Championships face significant restructuring

The NCAA Executive Committee has proposed extensive changes in the structure of its championships program that, if adopted, would provide additional competitive opportunities for student-athletes and a more equitable distribution of the Association's resources among its 79 annual championships.

the next few months will seek reaction from the NCAA membership to determine its support for the proposed changes. Division I members will receive a package soon after the 1993 Convention that will include the history of the plan and a complete list of what is being proposed. Divisions II and III members will discuss the plan in their business sessions.

The Executive Committee plans to take final action at its May 1993 meeting.

The proposals are the result of a comprehensive study undertaken by the Executive Committee over the past year that included membership surveys and hearings with sports committees responsible for the administration of the championships.

"From the membership's response to our survey, we developed several principles for establishing championships formats based on more objective criteria than an event's ability or potential to generate revenue," said NCAA President Judith M. Sweet, athletics director at the University of California, San Diego.

"It was clear that the championships program is a top priority for

Convention to spotlight award winners

Silver Anniversary honorees continue impacting athletics

This year's NCAA Silver Anniversary Award honorees include six former collegiate stars who continue to make contributions to collegiate athletics in their professional careers.

The Silver Anniversary Award recognizes former student-athletes who have distinguished themselves since completing their college athletics careers 25 years ago.

This year's honorees are Richard "Dick" Anderson, football; Robert D. Johnson, football; Donna A. Lopiano, field hockey/

These individuals and six of today's top student-athletes will be honored as this year's College Athletics Top XII. The group will be recognized January 13 at the honors dinner during the NCAA Convention in Dallas.

Following are biographical sketches of the six award winners:

Richard "Dick" Anderson

Anderson was a three-year starter at strong safety at the University of Colorado, Boulder, and received all-America and all-Big Eight Conference honors in 1967. He led the Buffaloes to a 9-2 season his senior year and a 31-21 win over the University of Miami (Florida) in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

He ranks second on the Colorado all-time list for interceptions and ninth all-time in tackles.

A two-time academic all-Big Eight selection, Anderson graduated in 1968 with a bachelor of Six Today's Top Six honorees will be chosen from these student-athletes and the winter/spring nominees listed in the November 9 issue of The NCAA News. The Today's Top Six and Silver Anniversary Award winners (see story elsewhere on this page) will be recognized January 13 at the honors dinner during the NCAA Convention in Dallas.

Following are biographical sketches of the fall finalists:

Michael Compton

Compton is a consensus all-American center on West Virginia's football team. A three-year starter for the Mountaineers, Compton has been named to the all-Big East Conference team and the all-East squad.

A dean's list student, Compton has compiled a 3.500 grade-point average (4.000 scale) while earning a degree in professional physical education and health. He was the recipient of the C. P. Yost Award

Football dominates proposals

This is the fifth in a series of seven articles covering the legislation that will be voted upon at the NCAA Convention next month in Dallas. This article features proposals in the recruiting and membership groupings.

Football concerns will occupy a prominent place in the recruiting and membership groupings at the 1993 Convention—most notably in proposals that would provide Division I institutions that previously played the sport in Divisions II and III with options after last year's defeat of a proposal to establish a Division I-AAA football classification.

Three such proposals—including one that is expected to be withdrawn—head the membership grouping, which offers a total of eight proposals. Meanwhile, half of the 16 proposals in the recruiting grouping deal directly with football; most are efforts to amend contact and evaluation rules.

Briefly in the News

Oh, brother — times three

The Hagan brothers must have found an unusual curve in the Alaska pipeline. Somehow, all three ended up attending universities in the Midwest.

Two of the siblings attend separate Missouri institutions and the third is at a Kentucky university. The brothers are all freshman swimmers from Ketchikan, Alaska.

Brad Hagan of Western Kentucky University, Matt Hagan of Southwest Missouri State University and Rob Hagan of the University of Missouri, Rolla, competed against one another at the Missouri Invitational Swim Meet December 4 and 5 at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

In fact, the three brothers swam the first leg of the same relay event against one another. Rob's time of 50.17 seconds was the fastest of the trio. Matt's 50.41 was second, and Brad's time was 50.75.

Additionally, another Ketchikan swimmer—Adryn Miller—also swam in the meet for host Missouri.

No ordinary athlete

University of Houston senior linebacker Chris Pezman did not want to become just another former college athlete who had exhausted his eligibility with little more to show for it than memories.

That is why the 22-year-old has worked hard in the classroom. Pezman will graduate this academic year with two degrees—a bachelor's in economics and a bachelor's in business administration and finance.

Pezman also has made his mark in the Houston community. He organized volunteer groups and assisted with a pledge drive for a local public television station. In addition, he has been involved with the Toys for Tots and Shoes for the Homeless campaigns.

Pezman credits athletics with providing him with rich and rewarding experiences that he will carry throughout his life.

"I am better prepared to face the world because of my experiences as a student-athlete," Pezman told Trey Wilkinson, a sports information intern at Houston. "I have had to learn how to manage and efficiently use my time. I feel I am a better person for it."

$1 million cash to lead fund-raising efforts for a new football stadium at Central Missouri State University, President Ed Elliott announced December 2.

"We're extremely grateful," Elliott said. "This gift means a great deal as an expression of confidence in the university and in the leadership of its athletics programs."

"This is a great beginning for a much-needed project. More importantly, this gift allows us to more confidently go to our alumni and other friends of the university to ask for their help in making the new stadium a reality."

Elliott said the gift sets into motion a $3 million campaign to build a new football stadium at Vernon Kennedy Field. The current facility, cited in a 1989 engineer's inspection to be structurally unsound, underwent temporary repairs to make it safe and usable, but those are expected to help for no more than five years.

Construction of the new stadium is expected to get underway no later than December 1994.

Boathouse destroyed

The boathouse of the Michigan State University crew club recently was destroyed by a fire in which arson is suspected.

The 24 year-old structure, made of corrugated sheet metal with wood framing and flooring, was destroyed along with 11 racing shells, a recreational shell, 28 oars, two launches with motors and other rowing equipment. Athletics department officials reported a damage estimate of $100,000.

Insurance will cover the racing shells, but a fund-raising goal of $100,000 has been set to offset other losses.

Fact file

Nearly half of the institutions represented at the 1992 NCAA Convention included at least one woman in their delegations—346 of 727, or 47.6 percent. In Division I, 61.1 percent of the institutions included at least one woman delegate. Of the institutions sending four or more delegates, 82.2 percent included at least one woman. In all, 76.6 percent of all delegates at the Convention were male and 23.4 percent were female.

Committee discusses drug-testing issues

Drug-testing issues—including proposed legislation for the 1993 Convention—were the focus of the NCAA Eligibility Committee at its winter meeting December 8-9 in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee reaffirmed its support for Proposal No. 74, which clarifies that all student-athletes who test positive for a banned substance during an initial NCAA drug test—including those who "redshirt" during their minimum one-year period of ineligibility—will lose at least one season of competition or the equivalent during their period of ineligibility.

The proposal would affirm the precedents established by the Eligibility Committee in administering the legislation since its amendment in 1990. It would ensure that student-athletes who test positive for a banned drug during an initial NCAA test will experience the loss of at least one season of competition and will lose significant game time when they do not compete in the year in which they test positive.

The committee also discussed amending the drug-testing consent forms to reflect those changes if Proposal No. 74 passes.

In a nondrug-testing matter, the committee reaffirmed its support for Proposal No. 75, which would permit the Eligibility Committee to grant an additional season of competition to a student-athlete who has participated in a limited amount of competition as a result of relying in good faith on an erroneous, formal declaration of eligibility by the school's appropriate certifying authorities.

The committee noted its desire to see the proposal remain limited

Other highlights

In other actions at its December 8-9 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Eligibility Committee:

■ Heard a report from Frank D. Uryasz, NCAA director of sports sciences, on 1991-92 results from the NCAA year-round drug-testing program.

■ Directed the NCAA staff to continue to educate the membership regarding the appeals process, particularly those procedures that were modified by the NCAA Council at its August meeting. The committee noted that those procedures restrict appeals of Eligibility Committee decisions to the following: alleged errors in the application of NCAA legislation, official interpretations or established precedent, or failure to follow approved procedures. The decision of the Eligibility Committee shall not be altered upon appeal unless the Council division subcommittee concludes that an error of the type described above substantially has affected the decision of the Eligibility Committee.

in scope and supported the proposal's rationale for granting an additional year of competition in limited circumstances.

Ex-coach files suit

A former women's volleyball coach has sued California State University, Fullerton, claiming his firing was retaliatory because he reported sex discrimination in the school's athletics programs.

Jim Huffman, 33, claimed that Cal State Fullerton's attempt last year to drop its women's volleyball program due to budget cuts amounted to discrimination against women's athletics.

Huffman was dismissed three days after a judge—responding to a lawsuit Huffman had filed—ordered the school to reinstate the program.

CEOs support all Commission legislation

A poll of the chief executive officers of all NCAA institutions shows overwhelming support for the legislative proposals being sponsored by the NCAA Presidents Commission at the 1993 Convention in Dallas.

Every Commission proposal was supported by at least 86 percent of the CEOs participating in the poll.

Perhaps the only one of the proposals that some observers believed might become controversial is one to establish a mandatory athletics certification program in Division I. It was favored by 86 percent of the Division I CEOs responding.

The mail poll was conducted in late November and early December by the Commission's consultants, former NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey and former Commission officer Bernard F. Sliger.

This year's survey elicited responses from nearly half of all Division I CEOs—147 of 298, or 49.3 percent. In Division II, 41.7 percent responded (93 of 223); in Division III, the percentage was 26.2 (90 of 343). The response percentage means the results are statistically valid.

Results:

■ Proposal No. 15, certification in Division I, favored by 86.4 percent of the Division I respondents.

■ Proposal No. 50, establishment of an NCAA Joint Policy Board to include the officers of the Presidents Commission, favored by 97 percent of all respondents, and by 99 percent in Division I.

■ Proposal No. 51, attempts to stabilize the Association's legislative process by requiring committee review of all proposals and by permitting the Commission to designate proposals that could not be amended for two years after they become effective, favored by 90 percent of all divisions and by the same percentage in Division I.

■ Proposal No. 54, to add two outside legal experts to the Committee on Infractions, favored by 86.1 percent (by 86.4 in Division I).

■ Proposal No. 55, to establish an Infractions Appeals Committee, removing the NCAA Council from the appeals process, favored by 93.3 percent (96 percent in Division I).

■ Proposal No. 56, a resolution regarding disclosure of graduation rates, favored by 97 percent (99.3 percent in Division I).

■ Proposal No. 57, a resolution that continues the study of financial conditions in college athletics, with legislation to be proposed for the 1994 Convention, favored by 97.3 percent (98 percent in Division I).

■ Proposal No. 58, a resolution officially launching a study of student-athlete welfare, access and equity issues as the major thrust leading to the 1995 Convention, favored by 96.7 percent (96.6 percent in Division I).

cent in Division I).

Meanwhile, preregistrations for the January 13-16 Convention in Dallas indicate the possibility of a record turnout of CEOs. Through December 11—a full month before the Convention begins—a total of 222 chief executives were preregistered, representing 39 percent of all institutions registering as of that date.

If that trend continues, there would be more than 280 CEOs preregistered, beating the high mark of 266 last year. The record for actual attendance at a Convention is 236, set in 1991. Last year, 213 actually attended. Those are the only two Conventions in history to attract more than 200 CEOs.

Division I institutions to receive surplus check

Division I member institutions soon will be receiving a check related to an unallocated budget surplus from the 1991-92 fiscal year.

At the December 6-7 meeting of the NCAA Executive Committee, Secretary-Treasurer B. J. Skelton of Clemson University reported the surplus of $5.7 million. Of that

Executive Committee returns $3 million to membership amount, about $3.6 million was from lower-than-expected expenditures on budget line items, which included a $1 million reduction in national office expenditures.

The committee voted that $1 million of the surplus be transferred to the funded operating reserve, that $1,228,500 be placed in the membership trust reserve and that $3 million be returned to the membership through the revenue-distribution plan. The remainder, $488,398, continues as unallocated surplus.

Acting on a recommendation from the Division I Championships Committee, the Executive Committee voted that the $3 million be returned to the membership as a one-time supplemental payment. The broad-based component of the 1991-92 revenue-distribution plan will be used in the same proportion as currently allocated for the grants-in-aid and sports sponsorship funds ($2 million to the grants-in-aid fund and $1 million to the sports sponsorship fund).

NCAA, SACS reach working agreement

The Executive Council of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) has reached a working agreement with the NCAA concerning athletics certification and regional accreditation.

The NCAA Council and NCAA Presidents Commission are expected to approve the agreement at their Convention meetings in Dallas.

The agreement is structured in four parts: data collection, scheduling, composition and activities of visiting teams, and form and content of reports.

Data collection: The agreement says that for the most part, data and documents required for NCAA certification will suffice for the purposes of the Southern Association. However, the following documents are required by SACS and not for NCAA certification:

■ Planning documents related to athletics.

■ Descriptions of any assessment methods or instruments used to evaluate the success of the programs in carrying out their goals and objectives, including procedures for monitoring compliance with academic admissions and financial aid policies.

■ Evidence of the use of assessment results to improve athletics programs.

■ Retention and dismissal rates for student-athletes as compared to students in general.

In addition, SACS requires documentation in the area of related corporate entities.

Scheduling: NCAA certification procedures contain provisions to schedule certification visits in conjunction with regional accreditation activities for those institutions that desire.

The agreement includes a commitment by SACS in principle to revise its accreditation schedule over time so that, to the extent possible, not more than two members of a Division I conference would be included in the SACS accreditation schedule in a given year. For conferences with more than 10 members, that limit occasionally would be increased to three.

The timing for orientation and kick-off visits by the NCAA and SACS would be left to the institutions' discretion.

Unless a particular institution preferred otherwise, evaluation visits by peer-review teams would be scheduled concurrently.

The working agreement also includes a commitment by the NCAA to make its decisions at approximately the same time that an institution's accreditation status is being announced.

Composition and activities of visiting teams: Because SACS and NCAA guidelines for selecting peer reviewers are almost identical and because of the substantial similarity in the format and content of evaluation visits, the same three-to-five-member team should be able to accomplish both functions.

A complete evaluation of the institution's NCAA self-study report, which will include areas not required for SACS accreditation, would satisfy most of the evaluative criteria established for intercollegiate athletics by SACS. Except for a few minor items, SACS evaluative criteria would be covered in the self-study report by the responses to the following statements:

■ The objectives and goals of the intercollegiate athletics program shall provide for the physical and emotional well-being and social development of student-ath-

An equitable plan for championships

By Eugene F. Corrigan

CHAIR, NCAA DIVISION I CHAMPIONSHIPS COMMITTEE

The proposals put forth by the NCAA Executive Committee regarding the Association's championships program have the potential to accomplish many meaningful goals at relatively little expense.

At once, we can treat all championships equitably in terms of field sizes, per diem allowances and travel-party expenses. We can maintain our philosophy of providing quality competition for elite teams and athletes while providing championships access to conferences that may not have had it in the past. By using sponsorship as our base, we can have a championships program that reflects how the members are using their resources.

From my perspective as chair of the Division I Championships Committee, these proposals represent an opportunity for a major accomplishment of which the Association can be proud. We are poised to take a large step toward a more equitable championships program while maintaining fiscal responsibility and not unduly burdening any single championship.

Nothing in this plan is final, but the best estimate is that the proposals on the table will cost the Association less than $200,000, a small amount compared to the overall championships budget of about $35 million. A possibility exists that the program may be accomplished for less. In August, the Executive Committee set aside $4.3 million in a championships reserve with this project in mind, but in all probability, most of that money will not be needed for this purpose.

More than money is involved, of course, which is why we have made such a point of soliciting the membership's opinions on championships competition throughout this process. In early summer, the Executive Committee surveyed all member institutions and conferences, and in October, a subcommittee of the Division I Championships Committee met with chairs of committees

Life deals a challenging cross

By Ric T. Granryd

When my layoff was official, I became bitter at most of the people who were involved. I had done my job well and didn't feel I deserved to be cut.

I quickly realized that bitterness is an awful feeling and that because of it, I was learning and accomplishing absolutely nothing. I felt as though I had taken several steps backward in life.

I'm of the mind that you create the circumstances of your life. In soccer, every coach and player loves to see crosses into the penalty box—even goalkeepers like myself. As much as we love to see them, they're difficult to perceive correctly by all those involved.

I guess life puts a lot of crosses into the box, and we always have to decide if we stay on the line and react to the actions of others or if we come off the line and challenge. The decision is always easier when you're on the sidelines or watching the video, isn't it? Well, for me, this time life has sprinted toward the end line and driven a shoulder-high ball beyond the penalty spot.

High balls never were a strength of mine, but I never shied away from contact and often went out there looking for it. So, I've made the decision to come off my line.

My first child was born in April. Throughout nine years of marriage and coaching, my fear about having children was always of not having enough quality time to be a good dad. Boom! Now I've got the time, and I'm a great dad.

Unlike all of my mentors who volunteered countless hours to developing soccer in various ways, I've always had the fortune of being compensated for all my soccer endeavors. Now, I'm having a wonderful time donating my time and experience to the university. It's not to give back to the game or to give back to the school, but it's for me. It dramatically reinforces my love for the game and for coaching college student-athletes.

For the first time, I've spent a lot of time with myself. I don't have any deep-rooted feelings of inferiority or anything like that to work out. But I've never really listened to the feelings that my soul undoubtedly emanates continuously.

The right coaching job for me is coming. I can feel it. I'm battling that market as though there's no tomorrow. And when I get that new job, this experience will be behind me, though not forgotten and though held dear to my soul always.

Ric T. Granryd is volunteer assistant soccer coach at California State University, Chico. He was laid off at the beginning of the semester because of the economic problems in the California higher education system.

□ Opinions

Accountability, competition can coexist

Martin Jischke, president
Iowa State University

Des Moines Register

"The idea of wanting programs to be competitive, to follow rules, to reflect well on the university and to be accountable is something that I have always believed in in my role as a president of a university.

"It is in keeping with the spirit infusing intercollegiate athletics today to be more accountable. We are all being asked to be more accountable in higher education, and athletics is part of that movement. That is the tenor of our time in education....

"We have been looking at adopting the NCAA standards for satisfactory progress as the appropriate standard for successful progress. I think they are appropriate standards because they are quite consistent and almost identical to what we have here already. The number of intercollegiate athletes who persist and get a degree here is increasing very nicely. Three years ago, it was 43 percent; two years ago, we got to 54 percent; and last year, we got 56 percent.

"I don't interpret that call for greater accountability in any way to suggest a diminution of interest and support for intercollegiate athletics."

Sports medicine

Susan Harman, columnist

Des Moines Register

"Our system recognizes that football players assume a certain degree of risk when they play a game that encourages collisions. The legal system doesn't kick in until the injury can be traced to someone's negligence.

"In that sense, athletics is no different from any form of human endeavor. If you are negligent and your negligence causes me harm, I can sue and recover from you.

"By the same token, if a coach teaches an illegal technique that can cause injury or encourages players to purposely injure other players, that coach should be held accountable. That is not a radical position, simply a logical extension of our law.

"Our social policy does not and should not protect people who promote dangerous conduct just because they are coaches."

Gender equity

Donna A. Lopiano, executive director
Women's Sports Foundation

The Chronicle of Higher Education

On the prospect of proposed cost-containment legislation for the 1993 NCAA Convention not being considered until gender-equity and financial-condition issues have been more thoroughly reviewed:

"I'm sure opponents are going to use the...excuse that this is not the time to deal with the issue piecemeal.

"I don't think higher education is in a position to ignore any piece of legislation that deals with cost cutting. In order to get gender equity, there has to be a redistribution of resources. That, coupled with financial sanity, is going to get you gender equity. We must cut the excess, and any proposal that does that is a step forward.

