Athletes are in step on graduation rates

A comprehensive NCAA study shows a clear similarity between graduation rates for student-athletes and for students in general.

The compilation of Division I graduation rates, which was mandated by the 1990 NCAA Convention, was released at a July 2 news conference in Washington, D.C.

A report with detailed graduation-rate information on each of the Division I institutions involved in the study will be available later this summer.

The study involved Division I student-athletes who first enrolled in the 1984-85 academic year. Of the 26,589 freshmen who received athletics grants-in-aid at that time, 51 percent graduated within six years; of the 1,069,683 students who enrolled at Division I institutions, 52 percent graduated.

Graduation rates for athletes also tended to reflect those for all students when gender and racial factors were added. The biggest anomaly involved female student-athletes, who graduated at a significantly higher rate (61 percent to 54) than females in general.

Other key comparisons:

■ Black student-athletes graduated at a 35 percent rate while 31 percent of Blacks in general graduated in the same time.

Members top 100 proposals

NCAA member institutions and conferences topped the century mark with properly submitted amendments for the 1993 NCAA Convention.

As of the July 1 deadline, 104 such amendments had been received in the national office, slightly more than the 98 proposals that were submitted for the 1992 Convention.

Slightly more than a third of this year's submissions—36—deal with playing and practice seasons as outlined in NCAA Bylaw 17.

In the NCAA legislative calendar, no new proposals can be submitted by the membership after July 1. Sponsors of the 104 proposals submitted prior to the deadline, however, are permitted to refine and alter those amendments prior to September 1 in any manner that is germane to the original submission.

Still to come are proposals from the NCAA Council and NCAA Presidents Commission, which have until August 15 to submit their legislation.

This year's total continues a trend of growth in the number of amendments submitted by the membership, but the increase from last year is notably smaller than the increase from 1990 to 1991. In 1990, 59 proposals were

Presidents proceed with their plan

William C. Friday (left), president emeritus of the University of North Carolina, and Creed C. Black, president of the Knight Foundation, represented the Knight Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics at the Presidents Commission meeting.

The NCAA Presidents Commission is proceeding with legislation for the 1993 NCAA Convention to advance the principles of institutional control and presidential authority, as identified in the strategic plan that it adopted last fall.

Meeting June 23-24 in Kansas

City, Missouri, the Commission voted to move ahead with legislation that would:

■ Support in principle the athletics certification program currently being developed by a special NCAA committee, in that it adopted last fall.

Financial conditions panel set

A 21-member Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics has been appointed jointly by NCAA President Judy M. Sweet and Presidents Commission Chair Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien.

The appointment of that committee is the next step in the three-year strategic plan adopted by the Presidents Commission last fall. That plan identified financial issues as the primary topic for the second year, with legislation to be presented for action at the 1994 Convention.

See Financial, page 28 ►

Gender-equity concerns go to task force

The NCAA membership provided the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force with a variety of specific ideas and philosophical observations to consider when the panel meets for the first time July 9.

The comment covered several aspects of gender equity, but the most specific observations involved equalizing participation opportunities for women.

Comment in that area included the following thoughts:

■ The initial intent of Title IX was that athletics activity should effectively accommodate the interests and abilities of both sexes. With that in mind, the absolute use of enrollment ratios of male to female students would not seem to be a fair means of measuring interest.

The NCAA's gender-equity study would seem to support the need to look at participation as a measure of interest. According to the study, women in Division I-A are offered more scholarship aid (on the average) in golf, tennis, gymnastics, swimming, volleyball, cross country, and track and field but women trail men in the total number of participants in those sports. These facts relate to interest and must be taken into consideration. (Division I-A athletics administrator)

■ One alternative for achieving equity involves eliminating men's sports or capping participation in some men's sports. That approach, however, conflicts with a key principle in Division III philosophy, that of promoting broad participation in sports.

The best way to equalize is to broaden women's participation opportunities in existing sports, especially swimming, cross country, and track and field. (Division III director of athletics)

■ An institution could set the men's maximum number of participants in a sport at the NCAA minimum and allow the women's

Briefly in the News

Former athlete braves flames, saves residents

Former California State University, Fullerton, wide receiver and defensive back Wade Lockett has always been quick on his feet, once clocking in at 4.5 seconds in the 40-yard dash.

He needed every bit of that speed and quickness the evening of June 23 when he braved the thick smoke and intense heat of an Orange County, California, apartment fire to help save the lives of several residents.

The 6-foot-3 Lockett was at home in the La Ramada Apartments in Anaheim and noticed the smell of smoke, but he thought little of it and left the building to go to a store. Upon his return 30 minutes later, Lockett saw fire engines and flames and knew that if there were people still inside, they had little time in which to get out of the burning building.

Witnesses said Lockett, who played at Cal State Fullerton from 1982 to 1985, ran from door to door until he was certain all of the residents were safely out of the building, the Los Angeles Times reported.

"He was pulling people out of their places even though the fire was everywhere," said Treva Thomas. "He was a hero," said Rebecca Sandoval. "He saved my daughter and others."

Lockett, whose apartment suffered some damage, said he was just pleased to be able to help get everyone out of the building. "You have to have a positive attitude," he said. "God does things for a reason."

Fencers excel

The 1992 U.S. Olympic fencing team that will compete at the Summer Olympics in Barcelona, Spain, later this month consists of many former collegiate players, including 10 who won NCAA individual titles.

The roster includes five-time sabre Olympian Peter Westbrook, who fenced at New York University in the early 1970s and won the NCAA men's sabre title in 1973. Westbrook, 40, holds 12 national sabre titles and garnered the first U.S. Olympic fencing medal in 24 years with his bronze at the 1984 Games in Los Angeles.

In addition to Westbrook, 13 of the other 15 United States competitors have collegiate fencing experience.

The former collegians are Nick Bravin

Lockett

of Stanford University; Michael Marx and Molly Sullivan of the University of Notre Dame; Caitlin Bilodeaux, Ann Marsh, Jon Normile and Robert Cottingham of Columbia University-Barnard College; Sharon Monplaisir of Hunter College; Mary Jane O'Neill and Chris O'Loughlin of the University of Pennsylvania; Robert Marx of Portland State University; John Friedberg of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and Michael Lofton of New York University.

All but Michael Marx, Marsh, Monplaisir and Robert Marx were NCAA titlists. Lofton won four straight sabre titles from 1984 to 1987, while Sullivan and Bilodeaux each won two women's foil championships.

MAC goes high-tech

The Mid-American Athletic Conference, beginning its 46th year of existence, has gone high-tech. The conference recently released its 1992 football prospectus with a videotape that includes a six-minute profile of MAC football.

The video was produced to offer insights on the conference and outline some of its goals in the coming years.

Commissioner Karl D. Benson said one of his primary goals "is to increase media and public awareness of the MAC by educating people about the league's solid tradition and its promising future."

CEO 'shoots' players

Buena Vista College President Keith G. Briscoe recently shed his traditional business suit in favor of more casual attire, then headed to the ball diamond to shoot photos during the NCAA Division III Women's Softball Championship in Pella, Iowa.

Briscoe cleared his schedule not only to attend the championship, which saw Buena Vista fall to Trenton State College, 4-0, in the final; he shot hundreds of photos and invited Buena Vista players to keep the ones they liked.

At one point, Buena Vista sports information director Jay Miller said, the press box director asked who it was climbing scaffolding to get a better shot of the field with his camera. The director believed that maybe it was the father of one of the players.

"No," Miller said, "it's the college president."

Japanese foe slated

For the first time, a college football team from the United States will square off against a college team from Japan when the College of William and Mary faces Nippon University next January in Tokyo.

In 1989, William and Mary played in the first Epson-Ivy Bowl in Yokohama, Japan, where it faced the Japanese College All-Stars.

The January matchup will be the feature game of a double-header at the Tokyo Dome that also will see the Ivy League All-Stars vs. the Japanese College All-Stars.

"The players are very excited about the opportunity to travel to Japan," William and Mary coach Jimmy Laycock said. "They're also excited about the tremendous challenge of competing against the top college team in Japan. It was a difficult decision to forgo the Division I-AA playoffs. They felt the once-in-a-lifetime experience would be worth it."

'Ladies First'

The East Carolina University Student Stores recently presented a check for $25,000 to the ECU Educational Foundation in response to a "Ladies First" athletics scholarship-enhancement effort.

The institution is beginning the third year in a five-year plan to increase scholarship opportunities in women's and nonrevenue sports.

Two years ago, Parker and Becky Overton of Greenville, North Carolina, endowed a $50,000 scholarship, which was the first endowed gift earmarked for women's athletics there.

Looking back

5 years ago: The Comment page in the July 22, 1987, issue of The NCAA News featured the text of a speech by James Jarrett, director of athletics at Old Dominion University, urging that Division I be restructured to establish a new football subdivision that would emphasize cost containment in that sport—Division I-AAA. (The NCAA News, July 22, 1987)

10 years ago: The NCAA Council announced the appointment July 28, 1982, of a 16-member Select Committee on Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education to examine in detail the problems affecting college athletics. The committee, featuring prominent individuals from inside and outside the NCAA membership, was to be funded by the NCAA but operate as an independent body. John P. Schaefer, president of Research Corporation and former president of the University of Arizona, was retained to serve as executive director of the committee. (The NCAA News, July 28, 1982)

40 years ago: The NCAA national office was moved July 28, 1952, from Chicago, Illinois, to a location in downtown Kansas City, Missouri. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

60 years ago: The NCAA conducted a special meeting July 29, 1932, in Pasadena, California, in conjunction with the 1932 Olympic Games. During that meeting, the National High School Federation (now the National Federation of State High School Associations) was granted representation on NCAA rules committees in basketball, football, swimming, track and field, and wrestling. Committee notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancy must be received by Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than July 22, 1992.

Wrestling Committee: Replacement for Edward Griffin, resigned from Clemson University to become a high-school administrator. Appointee must be from Division I.

COMMITTEE CHANGES

The following changes should be made in the 1992 NCAA Committee Handbook. Appointments are effective immediately unless otherwise noted.

Academic Requirements Committee: Staff liaison: Daniel T. Dutcher.

Interpretations Committee: Staff liaisons: Nancy L. Mitchell and Stephen A. Mallonee.

Division I Championships Committee: Staff liaisons: Patricia F. Bork and Frank E. Marshall.

Division II Championships Committee: Dennis L. Poppe and Frank E. Marshall.

Gender-Equity Task Force: Staff liaisons: Richard D. Schultz, Ursula R. Walsh and Stephen A. Mallonee.

Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers: Staff liaisons: Stan Wilcox and Marybeth Ruskamp.

Revenue-plan checks mailed

Checks totaling $7.45 million—$25,000 for each Division I member institution to enhance academic-support systems for student-athletes—were mailed June 26 in the third installment of the NCAA revenue-distribution plan for 1992.

The revenue plan distributes money from the NCAA's seven-year, $1 billion television contract with CBS to the membership through six funds. Checks totaling $31.5 million from the basketball fund were mailed to the Division I membership April 24 and $2 million was distributed to Division II institutions May 22.

Most funds for academic enhancement were mailed directly to Division I institutions, but some were distributed via conference offices as a result of members of those conferences agreeing to have distribution handled in that manner.

Revenue-distribution funds

The amount of money in each fund in the 1992 NCAA revenue-distribution plan and when the checks will be mailed:

Fund	Total	Date
Basketball	$31.5 million	Mailed
Division II	$2 million	Mailed
Academic enhancement	$7.425 million	Mailed
Special assistance	$3 million	July 31
Sports sponsorship	$10.5 million	August 14
Grants-in-aid	$21 million	August 28

The Special NCAA Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues has established no specific guidelines regarding permissible uses of the academic-enhancement funds. The NCAA Executive Committee, however, has specified that the funds may not be used for scholarships for fifth-year student-athletes who have exhausted eligibility, for summer school tuition or for the purchase of course books.

Institutions can use the funds for new or existing programs and services.

Presidents Commission taking nominations

The Presidents Commission is issuing its annual invitation to chief executive officers of NCAA institutions to nominate CEOs to fill vacancies that will occur on the Commission next January.

Each year, the Commission issues such an invitation via The NCAA News. Only CEOs may submit nominations, and all must be received in the NCAA national office not later than September 11, 1992.

Specifically, nominations should be sent to Presidential Nominating Committee, NCAA, 6201 College Boulevard, Overland Park, Kansas 66211-2422.

All nominations properly submitted by the deadline will be reviewed by the Presidential Nominating Committee when it meets in conjunction with the Commission's fall meeting, September 30-October 1 in Kansas City, Missouri. This year's nominating committee is chaired by Jon C. Strauss, president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Once the committee develops its slate of candidates, that slate will be sent to CEOs at all member institutions in a balloting procedure that concludes prior to the end of 1992. Those elected to fill vacancies then are announced in conjunction with the NCAA Convention in January.

Any CEO nominated by at least 10 of his or her peers automatically is included on the ballot, if there is a position for which that individual is eligible. However, there are few actual vacancies this time because several current members have served less than half of a term and thus are eligible for reelection. That situation occurs when someone is appointed to fill an interim vacancy due to retirements, resignations or relocations of Commission members. Several current Commission members have served for one year or less.

The only positions not filled via the balloting process are those representing Division I-A conferences, which are permitted to name the CEOs to fill those spots themselves.

Commission terms expiring upon adjournment of the Convention next January:

Division I

William E. Shelton, president, Eastern Michigan University. Division I-A. Eligible to serve a full term. The Mid-American Athletic Conference designates this position.

Richard E. Peck, president, University of New Mexico, recently designated by the Western Athletic Conference to replace Albert J. Simone when the latter leaves the University of Hawaii to become president at Rochester Institute of Technology. Division I-A. Eligible to serve a full term.

James D. McComas, president, Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Division I-A. Eligible for reelection to a full term. Currently represents Division I-A North football independents; would represent the Big East Conference if that conference meets the Division I-A playing-conference definition in the 1992 football season. When that occurs, one independent position on the Commission will be eliminated because each Division I-A conference is guaranteed a position.

Sheldon Hackney, president, University of Pennsylvania. Division I-AA East football region. Not eligible for reelection; replacement must be from the Division I-AA East region.

William W. Sutton, president, Mississippi Valley State University.

Division I-AA at large. Eligible for reelection to a full term.

Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, president, George Washington University. Division I-AAA at large. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement must be from Region I of Division I to maintain minimum required geographical balance among the Division I members of the Commission (there must be at least four from each of the four regions).

