Certification program kicks off first phase with orientation visits

Division I institutions have received materials pertaining to the athletics certification program, which will begin later this month with orientation visits to the first of the involved institutions.

A copy of the schedule appears on page 18 of this issue of The NCAA News.

The orientation is a one-day visit by an NCAA staff member that should take about six hours. Its purpose is to review:

- The purpose and format of the athletics certification program;
- The institution's activities already conducted in preparation for the orientation visit;
- The self-study instrument (which was in the package of materials that was mailed September 1);
- Preparations for the evaluation visit, and
- Projected dates for the evaluation visit.

West Virginia University and the University of Wyoming will be the first institutions to receive orientation visits. Another 23 schools are scheduled to receive orientation visits in October and November.

Evaluation visits by peer-review teams will begin in the 1994-95 academic year. The subcommittee responsible for selecting peer reviewers has received about 650 nominees and expects to receive more nominations over the next two months.

The review of the current list of nominees will begin during a September 13 subcommittee conference call and continue during the full committee's October 7 meeting. The subcommittee may elect to seek additional nominations from selected constituent groups based upon that review. The final pool of about 600 reviewers is expected to be approved sometime this fall.

Orientation checklist

Before the orientation visit, the participating institution should:

- ☒ Form the self-study steering committee.
- ☒ Involve other members of the campus community through the use of subcommittees.
- ☒ Determine whether and, if so, how the conference office will provide assistance.
- ☒ If desired, obtain the services of other individuals to assist in carrying out the responsibilities that ordinarily would fall to the conference office and seek prior written approval from the NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification for this kind of outside involvement.
- ☒ Review the certification handbook and the self-study instrument.
- ☒ Consult with the governing board and the institution's chief executive officer regarding plans and commitments that may seriously affect the future of the institution and its athletics program.
- ☒ Prepare a tentative written plan for completing the self-study.
- ☒ Review institutional compliance policies and procedures.
- ☒ If desired, apply in writing to the Committee on Athletics Certification for modification of the institution's place in the certification schedule.

Revenue fund paid $77.9 million

Division I institutions received $77,939,839 this year under the NCAA revenue-distribution plan.

The last of the five installments was paid August 27 when checks for the grants-in-aid fund were mailed. Members of 33 conferences and six independent institutions received money from the plan, which distributed revenue from the third year of the NCAA's $1 billion contract with CBS Sports.

In addition to the five established installments—the basketball, academic-enhancement, special-assistance, sports-sponsorship and grants-in-aid funds—a supplemental disbursement of $3 million from unallocated surplus was made in December.

A review of the funds:

■ Basketball fund. $31,500,001. Mailed April 23. This fund was distributed to Division I conferences based upon their teams' performances in the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship between 1987 and 1992.

■ Academic-enhancement fund. $8,940,000. Mailed June 25. Each Division I member received $30,000, an increase of $5,000 from the 1992 plan. The money is intended to enhance academic support systems for student-athletes.

■ Special-assistance fund $2,999,852. Mailed July 30. The purpose of this fund is to aid student-athletes with special financial needs. Distribution is determined by the number of student-athletes who received Pell Grants (either actual dollars or credit for them) during the 1992-93 academic year.

■ Sports-sponsorship fund.

Heisman candidates hit the campaign trail

By Ronald D. Mott
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

So you want to be a Heisman Trophy candidate? What does it take, you ask?

Almost everybody agrees that to win the award, a player must have superior football talent and an ability to deliver in the biggest of games against the best of teams.

It also takes promotion, although winning the award may not even be an expectation of the sports information staff that touts a Heisman Trophy candidate. Gaining exposure for the player, and, consequently, the football program, tops the list of goals in many cases.

Somewhat like candidates for political offices, Heisman Trophy

candidates have public relations officials, "speech" writers and grass-roots movers and shakers—all residing in the sports information office. In order to win, the candidates usually must run a campaign—both on the field and off—to favorably influence voters.

That blitzkrieg includes the creation of a litany of posters, buttons, slogans, calendars, pop-up books or anything else to garner attention.

But is this massive campaigning effective? It all depends on whom you ask.

On-field performance

"In the final analysis, the guy's got to have the numbers," said Claude Felton, sports information director at the University of Georgia, who orchestrated a campaign for Heisman winner Herschel

Walker. "He has to make the performance on the field.... I think a player has to win it on the field, but I think a sports information person can get a player to be in a position to be in the race."

Florida State University sports information director Wayne Hogan, recalling his office's push for a former Seminole player, concedes that almost any type of promotion will be overshadowed by the influence of television.

"We ran a kind of subversive campaign," Hogan said. "Ours was more of a telephone-type thing. The voters aren't dumb. Every week they'll see highlights. ESPN has become a huge force in this

Executive director

Search committee to narrow field

The search committee charged with recommending candidates for the position of NCAA executive director will seek to reduce the field to 10 or 12 candidates when it meets September 13-14 in Kansas City, Missouri.

That group of 10 or 12 will be interviewed by the search firm of Heidrick and Struggles and subsequently by the search committee during a September 28-30 meeting in Kansas City.

At that time, the committee will submit its finalists to the NCAA Executive Committee. The Executive Committee, Presidents Commission executive committee (or its designated representatives) and the national office management team are scheduled to interview the finalists in early October.

The position became available when Executive Director Richard D. Schultz resigned May 11.

For more detail, see the July 7, June 2 and May 26 issues of The NCAA News.

Staff contact: Patricia E. Bork.

Next meeting: September 13-14 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Certification

Orientation visits begin this month

The first of the institutions to be directly involved in the Association's new athletics certification process will receive orientation visits from NCAA staff members later this month.

On September 1, all Division I members were mailed a package of certification materials, including the five-year certification schedule, the certification handbook and the certification self-study instrument.

An update on the process appears on page 1 of this issue of the News, and the schedule appears on page 18.

The next major step for the Committee on Athletics Certification is building a pool of individuals who will serve as peer reviewers. The committee expects to have a group approved by this fall.

Staff contact: John H. Leavens.

Gender equity

Subcommittee working to develop source book

A subcommittee of the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force requests that individuals who know of innovative gender-equity approaches contact Janet M. Justus at the national office.

The subcommittee is working toward development of a source book to aid the membership in ideas that would enhance gender equity and Title IX compliance.

At its first meeting in August, the group reviewed ideas that were submitted earlier this year by the membership. The group hopes to assemble a manual that would be distributed to the membership by next fall.

The next meeting of the subcommittee tentatively is scheduled for November 4-5 in Denver.

For more detail on gender-equity issues, see the August 18, August 4 and June 2 issues of The NCAA News.

Staff contact: Janet M. Justus.

Revenues

Distribution complete from third year of plan

A total of $77,939,839 was mailed to the Division I membership during the third year of the NCAA revenue-distribution plan.

A review of the distribution appears in a story on page 1 of this issue. A table showing a conference-by-conference breakdown of the five funds, plus a supplemental distribution that was made in December, appears on page 7.

The final checks, those for the grants-in-aid fund, were mailed August 27.

Staff contact: Keith E. Martin.

Sports medicine

Survey shows decrease in anabolic steroid use

The latest study of drug use by student-athletes indicates a decrease in anabolic steroid use by football players. However, steroid use was up in seven of the 10 sports surveyed and in four of the five women's sports surveyed.

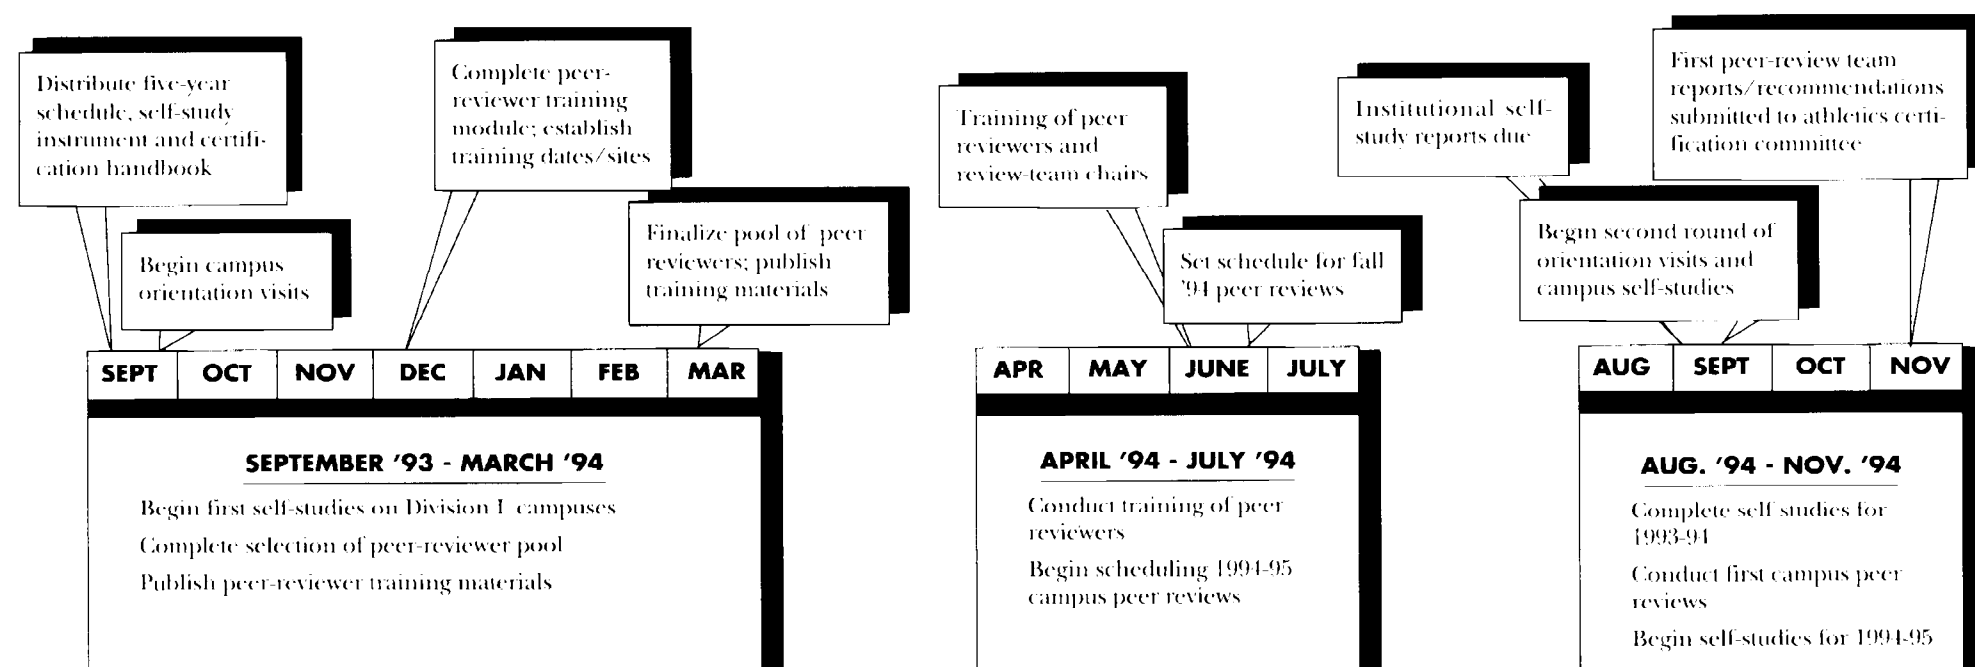

The survey, the Second Replication of a National Study of the Substance Use and Abuse Habits of College Student-Athletes, is the third in a series that began in 1985. It also revealed that "binge drinking" has increased since 1985, and that although the overall use of smokeless tobacco is down slightly, it is up among women.

Copies of the survey may be obtained by contacting the sports sciences staff at the national office.

PGA treats NYSP kids

More than 250 participants in the NCAA's National Youth Sports Program (NYSP) headed to the links this summer as part of the Professional Golfers Association of America's (PGA) Kids on Course junior golf program.

Youngsters took part in a joint NYSP-PGA program at the University of Toledo, one of eight institutions participating in the program. The highlight of the five-week physical-education and cultural-enrichment program was a trip to the PGA Championship, which was held in August at the nearby Inverness Club. There, professional golfers provided training tips and encouragement to the young players, many of whom had never held a golf club or been on a golf course before this summer.

