TV analyst/actor to emcee dinner

Merlin J. Olsen, who has gained fame playing football, serving as a television sportscaster and acting, will serve as master of ceremonies for the 1992 NCAA honors dinner during the annual Convention in Anaheim, California.

Olsen began his second season as an NFL game analyst for CBS Sports this fall after more than a decade as one of pro football's top television analysts with NBC Sports. Olsen joined NBC in 1977 and, working with Dick Enberg, quickly became that network's No. 1 football analyst. He covered five Super Bowls during that time.

The Utah State University graduate first rose to national prominence as one of college football's top defensive linemen. He was twice chosen all-America, won the 1961 Outland Award as the nation's outstanding lineman and was named to the College Football Hall of Fame in 1980. A three-time academic all-American, Olsen graduated summa cum laude in 1961 with a finance degree and added a master's degree in economics in 1970. He was elected to the GTE Academic All-American Hall of Fame in 1988.

Busy month scuttles enforcement hearing

A hearing scheduled for December 12 in Dallas to discuss the report and recommendations of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process has been canceled.

That action was taken after only three of the 13 organizations invited to send representatives to the hearing had indicated by December 2 that they would do so. The light response to the invitation was attributed in part to the busy December calendar at most institutions.

To assure at least one more opportunity for NCAA constituent groups to react to the committee's report, the committee's chair, President Rex E. Lee of Brigham Young University, announced that he and as many other members of his committee as possible would be available at the NCAA Convention in Anaheim, California.

Any interested representatives of NCAA members will be welcome to visit informally with the committee members between 1 and 3 p.m. Tuesday, January 7, in the Lido B room at the Anaheim Hilton and Towers, the Convention headquarters hotel.

Injunction-hearing delay granted

In another matter related to enforcement, an injunction hearing involving the NCAA's challenge of a Nevada law has been postponed until December 19. The Association has sued over a statute that has prevented the NCAA from completing an infractions case involving the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

The hearing originally was scheduled for December 4. The delay was granted to permit the defendants additional time to provide briefs.

Yes, 'tis the season... to deal with seasons

Proposing changes in playing and practice seasons apparently is becoming the most popular legislative activity in the Association, with the playing-seasons legislation for the 1992 Convention representing the largest topical grouping of proposed amendments.

Thirty-three basic proposals (and two amendments-to-amendments) appear in that grouping, and 14 of them are for Division III only. Those are in addition to three others for Division III that appear in the Presidents Commission's grouping.

The seasons grouping includes almost twice as many proposals as the next largest single topic, recruiting.

Not surprisingly, most of the proposals attempt to rescind or modify the season limits adopted in the past two Conventions. Also not surprisingly, 15 of the 33 are opposed by the Presidents Commission, the NCAA Council or both, as those groups attempt to prevent erosion of the "reform movement" in college athletics.

Division I basketball

Other than the 14 Division III proposals—most of which are sponsored by two Division III conferences—the biggest single focus in the seasons package is on the Division I basketball playing season.

Seven of the proposals deal with Division I basketball, almost all of them having to do with permissible exceptions to the number of countable contests.

Other proposals affecting Division I, in addition to other divisions, deal in one manner or another with football, fencing, field hockey and soccer.

Others

One of the more interesting twists in the grouping is an attempt, in two proposals, to apply playing-season restrictions to the sport of crew. Those will be ruled out-of-order because crew is not an NCAA-recognized sport, but the sponsors of the proposals apparently intend to challenge that ruling.

All but one of the 33 proposals will be dealt with in the separate division business sessions, rather than in the general session.

Nine of the 33 proposals are opposed by both the Presidents Commission and the NCAA Council. Those are Nos. 91, 92, 93, 94, 96, 100, 103, 104 and 106.

In addition, the Council (or a

Volleyball team shows its strength by rebounding from loss of coach

By Shari Rampenthal
Special to The NCAA News

Steve Lowe was looking forward to this volleyball season, perhaps more than any other. He was entering his sixth season as head women's volleyball coach at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and each person in the program, from the assistant coaches down to the freshmen, had been hand-picked by him.

It was the type of team he said he always wanted to coach. But he never made it to the sidelines.

The Badgers were in the midst of fall camp and eight days away from their season opener when their lives were altered dramatically. Lowe, their 35-year-old revered mentor, was diagnosed with cancer early in August and died August 22.

Midway through the Big Ten Conference season, a couple of Northwestern University players expressed their amazement at the way the Wisconsin team had recovered from an emotionally shattering beginning to be among the contenders for the league championship.

"They were surprised that we had gotten as far as we had and had pulled off any wins," Wisconsin senior Jeanette Simenson said. "They said if it had been their team, they would have fallen apart, and that made me feel real proud that, as a team, we could pull this out."

Lasting influence

Credit that in part to Lowe, whose lasting influence may have carried the team through this crisis and into the Division I championship tournament.

"We knew Steve wouldn't want us to quit, and the players he recruited are the same way he is," senior Sue Wohlford said. "We weren't going to give up. It might have

Committee Notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA office no later than December 23.

Student-Athlete Advisory Committee: Replacement for Vanessa Hornbuckle, Western State College of Colorado, resigned. Appointee must be a student-athlete from Division II, Region 4.

McClendon to receive AFCA's Stagg award

Charles McClendon, former Louisiana State University head football coach and current executive director of the American Football Coaches Association, has been named the 1992 recipient of the AFCA's Amos Alonzo Stagg Award.

The award honors individuals "whose services have been outstanding in the advancement of the best interests of football." McClendon, a former AFCA president, will be honored at the association's 1992 convention January 6-9 in Dallas, Texas. Previous winners of the award include Don Faurot, Eddie Robinson, Paul Bryant, Bud Wilkinson and Woody Hayes.

"To receive this award is a very humbling experience," McClendon said. "I'm proud and flattered, to say the least. I know better than to think I got to this point in life by myself. I have had a lot of help, advice and support from so many players, coaches, athletics administrators and friends over the years. I owe thanks to all of them."

McClendon served 18 years as Louisiana State head coach from 1962 through 1979 and compiled an overall record of 137-59-7 for a 69.2 winning percentage. Named AFCA national coach of the year in 1970 (along with Darrell Royal), McClendon won Southeastern Conference coach of the year honors twice. His 1970 team won the SEC title.

Following his retirement from active coaching, McClendon spent two years as executive director of the Tangerine Bowl (now the Florida Citrus Bowl) in Orlando, Florida. He was named executive director of the AFCA in 1982, succeeding the retiring Bill Murray, former Duke University head coach.

The Stagg award is the most recent in a long list of prestigious honors McClendon has received for contributions made during four decades in the coaching profession and as an administrator in collegiate athletics.

Committee recommends four cities as 1995 I men's basketball sites

Four cities are likely to get their first taste of NCAA basketball tournament action when they host first- and second-round competition during the 1995 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

The NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee sites for the 1995 tournament. At its December 1-4 meeting in New Orleans, the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee accepted proposals from four cities that have never hosted preliminary-round action during the tournament. Those cities are Albany, New York; Baltimore, Maryland; Memphis, Tennessee; and Tallahassee, Florida.

Following is a list of the proposed 1995 tournament sites:

First-/second-round sessions

East: Knickerbocker Arena, Albany, New York (Siena College and Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, cohosts), March 17 and 19; Baltimore Arena, Baltimore, Maryland (University of Maryland, Baltimore County, host), March 16 and 18.

Southeast: The Pyramid, Memphis, Tennessee (Memphis State University, host), March 16 and 18; Tallahassee-Leon County Civic Center, Tallahassee, Florida (Florida State University, host), March 17 and 19.

Midwest: Frank Erwin Special Events Center, Austin, Texas (University of Texas at Austin, host), March 17 and 19; University of

Other highlights

In addition to voting to recommend sites for future tournament action, the Division I Men's Basketball Committee:

- Voted that ratings-percentage-index computations would include only data relating to Division I institutions. For example, a team that has a 20-8 record, including four wins against non-Division I opponents, would be credited with a 16-8 record. The current statistical discount that a team receives for playing non-Division I opponents would be eliminated. Additional information related to this action will be distributed to all Division I institutions and conference commissioners.

