Interest soars for women's basketball event

Interest in the 1993 NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship appears to be much higher than in previous years, in terms of both television and attendance.

Regina L. McNeal, NCAA assistant director of communications, said the sale of television rights to first- and second-round games more than doubled from the 1992 event.

Rights were sold to six first-round games and to seven second-round games (plus an additional two games to community-access cable channels).

"It seems like it just exploded this year," McNeal said. "We had situations where all four stations from a market were calling, and that was because people in their community were calling them."

The rights sales for first- and second round games were especially impressive because the stations are also responsible for production costs.

NCAA Productions produced the regional semifinals, and all of those games were carried on cable by Prime Network. However, stations also bought over-the-air rights in that round to games involving Southwest Missouri State University; the University of Colorado, Boulder; Stanford University, and Ohio State University.

ESPN carried the regional finals under its exclusive contract with the NCAA. The Midwest regional finals would have been tape-delayed because of a scheduling conflict, but an auto race that was scheduled in that slot was rained out, permitting "bonus" live coverage of the final between Ohio State and the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

McNeal said increased reporting of women's basketball on ESPN—including scores and occasional game accounts—might have contributed to the greater interest. CBS also mentioned women's scores during coverage of its men's games more than in the past, McNeal said.

"For people who don't normally

Shooting down a record

Reggie Phillips scored 23 points, helping California State University, Bakersfield, win the Division II Men's Basketball Championship. The Roadrunners set an NCAA all-divisions record for most victories (33) in a perfect season. See story, page 7.

Partial qualifiers decrease

Divisions I and II institutions both showed decreases in the percentage of partial qualifiers enrolling in the 1992-93 academic year, according to a survey conducted by the NCAA Research Committee.

Division I experienced a drop of more than two percentage points, while Division II figures dropped by nearly seven percent.

Partial qualifiers are prospective student-athletes who did not meet the requirements of NCAA Bylaw 14.3.1 (core-curriculum requirement and/or test-score requirement) but who earned an overall grade-point average of 2.000 or better (4.000 scale) in high school. A total of 261 of the 298 Division I institutions (87.6 percent) responded to the survey; in Division II, the rate was 67.7 percent, with 151 of 223 institutions responding.

Division I

Division I institutions reported that 488 partial qualifiers enrolled in fall 1992. That number repre-

Presidents Commission begins its work for 1993

The NCAA Presidents Commission holds its first regular meeting of the year April 7-8 in New Orleans, and subcommittee meetings will focus on several of the major topics for the new year.

Subcommittee sessions actually begin April 6, with the Subcommittee on Strategic Planning—chaired by President Thomas K. Hearn Jr., Wake Forest University—meeting that afternoon. The Subcommittee on Gender Equity—with Judith E. N. Albino, University of Colorado, and Steven C. Beerling, Purdue University, as co-chairs—will meet during the morning April 7, as will the Commission's executive committee (its four elected officers).

In addition, the Divisions I, II and III subcommittees will meet late in the afternoon April 7, as will the Division I-A subcommittee, which will be conducting a separate meeting for only the third time in the Commission's history.

Highlights on the various agendas:

■ Subcommittee on Strategic Planning: The subcommittee will attempt to identify the components of the topic for the next year (culminating at the 1996 Convention) in the rolling, three-year strategic plan, "Integrity: Sportsmanship and Ethical Conduct in Intercollegiate Athletics." Sharon Kay Stoll of the University of Idaho will make a presentation regarding her work in developing a moral-reasoning-intervention program for student-athletes.

■ Subcommittee on Gender Equity: The subcommittee will discuss the work to date of the NCAA

Nominating Committee appointed

The Presidential Nominating Committee that will select chief executive officers to fill vacancies on the NCAA Presidents Commission has been appointed by Commission Chair Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, chancellor of the University of New Orleans.

Brother Thomas J. Scanlan, president of Manhattan College, was named to chair this year's committee.

Serving with Scanlan will be James R. Appleton, Redlands University; Richard Bowen, Idaho State University; Robert J. Bruce, Widener University; Thomas W. Cole Jr., Clark Atlanta University; Joseph J. McGo-

Championships

Response deadline arrives for Division I institutions

The deadline for Division I members to respond to the NCAA Executive Committee's proposal to enhance the Association's championships program is April 1.

The plan was mailed to Division I members January 11. Divisions II and III member institutions discussed the proposed revisions at the January Convention in Dallas.

The special committee's survey examined the membership's reaction to a set of 1994 legislative concepts, longer-term legislative concepts (1994-1996), and recommendations to institutions and conferences.

Briefly in the News

Nebraska plans Jam

The University of Nebraska, Lincoln, athletics department is coordinating the 1993 Best of America "School is Cool" Jam in early April. The educational-outreach program featuring several Husker student-athletes and Golden Key National Honor Society students will be broadcast nationwide via satellite.

During the program, Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne and Gov. Ben Nelson are scheduled to address an anticipated crowd of 2,500 fourth- through seventh-graders at the Lincoln Southeast Prash Activities Center.

The program's purpose is to use Nebraska student-athletes as role models stressing the importance of education, responsible decision-making and reaching one's full potential.

The program, which will air from 9:55 to 10:55 a.m. Central time Monday, April 5, is Nebraska's celebration of National Student-Athlete Day.

Satellite coordinates for the broadcast are GSTAR 02, Transponder 11; audio 6.2. More information about the broadcast can be obtained from Roger Bartlett, chief engineer for network operations at Nebraska Educational Television, telephone 402/472-2413 or 402/472-6869.

Winds aid hitters

When Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania and Lewis University met for a baseball game March 13 in Boca Raton, Florida, Mother Nature became a significant player. With winds of 40 miles per hour blowing toward the fences and gusts of up to 60 mph produced by a storm that affected the entire Eastern seaboard, two NCAA Division II team records were tied by game's end.

Shippensburg won the game, 37-17, in seven innings. The two teams' 54 runs scored and 91 total bases tied records.

With 30 hits, including seven doubles and eight home runs, Shippensburg notched 61 total bases and also recorded 35 runs batted in. Lewis hammered out 16 hits, including two doubles and four home runs, and added 30 total bases.

The teams now share records with Hofstra University, which downed Mercy College, 28-26, in 1987, and the University of South Carolina at Spartanburg and Wofford College, which combined for 91 total bases in 1987.

Evey update

Remember Stu Evey?

He was a vice-president for Getty Oil who was responsible for worldwide non-oil Getty operations from 1958 to 1984. If that doesn't ring a bell, maybe one of the "non-oil operations" does: ESPN.

Evey was the first chair of the cable sports television network for Getty when the network was launched in 1979—and when the programming was dominated by NCAA events. He was there for the securing of the original management and on-air talent, development of growth strategies, and securing programming and licenses. He also was instrumental in the negotiations with ABC Sports for the purchase of ESPN in 1984.

In 1989, Evey developed the NCAA and ABC Sports relationship with the Betty Ford Center, which offers the current program for alcohol and drug awareness.

Evey now says he is looking for a new challenge, either as an assistant to a college president (with emphasis on athletics, broadcast revenues and fund-raising) or on an athletics department staff, where he could offer his experience and background.

Evey can be reached at 8 Park Mirage, Rancho Mirage, California 92270 (619/324-0525).

Smith makes donation

University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, men's basketball coach Dean Smith and his wife, Linnea, gave $100,000 to the institution recently.

The Smiths' gift will be divided among the university's schools of education and social work; the academic affairs library, and the Childhood Trust, which supports the UNC Hospital's Program on Childhood Trauma and Maltreatment.

"Dean and Linnea Smith generously have served their community and this university in more ways than people will ever know," North Carolina Chancellor Paul Hardin said. "Their current gift will help fund an important program to treat abused and traumatized children.

"It also will aid us in training educator-leaders and social workers, and it will strengthen our library. The Smiths' concern with the whole person—mind, body and spirit—is a consistent theme in their work and their public service."

Milestones

Fact file

A total of 21,893 student-athletes participated in NCAA championships in 1991-92. Of those, 13,799 were in men's championships, 7,714 in women's championships, and 380 in the three combined men's and women's sports (fencing, rifle, skiing). By division, the participation breakdown was 9,625 athletes in Division I, 4,669 in Division II, 7,219 in Division III and the 380 in the combined events.

Planning group urges changes in committee process

Sweeping changes in the Association's committee-appointment process are being recommended by the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning.

A review of all of the NCAA's committee-appointment procedures was the major topic in the committee's March 24-25 meeting in New Orleans. The NCAA Administrative Committee, acting for the NCAA Council, referred that topic to the planning group.

In an attempt to improve the process of identifying qualified candidates for NCAA committee service, to make committee service more readily available to more qualified candidates, and to assure greater attention to representation for ethnic minorities and women, the Committee on Review and Planning will recommend to the Council that:

- Terms on all standing NCAA committees be limited to four years, with no immediate reelection, instead of the current three-year term with almost automatic reelection for another three years;

- The NCAA Nominating Committee be restructured to include more individuals with experience in NCAA procedures;

- Qualifications for service on the Council be more clearly established, and

- Requirements for service on the NCAA Men's and Women's Committees on Committees be strengthened to include more individuals with experience in matters involving the sports committees that those groups appoint.

The Committee on Review and Planning—chaired by former NCAA President Alan J. Chapman and consisting of six former NCAA officers, a former Presidents Commission officer, a current Council member and a former student-athlete—emphasized that its desire in making the recommendations is to assure more opportunities for qualified individuals in the membership to be appointed to committees, while at the same time placing increased emphasis on the need to consider expertise in a topic area when making committee appointments.

Specifics

Among the specific steps included in the committee's recommendations to the Council will be the following:

- Earlier announcement to the membership of all pending vacancies on standing committees, including those on the Council,

NCAA Executive Committee, Council-appointed committees and sports committees.