"The NCAA has reached out to kids, and we are trying to reach out to kids," said PGA of America President Gary Schall. "We can bring our skills to (the NCAA's) network, and I think we are both the beneficiaries, in addition to the kids."

A youngster participating in the program supported that view, saying that it was exciting to see professional golfers in action at Inverness.

"By watching them, I can learn how to (play golf) myself even better than I can now," he said.

The NYSP program focused on introducing the game to juniors through the PGA's First Swing curriculum, which includes instructional progression, age-appropriate developmental activities, and individual and team games.

Other institutions that conducted the introductory program were California State University, Sacramento; University of Detroit Mercy; Florida A&M University; Hampton University; St. Louis University; Texas A&M University; and Washburn University of Topeka.

Whew! It's over

The ultimate road trip ended August 25 for four college buddies who set out to watch 28 Major League Baseball games in 28 stadiums in 28 days. (See Briefly in the News, April 21).

An NYSP participant gets golf tips from an expert: PGA of America President Gary Schall.

Princeton University baseball players Chris Looney and Michael Casagrande, schoolmate Mark Johns, and Dartmouth College student Brent DeRisner finished their whirlwind tour at Candlestick Park in San Francisco. Their rented van logged more than 20,000 miles, and the group managed to get to each ball park by opening pitch. All this without even one speeding ticket.

The odyssey began July 27, when the group watched a game at the Kingdome in Seattle. From there, they saw 17 home teams win, got rained out once, witnessed a brawl at Wrigley Field and saw more than a few players ejected.

"We've been preparing for this so long that I don't think any of us knows what to do after we're done," Johns told The Associated Press. "We're not going to have any reason to live any more."

The best stadiums? Fenway Park in Boston and Wrigley Field in Chicago, the group said.

Fit athletes

University of Houston student-athletes will benefit from a partnership formed by the institution and the Sports Medicine and Performance Institute of Texas.

All student-athletes will undergo complete physicals, which will include EKG (cardiac), orthopedic (bones and muscles) and dental testing, lab work with blood samples, eye examinations, testing of internal organs, and measurement of body fat.

Dr. Walter Lowe, who previously worked with professional and college athletes in Los Angeles, will head the team of doctors who will provide care for Cougar student-athletes.

"I enjoyed working with athletes when I was in Los Angeles, and I wanted to do the same in Houston," Lowe said. "I approached UH about helping them in some capacity...I like to do it. My dad was a football coach, so I know what it is like to work with athletes. I like to be able to help them and make sure they are getting the best possible care."

Part of the arrangement will include drug testing and education through the John Lucas Drug Rehabilitation Center.

Lacrosse camp

For youngsters living in America's inner cities, the sport of lacrosse is seldom played, if even known. Loyola College (Maryland) is trying to change that for kids living in the city of Baltimore.

Al Harvey, director of community relations at the college, made sure young players of the Baltimore City Middle School lacrosse program were included at this year's annual Loyola College Resident Lacrosse Camp.

"We're hoping these five days give them some type of dream," Harvey told the Baltimore Sun. "By allowing them to stay on campus, we want them to set a course to go to college."

Dave Cottle, head men's lacrosse coach at Loyola (Maryland), said he believes the players gained valuable experience and insight into what it is like to be a student-athlete.

"My focus is that Loyola is a city school, and this allows us to get in touch with the kids in the city," he said. "This is for most their first time on a college campus, and they get to learn about being a student-athlete. And by living together, they get to see that there are good people on different sides of the economic barrier."

News quiz

Fact file

The largest payment to a Division I institution in the 1992-93 revenue distribution that is based on the number of sports sponsored beyond the 12 required for Division I membership went to Harvard University, with 18 additional sports (30 total). Next were Ohio State University and Princeton University with 17 each (29 total each). Meanwhile, 28 Division I institutions—nearly 10 percent of the membership of the division for the year in question—received no payment because they sponsored only the minimum 12 sports.

New version of compliance software sent

Version 3.00 of the NCAA Compliance Assistant software program was mailed September 3 to more than 400 individuals at Divisions I and II institutions who requested the software from the national office.

A detailed user's guide and an information sheet regarding the release of Version 3.00 also were enclosed in the mailing. Version 3.00 features many enhancements to the previous version of the program and, among other things, can generate the 1993-94 NCAA squad lists and the satisfactory-progress worksheet (using the "fall-to-fall" or "averaging" method for the "75/25" rule).

A later distribution of the program was necessary due to the extensive programming and testing that was required with the development of the software program, which is written in a different

Great care taken in making schedule

By Charles Whitcomb
SAN JOSE STATE UNIVERSITY

By now, administrators at every Division I school know how their institution fits into the first five-year schedule compiled by the NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification.

As chair of the subcommittee that developed the schedule, I have been interested in how our work has been received. Acceptance has been good, from what I hear.

Whitcomb

With that said, I understand that some people probably have not been following the process closely. For that reason, I want to emphasize that our goal has been to work closely with institutions and conferences to determine a suitable time for their self-study. We recognize that this is a major time commitment for all Division I schools, and we want no one to believe for a moment that these assignments were made arbitrarily.

Let me review the process:

At the outset, conferences were asked to suggest a schedule for their members. Most of them did, and that helped the committee immensely.

Scheduling principles were established. They included coordination with the institution's regional accreditation schedule (if the institution so desired; this was especially significant for institutions belonging to the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools), whether the institution was involved in the pilot program, how the conference suggested the institution be scheduled and the date of the institution's most recent self-study. The committee also attempted to maintain an equal distribution of conference members, wherever it was possible.

A five-year schedule was developed and sent to 301 Division I schools in June. They were asked to let us know of any concerns; as a result, we received requests from 16 of them wanting to change years. Adjustments were made, consistent with the scheduling principles.

The schedule then went to the full com-

Grad rates, playoff cases misstated

As necessary change comes to college sports, allow me to express my frustrations over misconceptions and blatant misstatements of facts that come with too much frequency these days.

Attacks have been made on the most recent graduation-rates tables because, while graduation numbers are up, the percentage of minorities appears to be down. Critics have implied that this has meant a disservice to the disadvantaged.

What they well know, and what a study of the same report will indicate, is that while the first year of implementation of Proposition 48 saw a drop in minority enrollment in Division I, that is no longer the case. In fact, based on racial breakdowns of incoming freshmen in 1991-92, there are more Blacks playing football and basketball than ever before. And they will graduate at a higher rate than pre-Prop 48. The critics know that.

What should be of concern in this era of gender equity is that Blacks participate in substantial numbers only in football, men's and women's basketball, and men's and women's track.

A study of the three graduation surveys, covering four years, shows that of 1,090 black female athletes in Division I-A, 982 played either basketball or track. Thus, there were just 108 minority athletes at 107 schools in all other sports.

For the men, only 173 out of more than 5,000 black athletes played sports other than the big three. In other words, in all other sports at the largest schools, there are fewer than three black athletes of either gender competing.

Yet we are considering the addition of emerging sports, especially for women, who almost surely will be almost all white. The other alternative seems to be dropping men's sports.

The arguments about enhanced academic standards being unfair to minorities are almost as devious as those made against a proposed football playoff for Division I-A.

□ Letters

Coaches and athletics directors, who inevitably get bonuses for postseason games, speak against playoffs as being unfair to the student-athletes. The reality is that while 38 coaches go to bowls and 19 can win, a maximum of 16 would make the playoffs and most schools would have little or no chance ever to make it. The coaches and ADs are self-serving, despite their schools' need for additional revenue.

Presidents have been convinced a playoff would be antiacademic. In fact, playoffs have been proposed in which only the two finalists would miss any school time at all. All other games would be played during the holidays, unlike the NCAA basketball tournaments, which often keep winners on the road for days at a time.

If the presidents understood that even with a 16-team playoff, only eight teams would play more than 12 games and just four would play more than 13, perhaps they might change their minds. Far more teams play that many games now.

A playoff system could be devised that would provide desperately needed revenue to all I-A schools with fewer teams playing fewer games than we have now and with little or no absences from class. Somehow, this has not been explained to the presidents, who will make the final decision.

If playoffs are destructive, why haven't I-AA, II and III presidents campaigned against them, especially since those games usually require off-campus trips while school is in session?

In both these situations, the truth is ignored to serve self-interests.

Double standard

Coaches are by and large honest and straightforward, and I enjoy working with them.

However, they sometimes are the victim of a double standard, which I think the August 18 guest editorial by Chuck Knoles illustrates.

The appeal to our social conscience is frequently made when an athlete is ill-prepared for college but possesses exceptional athletics skills. This same appeal is not made in behalf of the thousands of students who are denied admission to universities across the country for academic reasons. They're not athletes.

Additionally, when coaches make judgments about the abilities of athletes ("This guy can play, this guy can't"), nobody objects to their right to do it. Coaches even recruit and in the process routinely reject many otherwise worthy individuals who are ill-prepared to participate in intercollegiate athletics.

But when universities make similar judgments ("This guy can do college work, this guy can't"), some coaches characterize it as a denial of educational opportunity. Academic work is competitive; no real benefit results from admitting students to academically suspect programs, tutoring them along at minimal levels of achievement and giving them degrees at the end of the process. There are many reasons to object to practices like this, but surely one is the cheapening of the degree itself. It is a disservice to the many legitimate students who attend university (often at considerable family sacrifice), work hard and get degrees.

So long as athletes are thought of as occupying a special category and are not seen as students who participate in an extracurricular activity, many of the problems that presently beset intercollegiate athletics will persist.

□ Opinions

Faculty rep aids athletes by helping others

Gordon Collins, faculty athletics representative
College of Wooster

The Intercollegiate Athletic Forum

"The faculty athletics representative should be a paragon of virtue vis-a-vis needs of the student-athlete; the needs of the institution, and the needs of the coaching staff, the athletics director and the faculty. Clearly, no one person can fill all of these roles and expectations...but to the degree that the faculty representative is cognizant of these, pays attention to them, attempts to implement them as best he or she can, to that degree he or she will do the job that we would like to see the faculty athletics representative do. This job is to help make the student-athlete the most successful person that he or she can be, both on the athletics field and in the classroom, and to emerge from all of that able to be a comfortable person in the world in which we all live."

Football overtime

Bill McCartney, head football coach
University of Colorado, Boulder

CFA Sidelines

"I would reject an overtime period to settle tie games. My verdict is based on the observation that there is no current system that is worthy to decide the outcome. The NFL solution of playing an extra quarter with the first team to score is the best of all current formulas. However, if you don't get the football and subsequently lose the game off the first possession, you have not been adequately rewarded for tying the game after four quarters. If four quarters doesn't do it—settle it next year."

Tests

University of Houston

Houston Chronicle

About attending Houston's downtown campus for a year after missing by a point the ACT score required for initial NCAA eligibility:

"Now, I feel like an athlete again. Last year made me grow up real quick. I had good grades in high school, but I waited too late to get serious about the entrance test. I should have started taking it as a sophomore so I would know what to expect.

"It taught me to take care of business, not wait to the last minute to get the important things behind you."

Baseball coaches, FARA air concerns to committee

The NCAA Presidents Commission Liaison Committee heard from the American Baseball Coaches Association and the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association in a September 2 meeting in Dallas.

It was the second meeting at which the Liaison Committee, established this year to provide more effective communication between the Presidents Commission and constituent organizations in college athletics, has held such discussions. In the first such session,

June 30-July 1 in Kansas City, Missouri, the committee heard from the American Football Coaches Association, the American Volleyball Coaches Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches (see the July 7 issue of The NCAA News).

Appearing in Dallas for the baseball coaches were ABCA President Jerry Kindall, University of Arizona; president-elect Mark Johnson, Texas A&M University, and Dick Bergquist, the association's executive director.

They expressed frustrations felt by baseball coaches regarding the impact that they believe recent reform actions have had on that sport. They also discussed the legislative proposals that they have developed for action at the 1994 NCAA Convention, emphasizing those dealing with the volunteer coach and with extending the baseball playing and practice season by two weeks.

The faculty representatives were represented by Carla H. Hay, Marquette University, chair of FARA, and Jerry L. Kingston, Arizona State University, the organization's vice-chair.

They discussed the role of faculty representatives in general and the evolution of their association, emphasizing FARA's desire to work with the Presidents Commission in its reform efforts.