"I am very encouraged whenever anybody puts something on the table. Even if it doesn't pass, it makes people think and discuss, argue and deliberate."

Conference realignment

Fred Jacoby, commissioner
Southwest Conference

USA Today

"According to a recent College Football Association financial survey of 66 Division I-A universities, on average football television revenue represents only 10 percent of an athletics budget and the athletics budget constitutes only one percent of the total university budget. Moreover, in today's economic climate, nothing can be taken for granted.

"Television revenue has a high degree of volatility. If a network loses money on a professional contract, there is less revenue for college rights fees....

"There are seven key factors to consider in the realignment/expansion decisions:

"Can teams reach the level of expectation in winning that has been established over the years? In any super conference, half the teams will win and half will lose. Universities should be positioned where the level of expectation can be met.

"Academic compatibility with conference members.

"Leadership role in conference governance.

"Alumni base and flow of commerce: Universities should be in a conference where they have a large alumni base. The flow of commerce between states is significant for business and public interest.

"Travel costs and time are minimized in a regional conference and expanded in a geographically broad conference.

"A recruiting base is the lifeline for any program. A regional conference encourages closer ties with high-school coaches and parents to see their sons or daughters compete.

"Traditions in college sports are established over years of competition and effectively separate college sports from pro sports. Often, these traditions are severed in changing conferences."

Overlooked recruit shoots down competition to win NCAA title

By Martin T. Benson
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

West Virginia University junior Tim Manges wasn't sure he could crack the national-champion Mountaineer rifle team's top four as a freshman, but he decided he would work hard and do his best.

Within a year, his best was better than almost anyone else's.

Manges won the 1992 NCAA smallbore rifle championship and was edged by teammate Ann-Marie Pfiffner for the individual air-rifle crown.

His smallbore standing score of 389 established an NCAA championships record for individual competition. Both he and Pfiffner tied the individual air-rifle record set by the Mountaineers' Gary Hardy in 1990 (393), but Pfiffner had hit 29 center shots to Manges' 27 and claimed the championship.

A day later, as West Virginia claimed its record fifth straight team title and eighth championship overall, Manges led all competitors in smallbore. In air rifle, both he and Alaska Fairbanks' Jennifer O'Neal shot a meet-record 395.

Surprising success

It is no shock that a Mountaineer would set a couple of meet records.

What is surprising is who did it.

As a high-school senior in Cocur d'Alene, Idaho, Manges had to shop himself around for a scholarship. He wrote to West Virginia but said he wasn't sure he was good enough to shoot there. The Mountaineers were going through a coaching change at the time, so Manges' letter went unanswered for a while.

By March, coach Marsha Beasley—who had taken over the program in November—was down to her last scholarship. She offered it to another shooter, who turned it down. She called Manges, who, she recalls, "had shot some good scores, but nothing great, and hadn't done well against top competition."

Beasley, who said she is embarrassed now to think how close she came to not getting Manges, thought she had dropped the ball in recruiting. Ironically, Manges says he thought West Virginia did the best job of recruiting him.

"Once she contacted me, I knew that was where I wanted to go," he said.

Thanks ex-teammate

Manges credits former teammate Hardy with helping him develop his confidence and work ethic. Although he has the term "national champion" attached to his name now, Manges still doesn't see himself as being better than other shooters.

"I look at others as having proved that they are better than I am, and it's up to me to prove my worth," he said. "It's taken me longer to realize (his ability) than it has other people. I still have to work hard to be as good as everyone else."

The sport of rifle is physically tougher than one might think. Although there isn't much movement, competition is grueling. Matches can start at 8 a.m. and not finish until 2 p.m. Competitors shoot 160 shots in increments of 40 with varied lengths of rest in-between. The typical smallbore rifle weighs about 15 pounds. Air rifles weigh about 12 pounds.

"You have to keep your heart rate down when you're shooting," Manges said. "If it gets too high, you can start bouncing."

Manges stays in shape by lifting weights twice a week and running three miles a day, three times a week.

Mental toughness

Mental toughness also is important in competition because a match is "like running the same play in football 160 times and trying to get it perfect," he said.

Because of West Virginia's success, Manges and his teammates—although far from being media stars—are better known than shooters on other campuses.

"Everyone knows about the rifle team, but they don't follow it or know when there's a match," he said. "They are really warm to the idea and like the fact that there is a national-champion team here."

Though he has plenty of collegiate shooting left to do, Manges has his sights set on higher goals. A member of the U.S. National Developmental Team, he has shot in numerous international matches and was one of three collegiate shooters to compete in the Olympic Trials last year. On the last day, he shot 1,169, which was a new junior and collegiate record for the outdoor 50-meter course.

"He didn't qualify but he showed he could compete with anyone," Beasley said. "The other shooters knew he was there."

Manges, who hopes to train full time at the Olympic Training Center after graduation, said he's in this sport for the long haul.

"I will pursue the Olympics as long as I'm competitive," he said. "When I reach the age where people that are my age now start beating me, I'll move on and let them take their shot."

Twenty-four named to CFA scholar-athlete team

The College Football Association has named 24 football student-athletes to its second annual Hitachi/CFA Scholar-Athlete Team.

In recognition of the players' accomplishments in successfully balancing athletics and academics, a $1,000 donation in the name of the student-athlete and Hitachi will be made to the high school that was attended by each of the honorees.

Sports information directors and academic advisers at CFA institutions nominated more than 95 student-athletes from more than 50 schools for the honor. Criteria for nomination include a cumulative grade-point average between 3.000 and 4.000 (4.000 scale), standing as at least a junior athletically, completion of 50 percent of degree requirements, completion of at least one full academic year at the institution, and playing time as a starter or significant reserve.

Selections were made by a panel that included faculty, athletics administrators, a football coach, an academic adviser and a sports information director.

The members of the team, with school, position, grade-point average and academic major (graduate major in parentheses) are:

Offense

Mike Compton, West Virginia, lineman, 3.500 in physical education and health; Justin Hall, New Mexico, lineman, 3.900 in political science; Jim Hansen, Colorado, lineman, 4.000 in aerospace engineering (fluid dynamics); Corey Holliday, North Carolina, receiver, 3.100 in business; J. J. Joe, Baylor, back, 3.500 in finance/accounting; Alec Millen, Georgia, lineman, 3.300 in psychology; Doug Pelfrey, Kentucky, kicker, 3.100 in biology (dentistry); Greg Primus, Colorado State, receiver, 3.000 in microbiology; Jim Scott, Nebraska, lineman, 3.200 in business administration; Travis Sims, Hawaii, back, 3.200 in communications; Gino Torretta, Miami (Florida), back, 3.400 in business management (business administration); Jason Wolf, Southern Methodist, receiver, 3.100 in finance.

Defense

Brooks Barta, Kansas State, linebacker, 3.300 in math education; Daniel Boyd, Mississippi State, linebacker, 3.300 in microbiology; Cary Brabham, Southern Methodist, back, 3.200 in finance; Grant Johnson, Air Force, linebacker, 3.900 in engineering sciences; Owen Kelly, Arkansas, lineman, 3.500 in pre-medicine; Michael McElrath, Army, back, 3.600 in mechanical engineering; James Singleton, Southern Mississippi, lineman, 3.800 in industrial engineering technology; Darrin Smith, Miami (Florida), linebacker, 3.200 in business management (business administration); Mike Stigge, Nebraska, punter, 3.500 in pre-veterinary science; Dean Wells, Kentucky, linebacker, 3.300 in marketing (business administration); Joey Wheeler, Rice, linebacker, 3.500 in managerial studies; Jeremy Williams, Memphis State, back, 3.400 in education.

Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 20 November 19, 1992

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

Financial aid/graduation or cancellation

1. Reduction or nonrenewal of financial aid. The committee determined that the reference to "institutional financial aid" set forth in NCAA Bylaws 15.3.4.1, 15.3.4.2 and 15.3.5.1 refers only to institutional aid that is based in any degree on athletics ability. Thus, if a student-athlete is receiving institutional aid unrelated to athletics ability and such aid is reduced or not renewed for the ensuing academic year, the institution is not obligated to provide an opportunity for a hearing before the institutional agency making the award, except as provided under institutional policy applicable to all students. [References: 15.3.4.1 (graduation and cancellation permitted), 15.3.4.2 (graduation and cancellation not permitted), 15.3.5.1 (institutional obligation) and 15.5.1.1 (athletics aid received)]

Radio/television

2. Student-athlete appearing on "made-for-television" movie. It is permissible for a student-athlete with remaining eligibility to appear in and receive expenses for a "made-for-television" movie, provided the provisions of 12.5.3 are satisfied. In light of the advent of commercial cable television programming, the committee recommended that the NCAA Council review the entire issue of student-athletes appearing in commercial films and cable programs to determine whether such activity should be permissible and, if so, whether student-athletes should be permitted to receive compensation for such appearances. [References: 12.5.2.3.4 (appearance in commercial films), 12.5.3 (radio and television appearances) and IC 11/21/92, Item No. 3]

Expenses—travel

3. Travel to a special event (e.g., holiday tournament) followed by a regular-season contest during a vacation period. The provisions of 16.8.1.4.1 are not applicable if, during an institution's vacation period, a student-athlete participates in a special event, travels from the special event to participate in a regular-season contest and returns home subsequent to the completion of the regular-season contest. Under such circumstances, it would be necessary for the student-athlete to pay for the travel expenses to return home after the regular-season contest and to return to the institution's campus. The committee referred the application of 16.8.1.4.1 as it applies to travel to special events during the vacation period to the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics. It was noted that there appears to be much confusion regarding the application of the current formula and that the application of the formula may result in institutions providing a significant amount of money to a student-athlete. [References: 16.8.1.4.1 (travel to NCAA championships and special events during vacation period—general rule) and AdComm 8/14/85, Item No. 1-a]

Individual eligibility

4. Student-athlete receiving travel expenses when eligibility status changes. A student-athlete who will become academically eligible at the end of a term may receive travel expenses before the conclusion of the term to attend a competition that occurs after the date of the last scheduled examination listed in the institution's official calendar for that term, provided the institution can certify that the student-athlete will become eligible during that trip, and the student-athlete does not represent the institution in competition until the day after the date of the last scheduled examination. [References: 14.12 (change in eligibility status) and 16.8.1.2 (competition while representing institution)]

Transfer—two-year college

5. Student-athlete receiving associate of arts degree from noncollegiate institution (Divisions I and II). The committee confirmed that a student-athlete who attends an institution that does not meet the definition of a collegiate institution per 14.02.3 may not use an associate of arts degree from that institution for purposes of satisfying the two-year college graduation requirement for transfer eligibility. [References: 14.02.3 (collegiate institution), 14.6.4.1 (to Division I institutions), 14.6.4.2 (to Division II institutions) and 14.6.4.4 (academic degree)]

Spouses/evaluation

6. College coach attending contest involving prospects who are coached by spouse (Divisions I and II). An institution's coach may attend a contest outside the permissible evaluation period in the coach's sport if the contest involves prospective student-athletes coached by his or her spouse, provided the attendance by the coaching staff member at such a contest does not involve any personal contact with any prospect (or the prospect's parent or legal guardian). [References: 13.02.5 (evaluation), 13.1.2.3 (b) (coach who is prospect's parent or legal guardian) and IC 11/16/89, Item No. 3]

Individual eligibility/nonqualifier/partial qualifier

7. Receipt of financial aid during two-week temporary certification period (Divisions I and II). An institution may not provide nonpermissible financial aid to a nonqualifier or partial qualifier during the two-week temporary-certification period set forth in 14.3.5.1.1 and 14.6.4.4.6.1 in which the student may practice (but not compete) while the institution is obtaining information necessary to certify the student-athlete's eligibility. [References: 14.3.2 (eligibility for financial aid, practice and competition—partial qualifier and nonqualifier), 14.3.5.1.1 (temporary certification, recruited student-athlete) and 14.6.4.4.6.1 (temporary certification, two-year college transfer)]

Evaluation

8. Evaluation period applicable to high-school student-athlete with no remaining eligibility (Division II). The regulation that permits Division II basketball coaches to evaluate a prospective student-athlete between the prospect's initial and final high-school or two-year college contest does not permit an institution to observe a prospect who has no remaining high-school eligibility and who is participating in non-high-school athletics competition during the academic year, unless such competition occurs during a contact period or, in women's basketball, the observation occurs at the AAU national championship. Portland State got offensive help from Joy Russell in its Division II volleyball title-match victory.

Balance helps Portland State secure II volleyball crown

Host Portland State relied on a senior setter and a trio of junior hitters to win its fourth Division II Women's Volleyball Championship December 7 before a crowd of 1,512.

Erika Boggio, Leanne Peters and Joy Russell combined for 70 kills, and Suzy Hall had 63 assists in a 13-15, 15-12, 13-15, 15-8, 15-10 victory over Northern Michigan, giving the Vikings their first title since 1988. All four Viking players were named to the all-tournament team.

Russell converted two kills down the stretch in game five that allowed the Vikings to pull away from a 9-9 deadlock. Portland State began a string of five straight points on a Shelly Earl block, then clinched the match when Russell's kill caromed off Northern Michigan's back row and into the stands.

The win completed a school-best 36-1 campaign for the Vikings and extended their winning streak to 28 matches, another school record.

Northern Michigan (34-4), in only its second tournament appearance, established a tournament record with 99 kills in the championship match, surpassing the 97 kills by North Dakota State in 1988. The Wildcats rallied from a 13-8 deficit to win game one but lost leads of 12-9 in game two and 6-2 in game four—reversals that proved pivotal.

"Northern Michigan played a great match," said Portland State head coach Jeff Mozzochi, who has been at the helm for all four Portland State titles. "Jim Moore (Northern Michigan head coach) and I talked about this a few weeks ago, and we felt that if both our teams played to their potential, we would probably meet in this match and it would go five games."

This year's championship is only the third to be decided by five games and the first since 1987. It also is the third time in four years that the host institution has won the crown.

"Having a crowd like this really meant the difference for us," Mozzochi said. "They gave us CPR. We were down and out a couple of times and they brought us back."

Portland State, champions in 1984, 1985 and 1988, advanced to the final with home victories over Central Missouri State (15-4, 15-13, 15-9), Gannon (15-6, 15-5, 15-4) and Cal State Los Angeles (15-7, 15-2, 15-7). The four victories give Portland State a division-leading 27 tournament victories in 11 appearances.

Northern Michigan bounced two-time defending champion West Texas State in the semifinals, 15-7, 15-9, 15-6, and gained a berth in the championship match. Four Wildcats—Tricia Tuler, Heather Koenig, Andrea Gommans and Stacy Metro—also were named to the all-tournament team.

West Texas State (30-11) captured the third-place game over Cal State Los Angeles (25-11), 15-3, 15-8, 15-12. Pereira paced the winners with 18 kills.

Torretta's leadership lands Heisman award

University of Miami (Florida) quarterback Gino Torretta's bottom line earned him the top honor in college football December 12 when he was named the winner of the 1992 Heisman Memorial Trophy.

Torretta won a close race with two players who had more impressive individual statistics. San Diego State University running back Marshall Faulk, the early-season favorite to win the award, rushed for 1,630 yards to lead Division I-A for the second straight season, and University of Georgia running back Garrison Hearst led the division in scoring (21 touchdowns for 126 points) and was second in rushing (1,547 yards).

But these performances were overshadowed by Torretta's leadership of a team that can earn its second straight wire-service national championship with a victory over the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, in the USF&G Sugar Bowl January 1. The Hurricanes are 26-1 with Torretta as the starting quarterback.

Torretta finished the season fifth in Division I-A in total offense with 276 yards per game, and his passing-efficiency rating of 132.8 was 19th in the division. In 402 attempts, Torretta passed for 19 touchdowns and just seven interceptions.

The senior from Pinole, California, received 310 first-place votes and 1,400 points in nationwide voting by sports journalists and former Heisman winners. Faulk, a sophomore, finished second with 164 first-place votes and 1,080 points. Hearst, a junior, finished third with 140 first-place votes and 982 points.

Torretta is the first senior to win the award since University of Notre Dame wide receiver Tim Brown won it in 1987. Torretta's brother Geoff was the backup to Miami's other Heisman winner, quarterback Vinny Testaverde, who won the award in 1986.

Jacksonville State avenges loss in II football title game

If Yogi Berra had been at the Division II Football Championship title game December 12 in Florence, Alabama, he would have said it was "deja vu all over again."

The 1991 and 1992 finals matched the same two teams—Pittsburg State and Jacksonville State. On the night before both games, Pittsburg State's offensive leader won the Harlon Hill Trophy, Division II's equivalent of the Heisman Trophy. And the Harlon Hill winner struck early in both games to give the Gorillas the lead.

Fortunately for Jacksonville State, the similarities ended there. The patient Gamecocks overcame a 14-3 deficit by controlling the ball for more than 38 minutes and rushing for 390 yards on the way to a 17-13 victory before 11,733 fans at Braly Municipal Stadium.

The victory enabled Jacksonville State, which finished the season 12-1-1, to avenge last year's 23-6 loss at the hands of the Gorillas (14-1). It also got another monkey off the Gamecocks' backs: They had been winless in three previous title games.

Jacksonville State's victory was not secure until less than a half-minute remained, when the Gamecocks' Eric King broke up a fourth-down pass by Pittsburg State quarterback Brian Hutchins at the goal line.

Led by Harlon Hill Trophy winner Ronald Moore, the second-leading rusher in Division II, Pittsburg State came into the playoffs with the top rushing offense in the division. Moore alone had rushed for 638 yards in the first three tournament games. But Jacksonville State gave the Gorillas a dose of their own medicine, rushing the ball 76 times for an average gain of 5.1 yards.

"Their ability to run the ball inside was the key to the game," said Pittsburg State coach Chuck Broyles. "They controlled the football and kept it away from our offense."

The Gamecocks' triple option attack was led by quarterback

Wisconsin-La Crosse holds on to win III football championship

The 5,329 fans who attended the Division III Football Championship title game December 12 in Bradenton, Florida, could not have asked for much more from two teams making their first appearances in the final.

Although it was not high-scoring, the game had everything: blocked kicks, costly turnovers, a defensive score on an extra point and a last-second bit of razzle-dazzle that nearly changed the outcome. And when it was all over, Wisconsin-La Crosse had a 16-12 victory over Washington and Jefferson and its first Division III crown.

The key statistics reveal how close the game was. Both teams had 14 first downs and two touchdowns, and Wisconsin-La Crosse had one more offensive play and 12 more total yards. The difference was Wisconsin-La Crosse's ability to block Washington and Jefferson's extra-point attempts.

After Wisconsin-La Crosse took a 14-0 lead with two second-quarter touchdowns, Washington and Jefferson's defense took control by intercepting a pass on the first play of the second half and then holding the Eagles to two straight three-downs-and-out series. With momentum and good field position, the Presidents finally scored with 6:09 left in the third quarter on a 20-yard pass from Bob Strobe to Mike Specia.

But the turning point in the game came on the extra-point kick, which was blocked by defensive back Norris Thomas, who scooped up the ball and ran 86 yards for a two-point score. Instead of being down 14-7, the Presidents trailed by two scores, 16-6.

The Presidents' defense continued to limit Wisconsin-La Crosse to three-play series, and when running back Chris Babirad scored on a nine-yard run with 30 seconds left in the third quarter, the Presidents were an extra point

Smith, Boeheim top all-time coaching chart

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA ASSISTANT
STATISTICS COORDINATOR

Dean Smith of North Carolina and Jim Boeheim of Syracuse rank No. 1 in victories at the current stages of their careers on the all-time Division I coaching chart.

Both also rank in the top 10 in winning percentage, compared with all other coaches in men's Division I history at the same points in their careers.

Five other current Division I coaches have no No. 1 rankings in either victories or percentage but rank in the top 10 in both categories. They are James Madison's Lefty Driesell, UTEP's Don Haskins, Missouri's Norm Stewart, Indiana's Bob Knight and Temple's John Chaney.

