Certification trial bringing campus units together

Individuals participating in the NCAA's pilot certification program say the greatest benefit from the process is the way it brings together the campus community in an examination of the institution's athletics program.

"One benefit has been the fact that all the constituencies in the campus community are working together," said Denise Cohen, assistant athletics director at the University of Hartford. "It has been helpful for everyone and has increased the awareness about our athletics department.... Another benefit has been the support that the athletics department has gained from other institutional units on campus."

Pilot programs have been completed at 16

NCAA member institutions and are in progress at 20 more.

The NCAA Council Subcommittee on Certification has been assigned the task of developing a legislative proposal to establish a mandatory certification program, if deemed appropriate by the Council, for the 1993 Convention. The development of the program also is among the priorities of the Presidents Commission, as stated in the report of its Subcommittee on Strategic Planning.

'Very beneficial'

"Involvement of the campus was very beneficial, from the deans to whomever," said Taylor McNeel, assistant athletics director at Texas Tech University. "They all have a better understanding and a better perspective of what goes on in an athletics program, and they have a better understanding of the NCAA."

"It broadened the scope of what is involved in running a Division I program, and it created greater cooperation among all people involved within the running of the athletics program."

U.S. Military Academy faculty athletics representative Brig. Gen. Gerald Galloway had a similar observation. "Participation was helpful because the load that the student-athlete carries was recognized," he said. "...One might assume athletes would perform differently, maybe substantially lower (than regular students). In our case, we saw there was not a substantial difference. It helped confirm that our student-athletes are like our other students."

Self-study mechanism

Philip W. Winstead of Furman University and John Coyle of Pennsylvania State University, who chaired the pilot certification steering committees at their institutions, both cited the worth of the program as an ongoing self-study mechanism.

"We liked the notion of looking at the athletics program in the same fashion as the academic programs," Winstead said, "using the regional accrediting agencies as the World success brings few changes for Division II school's Pettigrew

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

In the span of a few months, Antonio Pettigrew went from being the fastest 400-meter runner in Division II to the fastest in the world.

And yet, George Williams, his coach at St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, North Carolina, says a visitor to campus wouldn't be able to tell Pettigrew from anyone else on campus.

"I was walking across campus recently when I ran into one of our administrators," Williams said. "He said, 'Hi George. Who's this young man with you?' I said, 'This is Antonio Pettigrew.' He couldn't believe he didn't know who Tony was. But success is not going to change this kid."

That is fortunate, because lately, Pettigrew has enjoyed nothing but success.

A quiet champion

Last March, he won the Division II indoor 400-meter championship in 47.43 seconds. Then, at the 1991 NCAA Division II Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships in May with the pre-race attention focused on defending champion Johnnie Barnes of Hampton University and Howard Burnett of New York Institute of Technology, the 1989 and 1990 winners, respectively—Pettigrew turned in a time (44.7) that would have won the Division I title by more than six-tenths of a second.

Still, he was relatively unknown. Then came the USA/Mobil Track and Field Championships in New York in June. Pettigrew ran against such well-known athletes as Danny Everett, Andrew Valmon and 1991 Division I champion Gabriel Luke of Rice University—and won. His 44.36 was easily better than Valmon's 44.68 and was the fastest time in the world in 1991 to that date.

His victory in New York earned Pettigrew a spot on the national team for the August world championships in Tokyo. While such internationally prominent runners as Roger Black of Great Britain and Roberto Hernandez of Cuba were battling Everett and Valmon for press clippings, Pettigrew quietly won the race in 44.57.

"The lack of respect doesn't bother me," Pettigrew said. "I got my credit when I was on the victory stand. My coach and my mom saw me there. I got credit for them, for my school and for myself."

Academics important

Pettigrew gets credit off the track, too. After transferring from Miami-Dade County (Florida) Community College, he made the dean's list both semesters last year at St. Augustine's. In fact, he cites academics as the reason he chose to run for the Mighty Falcons instead of competing at a Division I institution.

"I had 50 schools trying to recruit me," he said. "It's not Division I status that is important. It's not the size of the school that you go to, it's what you get from the school. I'm not saying that a Division I school wouldn't have been good. But I liked St. Augustine's."

"I wanted to go somewhere where I could get my degree. I had visited the school in the summer and saw the trophies. I heard about Coach Williams. The most important thing is that all the track athletes graduate here. Once track is over with, there is no job without that degree."

St. Augustine's College men's track coach George Williams says a stranger to the campus would not be able to pick out Antonio Pettigrew. On the track, however, he is easy to find. He's the one in front, as he was in last year's Division II indoor 400-meter dash.

Running faster

Just how fast can Pettigrew get? "With a little more strength, I think he can go to 43.6 or 43.7," Williams said. "The world record is 43.5. He has a shot at that on a good day."

Early this season, Pettigrew is running 800 meters to build up strength and stamina. He will run the 400 meters later in the year but will taper toward the end of the outdoor season so he is rested for the Olympic Trials, and then the Olympics in Barcelona, Spain.

Football Rules Committee delays 25-second clocks

Twenty-five-second clocks will not be required on college football fields until the 1993 season under action taken by the NCAA Football Rules Committee at its annual meeting January 19-21 in Kansas City, Missouri.

By delaying implementation of the clocks for one year, the committee is enabling membership divisions to appeal for a division-wide exception to the rule under the provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 118.

That proposal, which goes into effect August 1, permits the division championships committees to consider and approve appeals for division-specific exceptions to playing rules that have a significant financial impact, subject to the final authority of the Executive Committee.

If the committee had not moved the effective date back, divisions would not have had time to complete the appeal process before the season began and the rule took effect.

Appeals can be made only by the appropriate sports committee with rules responsibilities; a division championships committee; the Executive Committee, or eight member institutions, not all of which can be from the same conference.

Food drive successful

When Beloit College women's basketball fans were asked to bring nonperishable food items instead of money to gain admittance to a recent holiday tournament, they responded with enough grub to fill six giant boxes—and $60 cash. Judge dismisses Gov. Miller in NCAA's challenge of Nevada law

Nevada Gov. Bob Miller has been dismissed as a defendant from a lawsuit filed by the NCAA over a state law challenging its regulatory authority, according to The Associated Press.

The ruling, made by U.S. District Court Judge Howard McKibben, was announced January 21 by Nevada Attorney General Frankie Sue Del Papa.

The NCAA had named Miller in his official capacity as governor of the state.

In addition to the governor, the NCAA sued the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, men's basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian and three other athletics department officials.

The NCAA is challenging the constitutionality of a law that requires it to follow judicial-like due process in infractions cases involving the state's two universities, rather than the enforcement procedures enacted by the NCAA membership.

It was passed in response to concerns about ongoing NCAA investigations of alleged infractions within the Nevada-Las Vegas men's basketball program.

Under the new Nevada law, defendants in such cases would be allowed a chance to confront and cross examine accusers. The cases also would have to be decided by an independent hearing officer instead of the NCAA infractions committee.

Prior to dismissing the governor, the court had ordered that the university system of Nevada be joined as an additional party in the case. University of Nevada regents have decided to file as an intervenor in the case without choosing sides.

SWC, Big Eight swap alliance proposals

The Southwest Athletic and Big Eight Conferences moved a step closer to an alliance now primarily for television—when officials from both leagues announced plans to exchange specific proposals.

"We've agreed verbally," the University of Texas at Austin athletics director DeLoss Dodds told The Associated Press. "The next step would be to be more definitive.... I think we'll primarily be agreeing to be together on TV matters. It will grow from there."

Commissioners Fred Jacoby of the SWC and Carl C. James of the Big Eight said they expect more specific discussions to begin within a few weeks. An agreement could be approved in May.

Eligibility Committee leaves decision alone

The NCAA Eligibility Committee for Division I has concluded that new information provided in the case of University of Texas at Austin men's basketball player Dexter Cambridge does not persuade it to change its earlier conclusion and that the loss of a season of competition and repayment of $7,000 to his athletics sponsor at Lon Morris Junior College is appropriate.

The case was remanded by the NCAA Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals, which had determined that new information regarding work performed by Cambridge justified sending the case back to the Eligibility Committee. That committee previously had heard the case and found that repayment of the money and a loss of a season of eligibility were appropriate.

The Eligibility Committee said the new information did not sufficiently corroborate that $2,400 of the $7,000 check Cambridge received was for back wages.

Max Williams, faculty athletics representative at the University of Mississippi and acting chair of the Eligibility Committee, said that even if the committee had agreed that the new information corroborated that work worth $2,400 in wages was performed, it would have rendered the same decision.

USOC increases outlays to various governing bodies

The U.S. Olympic Committee, severely criticized in the past for not contributing enough money to athletes and the national governing bodies, is increasing its outlays.

For example, the USOC has earmarked more than $74 million in Olympic grants for the quadrennium ending in 1992, nearly twice the $38 million for the previous quadrennium. And allowances under the new USOC Athlete Subsidence Program are increasing from $2.2 million to $26 million.

"We think we're on the right road now," Mike Moran, USOC director of public relations, told The Associated Press. "This was what we wanted to do."

"We think this will result in more success. The teams we send to Albertville and Barcelona this year will be the best-funded teams ever."

"Four years ago at Calgary, we won only six medals. We think there will be an improvement at Albertville. We have kept alive a lot of careers that would have died. The kids are staying in their sports longer, and the talent pool is now deeper."

Moran gave some figures to illustrate his points about the increased financial aid to the athletes and the national governing bodies.

"In the quadrennium period leading to Seoul (in 1988), we spent 13.3 percent of our budget on general and administration costs," he said.

"We think we're on the right road now. This was what we wanted to do."

Mike Moran, USOC

"Those costs now have been reduced to 8.0 percent."

"In that previous quadrennium, we spent 15.3 percent of our budget on fund-raising costs. That's been reduced to 10.0."

"And our athlete and governing-body support was 71.4 percent. Now, it's 82.0 percent."

Until 1988, the only USOC money that went directly to athletes was under the Operation Gold program, which allocated funds based on athletes' world rankings, and it totaled $2.2 million.

