Legislative ideas spark reactions from membership

The membership has responded to a survey seeking reactions to a list of 17 legislative concepts sent in January by the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics.

The 17 concepts are those being considered by the committee as recommendations for the 1994 NCAA Convention. Also included in the survey were six longer-term legislative concepts, five financial aid models and four recommendations to institutions and conferences, all of which are being studied along with the legislative concepts as possible cost-containment recommendations to the NCAA Presidents Commission.

Survey results will be evaluated by the committee at its April 29-30 meeting in Chicago. Recommendations will be submitted to the Presidents Commission by June.

Nearly 5,000 surveys were sent to individuals at member institutions and conferences, plus representatives of administrative and coaches associations. On each campus, the survey went to chief executive officers, directors of athletics, faculty athletics representatives, senior woman administrators and compliance coordinators.

14 percent response

A total of 701 individuals (14 percent) responded to the request for comment. The largest number of responses (38 percent) came from athletics directors.

The survey asked respondents to indicate whether they strongly support, support, somewhat support, somewhat oppose, oppose or strongly oppose each of the 17 concepts, six longer-term concepts, five financial aid models and four recommendations to institutions and conferences.

Although all of the concepts generally received favorable reaction, more respondents indicated they either strongly support or support legislative concept No. 5, which would eliminate pregame off-campus housing before regu-

Basketball shot clock winds down

In an effort to increase the excitement of play as well as to address the problem of excessive fouling near the end of the game, the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee voted at its annual meeting to reduce time on the shot clock from 45 seconds to 35 seconds.

"The committee believes that 35 seconds on the shot clock will keep game action more continuous and at the same time allow more conservative teams to still use ball control," said Henry O. Nichols, secretary-rules editor of the men's rules committee. "In addition, because possession of the ball will change quicker, teams trailing at the end of the game will not find it necessary to foul as much."

The 45-second shot clock was introduced to the men's game during the 1985-86 season. Women's collegiate basketball rules have required a 30-second shot clock since 1971-72, and the NCAA Women's Basketball Rules Committee did not make a change at this meeting.

Meeting April 12-14 in Kansas City, Missouri, both the men's and women's rules committees also addressed end-of-the-game administration by voting to stop the game clock after made field goals in the last minute of the game and the last minute of any overtime period. The rule prohibits substitute players from entering the game in this dead-ball situation.

"This rule change will prevent problems near the end of the game involving delays in putting the ball in play after successful field goals," Nichols said.

The men's committee voted to delete the five-second dribbling violation while closely guarded, saying it was unnecessary due to

Luedeke joins Presidents Commission

J. Barton Luedeke, president of Rider College, has joined the NCAA Presidents Commission as a Division I-AAA at-large member, replacing Samuel H. Magill of Monmouth College (New Jersey).

Luedeke

Magill resigned his position on the Commission because he is retiring as president at Monmouth. Luedeke will serve the remainder of Magill's term, which expires in January 1994. He will be eligible for reelection to a full four-year term.

Luedeke became the fifth president of Rider in July 1990. He previously had served at Rider for 19 years as assistant to the president, associate provost, dean of the school of continuing studies, and, most recently, as vice-president for academic affairs and provost.

As president, Luedeke has established an agenda that includes major strategic planning initiatives, the development of a campus-wide commitment to the valuing of diversity, the completion of several facility projects and the expansion of Rider's involvement in the broader community.

Under Luedeke's leadership, Rider entered into an affiliation agreement with the Westminster Choir College in Princeton, New Jersey, that resulted in a full merger of the institutions in July 1992.

Luedeke actively has been involved in regional accreditation, having served on 15 Middle States and New England Association accreditation teams. He recently was elected vice-chair of the board of the Association of Independent Colleges and Universities of New Jersey and is a member of the National Commission on Campus Concerns.

He earned his doctorate in higher-education administration with an emphasis in statistics and research design from the University of Illinois, Champaign. He has a master's in counseling from Xavier University (Ohio) and earned his undergraduate degree at Hanover College.

Penalty structure

Council considers committee's proposal

The NCAA Council considered the recommendations of the Special Committee to Review the NCAA Penalty Structure when it met April 19-21.

The special committee recommended a set of "presumptive penalties" that would apply to major violators of NCAA legislation. Currently, a set of minimum penalties is to be imposed on any school determined by the Committee on Infractions to be a major violator, unless the committee determines the case to be "unique." Under the new approach, the committee would be free to apply any or all of the presumptive penalties against a major violator.

The changes are designed to lessen the effect of NCAA penalties against those who were not involved in an infraction.

For more detail, see the April 14 issue of The NCAA News.

Gender equity

Task force to consider groups' recommendations

The NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force will consider recommendations from its two subcommittees when it meets April 26-27 in Dallas.

The task force co-chairs and the chairs of the institutional and NCAA standards subcommittees conducted an April 19 telephone conference to discuss further the definition of gender equity. Also, a subcommittee on institutional standards conducted a telephone conference April 12 and discussed several items, among them its statement on participation opportunities.

For more detail, see the March 31, January 27 and January 20 issues of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: April 26-27 in Dallas.

Championships

Executive Committee to consider response

The proposal to enhance the NCAA championships program will dominate the agenda of the NCAA Executive Committee when it meets May 3-6 in Monterey, California.

The Executive Committee received about 60 responses in reaction to the proposal from Division I members (several of those were from conferences representing several institutions).

A detailed description of the plan was mailed to the Division I membership in January. Divisions II and III members discussed the proposal at the 1993 Convention.

The plan would base championships field sizes on sponsorship and would deemphasize the revenue potential of a championship. Per diem, traveling parties and committee structure also would be affected.

A summary of the membership's reaction will appear in The NCAA News before the Executive Committee's May 3-6 meeting. The Next Executive Committee meeting: May 3-6 in Monterey, California.

Certification

Subcommittee begins peer-selection process

The peer-selection subcommittee of the NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification is in the process of accumulating as many qualified nominees as possible to serve as peer reviewers for the athletics certification program.

A complete story on the nominating process appears on page 16 of this issue.

The peer-selection group is one of five subcommittees that have been formed to work on implementing the athletics certification program, which was approved at the January Convention.

The other subcommittees will target scheduling, the self-study instrument, the certification handbook and peer training.

Finance

Committee to discuss response to proposals

The NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics will meet April 29-30 in Chicago, at which time it will review the membership's response to 17 "legislative concepts" that were distributed earlier this year.

A review of the responses is contained in a story that begins on page 1 of this issue of The NCAA News.

The committee also will review the response to four additional cost-containment recommendations that it developed and distributed to the membership after the 17 original concepts were mailed.

For more detail, see the April 7, February 17 and December 23 issues of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: April 29-30 in Chicago.

Revenues

Basketball-fund checks to be mailed April 23

The first installment of the 1992-93 NCAA revenue-distribution plan will be paid April 23 when checks from the basketball fund are mailed to Division I members.

The Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues has approved the following distribution dates:

Basketball fund — April 23.

Division II fund — May 21.

Academic-enhancement fund — June 25.

Special-assistance fund — July 30.

Sports-sponsorship fund — August 13.

Grants-in-aid fund — August 27.

Student-athlete welfare

Special committee's meeting approaching

The second meeting of the NCAA Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity will be conducted April 30-May 1 in Chicago.

At its first meeting February 4-5, the committee discussed means for involving student-athletes in its work.

The committee will employ a three-part approach in completing its work: (1) an informal gathering of information to determine concerns and interests, (2) formal research, and (3) study and discussion on findings to form recommendations.

Student-athlete welfare is the primary topic for the third year of the NCAA Presidents Commission's strategic plan. The timetable calls for the special committee to have legislation for the 1995 Convention.

For more detail, see the February 10, January 27 and November 9 issues of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: April 30-May 1 in Chicago.

Rules federation

First meeting set for special committee

The first meeting of the NCAA Special Committee to Study Rules Federation by Sport will be conducted April 22 in Chicago.

The committee was formed to examine the issue of whether rules — especially those involving recruiting — could be modified in such a way as to avoid the blanket approach that now exists. In a March 24 story in The NCAA News, some committee members said the panel might examine grouping rules for sports in which similarities were determined to exist.

Proposal No. 151 from the 1993 Convention requires the committee to report to the 1994 Convention, with any legislation being considered at the 1995 Convention.

For more detail, see the March 24 issue of The NCAA News.

Next meeting: To be determined.

Briefly in the News

Webber stands tall

By now, University of Michigan basketball player Chris Webber's ill-fated timeout in the final of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship in New Orleans is familiar to sports fans throughout the country and around the world. But Webber, who admitted to some depression about the incident, has moved on in a display of courage and strength.

"I'm still a little bit depressed, but I'm OK," Webber said at the John R. Wooden Award ceremony in Los Angeles two days after Michigan fell April 5 to the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, 77-71. "It's still kind of hard to swallow. (But) Chris Webber, he can deal with it."

Even though several other nominees for the Wooden Award did not attend the ceremony, Webber was there.

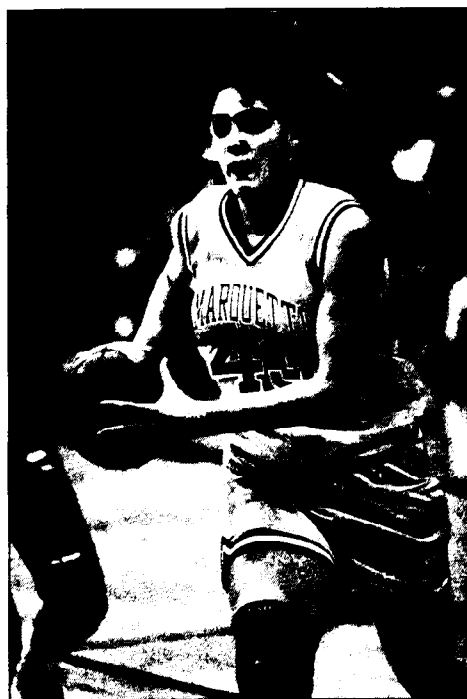

"I think that's one of the all-time class acts," said Duke Llewellyn, chair of the award committee, about the appearance of Webber and Michigan coach Steve Fisher.

Record streak over

Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania junior women's softball pitcher Kim Maguire doesn't know all that much about losing. In fact, until recently, no opposing college team ever had tacked an "L" onto her pitching record.

But when Shippensburg University of Pennsylvania defeated Maguire April 13, 2-0, her NCAA Division II-record streak of 40 consecutive victories was snapped. Maguire was 16-0 as a freshman in 1991 and 15-0 as a sophomore in 1992 and was 9-1 this season after losing to Shippensburg.

This season, Maguire has held her opponents to just five runs—three earned—in 61 innings. She has recorded 65 strikeouts, her career high for a season. Also, Maguire has surrendered only 36 hits in 10 pitching appearances, and even has recorded her first career save.

In 1992, Maguire led all Division II softball pitchers with an earned-run average of 0.26. With an 0.30 ERA this season, Maguire again is contending for that title.

Big-league tour

Princeton University sophomore baseball player Chris Looney has his eyes set on the big leagues, and if all goes well, he will be there this summer—as a spectator.

Beginning with a July 29 major-league game in Seattle, Looney will set out with three of his friends to get a real taste of the "big" by visiting all 28 major-league ball parks. The group expects to see 28 games in 28 days.

Along for the ride will be former Princeton baseball pitcher Michael Casagrande, Princeton ultimate Frisbee player Mark Johns and Dartmouth College student Brent DeRisner.

"We're looking at this as sort of a 'Mission Impossible' thing," Looney said. "It's the dream of dreams for a baseball fan."

The trip is scheduled to end August 28 at San Francisco's Candlestick Park, after 17,339 miles. The most grueling leg of the trip will be from a day game in Houston to a Dodgers game the following night in Los Angeles—1,541 miles. They will have a little more than 24 hours to make that trip.

The journey, which includes six one-day trips of more than 1,000 miles, is estimated to cost the foursome between $10,000 and $12,000, which they hope to offset through donations.

Excellence award

Marquette University sophomore women's basketball player Kerri Reaves is a spirited player. That spirit led her back from a career-threatening knee injury and it also helped her win this year's Jack Hall Excellence Award at the National Women's Invitational Tournament (NWIT) for a player who has overcome adversity.

Reaves twice has had surgery on her knee, including one operation in which doctors found that the cartilage between the bones in her right knee was worn away.

After a long and intense rehabilitation program, she was a vital player for the Warriors this past season. She played in all of the team's 31 games, starting 20 of them. She averaged eight points and five rebounds per game. In addition, Reaves recorded her career-high scoring performance with 22 points against the University of Cincinnati February 20.

Marquette enjoyed its most successful season in the 17-year history of the women's basketball program, finishing 22-9 overall and winning the Great Midwest Conference with a 10-0 mark. The Warriors placed fourth at the NWIT.

Facilities

Louisiana State University announced plans to establish the Dr. Martin J. Broussard Center for Athletics Medicine in Tiger Stadium. The fully equipped sports medicine facility will replace the cramped quarters currently used by the school's athletics trainers.

