Academic standards highlight Convention

The NCAA Presidents Commission's attempts to strengthen academic requirements for athletics eligibility represent the highlight of the agenda for the 86th annual NCAA Convention January 7-10 in Anaheim, California—but the sometimes controversial nature of such proposals may not result in a record attendance.

NCAA annual Conventions have established new attendance marks every year since 1988, but preregistrations this year indicate that the total in Anaheim may fall slightly below the mark of 2,366 set last January in Nashville.

Throughout the year, various representatives of member institutions indicated that fewer delegates would be attending from those schools because of the economy, and that may be the explanation for the slight drop in preregistrations.

As of December 27, a total of 2,242 persons had preregistered, 51 fewer than on a comparable date last year when 2,293 had preregistered as of December 28.

Last year's eventual Convention record of 2,366 was 73 higher than the preregistration total. If that pattern holds, this year's gathering may attract 2,300 or more but would not reach the record of last year. Some who preregister do not attend the Convention, but they usually are offset by late registrants.

The 1990 Convention in Dallas was the first in NCAA history to exceed 2,000 when 2,171 attended. Then came the jump to 2,366 in Nashville last January. Before that, there were four consecutive Conventions in the 1,800 range—1,896 in San Francisco in 1989, 1,816 in Nashville in 1988, 1,820 in San Diego in 1987 and 1,861 in New Orleans in 1986.

Only 10 years ago, 1,315 attended the 1982 Convention in Houston—and that set a record at the time.

A day shorter

The Convention format is one day shorter this year, and that is largely due to the fact that far more legislation will be dealt with in the division (and Division I subdivision) business sessions than ever before.

Where last year's general business session was scheduled to fill four half-days, this year's should not take more than two—the afternoon session Thursday and a morning

Convention highlights

- Annual "State of the Association" address by Executive Director Richard D. Schultz, opening business session, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.
- Reception for all delegates, 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.
- Special breakfast for chief executive officers, 6:30 a.m. Wednesday.
- Division and subdivision business sessions begin at 8 a.m. Wednesday; division sessions continue to noon Thursday.
- Reception for CEOs, 5:30 p.m. Wednesday.
- 27th annual honors program, dinner, 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.
- Luncheons for all delegates, noon Wednesday and Thursday.
- General business session begins at 1:30 p.m. Thursday and continues to noon Friday as needed.

session Friday. It may not require all of that.

That came about when the membership adopted legislation last January to specify that in future Conventions all federated legislation (on which each division or subdivision can act independently) would be voted upon in the appropriate division or subdivision business sessions, rather than being held to the general session if it applied to more than one division.

As a result, there will be 152 basic votes in the subdivision and division sessions this year, compared to just 60 a year ago. Other than the consent package, there will be only 37 proposals left for the general session to deal with.

Another way to look at it: Last year, exactly 50 percent of all proposals in the Convention publications were to be acted upon in the general business session. This year, that percentage is only 32.7.

The Association also will be using the electronic voting system for the second year, and efforts have been made since last January to refine and speed that process. A story on electronic voting appears on page 13 of this issue of The NCAA News.

Other features

• The Association will use a convention center, in addition to the Convention headquarters hotel, for the first time. Some Divisions II and III business sessions and some conference meetings will be held in the Anaheim Convention Center, adjacent to the Hilton and Towers.

• A tote bag has been added to the amenities provided to Convention delegates. With the Convention materials and the electronic voting units to handle, the tote bag should prove to be a popular addition.

• Delegates again will receive the popular NCAA calendar booklet as a memento.

• Delegates again will have luncheons provided on the primary voting days, Wednesday and Thursday.

• The NCAA interpretations center, staffed by members of the legislative services department, again will be available near the registration

Fuzak presided at four Conventions

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

No NCAA president in the past 40 years has presided over more Conventions than John A. "Jack" Fuzak.

Fuzak, president in 1975 and 1976, chaired the second special Convention in August 1975; the third special Convention in January 1976 (and the regular Convention immediately following), and the regular Convention in January 1977.

Fuzak took over the presidency during turbulent times. Economic issues were at the forefront, prompting the two special Conventions. The NCAA's enforcement proceedings were under attack, and the issue of women's athletics under an NCAA umbrella was beginning to gain support.

"It was very difficult to chair those meetings," said Fuzak, who was the faculty athletics representative for Michigan State University. "I think I had more than my share."

The first Convention he chaired was the special Convention in Chicago, Illinois, August 14-15, 1975. It is referred to as the "economy Convention" since all items on the agenda were tied directly or indirectly to economics. Maximum awards of financial aid, squad limitations and size of coaching staffs dotted the agenda. The schedule allowed only for a two-day meeting, and the event did not go smoothly.

"Part of the problem was that there were so many amendments-to-amendments," Fuzak said. "We didn't even come close to completing the business."

With well over 100 amendments-to-amendments, the final number of proposals was 181, which left Fuzak busy ruling on parliamentary procedure.

Confusion

"Some of the presidents were not familiar with our requirement that an amendment-to-the-amendment could not increase the degree of modification from what was in existence," Fuzak said.

For instance, Fuzak said, on a proposal to reduce the number of football grants in Division I from 120 to 95, a delegate might try to put in an amendment to reduce the limit to 85. That was out of order

Commission proposals draw strong support

The legislative proposals being sponsored by the NCAA Presidents Commission at the 1992 Convention have picked up strong support from a number of sources.

As reported in the December 25 issue of The NCAA News, a poll of the chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions reflected support for every Commission-sponsored amendment, by percentages ranging from 60 to nearly 100.

That poll was conducted for the Commission in November and early December by its consultants, former NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey of Auburn University and former Commission Chair John W. Ryan, president emeritus of Indiana University.

Also expressing support for the Commission's reform efforts was the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics. Several higher education organizations—including the American Council on Education and the Association of Governing Boards—sent mailings to chief executives across the country, expressing support for the Commission's proposed legislation and

Eleven new members elected to Commission

Eleven new members will join the NCAA Presidents Commission upon adjournment of the 1992 Convention in Anaheim, and another member has been reelected to a full, four-year term.

The new and reelected members were chosen in a mail nominating and electing procedure by their peers at NCAA member institutions in their respective divisions, except that the chief executive officers at institutions in Division I-A conferences select their Commission representatives. Members serve four-year terms, or the remainder of a vacant term in the case of interim replacements.

Blockbuster Bowl offer jeopardizes alliance

Blockbuster Entertainment Corp. likely will withdraw its sponsorship of the Blockbuster Bowl after next year if an alliance involving four other bowls becomes reality, company chair H. Wayne Huizenga says.

Huizenga has offered a payout of $4.3 million a team if the Big East and Atlantic Coast Conferences send their champions to the Blockbuster Bowl each year, according to The Associated Press. It is believed that such an agreement would sink the new alliance, which is to begin next year.

Members of the proposed coalition, including Big East and ACC representatives, are to discuss Huizenga's offer at a meeting January 5, two days before the NCAA Convention in Anaheim.

"The reason for all this is we want to stay in the bowl business," Huizenga told The Miami Herald. "And if the four-bowl alliance takes place, we're not going to be in the bowl business.

"If we're not in the alliance, then we'll be a lesser bowl, and that's not Blockbuster's style. If we're not in the top four, we'll probably go off and do something else."

Sponsorship of a golf or tennis tournament is a possible alternative, Huizenga said.

Huizenga's original sponsorship agreement with Raycom, the Blockbuster Bowl organizer, ends in 1992, but there is an option to renew the agreement available then and every five years thereafter.

The proposed alliance would involve the Federal Express Orange, Mobil Cotton, USF&G Sugar and Fiesta Bowls, as well as the ACC, Big East and University of Notre Dame.

Interpretations related to 1992 NCAA Convention proposals

The following is a list of remaining NCAA Interpretations Committee decisions related to 1992 Convention proposals. Please note that these interpretations will be reviewed at the pre-Convention meeting by the NCAA Council, and a compilation of all interpretations will be distributed at the Convention.

1992 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 7—Expenses for outside competition—bona fide amateur competition during Christmas and spring vacation periods.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 7 do not preclude a member institution from providing expenses for a student-athlete to participate in bona fide amateur competition during the Christmas vacation period that begins prior to the adjournment of the 1992 Convention, even if such competition does not conclude until subsequent to the adjournment of the Convention. [References: 14.02.6.1 (exempted events) and 16.8.1.3-(c) (other competition)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 20—Satisfactory-progress—regular academic year.

The Interpretations Committee reviewed the provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 20 and determined the following:

1. The requirement that 75 percent of credit hours used by a student-athlete to fulfill satisfactory-progress requirements must be earned during the regular academic year applies to the minimum number of hours necessary to meet satisfactory-progress requirements and not to all credits earned by the student-athlete. For example, a student-athlete who earns 30 semester hours during the freshman year needs to earn only 18 (24 x .75 = 18) of those hours during the regular academic year, since only 24 hours are required for satisfactory-progress purposes.

2. A student-athlete may utilize hours earned from any courses taken during a session subsequent to the opening of the institution's fall term until the conclusion of the institution's commencement exercises at the conclusion of the spring term in satisfying the requirement that 75 percent of the credit hours used by a student-athlete to fulfill satisfactory-progress requirements must be earned during the regular academic year. [Reference: 14.5.2.1 (regular academic year)]

3. A student-athlete who qualifies for an exception or waiver to the satisfactory-progress rule set forth in Bylaws 14.5.4 and 14.5.5 may prorate the 75-percent requirement based on the number of hours the student-athlete must earn to meet satisfactory-progress requirements. For example, a student-athlete beginning his or her second year of enrollment at the certifying institution who qualifies for a missed term during the freshman year must earn nine (12 x .75) of those hours during the regular academic year. The committee recommended that the Council consider sponsoring an amendment to Proposal No. 21 to provide limited waiver opportunities for student-athletes who do not meet the 75-percent requirement due to extenuating circumstances.

4. If the eligibility of the student-athlete is based on the 12-hours-per-term average of cumulative credit set forth in 14.5.2-(a), it is permissible for the student-athlete to bank credit hours during the academic year and utilize such hours in meeting the 75-percent requirement in subsequent years. For example, if a student-athlete must earn 48 hours during the student's first two academic years to meet satisfactory progress, the student must earn at least 36 (48 x .75 = 36) of those hours during the regular academic year.

5. Hours earned at the certifying institution during the summer, including the summer prior to initial enrollment, may not be utilized to satisfy the requirement that 75 percent of credit hours used by a student-athlete to fulfill satisfactory-progress requirements must be earned during the regular academic year.

6. The NCAA Council, during its October 7, 1991, meeting, determined that a student-athlete who receives an incomplete grade in a course taken during the academic year may utilize the course to satisfy the requirement that 75 percent of credit hours used by a student-athlete to fulfill satisfactory-progress requirements must be earned during the regular academic year, provided the provisions of Bylaw 14.5.3.7 have been satisfied. Thus, once an incomplete grade has been removed, the course with the acceptable grade shall be counted either during the term in which the student-athlete initially enrolled in the course or during the term in which the incomplete grade was removed and acceptable credit was awarded.

[Reference: 14.5.2.1 (regular academic year)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 21—Satisfactory progress—fulfillment of degree requirements and minimum grade-point average.

The committee reviewed the provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 21-B and determined the following:

1. The committee affirmed an NCAA Academic Requirements Committee interpretation that the cumulative minimum grade-point average required for graduation is based on the institution's overall grade-point average required for graduation for purposes of meeting the requirements of this legislation.

2. If the institution does not have an overall grade-point average for graduation (i.e., the grade-point average requirements are specific to the student's degree program), it is permissible to utilize the lowest grade-point average required for any of the institution's degree programs in determining the cumulative minimum grade-point average required for graduation for purposes of meeting the requirements of this legislation.

3. If a student-athlete is enrolled in a degree program that has a specific grade-point average requirement, it may be necessary to meet that requirement in determining whether the student-athlete is considered to be in "good academic standing" at that institution. [Reference: 14.5.2.1 (minimum grade-point average)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 28—Coaches' athletically related income

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 28 apply only to full-time coaches (head or assistant) and restricted-earnings coaches, but are not applicable to other coaching staff members (e.g., volunteer coaches). In addition, all athletically related income and/or benefits from sources outside the institution (regardless of the amount) must receive the necessary written approval from the institution's chief executive officer. The committee recommended that the Council consider sponsoring an amendment to Proposal No. 28 to establish a minimum amount of income that must be received from any source before a coaching staff member must receive prior written approval from the institution's chief executive officer. [Reference: 11.2.2, 11.3.2.5 and 11.3.2.7]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 68-1—Cancellation of financial aid.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 68-1 preclude an institution from replacing a counter under the provisions of Bylaws 15.5.2.2 and 15.5.4.1 during the term in which the aid was graduated or canceled. [Reference: 15.3.4.1-(d) (graduation or cancellation permitted); 15.5.2.2 and 15.5.4.1 (voluntary withdrawal)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 69—Tuition awards—former student-athletes.

The committee reviewed the provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 69 and determined the following:

1. The requirement that member institutions provide full tuition awards to former student-athletes who received full athletic grants-in-aid is applicable to all student-athletes who have exhausted athletics eligibility (as opposed to student-athletes who have exhausted eligibility for athletics financial aid). [Note: The committee consulted sponsors of Proposal No. 69 prior to rendering its decision.]