Smith, the most victorious active coach, started the season with a 740-219 (.772) record and leads all other coaches who have coached for 31 years in victories. In fact, he has led all Division I coaches (must have coached at least half of their seasons in Division I) in total victories for each of the past seven seasons.

Smith also ranks No. 3 in winning percentage for all coaches at the same stage in their careers. He trails only legendary coaches Adolph Rupp of Kentucky and Kansas' F.C. "Phog" Allen. Rupp's .843 (669-125) after the 1962 season is No. 1 and Allen's .773 (481-141) after the 1939 season remain ahead of the Tar Heel mentor.

Smith entered the season needing just six victories to overtake Allen for fourth place on the all-time victory list but was still more than 130 from the all-time leader, Rupp, at 875. By the way, both Smith and Rupp played at Kansas under Allen (who played there under the game's inventor, James Naismith).

Syracuse's Boeheim is No. 1 in victories for all coaches at the 16-year point of their careers. The Orangemen coach has a 391-124 (.759) record and is rated 10th in percentage at the same stage of his career. Boeheim finally overtook the legendary Everett Case of North Carolina State (376-133 for

Dean Smith

Jim Boeheim

18 years from 1947 to 1964), who led in victories for 12 straight coaching stages until the Syracuse coach went ahead after the 14th season. Boeheim, Haskins, Knight and Smith are among the active coaches who have both played and coached in the NCAA tournament.

Others doing well

Other current coaches doing well at their respective stages are James Madison's Driesell, fourth in victories with 600 after 30 seasons and ninth in percentage (.690); Temple's Chaney, fourth with 458 victories after 20 seasons and seventh in percentage (.762); UTEP's Haskins, fourth in victories with 606 after 31 seasons and seventh in percentage (.697); Indiana's Knight, third in victories with 588 after 27 seasons and ninth in percentage (.737), and Missouri's Stewart, fifth in victories with 593 after 31 seasons and eighth in percentage (.670).

Other coaches with at least four years as a head coach who have excelled are Louisville's Denny Crum, second in victories after 21 seasons with 496; Kansas' Roy Williams, third in victories after four seasons with 103; Georgetown's John Thompson, third in victories after 20 seasons with 464; Arkansas' Nolan Richardson, fourth in victories after 12 seasons with 286; Oklahoma's Billy Tubbs, fourth in victories after 18 seasons with 404, and Oklahoma State's Eddie Sutton, fifth in victories after 22 seasons with 482.

First-season wonders

The best active coaches for victories in their first season are Montana's Blaine Taylor with 27 last season, and Syracuse's Boeheim, Louisville's Crum, Arkansas' Richardson (at Tulsa), Ball State's Dick Hunsaker, and Memphis State's Larry Finch, all with 26. The all-time leader is Mercer's Bill Hodges, who went 33-1 at Indiana State in 1979 with a Larry Bird-led team that lost in the NCAA Division I championship game to Michigan State and Earvin "Magic" Johnson.

In percentage, North Carolina's Norman Shepard is the first-year leader (.923 in 1924)—the only Division I head coach with a perfect record in his first year at that level.

Looking for a rising coaching star? How about Ohio State's Randy Ayers, who is tied for sixth all-time in victories with 70 after the first three seasons of his career. The career-beginnings lists for Division I were compiled by Gary K. Johnson, NCAA assistant statistics coordinator, over a span of five years.

Long-time mentors

North Carolina's Smith is in his 32nd season at the helm of the Tar Heels, tying UTEP's Haskins for second place on the list of active coaches with the most years at one school. Stetson's venerable Glenn Wilkes leads the active list with 35 seasons—all at the De Land, Florida, school. All three men have spent their entire head-coaching careers at one institution.

Other active coaches with long associations with only one college are Bethune-Cookman's Cy McClairen for 30 years (1962-66 and 1968-92) and Louisville's Denny Crum for 21 years (1972-92). Coaches who have coached elsewhere but boast long stints at their present schools include Princeton's Pete Carril and Missouri's Stewart, both 25 years; Indiana's Knight, 21, and Holy Cross' George Blaney, Louisiana State's Dale Brown and Georgetown's Thompson, all with 20.

The all-time leaders for coaching the most years at one school are Western Kentucky's Ed Diddle and DePaul's Ray Meyer, both 42 years. Butler's Tony Hinkle and Kentucky's Rupp each served 41 seasons at their respective schools. Kansas' Allen is the all-time longevity leader; he coached for 48 seasons at four different schools.

Conradt hits 600

Among women's Division I coaches, Texas' Jody Conradt reached the 600-victory plateau with the Longhorns' 86-69 victory December 13 over Creighton. The Texas mentor is in her 24th season as a head coach and had posted a 598-145 record entering this year for an .805 winning percentage, good for fourth place on the current active list.

Conradt, women's basketball's all-time winner, was ahead of Fresno State's Bob Spencer, who had 568 victories in 26 years as a women's head coach. Spencer and Conradt are the only active women's coaches with more than 500 career wins.

Other active women's coaches well on the way to the 500-victory mark as the season began include Louisiana State's Sue Gunter (474 in Division I), Cal Poly Pomona's Darlene May (471 in Division II), Tennessee's Pat Summitt (470 in I) and Iowa's Vivian Stringer (461 in I).

The top winning percentage in Division I going into this year belonged to Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore, who had a 281-46 (.859) mark in 10 years. Behind him in order were Stephen F. Austin's Gary Blair at 182-38 (.827), Iowa's Stringer at 461-107 (.812), Texas' Conradt at .805 and Montana's Robin Selvig at 334-83 (.801).

In Division II, Delta State's Lloyd Clark topped all coaches at 240-39 (.860), followed by Pittsburgh-Johnstown's Jody Gault at 240-40 (.857). Southern Maine's Gary Fifield led Division III at 126-22 (.851), followed by St. John Fisher's Phillip Kahler at 440-80 (.846).

Current streaks

Nevada-Las Vegas and Duke have opened a large gap in current home-court victory streaks in men's Division I basketball. The Runnin' Rebels have put together a 48-game home streak and the defending-champion Blue Devils have won 32 straight in Cameron Indoor Stadium.

The list continues with Indiana at 18, followed by Evansville and Penn State, each with 14, and Southwest Missouri State and Louisiana Tech, with 13 each. Arkansas with 11 straight victories and Texas with 10 are the only other teams in double figures.

For Division I women, Southwest Missouri State tops the current list with 31 consecutive home-court victories, followed by Creighton with 29, Missouri-Kansas City with 27 and Lamar with 26.

Others with prominent streaks include Toledo with 25 straight victories and Vermont with 24; Miami (Florida) and Stephen F. Austin, each at 23; Tennessee 22; Stanford 21; Texas Tech 20; Kansas 18, and Mercer and Western Kentucky, each with 17.

Other coaching facts

In career winning percentage, North Carolina's Smith (.772 entering this season) is currently fifth on the all-time list, trailing Nevada-Las Vegas' Jerry Tarkanian at .837, Rider's Clair Bee (.826), Kentucky's Rupp (.822) and UCLA's John Wooden (.804).

North Carolina's winning reputation is no fluke because Smith also heads the all-time list of coaches with 20-victory seasons, with 25. The only active coaches close to Smith include James Madison's Driesell at 18 and Louisville's Crum, Indiana's Knight and Illinois' Lou Henson at 17.

Alabama-Birmingham's Gene Bartow, Northwestern's Bill Foster and Southern-Baton Rouge's Ben Jobe head the list of active coaches who have coached at the most schools—six each.

Lost in Smith's quest to catch Rupp in all-time victories is Winston-Salem's Clarence "Big House" Gaines, who has toiled for 46 years below Division I but had posted an 822-430 (.657) record entering this season. He is currently second on the all-time victories list for coaches regardless of classification or association.

Chuck Robinson, who carried 15 times for 110 yards, and fullback Sean Richardson, who gained 106 yards on 23 carries. Fullback Terence Bowens added 92 yards on 20 carries. Robinson threw just four passes, none in the second half.

Moore began the final game of his stellar career by returning the opening kickoff 99 yards for a touchdown, but he was limited to 83 yards on 20 carries from scrimmage. Last year another Harlon Hill winner from Pittsburg State—wide receiver Ronnie West—also opened the scoring with a first-quarter touchdown.

away from trailing by just a field goal. But kicker Scott Lautner's attempt was blocked by defensive back Brett Harper.

Trailing by four, Washington and Jefferson was forced to go for a touchdown on its last possession. The Presidents moved the ball to the Eagles' 13-yard line, and on a fourth-down play with eight seconds left, quarterback Strope pitched to Babirad and then ran into the corner of the end zone. Babirad's pass went off Strope's fingertips, and Wisconsin-La Crosse's victory was sealed.

Wisconsin-La Crosse, which finished 12-0-1, was led by running back John Janke's 119 yards rushing. The victory was the 200th for Eagles coach Roger Harring, who watched from the press box as a result of multiple heart bypass surgery October 9.

Washington and Jefferson finished with a record of 11-2.

Clemson basketball gets two-year probation

I. Introduction.

In May 1989, the enforcement staff was contacted by a source who reported information about possible violations of NCAA legislation in the men's basketball program at Clemson University related to its recruitment of a prospective student-athlete. During the fall of 1989, several additional sources contacted the NCAA enforcement staff and reported information about the prospective student-athlete and the young man's high school. This information potentially involved several NCAA member institutions, coaches, representatives and high schools at which they recruit, and included a broad range of alleged recruiting violations.

As a result of this information, the staff began an inquiry into the operation of Clemson University's men's basketball program. The young man's high-school board of education cooperated in the investigation and assisted the enforcement staff in the development of its information. During the investigation, the NCAA Committee on Infractions granted limited immunity to the student-athlete. Following the initial investigation, a letter of preliminary inquiry was sent to the university's president June 5, 1991, and a letter of official inquiry was issued to the university December 3, 1991.

In January 1992, the enforcement staff received additional information about other alleged NCAA rule violations in the men's basketball program. These allegations prompted renewed investigative efforts by the enforcement staff, which resulted in a supplemental letter of official inquiry. This letter was sent to the university June 26, 1992. On August 7, 1992, the university submitted its response to both inquiries. The staff received the response from the student-athlete August 7, 1992, and from the former assistant men's basketball coach involved in the case August 10, 1992. A prehearing conference was held with university representatives August 26, 1992. Prehearing conferences were held with the legal counsels for the student-athlete and the assistant coach September 10, 1992, and the vice-provost, who also was the director of admissions for the university, September 14 and 15, 1992.

The Committee on Infractions found there were major violations in men's basketball. The violation charged in Part II-A of this report was particularly serious because it involved the improper conduct of those involved in the certification of student-athletes' eligibility. A student-athlete was improperly certified as eligible when there was sufficient information available to the institution that should have put the university administrators responsible for certification on notice of significant problems with the student-athlete's academic credentials. This information was either ignored or not considered, even though it was brought to the attention of the institution on more than one occasion.

Very serious allegations were made against a student-athlete. These allegations involved providing false and misleading information about courses he had taken in high school that could have affected his eligibility at Clemson University. The Committee on Infractions was compelled to dismiss those allegations because the student-athlete was questioned on Clemson University's campus outside the presence of a member of the university staff.

NCAA legislation provides in Bylaw 32.3.3.1 that if an interview with an enrolled student-athlete is conducted on the institution's campus, an institutional representative will be permitted to be present so long as the subject matter relates to the individual's institution or could affect the individual's eligibility. If an NCAA investigator wishes to discuss other institutions, then the representative from the student-athlete's institution would be dismissed. If, however, after the representative leaves, information is inadvertently reported by the student-athlete that is related to the individual's institution, it may not be used against the student-athlete or that institution.

In this case, the student-athlete was being questioned by a member of the NCAA enforcement staff on Clemson University's campus in the presence of a representative of the university. During the questioning, the topic of the investigation changed to other institutions, and the representative of Clemson University was asked to leave the room. Later during the questioning, the NCAA enforcement staff member asked the student-athlete about matters related to his high-school academic records, which ultimately could have affected his eligibility at Clemson University and that could have affected the university, before asking the institutional representative to return to the room. It was alleged that false information

Case summary

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has placed Clemson University's athletics program on probation for two years for major violations of NCAA legislation in its men's basketball program.

The sanctions imposed by the committee included:

- The prohibition of any expense-paid visits for prospective student-athletes in men's basketball during the 1993 calendar year.
 - A limit of two expense-paid visits to campus for prospective student-athletes in men's basketball during the 1994 calendar year.
 - The repayment of 50 percent of the revenue the university received from its participation in the 1990 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship. (The percentage was based on the amount the institution received after the entire amount was shared with other members of its conference.)
 - The forfeiture of all basketball games that the institution won during the 1990 basketball championship in which an ineligible student-athlete participated.
- In addition, the committee adopted as its own the significant penalties that the university had self-imposed in this case. Those included:
- The acceptance of the resignation of the involved assistant men's basketball coach. That position will not be filled before July 1, 1993, leaving the university with one assistant coach during the 1992-93 academic year.
 - The elimination of all off-campus recruiting activities from August 7, 1992, to August 6, 1993.
 - The reduction of athletically related financial aid awards in men's basketball to 13 during the 1992-93 academic year and 12 during the 1993-94 academic year.

Although this case involved violations that occurred within five years of the effective date of penalties for a prior major violation by the institution, the committee noted that the primary violations in this case occurred before the date of the report in the previous case and determined that the repeat-violator rule did not apply.

The committee found that a student-athlete was improperly certified as eligible when there was sufficient information available to the institution that should have put the university on notice of significant problems with the student-athlete's academic credentials. "This information," the committee said, "was either ignored or not considered, even though it was brought to the attention of the institution on more than one occasion."

The committee also found that the involved assistant coach attempted to conceal a secondary violation involving a first-class airline ticket for a prospective student-athlete. "Had the violation been reported by this individual," the committee said, "it would have been no more than a secondary violation because of the circumstances. Instead, by attempting to conceal it, and by providing false and misleading information about it, he turned it into a serious major violation."

In addition, the committee determined the involved assistant coach provided improper transportation during a prospect's official visit and offered benefits to the family of a prospective student-athlete.

The committee's findings normally would subject the university to minimum penalties prescribed by the NCAA membership for institutions involved in major violations, which include: a two-year probationary period; elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year; elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year; possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, and the loss of postseason competition and television opportunities for one year.

The NCAA membership has, though, given the committee the authority to impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is unique. The committee concluded that this case was unique because of the limited number of violations, the university's investigation, its compliance program, its self-imposition of appropriate penalties and its cooperation in the investigation.

Because of his involvement in these violations, the committee determined that if the former assistant coach seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution before March 30, 1994, he and the involved institution will be asked to appear before the Committee on Infractions; the committee at that point will consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of NCAA legislation. Those procedures could limit that coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

was provided by the young man during this part of questioning. His answers, given when a representative of Clemson University had been excused, were the substantial basis for the charges made against him and could have affected his eligibility at Clemson University. As a result, the violations charged in an allegation were dismissed for failure by the NCAA enforcement staff to follow the procedures required by NCAA rules.

The circumstances surrounding the violation found in Part II-B of this report were unfortunate. This matter involved an assistant coach providing a first-class airline ticket to a prospective student-athlete to return home after his official visit. The university airplane on which the student-athlete was to return home sustained a mechanical failure. The involved assistant coach arranged for the student-athlete to use a first-class ticket on his return home. Had the violation been reported by the assistant coach and the institution, it would have been no more than a secondary violation because of the circumstances. Instead, by attempting to conceal the violation, arranging for the ticket to be paid for by another person, and providing false and misleading information about the ticket purchase, it became a serious major violation.

This last event should serve as an example to others who are involved in violations. Violations should be promptly and accurately reported in order to avoid the consequences that have taken place in this case.

As a result of the violation in Part II-A, it also should be noted that when a university employee with oversight responsibilities holds a dual role within the institution, great care must be taken by that individual to avoid actual or apparent conflicts of interest in carrying out responsibilities.

A summary of the violations found in the men's basketball program is as follows:

- A significant failure to exercise appropriate institutional control and satisfy the obligations of membership in procedures used to certify a basketball recruit during the 1989-90 academic year.
- Providing improper transportation during a prospect's official paid visit.
- Offering benefits to the family of a prospective student-athlete.
- Providing gifts to prospective student-athletes.
- Unethical conduct by an assistant men's basketball coach.

In assessing the penalties, as required by Bylaw 19.4.2 in cases involving major violations, the committee took into consideration the limited number of violations, the university's investigation, its compliance program, the self-imposition of appropriate penalties and its cooperation in the investigation. For these reasons, the committee did not impose the full range of minimum penalties.

The Committee on Infractions did not impose the prescribed minimum penalties for a repeat violator as set forth in Bylaw 19.4.2.3, even though Clemson University was found responsible for a violation of NCAA rules in a previous case in which an infractions report was issued May 30, 1990. The primary violations in the current case occurred before the date of the report in the previous case so the repeat violator legislation did not apply.

In summary, the penalties adopted by the committee as they apply to the men's basketball program are:

- Public reprimand and censure.
- Two-year probationary period.
- Development of a comprehensive educational program.
- Reduction of the number of assistant coaches during the 1992-93 academic year.
- Elimination of all off-campus recruiting for a period of one year from August 7, 1992, until August 6, 1993.
- Reduction of financial aid awards from 14 to 13 during the 1992-93 academic year and from 13 to 12 during the 1993-94 academic year.
- Significant limitation on expense-paid visits to campus by prospective student-athletes for two years.
- Forfeiture of all games its team won during the 1990 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship in which an ineligible student-athlete participated and the return of all team awards.
- A recommendation that the institution return a portion of the revenue it received as a result of the institution's participation in the 1990 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship.
- Rectification of all athletics policies and practices.
- A show-cause order requirement regarding a former assistant men's basketball coach.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by the Committee on Infractions.

A. [NCAA Constitution 2.1.1, 2.1.2 and 6.01.1, and Bylaws 14.01.2, 14.1.2, 14.3 and 14.11]

In the summer and fall of 1989, the university failed to exercise appropriate institutional control and to satisfy the conditions and obligations of membership. Before, at the time of and subsequent to the institution's certification October 13, 1989, that a prospective student-athlete was eligible for practice, competition and athletically related financial aid at the institution, insufficient and inadequate efforts were made to determine the actual eligibility status of the young man in light of information that was available at the institution that raised questions about the validity of the prospect's academic achievement records. This information included: (1) two high-school transcripts that clearly contained conflicting information concerning the young man's high-school courses and grades earned; (2) several "resource" courses that were included on one transcript that were remedial in nature but were used by the university to calculate the young man's core curriculum grade-point average, and (3) anonymous telephone calls received by the head men's basketball coach during the fall of 1989 that alleged that the prospective student-athlete's high-school transcript was fraudulent.

On November 29, 1989, the NCAA enforcement staff informed the institution that the young man's high-school transcript could be fraudulent, but in December 1989 and January 1990, the institution continued to fail in its responsibilities in that: (1) the institution persisted in its initial eligibility evaluation, even though the institution's further review of the information used to certify the young man eligible identified numerous discrepancies; (2) during a visit to one of the high schools, the university's associate dean of admissions was provided explanations concerning the conflicting transcripts that he considered unsatisfactory and advised that a corrected transcript would be sent to the university with a thorough explanation of the discrepancies; (3) after discussing the visit to the high school by the associate dean of admissions, but before receiving a corrected transcript from the high school, the university's vice-provost, who also was the dean of admissions, contacted the NCAA legislative services department for an interpretation. In his call, he raised only one of the issues the associate dean of admissions had identified as possible problems. This involved the conversion of the numerical grades earned at his original high school to the grading scale at the high school to which the prospective student-athlete transferred; the other issues were not raised, and (4) in January 1991, the corrected transcript from the high school to which he transferred was sent to the university. Although the transcript was significantly different from the transcript used by the university to certify eligibility (including a change in the overall grade-point average from 2.180 to 1.940), the second transcript was ignored and simply filed with no further consideration given to it.

