Reorganization streamlines enforcement staff

In an effort to cultivate more sources throughout the country and to orient itself more toward uncovering violations of NCAA legislation, the NCAA enforcement staff recently reorganized its personnel.

Effective February 15, the enforcement staff was restructured into four areas with enforcement representatives assuming more streamlined responsibilities than in the past.

The four areas in which the representatives will work are: new information, secondary infractions, self-reports and major infractions.

Suggested by staff

S. David Berst, NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement, said the recommendations to reorganize the staff were brought about by the enforcement representatives themselves. The staff, Berst said, believed it would be more beneficial to work more in teams with personnel designated to cultivate new sources and confidants. Also, Berst said the staff believed a group of representatives needed to work specifically on the increasing number of self-reported violations by member institutions.

"Over the past year, I have been dwelling more on the general frustrations of where we ought to be or if we know enough about what is going on in intercollegiate athletics," Berst said. "The hope (with reorganization) is that we're going to be better able to serve the interest of intercollegiate athletics."

Develop information

Charles E. Smrt, director of enforcement, will be responsible for coordinating the staff's overall investigative efforts and the processing of major infractions cases. He said the emphasis on developing new information is a key component of the restructuring plan.

"We want to have a better feel for what's going on," Smrt said. "We want to be closer to the recruitment of highly recruited pros-

Upgraded computer database ready for membership use

By Ronald D. Mott
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

A new and improved NCAA Legislative Services Database has been tested and is ready for use by member institutions.

The computer database, which has been in operation since January 1987, has undergone some major reprogramming in order to offer enhancements that the NCAA legislative services staff hopes will make it easier to use and more efficient than its predecessor.

Carol P. Powell, NCAA legislative assistant, was administrator for the upgrade and Mary J. Hill, programmer/analyst, primarily handled the reprogramming duties.

The upgraded database offers full text-search capabilities, rather than the former keyword-driven system. It also features an on-line version of the NCAA Manual that users can "flip" through either by specific bylaws or a word that appears in the Manual.

'More efficient'

"It makes our research a lot more efficient," said Powell, who added that the upgrade has been in progress for a couple of years. "What this allows users to do is look up interpretations by bylaw."

Stephen A. Mallonee, NCAA director of legislative services, and Craig W. Angelos, legislative assistant, pored through more than 7,000 interpretations and cross-referenced all official and staff interpretations with their corresponding bylaws. It is this feature of the new database, allowing users to search for bylaw-specific interpretations, that Powell said may have the most impact.

Halligan named to Commission

James E. Halligan, president of New Mexico State University, has been appointed as the Big West Conference's representative on the NCAA Presidents Commission. He replaces Curtis M. McCray, who left the presidency at California State University, Long Beach, to become president at Millikin University March 1.

Halligan will serve the remainder of McCray's term, which expires in January 1995. He then will be eligible to serve a full term on the Commission, if so designated by the conference.

Halligan became president at New Mexico State in July 1984. Before that, he was dean of the College of Engineering and then vice-chancellor for academic affairs at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville. He also has been a member and chair of the chemical engineering faculty at Texas Tech University and dean of the school of engineering at the University of Missouri, Rolla.

At New Mexico State, Halligan oversees the programs of the main campus in Las Cruces and four branch campuses.

He holds bachelor's and master's degrees in chemical engineering from Iowa State University, where he also completed doctoral studies in 1967.

A weekly summary of major activities within the Association

Gender equity

Full task force to receive recommendations

The institutional standards and NCAA standards subcommittees of the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force have developed recommendations for the full task force to consider when it meets March 23 in Dallas.

The institutional standards subcommittee developed a statement on participation opportunities when it met February 16. After it conducts a telephone conference, the group will forward the statement to the full task force.

The NCAA standards subcommittee, which met February 10, focused on new and emerging sports for women, discussing possibilities for the use of such sports to meet membership requirements. The subcommittee emphasized the need to get reaction from the membership in formulating a list of emerging women's sports.

For more detail, see the January 27, January 20 and November 16 issues of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: March 23 in Dallas.

Certification

Committee's first meeting set for March 31 in Dallas

The NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification will meet for the first time March 31 in Dallas.

Immediate responsibilities facing the committee include development of a certification schedule, creation of a certification handbook and refinement of the self-study instrument. Other administrative procedures must be developed, including the method for selecting a pool of peer reviewers.

Division I institutions are to be informed of the initial five-year certification schedule by August.

For more detail, see the January 27, January 20 and December 16 issues of The NCAA News.

First meeting: March 31 in Dallas.

Finances

Financial conditions survey deadline passes

The deadline has passed for member institutions to respond to a package of 17 "legislative concepts" produced by the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics.

The responses, which were due March 1, will be organized for the committee to consider at its April 29-30 meeting in Chicago.

approach in completing its work: (1) an informal gathering of information to determine concerns and interests, (2) formal research, and (3) study and discussion on findings to form recommendations.

Student-athlete welfare is the primary topic for the third year of the Presidents Commission's strategic plan. The timetable calls for the special committee to have legislation for the 1995 Convention.

For more detail, see the February 10, January 27 and November 9 issues of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: April 30-May 1 in Chicago.

Championships

Survey deadline less than a month away

Division I members have until April 1 to respond to a survey that seeks their reaction to the NCAA Executive Committee's proposal to enhance the Association's championships program.

The deadline for responding to the description of the plan, which was mailed to Division I members January 11, is April 1.

Divisions II and III member institutions discussed the proposed revisions at the January Convention in Dallas.

The Executive Committee's plan would base field sizes on sponsorship and would deemphasize the revenue potential of a championship. Per diem, traveling parties and committee structure also would be affected.

After reviewing the response from the membership, the Executive Committee hopes to approve a final plan at its May meeting.

For more detail, see the December 16, November 30 and October 26 issues of The NCAA News.

Next Executive Committee meeting: May 3-6 in Monterey, California.

Enforcement

Ad hoc committee's first meeting March 8-9

The NCAA Ad Hoc Committee to Study Enforcement Issues will meet for the first time March 8-9 in Arlington, Virginia.

The committee is charged with studying the two remaining recommendations from the report of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Enforcement and Infractions Process. Those recommendations involve the use of independent hearing officers and the use of open hearings.

Charles E. Young, chancellor of the University of California, Los Angeles, will chair the committee.

First meeting: March 8-9 in Arlington, Virginia.

Student-athlete welfare

Second meeting set for special committee

The second meeting of the Special NCAA Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity has been set for April 30-May 1 in Chicago.

At its first meeting February 4-5, the committee discussed means for involving student-athletes in its work.

The committee will employ a three-part

The list, which was mailed January 15, examined the membership's reaction toward a set of 1994 legislative concepts, longer-term legislative concepts (1994-1996) and recommendations to institutions and conferences.

In its most recent meeting February 10-11, the special committee heard reaction to the legislative concepts from several constituent groups.

For more detail, see the February 17, December 23 and November 30 issues of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: April 29-30 in Chicago.

Administration of insurance program changes

Effective March 1, general information and applications for the Exceptional Student-Athlete Disability Insurance Program became available through the NCAA national office.

The administration of the program has been transferred to the program's managing underwriter, American Specialty Underwriters, Inc., of Woburn, Massachusetts. The previous administrator, National Sports Underwriters, Ltd., has closed its office in Overland Park, Kansas, which also is home to the NCAA national office, and is being moved by its parent company to Indiana.

The NCAA staff will field initial inquiries about the program, and American Specialty Underwriters will process student-athletes' applications for coverage. Information and applications can be obtained by contacting Michael S. McNeely, director of operations, at the NCAA national office.

Student-athletes are eligible for coverage under the NCAA-endorsed Exceptional Student-Athlete Disability Insurance Program and for a loan for premium payment if they are projected to be selected in the first round of the next National Basketball Association or Major League Baseball draft or in the first two rounds of the next National Football League draft.

Briefly in the News

'Down' teams run to rescue

As their vans rolled along Route 83 near Lodi, Ohio, around midnight February 20, the College of Wooster men's and women's swimming teams happened upon a potential tragedy, but their ensuing efforts helped a farm family that was unaware of any trouble.

The teams were returning home after competing in the North Coast Athletic Conference championships when they noticed a fire ripping through the roof of a barn. The four vans pulled off the road, and nearly half of the 30 swimmers sprinted to a nearby farm house to awaken its occupants. The others raced to the barn.

Inside the barn, the swimmers found dozens of chickens in cages and led them to safety. They also freed three dogs that were tied up outside the barn, as well as a litter of newborn puppies. During the ordeal, there was an explosion in the barn, but none of the swimmers was injured.

"Initially, we were surprised when we came over the hill and saw the fire," Wooster coach Keith Beckett said. "We could see it was a large barn and that no one appeared to be awake at the house, so we felt we had to stop. We knocked on a neighbor's (door) and asked them to call 911. Then we went to wake up the family, which was understandably in a panic.

"It was very hot, and the animals were hysterical. We moved them to safety and by that time the fire department had arrived, but the barn was completely engulfed in flames."

One of the swimmers said that the teams were disappointed with their showing in the championships, but seeing the fire and sensing the need to assist wiped much of the disappointment away.

"We were tired and disappointed and kind of down after the meet," said senior swimmer Lydia Amerson, "but being faced with the fire really got our adrenaline going. If we had moved as fast at the meet as we did at the barn, we would have scored a lot higher."

Four regional seminars scheduled for spring

Regional seminars promoting continuing education for institutional and athletics administrators are planned this spring at four locations.

Conducted by the membership services group of the NCAA national office staff, the seminars will provide information regarding NCAA legislation and interpretations and will address the roles of various campus officials in establishing and maintaining institutional control of intercollegiate athletics programs.

The seminars, intended primarily for compliance coordinators, athletics administrators and faculty athletics representatives, will be May 5-7 in Minneapolis; May 19-21 in Newport Beach, California; June 2-4 in Boston, and June 16-18 in Orlando, Florida.

The seminars will feature information on the most common eligibility problems and rules violations occurring in athletics programs and procedures for resolving those problems.

There is no registration fee to participate in any of the seminars. Participants are asked, however, to register with the national office at least two weeks in advance.

Special hotel room rates are available to participants using a room-reservation form available from the national office. The rates are guaranteed through April 4 at the Hyatt Regency in Minneapolis, May 1 at the Newport Beach Marriott Hotel and Tennis Club and the Boston Park Plaza Hotel, and May 15 at the Stouffer Orlando Resort.

Also, special discount air fares are available to seminar participants from Worldtek Travel. Information can be obtained by calling Worldtek's toll-free telephone number, 800/243-1800 (or 203/562-6222 collect from Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, or 800/325-5874 from Connecticut).

Further information about the seminars, as well as registration and room-reservation materials, can be obtained from the national office by contacting Chrystal L. Gates, NCAA, 6201 College Boulevard, Overland Park, Kansas 66211-2422; telephone 913/339-1906.

Leader of the K's

When University of California, Berkeley, women's softball pitcher Michele Granger is scheduled to throw, you can expect the scorebook keepers to go home remembering the letter K after the game. That is because Granger recently became the all-time career strikeouts leader in NCAA Division I women's softball.

On the final day of the San Diego State University Spring Classic in Bakersfield, California, February 22, Granger struck out the 1,235th batter in her career, eclipsing the record held by Shawn Andaya, who set the mark from 1984 to 1987 at Texas A&M University.

Granger recorded 37 strikeouts in four games in 1989 before redshirting with an arm injury. Her totals during the past three seasons were 327 to lead the nation in 1990, 463 (second-highest single-season total) in 1991 and 329 in 1992.

Double duty

The baseball teams at Virginia Military Institute and Duke University participated in a different sort of "twinbill" February 23.

During the ninth inning of a game between the teams, both fielded a battery of identical twins. The Keydets had pitcher Merlin Ikenberry on the mound throwing to his brother, Marlin. For the Blue Devils, it was Phil and Matt Harrell pitching and catching, respectively.

Fact file

The NCAA Foundation, established in 1988 to receive and administer funds for programs for student-athletes, had net assets of $12,258,836 at the end of the 1991-92 NCAA fiscal year. Of that amount, the NCAA had contributed $11,640,490. The Association also provides various support services to the Foundation, which, in turn, reimburses the Association for the cost of its operating expenses.