2. An institution must provide the student-athlete with financial aid subsequent to the student-athlete exhausting eligibility until the student-athlete graduates only if the student-athlete has received a full athletics grant-in-aid during the academic year in which the student has exhausted his or her athletics eligibility.

3. If a student-athlete has received a full athletics grant while attending an institution other than the certifying institution, the certifying institution is not obligated to provide the student-athlete with financial aid subsequent to the student-athlete exhausting athletics eligibility at the certifying institution, unless the student-athlete has received a full athletics grant-in-aid from the certifying institution during the academic year in which the student-athlete has exhausted his or her athletics eligibility.

4. The provisions of Proposal No. 69-C are applicable only to a student-athlete who has received a full athletics grant-in-aid during the academic year in which the student has exhausted his or her athletics eligibility and not to a student-athlete who has received a combination of athletics aid and nonathletics aid that equals the value of a full grant-in-aid.

[References: 15.01.5.1, 15.3.1.5 and 16.3.1.2 (tuition awards to former student-athletes)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 88—Divisions I and II playing and practice seasons—Individual sports.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 88 permit a coach to be involved with more than one student-athlete at a time during summer workout sessions (e.g., group workout), provided the request for such assistance is initiated by each student-athlete. [Reference: 17.02.1.2.2 (Divisions I and II—summer workout sessions in individual sports)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 18—Official visit prior to early signing period.

The committee reviewed the provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 18 and determined the following:

1. It is necessary for the institution to receive an official academic transcript and a Form 48-H from the high school in order to verify that the prospect has satisfied the 2,000 grade-point average requirement in at least seven core courses.

2. Although the institution is not required to utilize a Form 48-C for purposes of certifying the prospect's eligibility under this proposal, it is necessary for the institution to utilize some form of written documentation verifying that the prospect has satisfied the core-curriculum and grade-point average requirements.

3. The test score utilized by the institution must be presented in writing through an official high-school or test agency document, but does not have to be received directly from the testing agency.

[Reference: 13.7.1.2.4 (academic credentials for official visit prior to early signing period)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 34—Division I-AAA football.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 34-C do not preclude a member institution that has applied for Division I reclassification and is in the process of satisfying the two-year compliance period for Division I membership from being classified in Division I-AAA football. [Reference: 20.4.1.1.1 (Division I-AAA football eligibility)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 66—Maximum initial grants-in-aid—partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 66 do not preclude a partial qualifier or nonqualifier who is not eligible to receive athletically related aid in accordance with the proposal from receiving institutional aid unrelated to athletics subsequent to the first academic year in residence. [Reference: 15.5.6 (partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers)]

1992 Convention Proposal No. 52—Restricted-earnings coach—combination option.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 52 do allow a member institution to combine two restricted-earnings positions into one coaching position on two occasions during each academic year. [Note: The adoption of this proposal would render moot Interpretation I-4, Appendix E, page 191.] In addition, an institution that combines three positions into one coaching position may not provide compensation to the remaining restricted-earnings coach

Big Ten produces statement of principles

The Big Ten Conference has formulated a Statement of Guiding Principles that will serve as the league's philosophical base.

Big Ten Assistant Commissioner Phyllis L. Howlett said frequent turnover within the conference led to a decision to get the league's guiding principles on paper. The project, which took about a year, was completed in September.

The NCAA's statement of principles, which appears at the front of the NCAA Manual, frequently was used as a reference, Howlett said. Although the Big Ten principles do not have direct legislative authority, she said they could be cited as reason for taking an action (for example, denying competition at a facility that practices discrimination).

The primary purpose of the statement is legislative. "We needed a self-statement so that when legislation was written, we would have a yardstick to measure whether it was consistent," Howlett said.

Although the statement has been available only for three months, Howlett said it already has proven helpful. "It's not so recent that we haven't had time to utter the magic words: 'Is it consistent with principle?'" Howlett said.

The document was formulated by an ad hoc committee representing each of the conference's 11 institutions. The Big Ten Joint Group (faculty athletics representatives, athletics directors and senior women athletics administrators) and Council of Presidents approved the document.

The principles are as follows:

Academic priority

The Big Ten Conference recognizes the transcendent priority of a student-athlete's academic collegiate experience. It places its highest values upon high academic values. The student-athlete is student first, athlete second.

Class-time precedence

Big Ten student-athletes have the right to regularly prepare for and attend classes and final examinations without significant interruption from athletics participation. Each conference member institution will adopt and adhere to policies which respect the academic priority of its student-athletes.

Graduation commitment

Each institution will provide every student-athlete the opportunity to earn a baccalaureate degree. Each student-athlete shall take full advantage of the opportunity to complete a degree successfully.

Institutional responsibility

The Big Ten Conference recognizes the imperative of institutional control over intercollegiate athletics programs.

Presidential authority and faculty control

The governance of the Big Ten Conference depends upon the concept of presidential or chancellorian authority. The principle of faculty control of the joint group shall be effectuated by authority delegated by the Council of Presidents. Further, member institutions should select faculty representatives for a significant number of years, so as to achieve continuity in the carrying forth of conference academic principles and priorities and to permit the development of experienced faculty athletics leaders for both the conference and the NCAA. The Big Ten values the concept of one institution/one vote in a system of shared governance.

National leadership

The Big Ten Conference, the commissioner, the conference office staff and its constituent members shall play an active leadership role in representing the values of its institutions in intercollegiate athletics at the national level.

Diverse representation

The joint group shall assure that the viewpoints of diverse groups in the Big Ten are considered in the governance of the conference.

Sportslike behavior

The student-athletes of a member institution and individuals employed by or associated with that institution shall conduct themselves with honesty and sportslike behavior in accordance with the rules and agreements of the Big Ten Conference.

Equity

All member universities shall assure the fair distribution of resources, access to facilities, and treatment of student-athletes and personnel.

The Big Ten acknowledges a responsibility to assert the value of achieving equal participation by men and women in intercollegiate sports.

Competitive broad-based equity

The conference is committed to providing broad-based equitable opportunities for men and women student-athletes, coaches and administrators.

Student-athlete experience

The intercollegiate athletics program of each member institution shall be conducted in a manner designed to protect and enhance the academic, physical and social development of its student-athletes.

Competition/championships

The determination of a champion in each conference sport is a historic and valuable function of the conference. The conference championship represents the culmination of each season's competitive efforts for the vast majority of Big Ten student-athletes. The student-athletes' participation in determination of the conference champion shall reflect the high value the conference places on these events.

Competition/antidiscrimination

The Big Ten Conference shall not schedule any regular-season or post-season conference competition at sites, venues or facilities which have membership requirements or practices which result in discrimination on the basis of race, gender, national origin or religion.

Each Big Ten institution shall have a written policy which prohibits student-athletes representing the institution from participation at sites, facilities or venues which have membership requirements or practices which result in discrimination on the basis of race, gender, national origin or religion.

Competition/business affairs

The conference athletics administrators and conference office shall make every effort in the management and administration of the existing television agreements and related schedules to reduce missed class time and other intrusions into student life.

Universities that accommodate schedule changes requested by the conference should not be penalized financially for their efforts, particularly non-income-generating sports.

Conference finances

All member institutions shall share equally in supporting the cost of conference office operations.

Governance involvement

Each member of the joint group has an affirmative obligation to accept and participate in various ad hoc, standing or governance committee assignments.

Business-revenue sharing

The conference shall promote competitive equality and collegiality through the distribution of television revenues, tournament and bowl receipts, and football gate receipts.

The principle of nourishing and maintaining the concept of conference shall have priority in the distribution of revenue.

1994 men's volleyball site selected

Indiana University-Purdue University, Fort Wayne, will host the 1994 NCAA Division I Men's Volleyball Championship. The announcement was made during the December 19-21 meeting of the NCAA Division I Men's Volleyball Committee in Marina Del Rey, California.

The selection, which was approved in Kansas City, Missouri, December 9 by the NCAA Executive Committee, marks the second time that Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne has been selected to host the championship. It also was the site of the 1988 championship.

The committee's decision to award the 1994 championship to Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne marks the sixth time the championship has been scheduled to be played in the state of Indiana. In addition to Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne, Ball State University has played host to three championships (1972, 1976, 1980) and will serve as the host site for the 1992 championship.

Other highlights

In addition to announcing the site of the 1994 championship, the committee also:

- Discussed its three-year budget plan. The committee will make recommendations regarding the plan to the Executive Committee in May.

- Met with the NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Committee and Jim Coleman, director of the men's and women's national team, to discuss issues related to volleyball.

been a 20-year vendetta to drive him from college coaching.

The 77-page action is in response to an NCAA lawsuit filed in November that seeks to overturn Nevada's due process law.

Santa Ana, California, attorney Terry Giles told The Associated Press he also would seek a court order in connection with the suit to overturn the NCAA's decision to ban Nevada-Las Vegas from postseason play in men's basketball this season.

Athletes will meet the challenge of stricter academic regulations

By Carolyn Bryant
Anderson Independent-Mail

I agree the using of a racially and socially biased standardized test as a tool to determine a high-school student's level of analytical thinking is unfair, but I don't think it's too much to ask of a high-school student to attain a "C" average.

When you look at Propositions 42 and 48 in retrospect, many athletes on the borderline rose to the occasion. They got in school and, more importantly, graduated. Cases in point: former University of Notre Dame quarterback Tony Rice; University of California, Berkeley, tailback Russell White (who is scheduled to graduate this spring); University of Illinois, Champaign, basketball player Marcus Liberty; former Clemson University basketball player Sean Tyson, and former University of Michigan basketball player Rumeal Robinson, just to name a few.

Some didn't make it, no doubt, but those probably wouldn't have made it far without the rules changes. People like Rice, White and others were hungry enough to prove the critics wrong. My feeling is that many others in their position will follow and will overcome whatever adversity is thrown in their pathway.

Student-athletes may face such adversity sooner than we think because the NCAA is at it again. This time, the proposals are even stricter than before.

Among other things, amendments relating to academic requirements could raise the grade-point-average mark from 2.000 to 2.500 and increase the minimum number of core-curriculum course credits from 11 to 13.

Should the proposals pass, people still contend minorities will suffer the most.

First, let's trash the word "minority" because we basically are talking about African-American males. What I want to know is: How will African-Americans suffer, or are we talking about a handful of suffering? The way I see it, more positive repercussions than negative will result from raising the academic standards.

Some critics suggest that new rules are unfair because they deprive many African-American males of a chance to go to college if they fail to adjust to the higher demands. To that, I say hello to the junior college world. Better yet, there are many black institutions that need them. Division I is not the only way to go....

It's time that athletes realize that superior athletic skills should not outweigh academic skills. The main purpose for going to school is to increase intellectual awareness. College is for the academically elite. If you don't fall into that category, you don't deserve to be there. If you are striving to be in that crowd, then it will show in high school, even junior high.

No one has to beg an athlete to come to football or basketball practice. The interest is already there. If someone came out with a new rule that said all running backs had to run a 4.4 40-yard dash to make the team, we would see a lot of them who were not blessed with natural speed working out extra hours, going through sprint drills, etc. Likewise, they should try to make the extra effort in the classroom and request extra tutoring.

Statistics have shown that only one percent of college athletes make it to the professional level. When is it going to click that everybody can't be a pro ball player? What you learn in school is what will carry you further in life.

If an athlete is fortunate enough to make the big name and the big dollars in the pros, he should remember that a million dollars can buy many things, but what it can't buy is self-esteem and self-pride.

Where is the glory of being the best athlete and not being able to balance your own checkbook? No one is asking athletes to be Einstein, but simply to keep up with the minimum workload.

If an athlete is going to use his athletics talent to prosper, whether on the high-school, college or professional level, then he should get something out of it for himself. We don't need any more Dexter Manleys in this world.

"(Stricter initial-eligibility) legislation is going to keep a lot of kids—especially the poor black kid from the inner cities—from having a chance to get a college education. It's really going to hurt Nebraska, where we don't have much population and must recruit far and wide for the top athletes.

Ivan Maisel, columnist

The Dallas Morning News

"The presidents have at least 18 valid reasons not to establish a Division I-A playoff. They are the bowls. The bowls have been good to the universities. They make 18 teams happy at the end of the season instead of one. They are a part of a tradition that has stretched the length of this century.

"... The academic argument (against a playoff system) is mere posturing. The pendulum, after spending 20 years on the athletics side, has swung back to academics. The presidents intend to push it as far as they can before they let it return toward the game.

"When the stench of probation wafted across campus, the presidents wrested control of athletics away from the former coaches who ran it. Nothing is going to change until the presidents feel the public understands that all is well.

"Until that time, all the hopes and wishes for playoffs will go unanswered. But don't confuse the reason with academics.

"Say the presidents announced a three-week playoff involving 64 teams that takes place right as the academic winter quarter draws to a close. Based on this academic argument, it would never happen.

"Bet you a billion dollars it happens every March. You know it as March Madness."

Looking back

Five years ago

The 81st annual Convention, January 6-10, 1987, at the Town and Country Hotel in San Diego, approved a number of cost-cutting measures, including reductions in grants and recruiting periods in Division I football and basketball, and voted to eliminate boosters from the recruiting process. John R. Davis, Oregon State University, was NCAA president.

