Executive Committee approves plan for revenue distribution

The NCAA Executive Committee adopted the recommendations of the Special NCAA Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues at its May 3-5 meeting in Tucson, Arizona.

The action establishes the means by which revenue from the NCAA's contract with CBS will be distributed this year. In keeping with its policy to review the plan, the revenue-distribution committee earlier had solicited comment from the membership and had formed a subcommittee to examine the broad-based component of the plan in particular.

The revenue-distribution committee will continue to seek more refined factors or formulas on which to base the broad-based portion of the distribution; however, no changes were made in the formula for the 1991-92 distribution that will be made this summer.

The Executive Committee adopted the following recommendations in each area of the plan:

- Membership trust. The membership trust will be increased to two percent of the television revenues for fiscal year 1992-93.

- Needy student-athlete fund. Current permissible uses of money will not be expanded to include additional items. Also, nine interpretations pertaining to the needy student-athlete fund were approved (see accompanying story).

The Executive Committee also voted that effective with the 1992-93 academic year, all student-athletes not receiving Pell Grants (either actual dollars or credit for them) will be eligible for the fund, providing several conditions are met. This policy was implemented on a one-year trial basis.

- Academic-enhancement fund. Effective with the distribution made

Sponsorship for men's gymnastics has dropped from 71 programs to 41

Men's gymnastics and water polo fight to keep championships alive

By Steven R. Hagwell
The NCAA News Staff

Since 1982, men's gymnastics and water polo have experienced declines in sponsorship numbers that threaten their championships' existence.

Men's gymnastics, which once boasted 71 programs across the nation, currently is sponsored by 41. In men's water polo, the decline is not as dramatic, but sponsorship has dropped from 54 institutions to 48.

Both figures are well below the seven percent requirement in NCAA legislation, which specifies that a sport be sponsored by seven percent of the membership to maintain its championship status. Current membership figures place that number at 58.

Time for meeting that requirement is running out, but supporters of both sports say they will do what they have to do to keep their championships alive.

According to Bylaw 18.2.10.2, adopted by the membership at the 1992 Convention, "during the 1991-92, 1992-93 and 1993-94 academic years, an existing National Collegiate Championship shall not be canceled, nor shall transportation and per diem expenses be discontinued, due to that championship's failure to meet the minimum sponsorship percentage or numerical sponsorship requirement for maintaining the championship."

Based on figures for 1991-92 and 1992-93, if sponsorship numbers remain constant and legislation is not changed, the men's water polo championship would be discontinued after the 1993 event, while 1994 would be the last year for the men's gymnastics championships.

"The simplest way to solve our problem is to add teams," said Michael Sutton of Claremont McKenna-Harvey Mudd-Scripps Colleges, a member of the NCAA Men's Water Polo Committee. "But I don't know how many athletics programs can add a sport. Our alternatives are to come up with ways to change the requirements."

It is an avenue that the committees for both sports are pursuing.

In a joint recommendation to the NCAA Executive Committee, the committees proposed that Bylaw 18.2.11.(a), which was adopted at the 1992 Convention, be changed so that a championship in which receipts exceed all disbursements (excluding transportation expense and per diem allowance) be exempt from the seven percent requirement. Championships in which net receipts exceed all expenses, including transportation and per diem expenses, are currently exempt.

"What the proposal does is make a championship responsible for paying its expenses," said Sutton. "With travel and per diem hooked on with expenses, there are two expenses that we cannot control. Whereas if we remove them from the equation, we can directly affect the other expenses."

At its meeting May 3-5, the Executive Committee declined to take action on the proposal, stating that it would be inappropriate to do so without feedback from the membership.

If the proposal is eventually adopted, representatives of both sports say they could show a profit. In 1991, men's gymnastics showed a deficit of $90,037, while water polo was $89,532 in the red. However, with transportation and per diem taken out of the equation, gymnastics regis-

Collins joins Council

Dennis M. Collins, executive director of the North Coast Athletic Conference, has been appointed to the NCAA Council.

He will replace Robert E. Rosenkrans of Wittenberg University, who no longer was able to serve because of a change in positions at Wittenberg.

Collins is the first executive director of the NCAC. During his tenure, NCAC teams have claimed 18 national championships. Also, the conference expanded from seven members to nine in 1988.

He helped form the Intercollegiate Officiating Association, a group of 23 institutions from three conferences that oversees all aspects of officiating for its members in the sports of men's basketball, women's basketball and football. He serves on the board of directors and acts as administrator of the service.

Collins, who has served as vice-president of the Division III commissioners association since 1991, previously was sports information director at Case Western Reserve University. In a part-time position, he received six citations from the College Sports Information Directors of America for his publications. He also served as executive director of Case Western's first athletics alumni club, which now has 500 members.

From 1976 to 1985, he was owner of Collins Communications, a firm that provided public relations and audio-visual services. He is an accomplished photographer.

Collins is a graduate of Ohio State University and served in the U.S. Coast Guard.

Committees discuss process for eligibility appeals

A recent meeting between members of the NCAA Eligibility Committee and the NCAA Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals is expected to result in more clearly defined roles for the groups in handling appeals of eligibility rulings.

During an Eligibility Committee meeting May 4-6 in Williamsburg, Virginia, the groups huddled to discuss the Council subcommittee's role as an appellate body for cases involving the eligibility of student-athletes at member institutions.

A result of that meeting was a consensus between the two groups to establish more clearly defined written procedures intended to limit the grounds for an appeal of an Eligibility Committee decision. Those procedures are expected to be presented to the Council for review at its August meeting.

Currently, all of the Association's initial-eligibility rulings are made by the national office staff on behalf of the Eligibility Committee, which then reviews those decisions throughout the year. Some of those approximately 700 cases annually are appealed and ultimately decided by the Eligibility Committee. A very small number of the Eligibility Committee's rulings are further appealed to the Council subcommittee.

"In essence, the two committees agreed that the existing procedures need to be fine-tuned in order to ensure that cases are not being heard twice," said Robert M. Sweazy of Texas Tech University, chair of

Alaska Anchorage is newest WCHA member

The Western Collegiate Hockey Association has approved the admission of the University of Alaska Anchorage as a full-time member, starting with the 1993-94 season.

Alaska Anchorage will be an affiliate member for tournament purposes this coming season and will be entered as the 10th-ranked team in postseason play, according to United Press International. In the 1993-94 season, the WCHA will move to a 32-game conference schedule with each member playing two home and two away games against seven league opponents and two games against two other WCHA opponents (one series on the road and one at home).

The school is the first to join the WCHA since St. Cloud State University entered the league in 1990.

Alaska Anchorage started its hockey program in 1979 as an NCAA Division II program and moved to Division I in that sport in 1984. It has participated in three straight NCAA Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championships.

Alaska Anchorage athletics director Ronald J. Petro said the school administration is thankful that the conference is comfortable with the progress made by the Seawolves' hockey program "and decided to allow us to become part of what we think is the best college hockey league in the country."

"We especially want to recognize the foresight and courage of the league members to expand -- especially to an institution that is geographically located a considerable distance from other league members," Petro said.

NCAA Bylaw 14.2.5

Hardship waivers—retroactive application

At the 1992 NCAA Convention, legislation was adopted amending the application of the hardship rule. In Divisions I and II, scrimmages and exhibition contests no longer are included in determining the number of events in which a student-athlete has competed and the number of the institution's completed events in the administration of the hardship waiver. In Division III, a student-athlete may qualify for a hardship waiver if the student-athlete's incapacitating injury or illness occurs in the first half of the season prior to competing in more than three events or one-third of the institution's completed events.

The NCAA Council previously has determined that amendments to the hardship rule that may work to the benefit of a student-athlete can be applied retroactively to any student-athlete with eligibility remaining under the five-year/10-semester rule. Thus, a student-athlete who has eligibility remaining under the five-year/10-semester rule and meets the new legislation may qualify for the hardship waiver, even if the injury occurred prior to the adoption of the new legislation.

NCAA Bylaw 12.4.2.4.1

Broken-time payments for national or Olympic team members

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 12.4.2.4.1, an individual may receive broken-time payments administered by the U.S. Olympic Committee or the national governing body in a sport during the period when the individual is not enrolled (full- or part-time) in a regular term to cover financial losses as a result of absence from employment as a direct result of practicing and competing on a national team. The amount may not exceed $250 per week, and the payment period may cover not more than the period from the date the individual begins practice with the national team following selection to that team to one week after the conclusion of the competition. Please note that the provisions of Bylaw 12.4.2.4.1 were intended to cover financial loss for absence from employment only as a direct result of practicing and competing on a national team that has been selected to participate in a specific competition. Also, during its January 7, 1990, meeting, the Council confirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 12.4.2.4.1 are applicable to payments from both domestic and foreign national sports governing bodies.

NCAA Bylaws 14.2.1.4 and 14.5.7-(b)

Olympic waivers

Division I member institutions are reminded that in accordance with Bylaw 14.2.1.4, the Council has the authority to extend the five-year eligibility period for student-athletes who participate in official Olympic training, tryouts and competition. A member institution that requests such an extension must establish by objective evidence to the satisfaction of the Council that the student was unable to attend a collegiate institution as a result of participation in official Olympic training, tryouts and competition for a specific period of time. Such an extension is limited to one time for a period not to exceed one year per student-athlete per sport.

Divisions I and II institutions also should note that per Bylaw 14.5.7-(b), the credit hours required under the satisfactory-progress regulation of Bylaw 14.5.4-(a) may be prorated at 12 hours per term of actual

Committee notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill interim vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than May 27, 1992.

Wrestling Committee: Replacement for Robert E. Douglas, formerly at Arizona State University, now at Iowa State University. Appointee must be from Division I.

COMMITTEE CHANGES

Presidents Commission

Division I Chair: Charles E. Young, University of California, Los Angeles.

General committees

Academic Requirements: Staff liaisons were omitted from the 1992 NCAA Committee Handbook. They are Nancy L. Mitchell and Daniel T. Dutcher.

Legislative Review: Appointed as chair: David Price, Pacific-10 Conference; add Nancy L. Mitchell as a staff liaison.

National Youth Sports Program: Michael F. Alden, University of New Mexico instead of Arizona State University. He becomes a member of the committee effective September 1, 1992.

Student-Athlete Advisory: Jenny Klamm, Washburn University of Topeka, appointed to replace Vanessa Hornbuckle, Western State College of Colorado, as the Division II, Region 4, representative. Hornbuckle resigned from the committee.

Relected the following student-athletes for another two-year term:

Division I: Elizabeth L. Fahey-Albright, Pennsylvania State University; George Montgomery, Arizona State University; Barbara Winsett, University of Illinois, Champaign.

