Panel stands pat on football rules

By J. Gregory Summers
The NCAA News Staff

The NCAA Football Rules Committee was content to make only minor adjustments in the rules and concentrate on other ways to improve college football at its annual meeting January 19-21 in Kansas City, Missouri.

"The committee believes that the game is solid—we like what we've got," said committee chair Douglas A. Dickey, director of athletics at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. "Most coaches and officials feel good about the game right now. There are some details to clean up, but we need to take what we've got and manage it with officials, coaches and players."

"We need to start a major educational effort, a standardization of the way the game is officiated and coached," Dickey said. "There's such a broad range of schools in all divisions involved in the game. By changing the rules a lot, it becomes difficult to get officiating and coaching to be consistent across the country."

Nobody expected the committee to make drastic changes just two months after the death of longtime secretary-rules editor David M. Nelson, a pioneer in the sport who constantly monitored the balance between offense and defense and was not afraid to make major changes, such as the elimination of the kicking tee in 1989 and the narrowing of the goal posts in 1991. Some committee members came to the annual meeting afraid that the committee would lack direction.

Received feedback

But this year's lack of action was not the result of uncertainty. The committee received feedback from coaches and officials in all three membership divisions, and it quickly adopted the philosophy that the rules should be left alone for a few years. Communication and coordination could be the group's buzzwords throughout the 1990s.

An example of the committee's philosophy is the way it addressed complaints about holding and illegal use of hands by offensive linemen. Some coaches believe that the rules are not being enforced properly, and officials feel the current rules are difficult to administer.

Rather than change the rule, the

New members

Two of the newest members of the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, athletics director Paul E. Hartman of Oakland University and Commissioner Patricia Viverito of the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference, participated in discussions of gender equity and the Association's planned certification program during a meeting January 23-24 in Kansas City, Missouri. A report on the meeting appears on page 3.

Trial date postponed in Nevada

The NCAA's suit against a Nevada law that prevents the Association from proceeding with its rules-enforcement process in that state has been delayed until March 13.

The trial originally had been set to begin February 28.

The Associated Press reported January 24 that members of the Nevada legislative commission have voted simply to file legal briefs rather than have the legislature get involved in a full-fledged defense of the law. Assemblyman Bob Sader abstained from voting, but all other members backed the "friend-of-the-court" strategy.

Sader said he did not think the lawmakers should be involved in the court battle on any level.

Nevada Attorney General Frankie Sue Del Papa had warned the legislature that it would take a financial beating by joining in the case.

The NCAA's lawsuit claims the Nevada law, which requires

Norrell led way as woman officer

By David D. Smale
The NCAA News Staff

If Gwendolyn Norrell were a baseball player, she certainly would be a leadoff hitter. It is the only logical place for a person used to being first.

The first child in her family, she was the first woman officer in the NCAA. When she was elected Division I vice-president in 1983 (the first person to hold that office), she held the position of faculty athletics representative at Michigan State University.

Where are they now?

She was the first woman to do so in the Big Ten Conference.

"I think Gwen paved the way for women to have expanded opportunities within the NCAA administrative structure," said NCAA President Judith M. Sweet, who, as the first woman president and the first president from a Division III institution, has developed a good definition of "first" on her own. "She did a superb job as Division I vice-president. She set high standards for those of us who have been fortunate enough to take on leadership roles. Further, she provided incentive for me to be as good as she was."

"I owe a debt of gratitude to her for paving the way. I think all women in athletics administration are grateful to her."

Low-key approach

Norrell's low-key approach doesn't let her bask in the glow of being a trendsetter. She handles praise deftly, like a first baseman snagging a low throw.

"That is very flattering," she said when told of Sweet's remarks. "I certainly appreciate that, but all my life in whatever I have done—at Michigan State or wherever—I hoped to be a role model for women. That's what I always tried to do. To have

Bowl alliance moves forward in agreement

Five Division I-A conferences and the University of Notre Dame have completed an agreement with a group of postseason football bowl games that increases the likelihood of a definitive matchup for the national championship.

Under the agreement, which was reached January 23, the winners of the Big Eight, Southeastern and Southwest Athletic Conferences will remain bound respectively to the Orange, Sugar and Cotton Bowls. The Fiesta Bowl will have no tie-in with any conference.

Opponents in those bowl games will come from among the champions of the Atlantic Coast and Big East Conferences, two at-large teams and Notre Dame. The matchups will be determined according to rankings in the final regular-season Associated Press poll.

If both the first- and second-ranked teams are champions from the Big Eight, SEC and SWC, those teams would remain bound by their conference's previous bowl contract. Mobil Cotton Bowl executive vice-president Jim Brock said, however, that such a development was not likely and that if the situation arose, the bowl group probably would readress the question at the time.

The Rose Bowl, which features the champions of the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences, is not part of the alliance, so the agreement does not necessarily assure a No. 1 vs. No. 2 game. In fact, one would not have occurred this season since the University of Washington, ranked No. 2 in the AP poll at the end of the regular season, won the Pacific-10 title and therefore was bound to play No. 4-ranked University of Michigan in the Rose Bowl. The University of Miami (Florida) was ranked No. 1 and defeated No. 11-ranked University of Nebraska.

SEC bans tobacco in baseball

The Southeastern Conference has announced that it has banned the use of tobacco-related products at conference and postseason tournament baseball games, effective this season.

The policy, approved by SEC athletics directors at the urging of baseball coaches, will give umpires the power to eject violators after one warning.

Roy Kramer, commissioner of the SEC, said January 27 that he did not think the conference would encounter any problems with the new measure.

"I don't anticipate it will be difficult," Kramer said. "We've got the support of all the coaches. They will make sure it's followed across the board."

Kramer said the SEC adopted the measure after reviewing the results of studies indicating the negative effects of tobacco-related products, particularly the use of chewing tobacco.

"Our people received the same information that was made available to the NCAA," Kramer said. "We believe this was a positive move from a health standpoint."

Kramer said some SEC member schools were considering a full ban of tobacco-related products at all baseball games.

"It has been considered," Kramer said. "But I do not know at this time (if any has adopted it)."

The NCAA has a policy banning the use of tobacco-related products among players and coaches during NCAA championship competition.

Texas' Cambridge reinstated

The NCAA Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals for Division I has ruled that University of Texas at Austin basketball player Dexter Cambridge will be eligible to play again this season, pending his repayment of $4,600 to his athletics sponsor at Lon Morris Junior College.

The subcommittee ruled January 24 that Cambridge would be required to miss 50 percent of the regular season, which means he will be eligible for Texas' game at the University of Rhode Island February 1.

The decision was a reversal of a previous ruling by the NCAA Eligibility Committee for Division I. After hearing statements from members of the Eligibility Committee and from Texas representatives and after reviewing information regarding Cambridge's work performance, the subcommittee found that available information convincingly corroborated the university's claim that Cambridge's earnings from work totaled $2,400, which reduced the improper gift of $7,000 to $4,600.

Notre Dame cancels sports events after swimmers die in bus crash

All athletics events at the University of Notre Dame were called off over the weekend of January 25-26 after the deaths of two members of the institution's women's swim team.