During the 1989-90 academic year, the young man practiced and competed as a nonqualifier due to the university's reliance on a transcript that included an inflated overall grade-point average and that was inconsistent with another transcript on file with the public school system where he attended high school. The transcript on file at the institution appeared to have been manufactured simply to meet NCAA eligibility requirements and has not been found anywhere except at Clemson University.

In November 1990, the enforcement staff informed the institution that the prospective student-athlete might be ineligible. The enforcement staff questioned whether remedial courses had been used by the university to certify the young man as eligible in 1989. The institution elected to withhold the young man temporarily from participation and subsequently classified him as a partial qualifier. The university appealed to the NCAA Eligibility Committee for immediate restoration but the university's appeal was denied. The university then appealed the Eligibility Committee's decision to the NCAA Council Subcommittee on Eligibility Appeals. It was determined that the young man could not be classified as a qualifier and that he must complete one year in residence without competition.

In reviewing the institution's actions in certifying initial eligibility for the student-athlete in the fall of 1989, the following should be noted:

1. In late July or early August 1989, the admissions office manager and the associate dean of admissions reviewed the prospective student-athlete's high-school transcript from the second high school he attended, which included grades for courses from his first high school where the young man had attended during ninth and 10th grades. On August 10, as a result of a question raised during this review, the vice-provost/dean of admissions spoke by telephone with the principal of the first high school to obtain information concerning at least one course.

New Mexico placed on three-year probation

I. Introduction.

This case involved two separate sets of violations in two different sports programs at the University of New Mexico. The first group of violations involved the men's track team. The track case arose in March 1990 as a result of inquiries into the improper admission of a foreign student-athlete through the use of fraudulent academic records.

The second group of violations involved the university's women's gymnastics program. The university self-reported these violations to the NCAA in March 1992. The Committee on Infractions determined that each of the sets of violations, on its own, constituted a major violation as defined in NCAA legislation.

The processing of this case was delayed because the head men's track coach who was in charge of the university's men's track team during the time when the track violations occurred had relocated to Nevada. When the NCAA enforcement staff was prepared to conduct a prehearing conference with the coach to provide the customary opportunity under NCAA procedures to review the information that the enforcement staff would be using at the upcoming infractions hearing, legal counsel for the NCAA advised that the hearing should be postponed indefinitely because a Nevada law became effective April 8, 1991, that prohibited the enforcement staff from conducting such a hearing with the coach as long as certain conditions were not met. The conditions required by the Nevada law conflicted with NCAA enforcement procedures, so the case came to a halt. In 1992, the NCAA prevailed in obtaining a ruling in a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the Nevada state law. Subsequently, the coach agreed to participate in the case and waived the application of the Nevada state law, if any, to his participation in the infractions case proceedings. The case then was heard by the Committee on Infractions August 9, 1992. At the hearing, the coach reaffirmed his waiver of the application of the Nevada law and expressed to the committee his desire to have the proceedings go forward.

The track case began March 23, 1990, after the NCAA eligibility staff received information from an NCAA member institution that the University of New Mexico admitted a foreign student-athlete based on a fraudulent high-school transcript and West African Examination Council (WAEC) certificate. On April 2, 1990, the eligibility staff informed the university of this reported information and requested that the institution submit the young man's high-school transcript, WAEC certificate, all results from his entrance or placement examinations, and verification used by the institution to certify the young man as eligible for intercollegiate athletics competition at the institution. Upon receipt of the eligibility staff's April 2 letter, the institution declared the young man ineligible in an April 16, 1990, letter to the eligibility staff. However, after reviewing the information submitted to the NCAA, the institution concluded that a violation of NCAA legislation did not occur and reinstated the young man's eligibility.

In an April 18, 1990, letter to the institution, the eligibility staff identified another institution at which the young man had attempted to gain admission by using a fraudulent high-school transcript and WAEC certificate. Based on this information, on April 19, 1990, the institution again declared the young man ineligible for further competition. Subsequently, after the young man had been declared ineligible, the eligibility staff received information indicating that the young man was representing the University of New Mexico in a track meet in Houston, Texas. This led the eligibility staff to schedule a visit in late May to the university's campus to examine the eligibility issues. During this on-campus visit, the NCAA eligibility representative identified several possible NCAA rules violations. On June 4, 1990, the NCAA staff conducted on-campus interviews with regard to the enforcement issues. A preliminary letter of inquiry was issued July 10, 1990, and the official letter of inquiry was issued March 5, 1991. The institution's response was submitted May 10, 1991. As noted above, conflicts between requirements of Nevada state law and NCAA procedures delayed processing the case.

The track violations, for the most part, involved a series of problems relating to foreign student-athletes. The head coach facilitated the admission of various foreign student-athletes by soliciting boosters to guarantee the availability of financial resources for the foreign student-athletes during their enrollment. The guarantees

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has placed the University of New Mexico's athletics program on probation for three years for major violations in the men's indoor and outdoor track programs and the women's gymnastics program. The sanctions imposed by the committee include the following:

- In men's cross country and indoor and outdoor track, no initial athletically related financial aid awards shall be given during the 1993-94 academic year.

- The university may not provide expense-paid visits to prospective student-athletes in those sports during the 1993 calendar year.

- Neither the indoor and outdoor track teams nor any members of those teams may participate in postseason competition at the end of the 1992-93 season.

- Neither the cross country team nor any members of that team may participate in postseason competition at the end of the 1993 season.

In addition, the institution that currently employs the former head men's track coach involved in the case shall show cause why it should not be penalized if it fails to take appropriate action with regard to this individual. In the committee's current view, such action should include: (1) undertaking an educational program under the supervision of his present university in NCAA rules and compliance practices, and (2) recertifying that he has no knowledge of any rules violations.

Since the university discontinued its women's gymnastics program, no sanctions will be imposed by the committee as long as the program is not reinstated for a period of five years from the effective date of the penalties. If the former head women's gymnastics coach, however, seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during the next 10 years, he and the involved institution will be asked to appear before the Committee on Infractions; the committee at that point will consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of NCAA legislation. Those procedures could limit the coach's athletically related duties at the new institution.

The track violations, for the most part, involved a series of problems relating to foreign student-athletes. The former head coach permitted one such student-athlete to compete in one track event on behalf of the university after the university received information from the NCAA about false documents relating to the young man's high-school record.

The former head coach also facilitated the admission of various foreign student-athletes by soliciting boosters to guarantee the availability of financial resources for the foreign student-athletes during their enrollment. The guarantees were needed to obtain the admission of foreign students to the university.

In addition, representatives of the university's athletics interests provided lodging, meals and local transportation for a student-athlete and a prospective student-athlete during a three-week period in the summer of 1990. Although the students were supposed to perform domestic duties for the representatives in exchange for these benefits, the duties performed were insufficient.

The women's gymnastics violations were reported by the university to the NCAA in March 1992. Among other things, the committee found that the involved head coach deliberately participated in a scheme to establish a young woman's eligibility using fraudulent scores on a Scholastic Aptitude Test and a Michigan Test for English Proficiency. The tests were taken by an individual who, with the knowledge of the coach, posed as the prospective student-athlete.

The former head coach then gave false and misleading information in an effort to cover up the fact that another individual took the tests for the young woman, and he encouraged the young woman to misrepresent the facts to the university.

"It is clear," the committee said, "that in both the track and gymnastics violations, substantial benefits were provided in violation of NCAA rules, and significant competitive advantages were attempted and gained."

"It is particularly distressing," the committee continued, "that some of the most serious violations relating to eligibility and admissions credentials and the administration of eligibility standards were areas where scrutiny by officers of the university outside of the athletics department should have been able to provide an effective check and monitoring function."

The committee said it would have imposed more severe penalties if the university had not exhibited a commitment to correcting its problems by assuming greater institutional control over its athletics program. Among the university's actions that the committee took into account were the efforts made to discover and self-report the violations in the women's gymnastics program, and then to take appropriate disciplinary action.

were needed to obtain the admission of foreign students to the university.

Although one of the foreign student-athletes was declared ineligible by the university because of the information received from the NCAA about false documents relating to the young man's high-school record, the head coach permitted the young man to compete on behalf of the university in a track event and used university funds to pay the student-athlete's expenses for transportation, lodging and meals.

The committee found that the following violations occurred in the university's men's track program. The university agreed the violations occurred.

- Representatives of the university's athletics interests signed forms guaranteeing substantial amounts of financial assistance for several prospective student-athletes from foreign countries. These forms were needed in order to obtain admission to the university.

- The head coach entertained a student-athlete at a restaurant with a booster, providing a meal and local automobile transportation. The booster subsequently lent funds to the student-athlete so he could participate in a track meet.

- The head coach permitted a student-athlete to participate on behalf of the university at an NCAA/TAC-sanctioned track meet, providing institutional funds for expenses, although the coach knew the student-athlete was not eligible to compete.

- Representatives of the university's athletics interests provided lodging, meals and local transportation for a student-athlete and a prospective student-athlete during a three-week period in the summer. Although the students were supposed to perform domestic duties for the representatives in exchange for these benefits, the duties performed were insufficient.

- A representative of the institution's athletics interests was used to obtain academic transcripts of a prospective student-athlete from a foreign country in order to expedite review of the young man's eligibility for enrollment.

- The institution failed to exercise appropriate institutional control and monitoring in administering its intercollegiate men's track program.

The women's gymnastics violations were reported by the university to the NCAA in March 1992. These violations related to various actions taken by the head women's gymnastics coach with respect to a foreign student-athlete he recruited. Violations occurred during recruitment, when the young woman received meals, lodging and other living expenses from the head coach, and when the head coach deliberately participated in a scheme to establish the young woman's eligibility using fraudulent scores on an SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) and MTEP (Michigan Test for English Proficiency). The tests were taken by an individual who, with the knowledge of the coach, posed as the prospective student-athlete. When the university began its investigation of this matter, the head coach gave false and misleading information in an effort to cover up that another individual took the test for the young woman. He also encouraged the young woman to misrepresent the facts to the university and tell university investigators that she had taken the tests herself. Subsequently, the head coach acknowledged he had lied and had done so to protect the identity of the person who took the tests.

In summary, the university reported and the committee found that the following violations occurred in the university's women's gymnastics program:

- The head coach provided lodging and meals in his home and provided other living expenses to a prospective student-athlete who was a highly regarded recruit. He tried to justify the provision of such benefits by obtaining a document executed in the young woman's home country that attempted to establish the head coach as her legal guardian, which, in fact, it did not.

- The head coach knowingly participated in a fraudulent scheme in which a former student-athlete took the SAT and the MTEP for a prospective student-athlete by falsely representing herself to be the prospective student-athlete.

The committee found that the following violations of the principles of ethical conduct had been committed by the former head coach:

- Knowingly operating the university's women's gymnastics program contrary to NCAA rules.

- Providing false and misleading information to the institution when representatives of the university asked him who had taken the SAT and MTEP for the prospective student-athlete.

- Encouraging the prospective student-athlete to misrepresent the facts to the university about the circumstances surrounding the taking of the SAT and MTEP submitted on her behalf.

The committee determined the violations in each program constituted major violations. In most instances, these were violations for which the head coach of the sport was primarily responsible and was in a position to prevent, either by exercising greater diligence in knowing the rules or by accepting a greater commitment to observe the rules. Violations in the women's gymnastics program were particularly egregious in that the head coach attempted to justify flagrant and deliberate violations of clearly understood rules of recruiting and eligibility on the basis of his own personal judgment. It is clear, in both the track and the gymnastics violations, that substantial benefits were provided in violation of NCAA rules, and significant competitive advantages were both attempted and gained. It is particularly distressing that some of the most serious of the violations related to eligibility and admissions credentials and the administration of eligibility standards were areas where scrutiny by officers of the university outside of the athletics department should have been able to provide an effective check and monitoring function.

This case displayed two of the characteristics that the committee traditionally regards as serious violations that, independently, ordinarily are enough to make the case one presenting a major violation under the Association's rules. Firstly, in each sport, there are significant violations for which the head coach of the sport was responsible and that could have been prevented had the head coach exercised appropriate responsibility in enforcing the rules. Although the university was not aware of its head coaches' actions at the times the violations occurred, the university placed the coaches in their positions of responsibility for the sports programs. A head coach is an important agent of the university in fulfilling its responsibility for maintaining institutional control over its intercollegiate sports program. In these cases, serious deficiencies occurred in meeting these responsibilities. Additionally, as found with respect to the track program, the university compounded this problem because it inadequately monitored the manner in which the head coach administered the program and interacted with other parts of the university. Secondly, there were violations in the women's gymnastics program involving the submission of fraudulent admission credentials to establish the eligibility of a student-athlete. Violations that corrupt academic standards offend the basic principles on which the Association's membership is premised.

Given the nature of the violations discussed above, the committee would have imposed more severe penalties if the university had not exhibited a commitment to correcting its problems by assuming greater institutional control over its athletics program. Among the actions by the university that the committee took into account in determining the level of sanctions for this case were the efforts made to discover and self-report the violations in the women's gymnastics program, and then to take appropriate disciplinary action. The university discontinued its women's gymnastics programs for reasons unrelated to the events in this case. However, the committee treated this action as a sufficient substitute for penalties that otherwise would be required under the mandatory penalty structure.

In summary, the penalties adopted by the committee are:

- Three-year probationary period during which the university shall conduct an in-depth review of its compliance system and methods for exercising institutional control.

Penalties related to men's indoor and outdoor track and cross country are:

- No official visits for a one-year period from January 1, 1993, to December 31, 1993.

- No postseason competition at the end of the 1992-93 season in men's indoor and outdoor track.

- No postseason competition at the end of the 1993-94 season in men's cross country.

- No new athletics grants-in-aid may be awarded for 1993-94. During the 1992-93 academic year, the institution may not award any additional initial athletically related aid in the sport of men's track and cross country for any student-athlete not on the team roster November 1, 1992.

- Recertification of compliance of its men's indoor and outdoor track and cross country programs.

- The former head coach will be subject to a show-cause order as to why he should not be required to undertake an NCAA rules-education program at his current institution. Penalties related to women's gymnastics are:

■ In view of the action of the university to discontinue its women's gymnastics program, no sanctions on that program will be imposed as long as the program is not reinstated for a period of five years from the effective date of this report.

■ The former head women's gymnastics coach will be subject to a show-cause order requiring the coach to appear before the committee to consider whether his athletically related duties should be limited if he is employed at an NCAA institution during a 10-year period from the effective date of this penalty.

The following sections of this infractions report set forth the committee's findings and penalties in detail.

II. Violations of NCAA legislation, as determined by committee.

A. Women's Gymnastics. Violations reported by the institution and found by the Committee on Infractions: 1. [NCAA Bylaws 13.01.3, 13.2.1, 13.2.2 and 13.5.2]

During the period from March through August 1991, while recruiting a women's gymnastics prospective student-athlete, the head women's gymnastics coach provided lodging, meals and entertainment in his home to the prospect at no cost to her while initiating efforts to become the young woman's legal guardian. The coach erroneously believed he would not be precluded from providing those living expenses normally prohibited under NCAA recruiting legislation if he were her legal guardian. From December 1991 until the prospect's enrollment at the university in January 1992, the head coach again provided lodging and living expenses in his home at no cost to the young woman. During the prospect's residence with the head coach, she trained at a local gym with the head coach's assistance at a reduced cost to the young woman.

While the head coach was recruiting the prospect, he used a former student-athlete from the team, who served as a volunteer coach with the gymnastics program and who was fluent in a foreign language, to assist in the recruitment by maintaining contact with the prospect, who was unable to converse with the coach at that time because she did not speak English. This individual was not authorized to participate in recruiting activities on behalf of the university under NCAA rules, as the head coach should have known.

2. [NCAA Bylaw 10.1-(b)] During the spring of 1991, the head women's gymnastics coach solicited a former student-athlete to take the SAT and the MTEP for a prospective student-athlete, telling the individual that the young woman was not adequately proficient in English to pass the tests and that the prospect would be unable to enroll at the institution if the individual did not help the prospect by taking the tests. The head coach drove this individual to the motor vehicle office located in another city, where she presented the young woman's birth certificate and obtained a picture identification card with her picture and the prospect's name. In June 1991, the individual took the SAT for the young woman at an area high school, receiving a score of 1,010; and in August 1991, she took the MTEP for the prospect, receiving an acceptable score. As a result of these fraudulent scores, the young woman competed in several meets during the 1991-92 season while ineligible.

Violations alleged by the NCAA enforcement staff and found by the Committee on Infractions:

3. [NCAA Bylaws 10.01.1, 10.1-(b), 10.1-(c) and 10.1-(d)]

The involved former head women's gymnastics coach failed to deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics and violated the provisions of ethical conduct by: (a) his involvement in the findings of violations in this report; (b) his provision of false and misleading information to the institution, and (c) his encouragement to a principal in this case to report false and misleading information to the institution. Specifically:

a. The head coach demonstrated a knowing effort on his part to operate the university's intercollegiate women's gymnastics program contrary to NCAA legislation by his involvement in Parts II-A-1 and II-A-2 of this report.

b. The head coach provided false and misleading information to the institution during an interview on February 12, 1992, conducted by an associate director of athletics, the faculty athletics representative and an academic adviser concerning his involvement in and knowledge of Part II-A-2 of this report. During this interview, the head coach denied having knowledge that another individual had taken the SAT and MTEP for the prospect. However, during a March 16, 1992, meeting with the associate director of athletics, the head coach admitted having knowledge of the individual's involvement. When asked about the February 12 interview during an April 29, 1992, interview with an NCAA enforcement representative, the head coach stated that he did deny that another individual had taken the tests and that he "had to lie" because he was protecting the identity of this individual.

c. The head coach encouraged a principal in this case to report false and misleading information to the institution. Before the institution's February 13, 1992, interview with a gymnastics student-athlete, the head coach contacted the young woman and advised her that the institution may have discovered that another individual took the student-athlete's precollege tests and that if she was asked about this, she should lie and deny the other individual's involvement. The head coach also suggested to the young woman that she contact the individual (which the student-athlete did) to learn about the testing procedures that were followed by the test proctor who administered the test in order to convince the university that she was present at the exam site. Sometime after the head coach's March 16, 1992, resignation and before the institution's second interview with the young woman March 19, the head coach advised the student-athlete that although the institution knew that another individual took the young woman's tests, she should continue to deny the individual's involvement in this fraud. (During the April 29 interview with the enforcement representative, the head coach was asked if he ever advised the student-athlete not to tell the truth, and the head coach stated that he did not; however, to protect the identity of the individual who took the tests, he told the young woman to say that she took the tests.)

B. Violations in Men's Track. 1. [NCAA Bylaw 13.2.1]

During the period from the 1984-85 through 1989-90 academic years, the head men's track coach arranged for three representatives of the university's athletics interests to sign institutional statements guaranteeing substantial amounts of financial assistance to seven prospective student-athletes from foreign countries in order for each young man to secure admission to the university and participate on the university's men's track team. (No funds ever were expended by these individuals for the young men's educational expenses under these guarantees). Specifically:

a. One of the representatives guaranteed financial assistance for: (1) a prospect in the amount of $9,300 on September 13, 1984; (2) a second prospect in the amount of $11,900 on January 5, 1988, and (3) a third prospect in the amount of $7,000 on April 17, 1990.

b. One of the representatives guaranteed financial assistance for a prospect in the amount of $10,600 on October 16, 1989.

c. One of the representatives guaranteed financial assistance for: (1) a prospect in the amount of $9,500 on March 26, 1987; (2) a second prospect in the amount of $6,000 on August 4, 1989, and (3) a third prospect in the amount of $6,000 on August 4, 1989.

2. [NCAA Bylaw 16.12.2.1] During April 1990, the head men's track coach provided round-trip automobile transportation to a student-athlete between the young man's apartment and a restaurant, where the head coach entertained the student-athlete with a meal and introduced the young man to a representative of the university's athletics interests.