Since 1988, athletes have received money from five other areas, and by the end of the year, it will total more than 12 times as much.

Of the seven Winter Olympic sports, skiing is receiving the most total money—$2,915,278 in Olympic grants and $3,883,654 overall—during this four-year period.

Among all sports, track and field is getting the most money in Olympic grants ($6,485,438), followed by swimming ($4,321,191).

1992 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 47—amateurism—contract negotiations

Member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 47 (effective immediately), an individual may request information about professional market value without affecting his or her amateur status. Further, the individual, his or her legal guardian(s), or the institution's professional sports counseling panel may enter into negotiations with a professional sports organization without the loss of the individual's amateur status. Please note that an individual who retains an agent shall lose amateur status and, in accordance with Bylaw 12.3.1, shall no longer be eligible for intercollegiate competition in the sport for which the agent has been retained.

1992 Convention Proposal No. 61—scouting of opponents—Division III

Division III member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 61 (effective immediately), it is not permissible for a member institution to scout any opponents, other than those participating in official games (not scrimmages or exhibition contests) played during the traditional segment of the playing season.

1992 Convention Proposal Nos. 68 and 68-1—NCAA Bylaw 15.3.4.1-(d)—cancellation of financial aid

Member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 68, as amended by Proposal No. 68-1 (effective immediately), it is permissible for a member institution to cancel immediately institutional financial aid awarded to a student-athlete if the student-athlete voluntarily withdraws from a sport prior to the institution's first competition in that sport. In addition, under such circumstances, the recipient's financial aid may not be awarded to another student-athlete during the term in which the aid was graduated or canceled. During its January 5 meeting, the NCAA Council determined that the provisions of Proposal No. 68-1 preclude an institution from replacing a counter under the provisions of Bylaws 15.5.2.2 and 15.5.5.4.1 (voluntary withdrawal) during the term in which the aid was graduated or canceled. Finally, please note that in accordance with Bylaw 15.3.4.1.3, any graduation or cancellation of aid pursuant to Bylaw 15.3.4.1 is permissible only if such action is taken for proper cause by the regular financial aid or disciplinary authority of the institution and the student-athlete has had an opportunity for a hearing.

1992 Convention Proposal No. 70—honorary academic awards—Division II

Division II member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 70 (effective immediately), honorary academic awards and research grants awarded by a member institution to a student-athlete that meet the criteria set forth in Bylaw 15.02.5 are exempted from the institution's financial aid limitation and are not included in determining a student-athlete's full grant-in-aid or whether the student-athlete's cost of attendance limitation has been met. Division II institutions should note that an academic honor award that meets the criteria set forth in Bylaw 15.5.3.3.1 remains countable in determining a student-athlete's full grant-in-aid and must be included in determining if the student-athlete's cost-of-attendance limitation has been met. An academic honor award that meets the criteria of Bylaw 15.5.3.3.1 is excluded only from the institution's financial aid limitations.

Men's Water Polo Committee seeks Thanksgiving-weekend date

Stating that it is traditional for the NCAA Men's Water Polo Championship to be held during the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, the Men's Water Polo Committee, at its December 19-22 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that the 1992 championship be held November 27-29.

The recommendation, if approved, comes one year after the championship received approval to be held during the first week in December. The 1992 championship was scheduled to be conducted December 6-8, but upon examination of those dates, the committee decided to request that the event be moved to the Thanksgiving holiday weekend to cut down on lost class time.

While the dates of the championship will change, if approved, the site will not. As has been the case for most of the championships' 23 years, the committee recommended that the Belmont Plaza Olympic

The committee considered options for trying to secure the championship past the 1993 event.

In regard to rules, the committee acted as follows:

Minority enrollment increases, but progress could stall

Minority enrollment at the nation's colleges grew in the late 1980s, but the deteriorating economy threatens to reverse some of the increase, the president of the American Council on Education said January 19.

"It would be wrong to look at the numbers, see progress and declare a victory," ACE President Robert H. Atwell told The Associated Press.

"The fiscal pressures on higher education, produced by the recession and other factors, pose a clear threat to any hopes of continued improvements in opportunities for minorities," he said.

The council's 10th annual status report on minorities in higher education showed that minority enrollment at colleges and universities increased 10 percent between 1988 and 1990, compared with a 5.1 percent increase in total enrollment. Overall, minorities showed the largest gains at four-year institutions, compared with two-year community colleges.

When broken down by race, however, the study showed that the gains were small only for Blacks and Hispanics but substantial for Asians.

The study also showed:

- Seventy-seven percent of 18- to 24-year-old Blacks completed high school as of 1990, up one percent from the previous year and more than 17 percent from 1970. Whites had a completion rate of 82.5 percent for 1990, showing little change from 1989. Hispanics dropped from 62.9 percent to 54.5 percent, the third decline in the last five years.

- Thirty-three percent of black high-school graduates enrolled in college in 1990, up from 26.1 percent in 1985. Black men reversed a generally downward trend over the previous eight years to make a strong showing during the 1988-90 period, with a 7.4 percent gain in enrollment to 476,000. That figure topped the group's previous high of 464,000, recorded 10 years earlier. The number of black women enrolling in college rose by 8.7 percent to 747,000 between 1988 and 1990.

- The rate for white graduates increased five percent, to 39.4 percent, during the same period, while Hispanics, at 29 percent, showed little progress after 1985. Asian-Americans showed an 11.7 percent increase from 1988 to 1990, and attendance by American Indians grew by 10.8 percent.

- Between 1979 and 1989, the total number of full-time employees in higher education increased by 20.8 percent, from 1.5 million to 1.8 million. In 1979, 17.7 percent of such employees were minorities; 10 years later 20.3 percent belonged to a minority group.

The annual status report was based on data from the Census Bureau, Education Department, College Board and other higher-education studies.

Questions/Answers

Readers are invited to submit questions to this column. Please direct any inquiries to The NCAA News at the NCAA national office.

Q How does an institution apply for active NCAA membership?

A An institution desiring to become an active member of the Association shall make application on a form available from the national office. A check in the appropriate amount for annual dues (as published in Constitution 3.6.3) shall accompany the application. Should the applicant fail to qualify academically or fail election, the dues paid shall be refunded.

A GAME THAT ENTERTAINS

College basketball almost always delivers a thrill

By Jonathan Rand

Were sports fans stripped of home-team loyalties and gambling urges, college basketball might be the nation's only major team sport still in business.

The lifeblood of American sports is supplied as much by what fans spend emotionally as they do monetarily. Most have so much invested emotionally in an event's outcome that victories become masterpieces and losses bring heartbreak. The game's quality often is a minor issue.

Fans are like people in love. When their team wins, they see wonderful qualities in a game that anyone emotionally uninvolved might consider humdrum.

Fact is, the majority of sports events are duller than dishwater, if held to the standards of a movie critic. Of the Kansas City Chiefs' 1991 games, perhaps four deserved more than 2½ stars. Even diehard Kansas City Royals fans must have had trouble getting a rise out of most games last year, except fans with the good timing to attend the opener or Bret Saberhagen's no-hitter.

Hercin lies the importance of tailgating, eating hot dogs, drinking beer or soda, taking the kids, filling out an all-star ballot and screaming oneself hoarse. Even if the game stinks, the experience can be enjoyable, given the right atmosphere.

It is, in one sense, unfair to ask of a sports event what one would from a movie. Games don't have scripts. There are no guarantees against blowouts, and sloppy scenes can't be reshot. Final acts often are anticlimactic.

But college basketball games could not be any better were they scripted, as, unfortunately, point shavers have attempted now and then. Missing an excellent baseball or football game upsets me because it might be the last such game I will catch for a month. Missing an excellent basketball game, however, is like missing a bus and knowing another one will be along in five minutes.

Take the (January 13) games on ESPN. Villanova University beat Seton Hall University, 73-68; then the University of Kansas beat the University of Missouri, Columbia, 92-80, both in overtime. You can wait a month of Sundays for one televised NFL game as good as either.

College basketball is fast-moving and has so many talented individuals, teams and coaches that highly competitive match-ups are routine. In most Division I arenas, the atmosphere is spine-tingling.

The game is beautifully balanced, no matter how much the rules makers tamper with it. Even as defense becomes increasingly tenacious each season, breathtaking offensive plays keep coming.

When a Super Bowl game is close and well-played, it's time to stop the presses. When more than a few high-quality games are played in a World Series, as in 1991, the commissioner gushes it was the best Series of all time. Most college bowl games are such yawners they must be watched mainly by gamblers and people who refuse to shovel the walk.

The NCAA men's Division I basketball tournament includes one gem after another. When a championship game becomes a blowout, such as when the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, beat Duke University in 1990, it is a rarity.

National Hockey League games are dandy until they degenerate into pro wrestling. National Basketball Association basketball is fine entertainment, but there are too many patsies in the league, and it lacks the diversity of the college game.

Within three days in Troy, Alabama, and Miami, Florida, the virtually limitless possibilities of college basketball were demonstrated.

Troy State University defeated DeVry Institute of Georgia, 258-141, January 12 in a game in which the shot clock could have been turned off. It also provided a small taste of what Duke playing the University of Oklahoma might produce if neither played much defense.

The University of Miami (Florida) upset St. John's University (New York), 45-42, January 14 by holding the ball at least 30 seconds on most possessions. That confirmed what Southwest Missouri State University coach Charlie Spoonhour once said about the alleged limitations of the 45-second clock: "Mr. (Henry) Iba says you can get to town in 45 seconds."

NCAA raises the wrong standard

In response to the NCAA institutional representatives who passed the 2,500 (4,000 scale) grade-point average requirement, may I suggest you have passed your responsibility on to beleaguered education professionals.

I taught for 10 years before coaching a Division I volleyball team for the past 10 years. I was continuously told by recruits and parents that the prospective student did well in school but just "didn't test well."

In fact, I have come to understand that their grades were based on a skewed system of pressure that lent little validity to the grade. The grade represented neither the quality nor even the quantity of work. The grade represented the extent to which teachers would go to avoid having students and parents accost their tranquility.