The student-athletes were killed in a bus accident during the early morning hours of January 24 as they returned from a meet at Northwestern University.

Those killed were identified as Margaret Murphy "Megan" Beeler of Granger, Indiana, and Colleen Hipp of St. Louis, Missouri, both 19-year-old freshmen.

The bus, carrying 32 swimmers, three coaches, a student manager and the driver, drove into an area of heavy snow on the Indiana Toll Road about a mile west of the South Bend, Indiana, exit and rolled into the median, flipping on its top, state police Cpl. Dennis Boehler told The Associated Press. A total of 34 people were injured in the accident.

Beeler

Another freshman, 18-year-old Haley Scott, was the most seriously injured. She underwent surgery twice January 24 for a spinal-cord injury, said Rose Pieterzak, Notre Dame women's sports information director. Pieterzak said January 27 that Scott has gained some sensation since undergoing surgery.

Athletics events affected by the cancellation were a women's swim meet against St. Bonaventure University and the Midwestern Collegiate Conference men's and women's indoor track meet. It marked the first time since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963 that the university canceled athletics events.

The accident occurred at 12:17 a.m. near the north edge of South Bend. The bus was eastbound on the toll road.

The fate of the women's season is unclear, and Pieterzak said it could be several weeks before team members are sure if they will be able to continue.

"Right now, we haven't canceled the women's season," Pieterzak said. "We don't know how many are going to be able to continue to compete."

Regional drug-education session set

Drug-education workshop

When: April 23-24

Where: Washington, D.C.

Deadline: February 7

Conducted by: Roger Svendsen and Tom Griffin, Minnesota Institute of Public Health.

A regional workshop designed to promote the development of innovative drug-education and student-assistance programs for student-athletes will be offered April 23-24 in Washington, D.C.

The workshop is titled "Program Planning for the 1990s: An Athletics Department Model for the Prevention of Alcohol and Other Drug-Use Problems Among College Student-Athlete" and is sponsored by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

It will be conducted by Roger Svendsen and Tom Griffin of the Minnesota Institute of Public Health. Sessions at the workshop also will be led by other health professionals, athletics administrators and counselors.

There is no registration fee for the workshop, but individuals wishing to attend should contact Donna Hockersmith, NCAA administrative assistant for sports sciences, at the NCAA national office by February 7.

The workshop is aimed at athletics directors, coaches, trainers, team physicians, conference commissioners and others involved in developing drug-education programs for student-athletes, but institutions also are encouraged to send representatives of such departments as student-health services, counseling services and student life; campus ministries, and other areas that may play a role in drug education on campus.

Space is limited in the workshop. Because of the format and the workshop's emphasis on the group process of program development, institutions wishing to send two or more representatives (including one from outside athletics) will be given registration priority.

For those who cannot attend the April workshop, it is anticipated that other sessions will be offered during the 1992-93 academic year.

1992 Column No. 5

1992 NCAA Convention Proposal Nos. 42, 43 and 44—hardship waiver

Division I member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 42 (effective date: August 1, 1992; for student-athletes first entering a collegiate institution on or after August 1, 1992), a Division I student-athlete may be granted an additional year of competition by the conference or, in the case of independent institutions, by the NCAA Eligibility Committee for reasons of hardship due to an incapacitating injury or illness that occurred at a two-year college. The student-athlete must meet all applicable conditions set forth in Bylaw 14.2.5 and satisfy the following additional conditions:

1. The appropriate two-year college athletics association (e.g., National Junior College Athletic Association, California Association of Community Colleges) must review and approve each "hardship" waiver request;

2. Subsequent to approval by the appropriate two-year college athletics association, the request must be reviewed and approved by the appropriate NCAA member conference or, in the case of an independent member institution, by the NCAA Eligibility Committee to ensure compliance with the provisions of NCAA legislation;

3. Waiver requests must be submitted only from two-year college organizations that apply the same or more stringent rules related to the administration of hardship waivers (i.e., compliance with all of the regulations of Bylaw 14.2.5), and

4. Each waiver request must be accompanied by a signed statement by the physician who treated the student-athlete, indicating the reason(s) the injury or illness was incapacitating.

Please note that because Proposal No. 42, as amended by No. 42-1, is applicable only to student-athletes first entering a collegiate institution on or after August 1, 1992, student-athletes currently enrolled in collegiate institutions may not be granted a hardship waiver at a Division I institution based upon an injury or illness that occurred during enrollment at a two-year college.

Divisions I and II institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 43 (effective immediately), scrimmages and exhibition contests no longer shall be utilized in calculating either the number of events in which a student-athlete has participated or the number of the institution's completed events in the administration of the hardship waiver per Bylaw 14.2.5(c). Please note that the provisions of Bylaw 14.2.4.1 remain applicable and, thus, a student-athlete who participates in a scrimmage or exhibition contest and does not qualify for a hardship waiver per Bylaw 14.2.5 would utilize a season of competition.

Division III member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 44, as amended by No. 44-1 (effective immediately), a student-athlete in Division III may qualify for a hardship waiver per Bylaw 14.2.5 only if the injury or illness occurs when the student-athlete has not participated in more than three events or one-third of the institution's completed events. In Division III, it is necessary to include scrimmages and exhibition contests in the calculation of both the number of events in which a student-athlete has participated and the number of the institution's completed events in the administration of the hardship waiver.

Finally, member institutions in all divisions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 14.2.5(c), only competition against outside participation during the traditional playing season or, if so designated, during the official NCAA championship playing season in that sport (e.g., spring baseball, fall soccer) shall be countable in calculating both the number of events in which the student-athlete has participated and the number of completed events during that season in the sport. It should be noted that the NCAA Council, during its August 2, 1989, meeting, determined that in the administration of the hardship waiver, the calculation of an institution's completed events in individual sports in which championships selection is based upon competition throughout the entire season (e.g., tennis, golf) must include competition that occurs during the entire season (traditional and nontraditional segment) rather than just the traditional segment.

1992 Convention Proposal No. 128—telephone calls

Division I member institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 128 (effective immediately), institutional staff members in the sport of football may make unlimited telephone calls to prospective student-athletes during the "dead period" immediately prior to the initial signing date for the National Letter of Intent in the sport of football. It also should be noted that the Council, during its July 31-August 2, 1991, meeting, previously determined that in Divisions I and II, institutional staff members in all sports may make unlimited calls to a prospect [or the prospect's parents or legal guardian(s)] on the initial National Letter of Intent signing date in the prospect's sport and the two days following the National Letter of Intent signing date.

NCAA Bylaw 14.8.1.1—outside competition—sports other than basketball—Divisions I and II

During its November 21, 1991, conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that once an individual becomes a student-athlete, the provisions of Bylaw 14.8.1.1 prohibiting competition on outside teams during the academic year are applicable only while the student-athlete is enrolled during a regular term as a full-time student in a Division I or II institution. In addition, the Council, during its January 5, 1992, meeting, utilized the provisions of NCAA Constitution 5.3.1.1.1 (noncontroversial amendment) to amend the provisions of Bylaw 14.8.1.1 to indicate that such provisions are not applicable to a student-athlete who fails to make an institution's team after participation only in limited preseason tryouts.