Division II: Tom Burns, Millersville University of Pennsylvania.

Division III: Cheryl Ish, Salisbury State University.

Staff liaison: Janet M. Justus.

Committee on Women's Athletics: Appointed Richard A. Rasmussen, University Athletic Association, to replace Peter J. Gooding, resigned.

Sports committees

Men's Basketball Rules: Effective April 1, 1992, Roland Massimino is at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, instead of Villanova University. He remains on the committee.

Men's and Women's Rifle: Appointed James M. Skidmore, Jacksonville State University, effective September 1, 1992.

Convention committees

(Appointed by the Council)

Men's Committee on Committees: Appointed effective May 1, 1992, for three-year terms expiring May 1, 1995:

Susan Petersen-Lubow, U.S. Merchant Marine Academy (Division III, District 2); Glen C. Tuckett, Brigham Young University (I-7); G. Lynn Lashbrook, University of Alaska Fairbanks (II-8); Daniel Bridges, California Institution of Technology (III-at large).

James W. Vick, University of Texas at Austin, appointed chair.

Women's Committee on Committees: Appointed effective May 1, 1992, for three-year terms expiring May 1, 1995:

Bernadette McGlade, Georgia Institute of Technology (I-3); Margaret Harbison, East Texas State University (II-6); Diane Milutinovich, California State University, Fresno (I-at large); Sandy Tillman, Emory University (III-at large).

Peggy J. Pruitt, Ohio University, appointed chair.

Nominating: Appointed effective May 1, 1992, for one-year terms expiring May 1, 1993:

Division I: Robert W. Mullen, La Salle University; Sondra Norrell-Thomas, Howard University; R. Daniel Beebe, Ohio Valley Conference; Charles Cavagnaro, Memphis State University, chair; Linda G. Herman, Illinois State University; Del Brinkman, University of Kansas; Jim G. Malik, San Diego State University; Cedric W. Dempsey, University of Arizona.

Division II: Wallace Jackson, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference; George W. Eastland, Saginaw Valley State University; Janet R. Kittell, California State University, Chico.

Division III: Gregory L. Lockard, Montclair State College; Dolores A. Bogard, State University College at Cortland; James E. Foels, Oberlin College; Curtis W. Tong, Pomona-Pitzer Colleges.

Convention committees

(Appointed by the Executive Committee)

Credentials: One-year terms effective May 1, 1992, and expiring May 1, 1993:

Reappointed Michael M. Gilleran, West Coast Conference, also appointed chair; Barbara Bickford, Brandeis University. Appointed Ronnie O. Spry, Paine College, replacing Paul H. Brand, University of Alabama, Huntsville.

Memorial Resolutions: One-year terms effective May 1, 1992, and expiring May 1, 1993:

Reappointed Catherine C. Hacker, College of St. Rose, also appointed chair. Appointed Judy W. Rose, University of North Carolina, Charlotte; Allen F. Ackerman, University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh.

Voting: One-year terms effective May 1, 1992, and expiring May 1, 1993:

Reappointed: District 1—Susan E. Chapman, Worcester State College (Division III); District 3—L. Douglas Johnson, University of Miami (Florida) (I-A); District 4—Steven C. Becker, University of Wisconsin, Superior (III); District 5—Don Bryant, University of Nebraska, Lincoln (I-A); District 6—Tynes Hildebrand, Northwestern State University (Louisiana) (I-AA); District 8—Barbara G. Walker, University of Oregon (I-A); at large—Kathy Lindahl, Michigan State University (I-A-District 4); Katherine E. Noble, University of Montana (I-AA-7), chair; William Thomas, Tennessee State University (I-AA-3).

Appointed: District 2—Rich Petriccione, Iona College (I-AAA); District 7—Larry Gerlach, University of Utah (I-

A); at large—Sallie Beard, Missouri Southern State College (II-5); Pete Chapman, Wayne State College (Nebraska) (II-5).

Minimum bowl payment may stay at $650,000

The Postseason Football Subcommittee of the NCAA Special Events Committee has recommended that the minimum distribution of gross receipts paid to institutions participating in bowl games remain at $650,000 this year instead of increasing to $700,000 as scheduled.

However, the group retained the right to proceed with an increase to $750,000 that is set to take effect in 1993-94.

The subcommittee recommended the freeze during its April 26-28 meeting in Scottsdale, Arizona. It is subject to approval by the NCAA Council.

The freeze was one of two actions taken by the subcommittee to help bowls deal with current economic uncertainties. It also recommended a reduction in the letter of credit required for bowls that average less than $1 million in distributions over the previous three years.

If the recommendation is approved by the Council, such bowls now will have to secure a letter of credit equal to the minimum distribution to both teams ($1.3 million) rather than the minimum distribution plus 25 percent.

The economic factors that concern the panel and sponsoring agencies include reductions in television rights fees, sluggish ticket sales, less favorable sponsorship agreements and potential tax liability. Some bowls began feeling the effects of the unfavorable economy last year, and more are expected to feel the pinch this year.

The factor that received much of the subcommittee's attention is the new Internal Revenue Service interpretation that bowls have to pay unrelated-business income tax on the money they receive from title and corporate sponsorships. The December ruling currently is under appeal by the Mobil Cotton Bowl, and bowl sponsors are hoping for Federal legislation protecting their sponsorship income from taxation.

During the meeting, the subcommittee voted to release to the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association $198,000 in bowl assessments ($5,500 per team) withheld from all 1991-92 bowl participants for legal and accounting expenses related to the legislative efforts.

Until a legal or legislative conclusion is reached, the bowls' liability for taxes on corporate sponsorships remains uncertain. As a result, some bowls have withheld funds from competing institutions to establish

Other highlights

Following is a summary of other actions taken by the Postseason Football Subcommittee at its April 26-28 meeting:

- The subcommittee reaffirmed its policy requiring teams to win a minimum of six games against Division I-A competition to be eligible for a certified bowl game. It was noted that 48 Division I-A teams met this requirement in 1991 and were eligible for the 36 available bowl invitations.

- The subcommittee gave conditional approval for initial certification to a new postseason game, the Alamo Bowl, for 1993-94. The game tentatively is scheduled for December 31, 1993, in the Alamodome, a covered arena under construction in San Antonio, Texas, that will seat 65,000 for football. In order to receive final approval, the San Antonio Bowl Association must secure a letter verifying its financial stability from a reputable financial institution and sell approximately 20,000 tickets before the subcommittee's spring 1993 meeting.

- The subcommittee approved the Las Vegas Silver Bowl as a closed bowl between the champions of the Big West and Mid-American Athletic Conferences and exempted the game from requirements related to minimum distribution of receipts, letter of credit and stadium size. The panel also waived the two-year waiting period because the conferences previously had a closed-bowl arrangement with the California Raisin Bowl.

- The following postseason games were recertified for 1992-93: Blockbuster Bowl, Federal Express Orange Bowl, Fiesta Bowl, Florida Citrus Bowl, Freedom Bowl, Gator Bowl, Hall of Fame Bowl, Jeep Eagle Aloha Bowl, John Hancock Bowl, Liberty Bowl, Mobil Cotton Bowl, Peach Bowl, Poulan/Weed Eater Independence Bowl, Rose Bowl, Thrifty Car Rental Holiday Bowl and USF&G Sugar Bowl.

- The subcommittee granted 60-day extensions of the April 1 recertification deadline to two bowls.

The California Raisin Bowl will use the period to meet the financial requirements of conducting an open bowl, secure a television contract and verify that the site—California State University, Fresno's, Bulldog Stadium—will expand its capacity to 50,000.

The Domino's Copper Bowl will attempt to secure a television contract and establish a date for the game.

- The subcommittee voted to include all revenue generated by pay-per-view television in the computation of gross receipts.

Ice hockey injury rate ranks lowest among winter sports

Ice hockey continued its trend as an NCAA sport with a low injury rate, posting practice and game injury rates during 1991-92 that were below the sport's six-year average.

According to data collected for the NCAA Injury Surveillance System (ISS), ice hockey game injury rates showed a decrease of 1.2 injuries per 1,000 athlete-exposures (A-E) from the six-year average. Practice rates were 0.2 lower, and the total practice and game injury rates for 1991-92 were 0.6 lower than the average.

Ice hockey practice injury rates continue to be among the lowest of the winter sports monitored in the ISS. Relative to other sports, ice hockey practice injury rates have been consistently smaller in each of the past six years. Interestingly, contact with the puck accounted for the same percentage (8 percent) of injuries in both practices and games. Knees and shoulders were the top two body parts injured in the sport for the third consecutive year.

Practice, game and overall injury rates were similar to the four-year averages in both men's and women's basketball. The game injury rates dropped from 1990-91 highs in both sports. Both the men's and women's games listed ankles, knees and the lower back as the top three body parts injured. However, a slightly higher percentage of ankle injuries was reported in men's basketball. Also, knee injuries have been 6 to 8 percent higher in the women's game over each of the last four years.

Men's gymnastics showed a practice injury rate slightly higher than the six-year average for the sport and a meet injury rate that was five injuries per 1,000 A-E lower than the previous year. Ankles and wrists were the top body parts injured, and floor exercises, pommel horse and horizontal bar were the events or apparatuses associated with the most injuries.

Women's gymnastics also showed a practice injury rate that was only slightly higher than its seven-year average. The meet injury rate was lower than the seven-year high of 26.1 recorded the previous year. However, the 1991-92 value was still significantly higher than the seven-year average. Ankles, knees and the lower back were the top three body parts injured and accounted for 45 percent of recorded injuries in the sport. As with the men's sport, the most injuries were associated with the floor exercise. The uneven parallel bars was the event/apparatus associated with the second highest injury total.

In wrestling, the knee remained the No. 1 injury although the percentage of knee injuries relative to all reported injuries dropped below 20 percent for the first time in five years. Shoulders and ankles were the second and third most frequently injured body parts. Skin infections accounted for 12 percent of the reported injuries. This category, unique to wrestling, has accounted for nine to 14 percent of all reported wrestling injuries over each of the last six years. Overall, the practice and match injury rates were slightly below the seven-year average for the sport.

The survey is statistically reliable. However, researchers should be cautious when comparing the results with injury data from other studies.

"No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics-injury literature," said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences. "Therefore, the information contained in this summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the NCAA Injury Surveillance System."

The ISS was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics. Injury data are collected yearly from a representative sample of NCAA member institutions, and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The committee's goal continues to be to reduce injury rates through suggested changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques based on data provided by the Injury Surveillance System.