Ethics transcend mere rule-following

By Russell Gough
PEPPERDINE UNIVERSITY

Recently overheard in the hallowed halls of learning:

Medical ethics. Business ethics. Law ethics. Oxymoronic, one and all. Now we have added to this laughingstock trinity yet another field of moral—or should we say immoral?—inquiry: sports ethics.

Sports ethics? Are you kidding?

How can we talk of "sports ethics" in light of the daily reports of crime and rule-breaking within the world of sport? Business had its infamous, not-so-short list of Milkens and Keatings, but the dishonor roll for sports reads like a never-ending moral nightmare: Marge Schott, Pete Rose, Ben Johnson, Mike Tyson, Steve Howe, assorted college abuses—and that just touches the tip of the iceberg. If anything, sports nowadays seem to be offering an education in Rule Bending & Breaking 101. Sports and ethics? Like oil and water...."

This cynical attitude, of course, misses the point massively. The search for excellence, athletic or otherwise, begins with ethics. Ethics is not merely a manual of do and don't rules, the breaking of which renders one "unethical," as the view above seems to suggest. If this were true, we all obviously would be deemed unethical.

Ethics is also an established way of doing things, a shared sense of values, goals and significance. And it is above all a matter of character, which very often cannot be measured in terms of obedience to rules.

But a recently released and much-published study by professors Jennifer Beller of Eastern Michigan University and Sharon Stoll of the University of Idaho seems to give more weight to the sports-and-ethics-as-oil-and-water thesis.

They claim to have found that the longer an athlete participates in a sport, particularly a team sport, the less able that person is to reason morally. They also conclude that athletes' moral-reasoning skills are significantly below their nonathlete peers. Their solution is to improve the athletes' moral decision-making skills by challenging them "to think on higher levels." Thus, the

Balancing budget, gender concerns

State cuts force Division II program to face issues concurrently

By Roger D. Nelson
SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY,
EDWARDSVILLE

Attempts by state governing boards to cut costs that inevitably lead to reduced budgetary revenues in college and university athletics programs always provoke concern among athletics directors, coaches and student-athletes.

The historic practice at most universities has been to increase annually the athletics budget with the intent to strengthen the overall program or to increase it enough to keep up with the rate of inflation. That no longer is the case, especially at those institutions that cannot count on gate receipts and outside resources to pay the majority of the freight.

Most state-supported university athletics programs in Illinois reluctantly have accepted the crushing new burden forced upon them (that is, how to maintain the current program or, more realistically, how to reduce it drastically in response to the Priority/Quality/Productivity (PQP) mandate handed down to Illinois state-supported universities by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

Among sweeping cost-cutting, university-wide recommendations directed to all state-supported universities by the IBHE, the spear that strikes directly at the heart of athletics is the mandate that all state-appropriated funds expended for athletics, approximately $37 million in fiscal year 1991, be phased out over the next three years in the 11 Illinois public universities that support intercollegiate athletics programs.

The intention of the IBHE is not to eliminate athletics wholly but to eliminate the average 20 percent of state-appropriated funds that are spent to make up university athletics budgets. This amount ranges widely from a low of four percent at the University of Illinois, Champaign, to a high of 55 percent at Western Illinois University. Both institutions are Division I members.

The PQP reality, together with the gender-equity principle and the revitalized 20-year-old Title IX law seeking equitable athletics opportunities for women, has created challenging issues at nearly all public Illinois universities. Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville, an independent NCAA Division II member, probably fulfills the intent of the gender-equity issue better than most Illinois public universities with

□ Opinions

Views vary on midseason dismissals

Digger Phelps, former men's basketball coach
University of Notre Dame
The Associated Press

Discussing the midseason firing of University of California, Berkeley, men's basketball coach Lou Campanelli:

"Where's the due process? In this case, there wasn't any. I think that's the biggest problem I'd have coming in as the next coach. You can't be yourself. How are you going to relate to your players? 'Would you please go out and get that rebound?'

"These kids are getting spoiled earlier and earlier. Now, every kid wants to be Shaquille O'Neal. It starts in the eighth grade, and by the time they're in high school, they're monsters."

George Raveling, head men's basketball coach
University of Southern California
The New York Times

"If you fired every coach who swore or yelled, unemployment in this country jumps 10 percent."

Tony Kornheiser, columnist

The Washington Post

"When I was younger and playing sports, I thought coaches could say whatever they wanted to me and they were right because they were coaches. Now that I have children playing sports, I'm more concerned with a coach's conduct. Dignity begets dignity. Abuse begets abuse.

"I am not moved by the argument that universities have to stand by their coaches and against their players, or else they are giving in to caprice. If you have the whole team disgusted with you, maybe it's your fault. That's how revolutions start—with the peasants oppressed by the kings.

"As it is, big-time coaches are too big. They are allowed to run their programs like feudal lords. With their basketball camps and their TV and radio and sneaker deals, they're earning five and 10 times what other teachers at the school earn—and they're earning it off the slave labor of their players....

"Colleges bear some blame: They snobbishly exclude their coaches from the faculty. They should offer tenure to basketball coaches like they do to 18th Century Literature professors. A great liberal arts institution like Cal ought to value them both. But coaches are Hessians now, hired to win games and make money. And like Hessians, they can be dismissed without notice."

Untraditional role

Rice University

Houston Chronicle

On hiring Beth Stringham as strength and conditioning coach for the men's and women's programs:

"We're trying to hire the best person we can for the job, whatever job it is. And it just so happens that Beth was the one we felt would be able to fit in and do the job."

Minority students

David L. Evans, senior admissions officer
Harvard University

Newsweek

"As a college admissions officer, I am alarmed at the dearth of qualified black male candidates. Often in high schools that are 90 percent black, all the African-American students who come to my presentation are female! This gender disparity persists to college matriculation where the black male population almost never equals that of the female.

"What is happening to these young men? Who or what is influencing them? I submit that the absence of male role models and slanted television images of black males have something to do with it....

"The Democratic National Convention that nominated Bill Clinton brought Ron Brown, Jesse Jackson, David Dinkins, Kurt Schmoke and Bernard Shaw into living rooms as impressive role models. Their relative numbers at the convention were in noticeable contrast to the black baseball players who made up nearly half of the all-star teams on the Tuesday night of the convention.

"This powerful medium has made the glamour of millionaire boxers, ballplayers, musicians and comedians appear so close, so tangible that, to naive young boys, it seems only a dribble or dance step away. In the hot glare of such surrealism, schoolwork and prudent personal behavior can become irrelevant....

"Surely (top black performers) can spend some of their time and resources to convince their young followers that even incredible talent doesn't assure fame or fortune. An athlete or performer must also be amazingly lucky in his quest for Mount Olympus.

"A well-trained mind is a surer, although less glamorous, bet for success. Arthur Ashe spent his whole life teaching precisely this message. Bill Cosby and Jim Brown also come to mind as African-American superstars who use their substantial influence to redirect young black males. At this time, when young black men are finally making some inroads into the upper echelons of American society, we need more than ever to encourage the young to look beyond the stereotypes of popular culture."

■ State legislation relating to college athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions.

Set forth below is a list of 49 bills from 25 states. The report includes 27 bills that have been introduced, and 22 pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (February 17, 1993). The newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of February 25, 1993. The listed bills were selected for inclusion from a larger pool of bills concerning sports, and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in the report by subject:

Scalping .....	9
Trainers .....	9
Anabolic steroids and hormones .....	7
Gambling .....	5

■ Administrative Committee minutes

Conference No. 3 February 24, 1993

1. Acting for the NCAA Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Took the following actions regarding committees and committee appointments:

(1) Appointed the following additional Divisions II and III members to the Basketball Officiating Committee, per 1993 Convention Proposal No. 156: James Jorgensen, Northern California Athletic Conference; Jeanne Manning, College Park, Georgia (official in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference); Joyce S. Wong, University of Rochester; and Daniel E. Woolbridge, Old Dominion Athletic Conference.

(2) Postponed until the April Council meeting appointment of the Infractions Appeals Committee, established by adoption of 1993 Convention Proposal No. 55, to permit the division steering committees to discuss appropriate division representation on that committee, among other considerations.

(3) Appointed Ishmell H. Edwards, Rust College, to the Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee, replacing Earl W. Edwards, no longer at a Division III institution.

(4) Appointed Marnie W. Swift, University of Toledo, to the Special Events Committee, replacing Shirley A. Walker, Alcorn State University, in accordance with 1993 Convention Proposal No. 158.

(5) Appointed Vincent Salamone, Long Island University/C. W. Post Campus, to the Men's Lacrosse Committee, replacing Carl Ullrich, retiring June 30 as commissioner of the Patriot League.

(6) Appointed John S. MacKenzie, Western Illinois University, to chair the Men's and Women's Soccer Rules Committee for one year, effective September 1, 1993, with the understanding that he will be replaced as chair at the end of that year by a representative of women's soccer interests, with that individual to serve as chair for at least two years.

(7) Appointed Tommy Lee Frederick, Delaware State College, as an additional member of the Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity.

(8) Appointed the following to serve as NCAA representatives on USA Basketball committees:

(a) Men's committees: Senior National Team—Terry Holland, Davidson College. USA Select Team—Robert E. Frederick, University of Kansas; John V. Kasser, University of California, Santa Barbara; Lon Kruger, University of Florida; John Thompson, Georgetown University; and Joby Wright, Miami University (Ohio). That committee is chaired by Mike Krzyzewski, Duke University, appointed by USA Basketball. Collegiate Committee—Stu Jackson, University of Wisconsin, Madison; Mike Jarvis, George Washington University; Jeff Mullins, University of North Carolina, Charlotte; and Roger Reid, Brigham Young University. That committee is chaired by George H.

Raveling, University of Southern California, appointed by USA Basketball.

(b) Women's committees: Staff Selection—Sue Dille, Seton Hall University; Maryalice Jeremiah, California State University, Fullerton; Jessie Kenlaw, University of Houston; and Cindy Scott, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale. That committee is chaired by Kay Yow, North Carolina State University, appointed by USA Basketball. Player Selection—Charles Curtis, Temple University; Lin Dunn, Purdue University; Jim Foster, Vanderbilt University; and Caren Horstmeier, Santa Clara University.

b. Began a discussion of possible alternative approaches to the concept of the restricted-earnings coach and agreed to place the matter on the agenda for the next in-person meeting of the Administrative Committee; in the interim, there will be appropriate consultation with the National Association of Basketball Coaches and others, and consideration will be given to the feasibility of asking the Administrative Review Panel to consider whether there could be any form of relief to treat concerns regarding restricted-earnings coaches under the current legislation.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Appointed the following to serve as the Ad Hoc Committee to Review Dual Roles in Basketball Officiating, as authorized in the August 1992 Executive Committee meeting: Gary A. Cunningham, California State University, Fresno (Division I Men's Basketball Committee); Rene Dorfman, Patriot League (supervisor of women's officials); James A. Haney, National Association of Basketball Coaches; Carl C. James, Big Eight Conference (Collegiate Commissioners Association); Betty Jaynes, Women's Basketball Coaches Association; Dale Kelley, Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference (supervisor of men's officials); Linda MacDonald, University of Minnesota, Twin Cities (Women's Basketball Rules Committee); Darlene May, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona (Divisions II and III interests); C. M. Newton, University of Kentucky, chair; Jean Lenti Ponsetto, DelPaul University (Division I Women's Basketball Committee); George H. Raveling, University of Southern California (Men's Basketball Rules Committee); Dean Smith, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill (Basketball Officiating Committee); and Patricia Viveiro, Missouri Valley Conference (Collegiate Commissioners Association).

b. Considered per Bylaws 21.3.4.2-(c), 21.3.5.2-(c) and 21.3.6.2-(c) the Football Rules Committee's decision to move the inbounds lines ("hash marks") closer to the center of the football field; upheld the committee's decision, noting that the financial implication is minimal for most football-playing institutions and that there are low-cost alternatives available to those with more permanent installations.

c. Noted for the record that the Special Planning Committee for Drug Testing will complete its work by August 31, 1993.

■ Championships previews

Clemson, led by defending 55-meter dash champion Michael Green, is hoping to catch nine-time defending team champion Arkansas.

Division I Men's Indoor Track

Deep, talented Arkansas favored again this year

Event: 1993 Division I Men's Indoor Track Championships.