3. [NCAA Bylaws 14.02.6-(c), 14.02.6-(d), 16.8.1.2 and 16.12.2.3-(a)]

On April 19, 1990, a student-athlete was declared ineligible by the institution for intercollegiate competition after questions were raised by the NCAA regarding the authenticity of his records used for purposes of determining initial-eligibility certification for the young man. Nonetheless, on or about May 23, 1990, the head men's track coach used university funds and arranged round-trip airline transportation (at a cost of $300) for the student-athlete between Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Houston in order for the young man to compete in an NCAA/The Athletic Congress (TAC)-sanctioned track event wearing a university uniform. A representative of the university's athletics interests lent $135 cash to the student-athlete for meals, lodging and other incidental travel expenses on this trip. On May 24, 1990, the young man competed in the track event. The student-athlete subsequently repaid the $135 loan to the representative through deductions of the young man's earnings while employed by a company owned by the representative.

4. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.2.2-(h) and 16.12.2.1]

During a three-week period in May and June 1990, two representatives of the university's athletics interests provided lodging for a student-athlete and a prospective student-athlete. One of the representatives provided lodging, meals and periodic local transportation to the student-athlete in exchange for domestic duties performed by the student-athlete in and around the representative's home. The other representative provided lodging, meals and periodic local transportation to the prospect in exchange for domestic duties performed by the prospect in and around the other representative's home. The duties performed by the young men were not sufficient to satisfy the costs of the lodging and meals.

5. [NCAA Bylaws 13.02.10-(c) and 13.1.2.5-(d)]

In April 1990, the head men's track coach requested that a former student-athlete, who was a representative of the university's athletics interests, arrange for a prospective student-athlete's high-school and WAEC transcripts be air-expressed to the institution in order to expedite the university's determination of the young man's academic eligibility for enrollment. The prospect was never admitted to the university.

The vice-provost/dean of admissions reported that the principal of the first high school expressed concerns to him about the circumstances surrounding the young man's transfer in 1987. The principal of the first high school reported that during this discussion, they also discussed specific courses taken by the young man that the vice-provost/dean of admissions recognized did not appear to correspond with courses appearing on the second high school's transcript. The principal of the first high school also noted that the young man had taken math and English courses at the first high school that were remedial in nature. After being advised that the second high school had included these courses on its transcript as regular course work, the principal of the first high school expressed that he did not understand how such a practice could be appropriate.

2. During the fall of 1989, the university's head men's basketball coach received anonymous telephone calls stating that the young man was academically ineligible due to a fraudulent high-school transcript.

3. Before October 13, 1989, the date upon which the student-athlete was certified as eligible, the university's admissions department received a photocopy of the transcript from the young man's first high school, which reflected courses taken by the young man during his ninth- and 10th-grade years (1985-86 and 1986-87). When comparing the two high schools' transcripts by semester, the following discrepancies appeared:

(a) First semester, grade nine, 1985—The student-athlete was awarded credit on the second high school's transcript for six academic courses that were supposed to have been taken at the first high school, which included a Political Behavior class. The first high school's transcript indicated that the student-athlete enrolled in only five courses. There was no information to indicate that a Political Behavior class was taken at the first high school. The second high school's transcript identified an English I course as a regular core course, although the first high school's transcript identified this course as a resource/remedial course, which should not have been designated as a "core course" to satisfy

NCAA eligibility requirements.

(b) Second semester, grade nine, 1986—The student-athlete received credit on the second high school's transcript for an English II course, rather than merely the second-semester grade for the English I resource/remedial course identified in subparagraph (a). The second high school's transcript indicated that the young man took a Physical Education class, a Wood Technology (shop) class and a World Manufacturing class at the first high school with the following grades awarded: Physical Education (84—B), shop (92—A) and World Manufacturing (76—C). In fact, the first high school's transcript showed Physical Education (83—C) and shop (91—B). By inflating the numerical grades, it permitted the second high school to report a higher letter grade under the grading scale used at that school. In addition, there was no course reflected on the first high school's transcript that corresponded with World Manufacturing. Six courses are listed on the second high school's transcript while only five are present on the first high school's transcript.

(c) First semester, grade 10, 1986—On the first high school's transcript, numerical grade values of 71, 71 and 72 (all Ds) were given for a World Geography course, a Health course and a Physical Science course, respectively. On the second high school's transcript, the grades were changed to numerical grade values of 74 and letter grades of C. An English II course denoted on the first high school's transcript as a resource/remedial course was listed on the second high school's transcript as a regular English III course. The Applied Math course denoted on the first high school's transcript as a resource/remedial course with a numerical grade of 83 (C) was listed on the second high school's transcript as a Basic Algebra I course with a higher numerical grade value of 84 and higher letter grade of B.

(d) Second semester, grade 10, 1987—An English II course listed on the first high school's transcript as a resource/remedial course, with a grade of 83 (C), was listed on the second high school's transcript as a regular English IV course with a higher numerical grade value of 84 (B). The Applied Math class listed on the first high school's transcript as resource/remedial with a numerical grade of 83 (C) was listed on the second high school's transcript as a regular core curriculum Basic Algebra I class with a higher numerical grade value of 84 (B). The second high school's transcript lists a PECE course with a numerical grade of 76 (C) and a Wood Technology course with a numerical grade of 76 (C) in the place of World Geography, 70 (D), and Health, 75 (D), reflected on the first high school's transcript.

Although the above-cited discrepancies were available in the institution's files before October 13, 1989, the university certified the student-athlete as eligible.

4. On November 29, 1989, the NCAA enforcement staff informed the vice-provost/dean of admissions of information indicating that the student-athlete may have gained admission and eligibility at the university improperly through use of a fraudulent high-school transcript and college admissions test score. The vice-provost/dean of admissions then directed the associate dean of admissions to evaluate again the information used by the university to certify the young man as eligible. The associate dean of admissions identified the discrepancies set forth in subparagraphs (a)-(d) of Part II-A-3 above. The information submitted by the university to the NCAA eligibility staff and Eligibility Committee indicated that these discrepancies were recognized by the university before October 13, 1989, the date the student-athlete was certified as eligible.

The vice-provost/dean of admissions then directed the associate dean of admissions to arrange a meeting with officials from the second high school in order to clarify and resolve discrepancies reflected in the young man's high-school transcripts. Upon the associate dean's return from the high school, he reported to the vice-provost/dean of admissions that answers to his questions were unsatisfactory and that the second high school would forward to the university a corrected or amended transcript with a thorough explanation of the discrepancies. The vice-provost/dean of admissions instructed the associate dean of admissions to write a memorandum summarizing his visit to the second high school, which he did. The vice-provost/dean of admissions directed the associate dean of admissions, with the university's head of admissions, to contact the director of athletics and the head men's basketball coach and apprise them of his findings, which he did December 5, 1989. The vice-provost/dean of admissions assumed the responsibility to review and handle the matter at that juncture. During early December 1989, the student-athlete was withheld from competition by the university pending the institution's investigation of the matter.

5. On December 7, 1989, the vice-provost/dean of admissions telephoned an NCAA director of legislative services and told her that the university was satisfied with the authenticity of the young man's transcripts and that the possibility of fraud was not an issue; however, he desired an interpretation regarding whether it would be permissible for a second high school to convert numerical grades earned at a previous high school to higher letter grades when the second high school used a grading scale that was less demanding (e.g., an 85 is a C on the first high school's scale but is a B on the second high school's scale). The director of legislative services advised the vice-provost/dean of admissions that she would review the question with the legislative services staff and recontact him.

Later that same day, the vice-provost/dean of admissions wrote a letter to the director of legislative services as a follow-up to their telephone conversation. He reported that the university recently had received information that the young man's transcript was "incorrect" and that there were several instances when letter grades were increased in courses transferred from the first high school to the second high school, and that the second high school transcript had renamed several courses originally taken at the first high school to correspond with course titles at the second high school. The vice-provost/dean of admissions' letter also reported that the associate dean's investigation revealed that it was the second high school's policy to rename course titles from a transfer student's previous high school to a second high school's title. He stated that it was not uncommon for a letter grade to change from one grading scale to another, thereby resulting in an increased letter grade.

The second high school's course-conversion policy reportedly provided to the associate dean by a high-school official was not accurate and is contrary to the official policy of the involved public school system. The policy governing transfer students' grade conversions requires that the receiving high school (in this case, the second high school) enter only the letter grades earned at the previous high school on the incoming student's official record.

The vice-provost/dean of admissions failed to report to the director of legislative services that the university's investigation had identified numerical grade changes (e.g., changing an 83 to an 84) to qualify for a higher letter grade at the second high school; that courses that were not on the transcript of the first high school were listed as transfer courses on the transcript of the second high school, and that the second high school's corrected transcript, with an explanation of the discrepancies, had been requested by the institution.

In response to the vice-provost/dean of admissions' request for an interpretation, the NCAA legislative services staff determined that based on an April 5, 1989, staff interpretation, it would not be permissible for the second high school to use its own conversion system to convert grades earned at a previous high school in calculating the prospective student-athlete's core curriculum grade-point average. It was determined that the member institution must use an NCAA 48-II form from each high school for certification purposes and that it would not be permissible for the second high school to use its own conversion system to convert grades earned at a previous high school in determining a prospective student-athlete's core-curriculum grade-point average. The director of legislative services informed the vice-provost/dean of admissions by telephone of the staff's findings, and the vice-provost/dean of admissions asked that the issue be referred to the NCAA Interpretations Committee. The issue was taken up at the Interpretations Committee meeting December 14, 1989, and the legislative staff's interpretation was upheld.

administration of the institution's intercollegiate men's track program.

7. Additional violation of a secondary nature self-reported by the university: [NCAA Bylaw 13.2.1]

In January 1990, when a student-athlete arrived to enroll at the university, the head men's track coach purchased lunch for the young man at a restaurant at no cost to the young man.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

For the reasons set forth in Part I of this report, the Committee on Infractions found the violations in the women's gymnastics program constituted major violations of NCAA legislation and the violations in the men's track program also constituted major violations of NCAA legislation. Because these violations occurred after September 1, 1985, NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted by the Association's membership, requires prescribed minimum penalties, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons" that include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic, in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

A. Probation.

1. The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of three years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal by the university to the Council.

Further, the University of New Mexico shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

2. During this period of probation, the institution shall conduct an in-depth review of its compliance systems, particularly its methods for certifying eligibility and monitoring compliance, and submit a comprehensive report to the committee by the end of the probationary period describing the steps taken to establish institutional control over these aspects of its intercollegiate athletics program. The report should address the adequacy of authority of the faculty athletics representative and any other oversight agencies to monitor the level of compliance and prevent violations from occurring.

B. Women's Gymnastics.

1. Because of the action of the university to discontinue its women's gymnastics program, the committee did not impose penalties affecting that program as long as the program is not reinstated for a significant period of time, which is at least five years from the date of this report. Had the women's gymnastics program continued to exist, in view of the serious infractions committed by the program involving fraudulent actions to obtain the university admission and NCAA eligibility of a highly skilled prospective student-athlete, and multiple ethical-conduct violations by the former head coach, the committee would have imposed penalties that exceeded the minimum penalties for major violations. The committee reserves the right to reconsider penalties in this sport if the university reinstates a women's gymnastics program within five years of this report and, therefore, requires the university to notify the committee and reappear at a hearing to reconsider these penalties if the university intends to reinstitute women's gymnastics as an intercollegiate sport within this period.

2. Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case, the former head women's gymnastics coach will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment or affiliation in an athletically related position at an NCAA member institution during a 10-year period (December 8, 1992, to December 8, 2002), he and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(l), which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period. The length of the show-cause requirement in this case is 10 years because the coach knowingly participated in efforts to gain the admission to the university of a highly skilled prospective student-athlete by deliberately fraudulent methods.

C. Men's Indoor and Outdoor Track and Cross Country.

1. The institution's men's indoor and outdoor track teams shall end their 1992-93 season with the participation in their last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in any postseason competition, including a foreign tour, after that season. The prohibition in this penalty on participation by the university teams in postseason events also prohibits the participation on behalf of the university of any individual on these teams.

2. The institution's men's cross country team shall end its 1993-94 season with the participation in its last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in any postseason competition, including a foreign tour, after that season. The prohibition in this penalty on participation by the university teams in postseason events also prohibits the participation on behalf of the university of any individual on these teams.

3. During the 1993-94 academic year, the institution shall not award any initial athletically related financial aid awards that are countable under Bylaw 15.02.3 in men's indoor and outdoor track and cross country. In addition, during the 1992-93 academic year, the institution may not award any additional initial athletically related aid that would be countable under Bylaw 15.02.3 in these sports for any student-athlete who was not on the team roster November 1, 1992.

4. The institution shall be prohibited from providing any expense-paid visits to the institution for prospective student-athletes in men's indoor and outdoor track and cross country for a one-year period from January 1, 1993, through December 31, 1993.

5. The institution shall recertify that all of its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

6. Restrictions on television appearances were not imposed because the committee did not believe a television penalty was appropriate under the circumstances for this sport.

7. If the former head coach had remained at the institution, the committee would have imposed limitations on recruiting. However, no action was taken to limit the duties of the staff in men's track because this case did not involve any ethical-conduct violations and because the head coach is no longer at the institution.

8. In accordance with Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(l), the institution that currently employs the former head men's track coach involved in this case shall show cause why it should not be penalized if it fails to take appropriate action with regard to the former head coach. In the committee's present view, such action should include: (a) undertaking an educational program under the supervision of his present university in NCAA rules and compliance practices, and (b) recertifying that he has no knowledge of any rules violations.

[Note: Should the University of New Mexico appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided to the institution before the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.]

Also, the Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed; further, the committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case. Should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions.

Finally, should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.]

transcript from the second high school was delivered to the university. It reflected a cumulative grade-point average of 1.940, instead of the 2.180 cumulative grade-point average reflected on the first transcript. The associate dean of admissions calculated the young man's core-curriculum grade-point average from this second transcript. It was placed in the young man's file, and no further action was taken. It appeared that he disregarded his own previous questions regarding the validity of the second high school's transcripts, as well as the different overall grade-point averages that were reported on the transcripts.

7. On November 13, 1990, the enforcement staff conducted on-campus interviews and informed the vice-provost/dean of admissions and the university's compliance officer that it did not appear that the student-athlete was eligible for athletically related financial aid, practice or competition during the 1989-90 academic year because, at a minimum, the university clearly relied on remedial courses that the young man took at his previous high school to calculate the young man's core curriculum grade-point average. The institution disagreed with this position but ultimately accepted the determination that the student-athlete was a partial qualifier, and he was withheld from the 1990-91 basketball season.

B. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.6.1.1 and 13.6.2.3]

On October 8, 1989, during the official paid visit to the university's campus of a prospective student-athlete, an assistant men's basketball coach arranged for the young man to use a first-class airline ticket for return travel to his home at the conclusion of his official visit.

Within one week of the trip, the travel agency that issued the first-class ticket sent an invoice to the financial operations office in the university's athletics department. Upon review of the invoice, the athletics department noted that a possible NCAA rule violation had occurred and that it would be necessary for the student-athlete's family to remit the cost difference between a standard coach fare and a first-class airline ticket. The assistant coach arranged for a friend to send money to the prospect's home that was equal to the cost difference between a coach and a first-class airline ticket. The assistant coach instructed a friend of the student-athlete's mother that upon receipt of this money, they should submit this money to the athletics department as reimbursement for the first-class fare in order to prevent a violation from occurring. The prospect's family did as the assistant coach had requested.

C. [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1]

During the fall of 1989, during a discussion with a prospective student-athlete, his mother and his mother's friend in the young man's home, an assistant men's basketball coach told the young man's mother that if the prospect enrolled at the university, the institution would arrange transportation for her to travel to the university's campus at no cost in order for her to attend home basketball contests.

D. [NCAA Bylaw 13.2.2-(b)]

In 1988 and 1989, during the official paid visits to the university's campus of two prospective student-athletes, an assistant men's basketball coach provided various souvenirs to these prospects at no cost to the young men. He did this by transporting them to a local sporting goods store where he had them select items of apparel for which they were not required to pay.

E. [NCAA Bylaws 10.0.1.1, 10.1-(c) and 10.1-(d)]

The assistant men's basketball coach involved in this case did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards of honesty normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics and violated the provisions of ethical conduct by his involvement in Parts II-B and II-C of this report.

The assistant coach knowingly provided false and misleading information to the university and the NCAA enforcement staff during an April 13, 1992, interview related to his involvement in and knowledge of events described in Parts II-B, II-C and II-D of this report.

1. Concerning the provision of false and misleading information with regard to Part II-B, during the April 13, 1992, interview attended by an NCAA director of enforcement; an NCAA enforcement representative; the university's director of compliance, and the assistant coach's legal counsel, the assistant coach was not forthright about his knowledge of and involvement in the provision of funds to the family of a prospective student-athlete. On several occasions, in response to specific questions, he denied any personal involvement in providing funds and was not forthcoming in providing information about his involvement in arranging, through a friend, the provision of funds to the prospect's family. The assistant coach denied making any statements to the young man's mother's friend that he need not worry about paying the cost difference between the coach and first-class fare tickets because he would be reimbursed. In response to specific questions about his offering or providing any type of funds to the friend to be used to repay this cost difference, the assistant coach denied personally offering or providing money to pay this cost difference, and he did not mention that he arranged for a friend to provide these funds.

During a June 4, 1992, interview attended by the assistant coach's legal counsel, the university's director of compliance, university general counsel and two NCAA enforcement representatives, the assistant coach acknowledged that he had provided false and misleading information during the April 13, 1992, interview about his knowledge of and involvement in providing money to the young man's family to pay the cost difference between the coach and first-class air fare that was provided to the prospect at the conclusion of his official paid visit. The assistant coach added that he was under pressure from the university to recover this cost difference from the young man's family, and that the young man's family was unwilling to pay these costs. As a result, he made a poor decision and asked a friend of his to send money to the young man's mother's friend, which his friend then did. The mother's friend used the money to repay the institution for the young man's air fare. The assistant coach later reimbursed his friend approximately $100 to cover the costs incurred in the wiring of the money.

2. Concerning the provision of false and misleading information with regard to Part II-C of this report, during the April 13, 1992, interview, the assistant coach specifically denied telling the mother of a prospective student-athlete that if the young man enrolled at the university, the institution would arrange air transportation for the young man's mother to the university's campus in order to watch her son participate in basketball contests. The assistant coach also denied implying that such travel arrangements would be made should her son enroll at the university. During the June 4, 1992, interview, the assistant coach again denied offering or making any statements to the effect that he or the institution would arrange for the young man's mother to be provided air travel between their home and the university in order to watch her son participate in basketball contests. A tape-recorded statement offered in evidence by the legal counsel for the assistant coach confirmed that the prospective student-athlete's mother believed the assistant coach offered air transportation to her.

3. Concerning the provision of false and misleading information with regard to Part II-E, during the April 13, 1992, interview, the assistant coach was asked if he ever had provided any souvenir or gift items to prospects visiting the university's campus on an official-visit basis. The assistant coach denied ever providing any such inducement. The assistant coach specifically denied providing or arranging for any souvenir items to be given to two prospective student-athletes during their respective official paid visits.

However, during the June 4, 1992, interview, the assistant coach acknowledged that he had provided false and misleading information about providing souvenir items to prospects during their official visits. The assistant coach reported that during the official paid visits of the two prospects, as well as other prospective student-athletes, he had provided souvenirs to the young men bearing the Clemson University logo. The assistant coach stated that after providing these souvenirs to the prospects, he admonished them not to tell anyone that they had received these items from him free of charge and that he previously denied ever providing souvenirs to a prospect free of charge because he was afraid of losing his job if he responded truthfully.