The Annenberg Foundation has donated $250,000 to a Wake Forest University capital campaign to assist a campus building program and fund a golf scholarship in the name of alumnus Arnold Palmer.

Augsburg College soon will unveil three new elements of its campus recreation and athletics facilities. A new artificial turf for Anderson-Nelson Field should be in place in May, an air-supported dome will be installed to convert the outdoor field into a field-house facility for use in the winter months, and the Melby Hall athletics facility will be renovated to contain a new fitness center. Total cost of the three projects is estimated at $1.75 million.

A $400,000 gift to the city of Pueblo, Colorado, from the town newspaper—The Pueblo Chieftain, celebrating its 125th anniversary—will be used to construct a 50-acre outdoor community sports complex on the campus of the University of Southern Colorado. The Robert H. Rawlings Outdoor Sports Complex will feature a baseball stadium with 2,500 seats, four softball fields, a regulation-size soccer complex, six tennis courts, seven racquetball courts, a challenge ropes course and a parking lot.

Committee on Athletics Certification: Appointed McKinley Boston Jr., University of Minnesota, Twin Cities, and Andrea Seger, Ball State University, replacing Robert A. Bowlsby and Diana Natalicio, both of whom declined appointment.

Honors Committee: Ed Bradley, CBS News, appointed to replace Roger Staubach, declined appointment, effective September 1, 1993.

Olympic Sports Liaison Committee: Theodore S. Paulauskas (not Paulaskas), St. Anselm College.

Sports committees

Men's and Women's Tennis: Appointed Larry Easley, University of Nevada, Las Vegas, to replace Scott McCain, who was granted a waiver earlier and now must leave the committee September 1, 1993.

Special committees

Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics: Correction—Walter Washington, Alcorn State University, has replaced Edward B. Fort.

Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity: Appointed Gary A. Sojka, Bucknell University, as the Division I-AA Presidents Commission representative, replacing Frederick W. Obear, resigned; appointed J. Barton Luedeke, Rider College, as the Division I-AAA Presidents Commission representative, replacing Curtis L. McCray.

Gender-Equity Task Force: Added Jeannette Lin, Office of Civil Rights, as a consultant; listing changes—E. Thomas Coleman, Alexandria, Virginia (rather than The Honorable E. Thomas Coleman, U.S. House of Representatives), and Michael Williams, Falls Church, Virginia (rather than The Honorable Michael Williams, Office of Civil Rights).

Merchandise sales reach record high at Women's Final Four

By Ronald D. Mott
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Women's Final Four fever quickly grew into a frenzy earlier this month in Atlanta, as gross sales of tournament-related merchandise at The Omni shattered the previous record.

Approximately $190,000 was grossed in merchandising sales at The Omni, compared to the record of $77,000 at last year's Women's Final Four at the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

The record sales were helped significantly because all four participating teams—the University of Iowa, Ohio State University, Texas Tech University and Vanderbilt University—were making their first appearances in a Women's Final Four. Capacity crowds of 16,141 attended each day.

Another factor was the availability of an on-site printer that enabled merchandising stands to be replenished more quickly with new T-shirts, sweat shirts, fleece wear and all other manner of Women's Final Four paraphernalia.

"This year we introduced more products into the assortment," said Greg Schuh, president of Collegiate Sports Design, the official concessionaire for NCAA championships. "We had fleece wear, shorts, jackets, sweat shirts and golf shirts. We had an embroidered product line with fantastic graphics."

"We had anticipated doing $125,000 (in sales), which would have been a 50 percent increase from last year. But this is the single largest increase in the seven years since we've been doing this."

The largest demand for Women's Final Four merchandise came from Texas Tech fans, who did not want to go home without a pair of shorts, a baseball cap or other items bearing the logo of the national-champion Red Raiders, who claimed the school's first NCAA title of any kind.

In fact, only moments after the buzzer had sounded and even as most-outstanding-player Sheryl Swoopes and her Texas Tech teammates were celebrating their 84-82 victory over Ohio State, T-shirts commemorating the Red Raiders' national title were on sale on the concourse—thanks to the on-site printer. Supplies lasted for only 10 minutes.

"I'm a Texas Tech grad and Texas Tech won it and people down there are telling me there's not even enough merchandise down there," said Alfred White, NCAA director of promotions.

Men's sales down

While sales at the Women's Final Four hit a record high this year, merchandise sales at the Final Four for men in New Orleans were down significantly from last year's event in Minneapolis, Schuh said. Gross sales this year totaled $290,204 at the Louisiana Superdome, down 30 percent from $414,514 in sales in 1992 at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome.

Both Schuh and White agreed that sales of on-site merchandise at this year's Final Four was hurt by fierce competition, both from official NCAA licensees and from vendors selling illegal merchandise on the streets.

"The licensees and retailers at the site of a men's Final Four are considerably more aggressive in making products available (than at a Women's Final Four)," White said. "The retail market has got so much Final Four merchandise for sale before buyers ever get to the

Interest a factor in equity equation

By Terry Don Phillips and Paul Makris
UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS, FAYETTEVILLE

The prevailing view of equity is that women make up 50 percent of the student body at most institutions, and they should make up half of a college's athletes and receive half of the economic consideration.

This view has rarely been challenged. Proponents of "equalization" propose equal opportunities for men and women without regard to differing interests and abilities. The "50/50" definition makes an incorrect assumption: One hundred percent of the men and 100 percent of the women at a university are interested in sports. When this underlying assumption is wrong, the 50/50 theory is invalid.

Research reveals that equalization very rarely achieves equity. Equity is achieved when all factors that affect a situation are considered and such factors are accounted for in the development of equity. While the Office of Civil Rights (OCR) recognizes this in its guidelines for the enforcement of Title IX, equalization proponents violate the premise of equity by refusing to consider any factors other than absolute enrollment-to-participation ratios.

The use of proportionality can be traced back to Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Title IX language was modeled after Title VI, which stated: "No person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance."

The Title IX legislation simply substituted "sex" for "race, color or national origin" in its assertion. As such, OCR has attempted to model its application of proportionality ratios in Title IX similar to that of Title VI. As a calculation of proportionality, Title VI employs a percentage of minorities in the population; Title IX uses a percentage of each sex in the population, which is virtually 50/

A chance to redefine our position

The following is a response to R. Daniel Beebe's guest editorial ("Unique time calls for unique solution") that appeared in the March 24 issue of The NCAA News.

As we attempt to solve some admittedly thorny financial problems in intercollegiate athletics, we must guard against becoming infatuated with short-term solutions that may have adverse long-term consequences. Beebe's suggestion for restructuring sports into "spectator-" and "participation-oriented" categories is one of these, in our opinion.

Such a plan may be appropriate for professional or semiprofessional sport, but it is incompatible with the university's educational mission. It asks us to define and provide support for a sport based on its revenue-producing capacity rather than its inherent worth as a developmental activity for its participants. If such an approach were applied to the university as a whole, the hearts of our institutions, our colleges of liberal arts, would cease to exist.

Some would argue that the entertainment value of athletics events and our teams' special status as sources of community pride and identity justify bartering our educational principles for financial gain. Such an exchange relinquishes the control of our institutions to the often short-lived whims of the public's preferences and fascinations.

As educators, we should set trends and inform rather than reflexively succumb to the inertia of momentary fads. If we believe an activity is worth sponsoring, we should give it our full support for the sake of its participants.

Mutual trust between student-athletes and athletics department personnel stabilizes our athletics programs. Proffering second-class status on a student-athlete simply because her sport does not at this time and place produce a profit would violate that trust. Not lost on these disadvantaged students would be the hypocrisy of proclaiming athletics' rightful position in the university's educational milieu.

Grasping at hasty, inadequate solutions, particularly those that threaten to throw out the educational principles we revere with the bath water of educational reform, is symptomatic of our unwillingness to face head-on the real financial issues to be resolved. We must objectively analyze the current system and then eliminate excesses and significantly reduce expenditures across the board.

We must find ways to collectively reduce our spending on recruiting and facilities. Regionalizing, particularly in the qualifying process for national championships, may be a good idea, but for all sports and not just for some.

As we identify items to be cut back, let us use as one measuring stick the degree to which intercollegiate sport adheres to the amateur model. Our current difficulties can be viewed as an opportunity to redefine intercollegiate athletics' position in our universities and our society. Forward thinking need not invariably mold itself to the economic exigencies that pervade our modern lives. We can stand firm on principle while adapting to financial realities.

□ Opinions

Youth need models, not criticism

John Wooden, former men's basketball coach
University of California, Los Angeles

USA Today

"I think the coaches teaching youngsters in high school and college today should be required to practice a certain decorum. It's not like a pro coach. They're in a leadership role, and I think our youngsters need models more than they need criticism. There have been some very successful coaches who have been very profane....I don't blame them. I blame the people who hired them....If you used profanity in (my) practice, you were off the floor for a day."

On taunting:

"In intercollegiate and interscholastic athletics, we should be concerned with sportsmanship. There is no place for taunting, really."

Men's ice hockey championship

Michael Madden, columnist

The Boston Globe

"It's as if we're in a time warp, even with the TV cameras and the ESPN banners. This is athletics for the sake of athletics. Few seem to mind that all of America, except for a few Northern states, is unaware this event is being held. As far away as Chicago—all of 90 miles from (the championship site in) Milwaukee—the NCAA hockey championship rates only an agate line in the newspaper. No advocates rush forward to shout prejudice at an exciting sport being ignored; the cognoscenti know—and seem to appreciate—they are among the chosen few."

"There is little money to be made here. There are no hustlers, no fast-buck artists. There is no other agenda here. There is good hockey. That is the raison d'être, the only one. It is as college sports used to be."

Basketball rules

Ed Fowler, columnist

Houston Chronicle

"When was the last time you saw a player called for carrying, or palming, the ball? When was the last time you saw a ball-handler who doesn't routinely carry it? These days, anything short of tucking the ball into the jersey goes

"And three seconds...four...five.... Giants camp out in the paint so long they sometimes grow another three inches before moseying on. 'No roots, no foul,' drolls Ray Meyer, the former DePaul coach."

"And traveling? There's another one. Granted, a violation as blatant as Chris Webber's in the NCAA championship game generally gets tooted, but many lesser odysseys do not. Moving screens and hand checks? You kidding? If no one lands in intensive care, they're cool."

"Intentional fouls these days are only those committed with the aid of an automatic weapon."

"Basketball in our age is really a mix between basketball and karate. The problem is that the rules were made when it really was only a game, before it evolved into a TV product. Salesmanship, not sportsmanship, now determines how the rules are interpreted."

Gender equity

Laurie Priest, athletics director
Mount Holyoke College

The Washington Post

Relating an experience that occurred when she was athletics director at Marymount University:

"When we went from being an all-women's school to a coed institution, I basically had to implement Title IX in reverse for the men (in 1987) because we were adding men's programs. From the start, we decided that no decision we made would be gender-based. We flip-flopped all the practice times, schedules, on and on, so that everything was the same. Yet over and over, the men's basketball coaches kept coming in to me and saying, 'Laurie, this is just not fair. It's not fair.'"

"Well, I have to tell you, I was genuinely confused. I'd say, 'Wait. We're pumping the same money in your men's programs. You've got exactly the same amount of trips, new uniforms—everything. Everything is the same.' Then I finally realized this was it: When there is a level playing field, men in athletics are not used to it. They are used to being on the absolute top rung of the ladder. What they see as 'discrimination' is simply equal opportunity being given to women as well as men. Men experience that as something not being given to them."

Baseball edging closer to nonwood-bat standard

By Theodore A. Breidenthal
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

The NCAA Baseball Rules Committee is in the final stages of submitting a proposal to the American Society for Testing Materials in an effort to formulate a performance standard for the nonwood baseball bat.

The official proposal will be sent to ASTM during the next two weeks.