- Took action that would limit the officials evaluation committee at preliminary tournament sites to no more than three preassigned supervisors of officials and one basketball committee representative. The basketball committee representative will serve as chair of the committee. Previously, the officials evaluation committees were composed of a maximum of three preassigned supervisors and two other people representing basketball interests at the tournament sites.

- Met with members of the New Orleans Organizing Committee to plan for the 1993 Final Four.

Dayton Arena, Dayton, Ohio (University of Dayton, host), March 16 and 18.

West: Boise State University Pavilion, Boise, Idaho (Boise State University, host), March 17 and 19; Jon M. Huntsman Center, Salt Lake City, Utah (University of Utah, host), March 16 and 18.

Regionals

East: Meadowlands Arena, East Rutherford, New Jersey (Rutgers University, New Brunswick, host), March 24 and 26.

Southeast: Birmingham-Jefferson

Civic Center, Birmingham, Alabama (Southeastern Conference, host), March 23 and 25.

Midwest: Kemper Arena, Kansas City, Missouri (Big Eight Conference, host), March 24 and 26.

West: Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Oakland, California (University of California, Berkeley, and Pacific-10 Conference, cohosts), March 23 and 25.

The Executive Committee will act on these recommendations during its December 9 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Trial date set for Gathers lawsuits

A trial date of February 24 has been set for two wrongful-death lawsuits stemming from the 1990 death of Loyola Marymount University basketball star Hank Gathers.

Judge Gary Hastings will try the case in California Superior Court, according to The Associated Press.

The suits, one filed by Gathers' mother, brothers and aunt, and the other by his 8-year-old son, have been combined for purposes of the trial. The first suit seeks $23 million in damages while the second seeks an unspecified amount.

Shortly after the trial date was set, cardiologist Vernon Hattori agreed to pay the Gathers family a $1 million settlement to be removed as a defendant.

Gathers was 23 years old when he collapsed during a conference postseason tournament game at Loyola Marymount's Gersten Pavilion. He died at a hospital less than two hours later of a heart disorder.

NCAA Bylaws 14.1.6 and 14.12—eligibility between terms

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 14.1.6, to be eligible for competition that takes place between terms, a student-athlete shall: (1) have been registered for the required minimum full-time load at the conclusion of the term immediately preceding the date of competition if the student is continuing enrollment, or (2) be accepted for enrollment as a regular full-time student for the regular term immediately following. Under condition No. 2, it would be permissible for a student-athlete who dropped from full-time to part-time status during the previous semester to resume practice and competition between terms, provided the student-athlete has been accepted for enrollment as a regular full-time student for the immediately succeeding term. The earliest date on which the student could become eligible to practice and/or compete is the day after the date of the last scheduled final examination listed in the institution's official calendar for the term that is ending.

In addition, in accordance with Bylaw 14.12, if a student-athlete's academic eligibility changes at the end of a quarter or semester, the student-athlete shall become eligible or ineligible on the date his or her eligibility officially is certified by the appropriate institutional authority. In the case in which the student becomes eligible at the end of the term, the earliest date on which the student can become eligible to compete is the day after the date of the last scheduled final exam listed in the institution's official calendar for the term that is ending. In the case in which the student becomes ineligible, the ineligibility shall become effective not later than the first day of classes of the following semester or quarter. In any case, if the student-athlete is academically eligible to compete at the time of the student's or the institution's first participation in an NCAA championship, he or she remains eligible for the remainder of the championship.

ship. During its April 27, 1989, conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that when a student-athlete is declared academically ineligible in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 14.12 and the institution has a documented appeal process for all such students, the student-athlete would be eligible or ineligible during the appeal process based on the institutional regulations applicable to all such students, it being understood that if the institution's appeal process extends into the following term, an eligibility declaration for purposes of NCAA legislation must be made prior to the beginning of that term.

NCAA Bylaw 14.3.2.4—outside competition—partial qualifier and nonqualifier

Divisions I and II member institutions should note that per Bylaw 14.3.2.4 it is not permissible for a partial qualifier or nonqualifier during the first year of enrollment to participate in athletics competition on an institutional club team or an outside sports team. In addition, the Interpretations Committee, during its November 7, 1991, conference, confirmed that a partial qualifier or nonqualifier also is not permitted to participate in practice sessions as a member of an institutional club team or an outside sports team during the individual's first year of enrollment. It is permissible for a partial qualifier or nonqualifier to participate in the institution's intramural program, provided the intramural team is not coached by a member of the institution's athletics department staff.

NCAA Bylaw 12.3.1—agents—postseason competition

As student-athletes and member institutions prepare to participate in postseason competition, member institutions should note that an individual shall be ineligible for participation in NCAA championship competition or postseason bowl competition if the individual has agreed (orally or in writing) to be represented by an agent for the purpose of marketing his or her athletics ability or reputation in that sport. It is not permissible for a student-athlete to agree to be represented by an agent in a particular sport subsequent to the completion of the institution's season but prior to postseason competition without jeopardizing the student-athlete's eligibility to represent the institution in the postseason competition.

NCAA Bylaw 30.2.2—college all-star games

Member institutions are reminded that in accordance with Bylaw 30.2.2, it no longer is the institution's responsibility to prohibit its student-athletes from competing in college all-star football or basketball contests that have not been certified under the requirements of Bylaws 30.2.2.1 through 30.2.2.10. The institution may not, however, permit the use of its facilities for an uncertified all-star event. Please note that in accordance with Bylaw 30.2.2.2, game management shall conduct the game in accordance with the Association's principles for the conduct of intercollegiate athletics, as set forth in NCAA Constitution 2 and the interpretations related thereto. During its January 9, 1981, meeting, the NCAA Council was asked to consider the effect of Bylaw 30.2.2 [formerly Bylaw 2-3-(i)] on student-athletes with agent agreements in terms of eligibility for postseason all-star games. The Council determined that a student-athlete who has signed with an agent subsequent to the completion of the student-athlete's final season (including postseason competition) but prior to an all-star contest would not affect the student-athlete's eligibility to participate in the contest.

Rifle recruits warm quickly to Alaska school

By Martin T. Benson
The NCAA News Staff

University of Alaska, Fairbanks, rifle coach Randy Pitney studied civil engineering and wildlife biology in college, but when he hits the recruiting trail, he benefits more from the knowledge of geography gained through 24 years of "Northern Exposure" than from any school-book lessons.

"People have this pre-Columbus perception that the world is flat and Alaska is off the edge of it," Pitney said. "I have to convince them that this isn't just one big iceberg."

It's worked. With half of the team coming from other states, the Nanooks, who have had a rifle team since 1937, had their best season last year, finishing second in the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships.

An Oregon native, Pitney doesn't dispute that it's cold in Fairbanks, but he said it's colder in some other parts of the United States. He talked about a recent trip to New Mexico during which he experienced a wind-chill factor of minus-42 degrees Fahrenheit but came back home to a comparatively balmy 25 degrees in Fairbanks.