I am now back in the public classroom. The classroom environment has changed drastically over the past 10 years. I can now appreciate the extent of pain that can be inflicted on a teacher having to defend each aspect of his or her evaluation system. There is intense pressure on every teacher to defend every action. Parents are adamant about their children passing, whether or not they have acquired skills and knowledge.

Your 2,500 minimum requirement means only more pressure on the classroom teacher by parents and booster-club members to give higher unearned grades. If you really are serious about increasing standards, increase the minimum acceptable grade on the SAT or ACT.

History has clearly demonstrated an increase in an objective independent exam to be the best stimulus to increased academic responsibility. And be assured the reason for lower standardized test scores is the total lack of effort on the part of students. Their failure to complete homework is astounding.

The only thing more incredible than the students' lack of effort is the parents' unequivocal support of their children when the final grade means "failure." It will not be long after the imposition of your standard before a teacher will be sued for an amount equal to a Division I scholarship only because he or she recorded a 72 (C-) on a final grade.

McGraw, Summitt praised

The showboat basketball coaches who play to the crowd and the television cameras could take a lesson from women's coaches Muffet McGraw of the University of Notre Dame and Pat Summitt of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

McGraw

Summitt

Their recent game at Notre Dame was a tough, tense contest in which Tennessee held off a great Irish rally to win, 85-82. However, the bench decorum of both coaches was near perfect. Both obviously spend their time coaching their teams, not grandstanding.

The one flare-up of temper was quickly defused when a Notre Dame player stepped back and gave out with a broad smile. We don't expect male players to hug each other after the final gun, but seeing these women's teams do just that was a real treat.

And how many coaches would head to a microphone after the game, as McGraw did, to thank the Joyce Center record crowd (8,134) for taking the time to come to the game?

If only this were the rule, rather than the exception.

USA Today

"It perplexes me that many who complained most bitterly about exploitation complain that reasonable standards to prevent it are discriminatory. The same charges were made about Proposition 48. Those charges were wrong.

"The proportion of black students playing Division I men's football and basketball was greater in 1988—two years after Proposition 48 took effect—than in 1984, two years before the initial minimum requirements. That means black high-school athletes rose to meet the academic challenge. They entered college better prepared for success....

"Of the more than one million African-Americans enrolled in college in 1988, barely one percent attended on Division I football and men's basketball scholarships. We need to worry more about opportunity and access for aspiring teachers, scientists and engineers.

"The standards are minimal and achievable. If we focus competitive energies in education as we do in athletics, these standards will be met and surpassed to the benefit of all."

"We've been criticized for not graduating our athletes. We're criticized for taking advantage of minority athletes, using them and then throwing them away. Then when we go about trying to increase standards, we get the other side of the coin. Let's give this a chance to work."

James T. Rogers, executive director
Southern Association of Colleges and Schools

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"In looking at the number of situations out there that relate directly to intercollegiate athletics, we could no longer ignore those situations and assume that they were completely divorced from the overall accreditation of the institutions. They do relate, directly and indirectly, to the quality of the institution, its purpose, and the academic and financial integrity of its programs.

"It was time for us as a regional accrediting body to speak to the issue of intercollegiate athletics."

John A. DiBiaggio, president

"The Knight Commission developed (the idea), and I strongly feel, that all the monies that coaches generate should come through the university. The argument by coaches often is that the reason they get shoe contracts is because they serve on an advisory board of that company. But I say our students are using the product, even if it's donated, and that's stimulating others to buy the product, and that's why the coach got involved in it....

"Quite frankly, the reason they're able to generate money, whether through shoe contracts or TV or whatever, is because they're affiliated with the university....and some of that money should return to university budgets and then be reallocated to them....

"I think (coaches') salaries are getting a bit prohibitive in aggregate....and I think we all should collectively say, 'Hey, there's a limitation to the worth of an individual in that capacity.'"

Judith M. Sweet, NCAA president

The Associated Press

"I have enjoyed being a part of what I view as positive change within the NCAA membership. I'm talking about attitude and legislation. I don't want to use the term 'reform movement.' It gets over-used. But there really is a sincere commitment to improve upon what has been in place and for people to communicate more actively with each other in how to bring that improvement about."

Women's volleyball posts second-lowest injuries

Women's volleyball recorded the second-lowest practice, game and overall injury totals in eight years, according to data collected for the NCAA's Injury Surveillance System.

Each category's total was lower than the eight-year average, with the game data showing a decrease of almost two injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures (A-E), compared to the 1990-91 season. Ankles and knees continue to be the most frequently injured body parts.

Field hockey also showed decreases in all three injury categories compared to the previous year, although the injury rates were similar to the six-year averages for the sport. Upper-leg and ankle injuries were the top injuries. Knee injuries decreased eight percent from the 1990-91 season.

In football, practice injury rates were consistent with those recorded in the previous seven years. Game injury rates, however, dropped more than four injuries per 1,000 A-E compared to the previous two years. Knees, ankles and shoulders were the top body parts injured, maintaining a pattern that has developed over each of the eight years of surveillance of the sport.

Soccer showed similar patterns in both the men's and the women's games. Men's soccer reported game injury rates of 21.2 injuries/1,000 A-E, highest in the six years of data collection for the sport. This value contributed to the fourth straight small increase in the overall injury rate.

The women's game showed small increases in practice, game and overall injury rates compared to the previous season, although the game injury rate was still lower than the six-year average. Both sports listed the ankle, upper leg and knee as the top three body parts injured, and both reported similar percentages of occurrence of each injury.

Of particular interest for current sports medicine research is that anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) injuries in women soccer players occurred at a rate that was double that of their male counterparts. That pattern has been observed for the past three seasons, said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences.

The survey, conducted as part of the NCAA Injury Surveillance System, is statistically reliable; but researchers should be cautious when comparing the results with injury data from other studies.

"No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics-injury literature," Dick said. "Therefore, the information contained in this summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the ISS."

The ISS was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics. Injury data are collected yearly from a representative sample of NCAA member institutions and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The committee's goal continues to be to reduce injury rates through suggested changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques based on data provided by the Injury Surveillance System.

Sampling

Exposure and injury data were submitted weekly by athletics trainers from institutions selected to represent a cross section of NCAA membership. The cross section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and the four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions, Dick said.

Dick said that it is important to note that this system does not identify every injury that occurs at NCAA institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross section of NCAA institutions.

Exposures

An athlete exposure (A-E) is one athlete participating in one practice or game in which he or she is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury. For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants, would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury in the Injury Surveillance System is defined as one that:

1. Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game, and
2. Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and
3. Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation for one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Injury rate

An injury rate is a ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete exposures in that category. This value is then multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete exposures. For example, six reportable injuries during a period of 563 athlete exposures would give an injury rate of 10.7 injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures (six divided by 563) times 1,000.

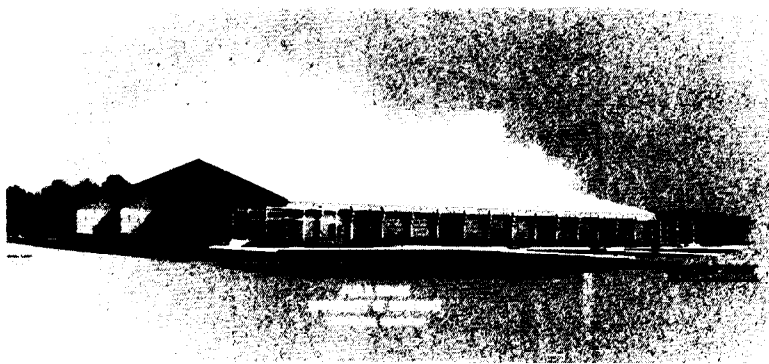

Additional information on the report is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

The accompanying tables highlight selected information from the fall 1991-92 Injury Surveillance System. Injury rates and game-practice percentages are compared to an average value calculated from all years in which ISS data has been collected in a specific sport.

Facilities

The University of Kentucky is building an $8.5 million indoor practice facility, scheduled for completion in November

Indoor facility under construction at Kentucky

University of Kentucky athletics director C. M. Newton says construction of a new indoor training facility is the "final piece" of the school's facilities puzzle.

In November, Kentucky began construction on a $8.5 million indoor practice facility for its athletics teams and university community. It will house a full-size football field with artificial turf; a six-lane, 290-meter track; a 9,000-foot gymnastics room, and a computerized netting system for baseball and golf practice. The building is scheduled for completion in November 1992.

New football sports center at Aurora

"More than just a press box," is how the new LaVerne Gilkey Sports Information Center at Aurora University is described by the school.

It was dedicated during the football season in memory of LaVerne Gilkey, a 1929 graduate of the school and member of the Aurora Spartan Hall of Fame. He served as a football, basketball and baseball coach from 1946 to 1951.

The two-story structure, built for $50,000 late last summer, provides rooms for coaches, broadcast booths, and 500 square feet of working space on the second floor and a similarly sized equipment storage room on the first level. In addition, rooftop decks provide space for three film-video crews.

Detroit Mercy completes fitness structure

Construction of the Larry Bleach Fitness Center recently was completed at the University of Detroit Mercy.

The new facility, which was made possible through a $50,000 bequest from the late Larry Bleach, was constructed inside an old ROTC supply room in the school's Calihan Hall.

The facility is approximately four times larger than the old weight-training room and has aerobic conditioning equipment such as stair-stepping machines, exercise bicycles, a rowing machine, free weights, bench presses and a multihip exerciser.

Bleach starred for the Titans basketball team in the late 1930s and was its first black captain. He also enjoyed the distinction of receiving an award in the old Polo Grounds from Babe Ruth as Manhattan's most valuable baseball player while he was a student at New York's Textile High School.

Missouri Basketball Hall site selected

The John Q. Hammons Missouri Basketball Hall of Fame, which is scheduled to be completed and opened during the 1993-94 collegiate basketball season, will be housed in Springfield, Missouri.

The facility will cost an estimated $2 to $2.5 million and will include a museum of Missouri basketball history.