Ten years ago

The 76th annual Convention, January 11-13, 1982, at the Hyatt Regency in Houston, voted overwhelmingly to affirm the existing NCAA television principles and decisively defeated a proposal that would have prohibited the Association from exercising effective control over the disposition of any type of property rights by member institutions. The NCAA president was James Frank, Lincoln University (Missouri).

Twenty years ago

The 66th annual Convention, January 6-8, 1972, at the Diplomat Hotel, Hollywood, Florida, rejected a proposal to call a special Convention to consider financial aid and legislative reorganization, voted to make freshmen eligible for University Division basketball and postseason football competition, and continued to study the NCAA's position and responsibilities in regard to women's athletics. Earl M. Ramer of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, was NCAA president.

Thirty years ago

The 56th annual Convention, January 11-13, 1962, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, rejected a proposal to establish an NCAA preregistration (i.e., letter-of-intent) program and voted to prohibit most outside basketball competition. Henry B. Hardt of Texas Christian University was NCAA president.

Forty years ago

The 46th annual Convention, January 10-12, 1952, at the Netherland Plaza Hotel in Cincinnati, voted 163-8 that the NCAA adopt a program of limited live television for the 1952 football season, controlled and directed by the NCAA, with the detailed plan to be approved by at least a two-thirds majority of the membership in a mail referendum. The president was Hugh C. Willett, University of Southern California.

Fifty years ago

The 37th annual Convention, December 29-30, 1942, at the Hotel Astor in New York City, advocated the use by the armed services of athletics facilities at colleges and universities. It also urged institutions to continue their own athletics programs. Phillip O. Badger, New York University, was NCAA president.

Sixty years ago

The 27th annual Convention, December 30, 1932, at New York's Hotel Astor, appointed a special committee to study athletics injuries. Charles W. Kennedy, Princeton University, was the NCAA president.

Seventy years ago

The 17th annual Convention, December 28, 1922, at the Hotel Astor, voted to have the Council replace the Executive Committee as the Association's policy body. The Convention also created a 10-point code and urged members to take the following actions: organize sectional conferences, abide by the Association's definition of amateurism, adopt the freshman-ineligible rule, adopt a strict rule against participation by members in professional football, limit college athletics participation to three years, eliminate participation by graduate students, prohibit participation on noncollege teams, and maintain absolute faculty control of athletics. Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce of the U.S. Military Academy was the NCAA president.

Eighty years ago

The seventh annual Convention, December 27, 1912, at the Hotel Astor, received the resignation of Capt. Palmer E. Pierce, U.S. Military Academy, as NCAA president due to his assignment to military duty out of the country. In view of the earlier death of the vice-president, H. W. Johnston of Indiana University, the Convention accepted the nomination of LeBaron R. Briggs, Harvard University, to chair the Convention.

Division II CEOs react to rules

A survey of Division II chief executive officers produced widespread reaction to the rules governing the division.

The 10-page survey, mailed to Division II CEOs October 22, sought responses on topics ranging from satisfactory progress to membership requirements for the division. Of the 218 questionnaires that were mailed, 134 were returned (61 percent). The survey will be discussed the morning of January 9, 1992, during the Division II business session of the NCAA Convention.

More than 60 percent of the respondents preferred existing legislation in the following categories:

- Continuing eligibility. Of the 134 respondents, 72.4 percent agreed that current Division II rules governing continuing eligibility are sufficient for assuring that Division II student-athletes are making satisfactory progress toward a baccalaureate degree.

- Pell Grants. Of those responding, 61.2 percent agreed that the current rule should remain in effect.

- Playing and practice seasons. Respondents (61.2 percent) did not favor a reduction in the length of playing and practice seasons.

- Scheduling requirements. A substantial majority (78.4 percent) agreed with scheduling requirements in the division.

- Championship selection criteria. The criteria were judged sufficient by 60.4 percent of those responding.

Robert A. Oliver, director of athletics at the University of Northern Colorado and a member of the Division II Steering Committee, was pleased with the survey. "It was a great response from the Division II membership," he said, "not only in terms of the number who responded, but also with the number of people who took the time to make comments. Those comments are of great value to the Division II Steering Committee."

Oliver said the response to a question on what Division II institutions are spending on financial aid compared with what is permitted was especially significant. Although 55.2 percent of those responding favored reduction in the amount of financial aid permitted as a cost-containment measure, mean numbers of scholarships (equivalencies) were consistently smaller than legislation allows.

While those responses might seem to conflict, Oliver said they had a logical explanation: that Division II members could undertake a cost-containment initiative without adversely affecting their programs.

Legislation to reduce Division II financial aid will be considered at the 1992 Convention.

In a strong response that is contrary to current legislation, 61.9 percent of those responding agreed that employment income should not be included in the determination of a full grant-in-aid for all sports. Oliver said one explanation might be that the employment rule is designed to prohibit phantom jobs for which student-athletes do no work but still get paid; Division II presidents may be saying that abuse generally would not exist in the division and that student-athletes who genuinely desire to work should be permitted to do so.

The survey also sought to determine how NCAA legislation was affecting the workload of Division II administrators. Those responding indicated that the effect is substantial: 82.1 percent believe that new legislation in Division II has resulted in an unrealistic administrative burden for their institutions' staffs. The increased burden is felt in the areas of playing and practice seasons, certification of initial eligibility, recruiting, certification of continuing eligibility, and administration of financial aid.

The survey shows that in 37 percent of the cases, Division II directors of athletics have significant responsibilities outside the athletics department. Further, a total of 16 major responsibilities were assigned to the position of athletics director in the responses.

Although 51 percent of the respondents indicated their institutions had persons primarily assigned to compliance issues, the director of athletics was the assigned individual in 30 percent of the cases.

Even though most responses favored existing legislation, Oliver said it did not mean the membership is resistant to change. "I don't think it favors the status quo at all," he said. "What it does is give the Division II Steering Committee some real meat for what we need to discuss."

Division III conference's athletes manage time

Survey results of 1,175 student-athletes from the nine North Coast Athletic Conference institutions provide information about in-season and out-of-season time demands in NCAA Division III athletics programs.

Allegheny College President Daniel F. Sullivan notes that the NCAC's student-athletes overwhelmingly indicated their ability to manage both a competitive athletics structure and the academic demands of their educational institutions.

"I believe the results of this survey show that in our conference, which is not unrepresentative of Division III as a whole, a high-quality athletics program can be conducted without an inappropriate commitment of time by our student-athletes," said Sullivan, who is currently serving his second year as NCAC president.

Three North Coast members have claimed NCAA Division III championships in the last four years: Allegheny in football (1990), Ohio Wesleyan University in men's basketball (1988), and Kenyon College in men's swimming (12 consecutive years since 1980) and women's swimming (eight consecutive since 1984). Additionally, in each year since the conference began competition in 1984, at least two-thirds of the NCAC's 21 sports have had nationally ranked teams.

At the same time, the average graduation rate at North Coast institutions has historically been about 75 percent within five years.

Key results

- One of the key factors revealed in the survey is that NCAC student-athletes spend less than 20 hours (19.6) per week on athletics (see table) during the traditional playing season.

- NCAC student-athletes miss 1.2 classes per week during the season.

- NCAC athletes cut their main sport activity by more than 50 percent out of season, down to 9.7 hours per week.

- As a reflection of the Division III philosophy, an overwhelming majority of NCAC student-athletes felt it was of the greatest importance that their coaches (1) encourage players to do well in their courses and (2) keep track of how well players are doing in their courses.

- While many acknowledged that being a college athlete made it more difficult to keep up with course work and to study for exams, an 85 percent majority said they managed their time much better than other students.

"Presidents, along with athletics and faculty leaders, all took a hands-on role in establishing this conference," Sullivan said. "We wanted to balance excellence in both academics and athletics, and we have succeeded. I believe this is what our survey shows, and we're very proud of those results.

"At the same time, all presidents of NCAA institutions are facing tough admissions demographics and a difficult economy, so we must continue to look for creative ways to cut costs in all our programs while still keeping them viable. The Presidents Commission support for NCAA Council Proposal No. 31 on Division III playing and practice seasons recognizes our current situation, but we presidents at the same time salute our athletics administrators in the NCAC and Division III for keeping academics and athletics in balance."

The survey was commissioned by the NCAC's playing and practice seasons committee and completed in the spring of 1991. The intent was to gather information and opinions from student-athletes around the conference on the amount of time spent on academics, athletics and other extracurricular activities.

Using a total enrollment population at the nine North Coast schools of 18,484 and considering that, on average, one-fourth of NCAC students participate in athletics, the survey of 1,175 represents a sample of 25.4 percent. The 1,175 participants included approximately 650 men and 525 women from each of the conference's 21 sports. All nine NCAC institutions participated in the survey, and the response was in most cases proportional to their student-athlete population. All NCAC student-athletes were given the opportunity to participate in this survey, which was administered by athletics directors and coaches.

portunity to participate in this survey, which was administered by athletics directors and coaches.

"The survey was quite helpful to the committee as it made its deliberations on the difficult playing and practice seasons issue, not only in our conference but at the Division III level as well," Sullivan said. "We believe it is the first study of its kind in Division III, and we are glad to share its results with other members of the NCAA."

bership. Outgoing members of the Commission serve until the end of the Convention, and the other 32 members of the Commission continue their terms in 1992.

Those elected in the process that was concluded in December:

Division I

Judith E. N. Albino, University of Colorado, replacing Gail Fullerton, former president of San Jose State University. This is an at-large position earmarked for Division I-A.

Steven C. Beering, Purdue University, replacing Stanley O. Ikenberry, University of Illinois (position designated by the Big Ten Conference).

Joseph N. Crowley, University of Nevada, reelected to the Division I-AA West region position. Crowley was an interim appointment in the fall of 1991.

E. Roger Sayers, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, replacing R. Gerald Turner, University of Mississippi (position designated by the Southeastern Conference).

Brother Thomas J. Scanlan, Manhattan College, replacing the Rev. Albert J. DiUlio, Marquette University, in a Division I-AAA at-large position.

Division II

Donald Behrend, University of Alaska Anchorage, replacing Tyrone R. Richmond, who is retiring as chancellor of North Carolina Central University, in a Division II at-large position.

Joseph H. Hagan, Assumption College, replacing Walter R. Peterson, Franklin Pierce College, as a Division II, Region 1 representative.

Joseph J. McGowan Jr., Bellarmine College, replacing Margaret R. Preska, Mankato State University, as a Division II, Region 3 representative.

Kent Wyatt, Delta State University, replacing Asa N. Green, Livingston University, in a Division II at-large position.

Division III

Michael F. Adams, Centre College, replacing Anthony J. Diekema, Calvin College, as a Division III at-large member.

Robert J. Bruce, Widener University, replacing Roger H. Martin, Moravian College, as a Division III, Region 2 member.

Claire Gaudiani, Connecticut College, replacing Edward G. Coll Jr., Alfred University, as a Division III at-large member.

Photographs and biographical sketches of the new Commission members will be featured in the January 15 issue of the News.

The officers of the Presidents Commission for 1992 were announced earlier. The new Commission chair, upon adjournment of the 1992 Convention, will be Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, University of New Orleans; and Arend D. Lubbers, Grand Valley State University, will serve as Division II chair. The Divisions I and III chairs will continue. William H. Cunningham, University of Texas at Austin, and David L. Warren, Ohio Wesleyan University, respectively.

Anaheim: Mickey Mouse lives down the street

It's quite a neighborhood: Mickey Mouse and Disneyland, as well as two pro sports teams, call Anaheim, California, home.

And the NCAA will settle there as well, at least for a week, when the Association stages its 86th annual Convention January 7-10 at the Anaheim Hilton and Towers/Anaheim Convention Center.

It will be the Association's first visit to Anaheim, but not the first to southern California. Two Conventions have been convened in San Diego, both during the 1980s, and the NCAA also has met in Los Angeles, though not since 1969.

When the NCAA last met in Los Angeles, nearby Anaheim and Orange County already had begun to blossom into one of the nation's top tourist destinations. Today, Anaheim is the largest of 29 cities in Orange County, an area boasting 2.4 million residents. Anaheim also is the home of baseball's California Angels and the National Football League's Los Angeles Rams, who play in Anaheim Stadium.

Suitably for a gathering like the Convention, the Anaheim Hilton and Towers is the city's largest hotel, offering 1,600 rooms and 100 suites. The hotel, which also offers up to 52 meeting rooms and 100,000 square feet of meeting space, is complemented by the adjacent Anaheim Convention Center, the largest facility of its kind on the West Coast.

Convention delegates can enjoy a number of restaurants and one of the city's favorite nightspots within the hotel. The cateries range from the casually elegant Hasting's Grill to Pavia and its Italian cuisine, and from Cafe Oasis, serving breakfast, lunch and dinner, to The Sushi Bar. A club, Pulse, offers dancing amid spectacular lighting and a superb sound system.

The Anaheim Hilton and Towers also features 18 gift and service shops, including a jewelry store, an Oriental crafts shop, a camera and electronics center, a duty-free shop, a florist, and a sportswear store.