Panel on women seeks input

The Committee on Women's Athletics expressed a desire to become involved in the Association's planned certification program during its January 23-24 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee will ask that it be permitted to provide input regarding gender equity when the NCAA Council begins the process of assembling legislation for the certification program for the 1993 Convention. Those institutions participating in the pilot certification programs were required to address questions involving gender equity, but the women's athletics committee would like to see a deeper examination in this area.

The committee reviewed a first draft of the gender-equity study, which looks at scholarships, operating expenses and recruiting expenses for men's and women's programs at member institutions. Gender make-up of coaching also is examined, along with salaries.

Action taken at the 1992 Convention was reviewed, especially Proposal Nos. 3, 62 and 63. No. 3, which was part of the consent package, will allow institutions designating both a male and a female as voting or alternate delegates on the Convention Appointment Form to appoint four official institutional delegates. In all other situations, institutions will be limited to three official Convention delegates.

Nos. 62 and 63 delayed the implementation of 1991 Convention Proposal No. 40 in women's equivalency sports and women's basketball from August 1, 1993, to August 1, 1994. The delay is designed to provide time to study the results of the gender-equity survey and to develop amendments based on the impact of grant-in-aid reductions in women's programs.

The committee also will ask the Council to issue an interpretation that would permit institutions to fund travel for female student-athletes to participate in National Girls and Women in Sports Day, an annual event that will be in Washington, D.C., this year.

Pigskin Classic sets matchup

Texas A&M University will face Stanford University August 26 in the Disneyland Pigskin Classic in Anaheim, California.

Bill Walsh, who led the San Francisco 49ers to three Super Bowl championships, will resume his college coaching career when the Cardinal plays at Anaheim Stadium.

"We are excited to have these two fine teams in our game," said Jack Lindquist, Disneyland president, "and especially pleased that Bill Walsh will mark his return to college coaching here in Orange County."

Walsh coached Stanford for two years in the late 1970s.

Eligibility case results in lawsuit for damages

Syracuse University student-athlete Conrad McRae has filed a court motion seeking $1.35 million in damages from the NCAA, claiming the Association caused him mental anguish and loss of television exposure during a recent dispute over eligibility, his attorney said January 27.

The motion was filed January 24 in New York Supreme Court in Syracuse to amend a complaint McRae filed last November to have his eligibility reinstated, Eric Alderman, McRae's attorney, told The Associated Press.

The original complaint did not seek monetary damages, and since McRae has had his eligibility restored, it was necessary to file the motion to amend, Alderman said.

The lawsuit seeks $1 million in punitive damages and $350,000 for six "causes of action," Alderman said.

Those actions by the NCAA claimed in McRae's suit are distraction from academic studies, mental anguish, lost opportunities to play Division I basketball, loss of TV exposure, loss of starting position and loss of reputation.

As part of a continuing review of its basketball program, Syracuse declared McRae ineligible in November after discovering violations of NCAA recruiting legislation. The university then appealed to the NCAA Eligibility Committee for restoration of McRae's eligibility. McRae, meanwhile, challenged the ruling in New York's courts.

The Eligibility Committee decided December 5 not to restore McRae's eligibility, ruling that Syracuse gained a substantial advantage during the recruitment of McRae through a series of impermissible contacts with McRae and members of his family during his junior year in high school (see December 9 issue of The NCAA News). The committee, however, recommended that should McRae have decided to transfer from Syracuse, he would have been immediately eligible to play basketball at another NCAA member institution.

McRae obtained a state Supreme Court ruling temporarily restoring his eligibility at Syracuse, but another Supreme Court justice upheld the NCAA's ruling, making McRae ineligible once again.

Then, the Eligibility Committee restored McRae's eligibility December 19, citing new information that was presented by the NCAA eligibility staff (see December 25 issue of The NCAA News).

The Eligibility Committee concluded that sufficient mitigating circumstances were presented to determine that McRae's eligibility should be restored immediately. It found that McRae reasonably could have believed that issues concerning his recruitment had been addressed by the NCAA prior to his enrollment at Syracuse, although it did not accept McRae's contention that those issues should have been addressed at that time.

Committee develops long-range plan to enhance minority opportunities

The NCAA Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee has developed a long-range plan that focuses on the need to increase the pool of opportunities for ethnic minorities, especially Blacks, in intercollegiate athletics.

The committee's report is backed by research showing that coaching and administrative opportunities for Blacks in intercollegiate athletics are not good under any conditions and that they are especially poor when personnel at historically black institutions are removed from the counting process (see table).

The committee's long-range plan addresses five areas in which the Association can assist minority student-athletes, coaches and administrators:

- Strengthen the Association's commitment by member institutions to affirmative action and minority enhancement.

- Enhance the committee's visibility within the membership so that it becomes a viable entity for conducting research and developing legislation.

- Solicit support for minority en-

The want ad finally changed.

The NCAA made a bold and welcome move at the 1992 NCAA Convention with the approval of several academic reforms. I especially applaud that legislation that in 1995 will require high-school students to garner a 2.500 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in 13 core courses along with a 700 SAT or 17 ACT score if they are to be eligible for a college athletics scholarship. With this is a sliding scale that allows for eligibility if the standardized-test scores are higher and the GPA lower (for example 2.000 GPA and 900 SAT).

Yet the critics of these new standards would have us believe that a tyrannical NCAA has plunged a knife into the heart of college athletics. The NCAA, so they say, has radically altered former legislation (Proposition 48 which required a 2.000 GPA in 11 core courses with a 700 SAT) and made it virtually impossible for underprivileged youth to enter school.

They're wrong.

The public has been presented a false picture, and I'm tired of it.

All the one-sided truths that have been shoved down our throats, the tacky articles, the witty quotes from overhearing ESPN commentators, all of it has destroyed my patience. One coach cries discrimination, another that we are denying inner-city youth a grand opportunity. Still another cries that the reforms will only serve to further separate the haves from the have-nots.

The coaches are crying wolf as they continually misrepresent the purpose of this legislation. And why wouldn't they be concerned? The reforms make it more difficult to recruit and thus more difficult to win. And when coaches don't win, they get fired.

But there's another side of the story, one that remains hidden beneath the veneer of the win-at-all-costs philosophy.

Let's face it, a 2.500 and a 700 SAT are basic requirements for any college scholarship. But this is not an athletics scholarship alone.

Any college athletics scholarship is in essence an academic grant. A prospective athlete is not given aid to play basketball or run track; no, he or she is given money to attend school and consequently participate in a sport. For any academic scholarship, there must be guidelines or requirements, however lax they may be.

If aid were based solely on athletics ability, we would be promoting a farm system of professional sports.

But universities are places of higher learning, the residence of the academically elite. They certainly are not, nor ever will be, athletics factories.

In raising requirements, the NCAA made a concerted effort to bring the student-athlete closer to the student body, the college population of which every athlete is a part. The new legislation brought entrance requirements up to par with that of other prospective students.

Why should one student who can shoot 60 percent yet fall far below general entrance guidelines enter school while another student is denied a place when he or she has far better academic qualifications? Why should we pay the former to attend class while we deny the latter an opportunity to succeed? Isn't this also a form of discrimination?