The Liaison Committee will submit to the Presidents Commission summaries of the discussions in the meeting, which also will be shared with the involved groups.

University of New Mexico President Richard E. Peck chairs the Liaison Committee, which also includes four other Presidents Commission members, two faculty representatives and four athletics administrators (two men and two women).

Any constituent group wishing to make a presentation at the committee's next meeting, which will be scheduled in February or March of next year, should contact Ted C. Tow, NCAA associate executive director, at the national office.

Certification

Considerable time and effort went into developing schedule

mittee, which approved it and sent it to the Division I Steering Committee, which gave it final approval.

Although the schedule is now set, it is important to note that some flexibility remains. If an institution experiences extenuating circumstances such as the sudden departure of its chief executive officer or an NCAA investigation, it may request that its date be moved back one year.

Now we are down to scheduling specific months for the first class of 62 institutions. NCAA compliance services staff members will be contacting personnel at those schools in the months ahead to arrange a date for the orientation visit.

What is important is that this process works for everybody. We want the membership to be comfortable with certification, and we have taken considerable care to get off to a good start.

Mikasa contract is renewed

The NCAA has renewed its exclusive agreement with Mikasa Sports of Irvine, California, for use of the Mikasa VL200 and the VFC200 as the official balls of the NCAA men's and women's volleyball championships.

In addition, Mikasa will pay the NCAA royalties on sales of both championship and retail balls marked with the NCAA logo.

Mikasa also will sponsor a highlights video from the Division I Women's Volleyball Championship and the National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship, and provide funding for each championship's televised selection show.

"Mikasa is continuing its commitment to collegiate volleyball by providing sponsorship to the NCAA to support the men's and women's championships," Mikasa President Richard L. McCoy said.

Mikasa also will provide balls for the NCAA's Youth Education through Sports (YES) clinics at both the Division I women's championship and the National Collegiate men's championship sites, and will purchase 500 tickets to each championship for use by YES clinic participants. Mikasa also will provide balls for the National Youth Sports Program.

The contract renewal is effective through May 1996. Mikasa has been the official NCAA championship volleyball manufacturer since 1990.

Ex-Council member gets called for traveling

By David D. Smale
SPECIAL TO THE NCAA NEWS

Andy Mooradian is enjoying the good life.

Mooradian, the former director of athletics at the University of New Hampshire, now is a part-time consultant for Worldtek Travel.

"I keep in touch with all the conference commissioners and athletics directors to make sure they are happy with the services of Worldtek," he says of the company that oversees NCAA travel. "If they have any problems, I encourage them to call me so I can solve them."

"The bosses say I'm doing a good job," he says. "I have been very fortunate to get this opportunity."

'Well-earned'

While Mooradian considers himself fortunate, his employers say it is a well-earned position. "He knows everybody at every college in America," says Tom Dempsey, the Worldtek vice-president who oversees college athletics travel. "He's the kind of person who can pick up the phone and be known immediately."

Mooradian spent more than just his entire professional career at New Hampshire. A native of Revere, Massachusetts, he attended the university, where he played football, basketball and baseball. He says his best sport was baseball, although he liked football the most.

Mooradian

Where are they now?

NCAA File

Andrew T. Mooradian

Lives: Dover, New Hampshire.

Occupation: Part-time consultant for Worldtek Travel.

Formerly: Director of athletics at the University of New Hampshire.

Family: Wife, Frances; daughters, Leslie and Jody, and son, Todd; four grandchildren.

After graduating in 1950, he became an assistant football coach for the Wildcats, a role he held until 1964. In 1956, he was named assistant athletics director, and in 1964, he took over the athletics directorship, the role from which he retired in 1987.

"The highlight for me was taking the program from Division II to Division I," he said. "We improved the overall program so that we were competitive in football, basketball and hockey. We played in two Division II football tournaments and played in the Division I hockey semifinals three times."

Active in committees

Mooradian was named to the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee in September 1974, the first of nine committees on which he served. Among them were the Nominating Committee, the Division I-AA Football Committee and the Television Committee. He was named to the NCAA Council in 1981.

The Television Committee evokes many of Mooradian's memories. "I was on the committee when we went from one network to two (for football)," he said, "but I also was on the committee when the NCAA lost control of the football television contract. That is one of my biggest disappointments. With the old contract, all football-playing schools benefited. Now, only a few do, and I don't think they benefit as much. There is such a proliferation of football on television that nobody benefits."

Mooradian was on the Council when NCAA women's championships were introduced. At the same time, the number of women on NCAA committees grew dramatically.

"Everybody had their doubts on how that would work," he recalls. "But it worked well. Women got to have roles on various committees and people like Judy Holland (director of women's athletics at the University of California, Los Angeles) and Phyllis Howlett (associate commissioner of the Big Ten Conference) proved they could be great leaders, not just for women, but for men."

Served NACDA

Mooradian certainly was busy in other areas. He became a member of the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics shortly after it was formed in the early 1960s and served as its president in 1985-86. He brought to all those activities the perspective of Division I-AA. Twenty years after the NCAA split into three divisions and 15 years after the creation of Divisions I-A and I-AA, he believes the move was a good one for college athletics.

"I think it has been very successful," he said. "It gave the different schools a chance to compete on their own level. We (New Hampshire) couldn't stay in Division II in football because the rest of our program was Division I. This gave us an opportunity to bring the whole program on the same level."

"It was very important to allow the schools to have federation. The Division I-A problems are completely different from Divisions I-AA, II and III in terms of how they are funded and how they are handled administratively. The more you can allow the schools to solve their own problems without interference from the other divisions, the better for everyone involved."

Mooradian now is the envy of many of his former colleagues. He gets paid to play golf and spend somebody else's money.

Plenty of golf

He plays golf three times a week, "if you don't count the weekends," he says. Even when working for Worldtek, he gets in plenty of golf. "I run three or four golf tournaments a year for the commissioners and the ADs," he said. "I want them to be able to relax without any pressure on them."

"I enjoy working around the house, and I like to attend all sorts of collegiate sports events. Getting to travel with Worldtek helps me in that area."

It also allows him to renew existing friendships and cultivate new ones. His friendliness always will be what is remembered most—about him and by him.

"I enjoyed my career with the NCAA," he says. "I learned a lot and enjoyed the friendships very much. It makes me feel good when people say that I am well liked. I do have a lot of friends, and I enjoy them all. I always say the best people in the world are in athletics."

Battles on and off the course inspire cross country champ

By Steven R. Hagwell
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Phillip Castillo is driven by challenges.

Cross country is a good example. From the moment he began running competitively as a freshman in high school, the Adams State College runner has been driven by the challenge of competing against nature.

"I've always loved cross country," Castillo said. "Running on different courses, running against the elements... It's a very challenging sport."

Castillo has met the challenge.

Last year, in his first season of NCAA competition, Castillo won the Division II men's cross country individual championship and helped Adams State win the team title with a perfect score of 15. Adams State claimed the top five places to become the first team in NCAA cross country championships history to record a perfect score.

In addition to becoming cross country champion, Castillo finished second in the 5,000-meter run in indoor track and fourth in the 5,000-meter run outdoors.

'Most consistent'

"Phillip is always on top of his game," said Joe Vigil, Adams State men's cross country coach. "He's the most consistent person I have. He's not up and down... he's always there. He's very committed and dedicated to what he is doing."

"Phillip is always on top of his game.... He's very committed and dedicated to what he is doing."

■ Adams State coach
Joe Vigil

Castillo, however, faces his biggest challenge outside of athletics competition.

Since arriving at Adams State, Castillo, who is an Acoma Pueblo Indian, has been an integral part of a movement to prompt Adams State to drop its athletics nickname. Adams State refers to its athletics teams as "Indians."

"Phillip is a very proud young man," said Vigil. "He's proud of his roots. He has developed a great sense of responsibility to his people. He has an unshattering belief in himself, this program and his philosophy of life."

"His mental strength brought on through his ethnicity and religion is very, very strong. He believes in what he is doing. He's out to prove that Native Americans can succeed in a dominant culture."

'Personal challenge'

"It's a personal challenge," said Castillo, who wears war paint on his face when he races. "I'm strongly opposed to (the nickname). I've been fighting it for the past two years. It's very big on my list."

This past summer, Castillo had an opportunity to take the fight to a national audience.

Working with a Native American running club called "Wings," Castillo appeared on a national television show called "In the Mix," broadcast on the Public Broadcasting System (PBS). On the show, Castillo was given an opportunity to express his views regarding the Adams State nickname as well as other nicknames that Native Americans find offensive. He also had the opportunity to speak at running clinics.

"I think the show turned a lot of heads at Adams State," said Castillo, who is majoring in exercise physiology. "I think things are starting to turn, people are starting to learn about the issue. I'm optimistic."

While the nickname issue burns strongly in Castillo's heart, it does not consume him. He knows that the biggest contribution he can make is to continue to do the things he has been doing.

"Phillip has developed a posture of being a leader," said Vigil. "He offers so many things in terms of leadership. The biggest thing is that he leads by his lifestyle. He's very articulate, and he always speaks from the heart."

Role model

That's something that has come

Leading the pack is a more familiar position for Adams State College runner Phillip Castillo (far right), who in just his first season of NCAA competition won last year's Division II men's cross country title. Castillo also finished second in the 5,000-meter run at the indoor track meet and placed fourth in the 5,000-meter run at the outdoor meet.

naturally to Castillo.

"I've been a role model to children on the reservation since my senior year in high school," said Castillo, who was a four-time New Mexico high-school state champion in cross country and track. "I did a lot of speaking. I take great satisfaction in giving young people a sense of direction. I've had a lot of success, and I want to share it."

For Castillo, that included getting his degree and getting into coaching—on the reservation, of course.

"When I speak, I always mention that I will not abandon my people," Castillo said. "I will go back, that's one of my goals. I plan to stay on the reservation and help people."

For now, though, Castillo has other challenges, like helping Adams State repeat as national champions.

"I'm looking to stay on top," he said. "I don't feel any pressure to stay on top, and I'm not putting pressure to be national champion again. I simply want to stay as consistent as possible. The big challenge for me is to do that and help Adams State. That's my challenge."

It's one Phillip Castillo is more than likely to meet.

High-mileage offense

It happened 45 years ago, but the 910 yards gained in a game by Hanover College against Franklin College in 1948 still ranks as the highest single-game offensive effort in Division II. Below is how that effort ranks against the top single-game totals in all divisions.

I-A 1,021 yards

Houston vs. Southern Methodist, 1989

II 910 yards

Hanover vs. Franklin, 1948

I-AA 876 yards

Weber St. vs. Idaho State, 1991

III 761 yards

Long Island - C.W. Post vs. Alfred, 1992

■ Administrative Review Panel actions

The following is a report of actions by the NCAA Administrative Review Panel, which was created by the membership at the 1993 NCAA Convention in Dallas.

The panel was created to consider appeals—based on special circumstances—of actions by NCAA committees (other than the Eligibility Committee or Committee on Infractions) or the NCAA staff regarding the application of NCAA legislation.

This report contains actions taken by the panel from April through July, 1993. The panel's actions were reviewed by the NCAA Council at its August meeting.

Another report—covering actions of the panel from January through March—appeared in the August 18 issue of The NCAA News. Those actions also were reviewed by the Council.

Future reports of Administrative Review Panel actions will appear following review of those actions by the Council.

Cases are listed in the order in which they were assigned a case number by the panel. Some cases assigned a case number were not acted upon by the panel, and therefore are not included in the report.