Much more to do awaits delegates and their families just outside the hotel's doors. Disneyland, which is open daily, is only two blocks away. And if that isn't enough, such attractions as Knott's Berry Farm, Movieland Wax Museum, Mission San Juan Capistrano and a 42-mile coastline sometimes called the "American Riviera" also are in Orange County.

Befitting southern California's mild climate, featuring average high temperatures in the mid-60s during January, many of those attractions offer an opportunity to stay outdoors.

A number of shopping centers also are close by, including the 190-store Mainplace/Santa Ana, which serves the hotel with a shuttle service (for a nominal fee).

Area attractions are numerous, but here are a few of the most notable:

• Disneyland — In 1955, an enterprising man named Walt Disney opened the doors of his Magic Kingdom. Today, America's most popular theme park features such enchanting attractions as Tomorrowland, Adventureland, Frontierland, Critter Country, New Orleans Square and Main Street. The park is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to midnight Saturday and Sunday; prices vary for one-, two- and three-day passports.

• Knott's Berry Farm — What was a small berry farm business in the 1920s has been transformed into another nationally popular theme park. Located in nearby Buena Park, Knott's Berry Farm combines such bits of Americana as a ghost town and a stagecoach ride with state-of-the-art roller coaster and water rides. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturdays, and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $21.95 for adults; $9.95 for children ages 6 to 12; free under 6 when accompanied by a paid adult.

• Mission San Juan Capistrano — One of 21 original Spanish missions founded by Father Junipero Serra, San Juan Capistrano still is being used today for Catholic services. The museum is open 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Admission at the mission, located at 31815 Camino in San Juan Capistrano, is $3 for adults; $1 for children ages 3 to 11.

• Movieland Wax Museum — More than 230 life-like figures of famous movie stars, depicted in realistic costumes and scenes from classic movies, are on display here. Located near Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park, the museum is open 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. daily. Admission is $12.95 for adults; $6.95 for children ages 4 to 11 and senior citizens.

• San Diego — This city, which hosted NCAA Conventions in 1983 and 1987, offers such popular attractions as Sea World and the San Diego Zoo and is only about a 1½-hour drive from Anaheim. Sea World is open from 9 a.m. to dusk daily; admission is $22.95 for adults and $16.95 for children ages 3-11. The zoo is open 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily; admission is $14.50 for adults; $7.50 for children ages 3 to 15.

• Universal Studios Hollywood — It's the Hollywood everyone wants to see, complete with authentic backlots, stunt exhibitions and special-effects shows. Located in Universal City, the attraction is open 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays and 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends; admission is $24.50 for adults; $19.00 for children ages 3 to 11.

Secretary Kemp to receive NCAA's 26th 'Teddy' award

Jack Kemp, Secretary of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, has been named winner of the Theodore Roosevelt Award, the most prestigious honor bestowed on an individual by the NCAA. The 26th recipient of the "Teddy," Kemp will receive the award January 8 at the NCAA honors dinner during the annual Convention in Anaheim, California.

The nation's foremost Federal economic-development and housing official, Kemp began his tenure as a member of President George Bush's Cabinet February 6, 1989. As HUD Secretary, he is responsible for administering a variety of federally assisted housing, economic-development and fair-housing enforcement activities across the nation, as well as the supervision of HUD's headquarters in Washington, D.C., 10 regional offices, and 81 field offices.

Since assuming his duties, Kemp has been instrumental in the development and passage of two major pieces of legislation: the HUD Reform bill and President Bush's HOPE initiative (Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere). The HUD Reform bill helped bring to an end the problems of waste, fraud and abuse that plagued HUD programs under past administrations, while the HOPE initiative provides, among other things, grants to help public-housing residents and low-income families manage and purchase government-owned housing.

A native of Los Angeles, Kemp's political career has spanned three decades. Prior to his appointment as HUD Secretary, he was a member of the U.S. House of Representatives from 1971 to 1989. During that time he spent seven years in a leadership position as the chairman of the House Republican Conference.

Before his political career, Kemp enjoyed tremendous success in athletics. While at Occidental College, he competed in football and track and field. A three-year starter as a member of the Tigers football squad, he earned honorable mention Little All-America honors as well as all-conference accolades. He also served as cocaptain during his senior campaign. As a member of the track and field squad, he earned two letters while also setting the school javelin record.

After the completion of his undergraduate studies, Kemp embarked on a 13-year career as a professional football quarterback. As a member of the American Football League's Buffalo Bills, he guided his team to consecutive AFL championships (1964 and 1965). His exploits during the 1965 campaign earned him the league's most-valuable-player award. In addition to his on-the-field accomplishments, he cofounded the AFL Players Association and was elected president of the association, a position he held for five terms.

Heavily involved in charitable and community activities, Kemp serves as vice-president of National Football League Charities, co-founder of Christian Rescue Effort for the Emancipation of Dissidents (C.R.E.E.D.) and associate trustee of the National Art Museum of Sport. In addition, he is a member of the honorary board of directors of the Don Shula Foundation, Inc., and the Montgomery County Association of Retarded Citizens.

Kemp is married to the former Joanne Main. The couple has four children: Jeffrey, Jennifer, Judith and James. They reside in Bethesda, Maryland.

TV analyst/actor to emcee dinner

Merlin J. Olsen, who has gained fame playing football, serving as a television sportscaster and acting, will serve as master of ceremonies for the 1992 NCAA honors dinner during the annual Convention in Anaheim, California.

Olsen began his second season as an NFL game analyst for CBS Sports this fall after more than a decade as one of pro football's top television analysts with NBC Sports. Olsen joined NBC in 1977 and, working with Dick Enberg, quickly became that network's No. 1 football analyst. He covered five Super Bowls during that time.

The Utah State University graduate first rose to national prominence as one of college football's top defensive linemen. He was twice chosen all-America, won the 1961 Outland Award as the nation's outstanding lineman and was named to the College Football Hall of Fame in 1980. A three-time academic all-American, Olsen graduated summa cum laude in 1961 with a finance degree and added a master's degree in economics in 1970. He was elected to the GTE Academic All-American Hall of Fame in 1988.

After being selected second overall in the 1962 NFL draft, Olsen spent 15 years with the Los Angeles Rams, anchoring the famous "Fearsome Foursome" defensive line. He was named to the Pro Bowl 14 times and was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1982. Among the many awards Olsen, who is also a member of the National High School Hall of Fame, earned during his pro career was the 1974 Maxwell Award as the NFL's most valuable player.

Olsen also has crafted an outstanding television acting career. He costarred with Michael Landon on the top-rated "Little House on the Prairie," which led to starring roles in the series "Father

Merlin J. Olsen

Murphy," "Fathers and Sons" and "Aaron's Way."

In addition to his numerous professional ventures, Olsen has been active in the Multiple Sclerosis Society for 16 years and currently is vice-president of its board of trustees. He also is involved in Child Help USA, an organization that works with abused and neglected children, and the Children's Miracle Network Telethon, which he has cohosted since its inception in 1983 and which has raised hundreds of millions of dollars for children's hospitals nationwide.

Nevada schools opt to remain impartial

Regents for the University of Nevada voted December 26 to respond to a Federal judge's order to join the NCAA's lawsuit against the state by opting to do so as an impartial intervenor.

Board members, who approved by a 6-3 vote a motion from Regent Joe Foley to intervene without choosing sides, said the legal maneuver could buy them some time without making a commitment one way or the other, according to The Associated Press. The NCAA is challenging a state law that impedes the Association's ability to complete infractions cases in Nevada.

U.S. District Judge Howard McKibbin ruled December 19 that the state's two universities in Reno and Las Vegas are necessary parties to the lawsuit because the institutions are charged with enforcing NCAA rules.

He gave the schools until January 10 to decide which side they would take in the dispute.

Foley said joining the lawsuit as an intervenor at this point would give the board "the greatest latitude possible." He added that its court filings should support the concept of due process.

Regents Shelley Berkley, Jill Derby and Lonnie Hammargren voted against the motion.

Parliamentarian back for 18th straight year

Alan J. Chapman will serve as parliamentarian for the 18th straight year when the 1992 Convention convenes in Anaheim.

Chapman, a member of the National Association of Parliamentarians, will serve in the 1991 general business session and in the Divisions I and I-A sessions.

A professor of engineering at Rice University, Chapman has served as parliamentarian at every annual Convention since 1975. He was NCAA president in 1973 and 1974.

Assisting as parliamentarians in other business sessions at the 86th annual Convention will be Francis W. Bonner, professor of English and former faculty athletics representative at Furman University, Division I-AA; Edward Hammond, president of Fort Hays State University, Division II; and Armin P. Langholtz, chair of the speech department and faculty athletics representative at Capital University, Division III.

NCAA/Betty Ford program staff plans to host delegates

Staff from the NCAA/Betty Ford Center professional-in-residence program will sponsor a hospitality room at the NCAA Convention from 8 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, January 7. The site will be announced at the Convention.

Those who have participated in the NCAA/Betty Ford Center program and those interested in learning about the program are invited.

The three-day NCAA/Betty Ford Center program has been developed to offer participants a comprehensive combination of education and participation in the patient experience. Each NCAA Division I member institution has the opportunity to send one representative to the Betty Ford Center in Rancho Mirage, California.

Success marks Silver Anniversary six

Robert Malcolm Graham

Success on the playing field, outstanding performance in business or law and a willingness to improve the communities and the nation in which they live are the common threads that bind the six 1992 NCAA Silver Anniversary Award winners.

NCAA Silver Anniversary Awards recognize former student-athletes who have distinguished themselves since completing their college athletics careers 25 years ago.

This year's honorees are Robert Malcolm "Mal" Graham, basketball; Robert A. Griese, football; Floyd D. Little, football; James R. Lynch, football; Alan Page, football, and Ricardo Urbina, track and field/cross country.

These individuals and six of today's top student-athletes will be honored as this year's College Athletics Top XII. The group will be recognized January 8 at the Association honors dinner during the NCAA Convention in Anaheim, California.

Here are biographical sketches of the six award winners:

Robert Malcolm "Mal" Graham

A third-team all-America in basketball who finished third in the nation in scoring with an average of 28.7 points per game in 1966-67 as a New York University senior, Graham was named all-conference and the university's most outstanding athlete both as a junior and senior. A 1982 inductee to his alma mater's hall of fame, he also was a member of the 1967 United States gold-medal-winning World University Games team.

After college, he was a first-round draft choice of the Boston Celtics, where he was part of two National Basketball Association championships.

An associate justice on the Massachusetts Superior Court since 1986, Graham served as associate justice for the Roxbury District Court from 1982 until attaining his current position. Prior to becoming a judge, Graham worked as a practicing attorney from 1974 to 1982.

Graham is the president of the Massachusetts Black Judges Conference and established the conference's book award for deserving minority law students from each of the state's seven accredited law schools. He serves on the board of directors for Project Commitment, a program in which a judge adopts a middle school with which he works throughout the year.

Graham also is a member of the American Arbitration Association, the Superior Court personnel committee, the District Court stress-management committee, the Governor's/MBA commission on the unmet legal needs of children, and he participates in fund-raisers for cerebral palsy and cystic fibrosis. He was a member of the 1987 Black/Jewish Leadership mission to Israel to develop greater understanding of Black and Jewish communities, and has served as a trustee of Boston College High School. Graham also has served as a board of director member for Copley Society, the nation's oldest art society.

Robert A. Griese

A fifth-year sportscaster for ABC's college football telecasts, Griese was a consensus all-America quarterback at Purdue University, finishing second in the 1966 Heisman Trophy voting. The two-time all-Big Ten Conference signal caller, who was voted the all-time quarterback for Purdue's first 100 years of football, was the conference's most valuable player in 1966, a season he capped by leading the Boilermakers to victory in the 1967 Rose Bowl.

Griese, a member of both the College and Pro Football Halls of Fame, quarterbacked the National Football League's Miami Dolphins from 1967 to 1980, leading his team to two Super Bowl victories, including the 1972 championship, when Miami finished with a 17-0 record. A six-time Pro Bowl selection, the former Boilermaker quarterback was the 14th NFL quarterback to throw for more than 25,000 career yards and is the only Miami player to have his jersey number (12) retired.

After completing his professional football career, Griese worked as a top analyst for NBC Sports' coverage of the NFL from 1982 until joining ABC in 1986.

The president of the Jack Harding Miami Chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, he is an active member of the Orange Bowl Committee.

Active in many civic organizations, Griese has served as national vice-president of the Muscular Dystrophy Association and also works with the American Cancer Society, the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, March of Dimes, United Way, Boy Scouts, Salvation Army, Heart Association of Miami and the Florida Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Floyd D. Little

Selected as college football player of the year by Coach and Athlete magazine three consecutive years (1965 through 1967), Little was a dominant running back and track student-athlete for Syracuse University in the mid-1960s. He rewrote the Orangemen records book, establishing 19 Syracuse bests, including marks for most touchdowns (19), most points scored (278) and the three longest punt returns (90, 91 and 95 yards). He was selected to the Gator Bowl Hall of Fame in 1966 and received the Ernie Davis Leadership Award at the coaches all-America game in 1967. In 1983, he was named to the College Football Hall of Fame. Little went on to star as a three-time all-pro running back for the Denver Broncos, winning rushing titles in 1970 and 1971.