Division II

Judith A. Ramaley, president, Portland State University. Eligible for reelection to a full term.

Donald F. Behrend, chancellor, University of Alaska Anchorage. Eligible for reelection to a full term.

Division III

David G. Carter, president, Eastern Connecticut State University. Eligible for reelection to a full term.

David L. Warren, president, Ohio Wesleyan University. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement may be from any Division III region.

David Marker, president, Cornell

College. Not eligible for reelection. Replacement must be from Region 4 of Division III.

The NCAA geographical regions for representation purposes are set forth in Constitution 4.7.2.

Nominating committee

Serving with Strauss (Division III) on the Presidential Nominating Committee are the following:

Division I—Gene A. Budig, University of Kansas, and William H. Mobley, Texas A&M University, Division I-A; Joseph N. Crowley, University of Nevada (Division I-AA; will be replaced by September 1 when the institution moves to Division I-A), and Brother Thomas J. Scanlan, Manhattan College, Division I-AAA.

Division II—Anthony James Catanese, Florida Atlantic University, and Arend D. Lubbers, Grand Valley State University.

Division III—James R. Appleton, University of Redlands.

Questions regarding the Commission's nominating and balloting process should be directed to Ted C. Tow, associate executive director and primary staff liaison to the Commission, at the national office.

Women's panel focuses on equity

The NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, responding to a report on the recent formation of the NCAA Gender Equity Task Force, made recommendations on issues related to gender equity at the committee's June 22-24 meeting in Santa Fe, New Mexico.

The report was presented by committee chair Phyllis L. Howlett, assistant commissioner of the Big Ten Conference and a cochair of the task force.

In reviewing the task force's charge, the women's athletics committee discussed gender-equity implications for a range of issues, including revenue distribution, NCAA committee assignments, corporate-partner program, public relations and championships administration.

Among committee actions resulting from that discussion were:

■ A recommendation that gender equity be included among the criteria to be considered in the broad-based component of the revenue-distribution plan. The committee believes doing so would encourage the development and growth of women's athletics programs.

■ A recommendation to the NCAA Council that it review the formula for determining the ratio of male/female membership on the Association's committees. The women's athletics committee noted that it has been some time since that formula has been reviewed.

Certification issues

The committee also discussed gender-equity considerations for the certification program being developed by the Association.

It compiled a list of items related to equity that it believes should be explored in the certification process. The NCAA Special Committee on Athletics Certification is expected to solicit comment soon on a revised set of questions to be asked of an institution in a certification review; and when it does, the women's athletics committee plans to compare its list with those questions and make any appropriate recommendations.

Committee members also recommended to the Council that an institutional senior woman administrator be included on each peer evaluation team formed for a certification visit. The committee believes doing so will help strengthen the role of the senior woman administrator in Association affairs.

Task force membership

In an action relating directly to formation of the Gender-Equity Task Force, the women's athletics committee voted to seek more representation of Divisions II and III institutions' interests on that panel.

Committee members recommended to the NCAA Administrative Committee that it add four members to the task force—two representing Division II institutions and two representing Division III.

Other highlights

In other actions at its June 22-24 meeting in Santa Fe, New Mexico, the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics:

■ Met with Chris Voelz, director of women's athletics at the University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, and president of the National Association of Collegiate Women's Athletics Administrators, and Maureen Devlin, a staff member for the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, to solicit their views on perceptions of women in collegiate athletics; how NACWAA and the Knight Foundation are addressing issues facing women in collegiate athletics; what the NCAA can do to enhance opportunities for women now and in the future, and how the women's athletics committee, NACWAA and the Knight Commission can collaborate on issues.

During the discussion, Voelz presented a list of NACWAA recommendations for dealing with problems identified in the NCAA's recent gender-equity study. The committee agreed to review and respond to the recommendations, which addressed such areas of concern as participation, scholarships, scheduling, recruiting expenses, coaching, operating expenses, and NCAA operations and policies.

■ Discussed issues related to Title IX, including the Association's response to a memorandum describing Title IX requirements that was circulated earlier this year by the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Civil Rights for comment.

■ Recommended to NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz that a senior-level administrator be appointed as the NCAA's "senior woman administrator."

■ Recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that it authorize funding for a panel discussion on women's issues at the National Association of Collegiate Women's Athletics Administrators' fall forum September 13-15, 1992, in Kansas City, Missouri.

■ Reviewed the Association's women's enhancement programs offering postgraduate scholarships, internships and a vita bank, and took actions pertaining to administration of the programs.

■ Reviewed data on the number of NCAA member institutions that have designated senior woman administrators and the number of women attending NCAA Conventions; agreed to pursue ways of enhancing the senior woman administrator's role and to monitor the effect of 1992 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 3, which was adopted to encourage more member institutions to designate women as accredited voting or alternate delegates at the Convention.

■ Agreed to study existing programs for enhancing opportunities for women in officiating and to develop recommendations for that purpose.

■ Reviewed Sara Lee Corporation's sponsorship of programs to promote women's athletics, including the NCAA Woman of the Year award program; noted that the deadline for nominating women for the 1992 award was June 1 and that 52 regional award winners will be announced July 15. The 10 finalists for the national award will be named September 15 and this year's NCAA Woman of the Year will be honored at a dinner November 11.

number to go beyond the NCAA minimum. This, however, would increase costs for the overall program. (Division I-A conference administrator)

■ NCAA scholarship limits and sports-sponsorship requirements interfere with achieving gender equity. Rather than 19 grants each for men and women in sports other than football and basketball, why not allow 21 for women and 17 for men? Why not six sports for men and eight for women rather than seven for each? (Division

I-AAA director of athletics)

■ The task force should recommend postponement of the implementation of Bylaw 20.9.1.2 (minimum financial aid requirements) until a complete gender-equity package can be presented to the membership. (Division I-AA conference commissioner)

Football

Those commenting also focused on how football distorts participation and scholarship ratios:

■ Football occupies a unique position in society and in the athletics programs of individual institutions. The large number of scholarships deemed necessary for a competitive football program makes it difficult for institutions to comply fully with Title IX. At some point, schools must confront the issue head-on and seek relief, either through interpretation of the present law or modification of that law by an act of Congress. (Division II president)

■ Scholarship dollars at some institutions may be equally divided between men and women, but the 100 nonscholarship football student-athletes at some Division I institutions distort the participation ratio. (Division I-AAA director of athletics)

Private schools need a level field

By Dewey Kalmer
BRADLEY UNIVERSITY

After 13 years of coaching at a private NCAA Division I school, it seems apparent to me that there is a need to create a level playing field for private schools in the financial aid arena.

As a rule, private schools are much more expensive than public schools, which creates an enormous advantage for public institutions in equivalency sports (those that award primarily partial athletics grants).

If a public school costs $6,000, a coach competing in an equivalency sport could award three $2,000 grants, leaving a balance of $4,000 for each of the three athletes. The public-school coach would have used one full athletics grant, spending 33⅓ percent on each athlete.

But if a coach is at a private school costing $12,000 and attempts to recruit the same three student-athletes, that coach would have to award each student $8,000 to leave the same balance of $4,000 for the student to pay. The private school coach would have used two full athletics grants, spending 66⅔ percent on each student-athlete.

Besides the enormous disparity in financial aid, the public schools also enjoy a multitude of "walk-ons" in each sport because most nonrecruited athletes with some ability walk on at public schools because of the cost difference.

A truly level playing field can never be created, but the variance can be narrowed by making all sports head-count sports. This would prohibit the public-institution coach from stockpiling athletes and would reduce redshirting and transferring. In actuality, the recent 10 percent across-the-board reduction in athletics grants will create an even bigger disparity between public and private institutions in equivalency sports.

When you agree to play a game with someone, you make certain tacit assumptions. You really agree to play a game to see if your skills, endurance and strategy are better than the opponent's. Rules should be designed to make the game fair and to assure that the outcome is the result of skill, endurance and strategy—and nothing else.

Dewey Kalmer is assistant athletics director and head baseball coach at Bradley University.

A bottom-line view of education

By William H. Mobley
PRESIDENT, TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY

In these times of tight state budgets, the tendency is to focus too much on the cost of education—at the expense of fully considering what education contributes.

Perhaps we should calculate the contributions of education monetarily, just as figures can be derived to show how much could be "saved" by cutting back on higher education appropriations to help balance the state's budget. Maybe education's contributions would take on added value if viewed in "bottom-line" terms.

The ultimate value of education cannot be translated into dollars and cents, but some figures can be applied on both an individual and a societal basis. For example, the latest Bureau of Census statistics reveal a dramatic correlation between education and income for persons age 18 and over:

- High-school dropout—$18,633.
- High-school graduate—$22,985.
- Some college education—$27,421.
- College graduate—$36,068.
- Some postgraduate education—$46,974.

As is readily apparent, the high-school dropout is relegated to a salary about half that of the college graduate, and the high-school graduate fares only marginally better. Over a lifetime, the difference could be more than a half-million dollars. Also, we must not be misled by the seemingly not-so-bad figure for a high-school dropout; it represents the average for everyone age 18 to 80.

Realistically, not everyone can aspire to attaining a college degree. Some individuals lack the capabilities or desire, and some face seemingly insurmountable financial problems—but the latter usually can be overcome.

Even those who are not viable prospects for a four-year institution should seriously consider attending a community college or an accredited technical institute. What they would learn there would put them in a much better position to cope in a knowledge-based economy. As the census figures show, attainment of any higher level of education is a good investment.

The sad fact of life is that the under-educated person will be faced with

□ Opinions

High-school sports merit new look

Thomas Boswell, columnist
The Washington Post

"Our universal assumption has been that the dangerous chaotic impulses in our natures can be channeled into new forms. All the seductive trappings of our games—glamorous uniforms, flattering trophies, phrases like 'state champion'—are just ways to trick our wild side into allowing itself to be turned into a mature, self-disciplined, self-respecting personality. When a society defines the word 'sportsman,' it's usually encircling the word 'adult,' too.

"Many of our social problems are as big and complex as they are obvious. We all know that more jobs, stronger families and better education would be forces for order. Yet knowing these problems still leaves us far from solutions.

"Increasing support for school sports—at every opportunity, even in well-off Fairfax County (Virginia)—may only be one small part of the large mosaic of restoring order to the lives of our young people.

"But it is one part, isn't it? And of all the parts, isn't it by far the least costly, the least controversial and the easiest to implement?

"At the moment, Fairfax County politicians are falling all over themselves trying to convince Jack Kent Cooke to build his new stadium for the Redskins in Northern Virginia. You can bet that to lure the Redskins out of Washington, Fairfax County would give new meaning to words like 'generosity' and 'flexibility.'

"Yet that same county may have junior-varsity football teams that play only five games.

"On one hand, a few extra basketball games or a round of state playoffs or a couple of extra swim meets isn't that big a deal. If you're a competitor at heart, you'd probably practice all season just to play one real game.

"Still, that's how athletics programs in school systems all over this country have fallen into a shambles—one cut at a time. Finally, one day, you reach a point where huge high schools have only 30 kids who come out for football, not 100.

"Shakespeare is great. But if you want to run a public school that works, there's no better place to spend your money than on a strong athletics program that involves as many students as possible in as many sports as possible."

Foreign athletes

Greg Scholars, assistant track coach
University of Florida
The Dallas Morning News

"The U.S. athletes don't see track the same way foreign athletes do. The best athletes are going to football and basketball because they see the opportunities to make money there. There are more positions available for a speedy football player than in track.

"You really don't see a lot of the U.S. track athletes get endorsements until the Olympic years. I mean, you have a telephone company in Sprint and the world's fastest man in Carl Lewis right here in this country. So why isn't he getting those kinds of endorsements?

"The foreign athletes see a bigger picture. They're thinking about getting paid when they leave and competing in Europe, so they want to make themselves more marketable. Those kids are representing their countries."

Women's opportunities best in track, swimming

With regard to the gender-equity issue, I feel that if you enforce this to the point that schools must have the same ratio of men and women participating in their athletics programs as are enrolled in the university, you are vulnerable to other problems that would be far worse than having 40 or 50 more men participating (because of football) than women.

First, the fact of the matter is that men participating in athletics at all levels far outnumber women. Trying to balance that will only lessen the opportunity for men who want to participate and open up the possibility for counter suits.

■ Letter to the editor

I feel that opportunity is the key word here. If a school sponsors seven men's sports and seven women's sports, it really is providing equal opportunity for student-body members to participate. The fact that football needs more athletes is irrelevant because (a) there is no women's football and (b) sports such as track and cross country and swimming can have a multitude of people on the team and do not make cuts—so you could say that the opportunity is there for everybody to compete.

At this stage where budgets are tight and athletics directors are thinking about cutting programs rather than adding women's sports, you will see sports with big numbers, like men's track, being cut to balance the gender numbers and therefore lessen the opportunity for men to compete in track. This would ruin the only real base we have in this country for developing our Olympians.

Either that, or you will see schools cheat and artificially boost their women's participation numbers to be in compliance.

I don't think you want to see either of those scenarios, do you? It would be better to promote women's participation in track, cross country and swimming and maybe even allow women to try out for other men's teams.

Basketball groups discuss tournament policies

Division I women's committee recommends 64-team championship

The NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee will recommend to the Executive Committee that the Division I championship field be expanded from 48 to 64 teams as soon as possible.

At its June 28-July 1 meeting in Beaver Creek, Colorado, the basketball committee completed initial planning for a 64 team tournament as part of the long-range planning it has undertaken for the tournament over the past three years.

Expansion to a 64-team field would enable the committee to provide automatic qualification to all eligible conferences. Thirty-two first-round and 16 second-round games would be played on the campuses of competing institutions. The basketball committee would consider four-team matchups at first- and second-round sites in the future.

The committee requested an expansion to 56 teams at the Executive Committee's May meeting. That request was deferred until a comprehensive study of the NCAA's championship structure could be completed.

Other highlights

In other actions at its June 28-July 1 meeting in Beaver Creek, Colorado, the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee:

- Recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that automatic-qualification privileges be granted to the following conferences: Atlantic Coast Conference, Atlantic 10 Conference, Big East Conference, Big Eight Conference, Big Sky Conference, Big Ten Conference, Big West Conference, Colonial Athletic Association, Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Mid-Continent Conference (formerly the North Star Conference), Midwestern Collegiate Conference, Missouri Valley Conference (formerly the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference), Ohio Valley Conference, Pacific-10 Conference, Southeastern Conference, Southern Conference, Southland Conference, Southwest Athletic Conference, Sun Belt Conference, West Coast Conference and Western Athletic Conference.