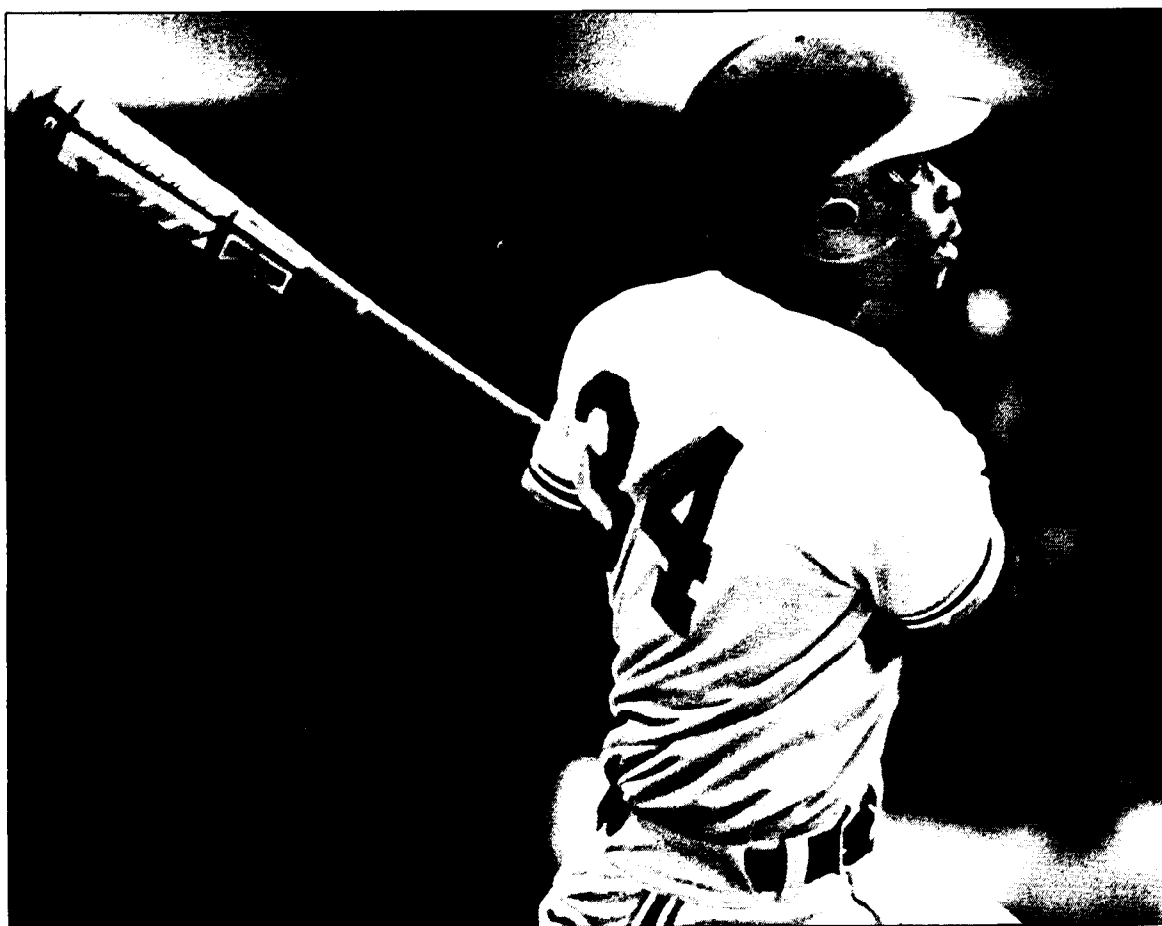

Hal Smeltzly, athletics director at Florida Southern College and chair of the committee, expressed relief that the committee's work with nonwood bats appears to be in its final stages. "After a year of intensely studying the issue and over eight years actually discussing a performance standard, I am pleased that there seems to be a light at the end of the tunnel," said Smeltzly.

History of process

The process of arriving at the nonwood bat standard has been long and laborious. Here are the highlights of its development over the past eight years:

■ November 1985—Discussions of a performance standard for the nonwood bat originated when the NCAA Baseball Committee expressed its concern about the possibility of a "super bat." The committee drafted a statement that strongly urged bat manufacturers to produce a nonwood bat that was comparable to the wood bat with respect to sound, balance point and handle flex.

■ November 1986—Easton Sports recommended that the committee adopt specific balance points for all bats and that the committee use the existing performance levels of nonwood bats to determine a performance standard.

■ December 1987—Worth Sports Company conducted research and evaluation of wood, graphite and nonwood bats in the aerospace engineering department at Mississippi State University. Worth reported that there were no istics of the graphite composite bat compared to wood and aluminum bats."

■ November 1988—Witnessing rapid technological advances, particularly with graphite and composite bats, the NCAA Baseball Rules Committee agreed to allow manufacturers the freedom and responsibility to produce a nonwood bat from any material, so long as the performance of the bat did not threaten the "integrity of the game." However, the committee reserved the right to intercede if it believes a bat's performance threatens the integrity, balance or safety of the game.

"The rules committee, in consultation with the NCAA's legal staff, agreed to release the responsibility of approving or disapproving playing equipment to the manufacturers, who ultimately are responsible for meeting the size and weight specifications and for producing a safe piece of playing equipment," said William E. Thurston, baseball coach at Amherst College and secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Baseball Rules Committee.

Agreed to study

In 1992, after years of concern expressed by a large number of college coaches about increased bat liveliness and performance, the rules committee agreed to study the issue of formulating nonwood bat performance standards that are more in line with those for the traditional wood bat.

The committee especially felt compelled to pursue a standard after a 1992 survey of college baseball coaches revealed that 71 percent of the respondents believed that the nonwood bat performed at a higher level than in 1988. Seventy-seven percent of the respondents felt that the performance standard should compare to the performance level of a professional wood bat.

Another major factor in the committee's quest for a performance standard is the problems that new technology and materials could pose in the near future.

Said Smeltzly, "The committee is very concerned about the capabilities of nonwood bat manufacturers to produce a new 'super bat.' This concern is compounded because of the new materials that are available to the manufacturers at present and materials that might

Teamless tennis player takes solo route

By Steven R. Hagwell
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

When the NCAA Division III Women's Tennis Championships singles bracket is announced in May, Penny Foss is likely to be one of the tournament's top eight seeded players.

What makes that an unusual accomplishment is that Foss' school does not play a spring schedule in tennis.

Foss, a senior, is a player at Williams College. Williams conducts its competitive tennis season in the fall, six months before the NCAA championships. Thus, for Foss to compete at the national championships, she must take it upon herself to qualify.

"Penny spends the spring focusing on getting in shape," said Gail Ramsay, Williams women's tennis coach. "She plays in some tournaments to get in some competition, but mostly she works out with the team and on her own. She really steps up and takes it upon herself to get ready."

Foss has become quite adept at it.

Foss

Quarterfinalist

In each of the past two years, Foss has done well at the Division III championships. In 1991, she advanced to the quarterfinals before losing to Wellesley College's Karyn Cooper, who won the title. Last year, she again advanced to the quarterfinals before losing while suffering from heat illness. Both performances earned her all-America honors; she is the only Ephs player to earn such an honor.

"It's amazing that Penny has been able to keep her level of play," said Ramsay. "It's tough. She is really at a disadvantage playing against players who have played all spring. But she doesn't complain. She doesn't say 'I don't get to play enough.'"

Foss hopes this year that she will advance past the quarterfinals. On the basis of numbers, her chances are good.

Serving as captain of the Ephs squad, Foss guided the team to a 10-0 dual-match record, its second consecutive New England Division III title and a No. 2 ranking. She did not drop a set in 10 dual-meet singles matches.

Overall, Foss posted a season record of 37-0, captured the New England Division III title at No. 1 singles, and ended the fall season as the No. 1-ranked singles player in Division III.

"I feel pretty good about my chances (this year)," said Foss, who has posted a 3.400 grade-point average (4.000 scale) while majoring in art history and psychology. "I really wanted to finish undefeated and I did that. I also told myself that I'd like to do well (at the championships)...."

Outlasted

Foss' biggest obstacle to success has not been the opposition but her own physical stamina. In both championships appearances, Foss has been outlasted more than outplayed.

Last year, Foss won the first set of her quarterfinal match and was leading, 3-0, in the second set when she suffered from heat stress. She lost the next six games of the set, and then dropped the third set, 6-3.

"I think not playing enough, not getting enough experience could have affected her," said Ramsay. "It was frustrating for her, but she handled it well."

"There are definitely times," Foss said, "when I can't help but think that if I travel and play more.... But I've adjusted to the fact (that she doesn't play as much as opponents). It was really hard at first, but I accept the fact."

To improve her physical stamina,

Foss has spent the past two years participating in another sport: squash.

Competing for Williams, Foss helped guide the women's squash team to a 14-5 record and a sixth-place national finish. In two years with the squad, Foss compiled a 29-11 record and earned national all-academic honors in 1992.

"During my freshman and sophomore years I didn't do anything (during the winter). It was tough physically to come back (and play tennis)," said Foss. "Squash has really helped me, not only physically, but with my hand-eye coordination. The stroke is opposite (from tennis) and the footwork is different, but I work at it."

Commitment

It is that type of commitment that has Ramsay believing Foss can exceed all expectations at this year's championships.

"Penny worked really hard (this winter)," said Ramsay. "She made a commitment to play good squash and went out and did it."

"I think she's really focused on playing well this May. I think she will be a big threat against whoever she comes up against. If she's seeded in the top eight...even if she isn't seeded, she's capable of winning any match on any given day."

Stanford's depth overpowers field in I gymnastics

Stanford scored 46,000-plus points in five of six events to out-distance runner-up Nebraska by a full point and win its second consecutive NCAA Men's Gymnastics Championships team title April 16-17 at New Mexico.

The Cardinal, which won its first men's gymnastics title ever last year, became the first team in 10 years to win consecutive titles. Nebraska, outscored this time by Stanford, 276,500 to 275,500, won back-to-back crowns in 1982 and 1983.

Nebraska finished second for the sixth time in nine years. Ohio State scored 274,050 points to place third for the second consecutive year.

While Stanford held the team spotlight, Minnesota's John Roethlisberger grabbed most of the attention in individual competition.

Roethlisberger won his fourth and fifth career individual titles, winning the all-around and pommel-horse crowns. As all-around titlist, Roethlisberger joined Joe Giallombardo of Illinois (1938 through 1940) as the only individuals to win three consecutive all-around crowns.

"I had a good time tonight (Saturday)," said Roethlisberger. "I felt a lot of pressure because I am a senior and because of all the success I have had in the past. People had a lot of expectations of me. I could not have expected any more of myself."

Stanford's Jair Lynch was the only other previous champion to earn a second title. Lynch, who won the horizontal-bar title in 1992, claimed the parallel-bars title, registering a mark of 9.300.

"The parallel-bars competition was just icing on the cake," said Lynch. "In fact, everything (Saturday night) was icing on the cake. I hate to say it, but tonight wasn't as important as this afternoon when we won the national championship as a team."

New Mexico's Chris LaMorte won the individual rings competition with a score of 9.850. Defending champions won both the all-around and team competitions: Minnesota's John Roethlisberger claimed the all-around title for the third straight year, and Stanford won the team crown for the second consecutive year.

Georgia cruises to I title

The caption on front of the 1993 Georgia women's gymnastics media guide reads: "A Perfect 10."

That turned out to be prophetic. Turning in the most remarkable performance in meet history, Georgia scored five perfect marks—including two by Heather Stepp—and racked up a championships-record 198,000 points to win the NCAA Women's Gymnastics Championships April 15-17 at Oregon State.

The Lady Bulldogs, who smashed Utah's 1992 scoring record of 195,650, scored 49,600-plus points in three events.

Alabama and Utah, the only other teams to win a title in the championships' 12-year history, placed second and third, respectively. The Crimson Tide, which has won two team titles, received a perfect score from Dee Foster on the vault and totaled 196,825 points. Seven-time champion Utah amassed 195,825 points.

Stepp set the pace for the Lady Bulldogs, scoring 10s on the vault and floor exercise. Agina Simpkins also scored a 10 on the vault, while Lori Strong and Hope Spivey-Sheley posted perfect scores on the uneven bars and floor exercise, respectively.

Perfect scores were not limited to the team competition or to Georgia performers. Eight perfect scores were recorded in the individual competition. Before this year, there had been only one perfect score in championships history: Georgia's Lucy Wener scored a 10 on the uneven bars at the 1989 championships.

The most notable 10 was registered by Jenny Hansen of Kentucky. A freshman, Hansen scored a perfect mark on the vault and totaled 39,500 points to win the all-around title. Hansen edged Foster by .050 points to become the first Wildcat gymnast to win a national title.

Stepp, Tammy Marshall of Massachusetts and Amy Durham of Oregon State all registered 10s on the floor exercise to finish in a three-way tie for the title. The three-way tie marked the second straight year that Stepp and Marshall have shared an individual title. Those two tied with Kristen Kenoyer of Utah last year for the vault title.

Stepp repeated as titlist in the vault with a mark of 9.9375.

Simpkins and Michigan's Beth Wymer scored 10s on the uneven bars to share that title, while Alabama's Dana Dobransky was perfect on the balance beam. The title was Dobransky's second straight on the balance beam, while Wymer won Michigan's first NCAA individual crown.

Giant Steps Award presented to NYSP

The NCAA's National Youth Sports Program is a 1993 recipient of the Giant Steps Award, which is presented to individuals or organizations exemplifying ideas and providing support for the realization of the academic and athletics potential of youths.

Award winners were announced in conjunction with the April 6 observance of National Student-Athlete Day.

NYSP, which received the award in the category of sport and social issues, is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year. Currently offered at 175 universities and colleges to boys and girls ages 10 to 16, NYSP has served more than one million disadvantaged youths with an intensive instructional program.

The program was honored along with five individual recipients of Giant Steps Awards. Those winners, and the categories in which they were honored, were:

■ Ryneldi Becenti, a Navajo basketball player at Arizona State University, courageous student-athlete.

■ Creed Black, president of the Knight Foundation, leadership in athletics reform.