The subcommittee reaffirmed that participating institutions must receive the greater of 75 percent of a bowl's gross receipts or $650,000 each. While the subcommittee does not have the authority to permit bowl organizers to withhold revenues to cover potential taxes, the panel agreed that participating institutions can voluntarily enter into an escrow or indemnification agreement with the sponsoring agency, provided that each institution nets a minimum of $650,000.

This opens the door for participating institutions to accept the full distribution of revenue and either indemnify the bowl for the tax liability or establish an escrow agent. The subcommittee indicated that the NCAA could not serve as the escrow agent because it could be considered a joint interest or venture with the sponsoring agency.

gested changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques based on data provided by the Injury Surveillance System.

Sampling

Exposure and injury data were submitted weekly by athletics trainers from institutions selected to represent a cross section of NCAA membership. The cross section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and the four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions, Dick said.

Dick said it is important to note that this system does not identify every injury that occurs at NCAA institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross section of NCAA institutions.

Exposures

An athlete-exposure (A-E) is one athlete participating in one practice or game in which he or she is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury. For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants, would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury in the ISS is defined as one that:

1. Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game;
2. Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and
3. Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation for

Demands grow while ultimate goals become fuzzy

By Bill McLellan
The Metro News

Today's job as athletics director is one with increasing responsibility.

Operating a self-sustaining business (and let there be no mistake, athletics is a business) in an academic atmosphere and meeting the increasing academic demands as well as the demands of your various contributors and publics is becoming increasingly tough.

Expectations have risen with all the exposure generated through newspaper, radio and television. We now are expected not only to win, but also to be entertaining while winning. Primarily because of the dollars involved, we seem to let TV dictate our very existence.

I have spent my adult life in athletics and have had the opportunity to work at all levels in a number of programs. Today's perception seems to be that big is better, and we worry more about our own programs and conferences instead of worrying about what is good for the future of a sport and the individual athlete.

The biggest change I have witnessed involves the increase in personnel and facilities. Instead of reducing personnel, many of our new rules relating to reductions and cost containment seem to contribute to just the opposite. Many of these rules seem to require or even mandate additional personnel, and, as a result, our budgets keep rising.

Today, solicitation of funds by national charitable organizations and even by other arms of our own universities is our biggest competitor as we seek funding for scholarships, facilities and sponsorships. Also, the change in Internal Revenue Service tax deductibility can pose a serious threat.

We can't be everything to everyone. We need to live within our means while being considerate of each other's programs throughout the country. We can accomplish these goals when we must. It is easy to commit to spending money we don't have and without having any concrete plans as to how we will repay it. We oftentimes seem to make such decisions to please egos. This kind of decision-making process makes our jobs even harder.

We need to develop our own intercollegiate fans, starting with our students, alumni and general public, by playing a minimum of five (maximum of six) home football games along with 13 home basketball games. All other sports should follow the same principle, which would result in a minimum of missed class time for all athletes in all sports. This also would reduce fan attrition to pro sports and contribute to building a solid foundation for our respective programs since we would each have equal opportunities for home events and home victories.

This is especially true in football, where I believe everyone should start the season on the same date and play 11 consecutive weeks. By doing this, we would equalize some of the competitive imbalance that exists and at the same time limit the length of playing seasons.

Finally, the days of the independent may be numbered, except for some well-known exceptions. All schools should be in conferences since there is added strength in numbers and member schools are able to act in concert to address such problems as scheduling, revenue generation, media exposure and a long list of others.

We work in a changing environment, and the schools that fail to perceive and adjust to these changes will find the road ahead to be far tougher than the already difficult one we each travel.

Bill McLellan is director of athletics at the University of Southern Mississippi. This article first appeared in The Metro News, the official publication of the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference.

Opinions

Education of athletes an obligation

Lorna M. Strauss, chair
NCAA Academic Requirements Committee
The Chronicle of Higher Education

"If (student-athletes) don't get the pro opportunity, is it fair of us in the higher-education community to say, 'Thanks a lot and goodbye'?"

No. It's our obligation to set things up so they're more likely to get a degree, more likely to get an education, and therefore be able to do something with their lives. And I'm afraid that the way the requirements have been, the way they in fact are, isn't doing that."

Butch Beard, men's basketball coach
Howard University
The Chronicle of Higher Education

"We have to catch the young black kids early. We have to do a better job at the high-school level and the grade-school level, driving home the goal of getting that degree. For a lot of them, the goal is just to stay eligible to play basketball. Wrong goal. Entirely wrong goal....

"I can walk into certain homes, and I won't see a book around anywhere. You just know that person's going to have a tough time in college."

Rep. Tom McMillen
D-Maryland
Chicago Tribune

"There's a denial of where (the NCAA is) headed. They don't want to deal with it. I don't know how far it goes, but the system cracks. It will crack. Then someone will call a hearing in Congress, whether I'm here or not, and they'll look back at what I said in 1992 and see that we outlined why this stuff was going to occur....

"There's a pyramid, and all the money is going to the top for an elite sports structure. Meanwhile, at the bottom, high-school, women's and community sports are being squeezed out. We're getting to the point where sports will turn people into couch potatoes watching the elite. I'm interested in sports being a positive experience for the country. But I think the way we're headed, it can be detrimental to the country."

Mark May, player
Phoenix Cardinals
The Sporting News

"Players need to recognize that society has changed in the past decade or so. The rambunctious athlete who could party all night and walk away needs to put the seat belts on. Society has had enough with that type of athlete. It's time for a change."

Ivan Maisel, columnist
The Sporting News

"The University of Iowa is committed to expanding women's participation in varsity athletics and access to scholarships so that in five years it will mirror the ratio of men to women in the undergraduate student body. Women currently outnumber men, 51 percent to 49 percent.

"The Iowa proposal is ahead of the forward-thinking Big Ten Conference, which has suggested that its members reach a 60-40 scholarship ratio in favor of men within five years. The conference said athletics should match the student body ratio within 10 years.

"Iowa, and the rest of the NCAA, is operating within the long shadow of Title IX. It is hard to argue with expanding opportunity.

"But in this era of disappearing dollars, that expansion at many schools—will come at the expense of college football. It is equally hard to argue with that cold fact."

Sue Gunter, women's basketball coach
Louisiana State University
New Orleans Times-Picayune

"There's no women's program in the country that's self-supportive. And I know a lot of coaches disagree with me, but I believe we need to put something back in the till."

Marc Hansen, columnist
Des Moines Register

"At the Big Eight Conference basketball tournament, Jim Hallihan offered up a column idea.

"Hallihan, the Iowa State University assistant who coaches the team when his boss is busy helping the referees, suggested a piece on officiating.

"Is it satisfactory? And if not, why not?"

"Don't ask coaches, he advised. You already know what they'll say. During the Big Eight tournament, hardly a game passed where some coach wasn't furious with some referee.

"Instead, Hallihan said, ask other close followers of the college game. Ask your lodge brothers and sisters in the news business.

"Along the road to the Final Four, I acted on Hallihan's recommendation. After consulting with numerous colleagues and staff members from various athletics departments and conferences, I was able to form a consensus.

"Basketball officiating could be better, but it isn't nearly so bad as most coaches seem to think. With all those huge, mobile bodies slamming into one another, it's an impossible job.

"The majority of those polled ranked officiating inconsistencies well down the list of NCAA basketball imperfections. The best team usually wins. Rarely does a bum call determine the outcome.

"Several people even questioned coaches' knowledge of the rule book. One critic was much more disgusted with radio broadcasters who specialize in officiating.

"The coaches and the reporters do, however, seem to share one major point of agreement. Officials should be held accountable for their actions.

"Instead of hiding in their dressing rooms afterward, they should face the mob of reporters—not just a lonely designated reporter—and explain any controversial decision.

"As it is, most officials skate out of the arenas after the final buzzer, reporting only to themselves, their makers and their league's head of officials."

Respected character is years in the making

The following, written by Heywood Hale Broun, is excerpted from an article that appeared in The New York Times.

When an athlete actually is a role model, it is because of something within, something that has nothing to do with batting eye, speed of serve or fearlessness in tackling.

Lou Gehrig did not spend his dying years in public service because of what he learned in baseball but because of what he brought with him when he entered the game.

When Branch Rickey set out to find the black player who would break the color line in our "national game," he was much more concerned about the man than the player.

"I want no one," Rickey once said, "who thinks it's wonderful of the white boys to let him play." In Jackie Robinson he got someone whose burning sense of justice was inherent, not simply instilled by the sports establishment....

The role model most on our minds these days is Arthur Ashe, quiet, gentlemanly Arthur Ashe, who learned the bleaker side of sport early on when he was told to give close line calls to white opponents. He now has learned the bleaker side of life, his withdrawal from a blood bank having turned out to be AIDS.

I still remember a conversation years ago when Ashe was an active player. Ashe looked at a stocky player who, from a shopping cart, was serving ball after ball to a phantom opponent.

"Do you see that man?" said the then Wimbledon champion. "He has done nothing all his life except play tennis. He doesn't know if the Earth goes around the sun or vice versa. He doesn't know who is president of the United States, and he doesn't care. He never thinks about anything but tennis, and because I ...," and here Ashe paused with a thoughtful smile "sometimes can't help thinking about things other than tennis, sometimes he beats me."

Arthur Ashe was a role model when he won at Wimbledon, and when he lost in the Davis Cup to Ecuador. Yes, we talk about him now because of his tennis feats, but his remark about the think-thewed monomaniac bespeaks the problem of the modern athlete.

To succeed in the driven world of big-time sport, one cannot take time to think of things other than the game, to form the kind of philosophy which makes the mature and admirable man or woman. Coaches are the new high priests, and in their writ there is no place for the old ideal of the sound mind in the healthy body. To succeed in sport now is to be addictive—addictive meaning committed beyond rational control.

The great receiver going up for the ball is a beautiful sight, but he is a role model only for other receivers. He is as mindless as a hooked tarpon curving up out of the water. It is only that the hook in his mouth is the phrase, "Winning is the only thing."

Review of committee appointment procedures

The NCAA Council recommends that the procedures for appointments to NCAA committees be reviewed periodically in The NCAA News.

The NCAA committee structure is broken down into three distinct groupings—administrative structure, general committees and sports committees. The administrative structure includes the Presidents Commission, Council, Executive Committee and Administrative Committee—the groups that, for all intents and purposes, run the NCAA between annual Conventions.

The other groupings handle everything from the administration of championships to requests for NCAA funding of research projects.

Following is a description of each group. Detailed information regarding specific representational requirements of various committees is set forth in Constitution 4 and Bylaw 21 in the NCAA Manual.

Administrative structure

Administrative Committee

Service: Administrative Committee members, except for the executive director, serve for not more than two years—the duration of their terms as NCAA officers.