ACTIONS OF THE NCAA ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW PANEL (April through July, 1993)
Case No.	Sport and division	Citation	Special circumstances	Application of legislation	Request of institution	Action taken
17.	Football (I)	B 14.01.1 and 14.1.8.2	The student-athlete (SA) was not recruited by an institution and has not participated in intercollegiate competition. The SA graduated from another four-year institution in December 1992 and has enrolled in graduate school at the applicant institution. The SA did not continue at the first institution after receiving a bachelor of science degree because the institution did not have a sports administration graduate program.	A graduate student (with eligibility remaining within the five-year rule) is eligible to participate in intercollegiate athletics, provided the SA remains at the institution from which the SA's baccalaureate degree was earned.	Permit the SA to participate in football competition as a graduate student while the SA has eligibility remaining under the NCAA five-year rule.	Denied.
24.	Men's basketball (II)	B 14.6.5.1 and 14.6.5.3.8	The SA transferred to a Division I institution after the SA's freshman year at a Division II institution and satisfied the one-year residence requirement. The SA practiced for one year and a few days of the following season. After establishing eligibility for competition but before the institution's first contest, the SA was injured in an automobile accident. The SA elected to return to the first institution in the spring of 1993 and competed in three subvarsity contests. The SA does not qualify for a transfer waiver.	A four-year college transfer student remains ineligible for varsity competition until the SA completes one full academic year in residence (two full semesters or three full quarters) at the certifying institution unless the SA qualifies for a transfer exception. The SA remains eligible for subvarsity competition in the interim.	Permit the SA to compete on the varsity level during the entire 1993-94 season.	Denied.
26.	Football (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA was diagnosed with a learning disability in high school. Due to this disability, the SA was advised by professional counselors with a state rehabilitation commission to attend a small collegiate institution near the SA's hometown and to concentrate exclusively on academics. Financial assistance would be provided to the SA only if these conditions were fulfilled. The SA satisfactorily completed two years at a local two-year college and convinced counselors that the SA could succeed academically at a major university and also participate in football. The commission agreed to continue financing the SA's education as long as the SA passed 12 hours each semester with a minimum grade-point average of 2.000 (4.000 scale). The SA then enrolled at a Division I institution in the fall of 1990 and participated in varsity football practice for the 1990 and 1991 seasons and competed in the 1992 season.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either SA or the institution.	A two-year extension of eligibility for the SA to compensate for the two years during which the SA attended the two-year college and did not participate in intercollegiate athletics. The institution believes this extension is warranted in order to avoid penalizing the SA for the SA's disability and for following the professional advice given to the SA in 1988.	Denied.
29.	Men's basketball (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA initially enrolled at a two-year college in the fall of 1989. The SA attended the two-year college and participated in basketball for two years before enrolling at a Division I institution in September 1991. The SA elected not to participate in basketball during the 1991-92 academic year in order to concentrate on academics. The SA was a member of the basketball team during the 1992-93 academic year; however, the SA's knee was severely injured in the first five minutes of the first game of the season. This injury prevented the SA from competing the entire 1992-93 season. The SA did continue to attend classes while rehabilitating the injured knee. The SA also suffered the loss of two close family members during the two-week period before the SA's injury.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	One-year extension of the five-year rule so that the SA may regain the year of eligibility the SA lost as a result of the injury. If granted, the SA will have a maximum of two years eligibility. If denied, the SA's eligibility under the five-year rule will expire in September 1994.	Denied.
48.	Football (II)	B 14.2.2 and 30.6.1	The SA was unable to compete in the 1992-93 academic year due to an injury. The five-year/10-semester rule precludes the SA, who currently is in the 10th semester of full-time enrollment, from participating in a second season of football. The SA could have competed in football next fall if the SA either had not enrolled or had enrolled part-time during the spring of 1993. However, these options were not feasible for the SA because the SA's Pell Grant would have been canceled if the SA was a part-time student and the SA would have had to begin repaying the Pell Grant if the SA did not attend school.	A waiver of the 10-semester rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution or to continue enrollment on a full-time basis for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	A one-semester extension of the 10-semester rule to allow the SA to compete in the SA's second season of competition.	Denied.
50.	Soccer (II)	B 14.5.2.5 and 14.2.5.3.3	The SA was injured during the summer of 1991 while participating in a contest in the SA's hometown. During the fall semester of 1991, the SA participated in limited competition in the institution's 11th and 13th contests (of a 21-contest season) to determine whether the SA's injury had healed to the point that the SA would be able to participate. While participating in the 13th contest of the season, the SA was injured again and was unable to participate in the remainder of the season. Inasmuch as the SA's participation in the 13th contest was subsequent to the first half of the institution's playing season, the SA is not eligible for a hardship waiver.	A SA who suffers an injury in the first half of the traditional season attempts to return to competition during the second half of the traditional season, and then is unable to participate further as a result of aggravating the original injury, does not qualify for the hardship waiver.	Waive the normal application of the hardship-waiver rule in the SA's situation, inasmuch as the coach and the SA were unaware that the SA would be ineligible for a hardship waiver if the SA is reinjured in the second half of the traditional playing season.	Denied.
52.	Football (I)	B 14.6.5.1	The SA was a "redshirt" in the 1991-92 academic year and competed at the first institution in the fall of 1992. The SA withdrew from the first institution to attend the applicant institution due to the effects of oral and physical abuse by the head coach at the first institution. The SA endured additional distress due to the SA's participation in the presentation of evidence that led to the head coach being fired. None of the available transfer-waiver provisions would apply to matters related to the behavior of coaches.	A transfer student from a four-year institution shall not be eligible for intercollegiate competition at a Division I, Division II or Division III institution until the student has fulfilled a residence requirement of one full academic year at the certifying institution.	Waive the normal application of the transfer-residence requirement in the SA's situation due to the unusual circumstances of the SA's transfer.	Granted.
56.	Football (I-AA)	B 14.2.4.1	The SA was injured during the first game of the 1990 season at a two-year college. The SA participated in one full season at the two-year college and two full seasons at the applicant institution. The SA was misinformed by the coaching staff at the two-year college and a former coach at the applicant institution that the SA would be eligible for a hardship waiver for the SA's participation in one contest during the 1990 season and, thus, still would have three years of competition at an NCAA institution.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule in this SA's situation, inasmuch as the SA was misinformed by two-year college officials that the SA had three seasons of competition at an NCAA institution, which the SA relied on to the SA's detriment.	Granted.
59.	Crew (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA did not compete in athletics before the spring of 1992. The SA dropped out of school due to the illness of the SA's father and to help the family business. Crew is not an NCAA-recognized sport, but the applicant institution received a waiver in 1983 to use men's and women's crew to meet the NCAA's minimum-sports requirement. As a result, the institution was required to apply NCAA eligibility rules in the sport of crew.	Waivers of the five-year rule may be granted only when a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons that are unrelated to athletics or personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	An exception to the five-year rule in this SA's situation to permit the SA to participate in two more seasons of competition.	Denied.

60.	Field hockey (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA's admission to the applicant institution in the fall of 1988 was repealed, which required the SA to attend a two-year college for one year before being readmitted. The SA was injured in 1989 and did not compete during that season. The SA has competed in three seasons since that time, and the SA's eligibility under the NCAA five-year rule expires in September 1993. The SA was misinformed that the SA had four seasons of eligibility remaining because the coaches failed to note that the SA had attended a two-year college for one year.	Waivers of the five-year rule may be granted only when a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons that are unrelated to athletics or personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	An exception to the five-year rule to permit the SA to participate in a fourth season of competition.	Denied.
61.	Ice hockey (I)	B 15.5.1.2.1	The SA was recruited by the applicant institution and participated during the 1992-93 academic year. The SA was not considered a counter for the 1992-93 academic year, inasmuch as the SA received only need-based aid. With the adoption of 1993 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 31, the SA will have to count in the institution's maximum-award limitations during the 1993-94 academic year.	In Division I football, basketball or ice hockey, a SA who was recruited by the awarding institution and who received institutional financial aid granted without regard in any degree to athletics ability does not have to count until the SA engages in varsity intercollegiate competition in those sports.	Exempt the SA from counting, inasmuch as the recruitment of the SA was limited and the institution would have made every effort not to engage in any form of recruitment had it anticipated the rule change.	Denied.
63.	Baseball, ice hockey, (I)	B 15.5.7.3	The SA participated in ice hockey and baseball during the 1991-92 and 1992-93 academic years as a counter in the sport of baseball. If the SA participates in ice hockey and baseball during the 1993-94 academic year, the SA will become a counter in the sport of ice hockey. The SA will be unable to participate in the sport of ice hockey if the SA is required to be considered a counter in ice hockey, inasmuch as the ice hockey coach has committed all ice hockey scholarships for the 1993-94 academic year.	Effective August 1, 1993, a counter who practices or competes in men's ice hockey and one or more other sports (other than football and basketball) shall be counted in men's ice hockey.	Exempt the SA from counting in the sport of ice hockey, and permit the SA to continue as a counter in the sport of baseball.	Denied.
65.	Men's basketball (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA enrolled full-time at the first institution during the fall of 1988. The SA completed the 1988-89 and 1989-90 academic years at the institution and competed both years in the sport of men's basketball. The SA then transferred to the applicant institution in the fall of 1990. The SA did not compete at the institution during the 1990-91 academic year, satisfying the one-year residence requirement. During the 1991-92 academic year, the SA competed in men's basketball. However, in April 1992, the SA was injured. Further, in September 1992, the SA suffered the same injury. As a result of these injuries, the SA was unable to compete during the 1992-93 academic year, which was to be the SA's final season. The SA's five-year clock will expire in September 1993.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	Extend the SA's five-year clock, inasmuch as: (1) the SA's injuries were beyond the SA's and the institution's control, and (2) the institution believes that despite the fact that the injury interrupted only the SA's athletics career rather than the SA's academic career (the SA was able to attend the institution during the 1992-93 academic year), an exception shall be granted.	Denied.
66.	Football (I-AA)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA enrolled at a two-year college in the fall of 1988. Before the SA's attendance at the two-year college, the SA apparently was misinformed by the high school's guidance counselor and football coach that the SA's attendance at the two-year college would not be counted against the SA's attendance at a four-year university. Personnel at the two-year college gave the SA the same erroneous information. Accordingly, the SA was under the impression that after the SA transferred from the two-year college, the SA still would have five years to attend and play football at a four-year institution. The SA subsequently transferred to the applicant institution in the spring of 1989 as a nonqualifier (the SA's high-school core grade-point average and ACT scores were below NCAA requirements). The SA completed the 1989-90 and 1990-91 academic years at the institution but was academically ineligible to compete. During the 1991-92 and 1992-93 academic years, the SA competed in football. The SA's five-year clock will expire in September 1993.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	Extend the SA's five-year clock by an additional semester. The institution states that the SA should not be penalized for relying on the erroneous information received from the SA's high-school guidance counselor, coach and personnel from the two-year college.	Denied.
70.	Men's basketball (I)	B 13.02.9 and 14.02.6, 14.8.4.2	The SA, while a junior in high school, received a letter from the men's basketball coach at the applicant institution congratulating the SA for being recognized by a newspaper. During the SA's senior year in high school, the SA sustained a back injury and was not recruited further by any collegiate institution. The SA enrolled at the applicant institution because the SA's father is a professor there and the SA would be eligible for his father's health and automobile insurance coverage. While enrolled at the applicant institution, to improve the SA's basketball skills, the SA participated with former SAs on an AAU basketball team that played contests against two- and four-year college teams. The SA now is interested in transferring to a Division II institution where the SA would like to be immediately eligible for four years of competition.	A SA is defined as a student whose enrollment was solicited by a member of the athletics staff or other representative of athletics interests with a view toward the student's ultimate participation in the intercollegiate athletics program. Recruitment by staff members or athletics representatives that causes a PSA to become a recruited prospective student-athlete (PSA) at that institution includes forwarding correspondence to a prospect, other than a generic letter providing or requesting general information. Because the head basketball coach at the applicant institution forwarded a nongeneric letter to the prospect during the prospect's junior year in high school and the prospect enrolled at the same institution, the prospect is considered a SA and, thus, would be subject to the outside competition regulation and the definition of intercollegiate competition.	Waive the definition of a SA in this situation, inasmuch as the SA's enrollment at the applicant institution was not based on any recruitment that may have occurred during the SA's junior year in high school but was based on the fact that the SA's father was an employee at the institution and the SA enrolled at the institution so that the SA could receive his father's insurance benefits.	Granted.
72.	Rifle (I)	B 13.12.2.4	The institution's rifle coach's home is located 70 miles from the institution, and the coach works part-time for a sports club (YMCA), which is four miles from the coach's home. The prospects who participate in this club reside outside a 50-mile radius of the applicant institution.	An institution's coach may be involved in coaching activities in the same sport for a local sports club located in the institution's home community, provided all prospects participating in said activities are legal residents of the area (within a 50-mile radius of the institution).	Extend the 50-mile radius in this situation, inasmuch as the institution does not believe the membership intended to prohibit this type of arrangement.	Denied.
73.	Football (III)	B 14.2.4.1	The SA participated in two junior varsity contests during the SA's initial academic year in residence at the applicant institution. The SA was unable to complete the 1989-90 academic year because the SA was removed from the football program for disciplinary reasons, although the SA later was exonerated.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule in the SA's situation, inasmuch as the institution questions whether practice for the season and competition in two contests of a five-game junior varsity schedule constitutes a season of competition.	Denied.
74.	Football (I)	B 14.6.5.1	The SA was recruited by the first institution with the understanding that he would receive an athletics scholarship subsequent to the SA's first academic year of enrollment. Before the conclusion of his freshman year, the head football coach at the institution resigned. Subsequently, the SA was informed that an athletics scholarship for the following academic year could not be guaranteed. During the spring 1993, the SA transferred to the applicant institution. The SA requests that the one-year transfer residence requirement be waived and the SA's eligibility to participate at the applicant institution be effective beginning with the 1993-94 season.	A transfer student from a four-year institution shall not be eligible for intercollegiate competition at a Division I, II or III institution until the student has fulfilled a residence requirement of one full academic year (two full semesters or three full quarters) at the certifying institution. Further, inasmuch as it appears that the SA does not qualify for any of the four-year college transfer exceptions, the SA would be subject to a one-year residence requirement at the applicant institution before being eligible to compete.	Waive the normal application of the transfer-residence requirement in the SA's situation, inasmuch as the SA was given false and misleading information by the first institution regarding future financial aid.	Denied.