Once again, a 2.500 and a 700 are not strong indicators of college success, let alone grounds for college entrance at an elite school. Yet we pay these people in full while others are denied a chance. The new legislation not only underscores the fact that athletes must first be students, but also emphasizes the nature and mission of a university. Suspect and even biased entrance practices debase the value of any college education. These reforms give greater meaning and weight to attending class at a first-rate institution. They give real value to a college diploma.

Still, there are those who cry discrimination. I ask, what exactly is discriminatory about these reforms? If, in fact, critics are pointing toward the standardized test scores, I must concede, albeit timidly, I never have liked these tests as a measure of achievement. Over and over, it has been shown that these tests are tied to many cultural and environmental variables. Furthermore, who decided 700 was the mark of achievement? This is an arbitrary number plucked from the clouds.

Yet, the SAT and ACT scores are not the sole guidelines in this issue. There is the factor of the GPA to consider. The two in conjunction, their relation to one another, is the basis for the sliding scale, a compensatory measure to answer any claims of discrimination. These two scores, not any single number, are supposedly indicative of future college success.

And really, what other standards do we have to measure high-school ability?

If by discrimination opponents are implying that underprivileged and inner-city youth, primarily

New academic reform sends correct message

Editorial
The Wichita Eagle

Only a few years ago, the observation that participants in college sports should be good students as well as good athletes would have seemed pathetically naive. Now, thanks to far-sighted action recently by the NCAA, that observation will be right on target.

The NCAA's Division I schools, which set the tone for all collegiate athletics, voted overwhelmingly to stiffen the freshman-eligibility requirements for college sports. Members prescribed a tougher high-school core curriculum and raised the minimum grade-point average for college-bound athletes. More important, they tightened the so-called "satisfactory-progress" requirements, making it more certain athletes will earn college degrees at the same time their eligibility expires.

These bold actions prompted some black educators to accuse the NCAA of trying to alter the black-white balance in collegiate sports. Because it perpetuates the myth that black youngsters can't compete academically with white youngsters, that's a dangerous accusation. Proposition 48, the NCAA's first move toward tougher academic standards for athletes, didn't prevent black youngsters from qualifying for collegiate sports. Neither should the new rules.

In fact, Proposition 48 helped many youngsters realize that in the long run, math, science and English are more important than dribbling, passing and dunking. Most high-school athletes are studying harder, because they know that college recruiters will be looking at their grade-point averages and ACT scores as closely as their touchdowns or runs batted in.

Moreover, the chief purpose of athletics scholarships should be to allow youngsters to parlay their academic talents into college degrees. The vast majority, after all, will never make it to the National Football League or National Basketball Association. To turn them out degree-less after their eligibility expires, as many colleges routinely did in the days before Proposition 48, is the grossest kind of exploitative behavior.

The new rules don't take effect until 1995. That gives this year's high-school freshman athletes plenty of warning: If you want to play college sports, hit the books and study hard. It should have been that way all along.

Survey good, but question missing

The article in the January 1, 1992, issue concerning the management of time by Division III athletes of the North Coast Athletic Conference and their caliber of accomplishment was more than quite interesting. The athletes of the conference, and those who compiled the information, are to be complimented on jobs well-done. Time management by student-athletes is indeed important.

We wonder, however, because the statistics and information of the article did not mention it, do any of the athletes work? Surely time management must be skewed when that one aspect becomes a major factor in the athlete's life. It becomes more than just "extracurricular activities."

Opinions

All groups need to grasp issues

Judith M. Sweet, NCAA president
Orange County Register

"I think we've done a better job of communicating, but we also need to expand that to include some groups that might not have been directly involved (in the legislative process), including the coaches. I'd hope we could all develop a better understanding of what issues are so we can develop some common goals and common solutions."

Ralph T. McFillen, commissioner
Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference
Metro News

"While the present enforcement system is not perfect, to (create a system of) independent hearing officers not knowledgeable of NCAA rules and to remove the Committee on Infractions from the penalty-finding process would not be an improvement, nor would such expedite a case being completed in a timely fashion."

Bernie Lincicome, columnist
Chicago Tribune

"I'm not sure what connection the ability to slam dunk has with the ability to find a complete predicate. Maybe some smart, thick-necked, genetic wonder with low SATs will figure this out and sue the NCAA for preventing him from pursuing his career."

"But if he's that intelligent, I guess he'd already be in college."

Bobby Randall, baseball coach
Iowa State University
Baseball America

"I asked my players, 'What do you think (about summer baseball)?' And they say, 'That sounds tremendous. That sounds great not to have to wear long johns for our first 20 games.' Nobody is going to come watch it when it's 40 degrees. Not even me."

Al Rosmino, director of athletics
Tustin (California) High School
Orange County Register

"With this new change (in initial-eligibility requirements), we'll have to get the freshmen as they come in. We'll meet with them and their parents and stress that even though they're just ninth-graders, we have to project into the future. Who knows how they'll mature athletically and academically? We just want to make them aware of what's going on."

Bill Benner, columnist
Indianapolis Star

"The days of the athlete merely masquerading as a student are numbered. The NCAA is simply telling high-school students that being a great athlete is not an automatic ticket to college.

"But let's be honest about something else. There are many gifted athletes for whom college is nothing more than an unwanted detour on their road to the pros. They only go to college because they are forced to because there is no place else for them to develop their athletics skills to a professional level."

"That's why the NFL and the NBA must follow the lead of baseball and establish their own minor leagues. There has to be an alternative for a gifted high-school football or basketball player who has neither the motivation nor, frankly, the intelligence to attend college."

John Cooper, head football coach
Ohio State University
The Dallas Morning News

"Everybody wants you to win every game. It's gotten worse over the last four or five years instead of better."

James O'Hanlon, faculty athletics representative
University of Nebraska, Lincoln
Omaha World-Herald

"If you're a millionaire's kid, you get a full grant-in-aid even though you have no financial need. We've not wanted to talk about it, but I think we have to. I think there will be some consideration of need-based aid. That will make a real difference."

Changes made in NCAA drug-testing protocol

The NCAA Executive Committee has approved several changes in the Association's drug-testing protocol.

The two primary changes, approved at the committee's December 9, 1991, meeting, involve permitting winning teams in events that begin after 9 p.m. local time to delay their tests until the next morning and to defer testing on athletes in individual/team sports (such as track and field) until all their competition is completed.

Frank D. Uryasz, director of sports sciences, said the policy pertaining to late starting times came primarily in response to athletes competing in the Division I men's and women's basketball championships.

In some cases, games would not conclude until around midnight, after which an athlete could be further delayed by extensive interview sessions with the media. If the athlete, perhaps dehydrated from the competition, had trouble providing a sample, he or she could be detained until 2 a.m.

Uryasz said the teams competing at a particular site will be asked before play begins whether they will defer testing until the next morning or proceed with testing after the game. If a team chooses to defer until the next morning, Uryasz said arrangements will be made to have the proper equipment at the hotel. All members of a team will be required to be tested at the same time, Uryasz said.

The Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports consulted medical and drug-testing experts and determined that the validity of the tests would not be compromised by an overnight delay.