Female runners' equality doubted

A study by Runners World magazine says women are unlikely ever to run as fast as men in a competitive event, despite recent claims of two University of California, Berkeley, researchers.

Amby Burfoot, the magazine's editor and former Boston marathon champion, said claims by physiologists Brian Whipp and Susan Ward in a letter to the British journal Nature were skewed.

"There's no question there was dramatic improvement in women's performance in the first 10 years that they were given equal opportunities with men—roughly 1972 to 1983," he said. "But following that very rapid improvement the performance has been very similar to men. Each improvement is very, very difficult. It's not coming easy anymore."

Burfoot said the dramatic improvement in women's times came not because women were improving, but because more women were entering competition, according to United Press International.

"It's important to remember that the women's running movement was decades behind the men's until just a few years ago," he said.

State legislation relating to college athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions.

Set forth below is a list of 21 bills from 13 states. The report includes 15 bills that have been introduced, and six pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (December 9, 1991, issue of The NCAA News). Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of January 16, 1992. The listed bills were selected for inclusion in this report from a larger pool of bills concerning sports and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislatures concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in the report by subject.

Anabolic steroids	5
Gambling	4
Scalping	3
Athlete agents	2
Liability	2
Trainers	2
Student-athlete trust funds	1
Tournament	1
Wrestling	1

A bill relating to sports gambling has become law in Michigan since the last report.

Colorado H. 1015 (Author: Adkins)

Designates anabolic steroids as a Schedule III drug.

Status: 1/8/92 introduced. To House Committee on Judiciary.

Florida H. 99 (Author: Tobin)

Provides that certain ticket sales constitute a deceptive and unfair trade practice; defines the "original seller" of a ticket.

Status: 9/20/91 prefiled. 1/14/92 introduced. To House Committee on Regulated Services and Technology.

Indiana S. 198 (Author: Corcoran)

Establishes the Indiana Board of Athletic Trainers to oversee the licensure of athletics trainers; prohibits certain practices in athletics training.

Status: 1/6/92 introduced. To Senate Committee on Public Policy.

Indiana S. 282 (Author: Meeks)

Relates to penalties for misuse of anabolic steroids.

Status: 1/7/92 introduced. To Senate Committee on Judiciary.

Kentucky H. 42 (Author: Ward)

Provides that assault of a sports official is a class D felony; limits the liability of sports officials.

Status: 1/7/92 introduced. To House Committee on Judiciary.

Michigan H. 4099 (Author: Muxlow)

Prohibits lottery games based on sporting events.

Status: 2/6/91 introduced. 6/27/91 passed House. To Senate. 12/4/91 passed Senate. 12/6/91 to Governor. 12/18/91 signed by Governor.

Minnesota H. 1783/S. 1679 (Authors: Jaros and Solon)

Relate to establishing procedures for a state lottery based on sporting events.

Status: 1/7/92 H. 1783 introduced. To House Committee on General Legislation, Veterans Affairs and Gaming. 1/13/92 S. 1679 introduced. To Senate Committee on Gaming Regulation.

Mississippi S. 2043 (Author: Williams)

Limits the liability of volunteers at athletics events.

Status: 1/2/92 introduced. To Senate Committee on Judiciary.

Nebraska L. 1019 (Author: Wesely)

Changes law relating to anabolic steroids to amend provisions on access to records, action against credentials and notification of test results.

Status: 1/10/92 introduced.

New Hampshire S. 62 (Author: Currier)

Establishes a committee on athletics trainers to advise the Board of Registration in Medicine; establishes licensing regulations for athletics trainers.

Status: 1/18/91 introduced. 3/28/91 passed Senate. To House. 4/2/91 to House Committee on Executive Departments and Administration. 1/8/92 from House Committee on Executive Departments and Administration. Do pass as amended.

New Jersey A. 228 (Author: Catania)

Upgrades illegal distribution of anabolic steroids to minors to a crime of the second degree.

Status: 1/14/92 introduced.

New Jersey A. 506 (Author: Rocco)

Extends existing prohibition against ticket scalping to include admission tickets to out-of-state events.

Status: 1/14/92 introduced.

New Jersey A. 1795 (Author: McEnroe)

Requires the registration of all athlete agents; establishes a New Jersey Athlete Agent Regulatory Board; prescribes certain behavior.

Status: 1/18/90 introduced. 5/23/91 passed Assembly. To Senate. 6/10/91 to Senate Committee on Labor, Industry and Professions. 12/16/91 from Senate Committee on Labor, Industry and Professions. Reported. 1/14/92 died at adjournment of 1991 session. The bill does not carry over to 1992.

New Jersey S. 146 (Author: Bassano)

Classified anabolic steroids as a controlled dangerous substance.

Status: 1/14/92 introduced.

New Jersey S. 3727 (Author: Cafiero)

Provides for licensing of persons reselling tickets for out-of-state events.

Status: 12/5/91 introduced. To Senate Committee on Labor, Industry and Professions. 1/14/92 died at adjournment of 1991 session. The bill does not carry over to 1992.

New York A. 9016 (Author: Griffith)

Relates to authorizing betting on professional sporting events at certain facilities.

Status: 1/8/92 introduced. To Assembly Committee on Racing and Wagering.

Pennsylvania H. 1174 (Author: Petrone)

Relates to wrestling.

Status: 4/17/91 introduced. 11/26/91 passed House. To Senate. 12/4/91 to Senate Committee on State Government. 12/10/91 from Senate Committee on State Government. Do pass as amended.

Pennsylvania H. 1538 (Author: Colafella)

Provides for the licensing of athlete agents.

Status: 6/3/91 introduced. 12/10/91 passed House. To Senate. 12/19/91 to Senate Committee on Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure.

Pennsylvania H. 2292 (Author: Williams)

Requires institutions of higher education to establish student-athlete reserve trust funds.

Status: 12/11/91 introduced. 1/7/92 to House Committee on Education.

Wisconsin A.J.R. 102 (Author: Prosser)

Relates to the establishment of a collegiate basketball tournament among Division I schools in Wisconsin, to be known as the "Badger Trophy Tournament."

Status: 12/20/91 introduced. To Assembly Committee on Colleges and Universities.

Laettner among Sullivan finalists

Duke University basketball player Christian Laettner is among 10 finalists for the Sullivan Award, honoring the outstanding amateur athlete of 1991.

Laettner, now in his senior season, was the center on Duke's NCAA Division I men's championship team last spring.

nized swimmer Sarah Josephson and diver Kent Ferguson.

The award, presented by the Amateur Athletic Union, will be awarded March 2 in Indianapolis, Indiana. Last year's winner was wrestler John Smith.

Compliance briefs

GENERAL INFORMATION

Faculty Athletics Representatives Handbook.

During its January 6, 1992, meeting in Anaheim, California, the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association's (FARA) executive committee voted unanimously to endorse a statement of principles about the role of the faculty athletics representative in establishing institutional control. The statement of principles, developed by a FARA subcommittee, will be incorporated into the revised edition of the NCAA's Faculty Athletics Representative Handbook, which is scheduled for publication and distribution to the membership during the 1992-93 academic year.

UPCOMING MEETINGS

Attention; Registration and Admissions Administrators. National office staff members from the legislative services and compliance services departments will be involved in the following February regional association meetings:

• Southern Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers (SACRAO), Birmingham, Alabama, February 9-12, 1992.

• Southern Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (SASFAA), Richmond, Virginia, February 16-19, 1992.

• Conference Commissioner Association. The annual CCA meeting will be conducted February 18-19, 1992, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Kansas City, Missouri. The meeting will begin at 8 a.m. Tuesday, February 18, and adjourn by 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, February 19. In addition to a review of the newly adopted NCAA legislation, the agenda will include a discussion of the pilot certification program, the coaches-certification program, the conference review program, conference-action plans and additional compliance-related issues.

COMPLIANCE STRATEGIES

From the Membership

Those attending the 1991 regional seminars were asked to address issues and problems as well as offer compliance strategies regarding specific compliance-related responsibilities in various topic areas such as administration, recruiting and rules education.

The following is a specific problem associated with confirming the full-time enrollment status of all student-athletes and a list of suggested responses as provided by those attending the seminar:

Problem:

• Student-athlete permitted to drop to part-time status without athletics department notification.

Suggestions:

• Develop a policy that prohibits a student-athlete from dropping to part-time enrollment without the signature of the compliance personnel and/or athletics academic counselor.

• Develop a notation that appears on computer monitors in the registrar's office indicating that the student cannot drop to part-time status without presenting a form signed by an appropriate athletics department administrator.

• Require student-athletes to sign a statement acknowledging their awareness of the eligibility consequences of dropping below full-time status.

• Request Monitoring Full-Time Enrollment form from the NCAA compliance services department.

Additional compliance strategies concerning the continuing-eligibility certification process are available in the 1991-92 NCAA Guide to Rules Compliance.

This material was provided by the NCAA compliance services department as an aid to member institutions and conference offices. Institutions or conference offices with questions or issues concerning the content addressed in this column may contact John H. Leavens, assistant executive director for compliance services, at the NCAA national office.

Administrative Committee minutes

Acting for the Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Agreed to recommend to the Council in its pre-Convention meeting that it grant a waiver for 1992 to permit coaches at NCAA institutions to participate in the NFL Minority Coaches Fellowship Program and to receive expenses such as travel, lodging and meals, but not wages, stipends or other compensation of any kind, with the understanding that some legislative or other appropriate action will be taken to deal with this situation in the future.

b. Agreed to permit the Big East Conference to be considered a Division I-A voting conference at the 1992 Convention despite the fact that it does not meet the provisions regarding determination of a football champion per Constitution 3.3.2.2.4, noting that the conference's misinterpretation of its voting status had been available but not identified in the national office until just prior to the Convention; specified that the conference must determine a football cham-pio to the Administrative Committee for discussion in a future conference.

(2) Agreed that attention should be paid to introducing new people to committee service wherever possible, to involving representatives of all divisions when positions are not earmarked for a given division, and to eschew the temptation to nominate individuals from a Council member's own institution to the greatest extent possible.