75.	Football (I)	B 14.2.1, 15.01.5.4, 15.5.1.4.3 and 30.6.1	The SA was diagnosed with ulcerative colitis in 1986 while in high school. At that time, the SA was able to play football because the disease was in remission. The SA enrolled full-time at the applicant institution in the fall of 1987 and participated in intercollegiate competition. In June 1988, the SA was hospitalized briefly when the disease reappeared. The SA received medical clearance to play during the 1988-89 season but after six contests, was hospitalized again in October. The SA was discharged in November, was cleared for participation in December 1988 in the Peach Bowl and participated in 1989 spring practice. The SA practiced and competed during the 1989-90 academic year but was rehospitalized in June. The SA did not practice or compete during the 1990-91 academic year due to the disease. The SA initially enrolled for the 1991 fall semester but withdrew December 6. The SA was hospitalized through February 1992, which prevented the SA from attending the 1992 spring semester. The SA enrolled again for the 1992-93 academic year but did not practice or compete because the SA's weight had dropped to 90 pounds and the SA's five-year period of eligibility had expired. Because it appeared that the SA would not be able to compete again, the institution did not include the SA as a counter.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	(1) Grant an extension of the SA's five-year period of eligibility through the 1993-94 academic year. The institution could have asked the eligibility staff for (and probably would have received) an extension of eligibility that would have permitted the SA to compete during the 1992-93 season but did not do so because of the SA's physical condition at that time. The SA's circumstances have changed and the institution requests a seventh year. (2) If the extension request is granted, permit the SA to receive institutional aid. (3) If the extension and first financial aid request are granted, exempt the SA from counting, inasmuch as the football program would exceed the limit of counters.	Granted.
76.	Women's volleyball (I)	B 14.2.1, 14.2.4.1 and 30.6.1	A nonrecruited SA was asked by the applicant institution's volleyball coach in the winter of 1989 to try out for the team. The tryout took place during the spring 1989 quarter when the SA participated in five outside tournaments characterized as "friendship tourneys." These tournaments were scheduled by the former coach to serve as the nontraditional season; competitors were nonconference schools and two-year colleges. Events were not scored, were not listed on the official schedule and did not require formal contracts. The institutional athletics administrators were unaware that the coach had scheduled the events. The NCAA legislative services staff reviewed this matter and concluded that the events met the definition of intercollegiate competition and, as a result, the SA used a season of competition. The SA had signed the NCAA Student-Athlete Statement but was not advised that by participating in the Friendship Tourneys the SA would use a season of competition.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Grant the SA a season of competition and one-quarter extension of the five-year rule so that the SA may participate as a graduate student during fall 1993 season.	Denied.
77.	Football (I)	B 14.6.4.1.1	The SA enrolled full-time at a two-year college during the fall of 1990 and competed in the sport of football. During the 1990 fall term, the SA dropped to part-time status and completed less than 12 credit hours. The SA completed the 1990-91 and 1991-92 academic years, and the 1992 fall term, at two different two-year colleges, and then transferred in the spring of 1993 to the applicant institution with 60 transferable degree credits and a grade-point average of 2.890.	According to the two-year college transfer requirement for a qualifier, the SA is responsible for an average of at least 12 semester hours of transferable degree credit for each academic term of attendance at the two-year colleges, which would equate to at least 68 semester hours of transferable degree credit in this SA's situation.	Exempt the SA's spring term of 1990 from the average-of-12-semester-hours requirement of the two-year college transfer rule, inasmuch as the SA would have been able to satisfy the requirement if not for the SA's family's extreme hardship.	Denied.
78.	Men's basketball (n/a)	B 17.23.1.2 and 17.23.2	The Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Association (MIBA) is the organizing body of the National Invitation Tournament (NIT). The NIT accepted an invitation to send an all-star team to participate in the 1993 Foot Locker Intercontinental Cup (FLIC), which is an international basketball tournament that involves the national teams of Canada, Germany, Holland, Italy, Mexico and Puerto Rico. The tournament initially was to take place in two cities in Italy. Subsequently, however, because of the high cost of travel expenses, the organizers decided to separate the tournament into two sections; one to be held in Puerto Rico and the other in Italy. At the time MIBA was informed that its first competition would be held in Puerto Rico, the organizers were unaware that competition by an American team in Puerto Rico would be prohibited by NCAA rules.	A tour of a U.S. commonwealth (e.g., Puerto Rico) or a U.S. territory (e.g., Virgin Islands) is not considered a foreign tour. Further, an outside team that includes SAs from more than one member institution may participate in international competition in any sport on a foreign tour. Thus, the NIT all-star team comprising SAs from more than one member institution in the sport of basketball would be permitted to participate in the FLIC; however, if any competition within the tournament occurs within the U.S. commonwealth or U.S. territory, the tournament would not be considered a foreign tour.	A waiver of the foreign-tour requirement to enable the NIT all-star team to participate in the FLIC basketball tournament scheduled May 28-30, 1993, in Puerto Rico. MIBA officials note that the granting of the relief requested would be minimal and not contrary to the spirit and intent of existing NCAA legislation. All parties involved in the issue have acted in good faith with no intention to evade NCAA rules, and the facts in the case merit the flexibility in the application of NCAA legislation.	Granted.
79.	Men's swimming	B 14.2.5	The SA competed in six dates of competition of an 18-dates-of-competition season, which equates to 33 percent of the institution's completed events. Thereafter, the SA sustained a broken neck in an automobile accident. Due to the injury, the SA was unable to practice or compete for the remainder of the season.	A hardship waiver may be granted if the injury or illness occurs when the SA has not participated in more than two events or 20 percent (whichever number is greater) of the institution's completed events.	Waive the 20 percent requirement of the hardship waiver rule in this SA's situation.	Denied.
81.	Women's basketball (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	The SA, who was a qualifier, attended two two-year colleges during the SA's first two years. The SA transferred to the applicant institution in the fall of 1990. After practicing with the team for 1½ weeks, the SA suffered a head injury and was unable to compete for two months due to memory loss. Also at that time, the SA developed an irregular heartbeat. The SA underwent comprehensive medical testing from November 1990 through March 1991, during which time the SA's physicians would not permit any participation in competition. The SA did attend the institution full-time during the 1990-91 academic year. During the ninth contest of the 1991-92 season, the SA sustained another injury that prevented the SA from returning for the remainder of the season. The SA competed during the 1992-93 season, which was the SA's fifth year of enrollment.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	An exception to the five-year/10-semester rule and an additional year of eligibility to allow the SA to compete in the 1993-94 season.	Denied.
82.	Track (II)	B 13.12.1	The member institution is located in a community where the local high school does not have practice facilities for its track team. Currently, for the high-school track team to utilize the institution's facilities, its workouts must be conducted after 5 p.m. when the institution's teams have completed their workouts. The institution indicates that it is difficult for the high school to practice after 5 p.m. due to the lack of transportation and the adverse weather conditions.	A member institution, on its campus or elsewhere, shall not conduct (or have conducted on its behalf) any physical activity (e.g., practice session or test/tryout) at which one or more prospects reveal, demonstrate or display their athletics abilities in any sport. Further, the use of a member institution's facilities for physical activities by a group that includes prospects shall not be considered a tryout, provided the institution's athletics department staff members or representatives of its athletics interests are not involved in the conduct, promotion or administration of the activity (other than activities incidental to supervising the use of the facilities) and are subject to all applicable NCAA recruiting legislation. It is permissible for the high school to utilize the institution's facilities but the high-school team may not practice at the same time as the institution's team.	Waive the normal application of the tryout rule, inasmuch as in this small-town situation, a recruiting advantage would not be gained, and requiring the high school to utilize the institution's facilities after its team has completed its practice would present an undue hardship on the high school's team.	Denied.