"If an athlete took a banned drug," Uryasz said, "it would still be there in the morning."

The other principal change stipulates that once a student-athlete completes his or her competition in an individual/team sport, the athlete will report to a table to learn whether a drug test will be required.

In the case of an event such as track and field, an athlete could win the 400-meter dash on a Friday, thus making a drug test mandatory, but the athlete would delay the test

if he or she was scheduled to run in the 1,600-meter relay on Saturday.

Uryasz said that the decision again was based upon concern that athletes could be forced to be up late providing a sample, and in this case, they might be facing competition the next day. The committee also was concerned with the inconvenience the athletes would face in having to provide specimens repeatedly, Uryasz said.

The new policy was examined in a pilot program at the 1991 Divisions I, II and III Wrestling Championships.

No matter

Blacks, are being denied opportunity, I vehemently disagree. Clearly we are denying nothing in these reforms save privilege of participating in sports. College athletics is a privilege earned through hard work as well as talent. It is not a basic fundamental right.

Critics would have us believe that we are denying a prospective athlete the right to an education. Not so. The reform package makes scholarship eligibility impossible for a substandard student for one year only. He or she is categorized as a nonqualifier for an athletics scholarship and subsequent athletics participation at an NCAA school.

Yet the prospective student can pay his or her way to school if accepted. If after one year the athlete is in good standing, he or she may return to the playing field, eligible for athletics aid.

And there are so many other avenues for education and athletics.

For ineligible students, the doors of junior colleges are wide open, as are many open-admission state institutions.

These reforms deny nothing, save the privilege of participating at the highest possible level. But as always, one must earn the privilege. The NCAA finally threw away the silver spoon.

Yes, the want ad for college athletics has changed.

- 6.2. Upon entering the collection station, the student-athlete will be identified by the crew chief or a designate and will record time of arrival and name on the Student-Athlete Roster Form.
- 6.2.1. The student-athlete will select a beaker that is sealed in a plastic bag from a supply of such.
- 6.2.2.1. The student-athlete will select a personal code number. The number is recorded on the Student-Athlete Notification Form and, the Student-Athlete Signature Form, and the beaker.
- 6.2.1.2. When ready to urinate, the student-athlete will select a beaker that is sealed in a plastic bag from a supply of such, and will apply the personal code number to the beaker.
- 6.2.3. A crew member will complete the Student-Athlete Signature Form and will monitor the furnishing of the specimen by observation in order to assure the integrity of the specimen until a specimen of at least 100 80 ml is provided. This crew member will sign the Student-Athlete Signature Form.

- 6.2.5.1. The crew member will record the level of partial specimens on the beaker.
- 6.2.6. Once a specimen (at least 100 80 ml) is provided, the student-athlete will select a pair of new specimen bottles that are sealed in a plastic bag from a supply of such and will pour at least 7560 ml of the specimen into one bottle and most of the remaining amount into the second bottle, leaving a small amount in the beaker.
- 6.2.6.1. The student-athlete will place the seal and the cap on each bottle; the crew member will then seal each bottle in the required manner under the observation of the student-athlete and witness (if present).
- 6.2.6.2. The crew member will apply the student-athlete code number in a secure manner to each bottle (designating the fuller as the "A" bottle and the other as the "B" bottle) under the observation of the student-athlete and witness (if present). Each bottle will be sealed in an envopak and the seal numbers recorded on the Student-Athlete Signature Form.
- 6.2.7. A crew member will check the specific gravity and the pH of the urine remaining in the beaker.
- 6.2.7.1. This finding is recorded on the Laboratory Manifest and Student-Athlete Signature Form. If the urine has a specific gravity below 1.010 or is alkaline (greater than 7.5), the student-athlete must remain in the station until an additional adequate specimen is provided.
- 6.2.7.1.1. The student-athlete will select a new code number, new beaker, and new bottles and a new Student-Athlete Signature Form will be utilized, for each specimen collected.

- 6.3. The student-athlete and witness (if present) will sign the Student-Athlete Signature Form, certifying that the procedures were followed as described in the protocol. Any deviation from the procedures must be described and recorded on the Student-Athlete Signature Form at that time. If deviations are alleged, the student-athlete will be required to provide another specimen.
- 6.3.1. Failure to sign the Student-Athlete Notification Form or the Student-Athlete Signature Form, to arrive at the collection station at the designated time without justification or to provide a urine specimen according to protocol is cause for the same action(s) as evidence of use of a banned substance. The crew chief will inform the student-athlete of these implications (in the presence of witnesses) and record such on the Student-Athlete

- Signature Form. If the student-athlete is not available, the crew chief will notify the NCAA official responsible for administration of the event or an institutional representative. The student-athlete will be considered to have withdrawn consent and will be ineligible on that basis.
- 6.3.2. The crew member will sign the Student-Athlete Signature Form, give the student-athlete or a designee a copy and secure all remaining copies. The compiled Student-Athlete Signature Forms constitute the "Master Code" for that drug testing.
- 6.3.2.1. The laboratory's copy of the Student-Athlete Signature Form does not contain the name of the student-athlete.
- 6.4. All sealed envopaks will be secured in an NCAA shipping case. When the case is full or complete, the crew chief will sign the laboratory manifest, put the original and one copy in the case, and prepare the case for forwarding.
- 6.5. After the collection has been completed, the cases specimens will be forwarded to the laboratory according to the chain-of-custody guidelines, the remaining supplies returned or discarded, and all copies of all forms mailed forwarded to the designated persons.
- 7.0. Chain of Custody.
- 7.1. An NCAA forwarder's agent will sign for receive the shipping cases at the collection station and deliver them to the air carrier.
- 7.2. A laboratory employee will sign record that the shipping cases have been received.
- 7.3. The laboratory will register on the laboratory manifest record whether the numbered seals on each bottle envopak arrived intact.
- 8.0. Notification of Results and Appeal Process.
- 8.1. The laboratory will use a portion of specimen A for its initial analysis.
- 8.1.1. Positives for a banned substance will be confirmed by another laboratory staff member with another portion of specimen A before it is determined to contain a banned substance. Analysis will consist of sample preparation, instrument analysis and data interpretation.
- 8.1.2. If the results are to be reviewed by the competitive safeguards committee, appropriate arrangements for review of information pertaining to the collection and declaration shall be made.
- 8.1.2. The laboratory director or designated certifying scientist will review all results showing a banned substance and/or metabolite(s) in specimen A, and provide the NCAA with information regarding the presence of a banned substance. The laboratory report shall be submitted to the NCAA assistant executive director for administration or a designate. Laboratory interpretations regarding level of substance and consistency with the student-athlete declaration may be reviewed by the competitive safeguards committee.
- 8.1.3. By telephone and telecopier, the laboratory will inform the NCAA assistant executive director for administration or a designate of the results by each respective code number. Subsequently, the laboratory will mail the corresponding written report to the NCAA assistant executive director for administration or designate, the original manifest or a copy with the respective finding recorded for each code number.
- 8.2. Upon receipt of the telephone call, the NCAA assistant executive director for administration or a designate will break the number code to identify any individuals with positive findings, or any information that may be utilized by the institution to provide further drug education information to student-athletes.
- 8.2.1. For NCAA individual/team championships, if a member institution has not heard from the NCAA within 30 days after the specimen was provided, the test results will be assumed to be negative.
- 8.2.2. For student-athletes who have a positive finding, the NCAA assistant executive director for administration or a designate will contact the director of athletics or a designate by telephone as soon as possible. The telephone contact will be followed by "overnight/signature required" letters (marked "confidential") to the chief executive officer and the director of athletics. The institution shall notify the student-athlete of the finding.
- 8.2.2.1. The NCAA assistant executive director for administration or a designate will, during the telephone conversation, advise the director of athletics that specimen B must be tested within 24 hours after the telephone notification, that any appeal must be held on the same day that specimen B results become known and that the student-athlete may be present at the testing opening of specimen B.