(3) Agreed that the division steering committees should review these matters in their August meetings each year, in preparation for the October appointment process, and should develop nominations for submission prior to the October meeting, rather than during that meeting.

c. Placed on the April Council agenda a review of Title IX compliance issues, including the reaction of the Committee on Women's Athletics to the data in the recently completed gender-equity survey.

f. Reviewed suggestions regarding possible adjustments in Council staffing procedures and took these actions:

(1) Asked Douglas S. Hobbs, Division I vice-president, and Rocco J. Carzo, Division III vice-president, as outgoing officers, to provide their reactions to the suggestions for future review by the 1992 Administrative Committee.

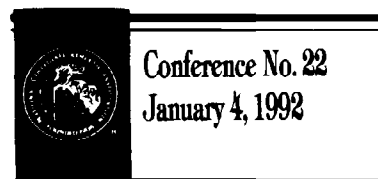

(2) Asked that a similar set of suggestions be developed regarding Executive Committee staffing procedures, primarily in terms of meeting format.

(3) Agreed to consider in the January 29 joint meeting with the Presidents Commission officers the feasibility of a biennial meeting of the Council and Presidents Commission to discuss strategic planning or other key issues.

(4) Agreed to consider in that same meeting some type of liaison arrangement between the Council and the Commission subcommittees working on the elements of that group's strategic plan.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Approved a request by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports that expenses be paid to permit a representative of MedSports Systems, Ltd., Iowa City, Iowa, to attend the February meeting of the committee's research subcommittee, the purpose being to address means by which duplication of effort can be eliminated in the injury-surveillance process.

pion via regular-season competition on the playing field if it is to be considered a Division I-A conference for voting purposes in the future; asked the conference to document its assertion that it based its view of its voting status on a national-office interpretation received in 1990.

c. Established the following procedure regarding institutional appeals of membership-classification actions: Each such institution is to be informed in writing that any request for an appeal must be submitted in writing to the Administrative Committee, which then determines if the request for an appeal is to be granted and, if granted, if it is to be an in-person appeal or determined on the basis of the written record.

d. Reviewed the process by which the Council makes appointments in its October meeting to fill vacancies on Council-appointed committees and agreed to make a concerted effort to improve that process, including the following:

(1) Directed that copies of the document on the committee-appointment process that was reviewed by the Council in 1989 be sent

Guide ready for Division I basketball

The 1992 NCAA Basketball Championship Guide, a comprehensive look at the Division I Men's Basketball Championship, now is available.

The guide contains ticket information for the 1992 tournament, arena seating diagrams and a pull-out tournament bracket. In addition, the guide provides information about all 13 host cities.

A special section highlighting the 1992 Women's Final Four, feature stories and trivia sections also are included in the guide.

The guide can be purchased for $5 at selected newsstands across the country, and at B. Dalton and Waldenbook bookstores.

The guides also can be ordered by mail. Credit-card holders can order toll-free by calling (800) 488-3883. Checks should be mailed to NCAA Publications, 904 North Broadway, Lexington, Kentucky 40506. Add $2 per copy for postage and handling.

In addition to the toll-free number for single orders, NCAA member institutions are eligible for quantity discounts if 50 or more books are purchased. Per-case orders should be directed to Doug Iler of the Creco division of Host Creative Communications, (502) 459-4346.

Administrative

b. Directed the executive director to investigate means by which the premium for the Association's loss-of-revenue insurance in regard to the Division I Men's Basketball Championship might be reduced.

c. Directed the executive director to proceed with final arrangements with the Greater Kansas City YMCA regarding the use of a building owned by the Association adjacent to the national office building.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2. Acting for the Council:

a. Approved a request by Utah State University to replace temporarily a countable coach in football under the provisions of Bylaw 11.7.1.1.1.2.

b. Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(b) to permit student-athletes from six institutions to participate in tryouts leading directly to qualification for participation in the Olympic games (sailing, soccer, swimming and diving).

c. Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1-(c) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in competition involving national teams in fencing, field hockey, ice hockey and swimming.

d. Granted a waiver per Bylaws 14.8.6.1-(d) and 14.8.6.2-(b) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in the 1992 Badger State Games (Wisconsin).

e. Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.13.1 to permit institutions to provide incidental expenses in these situations:

(1) To student-athletes to attend funerals of members of the student-athletes' families.

(2) To student-athletes to attend recognized events at which the student-athletes would be honored; also, to rent a tuxedo for a student-athlete to wear at one such event.

(3) To provide transportation on the team's chartered jet (as part of an established community "make a wish" program) for a student-athlete's terminally ill sister to attend a postseason football game in which the student-athlete's team was competing.

(4) To pay for a permit enabling student-athletes to drive institutional vans to away-from-home competition.

Bradley, Strook win awards

The National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics honored Bob Bradley and Fred Strook during its conference in Anaheim, California, January 4.

Bradley, assistant athletics director at the University of Kentucky, received the association's Lan Hewlett Award, while Strook, associate athletics director at the University of California, Los Angeles, was presented with the Award for Distinguished Service to the N4A.

Diving in

model."

Coyle said Penn State's review produced no major surprises, although he cited a value in reaffirmation. "We found a couple of things we needed to fine-tune," he said, "but it's a nice feeling to say 'We're doing a pretty good job.' But even if we had discovered major flaws, the process would have been helpful."

Coyle said the program did reveal that Penn State student-athletes did not believe their voice was being heard adequately. Exit interviews with seniors, now required, will deal with the concern to a degree, but Coyle said additional programs may be established to improve communication with undergraduates.

Establishing procedures

Mary Ann Rohleder, associate athletics director at Butler University, said her institution's compliance effort had been based more on traditions than clearly established procedures. "We have assumed people knew how to do things," she said. "We have not had written policies and procedures for specific things, and by doing this study, we realize that we need to strengthen our rules-education efforts and document specific procedures. People (in other university departments) eventually were getting to the right place, but often they did not know where to start."

As a result of the study, Rohleder detects a new respect from those outside the athletics department. "They realize we don't just play

Pilot certification programs

Some of the benefits and concerns mentioned from individuals at institutions participating in the NCAA's pilot certification programs:

BENEFITS

- Self-study of athletics program reveals areas in which improvement is possible.
- Provides reassurance that athletics program is functioning consistently with the institution's mission.
- Faculty, staff and student involvement in the process tends to enable the entire campus to know and understand how the athletics program is operated. Also gives them input into how the program is being run.

CONCERNS

- Early indications are the process may take more than 90 days, which was the original target.
- Some questions may be redundant.
- Bringing the information together at the end proved to be an unexpectedly large task for some people.

games," she said.

Robert Saltmarsh, faculty athletics representative at Eastern Illinois University, said one of the subcommittee reports praised the services provided for student-athletes but subsequent interviews with student-athletes revealed they were not familiar with the programs. "It caused the institution to be more precise in communicating available services to student-athletes and in documenting those services," Saltmarsh said.

Time a concern

An almost universal concern, however, was that the program was time-consuming and demanding. "This was like another doctoral dissertation," Saltmarsh said.

Chris Hill, athletics director at the University of Utah, was especially concerned with the amount of time the project took. "I would not want to volunteer the staff for this too often," he said of the project, which he said took more than four months. "I'm not overwhelmingly supportive of the length of the process."

Others had similar reactions, although some, such as Texas Tech's McNeel, believed the effort was necessary. "It was laborious," he said. "There was a great deal of detail, but to do an effective self-study, you have to have a large amount of detail."

Job grabs executive away from retirement

By Ronald D. Mott
The NCAA News Staff

Frank Williams was ready to settle into retirement the old-fashioned way. There would be more fishing trips, more opportunities to travel and the time to undertake projects that a daily work schedule didn't seem to allow.

Then, something happened....

He got a job. Actually, the job got him.

Williams retired in December 1990 after a 35-year career with the Boeing Company, nearly a fourth of which he spent as a vice-president. He and his wife moved from the aircraft company's Wichita, Kansas, facility to Troy, Alabama, where he built a house on a piece of land, complete with a lake, that he owned.

In the course of familiarizing himself with his new surroundings, Williams, who is probably better known as just "Red" because of the hue of his hair, met Troy State University Chancellor Jack Hawkins Jr. The pair got to know one another a little better, but Williams still did a double take when Hawkins asked him to become the interim director of athletics at the Division II institution last fall.

The right reasons

"I thought he had lost his mind," said the 62-year-old Williams. "I had retired from the Boeing company, built a home in Troy, which is close to where I grew up as a kid, and I didn't have this in mind. I tried to talk him out of it. I told him I didn't know anything about athletics. I was not familiar with the academic community. He told me those were all the reasons why I should do it."

Williams finally agreed after some prodding from his wife of 41 years, Ann Kelly Williams, a native of Troy and a Troy State graduate. He began work September 1.

In the four-plus months since, Williams said some elements of the job have been tougher than expected and others have turned out less burdensome than anticipated.

"I've tried to apply some of the business lessons I've learned at Boeing," he said. "But I've found out that people are people. The kinds of problems you run into are fundamentally the same. Budget problems have been more severe than I thought. The (NCAA) compliance requirements have been more difficult than I thought. But working with the coaches and the kids has been more gratifying than I had expected."

Williams said he has gained a broader understanding of the dilemmas and obstacles facing today's student-athletes.

"I believe we need to do more to try to help those kids be able to get through school," he said. "Ultimately, it's up to them. But you have to give them the ability and the wherewithal to do it. And if I had to vote on freshman eligibility, I think I would vote against it. I think they may need a year to get their feathers in order."

A team approach

Williams is not alone in his newfound "career." His wife has taken an active role in his new job, becoming a visible supporter of the Trojans'

Big score brings lasting memories

The date January 12, 1992, is likely to be etched into the minds of Troy State University staffers and students alike for some time to come.

Of course, that's when the Trojans' men's basketball team reeled off an all-divisions NCAA record 258 points in a 117-point victory over DeVry Institute of Georgia. Other records set were Troy State's 102 field goals in 190 attempts, 51 three-pointers in 109 attempts, 10 Troy State players sinking at least one three-pointer, and scoring 135 points in a half.