Overview: For the past nine years, Arkansas has been the odds-on favorite to win the team title. And for the past nine years, the Razorbacks have lived up to the expectations. This year appears to be no different. In what has become a tradition, Arkansas fields a team that is as deep as it is talented. Leading the way for the Razorbacks is Erick Walder, the 1992 indoor champion in the long jump and triple jump. Among the teams vying to end Arkansas' title string are Florida, Louisiana State, UTEP and Clemson.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure to fill fields to a maximum of 270 student-athletes.

Dates and site: March 12-13 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. The Athletics Congress and Butler are cohosts.

Television coverage: The championships will be broadcast tape-delayed by CBS at 2 p.m. Eastern time April 4.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: This marks the fifth consecutive year the championships have been held at the Hoosier Dome....Arkansas' last six titles have been won by fewer than 10 points.

What they are saying

John McDonnell, head coach
Arkansas

"We're doing all right. We don't have anyone who's doing anything exceptional. We have one or two studs, but we always pride ourselves on being a total team, a team with a lot of depth. This year is nothing different—it's a traditional Arkansas team."

John Webb, head coach
Florida

"I think we're capable of scoring anywhere between 18 and 35 points, depending on how things go and how we mature. We're counting on some young kids to get some more experience and, of course, we need to stay healthy."

Bob Pollock, head coach
Clemson

"We've got a good, experienced team coming back. I feel like we're fortunate because we have some quality athletes in several events. We're excited to get the chance (to compete at the championships), and once we get there, we hope to do the best we possibly can."

Division II Men's Indoor Track

Falcons roll toward 'lucky seven'

Event: 1993 Division II Men's Indoor Track Championships.

Overview: Lucky seven? It should be for St. Augustine's. The Falcons vie for their seventh straight championship and fifth straight outright title (the Falcons shared the title with Abilene Christian in 1988). A year ago, the Falcons ran away with the title by dominating the field events: St. Augustine's earned seven top-three finishes. The Falcons once again should be strong in the field events, with James Shelton, defending champion in the high jump, leading the way. Abilene Christian, which finished a distant second a year ago—57 points behind the Falcons—is much improved and should close the gap considerably.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure to fill fields to a maximum of 126 student-athletes.

Dates and site: March 12-13 at South Dakota.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: St. Augustine's has totaled 70-plus points at each of the past four championships.

What they are saying

George Williams, head coach
St. Augustine's

"We're not worrying about rings and titles; we're going (to nationals) to have a good time. We're not thinking about winning because then there's a lot of pressure....when you're on top everyone tries to knock you off. We're going to compete and have a good time."

Wes Kittley, head coach
Abilene Christian

"I think our team has improved a great deal from last year...as well as anybody in the nation. We brought five people (to nationals) last year, and I think we'll bring as many as 15 this year. I'm really optimistic about our chances. I feel like this is the first chance we have to be up there (on top)."

St. Augustine's field-event strength starts with James Shelton, defending champion in the high jump.

Division III Men's Indoor Track

Sprinters lead former champs

Event: 1993 Division III Men's Indoor Track Championships.

Overview: Lincoln (Pennsylvania), runner-up at the past two championships, appears set to return to the winner's circle this year. The Lions, who claimed the 1990 title, boast a strong sprint corps led by Brandon Jones and Shannon Flowers. St. Thomas (Minnesota), with field-event standouts Pat Ahern and Leonard Jones, has title aspirations of its own. Wisconsin-La Crosse, winner of the past two titles, may not have enough strength to make it three in a row but will play a prominent role in the competition.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure to fill fields to a maximum of 158 student-athletes.

Dates and site: March 12-13 at Bowdoin.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Bowdoin is hosting its second championships; it also hosted the 1989 meet....Wisconsin-La Crosse is the only team that has repeated as champion. The Eagles have done it twice—1987 and 1988, and 1991 and 1992.

What they are saying

Mark Guthrie, head coach
Wisconsin-La Crosse

"Based on what I've seen, Lincoln (Pennsylvania) looks as strong as ever. They're always strong in the sprints, and now they showing up in the field events. St. Thomas (Minnesota) is a difficult team in that they have Leonard Jones and Pat Ahern—those two alone could score 48 points. I think those two teams are in more of a leadership role than we are."

Cyrus Jones, head coach
Lincoln (Pennsylvania)

"I think 60 points will probably be enough to win (the title)...I think we have the tools to (score 60). Again, we have some returning athletes who are just super on the track. Each year, we go to nationals with the intention of winning, and this year is no exception. We're not coming to play, as they say. I'm hoping we can dominate the track this year."

Triple jumper Leonard Jones is expected to help St. Thomas (Minnesota) battle for a top team finish.

Cheryl Taplin is a seven-time all-American for Louisiana State, which is going for its fourth indoor title.

Division I Women's Indoor Track

Louisiana State steps forward in 'odd' year

Event: 1993 Division I Women's Indoor Track Championships.

Overview: Since 1987, Louisiana State has won three indoor team titles—all in odd-numbered years. The Tigers won the indoor championship in 1987, 1989 and 1991. They are likely to continue that trend this year. Ranked No. 1 in the coaches' top-20 rankings, coach Pat Henry's squad is the favorite to claim a championships-record fourth title. Among the teams challenging the Tigers' odd-year dominance are Villanova, Auburn, Wisconsin and defending champion Florida.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure to fill fields to a maximum of 213 student-athletes.

Dates and site: March 12-13 at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis. The Athletics Congress and Butler are cohosts.

Television coverage: The championships will be broadcast tape-delayed by CBS at 2 p.m. Eastern time April 4.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Nebraska (1983-84) is the only team in the championships' 10-year history to win back-to-back titles....Stanford's 26-point total as runner-up a year ago tied the mark for lowest point total by a runner-up. Southern California (1986) and Wisconsin (1990) also scored 26 as runners-up.

What they are saying

Pat Henry, head coach
Louisiana State

"I feel good about our performance to this point (in the season). We have a good nucleus of people who returned from last year, although we are still a very young team."

Tom Jones, head coach
Florida

"We're real thin...we have some quality kids who will probably have an impact and score some points, but I don't think we're a national (title) contender. You don't lose quality people like Michelle Freeman, Anita Howard and Nekita Beasley and replace them with freshmen. It took them four years to get to the point where they were national champions, and it will take some time for the freshmen to do it."

Harvey Glance, head coach
Auburn

"We've had a real productive season thus far. We're getting key performances from key people...they're living up to their expectations. I'm happy with the way they've performed, because when you approach the NCAAAs, your key people have to perform, and they've done that."

Division II Women's Indoor Track

'92 runners-up on top this year

Event: 1993 Division II Women's Indoor Track Championships.

Overview: A year ago, Abilene Christian and Cal State Los Angeles shared the runner-up position behind Alabama A&M. This year, the two probably will battle once again—only this time, it's for the title. Both teams have occupied the No. 1 position in the rankings this season, and both teams have several outstanding individuals. If either team has an edge, it is Abilene Christian, which has won four of the last five titles.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure to fill fields to a maximum of 114 student-athletes.

Dates and site: March 12-13 at South Dakota.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Abilene Christian (18) and St. Augustine's (12) have combined for 30 of a possible 77 individual titles....Four of the past five championships have been decided by victory margins of 20 points or more....Alabama A&M's title was the first title not won by either Abilene Christian (four) or St.

Augustine's (two).

What they are saying

Wes Kittley, head coach
Abilene Christian

"I feel more confident this year than last year. We've recruited very well, and we have a good group of people returning. I think we're stronger than last year in certain events...and there are some events where we're not as strong (as last year). Overall, I think we've got a lot better relay team and better sprinters. I'm excited by our chances, and I'm hoping things will continue to progress."

Cal State Los Angeles

"I think we have a solid shot to score in the neighborhood of 40 points. We have two excellent throwers in the shot put, a couple of good hurdlers and a really good long jumper. What we don't have is a lot of people in a lot of events. If everything went great, the most we'd score is 48 points. I have a feeling somebody will score 50 or more, so that would put us out of it. But I think we'll be in the top four."

Alabama A&M's Taiwo Aladeffa (middle) won the 55-meter indoor hurdles title last year.

Division III Women's Indoor Track

Cortland State seeks second title

Event: 1993 Division III Women's Indoor Track Championships.

Overview: Cortland State's women, who won the Division III women's cross country title, are looking for their second team championship of the school year. Not surprising is the fact that the Red Dragons' strength lies in their distance events: They feature standouts such as Ann Marie DelSignore, the 1992 5,000-meter champion, and Michelle LaFleur. Wisconsin-Oshkosh, runner-up at the past three championships, could finally climb to the top. Always strong in the distance events, the Titans also should do very well in the field events, where Vicki Drewa (shot put), Tricia Haralson (shot put) and Amy Cayemburg (high jump) lead the way.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure to fill fields to a maximum of 138 student-athletes.

Dates and site: March 12-13 at Bowdoin.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Christopher Newport's 46-41 margin of victory last year over Wisconsin-Oshkosh was the smallest since 1987, when four points separated Massachusetts-Boston (56) and Christopher Newport (52)...Christopher Newport ranks first in all-time team and individual championships with four and 17, respectively.

What they are saying

Vince Brown, head coach
Christopher Newport

Defending champion

"We're pretty much a brand new team (this year). We don't have a whole lot of experience. We lost three possible national champions for various reasons. We had a two-year spell (1985 and 1986) when we weren't in the running—I think that'll be the case again. We're going to have a few bright spots, but from a team standpoint, it just won't be our year."

Deb Vercauteren, head coach
Wisconsin-Oshkosh

"We've only had three meets so far. In the meets we have competed in, I think we've come along quite well. We do have quite a few people who have provisionally qualified, but I'm not sure how many will qualify for the meet. It's really hard to say how we'll do (at this point), but I'm hoping we can continue to progress and be in contention."

Shot putter Vicki Drewa is expected to help Wisconsin-Oshkosh do well in the field events.

Vermont's Sally Knight is the defending champion in the women's slalom.

Men's and Women's Skiing

After balanced year, teams set to dominate

Event: 1993 National Collegiate Men's and Women's Skiing Championships.

Overview: After years of being the bridesmaid—seven second-place finishes from 1981 through 1988—Vermont has established itself as the dominant power in intercollegiate skiing the last four years. The Catamounts have won three of the last four championships and finished second in 1991, and they are poised to defend their 1992 title. Over eight events, no team in the East has been able to keep up with the Catamounts. Colorado and Utah, meanwhile, have been sharing the glory in the West. If balance marked the 1992 championships, where New Mexico finished second and Dartmouth finished fourth, 1993 appears to be a return to what has been the power elite.

Field: 160 competitors (80 men and 80 women).

Dates and site: Colorado will host the event March 10-13 at Steamboat Springs, Colorado. The Alpine events will be held at Mt. Werner and Howelsen Hill, and the cross country events will be at the Nordic Center in Steamboat Springs.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Despite Vermont's dominance in the East, Dartmouth's men's team ended a 17-year run by the Catamounts in the East regional to win the men's title....Four competitors will return to defend their individual championships, including Vermont's Sally Knight in the women's slalom and Trond Nystad in the men's diagonal cross country. Utah's Kristen Vestgren in the women's diagonal cross country, and Colorado's Annette Skjolden in the women's freestyle cross country.

What they are saying

Chip LaCasse, head coach
Vermont

1989, 1990, 1992 champions

"Our chances of repeating are good if we ski as a team. That is what is important. There are eight events over four days, and you must be consistent. Because East never meets West in the regular season, this isn't just another week on the slopes."

Division II Men's Ice Hockey

Playoff back after nine years

Event: 1993 Division II Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

Overview: For the first time since 1984, the NCAA will sponsor a Division II Men's Ice Hockey Championship. The last time the championship was played, Bemidji State defeated Merrimack, 6-3 and 8-1, to win the two-game, total-goals series. Now, Bemidji State has returned to Division II play as this year's top-ranked team.

Field: Two teams will be selected March 7.

Dates and site: The competition will take place on the campus of one of the competing institutions March 19-20. The format will consist of a two-game series with a "minigame" tie-breaker, if necessary.

Results: Championship results will appear in the March 24 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: Massachusetts-Lowell was one of the dominant Division II championship teams during the first seven years of the tournament (1978 to 1984). The Chiefs won three national championships (1979, 1981 and 1982) in five years of competition....Bemidji State's Joel Otto holds the tournament record for most goals in a tournament, with seven goals in four games in 1984.

What they are saying

Don Olson, director of athletics
St. Mary's (Minnesota)

Chair, NCAA Divisions II and III
Men's Ice Hockey Committee

"The committee has followed five teams very closely during the season. In the last four or five weeks, all five teams have played very well and have maintained a quality deserving of their ranking."