After retiring from the Broncos, Little entered the automobile business and in 1990 opened a Ford dealership in Seattle, Washington, that is one of the largest in the Pacific Northwest, employing 90. He also owns dealerships in Denver, Colorado, and Santa Barbara and West Covina, California. Little also is a partner with fellow Syracuse alumnus David Bing (a 1991 Silver Anniversary Award recipient) in Steel Housing Technology, Inc., a proposed manufacturer of prefabricated housing that hopes to open a $5 million plant in Syracuse.

A strong supporter of his alma mater, Little also serves on the board of directors for Boys Club, Arthritis Foundation and the Colorado Lung Association and the board of trustees for Clayton College. He also is active in the President's Drug Abuse Program, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, March of Dimes, the Rotary Club and Easter Seals. A volunteer probation officer, Little also was a member of the board of directors of the Denver 1976 Winter Olympics Organizing Committee. The winner of the 1973 YMCA Brian Piccolo Award, he was one of 15 professional football players selected for the 1970 United Service Organizations Goodwill Tour of Vietnam.

Today's Top Six include champions, achievers

Three NCAA individual champions, including an American record-holder, a Heisman Trophy winner, an academic all-America player of the year and the captain of the reigning Division I ice hockey champions have been named this year's Today's Top Six.

The honorees are quarterback Ty Detmer, Brigham Young University; heptathlete Gea Johnson, Arizona State University; volleyball player Janet Kruse, University of Nebraska, Lincoln; gymnast Joy Selig, Oregon State University; ice hockey player Brad Werenka, Northern Michigan University, and swimmer David Wharton, University of Southern California.

The Today's Top Six and Silver Anniversary award winners will be recognized as this year's College Athletics Top XII at the NCAA honors dinner Wednesday, January 8, 1992, in Anaheim, California.

Biographical sketches of the honorees follow:

Ty Detmer

The recipient of the 1990 Heisman Trophy, awarded to college football's outstanding player, Detmer has enjoyed a record-breaking career as quarterback of the Brigham Young football team. The first Brigham Young player to be elected captain as a sophomore, he has broken 62 NCAA records and tied four, while winning two consecutive Davey O'Brien Awards (1990 and 1991) as the nation's outstanding quarterback. A three-time all-America selection (1989, 1990 and 1991), his most outstanding campaign was 1990 when, in addition to earning the Heisman, he was awarded the Maxwell Trophy and named the United Press International player of the year.

Spokesperson for Brigham Young's Earth Science Museum, Detmer has compiled a 2.630 grade-point average (4.000 scale) while majoring in recreation management. A United Way volunteer, he is heavily involved in community activities in the Provo, Utah, area. He speaks regularly to civic, youth and business organizations, participates in local cancer crusades, teaches 8-year-olds in a local Mormon church, and has taped several drug-awareness promotions.

Gea Johnson

Johnson won the 1990 Division I heptathlon and the 1990 Pacific-10 Conference heptathlon and long jump championships but was unable to defend her titles last year because of a late-season injury.

The 1991 Sun Angel scholar-athlete of the year, Johnson had a 3.970 grade-point average while earning a communications degree, and was Arizona State's outstanding 1991 graduate from the College of Public Programs. A member of the Pacific-10 all-academic team, Johnson was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Outstanding College Students of America, Golden Key and the National Dean's List.

An annual speaker for high schools and elementary schools in the Phoenix, Arizona, area, and a speaker for the Arizona State Sun Angel booster club and DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education), Johnson also was a Sunday School teacher and an Arizona Senior Olympics volunteer.

Janet Kruse

The 1990 GTE academic all-America volleyball player of the year, Kruse has garnered numerous athletics and academic awards at Nebraska. A three-time United States Olympic Festival participant, she is a two-time American Volleyball Coaches Association first-team all-America and three-time all-Big Eight selection. The 1990 Big Eight Conference tournament most valuable player, she became the first Nebraska player to reach the 1,000-kills plateau as a junior.

Academically, she has compiled a 3.897 GPA while majoring in biological science. Aside from being honored by GTE, Kruse, a member of the 1991 Nebraska Health Center Governing Board, was chosen as the 1991 Nebraska female student leader of the year as well as the recipient of Nebraska's athletics/academic counseling highest distinction award.

Joy Selig

The 1989 and 1990 NCAA balance beam champion and the 1990 floor exercise champion, Selig also finished seventh in the 1991 NCAA all-around competition and third in the 1991 floor exercise. The 1991 Pacific-10 gymnast of the year was a nine-time Pacific-10 champion and a member of the 1991 World University Games team.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa and an academic all-American, Selig has a 3.510 grade-point average and is scheduled to graduate with a degree in psychology in June 1992. She was named the NCAA Woman of the Year for Oregon.

A two-time team captain for Oregon State, Selig is active in Fellowship of Christian Athletes, the Big Brother/Big Sister program and an outreach program to motivate children to read. She also served as a teacher's aide and made anti-drug presentations to local schools.

Brad Werenka

Named the 1991 U.S. college hockey player of the year by The Hockey News/Bauer, Werenka was a 1991 first-team all-America and the runner-up for the 1991 Hobey Baker Memorial Award. The captain of the 1991 NCAA Division I champion men's ice hockey team, Werenka was named to the 1991 Division I championship all-tournament team and was the nation's top scoring defenseman during the regular season.

An academic all-American who was the 1991 Western Collegiate Hockey Association's student-athlete of the year, Werenka, who is a member of Mortar Board and Golden Key, has a 3.600 grade-point average while majoring in political science.

A Special Olympics and American Cancer Society volunteer, he initiated a "canathon" for local needy during the 1990 holiday season.

David Wharton

A four-time NCAA champion in the 400-yard individual medley, Wharton is one of only four college swimmers to win the NCAA championship in the same event four straight years. A 1988 Olympic silver medalist in the 400-yard individual medley, Wharton also is the American record-holder in the 200-yard individual medley, the 400-yard individual medley and the 200-meter individual medley, and is a former world-record holder in the 200-meter individual medley and the 400-meter individual medley. A seven-time U.S. national champion, Wharton was the NCAA & Associates, a food brokerage house, the former University of Notre Dame football standout was named the 1966 outstanding college lineman by the Washington, D.C., Touchdown Club. A unanimous first-team all-American and Maxwell Award winner in 1966, Lynch also participated in the East-West Shrine Game and coaches' all-America game before joining the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs.

An 11-year (1966-77) starter and member of the Chiefs hall of fame, Lynch helped lead Kansas City to the 1970 Super Bowl championship and also participated in the 1969 American Football League all-star game.

While at Notre Dame, he academically all-American served on the Council of International Lay Apostles and spent the summer of 1964 in Peru working with native Indians. His civic activities continued after graduation. Lynch is active in a variety of events with the March of Dimes and is a board member of Notre Dame de Sion High School. He also is a member of the high-school abuse-prevention committee. Other activities include work with the Tom Watson/Children's Mercy Hospital golf exhibition committee, the Dream Factory, Special Olympics, Friends of the Zoo and Friends of the Kansas City Museum.

Lynch also has served as president of the Notre Dame National Monogram Club and chair of the Young Bakers Association, and is a former diocesan board member of Catholic Charities.

Alan C. Page

The assistant attorney general of the state of Minnesota, Page was a three-year starting defensive lineman for the Notre Dame football team and was an all-American in 1966. In his three years as a starter, Page helped lead the Fighting Irish to a combined 25-3-2 record.

As a member of the NFL's Minnesota Vikings from 1967-81, Page was one of the league's all-time great defensive linemen. A four-time National Football Conference defensive player of the year and eight-time Pro Bowl selection, Page in 1971 became the first defensive player to be named the NFL most valuable player. Also one of the NFL's most durable players, he never missed any of the 218 games the Vikings played in his career and started 215 straight games. In 1988, he was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame. While a professional athlete, Page was an NFL Players' Association players' representative and a three-year member of the NFLPA's executive committee.

Page entered the broadcasting business after retiring from the Vikings, working as a color commentator for the Turner Broadcasting System's college football game of the week in 1982 and working as a commentator for National Public Radio in 1982-83.

His law career began in 1979 as an associate with the Lindquist & Vennum firm, where he worked until 1984, when he became the state of Minnesota's special assistant attorney general, a title he held until 1987, when he attained his current position.

In 1988, he founded the Page Education Foundation to assist minority and disadvantaged youth with postsecondary education. He also helped establish the Kodak/Alan Page Challenge, a nationwide essay contest encouraging urban youth to recognize the value of education.

Page also serves on the Minneapolis Urban League board of directors; the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, Board of Regents; the Artists & Athletes Against Apartheid executive committee, and the League of Women Voters advisory board.

He chaired the task force for the 1984 Minnesota State Games and was honorary co-chair of the 1984 Child Care Works. He also was a member of the Chicago Association for Retarded Citizens board of directors. In 1978, he was the American Cancer Society state chair. In 1972, he was the United Negro College Fund state chair and the Minnesota Council on Physical Fitness chair. Page also is a member of the National Bar Association (where he is vice-chair of the sports-law committee), Minnesota State Bar Association, and the Minnesota Minority Lawyers' Association.

Ricardo Urbina

A District of Columbia Superior Court judge and former track student-athlete at Georgetown University, Urbina was the 1966 NCAA indoor 800-meter champion and also was a three-time conference champion. He also was a member of championship relay teams at the Penn Relays, Drake Relays, Mason-Dixon Games and Millrose Games.

While a Georgetown student, Urbina participated in food distribution for the needy during Thanksgiving and Christmas and provided tutorial service for inner-city children for two years.

Urbina was nominated to a position on the D.C. Superior Court bench by President Jimmy Carter in 1980, becoming the first Hispanic judge in the district. He was reappointed by President Ronald Reagan in 1981. Urbina was presiding judge of the family division from 1985 through 1988 and chaired the D.C. Child-Support Guidelines Committee. He also has served as director of the criminal-justice program and professor of law at Howard University and is a former Howard law professor of the year.

He served as a trial lawyer with the public defender service for two years.

In 1988, Urbina developed the After School Kids (ASK) Program, a partnership between the juvenile probation program of the Court and Georgetown University. That same year, he was presented the Commissioner's Award for Outstanding Leadership and Service in the prevention of child abuse and neglect. He also has received a special award from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Urbina initiated a court-interpreter system for the foreign-born and hearing impaired, which eventually became a requirement of government agencies. Urbina's other activities include working with local and national Hispanic leaders to improve the quality of legal representation, spending several hours a month working with high school-age children, participating in a city-wide program that brings children into the courthouse on a regular basis and serving as a career-day speaker twice a year.

The former Georgetown track standout also is director of the Meyer Foundation, a major philanthropic organization; director of the Mary's Center for Maternal and Child Care, and in 1986 was honored by Washington Magazine as one of its Washingtonians of the Year.

NOW THAT THEY'VE MASTERED THEIR SPORT, THEY'RE READY TO TAKE ON THE WORLD.

Every one of these athletes has accomplished great things. And they're just getting started.

Voted on by over 800 NCAA member schools, they have all been recognized with the Honda Award for their outstanding athletic achievements as well as their leadership skills, academic excellence and community involvement.

On January 9, one of them will be presented with the Honda-Broderick Cup at the 15th Anniversary Collegiate Woman Athlete of the Year banquet in Anaheim, California.

In addition to the awards, American Honda will make a contribution to the general scholarship fund of each athlete's university. It's just another example of the mark these women continue to make.

Voting total on Convention issue could reach record 925

The greatest number of votes that could be cast on any issue at the 86th annual NCAA Convention in Anaheim is a record 925, a total that is 22 higher than the previous record of a year ago.

That highest vote never occurs, of course, because not every member attends the Convention. Most do, though—a record 89.2 percent of the 903 possible voters were at last year's Convention in Nashville.

Included in the total of 925 are 841 active member institutions and 84 conferences that have the voting privilege. By division, those figures break down as follows:

- Division I: 296 institutions and 36 conferences, for a total of 332 possible votes. Included in that number are 106 Division I-A institutions and nine I-A conferences (115 total on a Division I-A vote), 87 Division I-AA institutions and nine conferences in that subdivision (96 votes on a I-AA matter), and 103 Division I-AAA institutions and 18 conferences (121 total).

- Division II: 216 institutions and 19 conferences, for a total of 235—far and away the highest ever in that division.

- Division III: 329 institutions and 29 conferences, for a 358 total also the highest in history in Division III.

In most years, more than 95 percent of all Division I members attend the Convention—a record 97.1 percent were at last year's meeting, including every member of Divisions I-A and I-AA. In Division II, more than 85 percent have been attending in recent years, with a record 89.6 percent last January. Division III attendance has exceeded 70 percent for the past three years, with a record 76.7 last year.

Other voting factors

There are voting circumstances that complicate any analysis of possible voting totals. "Restricted" members, for example, can vote on constitutional matters but not on most bylaw issues, except that those restricted only in one sport cannot vote on issues affecting only that sport.

Also, all-male institutions do not vote on matters exclusively involving women's athletics, and all-female institutions do not vote on issues involving only men's athletics.