List of hardy basketball coaches over age 60 short but impressive

By James M. Van Valkenburg
NCAA Director of Statistics

Coaching major-college basketball is indeed a stressful profession, it's not conducive to long careers. But there is some growth in the list of men's Division I coaches who are at least 60 years old.

There are only 18 names on this list of impressive names (a shade more than six percent of the Division I membership), but that is four more than last season. The group has coached 463 total seasons, won 65.7 percent of 13,065 games, including 215 wins in men's Division I tournament play, made 22 trips to the Final Four, and won four NCAA titles.

The "60 Club" includes North Carolina's Dean Smith, the leader among active Division I coaches in career wins (717 entering this season, one of just six in history to win 700 at the major level). And it includes the all-time division leader in career winning percentage (.833 entering the season)—Jerry Tarkanian, in his last season at Nevada-Las Vegas.

Smith's 47 tournament wins ties UCLA's John Wooden for first and his eight Final Four trips are second to Wooden's 12. Those who won the national title are Tarkanian (1990), Smith (1982), Michigan State's Jud Heathcote (1979) and

Basketball notes

UTEP's Don Haskins (1966). Jim Phelan of Mount St. Mary's (Maryland) won one Division II crown (1962) in his five trips to the national semifinals before moving to Division I.

Nine in the group are in at least their 30th coaching seasons at the four-year level, topped by Phelan, in his 38th. Stetson's Glenn Wilkes is in his 35th, Northwestern's Bill Foster in his 32nd, Smith and Haskins are in their 31st, and four are in their 30th. They are Alabama-Birmingham's Gene Bartow, James Madison's Lefty Driesell, Illinois' Lou Henson and Bethune-Cookman's Cy McLair.

Hofstra's Butch van Breda Kolff is the oldest at 69, Lou Carnesecca of St. John's (New York) will be 67 February 5, and both Heathcote and Iowa State's Johnny Orr are 64. Others in the group are Princeton's Pete Carril, Temple's John Chaney, Columbia's Jack Rohan and Richmond's Dick Tarrant.

Father-son match-up

A father-son coaching matchup, rare in Division I history, is expected to take place next season when van Breda Kolff's Hofstra team plays Cornell, coached by son Jan who is in his first season at the school.

No date has been set as yet, but the father announced recently he definitely will coach next season and play his son Jan played at Vanderbilt, where he was a key player on that school's 1974 Southeastern Conference championship team, a 23-5 NCAA tournament entry. After 11 years in professional basketball, he assisted Carril for six years at Princeton (where his father had coached a Bill Bradley-led Final Four team in 1965).

It is quite unusual for a father and son to be head coaching at the same time in Division I, much less to play each other

We know of just two such cases. Ed Diddle, 759-game winner in 42 years at Western Kentucky, faced his son 12 times between 1957 and 1962 when Ed Jr. was head coach at Middle Tennessee State in the Ohio Valley Conference. The father won 11 of 12 games. Six were close.

In the other case, Ray Meyer, 724-game winner in 42 years at DePaul, and son, Tom, at Illinois-Chicago were head coaches in the same city for six years, but they played only once, the father winning in the 1981-82 season.

Youngest coaches

The youngest Division I head coach is Niagara's Jack Armstrong, a 1985 Fordham graduate who was 29 January 1.

Next is Brown's Frank Dobbs, a 1984 Villanova graduate, who will be 30 April 18. Wagner's Tim Capstraw (Wagner '82) and Virginia's Jeff Jones (Virginia '82) both are 31.

Three are 32. They are Eastern Washington's John Wade, Creighton's Rick Johnson and Marshall's Dwight Freeman. Three more are 32 but will be 33 before the end of this season. They are John Calipari of Massachusetts, Joe Anders of Cal State Sacramento and John Stroia of Youngstown State.

Allen started at 20

The youngest head coach of all time? We have no such record. But it would be hard to top Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, a Kansas graduate. His first game as head coach at Baker University was November 17, 1905, one day before his 20th birthday and early in his second season as a player at Kansas under Dr. James Naismith, the inventor of basketball. Allen lettered at Kansas three seasons, 1904-05, 1905-06 and 1906-07, when he was team captain.

He coached at Baker, about 15 miles away, in 1905-06 (18-3), 1906-07 (14-0) and 1907-08 (13-6). His third season, he also was head coach at Kansas (18-6). In the 1908-09 season, he coached at both Kansas (25-3) and Haskell Indian Institute (27-5), also located in Lawrence, Kansas. For part of that period, Allen lived in Kansas City, Missouri, 40 miles away.

Traveling between his various coaching and playing stations was no problem, because train service was "regular and frequent," said Baker historian Dr. Harold Kolling, who pointed out that Baker opened in 1858, eight years before Kansas.

The second youngest? Well, several hall-of-fame coaches started one season after graduation, topped by Indiana's Branch McCracken, who was three days short of 22 years and 6 months when he started at Ball State December 6, 1930. McCracken's Indiana teams won NCAA crowns in 1940 and 1953, beating Allen's Kansas teams in the title game both times.

Short takes

South Dakota sophomore Shelby Petersen set a Division II record by making 11 straight three-pointers over a two-game span, reports Kyle Johnson, South Dakota sports information director. Central Oklahoma set a women's Division II team single-game free-throw record (minimum 30 made) by making 96.9 percent (31-for-32) vs. Eastern New Mexico, reports Mike Kirk, Central Oklahoma SID. At 2,024, Lisa Miller of Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne is the 38th player in women's Division II history to reach 2,000 career points, reports SID Dave Hilbert.

Pittsburg State and Missouri-Rolla tied, 6-6, on the football field last fall before Pittsburg State won 11 in a row en route to the Division II championship. The two schools' basketball meeting January 25 was "Tie Night," and anyone wearing one was admitted for half price. Appropriately, the game was tied, 99-all, with four seconds left in the third overtime when Mark Johnson's goal gave Pittsburg State the home victory, reports Shawn Ahearn, Pittsburg State SID.

Roll-call voting

This is a summary of the 40 roll-call votes that were conducted at the 1992 NCAA Convention in Anaheim.

Each column represents a roll-call vote at the Convention. The number at the head of each column is the proposal number. In instances where the vote involved only member institutions in one division, that division also is indicated. Where letters are indicated, the reference is to parts of multipart proposals included in that vote.