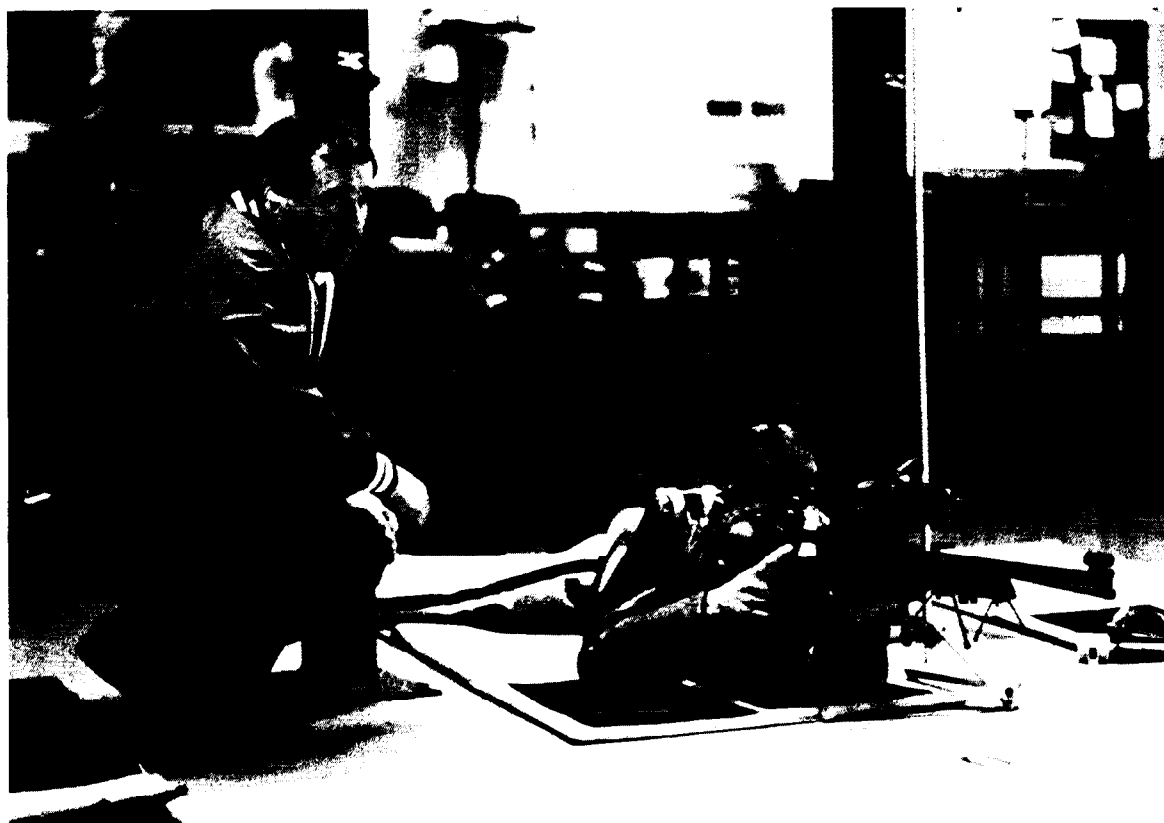

Team captain Mike Goehle, no stranger to the winter blahs having grown up near Buffalo, said Alaskan winters are different from those in western New York.

"It's not quite as windy here," he said. "The winter in Buffalo is humid, and it's miserable to go out. Here, it's a dry cold, but it's not as bad as you would think."

Goehle did point out that on some winter nights, the mercury dips to 40 and 50 degrees below zero.

Wild, but savvy

In many ways, Alaska is a wilderness—but not intellectually. Pitney said the school's high academic

Rifle coach Randy Pitney of the University of Alaska, Fairbanks, tutors team member Mike Goehle, one of several Nanook shooters who come from other states quality is one of his major recruiting tools.

"The oil money (from the Alaska pipeline) has really enhanced things," he said. "This is an excellent educational institution with top-notch schools. We have lots of good computers, and the professors are first-rate. Some are world-renowned."

Goehle, a 1990 all-American in both air rifle and smallbore, came to the school to study wildlife management. And for the adventure.

"Coming to Alaska is something not everyone gets to do," he said. "I figured it would be a pretty good place to study wildlife. I think there is a special emphasis here because the school is located in Alaska."

Obviously, the strong rifle program also attracts serious shooters. Despite having to travel farther than any team to go to the average away meet, the Nanooks have a top-notch schedule that includes most of the perennial national contenders. Since most other teams don't have the travel budget to visit Alaska, only three of the Nanooks' 13 meets this year are in Fairbanks. The other 10 are divided into three trips to limit missed class time and to save money.

Up in the air

Team travel always involves flying. Pitney said the average trip takes eight hours, including layovers and ground transportation. He said that considering some rifle teams' usual mode of travel, his team has an advantage.

"A lot of teams sit in vans for 24 hours," he said. "Our kids seem to be in better shape from flying."

High travel costs prevent the school from paying for any prospective shooters to visit the campus, so Pitney must be creative in his recruiting approach. He does a lot of letter-writing and spends a lot of time on the phone. When the team is on the road, he tries to coordinate a visit with an interested shooter into his travel plans. Fortunately, he said, rifle is an objective sport, so it's easy to tell if someone is a potential collegiate shooter by looking at his or her scores.

"It seems like most of the kids who want a really good education and want to be really good shooters will find a way to get here for a visit," he said.

Those who do make it north have the chance to meet Mrs. Pitney, the former Patty Spurgin, 1984 Olympic gold medalist, who serves as a volunteer assistant coach.

"I'm sure having her here doesn't hurt," Pitney said.

One former Nanook, Karen Gaborik, benefited greatly from the tutelage. She (men and women compete against each other in rifle) had never shot a gun before enrolling at Alaska-Fairbanks, but she took up the sport after becoming interested during a physical education class. The past two years, she won air rifle all-America honors.

Not always a fan

Though Pitney is an Alaska fan now, he wasn't always sold on his adopted home state. He began his college career at Oregon State University, then transferred to Alaska-Fairbanks, where he earned his wildlife-biology degree. "I came here with a lot of questions and apprehension (about Alaska), but I ended up loving it," said the physical education instructor, who works as a commercial fisherman in the summer.

As an undergraduate, he shot for the Nanooks. After he got his degree, he stayed on as a part-time coach in 1972 and 1973. He took over as head coach in 1985 after the retirement of Bill Smith. In that time, he's built the team into a national power.

This season, he's got his scope on the national championship, a title West Virginia University has held for the last four years.

"We definitely have that potential," he said. "We're better than we were last year, but who knows if we'll move up? There are a lot of other good teams out there."

IRS rules on two sponsored bowls

The Internal Revenue Service has issued a ruling that two corporations' contributions to organizations sponsoring college football bowl games are subject to taxation.

The ruling currently applies only to Mobil Corporation, which sponsors the Mobil Cotton Bowl, and to John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, which backs the John Hancock Bowl. However, tax authorities said the same terms are likely to be applied to other sponsors in the near future.

The IRS contends that Mobil's contributions of as much as $2 million a year and Hancock's donations of $1 million are not disinterested gifts but are, in essence, payments for advertising.

"The issue is a very real one," IRS spokesman Henry Holmes told The Associated Press December 4. "We're taking a look at the extent to which third parties pay tax-exempt organizations rather large sums of money and get a service in return for it. In this case, it happens to be advertising."

The ruling can be appealed through the IRS and through the U.S. Tax Court or Federal District Court.

In Dallas, accountant Bruce Bernstein, who represents the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, said, "We plan to pursue all available remedies to fight this."

"If this ruling stands, the real losers will be the colleges and universities that receive proceeds from the bowls," Bernstein said. He noted that NCAA rules require that 75 percent of bowl proceeds go to participating schools and that those schools share with other members of their conferences.

The schools' payoffs from holiday bowls range from $250,000 per team to $6.5 million apiece. Florida State University and Texas A&M University will get about $3 million each from this season's Cotton Bowl; the University of Illinois, Champaign, and University of California, Los Angeles, are assured at least $900,000 each from the John Hancock Bowl.

The IRS proposes to tax the sponsors on what is known as unrelated business income. That is, the IRS contends that the corporations' payments put the tax-exempt bowl organizers in a business—advertising—that is unrelated to their tax-exempt purpose of education.

The tax would be applied at the standard corporate rate of 34 percent.

The IRS is barred by privacy laws from even acknowledging that it has been auditing the Cotton and John Hancock Bowls. The new ruling was forwarded to the bowl organizations during the summer and made public during November in a standard "technical advice memorandum" that was censored of any reference that would identify the bowls.

Q Does anything happen to a student-athlete who receives financial aid that is not authorized by NCAA legislation?

A A student-athlete who receives financial assistance other than that authorized by the Association shall not be eligible for intercollegiate athletics competition.

News Fact File

The active football coach with the most victories in postseason bowl games is Joe Paterno of Pennsylvania State University with 13 (a bowl record of 13-7-1), and Florida State University's Bobby Bowden is next with 10 (10-3-1). The all-time leader is the late Paul "Bear" Bryant with 15 (15-12-2).