Currently, there are 11 all-male institutions in the membership (two in I-AA, one in Division II and eight in III), with six all-male conferences (two in I-AAA, one in II, three in III). There are 31 all-female institutions (28 in Division III and three in II) and six all-female conferences (five in III and one in Division I-AAA).

So, the highest possible vote on a men's-only issue would be 888, while the highest on a women's only topic would be 908 again, if everyone was there, if everyone voted and if it was a counted vote.

Voting records

Most votes at any NCAA Convention are by a show of voting paddles and therefore are not counted. All Association voting records are limited to those votes that have been counted and officially reported, whether by count of the voting paddles or by roll-call vote.

The highest recorded vote in NCAA history was 758 at last January's gathering in Nashville, and it happened three times—the final vote on the Division I voting autonomy proposal, the total vote on multidivision classification in women's basketball, and the total vote on an amendment to Divisions II and III multidivision classification for Division I members.

In fact, the 10 highest counted votes of all time occurred at the Nashville meeting, all surpassing the previous record of 746, set in 1990. In all, there were 20 counted votes exceeding 700 in Nashville, and there had been only four in history to that point.

All-time high counts by division:

- Division I-A: 115 (the maximum possible), 1990 in Dallas, proposal to shorten spring football practice.

- Division I-AA: 96 (one short of the maximum at that time), in Dallas in 1990, also on the spring-practice issue.

- Division I as a whole: 330 (one short of the maximum at the time), 1991 in Nashville, amendment to the time-reduction proposal. There were 18 Division I votes last January that equalled or exceeded the old high mark of 327.

- Division II: 196, Nashville Convention last January, amendment to the time-reduction legislation. In all, there were 20 votes in Nashville that were higher than Division II's old record of 187, and two others reached 187.

- Division III: 268, 1991 in Nashville, on two different portions of the time-reduction proposal for that division. Division III had 27 counted votes last January that exceeded its previous high of 238.

Electronic voting to receive second trial at Convention

For the second time, NCAA Convention delegates will employ a computer voting system.

The system, which counts between 450 and 500 votes a minute, was used for the first time at the 1991 Convention in Nashville, Tennessee. It significantly shortens the time needed to complete the roll-call votes expected at the Convention. The system tallies votes in as little as one minute for division business sessions and two minutes for the general business session. The minimum possible number of roll-call votes at this Convention is 30, although that number will be exceeded slightly, primarily because of legislation containing multipart amendments.

Voting delegates pick up the electronic units upon registration. Last year in Nashville, the testing area for the voting units was located far from where the units were obtained, but at this year's Convention in Anaheim, California, the areas for registering, acquiring the unit and testing the unit will be close to one another.

After votes are cast (see related story), the system's central computer begins searching for signals from units where votes have been cast. When the system finds one, it checks the unit's coding to verify that the institution or conference is eligible to vote on the proposal. It then collects the vote.

The central computer can go through its voting list as many times as necessary to collect all votes. It is up to the session chair to determine if enough time has been allowed for the votes to be cast.

After the votes are counted, results are transmitted to the chair, who then announces the results to the delegates. Another printer is in the media room.

The electronic voting system is used only on roll-call votes. Paddle-

How to vote electronically

The process by which a delegate votes electronically at the NCAA Convention:

- Electronic voting units are acquired at a desk near the registration area. A delegate must show his or her voting paddle to receive a unit. After obtaining the unit, the delegate goes to a nearby testing area, where the unit is checked out.

- The delegate takes the unit to the appropriate business sessions and at the door picks up a plastic stand that holds the unit between votes.

- When a vote begins, the delegate turns on the unit, which is specially coded for that delegate's institution. A slowly flashing light will appear.

- The delegate pushes one of three voting buttons (for "yes," "no" or "abstain"). The light will begin to flash more rapidly. The vote can still be changed at this point.

- The delegate pushes a "lock-in" button, which transmits the vote. The light will shine continuously at this point. The voter returns the unit to the plastic stand.

- Once the vote is collected, the light will go out, letting the voter know the vote has been recorded.

- At the conclusion of the session, the stands are returned to specified locations.

voting still will be used on other proposals (although the system can be used if an accurate count is needed).

Legislation

All of the 153 proposals and the related amendments-to-amendments have been reviewed in detail in The NCAA News, beginning in the November 11, 1991, issue and concluding in the December 25 issue.

Highlighting the legislative aspect of the Convention are the proposals in the Presidents Commission grouping, placed there because of their interest to chief executive officers and to assure that they are acted upon early in the respective business sessions.

Included in that grouping are all but four of the proposals being sponsored by the Commission—three others are in the consent package, and one appears later in the Convention agenda because it was not considered to be particularly controversial (No. 112).

That means the Commission's proposals to strengthen academic requirements for both initial eligibility and continuing eligibility for athletics (Nos. 14, 15, 16, 19, 20 and 21) will be handled early in the Convention. The NCAA Council joined the Commission in sponsoring that package of reform proposals.

The other Commission proposals in the highlighted grouping are No. 28, coaches' compensation; No. 29, Division II coaches certification; No. 30, summer financial aid for incoming student-athletes; No. 34, Division I-AAA football, and Nos. 35 and 36, resolutions to put in motion the next two phases of the Commission's strategic plan. Those phases deal with institutional control and presidential authority first, pointed toward the 1993 Convention, and then with financial issues for the 1994 Convention.

Among the highlights in the topical groupings that follow the Commission's identified section:

Academics

Permit nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers in Division I to earn a fourth season of intercollegiate competition if they are within a year of completing their degree requirements at the beginning of their fifth year of enrollment (No. 39).

Eligibility

Permit an individual to request information about his or her professional market value and permit the individual, the individual's parents or legal guardians and members of the professional sports-counseling panel at the individual's institution (but not an agent) to negotiate with a pro sports organization without the individual losing collegiate eligibility (No. 47).

Personnel

Several proposals attempt to rescind or seriously modify coaching limits adopted at last year's Convention and will be opposed by the Presidents Commission.

One proposal that does have the support of both the Commission and the Council would permit use of one volunteer coach in each sport except football and basketball. That was approved by the Council subcommittee that was appointed to suggest appropriate "fine-tuning" of last year's reform proposals.

Financial aid

Again, some proposals in this category attempt to undo the reform actions at last year's Convention. The Commission will oppose those.

Meanwhile, Division I-A will decide whether to eliminate the 95-grant ceiling in football and reduce initial grants from 25 to 21 (thus effectively increasing the possible overall grant total to 105 over a five-year period). That is Proposal No. 65, and an amendment to it would keep the 95 limit but proceed with the initial cut to 21.

Others in this grouping would eliminate by 1996-97 the awarding of aid to partial and nonqualifiers

(No. 66) and would require all member institutions to provide tuition grants to former student-athletes who have completed athletics eligibility but not degree requirements (No. 69).

Playing seasons

The biggest grouping of all deals with playing and practice seasons, with more than 40 percent of these proposals aimed at Division III. Most of the others are attempts to reverse the reform actions taken last January and will be opposed by the Presidents Commission.

Attempts to establish additional permissible exceptions to the Division I basketball season probably will attract the greatest amount of attention (Nos. 76 through 82).

Governance

Proposals in this grouping would change the Division I subdivision representation on the Council and the Presidents Commission (Nos. 109, 110), eliminate the conference voting privilege (111), look at the possibility of having voting NCAA Conventions only once every two years (116), and authorize the Council to grant waivers of many more rules than it can currently (117).

General

Proposal No. 118 would permit playing rules (for example, the width of football goal posts) to differ from one membership division to another.

Recruiting

This is another section in which many proposals will be opposed by the Presidents Commission because they would erode the gains made in the Commission's reform package last January.

One proposal in this grouping (No. 141) calls for a pilot program of NCAA-operated summer basketball camps. Another (No. 125) establishes a 93-day "floating" recruiting calendar in all Division I sports except basketball and football, as directed at last year's Convention.

Enforcement

This section features three proposals offered by the Committee on Infractions, including creation of a type of "administrative subpoena" by using the ethical-conduct legislation as an incentive for an individual to appear at an enforcement hearing.

Championships

Proposal No. 145 follows up on last year's multidivision-classification tightening by establishing two-team championships for Division II members in ice hockey, field hockey and men's lacrosse.

Committees

The Council and the Executive Committee will oppose the proposals in this section that would establish new NCAA committees.

NCAA records another surplus

The Association's 1990-91 revenue exceeded expense, creating a surplus in operations for the ninth consecutive year and the 36th time in 37 years, according to the report of the treasurer, which will be presented to delegates at the 1992 Convention.

The report is published in the Association's Annual Reports, which will be available at the Convention.

The 1990-91 surplus of $1,244,210 represents 0.8 percent of the general operating budget, according to B. J. Skelton, NCAA secretary-treasurer. The Executive Committee had approved a budget of $149,981,800, excluding the Federal grant for the National Youth Sports Program.

Revenue amounted to $152,551,831, or 101.7 percent of the budget. The total amount was an increase of 54.1 percent over the previous year.

The report showed expense of $151,307,621, or 100.9 percent of the budget. Expenses increased by 57.2 percent over 1989-90.

Skelton pointed out that 71.6 percent of the Association's out-of-pocket payments went to member institutions, conferences, affiliated organization or programs for student-athletes and the nation's youth. In 1990-91, the NCAA spent $108,359,397 in this manner, up from $61.49 million in 1989-90.

NCAA revenue, expense, surplus: 1981-1991

Year	Revenue	Expense	Surplus
1981-82	$28,810,338	$29,016,327	($205,989)
1982-83	33,148,173	30,053,782	3,094,391
1983-84	39,969,096	37,410,391	2,558,705
1984-85	43,899,237	42,828,611	1,070,626
1985-86	51,361,047	45,584,558	5,776,489
1986-87	61,971,181	52,916,795	9,054,386
1987-88	82,808,606	69,476,470	13,322,136
1988-89	87,826,856	81,725,899	6,100,957
1989-90	98,970,184	96,224,123	2,746,061
1990-91	152,551,831	151,307,621	1,244,210

On August 31, 1991, the Association's assets totaled $47,242,878, about $2.36 million more than the previous year. Fund balances at that date amounted to $29,017,737, or 61.4 percent of assets. Current and long-term liabilities were $18,225,141.

Copies of the 1990-91 Annual Reports, containing the reports of the Executive Committee and treasurer as well as a statistical review of the year; financial summaries of all 1990-91 championships; reports of all standing committees, and the abridged minutes of the Council, Executive Committee and Presidents Commission, also will be mailed to NCAA members.

Additional copies of the book may be purchased for $6 ($12 for nonmembers) by sending remittance to NCAA Publishing, 6201 College Boulevard, Overland Park, Kansas 66211-2422 (telephone 913/339-1900). First-class postage is an additional $3 per book.

Proposal Nos. 54 and 55—

Restricted-earnings coach—Division I-AA.

The provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 54 and 1992 Convention Proposal No. 55 are separate options related to the employment of restricted-earnings coaches. Thus, an institution must elect to utilize either the unlimited option set forth in Proposal No. 54 or the combination option set forth in Proposal No. 55, but may not utilize both options during the same academic year. ## Binders available for keeping News

Readers of The NCAA News are reminded that binders, which provide permanent, convenient storage of back issues of the paper, are available from the publishing department.

Each of the rugged, vinyl-covered binders holds 23 issues of the News.

They may be purchased for $10 each, or two for $19. Orders should be directed to the circulation office at the NCAA (913/339-1900).

CEOs from more than one-third of schools preregister

More than one-third of the NCAA institutions planning to attend the 1992 NCAA Convention in Anaheim will be represented by their presidents or chancellors—and nearly 60 percent of the Division I institutions are sending their CEOs.

Those figures are based on Convention preregistration totals through December 27.

As of that date, presidents and chancellors of 247 institutions had preregistered as voting, alternate or visiting delegates among the 683 institutions that had preregistered at that point. Those figures compare with 266 CEOs from 679 institutions on the comparable date a year ago.

This year's total of preregistered CEOs is the second highest in history. The record for the number actually attending the Convention—some preregister but do not attend—is 236 at the Convention last January in Nashville.

Among the 247 preregistrants are 171 from Division I, 48 from Division II and 28 from Division III. The Division I count represents 57.4 percent of all Division I members.

Within that Division I figure, 78 of the 106 CEOs in Division I-A (73.6 percent) are preregistered, as are 47 of 89 from Division I-AA and 46 of 103 from Division I-AAA.

Following is the CEO preregistration list as of December 27, in alphabetical order by last name in each division and subdivision. Presidents Commission members are indicated by asterisks; CEOs serving on the NCAA Council are indicated by pound signs (#).

Long Beach State player heads volleyball list

Long Beach State senior Antoinette White did not lead the nation in any offensive category in 1991. In fact, the Forty-Niners' outside hitter did not rank among the top 20.

No matter. While other players registered better statistical marks, White led Long Beach State to an almost-perfect record (36-2) and a runner-up finish in the Division I Women's Volleyball Championship. For that, she was named 1991 player of the year by the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA).

White, a second-team all-American in 1990, was one of three members of the Long Beach State squad selected this year. Sophomore middle blocker Danielle Scott, a first-team selection, and junior setter Sabrina Hernandez, a second-team choice, also were honored.