Other codes in the headings are as follows: MTR refers to a motion to refer; VTR refers to a vote to reconsider, and VTS refers to a vote to separate items in the proposal.

Following are intent statements for each of the proposals represented in the summary.

Proposals

No. 14: To increase from 11 to 13 the minimum number of core-course credits, with the two additional credits to be earned in English, mathematics, or natural or physical science. Sponsored by the Presidents Commission and the Council, as recommended by the Academic Requirements Committee. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 16: To establish an initial-eligibility index in Division I based upon a core-curriculum grade-point average of 2,500 (4,000 scale), an SAT score of 700 and an ACT score of 17, thus limiting the index to current boundaries; also, to increase from 2,000 to 2,500 the minimum cumulative high-school GPA for a partial qualifier. Sponsored by the Presidents Commission and the Council, as recommended by the Academic Requirements Committee, Division I business session.

No. 18: To prohibit a prospect in Division I from receiving an official (paid) recruiting visit prior to the early signing date in a sport if the prospect does not present a minimum SAT score of 700 or ACT score of 17 and a minimum 2.000 GPA in at least seven core courses. Prospects not meeting those requirements could not receive a paid visit until at least 24 hours after the end of the early signing period. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Recruiting Committee. Division I business session.

No. 18-1: To amend No. 18 by delaying the effective date until August 1, 1993. Sponsored by the Council and by the Big West Conference, the Western Athletic Conference and six other Division I-A institutions. Division I business session.

No. 19: To require a midyear transfer student in Divisions I and II to be certified for satisfactory-progress purposes at the beginning of the next fall term, regardless of whether the student-athlete competed during the spring term. Sponsored by the Presidents Commission and the Council, as recommended by the Academic Requirements Committee. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 20: To specify that a student-athlete shall earn during the summer not more than 25 percent of the semester or quarter hours used to meet satisfactory-progress requirements, thus requiring that at least 75 percent of the credits used for satisfactory progress be earned during the regular academic year. ## Norrell led athletics representative when former NCAA president John A. Fuzak retired from Michigan State in 1979. She was the second woman to serve on the university's athletics council and was on the council as the vice-chair when it came time for then-Michigan State President Ed Harden to name a successor.

Fuzak recommended her highly, both for the council and then as his replacement. "Gwen had such a deep interest in intercollegiate athletics and she was very qualified," he said. "Not only that, but she had the acceptance of the faculty at Michigan State."

"At one time, I was the dean of students and vice-president for student affairs. Gwen worked in the counseling center and did a tremendous job. I knew of her interest in athletics. I did recommend her for appointment to the council. She was a very effective member."

"There was pressure building in the Big Ten at that time for having a women's faculty athletics representative and a men's faculty athletics representative. Our position was that a faculty athletics representative was a faculty athletics representative. It was my recommendation that Gwen be appointed. It would address some of the problems of this issue. After a while, many of the other schools in the Big Ten had two."

Gives credit

Norrell credits her success to Fuzak. In fact, she says that had Fuzak not been so supportive, she probably wouldn't have accepted the position when offered. "Jack talked to me many times about the Big Ten, so I knew what I was stepping into. I knew what I had to do," she said. That support, and the support from Harden and the rest of the administration at Michigan State, prepared her for her next first, being named to the NCAA Council.

Judith R. Holland of the University of California, Los Angeles; Elizabeth A. Kruczek from Fitchburg State College; Sweet of the University of California, San Diego, and Norrell were elected in 1981 as the first women on the Council under the "governance plan" that assured NCAA programs and services for women's athletics.

"You know, those guys would never let us eat alone," Norrell said of the male Council members. "I know that is a small thing, but it is important, when you are new in an organization, that people make you feel like you are part of the team. And they made very sure that we were. I never felt any kind of alienation."

Not threatened

Norrell doesn't believe the male members of the Council were threatened when women's athletics joined the Association.

"I think sometimes men feel threatened because women are after their jobs," she said. "I got some hate letters from people when I was named faculty rep. One I will always remember was from a man who said 'What makes you think you know anything about athletics?' I had to laugh. Though there were probably some people in the larger membership who probably questioned having women on the Council, the ones we were working with on the Council never did."

"There was a concerted effort to include the women," Fuzak said. "It was partly because of the assimilation of women's sports under the umbrella of the NCAA. Knowing the members of the Council, it is only what I would expect. They wouldn't put up any barriers, but instead would try to help them. The quality of individuals (on the Council) was outstanding."

Norrell served on the Special Committee on NCAA Governance, Organization and Services, the committee responsible for orchestrating the inclusion of women's athletics.

"During Fuzak's time as president (1975-76), there was talk about integrating women into the NCAA and then there was a move afoot to go ahead and do it," said Norrell, who, along with other NCAA officers and national office staff members, traveled across the country talking about the plan. "That was a time for the women who didn't agree with it to express their displeasure, and the ones who were supportive of it to express their support."

First woman officer

Once women's athletics was incorporated into the NCAA structure, it wouldn't be long before the first woman officer of the NCAA would be elected. In 1983, division vice-presidents were elected for each division, replacing the system of district and at-large vice-presidents. Norrell, in becoming the first Division I vice-president, became the first woman officer.

"I felt it was a great opportunity to be visible to other women, hoping that in time other women would have the same kind of opportunities that I had. I had a great time."

This first was different from the others. In each of her other situations, she was replacing a male who had already established precedent and procedure. She merely had to convert the critics who did not believe that a woman could do the job. As Division I vice-president, however, she was breaking new ground. Again, she claims she was part of a team and her role was no big deal.

"How do you use a vice-president in an organization of Divisions I and II and III where you had not had one before?" she asked. "You knew you had to do your homework. The Council was always right there. There were so many people there to help me with the background stuff that I didn't know. I felt so fortunate to have such tremendous support."

Takes pride

Norrell takes great pride in the fact that just 10 years after incorporation of women's athletics, a woman is the highest-ranking official in the NCAA. But she doesn't take any credit. "I think it is wonderful," she said. "But Judy did it on her own. I was just part of the evolution. I think people could see that women could make policy as well as men and that they could support women in positions like that."

Today, Norrell is retired from Michigan State, though she is involved in revising and examining the alumni distinguished scholarship examination for the provost's office. She also has completed a couple of studies for the athletics department. Oh, and if you mention it, she will tell you that she is undergoing chemotherapy for breast cancer diagnosed in June 1991.

"If you use that, say that I am doing wonderfully well with it," she said. "Things are just looking up."

Red Auerbach Arena opens at Brandeis

Brandeis University's men's and women's basketball teams hosted teams from the University of Chicago to mark the opening of the school's new athletics facility January 10.

The 70,000-square-foot Gosman Sports and Convocation Center, which includes the 2,500-spectator-capacity Red Auerbach Arena, will be used for varsity basketball and volleyball games as well as a host of other intercollegiate and recreational athletics, concerts, convocations and major campus events. The field house also includes a six-lane, 200-meter track. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held in March 1990.

The school's Abraham Shapiro Athletic Center, which provides a three-court, multipurpose recreation and intramural center on the upper level, was renovated. The Gosman and Shapiro centers are part of the Joseph E. and Clara Ford Athletic Recreation Complex.

