Commission seeks membership structure study

The NCAA Presidents Commission will sponsor a resolution at the NCAA Convention in January to launch a study of the NCAA membership structure.

The Commission took that action in its September 28-29 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, after a review of the current concerns regarding the structure. The primary emphasis in the discussion was on increasing the level of federation in the Association and on assuring that the issue is dealt with by the NCAA membership, rather than by outside entities.

In a special meeting held in conjunction with the Commission meeting, the Joint Policy Board—consisting of the four Commission officers and the NCAA Administrative Committee—developed a tentative process for such a study and recommended the resolution approach to the Commission.

That tentative process would call for establishment of a small leadership committee, which would issue an invitation to all NCAA members to suggest "parameters" for the study—the issues that need to be considered. After those are received and agreed upon, the membership would be invited to submit model structures that would address those issues.

The committee would select appropriate models for discussion at the 1995 Convention and then would submit a selection of models for vote at the 1996 Convention.

Members of the Commission noted that each division and sub-division had expressed some concerns regarding the membership structure and that the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association, in its recent meeting, had urged that

Council to review proposed legislation

A review of all legislation submitted for the 1994 NCAA Convention is the primary item on the agenda for the NCAA Council and the three division steering committees when they hold their fall meetings October 11-13 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Included in that review will be a report on legislative positions taken by the NCAA Presidents Commission in its September 28-29 meeting.

This meeting represents the Council's last chance to submit amendments-to-amendments or resolutions by the October 15 deadline.

Other major issues on the Council's agenda:

- An update on the development of a gender-equity source book by a subcommittee of the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force.

- A status report on the search for a new NCAA executive director.

- A report on the actions taken by the Presidents Commission, including its discussion of concerns regarding the membership structure and the Joint Policy Board's action in that regard (see story elsewhere on this page).

Steering committees

The Divisions II and III Steering Committees have items on their agendas of specific interest to those divisions.

Division II will review the study of academic performance of student-athletes in that division, approaches to cost containment at the Division II level and the possible development of an athletics certification program for Division II institutions.

Division III will review its survey regarding regional vs. national championships, possible revision of the Division III statement of philosophy, long-range planning for Division III and gender-equity approaches in that division.

Reports

The agendas include reports from the Commission decries recent football fighting

The NCAA Presidents Commission adopted a statement deploring the rash of fights during recent football games and announced several steps to try to assure proper standards of conduct in that sport.

In its September 28-29 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Commission said the current football season has provided "disturbing evidence of the disregard of sportsmanship and adherence to essential standards of competitive and personal conduct."

The Commission's statement (see text on page 15) specifically calls for:

- Every NCAA institution, conference and other appropriate group in the NCAA to take prompt action to prevent recurrence of the incidents.
- Every institutional chief executive officer to convene a meeting with the athletics director and the football coaching staff to discuss the standards of deportment expected by the university.

- The officers of every conference to instruct the football officials in that conference to take decisive, prompt and—when necessary—"severe" steps to enforce proper competitive behavior.

- The NCAA Football Rules Committee to review promptly the existing rules governing proper deportment to determine if those rules are effective and sufficiently severe.

- The American Football Coaches Association to advise the Commission and the NCAA regarding appropriate means of maintaining sportsmanship and high levels of proper competitive conduct.

The Commission sent its statement to the chief executive officer of every NCAA member institution.

The Commission also agreed to establish a subcommittee, to be chaired by President Eamon Kelly of Tulane University, to recommend to the Commission in its January meeting specific short-term actions that might be taken to address concerns regarding sportsmanship and proper conduct in intercollegiate athletics, including sports other than football.

In the past 15 months, the Commission twice has expressed concern regarding trash-talking, taunting and crowd behavior in men's basketball. It also has identified a broader look at integrity, sportsmanship and ethics in college athletics as a major topic for the NCAA between now and January 1996.

Executive director

Search committee reviews information

The search committee charged with recommending candidates for the position of NCAA executive director reviewed information about various candidates during its September 29 meeting.

The executive search firm supplied information on 10 to 15 candidates who were identified at the committee's September 13-14 meeting. At that time, NCAA President Joseph N. Crowley said that although it is "eminently desirable" to have the selection process completed by November, he declined to establish any deadlines.

The committee eventually will submit a set of finalists to the NCAA Executive Committee. The Executive Committee, Presidents Commission executive committee (or its designated representatives) and the national office management team are scheduled to interview the finalists.

The position became available when Executive Director Richard D. Schultz resigned May 11.

Certification

Peer-reviewer selection next primary topic

The development of a pool of peer reviewers is the next major task facing the Committee on Athletics Certification, which will meet October 7 in Dallas.