Interim athletics director Frank Williams said there were only a few phone calls to his office about the game, and each was positive. Williams added that there is no reason for him or basketball coach Don Maestri to feel guilty about the outcome of the game.

"I've never seen such electricity at a basketball game before," Williams said. "Both teams and the fans had a marvelous time. A basketball purist would probably get upset about it. History was made, and it was made by Troy State. How in the world can I be against that?"

athletics teams.

Now and then, she can be heard at the games, too, Williams said.

"She goes to the games and sometimes gives the referees the dickens if she feels we're not getting the calls," he said. "She's a great supporter. She comes in almost every day with rolls and fruit for the staff and to check on me to see if I'm doing my job right. She's a great help."

Williams grew up in the small town of Luverne, Alabama, about an hour's drive south of Montgomery. He attended Troy State in 1947 and 1948, playing football there, but he transferred to Auburn University, where he earned a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering.

He sits on the search committee overseeing the appointment of a permanent athletics director. He said he was unsure of how much longer it would be before a replacement is named, but he added that the committee is reviewing applicants and interviewing candidates. Once a person is selected, Williams said it was undecided what he would do with his second "retirement."

"I have an activist wife," Williams said. "We've had that kind of marriage. Maybe I should ask my activist wife what I should do. If I don't figure out what I will do, I'm sure she will."

Frank "Red" Williams was settling into a life of retirement from the Boeing Corporation when Troy State University approached him with a "learn-as-you-go" plan to become the institution's director of athletics. He's been on the job four months now and enjoys his new role.

World success

"I'm expecting him to make the team," Williams said. "He is one of the top three quarter-milers in the country. He is ranked No. 2 behind Michael Johnson."

Pettigrew carries it one step in track terms, about three-tenths of a second farther. "I don't see anyone who can stop me. Michael Johnson is an outstanding runner, but you have to run the 400 meters like Danny Everett, Steve Lewis or me—run it every meet. Johnson runs the 200, then switches.

"I'll be ready for Michael. I'll be ready for anybody in the world. If the Lord is willing, I can beat anybody."

Regardless of how he does in Barcelona, or even if he doesn't make the team, Pettigrew plans to be successful. "Recently, somebody asked me if I ever lost a race," he said. "I said, 'No.' He then said, 'You have never lost a race?'" I said, "No, because every time I run I give my all. I may have finished second or third, but I have never lost, because I did my best."

With admission of Fresno State, CFA roster reaches 67 schools

California State University, Fresno, has been admitted as an active member of the College Football Association, effective immediately.

The institution becomes the 67th member of the CFA, which was formed in 1977.

Fresno State recently became a member of the Western Athletic Conference, making it eligible for CFA membership. Members of the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Eight, Southeastern and Southwest Athletic Conferences, as well as NCAA Division I-A independents, also belong to the association.

The perfect cake

When South Dakota State University men's basketball coach Jim Thorson earned his 100th victory at the school on the eve of the game's centennial, a perfect decorating scheme was used to spruce up the cake Thorson and the school's basketball fans enjoyed in celebration.

Lack of Monday action suits Big Ten coaches

Getting away from late Monday night games and going to a basic Wednesday and Saturday schedule is OK with Big Ten Conference basketball coaches.

Most of the coaches said in their weekly teleconference January 21 that they liked the switch away from a format that saw a Monday night Big Ten game televised on ESPN, according to The Associated Press. Last season, Big Ten teams played the second part of an ESPN double-header following a Big East game Monday night.

This season, the Big Ten is playing its ESPN games earlier in the evening on Tuesday nights. The rest of the games are scheduled Wednesdays and Saturdays with some Thursday night and Sunday afternoon variations. All of the games are televised regionally or nationally.

"The big thing is having a comparable number of days to prepare," said Steve Fisher of the University of Michigan. "But scheduling is the least of my worries."

Judd Heathcote of Michigan State University finally saw his preference prevail over various scheduling plans used in past seasons.

"I've been an advocate of the Wednesday-Saturday format for six or seven years and we finally adopted it," Heathcote said. "When we moved games to Monday night, it put us out of whack. Also I like the random scheduling. There's more balance in terms of preparation."

A big force against the late Monday night games was Bob Knight of Indiana University. Knight does not participate in the weekly teleconferences.

"I like the format and it gives you more time to prepare," said Steve Yoder of the University of Wisconsin, Madison. "But I'm not happy with open Saturdays. We draw our biggest crowds Saturdays when most people watch you play."

Lou Henson of the University of Illinois, Champaign, said he had "no complaints. Monday nights were OK and the way we're doing it now is OK with me. We wouldn't be doing it if it didn't have merit."

"I'm against late games and early games before one o'clock, and I'm happy with the Wednesday-Saturday schedule," Clem Haskins of the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, said.

Bill Foster of Northwestern University questioned the switch away from Monday nights.

"I understand why we're not playing Monday nights," Foster said. "But I'm hearing from people saying they miss having the Big Ten on Monday night. They miss the Big East-Big Ten (double-header). That's my reaction."

Merchant Marines struck up the band, struck down their football opponents

One minute, they were hitting linebackers, linemen or running backs. The next, they were hitting a high note in the national anthem. Then it was back to running offensive and defensive formations.

Who were "they," and what were they doing? Were they football players? Were they band members?

The answer to both questions is "yes." They were members of the 1991 U.S. Merchant Marine Academy football team, as well as members of the Merchant Marine marching band.

In a unique situation, eight members of the 1991 Merchant Marine football squad also were members of the Merchant Marine marching band. It's unusual to find eight football players in the band at many schools, never mind at the college level.

"I've talked with many other band directors I've run into, and they agree it's a strange situation," said Capt. Kenneth Force, director of the USMMA marching band. "To have any football players in the band would be strange, but to have eight is practically unheard of."

Leading the band as well as the football team was junior running back/trumpeter Wes Stearns. Stearns, who was a pre-season all-American, led the Mariners in rushing and all-purpose yardage, and he also led the team in musical requests.

Stearns played the trumpet at numerous parties, including the retirement party of former Merchant Marine head football coach Dennis Barrett.

Junior wide receiver Hans Bean also was a two-event man, keeping his catching hands nimble by playing the baritone in the band. Other band members on the offensive side of the ball were freshman running back Mike Herbst and freshman lineman Scott Forester. Herbst was a drummer while Forester played the trumpet.

Defensively, four Mariners marched to the beat of a different drummer as junior defensive back Tom Burg, and freshmen linebackers John Wheeler, Doug Vogt and Ken Brown all played the drums.

"I think it's great that they guys are with the band," said head football coach Charlie Pravata. "I just can't believe they have the energy to do both. But I guess they use it as a form of relaxation, though I don't know how relaxing it could be to bang on a drum for an hour."

The eight Merchant Marine football players are members of the only military band in Federal service composed entirely of midshipmen (the other four academics have full-time professional bands). As band members, the eight football players participate in numerous academy functions, as well as many outside events.

Of course, it isn't all fun and fanfare for the eight football players playing "band jocks," who took quite a bit of good-natured rib-

Wes Stearns was a standout running back bing from their teammates and bandmates.

"My dream is to ask coach Pravata to let me have the players for the first two minutes of half-time," said Force. "I would have them marching with the rest of the band, except they would be wearing their football uniforms and helmets. I would love to get a picture."

Stearns also plays trumpet in the band

Faulty heating system causes carbon monoxide poisoning

A college basketball player, two assistant coaches and six other people were released January 20 from a Dallas, Texas, hospital where they were treated for carbon monoxide poisoning.

They were overcome January 18 when a heater system malfunctioned at Baylor University's Ferrell Center in Waco, Texas, before a game between Texas A&M University and Baylor. They were the worst of dozens stricken when fumes invaded the visitors' locker room and a hospitality room.

The incident forced postponement of the game and evacuation of the arena.

Aggies senior forward Anthony Ware and the others were released after psychological testing and a night of observation, Ellen Lytle, a spokeswoman at Humana Hospital-Medical City Dallas, told The Associated Press. Doctors said their prognoses were good.

All had been placed in a hyperbaric oxygen decompression chamber to speed their recovery, but Ware was removed because of a sinus infection, Dr. David Turner said. Ware received oxygen via a face mask.

A hyperbaric chamber forces oxygen into the body at up to three times normal air pressure. That helps to flush out carbon monoxide, Turner said.

Fumes entered the locker room when gusty winds and an open door caused a backdraft, sending exhaust gases that should have gone up a chimney down into the boiler room, Baylor spokesman Mike Bishop said.

Dozens of other people were treated and released at two Waco hospitals. Also among those treated in Dallas were Texas A&M assistant coach Mitch Buonaguro and graduate assistant coach John Pigatti and game official David Hall.

Texas A&M basketball trainer Mike Ricke and freshman guard Tony McGinnis were released from a Waco hospital January 19.

Representatives of the schools will meet to determine whether to make up the game. It is possible the game will be rescheduled only if it will have a bearing on the seedings in the Southwest Athletic Conference postseason tournament, conference spokesman Bo Carter said.

Texas A&M postponed indefinitely its January 22 game against Texas Southern University, saying it was in the team's health interests. Barone put his team through a one-hour workout January 20, minus the still-recovering Ware. The Aggies' next game is January 25 against Rice University.

Three-point shots increasing but shooting accuracy down in trends

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

The midseason trends in Division I men's basketball have a familiar look. Use of the three-point shot continues to climb, although slowly, and shooting accuracy still is going down, from all ranges.

Three-pointers made have reached exactly 10 per game in 27.75 attempts (both teams combined, all games involving at least one Division I team). That is a tiny increase over last season's final 9.98 made in 27.64 attempts.

This is the sixth season of universal use of the three-pointer in the men's game. Its use has gone up more than 50 percent in that span. The first season (1986-87), the average was exactly seven made in 18.25 attempts.