Louisiana State, Nebraska and Hawaii joined the Forty-Niners in placing three players on the AVCA squad. Monique Adams, a first-team selection, and Angie Miller and Daniela Reis, second-team honorees, represented Louisiana State.

Nebraska was represented by Stephanie Thater, first team, and second-team selections Janet Kruse and Cris Hall, while Hawaii placed Kee Williams on the first team and Cheri Boyer and Malin Fransson on the second team.

Stanford coach Don Shaw was named AVCA Division I coach of the year for his efforts in guiding the Cardinal to a 30-2 record. Stanford advanced to the West regional final before falling to eventual champion UCLA, 15-2, 15-12, 16-14.

Ana Cristina Pereira, a member of West Texas State's NCAA Division II championship team, was named AVCA Division II player of the year, while Tampa coach Chris Catanach earned AVCA coach-of-the-year honors.

The Division II scenario was reversed in Division III as coach Teri Clemens, who guided Washington (Missouri) to the NCAA Division III crown, earned coach-of-the-year honors. AVCA player-of-the-year honors went to Elizabeth Tan of UC San Diego.

NACDA Foundation gives scholarships to four players

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics' NACDA Foundation is awarding $5,000 postgraduate scholarships to one player from each of the four teams that played in the 1991 Kickoff Classic and Disneyland Pigskin Classic.

The players, in their final year of eligibility, are Reggie Dixon of Florida State University and Scott Giles of Brigham Young University, who participated in Florida State's 44-28 victory over Brigham Young in the second Disneyland Pigskin Classic, and Rudy Glocker of Pennsylvania State University and Jeff Howard of Georgia Institute of Technology, participants in Penn State's 34-22 victory over Georgia Tech in the ninth Kickoff Classic.

The grants are awarded annually by the NACDA Foundation to varsity letter-winners who carry a grade-point average of at least 3.000 (4.000 scale).

"The recipient of the scholarship can be anyone the athletics department of each school wishes, from the star quarterback to a fourth-string tackle," said NACDA President Bill Byrne. "This furthers the foundation's commitment to providing advanced education opportunities for student-athletes."

Dixon, a guard with a 3.000 GPA in management information systems, also is a Honda Scholar-Athlete Award recipient. Giles, with a 3.200 in physical education administration, was a member of the Western Athletic Conference all-academic team. Glocker, with a 3.340 in political science, completed undergraduate work at Penn State and will remain there for graduate studies. Howard, with a 3.500 in management, is a member of the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

The four recipients will be honored during NACDA's 27th annual convention June 7-10 in Marco Island, Florida.

'91: A year in review

JANUARY

5-6 The NCAA Council authorizes Executive Director Richard D. Schultz to launch a study of the NCAA enforcement process.

7—Schultz asks delegates to the 85th annual NCAA Convention to continue with reform efforts. In his annual "State of the Association" address, Schultz encourages further reform of the Association's legislative process, leading eventually to rules deregulation; a review of the enforcement process, and greater institutional financial control of athletics programs. "Our No. 1 priority is the integrity of our programs and the health, welfare, safety and education of the student-athlete," Schultz says.

7—Members of the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics lead a discussion that touches on subjects ranging from the problem of gender-based equity in intercollegiate athletics to identification of research promoting the place of women in athletics.

7-11 A record number of Convention delegates overwhelmingly approve the Presidents Commission legislative agenda. One delegate, speaking in opposition to Commission-sponsored Proposal No. 36, acknowledges he takes the floor "at the risk of being additional road kill on the highway to reform." Delegates also authorize the Academic Requirements Committee to recommend ways to strengthen both initial- and continuing-eligibility requirements for participation in athletics.

•Judith M. Sweet, director of athletics at the University of California, San Diego, is elected to a two-year term as president of the NCAA. Sweet is the first woman to hold the post. Althea Gibson wins the Theodore Roosevelt Award, the first woman to be so honored.

•The Presidents Commission adopts a Statement of Guiding Principles to assist it in its future deliberations.

•Convention voting records are shattered. Twenty votes exceed the 700 mark, which previously had occurred only four times in 84 prior Conventions. More than 2,300 register for the Convention, including 236 chief executive officers.

21-23—The NCAA Football Rules Committee sticks to an earlier decision to narrow the goal posts from 23 feet, 4 inches to 18 feet, 6 inches.

30-31—Presidents Committee Chair R. Gerald Turner says strengthening initial- and continuing-eligibility standards is the Commission's top priority, but he identifies other major agenda items for 1991, including the need to "fine-tune" some of the reform legislation passed at the 1991 Convention.

FEBRUARY

5-8—The NCAA Men's and Women's Soccer Committee develops a compromise substitution rule that seeks to meet Division III needs for participation while addressing Division I members' desire for traditional substitution.

19—Schultz, addressing writers assembled for the 1991 College Football Forum, says athletics departments that fail to go beyond NCAA cost-containment legislation "are in for some serious problems" in the next two years. "Without a doubt, the '90s are going to be a decade of change in intercollegiate athletics," Schultz says.

22—The NCAA Research Committee addresses the problem of finding the best combination of core grade-point average and standardized-test scores for an initial-eligibility standard.

MARCH

•Because of terrorism threats resulting from the Persian Gulf War, the NCAA develops a security plan to protect participants and fans at winter championship competition.

13—The commissioners of all Division I conferences announce their strong support of the NCAA enforcement program.

19—The Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics says college presidents must take firm control of their athletics programs because they are so ridden with academic and financial irregularities that the problem "can no longer be swept under the rug." The report of the 22-person commission culminates an 18-month study.

21-22—The Academic Requirements Committee recommends to the Presidents Commission that the minimum grade-point average on core-curriculum courses be increased for initial athletics eligibility. According to the proposal, incoming student-athletes would be required to achieve a 700 on the SAT and a 2.500 GPA (4.000 scale) in core courses.

APRIL

•Brigham Young University President Rex E. Lee is selected to chair the newly formed Special Committee to Review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process. The committee's study is to include a thorough review of the investigative process of the enforcement staff; the function of the infractions committee, including the hearing process, the presence of due process and the method used to determine penalties if guilt is determined, and the release of information to the public regarding sanctions and press conferences at institutions announcing sanctions.

•A survey of presidents and chancellors of Division I institutions reveals a desire—especially among those at Division I-A members—to strengthen academic requirements for both initial and continuing athletics eligibility.

•A survey reveals that participation in intercollegiate athletics dropped significantly in 1989-90 (as compared to 1988-89) but that the number of sports sponsored by NCAA members actually increased slightly.

A record number of delegates at the Nashville Convention in January shattered voting records for the annual event

8—Nevada Gov. Robert Miller signs into law a bill that will prevent the NCAA from completing an infractions case against any institution in that state.

15-17—The NCAA Council votes unanimously that the Association should continue to respond actively to state and Federal legislative challenges regarding NCAA procedures and regulations.

19 The NCAA mails checks totaling $31,250,000 to Division I conferences and institutions that qualified for the participation pool in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The checks represent the first distribution from the $1 billion contract with CBS Sports for televised NCAA championships over a seven-year period.

28-May 1—The NCAA Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committee elects to leave the three-point line at 19 feet, 9 inches, from the goal.

MAY

6—The NCAA Executive Committee makes final adjustments to the formula for distributing revenue generated by the Association's new television contract with CBS Sports.

JUNE

19—Federal hearings into the reform of intercollegiate athletics begin with testimony before the Commerce, Consumer Protection and Competitive Subcommittee of the U.S. House Energy and Commerce Committee.

25-26—The Presidents Commission votes to sponsor a package of proposals to strengthen academic requirements for initial and continuing athletics eligibility.

JULY

The NCAA Council's Subcommittee to Review 1991 Reform Proposals submits a package of recommendations to "fine-tune" new legislation limiting coaching staffs, recruiting activities and playing seasons.

1—Members submit 99 legislative proposals for the 1992 Convention. Nearly half deal with reform-agenda legislation passed at the 1991 Convention.

25 Rep. Tom McMillen (D-Maryland) announces that he is introducing the "Collegiate Athletics Reform Act" (H.R. 3046). The bill would provide the Association with a five-year antitrust exemption to negotiate television coverage of in-season college football and basketball games and would exempt the NCAA from the unrelated business income tax—provided the NCAA complied with a series of conditions within one year of passage of the legislation.

26 The Special Committee to Review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process conducts a hearing in which testimony is given by lawyers, conference commissioners, and current and former directors of athletics and coaches.

31-August 2 The Council joins the Presidents Commission in sponsoring proposals aimed at strengthening requirements for initial and continuing athletics eligibility. Also, the Council's Subcommittee on Certification says it plans to have legislation ready for the 1993 Convention.

AUGUST

A survey reveals that less than one percent of the 8,526 Division I football student-athletes checked in the NCAA's first full year of drug testing were declared ineligible because of a positive drug test.

Membership reaches a new high of 1,056 member institutions. The net growth of 21 members is the largest since 1982.

6—A Federal Trade Commission administrative law judge dismisses an FTC complaint that the College Football Association violated Federal antitrust laws with its five-year television contract with ABC.

12-13—The Executive Committee approves a general operating budget of $168,722,000 for 1991-92.

30—The final checks from the NCAA revenue-distribution plan for 1990-91 are mailed. A total of $72,874,699 was distributed to 34 Division I conferences and 16 independent institutions.

SEPTEMBER

9—The Division I Men's Basketball Committee announces that the champions of 30 conferences will receive automatic qualification into the 1992 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.

OCTOBER

1-2—The Presidents Commission adopts an ongoing planning process that will establish the primary topics to be considered by the Commission for at least the next three NCAA Conventions.

7-9—The Council announces that the minimum ACT score required for initial eligibility in Divisions I and II will be adjusted from 18 to 17. The change is based on a recommendation from American College Testing, which says 17 more closely corresponds with an SAT score of 700, an alternate test required for initial eligibility.

28—The Special Committee to Review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process recommends major changes designed to enhance the speed, openness and fairness of the Association's enforcement effort. Among the recommendations are:

•A summary disposition process that would allow chief executive officers and the NCAA enforcement staff to agree on stipulated penalties and findings without proceeding to a hearing.

•An independent hearing officer for cases not decided by summary disposition.

•Open hearings for cases not decided by summary disposition.

NOVEMBER

•The University of Houston athletics department receives a $25 million donation as part of a $50 million gift to the university from John and Rebecca Moores of Sugar Land, Texas. The $50 million gift is the largest ever made to a public university.

12 The NCAA files suit against the state of Nevada over a law that prevents the Association from pursuing its infractions case against the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

18—Participants at a hearing on a proposed athletics certification program focus on the need to identify the program's goals and purposes more clearly.

30 David M. Nelson, longtime secretary-rules editor for the NCAA Football Rules Committee, dies. He was 71.

DECEMBER

19—Federal Judge Howard McKibben sets February 28, 1992, as the trial date in the NCAA's suit against the state of Nevada.

Fuzak presided

because it increased the degree of modification over the existing amendment.

"It was difficult for some to see that by decreasing the numbers, it was increasing the degree of modification," he said. "That is a simple illustration, but it got complicated in some of those areas."

Some amendments increased the degree of modification in one area while decreasing it in another. "The parliamentarian Alan Chapman—and I would huddle right there on the podium," Fuzak recalled. "I had to rule. We would look at each other, not knowing what to say. He finally said, 'Heck, I don't know, just rule.'"

Fuzak did plenty of ruling in four Conventions. One of the more controversial issues during Fuzak's tenure was whether all financial aid should be need-based. At the special Convention in Chicago, the membership voted to have the Council develop a proposal suggesting just that. The legislation was introduced at the 1976 annual Convention in St. Louis, Missouri. After a lengthy discussion on whether a roll-call vote was needed, and after several motions to have a roll-call vote and then not to have one, it finally was determined that a paddle vote was sufficient. That paddle vote was 119-119 in Division I and 48-75 in Division II.

"I think perhaps we had better have a roll-call vote so there will be no doubts about the result," Fuzak said immediately after the vote. The Division I roll call then showed a 112-120 vote against the proposal. "There were some people who were voting for the proposal, when their conferences were perhaps entirely opposed to it," he said. "When they went on record, they voted against it."

Agenda the same

With that issue settled, Fuzak went on with the business session. Other financial issues that still are prevalent today were hot topics then. Recruiting practices and cutbacks in squad sizes and coaching staffs dotted the 1976 agenda, just as they do the 1992 agenda. Fuzak sees the current proposals as a continuation of what was done 16 years ago.

"I think there is an attempt to continue to reduce some of these things," he said, "and there always is a negative reaction to that on the part of coaches. Coaches say, 'Well, that kills our Olympic prospects if you restrict the length of practice.'"

"It was a case of 'Don't gore my ox.'"

If Fuzak was likely to get gored, it was over the issue of women's athletics in the NCAA. Proponents looked at the economic and compliance benefits of having just one department and one set of rules governing the entire program. Opponents regarded it as a takeover of women's athletics.

"Our attorneys were telling us that we were required to provide championships for women, too," he said. "The AIAW (Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women) didn't want to be a part of the NCAA. They saw it as an attempt to take them over."