Peer reviewers are those individuals who will evaluate the self-study that is required of every Division I institution. Peer-review team members will include individuals who are involved, or have been involved, in intercollegiate athletics in some way. Also, in the first five-year cycle of the program, the committee hopes to have each peer-review team chaired by an institutional chief executive officer.

The first part of the actual process began in late September when the first orientation visits were made. A total of about 25 Division I institutions will receive orientation visits by the end of November.

All Division I members have received a package of certification materials, including the five-year certification schedule (which

Membership structure

Resolution to call for detailed study

The NCAA Presidents Commission will sponsor a resolution at the 1994 Convention that would require the Association to initiate a study of its membership structure.

A review of the Commission's meeting appears on page 1 of this issue.

The primary emphasis in the Commission's discussion was on increasing the amount of federation in the Association and on assuring that the issue is dealt with by the NCAA rather than an outside entity.

The Joint Policy Board met during the Commission's September 28-29 meeting and developed a tentative process for the study. The proposed timetable calls for models to be developed for discussion at the 1995 Convention and for a vote at the 1996 Convention.

Gender equity

Subcommittee collecting ideas for source book

Individuals who know of innovative gender-equity approaches are asked to contact Janet M. Justus at the national office to aid in the development of a source book designed to communicate ideas that will enhance gender equity and Title IX compliance.

A subcommittee of the NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force hopes to assemble a manual that would be distributed to the membership by next fall.

Regarding gender-equity legislation, the NCAA Council and NCAA Presidents Commission have sponsored a proposal for the 1994 Convention that would permit certain emerging women's sports to be counted for sports-sponsorship and revenue-distribution purposes.

For more detail on gender-equity issues, see the August 18, August 4 and June 2 issues of The NCAA News.

Division III CEO survey

Chief executive officers at Division III institutions recently were surveyed to determine their attitude toward regional championship competition, as opposed to national championships in that division.

A total of 223 CEOs responded to the survey, and of that number, 137 (61.4 percent) did not favor replacing any portion of the current national championships format in Division III.

Among the comments from the respondents were the following:

- "We need to lower the pressure to compete on a national level."
- "It is important for a Division III student-athlete to compete on a national level."
- "Regional championships are a good step toward cost reduction, greater visibility, maximum participation, and they underscore the Division III philosophy."
- "Keep the national championship as a goal to keep a student-athlete from attending a Division I or II school instead."
- "Stop treating us like second-class citizens!"
- "If a team wins a regional, it will want to play against another regional winner."

QUESTION 1

Do you favor replacing any portion of the current national-championships format in Division III (a national bracket of 16 teams that play for four consecutive weekends) with a regional-championships format (a championship that terminates at the regional, not national, level)?

Scholarships honor racers

The University of Alabama at Birmingham will honor the memories of NASCAR drivers and brothers Davey Allison and Clifford Allison with two football scholarships bearing their names.

The initial Davey Allison scholarship has been awarded to junior defensive lineman Walt Maddox and the first Clifford Allison scholarship was earned by junior offensive lineman Mike Trammell.

"The Allisons have reacted with great interest and they have given me the feeling that they view this as a positive thing for the memory of their sons," said Jim Hilyer, football coach at Alabama-Birmingham. "They have been very receptive and cooperative in the selection process and allowing us to present these awards."

Bobby Allison, the former race-car driver and father of the two honorees, said he and family members were touched by Alabama-Birmingham's gesture.

"At the very first mention of it, I thought it was a tremendous compliment to the Allison family," he said. "To be thought of by such a major university and have scholarships in their names is an honor I just can't describe in words."

Attendance record

Old Dominion University eclipsed the regular-season field hockey attendance record when 1,938 watched the Monarchs host the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

The previous best was 1,205, set October 25, 1992, when the University of Iowa hosted St. Louis University.

Old Dominion and North Carolina played to a 0-0 draw.

Lacrosse in Japan

A team consisting almost exclusively of United States lacrosse coaches traveled to Japan this summer to promote the sport in that country.

The group of 18 included 13 college coaches, two high-school coaches, two professionals representing the lacrosse equipment business and one graduated college player.

In the two-week program, held in Osaka and Tokyo, the U.S. contingent hosted clinics for aspiring Japanese players and competed in the Japan Lacrosse Association's International Friendship Games.

The U.S. team won the championship with a 17-9 victory over the all-Japan national team before 8,000 fans in Tokyo.

The college coaches on the team were Joe Alberici, State University College at Oneonta; Bill Bergan, Clarkson University; Bill Carter and Joe Matassa, Michigan State University; Kevin Colbeck, Wesley College; Rodd Kaufmann, Alfred University; Bill Hall, Cornell University; Rob O'Meara and Dan Whelan, Mount St. Mary's College (Maryland); John Roth and Mary Whipple, Hartwick College; Matt Thompson, Babson College, and John Tillman, Ithaca College.