- Encouragement to all committees to discuss pending vacancies well in advance and to identify qualified, competent candidates for those vacancies, especially women and ethnic minorities. The committee noted that all committee rosters, including term-expiration dates, are published and updated twice annually, so committees need not wait for the formal announcement of vacancies in The NCAA News to begin their consideration of potential candidates.

- Sharing of all nominations with the committee involved before the appointing body makes the appointment. All committees will be asked to submit at least two recommended candidates for each vacancy.

- Development of a brief form that will be used to obtain the background and qualifications of each person nominated for committee service. In that way, all appointing bodies will have comparable information on all candidates. If a nominee fails to complete and submit the form, that individual would not be considered for appointment.

- Maintenance in the NCAA national office of a one-year file of nominees for all positions on standing committees. In short, a nomination of an individual for a given committee would remain in the file for one year and would be considered for any appropriate vacancy during that year.

- Establishment of a policy—which was used in some cases last

Athletes take lead in rape education

By Sandra L. Caron
UNIVERSITY OF MAINE

The involvement of a number of athletes reportedly involved in group assaults within the past several years has raised questions about the privileged status college athletes hold in society.

Those questions are legitimate and have led to a growing awareness on some campuses the need to address the subject before it becomes a problem.

Caron

At the University of Maine, a program called "Athletes for Sexual Responsibility" is meeting that challenge and is benefiting not only the student-athletes who participate, but also other students on campus. A description of the program appears on page 24 of this issue of The NCAA News.

Athletes play a very visible role on most campuses. They are accustomed to being in the spotlight, both on and off the court or field of play. Next to the president, athletes typically are the most visible people on campus, and they often set a standard for other students.

While not all people look up to athletes, a large number of college students do, and this program attempts to capitalize on that interest.

"Athletes for Sexual Responsibility" takes students—specifically athletes—and uses them as the primary deliverers of the message of rape prevention.

A dual benefit results: Not only is the student body educated about topics such as date rape and the nature of rape, but also participating student-athletes become the best-informed students on campus because of their role in delivering the message.

The program attempts to dispel myths about gender expectations that are believed to contribute to rape, particularly myths about what constitutes normal male behavior. For example, the male athletes demonstrate that being masculine does not have to mean being domineering, protective, sexist or violent. In fact, men who equate rape with being masculine often do not under-

Pell award not necessarily $2,400

□ Letter

Many people consider 1993 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 87 noteworthy because they believe it permits a student-athlete in Division I to receive a full Pell Grant award in addition to a full grant-in-aid.

This may or may not be true, depending upon the difference between the institution's cost of attendance (COA) and its cost of a full grant-in-aid. If this difference is equal to or less than the student-athlete's Pell Grant, the Pell award cannot be given without reducing the student-athlete's full grant.

In a way, the difference between the COA and a full grant determines the maximum Pell Grant permitted. Therefore, athletics administrators, coaches and financial aid personnel should note how the proposal applies in this and future academic years.

The new legislation permits a Division I student-athlete to receive the value of a full grant-in-aid plus $2,400 in Pell Grant or the COA, whichever is less. The COA figure is as defined by the institution's student financial aid office for student financial aid programs in general.

Should a student-athlete's Pell Grant award be less than the amount needed to reach the COA, the Pell amount in combination with a full grant will be the student-athlete's maximum. Previous NCAA legislation limited this amount to $1,700 above a full grant or to the COA, whichever was less.

Proposal No. 87 also carried with it an immediate effective date. As a result, many Division I institutions have asked whether they would be permitted during this academic year to increase the financial aid awarded to a student-athlete whose institutional financial aid may be reimbursed as long as it does not exceed the new $2,400 or COA ceiling.

The NCAA Interpretations Committee recently decided (see the Legislative Assistance column in the March 10 issue of The NCAA News) that such a student-athlete's institutional financial aid may be reimbursed as long as it does not exceed the new $2,400 or COA ceiling.

Because any increase must be included in the equivalency calculations, institutions should review the NCAA squad list in the student-athlete's sport to ensure that any institutional aid adjustments do not cause the team to exceed its financial aid equivalency limit. If the additional aid is awarded, the institution should update the squad list to reflect the change.

Athletics and other institutional personnel also should make note of two other considerations related to the new rule that could influence awarding decisions for succeeding years.

First, with the increased limit, more athletics grant funds or other countable institutional aid may be awarded to Division I student-athletes receiving Pell Grants than in the past. This additional aid would need to be included in calculating team financial aid equivalencies. The $2,400 vs. the $1,700 maximum means that more athletics-aid dollars will be needed for full-grant student-athletes, which, in turn, results in increased financial aid equivalencies.

Second, although the Federal government set the maximum Pell Grant assistance at $2,400 for 1992-93, preliminary reports at this time indicate that Federal funding constraints may result in a maximum award per student of $2,300 (or less) for the 1993-94 academic year. In this case, $2,300 (or less) would be the maximum amount a student-athlete could receive above a full grant. Athletics administrators are encouraged to keep in contact with the financial aid offices at their institutions about any developments in this area.

The NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism hopes this information is helpful and that it encourages institutional staff members to consult with their conference offices or the NCAA legislative services staff when questions arise in applying the new rule to specific situations.

Kids as good as ever, but parents...

Jim Brock, baseball coach
Arizona State University
Collegiate Baseball

"Many times I have been asked if kids have changed over the years. People have asked me if they are not as dedicated or (if they are) harder to deal with. My answer has always been no. I totally believe that. And my coaching career goes back some 35 years in all.

"But parents are clearly worse. Their expectations and their assessment of their sons' ability are unrealistic 90 percent of the time. They push their kids. An awful lot of parents not only make it difficult on the coach, but very difficult on the kid.

"The kid will come out and practice, play in intrasquad games, and go day to day against the other guy playing shortstop. He will know the other guy is better because he watches him every day in practice. But the dad comes by and pumps the kid up on what a bad deal he's getting and so forth.

"Since baseball began, we've always had a little bit of that. But the thing that does alarm me is that it seems to be so much worse now where you have an awful lot of parents who are totally unrealistic. I feel on our level, and on any major-college team, every kid you have was a star on his high-school team. Maybe he isn't good enough to start here.

"The big problem is that these players have been such stars in high school that the parents can't cope with their kids not being stars."

"During the next three years, much work will be done to develop content and approaches for the educational programs required for coaches, student-athletes and others attached to college sports to promote moral reasoning and ethical conduct.

"This is a matter of great importance not only for the integrity of intercollegiate athletics and of higher education, but for our society generally.

"We have the opportunity to use sports to send the message to society that basic ethical values are to be followed....In sports, we must play by the rules, rules that reflect these basic values.

"This will be a significant challenge, as seen from the observation made last year by James J. Whalen, president of Ithaca College:

"The reality is that we do have a sports-crazed society—one that is far more devoted to entertainment than to education, where the average spectator is far more concerned with free-throw averages than grade-point averages, and where the pigskin has become a more coveted trophy than the sheepskin. We have...cultivated (in our culture) an addiction to entertainment that has fed our tolerance for abuse and that has pierced the best-built surrounds of integrity."

"Placing education before entertainment in the world of college sports may not be the most critical issue in which we are engaged, but it is a game that we must win."

"I don't have time for jackasses anymore. I don't want to be in a situation with a kid where I have to explain the value of going to college. I don't want somebody who wants to cut up and not take advantage of the opportunity that he has. I want kids with aggressive aspirations.

"It's very encouraging when you have people who are receptive to trying to make something out of themselves, to do something with their lives. I can accept deficiencies. I can't accept lack of motivation."

Ex-Council member stepped quickly into spotlight

By David D. Smale
SPECIAL TO THE NCAA NEWS

Charley Scott was still something of a novice in intercollegiate athletics when he was named to the NCAA Council in 1976, yet he established himself as a key player during an important period in the Association's history.

Scott said he was only "an interested spectator in intercollegiate athletics" until David Matthews, then president of the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, appointed him in 1973 to chair the school's committee on athletics. Two weeks later, in his new role as faculty athletics representative, Scott attended his first NCAA Convention, the first special Convention, on economics.

Scott

'Unreal experience'

"That was an unreal experience," Scott said. "I had never seen anything like it. Someone would ask a question and somebody else would respond, but to me it was often a nonanswer. Even though it was the first meeting I attended, I became quite concerned, and so I raised questions.

"Then we had a regular Convention five months later, and many of the decisions that were made in August were thrown out. That's when I reached the opinion that this was an organization in which I could be a meaningful contributor."

Eight months later, he was elected to the executive committee of the Southeastern Conference. A nomination to the NCAA Council soon followed ("That was more to get my name out in public," he said), and a year later, he was elected to the Council.

■ Where are they now?

He recalled an incident that occurred early in his tenure, when another Council member realized that the newcomer was somebody he did not know.

"Another member of the Council asked how long I had been associated with intercollegiate athletics," Scott said. "I told him, 'About 2½ years.' He looked at me with disdain and said, 'How did you get on the Council? You haven't served your apprenticeship.'"

Scott said former NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers became intrigued by his questions. "Once I critiqued a rule that was a one-paragraph, one-sentence rule that contained 139 words and four phrases that began with 'if' or 'unless' or something like that," Scott said. "I challenged any member of the Council to diagram and explain the sentence.

"Soon after that, Walter asked about my background. He said, 'I thought you were a lawyer when you came on the Council. Now I assume that you're an English professor.' I looked at him and said, 'Would you believe an engineer?'"

Faced controversy

Just as Scott was willing to challenge rules, he also was willing to take on controversial issues. One of his favorite experiences occurred while he held roles with both the NCAA and the College Football Association — at a time when the two organizations were battling over television rights.

"I was chair of the CFA television committee and was on the NCAA Executive Committee at the same time," he said. "Later, I resigned from the CFA committee, but the issue still wasn't resolved.