Election: Members of the Administrative Committee, as NCAA officers, are elected annually by the membership at the Convention, except for the executive director. Division vice-presidents are elected in division business sessions and ratified by the full membership in the general business session. NCAA presidents and secretary-treasurers are elected in the general business session.

The NCAA Nominating Committee, appointed in April by the NCAA Council, is responsible for developing the slate of nominees for Association officers. Late each summer, The NCAA News publishes a list of vacancies among officers with a call for nominations from the membership, which is asked to submit nominations to the chair of the Nominating Committee and other appropriate members of that committee, as well as to Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, at the national office.

After the deadline for nominations passes, Vaughan counsels with the chair of the Nominating Committee, summarizes the nominations the committee has received and mails them to Nominating Committee members two to three weeks before their meeting, which is held the day before the Council's October meeting. Everyone on the Nominating Committee's slate of candidates is contacted to confirm his or her ability to serve and intention to attend the next Convention.

The Nominating Committee's slate of candidates then is published in a November issue of the News and in the Official Notice of the Convention.

Service: Council members are elected to serve four-year terms.

Council members are not eligible for reelection until two years have elapsed. No Council member may serve more than two terms.

Election: Council members are elected annually by the membership during the division business sessions at the Convention.

The NCAA Nominating Committee is responsible for developing the slate of Council nominees. The News publishes a list of Council vacancies with a call for nominations from the membership, which is asked to submit nominations to the Nominating Committee and to Vaughan.

After the deadline for nominations passes, Vaughan summarizes the nominations and mails them to Nominating Committee members two to three weeks before their meeting, which is held the day before the Council's October meeting. The individuals recommended by the Nominating Committee are contacted to confirm their ability to serve and their intention to attend the next Convention.

The list of candidates is published in the News as soon as possible after the candidates are confirmed and in the Official Notice of the Convention.

Interim vacancies: When an interim vacancy occurs, notice is published in the Committee Notices section of the next issue of the News with a call for nominations from the membership. The News editors attempt to place that section on page 2 or page 3 of each issue. After the deadline, which is at least two weeks after the date of News publication, Vaughan prepares a list of nominees for the Administrative Committee, which makes the appointment during its next regularly scheduled conference—subject to approval by the Council at its next meeting. Interim appointees serve until the next Convention and are eligible for reelection to complete the unexpired term. They then are eligible for immediate reelection to a full term if they have not served more than half of a term.

Executive Committee

Service: NCAA officers serve for the duration of their terms. The remaining nine members serve five-year terms that are staggered to assure that vacancies occur in the proper sequence.

Election: Executive Committee members other than the officers are appointed by the Council in its post-Convention meeting. Each November, the News publishes a list of Executive Committee vacancies with a call for nominations from the membership, which is asked to submit nominations to Vaughan at the national office.

After the deadline for nominations passes, Vaughan summarizes nominations and provides them to the Council in advance of its post-Convention meeting.

Interim vacancies: When an interim vacancy occurs, notice is published in the Committee Notices section of the next News (on page 2 or page 3) with a call for nominations from the membership. After the deadline, which is at least two weeks after the date of News publication, Vaughan prepares a list of nominees for the Administrative Committee, which makes the appointment during its next regularly scheduled conference—subject to approval by the Council at its next meeting. Interim appointees serve the unexpired portion of the term and are eligible for reappointment if they have not served more than half of a term.

Presidents Commission

Service: Only current institutional chief executive officers are eligible to serve on the Commission, whose members are elected to four-year terms that are staggered so that no more than six Division I positions, three Division II positions and three Division III positions are open in any one year.

Commission members are not eligible to serve a second term for at least two years (that is, members whose terms expire in January 1993 may not be reelected to take office before January 1995). Commission members may not serve more than two terms.

Members of sports committees like the Men's and Women's Soccer Rules Committee are elected to three-year terms

Election: The Commission chair each summer appoints a Presidential Nominating Committee to develop a slate of nominees for upcoming term expirations. After appointment of the nominating committee, the list of vacancies is published in the News with a call for nominations.

After the deadline for nominations has passed, the nominating committee meets to develop a slate of nominees for review by the full Commission in October. After that meeting, chief executive officers of all NCAA member institutions receive ballots. They vote only for those nominees to fill positions within their own membership division. In addition, Division I-A conferences select their own Commission members.

Election results are announced at the Convention each January.

Interim vacancies: When an interim vacancy occurs, the Presidents Commission chair consults with or appoints a subcommittee of Commission members from the division in which the vacancy occurs to recommend a replacement. The Commission chair then is authorized to make that appointment.

Appointments are made only for the unexpired portion of a term. However, interim appointees who serve less than half of a term will be considered eligible for reelection to a full term.

General and Sports Committees

Service: Committee members are appointed or elected to three-year terms that begin September 1 after the member's election or appointment (for example, in its October 1992 meeting, the Council will appoint general committee members who will take office September 1, 1993). Members may serve up to three terms on one committee—two consecutive terms and a third term that may begin no less than three years after they end their second consecutive term. An individual rarely serves a third term.

Committee on Infractions members are subject to the three-term limit, but they may serve all three terms consecutively.

Interim vacancies: When an interim vacancy occurs, notice is published in the Committee Notices section of the next News with a call for nominations from the membership. After the deadline, which is at least two weeks after the date of

News publication, Vaughan prepares a list of nominees for the Administrative Committee, which makes the appointment during its next regularly scheduled conference—subject to approval by the Council at its next meeting. (Note: The Executive Committee, rather than the Council, appoints the Divisions I, II and III Championships Committees.)

Interim appointees serve the unexpired portion of the term. In these instances, members who serve more than half of a term are considered to have served a full term.

Secretary-rules editors of sports committees may be reelected without restriction and serve as nonvoting members of committees.

General Committees

Service: Appointed by the Council or the Executive Committee, these are the standing committees that perform the duties necessary to the ongoing operation of the NCAA (e.g., Academic Requirements Committee, Committee on Infractions, division championships committees). These committees are listed in Bylaw 21.3.

Election: Each summer, the News publishes a list of general-committee vacancies with a call for nominations from the membership, which is asked to submit nominations to Vaughan. The committees involved also are asked to submit recommendations.

After the deadline for nominations passes, Vaughan summarizes nominations and provides them to the Council approximately four weeks in advance of its October meeting. Appointments are announced after the annual Convention.

Sports Committees

These include rules committees without championships administration responsibilities (Baseball Rules Committee, Women's Basketball Rules Committee), sports committees with playing rules and championships administration responsibilities (Men's and Women's Rifle Committee, Men's and Women's Swimming Committee), and sports committees with only championships administration responsibilities (Field Hockey Committee, Men's and Women's Golf Committee). These committees are listed in Bylaws 21.4, 21.5 and 21.6.

Election: Each fall, the News publishes a list of sports committee vacancies with a call for nominations from the membership, which is asked to submit nominations to members of the Men's Committee on Committees and the Women's Committee on Committees, as well as to Vaughan.

After the deadline for nominations passes, Vaughan summarizes nominations and provides them to the Men's Committee on Committees and the Women's Committee on Committees, which meet at the Convention to make recommendations. After their meetings, Vaughan prepares the slate of recommended nominees at the Convention site for distribution in the general business session, where elections take place.

There is an opportunity for nominations from the floor, although few nominations have been made in this manner.

Notification of election is made through publication of the NCAA Committee Handbook after the Convention. Committee listings then are updated when the NCAA Directory is published in the fall.

Coaches and administrators at NCAA member institutions who become interested in committee service should let the appropriate people know of that interest.

It is permissible for people in the membership to nominate themselves, but they also should talk with members of the committee on which they are interested in serving.

When a staff member at an NCAA member institution is interested in serving on a certain committee, he or she should call the chair of that committee and contact members of the body responsible for appointment (Administrative Committee, Council, Nominating Committee or Men's and Women's Committee on Committees). It is most important for an individual to identify specific committees and vacancies in which he or she is interested.

People who are not appointed to fill an interim vacancy on a committee must be renominated when another vacancy occurs. Nominations are not held over.

Nominees for NCAA committee service also must meet some basic eligibility requirements, such as being on the staff of a member institution or conference.

• Individuals "on the staff" are those who receive a regular salary from a member institution or organization for the regular performance of a staff function representing at least 50 percent of the normal workload for a staff member at that institution or conference. Those on sabbatical or other temporary leave for not more than 12 consecutive months will be considered "on the staff."

Junior pitcher Kennie Steenstra and Wichita State are gunning for their second championship title

Division I baseball

Miami (Florida), Wichita State among barriers to Tiger repeat

Event: 1992 Division I Baseball Championship.

Overview: Louisiana State will try to become only the fourth school in NCAA Division I baseball history to repeat as champion. Top-ranked Miami (Florida) is playing like a team determined to cap retiring coach Ron Fraser's career with another championship. This is Fraser's 30th season as coach and also the 10th anniversary of the Hurricanes' first national championship. Wichita State (43-8) wrapped up its sixth consecutive Missouri Valley Conference title and has won 21 consecutive conference home games dating to April 13, 1991.

Field: A maximum of 48 teams will be selected to compete in the championship—24 teams through automatic qualification and 24 at large. Eight regional champions will advance to the College World Series.

Dates and sites: Regional competition will be conducted May 21-25 at on-campus sites. For the 43rd consecutive year, the College World Series will be at Johnny Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Nebraska, with Creighton University serving as host. The CWS is set for May 29-June 6.

Results: Scores and pairings from regional competition will appear in the May 27 issue of The NCAA News, and championship results will appear in the June 10 issue.

Television coverage: CBS will offer live broadcasts of a game the first Saturday of the College World Series and the championship game June 6. ESPN will televise other College World Series games live and tape-delayed.

Championship notes: Louisiana State won its first Division I Baseball Championship last year and set College World Series records for runs per game (12) and fewest errors committed (one), in addition to tying a championship record by hitting nine home runs in the series.

What they are saying

Gene Stephenson, head coach

Wichita State

Currently ranked No. 2; national champion in 1989

"I think winning the national championship (in 1989) was probably more special here than at a lot of places because we started the program from absolutely nothing. My first team in 1978 didn't have anything—no baseballs and no practice field. To get to where we are today is quite an accomplishment. We've seen a lot of changes over the past 10 years.

"It's an honor to go to the College World Series more than anything, but winning it was more than I ever expected."

Skip Bertman, head coach

Louisiana State

Currently ranked No. 7; defending champion

"Winning the national championship was a great thing for our university, the community and the fans. I think the most memorable experience was returning to Baton Rouge and seeing the excitement of more than 5,000 fans who awaited us. I've been to Omaha many times, and the championship is a great journey through the regular season, the regionals and, finally, through Omaha. It is simply a great experience for the kids and something they will never forget. Years from now when they talk about their college days, they will talk about being a national champion."