Accuracy from three-point range is 36 percent at midseason, down from the record low of 36.1 at the end of last season. It was 38.4 the first season, when most coaches restricted its use. Obviously, more three-point attempts drives down national field-goal accuracy from all ranges, and that figure is 45.5 percent at midseason—lowest since 45.4 in 1974. Free-throw accuracy also is falling. At midseason it is 67.4

percent—first time under 68 in 30 years and lowest since 67.4 in 1960.

As a result, scoring at 150.1 is well below last season's final 152.9, a 16-year high.

In the conference rankings, the Big Eight Conference leads in scoring at 84.9 per team per game to the Atlantic Coast Conference's 83.4. The Big Ten Conference leads in field-goal accuracy at 49.4 percent, followed by the ACC's 49.1 and Big Eight's 49; the Ivy Group leads in three-pointers made per game at 6.1 to the Southland Conference's 6.0; the Mid-American Athletic Conference in three-point accuracy at 38.5 to the Big Eight's 38.4, and the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference leads in free throws, 71.3 to the Pacific-10 Conference's 70.5.

Women's three-pointers soar

Use of the three-point shot continues to soar in women's Division I basketball. In its fifth season of use by women, attempts are almost double the first season—17.31 per game at midseason (both teams combined) vs. 9.02.

Three-pointers made now average 5.60 vs. 3.03 the first year. Three-point accuracy is down to 32.3 percent, a record-low pace. It was 33.6 the first year. Accuracy from all ranges also is at a record-low pace of 41.7 percent. Free-throw accuracy is 66.2—down a bit from last season's record-high 67.1.

Scoring at 139.6 still could surpass last year's record-high 140.9 because scoring usually rises in the last half of the season.

In the conference lists, the Atlantic Coast dominates with top rankings by wide margins in scoring at 81.1, field-goal accuracy at 46.8 and three-point accuracy at 36.1.

The Southeastern Conference leads in three-pointers made per game at 4.3 and the Big East Conference in free-throw accuracy with 70.6 percent.

Milestones

This is a big season for coaching milestones, for both men and women. Dick Sauers of Albany (New York) got his 600th career men's coaching victory recently. Another New Yorker, Iona coach Jerry Welsh, in his first season there after 22 years at Potsdam State, won No. 500 recently, reports SID David Torromeo. Welsh won two Division III national titles and had a 60-game winning streak at Potsdam. Iona also has a rare father-son coaching tandem. Welsh's assistant is his son, Tim, who played for his father at Potsdam and assisted at Florida State and Syracuse.

Elizabethtown women's coach Yvonne Kauffman, the only coach to win two Division III women's titles (1982 and 1989), reached 375 victories January 11. Kauffman also owns 250 coaching victories in field hockey and 105 in tennis, reports SID Brad Brubaker. South Carolina women's coach Nancy Wilson is closing in on her 350th, with a 347-142 record through January 21, reports Reggie Anderson, graduate assistant SID. The next victory for Illinois College men's coach Bill Merris will be his 300th, SID James Murphy reports.

Tampa men's coach Richard Schmidt reached 200 victories January 8, reports Gil Swalls, assistant athletics director. That is something special because this is only his ninth season since he resurrected the basketball program at Tampa after a 13-year hiatus. Before that, Tampa had only 207 wins in 21 seasons of varsity basketball.

Few coaches in history have reached 200 faster than Schmidt, silver-haired and 49. He has eight straight 20-win seasons, seven straight trips to the Division II men's basketball tournament and has beaten several Division I teams, and his players have a 93 percent graduation rate.

A fiery, demanding disciplinarian, Schmidt is a different person away from the court. He breeds exotic birds and other animals in his huge aviary. "It helps me relax," he told David Brackman of the St. Petersburg Times. His interest in birds has led him to China, Singapore and Thailand, and he is influential in getting new species into the country.

65 and counting

Ginny Doyle's streaks of consecutive free throws made for Richmond reached 59 this season and 65 and counting over two seasons—both NCAA women's Division I records—January 17, reports Phil Stanton, Richmond SID. She also surpassed the men's Division I record of 64 by Western Illinois' Joe Dykstra, set during the 1981-82 season. The longest streak—all divisions, men and women—is 69 by Valerie Kepner of Baldwin-Wallace in 1986-89 (with 61 coming in 1989). Doyle's career percentage of 87.9 is above the Division I record of 87.6, and the team's 83.3 is running ahead of the team season-record 79.8.

'See America First'

The Penn State women's team is playing 19 road games this season, visiting 18 airports in 13 states and traveling 21,090 miles by air and land combined.

That would be enough feet to climb Mount McKinley, highest mountain in the United States. And that is appropriate, because it is located in Alaska, one of the states the team will visit. The team will cross the Mississippi River eight times. No wonder coach Rene Portland's motto is "See America First." Her team's road opponents include defending national champion Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Iowa, Texas and Notre Dame. (Mary Jo Haverbeck, Penn State women's SID)

Recognition the hard way

Maryville (Missouri) coach Steve Jarvis after his team beat MacMurray, 80-69, to end a 45-game losing streak, two short of the men's Division III record: "We've been looking to get some recognition, but this is not exactly what we had in mind." (Bob Delaney, St. Louis Intercollegiate Athletic Conference SID)

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Catherine W. Ingold appointed president at Curry, effective in February. She has been president at American University in Paris. Donald E. Bowen dismissed as president at Stephen F. Austin. Stanley G. Rives announced his retirement as president at Eastern Illinois, effective July 31. Rives was a member of the NCAA Presidents Commission from 1986 to 1990. John J. Quinn resigned as chancellor at Tennessee, effective June 1. Gresham Riley resigned as president at Colorado College, effective June 30.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Mark Murphy, a former Colgate and Washington Redskins football standout, selected at his alma mater. Murphy, who has been a trial attorney with the U.S. Department of Justice since 1989, was an all-pro safety for the Redskins after graduating from Colgate in 1977. Thomas W. Scott appointed at Florida Atlantic, effective February 1. He is director of athletics development at Florida, a position he has held since 1981. William Arnsperger resigned at Florida to join the San Diego Chargers staff as defensive coordinator. Arnsperger, who became AD at Florida in 1987, previously has been an assistant coach in the National Football League and head football coach at Louisiana State.

COACHES

Baseball Fred Jordan named at Citadel, where he helped pitch the Bulldogs to a Southern Conference title in 1979. Since 1984, he has been head coach at Stratford High School in Ladson, South Carolina, and has coached high-school teams for 12 years in all.

Football — Jim Ewan appointed at New Mexico Highlands after three years as head coach at Mesa (Arizona) Community College, where his teams were 21-5-1. Keith Gilbertson selected at California. He previously was an assistant for three years at Washington, where he served this past season as offensive coordinator. He earlier was head coach for three years at Idaho, compiling a 28-9 record and leading two of his teams to Big Sky Conference titles. Bill Walsh returned to Stanford, where he was head coach for two years in the late 1970s before moving on to lead the San Francisco 49ers to three Super Bowl championships. Walsh, who led the Cardinal to a 17-7 record during his first tenure, has worked since 1989 as a football analyst for NBC Sports.

Marino H. Casem named temporary head coach at Southern-Baton Rouge while a search continues for a permanent appointment. Casem, the school's athletics director and a former member of the NCAA Executive Committee, also coached the team from 1987 to 1989, compiling a 14-8 record. Dennis Erickson received a new five-year contract at Miami (Florida), where he led the Hurricanes to a 12-0 record and an Orange Bowl victory this past season, resulting in the team's selection as national champion by The Associated Press. Through three years at the school, Erickson has coached the Hurricanes to a 33-3 record and two wire-service national championships. William J. Cubit named at Widener after serving as an offensive aide at Akron. Cubit, who played at Delaware in the early 1970s, also has coached at the high-school level and on the staffs at Swarthmore, Central Florida and Florida.

Football assistants — Greg Meyer selected as offensive coordinator and tight ends coach at Northwestern, which also announced the appointment of Tim Kish as outside linebackers coach. Meyer previously was offensive coordinator for two seasons at Toledo and also has been on staffs at Wichita State, Arizona State and Ball State. Kish has been at Army for the past eight years and also served at Purdue. Greg McMahon joined the staff at Illinois as receivers and tight ends coach. The former Eastern Illinois free safety previously was an aide at Nevada-Las Vegas and also has coached at North Alabama, Southern Illinois and Valdosta State. Jay Hayes named offensive coordinator at Holy Cross, where he also will be tight ends and wide receivers coach. Hayes, a former Idaho defensive lineman who also played professionally, previously was a defensive coach at Notre Dame. Holy Cross also announced the selection of New Hampshire aide Dave Duggan as inside linebackers coach and Ryan Jones as strength coach and recruiting coordinator. Duggan, who played at New Hampshire, also has coached at Allegheny.

Jones, also a former New Hampshire player, was a graduate assistant last season at Minnesota.

Tim Burke promoted from secondary coach to defensive coordinator at Ball State, where he has been on the staff for three seasons. Dan Dorazio and Larry Slade hired as offensive and defensive coordinators, respectively, at Maryland. Dorazio previously was offensive coordinator at Holy Cross and Slade was secondary coach at Washington. Also joining the Maryland staff are outside linebackers coach Peter McCarty, defensive line coach Cliff Schwenke, quarterbacks coach Clyde Christensen, assistant coach Rob Spence, strength coach Dave Ungerer, recruiting coordinator Kyle Lingerfelt and staff administrator Bruce Warwick. McCarty, Schwenke, Spence and Ungerer also were on the Holy Cross staff, while Christensen coached at South Carolina and Lingerfelt and Warwick were on the staffs at East Carolina and Syracuse, respectively. Greg Gattuso named as the first full-time aide at Duquesne since 1979. For three years, the former Penn State defensive nose guard has coached at Seton LaSalle High School in Pennsylvania, but earlier he served as a part-time aide at Duquesne.