83.	Football (I)	B 17.7.6	The applicant institution originally scheduled its spring football practice March 27, 1993, through April 24, 1993. On April 23, before the team's 14th practice, a team member died in an incident unrelated to athletics participation. The coaching staff thereafter canceled team practice on April 23 and the intrasquad contest on April 24.	Fifteen postseason football practice sessions (including intrasquad scrimmages and the spring game) are permissible, provided they are conducted within a period of 29 consecutive calendar days.	An exception to the out-of-season practice limitations in the sport of football in order to conduct a team meeting due to the tragic circumstances that required the institution to alter its spring football practice schedule.	Granted.
85.	Football (III)	B 14.2.2 and 30.6.1	The SA initially enrolled at the first institution in September 1988. The SA was a member of the football team for the first semester and returned to school January 16, 1989, for the second semester. The SA's father became ill and the SA left the institution to be with him. The SA's father died January 30, 1989. The SA returned to the first institution during the second week in February and finished the school year. Due to missing three weeks of classes and traveling home to be with the SA's family on the weekends, the SA had difficulty with classes and finished the semester on academic probation. The SA elected not to participate in football during the 1989 fall semester and eventually transferred to the applicant institution for the 1990 spring semester. The SA subsequently participated in football for three years at the applicant institution.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	Waive the normal application of the 10-semester rule on the basis that the SA's father's illness and subsequent death caused the SA to miss an extraordinary amount of school, which led to the SA's decisions not to participate in athletics during the fall of 1989. Granting the SA's waiver for one semester would allow a final season of eligibility.	Denied.
86.	Baseball (II)	B 14.2.4.1	In the SA's third season of competition, the SA sustained an injury in an alumni game during the nontraditional season. The injury prevented the SA from participating in any further competition during the 1991-92 season. The SA participated during the 1992-93 season.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule and allow the SA another season of eligibility, inasmuch as the SA had a recurring shoulder problem and could not play baseball for the remainder of the 1991-92 season.	Denied.
87.	Wrestling (II)	B 14.2.4.1	The SA participated in two varsity contests during the SA's initial academic year at a two-year college and was injured in the second contest. The SA then transferred to another two-year college and did not participate. The SA returned to the original two-year college and competed in the 1991-92 wrestling season. Subsequent to the start of the 1992-93 wrestling season and after the SA competed, the institution requested a medical hardship waiver for the 1990-91 season. The hardship waiver request was denied because the injury did not occur before the first half of the season. The SA has used three seasons of competition; however, the SA has participated in only one full season.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule in the SA's situation, inasmuch as the institution feels that the first institution allowed the SA to participate in the fall of 1992 before the hardship appeal for the 1990-91 season was determined, thereby costing the SA a full year of competition.	Denied.
90.	Football (II)	B 14.2.4.1	The football staff intended to withhold the SA from participating in competition for the 1992 season but due to injuries to the first-string quarterback in the first game of the season and to the second-string quarterback in the second half of a game against an alumni team, the SA was forced to participate in one quarter and a portion of another.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule in this SA's situation so that the SA is not charged with a season of competition for the SA's limited amount of competition in an alumni game.	Denied.
91.	Skiing (I)	B 14.2.5	The SA competed in four meets of a 10-meet schedule before being advised that the SA was suffering from a condition caused by Epstein Barre virus (mononucleosis). The SA did not compete thereafter.	The injury or illness occurs when the SA has not participated in more than two events or 20 percent (whichever number is greater) of the institution's completed events in his or her sport for SAs in Divisions I and II. The SA has competed in 33 percent of the institution's completed events.	Waive the normal application of the hardship-waiver rule and permit the SA to be eligible for an additional season of competition.	Denied.
92.	Field hockey (I)	B 14.02.6, 14.2.1 and 14.2.4.1	The former head coach permitted four SAs to participate in an indoor tournament during the off-season. The four SAs were given erroneous information by the former coach regarding the effect of the competition and the number of years they would have to compete in field hockey.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule in the SAs' situations, inasmuch as the SAs were given false and misleading information by their former coach.	Granted.
93.	Men's ice hockey (I)	B 15.5.1.2.1 and 15.5.6.1	The SA will be a sophomore in the fall of 1993. The SA was recruited and is receiving institutional financial aid, as well as a Pell Grant for the 1992-93 academic year. This aid was granted without regard to athletics eligibility, and the SA will receive approximately the same amount for the 1993-94 academic year. Before the adoption of the new legislation limiting financial aid for Division I ice hockey, the institution's men's ice hockey program committed all of its allowable athletics scholarships for the 1993-94 academic year. Inasmuch as the SA is not one of the recipients of an athletics scholarship for the 1993-94 academic year, the SA would not be allowed to participate unless the SA declines the institutional financial aid. The SA cannot afford to attend college without the aid.	The financial aid limitation in Division I ice hockey places an annual limit of 18 on the value of financial aid awards to counters, and an annual limit of 30 on the total number of counters in that sport. Inasmuch as the SA is recruited and receiving institutional financial aid, the SA would be considered a counter once the SA participates in competition, which would cause the institution to exceed the annual limit of financial aid awards to counters.	An exception to allow the SA to participate for the team until completion of the SA's eligibility without the institutional financial aid the SA is receiving counting against the equivalency limits for men's ice hockey.	Denied.
94.	Football (III)	B 14.2.4.1	When the 1992 football season began there were 32 healthy, eligible football players. After competing in two scheduled football games, the football season was suspended, leaving eight football games not played. There were two reasons for the suspension of the football season: first, the lack of healthy players; second, the risk factor involved in continuing the season. Further, subsequent to the suspension of the 1992 football season in September, the sport of football was dropped at the applicant institution.	Any competition, regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule due to the unusual circumstances surrounding this situation, and not charge 28 football players with a season of competition.	Granted.
95.	Not indicated (II)	B 14.6.6	The SA initially enrolled at the applicant institution in the fall semester of the 1991-92 academic year. The SA subsequently was suspended at the conclusion of the fall term and elected to attend another institution in an effort to gain readmission to the applicant institution. The SA was forced to withdraw from the second institution after two terms for financial reasons. The SA returned home, enrolled at a two-year college and was not aware of the "4-2-4" transfer requirements. The SA has not participated in any intercollegiate competition since the SA's original enrollment at the applicant institution in the fall of 1991. The SA has used six semesters of attendance under the 10-semester rule; however, the SA has used only one season of competition. The SA, upon returning to the applicant institution, would be required to complete one calendar year of residence and, thus, would have only two semesters of eligibility remaining.	A student who transfers from a four-year college to a two-year college and then to the certifying institution shall complete one calendar year of residence at the certifying institution, unless: (1) the student has completed a minimum of 24 semester or 36 quarter hours at the two-year college after transfer from the four-year college most recently attended; (2) one calendar year has elapsed since the transfer from the four-year college, and (3) the student has graduated from the two-year college.	An exception in order to allow the SA to complete two seasons of competition during the SA's last four semesters of eligibility.	Denied.

97.	Ice hockey (I)	B 16.4.1	The SA suffered a knee injury and found it difficult to get up and down the stairs at the SA's apartment complex. The doctors felt this was unsafe and suggested the SA find different accommodations. For a two-month period the SA used his room-scholarship money for the new location, while still renting the original place of residence with three other students for the entire year. The institution does not believe it to be fair for the SA or the SA's roommates to be responsible for the additional room costs.	Medical expense benefits incidental to a SA's participation in intercollegiate athletics that may be financed by an institution are: athletics medical insurance; death and dismemberment insurance for travel connected with intercollegiate athletics competition and practice; drug-rehabilitation expense; counseling expenses related to the treatment of eating disorders; special individual expenses resulting from a permanent disability that precludes further athletics participation; glasses, contact lenses or protective eyewear; medical examinations at any time for enrolled SAs; expenses for medical treatment; surgical expenses; medication and physical therapy, and preseason dental examinations.	An exception that would allow the institution to provide for the SA's additional expense of two months rent, inasmuch as the institution believes that the expense is incidental to participation, does not create a competitive advantage and would not compromise the intent of the legislation. During its March 10, 1993, telephone conference, the NCAA Administrative Committee denied this request.	Denied.
98.	Football (I)	B 14.2.1	The SA was not recruited by the institution and did not participate in football for the 1988-89 and 1989-90 academic years. During the 1990-91 academic year, the SA wanted to participate in football but could not because the institution dropped its football program that year. The SA could have transferred and participated at another Division I institution in 1990-91; however, the SA was informed by other institutions that the SA would lose one-third of the earned semester hours upon transferring. The institution reinstated its football program for the 1991-92 academic year, and the SA participated in the 1991-92 and 1992-93 academic years.	The SA shall complete his or her seasons of participation within five calendar years from the beginning of the semester or quarter in which the SA first registered for a minimum full-time program of studies in a collegiate institution.	Waive the normal application of the five-year rule in the SA's situation, inasmuch as the SA did not transfer when the football program was dropped because the SA was progressing toward a degree and did not want to lose the semester hours earned toward the degree.	Granted.
99.	Men's tennis (I)	B 14.6.5.3.10	After the SA's sophomore year at the first institution, the SA transferred to a second institution in order to keep up with academics while receiving medical treatment in the SA's hometown. The SA was unaware that enrollment at the second institution would affect the SA's eligibility upon transferring to another Division I institution. The SA has two seasons of eligibility remaining; however, the SA's five-year period of eligibility would end after the 1994-95 academic year.	An SA who previously had transferred from one four-year institution to another would not be allowed to use the one-time transfer exception.	Waive the normal application of the one-time transfer exception and permit the SA to transfer and be immediately eligible to compete in the SA's remaining two seasons of eligibility.	Granted.
100.	Women's volleyball (I)	B 15.01.7 and 15.2.6	The SA is a divorced parent with a 4-year-old child and attending the applicant institution on a full athletics grant-in-aid after serving several years in the military. The SA is not eligible for military educational benefits, and monthly expenses exceed the SA's income by $172.	An institution shall not award financial aid to a SA that exceeds the cost of attendance that normally is incurred by students enrolled in a comparable program at that institution, or that exceeds the limitations established by the membership division of the institution the SA attends, whichever is less. Any financial aid permitted by a division that would result in the SA's total financial aid exceeding the value of tuition and fees, room and board, and required course-related books shall be based upon the demonstrated financial need of the individual SA. Further, the institution must include earnings from the SA's employment during the semester or term in determining whether his or her full grant-in-aid has been reached.	An exception to allow the SA to seek employment to supplement the SA's income and maintain the household. The SA would seek a campus job that would enable the SA to work approximately 10 hours per week at minimum wage and supplement the SA's monthly income by approximately $180.	Granted.
102.	Football (III)	B 14.2.5	The SA missed a preseason scrimmage in 1992 due to a hamstring pull and was hampered by the injury during the first contest of the season. The SA competed in the second and third contests of the season but was used sparingly. In the fourth contest, the SA sustained a knee injury after only 2½ minutes (10 plays).	In Division III, any competition in more than 33 percent of an institution's total number of contests in a season (which includes scrimmages) would preclude use of the hardship waiver.	Waive the normal application of the 33 percent limitation of the hardship waiver rule in this SA's situation.	Denied.
103.	Football (I)	B 14.6.4.2	The SA graduated from high school in the spring of 1991. Based on conversations with the NCAA national office, the SA enrolled on a part-time basis during the 1991-92 academic year at a two-year college in an attempt to correct deficiencies in the SA's high-school academic record so that the SA could meet the initial-eligibility requirements. The SA completed 22 hours of part-time work in the 1991-92 academic year and the summer of 1992. (The SA also took a three-hour English course for credit at the high school.) When the SA was advised by the NCAA in the fall of 1992 that the SA had failed to correct the high-school deficiencies, the SA enrolled full-time in a two-year college, which placed the SA in circumstances that would require three semesters of full-time attendance at the two-year college, rather than two, before establishing eligibility for financial aid, practice and competition at an NCAA institution. The SA enrolled at the two-year college on a full-time basis for the 1992-93 academic year.	A student who was not a qualifier is eligible for institutional financial aid, practice and competition the first academic year in residence only if the student has graduated from the two-year college, has completed satisfactorily a minimum of 48 semester or 72 quarter hours of transferable degree credit acceptable toward any baccalaureate degree program at the certifying institution and has attended a two-year college as a full-time student for at least three semesters or four quarters (excluding summer terms). In addition, such a student who first enrolled as a regular student in a two-year institution after August 1, 1988, must have a cumulative grade-point average of 2.000.	The institution requested that the SA be credited for a third semester of full-time attendance at the two-year college, inasmuch as the SA, in good faith, tried to fulfill the two-year college transfer requirement, as the SA understood the requirements based on information the SA received from the NCAA.	Granted.
104.	Women's diving (I)	B 14.5.4, 14.5.4.1 and 14.5.6	The SA enrolled at the applicant institution in the spring of 1991 and participated in diving. The SA earned only four credit hours due to an eating disorder, which eventually caused the SA to withdraw from the institution and return home in order to receive proper medical treatment. The SA would like to return to the institution and be eligible for competition beginning with the 1993-94 academic year. However, because the SA participated during the spring of 1991, the SA must meet the satisfactory-progress requirements, which requires a SA to have earned at least 12 credit hours before the fall of 1993, and at least 75 percent or nine of the credit hours must have been earned during the regular academic year.	Eligibility for competition for a SA who has utilized one season of eligibility and has entered an institution at the beginning of the second semester: The credit hours required under the satisfactory progress regulation may be prorated at 12 units per term of actual attendance during the initial, regular academic year of attendance. Further, for credit hours earned during the 1992-93 academic year and thereafter, the SA shall earn at least 75 percent of the semester or quarter hours required for satisfactory progress during the regular academic year.	Waive the normal application of the satisfactory-progress 75 percent rule and permit the SA to make up the eight hours lacking for satisfactory progress during the institution's 1993 summer term.	Granted.
105.	Women's golf (I)	B 15.2.7.1.1	The SA was the recipient of a private scholarship of $7,000 for the 1992-93 academic year. In order for the SA to receive this private aid (which was a greater amount than the partial athletics scholarship offered), the institution was required to withdraw the SA's athletics scholarship for the 1992-93 academic year. Thus, because the SA did not receive an athletics scholarship during the 1992-93 academic year, the institution is precluded from giving the SA summer tuition.	A SA shall not receive athletically related financial aid to attend the institution's summer term or summer school unless the SA receives such athletically related aid from the institution during the SA's previous academic year. Further, the aid may be awarded only in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid received by the SA during the SA's previous academic year. In addition, the NCAA legislative services staff has determined that there is no interpretive issue in which the staff would have the authority to grant relief from the application of the legislation.	An exception to the normal application of the summer financial aid regulation in the SA's situation, inasmuch as the institution would have given the SA athletically related aid during the 1992-93 academic year had the SA not received the private award; the athletics aid that the SA would have received in 1992-93 was not provided to anyone else, so no competitive advantage was gained, and the SA is a good student with a 3.490 cumulative grade-point average and is not attending summer school to regain athletics eligibility.	Granted.