"Following a CFA meeting about football television, Walter and I discussed issues on both sides of the controversy and came to a proposal that led to the fourth special Convention. I was actively involved and had a vested interest in both sides of the controversy, yet I was able to help negotiate a solution to the existing issues that I believed was in the best interests of intercollegiate athletics."

Proud of flexibility

Scott is proud of his flexibility. "One of my sons once remarked, 'Any time there is a controversy, my father will be in the middle trying to pull the two sides together.'"

Eventually, Scott was appointed as chair of the Division I Steering Committee in 1978. "Initially, that committee had met informally," Scott said. "In 1978, we began to get more formal. I tried to get chief executive officers involved, and I believe that was one of the first concerted efforts to pull CEOs into the policy-making business of the NCAA."

Under Scott's leadership, the steering committee brought forth the resolution to bring women's athletics under NCAA jurisdiction. He was faculty athletics representative at Alabama, responsible for both men's and women's athletics. He saw the difficulty of governing two programs under separate rules, so he proposed a resolution that the Council study the issue.

He also served on the Basketball Television Negotiating Committee when the Division I Men's Basketball Championship contract was awarded to CBS. "The contract went from $36 million to $96 million for three years," Scott recalled.

"About a month later, the NCAA negotiated with ABC for all the other sports. When we got through, (former Big East Conference Commissioner) Dave Gavitt and I figured out that within a month, we had sat on two committees meeting in the same hotel room and had participated in negotiating $100 million in contracts for the NCAA."

Keeping promise

These days, Scott is retired, living in Mississippi and honoring a promise he made to his wife, Uldine.

"I retired the second time in 1988 and made a commitment to her that I would assist her in doing whatever she wanted to do the rest of our days — things like growing flowers or whatever she wants," he said. "She assisted me and made changes in her life just for me during those 40-odd years that I was in a professional career. And now I am trying to give back to her."

Still, Scott has fond memories of his days in intercollegiate athletics. "I really treasure my association with the NCAA," he said. "It was meaningful work, and I treasure the respect that I received from a lot of people who were concerned about a lot of critical issues."

Women's golf teams set for first season with regional format

By Gary T. Brown
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

For several years, the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee has been searching for a better method of selecting participants in the National Collegiate Women's Golf Championships. The committee's ace in the hole may be a new regional format that will strengthen selection criteria as well as double the championships field.

This season, 204 golfers will tee off in two regionals to determine the field of 102 finalists at the University of Georgia Golf Course May 26-29.

In the past, the committee was charged with selecting the 102 finalists from five districts based on a comparison of regular-season scores and course ratings. Many coaches, particularly from northern schools, thought that poor weather conditions were responsible for inflated scores that kept their teams from being considered for championship play. Several coaches also believed that some teams would opt to play easier courses to enhance their selection chances.

Working with NGCA

The new regional format was developed in conjunction with the National Golf Coaches Association (NGCA) and is designed to alleviate weather and course-rating factors. Teams and individuals will be selected for regionals based on performance within districts during the regular season. Competition at a single regional site will render course-rating comparison obsolete.

"Head-to-head competition comes more into play now because the top teams in each district are likely to have faced each other during the regular season," said Christine Voeller of the University of Wisconsin, Whitewater, and chair of the golf committee. "The criteria before were based more on scores than head-to-head play. The criteria crystallize better on a district basis than a national basis."

Each regional will accommodate 102 golfers. Seven teams and six individuals will advance from this year's East regional at the Santa Maria Golf Course in Baton Rouge, Louisiana; the West regional at the Randolph North Golf Course in Tucson, Arizona, will produce 10 teams and four individuals. The committee researched results from the last 10 championships to determine the number of berths allocated to each region. The remaining seven berths will continue to be filled by golfers from Divisions II and III. The NGCA spon-

A new regional selection format should strengthen the championships field for golfers like University of Arizona junior Annika Sorenstam, who won the 1991 women's Division I title and finished second last year. This season, 204 golfers will compete in one of two regionals to determine the field of 102 finalists for the National Collegiate Women's Golf Championships, which will be held May 26-29 at the University of Georgia Golf Course.

Pelinka, Klemme win Byers Scholarships

Basketball standouts Robert L. Pelinka of the University of Michigan and Sheryl L. Klemme of St. Joseph's College (Indiana) are this year's choices for the Association's Walter Byers Scholarships.

Pelinka and Klemme each will receive a $10,000 scholarship from the Association. They were selected from among six finalists who were interviewed March 28-29 in St. Louis by the NCAA Walter Byers Scholarship Committee.

The Byers scholarships were established in 1988 to recognize the contributions of the former NCAA executive director by encouraging excellence in academic performance by student-athletes.

Award recipients are required to have at least a 3.500 grade-point average (4.000 scale), show evidence of superior character and leadership, and demonstrate that participation in athletics has been a positive influence on personal and intellectual development, among other qualifications.

Following is a look at this year's Byers scholars and their accomplishments.

Robert L. Pelinka

Pelinka entered his final semester at Michigan with a 3.910 GPA as a finance major.

A fifth-year senior, Pelinka is cocaptain for a Wolverine squad that is making its third Final Four appearance in the last five years. Michigan won the championship in 1989 and finished second last season. Pelinka, a significant role player on the team, ranks among the school's all-time leaders in games played.

He is a two-time Big Ten Conference all-academic selection and was a 1992-93 preseason academic all-American candidate. He is a University of Michigan Angell Scholar and a three-time recipient of the university's Honors Convocation Award. He also was nominated as one of USA Today's top college students for 1993.

An accomplished public speaker, Pelinka counsels inner-city youths during summer basketball camps and assists pastors at local churches in conferences, counseling and speaking engagements for youth groups. He also represents the Michigan basketball team in frequent visits to children's hospitals and as a community liaison.

Sheryl L. Klemme

Klemme carried a 4.000 GPA into her final semester at St. Joseph's (Indiana), where she is working to complete a degree in political science.

A three-year starter for the Pumas' nationally ranked basketball team, Klemme was this year's captain and a valuable contributor to the squad that advanced to last year's Division II quarterfinals.

She is a two-time Great Lakes Valley Conference all-academic selection and a USA Today national all-academic nominee.

Klemme is a seven-time member of the dean's list and has been awarded several scholarships, including the St. Joseph's College Trustee Scholarship.

She is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, Alpha Lambda Delta, Delta Epsilon Sigma and the Blue Key Society. She also counsels underprivileged children at summer basketball camps and has been a speaker at several local grade schools.

Focus on AIDS issues

The American Foundation for AIDS Research (AmFAR) will sponsor the first National Student AIDS Awareness Week beginning April 12.

AmFAR, whose founding national chair is actress Elizabeth Taylor, is seeking especially to reach teenagers and young adults through this program because of a recently released study by the Congressional Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families that revealed a 62 percent increase in AIDS cases between 1990 and 1992 among Americans between the ages of 13 and 24.

Those desiring more information, materials and an AIDS Awareness Kit may contact Joseph Green, Director, National Student AIDS Awareness Program, AmFAR, 733 Third Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

State legislation relating to college athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending in state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes at NCAA member institutions.

Set forth below is a list of 28 bills from 16 states. The report includes 12 bills that have been introduced, and 16 pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (March 17). The newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills discussed in the previous report on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

This report is based on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of March 25, 1993. The listed bills were selected for inclusion from a larger pool of bills concerning sports, and they therefore do not necessarily represent all bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending in the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on-line and are not included.

The NCAA has not verified the accuracy or completeness of the information and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

As an overview, the table below summarizes the number of bills included in the report by subject:

North Dakota State records blowout in II women's final

North Dakota State and Delta State recently have been partners in dominating the Division II Women's Basketball Championship, but in this year's showdown between the two teams, North Dakota State showed considerably more strength.

Four Bison players scored in double figures and North Dakota State held Delta State's main scoring threats to below 15 points each en route to winning the title, 95-63, March 27 at Bentley.

It was the second year in a row that the two teams met in the final. Delta State won last year, 65-63.

Nadine Schmidt led the way for the Bison with 24 points. Schmidt, the tournament's most outstanding player, was 10 of 16 from the field and recorded six rebounds. Also in double figures for coach Amy Ruley's team were Jackie Parsley with 17, Jenni Rademacher with 14 and Darci Steere with 10.

Delta State got 14 points from LaTanya Patty and 11 points from last year's most valuable player, Leslie McKiernon. McKiernon also had a game-high 12 rebounds.

The game was tied at 12 in the first half when North Dakota State went on an 18-3 run to put the Bison in front, 30-15. Rademacher scored eight points during that five-minute spurt.

North Dakota State was ahead by 14 at half time and put together another run of 11-2 early in the second half to extend the lead to 55-33. Delta State could get no closer than 20 points the remainder of the game.

"Maybe we were in a groove tonight," Ruley said. "Each player had to play her best game tonight, and they did. Last year, we didn't play up to our abilities. We were more confident this year; last year was a big motivator. I thought we were intense defensively. We got off the boards well. We pushed them to a faster game pace than they might have liked."

North Dakota State's 95 points was a championship game record, surpassing the 93 points scored by Cal Poly Pomona in the 1982 title game. The 32-point victory margin also was a record.

"We've been here before and tried to get our shots, but it just wasn't our night," Delta State coach Lloyd Clark said. "It is a mental game. If you feel good about yourself, you play well. If you feel bad, you play bad. We made some mental mistakes and could not overcome them."

North Dakota State, which won its second title in three years, ended its season with a 30-2 record.

Joining Schmidt on the all-tournament team were teammates Jody Buck and Parsley, Patty of Delta State, and Jenny Postlewaite of Michigan Tech.

Roadrunner men win title in record-setting style

Cal State Bakersfield got 27 points from Tyrone Davis and effectively slowed down high-scoring Troy State to take an 85-72 victory over the Trojans in the title game of the Division II Men's Basketball Championship March 27 in Springfield, Massachusetts.