Gary Kubiak, who recently announced his retirement as a quarterback for the Denver Broncos, joined the staff at Texas A&M. Andre Patterson hired as defensive line coach at Washington State after two years in a similar post at Cornell. Patterson also has coached at Weber State and Western Washington. Tim Lappano resigned as offensive coordinator at Washington State to join the staff at California. Terry Shea, former head football coach at San Jose State, named offensive coordinator at Stanford. Larry Holton joined the staff at West Virginia as running backs coach. The former Iowa State player previously was on the staff at Northwestern and also has coached at Florida State, Pittsburgh, Oklahoma State and Illinois. He replaces Desmond Robinson, who was selected as assistant head coach at Tulane. Linebackers coach and recruiting coordinator Jim Senter of Idaho appointed regional development director for the school.

Women's golf — Linda Franz named for the new varsity program at Tennessee, which will begin play next fall. Franz is a former golf captain at Missouri who recently has worked for an advertising and public relations firm in Kansas City, Missouri.

Women's golf assistant Ann Baker Furrow appointed volunteer assistant for the new program at Tennessee, where she is a former trustee and was the first woman member of the school's men's golf team while a student at the school.

Men's lacrosse — Jim Cantrill selected at Clark (Massachusetts) after serving last season as an assistant at Castleton State. Cantrill played at Maryland. Mark H. Ford promoted from assistant at Roger Williams, where he has been on the staff for two years.

Men's and women's soccer Evan Fiffles appointed soccer coordinator at Lewis, where, in addition to serving as head men's coach, he will oversee the women's program and its head coach, Mike Crowe. Fiffles, who coached the Lewis women in 1989 and 1990 before becoming head boys' coach at Moline (Illinois) High School last year, also has been on the staff at Eastern Illinois.

Women's softball assistant — Lynne Khoury joined the staff at Clark (Massachusetts). She is a former team captain at Bates.

Men's and women's tennis Chris Eppright named interim head coach at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. He previously was head men's coach at Pomona-Pitzer, which he led to an appearance in the Division III Men's Tennis Championships last spring.

Women's volleyball Jan Church hired at Maryville (Missouri). She previously was an assistant at Principia, where she also was a standout player.

Women's volleyball assistant Kelley Sliva promoted from assistant to associate head coach at Southern California, where she has been on the staff for two years. Sliva also has coached at Arizona and Texas-Arlington.

Wrestling Drexel's Jack Childs given additional duties as assistant director of the school's physical education program. Childs is in his 16th year as wrestling coach at Drexel.

STAFF

Development director Florida's Thomas W. Scott named athletics director at Florida Atlantic.

Fund-raising director — Robert M. Infussi Sr. selected as executive director of the Tiger Club at Towson State. From 1979 to 1990, Infussi held various positions in the Baltimore County government, serving most recently as executive secretary and chief of staff to the county executive.

Regional development director Jim Senter appointed for the position at Idaho after six years as a football assistant at the school. Senter will handle athletics development duties from the Moscow school's Boise facility.

Trainer Terry Geirnaert named at Illinois College. He recently completed graduate work at Illinois State, where he worked as an assistant trainer.

NOTABLES

Junior Terrell Buckley of Florida State received the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top defensive back. Don James, head football coach at Washington, received the Football Writers Association of America's Bear Bryant Award as national coach of the year. Former coaches John Ralston of Stanford and Utah State and Earl Banks of Morgan State have been elected with 11 former all-America players to the College Football Hall of Fame. Also elected were quarterback Craig Morton of California; running backs Ron Johnson of Michigan and Bob Odell of Pennsylvania; defensive lineman Jack Youngblood of Florida; offensive linemen Lou Michaels of Kentucky, Lloyd Phillips of Arkansas and Jim Weatherall of Oklahoma; linebackers Jim Lynch of Notre Dame and Larry Morris of Georgia Tech, and receivers Art Weiner of North Carolina and Howard Twilley of Tulsa. This year's honorees will be inducted December 8 in New York City.

DEATHS

Earnest Killum, a sophomore basketball player at Oregon State, died January 21 in Los Angeles, three days after suffering his second stroke in six months. He was 20. Killum, who played against Southern California one day before suffering a stroke January 17, died of a blood-clotting disorder that was not connected to playing basketball, according to a neurologist who treated Killum. The Los Angeles native had suffered a mild stroke last July but doctors cleared him to play in late December. Thomas Eric Curry, a walk-on football player at Georgia who collapsed January 15 following a light conditioning workout with the team, died a day later in Athens, Georgia. He was 20. The junior player passed a physical exam just hours before his collapse. Larry Steele, coordinator of facilities and former sports information director at Buffalo, died January 14. Steele was a former publicity director for the State University of New York Athletic Conference and New York Collegiate Hockey Association. Mort Kaer, a football all-American as a running back at Southern California in 1926 and member of the College Football Hall of Fame, died January 12 in Los Angeles. He was 88. Kaer also participated in track at Southern Cal and competed in the pentathlon at the 1924 Olympic Games. Daniel "Doc" Gazzilli, head trainer at Utica (New York) for 13 years, died December 17 in Utica after suffering a heart attack. He was 69.

SPORTS SPONSORSHIP

Marquette said it will drop its wrestling program following the 1992-93 season unless private funds exceeding $1.5 million can be raised for its continuation. The school said the decision resulted in part from plans to add a seventh women's sport at the school by September 1993.

Tennessee will sponsor women's golf, beginning this fall. It will be the first women's team formed at the school since 1976.

COE COLLEGE

— Athletic Director —

COE COLLEGE seeks applications and nominations for the position of Director of Athletics. The Director reports to the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the Faculty and has responsibility for the College's athletic program. Specific responsibilities include hiring, supervising and evaluating the work of coaches and athletic staff; planning and administering the program's budget; providing marketing, fund-raising and public relations for the Athletic Department; directing the department's efforts in recruitment of student-athletes; overseeing compliance with NCAA, College and Conference rules; coordinating the use of athletic facilities; and coaching one or more varsity sports.

Coe is a very selective, coeducational liberal arts college, located in Cedar Rapids, IA. Founded in 1851, it has a Phi Beta Kappa chapter and enrolls approximately 1,250 students. Coe offers 11 men's sports and nine women's sports, all of which compete at the NCAA Division III level. Coe is a founding member of the Midwest Athletic Conference.

Candidates should have the following qualifications: at least the master's degree in an appropriate field; a minimum of five years' experience in an administrative or coaching position; a thorough knowledge of Division III rules and an understanding of the role of athletics in a liberal arts college; a set of values that gives priority to academic achievement; strong organizational, communications and interpersonal skills; a clear commitment to equity in athletic opportunities for men and women; a record of success in recruiting student-athletes; and experience in fund-raising and marketing. Some preference will be given to applicants with experience at a private college or university. Coe is particularly interested in receiving applications from women and minority candidates.

The position, available July 1, is a 12-month administrative appointment with competitive salary and fringe benefits. Candidates should submit a letter of interest, a curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and the names, addresses and phone numbers of five additional references to: Athletic Director Search Committee, Office of the Dean of Faculty, Coe College, Cedar Rapids, IA 52402. All materials must be received no later than February 28.

Coe College is an Affirmative Action/
Equal Opportunity Employer.

Court comic works coach for chuckles

As an aspiring comedian, University of Cincinnati basketball player Terry Nelson figures that his toughest audience is his coach, Bob Huggins.

Nelson already has presented his act in clubs, primarily in his home state of California. The 6-foot-5 junior forward became interested in comedy while in high school in Long Beach, where he was president of a student "Hugs, Not Drugs" campaign. That role required him to give speeches, which prompted him to use jokes to get the attention of his fellow students. In doing so, he discovered he was a pretty good comedian.

But in his coach, he sees the ultimate challenge, according to Bill Koch, a staff reporter for the Cincinnati Post.

"He's so tense," Nelson told Koch. "He's such a competitor. I try to break the tension a little bit so he'll ease up on us in practice. It works sometimes. I can make him laugh, but I still have to run."

Conference is set

The second annual Women in Sport conference has been scheduled for April 24-25 at Ohio State University. Registration for both days is $20, and the deadline for registration is January 31.

Briefly in the News

Additional information is available by contacting Nancy Wardwell, 252 Larkins Hall, 337 West 17th Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43210 (telephone 614/292-0847).

More police news

The California State University, Northridge, athletics department recently hosted the Los Angeles Police Department's first-ever meeting of Police Community Representatives at the school's North Campus Stadium.

LAPD brought in a helicopter, which landed on the 50-yard line; horse patrols; the canine division, and members of the SWAT team.

Refreshments were served ... doughnuts and coffee, of course.

Big-league exhibition set

University of Central Florida baseball players will face Major League Baseball's Kansas City Royals March 5 in a special benefit game at Davenport, Florida's, Baseball City, the Royals' spring-training home.

All admission proceeds from the regulation game will be donated to Central Florida's athletics scholarship fund.

"We're extremely pleased that the Royals have agreed to play in this game," said Central Florida baseball coach Jay Bergman. "Obviously, the financial aspects of this game will be a great boost to our program, but the game also has tremendous value for us in terms of recruiting and exposure."

Central Florida's booster club also is planning a golf tournament and coach's luncheon in conjunction with the game.

Colgate AD honored

Frederick H. Dunlap, who recently retired as Colgate University's athletics director, has been honored by the Patriot League.

Executive director Carl F. Ullrich has announced that the league's football championship trophy will be named in Dunlap's honor, adding that the award itself has been completely redesigned. The first home for the Fred Dunlap Patriot League Football Championship Trophy is College of the Holy Cross, which won its fifth conference title last season.

Little Sisters at Davis and Elkins

Davis and Elkins College women's basketball coach Judy Pitzer has organized a Little Sisters program, in which the team hosts girls from Randolph and Tucker Counties (West Virginia) throughout the year.

The object of the program is "to give young female athletes positive female role models," Pitzer said.

"I think my players have done an excellent job making time for their 'littles' considering their time commitments on campus."

Scholar-athlete award set

North Atlantic Conference officials have announced establishment of scholar-athlete awards for each of the 20 intercollegiate sports in which the league sponsors championships.

Each member institution will nominate one student-athlete per sport, and the NAC office will select one scholar-athlete per sport. Each nominee is required to have a cumulative grade-point average of at least 3.200 (4.000 scale) and be a starter or important reserve who has partici-