- Changed the policy for practice times during first- and second-round games. It will be strongly recommended for the 1993 championship that teams be given an hour and a half of practice time between 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. on the day before the game at first-round sites. On game day, teams will be allotted one hour of practice time in the blocked-off facility at least five hours before tipoff. The same recommendations will be made for second-round competition. These changes will be mandated beginning with the 1994 championship for institutions that want to host a first- or second-round game.

Division I men's committee acts against sports gambling

Tournament policies pertaining to such diverse areas as seating capacities and gambling were discussed at the Division I Men's Basketball Committee's summer meeting.

The committee, meeting June 28-July 2 in Beaver Creek, Colorado, agreed not to conduct any men's basketball tournament competition in geographic areas that have legalized gambling for athletics events involving humans. The policy will take effect beginning with the 1996 championship.

The Division I Men's Basketball Committee is the second NCAA entity to take such an action. In May, the NCAA Executive Committee voted that the Association's Convention may not be held in an area that permits either casino or open sports-book gambling.

In other action, the basketball committee approved the use of the Rawlings wide-channel basketball beginning with the 1994 championship. Previously, the committee used the narrow-channel ball as its official championship ball.

The committee also voted that starting next year, head coaches will be required to attend the pre-tournament meeting on the day before the first round.

The basketball committee will forward to the Executive Committee two recommendations concerning the 1998 through 2000 Final Fours. The basketball committee voted to recommend that site selection for the 1998 through

Other highlights

During its June 28-July 2 meeting in Beaver Creek, Colorado, the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee took the following actions:

- Discussed and voiced support for the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee's decision to include as a point of emphasis the assessment of penalties for use of profanity during competition.

- Reaffirmed the process for preselecting officials for second-round competition.

- Recommended to the Executive Committee that the basketball committee release to Division I conference commissioners a compilation of selection, seeding and bracketing information in addition to conference members' ratings percentage index information.

- Commended committee members Roy F. Kramer and Kenneth A. Free for their outstanding contributions to the basketball committee. Both Kramer's and Free's terms on the committee expire in September. They are being replaced by M. Terrence Holland, athletics director at Davidson College, and Ralph McFillen, commissioner of the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference.

- Met with representatives of the New Orleans local organizing committee for the 1993 Final Four, CBS Sports, Host Communications and the Minneapolis local organizing committee for the 1992 Final Four.

2000 Final Fours be done in the summer of 1993.

The committee also voted to recommend that those three Final

Fours be conducted in facilities with a minimum of 30,000 seats.

Bottom line

Think of education as an investment, not an expenditure continually diminished employment opportunities as we move more fully into that knowledge-based economy. Under a worst-case scenario, those diminished job opportunities could lead to the welfare line or a life of crime. Statistics clearly show that drop-outs and others who are undereducated make up a high percentage of those on welfare rolls or behind bars.

Under either undesirable scenario, the state—taxpayers—would pay significantly more for such individuals than if it had more adequately invested in their education. For example, keeping a criminal behind bars costs about $20,000 annually.

The annual per-student appropriation for education pales in comparison. Here in Texas, the allocation for each college student is about $3,200. On the public-school level, it is about $3,500, including what local districts elect to add.

Even under the best of circumstances, when individuals fail to maximize their educational opportunities and corresponding employment prospects, society loses monetarily and otherwise. Diminished income for individuals means a less robust economy and reduced revenue for government at levels ranging from local to Federal.

This fact is substantiated by a 1988 study by two nationally prominent higher-education policy analysts that concluded that education accounts for about 15 to 20 percent of the growth in national income. Higher education was calculated to account for about one fourth of the direct total for education overall.

That same study indicates that another 20 to 40 percent of national-income growth generally is ascribed to improvements in knowledge and its application.

A study conducted last year by a Texas A&M University educational administration research team showed that Texas received an additional $1.13 in economic activity for every dollar invested in public higher education. The study calculated the ratio between the net state income (gross state product) and the $944 million appropriation in fiscal year 1987-88 for the universities included in the study. The study showed a net gain of $1.1 billion in state income, a net gain of $345 million in state payrolls and a net gain of 13,779 jobs.

A key conclusion of that study was that each area showed a positive net increase as a result of the considered institutions' business activity without quantifying the other benefits attributable to higher education as compared to leaving the tax dollars with the general population.

Yes, as shown, we can couch the benefits and contributions of education in dollars and cents, but it is far from the best way to calculate its value—to the individual or society.

Perhaps education's problem stems from the fact that we tend in our routine thinking to consider education an "intangible" rather than an investment. When we stop and give the matter serious thought, we come up with truisms such as this: "An investment in education is an investment in this state's future development and prosperity." That is the second sentence in the preamble to the Texas Charter for Public Higher Education adopted by the 70th Texas Legislature five years ago.

Perhaps the problem is that education is all too often viewed as a problem—a funding problem or source of society's ills. It should be considered a solution to major problems of our state and nation—problems such as crime, welfare, unemployment and an undereducated work force in the emerging knowledge-based society.

If we continue to view education as other than an investment and a solution, we run the risk of short-changing our prospects for the future. That includes not only the future of the current generation, but also that of our sons and daughters and future generations, as well as the future of our state and nation.

Can we afford to save marginally now, knowing that we are mortgaging our future?

Softball committee eyes bracket expansions

Divisions agree to put requests on hold for now

All three subcommittees of the NCAA Women's Softball Committee discussed bracket expansion during recent meetings but agreed to wait for direction from the NCAA Executive Committee before proceeding with proposals.

Meeting June 22-25 in Kansas City, Missouri, each subcommittee discussed bracket expansion in depth. The Executive Committee at its May meeting put all expansion requests on hold until after studying the direction of the championships program. That item is on the Executive Committee's August agenda.

The Division I subcommittee plans to ask the Executive Committee to increase its current 20-team bracket to 32 teams. The tournament format would consist of eight four-team regionals.

Division II subcommittee members may propose a change from the current 16-team field to a 20-team bracket. The subcommittee would propose that six teams advance to the finals under the new format. Currently, four teams advance.

The current Division III championship provides for a field of 20 teams. That subcommittee would like to increase the number of participants to 24.

Other highlights

In other actions at its June 22-25 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the NCAA Women's Softball Committee:

- Discussed use of the optic yellow ball at NCAA softball championships, beginning in 1993. The ball, which will have red seams, should be available in August, when the NCAA anticipates obtaining an official ball contract.

The Division I softball subcommittee:

- Recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that the financial guarantee for teams hosting two-team regionals be changed to $4,000 in net receipts from the current guarantee of 75 percent of net receipts. The committee also will recommend that three-team regional guarantees be $5,000 in net receipts. The same 75 percent guarantee currently applies to three-team regionals.

- Heard a presentation from the Oklahoma City All Sports Association regarding hosting the 1994 and 1995 championships.

- Recommended to the Executive Committee that, beginning with the 1994 season, institutions complete competition by 6 a.m. on the Sunday on which teams are selected for the championship. Teams now have until 11:59 p.m. Sunday to complete competition.

- Awarded automatic-qualification privileges to the following conferences: Big Eight Conference, Big Ten Conference, Big West Conference, Mid-American Athletic Conference, Pacific-10 Conference and Western Athletic Conference.

The Division II softball subcommittee:

- Established criteria for regionalization, which it will forward to the Executive Committee.

- Recommended that the championship date formula be amended to permit the championship finals to be held the weekend of the third Saturday in May. The current formula states the championship will be held the third full weekend in May.

- Recommended realignment of Pittsburg State University,

Emporia State University and Washburn University of Topeka from the Midwest region to the Central region. The committee also voted to recommend that all schools in the Great Lakes Valley Conference be moved to the Mid-Atlantic region, that all schools in Oklahoma be moved into the Midwest region and that New Mexico Highlands University be placed in the Midwest region.

- Recommended that umpires' fees be changed from $50 per game to a flat fee of $250 at each regional site.

- Amended specifications for championship fields so that fields with fences 200 feet from home plate all around, if permanent, are acceptable for hosting the finals. Current requirements call for championship-field fences to be 190 feet in left and right fields and 220 in center field.

- Recommended automatic qualification for the following conferences: California Collegiate Athletic Conference, Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Mid-American Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference and Sunshine State Conference.

The Division III softball subcommittee:

- Recommended that Millikin University in Decatur, Illinois, host the 1993 championship May 20-23.

- Voted to recommend that national polls be reinstated. At its May meeting, the Division III Championships Committee said that all sports polls should be regional in nature.

- Revised the procedures for umpire recommendations and will inform coaches of the new procedures.

- Recommended automatic qualification for the following conferences: Iowa Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Massachusetts State College Athletic Conference, Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New Jersey Athletic Conference and Ohio Athletic Conference.

NACDA honors 20 winners

During two awards luncheons at its recent annual convention, the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics honored 10 winners of the third annual NACDA/Disney Scholar-Athlete Awards and 10 new members of the NACDA Hall of Fame.

The scholar-athlete award recipients, chosen from a record 328 nominees, each were awarded $5,000 grants during a luncheon June 8 at the convention in Marco Island, Florida.

The honorees were football players Pat Engelbert of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln; Michael Hopkins of the University of Illinois, Champaign; Karl Kuhn of Arkansas Technological University; Gregory Lahr of the University of Kentucky, and Scott Wagner of Yale University; volleyball players Julie Griswold of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, and Janet Kruse of Nebraska; gymnast Sigall Kassutto of the University of California, Berkeley; wrestler Matt Ruppel of Lehigh University, and lacrosse player Catherine Sharkey of Yale.

Nominees for the scholarships, funded by the Walt Disney Company, had at least a 3.000 grade-point average (4.000 scale) and were all-America or all-conference selections in their sports. The 10 award recipients had a cumulative grade-point average of 3.840.

New members of the NACDA Hall of Fame were inducted during a luncheon June 9 at the convention.

The honorees are Earl Banks, former athletics director at Morgan State University; the late Col. John Clune, who was director of athletics at the U.S. Air Force Academy; the late Thomas J. Frericks, who was athletics director at the University of Dayton; Dave Hart, former director of athletics at the University of Louisville and University of Missouri, Columbia, and retired commissioner of the Southern Conference; Barbara Hollman, former associate athletics director at the University of Montana; Demie Mainieri, a longtime administrator at Miami-Dade Community College North; Carl Miller, former director of athletics at the University of the Pacific (California), University of South Dakota and University of North Dakota; Andy Mooradian, former athletics director at the University of New Hampshire; Carl Ullrich, former director of athletics at the U.S. Military Academy and current commissioner of the Patriot League, and Al Van Wic, former athletics director at the College of Wooster.

Big 10 moves on gender equity

The Big Ten Conference Council of Presidents/Chancellors has committed unanimously to a plan to establish an athletics participation rate of 60 percent men, 40 percent women by 1997.

During the next year, Big Ten members will submit to the conference strategies on how to achieve the 60-40 commitment. The conference also will establish review procedures to monitor annually the extent to which institutions have progressed in meeting the commitments outlined in the institutional gender-equity plan.

Sites recommended for women's golf

Committee picks Arizona, LSU

The women's subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee, meeting June 22-25 in Kansas City, Missouri, recommended sites to the NCAA Executive Committee for regional qualifying tournaments in 1993. In May, the Executive Committee approved a committee recommendation to hold regional qualifiers.

Louisiana State University was recommended to host the East regional and the University of Arizona was recommended as host for the West regional.

The committee also established the number of participants that will be allocated to each district for the tournaments. In the East, the Mid-Atlantic district will be allocated 30 slots, the South district 54 slots and the Midwest district 18 slots. In the West, the Far West district will be allocated 50 slots and the West district 52 slots.

Divisions II/III men's golf

Division II members of the men's subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee have recommended a district realignment, in which District 2 would consist of institutions from Virginia south to South Carolina.

Under the recommendation to the NCAA Executive Committee, made at the golf committee's June 22-25 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, institutions in Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey would move to District 1, joining institutions from New England.

As a result of the change, the allocation of qualifiers for the Division II Men's Golf Championships would change as follows: District 1 increases from six to 10 participants, District 2 decreases from 13 to 10, District 3 increases from 22 to 25, District 4 decreases from 12 to 10, District 5 decreases from six to five, Districts 6 and 7 each increase from six to 10, District 8 decreases from 11 to 10 and at-large participants decrease from 14 to 10.

In other actions, Divisions II and III members of the subcommittee:

- Recommended to the Executive Committee that the field for the 1994 Division II championships be increased from 90 to 96 participants.
- Recommended that Division III member institutions in Wisconsin be moved from District 4 to District 5.
- Delayed recommending a site for next year's Division III championships.

Men's golf seeks new uniform policy

A revision of the policy on permissible team uniforms was developed by the men's subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee during its June 22-25 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri. The recommendation to the NCAA Executive Committee would affect all three divisions.

The committee recommended that the uniforms policy be changed to allow some players to wear shorts and others on the same team to wear slacks, so long as both are considered the team uniform and are of the same color. Under the old rule, if one player wore shorts, all players had to wear shorts. The proposed rule, if approved, would be the same as the current women's rule.

Other highlights

In other actions at its June 22-25 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the NCAA Women's Golf Committee recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that:

■ The National Collegiate Championships include seven teams and six individual qualifiers from the East region and 10 teams and four individual qualifiers from the West region.

■ Divisions II and III participants in the National Collegiate Championships be selected by the Divisions II and III advisory committees. In addition, the committee noted that the selection criteria for Divisions II and III participants now include requirements for sports sponsorship for women's golf within the divisions (Bylaw 20.10.3.5 for Division II; 20.11.3.2 for Division III). Both bylaws require that an institution must have at least seven contests and five participants. The committee also recommended that Divisions II and III participants must compete in a minimum of three contests in the spring to be eligible for the championships.

■ The criteria for selecting teams for the regional tournaments be 1) head-to-head competition within the district, 2) common-opponent comparisons, 3) team's place finish in tournaments and 4) stroke average.

■ A modified version of the United States Golf Association's advice rule be adopted. Under the recommendation, a designated coach would be able to offer advice, but not stand on greens or enter bunkers. The USGA rule allows advice to be offered from anywhere on the course.

■ The 1995 National Collegiate Championships be held at the University of North Carolina, Wilmington, on the Dye Course at Landfall.