"We were trying very hard to work cooperatively with the women. I met with their officers and legal counsel one time at a hotel in Chicago. I became convinced that we had no alternative but to move in the direction of providing women's championships. Of course, I felt that it would be to the benefit of women to have the support and financing of the NCAA. I think it was inevitable to have one organization—one structure for both men's and women's athletics."

Enforcement views

One other issue, another current concern, was NCAA enforcement procedure. While Fuzak didn't voice his opinion as president, he felt strongly that the procedure needed a change.

"The problem always has been the time element," he said. "It takes so long. And once it becomes known that someone is under investigation, as far as media and many others are concerned, that school already has been found guilty. It has been on probation for maybe a year before the case ever comes up."

Still, Fuzak believes the enforcement process is misunderstood. "It is an administrative hearing, not a trial," he said. "The NCAA does not have the power of subpoena or contempt...."

"A lot of people continue to see the NCAA as a body of a few people, perhaps even the executive director making all the decisions, rules and so on. They continue to overlook that the whole story is 'They is us.'"

"They" no longer is Fuzak. He retired from Michigan State in 1980 and went to work in the Atlantic Coast Conference office as a pioneer compliance coordinator.

When ACC Commissioner Robert C. James died in 1987, Fuzak was acting commissioner for about six months until Eugene F. Corrigan was hired. He worked with Corrigan for about a year before retiring again, this time for good.

He and his wife, Dorothy, have traveled extensively. They have taken cruises and ventured to France, Germany, Austria and Switzerland. When at home, he enjoys playing golf.

Fuzak served through own school's probation

On January 18, 1976, when John A. Fuzak, the faculty athletics representative at Michigan State University, was midway through his two-year term as NCAA president, Michigan State was placed on three years' probation for recruiting violations in its football program. The image of the university, and possibly that of its faculty representative, was tarnished.

Fuzak responded to that crisis in usual fashion. He maintained his composure and dignity.

"It was more difficult because of my position at the time," Fuzak said. "I had to be very careful about not being involved in a conflict of interest. It didn't directly affect what I did with the NCAA, but I was very uncomfortable with the situation and very unhappy about it."

The primary violations involved an assistant football coach and illegal financial aid and recruiting. As a result of the probation, Michigan State was banned from postseason competition after the 1976, 1977 and 1978 seasons and from regular-season television contests during those seasons. Also, the Spartans were limited to 20 football grants-in-aid for the 1976 season and 25 for 1977 rather than the allowable 30. Severe recruiting restrictions were placed on the football program, and the assistant coach and the head coach resigned, followed quickly by the athletics director.

"I started hearing rumors about recruiting violations at Michigan State," Fuzak said, "so I asked the Big Ten commissioner, Wayne Duke, to look into it. He did, and at one point, he reassured me that he hadn't found anything."

However, substantial violations later were found, and Fuzak had to juggle roles as NCAA president and Michigan State's NCAA representative.

"Michigan State's response was to take on an adversarial relationship with the infractions committee," Fuzak said. "My position was that we ought to be as cooperative as possible. We tried to get down to the bottom, even in terms of things where there were no allegations. We should strive to see that it never happens again."

"I think that is the position one ought to take. I tried to convince the president that he should stay out of it.... However, he involved himself directly."

After the announcement of the penalty, Fuzak had to start the healing process—more for himself than for the university. He had to get on with the business of being NCAA president and faculty representative, which may have been a blessing. "I didn't do anything differently," he said. "I just went about my business. I don't think there is much you can do. I never was implicated in terms of our procedure, checking eligibility or admissions. There weren't any problems there."

"I didn't feel threatened by it. There may have been those who thought 'Here you are the president. You should exercise some authority or something to ameliorate the situation or get us out of this.' But that would be the last thing I would want to do. I have always tried to be fair."

Commission proposals

urging Convention attendance by CEOs.

Joint statement

Meanwhile, the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (AACRAO), the American College Testing program (ACT), The College Board and the National Association of College Admission Counselors (NACAC) issued an unprecedented joint statement endorsing the Presidents Commission proposals for the 1992 Convention that deal with strengthening academic standards. The text of that statement:

"We recognize that intercollegiate athletics represents an important element of the total program of our nation's colleges and universities. However, we also recognize the need to maintain a careful balance between college athletics and the academic mission of our institutions. We must not allow the education of our students to be compromised by their participation in athletics programs."

"Accordingly, we support the work of the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics and endorse the objectives of its report...."

"Further, we support and endorse the 1992 NCAA Convention proposals sponsored by the NCAA Presidents Commission that seek to strengthen academic standards and implement the recommendations of the Knight Commission, particularly as they relate to the admission and retention of student-athletes. We encourage all NCAA member institutions to support these recommendations."

In a separate communication, ACT President Richard L. Ferguson, The College Board President Donald M. Stewart and Educational Testing Service President Gregory R. Anrig expressed their joint support for the Commission's proposal to introduce an indexing formula to the initial-eligibility requirements in Division I (Convention Proposal No. 16).

The poll

As reported in the December 25 News, the Commission's poll of CEOs attracted response rates of 50.3 percent in Division I, 48.6 percent in Division II and 34.7 percent in Division III.

In Division I, the closest margin was on a proposal (No. 30) dealing with financial aid in the summer for incoming student-athletes, an attempt being offered by the Commission for the third time. This time, 60.3 percent of the Division I CEOs responding favored the proposal.

Among the Division I academic proposals, the closest margin was on an amendment (No. 15) to increase the minimum high-school core-curriculum grade-point average from 2.000 to 2.500. That attracted nearly two-thirds support, with 64.3

percent of the Division I respondents favoring it.

In other Division I responses, 92.6 percent favored increasing from 13 to 15 the minimum number of high-school core courses (No. 14) and 74.5 percent supported the indexing approach set forth in No. 16.

The Division I CEOs were in favor of all three attempts to strengthen continuing-eligibility requirements (Nos. 19, 20 and 21), by percentages ranging from 79.6 percent to 98.7 percent.

Division II respondents similarly supported the academic proposals in that division by percentages between 65.3 and 95.2 percent. Division II already has a quantitative satisfactory-progress standard of its own.

In Division III, the basic proposals sponsored by the Commission or the NCAA Council were favored by more than 90 percent of those responding. Only one amendment (to refine the Division III playing and practice seasons) was below that, and it attracted nearly three-fourths support at 73.1 percent.

The proposal to establish a Division I-AAA football classification for those Division I institutions that no longer will be permitted to classify that sport in Division II or III also was heavily supported. It was favored by 66.4 percent in Division I, 66.7 percent in Division II and 91.6 percent in Division III. Only in Division I-AA did it fail to reach majority support.

NCAA Record!

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Margaret R. Preska resigned as president at Mankato State, effective February 1. She is completing a term on the NCAA Presidents Commission. Donna J. Benson named interim chancellor at North Carolina Central. She has been associate vice-president of the University of North Carolina System. Joseph C. Deck appointed interim chancellor at Massachusetts-Dartmouth, where he has been dean of the college of arts and sciences.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Kendrick Walker announced he will step down at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, effective August 1, 1992. Walker, who has been the school's AD since 1985, plans to take a one-year professional leave, then return to the school to teach in its philosophy department. Ted Taylor resigned at Philadelphia Textile, where he has been AD since 1989, to serve as director of hobby relations for the Fler Corporation.

COACHES

Women's basketball John Naughton announced his retirement at Buena Vista, effective at the end of the season. Naughton, who came to the school as head football coach in 1962, has coached women's basketball for 16 years, compiling a 252-139 record. Six of his teams have appeared in the Division III Women's Basketball Championship.

Men's and women's cross country

Dartmouth picked John Lyons for football

Thomas Dunn hired at St. Joseph's (Maine), where he also will coach men's and women's track. He previously was head track coach at Kennebunk (Maine) High School.

Football—Ron Steele named at West Texas State. Since 1988, he has been assistant head coach and defensive coordinator at Midwestern State, where he helped start the program. Barry Mynter selected at Canisius. He is a former coach at Norwich, where he led the Cadets to a 75-78-2 record from 1975 to 1990. Last spring, Mynter coached a club team in Porvoo, Finland. He replaces Tom Hersey, who resigned with a 49-42-2 record after 10 seasons. Gary Blackney received a two-year contract extension at Bowling Green, where he recently completed the first year of a four-year pact. Blackney's team finished 11-1 this season, including a victory in the California Raisin Bowl. John Lyons promoted from assistant at Dartmouth, where he joined the staff in 1988. The former Pennsylvania player also has been an assistant at his alma mater and at Boston U. Jim Wacker selected at Minnesota after nine years at Texas Christian, where his teams were 40-58-2. His 21-year career record of 144-91-3 includes stints at Texas Lutheran, North Dakota State and Southwest Texas State, where his teams won consecutive Division II championships in the early 1980s.

Football assistants—Bob Larson and Chuck Pagano joined the staff at Idaho State. Larson becomes offensive line coach after serving as offensive coordinator and in other positions at Murray State since 1987. He also has been head coach at Butler County (Kansas) Community College. Pagano, who becomes defensive backs coach, previously held a similar post at Nevada-Las Vegas and also has been on the staffs at Boise State and East Carolina.

Men's soccer Stephen Adlard appointed at Marquette. He previously was director of soccer at North Carolina-Asheville, where he coached the men's team to a 59-60-4 record through four years and also supervised the creation of the women's team, which will begin play next year. Adlard also has been head coach at Davis and Elkins, where his 1986 team reached the Division II semifinals.

Men's and women's track and field

Thomas Dann hired at St. Joseph's (Maine), where he also will coach men's and women's cross country. Dann previously coached at Kennebunk (Maine) High School, where he led the girls' track team to a second place finish in last year's state meet, and he is a former women's assistant at Oberlin.

Women's volleyball Gregory M. Giovanazzi appointed at Michigan. Giovanazzi helped coach UCLA men's and women's volleyball teams to three NCAA championships combined as an assistant from 1981 until 1990, when he became first assistant coach of the U.S. women's volleyball team. Giovanazzi, who played on an NCAA championship team at UCLA in 1976, also has coached the professional San Jose Goldiggers women's volleyball team.

STAFF

Eligibility coordinator—Laurie Black selected at Western Illinois, where she has been assistant sports information director since 1988.

NOTABLES

Don James of Washington, Mark

Duffner of Holy Cross, Frank Cignetti of Indiana (Pennsylvania) and Mike Kelly of Dayton have been named Chevrolet coaches of the year in their respective NCAA football divisions. Deanne Vochatzer, head women's cross country and track and field coach at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, selected by The Athletics Congress as alternate coach for the 1992 U.S. Olympic women's track and field team. Chris Ault, head football coach at Nevada, received the Eddie Robinson Award as the top coach in Division I-AA. Ault led Nevada to an unbeaten regular season in its last season of I-AA competition. Nevada will move into Division I-A and the Big West Conference next season.

DEATHS

Howie Dallmar, retired head men's basketball coach at Stanford and a former coach at Pennsylvania, died of congestive heart failure December 18 in Menlo Park, California. He was 69. Dallmar, who played on Stanford's 1942 NCAA championship basketball team, entered the coaching ranks after a professional playing career with the Philadelphia Warriors. After two seasons as basketball and baseball coach at Penn, he moved to Stanford, where his basketball teams were 264-264 through 21 seasons. Dallmar continued to serve as intramurals director at the school.

Volleyball player assists family in native Cuba

Clemson University women's volleyball player Annie Castro has developed a unique and very personal assistance project. She is helping the 54 members of her dad's family who still live in Communist Cuba.

Castro, whose parents came to the United States at age 17 and settled in Miami, Florida, has spent much time during recent summers in Cuba.

"The first time I went to Cuba, I was 10 years old," the 6-0 senior said. "It was so sad to see what the country had (become). I have been back seven times because I feel I can help them."

"It's one of the best experiences I've ever had," she said of the visits. "There's no TV and no radio. It's just family. You just sit around and talk."

Actually, Castro also spends time on each visit buying necessities for her relatives—having American money to spend makes a big difference.

"I go to stores they're not allowed to go into, and I buy them all of the necessities. My little bit of money goes a long way."

Castro arrived for one visit with $1,000 to spend on food. "I had a hard time spending all of the money," she said. "I would go back through the line again and again. When I got through, we needed two taxis for the food."

"My family was so happy," she added. "That food lasted them at least seven months."

"My trips to Cuba have made me realize I shouldn't take so many things for granted. I just thank God that I have everything I have today."

Fighting the drug war

Student-athletes from NCAA member institutions continue to receive notice for their work in fighting little battles in America's war on drugs. Among some of the items received at the national office:

- Northwestern State University (Louisiana) student-athletes have teamed with the Drug-Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program to form Demon/DARE, which is targeted at elementary-school students in Natchitoches Parish. In addition to visiting classrooms and sharing lunch with the grade-schoolers, the student-athletes have coordinated Demon/DARE Days at various on-campus athletics events.

- University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, football players visited Vestavia Elementary School during the recent "Red Ribbon Week" to urge the youngsters to avoid drugs.

Among the Crimson Tide speakers was Chris Anderson, who was involved last year in a drug-related shooting.

"It's a sad thing," he said, "but the Lord has gotten me through the tragedy I went through in my life. You all are young and probably have not been exposed to (drugs) yet. But you all probably are going to be exposed...and the thing to say is no."