106.	Football (II)	B 14.6.2 and 14.6.5.3.10	After two seasons of competition at a two-year college in England, the SA was recruited by a four-year institution to play football and signed a National Letter of Intent in December 1992. The head football coach and the faculty athletics representative at the institution both were under the impression that the SA was required to meet the two-year college transfer regulations in order to be immediately eligible upon transferring to the institution. Six to eight weeks into the semester, the faculty athletics representative discovered that the SA did not meet the two-year college transfer requirement for a partial qualifier. Thereafter, the institution, believing that a violation had been committed, self-reported the incident to the NCAA enforcement staff and withdrew the SA's athletically related financial aid. Unable to afford to remain at the institution, the SA withdrew from school. The coach at the applicant institution became aware of the SA's situation and contacted the first four-year institution to verify the SA's situation. The SA now would like to transfer to the applicant institution and be eligible to participate in the fall of 1993.	A SA who previously had transferred from one four-year institution to another would not be allowed to use the one-time transfer exception. Further, a transfer student is an individual who was officially registered and enrolled in a minimum, full-time program of studies in any quarter or semester of an academic year, as certified by the registrar or admissions office, provided the student was present at the institution on the opening day of classes. Thus, the SA's full-time enrollment at the first institution and attendance on the first day of classes for the spring term caused the SA to be considered a transfer student from that institution. In addition, a transfer student from a foreign collegiate institution (college, university or two-year college) would be considered a four-year college transfer. Thus, in this situation, the SA would be considered a "4-4-4" transfer student.	An exception in the SA's situation, inasmuch as had the SA not received misinformation from the head coach at the first institution, the SA could have been eligible immediately upon transferring to a Division II institution based on the one-time transfer exception.	Granted.
109.	Football (I)	B 14.6.4.1.1	The SA was a qualifier out of high school and initially enrolled at a two-year college. While in attendance, the SA's scholarship was canceled in mid-semester and, thus, the SA was unable to complete the first semester of college. At that time, the SA's father was unemployed and unable to pay for the SA's education.	A transfer student from a two-year college who was a qualifier is eligible for competition at a Division I institution the first academic year in residence only if the SA has spent at least two semesters or three quarters in residence at the two-year college, presented a minimum of 24 semester hours or 36 quarter hours of transferable degree credit with a cumulative minimum grade-point average of 2.000 and has completed satisfactorily an average of at least 12 semester or quarter hours of transferable degree credit acceptable toward any baccalaureate degree program at the certifying institution for each academic term of attendance at the two-year college, or graduated from the two-year college and completed satisfactorily a minimum of 48 semester or 72 quarter hours of transferable degree credit acceptable toward any baccalaureate degree program at the certifying institution.	An exception to the normal application of the two-year college transfer rule in the SA's situation, inasmuch as if the SA's scholarship was not canceled, the SA would have been able to meet the two-year college transfer regulations. The institution believes that the SA is being put at a disadvantage for future academic eligibility, and the SA ultimately could lose an additional season of competition due to the actions and counsel of the coaching staff at the two-year college.	Denied.
110.	Men's basketball (I)	B 14.2.1, 14.3.1.1 and 30.6.1	The SA enrolled full-time at the applicant institution during the fall of 1991. The SA completed the 1991-92 academic year in residence at the institution as a partial qualifier, inasmuch as the SA achieved a 17 on the ACT. The SA was unable to compete during the 1992-93 academic year due to a knee injury. With the adoption of 1993 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 69, the SA is retroactively considered a qualifier with four seasons of competition. However, inasmuch as the SA was unable to participate during the 1992-93 academic year due to an injury, the SA will be able to participate in only three seasons of competition, because the SA's five-year clock will expire in September 1993.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	Waive the normal application of the five-year rule so that the SA may have the same opportunity as other SAs who benefited from the adoption of Proposal No. 69 by playing in four (rather than three) seasons.	Denied.
117.	Baseball (III)	B 14.2.4.1	The SA has used four season of eligibility. The SA competed as a substitute (two at-bats) in one contest at the start of the season during the SA's freshman year. The SA will begin graduate studies in the fall of 1993 and wishes to compete, if relief is granted, for one additional season.	Any competition (including a scrimmage with outside competition), regardless of time, during a season in an intercollegiate sport shall be counted as a season of competition in that sport. This provision is applicable to intercollegiate athletics competition conducted by a two- or four-year collegiate institution at the varsity or subvarsity level.	Waive the normal application of the season-of-competition rule in the SA's situation and grant the SA an additional season of competition.	Denied.
118.	Baseball (II)	B 14.2.6 and 14.2.6.1.2	The SA meets the requirements for a season-of-competition waiver; however, the request for the waiver fell outside the 60-day application deadline. The institution is a member of both the NAIA and the NCAA, and the SA was eligible to compete under NCAA rules but not NAIA rules. The SA was certified as eligible to compete in the fall of 1992 and participated in four contests before recognizing NAIA requirements. The institution appealed to the NAIA to restore the SA's eligibility for the spring 1993 semester. The appeal was based on the fact that the SA's ineligibility under NAIA rules was due to a repeat course taken at a two-year college. This appeal was denied April 20, 1993. The institution then contacted the NCAA concerning the SA's status. It was at this time that the institution became aware of the season-of-competition waiver.	The institution must submit its request for a waiver not later than 60 days from the date on which the institution first has knowledge that the SA competed while ineligible.	An exception to the 60-day application deadline.	Granted.
123.	Football (I)	B 14.2.1 and 14.3.1.1	The SA scored a 17 on the ACT during the 1989-90 academic year and was considered a partial qualifier who was required to satisfy an academic year in residence during the 1990-91 academic year. Unaware that the SA would be granted an additional season of competition based on the adoption of 1993 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 69, the SA was "redshirted" during the 1991-92 academic year. The SA participated during the 1992-93 academic year and intends to compete during his remaining two seasons of eligibility, which will conclude with the 1994-95 academic year.	A prospective SA who achieved a score of 17 on or subsequent to October 26, 1989, would be considered a qualifier.	Waive the normal application of the five-year rule in the SA's situation, inasmuch as had the institution known that the SA would be granted a fourth season of competition with the adoption of Proposal No. 69, he would not have been "redshirted" during the 1991-92 academic year.	Denied.
125.	Men's cross country, men's track (I)	B 14.2.1 and 30.6.1	A foreign SA initially enrolled at the first institution for the 1988 fall semester. The SA's father had a heart bypass operation in November 1988 and was unable to work. Additionally, the SA's mother became immobile with an unknown illness in November 1988 and subsequently died May 19, 1989. The SA left school after the 1988 fall semester to return to England. The SA's main reason for returning was due to the deteriorating health of both parents, but the SA also needed to work to supplement family finances. Furthermore, the SA was not the sole family member who was able to care for the parents. The SA's father was able to care for himself by January 1990, and the SA accepted employment at this time. The SA's father returned to work in June 1991, and then the SA returned to the United States and prepared to return to school. The SA enrolled at the applicant institution in the spring of 1992.	A waiver of the five-year rule may be granted only when circumstances clearly supported by objective evidence establish that a SA is unable to attend a collegiate institution for reasons unrelated to athletics or to personal or family finances and that are beyond the control of either the SA or the institution.	Waive the normal application of the five-year rule in the SA's situation. Granting an extension for one year would allow the SA to complete one of two remaining seasons of eligibility; two years and eight months would allow the SA to complete the final two seasons of remaining eligibility.	Granted (one year).

Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 13.12.2.3-(b)	During prospect's visit, she participated in practice session (for 1½ hours) with the team.	Reprimanded coach.	Young woman is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process. Required institution to caution coach that future similar violations will result in more serious actions.
Self-reported	Men's golf	B 17.8.4.1.4-(c)	Student-athlete exceeded the permissible number of contests by one. Several matches were canceled because of inclement weather, and matches were hastily rescheduled and played.	Instituted formal process to assist coaches with counting and recording number of matches for each individual team member.	Required forfeiture of individual points earned by the young man in his final regular-season contest and adjusted team standings accordingly.

Council approves specific financial suggestions

The report of the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics contained a set of recommendations to institutions and conferences. The NCAA Council and Presidents Commission endorsed the recommendations, which do not require legislative approval:

1. Limitations on Travel Parties for Away-From-Home Contests. The NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics had suggested that limits be established on the numbers of student-athletes, coaches, administrative personnel, and band and spirit squad members permitted to travel to regular-season and postseason competitions at the expense of the athletics department or the institution. The committee noted that there is considerable support for limitations in this area. After thorough discussion, the committee concluded that setting limits by national NCAA legislation would add considerably to the regulatory burden in intercollegiate athletics and decided not to suggest a legislative proposal on this topic, except that related to student-athletes set forth in Recommendation No. 15 in the 1994 legislative proposals section (Limitations on Student-Athletes Traveling to Away-From-Home Contests; page 20; The NCAA News, June 30, 1993). Nonetheless, the committee recommends that member conferences and individual institutions be attentive to the high costs attendant to large travel parties and consider limitations in this area.

2. Elimination of Off-Campus Housing in Conjunction with "Away" Contests Within 120 Miles of Campus. In setting forth this concept, the special committee noted that at least limited waivers or exceptions probably would be needed. Although the membership generally reacted favorably to this proposal, the committee decided that it was not necessary to impose national NCAA legislation. It was noted that among those supporting the proposal, some had suggested 150 miles as a more appropriate limitation and others had suggested a travel-time restriction rather than a set number of miles. The special committee recommends that conferences and institutions consider adopting their own regulations or using a reasonable analysis in evaluating the wisdom of providing off-campus housing for student-athletes when "away" contests are relatively close to the home campus.

3. Limitations on Transportation for Weekday Competition. The special committee requested membership reaction to requiring that round-trip ground transportation be used for travel under 150 miles (one way) for weekly competition in all sports. Again, membership support for the concept was significant. However, after reviewing the potential technical difficulties in administering such a restriction and the possibilities of circumstances warranting relief, the committee decided not to recommend specific national NCAA legislation. The committee recommends that conferences adopt their own regulations that require use of ground transportation when competition is within 250 miles one way.

4. Limitation on Number of Officials. Basketball coaches had recommended that the special committee consider limiting basketball officials to two (rather than three) to save costs. The committee noted that money could be saved in this area but that it was not a topic that had been subject to national NCAA legislation before and that the quality of the game could be affected by a reduction in the number of officials. (Members of the committee noted that Division I conferences are not required to use three basketball officials but that most do as a result of basketball championship regulations that require officials to have worked in three-person crews during the regular season in order to receive championships consideration.) The committee recommends that institutions and conferences evaluate the possibility of using fewer officials in basketball (and perhaps other sports) if the integrity of the game is not affected and significant moneys can be saved.

5. Other Suggestions for Member Conferences and Institutions. The special committee circulated other suggestions to the membership for reaction. These involved areas in which the committee did not believe national NCAA legislation was appropriate, but in which it did think institutions could reduce costs. Each of the four concepts received substantial support from those responding to the committee's survey. The suggestions are as follows:

a. As deregulation occurs, presidents and athletics directors may wish to take advantage of reduced administrative burdens by reducing support services staff assigned to those responsibilities.

b. Identify a ratio that correlates the number of support-staff personnel to the number of student-athletes served (for example, one weight trainer for 100 student-athletes) in order to determine the appropriate limitations for these personnel.

c. Conferences and institutions may wish to explore on-campus housing opportunities for student-athletes during the month of January when institutions are between academic periods.

d. The escalating costs of designing, constructing and maintaining athletics facilities are significant problems that pose a threat to the financial security of many programs. It is recommended that institutions not build "athletics-only" facilities and that the association of physical plant administrators be used as a resource for comparative data and professional expertise in evaluating building projects.

Three Washington football players regain eligibility

The eligibility of two University of Washington football players, Wilson "Benjo" Bryant and Joe Kralik, was restored after they were withheld from the first football game of the 1993-94 season, in accordance with an NCAA eligibility ruling.

A third student-athlete, D'Marco Farr, whose eligibility was affected because he received employment income for one week while school was in session, was restored to eligibility upon repayment of the $20 received in excess of his full grant-in-aid at the university, under the ruling announced August 31.

The university had declared Bryant and Kralik ineligible after determining that they had received what the NCAA terms "extra benefits" during summer employment from representatives of the institution's athletics interests. Before becoming eligible for competition, both student-athletes were required to repay the value of the benefits received.

The Pacific-10 Conference determined that during the summers of 1991 and 1992, Bryant was provided pay for hours that exceeded the work hours he actually performed. Bryant mistakenly believed he was hired at a weekly wage rather than hourly.