Division II men's golf

Columbus, Florida Southern are favorites

Event: 1992 Division II Men's Golf Championships.

Overview: Perennial favorites Columbus and Florida Southern head a tightly packed group of contenders. Columbus is the top-ranked team in the division, but the Cougars are extremely young, with only one senior and one junior among their top six players. Others teams in contention are Troy State, Bryant, Valdosta State and Jacksonville State.

Field: A total of 90 golfers representing six districts will compete for the team and individual championships.

Dates and sites: The championships will be May 19-22 at the Carolina Country Club in Spartanburg, South Carolina; Wofford is the host.

Results: Championships results will appear in the May 27 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Florida Southern has won the last two titles and leads the division with six team championships. Columbus and Troy State are among the teams that have won three titles....Clete Cole became the second Columbus golfer in three years to win the individual crown last year and the fourth overall, the best of any school in the division. Florida Southern and Cal State Northridge each have won three individual titles.

What they are saying

Earl Bagley, head coach
Columbus

Ranked No. 1

"We have a good team this year. I've been very happy with them and I'm very proud of them. I have two freshmen and two sophomores among my top six players. You never know what is going to happen at nationals. The pressure of the national tournament can affect a young team. If they continue to play as they have been, we'll do real well.

"Diego Ventureira, a senior, is our top golfer with a 73.3 stroke average. His sophomore year he came in second, and he's playing very well this year. He has four top-10 finishes this year. Florida Southern always plays fantastic when they get to the nationals. The others that worry me the most are Troy State, Jacksonville State and Valdosta State."

Charley Matlock, head coach
Florida Southern

Two-time defending champion

"I don't see how anybody is going to stop Columbus. They have had three tournaments that the team was under par. Nobody in Division II can come close to that. They have five good players, and I haven't seen any other team with that many good players. They would have to completely falter for us to win it."

Diego Ventureira leads No.1-ranked Columbus with a 73.3 stroke average

Gustavus Adolphus is relying on Pete Anderson to help improve upon last year's second-place finish

Division III men's golf

Methodist seeks third straight championship

Event: 1992 Division III Men's Golf Championships.

Overview: The leader board should look familiar. Two-time defending champion Methodist is the top-ranked team. The Monarchs won the Gordin Classic, a tournament featuring nearly all the top Division III teams. Ohio Wesleyan finished second, and Gustavus Adolphus finished third in its first outside competition of the season. Those teams have been in the top three in each of the last two national tournaments.

Field: A total of 120 golfers representing six districts will compete for the team and individual championships.

Dates and sites: The championships will be May 19-22 at the Wooster Country Club in Wooster, Ohio; Wooster is host.

Results: Championships results will appear in the May 27 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Methodist has had a grip on the team championship since Cal State Stanislaus moved to Division II in 1990. The Monarchs finished second in 1989, when Cal State Stanislaus won the last of 12 titles in 14 years.

Methodist has won the last two titles by 30 and 15 strokes, respectively.

What they are saying

Steve Conley, head coach
Methodist

Ranked No. 1, defending champion

"We're naturally looking forward to (the tournament), having won the last two. Last year's team only had two returning players when we won, and this year we've only got two returnees. So, we're just as excited about the possibility of winning a third straight (title) as the first team that won it."

Whitey Scoog, head coach

Gustavus Adolphus

1991 runner-up

"I am hopeful that we will contend. There are other teams that are logical contenders. Skidmore certainly has to be considered. For us to win, our top two shooters (Jon Lindquist and Pete Anderson) would have to shoot well. Each has had a really good spring. The younger golfers would have to make a good contribution."

Cal Poly Pomona wins again in women's tennis

Cal Poly Pomona continued to dominate Division II women's tennis by winning 18 of 20 sets in team competition—including a 5-0 triumph over Grand Canyon in the final match—and claimed its second consecutive NCAA Division II women's team championship May 3 at West Texas State.

The championships' top-ranked team, Cal Poly Pomona won 16 of 17 singles encounters and two of three doubles matches and became only the third team in Division II championships history to win back-to-back team titles. Southern Illinois-Edwardsville and Tennessee-Chattanooga are the other schools to accomplish the feat, winning four and three titles, respectively.

While the team competition provided few surprises with the Nos. 1-2 teams battling in the final, individual competition was anything but predictable. Abilene Christian's Michelle King, the No. 5 singles seed, and Grand Canyon's unranked doubles duo of Rebecca Galassini and Traci Guy claimed the singles and doubles titles, respectively.

King, who won 10 of 12 sets in winning five matches, outlasted Allison Bruhn of Cal State Bakersfield, the No. 8 seed, 7-6 (9-7), 6-4, in the May 7 final to become the first Wildcat to win an individual title. King's five victories included a 6-2, 4-6, 6-4 triumph over Cal Poly Pomona's Julie Slattery, the No. 2 seed, in quarterfinals play.

Galassini and Guy gave Grand Canyon its first NCAA individual title. The Antelopes' No. 1 doubles team knocked off the tournament's fourth-ranked tandem of Slattery and Rebecca Huereque in the first round before completing its title run with a 6-1, 7-5 victory over No. 3 Caroline Groves and Anna Davis of Tennessee-Martin.

First round Grand Canyon 5, Cal Poly SLO 4; UC Davis 8, Pace 1; Northern Colo. 5, Abilene Christian 4; Cal Poly Pomona 8, Cal St. Los Angeles 1.

Semifinals Grand Canyon 5, UC Davis 4; Cal Poly Pomona 5, Northern Colo. 1.

Third place UC Davis 5, Northern Colo. 0.

Institutional secondary infractions

DIVISION I
How reported	Sport	Citation	Facts	Institutional action	NCAA action
Self-reported	Baseball	B 17.2.6	Assistant coach conducted batting practice with several student-athletes outside the playing season.	Reprimanded coach and reduced playing season by one week (from 22 to 21).	No further action.
Conference	Women's softball	B 13.1.1.1	Coach contacted prospect's father before July 1 following junior year in high school. Coach inadvertently mixed junior and senior prospect lists.	Institution reviewed legislation with coach and required her to present this bylaw at next rules-education meeting.	No further action.
Conference	Women's cross country	B 16.8.1.2	Student-athlete traveled with team to a contest, even though she had not been certified as eligible. Young woman has since been certified as eligible; however, coach was advised that the young woman was ineligible before leaving for the contest.	Institution and conference reprimanded the coach.	No further action.
Conference	Women's basketball	B 17.1.5.3.2	Head coach conducted practice session after a contest.	Reprimanded coach, reviewed legislation with coaching staff and required coach to donate two days' salary to a local charity.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 13.1.1.3	Student-athlete from another member institution spoke with head coach regarding transferring. Young man came unannounced, and contact was initiated by him. Although the university recruited him in high school, it never offered him an official visit or scholarship.	Called young man's institution and alerted it he had stopped by (uninvited). Institution does not intend to recruit him.	Young man is ineligible unless university receives contact approval and release from his current institution.
Self-reported	Men's swimming	B 17.1.5.3.2	Head coach conducted practice session (consisting of weight training) on day of competition.	Conducted rules review with coach.	No further action.
Conference	Men's basketball	B 15.3.2.3	Institution's regular financial aid authority did not provide written statement of financial aid award to a student-athlete. Financial aid award was indicated on squad list form.	Reviewed legislation with coaching staff.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 12.5.1.3	Game footage was used in a commercial. Institution gave permission to use generic footage and required final approval before airing commercial. Producers aired commercial before seeking approval. Student-athletes did not grant permission for usage of their images in the commercial.	Requested discontinuation of use of commercial and modified procedures to avoid future circumvention of approval.	No further action.
Conference	Men's basketball	B 17.1.5.3.2	Institution held practice after contest. Practice for week did not exceed permissible 20 hours.	Reprimanded coach.	No further action.
NCAA inquiry	Men's basketball	B 10.3.13.2.2-(b) and 17.3.2.1	Institution conducted improper scrimmages with student-athletes and provided basketball shoes and other apparel to several prospects, and one former student-athlete placed a bet on an athletics event (not of the institution).		Required institution to: delay beginning of 1992-93 practice season by two days; to preclude coaching staff from any recruiting activities during the period September 11-17, 1992; to conduct extensive review of NCAA Bylaw 13 with coaching staff, and to submit report outlining changes made and monitoring procedures implemented to avoid recurrence of violations.
Conference	Wrestling; men's tennis; men's lacrosse	B 13.02.4.4	Eight prospects were contacted during dead period preceding National Letter of Intent signing day. Institution does not subscribe to letter-of-intent program.	Reviewed legislation with coaching staffs.	Admonished institution to avoid recurrence and advised it of its obligation to be aware of recruiting calendar.
Self-reported	Administrative	B 13.4.3.1	Institution placed advertisement in state high-school coaches directory.	Ceased printing and distribution of publication. Reprimanded involved staff member. Reviewed legislation with marketing staff.	No further action.
Self-reported	Baseball	B 13.13.1.5.1	Baseball prospect was employed at women's basketball camp for six summers. Young man's family was friends with coach, and young man was paid a commensurate rate.	Institution will not recruit prospect and discontinued employing young man's parents as statisticians.	Young man is ineligible unless eligibility is restored through NCAA appeals process.
NCAA inquiry	Administrative	B 13.4.3.1	Advertisement was placed in an athletics magazine.	Withdrew advertisement. In future, conference will be required to get interpretations from NCAA.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's cross country	B 10.1-(b) and 14.01.4.3-(a)	Student-athlete participated in two meets while academically ineligible. Young man was certified eligible based on fraudulent information he submitted to institution.	Declared student-athlete permanently ineligible and required repayment of financial aid. Institution also reviewed records of other foreign student-athletes for verification of eligibility.	No further action.
Conference	Women's basketball	B 13.4.1	Institution sent form letter that contained information regarding athletics program with questionnaires to high-school freshmen and sophomores. Letter had been updated, but wrong version was sent.	Reviewed and circulated correct correspondence to coaching staff.	No further action.
NCAA inquiry	Men's basketball	B 13.11.1	Head coach made public comments regarding prospect before young man signed letter of intent. Coach thought prospect already had signed with another institution.	Reprimanded coach and required him to pass written exam on recruiting legislation before further recruiting.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 17.1.5.3.2	Institution conducted half-hour "walk-through" practice after competition.	Reviewed legislation and reduced practice sessions by one.	No further action.
DIVISION I-A
Self-reported	Football	B 13.1.6.2-(a)	Head and assistant coaches contacted prospect on day of competition. Competition was in basketball, and young man was placed on high-school team at the last minute because it was short on players. Prospect had informed college coaches that he did not play basketball.		No action.
Self-reported	Football	B 13.1.2.5-(d)	Head coach's sister-in-law and cousin picked up a copy of videotape from prospect's high school. Coach did not ask them to pick up the tape; rather, they were there for another matter and thought they would help out the coach and save him a trip to the school.	Precluded coaching staff from recruiting any prospects from that high school during this recruiting season. Instructed coaches to review pertinent legislation with family members.	No further action.
Conference	Football	B 13.9.1	High-school coach was provided complimentary admission to an "away" contest by a student filmer.		No further action.
Conference	Football	B 13.02.4.4	Junior college prospect was contacted in person at his educational institution during dead period.	Institution will not continue to recruit prospect.	Young man is ineligible unless eligibility is restored through NCAA eligibility appeals process. Admonished institution to obtain proper interpretation before proceeding in instances where there is a question of application of NCAA legislation.
Conference	Football	B 13.02.4.2	Assistant coach had in-person contact at a prospect's educational institution during an evaluation period. Coach was in high-school coach's office viewing film of prospect. Coach had informed high-school coach earlier that this was an evaluation period and that he could have no contact with the prospect.		No action.