Recruiting hits home for Drake basketball coach

"My son will be a senior in high school next year. He's all-city, and he says he wants to be Michael Jordan or Magic Johnson. Lord knows I've tried to instill some things in him. But I can't get through to him. As a parent, I know what's going on, but I can't touch him. I'm scared to death, because I know how crazy it will get as he gets recruited. I know all that stuff, and... forgive me if I get emotional, but it's my son... I can't reach him, I can't. And... I'm sorry... I know what's out there, and yet I can't prepare him at all for what he's about to face. I get mad at myself, I get mad at his coach, I get mad at his mom, I get mad at everybody. Sometimes I want to reach out and hug him and hold him and try to give him the benefit of my experience, and yet I'm afraid as hell that I've lost him. And this is what I do for a living! And I can't reach him. And... I'm sorry... I mean, it's just... this is my son we're talking about."

—Coach Rudy Washington
as quoted by Sports Illustrated

By Rick Brown
Des Moines Register

Rudy Washington read his father's words in Sports Illustrated.

He said they opened his eyes to something his father, the basketball coach at Drake University, had been trying to tell him all along.

"I don't think my dad would exaggerate or do it to hurt me," Rudy said. "He was trying to get across a point. And what he said woke me up. It's true."

Rudy Washington is an outstanding high-school basketball player at Carson High School in Carson,

"I think he was embarrassed initially when he read it. He said, 'Dad, I know you love me, and I know you want me to do right, but I'm OK. I think I know what I'm doing.' And most 16-year-olds think they know what they're doing."

— Coach Rudy Washington

California. Considered one of the top 25 prospects in talent-rich California, the 6-foot-3-inch senior guard averaged 19.7 points a game last season.

Next season, Rudy will join his father's program at Drake.

"I think he was embarrassed initially when he read it," coach Washington said. "He said, 'Dad, I know you love me, and I know you want me to do right, but I'm OK. I think I know what I'm doing.' And most 16-year-olds think they know what they're doing. I think I made him realize I am serious about my love for him, and that is a commitment for a lifetime, not a commitment simply because he's my child until he turns 21."

Coach Washington received a lot of mail after parents read his comments in the August 5, 1991, issue of Sports Illustrated. His words were from a round-table discussion the magazine held as part of its series on the "Black Athlete Revisited."

"I think every father in America always says the risk of raising a child, a son, and losing him to the world, so to speak," coach Washington said. "Particularly those of us involved in athletics, because it's such a false world. It's very narrow at the top. And it's what we do for a living."

Narrow at the top, in Washington's words, means the dream of the National Basketball Association. A pipe dream, more often than not.

"Basketball starts with literally millions of young children playing the game in elementary school," coach Washington said. "That broad base is narrowed in junior high, high school and college. And of course the pinnacle, for men, is the NBA. But the actuality of it is that a kid has about as much of a chance of winning the lottery as he does making the NBA. And yet when you sit down and talk to most Division I athletes during their basketball careers, they all think they're going to win the lottery."

Coach Rudy Washington

Coach Washington has seen what happens when the lottery hands them a losing ticket.

"You see so many hearts broken," he said. "You see families split. You see kids turn to drugs and kill themselves. As a parent, you don't want that for your child. And what you try to do, as every parent would do, is try to protect your son from the evils out there. And sometimes we just can't do it, no matter how hard we try. That's the scariest thing, when you deal with someone you love so much."

Coach Washington is also concerned about the athlete who comes so close to making the NBA, only to see it slip away—like Roy Marble, Iowa's career scoring leader. Washington was an assistant at Iowa when Marble played. He saw Marble come back from treatment for substance abuse to have a fine senior season and get drafted by Atlanta in the first round of the 1989 NBA draft.

But in February of his rookie season, Marble failed a random drug test and was suspended for the remainder of the season. Atlanta let him go before the start of last season, and Marble played in the Continental Basketball Association. He tried to make it back to the NBA this fall as a free agent with the Detroit Pistons but was released.

"I know Roy must be going through a tough time now," Washington said. "He wanted to be a professional. I mean, that was it. And he geared everything that way. And I can see a lot of that in a lot of kids. Kids right here on my own team, and sometimes in my own son. You just have to try to guard against it as much as you can."

In dealing with steroid abuse, trainers must know the excuses

By Ken Mannie

The Lyle Alzado story is a graphic reminder that certain individuals in the athletics community will persistently turn their heads away from those of us waving red flags about steroid abuse.

If, after reading Alzado's account of cancer resulting from steroid abuse, you are bewildered as to why he and others continue on this path of self-destruction, a crash course on "the steroid mentality" is warranted.

Being one who has counseled numerous chronic steroid abusers of various ages over the past few years, it has become quite evident that several inherent characteristics can be targeted for this deviant behavior. One must be aware of these self-justification techniques before dealing with such persons. Otherwise, you will be fighting a losing battle.

The victimless crime. A recurrent theme used by the steroid abuser is that no one is being hurt by his or her actions. I've even heard this ridiculous argument used by the defense lawyer of a later-to-be-convicted steroid dealer. The sad reality, though, is that everyone involved becomes a victim of this travesty.

When you take into account the health risks encountered by the abuser, the influence this individual may have on others (especially that of big name athletes on young people), and the damage incurred due to strained or violent interactions with family and friends, this form of drug abuse is no less a victimless crime than any other substance abuse.

Denial of injury. Very few forms of drug abuse have the mentality attached to them regarding harmful side effects as do anabolic drugs. Everyone who uses them possesses either an exorbitant amount of ludicrous "street info" or is completely in the dark.

It must be understood that these individuals utilize dealers, other abusers and various underground publications as their pipeline for information. They hear what they want to hear about these drugs. A large percentage of them are engaged in what is known as "poly-pharmacy"—ingesting other drugs to counteract some of the side effects of anabolics. Much of this is not only a waste of time, but also proves dangerous in itself.

"I know what I'm doing" is a common phrase used by the steroid abuser. "I know how to cycle the drugs, how to control my dosages and how to use other drugs to avoid the side effects" is the rhetoric of the anabolic-drug abuser. Few of these individuals have read any legitimate research on steroid abuse—most of their information is derived from "gym gurus" and the ubiquitous muscle magazines. Neither qualifies as a credible reference on the topic.

The ultimate sacrifice. "I take steroids because I want to win." This ominous rationalization is used as a code of commitment to one's sport. It is sad and frustrating that these individuals reject the standards of fair play and safe, healthy training habits.

With some, steroid abuse is commensurate with being dedicated to success. They associate their drug habit with "sacrifice." In fact, what they actually may be sacrificing is their health and, in some cases, their lives. Athletics needs committed, hard-working, ethical individuals—not martyrs.

The use of anabolic drugs for physical and/or performance enhancement will continue to be a major problem in athletics. Several messages must be sent to young people by all of us in athletics to help curb the problem:

- We do not condone, nor will we tolerate, nonmedical anabolic-drug use.

- Anabolic drugs are not accepted as part of one's training regimen. (Collegiate and professional coaches who are well-versed on these drugs do not want individuals who use them because they do not want to invest in "damaged personnel.")

- Anabolic drugs are not needed to be competitive. Most athletes—many of them being great athletes—do not use these drugs.

- We will continually offer educational resources to our athletes on these drugs and maintain screening programs as both a deterrent and an educational tool.

"The Russians made me do it" is no longer an accepted reason for anabolic-drug abuse. To those who have the power to clean up this mess in international, professional and collegiate athletics, I implore you, let's get it done.

To all of the athletes, both young and old, who use these drugs or are contemplating their use, I remind you that dying is not winning.

"College football is the only sport that doesn't give us what we want: a true champion. The bowl people promise they'll do better next year; they've promised they'll work it so that the best teams will play each other.

"Do what you want, but I'll believe that when the teams are on the field. The bowl people look out only for themselves. A new rule supposedly would fine the bowls $250,000 for cutting deals before 3 p.m. November 17. Guess what? The rule that was designed by the bowl people to protect them from themselves was never enforceable to begin with. Every bowl except one cut deals anyway, and none, apparently, will be fined."

Limits proposed for scholarships awarded on basis of race

The U.S. Department of Education is proposing severe limits on race-exclusive scholarships, one year after a proposed ban prompted by a scholarship offer by the Fiesta Bowl caused a firestorm of anger among universities and civil rights groups.