Although Bryant performed a variety of tasks at the representative's office and received a salary of $400 a week, the rate of pay was based on a 40-hour work week. However, he worked only about 23 hours a week. In every other respect, he performed his work duties as expected.

This led the Pacific-10 to determine that Bryant received an overpayment of $1,445 for a total of nine weeks of employment.

The Pacific-10 also found that Kralik was paid wages that somewhat exceeded those that were paid to other summer employees working in similar capacities at a Seattle-area golf course. The conference found that Kralik was paid $1 an hour more than other part-time employees during the summers of 1988 and 1989, and that he was provided one free meal a day at the golf course during the summers of 1989, 1990 and 1991.

"Kralik received the meal in part because he was not permitted to participate in a bonus program available only to full-time employees who did receive such meals," said Janet M. Justus, NCAA director of eligibility. "In every other respect, Kralik worked full days, putting in the hours and attention to the job required." The total amount of benefits provided to Kralik amounted to $850.

"In reviewing this matter," Justus said, "all three student-athletes were candid and fully cooperative during the investigative process. The conference found no evidence that any of the young men intended to obtain benefits in violation of NCAA rules. Moreover, unlike an organized work 'scam,' in which student-athletes knowingly violate legislation and do not perform any work or perform little work, the work performed by these young men was bona fide and actually performed.

"These factors, however, could not completely overcome the fact that Bryant and Kralik received significant monetary benefits from representatives of the institution's athletics interests," Justus said. "It was determined, therefore, that missing one football contest along with immediate repayment were meaningful conditions for restoration of Bryant's and Kralik's eligibility."

Justus also noted that if the student-athletes had not been candid, or if evidence had been developed indicating an intent on the part of the student-athletes to circumvent NCAA rules, the student-athletes could have missed a more significant amount of competition before being allowed to compete.

The Pacific-10's full report on action taken in regard to Washington will be considered by the NCAA Committee on Infractions at a later date.

■ Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 11 August 11, 1993

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

NCAA staff interpretations

1. During its August 4-6 meeting, the Council approved a recommendation from the Legislative Review Committee to implement a "screening" system as it relates to the issuance of binding interpretations by the NCAA legislative services staff. A part of the recommendation was that the Interpretations Committee would develop a procedure for reviewing staff interpretations in order to determine those issues that should be reviewed by the entire committee.

The Interpretations Committee determined that issues deemed to be of sufficient significance, for which the assistant executive director for legislative services believes a binding interpretation should be publicized and issued, shall be reviewed regularly by the chair (or a designated committee member when the issue affects only a specific division). The chair (or the design-nated committee member) shall determine which interpretations should be reviewed by the entire committee for purposes of issuing an official interpretation that will be binding on the entire membership and published in The NCAA News.

The committee noted that member institutions and conferences may continue to request review of staff interpretations by the Interpretations Committee, pursuant to the procedures set forth in NCAA Constitution 5.4.1.2. Further, the committee chose to defer taking a position on 1994 Convention Proposal No. 1-3 (as set forth in the Initial Publication of Proposed Legislation) until such time as the "screening" system has had the opportunity to be implemented and evaluated.

Financial aid/renewals and nonrenewals

2. Renewals/nonrenewals of financial aid awarded on a "term-to-term" basis. If an institution that awards financial aid on a "term-to-term" basis provides a student-athlete financial aid for more than one term during an academic year, the renewal of the student-athlete's financial aid (which must occur on or before July 1 before the academic year in which it is to be effective) only for one term of the next academic year is considered a reduction of the student-athlete's financial aid if the amount of the renewal for the one term is less than the amount the student-athlete received during the previous academic year. Thus, the institution is obligated to inform the student-athlete that he or she, upon request, has the opportunity for a hearing before the institution's financial aid agency making the award. [References: NCAA Bylaws 15.3.3.1 (one-year limit), 15.3.5.1 (institutional obligation) and 15.3.5.1.1 (hearing opportunity required)]

Contacts/practice or competition site

3. Contacts at practice or competition site in individual sports. It is not permissible for an institutional staff member to make contact with a prospect once the prospect reports on call (at the direction of the prospect's coach or comparable authority) on the day or days before an individual competition. [Reference: 13.1.6.2(b) (practice or competition site)]

Athletically related income

4. Prior written approval from chief executive officer (Divisions I and II). The requirement that an institution's chief executive officer may provide general prior written approval for a coach to receive athletically related income that does not exceed $500 (or an institutionally deter-

1993 Column No. 32

Student-athlete's affirmation-of-eligibility statement

Division III

Division III institutions should note that on page 2 of the 1993-94 Student-Athlete's Affirmation of Eligibility (Form 93-4C) entitled "To Director of Athletics," it incorrectly indicates that the director of athletics must certify that he or she administered the drug-testing consent form (Form 93-3F) to each of the student-athletes listed on the form at the time the squad first reported for practice or prior to the Monday of the institution's fourth week of classes, whichever date occurred first. In accordance with NCAA Constitution 3.2.4.6.2, the form should read, "You (or your designee) administered the drug-testing consent (Form 93-3F) to each of the student-athletes listed on this form before each first competed in the sport listed on this form."

NCAA Bylaw 11.2.2

Athletically related income for coaches

Divisions I and II institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 11.2.2, contractual agreements, including letters of appointment, between a full-time or part-time coach and an institution must include the stipulation that a coach is required to receive annually prior written approval from the chief executive officer for all athletically related income and benefits from sources outside the institution. Sources of such income include, but are not limited to, the following: (1) income from annuities; (2) sports camps; (3) housing benefits, including preferential housing arrangements; (4) country club memberships; (5) complimentary ticket sales; (6) television and radio programs, and (7) endorsement or consultation contracts with athletics shoe, apparel or equipment manufacturers.

During its January 6, 1992, meeting, the NCAA Council determined that Bylaw 11.2.2 applies only to full-time coaches (head or assistant) and restricted-earnings coaches, but is not applicable to other coaching staff members (e.g., volunteer coaches). Subsequently, during its August 4-6, 1993, meeting, the Council extended this interpretation to require graduate assistant coaches (currently only in existence in Division I-A football) to obtain the necessary prior written approval.

In addition, on June 30, 1992, the NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed the application of Bylaw 11.2.2 and determined the following: (1) A coach who is receiving athletically related income and/or benefits from an outside organization must include the name of the organization, as well as the specific amount of the contract, when seeking specific approval from the chief executive officer for such income and/or benefits; (2) a coach who has a contractual agreement with an organization (e.g., apparel or shoe company) that includes separate contracts for various items (e.g., hats, T-shirts) must submit information on each contractual agreement to the chief executive officer for written approval of such income and/or benefits, and (3) the provisions of Bylaw 11.2.2 are not applicable to athletics staff members other than coaching staff members.

Further, pursuant to Bylaw 11.2.2.1, it is permissible for an institution's chief executive officer to grant general prior written approval for a coach to receive income that does not exceed an institutionally determined nominal amount (not to exceed $500) for speaking engagements or for participation in a camp or clinic.

Finally, during its August 11, 1993, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that the requirement that an institution's chief executive officer may provide general prior written approval for a coach to receive athletically related income that does not exceed $500 (or an institutionally determined amount not to exceed $500) is applicable on an event-by-event basis. For example, if a coach is to receive $400 for one speaking engagement and $400 for another speaking engagement, general prior written approval may be given. The committee noted, however, that a detailed accounting of all such income must be provided annually by the coach to the chief executive officer.

Heisman

A little bit of promotion and a lot of performance go into winning Heisman Trophy

Heisman deal."

University of Tennessee, Knoxville, sports information director Bud Ford says all that promotions paraphernalia helps establish a player as someone who may be worthy of consideration. That type of publicity, however, is more effective for institutions that receive no more national television exposure than a mention of game scores.

"It's to tie in a player with a school," Ford said. "They may become more effective for schools that may not receive a lot of publicity for their football program but that have a lot of talented players."

Keeping abreast

Once a player is established as a viable contender for the award, the publicity efforts become a matter of keeping voters abreast of a player's performances and his statistics, said Haywood Harris, associate athletics director for media relations at Tennessee.

"Once the horse race has been narrowed down to four or five people, you have to rely on the performances on the field," Harris said. "You've got to let (the voters) know in advance who you're talking about, but after that it is a matter of making sure they have the right information."

Steve Wieberg, a sportswriter at USA Today, understands the Heisman game. He said most of the promotional materials sent to him go largely ignored. But there are cases, he said, where the information is valuable—particularly when he hasn't heard of the player

"The vast majority of that, in my instance, I don't use," Wieberg said. "Where I think it's useful is for a more obscure player at a lower-echelon school."

Wieberg, too, admits that television plays a major role in the hyping of a player, but he believes that it has limitations. Because much of college football is broadcast regionally, many voters in one part of the country or another may not actually see much of a candidate. That is when the player's numbers become the deciding factor.

'Not scientific'

"You try to stay on top of the whole nation as best you can to be a conscientious voter and a good voter," Wieberg said in describing his method of preparing to vote. "I think in too many cases, it's not scientific. There are too many voters, and too many of them don't treat it seriously enough. There's no doubt that (television) plays a role. But it's not absolutely necessary."

Steve Richardson of The Dallas Morning News has his own "formula" for picking contenders. He is not a fan of promotional material and therefore relies on many factors, including the level of competition a candidate's team plays, how he performs in big games and whether or not his statistics reflect quality.

"I don't like these posters and stuff," Richardson said. "You get some of the most ridiculous things in the mail. The classier schools don't seem to do those things. Naturally, I don't really look at those things."

"I like to see a guy. If you don't see him, is he really that good? How is he getting all those yards? Is he getting them against quality teams? If a guy doesn't do something in games at the end of the season against big teams, then you may as well scratch him off the list."

Richardson also said he believes some voters have exhibited a class bias when it comes to voting. That is, senior-class candidates are more appealing and deserving than juniors, who are more worthy than sophomores and so on.

"A lot of people do that," he said. "I would never ever think of doing that. The (underclassman) could get hit by a train or something and never play again."

So who will win this year's Heisman Trophy?

It all depends on...

Revenue

Fund pays out $77.9 million

$10,499,993. Mailed August 13. Payments from this fund are provided to institutions sponsoring more than the 12 sports required for Division I membership.

■ Grants-in-aid fund. $21,000,649. Mailed August 27. This fund is based on the number of grants-in-aids awarded to student-athletes in 1992-93. Amounts are based on a formula that uses valuation points for each grant-in-aid or portion thereof awarded in sports in which the NCAA conducts championships competition.

■ Supplemental disbursement. $2,999,852. Mailed December 30. The NCAA Executive Committee reported $5.7 million in unallocated surplus from the 1991-92 budget at its December meeting. The committee agreed to transfer $1 million of that to the funded operating reserve and to place $1.228 million in the membership trust reserve. A total of $3 million was divided evenly between the grants-in-aid and sports-sponsorship funds of the revenue-distribution plan and returned to the membership.

Also, Division II received $2 million from the plan, half of which was divided equally among Division II institutions (except those that competed in one or more NAIA team championships). The other half was distributed to conference offices and independent institutions based on the number of games played over the six previous years in the Division II Men's Basketball Championship.

Trojans' coach denied reinstatement

A U.S. Supreme Court justice refused September 10 to order the University of Southern California to reinstate its former women's basketball coach while she pursues a sex-bias lawsuit over being paid less than the men's coach.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor turned down an emergency request for reinstatement by Marianne Stanley, according to The Associated Press. Stanley refused a $96,000-a-year contract after four years with the Trojans.

Stanley sued Southern California and athletics director Mike Garrett for $8 million, alleging discrimination and retaliation in contract negotiations.

U.S. District Judge John G. Davies in August rejected Stanley's bid to force the university to reinstate her as coach, ruling that she failed to show any evidence of sex discrimination. Davies added that the men's and women's coaches perform different duties.

The Federal judge's decision overturned a state judge's earlier order temporarily reinstating Stanley to the job.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals also refused to order Stanley reinstated, but her appeal of Davies' ruling is still before the appeals court. An argument session has been scheduled for November 1 in the San Francisco-based court.

Cheryl Miller, Southern California's career scorer and rebounder, was hired to replace Stanley.