Institutional secondary

Conference	Football	B 13.02.4.3	Assistant coach contacted a prospect off campus during a quiet period.	Institution will not recruit young man and reprimanded coach.	No further action.
Self-reported	Football; women's track, outdoor	B 15.1	Three senior student-athletes were provided excessive individual financial aid in the amounts of $911.64, $4.50 and $4.50 as a result of employment.	Financial aid office sought reimbursement and advised financial aid office of proper regulations.	No further action.

DIVISION I-AA

Conference	Football	B 17.7.2.1	Institution began practice three days before first permissible day. Institution miscalculated first permissible starting date, but still held only 29 practices.	Conference reduced number of practice days by two when two practice opportunities are available.	No further action.
NCAA inquiry	Football	B 15.3.4.1.3 and 15.3.4.2	Head coach notified student-athlete that his financial aid would not be renewed for the ensuing semester, and the young man was not afforded a hearing opportunity.	Institution reimbursed young man for expenses for the semester that his financial aid was cancelled, and his grant-in-aid was reinstated for the following year. University notified the coach that it was impermissible for him to be involved in the financial aid process.	Required institution to reprimand coach.
Conference	Football	B 14.11	Student-athlete allowed to participate before proper eligibility certification. Head coach had been advised the previous week that the young man still had not been certified as eligible.	Conducted educational seminar with coaching staff. Conference reprimanded head coach.	No further action.
Conference	Football	B 14.6.4.1.2 and 14.6.4.4.6.1	Nonqualifier practiced beyond two-week grace period and received financial aid, even though he did not graduate from a two-year college. University received verbal verification from the junior college that the young man would graduate. Young man did not participate in any competition.	Declared student-athlete ineligible and is seeking reimbursement for financial aid credited toward his fees.	Young man is ineligible unless eligibility is restored through NCAA appeals process.

DIVISION II

Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 13.2.2	Assistant coach gave a framed picture to a prospect. Young man was primarily a football prospect; coach was long-time family friend, and young man is not being recruited by the institution.		Reprimanded coach and admonished him to avoid recurrence of similar violation. Prospect is ineligible unless eligibility is restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Football	B 13.7.2	Prospect exceeded permissible 48-hour limit for official paid visit. Young man became ill and had to be hospitalized for five days; none of his hospital expenses were paid by institution.		No action.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 13.4.1-(i)	Institution sent holiday cards with picture of team to 75 recruits.		Institution was admonished to avoid recurrence, particularly when legislation specifically precludes sending photos.
Self-reported	Men's tennis	B 13.02.4.4	Prospect made official visit during dead period (and had contact with head coach). Visit was scheduled for previous week. The foreign prospect showed up unexpectedly one week later. Young man will not attend the institution.		Admonished institution to avoid recurrence. Young man is ineligible unless eligibility is restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Baseball	B 14.11	Three student-athletes practiced before proper eligibility certification. They were otherwise eligible.	Reprimanded coach and required him to pass an examination regarding NCAA legislation.	No further action.

DIVISION III

Self-reported	Administrative	B 13.4.3.1	Institution placed advertisements in high-school game programs. Ads were placed by public relation firm, not athletics department.	Advised involved individuals of appropriate legislation and asked publications to cease use of advertisements.	No further action.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 14.1.4.1	Student-athlete competed in two contests while not a degree-seeking student. Student-athlete was enrolled in a full-time program of studies.	Forfeited the contests. Modified memo to registrar to include all necessary questions for eligibility certification.	Young woman is ineligible unless eligibility is restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Men's cross country	B 17.1.3	Institution did not have on file its declared playing season for 1990 and 1991 men's cross country teams. Institution met all other playing-season criteria.		Required institution to submit in writing the actions it has taken to avoid recurrence.

Football players, basketball athlete join GTE academic hall of fame

Three former college football stars and the leading scorer in women's college basketball history were recent inductees into the GTE Academic All-America Hall of Fame.

The inductees were the late Alan Ameche, the 1954 Heisman Trophy winner at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Stephen Eisenhauer, a two-time all-American lineman at the U.S. Naval Academy; Randy Gradishar, a consensus all-American linebacker at Ohio State University, and Lynette Woodard, the University of Kansas basketball standout who becomes the first woman member of the GTE Academic All-America Hall of Fame.

A selection committee chose the inductees on the basis of career and community achievements since graduation from college. The hall of fame was established in 1988 by GTE and the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) to honor former academic all-Americans who have attained high achievements in their chosen professions and have made substantial contributions to their communities.

Ameche went on to become a standout running back with the Baltimore Colts and scored one of the most famous touchdowns in National Football League history—a one-yard plunge that defeated the New York Giants in the 1958 NFL championship game. Following his playing career, he was vice-president for community relations for A&G Foods. He died in 1988.

Eisenhauer became a decorated pilot in Vietnam after leaving the Naval Academy. He retired from the U.S. Marine Corps in 1975 with the rank of lieutenant colonel. In the 1970s, he published a report on Head Start that generated Federal funding for the children's program. He currently is a military consultant to Dual & Associates on construction of a new jet trainer and flight simulator.

Gradishar starred for 10 seasons with the Denver Broncos after leaving Ohio State. In 1990, he was appointed by NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue to serve on the Players Advisory Council, and he is an acting board member for the newly formed Denver Broncos Alumni Council. He also has served since 1984 as president of the Denver Broncos Youth Foundation, which focuses on such problems as drug and alcohol abuse and promotes educational, leadership and inner-city programs.

After becoming a four-time all-American player at Kansas, Woodard played on the 1980 U.S. Olympic women's basketball team and captained the 1984 team that won the gold medal. She later won fame as the first woman member of the Harlem Globetrotters, and currently is training for the 1992 Olympics. She has served her alma mater as a volunteer assistant coach and part-time academic counselor, and has been honored as NAACP Woman of the Year in her hometown of Wichita, Kansas.

Watson new assistant News editor

Vikki K. Watson has joined the staff of The NCAA News as its assistant editor.

She previously was communications director for the Sunflower Group, based in Overland Park, Kansas, and before that worked for four years in the sports department of The Kansas City (Missouri) Star.

She is a 1985 graduate of Kansas State University, where she received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism and mass communication. After graduation, Watson worked for the Blue Springs (Missouri) Examiner and as an intern with the U.S. Olympic Committee in Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Watson replaces Jack L. Cope-land, who recently was promoted to managing editor of the News. The News staff is part of the newly organized public affairs group in the NCAA national office.

Programmer Laubenstein joins staff

Allison Laubenstein has joined the NCAA national office staff as a programmer/analyst in the Association's newly formed finance and administration group.

Laubenstein is a former employee of Varcon, a firm in San Diego, California. She worked more recently for Hanover, Inc., a food processing-supply distributor in Kansas City, Missouri, before joining the Association staff.

She earned a bachelor of science degree in engineering in 1989 from the University of California, San Diego, where she majored in systems science and control engineering. Laubenstein also attended Northwestern University for two years.

Mary Beth Riley, a cross country and track athlete from Canisius College, won the first NCAA Woman of the Year Award in 1991. The award is presented by Hanes Her Way, a division of Sara Lee Corporation.

Nominations deadline is June 1 for NCAA Woman of the Year

Nominations will close June 1 for the second annual NCAA Woman of the Year Award.

The award is presented by Hanes Her Way, a division of Sara Lee Corporation, the Association's official corporate partner for women's athletics programs.

Athletics directors, senior women administrators of athletics programs and sports information directors have received information packages on the award. The packages included nomination folders.

One goal of the awards program is to provide an opportunity for exposure of outstanding women student-athletes nationwide. All member institutions are asked to participate by selecting a woman of the year. Those women selected serve as the nominee for state and national recognition.

Winners will be selected from each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Ten finalists will be named from among these 52 honorees, and one national winner will be selected as NCAA Woman of the Year.

Hanes Her Way will present $10,000 to the winner's institution for its women's athletics program. The other nine finalists' institutions will receive $5,000 awards from the company.

These awards are in addition to the $5,000 awards that will be made to the institutions of the state winners.

Institutional nomination forms must be submitted to: NCAA Woman of the Year Award, NCAA Foundation, 6201 College Boulevard, Overland Park, Kansas 66211-2422, and must be postmarked by June 1, 1992.

Questions and requests for additional information should be directed to Patty Sabo at Host Creative Communications, 546 East Main Street, Lexington, Kentucky 40508 (606/253-3230).

Mary Beth Riley, a cross country and track athlete from Canisius College, won the first award.

Major renovations made to Rosenblatt

By Theodore A. Breidenthal
The NCAA News Staff

Phase Two of the Rosenblatt Stadium renovations is finished and the facility is ready for this year's College World Series.

Work on almost $3.5 million in improvements to the 45-year-old structure in Omaha, Nebraska, began almost immediately after the final out of the 1991 season of the Omaha Royals, the Kansas City Royals' Triple-A minor-league team. The work was financed by the city's lodging and occupation tax and is part of $9.5 million in improvements that will be completed by 1995.

While some changes were completed before last year's College World Series, the bulk of the improvements were made in the last seven months.

The new look at Rosenblatt this year will include:

- A new natural-grass playing field, drainage system and 300 tons of crushed red brick for the warning track. Officials say the drainage system will allow baseball to be played within 30 minutes after an 11-inch rain.