Education Secretary Lamar Alexander, who ordered a review of the initial plan last April, said December 4 that scholarships based solely on race do not conform to civil rights regulations. He said the revised rules would take effect next March.

Alexander said grants still could be made on the basis of race to achieve diversity on college campuses, but race could not be the only factor.

"Race-exclusive scholarships can be legal when used to remedy proven discrimination, when Congress specifically creates them or generally when a private donor gives the money," Alexander said at a news conference.

The revised plan, if it becomes law following a 90-day comment period, would permit outside donors to give money to a college for race-larships comes one year after Michael Williams, the department's assistant secretary for civil rights, touched off a furor when he wrote in a letter to Fiesta Bowl officials that race-selected scholarships at most colleges are discriminatory. Williams said race-specific scholar-

Fiesta Bowl plan to offer $100,000 for minority scholarships at the University of Louisville and University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, if their football teams would play in the game. Fiesta Bowl officials made the offer after Arizona voters rejected a holiday honoring assassinated civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

The White House forced Williams to revoke the letter. Williams then issued a modified plan, which Alexander nullified in April shortly after becoming secretary.

An estimated 35,000 minority undergraduates receive $138 million in race specific scholarships. Alexander pointed out, however, that 96 percent of the 1.3 million minority students receive scholarships on the Alexander said the 1964 Civil Rights Act forbids the award of grants based only on race.

The proposed curtailment of schoships could be issued only if an institution was undergoing court-ordered desegregation, the money was provided by a private donor directly to the student or the school did not receive Federal funds.

Blacks show less interest in baseball

Black athletes are becoming less interested in baseball and more interested in basketball and football, according to a study by Baseball America.

The study, which appears in the newspaper's December 25 issue, says the result of the shift in interest has been a declining talent pool in baseball.

Steve Greenburg, Major League Baseball's deputy commissioner, commenting for The Associated Press on the focus of the study, said, "We've had studies done and, yes, it is a serious issue. And we don't want to do something that's just cosmetic. It's a monumental task, and we're addressing it long-term."

According to the study, the percentage of American Blacks involved in Major League Baseball declined from 18.9 percent of players five years ago to 17.2 percent this year.

It also shows that Blacks make up only 13.1 percent of the 4,195 minor-league players, not including the rookie leagues, which were not counted.

Another telling figure in the study was that only 5.9 percent of college baseball players in 1991 were black, as opposed to 47.6 percent of college football players and 65.7 percent of college basketball players.

Blacks make up 62.4 percent of NFL players and 77.2 percent of the NBA, according to the newspaper's study.

Locker-room theft at Kansas results in arrests

Two former University of Kansas students were arrested in connection with the theft of more than $14,000 in cash and property from a visiting basketball team's locker room at the school, officials said.

According to The Associated Press, investigators obtained a search warrant after receiving a tip that one of the suspects might have some of the property that was taken from the locker room during the second half of the November 30 game between Kansas and Central Missouri State University.

Property taken during the burglary included warm-up clothes and travel bags, an assortment of jewelry and personal items, and $1,300 in cash. University police said some of the property has been recovered but much of it is still missing.

More arrests were possible, officials said.

Virginia prevails in shootout for soccer crown

At least a champion was declared. In 1989, Virginia and Santa Clara played through 90 minutes of regulation and 30 minutes of overtime in the championship game without being able to decide a winner. With the weather conditions deteriorating rapidly, the game was declared a draw and the teams were declared cochampions.

This year, with the same foes, Virginia was declared the champion. But the Cavaliers still didn't win. After 90 minutes of scoreless regulation and 60 additional minutes of four scoreless overtimes, the Cavaliers outshot Santa Clara, 3-1, in the penalty-kick shootout to claim the Division I Men's Soccer championship. The final score, however, goes in the book as 0-0. The NCAA Men's and Women's Soccer Rules Committee passed a rule in February that when a game is tied through regulation and overtime, and a penalty-kick shootout is necessary to determine the advancing team or champion, both teams are credited with a tie.

The championship game, hosted by South Florida December 8, was the second straight title contest decided by penalty kicks. Last year, UCLA defeated Rutgers and was credited with a victory under the rule used at that time.

The goalkeepers in this year's game, Kevin Rueda of Santa Clara and Jeff Causey of Virginia, were not bombarded with scoring threats.

Rueda turned back six shots and Causey stopped five. Three of Rueda's saves were in the sudden-death overtimes.

When the game went to the penalty kicks, both teams substituted goalkeepers. Santa Clara's Chris Bauer was unable to stop any of Virginia's three attempts. Virginia's Tom Henske stopped Cameron Rast's first attempt for Santa Clara. After Matt Rast hit the crossbar and Patrick Griffin converted, Henske turned back Bruce Broughton's attempt and the Cavaliers (19-1-2) had their second title and first outright.

Santa Clara finished 20-1-2. The final rematch was set up with Virginia's three-overtime, 3-2 victory over St. Louis and Santa Clara's 2-0 blanking of Indiana. Virginia's Ben Crawley headed in a pass with 1:23 remaining in regulation to send the first semifinal into overtime. Then, at the 1:50 mark of the third overtime, Crawley headed in another crossing pass to lift the Cavaliers into the championship game.

In the second semifinal, Santa Clara's Cameron Rast netted a goal in the first period and Griffin scored in the second to eliminate Indiana (18-3-3). St. Louis finished 20-2-2.

Florida Tech captures title in II men's soccer

Florida Tech watched Sonoma State score the first goal of the game and then rattled off five straight goals to claim its second Division II Men's Soccer Championship.

The game was played December 7 at Florida Tech.

At half time, the game was tied, 1-1, but the Panthers scored four second-half goals in a period of just over 10 minutes. Richard Sharpe scored three of those goals with one at the 66:30 mark breaking the tie. He scored another goal 1:31 later. After Colin Semwayo made it 4-1 at the 73:22 mark, Sharpe scored the game's final goal at 77:17.

Sonoma State's Ben Ziemer opened the scoring 11:27 into the game, but Semwayo tied it at 30:09. The Panthers played most of the first half without Sharpe after he injured his knee when he was knocked into the goal post on a loose ball. He remained on the sideline for the rest of the half but returned in the second half with style.

Florida Tech finished the season 18-2-1, while Sonoma State finished 16-4-4.

Sonoma State advanced to the championship game on the basis of penalty kicks in the first semifinal against Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. The Cossacks' Andrew Ziemer scored first at the 56:33 mark, but Rysheim Henderson tied the score 16:20 later. After two scoreless overtime periods, Sonoma State outscored the Mustangs (14-4-5), 5-4, in penalty kicks to advance. Both teams are credited with a tie.

In the other semifinal, Florida Tech spotted Franklin Pierce a 1-0 lead in the second half but responded with back-to-back goals by Edward Enders to advance to the championship game for the second time in four years. Franklin Pierce finished 17-4-2.

Solving the puzzle

California's Troy Barnhart (left) looks past UCLA's Chris Kellerman for an opening in the Bruin defense in the title game of the National Collegiate Water Polo Championship December 1 in Long Beach, California. Cal rallied with three fourth-period goals, including one by Barnhart, to win its second straight championship, 7-6. The Bears have won four of the past five titles.

Congressman wants pay-TV ban

A Congressman from Illinois says he will introduce legislation that would ban television companies from offering sports events at public facilities on a pay-per-view basis.

U.S. Rep. William O. Lipinski said December 4 that he was angered to hear last month that ABC was considering putting the November 16 University of Notre Dame-Pennsylvania State University football game on pay-per-view television. That deal fell through.

"I refuse to let American athletics events become a luxury only the rich can afford," Lipinski told The Associated Press.

His proposed bill would ban pay-per-view TV at public colleges and other facilities built or maintained with tax money.

"It's almost prohibitive for families to attend sporting events," he said. "The only way for families to see sports events together is on television. We're going to lose a great deal in this country if we allow pay-per-view to develop."

(most of it in just two seasons), New Mexico's Jeremy Leach at 9,382 and Tulsa's T. J. Rubley at 9,324, ranking Nos. 9, 11 and 13, respectively, on the I-A list. This trio has similarly high rankings in total offense. Junior Kopp, with 8,588 already in passing yards, can finish high next year, as can Pittsburgh junior Alex Van Pelt. Behind in career efficiency (minimum 500 completions) are Klingler at 138.2 (10th) and Iowa's Matt Rodgers at 132.5 (tie for 23rd).