Division I men's golf

Division I members of the men's subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee recommended a revision of the procedure for cutting the field after 36 holes of the 72-hole Division I men's championships during the committee's June 22-25 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Last year, the 15 lowest-scoring teams, including ties, and the six lowest-scoring individuals not on those teams, including ties, made the cut. Under the recommendation, only the 15 lowest-scoring teams, not including ties, would advance; also, only three individuals not on those teams, including ties, would advance. Ties among teams tied for 15th place would be broken in a sudden-death playoff. If conditions prevent a playoff from being conducted, the tie-breaking procedure outlined in the championships handbook would be used.

The subcommittee also constructed a timetable for directors of regular-season tournaments to submit results to Golfstat, so that coaches no longer would have to report the scores.

In other actions, Division I members of the subcommittee recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that:

■ In 1993, the University of Virginia be selected to host the East regional, Ohio State University the Central regional and Brigham Young University the West regional.

■ The pairing formula for the regionals and the championships be changed to balance morning and afternoon starting times so that each wave of players will include 78 participants.

■ Dates for 1993 regional tournaments be changed to May 18-21 (Tuesday through Friday), rather than May 19-22.

■ If a tournament is played in a format different from 4-5 (five players with four scores counting) or 4-6 (six players with four scores counting), the tournament director must submit a request to the subcommittee for approval.

31 more leagues gain approval

An additional 31 summer basketball leagues have been approved for student-athlete participation, bringing to 403 the number certified by the NCAA Council.

Other lists of approved summer leagues appeared in the April 22 and 29, May 6, 20 and 27, and June 3, 10 and 24 issues of The NCAA News.

Questions concerning the application process or the requirements for NCAA approval of summer leagues should be directed to Christopher D. Schoemann, legislative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

PGA lends instruction to NYSP

Five higher education institutions that sponsor the National Youth Sports Program will provide golf instruction at their sites this summer as the result of a partnership with the Professional Golfers Association of America.

The idea of the partnership came from Burt Bowens, Hampton University golf coach and president of the National Black Colleges Golf Coaches Association, who contacted the PGA about involving inner-city youth in the sport, primarily through NYSP.

The PGA, which already operates an instructional program for youngsters, responded by sending a representative to the NYSP national workshop last February in Washington, D.C., to survey the institutions' interest in providing golf instruction. Approximately 70 percent of the schools showed interest.

The five schools—California State University, Sacramento; the University of Detroit Mercy; Florida A&M University; Hampton, and Texas A&M University—were chosen on the basis of several criteria, including accessibility to PGA regional-site locations, according to Rochelle M. Collins, NCAA youth programs coordinator.

Collins said that the PGA instructional program doesn't necessarily require access to a golf course for the program to be successful. The selected institutions range from those that have a campus golf course to those that have no access to a course this summer.

"If the pilot program is successful, the PGA is committed to expanding its involvement," Collins said.

Currently, the PGA is sending representatives under the direction of Thomas M. Galvin, director of its junior golf program, to the five sites to instruct NYSP staff in how to teach golf to youths. In addition, the PGA will provide training manuals, golf balls and equipment tailored to youth at the sites.

Risk Factors as Predictors of Rule Violations in NCAA Division I Athletics Programs

■ The researchers have adapted theories and practices from the literature to develop a model of illegal behavior in Division I athletics. Based on this model, they plan to measure 10 factors (antecedent conditions) over a 12-year period at 90 institutions that have football and men's basketball programs. These 10 factors, singly and in various combinations, will be analyzed for their relationship to documented instances of wrongdoing publicly cited by the NCAA from 1981 through 1990. The review committee noted that the ability to recognize such conditions as they developed could be immensely valuable to those in positions of responsibility. Budget: $13,127.

■ This study will search materials in the NCAA library, university and conference archives, national archives, and commercial television corporation archives to examine the history of the NCAA involvement with commercial television. The focus of the research is on the resurrection of the past in order that current and future policy may be wisely determined. Budget: $25,000.

Proposal for a Second Replication of a National Study of the Substance Use and Abuse Habits of College Student-Athletes

■ This proposal calls for a second replication of a survey examination of substance use and abuse habits of college student-athletes. Previous studies funded by the NCAA were produced in 1984 and 1988. This second replication will allow researchers to examine eight-year trends in athletes' substance-use attitudes and evaluate the perceptions and effects of two years of Association year-round drug testing in Division I football. In addition, opinions and attitudes on practices related to the transmission of the HIV/AIDS virus will be collected. Budget: $33,000.

Gender Differences in the Center of Buoyancy Location of Competitive Swimmers

■ Buoyancy would appear to be an advantage in competitive swimming as it reduces water drag. This study will examine differences in the center of buoyancy in male and female swimmers and whether such differences are advantageous. Concern regarding an "ideal" body type has increased in many sports, including swimming, where leanness is currently emphasized. Results of this study may indicate a competitive advantage in buoyancy, which may reduce the emphasis on weight loss in the sport. Budget: $19,998.

Hunt, B. P., Pujol, T. J., and Muczko, J. P., Northwestern State University (Louisiana)

AIDS Knowledge, Attitudes and Behaviors of College Athletes

■ This study will conduct a national survey of student-athletes in Division I men's and women's basketball programs regarding knowledge of basic concepts relating to HIV/AIDS infection, attitudes towards risk of infection and personal behaviors that limit exposure to the virus. Budget: $10,000.

Kennedy, R. H., Lindemann, J. P., and VanderSchelden, J. L., University of Arkansas, Fayetteville

Cardiovascular Effects of Anabolic Steroid Use

■ This study will add to the small but growing list of research regarding the long-term effects of anabolic steroid use on the cardiovascular system. The study will help to establish whether a relationship between steroid abuse and heart disease actually exists, and if so, the mechanism of action at rest and during exercise. Budget: $14,934.

Lacourse, M. G., California State University, Long Beach

Using Video to Improve Athletic Performance

■ Collegiate coaches frequently utilize videotape to facilitate motor skill development. The purpose of this study is to examine how student-athletes pick up information from a video display and how the display can be arranged to maximize learning. Budget: $11,550.

McNitt-Gray, J., University of Southern California
The Reduction of Impact Forces Experienced by Female Athletes During Landing Activities

■ According to the NCAA Injury Surveillance System, 50 percent of the injuries experienced by male and female student-athletes involved in sports requiring repetitive landings (such as basketball, gymnastics and volleyball) are to the lower extremities. Many of these injuries are related to the large reaction forces experienced in landing. This study will closely reproduce "real-life" landing situations and assess the ability of subjects to selectively reduce these potentially harmful reaction forces. Results may be applicable to further education in injury prevention. Budget: $27,419.

Mueller, F. O., University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

National Center for Catastrophic Sports Injury Research

■ The proposal requests continuation of Association support to annually monitor catastrophic injuries in athletics on a national level. This research has been funded by the NCAA since 1982. Budget: $9,900.

Psycho-Social Predictors of Goal Discrepancy and Role Conflict in Student-Athletes

■ The proposal will utilize data from the Presidents Commission's 1987-88 national study of intercollegiate athletics to determine predictive relationships between goal discrepancy and a number of demographic, educational, athletics and institutional variables. Budget: $15,154.

The Effects of Phenylpropanolamine and Pseudoephedrine on Maximal Exercise Performance

■ These substances are active ingredients in many over-the-counter cold and diet medications and currently are considered illegal by the International Olympic Committee. The NCAA removed them from its banned substance list in 1989 primarily due to the difficulty in determining therapeutic use and the widespread acceptance of these substances as the appropriate, most cost-effective treatment for various cold-related symptoms. However, the progenic effect of these substances at therapeutic levels has not been accurately documented. Budget: $8,500.

Honors reception

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn welcomes Patrick Ahearn (right), a member of Pepperdine University's NCAA Division I championship baseball team, and Coach Andy Lopez (upper row, center) to the Hall of Administration in Los Angeles, where Hahn hosted a reception in honor of the team's championship. Former Los Angeles Dodger player Lou Johnson, who gave the Waves a pep talk before their College World Series title victory over California State University, Fullerton, also attended.

Recruiting materials guide mailed

The 1992-93 NCAA Guide to Recruiting Materials, featuring information on recruiting materials that can and cannot be provided to prospective student-athletes, has been mailed to the Association's membership.

The booklet, which is being provided to sports information directors, athletics directors and senior women administrators, also covers other aspects of recruiting legislation in Bylaw 13.

While the booklet is intended to provide assistance in working with NCAA rules, it is not all-inclusive and should not be used as a substitute for the NCAA Manual.

Personnel at institutions who are unsure of or wish to confirm the application of the Association's rules to a specific situation are encouraged to consult the Manual and, if necessary, contact conference offices or the NCAA legislative services staff for assistance.

DIVISION I
How reported	Sport	Citation	Facts	Institutional action	NCAA action
Conference	Baseball	B 14.6.4.1.2 and 14.6.4.1.2.2	Transfer student-athlete received financial aid and practiced for two-week period, even though he did not graduate from two-year college. Young man left institution.	Advised coaching staff of legislation and amended its certification policy in order to avoid recurrence of similar violation.	Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA eligibility appeals process.
Self-reported	Men's track, outdoor	B 14.1.3.1	Student-athlete practiced and competed before signing Student-Athlete Statement. Young man was otherwise eligible.	Withheld student-athlete from next three contests.	No eligibility consequences. Required institution to submit report indicating measures taken to avoid recurrence of similar violation.
Self-reported	Wrestling	B 14.6.5.3.10-(e)	Student-athlete who transferred from Division III institution received athletically related financial aid during first year in residence. Head coach resigned. Institution did not award maximum number of equivalencies during young man's enrollment. Student-athlete's participation and contributions were limited.	Will not require young man to repay financial aid and is establishing new administration for wrestling program.	Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA eligibility appeals process.
NCAA inquiry	Wrestling	B 15.3.5.1	Head coach notified student-athlete of nonrenewal of financial aid, rather than regular financial aid authority. Regular financial aid authority would also have notified young man; however, head coach thought an earlier notification was an extra courtesy.		Required institution to admonish head coach to avoid recurrence of similar violation.
Self-reported	Baseball	B 13.02.4.4	Head and assistant coaches attended two games during dead period in which prospective student-athletes were participating. Coaches did not make contact nor did they evaluate prospects in attendance at game. Trip was being made in order to contact several scouts and politicians. Institution is not recruiting and does not intend to recruit any of the involved prospects.	Conference reprimanded coaching staff and asked institution to conduct special rules session regarding dead-period legislation. Conference also asked institution to add section to travel approval forms indicating recruiting periods.	Required institution to preclude coaching staff from participating in any recruiting activities for one day.
Self-reported	Men's tennis	B 13.1.2.4-(b)	Coach contacted prospect by telephone before July 1 after his junior year in high school.	Will not recruit young man.	Prospect is ineligible unless restored through NCAA eligibility appeals process.
Self-reported	Women's gymnastics	B 15.5.2	Eleven (rather than permissible 10) student-athletes received financial aid during the 1991-92 academic year. Young woman received scholarship from a foundation, even though institution had informed student-athlete that she could not accept it. Young woman repaid the scholarship money.	Implemented monitoring procedures with financial aid office and compliance officer to ensure proper certification.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 13.4.2-(g)	Assistant coach sent telegrams to four prospects. Coach later realized it was a violation and contacted their high-school coaches (in whose care they were being sent) and had them intercepted. Prospects never received the telegrams.	Reviewed legislation with coach.	No eligibility consequences. No further action.

■ Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 10
June 3, 1992

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

- Financial aid/maximum institutional limits
1. Calculation of cost-of-attendance figure. When applying NCAA financial aid regulations, an institution must calculate the cost of attendance for student-athletes in accordance with the cost-of-attendance policies and procedures that are used for students in general. The committee noted that if an institution's policy allows for a student's indirect costs (e.g., transportation allowance) to be adjusted (on an individual basis) from the institution's standard cost figures, it is permissible to make the same adjustment for student-athletes. [Reference: NCAA Bylaw 15.01.7 (maximum institutional financial aid to individual)]
- Hardship/foreign tour
2. "Redshirt" student-athlete participating on summer foreign tour. If an institution departs on a summer foreign tour prior to the beginning of the institution's playing and practice season for the next academic year, a "redshirt" student-athlete uses a season of competition for the previous academic year if the student-athlete represents the institution in any outside competition during the foreign tour, even if the student-athlete's first competition on the tour occurs subsequent to the beginning

- of the institution's playing and practice season for the next academic year. [References: 14.2.4.7 (foreign-tour competition) and 30.7.2.1 (incoming student participation)]
- Extra benefit
3. Institutional donations to outside teams that include student-athletes from the institution. An institution (including institutional coaching staff members) may not make a donation to an outside organization to defray expenses for the organization's competitive tour if a student-athlete from that institution will be a participant on the tour, even if the donation is not made specifically for use by the student-athlete. The committee noted that it is permissible for a representative of an institution's athletics interests to make a general contribution to an outside organization to defray expenses for the organization's tour, provided there is no institutional involvement in making the contribution. [References: 16.8.1.3 (expenses for other competition) and 16.12.2.1 (extra benefit—general rule)]
- Publicity
4. Use of prospect's photograph in permissible publicity and promotional activities. An institution may take a photograph of a prospect during a campus visit to be used in the institution's permissible publicity and promotional activities (e.g., press release, media guide), provided the photograph is not given to the prospect. [References: 13.11.6 (announcement of signing) and IC 7/19/90, Item No. 2]
- Seasons of competition
5. Open event involving noncollegiate competitors conducted "in conjunction

- with" collegiate competition. An open event involving noncollegiate competitors and collegiate competitors who do not score points for their respective institutions is not considered to be conducted "in conjunction with" collegiate competition, provided the event is a separate event that is not conducted during any portion of the collegiate event. Thus, a student-athlete (including a "redshirt" or transfer student) does not use a season of competition by participating in such an open event, unless the student-athlete satisfies any of the other criteria set forth in 14.02.6 (e.g., wears uniform, uses equipment, receives expenses). [Reference: 14.02.6-(b) (intercollegiate competition)]
- Postseason championships/membership
6. Institutional eligibility to participate in Division I-AA Football Championship. A Division I institution that conducts a Division II or Division III football program during the 1992-93 academic year, but must reclassify its program in Division I for the 1993-94 academic year in accordance with 20.4.1.1, may not participate in the Division I-AA Football Championship, unless the institution has operated for a period of two years in conformity with the requirements set forth in 18.4.2.2-(a) (i.e., freshman-eligibility requirements, transfer-eligibility requirements). The committee recommended that the NCAA Council review this issue to determine whether a waiver of the two-year period is appropriate for an institution that is mandated to reclassify its football program in Division I in order to comply with 20.4.1.1. [References: 18.4.2.2 (Division I championships) and 20.4.1.1