F. In its response to the official inquiry, the institution reported several other secondary violations, which it admitted had occurred. These involved providing items of clothing to a student-athlete and improperly supervising the handling of complimentary admissions to basketball games.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

For the reasons set forth in Part I of this report, the Committee on Infractions found that this case involved several major violations of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985. NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.2, as adopted by the Association's membership, requires prescribed minimum penalties, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," that include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic, in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

Under NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3, an institution is considered a repeat violator if any major violation is found to have occurred within the five-year period after the beginning date of a penalty for a previous major violation. Clemson University was found in violation of NCAA rules in a case that was considered a major violation. The infractions report in that case was forwarded to the institution May 30, 1990. All of the primary violations out of which this present case arose occurred before that date. As a result, the repeat violator rule did not apply.

The Committee on Infractions determined that the appropriate penalties that the institution should receive were less than the full set of minimum penalties otherwise required by NCAA legislation. The factors included: the limited number of violations, the university's investigation and cooperation in the processing of the case, and the initiation of appropriate disciplinary and corrective actions.

A. The university shall be publicly reprimanded and censured, and placed on probation for a period of two years from the date these penalties are imposed, which shall be the date the 15-day appeal period expires or the date the institution notifies the executive director that it will not appeal, whichever is earlier, or the date established by NCAA Council subcommittee action in the event of an appeal by the university to the Council. Clemson University shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.4.2.3 concerning repeat violators for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

B. During this period of probation, the institution shall: develop and implement a comprehensive educational program (e.g., seminars and testing) to instruct coaches, athletics department personnel and those involved in the certification of eligibility of student-athletes on NCAA legislation; submit a preliminary report by February 1, 1992, setting forth a schedule for establishing this compliance and educational program, and file annual progress reports with the NCAA enforcement staff by July 1 of each year thereafter during the probationary period.

C. The institution shall be prohibited from providing any expense-paid visits to the institution for prospective student-athletes in men's basketball during the period from January 1, 1993, through December 31, 1993, and the institution shall be limited to two expense-paid visits to the institution's campus in men's basketball during the period from January 1, 1994, through December 31, 1994.

D. The institution shall be required to forfeit all basketball games that its team won during the 1990 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship, and all team awards shall be returned.

E. The committee shall recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that the institution be required to return $353,361.60 to the NCAA, which is 50 percent of all moneys it received from the institution's participation in the 1990 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The percentage was based on the amount the institution received as its share of the funds after the distribution of the moneys received from the NCAA had been made to other members of its conference.

F. The institution shall recertify that all of its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

G. The Committee on Infractions found that the institution imposed significant penalties against its men's basketball program, and the committee adopted those penalties as a part of its actions. Those penalties are as follows:

1. The institution accepted the resignation of the assistant men's basketball coach. This coach's position will not be filled before July 1, 1993, which will leave the coaching staff with only one assistant coach during the 1992-93 academic year.

2. The institution eliminated all off-campus recruiting activities for the period of August 7, 1992, until August 6, 1993. During that period, no member of the men's basketball coaching staff may recruit off campus.

3. The institution limited its athletically related financial aid awards in men's basketball to 13 during the 1992-93 academic year and 12 during the 1993-94 academic year.

H. If the involved former assistant men's basketball coach still had been employed at the institution, the university would have been required to show cause in accordance with Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(l) why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it had failed to take appropriate disciplinary action against him.

I. Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case, the former assistant men's basketball coach involved in this case will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment or affiliation in an athletically related position at an NCAA member institution from the date this action becomes effective until March 30, 1994, he and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(l), which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

Should Clemson University appeal either the findings of violations or proposed penalties in this case to the NCAA Council subcommittee of Division I members, the Committee on Infractions will submit an expanded infractions report to the members of the Council who will consider the appeal. This expanded report will include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.8.5. A copy of the committee's report would be provided to the institution before the institution's appearance before the Council subcommittee and, as required by Bylaw 32.8.6, would be released to the public.

The Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed. The committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as to consider imposing more severe sanctions in this case.

Should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.

NCAA COMMITTEE ON INFRACTIONS

Ex-Florida coach receives show-cause relief

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has revised its show-cause order involving former University of Florida head football coach Galen Hall. The committee made its decision after meeting with Hall at his request last month.

In September 1990, the committee found that Hall had violated NCAA rules while at Florida. At that time, the committee determined that if any NCAA institution hired Hall in any athletically related capacity before September 1995, Hall and the institution would be required to appear before the committee to determine whether the institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of NCAA legislation, which could limit Hall's athletically related duties at that institution.

The committee has announced, however, that the show-cause order shall be in effect only through December 31, 1993. The committee's actions, as well as the reasons for its decision, are set forth in the following report.

I. Introduction

On September 20, 1990, the NCAA Committee on Infractions issued Infractions Report No. 48 regarding the University of Florida. With regard to Galen Hall, the former head football coach of that institution, the committee found as follows:

"On January 8, 1987, during a meeting in the office of the then head football coach (Galen Hall), the then head coach provided an envelope to a then graduate assistant football coach and instructed the graduate assistant football coach to drive a then student-athlete to the county sheriff's department in the young man's hometown where the student-athlete used the contents of the envelope (the contents of which had been provided by the then head coach) to satisfy the young man's delinquent child support debt.

"Specifically, after the head coach's instructions, the then graduate assistant coach drove the student-athlete to the young man's home where the student-athlete obtained some personal money, which the young man believed he might need in addition to the contents of the envelope to satisfy his debt, and finally, the then graduate assistant coach and the student-athlete then traveled to the sheriff's department where the young man discharged the $360.40 debt with the contents of the envelope; further, the student-athlete did not use any of his personal money to discharge that debt."

In addition, Hall was found in violation of NCAA Bylaw 11.3.2.2 in that he provided salary supplements to two assistant coaches, once during each of the academic years 1985-86 and 1987-88, and three times during the 1988-89 academic year. Finally, Hall along with other coaches at the university were found in violation of Bylaws 30.3.3 and 30.3.5 in that they failed to report in the 1987-88 academic year their knowledge of and involvement in violations of NCAA legislation, with the result that the university's president erroneously certified on August 31, 1987, the university's compliance with NCAA legislation.

As a result of these findings, the Committee on Infractions found Hall to have acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct required by Bylaws 10.1-(c) and 19.01.1.

Hall resigned his position as head football coach at Florida in the middle of the 1989 football season when the alleged violations came to light. By the time of the hearing before the Committee on Infractions, Hall had obtained the position of graduate assistant coach at Pennsylvania State University. The committee determined that the latter institution did not need to appear at a show-cause hearing regarding its employment of Hall if:

a. Hall held only the position of a graduate assistant coach.

b. Hall did not perform duties other than those that may be assigned to a graduate assistant coach.

c. Hall did not take part in any on- or off-campus recruiting activities or have any contact with prospective student-athletes, even though some limited forms of such activity could otherwise be undertaken by a graduate assistant coach.

d. The institution ensured that Hall participated in rules education and rules-compliance programs, and the institution reported each year while this individual retained his current position with the institution on the extent to which this individual took part in such programs.

The committee also determined that if, during a five-year period (September 20, 1990, to September 20, 1995), Hall was employed by any other NCAA member institution (whether as a graduate assistant coach or in any other athletically related capacity), or if his duties at the member institution that currently employed him as a graduate assistant coach were altered, he and that institution must appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether the member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(l).

In the fall of 1990, Hall left Pennsylvania State and obtained a position as a coach in professional football, a job that has since terminated with the demise of the league with which he was involved.

On November 6, 1992, Hall requested an opportunity to appear before the Committee on Infractions to request relief from the show-cause restrictions of Infractions Report No. 48 (of September 20, 1990), or, in the alternative, to request a statement as to the restrictions that the committee would place upon his activities if he obtained a position with an NCAA member institution. Without such an advance statement, Hall believed that no member institution would be willing to employ him. That request was granted, and November 14, 1992, Hall, accompanied by legal counsel Michael S. Glazier, appeared before the committee. After the November 14, 1992, appearance, the committee deliberated in private, and the results of those deliberations are set forth in Part II of this report.

II. Decision of the Committee on Infractions

In making its decision, the Committee on Infractions considered, among other things, the following:

a. Hall resigned his position at Florida during the middle of the 1989 football season, nearly one year prior to the hearing before the committee.

b. Hall suffered severe financial and professional detriment as a result of the committee action.

c. Hall "accepted" the committee's findings regarding his conduct, although he never fully acknowledged the truth of all of them.

d. Hall had no record of NCAA violations before or after the incidents that led to the imposition of sanctions.

e. The five-year period wherein a member institution that employs Hall may be subject to a show-cause proceeding is effective until September 20, 1995, which, as a practical matter, extends the effect of the penalty throughout the entire 1995 football season. Thus, Hall will have suffered detriment from the middle of the 1989 season through the 1995 season, a period involving seven seasons.

The Committee on Infractions, therefore, determined the following:

A. The initial five-year period requiring any member institution that employs Hall in an athletically related capacity to appear before the Committee on Infractions to show cause shall be amended to apply only through December 31, 1993. Thereafter, any member institution can employ Hall without restriction.

B. Between the present time and December 31, 1993, any member institution that employs Hall in an athletically related capacity will not be subject to a show-cause order provided that it promptly requests committee action to determine what, if any, limitations shall be placed upon Hall's activities during the period before December 31, 1993. Such a request may be made by written communication with the committee. Before receiving a response from the committee, the member institution shall not permit Hall to engage in any activities related to the recruitment of prospective student-athletes.

C. A member institution that is interested in employing Hall before December 31, 1993, may request an advance determination of what limitations, if any, will be placed on Hall's activities during the period before December 31, 1993. Such a request may be made by written communication with the committee.

D. A request under Parts II-B or II-C above shall contain a detailed statement as to the proposed duties of Hall at the member institution making the request.

E. In response to a request under Parts II-B and II-C above, the committee will place no restrictions on Hall's activities other than restrictions related to the recruitment of prospective student-athletes. It may determine not to impose any restrictions whatsoever.

Show-cause order terminated for Bailey case

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has revised its show-cause order involving former Memphis State University head football coach Charlie Bailey. The committee made its decision after meeting with Bailey at his request last month.

In August 1989, the committee found that Bailey had violated NCAA rules while at Memphis State. At that time, the committee determined that if any NCAA institution hired Bailey in any athletically related capacity before August 1994, Bailey and the institution would be required to appear before the committee to determine whether the institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of NCAA legislation, which could limit Bailey's athletically related duties at that institution.

The committee has announced, however, that the show-cause order should be terminated as of December 1, 1992. The committee's actions, as well as the reasons for its decision, are set forth in the following report.

I. Introduction

On August 1, 1989, the NCAA Committee on Infractions found that major violations had occurred in the Memphis State University football program involving former head football coach Charlie Bailey. Specifically, Bailey: (a) advised a representative of the university's athletics interests to pay a prospective student-athlete in excess of the commensurate rate for a summer job, and "to take care of" the young man; (b) initially was not forthcoming to the university concerning the matter, and (c) instructed a student-athlete to provide false and misleading information concerning the matter, instructions that seriously impeded and misled the investigation of the university's football program.

However, at a belated but crucial moment in the investigation, Bailey decided to tell the truth and urged the involved student-athlete to do the same. After reporting the facts to the institution and to the NCAA, Bailey resigned his position as head football coach at Memphis State. Subsequently, he voluntarily appeared before the Committee on Infractions and was of considerable assistance when the university's infractions case was reviewed by the committee.

The actions of Bailey were determined by the Committee on Infractions to constitute a major violation, which exposed Memphis State to the consequences of a repeat major violation and resulted in serious institutional penalties.

The report of the Committee on Infractions (Infractions Report No. 32, dated August 1, 1989) provided the following with respect to Bailey:

"Due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case, ... the former head football coach will be informed in writing by the NCAA that in the event he seeks employment as an athletics department staff member at an NCAA member institution during a five-year period (August 1, 1989, to August 1, 1994), he and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.4.2.1-(l), which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period."

Subsequently, Bailey was employed as an assistant football coach at the University of Texas, El Paso. Bailey and representatives of that institution appeared before the committee February 2, 1990, for a determination of restrictions that should be placed on Bailey's activities. In arriving at its conclusion, the committee considered the following:

a. The truthfulness, candor and assistance Bailey exhibited after the original violations in the Memphis State infractions case and his determination to make his appearance at the Memphis State infractions hearing completely nonadversarial in the spirit of the cooperative principle of the NCAA enforcement program.

b. Bailey had resigned voluntarily, received no contract settlement or "golden parachute" from Memphis State, and had not been involved in any way in coaching since his resignation and, in fact, had been unemployed since April 20, 1989.

c. The penalties that had been imposed on his original institution.

d. Bailey's new assignment was as an assistant coach, not head coach, and was with a different institution in a different geographical area.

The Committee on Infractions thereupon determined that UTEP would not be required to show cause why it should not be penalized, provided that it took the following actions regarding Bailey, as set forth in Infractions Report No. 37, dated March 7, 1990:

1. A prohibition against all off-campus recruiting and evaluation of prospects until August 2, 1991; further, during the period this penalty applied to Bailey, the university would not replace him with another person to perform off-campus recruiting duties.

See Bailey, page 18 ►

2. No involvement by Bailey in a summer jobs program or in other student-athlete work programs until after August 2, 1993.

3. A report by the institution each year until August 2, 1992, regarding the monitoring and compliance programs in which Bailey has been involved, including institutional, conference and NCAA compliance programs and seminars.

It was specified that if Bailey left UTEP to accept employment at another NCAA member institution, he and the new institution would be subject to the show-cause proceedings of Bylaw 19.4.2.1(1).

On June 28, 1991, the Committee on Infractions received notice of a request by Bailey to be relieved of the remainder of the show-cause requirement imposed upon him by the committee. The committee denied the request without prejudice for a subsequent application for relief before the termination of the five-year period.

On January 3, 1992, Bailey resigned his position at UTEP to accept a position in professional football. Subsequently, the professional team was dissolved. On November 14, 1992, Bailey appeared before the committee once again and requested to be relieved of the show-cause requirement, which he stated had been a serious impediment to his employment as a coach at an NCAA institution. After the November 14, 1992, appearance, the committee deliberated in private, and the results of those deliberations are set forth in Part II of this report.

II. Decision of the Committee on Infractions

In arriving at its decision, the committee noted the following:

a. Bailey had suffered serious detriment to his career since the imposition of the sanctions.

b. Had Bailey remained at UTEP he would presently be subject only to minimum restrictions.

c. Bailey had no record of NCAA violations, either before the incidents that led to the restrictions or afterward.

The committee thus determined that further restrictions were unnecessary in Bailey's case and that the show-cause requirements set forth in the Memphis State case on August 1, 1989, should be terminated as of December 1, 1992.

Proposals

come first in the Convention agenda.

An attempt by several Division I-A members to permit more frequent telephone calls to prospective student-athletes during the winter in exchange for extending the period during which such calls are prohibited after a prospect's junior year in high school will draw opposition from the NCAA Council.

The sponsors argue that there are many instances during the recruiting process when more than one call per week is required, and they complain that the news media and recruiting services enjoy more access to prospects than do the schools.

That proposal, however, is one of only two in the grouping that has attracted opposition from any part of the Association's governance structure. The other, a proposal by the Big Ten Conference to eliminate limitations on institutional stationery, also is opposed by the Council, despite the conference's argument that the legislation fails to achieve cost containment.

While there is relatively little controversy in the recruiting grouping, there are proposals that potentially could leave Divisions I-A and I-AA football institutions sparring over dates for evaluations of prospects.

For instance, Division I-AA will consider a proposal to establish an evaluation period from May 1 through April 30 of the following academic year—the same period adopted at the 1992 Convention in Division I-A. The purpose is to establish the same period in both subdivisions. Division I-A, however, will consider a proposal that would shorten its evaluation period, moving the closing date back from April 30 to November 30. If both proposals are adopted, the divisions still will have different evaluation periods.

Both divisions, however, will vote on proposals to exclude Memorial Day from the 15 consecutive days designated as the May evaluation period and to eliminate the May period altogether.

Three proposals in the grouping pertain specifically to basketball, including two sponsored by the Council. The Council's proposals would prohibit men's and women's coaching staff members from participating in basketball coaching activities for a local sports club and would permit Division I coaching staff members to attend only institutional summer basketball camps or noninstitutional summer camps certified by the NCAA.

Membership

Division I schools that sought but failed to achieve approval of a Division I-AAA classification for football last year are eyeing two proposals that would offer relief from the financial burdens of sponsoring a Division I-A or I-AA program.

One, offered by a group of institutions including some that had hoped for adoption of the Division I-AAA proposal, would permit Division I schools to maintain an unclassified football program. Schools opting for unclassified football would achieve cost savings through provisions that would allow financial aid on a need-only basis, prohibit spring practice and limit the size of coaching staffs.

In return, those schools would not be permitted to count their football programs toward Division I sports-sponsorship requirements or to vote on football legislative issues in Divisions I-A and I-AA.

Another proposal—this one sponsored by the Council and several institutions—is aimed specifically at Division I-AA programs that wish to offer nonscholarship football but are geographically isolated from schools with similar programs. The proposal would allow such schools classified in Division II football before September 1993 to seek a waiver of Division I-AA scheduling requirements from the Division I Steering Committee if fewer than six other Division I-AA football programs with nonscholarship programs are located within a 500-mile radius.

The proposal would enable those institutions to cut down on travel and maintenance expenses for their football programs.

A third proposal—opposed by the Council—would permit Division I members to continue classifying football programs in Division II or III but exclude them from the football championships at those levels. It is expected to be withdrawn.

Most of the remaining proposals in the membership grouping deal with sports-sponsorship requirements for Division I membership, including one that would permit institutions to sponsor one less than the minimum seven all-male or mixed varsity sports in exchange for offering at least eight, rather than seven, all-female sports. The sponsors cite difficulties in meeting Title IX requirements as a justification for providing that alternative to the seven-sport requirement, which becomes effective in 1994.

Another type of flexibility is sought in a proposal to be considered by the entire Association membership. That proposal would require schools to conduct at least one sport for each gender in only two of the three sport seasons, rather than in all seasons as currently required. The purpose of the proposal is to provide a school with more flexibility to accommodate such factors as climate, geographical location and the academic calendar in determining which sports to sponsor.

Summary

Following is a summary of the proposals in the recruiting and membership groupings. Also indicated are positions taken (if any) by the Presidents Commission and

Council and the business sessions in which the proposals will be acted upon.

Recruiting

No. 115: Preclude a member of an institution's men's or women's basketball coaching staff from participating in coaching activities in basketball for a local sports club or organization. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Recruiting Committee. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 116: Permit unlimited telephone calls to a prospect from any location on the day of a permissible, in-person, off-campus recruiting visit. Sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 117: In Division I-A football, preclude telephone contact with a prospective student-athlete before August 15 following the completion of the prospect's junior year in high school, rather than July 1; limit telephone contact to once per week from August 15 through November 30; permit telephone contacts with a prospective student-athlete at the institution's discretion, rather than once a week, between December 1 and February 15, and limit additional telephone contact from February 16 through August 14 of the prospect's senior year to once per week. Sponsored by 13 Division I-A members. Opposed by the Council due to erosion of reform actions. Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions.

No. 118: Permit one contact per week at the prospect's educational institution and not more than three contacts at other sites in Divisions I-A and I-AA football. Sponsored by 12 Division I members. Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions.

No. 119: Permit institutions that do not subscribe to the National Letter of Intent to use the same contact rules after the prospect's signed acceptance of the institution's written offer of admission and/or financial aid as those institutions that subscribe to the National Letter of Intent. Sponsored by the Ivy Group. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 120: Eliminate the May evaluation period in Divisions I-A and I-AA football. Sponsored by the Big Ten Conference. Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions.

No. 121: In Division I-A football, specify that the time period during which the four permissible evaluations occur shall be from May 1 through November 30, rather than April 30, of the following academic year. Sponsored by 13 Division I members. Division I-A business session.

No. 122: Make the time period for counting football evaluations in Division I-AA consistent with the time period for counting football evaluations in Division I-A (i.e., May 1 through April 30). Sponsored by the Big Sky Conference. Division I-AA business session.