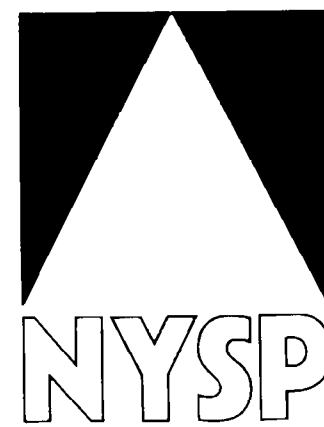

■ Bob Shannon, football coach at East St. Louis (Illinois) High School, male coach.

■ Ernestine Bayer, rowing coach, female coach.

■ Lawrence Burton, Boys Town counselor and former Olympic and NFL athlete, civic leader.

"Three of this year's winners give us a sense of improvement for the future of college athletics," said Richard Lapchick, director of Northeastern University's Center for the Study of Sport in Society, a sponsor of the awards.

"Ryneldi Becenti, one of only three Native American women playing college basketball, provides her own special leadership with the support of her Navajo nation and her Arizona State teammates. Creed Black, the primary force behind the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics, is providing a beacon to improve college athletics for years to come. Bob Shannon has set the standard for athletics, academic and social preparation of his championship players, improving the chances they will be a greater success in their lives after sport."

Pamela Gutlon, coordinator of National Student-Athlete Day, lauded the other three winners for providing a sense of history.

"Lawrence Burton transformed his great sports career into a 13-year career with Boys Town. The National Youth Sports Program has helped more than a million youths in the past 25 years. Ernestine Bayer has provided the leadership for women's rowing for an impressive 55 years. Those of us working in sports certainly gain inspiration from these long-distance runners."

Men's Volleyball

Top-ranked Bruins seek another home-court title

Event: 1993 National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship.

Overview: Top-ranked UCLA looks to claim its 14th title in championship history and first since 1989, but will be challenged by defending champion Pepperdine, Stanford and Cal State Northridge. Other candidates for berths include Ohio State and Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne in the Midwest region and Penn State and Rutgers-Newark in the East region.

Field: The championship field will include four teams—one each from the West, Midwest and East regions and one selected at large. The West region selection will be the champion of the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation (MPSF), which has been granted automatic qualification.

Dates and site: The semifinals and championship match will be May 7-8 at UCLA.

Results: Championship results will appear in the May 12 issue of The NCAA News.

Television coverage: The championship match will be televised tape-delayed by CBS beginning at 2 p.m. Eastern time May 15.

Championship notes: In the nine previous years UCLA has been host, the Bruins have won seven times....The top six spots in the latest coaches' top-15 poll are occupied by members of the MPSF. The 12-member conference has 10 ranked teams....UCLA head coach Al Scates became the sport's first 800-match winner earlier this year when the Bruins topped Pacific (California)....Long Beach State's Brent Hilliard is just 83 kills shy of surpassing Javonne Brooks of New Orleans for the all-time kills lead for collegiate men or women. Hilliard, voted the most outstanding player in the 49ers' 1991 championship victory, now has 2,849 kills. Brooks finished her career last fall with 2,932.

What they are saying

Ruben Nieves, head coach Stanford

"I think we're fortunate to be in such a good position (first place in the MPSF Pacific Division) going into the end of the season, but for Stanford to win the NCAA championship, we're going to have to string several good, solid matches together, which we have not done yet this season. The best teams right now are UCLA, Stanford and Pepperdine, but I give the edge to UCLA because it has been the best throughout the season."

Al Scates, head coach UCLA

"The main difference between this team and recent UCLA teams is that we're hitting .417, which is 50-60 points higher than recent teams. We're also limiting our opponents to .239, which means we're controlling the net more, and that's what volleyball is all about. We're getting some good play out of Mike Diehl, who was injured in January and didn't get into the starting line-up until March 5. Our key player is Mike Sealy, our senior setter. He's the reason we're hitting .417."

Marv Dunphy, head coach Pepperdine

"We feel good about our chances to reach the championship. I think we're on schedule to be as good as we possibly can at the end of the year. Tom Sorensen and Chip McCaw are having good years, and Greg Shankle, who was out last year with a foot injury, is now one of the top hitters in the country and has really given us a lift."

Kevin Wong and his UCLA teammates are hoping to finish off the season with a national title. It would be UCLA's 14th men's volleyball crown and its first since 1989.

Thirteen initial leagues gain summer certification

The first 13 summer basketball leagues to be certified by the Association for 1993 competition include 10 men's and three women's leagues.

Student-athletes from NCAA member institutions participate each summer in one of hundreds of leagues certified by the Association in accordance with NCAA Bylaws 14.8.5.2 and 30.14.

Questions about the application process or the requirements for NCAA certification should be directed to Christopher D. Schoemann, legislative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

Following are the initial leagues approved for participation:

Men's leagues

California—Central Coast League, Santa

Barbara

Colorado—Colorado Pro-Am, Denver.
Connecticut—Midnight Basketball League, Bridgeport.

Kansas—Kansas City, Kansas, Parks and Recreation Summer Metro Basketball League, Kansas City.

Kentucky—Street Ball Showdown, Louisville.

Michigan—Grand Traverse Bay YMCA Summer Basketball League, Traverse City.

New York—Student-Athletes Inc. Invitational Summer League, New York; Jewish Community Center Men's Summer League, Vestal.

Pennsylvania—Ron Nealy Summer League, Pottstown.

Utah—Logan Parks and Recreation Men's Open, Logan.

Women's leagues

Colorado—Colorado Pro-Am, Denver.

Kentucky—Street Ball Showdown, Louisville.

Ohio—Hilltopper Summer Classic, Valley View.

Basketball scholarship winners announced

Postgraduate honors go to 28

Twenty-eight basketball players—14 men and 14 women—at NCAA member institutions have been awarded postgraduate scholarships of $5,000 each.

In addition to the basketball scholarships, 29 awards have been presented during this academic year to student-athletes in football, and 68 awards (34 each for men and women) will be given in other sports in which the NCAA conducts championships competition. A total of 125 such scholarships are awarded annually by the Association.

Of the 28 basketball scholarships, 10 were awarded to Division I student-athletes, 10 in Divisions II and III, and the remaining eight at large.

To qualify, a student-athlete must maintain a minimum grade-point average of 3.000 (4.000 scale) or its equivalent and must have performed with distinction as a member of the varsity team in the sport in which the student-athlete was nominated. The student-athlete also must intend to continue academic work beyond the baccalaureate degree as a full-time graduate student. In addition, the student-athlete must have behaved, both on and off the field, in a manner that has brought credit to the student-athlete, the institution and intercollegiate athletics.

Following are the accomplishments of the 1992-93 NCAA postgraduate scholarship winners in basketball:

Barton

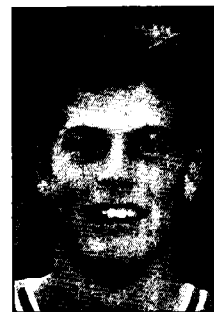

Boyer

Scott

Wiseman

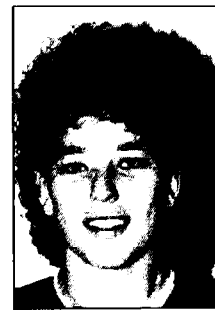

Wolf

Buddelmeyer

Cole

Hammond

Jennings

Penwell

Men's Division I

Bradley S. Boyer (U.S. Air Force Academy, 3.260 grade-point average in behavioral science)—Boyer is the Falcons' most prolific rebounder in more than a decade. He has grabbed 10 rebounds or more in a game six times this season, and his 7.5 per-game average ranked him among the leaders in the Western Athletic Conference this season. He recorded career highs of 16 points, 16 rebounds and four blocked shots against Youngstown State University in December. Boyer is a WAC scholar-athlete and a GTE academic all-American. He plans to continue his education in the field of human factors engineering.

Corey Scott Bruce (Idaho State University, 3.810 grade-point average in biology)—Among Idaho State's career leaders in three-point field goals, Bruce scored 49 this season as the Bengals' third leading scorer. He is a four-time Big Sky Conference all-academic selection and this year was named a GTE academic all-American. He is active in youth awareness programs and devotes time to a local junior high school reading program. Bruce has been accepted to the University of Washington School of Medicine.

Robert Todd Pelinka (University of Michigan, 3.910 grade-point average in finance)—Pelinka, a recent NCAA Walter Byers Scholarship recipient, was cocaptain for a Wolverine squad that won the national championship in 1989 and finished second the past two seasons. Pelinka is a two-time Big Ten Conference all-academic selection and an accomplished public speaker. He also represents the Michigan basketball team in frequent visits to children's hospitals and as a community liaison. He plans to pursue a degree in law.

Sander Martin Scott (Central Michigan University, 3.900 grade-point average in English and psychology)—Named second-team all-Mid-American Athletic Conference, Scott finished his career as the Chippewas' 10th all-time leading scorer with 1,187 points and established a school record with 187 career three-point field goals. Scott is a three-time MAC scholar-athlete and this year was named a GTE academic all-American. He intends to pursue postgraduate studies in educational administration.

Thomas Lang Wiseman (University of Tennessee, Knoxville, 4.000 grade-point average in finance)—A three-time GTE academic all-American, Wiseman was named the 1992 National Invitation Tournament scholar-athlete of the year. He won the College of Business Administration Award and the Tennessee Athletics Board Award for the highest GPA of his class each of the past three years. On the court, Wiseman has excelled from the three-point line, ranking as the third leading career three-point scorer in Volunteer history. After graduation, Wiseman plans to attend law school.

Men's Divisions II and III

Kevin Joseph Conway (Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, 3.830 grade-point average in political science)—Conway holds school records for three-point field goals made and attempted and ranks 14th on the Jersey Devils' all-time scoring list. He is a Garden State scholar, a Presidential scholar and a four-time member of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference honor roll. Conway hopes to attend law school after graduation.

Kevin William Frye (Denison University, 3.400 grade-point average in economics)—Frye is a two-time second-team all-North Coast Athletic Conference guard and is seventh on Denison's all-time scoring list. He is a two-time Denison most-valuable player and has led the Big Red in scoring for the past two years. A dean's list student and University Scholar award recipient, Frye intends to pursue a degree in law after graduation.

Steven John Honderd (Calvin College, 3.605 grade-point average in economics)—The National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC) Division III player of the year, Honderd is the 12th all-time leading scorer in Division III history. He is Calvin's all-time leading scorer and scored in double figures in 111 of his 117 games. His efforts helped the Knights win the Division III championship in 1992 and reach the quarterfinals in 1993. He is a two-time Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association MVP and has been the conference's player of the week 10 times. He also is a GTE academic all-American. Honderd intends to pursue a master's degree in business administration.

T. J. Van Wie (University of Wisconsin, Platteville, 3.870 grade-point average in accounting)—During Van Wie's four-year career, the Pioneers posted a 105-14 record and won the Division III championship in 1991. He ranks second on the Pioneers' all-time scoring list and has established career marks in games, starts and three-point field goals. Van Wie was picked by the National Association of Basketball Coaches as a second-team all-American after averaging a career-best 18.1 points per game. He also is a two-time GTE academic all-American and a two-time Wisconsin State University Conference all-academic choice. He hopes to continue his studies in accounting after graduation.

David Dennis Wolf (Rollins College, 3.892 grade-point average in economics)—Wolf ranks at least fifth in four career categories at Rollins, including three-point field goals made and attempted and steals. He also has led Rollins in rebounding three straight seasons. A GTE academic all-American, Wolf is a member of three academic honor societies and is a four-time Sunshine State Conference all-academic selection. Upon graduation, Wolf will pursue a master's degree in business administration.

Men's at large

Richard Lynn Barton (Southern Utah University, 3.413 grade-point average in physical education)—Barton ranks among the all-time Southern Utah leaders in scoring, rebounding and assists. A 42-point game by Barton in 1991 is the fourth best in school history. A three-time dean's list member, Barton is active in student government, volunteers for the Special Olympics and serves as a counselor for Upward Bound. He plans to pursue studies in guidance counseling after graduation.

Matthew Warner Cusano (University of Scranton, 3.540 grade-point average in biology)—Runner-up to Calvin's Steve Honderd as NABC Division III player of the year, Cusano was the nation's leader in blocked shots with a school-record 145, including a national single-game high of 11 against Gettysburg. Cusano helped this year's Royals to a berth in the Division III championship quarterfinals. He also is a GTE academic all-American and a member of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference and East Coast Athletic Conference academic all-star teams. Cusano has been accepted for admission to the Temple University School of Medicine.

Kevin Jay Felner (Emory University, 3.220 grade-point average in art history)—Felner is the fifth all-time leading scorer at Emory, having averaged more than 12 points in 93 games. He holds school records for single-season free-throw percentage and three-point field goals, career three-point field goals and steals in a game. He was named to the all-University Athletic Association second team. He also was recognized as a GTE academic all-American. After graduation, Felner plans to attend medical school.

Michael Carl Meyer (University of California, Santa Barbara, 3.290 grade-point average in biopsychology)—A four-year letter winner, Meyer led the Gauchos in minutes played and ranked high in scoring and assists. He was named the Gauchos' defensive player of the year in 1992. Meyer is a Big West Conference scholar-athlete and a recipient of the UC Santa Barbara Don Ford Academic Award. He plans to pursue a degree in sports psychology after graduation.