The win gave the Roadrunners their first basketball championship and preserved an unblemished record.

The Roadrunners stretched a four-point half-time lead into a nine-point advantage with 12:42 left in the game. Troy State then went on an 11-1 run to take the lead, 59-58, with 8:24 remaining.

The teams exchanged the lead for the next two minutes before Kenny Warren put the Roadrunners ahead for good with two free throws. Troy State trailed, 73-70, at the 2:23 mark, but a three-pointer by Warren and a dunk by Davis gave Cal State Bakersfield an eight-point lead. The Roadrunners converted five of 10 free throws in the last 1:34 to seal the victory.

Davis, the tournament's most outstanding player, was nine of 16 from the field and contributed six rebounds, three assists and two steals in 39 minutes of play. Also in double figures for the Roadrunners were Reggie Phillips with 23, Warren with 11 and Roheen Oats with 10. Jeff Kuehl grabbed a team-high 11 rebounds for Cal State Bakersfield.

Troy State was led by Terry McCord, who had 23 points. Chris Williams added 13 points and pulled down a game-high 13 rebounds.

The Roadrunners held Troy State, the nation's highest-scoring team, to 33 percent shooting from the field while shooting just over 50 percent.

Coach Pat Douglass' team recorded an NCAA record 33 victories without a defeat. In its 10 previous tournament appearances, Cal State Bakersfield finished as runner-up once, in third place three times and fourth once.

Joining Davis on the all-tournament team were Oats, Cal State Bakersfield; McCord, Troy State; Wayne Robertson, New Hampshire College, and Danny Lewis, Wayne State (Michigan).

Stanford men take I swimming title in easy fashion

Stanford jumped out to an early lead and was never threatened in winning its second consecutive Division I Men's Swimming and Diving team title March 25-27 in Indianapolis.

Second-place Michigan won four individual events and featured three of the meet's seven top point scorers, but could not match heavily favored Stanford's superior depth. Seven Cardinal swimmers scored top-three points in 10 events and Stanford also cruised to three relay victories, including two during the meet's opening day, in building a comfortable point margin over the Wolverines. Texas finished third in the meet, followed by Arizona and UCLA. Auburn, California, Tennessee, Florida and Southern Methodist rounded out the top 10.

■ See complete results: Page 9.

Tyler Mayfield, Derek Weatherford and Ray Carey reaped individual event titles for the Cardinal. Mayfield battled Michigan's Eric Wunderlich in both breaststroke events, capturing the 100-yard race and finishing second in the 200-yard event, while Weatherford traded victories with Tennessee's Tripp Schwenk in the backstrokes, winning the 100-yard event. Carey dethroned Iowa's Rafal Szukala in the 200-yard butterfly.

Greg Burgess of Florida established two American records, lowering his own national best to 1:43.52 in the 200-yard individual

Pointers go to OT to claim III ice hockey crown

It took overtime to decide the hockey battle of Wisconsin, as well as a little help from an unlikely hero.

Rich Teece scored the game-winning goal at 3:51 of overtime to give Wisconsin-Stevens Point a 4-3 victory over Wisconsin-River Falls March 27 in the Division III Men's Ice Hockey Championship at Maplewood, Minnesota.

The game-winner was only the fourth goal of the season for Teece. But the clincher almost came even earlier in the extra period.

At the 1:41 mark of overtime, Teece scored what appeared to be the game-winning goal; however, referees disallowed it because the goal cage was dislodged from its magnets before the goal was scored.

Both teams traded goals in each of the first two periods to take a 2-2 tie into the final period of regulation. Despite the Pointers launching twice as many shots on goal, Wisconsin-River Falls took the lead at 14:52 of the third period on Greg Christenson's second goal of the game. But with just 1:47 remaining in regulation, Derek McDonald scored his second goal to tie the game, 3-3.

Wisconsin-Stevens Point coach Joe Baldarotta said it was just the kind of game he expected.

"When it's for the national championship, nobody is going to roll over in that kind of a game," he said "River Falls is an excellent team and you are not going to break their backs. It just took guts and hard work for somebody to win this one."

It was the fourth national championship in the past five years for Wisconsin-Stevens Point. During their six consecutive appearances in the Division III tournament, the Pointers have compiled a 20-6-3 record, including a runner-up finish in 1992.

Wisconsin-Stevens Point ended its championship run with a 25-5-2 record, while Wisconsin-River Falls finished with a 19-13-1 mark.

CBS to cover Women's Final Four

For the third straight year, CBS Sports will cover both semifinal games and the championship game of the Women's Final Four.

The semifinal games at the Omni in Atlanta begin at noon Eastern time April 3.

The championship game, which is being broadcast for the 12th consecutive year, begins at 4 p.m. Eastern time the next day.

In addition to this year's Women's Final Four games, CBS Sports' coverage of Division I women's basketball also has included broadcasts of three regular-season games for the third straight year.

In 1991, CBS became the first network to broadcast Division I regular-season women's play live when it featured the Big Ten-SEC Challenge doubleheader in which Auburn University played Purdue University and the University of Georgia took on the University of Iowa from Carver Hawkeye Arena in Iowa City.

History of coverage

During its three seasons of regular-season coverage, CBS has featured 14 different teams in nine games. Counting postseason play during that period, 16 teams have appeared in 15 games (not including this year's Women's Final Four).

To further illustrate the growth that Division I women's basketball is experiencing on television, last year's semifinal matchup between Stanford University and the University of Virginia—featuring Naimith Player of the Year Dawn Staley of the Cavaliers—drew a 6.2 rating, making it the most-watched women's game since the 1986 championship contest. (A ratings point is equal to 931,000 television households in the United States.)

The game also was the highest-rated nonchampionship women's broadcast ever.

Broadcast team

For this year's coverage of the Women's Final Four, Tim Ryan and Ann Meyers will call the action in all three games. The CBS on-air roster also includes Andrea Joyce, who will serve as host for the broadcasts, and Mary Carillo, who will provide reports throughout the weekend.

See Women, page 28 ►

Field-goal attempts are up (120 per game), compared to midseason (118.8). Field goals made per game also are up (from 53.7 to 54.7) but field-goal percentage is almost the same — 45.2 percent at midseason and 45.5 in the tournament.

New faces take court at women's championship

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA ASSISTANT
STATISTICS COORDINATOR

The changing of the guard in NCAA women's basketball seems complete, as the 12th Division I Women's Final Four in Atlanta will feature all newcomers.

Ohio State's Nancy Darsch, Vanderbilt's Jim Foster and Texas Tech's Marsha Sharp are all making their first appearances as coaches in the Women's Final Four, while Iowa's Vivian Stringer becomes the first women's coach to lead two different teams into the select group (she coached Cheyney to a second-place finish in the first women's championship in 1982).

Until this year, no Big Ten Conference team ever had made the field, but both Ohio State and Iowa have changed that; this also is the first time that at least one Women's Final Four team from the previous year did not return. It marks only the third time (1985, 1992 and 1993) that neither Tennessee nor Louisiana Tech have advanced (both were eliminated in the regional finals).

For Stringer, whose husband died late last year, this has been a bittersweet season. Her Iowa teams had made seven consecutive tournament appearances since 1986 but had failed to advance beyond the regional finals. But this year, her Hawkeyes finally broke through. One of the most respected women's coaches, Stringer has fashioned a 488-110 (.816) record in 21 years and a 14-9 tournament record.

Vanderbilt's Foster is making his first Women's Final Four appearance, but he has a 300-137 (.686) record in 15 years as a head coach, including a 52-11 record in two seasons at Vanderbilt. He previously coached at St. Joseph's (Pennsylvania).

Ohio State's Darsch has completed nearly eight years in Columbus and has a 169-68 (.713) overall record and 9-5 mark in the tournament.

Texas Tech's Sharp has been the most successful Lady Raider coach with a 239-97 (.711) record in 11 years at the helm. She has a 4-5 tournament record.

Seeding history

Even though the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee did not seed 1993 teams below the fourth seed in each region, two No. 1 seeds and two No. 2 seeds advanced to the 1993 Women's Final Four. A No. 1 or No. 2 seed has won every championship, and in seven of the 12 tournaments, only No. 1 and No. 2 seeds have advanced to the national semifinals.

Here are the years that only No. 1 or No. 2 seeds advanced to the Women's Final Four:

Year	Team & Seed	Champion
1993	Ohio St. #1, Iowa #2, Vanderbilt #1, Texas Tech #2
1990	Auburn #2, Virginia #2, Stanford #1, Louisiana Tech #1	Stanford
1989	Auburn #1, Louisiana Tech #1, Tennessee #1, Maryland #1	Tennessee
1988	Long Beach St. #2, Auburn #1, Tennessee #1, Louisiana Tech #2	Louisiana Tech
1987	Texas #1, Louisiana Tech #1, Long Beach St. #1, Tennessee #2	Tennessee
1983	Georgia #2, Southern Cal #1, Louisiana Tech #1, Old Dominion #2	Southern Cal
1982	Tennessee #2, Louisiana Tech #1, Cheyney #2, Maryland #2	Louisiana Tech

Coaching experience

Included in this year's Women's Final Four field is a combination of some of the most victorious active coaches in Division I. Iowa's Stringer leads the parade with 488 career victories and an .816 winning percentage. Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore tops all active coaches in winning percentage at .855 (307-52), followed by Stephen F. Austin's Gary Blair at .831 (211-43) and Stringer at .816.

won more than 68 percent of their games—Stringer .816, Darsch .713, Sharp .711 and Foster .686. This group of coaches has a combined 1,196-412 (.744) record in 55 years.

This year's quartet has a 1993 combined record of 113-11 (.911), trailing only the combined records for 1989 (125-8 for .940), 1988 (120-11 for .916) and 1987 (119-11 for .915) teams, ranked by winning percentage.