Using a minimum of 325 career completions, Grbac's 147.1 ranks third on the I-A list behind Jim Harbaugh, another Michigan quarterback (149.6, last season 1986), and Arizona's Danny White (148.9, last season 1973).

Receiving and all runbacks

It was a big season for receivers, and not only because of Howard. Pacific's (California) Turner, as mentioned, won the receiving-yards title at 145.8 per game and his 1,604 ranks third on the all-time list.

Turner is second in catches per game, a title won by Houston's Fred Gilbert at 9.64—fourth highest ever in I-A.

Baylor's Melvin Bonner leads in yards per catch at 24.6 (minimum three catches per game).

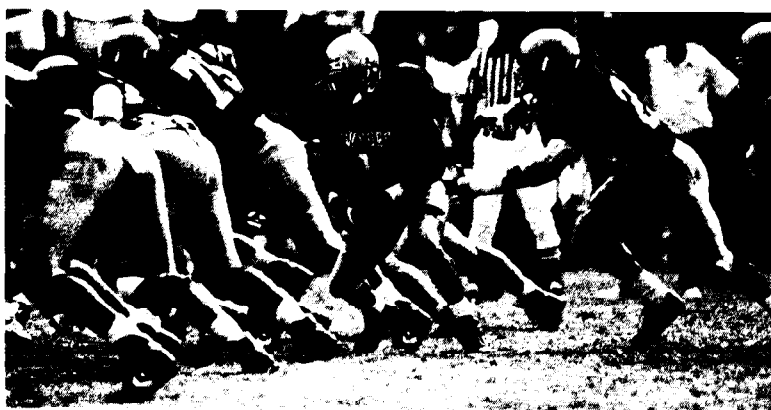

Turner's 187 catches already ranks 21st on the career list, above any senior, and his 3,174 receiving yards is 10th and his 32 touchdown catches are just six short of the record.

Tulsa's Dan Bitson overcame a career-threatening injury and finished eighth in career yardage at 3,300.

Buckley's winning 12 interceptions is tied for third highest in I-A history. His 238 return yards (two for touchdowns) leads the nation and his 501 return yards is the career mark even though he's a junior.

Buckley's four career interception TDs are one short of the record. His 21 already are tied for ninth, eight short of the career record. Tied for 13th at 20 are senior Kevin Smith of Texas A&M and junior Tracy Saul of Texas Tech.

Virginia Tech junior Bo Campbell is the champion in punt-return average at 18.2—highest in five years with Michigan's Howard next at 17.4. Miami's (Florida) Kevin Williams and Alabama freshman David Palmer each had three punt-return TDs, one short of the season record. Fred Montgomery of New Mexico State wins the title in kickoff-return average at 29.4.

Wofford junior quarterback Shawn Graves (No. 1) already is the all-time, all-divisions leader in rushing by quarterbacks

Punting and field goals

California sophomore Doug Brien is the field-goal champion at 1.73 per game, edging another sophomore, Dan Eichloff of Kansas.

Eichloff also finished seventh in punting (43.1), making him the only kicker ranking that high in both categories. Texas Tech's Mark Bounds is the punting champion at 46.8—the highest average in four years.

In career field goals, Huerta (73) and Anderson (70) finished tied for seventh and tied for 10th, respectively. Hawaii junior Jason Elam already ranks tied for 16th at 63, just ahead of Washington State senior Jason Hanson—the country's top long-distance kicker this season—at 62. Hanson at 322 also finished 12th in kick scoring, with Wyoming's Sean Fleming 17th at 312.

Team champions

Fresno State is the only double winner among the team statistics champions, in scoring at 44.2 and in total offense at 541.9 rushing-passing yards per game.

Nebraska is the rushing champion for the seventh time since 1980, this time at 353.2, and Houston captured its third straight passing crown with 372.8. The total offense title is Fresno State's first. Its only other scoring crown came in 1985.

Unbeaten Miami (Florida) is the scoring-defense champion for the second time in three years, allowing 9.1 points per game. Texas A&M wins its first total-defense crown since 1975 and third in history, allowing 222.4. In pass-efficiency defense, Texas won at 77.4.

Penn State wins in turnover margin at 1.83 per game, Texas Tech in net punting at 40.6, Alabama in punt-return average (16.9) and New Mexico State in kickoff-return average (25.2). Baylor tied New Mexico in fumbles recovered (20) and tied Penn State in turnovers gained (42). Penn State led in passes intercepted by (26), Toledo lost the fewest fumbles (4) and Oregon State tied Virginia for the fewest passes intercepted (2).

Final national trends

The nation's defensive coordinators had something to cheer about for a change as the final national Division I-A trends chart on this page shows.

Scoring dropped 2.6 points per game to 46.2 from last year's all-time-high 48.8 and the new narrower field-goal width accounted for less than half of the decrease, believe it or not. Field goals per game declined 0.39 per game, or 1.17 points per game, accounting for 45 percent of the drop.

Field-goal accuracy went down only to 59.7 percent from 67 percent. That is a good performance because the target actually is 20.7 percent smaller. Total attempts from less than 40 yards actually were six more this fall, while attempts from 40 yards or more were 105 fewer. Oddly, accuracy from long range (40 plus) went down only a little bit, while the accuracy drop was much bigger from closer range. It seems safe to assume that only the better kickers were allowed to try the longer ones.

For instance, accuracy was only 60 percent from 30-39 yards vs. 73.5 last year, but 47.9 at 40-49 vs. 51.7 last year and 34.4 from 50-plus vs. 35.6 in 1990.

Toughest schedules

South Carolina heads this season's final toughest-schedule list. Its I-A opponents won 56, lost 30 and tied two against other I-A foes for a .648 percentage when not playing South Carolina.

Once-beaten Florida finished second at .639, Maryland's schedule was third at .613, and Louisiana State nudged preseason leader Florida State for fourth, .6122 to .6121. Others in the top 10 are Southern California .609, Oklahoma State .605, Northern Illinois .590, Tennessee .589 and Houston .585.

SEC back on top

The Southeastern Conference, once the perennial leader, is back on top as the Division I-A nonconference champion, with the 1990 champion, the Atlantic Coast Conference, a distant second:

Division II leaders

Western State quarterback Jayson Merrill, a career record-setter in total offense yards per game (281), shares the Division II spotlight with Wofford junior Shawn Graves, already the all-time, all-divisions leader in rushing by quarterbacks with a year to go.

Merrill, the season champion in both total offense (336.9) and passing efficiency (187.9 rating points third highest), completed 328 passes in his two-season, 20-game career and 56 went for touchdowns.

Indiana's (Pennsylvania) Tony Aliucci set the all-divisions career passing-efficiency mark at 164.4 for those with at least 325 completions.

Chris Petersen, whose last season at Division II UC Davis was 1986, held the former all-divisions career mark of 164 that Aliucci and Merrill (164.2) each surpassed.

Grand Valley State senior Jack Hull at 149.5 is fourth on the all-time, all-divisions list using a 475 minimum, trailing only Detmer, McMahon and Steve Young, all from Brigham Young.

With 4,138 rushing yards, Graves 5-8 and 160 pounds) smashed the 3,612 by Dee Dowis, whose career at Division I-A Air Force ended in 1989. Graves has a chance to finish high on the all-divisions career rushing list led by tailback Johnny Bailey of Division II Texas A&I. Bailey had 6,320 yards in 1986 through 1989. Graves, by maintaining his current career average, would finish with 5,607.

Emporia State sophomore Quincy Tillman is a double champion in rushing (171.6) and scoring (12.7), with Cal State Sacramento's Troy Mills second in both.

In receiving, the yardage champion is Missouri Southern State's Rod Smith at 130.8 per game and the catches winner is Cal State Hayward's Jesse Lopez at 8.6. Merrill's favorite receiver, Tyrone Johnson, averaged 32.5 yards per catch, the best for a receiver with a minimum of 30 catches (1,039 on 32).