- (Division I member)]
- Satisfactory progress
7. Calculation of credit hours necessary to satisfy the "75 percent/25 percent requirement." The committee agreed with the position of the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee that the provisions of 14.5.4.1 are not intended to affect credit hours earned by student-athletes prior to the 1992-93 academic year. The committee determined that the following analysis should be used when determining the necessary hours to satisfy the 75 percent requirement pursuant to the averaging method for student-athletes who have earned credit hours prior to the 1992-93 academic year at that institution.
1. Identify the total number of credit hours for which the student-athlete is responsible (i.e., 12 hours per term during each academic year in which the student-athlete has been enrolled in a term or terms).
2. Determine the total number of satisfactory-progress hours earned prior to the 1992-93 academic year.
3. Subtract the number of hours identified in step No. 2 from the total number of hours identified in step No. 1.
4. Use hours earned during and subsequent to the 1992-93 academic year to fulfill the remaining satisfactory-progress "deficit," provided at least 75 percent of those hours are earned during the regular academic year and not more than 25 percent are earned during the summer.
- Further, the committee noted that it is not permissible to round the hours necessary to satisfy the requirement that 75 percent of

- the hours used for satisfactory progress must be earned during the regular academic year. [Reference: 14.5.4.1 (regular academic year)]
- Out-of-season practice
8. Institution reserving facility in the summer—individual sports. The committee recommended that the NCAA Administrative Committee use the provisions of NCAA Constitution 5.4.1.1.1 to amend the provisions of Bylaw 17.02.1.2.2 to indicate that in individual sports it is permissible for an institution's coach to reserve the use of its facilities during the summer to participate in individual workout sessions with a student-athlete from the coach's team when such a request for assistance is initiated by the student-athlete. [References: 17.02.1.2-(n) (noncountable athletically related activities), 17.02.1.2.2 (Divisions I and II—summer workout sessions in individual sports) and 17___6.1 (summer practice)].
- Outside competition/out-of-season practice
9. High-school and two-year college prospects counting in outside-team limitations. A high-school or two-year college prospect who officially has been accepted for enrollment in an institution and who participates on an outside team with student-athletes from that institution's team is not included in the limitations governing the number of student-athletes with remaining eligibility from the same institution who may participate on the same outside team in the applicable sport. [References: 14.8.5.2-(a) (summer league—Divisions I and II) and 17___8.1.4 (out of season)]

Indiana heart screening tests reveal problems

An examination of 700 high-school athletes in central Indiana found a dozen of them with minor heart problems and one who had an unusual mass in the heart, United Press International reported.

Those were preliminary results of screening by the Indiana Heart Institute at St. Vincent Hospital and the Sports Medicine Center at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis.

The echocardiographic screening studies are aimed at identifying athletes with heart conditions that may lead to "sudden death."

"Sudden death is an unexpected death where you just drop over dead," said Dr. Bruce Waller, a cardiologist at St. Vincent.

"Ninety percent of athletes with sudden death have heart-related conditions.... Now that we can examine a young person in two minutes or less at a relatively low cost, echocardiographic screening gives us the capability to save lives cost-efficiently."

Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 13.1.2.1	Student-athlete from another institution (who was established to be a representative of the college's athletics interests) had contact with prospect for recruiting purposes while acting as a language translator. Prospect signed letter of intent at another institution.		Required institution to advise coaching staff of application of legislation and admonish them to avoid recurrence of similar violation.
Self-reported	Women's volleyball	B 13.4.1	Institution sent recruiting materials in addition to the permissible general correspondence.	Reminded coaching staff of legislation regarding recruiting materials.	No eligibility consequences. No further action.
DIVISION I-A
Self-reported	Football	B 13.02.4.4	Four assistant coaches contacted several junior college prospects during dead period. Coaches were scheduled to make contacts with high-school prospects only, but contacted junior college prospects as well who were in their scheduled areas. None of the prospects intends to attend the university. Coaches were provided recruiting calendars and they were reviewed with them before their departure.	Reprimanded coaches.	Prospects are ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process. Required institution to preclude coaching staff from any recruiting activities for one day.
Self-reported	Football	B 13.1.5.2	Assistant coach had contact with prospect on day of competition. Coach intended contact to be only with prospect's high-school coach. Unknown by assistant coach, high school principal summoned prospect, who came to principal's office. Young man was participating in basketball contest on that day.		Required institution to admonish coach to avoid recurrence of similar violation. No eligibility consequences.
DIVISION II
Self-reported	Football	B 13.11.6	Institution released name of prospect who, in fact, had not signed letter of intent to attend the college. Young man will attend another institution.		Institution was admonished to avoid recurrence of similar violation.
Self-reported	Men's lacrosse	B 14.2	Student-athlete competed in three contests during his fifth season of competition.	Forfeited victories in which ineligible student-athlete participated and will ensure that verification of eligibility in future will be obtained before being allowed to practice or compete.	Required institution to submit report outlining specific eligibility certification procedures used, as well as modifications made in procedures to avoid recurrence of similar violation.
Self-reported	Women's track, indoor	B 14.11	Student-athlete competed in four contests before being properly certified as eligible. Institution subsequently properly certified her eligibility.	Reprimanded head coach.	No further action.
Self-reported	Football	B 13.2.2	Student equipment manager loaned set of shoulder pads to a high-school sophomore student. High school did not have set of pads large enough for the young man, so it called the equipment manager to inquire about using a set from the institution.	Reprimanded head coach and equipment manager.	Prospect is ineligible unless restored through NCAA eligibility appeals process.

II basketball keeps alignments

But new survey in fall will ask for additional comment

Regional alignments will remain essentially the same in Division II men's basketball for at least one more year, but there are plans to survey the membership early this fall to determine opinions regarding realignment.

Meeting June 22-25 in Kansas City, Missouri, the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Committee studied results from a survey conducted last spring concerning possible realignment. The survey was sent to conference commissioners, athletics directors and head coaches at Division II institutions.

The small response was disappointing to the committee, but committee members noted an overwhelming desire to keep conferences together within a region. The committee, however, did not believe the survey justified a change in the current alignment.

The committee decided it is nearly impossible to place an equal number of teams in each of the eight regions without splitting up conferences. As a result, the committee decided to make no changes until at least after the 1993 championship.

The committee's new survey will be sent to conference commissioners and athletics directors. Head coaches will receive a copy, but an institution will be allowed to submit only one completed survey.

In its only realignment actions for 1993, the committee recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that Fort Hays State University and New Mexico Highlands University be moved from the South Central region to the North Central region.

Other highlights

In other actions at its June 22-25 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Committee:

■ Changed regional site-selection criteria in two regions. In the South Central region, the committee lowered the minimum financial guarantee from $25,000 to $20,000. In the North Central region, the committee lowered the minimum seating capacity from 3,000 to 2,500. With the movement of several Division II schools to Division I, the South Central region experienced a drop in the number of available sites that could meet the higher guarantee. The change in the North Central region requirements was a direct result of a request by the Colorado Athletic Conference, which has several schools that would now be able to bid on a site.

■ Heard presentations from representatives of the cities of Louisville, Kentucky, and Springfield, Massachusetts, on hosting the Elite Eight tournament. The NCAA's current contract with Springfield runs through the 1993 championship. The committee voted to recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that the 1994 championship be awarded to Springfield, and agreed to consider bids for 1995 through 1997 at next summer's committee meeting.

■ Recommended the following 17 conferences for automatic qualification: California Collegiate Athletic Association, Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association, Colorado Athletic Conference, Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Gulf South Conference, Lone Star Conference, Mid-American Intercollegiate Athletic Association, New England Collegiate Conference, New York Collegiate Athletic Conference, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, Northeast-10 Conference, Northern California Athletic Conference, Pacific West Conference, Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference, Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and Sunshine State Conference.

■ Voted to recommend awarding the 1993 South Atlantic regional to Fayetteville, North Carolina, and the Cumberland County Civic Center. The Civic Center hosted the event last year for the first time.

■ Discussed various issues with two representatives of the National Basketball Coaches Association.

■ Voted to continue playing third-place games at regional sites.

Administrative Committee minutes

Conference No. 11 June 17, 1992

1. Acting for the NCAA Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Approved recommendations by the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee for approval of 1992-93 postseason football bowl games.

b. Approved a request by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports for a waiver per Bylaw 21.1.1.1.3 to permit Kathy D. Clark, University of Idaho, to continue to serve on the committee (and as its chair, effective September 1) despite the fact that her temporary-leave status as senior woman administrator will extend beyond the one-year period specified in Bylaw 21.1.1.1.2.

c. Approved a request by the Interpretations Committee for an amendment to Bylaw 17.02.1.2(n) under the provisions of Constitution 5.4.1.1.1, to permit a coach in an individual sport in Division I or II to reserve the use of a facility during the summer to participate in the permissible individual workout sessions with a student-athlete (i.e., those requested by the student-athlete).

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Noted that the Special Degree Completion Program Committee had addressed the concerns expressed by the Executive Committee in May (Minute No. 16 of the May 3-5 Executive Committee meeting) and now agrees that full-time enrollment for purposes of the degree-completion program shall be defined as a minimum of 12 hours, and applicants for degree-completion grants who require fewer than 12 hours in any term shall receive partial funding (tuition and books) for that term.

b. Approved a recommendation by the Division I Men's Basketball Committee that the honorarium to be paid to the University of Cincinnati for serving as host institution at an off-campus site for a session of the 1992 Division I Men's Basketball Championship per Bylaw 31.4.4.1 be reduced by $25,000 due to conduct of the institution's athletics director with regard to championship tickets.

c. Granted a request by legal counsel for KSL Sports, Inc., for permission to appeal at the August Executive Committee meeting a decision by the Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committee prohibiting the use of gloves of any kind in the sport of basketball; agreed that the appeal will be on the basis of the written record, rather than in person.

d. Approved the following amendments to Bylaw 31 as recommended by the Postseason Football Subcommittee of the Special Events Committee:

(1) Bylaw 31.5.1, to retain the minimum distribution of gross receipts of a postseason bowl game at $650,000, rather than $700,000, for the 1992-93 bowl season, with the understanding that the remainder of that paragraph is unchanged.

(2) Bylaw 31.5.1.1, to restrict the requirement for the letter of credit therein to include an additional 25 percent to cover expenses related to game management, operations and administration for any game that has not been certified for three consecutive years.

(3) Bylaw 31.5.2, to include pay-per-view television income in the components of gross receipts.

e. Approved amendments to Bylaws 31.2.3.1(g) and 31.2.3.1.1(c) to change the testosterone testing policy in the Association's drug-testing legislation, as recommended by the Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Approved 151 summer basketball leagues (91 for men and 60 for women) per Bylaws 14.8.5.2 and 30.14, as reported in various issues of The NCAA News.

(2) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.1(c) to permit student-athletes from two institutions to participate in competition involving national teams in track and field and water polo.

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaws 14.8.6.1(d) and 14.8.6.2(b) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in the 1992 Nittmeg State Games (Connecticut), Georgia State Games and Aloha State Games (Hawaii).

(4) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.8.6.2(c) to permit student-athletes from various member institutions to participate in international competition in basketball (all-star foreign tours).

(5) Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.13.1 to permit institutions to provide incidental expenses in these situations:

(a) To student-athletes to attend funerals of members of the student-athletes' families.

Certification, CEO authority legislation proceeds cluding the four basic topic areas in the current plan—institutional mission and governance, academic integrity, fiscal integrity, and equity issues.

The Commission's support includes the understanding that in the fourth topic area, the institution would be required to describe its approach to addressing issues of equity and student-athlete welfare.

■ Establish a Presidential Agenda Day at each NCAA Convention, on which the legislative proposals identified by the Commission as being of significant interest to chief executive officers would be acted upon in a single day.

In this approach, both division and general business sessions would be held on that day. Division and general sessions also would be held on subsequent days to complete the work of the Convention. This step is intended to address concerns expressed by some CEOs about the length of time they have to spend at NCAA Conventions.

■ Specify that appropriate proposals identified by the Commission for inclusion in the Presidential Agenda Day, if adopted, could not be amended for a period of three years after they become effective. The Commission and the NCAA Council would be authorized to submit amendments to the legislation during that period to treat emergency situations.

This proposal is intended to treat CEO concerns about being asked to return to the Convention each year to prevent erosion or reversal of legislation already adopted.

■ Require that every legislative proposal submitted by the membership be reviewed by the appropriate NCAA committee or committees before it can move on for action at a Convention. Such review could not prevent the proposal from being considered at the Convention, but the proposal could not appear on the Convention agenda unless it had undergone that review.

The appropriate committee could support, oppose or suggest an alternative to each such proposal. The intent is to be sure that every legislative proposal receives careful analysis by those with expertise in the area involved, and the hope is that the requirement might eliminate some legislative proposals and, in any event, slow the legislative process.

■ Establish the NCAA Administrative Committee (consisting of the five elected NCAA officers and the executive director) and the Presidents Commission executive committee (the Commission's four elected officers) as the Joint Policy Board of the NCAA. The Board would be required to concur on the NCAA budget, the legislative process and agenda, oversight of the executive director (and thus the national office), and other topics that might be assigned by the Commission and the Council.

This step, coupled with the authorities already assigned to the Commission, assures direct CEO involvement in virtually all NCAA activities, including the budget, as urged by a number of critics of the current structure. It does so without disrupting the current roles of NCAA bodies such as the Council, the Administrative Committee and the Executive Committee.

■ Set forth, via a Convention resolution, an approved Commission statement on strengthening the role of the chief executive officer in athletics matters at the institutional and conference levels.

Certification

The certification program as it currently is being developed was presented by Joseph N. Crowley, president of the University of Nevada and a member of the Commission. Crowley chairs the Special NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification.

That program apparently will have the support of the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics. Meeting with the Presidents Commission in the June session were Creed C. Black, president of the Knight Foundation, and William C. Friday, cochair of its athletics commission, both of whom praised the work of the Presidents Commission and the development to date of the certification program.

"Putting a certification program in place would cap the efforts of the Knight Commission," according to Black, who said he believes the Knight group will support the certification plan when it is presented to the 1993 Convention.