The polls

Of the Women's Final Four teams, Vanderbilt was the highest ranked by both The Associated Press and USA Today polls, finishing No. 1 in the regular-season voting. Ohio State was third in both polls, Iowa was fourth in both, and Texas Tech was fifth in the AP poll and sixth in USA Today.

Longest streaks

Texas Tech has the longest winning streak among the Women's Final Four teams with 17 consecutive victories. The Lady Raiders have not lost a game since January 20, when they dropped a 76-75 decision to arch-rival Texas in Lubbock. Next best is Ohio State, which has a 13-game skein dating back to a February 5 loss at Iowa, 79-62.

Vanderbilt has an eight-game streak since a 55-53 loss to Auburn February 21 and Iowa has only a four-game streak, following a March 7 defeat at Ohio State.

Conference records

The Southeastern Conference has a team in the Women's Final Four for the 11th time in 12 years (the only miss was 1992). The SEC also has a large lead in tournament victories with 105. The Atlantic Coast Conference is a distant second with 48 victories, followed in order by the Pacific-10 Conference with 34 and Big Ten Conference with 30 (see accompanying chart).

Trends down

Statistics for the 44 games through the regional finals of the 1993 tournament are down in almost every category from the same point in last year's tournament. Scoring is down more than five points per game (both teams combined). All shooting percentages also are down slightly.

Field-goal shooting is down in percentage (from 44.83 to 43.43) as well as number made per game (from 54.23 to 52.16). Three-point shooting is down both in made per game (from 7.75 to 7.14) and percentage (33.56 to 32).

Even free-throw shooting dipped a little, from 28.89 made per game to 28.55, and percentage dropped from 69.92 to 67.31.

There is no single reason for the distinct drop in shooting prowess. Long-range shooting is normally blamed, but three-point attempts are actually down from 1,016 in 1992 to 981 this year. Better defense by all

Tournament attendance

With the semifinals and finals still to come in The Omni, already sold-out in Atlanta, some women's tournament attendance records already have been set. In fact, the 1993 tournament already has set an overall attendance record of 199,085. This tournament presently is ranked No. 1 on the per-game list at 4,977 for the 40 sessions.

The all-time record for total tournament attendance was 197,664, set in 1992. The per game record is 4,706, also set last year.

The first- and second-round attendance total also set a record with 135,198 in 32 games, for an average of 4,225 per game. The old mark was 131,097 in 1992. The first round had a total attendance of 51,652 (3,228 average) while the second round jumped to 83,546 in its 16 games for a 5,222 per-game norm.

The regional attendance was even better, attracting a record 63,887 fans and 7,986 average for the eight sessions. The Midwest regional at Iowa City, which included home team Iowa in the field, drew 20,719 to lead the pack. The championship game between Iowa and Tennessee attracted 12,343.

Southwest Missouri State set a first-round mark of 9,004 in Hammonds Center in Springfield, Missouri, in the Lady Bears' 86-71 victory over Oklahoma State. The old record was 8,575 set in 1991 as Montana hosted Iowa.

Ohio State set a record in the second round, attracting 12,000 to St. John Arena in Columbus, Ohio, for its 91-60 win over Rutgers. The old mark was 11,336, set in 1988 by Iowa in Carver-Hawkeye Arena in Iowa City against Stephen F. Austin.

In fact, the second-round matchups featured nine games that attracted more than 5,000 fans. Other outstanding crowds were 9,531 for the UC Santa Barbara vs. Colorado game in Boulder, Colorado; 8,541 for Washington vs. Texas Tech at Lubbock; 8,376 for the Midwest semifinals in Iowa City; 7,859 for the East championship game between Ohio State and Virginia in Richmond, Virginia; 7,500 for Georgia vs. Stanford at Stanford, California; 7,488 for the East semifinals and 7,272 for Northwestern vs. Tennessee at Knoxville, Tennessee.

Giant Steps Awards to be announced April 6

Georgia Institute of Technology athletics director Homer C. Rice and basketball coaches Vivian Stringer, Nancy Darsch, Jim Crews and Mike Krzyzewski are among nominees for this year's Giant Steps Awards, which will be announced during the observance of National Student-Athlete Day April 6.

The awards are presented in various categories to individuals or organizations exemplifying ideals and providing support for the realization of the academic and athletics potential of youths. Among the organizations nominated for recognition is the NCAA's National Youth Sports Program, in the category of civic leadership.

Other nominees include student-athletes Ryneldi Becenti, a Navajo basketball player at Arizona State University; 47-year-old Bonnie Frankel of Loyola Marymount University, whose effort to regain athletics eligibility resulted in the adoption of legislation at the 1993 NCAA Convention, and Jennifer Leach, a swimmer at New Mexico State University who saved the life of a 6-year-old boy by performing cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Georgia Tech's Rice is nominated in the category of "leadership in athletics reform," along with Creed Black, president of the Knight Foundation, and the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who recently formed the Rainbow Commission on Fairness in Athletics.

Among the three nominees in the category of female coach are Darsch of Ohio State University and Stringer of the University of Iowa. Among the four nominees for male coach are Crews of the University of Evansville and Krzyzewski of Duke University, as well as Edinboro University of Pennsylvania wrestling coach and three-time Olympic gold medalist Bruce Baumgartner.

The Giants Steps Awards are cosponsored by Northeastern University's Center for the Study of Sport of Society, the National Consortium for Academics and Sports, and the NCAA.

The complete lists of nominations:

■ Courageous student-athletes: Becenti, Kermit Dingle of Monroe Community College, Frankel and Leach.

■ Leadership in athletics reform: Black, Jackson and Rice.

■ Sport and social issues: Heavyweight boxing champion Riddick Bowe, San Antonio Spurs head coach John Lucas, Baltimore Orioles player Cal Ripkin and the National Football League.

■ Female coach: Rowing coach Ernestine Boyer, Darsch and Stringer.

■ Male coach: Baumgartner, Crews, Krzyzewski, football coach Bob Shannon of East St. Louis (Illinois) High School and basketball coach Morgan Wooten of DeMatha Catholic High School in Washington, D.C.

■ Civic leader: Boys Town counselor and former Olympic and NFL athlete Lawrence Burton, U.S. Rep. John Conyers of Michigan, Atlanta Olympics organizer Billy Payne and NYSP.

Exam change is approved for coaches

A change in the procedures for the 1993-94 coaches-certification program has been approved through the NCAA Administrative Committee process.

The change stipulates that since a new coaches certification examination has been distributed to the conference offices, individuals who have yet to be certified and who wish to recruit off-campus before August 1 may pass the new examination during the interim period in order to be certified.

Once the coach passes the exam, he or she will be certified from the date the passing score is achieved through July 31, 1994.

The change was made in the interest of recently hired coaches, who otherwise would have had to pass two tests in rapid sequence (the 1992-93 test for certification through July 31, 1993, and the 1993-94 test for certification from August 1, 1993, through July 31, 1994).

Manual, guide now available

The 1993-94 editions of the NCAA Manual and NCAA Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete now are available from the national office.

The Manual contains all NCAA legislation—constitution, operating bylaws and administrative bylaws—applicable to all divisions. This year's edition is "lay-flat" bound, rather than spiral-bound, to facilitate use. The Manual sells for $11 to members and non-members.

The NCAA Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete contains information about academic eligibility, financial aid, recruiting, the National Letter of Intent, professionalism, agents, drug-testing policies and procedures, and admissions and graduation-rate data. The brochure is available in lots of 50 for $12.

The Manual or Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete can be ordered from NCAA Publishing, P.O. Box 7347, Overland Park, Kansas 66207-0347; telephone 913/339-1900.

Former student-athlete awarded workers' compensation

The Texas Workers' Compensation Commission has ruled that Kent Waldrep was an employee of Texas Christian University in 1974 when he was paralyzed while playing football.

The commission found that the former running back therefore is entitled to workers' compensation and reimbursement for medical costs.

Waldrep, who estimates that medical costs incurred to date range anywhere from $250,000 to $500,000, told The Associated Press he is not pursuing the matter for money.

"Money is not an issue in this case," Waldrep said March 26. "We're most interested in establishing that an athlete is an employee of the university and is due the benefits any other employee is due."

Vertebrae crushed

Waldrep, 39, was paralyzed from the neck down when three vertebrae were crushed during an October 1974 game against the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa. He has regained use of his arms but remains confined to a wheelchair and requires an attendant for bathing and dressing.

'Education first'

Southwest Conference President C. Paul Rogers of Southern Methodist University said the ruling could present a problem for schools.

"I don't think the universities will accept it. I think the universities will continue to argue that student-athletes are there for an education first and sports second," Rogers said.

■ Eligibility appeals

The NCAA Council adopted at its August 1992 meeting a policy that authorizes the NCAA Eligibility Committee to treat cases involving recruiting violations with the same degree of flexibility afforded in all other eligibility cases.

The previous policy, which was adopted in 1974, required that when a prospective student-athlete was involved in a violation of recruiting legislation and a "recruiting advantage" was found (regardless of its significance), the Eligibility Committee was required either to restore eligibility completely or decline to restore eligibility, leaving the prospect permanently ineligible at the involved institution.

Often, an innocent prospective student-athlete was penalized severely for a violation for which the institution primarily was responsible. Accordingly, cases involving prospects will be treated in a manner similar to other cases in that the imposition of a condition for restoration will be based upon the nature of the violation committed, the extent of the involvement of the prospective student-athlete and an assessment of the institution's responsibility for the occurrence of the violation.

However, the committee's treatment of such cases will continue to reflect a high level of sensitivity to the advantage gained through recruiting violations. Because the eligibility ramifications of violations that involve prospects and enrolled student-athletes continue to involve different issues, those cases that involve prospects will continue to be published separately from other matters.