The committee, which was formed in 1991, cited six pieces of research that the report said portrayed a dismal picture of current and past opportunities for Blacks in intercollegiate athletics.

"Each report illustrates a bleak picture regarding its particular area of study," the report said. "The data show little, if any, improvement over the passage of time.... We have all reviewed those reports and are concerned about the problems illustrated in them. However, further examination has shown that the problem is most likely even more pervasive than we realize."

Committee chair Charles Whitcomb, faculty athletics representative at San Jose State University, said January 28 that the committee will take the long-range plan a step further at its next meeting, March 30-31 in Kansas City, Missouri.

"At that time we will look at how we're going to prioritize (those goals)," Whitcomb said.

Bowl alliance

Lincoln, in the Orange Bowl on New Year's night. Under the new arrangement, Miami (Florida) probably would have played the University of Florida in the Sugar Bowl.

The agreement is for a nine-year period and becomes effective with the 1992 season.

The implementation of the agreement was delayed because the two-year-old Blockbuster Bowl offered $4.3 million to the Big East and ACC to affiliate their champions with its game. "We felt it was in the best interests of everybody because of the flexibility of the alliance and primarily the fact that higher-ranked teams will have the opportunity to play each other more often," said Miami (Florida) athletics director David R. Maggard in explaining the decision to go with the alliance.

Others speculated that the Blockbuster deal failed because—for the short term, anyway—the possibility of an annual postseason rematch between Atlantic Coast Conference power Florida State University and Miami (Florida) of the Big East was too likely. As it is, the ACC and Big East champs are assured berths in the Cotton, Orange or Sugar Bowls, unless they participate in a No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup in the Fiesta Bowl. If in the final AP poll, Notre Dame, the Big East or ACC champion is ranked No. 1, that team is bound to play in the Fiesta Bowl. That means Florida State and Miami (Florida) still could meet in a rematch for the national title.

committee is urging the Collegiate Commissioners Association to begin an educational effort to improve officials' knowledge of existing rules and standardize the way line play is officiated.

On another issue, the committee reviewed data and research reports on quadriplegia in college football. Although the rate of catastrophic injuries has not increased, the committee and its medical consultants are concerned that the rate has reached a plateau after declining steadily since 1976.

In response, the committee is asking the American Football Coaches Association to reemphasize to its membership the importance of proper head positioning when tackling and blocking. It also is investigating the development of a videotape on the subject for viewing by student-athletes.

The committee also stopped short of restricting or prohibiting the use of gloves so an ad hoc subcommittee could work with a group of manufacturers to control the stickiness of glove leather, which has increased dramatically in the past three years.

Providing leadership

So, in just one meeting, the Football Rules Committee enlisted the help of coaches, officials and equipment manufacturers in improving the game. Dickey realizes the committee has little jurisdiction outside the pages of the rules book, but he believes the committee can take a leadership role in cooperative efforts to improve the game, even when rules changes are not involved.

"College football is as popular as it has ever been, and we have Dave Nelson to thank for that," Dickey said. "Perhaps it's time we left the rules alone for a while and worked on educating everyone—officials, coaches, players, manufacturers—about the ones we've got."

"I can't recall seeing so few major rule changes in the 17 years I've been associated with the committee," said acting secretary-rules editor John Adams, who was a committee member from 1976 to 1982, including two years as chair, and attended

Football rules actions

Following are the major rules changes adopted by the Football Rules Committee at its annual meeting:

- Rule 4-1-3-j was deleted and Rule 7-2-2-c was changed to allow defensive players to advance any fumble. Previously, fumbles could be advanced only if they occurred beyond the neutral zone. Backward passes and muffed kicks that hit the ground still may not be advanced by the defense.

- Rule 3-2-4-b was changed to make 25-second clocks mandatory in 1993 instead of 1992.

- Rule 2-4-2 was amended to make a block or push in the back above the waist a less severe penalty than one below the waist. Blocks or pushes above the waist will be penalized 10 yards for an illegal block in the back, while those below the waist will remain 15-yard clipping fouls.

- Rule 3-5-2-b was amended to require replaced players to leave the huddle immediately so the defense will not be confused by the presence of 12 players.

- Rule 7-1-3-b-4 was changed to specify that players who go in motion from the line of scrimmage may not still be in motion when the ball is snapped. Players who are in motion at the snap must have established themselves in the backfield before going in motion.

- Rule 7-1-3-a-2 was changed to require all Team A players to have been between the nine-yard marks after the ball is ready for play and before the ball is put in play after a timeout or before a free kick. This change was made to prevent a hidden-player situation after a team or TV timeout.

- Sound-amplification devices were added to field equipment prohibited under Rule 1-4-9. This will make it illegal for coaches to use bullhorns to communicate with players.

nine other meetings as an editorial consultant to Nelson.

"Probably the most significant thing we did this year was the change in the fumble rule," he said, referring to a new rule that allows the defense to advance any fumble, not just those occurring past the line of scrimmage. "But the philosophy behind that rule has changed over the years, and it really wasn't debated as heatedly as in the past."

The postman delivers... on the basketball court

Bruce Morgan is not your ordinary collegiate student-athlete. In fact, one might say that he's not your ordinary hard-working American.

Not only does he hold down a full-time job with the U.S. Postal Service, but he is married, carries a 2.800 grade-point average (4,000 scale) in criminal justice and is 29 years old to boot.

A senior at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice, Morgan recently was named the City University of New York Athletic Conference and Eastern College Athletic Conference player of the week.

On January 18, Morgan sank a three-pointer as the horn sounded to help his team defeat the College of Staten Island, 90-87. He followed that performance by connecting on a layup with 30 seconds left against York College (New York) January 22 to give his team a 58-56 victory.

Morgan works the midnight to 8 a.m. shift five days a week at the post office. After working, he heads for a day of classes and grabs a bite to eat before dashing off to practice.

It's assumed that he fits sleep in there at some point, but the rigors of his schedule have had little negative effect on his basketball game.

He is averaging 20 points per game and leads the Bloodhounds in rebounds with nine per contest.

Wrestler wins match, then heart

Central Missouri State University wrestler Tony Griffith had a flair for the dramatic January 9 when his team hosted Missouri Valley College.

Griffith, who normally wrestles at 126 pounds, moved up to 134 for the contest and was wrestling the final match with his team down by three points. Not only did he win a four-point major decision (the final score was 12-4) to give the Mules the overall victory, he also won the heart of his girl.

Immediately following his triumph, Griffith went to the public-address microphone and proposed to Kelly Kissenburger, his girlfriend. She said yes.

Florida begins AIDS institute

The University of Florida, thanks to a $30,000 donation from the UF Athletic Association, has established a campus-wide AIDS institute to help battle the disease. An additional $30,000 was received from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the world's largest private health-care philanthropy.

The institute's main focus will be coordinating and fostering AIDS research and educational efforts throughout the university, said Michael Miller, director of the institute. The state of Florida ranks third in the United States in the number of reported AIDS cases.

The institute will develop educational programs to help increase knowledge of HIV and AIDS and to encourage people to voluntarily modify potentially risky behavior that could lead to transmission of the disease.