Portland State's John Charles is right behind Merrill in passing efficiency at 185.5—good for the title almost any other year.

Other champions are Doug O'Neill of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo in punting at 45.1, Billy Watkins of East Texas State in field goals per game at 1.36, Shippensburg's Jeff Fickes in interceptions at 1.1 per game, Douglas Grant of Savannah State in punt-return average at 17.4 and Winston Horsham of Shippensburg in kickoff-return average at 35.7.

In the team rankings, Western State is a triple champion in offense.

Division III leaders

Allegheny junior Stanley Drayton smashed the season scoring records, Illinois Wesleyan junior Chris Bissaillon set a career record for touchdown catches with one year left and Western Maryland's Eric Frees rushed for a second-best 5,281 career yards to lead the Division III individual field.

Drayton averaged 16.8 points per game and scored 28 touchdowns and 168 total points to smash records set by Simpson's Ricky Gales (16.6, 26 and 166, respectively). Drayton also finished 10th in rushing, where the champion is Albion's Hank Wineman at 181 yards per game—fourth highest in III history.

Bissaillon, second in receiving yards per game and fourth in catches per game this season, already has 43 career TD catches—17 this season. That breaks the 39 by Trenton State's John Aromando (last season 1981).

Frees ranks seventh on the all-time, all-divisions career rushing list and trails only Plymouth State's Joe Dudek in Division III history.

Pat Mayhew of St. John's (Minnesota) is the passing champion at 181 rating points—third highest in division history. He led with 30 touchdown passes and had just four intercepted.

In total offense, the winner is Willie Reyna of LaVerne at 329.1—fifth highest. Ron Severance of Otterbein won in catches per game at 8.5 and Rodd Patten of Framingham State in receiving yards per game at 119.5.

On the career charts, Carleton's Jim Bradford finished third in receiving yards at 3,719 and Centre's Jim McDaniel fourth in scoring on 324 points.

The other champions were Chicago's Jeff Stolte in punting at 42.5, Union's (New York) Greg Harrison in field goals at 1.33 per game, Millsaps' Murray Meadows in interceptions at 1.2 per game, Augustana's (Illinois) Jordan Nixon in punt-return average at 17.5 and Albion's Tom Reason in kickoff-return average at 32.5.

In the team rankings, Washington and Jefferson is a triple champion in defense and St. John's (Minnesota) a double champion in offense.

taken a while for things to click, but we're a close-knit team... It's just the type of people Steve recruited that's pulled this program together."

It wasn't easy. The early thrill of fall camp, the time generally used to set goals, drill fundamentals, condition like crazy and get acquainted with the new players, became an emotional whirlwind when Lowe was diagnosed with cancer.

The Badgers not only had to deal with Lowe's death but with the ensuing move of Margie Fitzpatrick from assistant to interim head coach. Also, assistant coach Liz Hert was new to the system, as were four freshmen who were destined to see considerable court time.

"What Steve instilled in those kids is something that can never be taken away," University of Illinois, Champaign, coach Mike Hebert said. "And having Marge continue, someone who had been around during the growth of the program, was a smart move... And Marge had the real good sense to not mess up what was in place. She was the right person to keep things evolving along the lines Steve had set forth."

Time to play

Basically, there was one weekend to sift through feelings about Lowe's death. The following weekend, it was time to play ball.

Many thought they would pick up where their season of firsts—first Big Ten championship, first NCAA tournament appearance had left off. That was a predictable yet unrealistic expectation.

Early in the season when they won matches, often their happiness was tainted by the feeling they hadn't played well. Losses weren't acceptable. They appeared to want and desperately need something to go right for them.

"I think we just had to concentrate on not putting too much pressure on ourselves because of all the things that were happening," senior Liz Tortorello said.

Gradually, the players and coaches adapted. It happened to each one in a different way and at a different time.

"I think for me it happened when I almost had a couple of nervous breakdowns during games," Tortorello said. "That's when I realized it was too much for us to handle all by ourselves... and after that point I just said, 'This is just volleyball and it's just a game and you're supposed to have fun.'"

Turning point

Most of the Badgers quickly point to the October 26 Pennsylvania State University match in University Park, Pennsylvania, as a crucial stage in the maturation of the team. The Badgers won the first two games against a team ranked 19th in the NCAA poll at the time, then lost the match in five games.

"I've never been so upset after a game just because we did play so well," Simenson said. "That was tough because you think things are starting to come together as far as communication and everyone's chemistry out on the court, yet you still don't pull off a win. For me, that was like a turning point, and the goal was just to keep that chemistry because that felt good, even though the ending didn't."

Over the second half of the Big Ten season, the Badgers won eight of 10 matches, lifting themselves into a tie for second in the conference. They finished 15-5 in the Big Ten, including a critical five-game victory over Illinois in their penultimate match of the season, and 22-9 overall and anxiously awaited the announcement of NCAA tournament bids.

"I just know (Steve's) up there looking at us," Simenson said. "I can feel his presence, and I have a feeling he pulled some strings for us as far as the NCAA tournament. I feel like he had something to do with that, and it makes me so happy to feel that he is still here."

Hebert, whose Illini teams were some of Lowe's favorite targets, talked with Lowe about the 1991 season over the summer, each making predictions for his team.

"Steve felt this team was really going to have to fight to repeat (as Big Ten champions)," Hebert said. "He thought Ohio State, Illinois and Penn State were more capable of winning first place... and to have Wisconsin finish where Steve thought they would is a real tribute to him. Despite the emotional drain of Steve's death, the memories of what Steve gave them stayed with them and drove them through the season."

Memories remain

After the Badgers have put in their court time for the season, those memories of Lowe—like his electrically charged sideline antics, his affection for beginning or interrupting practice to play a game of basketball or football with a volleyball, and his warm personality—are bound to come rushing back even more prominently and with more frequency.

"I wouldn't be here if not for him, and the more I'm in this role, the more I realize how much I learned from him," said Fitzpatrick, who also played two seasons for Lowe at Wisconsin. "A lot of different emotions pass through my mind at different phases. I really haven't had time to think it through at a personal level, and I probably will be dealing with it for quite some time."

Rink record

A contest November 16 between the host University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, and University of Wisconsin, Madison, drew 15,712 fans, the most ever for a regular-season hockey game involving NCAA member institutions. The Met Center crowd, which saw Minnesota defeat Wisconsin, 4-1, was slightly larger than the 15,684 fans who saw a game between Michigan State University and the University of Michigan in Detroit's Joe Louis Arena last February. Minnesota and Wisconsin, along with two other Western Collegiate Hockey Association teams, regularly draw near-capacity crowds for their home games.

After being selected second overall in the 1962 NFL draft, Olsen spent 15 years with the Los Angeles Rams, anchoring the famous "Fearsome Foursome" defensive line. He was named to the Pro Bowl 14 times and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1982. Among the many awards Olsen, who is also a member of the National High School Hall of Fame, earned during his pro career was the 1974 Maxwell Award as the NFL's most valuable player.

Olsen also has crafted an outstanding television acting career. He costarred with Michael Landon on the top-rated "Little House on the Prairie," which led to starring roles in the series "Father Murphy," "Fathers and Sons," and "Aaron's Way."

In addition to his numerous professional ventures, Olsen has been active in the Multiple Sclerosis Society for 16 years and currently is vice-president of its board of trustees. He also is involved in Child Help USA, an organization that works with abused and neglected children, and the Children's Miracle Network Telethon, which he has cohosted since its inception in 1983 and which has raised hundreds of millions of dollars for children's hospitals nationwide.

Taping prompts lawsuit by coach

University of Nevada, Las Vegas, assistant men's basketball coach Tim Grgurich has filed a lawsuit against the school, saying efforts were made to destroy his coaching career by secretly videotaping a conditioning class he taught.

The lawsuit says Nevada-Las Vegas officials tried to embarrass him and "convict him of NCAA violations" by releasing the videotapes.

Nevada-Las Vegas legal counsel Brad Booke, who ordered the secret tapings and then later apologized for them, has said he is concerned the tapes may show violations of NCAA rules.

The 27-page complaint, prepared by Grgurich's attorney, alleges violation of the coach's civil rights in connection with the taping and subsequent meetings by university regents.

sequent meetings by university regents.