"I think this championship allows for an exciting opportunity for Division II hockey teams to compete for a national championship."

Bob Peters, head coach
Bemidji State

"I am very pleased and comfortable with the progress of our team. We have five seniors and a strong junior class that provide the bulk of our experience. We have a small but excellent sophomore class and six freshman who have all competed. I am also pleased with the way they are succeeding in school. Academically we really have a solid group. Our players stay with us for four years, and that has been one of the reasons for our success."

Jamie Erb (No. 14) and Bemidji State are shooting for another Division II title.

Division III Men's Ice Hockey

'92 finalists find roles reversed

Event: 1993 Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

Overview: Plattsburgh State scored three goals in a span of 2:49 in the first period and cruised to a 7-3 victory on home ice last year over three-time defending champion Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

Field: Eight teams will be selected March 7.

Dates and sites: All competition will take place at on-campus sites. The four winners of first-round competition March 12-13 will advance to Aldrich Arena in Maplewood, Minnesota, for the semifinal, third-place and championship games, which will be conducted March 26-27.

Results: Championship results will appear in the March 31 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: In 1991, Wisconsin-Stevens Point became the first Division III team to claim three consecutive ice hockey championships....The Pointers and Salem State set championship records last year when they combined for 46 points and 19 goals in a 12-7 victory by the Pointers....Wisconsin-Stevens Point also set a record for goals in a period as it scored eight in the second period....Of the five schools with 10 or more victories in the tournament, Rochester Institute of Technology (14-4-1) has the best winning percentage (.763).

What they are saying

Joe Baldarotta, head coach
Wisconsin-Stevens Point

Currently ranked No. 1 in West region;
last year's runner-up

"We (Plattsburgh State and Wisconsin-Stevens Point) are both in very different spots than we were last year. I know how they feel with everyone shooting for them, and all their fans think they should win every night out. But right now, I don't think my team feels like it lost anything by finishing second last year. Their feeling is that last year does not have any bearing on what they need to do today."

"Our guys have been through the pressure of three straight national championships. It is very tough to stay on top. But I think hockey is the only game where you could play a peewee team with a hot goaltender and still get beat."

"The one thing about our team is that we are very deep. If someone is struggling, we can insert guys where we have to on any of our lines. Our team is playing well, and we feel good right now about our chances."

Bob Emery, head coach
Plattsburgh State

Currently ranked No. 2 in East region

"We've had a decent season; but coming off a national championship, it seems that teams have played twice as well against us. It's a lot different when everyone is shooting for you and you feel like you have a target on your back. Teams have really played all-out against us this year."

"There has been a lot of pressure on the players this year. We tend to lose sight of the fact that these really are just kids whose primary goal is to get a degree. I think there is too much pressure on them sometimes. Needless to say we have been looking forward to the playoffs for a long time."

Wisconsin-Stevens Point and goalkeeper Dave Ketola will try to reclaim the title.

Division III Women's Swimming and Diving

Kenyon seeks No. 10, but faces threat

Event: 1993 Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships.

Overview: Kenyon remains the favorite. The Ladies appear poised to make it 10 straight titles, though UC San Diego continues to challenge. The Tritons, who topped Kenyon, 57-56, in a dual meet earlier this season, have finished second in six of the last seven Division III championships.

Field: The maximum number of participants allowed is 216. All qualifiers who have met the "A" time standard will be admitted in the meet; those who have met the "B" time standard will be considered for the field. No team is allowed more than 18 competitors. An entrant who swims is counted as one competitor, an entrant who swims and dives is counted as one competitor and an entrant who dives only is counted as one-third of a competitor.

Dates and site: Emory will host the championships March 11-13 in Atlanta.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Williams is the only other team besides Kenyon to have won the title. The Ephs reigned as champions in 1982 and 1983 under current coach Carl Samuelson....No host school has ever won the championships. Emory, this year's host and fourth-place finisher a year ago, will mount a challenge behind defending 100-yard breaststroke champion Kendal Hansen.

What they are saying

Jim Steen, head coach Kenyon

"UC San Diego beat us in a dual meet earlier this season, which perks interests for nationals. Whenever you lose, you take it seriously, and we certainly have. We will be relying on three great leaders in Jen Carter (two-time 200-yard breaststroke and 200-yard individual medley champion), Carolyn Peticolas (1991 50-yard freestyle champion) and Maggie Pasek."

Carl Samuelson, head coach Williams

"We already have qualified three freshmen (Debbie Palmer, Robin Trulove and Gretchen von Olsen), and we have a little more depth and versatility than in past years."

Doug Boyd, head coach UC San Diego

"We lack the depth to beat Kenyon, but we're strong enough to finish a solid second. Sabrina Lum, who won the 200-yard butterfly as a sophomore and finished second last year, is swimming better than she ever has, and sprinter Jamee Couch is back on track. We also think we have the strongest diving team in the country. We had four of the top eight finishers last year, and we think we can do that again this year."

UC San Diego's diving team, which includes Jill Jackson, is considered one of the best in the nation.

Division II Men's Swimming and Diving

Winner of seven straight favored

Event: 1993 Division II Men's Swimming and Diving Championships.

Overview: Cal State Bakersfield will attempt to extend a string of seven straight titles under coach Ernie Maglisch. Oakland, runner-up in five of the last six championships, should be among the Roadrunners' stiffest competitors, along with Clarion, last year's runner-up. Another team to watch is UC Davis, which beat Cal State Bakersfield earlier this year in a dual meet.

Field: The meet is open to all qualifiers who have met the NCAA's established minimum standard in an event. Entries are unlimited in number; however, no team is allowed more than 18 competitors. An entrant who swims is counted as one competitor, an entrant who swims and dives is counted as one competitor and an entrant who dives only is counted as one-third of a competitor.

Dates and site: The championships will be held March 10-13 at the C. T. Branin Natatorium in Canton, Ohio. Ashland will serve as the host institution.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Oakland is benefiting from Cal State Bakersfield transfer Morgan Bailey, who is a contender in the freestyle sprints and backstroke events. Bailey redshirted last year after placing sixth nationally in the 100-yard backstroke for Cal State Bakersfield in 1991....UC Davis coach Jerry Hinsdale believes that Arizona State transfer John Keppeler could capture four individual titles and set four meet records at the championships. The senior backstroke and freestyler established four new Pacific Collegiate Swim Conference marks in the conference championships in February.

What they are saying

Jerry Hinsdale, head coach UC Davis

"We know we have a chance to win the championship, but we also know it won't be easy. We're taking nearly a full complement (17 swimmers and one diver) to the meet for the first time, so we're excited about that. We certainly respect Cal State Bakersfield's program, and Oakland is going to be tough, as well."

David Huston of UC Santa Barbara is the defending champion in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Division II Women's Swimming and Diving

Oakland goes for four in a row

Event: 1993 Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships.

Overview: Oakland will attempt to become the first team to win four consecutive team titles and match Cal State Northridge's all-time championships total. Northern Michigan, runner-up last year, likely will be the Pioneers' strongest challenger.

Field: The meet is open to all qualifiers who have met the NCAA's established minimum standard in an event. Entries are unlimited in number; however, no team is allowed more than 18 competitors. An entrant who swims is counted as one competitor, an entrant who swims and dives is counted as one competitor and an entrant who dives only is counted as one-third of a competitor.

Dates and site: The championships will be held March 10-13 at the C. T. Branin Natatorium in Canton, Ohio. Ashland will serve as the host institution.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Oakland's 1992 title team amassed 621½ points, shattering the school's record of 566½ set a year earlier....Oakland and Northern Michigan won't need to scout each other too much. The two Great Lakes

Intercollegiate Athletic Conference rivals went head-to-head in the season's final dual meet (a 151-149 Oakland victory) and again in the conference championships, also won by Oakland.

What they are saying

Anne James, head coach Northern Michigan

"We knew this year would be tough for us, but it's turning out to be better than we expected. We have three returning national champions (Tea Cerkenik, Jennifer Kleemann and Shao Hong), and we look to them for strength. I think this year's championships will be a much deeper event with more teams in the race for the top five spots. Besides Oakland, Florida Atlantic will be a team to watch, and Clarion because of its diving strength. North Dakota and Air Force will also surprise people."

Bill Miller, head coach Clarion

"Right now, the strongest teams appear to be Northern Michigan, Oakland and Florida Atlantic, and we hope to be in that category as well. Our strength this year has been our distance swimmers as well as our diving program."

Northern Michigan University photo

Division II Women's Basketball

Balanced Washburn leads field

Event: 1993 Division II Women's Basketball Championship.

Overview: Washburn captured the top ranking in February after going through its first 24 games without a loss. In that span, coach Pat Dick won her 300th career game. The Lady Blues have three players averaging in double figures—including sophomore Shelley Foster—and two more averaging nine points a game. Despite four losses, defending champion Delta State is ranked second. Last year's runner-up, North Dakota State, also is in the top five. Michigan Tech and Florida Tech, both relative newcomers to the tournament, return strong teams from last year. Florida Tech is led by Paulette King, who has scored 30 or more points in nine games this year.

Field: The championship provides for a field of 32 teams. Eleven conferences have been granted automatic qualification. The remaining teams will be selected at large.

Dates and sites: Regional competition will be March 12-13, quarterfinal games will be played March 19 or 20, and the semifinals and final will be played March 26-27. All games will be on the campuses of competing schools.

Results: Scores from regional games will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News, while results from the quarterfinals will be in the March 24 edition. Results from the semifinals and final will be published March 31.

Television coverage: The Division II championship game will be televised on a tape-delayed basis by ESPN, beginning at 1 p.m. Eastern time March 29.

Championship notes: Midway through the 1992-93 season, Washburn was the only school with undefeated men's and women's teams. The Ichabods and Lady Blues were a combined 39-0 before the men's squad lost a game....Florida Tech center Laurie Hockridge returns to the lineup after suffering serious injuries at the beginning of last season. Hockridge and teammate Candice Kliebrink were hit by a car and went through extensive rehabilitation....Runner-up North Dakota State set several team records in the 1992 tournament. The Bison established marks for most points in a series, most field goals, most rebounds in one game and most rebounds in a series. Semifinalist Bentley had the tourney's highest three-point field-goal percentage at 58.3 percent.

What they are saying

Pat Dick, head coach
Washburn

"Our kids really have the ability to focus on the next game and not look ahead. We are kind of taking a journey to a final destination, but we're able to do that one game at a time. These kids are very tightly knit. We've had close groups before, but this is a special group."

John Reynolds, head coach
Florida Tech

"We have six seniors. I'd like to tell you that at times during the season we never saw anyone make freshman mistakes, but we did. The thing about seniors is that they respond to mistakes differently. They know it's not the end of the world. They make better basketball decisions, but when they make a bad decision, they respond better to it."

Shelley Murrell returns for defending champion Delta State.

Division II Men's Basketball

Top-ranked Roadrunners ready

Event: 1993 Division II Men's Basketball Championship.

Overview: Cal State Bakersfield has maintained a firm hold on the top spot in the rankings. Through 25 games, the Roadrunners lead the nation in field-goal percentage and have yet to lose. Semifinalist in 1992, Cal State Bakersfield has a balanced offensive attack, led by newcomer Roheen Oats' 14 points a game. Second-ranked Philadelphia Textile's only loss in 24 games was a six-point defeat at Division I La Salle. The Rams are led by senior forward Ed Malloy. Defending champion Virginia Union, a season-long top-five team, has lost only twice, although one of the defeats was a 115-109 loss to Bridgeport, the team Virginia Union defeated in the championship game last year. The Panthers are without Derrick Johnson, the 1992 tournament's most outstanding player, who is out for the year with a separated shoulder.

Field: The championship provides for a maximum field of 32 teams. Seventeen conferences have been granted automatic qualification. The remaining teams will be selected at large.

Dates and sites: Regional competition will be March 12-13 at sites to be determined by the Division II Men's Basketball Committee. Quarterfinal, semifinal and final games will be played March 25-27 at the Springfield Civic Center in Springfield, Massachusetts. The Elite Eight will be hosted by Springfield and American International.

Results: Scores from regional games will appear in the March 17 issue of The NCAA News. Results from the quarterfinals, semifinals and final will be published March 31.

Television coverage: The Division II championship game will be televised live by CBS Sports, beginning at 1 p.m. Eastern time March 27.