Terry Forsberg, public events manager for the city of Omaha, said he is very pleased with how the field has grown. "We kept a blanket on the field through the winter so the roots were able to get down about 6 inches, which is where we wanted them. Right now the roots are half way to full maturity, so we have been able to get some good growth."

- A 240-seat Stadium View Club, which is a glass-enclosed restaurant and lounge located above the right-field stands. The club, which is sold out for the College World Series, will be used for dining and entertainment during the series for NCAA corporate partners, local contributors and spectators who have reserved tables for the event.

Said Forsberg, "The Stadium View Club is an excellent addition to the stadium for the College World Series, and for the Omaha Royals to a greater extent. We have heard nothing but compliments on the food and decor."

- The addition of 647 field-level box seats. The new field was moved 12 feet toward center field and lowered 18 inches to accommodate the new box seats. The dimensions of the outfield fences have been decreased from 343 feet to 335 feet down the foul lines and from 420 feet to 408 feet in center field.

- New dugouts that are 40 percent larger than last year's dugouts. Also, still and video camera bays were constructed next to each dugout and a new protective screen was installed behind home plate.

- An elevator to the upper press box so that it is accessible to the handicapped.

In addition to the stadium improvements financed by the city, Volume Services Inc., the stadium's new concessionaire, totally has remodeled the concourse and concession area to provide more than 50 points of sale (up from 36 last year) that will allow for shorter lines and quicker service.

Last year, the advertising billboards that occupied the outfield walls were replaced by walls with thick padding in left and center field to protect the outfielders. Also, the hitting background in center field was increased to improve the visibility.

The final phase of the project will include increasing the seating capacity from 17,772 to about 23,000, installing a new scoreboard next year and creating additional parking areas.

"We are right where we wanted to be and where we projected to be," said Forsberg. "The credit is due to all of the people who worked on the project. To totally construct a new field and have it ready by the 16th of April was a major feat, and it was accomplished thanks to all the hard work by the people who worked on it. So far everything is just great we couldn't be happier."

Committees discuss the Eligibility Committee.

"Both groups agreed that the procedures should ensure that the Council subcommittee's scope of review is limited to reviewing only those cases in which the Eligibility Committee has not followed its own policies or procedures, has ignored case precedent or has misapplied the legislation or official interpretations."

During the discussion, the groups addressed the question of whether the Council subcommittee should receive and consider new information from parties to the case that was not originally made available to the Eligibility Committee. The groups agreed that any new information in a case should be referred to the Eligibility Committee rather than the Council subcommittee, thus providing the Eligibility Committee an opportunity to reconsider the case.

In discussing procedures for handling eligibility appeals, the groups also agreed to reemphasize in the written procedures that "ex parte" communication, or discussion of eligibility cases with parties outside of committee or Council subcommittee hearings, is prohibited.

Other highlights

In other actions during its May 4-6 meeting in Williamsburg, Virginia, the NCAA Eligibility Committee:

- Recommended to the NCAA Council that it review current Association policy in eligibility cases involving violations of recruiting legislation that limits the Eligibility Committee either to restoring all eligibility to a prospect at a member institution found to have violated NCAA rules or to rendering the prospect permanently ineligible at that institution. The committee specifically asked the Council to consider whether it now may be appropriate to treat cases involving prospective student-athletes in the same manner as those involving student-athletes already enrolled at an institution, thus giving the committee options other than simply restoring or denying remaining eligibility at an institution.

Committee members expressed the view that an institution's responsibility for a recruiting violation involving a prospective student-athlete now is treated adequately through the infractions process and that providing greater flexibility for dealing with eligibility matters resulting from institutional infractions would be more fair to the involved prospect.

- Discussed making available to member institutions a record of eligibility appeals rulings issued since 1987, for the purpose of providing precedents in various types of cases. The committee authorized providing paper copies of complete eligibility appeals rulings upon request and indicated an interest in eventually making those rulings accessible via a computer database.

- Recommended to the Council that it sponsor legislation at the 1993 Convention to provide for a waiver permitting an additional season of competition for a student-athlete who is declared ineligible as the result of a "good-faith" error by an institution in certifying the athlete's eligibility, provided that the athlete's participation in a sport as a result of the error is limited to a small number of contests over a short period of time.

- After a discussion of the feasibility of establishing a clearinghouse to determine the amateur status of foreign prospective student-athletes, recommended to the Council that it consider ways of addressing such questions and that it assign responsibility for amateurism issues involving foreign student-athletes to appropriate NCAA committees or entities. In addition, committee members suggested that the time may be right for a review of all amateurism legislation relating to foreign student-athletes.

The committee also recommended that member institutions be urged to begin the eligibility certification process for foreign student-athletes earlier than is currently the practice in order to settle eligibility issues sufficiently in advance of the athlete's arrival on campus or, better yet, in advance of offering athletics-based aid.

- Reaffirmed its policy that a redshirted student-athlete who tests positive for drug use before participation in a season or who does not use a season of competition during the 365-day period of ineligibility will be required to lose at least the equivalent of one season of competition.

The committee also reviewed and supported a proposal to apply the same penalty to a student-athlete who refuses to sign the drug-testing consent form that currently is applied to a student-athlete who tests positive for drug use.

tered gross net receipts of $23,238. Water polo showed a deficit of only $6,863.

Despite the Executive Committee's decision not to act on the proposal at this time, it still could be considered at the 1993 Convention. Advocates of both sports say they will continue to offer proposals and solutions to save their respective championships.

"We're willing to make whatever changes are necessary to ensure our survival," said Frederick R. Turoff of Temple University, chair of the NCAA Men's Gymnastics Committee. "There's a unified feeling among the coaches that we'd rather change our current format than stick with what we're doing and lose our championship."

Some of the changes being considered, aside from the joint proposal, include shortening the championships, changing regions, purchasing restricted airfare tickets, reducing the field of competitors and cutting back on regular-season meets.

"I never thought I'd have to propose such radical changes," Turoff said. "We always felt our championship would be revenue-producing. Up to last year, we always were. We always counted on TV revenue... that we would always be televised. But the (TV) contract changed, and when changes come you make changes."

Both Turoff and Sutton say they are optimistic that something can be done. Both point to the establishment of limited Division II championships in field hockey, ice hockey and men's lacrosse as beacons of hope.

"It gives you a sense of optimism... a sense that they have (changed) the rules in the book and that perhaps they'll consider older, established championships that have been good for college athletics," said Turoff.

Whatever the outcome, both believe that much more is at stake than just two championships.

"If there ever is a reason for making an exception to the rules, this is it," Sutton said. "Water polo is a sport that can be a benefit for both athletics and student-athletes."

"Men's gymnastics is the kind of sport that colleges want," said Turoff. "We've got good citizens, good students, kids who graduate and perform at the highest level. It's a sport that's good for the NCAA."

Executive

during the summer of 1993, the payment to each Division I institution for the enhancement of academic programs and services for student-athletes will be increased from $25,000 to $30,000. The fund may not be used for scholarships for fifth-year student-athletes who have exhausted eligibility, for summer school tuition or for the purchase of books.

More definitive guidelines were not established for use of the money; however, each institution will be asked to report at the end of the year how the funds were used.

• Broad-based distribution. Effective with the 1992 distribution, institutions will receive credit in the grants-in-aid component for grants awarded to fifth-year student-athletes who have exhausted eligibility and for student-athletes who, for medical or redshirt reasons, do not count on the squad list but are receiving aid. The Executive Committee also reaffirmed that credit not be given for Proposition 48 student-athletes.

The committee also reaffirmed the current methodology for calculating grants in the head-count sports (that is, an institution that awards only a percentage of a full grant in a head-count sport would receive credit only for that percentage awarded, rather than for a full grant).

For an explanation of how institutions affected by Bylaw 20.9.3.3 will be treated, see the related story on this page.

• Basketball distribution. The committee reaffirmed current policies regarding treatment of basketball units earned by conferences that experience realignment or dissolution.

On matters apart from the revenue-distribution plan itself, the committee agreed that no change should be made in official traveling parties and per diem for NCAA championships, catastrophic-injury insurance, the Division II enhancement fund or the amount allocated for the conference grant program.

Members not meeting bylaw still qualify for certain funds

Institutions that do not meet the minimum contest and participant requirements of Bylaw 20.9.3.3 in a particular sport will receive credit for that sport in the grants-in-aid and needy student-athlete funds of the revenue-distribution process.

However, those institutions will not receive credit in the sports-sponsorship component.

The NCAA Executive Committee approved the policy at its May 3-5 meeting.

The change will be reflected in the checks that will be mailed this summer when the grants-in-aid and needy student-athlete funds are distributed.

The first part of the revenue-distribution process, the basketball fund, was mailed April 24.

Other funds and the dates on which they are to be mailed are Division II, May 22; academic enhancement, June 26; needy student-athlete, July 31; sports sponsorship, August 14, and grants-in-aid, August 28.

News Fact File

Sixty-two individuals have served as elected officers of the NCAA in its 87-year history - 22 of them in the past 10 years. For the first 77 years of the Association's history, there were only two officers at a time - the president and the secretary-treasurer. Since 1983, there have been five officer positions, including the Divisions I, II and III vice-presidents.

Only one individual has held the same office twice: Palmer E. Pierce, U.S. Military Academy, the NCAA's first and third president. Only one individual has held three different offices: current President Judith M. Sweet, University of California, San Diego, who also has been secretary-treasurer and Division III vice-president.

Nine other individuals have held two offices, seven of them the president/secretary-treasurer combination: Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten Conference; Everett D. Barnes, Colgate University; William J. Flynn, Boston College; James Frank, Lincoln University (Missouri); John L. Toner, University of Connecticut; John R. Davis, Oregon State University, and Wilford S. Bailey, Auburn University. One person was president after serving as Division I vice-president (Albert M. Witte, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville), and current Secretary-Treasurer B. J. Skelton, Clemson University, first served as Division I vice-president.

Needy student-athlete fund interpretations

The NCAA Executive Committee approved the following interpretations regarding the needy student-athlete fund at its May 3-5 meeting:

- That an institution not be permitted to use the moneys to pay room and board expenses for a student-athlete who does not go home during a vacation period, regardless of whether the student-athlete is required to remain on campus for practice or competition.
- That the moneys not be used to pay the premiums for a student-athlete's individual health insurance coverage (beyond that provided by the institution).
- That nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers not be eligible for the fund during their first academic year of residence, inasmuch as only student-athletes participating in a varsity sport are eligible to receive funds and nonqualifiers and partial qualifiers are not eligible to participate during the first academic year in residence.
- That payment of medical expenses for a student-athlete's son or daughter is not permissible pursuant to the medical-expense criteria, which are specific to the student-athlete's own medical expenses and may not be extended to family members.
- That a fifth-year student-athlete who has exhausted eligibility not be eligible for the fund, inasmuch as the student-athlete no longer is participating in a varsity sport.
- That payment for car repairs to enable a student-athlete's spouse to drive to job interviews not be a permissible travel expense for family emergencies.
- That payment for required course-related books not be permissible pursuant to the criteria allowing for academic course supplies, inasmuch as payment for course-related books is permitted under existing legislation and the fund should not be used as a source for awarding otherwise permissible institutional financial aid.
- That payment for noncosmetic dental expenses be a permissible medical expense.
- That payment for drug or alcohol counseling be permissible in accordance with criteria for allowing for medical expenses for off-campus psychological counseling.