No. 123: Eliminate the limitations on institutional stationery. Sponsored by the Big Ten Conference. Opposed by the Council due to erosion of reform actions. Division I business session.

No. 124: Eliminate media guides and/or recruiting brochures as permissible recruiting materials while retaining the color restrictions on such publications. Sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference, which has indicated its intent to withdraw the proposal. Division I business sessions.

No. 125: Require member institutions to obtain a prospect's high-school (or college) academic transcript (which may be an unofficial photocopy of an official document) before providing the prospect with an expense-paid visit. Sponsored by nine Division I members. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 126: Permit an official visit before the early signing period for a prospect who has presented at least a 70 score on the PSAT or a 17 on the PACI Plus. Sponsored by the Ivy Group. Division I business session.

No. 127: Specify that coaching staff members in Division I basketball may attend only institutional summer basketball camps as defined in Bylaw 13.13.1.1 and noninstitutional summer camps that are certified by the NCAA, with detailed criteria set forth for such certification. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Recruiting Committee. Division I business session.

No. 127-1: Amend Proposal No. 127 to eliminate many of the specific criteria related to the certification of summer basketball camps, as specified in the amendment-to-amendment. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Recruiting Committee. Division I business session.

No. 128: Specify that Division II women's basketball coaches may evaluate prospects during any sanctioned AAU women's competition occurring between May 18 and June 14. Sponsored by 11 Division II members. Division II business session.

No. 129: Limit the Division I football recruiting period as specified in the proposal, limit official visits by prospects to the time period from January 15 to March 15 and prohibit midyear two-year college transfers from participating in spring football during the academic year in which the transfer occurs. Sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference, which has indicated its intent to withdraw the proposal. Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions.

No. 130: In Divisions I-A and I-AA football, eliminate Memorial Day from counting in the consecutive 15 days of the May evaluation. Sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference. Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions.

Membership

No. 131: To permit a member of Division I to maintain a football program that is not classified as I-A or I-AA; to permit the institution to provide its football student-athletes with only need-based financial aid; to prohibit the institution from voting on I-A or I-AA football legislative issues; to prohibit the institution from using football to meet sports-sponsorship requirements; to prohibit the institution from conducting spring football practice, and to permit the institution to employ two head or assistant coaches and six restricted-earnings coaches. Sponsored by 14 members. General business session; all divisions voting on two segments; Division I only voting on the re-letes.

■ Responsibilities for the conduct and oversight of the athletics program shall be explicitly defined and clearly understood.

■ All fiscal matters pertaining to the athletics program must be controlled by the administration.

■ If external units (alumni organizations or foundations) raise or expend funds for athletics purposes, all such financial activities must be approved by the administration, and all such units shall be required to submit independent audits.

■ The administration of scholarships, grants-in-aid, loans and student employment must be included in the institution's regular planning, budgeting, accounting and auditing procedures.

■ All income, from whatever source, must have appropriate oversight by an office of the institution that is independent of the athletics program.

■ Institutions must annually monitor, with faculty participation, compliance with written policies pertaining to the recruitment, admission, financial aid and continuing eligibility of student-athletes.

■ If there are special admissions for athletes, they must be consistent with the institutional policy on special admissions for other students.

Both SACS and the NCAA call for exit interviews. The chief executive officer of the involved institution will be able to structure those interviews (together, separately, public, private) as desired.

Form and content of reports: Two written reports—the institution's self-study and the peer-review team's evaluation—are common to athletics certification and SACS accreditation. Each of those reports should be written in the manner prescribed for use by both athletics certification and SACS accreditation and should address all of the topics in the certification program.

In addition, within each topic area, the reports should offer any information that is required by SACS that is not contained in the materials related to athletics certification.

Both reports would be included as part of the broader SACS accreditation materials, but only those portions of the reports related directly to athletics certification would be used for NCAA purposes. The timing and submission of these reports is virtually identical for purposes of SACS and the NCAA.

To meet the requirements of SACS for completing the peer-review team's work, the written report of the athletics peer-review team will have to be completed on campus before the team's departure.

Conference	Football	B 14.1.6.1.1	Transfer SA was allowed to practice twice before being properly certified under institutional policy. Young man subsequently was certified as eligible.	Withheld young man from two practices.	No further action.
Conference	Football	B 13.6.3 and 13.7.5.4	Prospect was entertained outside permissible 30-mile radius. In addition, student host provided cash to prospect for payment of prospect's entertainment expenses. Prospect and host are no longer at institution.	Institution reviewed legislation with student hosts. Conference required report regarding corrective actions.	Required institution to forward copy of its report.
Self-reported	Football	B 11.6.2.1	Head coach arranged for a former graduate assistant coach to scout for the institution.	Upon discovery of violation, payment for scouting expenses was stopped. Institution reprimanded head coach, required entire football coaching staff to attend an additional rules seminar regarding Bylaw 11.6 and sent memorandum to all coaches reminding them of provisions of Bylaw 11.6.	No further action.
Self-reported	Football	B 13.1.8	Head coach stopped by high-school practice session on institution's campus during quiet period. Coach stopped to remind high school to practice on a particular field.	Institution counted one evaluation for each of the prospects on the field and reminded coaching staff of application of involved legislation.	Admonished head coach to avoid recurrence of similar violation. No eligibility consequences.
Conference	Football	B 14.1.6.1	Transfer SA participated in four practice sessions before proper eligibility certification. When asking for an interpretation, recruiting coordinator did not indicate to compliance coordinator that the young man was a transfer SA and would be ineligible for temporary certification.	If young man is certified as eligible, institution will withhold him from four practice sessions.	No eligibility consequences. No further action.

DIVISION II
Self-reported	Women's volleyball	B 17.19.3.1	Institution participated in scrimmage before permissible starting date. Institution was unaware that legislation had changed, and institution did not exceed permissible number of contests.	Reprimanded head coach, established compliance coordinator for women's athletics department and purchased current NCAA Manual for women's athletics department staff members.	Required institution to submit written report indicating system by which new legislation will be relayed to and reviewed by all members of athletics department staff.
Self-reported	Men's cross country	B 17.4.3	Team participated in a meet two days before permissible starting date. Institution finished last in the meet.	Appointed a new compliance coordinator who will review all schedules.	Advised institution to establish calendar outlining playing and practice seasons of all sports for review by compliance coordinator and coaching staff members before any practice or competition.
Self-reported	Men's soccer; women's soccer	B 13.4.1-(i)	Institution's media guides contained more than one color of print within the publication. Sports information director produced the guide. Upon discovery of violation, institution ceased distribution of media guide.	Reviewed legislation with sports information director, advised opponents of violation and destroyed remaining copies of brochure.	No eligibility consequences. No further action.
Self-reported	Men's cross country	B 17.4.2.2	Team ran in scrimmage meet two days before the permissible date.	Reprimanded coaches and advised them of official starting dates.	Required institution to submit written report regarding the university's current educational procedures for playing and practice seasons.
Self-reported	Field hockey; women's lacrosse	B 13.1.2.4-(b)	Prospect was contacted by telephone twice in one week. Second call was to advise young woman that she would not be admitted to the institution.	Reviewed legislation with coaching staff.	No eligibility consequences. No further action.
DIVISION III
Self-reported	Men's soccer; women's soccer	B 17.14.2 and 17.14.2.1-(b)	Institution's men's and women's soccer teams began practice before the permissible date. Both head coaches are part-time and were unaware of change in legislation.	Reviewed amended legislation and reduced practice sessions by the number of practices before the permissible starting date.	No further action.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 17.3.2.1.1	Institution conducted two conditioning sessions two days before the permissible starting date.	Precluded next two practice sessions (which were after the permissible starting date).	Advised institution to establish playing-and-practice-season calendar for all sports to be reviewed by athletics director, faculty athletics representative or compliance coordinator before practice or competition.
Self-reported	Football	B 15.4.2 and 15.4.9	SA received preferential treatment by receiving reserved rooms in housing. SAs proceeded through normal housing process and received no compensation above what any student would. SAs probably would have received the same housing arrangements.	Athletics department will not consult with housing authority.	Admonished coaching staff to avoid recurrence of similar violation.
Self-reported	Football	B 14.01.1, 14.01.2, 14.1.6.1 and 14.1.6.2	SA practiced and possibly participated while not enrolled in full-time program of studies. Young man's participation could not be verified, but possibly included two games on a limited basis. Although institution has several checks for eligibility, institution did not have any records concerning the young man, and his name was not forwarded to academic adviser for verification.	Director of athletics now holds weekly joint meetings with academic adviser and head coaches of each sport to review eligibility of each SA.	Admonished institution to avoid recurrence of similar violation.

Administrative Committee minutes

Conference No. 21 December 6, 1992

1. Acting for the NCAA Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Approved NCAA endorsement of the third annual National Sportsmanship Day, March 2, 1993, sponsored by the Institute for International Sport.

b. Granted per Bylaw 16.13.1 a request by a member institution that it be permitted to reimburse a student-athlete for property stolen from the student-athlete's football locker in the institution's athletics locker room while the student-athlete was participating in institutional football practice, pending verification that neither the student-athlete nor his parents had insurance to cover the loss.

c. Discussed appointments to the proposed Administrative Review Panel, noting that if the legislation (Proposal No. 53) to establish the panel is adopted at the January Convention, it will be desirable to have the panel in place and ready to act as soon as possible.

d. Briefly reviewed meeting procedures; agreed to continue to review such matters at each in-person Administrative Committee meeting until the 1993 Administrative Committee is in a position to determine if it wishes the topic to continue.

e. Noted that the concept of a monthly membership newsletter (1992 Administrative Committee Conference No. 18) had been reviewed by the staff publications committee, in accordance with existing NCAA Executive Committee procedure, and that questions regarding communications with the membership would be included in an upcoming survey regarding readership of The NCAA News; asked that the Administrative Committee be permitted to review the survey instrument before it is used.

f. Accepted a report of two additional membership classification changes that were effective September 1, 1992, as a result of approval of waivers of the June 1 and September 1 deadline provisions for such changes.

g. Noted that the Administrative Committee and the parliamentarian would have the customary "officers' luncheons" January 14 and 15 during the NCAA Convention.

2. Acting for the Council and the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Agreed to conduct an Administrative Committee meeting at 4 p.m. January 10 at the Loews Anatole Hotel in Dallas, Texas.

b. Tentatively agreed to conduct the committee's next telephone conference December 17, rather than December 23 as previously scheduled.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2. Acting for the Executive Committee:

a. Granted waivers of the conference-representative reporting requirement per Bylaw 31.3.3.4.1 to the Big Eight Conference, East Coast Conference, Great Lakes Valley Conference, Lone Star Conference and Southland Conference, with the waivers covering both men's and women's programs in each instance.

b. Granted a waiver per Bylaw 31.7.2.1.10 to permit the Olympic Sports Liaison Committee to conduct its one meeting per year in conjunction with and at the site of the annual Olympic Congress of the USA, rather than being required to meet in alternate years in the Kansas City metropolitan area.

Study shows women hold fewer administrative jobs

A Western Carolina University study shows that women hold a large majority of college head-coaching positions for women's programs in basketball, softball and volleyball in North Carolina but clearly trail men in the number of administrative positions they hold in that state.

Susan Brown, principal investigator for the study and director of Western Carolina's sports-management academic program, believes the research results hold promise for women wanting to stay in the coaching ranks.

In those basketball, softball and volleyball programs, the North Carolina figures are higher than national statistics compiled by Vivian Acosta and Linda Carpenter of Brooklyn College for 1990-91. For all women's sports in North Carolina, however, females held just a slight edge over males in coaching positions for women's teams, 52 percent to 48 percent.

Women held all field hockey positions, but fell drastically short in cross country, soccer, swimming and diving, and track and field.

The study also examined hiring trends for women in other coaching and administrative positions.

Reveals inequities

Brown said the study, which included 68 percent of the two- and four-year North Carolina colleges sponsoring intercollegiate athletics programs, revealed several inequities.

She said the study showed women held only 11 percent of athletics director positions and that those holding the title of associate athletics director had declined to less than 45 percent from a high of 75 percent in 1988-89.

Females have shown a six-year increase in holding the position of assistant athletics director, "but this statistic is not one about which we should boast," she said. "It simply shows that women are being hired at entry-level positions but are either not being promoted or are leaving out of frustration for not being able to climb the 'corporate ladder.'"

The highest percentages of male administrators in women's sports programs in North Carolina were in the areas of sports information

(95 percent) and marketing/promotions (90 percent), Brown said. More men than women served as ticket managers (56 percent), business managers (54 percent) and athletics trainers (67 percent).

Possible explanations

Brown said she examined several variables that could be affecting the trends.

"It was found that 59 percent of the male coaches and other administrative staff in charge of women's programs had 12-month contracts while only 36 percent of the females had similar employment," she said. "Lack of long-term or full-time contracts may be sending a negative message to women."

Brown said that although the findings exhibit a need for improvement, a starting point is difficult to find.

"Females could sit back and blame the males for not hiring more women, and perhaps there are qualified women not receiving the appointments," she said. "(Having) few women in key positions to act as positive female role models does not help to get more women into the system."

"As an individual in charge of an undergraduate sport-management program, I try to encourage more females to enter college athletics administration, but traditionally our sports-management program here at Western had less than 20 percent female enrollment, and the majority of those enter fitness management."

science degree in business.

The Miami Dolphins chose Anderson in the third round of the 1968 National Football League draft. His 10-year career with the Dolphins included three Pro Bowl appearances, and he was named the NFL's defensive player of the year in 1973 when he led the league with eight interceptions.

Anderson is president of Cellular Trading Corporation, a cellular phone company, and is chair of Dick Anderson and Associates Insurance Agency. He also chairs the Miami Project to cure paralysis through the University of Miami Medical School, for which he oversees a $6 million budget and a staff of 100 employees, and serves as treasurer of the 200 Club of Miami, which raises money for families of slain policemen and firefighters.

Anderson also served as a Florida state senator after retiring from professional football.

He was inducted into the Colorado Sports Hall of Fame in 1980 and remains active in college football through his work on the Orange Bowl Committee. He has a son, Blake, who is currently a sophomore on the Colorado football team.

Robert D. Johnson

A two-time all-American and captain of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, 1967 Southeastern Conference championship football team that was ranked No. 2 in the nation, Johnson was selected as the conference's best blocker and was named lineman of the year by the Birmingham (Alabama) Quarterback Club. He also was named to the SEC's Quarter Century Team (1951-76) and to the Atlanta Journal's all-time SEC team in 1979. He was elected to the College Football Hall of Fame in 1989.

Johnson was an academic all-American as well, graduating with a B-plus average in industrial engineering, and was recognized as a National Football Foundation Hall of Fame Scholar-Athlete in 1967. He was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and was president of the T-Club. He also was named a "Torchbearer" by his graduating class.

The Cincinnati Bengals made Johnson the franchise's first draft selection in 1968. Johnson played with Cincinnati for 12 years and is the only Bengal to have had his jersey number retired. He currently serves as a color commentator on the Bengals' television network.

Since 1980, Johnson has been president of Imperial Adhesives, a firm serving markets like footwear, packaging, transportation, construction, furniture and product assembly. Imperial Adhesives had $25 million in sales in 1991 and has 140 employees.

Johnson has served as Ohio state chairman of the American Cancer Society and has been a board member of the Dan Beard Council of Boy Scouts. He was named a "Distinguished American" by the Cincinnati chapter of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame in 1985 and the East Tennessee chapter in 1989.

Donna A. Lopiano

Now the executive director of the Women's Sports Foundation, Lopiano was a multitalented collegiate athlete at Southern Connecticut State University. She lettered in four sports and played in 25 national championships in field hockey, volleyball, basketball and softball. In softball alone, Lopiano earned all-America honors nine times at four positions. She was a 60 percent field-goal shooter in basketball and won the Eastern Intercollegiate badminton doubles championship.

Before assuming the reigns at the Women's Sports Foundation, Lopiano was director of women's athletics at the University of Texas at Austin from 1975 to 1992. She had been assistant athletics director at Brooklyn College from 1971 to 1975 and a teaching assistant, women's intramurals director and volleyball coach at the University of Southern California in 1969-70. She has served as coach of the Italian National Softball Team and played softball professionally for three years.

Lopiano has been a trustee of the Women's Sports Foundation since 1987. She has served on the National Advisory Board of the Center for the Study of Sport in Society and on the advisory board of Athletic Business magazine. She has been involved in the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance; the Council of Collegiate Women Athletic Directors; the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, and the National Association of Women Deans, Administrators and Counselors.

She also served as president of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women.

A former member of several NCAA committees, she was elected to the Softball Hall of Fame in 1983, the Southern Connecticut State University Hall of Fame in 1986 and the Texas Women's Hall of Fame in 1987.

Stan Smith

The director of coaching for the United States Tennis Association, Smith was the 1968 NCAA singles champion and a two-time doubles champion at the University of Southern California. Smith also captured the U.S. Indoor doubles crown, the U.S. clay court doubles title and the amateur doubles championship in 1968.

Smith was the top-ranked player in the United States in 1969 and also from 1971 to 1973. He was rated as the world's best player in 1972. His professional victories included the U.S. Open, Wimbledon, National Indoors and U.S. Grass Courts championships during a career that spanned 15 years. He also was a participant in U.S. Davis Cup play.

Smith is the author of several books, including "Inside Tennis" and "Modern Doubles."

He is the head of Stan Smith Designs, a company that develops tennis facilities.

A frequent speaker for church and youth groups, Smith also is involved in athletics outreach programs at major tennis events. He received the 1973 UNESCO Fair Play Award, presented by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. He is active in teaching and conducting various youth clinics.

Don Schollander

A standout swimmer at Yale University, Schollander won five gold medals and one silver medal in two Olympic Games (1964 and 1968) and became the first person since Jesse Owens to win four gold medals at an Olympics (Tokyo in 1964). At Yale, Schollander was the 1968 NCAA champion in the 200-yard freestyle, the 400-yard freestyle relay and the 800-yard freestyle relay. He set numerous world, American and NCAA records while earning three letters at Yale. Schollander was the 1964 Sullivan Award winner and also was that year's Associated Press Athlete of the Year.

Schollander is president of the Schollander Development Company in Lake Oswego, Oregon, and was president of the North Shore Development Corporation there from 1975 to 1985. The companies have developed residential subdivisions, apartments, condominiums, office complexes, a resort shopping mall and two golf courses.

Schollander was vice-president/finance for Telephonax, Inc., in Portland, Oregon, from 1971 to 1975 and a stockbroker from 1969 to 1971. He is a former sports commentator for ABC-TV and the author of "Deep Water," published in 1971.

Schollander's professional and civic contributions include his involvement with the cystic fibrosis society, the American Cancer Society, the Albertina Kerr Center for Handicapped Children and the Governor's Sports Council. He also was a member of the President's Council on Physical Fitness Advisors from 1972 to 1974 and the U.S. Olympic Committee Board of Directors from 1970 to 1972.

Wyomia Tyus

Tyus is a former Olympic track gold medalist who has spent much of her life in community service as a counselor and spokesperson. A

Tennessee State University alumna, Tyus won three Olympic gold medals and one silver medal and became the first person in the modern Olympic Games to win a gold medal in the 100-meter dash in two consecutive Olympics (1964 and 1968).

She is a five-time world-record holder in the 50-, 60-, 70- and 100-yard dashes and the 100-meter sprint. She is a 10-time Amateur Athletic Union national champion and an all-American in both indoor and outdoor competition. She also won a gold medal in the 200-meter dash at the 1967 Pan American Games. She has represented the United States in more than 20 international competitions, winning most of them. She also became the only woman carrier of the Olympic flag in history at the 1984 Games.

Tyus has achieved recognition as a human-relations leader for the student-to-student integration program of the Los Angeles Unified School District and as a Los Angeles Zoo camp counselor. She has been a public relations spokesperson for Sports Illustrated magazine and Coca Cola, USA, and she has served as career and development instructor for the United States Department of Labor/National Football League Players Association. Tyus also has made several film and television appearances and has served as a television commentator for track events.