Men's alternates

Lance Morgan Reinhard, West Georgia College; Derek Matthew Waugh, Furman University; Richard Petruska, University of California, Los Angeles; Michael Sivulich III, Weber State University; Scott David Guldseth, University of North Dakota.

Women's Division I

Jennifer Rose Cole (La Salle University, 3.620 grade-point average in chemistry)—Cole owns nearly every La Salle scoring record, including three-point field goals made and attempted in a game, season and career. Earlier this season, she became La Salle's all-time leading scorer with more than 1,700 points. As a junior, she was named Midwestern Collegiate Conference player of the year. She is a GTE academic all-American, a member of the Alpha Epsilon Alumni Honor Society and an MCC all-academic selection. Cole plans to attend medical school.

Margo Ann Evashevski (Oregon State University, 4.000 grade-point average in finance and marketing)—A leader in the Pacific-10 Conference in assists and steals, Evashevski has career averages of 3.8 assists and 2.5 steals per game. She also is the team's third-leading scorer. She also captains Oregon State's women's golf team and will complete her eligibility in that sport next year. Evashevski is a GTE academic all-American and copresident of the Oregon State Student Athletic Advisory Board. Her postgraduate plans include pursuit of a master's degree in business administration.

Karen Kay Jennings (University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 3.888 grade-point average in exercise physiology)—The all-time leading scorer in Cornhusker history and 1993 Big Eight Conference player of the year, Jennings has scored more than 2,200 points in her career. Jennings' 48-point effort at Kansas State last year is a Big Eight record and she has scored at least 30 points in a game 14 times. She is a three-time GTE academic all-American, including GTE academic all-American-of-the-year honors in 1992 and 1993, and a two-time Big Eight all-academic choice. She plans to attend medical school.

Erin Jane Maher [Harvard University, 12.9 grade-point average (based on 15-point scale) in biology)—The NCAA career leader in three-point field-goal percentage (46.8), Maher also owns eight school records, including game, season and career three-point marks. Her 17.3-point season scoring average and .932 season free-throw percentage also are Harvard bests. She is a two-time all-Ivy Group selection and she was player of the year in 1992. She also has earned academic distinction as an all-Ivy Group selection. She plans to enroll in medical school next fall.

Jennifer Joan Shasky (George Washington University, 3.830 grade-point average in international affairs)—Shasky ranks in George Washington's top 10 in career scoring, rebounding, assists, steals and blocks. As a junior, she was named to the Atlantic 10 Conference's first team. She was a participant in last year's NCAA Spotlight on Women's Basketball and has been an NCAA Youth Education through Sports (YES) clinic student-athlete mentor. She is a Rhodes Scholarship finalist and a two-time Atlantic 10 all-academic selection. She hopes to complete at least part of her postgraduate work at Moscow State University in Russia.

Women's Divisions II and III

Jannica Lynn Beam (Washburn University of Top-eka, 3.970 grade-point average in accounting)—Beam led the Lady Blues in blocks as Washburn completed a 31-1 season with an overtime loss in the Division II quarterfinals. She also is the school's 10th all-time leader in rebounds. She is a two-time Mid-America Intercollegiate Athletic Association all-academic selection and a Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society member. She has accepted a job with an accounting firm in Kansas City, Missouri, and plans to begin graduate studies in 1996.

Sandra Lynn Buddelmeyer (Capital University, 3.568 grade-point average in health psychology)—A two-time Ohio Athletic Conference player of the year, Buddelmeyer helped the Crusaders advance to the Division III championship game, where they lost despite Buddelmeyer's 25 points. She holds 17 school and eight OAC records and has scored more than 2,000 career points. Buddelmeyer is a two-time GTE academic all-American and OAC all-academic selection. She also has been an NCAA YES clinic student-athlete mentor. She plans to study occupational therapy in graduate school.

Melissa Kay Hammond (West Liberty State College, 3.744 grade-point average in accounting)—Hammond, a three-year captain, is the Hilltoppers' all-time leading scorer with 2,148 points. She is a three-time West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference first-team selection. Hammond also is a two-time conference female scholar-athlete of the year and a member of the national dean's list. She hopes to become a certified public accountant.

Deirdre Jennifer Passarello (Skidmore College, 3.690 grade-point average in psychology)—Skidmore's all-time leading scorer, Passarello has led the school to a remarkable turnaround. Skidmore had won only 10 games in the four years before Passarello's arrival, but won 53 during her four-year career, including a school-record 17 victories last season. She is Skidmore's career three-point field-goal leader and free-throw-percentage leader. Passarello plans to continue her studies in psychology in graduate school.

Kimberly Olga Penwell (Bentley College, 3.790 grade-point average in finance)—A two-time Kodak Division II all-American, Penwell helped lead Bentley to its fifth straight Division II semifinal appearance. She is a two-time Northeast-10 Conference first-team selection and a two-time GTE academic all-American. She has been a member of Bentley's dean's list since 1989 and a member of the Beta Gamma Sigma Honor Society since 1991. She hopes to attain a master's degree in business administration while in graduate school.

Women's at large

Carrie Lynn Dahl (Gordon College, 3.960 grade-point average in biology and psychology)—A 1,000-career-point scorer for Gordon, Dahl started 94 games for Gordon. She is one of the school's leading rebounders and has earned school honors for most steals, blocks and highest field-goal percentage. She has been selected to three all-tournament teams. Dahl has received several scholarships, including the A. J. Gordon Leadership Scholarship, named for the founder of the college. She plans to attend medical school after graduation.

Jennifer Ann Kennedy (Albion College, 3.655 grade-point average in history)—Last year's Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association player of the year, Kennedy also has earned MIAA academic accolades for the last two years. She has been named to three all-tournament teams and has been named MIAA player of the week three times. She hopes to earn her teaching certificate in elementary education while in graduate school.

Tracy Lynn Krueger (Marshall University, 3.230 grade-point average in sports management and marketing)—Krueger has been Marshall's leading scorer and rebounder for the past two seasons. She is the only Marshall player—man or woman—to record more than 1,000 points, 500 rebounds, 200 assists and 200 steals during a career. She is a two-time all-Southern Conference first-team selection. She is a four-time conference honor roll member and a member of the Omicron Delta Kappa National Honor Society. She plans to pursue a master's degree in business administration.

Portia Renee Lewis [Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 4.500 grade-point average (5.000 scale) in mechanical engineering)—Lewis posted 9.4 rebounds per game this season and scored more than 12 points per game. She pulled down nearly 500 rebounds during her career. She is a member of the New England Women's 8 academic all-conference team and a three-time recipient of the MIT Office of Minority Education Academic Achievement Award. She intends to pursue a graduate degree specializing in design and manufacturing.

Women's alternates

Sylvia Jo Howard, St. Paul's College; Natalie Lee Hempy, Luther College; Karen Patricia Porath, Ohio Wesleyan University; Jennifer Lynn Cannon, Idaho State University; Jennifer Ann Niebling, University of Vermont.

■ Compliance briefs

General information

1993-94 NCAA-required compliance forms: The 1993-94 NCAA certification of compliance for institutions (Form 93-1) and certification of compliance for staff members of athletics departments (Form 93-2) were mailed to member institutions April 1. Both forms must be completed and received in the NCAA national office not later than September 15, 1993.

The following additional NCAA compliance forms will be mailed to member institutions May 1: the squad list (Forms 93-5a, b, c, d and e), the student-athlete statement (Forms 93-3a, b and c), the student-athletes' affirmation of eligibility (Forms 93-4a, b and c) and the drug-testing consent (Forms 93-3d, e and f).

Recently, the NCAA Administrative Committee approved proposed changes to the squad lists. While the effective date for legislation requiring Division I institutions to meet minimum financial aid award requirements is September 1, 1994, the information for determining compliance with this legislation is based on the institutional aid awarded during the 1993-94 academic year. For those reasons, monitoring provisions have been added to the instructions and forms.

The student-athlete statements have been revised to include a consent to disclose academic information contained in the graduation-rates disclosure report and a consent to disclose educational records for additional NCAA purposes (for example, longitudinal research studies, institutional athletics certification).

The drug-testing consent forms have been revised to specify that all student-athletes who test positive for a banned drug during an initial positive drug test will lose at least one season of competition or the equivalent of one season of competition during their period of ineligibility. Also, the Division III drug-testing consent has been revised to specify that the form must be signed before the student-athlete first competes each year.

Certification tracking form: NCAA Bylaw 14.5.4.1 requires that a student-athlete earn at least 75 percent of the minimum satisfactory credit hours during the regular academic year. To assist Divisions I and II institutions with this legislation, representatives from the NCAA staff (working in conjunction with the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee) recently developed a "75-25" satisfactory-progress rule tracking form.

The form [entitled Certifying Satisfactory Progress for Eligibility During 1993-94 Academic Year (75-25 Rule)] is intended to serve as a checklist for institutional personnel responsible for certifying student-athlete continuing eligibility. Those interested in receiving a copy of the form immediately may contact the compliance services staff at the national office.

NCAA guides: The 1993-94 NCAA Guide to Rules Compliance will include several new resource materials. A document concerning the role of the chief executive officer has been added, along with other resource materials regarding athletics certification, coaches certification, financial audits, enforcement/eligibility appeals, and sports camps and clinics. The guide will be distributed at the 1993 NCAA regional seminars.

Division I compliance coordinators and Divisions I and II directors of athletics and faculty athletics representatives who are unable to attend a seminar will have a copy of the guide materials sent to them after the seminars. Each Division I and II conference also will receive a guide.

The 1993-94 NCAA Guide to Financial Aid, the 1993-94 NCAA Guide to Recruiting and the 1993-94 NCAA Guide to Eligibility are scheduled for publication and distribution to the membership in May. The revised guides will include updated legislation and compliance calendars that list the tasks that may be performed on a monthly basis.

The guides will be distributed to Divisions I and II conferences and institutional compliance coordinators, as well as other interested parties on campus (directors of admissions, registration and financial aid, and recruiting coordinators).

Financial Audit Guidelines Publication: The NCAA financial audit guidelines booklet is being revised by members of the compliance services staff. The publication will include a common-questions-and-answers section and a revised sample statement of revenues and expenditures. The revised document will be available for distribution at the end of May.

1993 NCAA regional seminars: The first of the four 1993 regional seminars will be conducted May 5-7 in Minneapolis. The remaining three seminars will be conducted May 19-21 in Newport Beach, California; June 2-4 in Boston, and June 16-18 in Orlando, Florida. The seminars are targeted primarily for compliance coordinators, athletics administrators and faculty athletics representatives at Divisions I and II institutions.

Although the deadline for receiving compliance resource materials from member institutions interested in sharing the documents with other seminar attendees was April 9, additional materials are being accepted at the national office. Those planning to attend a regional seminar are reminded to complete and return the seminar-registration card as instructed. The returned cards will assist NCAA staff in the preparation of name badges and registration packets.

Also, to ensure the NCAA regional-seminar room rate, a completed hotel room-reservation form must be sent to the appropriate hotel address as soon as possible.

Those interested in additional information regarding the 1993 seminars may contact Chrystal L. Gates at the national office.

Meetings

Attention, financial aid administrators: Representatives from the NCAA compliance services and legislative services staffs will be participating in the following May regional association meeting: Eastern Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, Baltimore, May 13.

Two sessions (beginner and advanced) have been scheduled for Divisions I and II financial aid administrators.

The beginner session will include a general overview of NCAA financial aid legislation and the NCAA squad list, a discussion on the role of the financial aid office in intercollegiate athletics, and a review of the resource materials available from the national office. The advanced session will include a detailed discussion of NCAA financial aid legislation and the NCAA squad list. Specific case studies will be used during a demonstration of the NCAA Compliance Assistant software program.

The material was provided by the NCAA compliance services staff as an aid to member institutions and conference offices. Institutions or conference offices with questions or issues concerning the content addressed in this column may contact John H. Leavens, assistant executive director for compliance services, at the NCAA national office.

■ Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 5 March 25, 1993

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

Advertisements/recruiting/ precollege expense

1. Institution placing sports camp or clinic advertisement in high-school game program. An institution may not purchase or arrange for the placement of an advertisement related to its sports camp or clinic in a high-school or two-year college game program, even if a camp directory is included in the publication. [References: NCAA Bylaws 13.4.5.1 (recruiting advertisements), 13.4.5.1.1 (summer-camp advertisements) and 13.16.1 (precollege expenses—prohibited expenses)]

Clothing/apparel

2. Commercial logo on apparel. During pregame activities, a student-athlete may not wear apparel that bears the trademark or label of an athletics manufacturer or distributor that exceeds the 1½ inch square in size. [Reference: 12.5.4 (use of logos on equipment, uniforms and apparel)]

Out-of-season practice/ daily/weekly hour limitations

3. Student-athletes and coaches participating in intramural sports (in a sport other than their own). A coach may not participate on the same team with his or her student-athletes outside the playing season in the institution's intramural program in any sport. [References: 17.02.1.1 (countable athletically related activities), 17.02.1.2 (non-countable athletically related activities), 17.02.12 (practice) and 17.02.14 (practice, out of season)]

Membership

4. Change of division membership (Divisions I, II and III). An institution that wishes to change division membership must certify the eligibility of its student-athletes in accordance with the applicable eligibility regulations of the new division during the two-year compliance period required by 20.5.2.2. Thus, a student-athlete who has transferred to the institution at midyear prior to the beginning of the institution's two-year compliance period the following fall term must have his or her eligibility recertified in the fall in accordance with the new division's regulations. [References: 20.5.2.2 (compliance with criteria) and 1C.6/16/88, Item No. 2]

Playing seasons

5. Required day off during NCAA championship (Divisions I and II). The committee noted that under current legislation, an institution must provide a team one day off per week during the playing season, including the period during which the team is participating in an NCAA championship. The committee recommended that the Council consider sponsoring legislation to exempt the one-day-off-per-week requirement during participation in an NCAA championship. [References: 17.1.1 (general playing-season regulations—playing season) and 17.1.5.4 (required day off—playing season)]

Financial aid

6. National Letter of Intent accompanied by written recommendation from institution's coach (Divisions I and II). The committee noted that any requirement for signatures (e.g., financial aid director) on a written financial aid recommendation (as opposed to a financial aid agreement) that accompanies the National Letter of Intent is left to the discretion of the Collegiate Commissioners Association, which administers the National Letter of Intent program. [Reference: 15.3.2.3 (written statement requirement)]

Outside competition

7. Definition of academic year (Division I). For purposes of applying the provisions of 14.8.1.1, the "academic year" refers to the student-athlete's academic year (as opposed to the institution's academic year). Thus, a student-athlete who has not yet enrolled, even though the institution's academic year has begun, may compete on an outside team prior to enrollment without jeopardizing his or her future eligibility. [Reference: 14.8.1.1 (outside competition, sports other than basketball—Division I)]

Membership/financial aid

8. Financial aid to a student-athlete who has exhausted eligibility (Division I). An institution that provides financial aid to a student-athlete who is not a counter may not include such aid in meeting the minimum financial aid requirements necessary for Division I membership per 20.9.1. The committee recommended that the Council consider sponsoring noncontroversial legislation per NCAA Constitution 5.3.1.1.1 to allow an institution to count, in meeting the minimum financial aid requirements set forth in 20.9.1, athletics aid provided to a student-athlete who has exhausted his or her eligibility in a sport during a previous academic year, or to a medically exempt student-athlete per 15.5.1.4. [References: 15.5.1.4 (counter who becomes injured or ill), 15.5.1.7 (eligibility exhausted) and 20.9.1.2.1 (financial aid requirements—countable aid)]

■ Community service

Kentucky athletics makes donation

The fund-raising drive to build a $58 million library on the campus of the University of Kentucky just got a $1 million donation from the Wildcats athletics department.

Kentucky athletics director C. M. Newton said unbudgeted assets received from the school's share of the Southeastern Conference football championship game and from Kentucky's participation in the 1993 Division I Men's Basketball Championship enabled the department to make the donation.

No-smoking policy adopted at Drake

The Drake Relays Committee, with the approval of the Drake University administration, recently voted unanimously to designate Drake Stadium as a smoke-free environment.

ESPN joins in pay-per-view series

ESPN has joined forces with ABC Sports to market and distribute college football games on pay-per-view television. Through its subsidiary, ESPN Enterprises, Inc., the cable network also announced plans to offer stand-alone pay-per-view events.

Last year, ABC Sports and Showtime Entertainment Television, which distributed the pay-per-view package, offered football fans the opportunity to purchase and watch games that were not being offered as over-the-air broadcasts in their market. ESPN replaces Showtime as distributor for the 1993 season, said Mike Soltys, director of communications at ESPN.

This year's 12-week series—which will allow cable subscribers to select up to 35 games in addition to those available over the air in their areas—is scheduled to begin September 4.

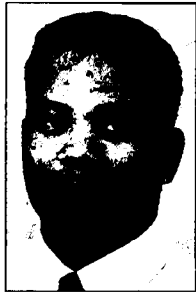

"Distribution of pay-per-view events is a logical extension of our business," said Steve Bornstein, ESPN president and chief executive officer. "ESPN's marketing and technical expertise will make our pay-per-view efforts attractive to fans, our affiliates and all our current and future partners."

ESPN's involvement will be to assist in marketing and utilizing its technical and promotional resources to upgrade the package from last year's initial efforts. Fans will be able to receive late-breaking scheduling information during ESPN's studio shows, and ESPN affiliates will be able to coordinate sales and marketing activities with the network's affiliate sales and marketing staff.

"We look forward to working together with everyone to make sure that this grows and improves over last year's efforts," said Dick Glover, senior vice-president of ESPN Enterprises. "ESPN is committed to providing the most cable- and consumer-friendly product possible."

Committee urges big response to peer-review nominations

The NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification wants the nominating process for peer reviewers to be as open as possible. With that goal in mind, nomination forms will be made available to a wide range of institutions, groups and individuals.

Marcia L. Saneholtz, senior woman administrator at Washington State University and chair of the peer-selection subcommittee, urged the membership to respond to the request for nominations, noting that a pool of at least 300 peer reviewers will be required to conduct about 60 reviews in each year of the five-year cycle.

"Recent retirees are valuable resources and can play an important role in the process," Saneholtz said. "Since they may not be in the regular communication loop, please contact them and encourage them to volunteer their service—and nominate them."

Will send forms

The nomination forms will be sent to all Division I member institutions and conferences, probably in late April. The committee hopes the timing will enable conferences to discuss nominations at their May and June meetings.

Forms also will be sent to a number of related organizations, such as the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association, the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, the National Association of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators, the National Association of Athletic Compliance Coordinators and the National Association of Academic Advisors for Athletics, among others.

Also, individuals will be able to nominate themselves and may request a form for that purpose from the national office. The form will be sent to individuals who previously indicated to the national office an interest in serving as a peer reviewer.

The standard information sup-

Peer-reviewer qualifications

The minimum requirements to be a peer reviewer in the athletics certification process are listed in NCAA Bylaw 33.2.3.2. To be considered for placement in the pool, an individual must:

- Be from a Division I institution or conference (or have retired recently) and
- Have a general knowledge of intercollegiate athletics (as evidenced by positions held, committee service, etc.).

Also, the individual must:

- Hold the position of chief executive officer, faculty athletics representative, director of athletics or senior woman administrator at a member institution, or
- Have recognized expertise, skills or experience in particular areas addressed in the certification program (for example, compliance coordinator, business manager, admissions officer, registrar, financial aid administrator, vice-president for fiscal or academic affairs, etc.).

The peer-selection subcommittee may establish criteria or principles for evaluating qualifications and for determining which individuals will be placed in the pool.

Interested individuals may obtain copies of the nominating form from the appropriate Division I institution or conference or by contacting John H. Leavens, NCAA assistant executive director for compliance services, at the national office (913/339-1906).

plied through the form will be used in placing individuals in the peer-review pool, in selecting chairs of review teams, and in assigning chairs and other peer reviewers to specific institutions.

High interest

Noting the high degree of interest shown in response to an April 7 article in The NCAA News on the peer-selection process, Saneholtz strongly encouraged interested individuals to submit nomination forms rather than call committee or subcommittee members. She also said that when submitting the form to the national office, individuals should not send resumes or similar documents.

Peer reviewers will be responsible for assessing the self-studies required of each Division I institution as a result of the 1993 NCAA Convention's approval of the athletics certification plan.

At its March 31 meeting, the Committee on Athletics Certification expressed its desire for chief executive officers to be involved in the process and set as a possible goal having each Division I CEO chair a peer-review team at least once during the five-year cycle.

The guidelines for peer reviewers are set forth in NCAA Bylaw 33.2.3.2 (see accompanying box).

Remaining issues

Between now and the May 7 meeting of the full committee, the peer-selection committee will attempt to resolve several issues relating to the pool of peer reviewers, including the size of the pool, a date by which the pool needs to be selected, criteria or principles to be used in selecting peer reviewers and identifying chairs, and means for maintaining the pool over an extended time.

First summer hoops camps certified

The first summer basketball camps have been certified in accordance with new legislation regulating Division I men's and women's basketball coaches' attendance at camps.

In accordance with new NCAA Bylaws 13.13.5 and 30.15, basketball coaches at Division I institutions may attend only institutional summer basketball camps and non-institutional camps that are certified by the NCAA.

The restriction is for events that occur during the Division I summer evaluation periods (July 5-31 for men and July 8-31 for women).

Certification packets for 1993 were mailed to directors of summer camps March 5. Further information about certification can be obtained from Christopher D. Schoemann, legislative assistant, at the NCAA national office.

The first certified camps—seven men's and six women's—are listed here. The sites and dates of the camps and names, addresses and telephone numbers of principal owners are included.

lar-season "home" competitions, than any other. Eighty-one percent of the Division I and Division III respondents supported or strongly supported the concept, while the figure in Division II was 83 percent.

Also receiving significant support—more than 70 percent supporting or strongly supporting—were concept Nos. 2, 4, 6 and 16.

Concept No. 2 would establish limits on the number of student-athletes, coaches, administrative personnel, and band and spirit-squad members permitted to travel to regular-season and postseason competitions at the expense of the athletics department and/or the institution.

Training-table meals in the off-season would be eliminated by concept No. 4.

No. 6 would prohibit institutions from providing housing expenses for "away" contests when the site of competition is 120 miles (one-way) or less from campus, except in those instances in which the competition is played before 2 p.m. the next day. A conference waiver process would be available.

The only other recommendation to receive more than 70 percent support in Division I was No. 16, which either would eliminate "tag-team" recruiting in Division I basketball (that is, all three coaches could recruit at the same time) or set a limit of 140 on the number of man days that can be committed to off-campus recruiting.

Most opposition

The only concept to which more than 30 percent of Division I respondents were either opposed or strongly opposed was No. 7, which would reduce preseason practice opportunities for all fall sports by 25 percent (for example, football and volleyball would be reduced from 29 days to 22, and soccer and field hockey would be reduced from 21 days to 16). Thirty-three percent of Division I opposed the concept.

Both Divisions II and III opposed or strongly opposed by 30 percent or more concept No. 12, which would eliminate all printed material developed for distribution to prospective student-athletes in all divisions. Permissible materials would be those prepared by each institution's admissions office and available to all potential students.

Charts accompanying this story report percentages for support in each category.

Longer-term concepts

The membership also reacted to six longer-term legislative concepts (the first of which is covered in the financial aid models). Following is the percentage by division of those who indicated they support or strongly support each concept:

■ Establish a men's and women's sports-sponsorship differential for NCAA institutions (regardless of division) sponsoring football. Institutions sponsoring football would be required to sponsor a greater number of women's sports and a reduced number of men's sports to meet minimum requirements. Support or strongly

1994 legislative concepts

Following are the 17 legislative concepts provided by the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics. The numbers accompanying the concepts also are used in the other tables on this page.

■ No. 1: Develop compensation guidelines for athletics department personnel to be included as a part of the Division I self-study process and Division I athletics certification program.

■ No. 2: Establish limits on the number of student-athletes, coaches, administrative personnel, and band and spirit-squad members permitted to travel to regular-season and postseason (bowl) competition at the expense of the athletics department and/or the institution.

■ No. 3: Limit the size of Division I-A football squads to 105 student-athletes, which is approximately a 10 percent reduction based on the average squad size for Division I-A football. (The committee also solicited comments on possible similar squad-size limitations in other sports.)

■ No. 4: Eliminate training-table meals in the off-season.

■ No. 5: Eliminate pregame off-campus housing before regular-season "home" competitions.

■ No. 6: Prohibit institutions from providing housing expenses for "away" contests when the site of competition is 120 miles (one-way) or less from campus, except in those instances in which the competition is played before 2 p.m. the following day. A conference waiver process would be available.

■ No. 7: Reduce preseason practice opportunities for all fall sports by 25 percent (e.g., football and volleyball would be reduced from 29 days to 22, and soccer and field hockey would be reduced from 21 days to 16).

■ No. 8: Reduce off-campus recruiting contact and evaluation days in Divisions I-A and I-AA football and Division I basketball from 110 to 70 (a 36 percent reduction).

■ No. 9: Reduce off-campus, in-person recruiting contacts with and evaluations of prospective student-athletes in Divisions I-A and I-AA football and Division I basketball from seven (three contacts and four evaluations) to four total.

■ No. 10: Decrease the number of allowable visits to campus by prospective student-athletes in Divisions I-A and I-AA football and Division I basketball by 20 percent (i.e., football visits would be reduced from 70 to 56 and basketball visits reduced from 15 to 12).

■ No. 11: Limit number of Division I-A designated full-time assistant football coaches engaged in off-campus recruitment to seven and eliminate "tag-team" recruiting; in Division I-AA, the number of permissible football coaches engaged in off-campus recruiting would be limited to six.

■ No. 12: Eliminate all printed material developed for distribution to prospective student-athletes in all divisions. Permissible materials would be those prepared by each institution's admissions office and available to all potential students.