CEO authority

The three proposals dealing with CEO involvement in NCAA Conventions, as well as the one to create the Joint Policy Board, were recommended unanimously by a joint meeting of the Commission's

Other highlights

Other highlights of the NCAA Presidents Commission's June 23-24 meeting included the following:

■ Approved in principle a resolution developed by President Thomas K. Hearn of Wake Forest University regarding sportsmanship and "verbal conduct." The message reflects the views expressed by Hearn in a guest editorial in the June 24 issue of The NCAA News. The text of the resolution will be printed in a future issue and also will be forwarded to NCAA rules committees and other appropriate groups.

■ Approved the appointment of a multiconstituent NCAA committee to study financial conditions in college athletics, as reported elsewhere in this issue of The NCAA News; expanded that committee to assure inclusion of a Commission member and a non-Commission CEO from each division and subdivision.

■ Adopted a statement on student-athlete behavior, as published elsewhere in this issue of the News; referred the statement for consideration in the development of the athletics certification program.

■ Visited with President Rex E. Lee of Brigham Young University, chair of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process, and with two members of the Committee on Infractions, David Swank of the University of Oklahoma and Milton R. Schroeder of Arizona State University; agreed to support all nine of the proposed changes in the enforcement process on which the two committees have agreed and offered advice to both committees in the hope that a common recommendation will result with regard to the use of independent hearing officers and open hearings.

■ Approved the concept of establishing a multiconstituent committee to serve as a liaison between the Commission and various other organizations and constituent groups in college athletics; agreed that the appropriate organizations of faculty representatives and athletics administrators would be consulted with regard to possible appointments to that committee.

■ Authorized surveys of various segments of the membership regarding two alternatives to the fact that Division I institutions no longer can classify their football programs in Division II or III—one, to resubmit the Division I-AAA concept for a vote at the 1993 Convention, perhaps without the provision that prevented Division II institutions from moving to that classification; two, to make certain legislative adjustments that would enable those institutions to be classified in Division I-AA.

■ Heard a presentation on the role of the faculty athletics representative by three members of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association—Richard J. Dunn, University of Washington; Carla Hay, Marquette University, and Jerry L. Kingston, Arizona State University.

■ Accepted the long-range plan presented by the Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee.

■ Noted that the Commission's gender-equity subcommittee, cochaired by President Judith E. N. Albino, University of Colorado, and President Steven C. Beering, Purdue University, would not meet until after the first meeting of the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force; agreed that the first order of business in that topic is to define gender equity.

■ Approved and forwarded to the NCAA Council a recommendation that the refined graduation rates in Bylaws 30.1.1.3 and 30.1.1.4 be replaced by transfer-cohort graduation rates.

■ Approved the position taken by the Commission executive committee that in reviewing proposed legislation for the 1993 Convention, the Commission will identify proposals that do not meet the standards of the reform agenda (i.e., anything that would rescind or reduce the effect of the reform actions) and will announce those that it will not support.

■ Decided not to revisit the football coaching limit adopted by the Division I-A membership at the 1992 Convention but to ask the Council to study the restricted-earnings-coach concept in any or all sports; also, the Commission agreed to resist any approach to increase the number of full-time basketball coaches.

■ Elected Hearn to serve as vice-chair of the Division I subcommittee.

■ Noted that the Division II subcommittee would observe the progress of the Division I athletics certification process but would work toward development of a procedure that would be meaningful and not unduly burdensome to Division II institutions.

■ Noted that the Division III subcommittee will not sponsor or endorse any Division III playing-season legislation for the 1993 Convention and may oppose some proposals in that topic; also, the Division III subcommittee believes the issue of national championships in that division should be a part of the current championships study being conducted by the NCAA Executive Committee.

Presidents strengthen CEO role

The NCAA Presidents Commission has agreed to sponsor a resolution at the 1993 Convention on strengthening the role of the chief executive officer in athletics matters at the institutional and conference levels. The resolution will be based on the following statement, which was developed by Chancellor Gene A. Budig of the University of Kansas and approved by a Commission subcommittee that he chaired.

In recent years, college and university presidents have entered more forcefully into athletics reform. In so doing, they have earned the respect of important constituent groups: faculty, staff and students. In so doing, they have enhanced giving programs with informed alumni, for thoughtful people ultimately demand integrity in athletics programs and seek a sense of pride in athletes on and off the field. In so doing, they have established needed credibility for their institutions and for the NCAA.

And so they must sustain commitment to athletics reform. There can be no retreat.

This is not to say that presidents and chancellors should become directors of intercollegiate athletics. But they must appoint athletics directors who are accomplished managers of people and resources, knowledgeable and respectful of applicable rules and regulations, and in possession of the highest integrity.

Yet just as directors of intercollegiate athletics have their imperatives, so, too, do presidents and chancellors. They must assure that men and women who occupy those directorships share the same high values and strong resolve. They must assure the propriety of off-campus group activities aimed at

See CEO role, page 23 ▶

Student-athlete behavior statement adopted

The NCAA Presidents Commission has adopted the following statement on student-athlete behavior and referred it for consideration in the development of the athletics certification program.

Student-athletes enrolled at NCAA member institutions should reflect the high standards of honesty and integrity set by the Association for the conduct of intercollegiate athletics. As NCAA member institutions strive to fulfill their educational missions, they share a right and a responsibility to preserve order and encourage ethical, responsible behavior through the formulation of standards of conduct for student-athletes and the designation of procedures by which those standards shall be enforced.

It is imperative that student-athletes recognize the significance of their behavior as visible members of the campus and local communities. This same attention, however, also should inspire the institution to assure that its student-athletes receive the same treatment as students generally in disciplinary or criminal matters. Intercollegiate athletics cannot be viewed as a refuge where student-athletes may escape responsibilities imposed on all citizens, nor should student-athletes be held to a higher standard of conduct than that imposed on the student body as a whole.

Graduation rates

Student-athletes keep pace with general students

■ The rate for male student-athletes was 47 percent; for males in general, it was 51 percent.

Improvement expected

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz noted that the study period predated Proposition 48, which strengthened NCAA initial-eligibility requirements in August 1986. He said he expects that when the annual study reflects the first Proposition 48 class, the graduation rates for athletes will improve significantly.

He also said that actions taken by the 1992 Convention (further strengthening of Proposition 48; rigid continuing-eligibility requirements) probably will increase them even more.

Schultz said he hopes that the NCAA report satisfies Federal right-to-know legislation that was passed in November 1990. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, author of the Federal Student Right-to-Know Act, issued a statement commending the NCAA for issuing the report ahead of what was required by the law. "The NCAA has been creative and aggressive in bringing this data to the public," Bradley said.

Schultz said that if NCAA reporting does not eventually satisfy the Federal requirement, the NCAA probably would turn the task over to the government rather than subject member institutions to making two different reports.

Contrast in race

The biggest contrast in graduation rates was by race. The NCAA study showed that white athletes were graduating at much higher rates than Blacks (58 percent to 35), but it also showed that white students in general graduated at much higher rates than Blacks (55 to 31).

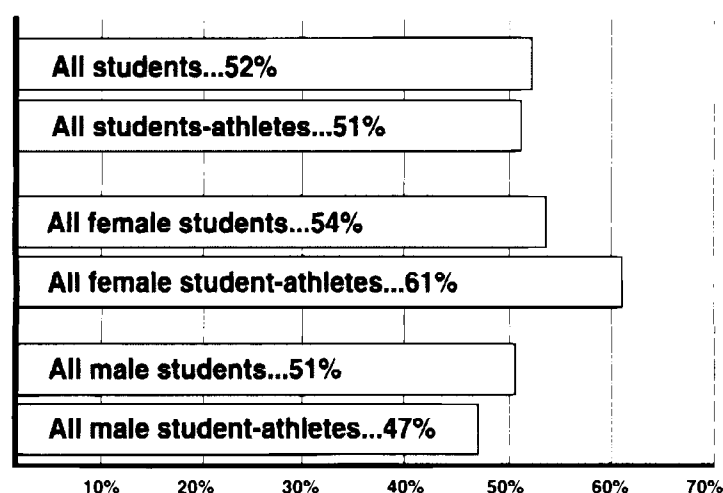

"It's always tempting...to compare black athletes to white athletes," Schultz said, "but I think we need to stay away from that." Instead, he said, greater attention needs to be focused on the overall problem of graduation rates for black students.

Schultz said he believed athletes should graduate at a higher rate than students in general, citing that their aid package relieves them of financial pressures that other students might encounter.

NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz and Sara N. McNabb of Indiana University, Bloomington, chair of the Special Advisory Committee to Review Implementation of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24, discuss graduation rates.

Students and student-athletes

* Student-athletes graduate at virtually the same rate as the general student body.

* Female student-athletes graduate at a higher rate than students in general and female students in general.

Refined rate

The NCAA Special Advisory Committee to Review Implementation of 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24, which oversaw compilation of the data, also formulated a refined graduation rate. The formula permitted an institution to count transfer students among graduates and not to count those who left an institution in good academic standing among those not graduating. Using the refined data, 68 percent of all Division I athletes graduated or left an institution in good standing.

With that approach, the overall female success rates climbed to 80 percent, and Division I women's basketball athletes succeeded at a 76 percent rate.

Sara N. McNabb of Indiana Uni-

Black students and black student-athletes

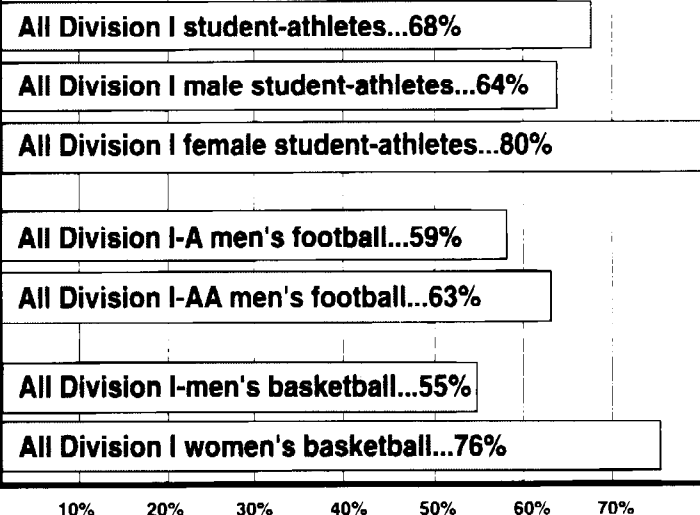

* Black female student-athletes graduate at a significantly higher rate than black students in general, black male student-athletes and black female students in general.

* Black student-athletes graduate at a higher rate than black students in general.

* Black male student-athletes graduate at a slightly higher rate than black students in general and at a higher rate than black male students in general.

Refined rates

* Refined rates include entering transfer student-athletes and exclude student-athletes who leave an institution in good academic standing.

* Institutions do not calculate refined graduation rates for the student body in general.

Bradley issues statement on graduation study

Comments made by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, about the graduation-rate data released by the NCAA July 2:

The NCAA has been creative and aggressive in bringing this data to the public. They have responded even ahead of the requirements of law, the Student Right-to-Know Act, which I wrote because far too many promising student-athletes were lured by the illusion of a career in professional sports and left behind with neither a sports career or an education.

To protect their futures, student-athletes have to be smart consumers. To be smart consumers, they need an honest answer to the question, "If I enroll at this institution, what is the likelihood that I will graduate?"

I commend the NCAA for making public the information that will put that answer in proper perspective. The data show us how student-athletes are faring today nationally, by race and gender, by sport, and by type of school.

In a few weeks, students will be able to compare each school to the national norm. Because we know that overall student-athletes are no less likely to graduate than other students, students will be able to ask tough questions about a school with a significantly lower graduation rate for athletes.

The data also indicate the areas where we need to make more effort. The media attention and money drawn to men's basketball and football continues to drive out academics at some schools, as the graduation rates of 38 and 47 percent, respectively, indicate.

The graduation rates for black student-athletes are deeply disturbing—in men's basketball, only 29 percent of the student-athletes graduate—but those numbers are actually higher than the overall graduation rate for black males. We clearly need more research, not limited to the athletics arena, about why Blacks are not finishing college. Whether the obstacle is shrinking financial aid or deteriorating race relations on campus, we need to confront it and solve it.

There is also much good news in this data. In particular, the graduation rates for female student-athletes are much higher than for other students. In the 20 years since the passage of Title IX, most colleges have expanded the role of athletics in the lives of their female students, and this data shows that they did not do so at the expense of academics.

As colleges and the NCAA work to improve the programs that fall short, we can all learn from the success of women's sports programs.

Every student-athlete finishing high school ought to know that only one in 10,000 high-school athletes will ever get a chance to play professional sports, to make a living as an athlete for even a few years. They have to compare those odds with the graduation-rate data that the NCAA released (July 2) and will release in the future.

When they do, they will not deemphasize athletics, but many will reemphasize academics when they make decisions about college.

The result will be young people who make the most of all their talents, the real heroes of college sports.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Freeman A. Hrabowski III, executive vice-president and vice-provost at Maryland-Baltimore County, appointed interim president there, effective September 1.

DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Bill Byrne, AD at Oregon since 1984, appointed at Nebraska. He will remain at Oregon through November 1. During his tenure there, Byrne oversaw construction of the $12 million Casanova Athletic Center, a $4 million press box and sky box facility at Autzen Stadium, a $2 million track renovation program at Hayward Field and a $3 million track center. Gary Ness, AD at New Mexico, was not granted a contract renewal at the school. A tenured professor, he will return to a faculty position at the institution January 1. Ness also will oversee NCAA compliance efforts at the school. Jennifer Crispin named at Sweet Briar, replacing Bonnie Kestner. John F. McCutcheon appointed at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo.

ASSOCIATE DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

Mark Dienhart named senior associate AD for men's athletics at Minnesota. Randolph W. LaBrake appointed associate AD and facility coordinator at St. Lawrence, where he has served since 1983 as director of the school's Appleton Arena.

ASSISTANT DIRECTORS OF ATHLETICS

David White, associate head football coach at Villanova, appointed assistant AD for facilities there. He will relinquish his football duties. Gary Friedman appointed assistant AD for external operations at East Tennessee State. He had served as director of marketing and promotions there. Pat Ryan, a member of the Indiana football coaching staff since 1989, selected as assistant AD at Miami (Ohio). institution's sports complex and Yager Stadium, and will assist in fund-raising for the Red and White Club. Richard Ellis appointed deputy director of athletics at Baylor.