Also, please note that any actions taken by the institution, conference or NCAA Committee on Infractions regarding the institution's responsibility for the occurrence of the violation that caused the ineligibility of the student-athlete are reported along with the publication of the particular eligibility case.

The following report, in addition to including appeals concerning recruiting violations, presents appeals involving drug testing and extensions and waivers. A report of eligibility appeals other than those involving recruiting will appear in the April 7 issue of The NCAA News.

Eligibility Appeals Concerning Recruiting Violations Involving Prospective Student-Athletes

DIVISION I

No.	Sport	Citation	Facts	NCAA eligibility action	NCAA action regarding institutional responsibility	Institutional/conference action
1.	Women's volleyball	B 11.7.5 and 13.1.2.6	Three coaches visited prospective student-athlete's (PSA) home at the same time.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.	Institution ceased contact with PSA during eligibility-appeals process.
2.	Football	B 12.1.2, 12.1.2-(1), 13.01.5, 13.1.5, 13.2.1, 16.12.2.1 and 16.12.2.2	Before becoming a PSA, PSA developed personal friendship with two representatives of the institution's athletics interests. During friendship, which continued after PSA became a recruit, PSA received minimal local automobile transportation, and had in-person and telephone contacts with representatives from November of his senior year until his initial collegiate enrollment. PSA's decision-making process occurred during November and December of senior year. PSA was influenced somewhat by friendship, but PSA's decision was based on other factors.  After enrollment, student-athlete's (SA) friendship continued. SA and representatives exchanged birthday and Christmas presents. SA also received occasional meals and made collect calls to representatives. Finally, representatives loaned SA $600 that was based upon his expected professional signing bonus and was secured by a promissory note.	Eligibility restored after SA repays loan and value of benefits received, and is withheld from first two regularly scheduled intercollegiate contests of 1992-93 season.	Secondary violation; however, institution shall reduce initial grant-in-aid awards by two for 1993-94 academic year and shall re-emphasize monitoring and education of representatives of athletics interests to avoid occurrence of similar violations.
3.	Women's basketball	B 13.01.5.1, 13.02.9, 13.1.2.1 and 13.1.5	PSA's Amateur Athletic Union coach, who also was a representative of the institution's athletics interests, was present at PSA's home during recruiting visit by assistant coach. Representative also engaged in recruiting conversations on various occasions with PSA and her parents. PSA chose to attend institution for reasons unrelated to representative's involvement.	Eligibility restored.	This and several other matters were reviewed by NCAA enforcement staff and were forwarded to NCAA Committee on Infractions for consideration as a major case and imposition of appropriate penalties.
4.	Men's basketball	B 13.01.5.1, 13.1.1.1, 13.1.3 and 13.2.1	Foreign PSA was contacted during junior year in high school by representative of institution's athletics interests and assistant coach during an evaluation period. Representative was helping assistant coach identify prospects in foreign country. Representative had additional contact with PSA and paid partial costs of PSA's transportation (prep-school coach paid the other portion) to the United States when PSA enrolled at U.S. prep school. PSA was transported by prep-school coach to head coach's home during quiet period; PSA fell asleep on head coach's couch and stayed overnight. There was no indication that representative encouraged PSA to attend institution.	Eligibility restored on basis of institutional action.	This matter is being reviewed by enforcement staff for consideration by the Committee on Infractions as a secondary case and imposition of appropriate penalties.	Institution prohibited head coach from off-campus recruiting during September 11-13, and reprimanded both coaches. Institution also required PSA to repay cost of lodging. Finally, institution sent letter of admonishment to prep-school coach, and representative was informed that future dealings with institution will be closely monitored.
5.	Football	B 13.02.4.3	Institutional representatives, including coaches and student-athletes, contacted PSA and his parents at away contest after PSA's mother boarded team bus and asked head coach to visit with her husband and PSA.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; institution is instructed to caution involved coaches to take steps to avoid similar violations in the future.
6.	Women's swimming	B 13.02.4.4	PSA made an unofficial paid visit to campus during dead period before National Letter of Intent signing date. Because head coach purchased PSA's meals, it became an official visit. Father of PSA called coach before visit to ensure visit would comply with NCAA rules; in giving permission, coach relied on conference calendar that incorrectly listed spring signing date. PSA was not recruited by this or any other school.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.	Institution required PSA to repay cost of meals, reprimanded involved coach and will require women's swimming official paid visits to be approved in advance.
7.	Football	B 13.02.4.4	PSA arrived unannounced on institution's campus and had in-person contact with assistant coach on National Letter of Intent signing date. Coach terminated contact; PSA has not signed with any institution.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.
8.	Football	B 13.02.4.4	Transfer PSAs' official paid visits occurred during dead period.	Eligibility restored; PSAs are prohibited from signing National Letters of Intent with institution during football mid-year transfer signing period.	Secondary violation; no further action as long as signing restriction is observed.	Institution stopped recruiting PSAs during eligibility-restoration process.
9.	Football	B 13.02.4.4 and 13.1.3	PSA made unofficial visit to campus during dead period, had contact with coaching staff member and received one complimentary admission to men's basketball contest.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.	Institution canceled PSA's official paid visit and revised complimentary-admission form to include dead periods.
10.	Men's track, indoor; men's track, outdoor	B 13.1.1.1	PSA was contacted by telephone before July 1 of PSA's junior year.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.
11.	Men's track, indoor; men's track, outdoor	B 13.1.1.1	Head coach contacted PSA by telephone during PSA's junior year.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.
12.	Women's swimming	B 13.1.1.1	Head coach contacted PSA by telephone during PSA's junior year.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.
13.	Men's soccer	B 13.1.1.3	Transfer PSA made unofficial visit before written release granted by previous four-year institution. PSA had received verbal release and set up visit on his own. PSA had initiated admission to institution.	Eligibility restored once written release is received.	Secondary violation; no further action. However, institution is cautioned to avoid similar violations in the future.	Institution reprimanded head coach.

15.	Women's gymnastics	B 13.1.2.1	Head women's gymnastics coach provided PSA's phone number to wife of assistant football coach, who telephoned PSA during freshman orientation (PSA and assistant's wife are from the same hometown). PSA had signed National Letter of Intent before violation.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.	Institution reprimanded head women's gymnastics coach and required her to retake coaches-certification test.
16.	Football	B13.1.2.1	Institution arranged for representative of institution's athletics interests to pick up PSA's National Letter of Intent and fax it to the institution.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.

18.	Football	B 13.1.2.1.1	Assistant coach was not designated recruiter for week, but visited PSA's high school to obtain academic records. PSA was unaware of visit, which did not result in institution exceeding permissible evaluations.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.
19.	Women's golf	B 13.1.2.4	Head coach contacted PSA by telephone twice in one week.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.	Institution reviewed rules with coach and prohibited coaching staff from contacting SA by telephone for two weeks.

25.	Women's basketball	B 13.1.2.4(b)-(l)	Coaching staff accepted collect calls from PSAs on one occasion during their junior year.	Eligibility restored.	Secondary violation; no further action.	Institution required PSAs to repay cost of calls.

Eligibility Appeals
Drug Testing

Note: Eligibility appeals regarding those student-athletes who have tested positive for drug use under Bylaw 18.4.1.5.1 are reported in a separate category on a periodic basis. Please noted that pursuant to Bylaw 18.4.1.5.1, any student-athlete who has a positive NCAA test result must remain ineligible for competition for the mandated period of one year, must have a negative retest by the NCAA and must have an NCAA member institution make a request for restoration of his or her eligibility to the NCAA Eligibility Committee before he or she can be eligible for competition.

In addition, note that the application of Bylaw 18.4.1.5.1 necessarily causes the involved student-athlete who participates during the season in which he tests positive to lose at least the equivalent of one season of competition. Therefore, the Eligibility Committee has required in those cases that were decided before the adoption of Proposal No. 74 at the 1993 NCAA Convention that student-athletes who tested positive and who had not used a season of competition per Bylaw 14.2.4.1 lose at least one season of competition. This policy, which is intended to ensure that all those who test positive will receive equitable treatment, is now ratified by the membership through adoption of Proposal No. 74.

New regional format for selecting championships qualifiers gets first try this season

sors a national tournament for Divisions II and III to help the golf committee determine those berths.

A similar regional format has been a fixture in the Division I Men's Golf Championships for four years.

"What it does is it gets more kids into the NCAA championships because the regionals are now part of the championships," said William F. Miller of Furman University, who chairs the Division I men's subcommittee. "In the past on the women's side, some teams have been penalized for playing good golf courses. Scores vs. course ratings can be misleading. The regional system is more fair."

Need for more equity

With the growth of women's golf sponsorship and the improvement in quality of competition on the Division I level, the committee recognized the need for more equity in selection of women's championships participants.

"The top teams will always be there and have been pretty easy to determine," said Voeller. "But the middle echelon has been getting stronger and stronger and more difficult to select from."

The regional format was not well received by all coaches when it was first discussed several years ago. Some coaches from the traditionally strong western districts believed that some of their berths would be allocated to teams from weaker districts. Others felt that basing selection to the nationals on one tournament as opposed to an entire regular season penalized quality teams, or at least put them at risk.

"A few coaches were against it because they had the most to lose," said Dianne Dailey, women's golf coach at Wake Forest University and president of the NGCA. "Some were concerned that one bad tournament or other unforeseen factors such as injury or illness could cost a strong team a bid. But the best teams will and do come through. And it certainly gives hope to the other folks as well."

The first year the format was used in the Division I men's championships, Wake Forest, one of the top teams during the regular season, performed poorly at the regionals and failed to qualify for the championships. That example weighed heavily on the minds of some women's golf coaches.

Difficult times

Arizona State University's Linda Vollstedt, who also is a member of the men's and women's golf committee, had reservations about the proposal.