■ No. 13: Without making a specific recommendation, the committee solicits comments on possible changes to telephone contact regulations and policies between coaches and prospective student-athletes.

■ No. 14: Establish transportation limitations for weekend competitions in all sports: (1) Less than 200 miles (one-way), round-trip ground transportation would be required; (2) between 200 and 300 miles (one-way), ground transportation would be required for travel to the competition with air travel permitted on the return trip; and (3) more than 300 miles (one-way), the mode of travel would be at institutional discretion. (Note: Waivers could be approved by a conference office based on weather considerations.)

■ No. 15: Establish transportation limitations in all sports, requiring that round-trip ground transportation be used for all competitions in which the visiting team would travel less than 150 miles (one-way). (Note: Waivers could be approved by a conference office based on weather considerations.)

■ No. 16: Either eliminate "tag-team" recruiting in Division I basketball (i.e., all three coaches could recruit at the same time) or set a limit of 140 on the number of man days that can be committed to off-campus recruiting.

■ No. 17: In Division I, either eliminate a full-time assistant football coach or eliminate administrative personnel responsible for recruiting.

support: Division I, 37 percent; Division II, 33 percent; Division III, 35 percent.

■ Consider an NCAA structure that would afford Divisions I and II institutions greater flexibility in their athletics programs. Under this concept, institutions would decide on a sport-by-sport basis the scholarship level at which each sport would be sponsored; there would be financial aid maximums, but no minimums, for each sport. Support or strongly support: Division I, 53 percent; Division II, 62 percent; Division III, 28 percent.

■ Eliminate all off-campus recruiting rules except in the sports of football, men's and women's basketball, and women's volleyball. Also, simplify the regulatory approach in sports other than football, basketball and women's volleyball by requiring adherence only to (a) amateur rules, (b) academic rules, (c) number of contests and (d) identification of traditional seasons. Permit marketplace factors, conferences and institutions to address all other regulatory schemes. Support or strongly support: Division I, 40 percent; Division II, 54 percent; Division III, 22 percent.

■ Convene NCAA Conventions in alternating years beginning in 1996. Support or strongly support: Division I, 65 percent; Division II, 54 percent; Division III, 46 percent.

■ Establish grants-in-aid limitations in football and basketball of 20 initial awards per year in football and seven initial awards every two years in basketball, with no more than four in any one year. There would not be an overall grants-in-aid limitation in either sport. Support or strongly support: Division I, 34 percent; Division II, 45 percent; Division III, 53 percent.

Financial aid

Five financial aid packages also were surveyed. Following the percentage by division of those respondents who indicated they either support or strongly support the model:

■ Student-athletes are awarded financial aid solely on the basis of financial need, which may not exceed the cost of attendance. Institutional grants, including those from athletics, may be uti-

Men's rules committee decides to reduce time on the shot clock from 45 to 35 seconds

the reduction in the shot clock.

For the second year in a row, the committees made a move to reward good defensive play. For the 1993-94 season, the men's and women's committees adopted a rule that when a defensive player forces a held ball, the shot clock will not be reset if the offensive team retains possession of the ball by the alternating-possession arrow.

"By not resetting the shot clock on a held ball, the committees' efforts to reward the defense and bring better balance on the offensive and defensive ends of the court continue," said Marcy Weston, secretary-rules editor of the Women's Basketball Rules Committee.

Last season, the men's committee voted that when the ball is deflected out of bounds by a defensive player, the offensive team on the throw-in has the unexpired time on the shot clock to attempt a field goal. The women's game always used the remaining time on the shot clock after a defensive deflection.

The women's committee also voted to require that jerseys be tucked into game pants if they are designed to be worn that way. That rule moves closer to the men's rule requiring all jerseys to be tucked in.

The committees also voted to expand the definition of offensive language to prohibit the use of abusive and obscene language. This action is an effort to curtail verbal misconduct by coaches and players.

In addition, the committees will include coach and player decorum as a point of emphasis to officials, coaches and players. This action is another response to the NCAA Presidents Commission's resolution to clean up offensive language and other unsporting conduct in all NCAA competition.

Additionally, the committees voted to expand the definition of an intentional foul to include excessive contact caused by a defensive player while playing the ball.

Other highlights

In other action at their April 12-14 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committees:

■ Voted to recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that an exception be permitted to its current rule concerning commercial logos and names on the playing court. The committees will ask that commercial logos or names be permitted on the playing floor when a corporate sponsor is associated with the name of any tournament.

■ Eliminated mandatory lag time for errors by the timer. Officials now shall correct for actual time when they have definite information relative to the time involved.

■ Voted to permit a single-color plain black or white patch to be worn on the shoulder or sleeve of the game jersey to honor the memory of a deceased person.

■ Voted to require that numbers shall be centered on the game jersey. Uniform jerseys must be in compliance by the beginning of the 1996-97 season.

■ Voted to recommend to the Executive Committee that any individual who participates in a fight during his or her team's final game of the season will be suspended from participating in the team's next regular-season game for which that individual would be eligible.

In separate action, the Women's Basketball Rules Committee:

■ Reduced the number of timeouts a team may be granted from four to three in games involving electronic media.

■ Designated as points of emphasis for 1993-94 the principle of verticality, rough low-post play, coach and player decorum and illegal screening.

In separate action, the Men's Basketball Rules Committee:

■ Designated as points of emphasis for 1993-94 the principle of verticality, rough low-post play, coach and player decorum, hanging on the rim and hand checking.

■ Approved for experimentation four situations: granting a player a sixth foul in an overtime period of a game if the player had not previously been disqualified in regulation; widening the free-throw lane two feet on each side, and moving the three-point line to a distance of 20 feet, 6 inches, or combining the wider lane and longer three-point shot.

Nonwood-bat standard coming

be available in the future."

Among the committee's other concerns:

■ An unbalanced game weighed more to offense than defense.

■ Present nonwood bats take a lot of the skill out of hitting a baseball.

■ Pitchers are afraid to challenge hitters; therefore, they throw more breaking pitches and throw more pitches overall.

■ Games are too long because of an increase in scoring, more walks and more errors.

Said Thurston, "One of the reasons that there are more arm injuries is that pitchers are throwing more breaking pitches. One of the reasons is that they are afraid to challenge hitters who use a nonwood bat with fastballs."

Manufacturers' view

Most of the leading manufacturers—six of whom have met with the rules committee on two occasions in the past nine months—have argued that the performance level of the bat has not increased since 1988. The manufacturers placed the blame on varying levels of performance of the baseball.

The NCAA Baseball Rules Committee does not require NCAA institutions to conduct regular-season intercollegiate baseball competition with a ball that meets a performance standard similar to the balls used for NCAA championships. At present, balls need meet only basic size and weight specifications to be used during regular-season play.

"The rules committee is in the early stages of discussing a performance standard (the committee met with baseball manufacturers

Bat stats

While offensive statistics admittedly can be manipulated to fit a given argument, the NCAA Baseball Rules Committee has expressed its concern about what it feels are "inflated" statistics. Here is a sampling of offensive statistics from 1992:

Division I

■ A minimum of 45 batters hit over .400, including three who hit over .488.

■ Sixteen teams batted more than .325, including a high of .352.

■ Twenty teams averaged 7.8 runs per game or more, including a high of 9.7.

■ Twenty players averaged hitting a home run every third game played.

Division II

■ Twenty-five batters hit .425 or above, including a high of .489.

■ Fourteen teams batted .339 or above, including a high of .378.

■ Ten teams averaged 8.35 runs per game or more, including a high of 10.4.

■ Thirteen players averaged hitting a home run every third game played.

Division III

■ Twenty-four batters hit .438 or above, including a high of .500.

■ Twelve teams batted .337 or above, including a high of .372.

■ Eleven teams averaged 8.41 runs per game or more, including a high of 9.3.

■ Thirteen players averaged hitting a home run every fourth game played.

at a January 3, 1993, meeting in Atlanta) for the baseball that would include regular season, as well as postseason, competition," Smeltzly said.

ASTM forum

The process of developing a standard for the nonwood bat most likely will begin at ASTM's May 18-21 meeting in Atlanta, where an executive committee will decide whether to form a subcommittee to study the issue.

ASTM is a not-for-profit organization that provides a forum for producers, users, consumers and those who have a general interest (representatives of government and academia) to meet and write standards for materials, products, systems and services. The work is done voluntarily by 36,000 technically qualified ASTM members located throughout the world. ASTM's FO8 Committee (playing equipment and facilities), which includes approximately 300 volunteer members, will have oversight responsibility for the subcommittee.

"The committee maintains that skill should be the primary ingredient with regard to accomplishment," said Smeltzly. "The average or small players might have to adjust, very much like players who use wooden bats have done for years. The bottom line is that the committee wants nonwood bats to act more in line with the top-quality major-league wood bat."

Record crowd catches basketball photo exhibits

In both Atlanta and New Orleans—sites of this year's Final Four and Women's Final Four, respectively—the NCAA Visitors Center's annual tournament exhibits were seen by record numbers of college basketball fans.

It was the sixth year for a photo exhibit at the Final Four and the third year for a Women's Final Four exhibit.

The exhibits are photographic histories of the tournaments. The men's exhibit was staged at the New Orleans Centre in downtown New Orleans, while the women's exhibit was displayed at Atlanta's Hartsfield Airport and later moved to the Alexander Memorial Coliseum at the Georgia Institute of Technology.

More than 100,000 people are estimated to have viewed the Final Four exhibit in New Orleans, said Robert E. Sprenger, NCAA assistant executive director for the Visitors Center and special projects. That exhibit included a tribute to the late "Pistol" Pete Maravich, whose 3,667 points at Louisiana State University from 1968 to 1970 stand as an NCAA Division I record. The exhibit also featured photos from the 1982 and 1987 Final Fours, which also were at the Louisiana Superdome.

Although it is unknown just how many people saw the Women's Final Four display at the airport, Sprenger said the response to the exhibit at Georgia Tech was enthusiastic.

Final Four fever not only was felt in New Orleans and Atlanta, but also at the Visitors Center itself in Overland Park, Kansas. During the week of both tournaments, attendance and gift-shop sales were much above average, Sprenger said.

In fact, more than $27,000 in merchandise was sold in the Visitors Center that week. Attendance at the center that week was 2,024—about four times greater than the weekly average, Sprenger said.

arena. So (fans) are making buying decisions before they get to the arena."

With competition increasing in the future, Schuh and White both predict that profits from sales of Final Four merchandise inside the arena may continue to dwindle.

That makes the Women's Final Four and other women's championships that much more important to Schuh's Collegiate Sports Design company.

"Our growth lies in the women's championships," Schuh said. "They're growing in popularity by leaps and bounds."

Championships corner

NCAA member institutions that sponsor men's basketball are being advised that, beginning with 1994 championships, the Rawlings RSS wide-channel basketball will be used in all three divisions of men's NCAA tournament play.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS
Luella Gross Goldberg, chair of the board of trustees of Wellesley, appointed acting president, effective July 1... David L. Rice, president of Southern Indiana, announced his retirement, effective June 30, 1994.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS
Harold Starks will relinquish his duties as an assistant men's basketball coach at Hofstra to become an assistant AD there.

COACHES
Men's basketball—Tim Cohane, associate head coach at Boston College, named at Buffalo. He has served as an aide at Boston College since 1990... Joe Cravens, an aide at Utah for four years, named at Idaho, replacing Larry Eustachy, who resigned to accept a similar post at Utah State... Bob Bender named at Washington after spending the past four seasons leading the program at Illinois State. He succeeds Lynn Nance, who stepped down after posting a 50-62 mark over the past four years.

Keith Dambrot dismissed at Central Michigan after two seasons. He compiled a 20-34 mark... Willem "Butch" van Breda Kolff, coach at Hofstra for a total of 12 seasons—including the past five—and a 27-year collegiate coaching veteran, announced he will retire after the 1993-94 campaign. Van Breda Kolff has an overall coaching mark of 474-252.

Men's basketball assistant—Harold Starks gave up coaching duties at Hofstra to become an assistant athletics director at the school.

Men's and women's cross country—

Brooks elevated to head coach at Houston

Alvin Brooks, an assistant men's basketball coach at Houston for the past seven seasons, has been promoted to head coach at the school.

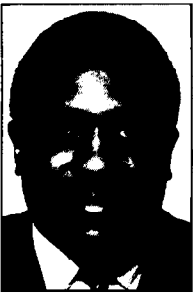

Brooks, who also served as an aide for five seasons under Pat Foster at Lamar, becomes the fourth head coach in Houston's 47-year basketball history.

(Due to an editing error, the Record section of last week's issue of The NCAA News erroneously reported that Tulsa head coach Tubby Smith was hired to replace Foster at Houston. The item was based on reports from other media that Smith would receive the job.)

Brooks said one of his major objectives will be to improve the academic performance of Cougar team members.

"It will be our goal, our No. 1 priority," he said. "Any guy that we have in our program that is not making satisfactory academic progress yearly and is not serious about it will not be a part of our program."

As a player at Lamar, Brooks helped lead the Cardinals to two NCAA tournament appearances.