Her professional and civic contributions include her involvement as chair/director of sports clinics for the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America and her work with the U.S. Olympic Committee and the Black Studies Center at the University of California, Los Angeles. She has been inducted into the United States Olympic Hall of Fame, the Women's Sports Hall of Fame, the National Track and Field Hall of Fame, and the Black Athletes Hall of Fame, among others. She also was appointed as goodwill ambassador to Africa by the U.S. Department of State in 1966.

Kristine Lilly

Lilly is a four-time all-American for North Carolina's women's soccer team, which has won 58 consecutive games and seven straight NCAA championships. She is a finalist for the 1992 Honda Broderick Cup, an award which recognizes the nation's top female collegiate athlete.

She was the consensus women's soccer player of the year in 1991, winner of the Hermann Trophy for women and the Atlantic Coast Conference player of the year. She was a starter on the United States Senior Women's National Team that won the 1991 Women's World Championship. She also is a two-time NCAA championship most valuable player.

Lilly, who has a 2.631 grade-point average in radio and television, is an instructor for "City Block Soccer," an inner-city youth soccer program in New York City; a fund-raiser for the American Lung Association, and a participant in "Discover Women in Sports," sponsored by Sara Lee Corporation. She also is a two-year member of North Carolina's Student-Athlete Sports Council.

Gino Torretta

Torretta, the 1992 Heisman Trophy winner, has quarterbacked the Miami Hurricanes to a No. 1 ranking in the wire-service polls and a berth in this year's USF&G Sugar Bowl against second-ranked University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa. He is a consensus all-American quarterback and recipient of the Davey O'Brien Award, which recognizes the nation's top senior quarterback.

Torretta received the Maxwell Award as the most outstanding player in college football and twice has been named Big East Conference player of the year. He is the Hurricanes' career leader in pass completions, attempts, yards passing and total offense. He established a team record with a string of 144 passes without an interception.

Currently enrolled in graduate school, Torretta earned his undergraduate degree in business administration and compiled a 3.425 grade-point average. He was a 1992 Toyota Leadership Award recipient and was recognized as a Hitachi/College Football Association scholar-athlete.

He is active in the Metro Dade-Miami Police "Join a Team, Not a Gang" program and is a DARE (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) volunteer. He speaks frequently at elementary schools and makes visits to the Charter Hospital of Miami.

Andrea Wieland

Wieland is a two-time all-American goalkeeper for Iowa's field hockey team. A four-year starter, she helped the Hawkeyes to four national top-five finishes. She was an NCAA all-tournament selection in 1990 and was named to the Big Ten Conference all-decade second team.

She has been a member of the U.S. field hockey team since 1990 and plans to compete in the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta. She is currently earning her degree in psychology and has compiled a 3.490 GPA. She is a Big Ten all-academic selection.

Wieland conducts leadership seminars for junior high school students and serves as a tutor for middle-school students. She is a member of the Board in Control of Athletics drug-policy program and is an Iowa Board in Control of Athletics academic medallion recipient. In addition, she is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and the Psi Chi Society.

Pablo Yrizar

A three-time all-American in water polo at UC Irvine, Yrizar has scored more than 200 goals during his four-year career with the Anteaters. He is a two-time all-Big West Conference selection and a member of the Mexican National Team in water polo.

Yrizar is a dean's list student and two-time UC Irvine/Big West scholar-athlete of the year. He has compiled a 3.377 GPA while pursuing a degree in economics.

He is a member of Athletes in Action and the UC Irvine Student-Athlete Advisory Board and has been an NCAA YES clinic participant. Yrizar also visits with underprivileged Hispanic children and families living in hostels.

representing Division I and National Collegiate Championships. Divisions II and III institutions will discuss the plan in detail at their business sessions at the 1993 Convention. Division I institutions will receive the complete proposal by mail sometime in January and will have ample time to respond before the Executive Committee takes its final action in May.

If you have an opinion on this plan, please take advantage of the opportunities that remain to make your feelings known after you receive the complete proposal in January. I believe this is a good and effective course of action, but we are eager to hear your thoughts so the committee can give adequate consideration to making whatever improvements may be necessary.

Eugene F. Corrigan is commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Sponsorship requirements

- The Executive Committee has proposed the following regarding the creation and maintenance of division or National Collegiate Championship events:
- Propose legislation to establish 40 as the minimum number required to maintain either a division or National Collegiate Championship.
 - Propose legislation to establish 60, for two consecutive years, as the number required to establish a new division or National Collegiate Championship.
 - Propose legislation to eliminate all current exemptions for the discontinuation of a championship (for example, revenue status), and specify that a championship would be discontinued after the year in which it failed to meet the minimum number required (that is, if a championship failed to meet the minimum in September 1994, it would be discontinued after the 1994-95 academic year).
 - Propose legislation to specify that all championships would receive per diem and transportation reimbursement until such time as they are discontinued (that is, a championship that failed to meet minimum numbers would not be permitted to continue without such reimbursement).
 - Propose legislation to specify that for combined men's and women's championships, minimum numbers will be based on the number of institutions that sponsor the sport rather than on the number of men's and women's programs.

Division III team sports sponsorship

Championships

Executive Committee seeks greater equity by linking field sizes to sports sponsorship

the membership. We set about ensuring that men's and women's championships were treated comparably in terms of size, per diem and traveling parties, and that this treatment reflected the sponsorship numbers and commitment made by institutions to certain sports."

The proposals call for championships structures to be based primarily on the number of institutions sponsoring those sports.

For example, the bracket size of the Division I Women's Volleyball Championship would mirror that of the Division I Baseball Championship because those sports are sponsored on the varsity level by the same percentage of Division I members (approximately 91 percent). Likewise, the size of the Division I Women's Softball Championship would mirror that of the Division I Men's Soccer Championship because those sports are sponsored on the varsity level by about 63 percent of Division I members.

Based on this principle, the sizes of several championships would increase for the 1993-94 academic year, including the following Division I events: women's basketball (64 teams, up from 48), men's soccer (32 from 28), women's volleyball (48 from 32), women's softball (32 from 20) and women's soccer (16 from 12). The field sizes in three individual-team championships—women's swimming and women's indoor and outdoor track—also would increase.

Also proposed are increases in the Divisions II and III Women's Volleyball, Softball, Cross Country, Tennis, and Outdoor Track and Field Championships and the Division III Women's Basketball Championship.

Some reduction would occur in the size of selected championships sponsored by less than 10 to 15 percent of the membership, including men's water polo and the coeducational men's and women's fencing, skiing and rifle championships.

Any bracket expansion would be effective with 1993-94 championships; bracket reductions would not be effective until 1995-96.

Financial considerations—both Association and institutional concerns and priorities—were factors in the development of the proposals, Sweet said.

"We were faced with balancing our responsibility to determine the appropriate allocation of the Association's financial resources with the fair treatment of each championship," she said. "We believe the proposals achieve that to a remarkable degree and reflect the priorities of the membership."

"We also wanted to provide appropriate access for nonautomatic-qualifying conferences in the applicable sports while maintaining the quality of competition that is expected in NCAA championships."

In response to the interest in increased access, the Executive Committee proposed that play-ins be implemented in several championships to provide opportunities for conferences that previously did not have automatic qualification to play their way into championships.

Play-ins would be conducted in the 1994 Division I Baseball, Division I Women's Volleyball, Women's Softball and Men's Soccer Championships. In Division I women's basketball, all eligible conferences would be awarded automatic qualification if the bracket is expanded to 64 teams.

Per diem for all championships except Division I men's and women's basketball would be set at $80, according to the proposal. For Division I basketball, the per diem would be $120, a decrease of $30 for men. Other Division I men's championships in which per diem would be affected are baseball, ice hockey and lacrosse, all of which would go from $120 to $80. The savings from this action would exceed $1 million.

Another major saving would be achieved by a change in the Association's administration of Divisions I and II track and field. Currently, the NCAA pays travel expenses for all qualifying athletes to both the indoor and outdoor championships in Divisions I and II; the plan would allow an institution to receive travel expenses and per diem to one, but not both. In the combined divisions, this saving would amount to more than $600,000.

The Executive Committee also proposed extending from 250 to 400 the mileage restriction on air transportation for all Division I championships other than men's and women's basketball. A 400-mile restriction currently applies to all Divisions II and III championships.

The plan also includes proposals for new minimum sponsorship requirements for creating and maintaining NCAA championship events. Those proposals appear on page 21.

At its August meeting, the Executive Committee set aside $4.3 million in a championships reserve in anticipation of the championships review project. The proposed plan leaves that money mostly intact.

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS University of Southern California

The University of Southern California (USC) invites applications and nominations for the position of Director of Athletics. Founded in 1880, USC is the oldest and largest private research university, and one of only four private AAU universities, in the western half of the United States. USC enrolls more than 27,000 students, nearly half of whom study at the graduate level. The university comprises 18 professional schools in addition to the College of Letters, Arts and Sciences and the Graduate School.

USC has long been a dominant force in the world of intercollegiate athletics. Trojan teams have won more national championships—74 men's and 13 women's—than any other university in the nation. The Trojans have also won at least one national title in 26 consecutive years (1959-1985). USC has won the National Collegiate All-Sports Championship—an annual ranking by USA Today—six times since the inception of this ranking in 1971.

USC has produced more Olympians than any other college or university in the United States—264 men and women from USC have competed in the Olympics since 1904. Our alumni and students have won 181 Olympic medals, including 83 gold, 52 silver and 46 bronze. USC is the only university in the world whose students and alumni have won at least one gold medal in every Summer Olympics since 1912.

Along with their accomplishments on the playing fields, USC student-athletes have received more NCAA postgraduate scholarships than the students of any other institution. In addition, USC has had 20 first-team academic all-Americans.

The Director of Athletics is responsible for the management of the university's entire intercollegiate athletics program, which includes 12 men's sports and nine women's sports. The department of intercollegiate athletics employs a total staff of 105 full- and part-time employees, and has a total annual operating budget of nearly $20 million.

Preferred qualifications for this position include, but are not limited to: unquestioned personal integrity; strong commitment to the personal development and academic achievement of student-athletes; strong commitment to winning athletic championships; sensitivity to equity and diversity issues; experience in the administration of budgets, personnel and contracts; knowledge of NCAA rules and regulations; excellent communications skills; and ability in fund-raising.

Nominations and applications will be reviewed starting December 15, 1992, and will be accepted until a selection is made.

Nominations and applications should be sent to the attention of: Mr. Patrick C. Haden, Chairman, USC Athletic Director Search Advisory Committee, Administration 110, University of Southern California, Los Angeles, California 90089-0012. Applications from, and nominations of, women and minorities are especially encouraged.

DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS University of North Carolina at Asheville

The University of North Carolina at Asheville invites nominations and applications for the position of Director of Athletics. The Director serves as chief administrator for intercollegiate athletics, intramurals and recreation. As a member of the NCAA in Division I-AAA and the Big South Conference, UNCA currently fields teams in 12 varsity sports, six for men and six for women.

A successful candidate must demonstrate an awareness of the role of intercollegiate athletics, intramurals and recreation in a public liberal arts college setting; a clear understanding of the academic mission of the University and sensitivity to the University's commitment of fostering gender equity and ethnic diversity; the ability to ensure total compliance with University, Big South Conference and NCAA regulations; excellent communication skills and the capacity to work with boosters, alumni and other support organizations to market the athletics program and to raise funds to help support them.

A master's degree and several years of experience in athletic administration are preferred. The director reports to the vice-chancellor for student affairs.

The University of North Carolina at Asheville is a small (2,500 FTE), selective, undergraduate constituent institution of the University of North Carolina. Asheville is a city of 60,000 located in the Blue Ridge mountains of western North Carolina.

Applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Interviews will begin in January.

Nominations, letters of application, resume, and the names of three references should be submitted to:

TRINITY UNIVERSITY DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Trinity University invites applications and nominations for the position of Director of Athletics. An NCAA Division III University, Trinity competes in the Southern Collegiate Athletic Conference in 10 men's sports and nine women's sports.

Trinity is a private university committed to academic excellence in the liberal arts and sciences and selected professional fields. Trinity's student body consists of 2,500 students, 2,300 of whom are undergraduates. Highly selective admission standards and a comprehensive educational program characterize this well-endowed university. Trinity is located in San Antonio, Texas, which has a population of 850,000 within a metropolitan area of 1.2 million. Exciting opportunities exist beyond the campus in a bicultural atmosphere.

Candidates for the position of Director of Athletics must have strong communication, interpersonal, organizational and managerial skills. Commitment to academic excellence for student-athletes, sensitivity to equity among programs, and an appreciation of the roles of intercollegiate athletics, recreational sports and intramurals are essential.

The Director of Athletics, responsible for the supervision of the NCAA Division III athletic program for men and women, reports to the Vice-President for Academic Affairs. The Director has administrative responsibility for all aspects of the intercollegiate, intramural and recreational programs. Strong preference will be given to candidates with Division III experience as director or associate director, an advanced degree in a related field, and financial management experience in an intercollegiate athletic program.

The contract period is for 12 months beginning on or about June 1, 1993. Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications.

Candidates are requested to send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendations by January 25, 1993, to:

Ms. Shirley Rushing, Chair
Athletic Director Search Committee

Bylaw 14.12

Change in student-athlete's eligibility status

NCAA member institutions should note that if a student-athlete's academic eligibility changes at the end of a quarter or semester, the student-athlete shall become eligible or ineligible to compete on the date his or her eligibility officially is certified by the appropriate institutional authority. In a case in which the student becomes eligible at the end of the term, the earliest date on which the student can become eligible to compete is the day after the date of the last scheduled examination listed in the institution's official calendar for the term that is ending. In a case in which the student becomes ineligible, the ineligibility shall become effective no later than the first day of classes of the following semester or quarter. In any case, if the student-athlete is academically eligible to compete at the time of the student-athlete's or the institution's participation in an NCAA championship, he or she shall remain eligible for the remainder of the championship.

During its April 27, 1989, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee agreed that when a student-athlete is declared academically ineligible in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 14.12 and the institution has a documented appeal process for all such students, a student-athlete would be eligible or ineligible during the appeal process based on the institution's regulations applicable to all such students, it being understood that if the institution's appeal process extends into the following term, an eligibility declaration for purposes of NCAA legislation must be made before the beginning of that term. In other words, if the student-athlete is declared ineligible at the end of the term and elects to appeal his or her suspension, the student-athlete could remain eligible during the appeals process, depending on institutional regulations.

Finally, during the November 19, 1992, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that a student-athlete who will become academically eligible at the end of a term may receive travel expenses before the conclusion of the term to attend a competition that occurs after the date of the last scheduled examination listed in the institution's official calendar for that term, provided the institution can certify that the student-athlete will become eligible during that trip, and the student-athlete does not represent the institution in competition until the day after the date of the last scheduled examination.

Bylaw 14.1.7

Eligibility to compete between terms

NCAA member institutions should note that for a student-athlete to be eligible for competition that takes place between terms, the student-athlete shall:

a. Have been registered for the required minimum full-time load (not less than 12 semester or quarter hours, regardless of the institution's definition of a minimum full-time program of studies) at the conclusion of the term immediately preceding the date of competition, if the student-athlete is continuing enrollment, or,

b. If the student-athlete is continuing enrollment and has not been registered for the required minimum full-time load during the previous semester, the student-athlete must be accepted for enrollment as a regular, full-time student for the next regular term immediately after the competition.

Bylaw 14.6.4.4.7

Competition in year of transfer

NCAA Divisions I and II member institutions should note that a transfer student from a two-year college is not eligible for regular season or NCAA championship competition in a sport if the student-athlete has competed at the two-year college in that sport during the same academic year. However, please note that it would be permissible for a transfer student from a four-year institution (who satisfies an exception to the one-year residence requirement) to be eligible for regular season or NCAA championship competition in a sport, even if the student-athlete has competed at a previous four-year institution in that sport during the same academic year. In such a case, the student-athlete still would be required to adhere to the applicable maximum contest limitations.

No. 132: Permit a member of Division I to be classified in Division II or III in the sport of football and to specify that such an institution not be eligible for the Division II or III football championship. Sponsored by 13 members, which have indicated their intent to withdraw the proposal. Opposed by the Council. General business session; all divisions voting.

No. 133: Permit a Division I institution that sponsors a nonscholarship football program in Division I-AA, or which offers fewer than 20 percent of the maximum allowable number of scholarships in Division I-AA and was classified in Division II before September 1993, to appeal to the Division I Steering Committee for a waiver of the Division I-AA football scheduling requirements if fewer than six other similar Division I-AA football programs exist within a 500-mile radius of the institution's campus. Sponsored by the Council, the Ivy Group and seven other Division I-AA members. Supported by the Presidents Commission. Division I-AA business session.

No. 134: Specify that institutions shall conduct at least one sport for each gender in two, rather than all three, sport seasons. Sponsored by the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. General business session; all divisions voting together.

No. 135: Permit any Division I institution that does not award athletically related financial aid to be exempted from the minimum awards requirements specified for Division I membership, rather than only those institutions that were in that division as of January 1991. Sponsored by 10 Division I members. Division I business session.

No. 136: Permit a Division I member to meet the minimum sports sponsorship requirements effective in 1994 by sponsoring six all-male or mixed teams and eight all-female teams, as an alternative to the requirement of sponsoring seven all-male or mixed teams and seven all-female teams. Sponsored by the Big Sky Conference. Division I business session.

No. 137: Specify that indoor and outdoor track and field shall be counted as one sport, rather than as separate sports, for purposes of fulfilling Division I sports sponsorship criteria. Sponsored by the Big Ten Conference. Division I business session.

No. 138: Specify that a Division II member institution shall schedule and play at least 50 percent of its women's basketball games in an academic year against members of Division I or II. Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Division II Steering Committee. Division II business session.

NACDA Foundation awards scholarships

Four players from Kickoff, Disneyland football classics to receive $5,000

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics' NACDA Foundation will award a $5,000 postgraduate scholarship to a member of each of the four teams that participated in the 1992 Kickoff Classic and Disneyland Pigskin Classic football games.

Recipients are tackle Mike Gee of North Carolina State and defensive end Matt Whitaker of Iowa, who participated in North Carolina State's victory over Iowa in the Kickoff Classic, and linebackers Jason Atkinson of Texas A&M and Tom Williams of Stanford, who participated in Texas A&M's Disneyland Pigskin Classic triumph over Stanford.

The grants are awarded annually to a varsity letter-winner from each participating team in the games. The student-athlete must be in his final year of eligibility and carry a grade-point average of at least 3.000 (4.000 scale).

"The recipient of the scholarship can be anyone the athletics department of each school wishes; it does not have to be a star or starter," said James L. Jones, director of athletics at Ohio State University and NACDA president.

"This furthers the NACDA Foundation's commitment to providing advanced educational opportunities for student-athletes."

Gee, an Atlantic Coast Conference all-academic selection, will begin graduate studies at North Carolina State, where he will complete undergraduate work as a sports management major this month. Whitaker, a two-time Big Ten Conference all-academic selection, currently is enrolled in both law school and in the master's program in business administration at Iowa.

Atkinson, a former Associated Press defensive player of the week who also has been honored as a GTE Scholar-Athlete, plans to remain at Texas A&M for graduate studies in business or engineering after completing undergraduate studies in civil engineering. Williams, a history major at Stanford who has won Pacific-10 Conference all-academic honors, plans to attend law school next year.

The four recipients will be honored during NACDA's 28th annual convention June 6-9 in San Diego.

NSCAA looks into Arkansas Baptist incident

The National Small College Athletic Association will attempt to determine if Arkansas Baptist College broke any rules by sending basketball players to play games at different sites at the same time.

Arkansas Baptist is a member of the association, which includes fewer than three dozen schools with 1,000 students or less.