"The end of the season is a difficult time for schools, and we're essentially adding another tournament," Vollstedt said. "That adds more cost, more missed class time, in many cases during finals, and for some schools missed graduation ceremonies. I have a player from Sweden on my team whose parents are planning to make the trip to see her graduate. It's a dilemma for coaches."

Vollstedt acknowledged that some schools are dropping a regular-season tournament to accommodate playing in the regionals. Schools selected to participate in the regionals are responsible for paying their own expenses. The NCAA allocates $2,000 to each regional site to help administer the championships.

Dailey said the NGCA surveyed the membership as to whether schools were in favor of paying their own expenses to the regionals. The response was unanimously in favor from the Middle Atlantic/East, South and Midwest districts and more than 90 percent from the West and Far West districts.

"Most schools were in favor of providing their teams with a better opportunity to get into the tournament," Dailey said.

Providing that opportunity was the bottom line in the committee's adoption of the regional format.

"The turning point was coaches realizing what was best for the whole sport and seeing that the new format wouldn't hurt them, but help the game of golf," Voeller said. "If the good teams play well, they'll still have the opportunity to advance. The new format isn't designed to hurt anyone."

"We knew we needed more equity in how we established qualification," said Vollstedt. "The men have been very pleased with the regional system, so we decided to adopt it and see how it goes."

Come May, 102 more golfers across the country will be glad they did.

medley and taking nearly a second off David Wharton's 1988 record at Southern California in the 400-yard individual medley.

The meet's only other record was set by David Fox of North Carolina State, who swam the 50-yard freestyle in 19.14 seconds, besting Matt Biondi's six-year-old mark of 19.15. Fox had entered the last two championships with the fastest time in the event but managed only a consolation final finish. He placed 15th last year.

Michigan's Marcel Wouda was a double winner, sweeping the distance freestyles over Matt Hooper of Texas. The sophomore is the heir apparent to longtime title holder Artur Wojdat of Iowa, who won four 500-yard freestyle crowns and three 1,650-yard freestyle titles from 1989 through 1992. Wouda also finished second behind Burgess in the 400-yard individual medley and swam the lead leg in Michigan's winning 800-yard freestyle relay to tie Dean Panaro of Miami (Florida) as the meet's top point scorer.

Panaro took two of the three diving events, winning his third one-meter title and adding a victory in the three-meter event. He finished second in platform diving behind Minnesota's Pat Bogart.

Other individual winners included Michigan's Gustavo Borges, who won his second straight 100-yard freestyle crown; Josh Davis of Texas, who unseated Borges in the 200-yard freestyle, and Seth Pepper of Arizona in the 100-yard butterfly. Pepper also helped the Wildcats edge Stanford in the 200-yard medley relay. Last year, the Cardinal won an unprecedented five relay events.

North Carolina State's David Fox won the 50-yard freestyle in a record-setting 19.14 seconds.

Partial qualifiers down

sents 3.5 percent of the total number of grants-in-aid given to freshman student-athletes at those institutions.

Previous percentages were 5.6 in both 1990 and 1991.

As in the past, football accounted for the largest number of partial qualifiers (201); men's basketball had 32. The two sports had 47.7 percent of all partial qualifiers in the division; men's and women's track and field accounted for another 17.4 percent.

However, both football and men's basketball experienced decreases in the percentage of partial qualifiers for 1992. In football, the percentage fell from 8.9 percent in 1991 to 6.4 percent, while the decrease in basketball was from 6.8 to 3.8.

The women's sport with the most partial qualifiers was track and field with 38. Women's sports accounted for 117 partial qualifiers, or 24 percent of the whole.

The percentage of black qualifiers rose from 63.8 percent in 1991 to the present level of 64.8. Overall, 91 percent of black student-athletes were qualifiers under Bylaw 14.2 in 1992, compared to 99 percent of the white student-athletes.

The test-score component of Bylaw 14.3 again proved to be the major stumbling block for a majority of the partial qualifiers. In 1992, 62.7 percent of all partial qualifiers failed to meet the test-score requirements, but the figures represent a significant decrease from the 1991 figure of 79.3 percent.

Division II

Division II also showed a decrease in the percentage of partial qualifiers, from 16.8 percent in 1991 to 9.9 percent in 1992.

Just as in Division I, football in Division II had the highest number of partial qualifiers at 215. That number represents 15.8 percent of grants-in-aid awarded to freshman football players, a significant decrease from 26.1 percent in 1991.

Basketball also dropped from 10 percent in 1991 to 8.2 percent in 1992.

Women accounted for 20.7 per-

Analyzed by race, the percentage of partial qualifiers in Division II continues to differ from Division

I. The Division II figures for black partial qualifiers show a jump from 41.9 percent in 1991 (a five-year low) to 47.5 percent in 1992.

The test-score component of Bylaw 14.3 seems to have reversed the trend noted in the 1991 data and has returned to the more typical figure of 73.2 percent (Previous years: 1988, 73.4 percent; 1989, 74.8 percent; 1990, 74.8 percent; 1991, 63.7 percent.)

watch women's basketball, that gave it some legitimacy," McNeal said.

Attendance also reflects the increased interest. The Women's Final Four at the Omni in Atlanta is sold out in advance, but entering the final weekend of play, the tournament already has set an overall attendance record of 199,085. Per-game attendance also is at a record high (4,977), a figure that will grow with the large crowd at the Women's Final Four.

Southwest Missouri State set a first-round attendance record of 9,004 in its home-court victory over Oklahoma State University, and Ohio State drew a second-round record 12,000 in its victory over Rutgers University, New Brunswick.

After the finals, 15 games or sessions will have drawn more than 7,000 fans.

"This is an incredible year for attendance in the Division I women's tournament," said James F. Wright, NCAA assistant director of communications.

The Women's Final Four features Vanderbilt University vs. Texas Tech University and Ohio State vs. the University of Iowa in the semifinals April 3. The championship game will be played April 4. All three games will be televised live by CBS Sports.

Name game: Teams' use of 'Lady' stirs debate

By Paul Newberry

When Becky Hopf arrived at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, in 1987 as an assistant in the sports information department, she wondered why the women's basketball team was called the Lady Tide when the school's nickname is the Crimson Tide.

"As a woman, I think it's kind of insulting to call a team the Lady Tide," she says. "What you're saying is that team is not equal to the men."

So Hopf took a simple step: She started referring to the women's team in her press releases as the Crimson Tide, just like the men's squad.

In the years since, some schools have followed suit, most notably Vanderbilt University. The nation's top-ranked women's team dropped the "Lady" from its Commodores nickname before this season.

But the other 10 schools in the Southeastern Conference carry gender-based nicknames for their female teams. And as evidenced by those teams reaching the Sweet Sixteen in the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, it's a practice not uncommon across the nation.

Nine of 16

Nine of those schools refer to their women by a different nickname than the men. Most teams simply place a gender-based term in front of the school's nickname, such as the Lady Tigers (Auburn University) or Lady Volunteers (University of Tennessee, Knoxville), but others have unique monikers, such as the Women of Troy (University of Southern California) and Lady Techsters (Louisiana Tech University, where the male team is known as the Bulldogs).

David Housel, longtime sports information director at Auburn, said there is nothing wrong with the Lady Tigers nickname.

"I feel the same way about Lady Tigers as I do War Eagles (another school nickname) and just plain Tigers," he said. "Any way you say it, it's still Auburn."

Housel said the female-based nicknames probably date back to the era when most female games were played just before the men's contest.

"We used to play a lot of double-headers. The sportswriters, broadcasters and even the fans needed a difference to tell the teams apart," he said. "Now it's uncommon to play double-headers because of the growth and popularity of women's basketball."

'No place for lady'

Wayne Martin, a reporter with The Birmingham News who covered this year's SEC women's tour-namment, returned home to write a column that carried the headline, "The game is no place for a lady."

"It's hard for me to think of Georgia point guard Kelly Robbins as a lady when she puts on a uniform and plays flat out for 40 minutes," Martin wrote. "Now don't get me wrong. Kelly is an attractive young woman who I'll bet can be a lady with the best of them when that's what the occasion calls for."

"My point is that when the whistle blows and they throw the ball up, Kelly Robbins is a Bulldog—a tenacious, fighting, scrapping Bulldog. Not a Lady Bulldog."

Cites research

Michele Wilson, head of women's studies at the University of Alabama at Birmingham, where the women's basketball team is the Lady Blazers, said research has shown that sex-based terms, such as usherette, lead people "to consider those positions less competent."

"I certainly think that's symbolic of the less esteem that we attribute to women than we do to men in general," she said.

"What if we were to differentiate teams or differentiate occupants of certain positions on the basis of a race modifier? There would be a very big outcry and justifiably so."

Another view

But Housel suggested the Lady Tigers nickname actually had aided the growth of women's basketball at Auburn by giving the team an identity of its own. And he noted that Tennessee has won three national titles in the past six years, while Auburn has reached the Women's Final Four three times since 1988.

Changes

Revisions sought in committee-appointment process

year—that members of all appointing bodies must submit their own nominations in accordance with the same deadlines as the membership. This includes the Council, the Nominating Committee, and the Men's and Women's Committees on Committees.

Nominating Committee

The 16-member Nominating Committee, which develops the slate of candidates for NCAA offices and Council positions, would keep the same division and geographical requirements as it currently has, but there would be five positions earmarked for women, five for men and six available to either. At least one member from each division would be an ethnic minority.

One-fourth of the committee would be current Council members whose terms do not expire that year, as is the case now. Half of the committee would be former NCAA officers or Council members, and the other fourth would not have to be current or former Council members.

Members would serve not more than two years in a five-year period, rather than the current three-years-in-five limit.

The basic principle for service on the Council, whenever possible, would be prior service on an NCAA committee or some related experience. The committee believes that access to the NCAA structure should be at the committee level, rather than the Council level.

