navy Petty Officers James Hamilton and Felix Rivera, both fans of University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, men's basketball coach Dean Smith, recently used center court of the Dean Smith Center for their reenlistment ceremonies.

Both have followed Tar Heel basketball for some time. "I couldn't believe it when they told me it was going to happen," Hamilton said of the ceremony. "I'm just tickled to death."

"We were thinking about jumping from a plane," Rivera said, of reenlisting while descending to earth. "But (Hamilton) mentioned reenlisting in the Dean Smith Center. It just clicked, and I said, 'Let's do it.'"

Smith was unable to attend but assistant coach and former Tar Heel star Phil Ford looked in on the activities and posed for pictures. The Associated Press reported.

All-night madness

Midnight practice sessions October 15—the official start of college basketball practice—have become somewhat routine around the country. Few coaches, however, have been through opening nights like Rice University coach Scott Thompson.

He got home just in time to drive wife, Rebecca, to the delivery room at Memorial Southwest Hospital for the 3 a.m. arrival of Aubrey Ann, the couple's second child. Brother Christian is 2.

Queens soccer men are shutout kings

According to Queens College (North Carolina) officials, the school's men's soccer team recently established an all-divisions collegiate record for a 17-game season by earning its 14th shutout.

On the way to a 13-2-2 record, the team allowed only four goals, a per-game average of .24.

Foul-shooting season in New Jersey

Student-athletes from 17 New Jersey colleges took almost 24,000 foul shots November 9 in the Garden State Shootout for Epilepsy, a benefit for the Epilepsy Foundation of New Jersey.

Campus groups at each school sought pledges for each shot their teams made. Participating institutions included Drew University; Fairleigh Dickinson University; Madison; Glassboro State College; Jersey City State College; Kean College; Monmouth College (New Jersey); Montclair State College; Ramapo College; Rider College; College of St. Elizabeth; St. Peter's College; Seton Hall University; Stockton State College; Trenton State College, and William Paterson College.

All about reading

Tennessee Technological University football players Derrick Gray, Fred Lowery and Shane Queen joined assistant coach Mike Smith recently for a visit to Camp E-SUN-ALEE, a part of the Eckard Wilderness Educational System camping program. Their mission?

"We just tried to let them (campers between the ages of 10 and 17) know how important reading is in everyday life," Queen said. "If you can't read, you won't be able to take full advantage of your opportunities."

Talking about saying no

More than 20 Jacksonville University student-athletes recently visited eight area schools during the Jacksonville, Florida, citywide Say No To Drugs Week to talk about the importance of avoiding drugs. Speakers are members of the university's Peak Performance Power Club, which was initiated by Mark McKown, head strength and conditioning coach, and Mike Voight, academic counselor and assistant men's soccer coach. The PPPC encourages excellence in athletics performance and a commitment to community service.