Championship notes: Long-time Division II coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines has announced his retirement from Winston-Salem State at the end of this season. Gaines, who trails only Adolph Rupp in career victories, led Winston-Salem to the Division II championship in 1967....Central Oklahoma tied a tournament record with 132 points against Washburn in a regional final last year.

Cal State Bakersfield and Erin Vines (No. 20) will battle for the Division II title.

What they are saying

Pat Douglass, head coach
Cal State Bakersfield

"We're leading the nation in field-goal percentage, so obviously we have a very unselfish team. We have talented players, but they work well together. This team is a team that has had to prove itself again, and we won't have proven anything until we get back there (to the tournament)."

Herb Magee, head coach
Philadelphia Textile

"We thought going into the year our biggest problem would be rebounding. Ed (Malloy) has really come on strong to do a good job rebounding for us. This team has been a bit of a surprise. I'm not shocked, but we lost a lot of points and a lot of rebounds. I think the main reason for our success is that every coach looks at talent, but in terms of closeness, this is one of the closer-knit—I hate to use that word, being at a textiles school—teams I've had."

Dave Robbins, head coach
Virginia Union

"We have no one outstanding, but we have many outstanding players. Each night, somebody new steps up and scores 22 or 24 points, but the next night, it's somebody different. Nobody has been able to key on any one player."

Division II volleyball committee reviews championships issues

The NCAA Division II Women's Volleyball Committee reviewed several key issues regarding 1993 championship selection and 1994 regional alignment during its annual meeting February 16-19 in Key West, Florida.

The committee considered a proposed bracket expansion and its anticipated effect on regional berths for 1993. If the 1993 championship field increases from 20 to 28 teams as proposed, the committee will allot the following number of berths to the eight regions: Atlantic, two; Great Lakes, three; North Central, four; Northeast, two; Northwest, four; South, three; South Central, six, and Southwest, four.

Otherwise, the committee's plan for the 1993 championship is to leave allocated bids unchanged. Changes in designated berths would be made only in extreme circumstances where overwhelmingly conclusive data (head-to-head competition or common opponent only) is available.

"Bracket expansion was a major concern, and it has created a lot of excitement in the Division II volleyball community," said committee chair Marlene Piper of the University of California, Davis. "As a committee, we feel we have appropriate criteria in place to ensure regional berths are distributed fairly based on the number and strength of teams in each region."

Current regionalization criteria include the number of institutions in each region eligible for selection, the number of championship appearances by teams in each region, the number of teams selected for the championship from each region and won-lost records of teams in each region in championship play.

The committee also decided to survey the Division II membership regarding a proposed regional alignment for the 1994 season.

In addition, the committee will survey the membership about requiring that teams have a .500 or above won-lost record and that they play at least 50 percent of their matches against other Division II teams in order to be eligible for the championship.

Other highlights

In other action at its February 16-19 meeting in Key West, Florida, the Division II Women's Volleyball Committee:

■ Agreed to propose the use of a regional ratings percentage index to assist in championship selection, regional realignment and automatic-qualification data.

■ Recommended the following conferences for automatic qualification for the 1993 championship: the California Collegiate Athletic Association and the Northern California Athletic, North Central Intercollegiate Athletic, Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic, Colorado Athletic and Sunshine State Conferences.

■ Determined that regional evaluations for the 1993 season will be held on a biweekly basis.

■ Refined regionalization criteria for the 1994 season to include the number of matches played by each region in regional play, in addition to each region's won-lost percentage. The committee will explore use of a "roll-over" of data for regionalization criteria, beginning with the 1995 championship.

■ Established evaluation feedback procedures for championship referees.

New team-match tennis format aims to save time

By Steven R. Hagwell
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

It was not that long ago—maybe a decade—that a Division I men's tennis dual-meet match typically lasted little more than four hours.

But to many Division I coaches, that decade seems like a century.

In recent years, dual-meet matches have evolved into marathon affairs lasting upwards of six to eight hours.

As match time has increased, so has concern among coaches.

Scarpa

Experimental format

"A lot of coaches have become very concerned and worried by the fact that matches have become so long—they've become endless," said David A. Benjamin, men's tennis coach at Princeton University and executive director of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association. "We've sent out surveys and questionnaires about this issue, and each time they came back, the consensus was that change would be desirable. The real dilemma has been: 'What should the change be?' That's something we could never agree on, so we'd always end up going back to the drawing board."

Times may be changing.

This spring, several Division I conferences are experimenting with a new team-match format that dramatically reduces the amount of time it takes to complete a dual-meet match. Among the leagues using the new format are the Eastern Collegiate Athletic, Atlantic Coast, Southeastern and Southwest Conferences.

The "3-6" format, which was developed by Paul Scarpa, men's tennis coach at Furman University, features three eight-game pro-set doubles matches and six singles matches. The format provides for doubles matches to be played before singles and awards one point to the team winning two of three doubles matches. The six singles matches are best of three sets and are worth one point each. The team winning at least four of the possible seven points is the winner.

The NCAA Men's and Women's Tennis Committee's Division I men's subcommittee, which recommended use of the new format, plans to survey Division I head coaches for their reactions after the 1993 season. If the response is favorable, the subcommittee plans to recommend that the Men's and Women's Tennis Committee recommend that the NCAA Executive Committee approve the format for use at the 1994 NCAA Division I Men's Tennis Championships.

Concern about time

"The time factor was definitely a concern, especially with the direction that the Presidents Commission and NCAA legislation is heading," said Scott B. Perelman, associate men's tennis coach at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, and chair of the Men's and Women's Tennis Committee. "There's been a concern among coaches for missed class time and travel time. It's gotten to the point that I think most players and coaches welcome a format that limits play to four hours."

The "3-6" format does that.

Whereas the traditional format provides for three best-of-three-sets doubles matches, the new team-match format uses pro-set doubles matches, in which the first team to win eight games wins the match (except that a team must win by at least two games). If a doubles match is tied at 8-8, a 12-point tiebreaker is used. Singles play remains unchanged.

"What makes this plan work is that it guarantees doubles," said Benjamin. "Nearly all the previous proposals to reduce the length of matches have done so at the expense of doubles. This one doesn't. That was the final catch."

Said Perelman, "The drawback to the old format was you put singles out first, and a lot of matches were ending in singles. The other thing was doubles matches were getting stopped. One of our concerns was how could we encourage more doubles play?"

Though we've shortened the length (of doubles play), we've encouraged more play and more results."

Two-fold goal

Scarpa says the intent of the format was two-fold: to reduce the length of dual-meet matches while also increasing excitement and participation.

"What I tried to do is bring in something that brings in team play. (Tennis) is an individual sport, but why not make it team oriented?" he said. "That's when I came up with playing doubles first. By playing an abbreviated (doubles) format, it shortens the match, which is definitely a need, but it also guarantees that when the players hit the court, everyone is ready to play because you're playing for that one point."

Translation: more excitement and participation.

"Raising the intensity of being ready to play and putting a team out there is something a lot of (coaches) feel has tremendous value," said Perelman.

The intensity is not limited to the playing court.

"(This format) gives fans something to root for," said Scarpa. "Spectator-wise, you will no longer have fans who show up to watch singles and then disappear. Doubles is really a factor, a huge factor. Everyone goes out with intensity now. It makes for a fun-type event not only for the players and coaches, but the fans as well."

Some drawbacks

While the new format has plenty of positives, it is not perfect.

One possible drawback is that by reducing the amount of available points from nine to seven, the chances of a team coming from behind to win are reduced. Another is that by awarding one point for doubles, sweeping doubles matches is no longer an accomplishment.

Scarpa, however, disagrees with that view.

"If you give three points for doubles, then you're watering down singles," he said. "If you give two points, then a team only needs to split the six singles matches (to win). One point is the key."

Based on early reaction to the new format, Scarpa is correct.

"I think it's gone fairly well," said Perelman. "There surely is a lot of excitement in the eight-game pro-set format. The players have responded better than anticipated. Their intensity and commitment to the game of doubles has increased."

Does that mean the format will be adopted? Benjamin thinks so.

"My own feeling is that this will be a successful experiment for Division I men's tennis, and I do think, from my own experience as a coach, that this (format) will work over the next decade. It's an ingenious solution to the problems we've been facing."

Satisfactory-progress issues reviewed

Issues relating to satisfactory-progress proposals adopted at the 1993 NCAA Convention were the focus of attention at the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee meeting February 18-19 in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee reviewed waiver provisions regarding Bylaws 14.5.2.1, 14.5.3.1 and 14.5.4.1 and prepared a series of waiver guidelines that the committee will discuss further during a March 22 telephone conference and forward to the NCAA Council at its meeting in April.

Those guidelines include: 1) reviewing the student's annual post-secondary academic record, including progress toward degree and other satisfactory-progress requirements; 2) considering whether or not the student would have fulfilled the satisfactory-progress requirements in effect before the implementation of the new continuing-eligibility legislation; 3) noting if the student was not recruited; 4) considering if the waiver request is a result of institutional action or circumstances that affect all students or a portion of the student body and is unrelated to athletics; 5) limiting the duration of waivers to one term as opposed to the entire academic year, and 6) referring financial-hardship or health-related waiver requests to the NCAA Administrative Review Panel.

In terms of procedure, a written request must include the student-athlete's complete academic record and must be signed by the student-athlete and either the institution's chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of

Other highlights

In other actions at its February 18-19 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Academic Requirements Committee:

- Reviewed the implementation of the Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse and the role that the committee will serve in the process, especially in helping the clearinghouse define acceptable core courses.
- Agreed to attempt to clarify and revise the definition of core courses per Bylaw 14.3.1.2.
- Recommended that core-course grade changes in Division I be accepted only if the grade change occurs within four weeks of the published high-school graduation date.
- Reviewed whether current standards relating to the acceptance of incomplete grades (Bylaw 14.5.5.7) would "water down" the application of Bylaw 14.5.4.1. The committee agreed to consider forwarding proposed legislation to the Council regarding this matter, including the identification of related standards to be applied to correspondence and independent-study courses.
- Heard a subcommittee report recommending that issues regarding the acceptability of two-year college degree programs per Bylaw 14.6.4.4 continue to be handled on a case-by-case basis.
- Agreed to research further the application of the Association's core-curriculum requirements to home-schooling courses.

athletics, senior woman administrator or compliance coordinator, and must be submitted to the committee. The requests will be reviewed in subcommittee telephone conferences as needed.

All approved requests will be reported to the Council and published in The NCAA News.

The committee also reviewed a report from a joint subcommittee of the Academic Requirements Committee and NCAA Research Committee regarding the design of the proposed longitudinal research study to assess new initial- and continuing-eligibility legislation in Division I. The study will track the academic progress of student-athletes who sign National Letters of Intent.

Student-athletes who enroll before the new initial-eligibility legislation goes into effect (entering classes of 1993-94 and 1994-95) will be compared to student-athletes who enroll later (entering classes of 1995-96 and 1996-97).

The study is being planned in conjunction with the Collegiate Commissioners Association and the new NCAA Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse and will be forwarded to the Council for approval.

Honored jersey

Salisbury State University retired the basketball jersey of 1992 graduate Andre Foreman during half-time ceremonies of its final home game February 13. Foreman finished his career as the all-time scoring leader in NCAA Division III with 2,940 points. His jersey was just the third in any sport, and the first in basketball, to be retired at Salisbury State.

Field hockey panel recommends five qualifiers

The Division I subcommittee of the NCAA Field Hockey Committee will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that automatic qualification to the championship tournament be granted to the Big Ten, North Atlantic and Big East Conferences, the Ivy Group and the Colonial Athletic Association.

The committee met February 15-18 in Key West, Florida.

Those five Division I conferences are the only ones currently eligible for automatic qualification. The subcommittee can award a maximum of six berths to automatic qualifiers. If more than six conferences become eligible, a play-in system would be set up.

The subcommittee will continue to publish a preseason poll in August. The first regular-season poll will be September 14 and will be based on the final two polls of 1992, rather than a power rating based on the preseason poll, as was the case last year.

Other highlights

In actions involving rules at its February 15-18 meeting in Key West, Florida, the Field Hockey Committee:

■ Bleeding: Recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that the following modifications to the international rules used in NCAA field hockey be made to adhere to the Association's general policy regarding bleeding players and blood on uniforms and equipment.

1. If a player incurs a wound that causes bleeding, the official must stop the game at the earliest possible time and the wound must be evaluated by medical personnel (the person or persons in charge of the team's medical needs). This will be considered an injury timeout.