Suzanne Shea-O'Connell resigned as women's coach at Fordham, where she also stepped down as women's track and field coach. She will continue to serve as assistant athletics director... John Rowland, a men's and women's assistant at Georgia State for the past two years, named acting head coach, replacing Frank Daniels, who resigned to concentrate on his teaching position at Newton County (Georgia) High School.

Football assistants—Mary Murray hired as a full-time assistant at Navy... Bob Allman named as a defensive assistant at Chicago, where he also will serve as assistant men's and women's track and field coach.

The following changes were announced at Houston: Melvin Robertson, defensive coordinator, given additional responsibilities as defensive backs coach and Ron Shanklin appointed to work with inside and outside receivers. Also, the Cougars announced that the contracts of defensive backs coach Jimmy Warren and inside receivers coach Steve Staggs would not be renewed for the 1993 season.

Phil Dorn, a former head coach at Alliance (Ohio) High School, and Richard Guipe, former assistant at Roncalli High School in Indianapolis, chosen at Butler, where they replace Dan Roushar, who became an aide at Rhode Island, and Mike Leonard, who departed to accept a coaching position in Japan... Jay Thomas chosen as defensive line coach at Southeast Missouri State.

Darryl McNeil picked as offensive coordinator and Anthony Currie named lized to meet a student-athlete's unmet need. Support or strongly support: Division I, 19 percent; Division II, 17 percent; Division III, 34 percent.

■ Student-athletes are awarded financial aid solely on the basis of financial need, which may not exceed the cost of attendance. No athletics funds may be utilized to meet a student-athlete's need. Support or strongly support: Division I, 12 percent; Division II, 15 percent; Division III, 48 percent.

■ Student-athletes may receive room and board grants from the athletics department. Financial assistance for tuition and fees, books, supplies and indirect costs must be awarded solely on the basis of financial need, which may not exceed cost of attendance. Support or strongly support: Division I, 12 percent; Division II, 21 percent; Division III, 18 percent.

■ Student-athletes may receive tuition and fees grants from the athletics department. Financial assistance for room and board, books, supplies and indirect costs must be awarded solely on the basis of financial need, which may not exceed cost of attendance. Support or strongly support: Division I, 41 percent; Division II, 42 percent; Division III, 24 percent.

■ Student-athletes may receive financial aid according to current Division I financial aid regulations. However, new maximum limits are established for each sport on the value of financial aid that can be awarded (equivalencies) and on the number of recipients. ### Institutions/conferences ommendations to institutions and conferences and the percentage by division of those respondents who indicated they either support or strongly support the recommendation.

■ As deregulation takes hold, presidents and athletics directors should take advantage of reduced administrative burdens (such as compliance and recruiting) by reducing support-services staff assigned these responsibilities. Support or strongly support: Division I, 42 percent; Division II, 45 percent; Division III, 51 percent.

■ Recommend that conferences explore on-campus housing opportunities during the month of January when institutions are between academic periods. Support or strongly support: Division I, 55 percent; Division II, 61 percent; Division III, 71 percent.

■ It was determined that the escalating costs of designing, constructing and maintaining athletics facilities were significant problems that pose a threat to the financial security of many programs; however, it was agreed that facility decisions are best left to the discretion of each institution. It is recommended that institutions be discouraged from building "athletics-only" facilities and that the Association of Physical Plant Administrators be used as a resource for comparative data and professional expertise. Support or strongly support: Division I, 66 percent; Division II, 76 percent; Division III, 75 percent.

■ Identify a ratio that correlates the number of support-staff personnel to the number of student-athletes served (for example, one weight trainer per 100 student-athletes). Support or strongly support: Division I, 48 percent; Division II, 59 percent; Division III, 60 percent.

■ Legislative assistance

1993 Column No. 16

Employment of student-athletes at summer camps/clinics

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 13.13.2.1.1, a student-athlete who is employed in any sports camp or clinic must meet the following requirements:

1. The student-athlete must perform duties that are of a general supervisory character, and any coaching or officiating assignments must represent not more than one-half of the student-athlete's work time, and

2. Compensation provided to the student-athlete must be commensurate with the going rate for camp or clinic counselors of like teaching ability and camp or clinic experience, and may not be paid on the basis of the value that the student-athlete may have for the employer because of the athletics reputation or fame the student-athlete has achieved.

During its November 5, 1992, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that a student-athlete's employment in a sports camp or clinic requires performance of general duties as follows:

1. It is not permissible for a student-athlete to receive compensation for employment in a sports camp or clinic if the student-athlete's involvement in the camp or clinic is limited only to lecturing to camp or clinic participants or appearing for demonstration purposes.

2. A student-athlete may be involved only in lecturing and/or appearing for demonstration purposes at a sports camp or clinic, provided the student-athlete does not receive any compensation for his or her appearance at the camp or clinic.

3. The committee confirmed that any compensation provided to a student-athlete for employment in a sports camp or clinic must be commensurate with the going rate for counselors of like teaching ability and camp or clinic experience, and may not be paid on the basis of the value the student-athlete may have for the employer because of the athletics reputation or fame the student-athlete has achieved. The committee noted that in situations in which a student-athlete is employed only for performing duties during a portion of the camp or clinic, compensation paid to the student-athlete must be prorated based on the student-athlete's length of employment.

For example, if a counselor who is employed on a full-time basis at a camp or clinic receives $300 for a week's employment, it is not permissible to provide the same compensation to a student-athlete of like teaching ability and camp or clinic experience who is involved for only a portion of the week. The student-athlete's compensation must be prorated based on his or her length of employment at the camp or clinic.

In addition, during its December 17, 1992, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that it is not permissible to establish varying levels of compensation for student-athletes employed in a sports camp or clinic based on the level of skills of the student-athletes. The committee noted that the level of a student-athlete's skills does not directly relate to the student-athlete's teaching ability.

Thus, the establishment of different rates of compensation for student-athletes employed in a camp or clinic (not based on actual camp experience) is an indication that the student-athletes are being paid on the basis of the value that the student-athletes may have for the employer because of the athletics reputation or fame the student-athletes have achieved.

Further, in Division I, no member of an institution's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad who has eligibility remaining may be employed or otherwise participate in that institution's basketball or football camp. A member of an institution's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad who has eligibility remaining may be employed in any camp that specializes in the sport of basketball or football other than his own institution's camp, provided not more than one men's basketball or football student-athlete from any one institution is so employed by a particular camp.

A member of an institution's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad who has eligibility remaining may be employed as a counselor in any diversified camp, including a diversified camp conducted by the student-athlete's own institution, provided no more than one member with eligibility remaining from the previous year's intercollegiate men's basketball or football squad of any one member institution is so employed.

In the sport of soccer, no more than six student-athletes with eligibility remaining from the same member institution's soccer team may be employed (e.g., as counselors), in the same soccer camp or clinic. This regulation would be applicable regardless of whether the camp is conducted by the student-athletes' own institution, another member institution or a non-institutional (i.e., private) group. In all other Division I sports, there is no limit on the number of student-athletes who may be employed (e.g., as counselors) in camps or clinics.

In Divisions II and III, a member institution (or employees of its athletics department) may employ student-athletes as counselors in the institution's camps or clinics, subject to the following conditions:

1. The student-athlete may not participate in organized practice activities other than during the institution's playing season in that sport, and

2. The member institution's director of athletics must give prior approval to the employment arrangement.

Finally, it should be noted that in all divisions, a student-athlete with eligibility remaining is not permitted to conduct his or her own camp or clinic.

Equity

Analysis of women's interest in athletics is crucial to gender-equity equation

50. There are evident inconsistencies in interchanging these methods.

For instance, there is no problem integrating a team with minorities who have the same interests and abilities as the majority, but there is a problem in arbitrarily creating opportunities for women in the name of equity when data strongly indicate that women have a more limited interest in sports than men.

What is "equity"? Equalization proponents, with their restrictive definition, fail to recognize the difficulty that OCR has in measuring equity. 34 C.F.R. Section 106.41(c)(1) of the Title IX regulation requires institutions that offer athletics programs to accommodate effectively the interests and abilities of students to the extent necessary to provide equal opportunity in the selection of sports and levels of competition available to members of both sexes.

The policy interpretation outlines three factors that may be considered consecutively to assess the opportunity for individuals of both sexes to compete in athletics programs: (1) if ratios of enrollment to participation of each sex are "substantially proportionate"; (2) the history of men's and women's athletics at an institution and its policies for adding and discontinuing sports, and (3) other methods used to evaluate the accommodation of interests and abilities, such as surveys of the student body, a review of intramural participation, etc.

For clarification, we will address two aspects of these guidelines in an attempt to simplify the complex issue of equity measurement.

First, in using the enrollment ratios calculated in Step 1, the OCR's investigator's manual states: "There is no set ratio that constitutes 'substantially proportionate' or that, when not met, results in a disparity or a violation." This is contrary to the definition of equity suggested by equalization proponents in that the guidelines explicitly assert there is no violation, regardless of the ratio calculated, when solely using participation-to-enrollment ratios. Moreover, in Roberts, et al v. Colorado State University, the Federal District Court for Colorado substantiates this contention by stating: "The Court finds that a disparity between female athletic participation and female undergraduate enrollment...is not acceptable under Title IX absent a showing by defendants under the second or third prong of the Effective Accommodation test."

Secondly, Step 3 addresses the use of other methods to evaluate interests of an institution's student body, such as intramural and interscholastic participation. We think intramural programs are a fair measure of interest in sports at an institution. These programs offer a diverse selection of campus sports, including club and intramural sports, recreation, and fitness-facilities programs.

Intramurals are open to all students at a university and are a measurement of sincere interest by an entire student body. We found no comprehensive study that includes an examination of institutions' intramural programs (in relation to enrollment),<sup>1</sup> so we sampled Division I-A universities' intramural programs regarding male and female participation. According to our sample, about 70 percent of the male population participates in intramural sports and recreational activities, while approximately 45 percent of the females participate.<sup>2</sup> These results indicate a significant difference in interest in sports between men and women.

If intramural ratios were used as the determinant of interest, one could consider a university with an enrollment of 15,000 that is 50 percent male and 50 percent female. We would calculate 5,250 (70 percent of 7,500) of the male population play intramural sports or participate in recreational activities, and 3,375 (45 percent of 7,500) females would take part. Out of 15,000 students, a total of 8,625 (5,250 plus 3,375) would participate. Of that 8,625, 61 percent would be male (5,250/8,625), and 39 percent would be female (3,375/8,625). So, when using intramural ratios as the determinate of interest at a university, participation in intercollegiate sports would be substantially proportionate to interest displayed at our example university at a 61/39 percent ratio.

Do university athletics programs stifle the interests of women displayed in high schools? Apparently not. According to the National Federation of State High School Associations' 1992 sports participation survey, the percentage of female participants to total participants was 36.1 percent, while male participants made up 63.9 percent. This would seem to indicate that males are more interested in sports than females at the interscholastic level.

A closer examination of the interscholastic figures reveals more evidence of male and female interests. In 1971, just before the enactment of Title IX, female participants made up just seven percent of the total sports participants. From 1972 to 1978, female participation grew to 32 percent of the total sports participants. Since 1978, female participation rates have stabilized at between 34 and 36 percent. During the same time, the number of male participants stayed relatively level (3.6 million in 1971 to 3.4 million in 1992).

It appears that the initial ramifications of Title IX increased female participation from depressed levels. But even though Title IX, in its 20 years, has increased the awareness of females in sports, high-school participation has leveled over the last 14 years to about 35 percent of total participation.

It is interesting to note that interscholastic participation ratios mirror those of intramural participation, increasing the evidence that male interest in sports is greater than female interest.

We suspect equalization proponents will argue that high schools, by not offering equal opportunities, already suppress the interests of females before they get to college. It should be noted, however, that high schools offer numerous extracurricular activities other than sports in which students participate. According to NFSHA's 1991-92 interscholastic activities survey,<sup>3</sup> which examines participation in nonsport extracurricular activities such as band, choir, debate teams, spirit groups, dramatics, etc., girls make up 69 percent of the participants, while boys make up 31 percent. This indicates to us that female interests are more diversified than male interests.

Equality of men's and women's interests in sports is a convenient but invalid argument. What many equalization proponents will not consider is that women's interests may lie in activities other than athletics. They dispel this argument and think that by arbitrarily creating opportunities for women, participation would increase proportionately. Analysis of female interests suggests otherwise, and any attempt to create opportunities for women (or reduce opportunities for men) without a thoughtful strategy would be a disservice to all student-athletes and all those interested in college athletics.

<sup>1</sup>The National Association of College and University and Business Officers will release its 1992 benchmarking survey results in June. This survey includes an examination of male and female participation in intramural programs. While we do not claim our sampling to be as scientific as the NACUBO survey, we expect our results will not materially deviate from its findings.

<sup>2</sup>It is important to note that the percentages given to us by intramural directors usually included participation in non-competitive recreational activities such as aerobics, jogging, weight lifting, etc.

<sup>3</sup>Thirty-two states answered the interscholastic activities survey. Since it is not a complete examination, the results are used for informational purposes only. The survey, however, is the most reliable information we are aware of.