COACHES

Baseball—Jim Schmid, coach at Aurora since 1983, chosen at Waubesa Valley (Illinois) High School. His successor is Mark Walsh, an assistant at Aurora since 1987. Schmid's team was 34-9 this past season, securing its fourth consecutive Division II championship bid.

Baseball assistants—Jim Thomas, a starter at Wichita State from 1979 to 1982 and an all-American his last two seasons, hired at his alma mater. He served the past two years as a sales representative for KMS Inc. in Wichita. Dave Stapleton hired as pitching coach at Grand Canyon, from which he is a graduate. Tom Burgess, head coach at American International, named as an assistant at Central Connecticut State.

Men's basketball—Charlie Gross named at Wisconsin-La Crosse, replacing Randy Handel, who was granted a one-year leave of absence to pursue a doctoral degree. Gross spent the last three years as men's basketball and soccer coach at Maine Maritime. Scott R. Trost chosen at Elmhurst after serving three seasons as an aide there. Marty Gillespie, a former aide at Bradley, named head coach at Wisconsin-Parkside. From 1983 to 1986, he served as head coach at Worthington (Minnesota) Community

Texas selects Kearney for women's track

Beverly Kearney, who helped guide Florida to the Division I Women's Indoor Track Championships team title last winter and a second-place finish at the Division I Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships, has been appointed women's track and field coach at Texas.

After arriving at Florida in 1988, 22 of Kearney's student-athletes earned 44 all-Southeastern Conference academic honors. In addition, Lady Gator athletes earned all-America honors 80 times under Kearney and won 10 national individual titles.

"I am tremendously excited about having her as our track coach," said Jody Conradt, Texas women's athletics director. "I'm impressed with her coaching ability but even more so with her as an individual. When we started making inquiries to fill the coaching vacancy, everyone was so unanimously positive about Bev. She was a clear choice in terms of her qualifications as a coach and her qualities as a person."

Kearney said the decision to leave Florida was difficult but that now is the time to make a change.

"Having spoken to Jody and listened to her aspirations for UT, a lot of our ideas are very similar," Kearney said. "Texas has great academic integrity. Austin is definitely a bigger city. The time was right for me professionally and personally to make a move. I am looking to settle down in a place and I felt like Texas was the place. I've enjoyed all my conversations with people at Texas, especially Jody."

College, where he compiled a record of 54-22.

Keith Brown, assistant at Washington since 1990, named at Colorado School of Mines. He previously spent a year as assistant AD and assistant men's basketball coach at Lewis and Clark and prior to that was assistant head coach at UC Davis.

Men's basketball assistants—Brian Ostermann joined the staff at Missouri Western State, where he also will assist with women's basketball. Dave Cecutti, a part-time aide at Ohio State, elevated to full-time status there. He previously was head coach for three seasons at Capital, his alma mater, where he registered a record of 54-27, including a 21-7 mark in 1989. Randy Roth, an assistant at Akron the past two years, was hired to succeed Cecutti as part-time assistant. Micah Blunt, an assistant at Fairleigh Dickinson-Teaneck, hired at Cal State Sacramento.

Edward Knupp selected at Wartburg, where he also will serve as head men's and women's soccer and assistant women's softball coach. Al Grushkin joined the staff at Idaho State, which also announced the promotion from graduate assistant coach of Mike Graefe. They fill vacancies left by Charlie Miller and Barry Janusch. Grushkin most recently served at Western Illinois as an aide. Dan Leffingwell named at Marietta to replace Steve Goddard, who resigned to become a high-school head coach. Leffingwell, who spent the past two seasons as an assistant basketball coach at Marietta (Ohio) High School, also will serve as men's golf coach. Kevin Gray hired at Baylor. John Dunne joined the staff at Wilkes. Eric Hughes promoted from volunteer assistant to part-time assistant at California.

Women's basketball—Mike Dean, an assistant at Arkansas State since 1988, selected at Texas-Arlington. Dana Munk, who led Adrian to 22-4 and 20-5 marks the past two seasons, chosen at Eastern Michigan, succeeding Cheryl Getz. An assistant women's basketball coach at Saginaw Valley State from 1985 to 1990, Munk took over the Adrian program in 1990-91 after it had suffered four straight losing seasons. Theresa Conroy, who served as an assistant the past two years at Ohio Northern, elevated to head coach there, replacing Gayle Lauth, who coached the program for 20 years and compiled a 274-150 record and 18 winning seasons.

Deborah Ayres selected at Cal State Fullerton. James Turner resigned at Southern-Baton Rouge to become AD

and men's basketball coach at Tougaloo College in Mississippi. Becky Miller promoted from assistant at Mercy, succeeding Carol Schachner-Leib.

Women's basketball assistants—Sandra J. "Sandy" Thomas named at Michigan, where she also will serve as recruiting coordinator. Thomas was an aide at Maine from 1988 to 1992 and has officiated in the Eastern Maine Basketball Tournament for eight straight years. Brian Ostermann joined the staff at Missouri Western State, where he will also assist with men's basketball. Mike Power chosen at Nebraska-Kearney after serving as girls' basketball coach at Gothenburg (Nebraska) High School last season. He replaces Dave Marx, who completed his graduate studies at the institution this past spring.

Cleve Wright chosen at Duke. Myra Fishback, a graduate assistant coach at Tennessee Tech from 1987 to 1989, named there to succeed Rosa Stokes as an assistant. Cynthia Durham, former assistant at Oklahoma and Texas A&M, hired at Rice, replacing Jill Amos Lindblade, who resigned to become girls' basketball coach at Elkins (Texas) High School. Rose Peeples, head coach at Loras from 1987 to 1990, and Mike Caron, who coached at the high-school level from 1985 to 1987, named at New Hampshire. Tina Krah named at California. Rhonda Osborn named at Iowa State. Musiette McKinney chosen at Nevada-Las Vegas.

Men's cross country—Kevin McCarthy hired at Cal State Los Angeles, where he also will serve as head men's track and field coach.

Women's cross country—Karen Dennis selected at Nevada-Las Vegas, where she also will serve as women's track and field coach.

Field hockey—Heather Setzler resigned at Franklin and Marshall, where she also relinquished duties as women's lacrosse coach.

Field hockey assistant—Diane DiBonaventuro hired at Bryn Mawr, where she also will serve as head lacrosse coach.

Football—Buddy Nix signed a new contract through January 1, 1996, at Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Football assistants—Bill Conley joined the staff at Ohio State. Haney Catchings, offensive coordinator at Tuskegee, accepted similar responsibilities at Alabama State. Robert Guarini chosen as offensive coordinator, Kirk Ciarrocca named quarterbacks coach and Ed Ciccone appointed outside linebackers coach at Western Connecticut State. Tony Christovich was reappointed at Wisconsin-La Crosse, where Barry Schockmel also was selected for a position on the staff. Schockmel has served as a volunteer coach for 22 seasons there.

Dan Fidler promoted from defensive secondary coach to associate head coach at Villanova, succeeding David White, who was named the institution's assistant AD for facilities. Fidler has been the Wildcats' secondary coach since his arrival in 1986. Al Paquette named tight ends and special teams coach at Boston College.

Men's golf—Greg Bowser selected at Robert Morris after serving since March as assistant golf pro at Seven Oaks Country Club in Beaver, Pennsylvania. Dan Leffingwell named at Marietta, where he also will serve as an assistant men's basketball coach.

Men's lacrosse—Brown's Dom Starsia named at Virginia to replace Jim Adams, who retired. Starsia has been coach at Brown since 1982 and compiled a 101-46 record.

Women's lacrosse—Heather Setzler resigned at Franklin and Marshall, where she also relinquished duties as field hockey coach. Diane DiBonaventuro hired at Bryn Mawr, where she also will serve as assistant field hockey coach.

time. Edward Knupp, who spent five years as men's coach and one season as women's coach at Wartburg before leaving the school in 1991, returns there to coach both programs, succeeding Marc Maxey. Knupp was men's coach at Wartburg from 1985 to 1991 and served as women's coach during the 1989-90 year. Knupp spent the past year as freshman-sophomore soccer coach at Corona (California) Del Mar High School. Knupp also will serve as an assistant men's basketball and women's softball coach.

Debbie Michael, who guided the Texas A&M women's soccer team to an 11-6-2 record last season, chosen women's coach at Towson State. Alfred Randall, former T. C. Roberson (North Carolina) High School boys' and girls' soccer coach, appointed women's coach at North Carolina-Asheville, which has added the sport for the 1992-93 academic year.

Men's soccer assistant—Al Albano selected at American International. John Kerr named at Duke.

Women's softball—Ray Perri, who guided La Salle to a school-record 33-16 mark last season in an interim position, named head coach there. Perri was inducted into the Philadelphia Softball Hall of Fame in 1986. Kathy Strahan, head coach at San Jose State the past seven years, named at Cal State Sacramento, succeeding interim coach Debbie Nelson. Strahan posted a 201-187-1 record at San Jose State.

Women's softball assistants—Edward Knupp selected at Wartburg, where he also will serve as head men's and women's soccer coach and assistant men's basketball coach. Theresa Conroy named at Ohio Northern, where she also was named women's basketball coach.

Men's tennis—Karl Purnell resigned after one season at Franklin and Marshall.

Men's track and field—Kevin McCarthy hired at Cal State Los Angeles, where he also will serve as head men's cross country coach. McCarthy spent the past seven years as a track and field aide at UC Irvine.

Women's track and field—Karen Dennis appointed at Nevada-Las Vegas, where she also will serve as women's cross country coach.

Women's volleyball—Mary Ellen Murchison selected at Cal State Fullerton. Ron Twomey named at Villanova after serving as assistant women's coach at Appalachian State. Richard See named to succeed Mary Mix at Franklin and Marshall. Virginia "Ginny" Alexander selected at Drexel, succeeding Peggy Kane-Hopton, who resigned after 10 seasons to devote more time to her family. Alexander previously served as assistant at Michigan State and Western Kentucky.

Patti Ford, an assistant at North Dakota State since 1989, named at Wisconsin-River Falls, succeeding Denise Baldwin. Sue Bias named at Sweet

Deaths

Jerome Brown, an all-American football defensive lineman at Miami (Florida) in 1986 and a member of its 1983 wire-service national-championship team, was killed June 25 in a car accident in his hometown of Brooksville, Florida. He was 27. Brown's 12-year-old nephew, who was a passenger in the car driven by Brown, also was killed. Brown played professionally for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Field Scovell, a retired insurance executive and chair emeritus of the Cotton Bowl selection committee, died June 25 of cancer at age 85. He is credited for the agreement under which the Southwest Athletic Conference's football champion plays annually in the Mobil Cotton Bowl. Scovell, who also served as president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association and the Dallas Salesmanship Club, was inducted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame in 1986. The Field Scovell Award is given annually to an outstanding member of the national sports community.

CONFERENCE MEMBERS

The Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference has agreed to divide its 16 member institutions into two eight-member leagues beginning July 1, 1993. The new Commonwealth League will consist of Albright, Elizabethtown, Juniata, Lebanon Valley, Messiah, Moravian, Susquehanna and Widener. The remaining institutions—Delaware Valley, Drew, Fairleigh Dickinson-Madison, King's (Pennsylvania), Lycoming, Scranton, Ursula and Wilkes—will compose the Freedom League.

Jacksonville State announced plans to withdraw from the Division II Gulf South Conference to pursue a move to Division I. It will compete in the conference during the 1992-93 academic year and begin the process of qualifying for Division I status thereafter.

SPORTS SPONSORSHIPS

Cleveland State announced it is eliminating men's and women's track and men's tennis, beginning with the 1992-93 academic year. It also will drop men's cross country after the 1992 season. The cuts will reduce to 14 the number of intercollegiate sports offered at the institution.

North Carolina-Asheville announced it will add women's soccer, beginning with the 1992-93 academic year. It also announced that women's softball will be dropped.

St. John's (New York) announced it will drop men's ice hockey.

Wisconsin-Oshkosh will discontinue men's gymnastics, effective after the close of the 1992-93 academic year.

CLARIFICATION

An article on the 1993 Division II Men's Ice Hockey Championship in the June 24 issue of The NCAA News reported that 10 institutions are eligible to compete in the championship, but other Division II schools that meet grant-in-aid limitations in the sport could become eligible for the championship. One such school is the Alabama-Huntsville, where officials are considering whether to compete in Division II in the sport.

CoSIDA honors Cornell SID Wohlhueter

Dave Wohlhueter, director of sports information at Cornell since 1977, has received the College Sports Information Directors of America's Arch Ward Award. The award is presented annually to a CoSIDA member who has made outstanding contributions in the field of intercollegiate athletics and brought prestige to the position of SID.

Wohlhueter received the award July 2 during CoSIDA's national workshop in Lexington, Kentucky. Currently in his 28th year as an SID, including stints at Bucknell and Ithaca, Wohlhueter has been a primary leader in CoSIDA. He has served as a member of the association's board of directors and since 1987 as treasurer of the organization. He was inducted into the CoSIDA Hall of Fame in 1986.

A native of Golden, New York, Wohlhueter graduated from Ithaca in 1960 with a degree in TV/radio broadcasting. He served as sports director of the college's radio station, was a member of the radio honor society and competed on the varsity tennis team for three years. In 1987, he was inducted into the Ithaca Sports Hall of Fame.

Wohlhueter has received more than 20 national awards for his publications. While at Bucknell, his 1969 football brochure was selected as the best college division book in the country. In 1984-85, his Cornell men's ice hockey brochure was judged the finest in the nation.

CEO role

Commission strengthens function

advancing and supporting athletics programs; in that sensitive matter, they must have the last word or an effective veto. And institutional leaders must assert themselves in the governance of their athletics conferences, for it is here that many of the far-reaching decisions on athletics programs are made. The hard decisions cannot be left to faculty representatives and athletics directors; presidential views on key conference matters must prevail.

Yet wise leaders also share power. Because the survival of intercollegiate athletics programs requires broad-based support, each institution, regardless of size or mission, must assemble representative advisory bodies that understand the complexities of academic programming and the imperatives of fiscal realities. These bodies need to develop policy related to planning and execution.

Having grasped the complexities and responsibilities of athletics programs, they must have immediate access to chancellors or presidents. They must be heard and respected. Together, these groups and campus CEOs should determine criteria for accepting or rejecting contributions or gifts to athletics programs. Such decisions need to be in the long-term best interest of the campuses and of the men and women who support them through contributions.