2. When a player's uniform or equipment has blood on it (whether it is the player's own blood or someone else's blood), the official must stop the game at the earliest possible time to have the uniform or equipment evaluated by medical personnel. If the team's medical personnel determine that blood has saturated the uniform or equipment, the player must change the bloodied item. If saturation has not occurred, the player may continue to wear the item. In this situation, a number change may occur.

■ Substitutions: Determined that the international rule for rolling substitution will be followed with a few modifications. Substitution of the goalkeeper must take place between the 25-yard line and the end line of her defensive end.

The procedure for substitution will be as follows:

1. Each team must have a set of cards with a minimum of six-inch numbers corresponding to the numbers of all players.

2. Each player must report to the scorer's table. After reporting, the player will stand in the designated area and hold up the card with the corresponding number of the player who will come off. It is recommended that the designated area, five yards back from the sideline and five yards either side of the center line, be marked with cones.

3. The exchange of the card between players at the sideline signifies the substitution has been made and the player may enter the game.

4. Players exiting the game must return the card to the scorer's table.

The number of substitutions has been increased from 10 to 12.

■ Uniforms: Agreed that items pertaining to uniforms that have appeared in the championships handbook will be moved to the rules-modifications section of the handbook. Also regarding uniforms, the committee determined that teams must wear like-colored socks and/or shinguards that cover the back and front of the lower leg (ankle to knee).

Hash mark change is approved

The NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the NCAA Executive Committee, has approved a change in the distance from the sidelines to the inbounds lines, or hash marks, on college football fields.

Under the new rule, which is effective next season, the hash marks and short yard-line markers will be six feet, eight inches closer to the center of the field, or a total of 60 feet from the sideline. The change was recommended by the NCAA Football Rules Committee at its annual meeting January 24-26 in New Orleans.

Executive Committee approval was required because the change could have a significant financial impact on a limited number of football-playing institutions. Because the next Executive Committee meeting is not until May, the rules committee requested that the Administrative Committee act on the recommendation so that teams could conduct spring practice using the field markings that will be in place next season.

High schools delay ban on sticky gloves

The ban on adhesive, sticky or tacky gloves approved earlier this year for high-school football has been delayed until the 1994 season.

The Football Rules Committee of the National Federation of State High School Associations had adopted the ban at its January meeting.

The Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association will be coordinating an effort to develop a test standard that could be adopted by rules committees and used by glove manufacturers. That test standard could be available by June 1, 1993.

■ Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 2 February 11, 1993

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

Expenses—entertainment

1. Entertainment expenses in conjunction with away-from-home contest. An institution's team that is traveling to or returning from an away-from-home contest may receive actual costs of reasonable entertainment, even if the entertainment is not within a 100-mile radius of where the team plays or practices. [References: NCAA Bylaws 16.7.1 (away-from-home contests), 16.7.2 (departure/return restrictions) and 16.7.3 (films/movies/videotapes)]

Membership

2. Impact of legislative change of division membership for football program currently classified in restricted membership. A Division I institution (that previously has conducted a football program at the Division I-AA level) that conducts a Division III football program currently classified in the restricted-membership category in the sport of football, but which will be mandated by legislation to be classified in Division I effective September 1, 1993, may not avoid being reclassified as a corresponding member (effective September 1, 1993), inasmuch as the institution has failed to meet the applicable membership requirement in a sport for three consecutive years. The committee encouraged the institution to use the Administrative Review Panel to seek relief from the application of the legislation in this instance. [References: 20.3.5.1.1 (minimum one-year compliance period) and 20.3.5.1.3 (failure to meet division scheduling requirement)]

Financial aid—outside sources

3. Extracurricular activities that include athletics participation or achievements. A scholarship award administered outside of the institution that permits an applicant to include athletics participation or achievements on the application form as part of his or her extracurricular activities must be administered in accordance with the provisions of 15.2.5.3 or 15.2.5.4 (e.g., the scholarship may not restrict the recipient's choice of institutions). The committee recommended that the staff develop a chart illustrating the differences between 15.2.5.2, 15.2.5.3 and 15.2.5.4 to be reviewed by the NCAA Legislative Review Committee for possible inclusion in the NCAA Manual. [References: 15.2.5.2 (no relationship to athletics ability), 15.2.5.3 (athletics participation not major criterion) and 15.2.5.4 (athletics participation as a major criterion)]

Evaluations/contacts

4. Institution's coach attending a banquet during a contact period (Divisions I and II). An institution's football coaching staff member who speaks at a meeting or banquet at a high school during the contact period (but does not make a recruiting presentation in conjunction with the appearance or have direct contact with any prospect in attendance) utilizes an evaluation for all prospects at the high school, utilizes the institution's once-per-week visit to a prospect's educational institution during the contact period, and in I-AA and I-AA football, utilizes one of the three days during which institutional staff members may visit a prospect's educational institution. [References: 13.02.5 (evaluation), 13.1.4 (visit to prospect's educational institution), 13.1.4.2 (visits during contact period—Divisions I-AA and I-AA football) and 13.1.7.1 (visit without contact)]

Coaches

5. Coach with previous contractual obligation with noninstitutional publication (Divisions I and II). The committee noted that inasmuch as 1993 Convention Proposal No. 67 has an immediate effective date, it no longer is permissible for athletics department staff members to endorse (either orally or in writing) or to continue to write for or receive any remuneration from any noninstitutional publication dedicated to reporting on the institution's athletics activities. The committee determined that if an athletics department staff member has a written contract signed and executed prior to November 15, 1992 (date of publication of the Official Notice), with the noninstitutional publication, the staff member may continue to fulfill the terms of the contract for a one-year period. Such contracts must be forwarded to the Association's legal counsel for final review and approval. Further, the committee recommended that the Council consider sponsoring legislation (or rendering an interpretation) to permit athletics department staff members to write educational articles related to NCAA rules and crowd control for such publications, provided no remuneration is received for such articles. [Reference: New Bylaw 11.3.2.7 (noninstitutional publications that report on athletics program)]

Membership/financial aid

6. Application of institutional financial aid regulations to institution that must reclassify its football program (Division I). A Division I institution that currently conducts a Division III football program but must reclassify the program in Division I-AA or I-AA for the 1993-94 academic year does not have to include in its limitation on initial counters for the 1993-94 academic year any team members who previously participated on the institution's team and received need-based aid. The committee noted that the annual limit on initial counters is applicable to student-athletes who are initial participants on the institution's football team for the 1993-94 academic year. The committee also noted that such institutions remain subject to the legislation governing overall counters. [References: 15.5.5.1 (Division I-AA football), 15.5.5.2 (Division I-AA football) and 20.4.1.1 (Division I member)]

Restricted-earnings coach

7. Alternating restricted-earnings coach and assistant coach on a yearly basis (Division I). The committee expressed concern regarding an institution alternating a restricted-earnings coach and an assistant coach on a yearly basis and recommended that the NCAA Council consider sponsoring legislation (or rendering an interpretation) to prohibit such activity. [Reference: 11.02.3 (restricted-earnings coach)]

Financial aid/Pell Grant

8. 1993 Convention Proposal No. 87 (Division I). The committee reviewed the provisions of 1993 Convention Proposal No. 87, which increases the amount of Pell Grant assistance (in combination with other institutional financial aid) that a student-athlete may receive, and determined that a student-athlete who is a recipient of Pell Grant assistance in excess of $1,700 for the 1992-93 academic year, and whose institutional financial aid was reduced so as not to exceed NCAA financial aid limits, may be reimbursed institutional financial aid not to exceed the NCAA financial aid limits (i.e., the value of a full grant plus $2,400 or the cost of attendance, whichever is less). The committee noted that any increase in institutional financial aid must be included in the institution's financial aid equivalency calculations in the specific sport. [References: 15.2.4.1 (Pell Grants), 15.3.1.3 (retroactive financial aid) and 15.5.3.3 (equivalency computations)]

Coaching limitations

9. Countable coaches—managers, outside consultants (Division I). A manager does not have to be included in the institution's limitations on countable coaches, provided the individual is a student who performs traditional managerial duties. The committee noted that it is not permissible to employ or utilize a manager for the purpose of being involved only in on-court or on-field activities (e.g., pitching batting practice) without including such an individual in the institution's coaching limitations in that sport. Further, an institution may not employ an outside consultant to observe institutional practice sessions and provide analysis of such sessions to coaching staff members without including the individual in the institution's coaching limitations in that sport. [References: 11.7.1.1.1 (non-coaching activities) and 11.7.1.1.3 (use of outside consultants)]

Vermont women's streak becomes a record

Before the game, the players said the streak didn't matter.

But when the final buzzer sounded February 25 and the University of Vermont women's basketball team had won its 50th consecutive regular-season game, the magnitude of the victory was obvious.

Vermont's 50-40 win over Northeastern University set an NCAA Division I record, eclipsing the mark it shared with Butler University. Two days later, the team extended the streak to 51 with a victory over Boston University.

When the record-setting game ended, the team ran off the bench and the sell-out crowd at Patrick Gymnasium roared.

Even Vermont Gov. Howard Dean got in on the excitement, presenting the team with a plaque commemorating the streak.

Louisiana Tech University holds the longest overall winning streak. It won 54 straight, including NCAA tournament games, in the early 1980s.

Vermont's low-scoring victory over Northeastern did not come easily. "It was not the prettiest game but we did what we needed to do," Vermont coach Cathy Inglesse told The Associated Press.

With the win, Vermont clinched the North Atlantic Conference championship.

Inglesse, who took the Catamounts from a 7-18 record in 1988-89, said she was glad the streak is in the books.

"I was really looking forward to this game," she said. "It's nice to have the victory so now we can move on."

"We tried to keep things as normal as possible. You could just say so much. I told them to go out there and play your game, and you should be all right."

Last year, Vermont's only loss came in the first round of the Division I Women's Basketball Championship.

Cross country champs dominate academic team

Adams State, which swept the 1992 Division II men's and women's cross country titles in its first year as an NCAA member, extended its domination to academics as three members of its women's team and one member of its men's team were named to the 1992 NCAA Division II Cross Country Coaches Association all-academic team.

Laura Romero, Kristen Schwartz and Amy Giblin, who placed 13th, 14th and 18th, respectively, at the 1992 championships, all were named to the 39-member women's team, while David Brooks, who finished third at the 1992 championships, was one of 11 men named.

Joining the Adams State trio on the women's team were five of the top 10 finishers at the 1992 championships. Ann Westby and Kiri Johnson of South Dakota State, who finished fourth and ninth, respectively; Steph Bruening of North Dakota, fifth place; Saginaw Valley State's Becky Duda, the championships' sixth-place finisher, and Katie Meehan of Springfield, who placed eighth, all were named to the team.

On the men's team, Martin Ryan of Long Island-C. W. Post joined Brooks as the only other top-10 finisher from the 1992 championships. Ryan placed ninth.

Following are the 50 individuals who make up this year's all-academic team:

Women

Stephanie Aspen, St. Cloud State; Re-

nae Bartolone, Air Force; Steph Bruening, North Dakota; Mary Jane Burton, Mississippi College; Rosa Cazares, Cal State Los Angeles; Christine Clark, Northern Michigan; Kristen Crouch, Michigan Tech; Diane Daley, Barry; Bethanne DeDominici, Stonehill; Lisa Dillin, Northeast Missouri State.

Chaminade forfeits title

Chaminade University has relinquished its Pacific West Conference basketball championship for using an ineligible player, according to The Associated Press.

Conference Commissioner Elwood B. Hahn informed Chaminade February 27 it would have to forfeit five games, thus dropping the Silverswords to fifth place in the conference.

Chaminade appealed Hahn's decision, but athletics directors of member schools denied the appeal and upheld the sanctions March 1.

Commission established by USVBA

The United States Volleyball Association (USVBA) has established a nine-member commission to help promote intercollegiate men's volleyball sponsorship.

The commission is working in conjunction with the Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association (SGMA), which underwrites the USVBA start-up grant program that allots $6,000 over a three-year period to selected schools with men's volleyball club teams making the transition to varsity competition.

The commission is chaired by Doug Beal, head coach of the gold-medal 1984 U.S. Olympic men's volleyball team. Other members include U.S. national team coaches Fred Sturm and Jim Coleman and NCAA Men's Volleyball Committee members Don Purvis of Ball State University, Robert Hiebert of California State University, Northridge, and Robert Sweeney of East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania. The commission is charged with formalizing the grant application process, administering the grants and monitoring recipients' progress.