The lawsuit, filed in a state district court December 4, also charged that the university failed to deal with Grgurich in good faith, breached his employment contract and invaded his right to privacy with the taping. The filing says Grgurich was "a loyal and trusted employee for approximately 12 years."

Nevada-Las Vegas President Robert C. Maxson was named a co-defendant in the suit, which claims Maxson negligently failed to prevent the tapings or the release of the "illegal fruits" to the media.

The lawsuit also contends that "selective" release of the tapes caused

Grgurich to be placed in a "false light in regard to certain NCAA rules."

The suit contends Grgurich has suffered "emotional anguish" and has been "scorned by his colleagues, exposed to contempt and has suffered injury to his career and loss of reputation and standing in the athletics community."

Booke told The Associated Press that he knew of no grounds on which the lawsuit would succeed.

"We believed at the beginning and we still believe there was no violation of any legal rights," Booke said. "The question is, 'Do you have a reasonable expectation of privacy in a public building?' It's the ultimate question."

Student-athlete loses eligibility at Syracuse

The NCAA Eligibility Committee decided December 5 not to restore Conrad McRae's eligibility to play intercollegiate basketball at Syracuse University. The committee will recommend, however, that if McRae decides to transfer, he will be immediately eligible to play basketball at another NCAA member institution.

In its continuing review of its men's basketball program, Syracuse last week declared McRae ineligible after discovering violations of NCAA recruiting legislation. The university then appealed to the Eligibility Committee for restoration of McRae's eligibility.

Robert M. Sweazy, faculty athletics representative at Texas Tech University and chair of the Eligibility Committee, said the committee unanimously believed Syracuse gained a substantial advantage during the recruitment of McRae. The committee found that members of the university's men's basketball staff and a representative of the university's athletics interests had several contacts with McRae and members of his family during his junior year in high school—a period when such contact is impermissible under NCAA legislation. These contacts included the transporting of McRae from his home in New York City to several Syracuse basketball games.

"Decisions like this that involve recruiting violations are troublesome to the committee," Sweazy said. "because student-athletes often are negatively impacted by the actions of staff members at an NCAA member institution or a representative of that institution's athletics interests. In order to minimize that negative impact, the committee will recommend to the NCAA Council that, should McRae decide to transfer, the normal one-year residency requirement be waived so that he may be immediately eligible to compete at another institution."

"I want to stress," Sweazy continued, "that neither this committee nor the NCAA staff caused this unfortunate circumstance. The Syracuse University basketball staff and a representative of its athletics interests allowed this to occur by violating recruiting rules that the NCAA members have voluntarily adopted.

"For us to allow Syracuse to benefit from those improper contacts," Sweazy said, "would be unfair to the hundreds of other NCAA member institutions that recruit within the framework of their rules."

Syracuse can appeal the Eligibility Committee's decision to the NCAA Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals, a five-person committee of administrators from NCAA Division I institutions.

State legislation relating to athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect or is otherwise of interest to the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions.

Set forth below is a list of nine bills from four states. The reports includes four bills that have been introduced, and five pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (see the October 14, 1991, issue of The NCAA News). Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of December 4, 1991. Listed bills were selected for inclusion in this report from a larger pool of bills concerning sports, and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned. As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in the report by subject.

Utah volleyball squad encourages blind player in battle to compete

University of Utah women's volleyball players recently presented an autographed ball to prep player Gia Thronsen, a member of the St. Ann's School team who has overcome a handicap that would keep many from even considering a competitive sport. Born with cataracts, Thronsen is legally blind.

Special prescription contact lenses allow Thronsen to see a volleyball when it's within three or four feet, and she has adapted well to the sport.

"To see Gia overcome her physical challenge is an inspiration to our team," said Utah head coach Beth Launiere. "We'd like to be a small inspiration to Gia and give her positive reinforcement to continue playing."

Doesn't sound like it'll take much. "It's been fun being with people," said Thronsen, who must use a special monocular to see classroom chalkboards. "I've had a lot of fun being part of a team, and I hope I can do it again next year."

Washam's off-season training is unique

When he's not breaking through opponents' offensive lines, University of San Diego defensive lineman Jim Washam spends time on his family's ranch breaking horses mostly Arabians and quarter horses.

"Each year, Jim comes to camp in August looking like he's just played an entire season," said defensive coordinator Kevin McGarry. "He's shown up with broken ribs and bruises but has played with pain. He's flat-out mean on the field."

"Horses are very smart," said

Briefly in the News

Washam, who estimates he's trained 40 horses in the past 14 years. "You treat a new horse like it's going to kill you. It takes a certain talent because it doesn't always come natural. You have to earn their respect."

On the other hand, . . . "Hey," Washam added. "I would rather go against a horse than half the guys I face out there (on the football field)."

Awards and honors

Indiana University, Bloomington, men's basketball coach Bob Knight was honored recently at the U.S. Military Academy—the school that gave him his first head coaching job after giving him his first basketball coaching opportunity of any kind (as an assistant).

Knight returned to a hero's welcome at West Point, where his contributions to Army's basketball heritage and the game in general were recognized by hundreds of admirers and several of his former players.

"People don't know how I feel about this place," Knight said. "This is the best thing that's ever been done for me."

Dartmouth College alumnus Reggie Williams recently was honored by the school for his personal and professional achievements. He was presented with the Presidential Medal for Outstanding Leadership and Achievement.

Also recognized was Dartmouth alumnus David R. Gavitt, president of USA Basketball and former chair of the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

When Duke University hosted North Carolina State University in a November 16 football game, the 50th anniversary of one of college football's most interesting games was celebrated.

Because of Japan's invasion of Pearl Harbor in December 1941, large crowds were banned from America's West Coast. For that reason, the 1942 Rose Bowl became a home game for Duke. The Blue Devils hosted Oregon State University in the only Rose Bowl ever played outside Pasadena, California. Oregon State won, 20-16, for the only Rose Bowl crown in school history.

Thirty-nine members of the two teams were on hand for the anniversary celebration.

Anybody earlier?

Arkansas State University and the University of Arkansas, Little Rock, played a Sun Belt Conference men's basketball game November 30. Tom Burnett, Sun Belt director of communications, wants to know if any league game has been played earlier in recent memory.

Fund-raising news

University of North Carolina, Wilmington, Chancellor James R. Leutz; athletics director Paul A.

Changing career paths by degrees

After three years of college-credit courses, University of Cincinnati student-athlete Shannon Gers decided that nursing—not numbers—was her calling.

"Accounting would have been nice," she said, "but I want to be in a hands-on situation where I can make an impact. Athletics taught me leadership and initiative, and I want to keep on using the things I learned on the (soccer) playing field in my job."

Gers had a 3,800 grade-point average (4,000 scale) in accounting and four quarters of cooperative work experience with the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen.

"It was a tough decision," she said of the change in majors, "because I was going to be done this spring (1992)... especially when I had to tell my parents I would be in school for another year. But they understand... After all, what is most important is to be happy with your work."

Miller and board of trustees chair Robert Warwick are leading the Chancellor's Challenge, a drive to raise $100,000 for Seahawk athletics. "A lot of prominent individuals in Wilmington have been asked to give $1,000 (each) to help us give a quick boost to the scholarship funds of the Seahawk Club," Miller said.

Old Dominion University's December 7 home basketball game against Virginia Commonwealth University has been designated "Library Night." All proceeds from the game will be donated to the Old Dominion library.

Troy State University's Athletics Challenge Funds has exceeded its initial goal of $1 million, school officials announced. Formed in May 1990, the goal of the program was to raise funds for use in Troy State's move to Division I (I-AA in football).

"This achievement is a tribute to the loyalty and dedication of Troy State's many alumni and friends," said Chancellor Jack Hawkins Jr. "Passing the goal augurs well for our plans for university wide advancement through private funding."

Plans have been announced to expand the University of Georgia Foundation's annual fund-raising "Phonathon," and the school's athletics board has agreed to underwrite the $500,000 cost of the all-alumni telephone campaign. The expansion provided with athletics-department help will allow the school to attempt contact with more than 125,000 alumni.