Committees on committees

The Men's and Women's Committees on Committees would retain the same structures they have now, but there would be a new requirement that at least half of the members of each would have served on the Division I, II or III Championships Committee or on an NCAA sports committee.

There would be a requirement of at least one ethnic minority representative from each division on each of the two committees.

As a guideline, no playing conference could "repeat" on one of the committees on committees. In other words, if a given conference had held a position on a committee on committees for three years, that position then would be filled by someone from another conference for the next three years.

The Committee on Review and Planning also is asking the Council to affirm that the committees on committees are not involved in any way in appointments to fill interim vacancies on sports committees, a function that is legislatively assigned to the Administrative Committee and Council.

Council appointments

The process by which the Council appoints individuals to vacancies on the Association's general committees should be moved from the October Council meeting—nearly a year before the vacancies occur—to the January pre-Convention Council meeting.

Also, the committee urges the Council to use restraint in appointing persons from Council members' own institutions, conferences or regions to positions on standing committees, citing the need to emphasize an individual's qualifications for the work of the committee involved.

All of the recommendations from the committee's March meeting will be reviewed by the Council in the latter's April 19-21 session.

Other highlights

In other actions in its March 24-25 meeting in New Orleans, the Committee on Review and Planning:

- Recommended that the committee's charge be amended to specify that it can review and evaluate any activity of the Association, reporting its reactions to the NCAA Council.
- Asked that the Council sponsor legislation to add a current member of the Presidents Commission to the committee in order to enhance its communication with that group.
- Supported efforts by the Council and the Presidents Commission to slow the legislative process, a topic currently being considered by the Joint Policy Board. The committee also agreed that consideration should be given to the concept of biennial legislative Conventions or a two-year process of considering and voting on legislation.
- Recommended that the NCAA Executive Committee conduct a thorough evaluation of the Association's catastrophic-injury insurance program, including consultation with some of the leading risk managers in the NCAA membership.

Maine athletes offer help in rape prevention

A program at the University of Maine uses a unique messenger to educate students about rape prevention.

About 25 student-athletes representing all of Maine's varsity sports are involved in "Athletes for Sexual Responsibility," a peer-education approach that capitalizes on the athletes' visibility on campus and makes them effective educators on the subject of rape prevention.

"Many experts believe the incidence of rape is at crisis levels on campuses across the country," said Sandra L. Caron, a professor in Maine's school of human development and director of the program, "and the problem is often exacerbated by myths and misinformation."

"For instance, many still think the typical rapist is a stranger who leaps out from behind a bush. In fact, studies have revealed that he is more likely to be an acquaintance one meets in class, at a party or on a first date. Four out of five rapes involve people who know each other."

Caron said college life can be compared to a competitive meet in which students struggle daily with the stress of making grades, scoring points and generally staying ahead. The competition often pervades students' social lives and even their feelings about sexuality, she said. The program is designed to downplay the culturally accepted norms that reinforce that sense of competition.

In particular, she said efforts are made to debunk myths about gender expectations that are believed to contribute to rape (for instance, that being masculine means being domineering, protective, sexist or violent).

In the rape-awareness workshop, members of "Athletes for Sexual Responsibility" portray characters in damaging or potentially harmful sexual situations. Following the portrayals, the student-athletes engage audience members to explore positive alternatives.

A series of three vignettes portray how better communication (both talking and listening) might make a positive difference in tough sexual dilemmas and decisions.

Those desiring more information on the program may contact Caron at Merrill Hall, University of Maine, Orono, Maine 04469 or call her at 207/581-3138.

stand the definition of rape.

A program such as "Athletes for Sexual Responsibility" offers student-athletes a unique opportunity to contribute to community service and allows them to be a positive role model for other athletes, as well as for other students.

It is time more schools, teams and coaches became involved in improving rape-awareness education on campus. Through peer-education programs such as this one, we can work together to change attitudes about rape.

1993 Column No. 13

NCAA Bylaw 30.10.5-(g) May evaluation period—Divisions I-A and I-AA football

Division I institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 30.10.5-(g), it is permissible for coaches who have been certified to recruit off campus to evaluate prospective student-athletes during any 15 consecutive days (excluding Sundays and, at the institution's discretion, excluding Saturdays) during May 1 through May 31. Such days shall be selected at the discretion of the member institution and designated in writing in the office of the director of athletics. Further, with the adoption of 1993 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 130, Memorial Day has been eliminated from counting in the 15 consecutive days of the May evaluation period.

Finally, in accordance with Bylaw 13.1.7.3.3, institutional staff members may not visit a prospect's educational institution on more than one calendar day during the May evaluation period.

Bylaw 17.23.2 Sanctioned outside-team tours

Member institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 30.7, a member institution may participate in a foreign tour in any sport, provided the institution meets the conditions specified in the bylaw. The institution does not need to have the foreign tour sanctioned by the NCAA Council; rather, the institution must certify in writing that the conditions set forth in Bylaw 30.7 are met and must maintain the certification on file in the athletics department.

Further, only student-athletes who were eligible for intercollegiate competition during the previous academic year would be permitted to participate in an institution's summer foreign tour. During its August 22-23, 1990, meeting, the NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed Bylaw 30.7.2(a) (eligibility of student-athlete to participate on institution's summer foreign tour), and determined that a nonqualifier, partial qualifier or transfer student serving a residence requirement would be precluded from participating on an institution's foreign tour that takes place during the summer following the student-athlete's first year of residence, inasmuch as the student-athlete would not have been eligible for intercollegiate competition during the previous academic year.

Finally, foreign tours conducted by a conference or other outside organization may include student-athletes from more than one member institution. Any such tour that includes more than the number of student-athletes from the same member institution as specified in Bylaw 17.23.2 must be certified by the institution in accordance with the procedures set forth in Bylaw 30.7, and the tour must count as the institution's foreign-tour opportunity in that sport. Please note that approval of such participation in the sport of basketball is required, regardless of the number of student-athletes involved. (Note: Contact Shane Lyons, NCAA legislative assistant, at the national office for more information.)

Gender-Equity Task Force focuses on timetable

A time frame for producing a report and for conducting hearings on recommendations of the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force was discussed at the group's March 23 meeting in Dallas.

The recommendations of the task force's two subcommittees—NCAA standards and institutional standards—will be reviewed by the full task force at its next meeting April 26-27 in Dallas.

Task force cochair James J. Whalen, president of Ithaca College, said if that review can be completed within the anticipated time frame, a series of hearings for the membership then will be conducted at sites in the East, Midwest and West within a matter of weeks.

After the hearings, the task force will review the membership's reactions and draft a final report for submission to the NCAA Presidents Commission and Council.

At its March 23 meeting, the task force continued the practice of conducting much of its discussions while divided into the two subcommittees.

The NCAA standards subcommittee heard reports from other committees, including the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics and the NCAA Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues.

The subcommittee reviewed 17 legislative concepts that the financial-conditions committee distributed to the membership, took positions on several of them and recommended that the full task force pass those recommendations on to the financial-conditions committee.

The subcommittee also examined the current revenue-distribution formula and a proposal to weight women's scholarships and sports sponsorship and developed recommendations regarding women's emerging sports. In another matter related to finances, the subcommittee agreed that need-based aid is a promising approach and proposed that the full task force review the issue at its April meeting.

The subcommittee also reviewed the proposed self-study questions for the equity component of the new athletics certification program. It made some modifications and additions and recommended that the task force pass them on to the NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification.

The institutional standards subcommittee modified a document on participation opportunities and related issues and scheduled an April 12 conference call to discuss the matter further.

■ Division I-A Subcommittee: The Division I-A CEOs will discuss the concept of a Division I-A foot-

■ Division II Subcommittee: This subcommittee will discuss the possibility of a future athletics certification program in that division, as well as concerns regarding membership expansion in Division II.

■ Division III Subcommittee: Membership expansion in Division III will be the major topic.

Full Commission

The full Commission meets

■ Visit with a delegation from the NCAA Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee, headed by Charles Whitcomb, faculty athletics representative at San Jose State University and chair of that committee.

■ Receive status reports from committees working in three of the areas identified as major topics of the year for the Commission: the Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics, the Ad Hoc Committee to Review NCAA Enforcement Issues and the Presidents Commission Liaison Committee.

■ Review the 1993 NCAA Convention and consider planning for the 1994 Convention, including the feasibility of permitting consideration of legislation on Presidential Agenda Day other than those proposals identified by the Commission for action on that day.

■ Revisit the concerns expressed in earlier meetings regarding the use of offensive language and other unsportsmanlike conduct in intercollegiate athletics contests.

Leadership

The full Commission sessions and the executive committee meeting will be chaired by Commission Chair Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, University of New Orleans, who will be hosting the meeting in his home city.

The division subcommittees are chaired by Charles E. Young, University of California, Los Angeles, Division I and Division I-A; Arend D. Lubbers, Grand Valley State University, Division II, and Claire L. Gaudiani, Connecticut College, Division III.

A report on the meeting will appear in the April 14 issue of The NCAA News, and the minutes of the meeting will be printed in an issue in mid-May.

Nominating

Committee appointed by chair

wan Jr., Bellarmine College; E. Roger Sayers, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, and William E. Shelton, Eastern Michigan University.

The Presidential Nominating Committee each year consists of eight Commission members whose terms do not end that year. All membership divisions and subdivisions and all NCAA geographical regions are represented.

Scanlan, Appleton and Bowen served on last year's committee. Each year, some members are reappointed in order to provide some continuity in the nominating process.

Early this summer, the committee will place in The NCAA News an invitation for chief executive officers of NCAA member institutions to nominate candidates for Commission vacancies that will occur next January. Those vacancies also will be listed in that News article.

The committee then will meet in conjunction with the Commission's fall meeting to develop the slate of candidates to present to the Commission.