Facilities

Student life center wakes up campus

When Rochester Institute of Technology opened the doors to its new Hale-Andrews Student Life Center January 27, more than 3,800 people made their way through the turnstiles.

Housed in the building, which cost $11.7 million and contains more than 107,000 square feet, are five multipurpose courts, eight racquetball courts, a weight room, fitness testing center, dance/aerobics room, minigym and an elevated one-eighth-mile running track.

Hiram gets grant for renovation

Hiram College was awarded a $25,000 grant from the Harley C. and Mary Hoover Price Foundation to complete renovation of the fitness center and training room in the school's Price Gymnasium.

Hiram officials used the grant to purchase seven new pieces of exercise equipment. The grant also allowed Hiram to purchase a variety of free-weight equipment.

Built in 1959, Hiram's Price Gymnasium was named for Mr. and Mrs. Harley C. Price, longtime friends and benefactors of Hiram College.

one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Injury rate

An injury rate is a ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete exposures in that category. This value is then multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete-exposures. For example, six reportable injuries during a period of 563 athlete-exposures would give an injury rate of 10.7 injuries per 1,000 athlete-exposures (six divided by 563 times 1,000).

Additional information on the report is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

The tables on page 3 highlight selected information from the winter 1991-92 Injury Surveillance System. Injury rates and game-practice percentages are compared to an average value calculated from all years in which ISS data has been collected in a specific sport.

Georgia Tech's Rice to be honored with Corbett award from NACDA

Homer C. Rice, director of athletics and executive assistant to the president at Georgia Institute of Technology, has been chosen by the officers and executive committee of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA) to receive the 26th James J. Corbett Memorial Award.

The award, considered the highest honor awarded in athletics administration, is presented annually to a collegiate athletics administrator who "through the years has most typified Corbett's devotion to intercollegiate athletics and has worked unceasingly for its betterment." Corbett, who died in 1967, was athletics director at Louisiana State University and served in 1965 as NACDA's first president.

"The Corbett award represents the quality of our profession," Rice said. "Jim Corbett was one of our great leaders. His vision made it possible for our organization to become a positive impact on the world of college sports."

"This award is important because it represents what all of us must understand. First and foremost, we are leaders. We must direct our programs for the benefit of the student-athletes in order for them to become successful in their careers and contribute to society. The competition our programs generate allows us to use creativity to develop the means to provide these opportunities for our young people."

Rice was named executive assistant to the president and director of athletics at Georgia Tech in 1980. Since then, he has directed the athletics program to a position as one of the top programs in the country.

During his tenure, he has overseen a $35 million facilities rebuilding project, the addition of more than 55 grants-in-aid for nonrevenue sports programs and the quadrupling of fund-raising. In the past two years, the school has won a wire-service national championship in football, reached the NCAA Final Four in basketball and seen its baseball and men's golf programs ranked No. 1 in those respective polls.

Rice, who was NACDA president in 1986-87, was the founder and served as the first chair of the Division I-A Athletics Directors Association.

The Homer C. Rice Division I-A Directors Award is presented annually to a past or present Division I-A athletics director or conference commissioner for exemplary service to intercollegiate athletics and Division I-A.

He also has been chair of the NCAA Football Rules Committee, NCAA Television Committee and the Special NCAA Committee on Measuring Athletic Program Success.

Through 40 years in athletics, Rice has been a player, coach and administrator at the high-school, college and professional levels. The former Centre College athlete has been head football coach at the University of Cincinnati and Rice University and also with the Cincinnati Bengals, and he has been athletics director at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and at Rice.

SPORTS SPONSORSHIP

Glassboro State announced it is eliminating wrestling, beginning with the 1992-93 academic year. The decision was based on an athletics department review. The move reduces to 16 the number of intercollegiate sports offered at the school (eight for men, eight for women).

NOTABLES

John Bell elected chair of the College Football Bowl Association for 1992. He is executive director of the Gator Bowl. Also elected as officers of the association were John Junker of the Fiesta Bowl, vice-chair; Robert Dale Morgan of the Peach Bowl, treasurer, and Don Andersen of the Freedom Bowl, secretary.

DEATHS

Indianapolis Colts defensive end and former Miami (Florida) football player Shane Curry was shot and killed May 2 during a disturbance in the parking lot of a Cincinnati nightclub. He was 24. A 15-year-old boy has been arrested and charged with felonious assault in the case.

Top-ranked Cincinnati defense has a renovated field in its dreams

University of Cincinnati baseball players are poking a hole in the adage that practice makes perfect. They've been nearly flawless defensively this season despite not having a field on which to practice.

The Bearcats led the nation with a .977 fielding percentage through May 3. The team's practice "infield" is the Armory Fieldhouse Gymnasium, where a Cincinnati alumnus, Oscar Robertson, worked toward perfection in another sport.

The team is without a normal practice facility because of a renovation project at its on-campus facility, Meyers Field. The upgrading is part of the athletics department's $13.1 million project to improve facilities.

"Basically, every game is a road game for us," Cincinnati coach Richard Skel said. "So when we do take a road trip, we don't worry about anything except playing baseball. Our pitching and hitting have been good, but we are able to practice those every day in batting cages. The fielding has been tremendous and we can't practice that."

Cleaning house at Ohio State

The Ohio State University athletics department cleaned house this spring, holding a massive garage sale April 25 to clear out football, baseball and basketball uniforms it has accumulated over the years. Between 800 and 1,000 football jerseys worn by all-Americans down to the sixth-string punters were sold. Soccer and volleyball uniforms and track warm-ups were put on the selling blocks.

Approximately $72,000 was raised, said Denny Hoobler, director of athletic fund-raising at Ohio State.

Milestones

Arizona State University's Jim Brock registered his 1,000th collegiate baseball victory April 3 against cross-state rival University of Arizona. Also joining the ranks of 1,000-game winners is Virginia Polytechnic University's Chuck Hartman, who achieved the milestone when his Hokies defeated Liberty University, 11-4, April 27. University of Detroit Mercy baseball coach Bob Miller earned his 700th career victory when the Titans defeated Eastern Michigan University March 22. Miller is in his 28th season at Detroit Mercy. Florida International University baseball coach Danny Price won his 500th career game April 2 when the Golden Panthers crushed Bethune-Cookman College, 19-1. Price has guided Florida International since 1980, and the Golden Panthers have won at least 40 games in five of the past six seasons.

Kentucky Wesleyan College baseball coach Denny Potts won his 200th game March 13 in a victory over Ohio Dominican College. Jim Wells, in his third year as baseball coach at Northwestern

State University (Louisiana), notched his 100th victory April 4 when his team defeated Sam Houston State University, 3-1. Millersville University of Pennsylvania women's lacrosse coach Barbara Waltman registered her 100th career victory April 2. A 1973 alumnus of the institution, Waltman has led the Marauders for 14 seasons. Trenton State University lacrosse coach Sharon Goldbrenner won her 100th career game, an 8-4 victory over Millersville University of Pennsylvania, April 23.

Tulane University baseball coach Joe Brockhoff captured his 600th career victory April 8 when the Green Wave defeated Louisiana State University, 6-2. He has led the team for 18 seasons. Eastern Connecticut State University baseball coach Bill Holowaty became the second coach in Division II history to win 700 games when the Warriors defeated Framingham State College April 2.

On April 26, California State University, Fullerton, softball coach Judi Garman became the first NCAA softball coach to eclipse the 650-win plateau in a double-header sweep of the University of California, Santa Barbara.

Merrimack pitchers toss two no-hitters

On April 24, Merrimack College softball pitchers Susan Foulds, a senior, and Kim Page, a sophomore, could do little wrong from the mound against New Hampshire College.

That's when the pair hurled back-to-back no-hitters during a double-header, which the Warriors swept, 3-0 and 9-0, respectively.

In the opener, Page struck out 14 and allowed just two balls to be hit out of the infield in claiming her second no-hitter of the season. Foulds fanned eight batters in the second contest.

Firm provides sports-science grant

The NCAA Foundation has announced the establishment of a $150,000 endowment funded by National Sports Underwriters, Inc., to support research in sports sciences.

It is the first grant to the Foundation specifically to fund athletics-related research. Beginning in 1992 and continuing for the next several years, the National Sports Underwriters Research Endowment will be used to fund sports-sciences research efforts. NCAA member institutions may submit proposals for the research grants, which will be awarded after review by the NCAA Research Committee.

National Sports Underwriters, Inc., develops, markets and administers insurance products and services for colleges, universities, high schools and sports-related organizations from its headquarters in Overland Park, Kansas. National Sports Underwriters serves more than 1,000 institutions nationwide.

Establishment of the National Sports Underwriters Research Endowment represents growing concern in the private sector for the Foundation's commitment to providing opportunities for more than 271,000 male and female student-athletes to achieve academic and personal success.

"We've long been supporters of the NCAA's efforts to assist student-athletes," said Thomas F. Wilson Jr., president and CEO of National Sports Underwriters, Inc. "Now, with this endowment, we can help further the efforts of sports science researchers at the collegiate level."

The Foundation provides financial aid and development opportunities for qualified student-athletes. Since its establishment in 1988, the Foundation has made awards to more than 400 student-athletes to assist them in completing their degrees.

Pac-10's third-place team to Freedom Bowl

The Pacific-10 Conference and Freedom Bowl have announced an agreement that will send the Pac-10's third-place football team to the Freedom Bowl for the next two years.

"The assurance of having a Pac-10 team in the Freedom Bowl helps our credibility locally," Freedom

Bowl Executive Director Don Andersen said. "We are trying to build this game through local marketing efforts, and this agreement will help tremendously in that regard."

The Pacific-10 champion is committed to the Rose Bowl, and a second-place team will be part of a new bowl coalition now being formed.

The Freedom Bowl will be played on the night of December 29 at Anaheim Stadium. Kickoff is 6 p.m. Pacific time, and the game will be carried nationally on a Raycom syndicated television network. Mutual Radio Network holds the national radio rights.