Campus CEOs likewise must enlist the help of trustees. Presidents and chancellors need to embark upon a well-organized, comprehensive program of education that supplies trustees with relevant data and information. We cannot place them in the position of pleading ignorance. We must prepare governing boards to articulate the importance and values of well-administered athletics programs because those boards have the responsibility to be advocates before the public and before special friends of the institution.

Power-sharing is a political necessity. Yet the need remains, in the face of the siren call of success at any price and the hunger for national recognition in the stadium and on the court, for decision-making of the most exquisitely principled sort. Here, there can be no compromises. In the final analysis, ultimate authority must reside with presidents and chancellors, for ultimate liability certainly shall. As they meet the many constituencies that constellate under the rubric "intercollegiate athletics," that basic fact must be enunciated time and time again.

Title IX suits filed at two schools

Citing Title IX regulations as the basis for action, women at Colorado State University have filed suit seeking reinstatement of a discontinued sport, while women at the University of Texas at Austin have filed a class-action suit seeking the addition of four varsity programs.

At Colorado State, team members asked June 29 for a preliminary injunction to reinstate the women's softball program. Colorado State announced June 1 that it no longer will fund softball for women or baseball for men.

The softball players claim that the timing of the decision makes it difficult to transfer to another Division I program, and they dispute Colorado State's position that the school is in compliance with Title IX requirements.

At Texas, seven women filed suit in Federal court July 1 to force the university to offer softball, soccer, crew and gymnastics as varsity programs. The women currently participate in club or intramural programs at the school.

Diane Henson, the attorney representing the Texas women, told The Associated Press that the suit does not seek monetary damages.

"We're out for the future; not out for blood, but for an opportunity," Henson said. "We want them to give us participation. We've tried to make a reasonable claim."

"This is the first offensive kind of lawsuit using Title IX law in a long time. Most of the cases (that have been) filed were reacting when (athletics) departments dropped sports. This one will be a watershed case and looked at by a lot of athletics departments."

The women's and men's athletics departments at Texas are separate entities. The women's program sponsors eight varsity sports, while the men's program sponsors nine. The men's program partially funds the women's program.

Recently, the Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Council at Texas began discussions on adding sports to narrow the gap that exists at the school between numbers of men and women athletes.

The lawsuit states that there are 304 varsity male athletes at the school, compared to 90 varsity female athletes. It also states that the university's student body is 53 percent male and 47 percent female.

Subcommittee on the Role and Authority of the Commission and the Special Committee to Review NCAA Legislative Procedures.

The Commission subcommittee was chaired by Eamon Kelly, president of Tulane University, and the legislative-procedures committee was chaired by Crowley. The two committees met jointly June 16-17 and developed the four proposals.

Commission Chair Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, chancellor of the University of New Orleans, noted that the four recommendations "were strongly supported by the Commission and now move on to the Council for its support." He emphasized that the steps would have the effect of "assuring more careful attention to legislative concepts, reducing the proliferation of specific agenda items and slowing down the legislative process."

The resolution regarding the CEO's role at the institutional and conference levels will be based on a statement developed by Chancellor Gene A. Budig of the University of Kansas and approved by the Commission subcommittee that he chaired. The text of the statement approved by the Commission appears on page 19 of this issue.

We are two colleges. Hobart College for men and William Smith College for women operate under a unique coordinate system. The two Colleges have a single president, one central administration, one faculty, and one Board of Trustees. The Colleges preserve individuality through separate deans, admissions offices and athletic departments. The coordinate nature of the Colleges respects the fact that gender is a crucial ingredient in the formation of identity during the college years and are thus organized to support men and women equally — both separately and together — in a rigorous, liberal arts academic setting. In this context, the Director's position is thus a unique and challenging opportunity. William Smith has a tradition of quality athletic programs (field hockey, soccer, basketball, tennis, lacrosse, swimming and diving) appearing consistently in NCAA Division III postseason competition. It is a member of NYSWCAA, EAA, ECAC and NCAA.

The Director has total administrative responsibility for the development, management and operation of all William Smith athletic programs as well as both Hobart and William Smith recreation, physical education, and wellness programs. Program coordinators are in place and report to the Director.

A master's degree in physical education or a related field is preferred as is previous intercollegiate administrative experience. The candidate should have proven organizational, administrative, and managerial skills with demonstrated public relations and fund-raising abilities. An overall knowledge of NCAA rules and procedures is required. The full-time, 12-month position carries a salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Nominations or applications, with a letter explaining one's interest in this unique position, a resume, and the names of three references may be sent to:

Dr. Richard H. Hersh, President
Coxe Hall
Hobart and William Smith Colleges
Geneva, New York 14456

Applications will be reviewed beginning July 22. Ideally, the position is to be filled beginning September 1, 1992, but the starting date is open for consideration.

Hobart and William Smith Colleges are Equal Opportunity Employers.

EAST STROUDSBURG UNIVERSITY INVITES APPLICATIONS FOR THE POSITION OF ATHLETIC DIRECTOR (Search Extended)

The Athletic Director holds faculty status within the newly created Athletic Department and reports to the Provost/Vice-President for Academic Affairs. The Athletic Director must provide overall leadership for the intercollegiate athletic program, including the establishment of a close liaison with student leadership, faculty, the Intercollegiate Athletic Committee and the administration. The Athletic Director is responsible for developing and administering an annual budget, supervising and coordinating all personnel assigned to the intercollegiate athletic program, coordination and oversight of athletic facilities, supervising the scheduling and operation of all athletic contests, overseeing eligibility certification of student-athletes, and monitoring the athletic grants-in-aid program. The Athletic Director will be responsible for furthering financial support and awareness both on- and off-campus for developing a long-term plan for the intercollegiate athletic program.

Candidates must possess a master's degree and have three to five years of experience in athletic administration or related experience. Candidates should provide evidence of both their superior leadership skills and their ability to work with culturally diverse populations of students, university faculty, staff and administration, alumni, and the public. Candidates must be committed to high academic standards, the NCAA Division II philosophy, and to ensuring strict compliance with regulations governing intercollegiate athletics and all applicable University, conference and NCAA rules, as well as Title IX and Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity guidelines. Demonstration of effective communication skills and fund-raising abilities will also be highly considered.

East Stroudsburg University is a member of NCAA Division II and of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference. The University currently offers 18 sports.

Salary is based on academic rank commensurate with qualifications and experience. Excellent benefit package. Review of applications will begin on or about August 15, 1992, and continue until position is filled. Qualified persons interested in this position must forward a letter of application describing qualifications for the position, a current vita, and three letters of recommendation to: Dr. Frank M. Pullo, Chair, Search and Screen Committee for Athletic Director, Koehler Fieldhouse, East Stroudsburg University, East Stroudsburg, PA 18301.

1992 Column No. 26

Reserving the use of facilities during the summer in individual sports

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 17.02.1.2.2, in individual sports only, a coach may participate in individual workout sessions with a student-athlete from the coach's team during the summer, provided the request for such assistance is initiated by the student-athlete. During its June 17, 1992, telephone conference, the NCAA Administrative Committee used the provisions of Constitution 5.4.1.1.1 (modification of wording) to amend Bylaw 17.02.1.2-(n) to indicate that in Divisions I and II, in individual sports, it is permissible for an institution's coach to reserve the use of its facilities in the summer to participate in individual workout sessions with the student-athlete from the coach's team, provided the request for assistance is initiated by the student-athlete.

Constitution 3.2.4.6 Drug-testing consent forms

Member institutions should note that per Constitution 3.2.4.6, each student-athlete must sign a drug-testing consent form on an annual basis. The consent form shall be administered individually to student-athletes each academic year at the time the intercollegiate squad first reports to practice or prior to the Monday of the institution's fourth week of classes, whichever date occurs first. Failure to complete and sign the consent form shall result in the student-athlete's ineligibility for participation (i.e., practice and competition) in all intercollegiate athletics.

During its March 11, 1992, conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that a student-athlete who practices or competes prior to signing the form becomes ineligible for participation in intercollegiate athletics. The institution may appeal to the NCAA Eligibility Committee for restoration of the student-athlete's eligibility if the institution deems that circumstances warrant such a restoration. Also, during its January 6, 1992, meeting, the NCAA Council determined that an individual who was not recruited or who has not participated (practiced or competed) previously in intercollegiate athletics at that institution would not be subject to the deadline for signing the drug-testing consent form until the student first reports for intercollegiate squad practice.

Please note that each institution is responsible for determining the date of the institution's first regular squad practice. (See Bylaw 17.02.13 for computing practice opportunities.) Traditionally, the first regular squad practice occurs at the time when practice is officially announced by the institution's coaching staff members and the team first meets on the practice field under the direction of the coach for tryouts and/or practice in the designated sport.

Bylaw 11.3.4.3 Part-time basketball coach—summer camp compensation (prior to August 1, 1992)

Division I member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 11.02.3, a part-time assistant coach is any coach who receives compensation or remuneration from the institution's athletics department or any organization funded in whole or in part by the athletics department or that is involved primarily in the promotion of the institution's athletics program (e.g., booster club, athletics foundation association) that is not in excess of the amount of a full grant-in-aid at that institution, based on nonresident tuition and fees regardless of the actual residence status of the coach.

A part-time coach who receives compensation equivalent to the value of a full grant-in-aid (based on the cost of out-of-state tuition and fees for nonresident students) during the academic year may not receive additional compensation during the summer from the athletics department for summer school or work performed for the athletics department (e.g., summer camp operated by the athletics department). If a part-time coach works at a summer camp that is owned or operated independently from the athletics department, there is no limit on the amount of compensation the part-time coach can receive, provided the compensation does not come from the athletics department and is commensurate with actual work performed.

Please note that effective August 1, 1992, there no longer will be a coaching category designated for the part-time coach in the sport of basketball. Such individuals must be classified either as restricted-earnings coaches or full-time assistant coaches.

If an institution has a question it would like to have answered in this column, the question should be directed to Nancy L. Mitchell, assistant executive director for legislative services, at the NCAA national office.

Panel examines major-violation provision

The recently formed Special Committee to Review the NCAA Penalty Structure reviewed the Association's enforcement process and made some recommendations at its June 4 meeting in Dallas.

The committee was formed this spring to review the penalty structure that was established by the membership at the 1985 Special Convention and to review the issue of innocent student-athletes who are deprived of postseason competition because of NCAA penalties applied against their institution. A second meeting has been scheduled for July 29 in Dallas.

Bylaw 19.4.2.2 lists minimum penalties to be imposed on an institution judged to have committed a major violation. However, S. David Berst, NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement, told the committee that the Committee on Infractions has been reluctant to impose the minimum penalties because it has determined most cases to be unique to some degree.

The special committee expressed concern that the Association may be judging most infractions cases "unique" and imposing lesser penalties even though current legislation requires a set of minimum sanctions for any institution determined to have committed a major violation.

The Special Committee to Review the NCAA Penalty Structure expressed concern over that practice and recommended the following alternatives:

- Eliminating mandatory minimum penalties for major violations.

- Modifying the provisions of Bylaw 19.4.2.2 to reflect the existing practice for the imposition of penalties by the infractions committee.

- Providing a clear definition of what constitutes a unique case.

The special committee also reviewed the provisions of Bylaw 19.4.2.3 and again expressed the need for a clearer definition of what constitutes a unique case. Bylaw 19.4.2.3 is the so-called "death-penalty" rule for repeat violators of NCAA legislation.

The special committee also discussed the issue of a summary-disposition process, by which institutions and involved individuals agree to violations of NCAA legislation and recommend a set of suggested penalties to the Committee on Infractions. Members of the special committee noted that the penalties may differ from the current minimum penalties required for major violations and that the summary-disposition process could create another set of "unique" cases.

received from the membership, and several of those also were sponsored by the Presidents Commission.

However, this year's total could have been considerably higher than 104. Another 56 proposals that were submitted were not acceptable due to lack of sufficient sponsorship or because they were not submitted in proper form.

The 104 amendments are being reviewed this week by the NCAA Legislative Review Committee, meeting July 6-8 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Financial

Delany to chair 21-member committee

James E. Delany, commissioner of the Big Ten Conference, was named to chair the committee, which also includes 10 chief executive officers, two faculty athletics representatives and eight athletics administrators. All divisions and subdivisions of the NCAA are represented, as are all geographical regions.

Working with Delany on the committee are:

Presidents Commission members

William H. Mobley, Texas A&M University (Division I-A); Oscar C. Page, Austin Peay State University (Division I-AA); Brother Thomas

J. Scanlan, Manhattan College (Division I-AAA); Judith A. Ramaley, Portland State University (Division II); David G. Carter, Eastern Connecticut State University (Division III), and Claire L. Caudiani, Connecticut College (Division III).

Other CEOs

Diane S. Natalicio, University of Texas, El Paso (Division I-A); Edward B. Fort, North Carolina A&T State University (Division I-AA); John R. Brazil, Bradley University (Division I-AAA), and Asa N. Green, Livingston University (Division II).

Faculty representatives

Daniel G. Gibbens, University of Oklahoma, and Max W. Williams, University of Mississippi (both Division I-A).

Athletics administrators

F. A. Geiger, University of Maryland, College Park (Division I-A); E. Kaye Hart, Utah State University (Division I-A); Michael B. McGee, University of Southern California (Division I-A); Eve Atkinson, Lafayette College (Division I-AA); Patricia H. Meiser-McKnett, University of Connecticut (Division I-AA); Judith M. Brame, California State University, Northridge (Division I-AAA); Jerry M. Hughes, Central Missouri State University (Division II), and Jenepher P. Shillingford, Bryn Mawr College (Division III).

The charge

The special committee is charged with studying virtually any issue that impacts on financial conditions in college athletics, specifically including:

- Elements affecting financial control and financial integrity;

- The amount, source and basis of financial aid for student-athletes;

- The need to provide equitable athletics programs for men and women;

- Compensation of athletics personnel, and

- The influence of athletics foundations, booster organizations and media revenues.

The committee will conclude its study not later than June of next year to assure that the Commission and the NCAA Council can sponsor legislation for the 1994 NCAA Convention.

In announcing the appointments and the charge, Sweet and O'Brien also said it is their intention to identify several consultants to the committee, including representatives of organizations of institutional business officers, athletics business managers and institutional auditors.

In addition, both the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism and the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force will be invited to designate a consultant to work with the special committee.