"The overall goal is to stimulate interest in intercollegiate men's volleyball," Coleman said. "We will monitor the grant program, but more importantly we will stimulate schools to apply for the grants. If we are able to attract more applicants than we have grants, then it will be our responsibility to go out and raise more funds. We don't want to turn anyone down."

The commission will hold a meeting March 16 in Chicago for all directors of athletics interested in men's volleyball.

"The start-up grants were designed to put a little sugar on the table to convince some of these schools to step up and move their club teams to the varsity level," said Purvis, who chairs the NCAA Men's Volleyball Committee.

Presently, 59 institutions sponsor men's volleyball. The SGMA has been involved with the grant program since 1989 and has helped seven institutions develop intercollegiate men's volleyball programs.

Balance

In times of shrinking support, budget and equity concerns require creative approach

varsity football teams. Southern Illinois-Edwardsville currently sponsors eight men's and six women's varsity sports, not including football. However, equal opportunities for men and women, in terms of athlete participation and the gap in dollars expended to provide program equity, still fall short at our institution, as at nearly all universities throughout the country. That is especially true for those with football programs.

How does an athletics department slash 27 percent, or nearly a quarter of a million dollars, from an already lean budget? Very carefully, because in doing so, it must avoid as much negative fallout as possible from coaches, students, alumni and the athletics-support public.

Our strategy is to seek quality in a smaller number of sports while continuing to meet NCAA Division II requirements in addition to shifting available resources into the athletics program's identified priorities. Reduced revenues from state resources can be offset by combining reduction in program costs and personnel with increases in new funds derived from internal reallocations; increased gate receipts and concession income; new external revenue from sponsorships, clinics and fund-raising efforts, and money from the Division II fund of the revenue-distribution plan.

The Intercollegiate Athletic Committee, a body composed of faculty, staff and student representatives, is charged with making recommendations on intercollegiate athletics to the president. The committee determined a plan that allows for a smooth transition to a smaller sports program with minimal disruption and hardship for athletes and coaches over a three-year phase-out period.

An evaluation was made of how each of the existing sports compared on a list of quantitative criteria, including cost per athlete, revenue generated per sport, costs borne by the university, trends in participation levels in Division II and at high schools in surrounding counties, opportunities provided for student participation (squad size), and the utility and availability of facilities.

Since it was felt that an intercollegiate athletics program should be responsive to diversity and sensitive to the needs and aspirations of minority groups, special note was taken of which sports actively encouraged minority participation through recruitment practices.

The Intercollegiate Athletic Committee was committed to fair and equitable opportunities for men and women to compete in intercollegiate athletics, and it kept gender equity firmly in mind as it developed its recommendations, which include the elimination of one female sport and three male sports and the addition of one high-participation female sport.

These changes reflect essentially equal participation opportunities for men and women at Southern Illinois-Edwardsville. Achieving equal opportunities also will require equal expenditures per participant in scholarships and operational costs that will be addressed through reallocation of resources. Implementing the proposed recommendation and reallocating resources that meet Title IX tests have the net effect of causing significantly less negative impact on the women's program.

The revenue shortfall attributed to PQP, the more recent "moral imperative" of gender equity and a revitalized Title IX equal-opportunity law have major implications for intercollegiate athletics programs in Illinois and the nation. At Southern Illinois-Edwardsville, we are keeping up with the rapidly changing scene and are perhaps a leader by example for other medium-sized universities (12,000 enrollment) that are struggling with the same issues.

Ethics

Problems exist in sports, but athletes often only reflect attitudes of all young people

key is to enlighten moral judgment.

There is, to be sure, a moral crisis in the world of sport. And I am all for sharpening athletes' critical-thinking skills. But as a diagnosis of and a remedy for the crisis in sport, Beller and Stoll's analysis is too myopic, if not unrealistic.

First, the present crisis is not unique to sport. It is most fundamentally a societal problem, not a sport problem. Motivated by dubious talk of higher and lower levels of moral reasoning, the Beller-Stoll study seems to unfairly single out athletes as well as many of their coaches (though I am sure this was not their intent).

Consider the conclusions of another recent study, conducted by the Josephson Institute for Ethics in Marina del Rey, California. Billed as "the most comprehensive survey of American ethical attitudes and behaviors ever undertaken," the two-year study found that shocking numbers of American youth from all regions of the country admit to stealing, lying, and cheating at school, work and home. The problem is emphatically not unique to athletics.

Moreover, athletes have little or no problem judging between right and wrong. Thus, the present crisis is not so much one of moral judgment but of character—having the will and desire to do the right thing. In terms of moral education, character precedes judgment.

Consider these specific findings from the Josephson study: One-third of both high-school and college students say they are willing to lie to get a job. A majority of high-schoolers—61 percent—admit to cheating on an exam at least once. A third of high-school students say they have stolen something from parents or relatives at least once. In all three of these examples, it is quite clear that the students knew of the wrongfulness of their actions. So it was and is with the Schotts, Roses, Johnsons, Tysons and Howes of the world of sports.

Important as theoretical enlightenment may be, I am doubtful as to whether an enlightened sense of right and wrong would have made any significant difference in these individuals' illicit behavior. More than anything else, people must want to do the right thing.

Simplistic as this observation may sound, it takes us back to the heart of ethics: individual character. Rules are an important and essential part of our ethical lives, but ethics is not something that can be reduced to mere rule-following. You can follow all the rules and still be unethical.

It is in this regard that we should temper the severe moral whipping that sports continue to receive. To a great many people who have or are participating in athletics, "sports ethics" makes a great deal of sense. For every publicized ethical or legal infraction in sports, there are untold numbers of character-molding successes.

To my mind, coaches have been and continue to be some of the premier shapers of moral character. Sport is an important source of moral values and has an important role to play in moral education, a point that was suggested by the noted philosopher and 1957 Nobel laureate Albert Camus, who once remarked that the only context in which he really learned ethics was in sports.

Russell Gough is an assistant professor of philosophy at Pepperdine University and teaches a course titled "Ethics in Sport."

Community service

Texas program receives award

The University of Texas at Austin's Neighborhood Longhorns Program was selected to receive the Austin Area Urban League 1992 Community Service Award.

"It is an honor to receive such a prestigious award for our Neighborhood Longhorns program," said Texas women's athletics director and women's basketball coach Jody Conradt. "The University of Texas is dedicated to this program and to helping children in Austin learn the importance of education and sports."

The men's and women's basketball teams at Texas present awards to youth ages eight to 14 who demonstrate 90 percent attendance in school, report-card improvement and/or a commitment to reading. "Study before you play" is the motto of the program.

Hiram bowls for kids' sake

The Hiram College football team Bowls for Kids' Sake program will benefit the Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Portage County (Ohio) March 3.

Bowlers will raise a minimum of $25 each to reach their collective goal of $1,500. Last year, the football players raised $1,200.

"We're just thrilled and grateful to have Coach Bobby Thomas and the football team bowling for the kids," said Ron Kilchenman, associate director of the county program. "It's nice to see them reach out to the community like that."

Championships corner

Division III baseball: The NCAA Division III Baseball Committee is accepting proposals to host the 1994, 1995 and 1996 NCAA Division III Baseball Championships. Representatives of institutions or agencies that are interested in serving as host should contact Thomas A. Jacobs, NCAA assistant director of championships, at the national office. The deadline for proposals is July 1.

Plaque for Pat

St. Louis University athletics department officials recently unveiled a plaque commemorating the Pat Leahy Scholarship award winners. Leahy (fifth from the left), a former soccer player at St. Louis and an all-pro place-kicker for the New York Jets, established the scholarship to help the soccer program continue its nationally recognized efforts. Those attending a ceremony to unveil the plaque were (from left): Dan Carey, university vice-president for student development; Deborah A. Yow, director of athletics; Dan Leahy; Joe Clarke, head men's soccer coach; Pat Leahy; J. Kim Tucci, chairman of the St. Louis Billiken Club; Randy Bobbitt, assistant director of athletics; Frank Molek, vice-president for institutional advancement; Beth Albes, director of annual support, and Russ Viehmann, associate vice-president for development.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Carlos Hernandez named president at Jersey City State, where he has been acting president... Richard Pfau, provost and dean of the faculty at Emory and Henry, named president of Illinois College... Robin S. Wilson, president at Cal State Chico, announced his retirement, effective upon the selection of a successor.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

Dana Mulholland, head men's and women's swim coach at Bates, accepted additional responsibilities as assistant AD. He relinquished duties as assistant football coach.

COACHES

Baseball—Mike Marshall, the 1974 Cy Young Award winner, appointed at West Texas State, effective May 1. Marshall won the Cy Young Award as a relief pitcher for the Los Angeles Dodgers... Matt Newman chosen at Savannah A&D, where he also will serve as an assistant basketball coach... Chris Sorrell, an assistant at Dayton since 1990, picked as interim coach there, replacing Mark Schlemmer, who resigned for personal reasons after compiling a 77-151-1 mark over the past four seasons.

Men's basketball assistant—Raymond Ferrell hired at Lincoln Memorial.

Women's basketball—Dawn Bunting will step down as coach at Rowan after the end of the current academic year.

Basketball assistant—Matt Newman picked at Savannah A&D, where he also will serve as head baseball coach.

Football—Rick Coles, offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Cornell College for the past three years, picked as head coach at Lawrence... John Bunting, head coach at Rowan for the past five years, named as a defensive assistant by the Kansas City Chiefs. He compiled a record of 38-14-2 at Rowan.

'Big House' Gaines announces retirement

Winston-Salem State men's basketball coach Clarence "Big House" Gaines said he is looking forward to pursuing and achieving other goals after his retirement from coaching at the end of the season. Gaines joined the institution in 1945.

"I operate on the bumper-car philosophy," Gaines said. "I go in whichever direction I'm bumped into."

Gaines is second in coaching victories at four-year institutions, trailing only the late Kentucky coach Adolph Rupp, who registered 876 victories in 41 seasons. Gaines had a 828-440 mark as of February 18.

Gaines, who turns 70 years old on May 21, would have been forced from his job as professor and basketball coach on June 30 because of the state's mandatory retirement policy.

Football assistants—Greg McMackin, former defensive coordinator and secondary coach at Navy, chosen as secondary coach at Miami (Florida), which also announced the appointment of Charlie Williams, former receivers coach at Minnesota, as receivers coach.

Vance Bedford, secondary coach at Colorado State, chosen for a similar position at Oklahoma State... Bill Lynch and Deon Chester resigned as aides at Ball State to become quarterbacks coach at Indiana and wide receivers coach at Temple, respectively. Also, Ball State announced the hiring of Mike Haywood as receivers coach.

James Bell, defensive coordinator and secondary coach at Northwest Missouri State since 1988, picked as defensive backfield coach at Louisville... Kevin Ramsey named as an assistant at West Virginia... Denny Schuler selected as offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach at California... Former Penn State and Philadelphia Eagles player Kenny Jackson added to the staff at his alma mater as wide receivers coach.

Expansion issues top I volleyball meeting

The NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Committee reviewed issues related to the anticipated expansion of the 1993 championship field from 32 to 48 teams during its annual meeting February 23-26 in Madison, Wisconsin.

Pending NCAA Executive Committee approval in May, 24 conferences would receive automatic qualification for the 1993 championship, including the Atlantic-10, Big South, Great Midwest, Mid-Continent and Southern Conferences, Colonial Athletic Association, and Ivy Group, which would be receiving automatic berths for the first time.

The committee also voted to reinstate automatic qualification for the Missouri Valley and Southland Conferences.

Sixteen first-round matches would be played Wednesday, December 1, and 16 second-round matches would be played Saturday or Sunday, December 4 or 5. The top four teams in each region would receive a first-round bye. Regionals would be held December 9 through 12 and the championship semifinals and final would be played December 16 and 18.

The committee recommended that no regional realignment take place this year, but it formed a subcommittee to create a realignment proposal to be distributed at the American Volleyball Coaches Association meeting in December. If the Executive Committee approves that proposal at its May 1994 meeting, realignment would be implemented in 1995.

Other highlights

In other actions at its February 23-26 meeting in Madison, Wisconsin, the Division I Women's Volleyball Committee:

- Discussed the issue of play-ins, noting that they would not be used until the 1994 championship. To establish a time frame for play-ins, regular-season competition would need to be completed by November 26.
- Voted that if the championship's No. 1 and No. 2 seeds are from the same region, the No. 2 seed would be moved to the region with the lowest-ranked top team.
- Recommended to the NCAA Executive Committee that the University of Texas at Austin be selected as host for the 1994 championship. Also reviewed bids from potential hosts for the 1995 championship, but delayed selection until further information can be provided.
- Increased the number of people allowed to occupy the bench from 14 to 16.
- Increased net receipts guaranteed by a regional tournament host to $10,000.
- Voted to continue rally scoring.
- Voted to close practices—except for the first 15 minutes, which would be open to media only—at all first- and second-round matches.

Equipment

Video pen gives coaches 'clickers'

CBS Sports announcer John Madden has made the on-screen pointing and clicking of football plays an industry standard in broadcasting. Now, there is a similar device that will allow coaches to do the same for instructing their players.

The Pointmaker PVI-55 video pen, manufactured by Boeckeler Instruments, generates an invisible drawing "slate" over almost any video image without altering that image. Operators simply set the pen against the monitor and draw.

The PVI-55 is used with an interface and is connected between a video monitor and a video source, such as a video cassette recorder or player. For more information on the product, contact Boeckeler Instruments Inc., 3280 East Hemisphere Loop, Building 114, Tucson, Arizona 85706-5024; or call 800/552-2262 or 602/573-7100 in Arizona.

Wisconsin runner paces I academic team for third time

A three-time all-academic selection and the third-place finisher at the 1992 Division I Men's Cross Country Championships head this year's United States Cross Country Coaches Association Division I men's all-academic team.

Donovan Bergstrom of Wisconsin, who becomes the first student-athlete named to the team for three consecutive years, and Mark Carroll of Providence, who finished third at the 1992 championships, head the 19-member squad.

Bergstrom, who helped guide Wisconsin to a runner-up finish in team competition at the 1992 championships and placed 20th individually, carries a 3.520 grade-point average (4.000 scale) as a psychology major.

Carroll, who paced Providence to a third-place showing at the 1992 championships, is the top individual finisher from the 1992 championships to earn academic honors. A sophomore from Cork, Ireland, Carroll has accumulated a 3.560 GPA with an undeclared major.

Among the notables joining

Bergstrom and Carroll on the team are four repeat honorees, including David Smith of Michigan State, who posted the highest grade-point average (3.860) as a fisheries and wildlife major. Also repeating are 1990 selection Kevin Herd of Iowa and 1991 honorees Glen LeGros, Texas Christian; Terrence Mahon, Villanova, and Brigham Young's Jason Pyrah.

The all-academic team is selected by a vote of the coaches association's executive committee, based upon nominations by coaches in each of the eight NCAA Division 1 cross country districts.

Nominees are required to have at least a 3.250 grade-point average and to have placed among the top 15 finishers at their respective NCAA district meet.

Following are the members of this year's team, with school, GPA and major:

Ray Appenheimer, Colgate, 3.690 in English; Donovan Bergstrom, Wisconsin, 3.520 in psychology; Bernd Breitmair, Boston U., 3.290 in business management; Mark Carroll, Providence, 3.560, undeclared; Jamey Harris, Fresno State,

3.250 in physical education; Renier Henning, Nebraska, 3.250 in art; Kevin Herd, Iowa, 3.370 in marketing; Conor Holt, Oklahoma, 3.350 in music; Pat Joyce, Cleveland State, 3.530 in labor management; Scott Larson, Colorado, 3.470 in business; Glen LeGros, Texas Christian, 3.530 in marketing; Terrence Mahon, Villanova, 3.500 in English; Ian O'Riordan, Brown, 3.300 in health and safety; Eric Polonski, Texas, 3.310 in accounting; Jason Pyrah, Brigham Young, 3.670 in athletics training; Mike Reilly, Stanford, 3.420 in symbolic systems; Bernard Semier, Arizona, 3.450 in sports sciences; David Smith, Michigan State, 3.860 in fisheries and wildlife; George Yiannellis, Kentucky, 3.256 in mechanical engineering.

1993 Column No. 9

Bylaws 11.7.1.1.1 and 11.7.1.1.3 Countable coaches—managers and outside consultants

Division I institutions should note that with the adoption of 1993 Convention Proposal No. 65 (countable coaches), an institutional staff member involved in noncoaching activities (e.g., administrative assistants, recruiting coordinators, academic counselors) does not count in the institution's coaching limitations, provided such an individual is not identified as a coach, does not engage in any on- or off-field coaching activities [e.g., attending meetings involving coaching activities (analyzing videotape or film involving the institution's or other opponent's team)] and is not involved in any off-campus recruitment of prospects or scouting of opponents.

During its February 11, 1993, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that a manager does not have to be included in the institution's limits on countable coaches, provided the individual is a student who performs traditional managerial duties. The committee noted that it is not permissible to employ or utilize a manager for the purpose of being involved only in on-court or on-field activities (e.g., pitching batting practice) without including such an individual in the institution's coaching limits in that sport. Further, an institution may not employ an outside consultant to observe institutional practice sessions and provide analysis of such sessions to coaching staff members without including the individual in the institution's coaching limitations in that sport.

Bylaws 13.1.4 and 13.1.7 Institution's coach attending banquet during contact period

During its February 11, 1993, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that an institution's football coaching staff member who speaks at a meeting or banquet at a high school during the contact period (but does not make a recruiting presentation in conjunction with the appearance or have direct contact with any prospect in attendance) utilizes an evaluation for all prospects at the high school, utilizes the institution's once-per-week visit to a prospect's educational institution during the contact period, and in Divisions I-A and I-AA football, utilizes one of the three days in which institutional staff members may visit a prospect's educational institution during the contact period.

1993 Convention Proposal No. 67 Noninstitutional publications

Divisions I and II member institutions should note that with adoption of Proposal No. 67 (coaches' endorsement of noninstitutional publications), an athletics department staff member shall not endorse (either orally or in writing) any noninstitutional publication dedicated primarily to reporting on an institution's athletics activities and shall not write for or receive any remuneration for such publications.

During its February 11, 1993, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee noted that inasmuch as Proposal No. 67 has an immediate effective date, it no longer is permissible for athletics department staff members to endorse (either orally or in writing) or to continue to write for or receive any remuneration from any noninstitutional publication dedicated solely to reporting on the institution's athletics activities. The committee determined that if an athletics department staff member has a written contract signed and executed prior to November 15, 1992 (date of publication of the Official Notice), with the noninstitutional publication, the staff member may continue to fulfill the terms of the contract for a one-year period. Such a contract must be forwarded to the Association's legal counsel for final review and approval.

Bylaw 11.7.2.2 Coach providing transportation to prospects to and from official visit

Division I member institutions should note that during its January 28, 1993, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that a coach who is permitted to recruit prospects off campus, but who is not designated as an off-campus recruiter for that week per Bylaw 11.7.2.2 (or who is not one of the individuals designated to recruit prospects per Bylaw 11.7.5.1), may not transport a prospect to and from an official visit (from the prospect's home), unless the prospect resides within a 30-mile radius of the institution's campus.

may find themselves better informed if they use the database before calling the NCAA staff.

"In an ideal world, it will cut down on calls," Powell said. "That is what we hope happens. You hope it gives them a little more to work with before they pick up the phone to call us."

The database is available through CompuServe but subscribers must contact the NCAA's data processing staff to receive the NCAA identification number before they will be able to use the system, Powell said. Users will dial into CompuServe, which then routes customers interested in using the database into the NCAA's own computer network.

Tested

Before the upgraded database was made available, it was tested through use by members of the NCAA Legislative Review Committee and five representatives of the membership who were selected by the committee.

R. Dale Smith, assistant commissioner of the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, was one of the testers. He said the upgraded database is much more efficient than the previous version.

"The primary asset of the new system is speed in retrieving something you're looking for," Smith said. "You have a much greater ability to refine the search from the start. It reduces the volume of 'interps' that you would have to scroll through (in the previous version) to get the one you wanted."

Smith said it took him about a week to feel comfortable with using the new database and said that he will recommend that institutions in the Metro Conference sign up to use the system.

Mailing planned

Powell said a mailing is planned in a few weeks to notify CompuServe subscribers at member institutions that the upgraded database is ready for use. Also included in that mailing will be documentation on how to use the database, Powell said.

To obtain the NCAA identification number needed to gain access to the database, representatives of member institutions can contact Daniel W. Spencer, NCAA director of data processing, at the national office.

Under the restructuring plan, two staff members will work on obtaining new information by talking with college prospects, transfer student-athletes, coaches and others involved in intercollegiate athletics. Any information obtained through these contacts will be forwarded to a team of another two staff members who will evaluate the information to determine if further investigation is warranted.

Then, if it is decided that potential infractions are of a secondary nature, one staff member will take over and begin investigation. If the information uncovers major violations, the case will be turned over to the staff's major-rules-violations representatives.

'More streamlined'

"The idea is to make us a better team, identify and accentuate the strengths of the enforcement staff, and to better serve the membership," said Robert J. Minnix, director of enforcement, who will now work on developing new information. "We are now more streamlined and more focused."

Another concern that the enforcement staff wanted to address was the criticism that it takes a long time to process cases. Berst said he hopes the changes will produce quicker investigations.

President Clinton has unveiled a pilot program that would allow students to pay for college with national service, saying it would "make higher education available to more people in return for the service they give to their community."

The president, who announced the program March 1 during a visit to Rutgers University, New Brunswick, said it would allow students either to pay off college loans with public service or to do the service first and accrue credits to attend college later. Borrowers who did not want to do service work would pay a percentage of their income back into the loan fund.

By setting the repayment at a percentage of income instead of a set amount, Clinton said he hoped to encourage graduates to take lower-paying public-service positions such as in police and community health work, according to

The Associated Press.

He linked the program to his overall economic package, saying "an economic investment is not just building an airport or a road or investing in new technology, it is also investing in people."

Clinton's plan would get off to a modest start this summer with approximately 1,000 summer community-service positions and then grow over the next five years to more than 100,000 slots.

Included in Clinton's proposed economic-stimulus package is a $15 million pilot project to train community-service leaders, the first stage of implementing the broader program.

Critics have said that government should not try to force service on youth in return for college aid. Some labor unions worry that service jobs will take away public employee positions.

Bailey one of 17 Sports Ethics Fellows

Former NCAA President Wilford S. Bailey is among 17 1992-93 Sports Ethics Fellows selected by the Institute for International Sport to conduct research and write on the issues of sportsmanship, ethics and fair play in athletics.

The fellowship program, sponsored by Merrill Lynch, enters its third year with a special emphasis on the condition of sportsmanship in college athletics.

"We have some very specific goals related to our '93 sportsmanship program," said Daniel E. Doyle Jr., executive director of the institute. "We plan to implement a nationwide research project and initiate 'Team Sportsmanship' (a program involving varsity high-school and college head coaches in preseason sportsmanship discussions with their teams) in schools throughout the United States.

"The ethics fellows will be asked to help in both of these areas, as well as with the planning of the National Sportsmanship Day in March."

That event, which was March 2, involved more than 5,000 schools during the first two years of its observance. A "how-to" packet and introductory videotape is provided by the institute to promote debate of sportsmanship issues at schools.

Joining Bailey as this year's ethics fellows are Raymond Flynn, mayor of Boston; Kristy Gould, an all-American cross country runner from Bates College; James Haney, executive director of the National Association of Basketball Coaches; Rushworth Kidder, president of the Institute for Global Ethics; Alan Carr, supervisor of athletics and student activities at Haddon Township (New Jersey) High School; Sharon Page, health and physical education coordinator for the Idaho State Department of Education, and Ted Leland, director of athletics at Stanford University.

Also, Dick Schaap, ABC Sports and ESPN commentator; Sharon Stoll, a member of the health, physical education, recreation and dance faculty at the University of Idaho; Leroy Walker, president of the United States Olympic Committee; Joan Pew, former Harvard University student-athlete and an associate of The Narragansett Group; Marian Washington, head women's basketball coach at the University of Kansas and president of the Black Coaches Association; Dr. John Meaney, orthopedic surgeon for Rincon Orthopedics; Valerie King, a member of the education faculty at the University of Virginia; Suzie D'Annolfo, assistant principal of Farmington (Connecticut) High School, and Chuck Wilson, anchor/host at ESPN Radio and host of a sports talk show for WPRO Radio.