Gentle giants

There are some giants roaming around the Purdue University campus. No need to worry, however; they are of the gentle variety.

Members of the Boilermakers' football team are participating for the second consecutive year this fall in the Gentle Giants program, which was started by former Purdue lineman Jeff Zgonina. Its goal is to provide tutors and mentors to local elementary school children who have special needs.

"I can't say enough about it," said Laurie Petersen-OrRico, an elementary special education teacher who helped coordinate the program. "I'm really looking forward to making it bigger."

Zgonina, who graduated from Purdue last December, said he was excited to see his idea being implemented.

"It was a great experience, something I was glad I did last year," he said. "It feels good to give something back to the community."

Mayoral coach

James Talley can tell you the route the local Spartanburg, South Carolina, government should take as well as the route a Wofford College receiver will run on any given play.

That is because Talley serves as mayor of Spartanburg and also is in his 11th year as part-time split-ends coach for the Terriers.

Wofford players are said to be confused as to how to address the mayor-coach.

Committee notices

Member institutions are invited to submit nominations to fill vacancies on NCAA committees. Nominations to fill the following vacancies must be submitted in writing to Fannie B. Vaughan, executive assistant, in the NCAA national office no later than October 18, 1993 (fax number 913/339-0035).

Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism: Replacement for Marilyn McNeil, California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, since her institution will be classified as Division I-AA effective September 1, 1994. Appointee must be a woman from Division II.

Men's and Women's Track and Field (representing men's track): Replacement for Irwin M. Cohen, Northeastern University, resigned from the committee. Appointee must be a Division I men's track representative, preferably from District 1 or 2.

Ex-Colorado player named academic member of year

Jim Hansen, former offensive tackle for the University of Colorado, Boulder, football team, has been named the 1992-93 CTE Academic All-America Team Member of the Year for all sports.

Hansen, who is beginning work as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University in England, was selected by a vote of the 1,600-member College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA).

Minority opportunities committee discusses role with Commission

The NCAA Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee further explored its relationship with the NCAA Presidents Commission during a recent committee meeting.

At its September 26-28 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the committee discussed various matters with the Presidents Commission Subcommittee on Minority Issues, including gender equity as it relates to minority enhancement.

Charles Whitcomb, chair of recreation/leisure studies and faculty athletics representative at San Jose State University and chair of the Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee, said he was encouraged by the subcommittee's interest and the exchange of ideas during the joint meeting.

"All participants were extremely involved in the discussions," Whitcomb said. "We feel we have established dialogue by which future issues can be addressed by both committees."

Other topics

The committee also discussed with the subcommittee the NCAA conference-grant program and other minority enhancement programs, the pilot diversity workshop that it is charged with organizing and developing, and recruitment efforts to increase the number of minorities on NCAA committees.

Whitcomb said the committee expressed its concern about the accountability measures that are currently in place with regard to the conference-grant program. Specifically, he said, the committee would recommend to the NCAA

Council that an additional element be added to the existing requirements of the program that would further ensure enhancement opportunities for ethnic minorities.

Also, Whitcomb said the committee is concerned about the lack of opportunities afforded through the program to ethnic minorities with regard to officiating.

Whitcomb said the committee is not interested in stifling the creativity that conferences have been granted through the program and the recommendation, he said, is not being forwarded with the goal of creating a set of new regulations. He added that the committee is interested in showcasing conferences that have demonstrated ef-

Looking back

5 years ago: The officers of the NCAA Presidents Commission decided October 24, 1988, to proceed with a financial aid proposal developed by President Peter Likins of Lehigh University. The Commission had agreed in its September meeting to sponsor the proposal, which had been supported by the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association. The NCAA Council, however, had recommended that the matter receive further study. (The NCAA News, October 31, 1988)

10 years ago: The final report of the Special Committee to Review Athletic Problems and Concerns in Higher Education was mailed to the membership in October 1983 and was reprinted in its entirety in the October 31 issue of The NCAA News. It presented the recommendations and commentary of that blue-ribbon panel regarding academic, governance and financial issues, as well as enforcement and recruiting. (The NCAA News, October 31, 1983)

20 years ago: The U.S. Senate voted October 3, 1973, to return Senate Bill 2365 to the Senate Commerce Committee, thus reflecting the Senate's reluctance to create federal control over amateur athletics. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

30 years ago: The NCAA Long Range Planning Committee recommended and the NCAA Council supported a reaffirmation of the Association's enforcement policy that "penalties should be broad if there is a basic institutional pattern of nondeservance, narrow if violations are isolated and institutional dereliction is not involved." ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

Fact file

According to a study of 2,116 U.S. associations, including 151 national associations, the minimum-to-maximum range of dues paid by members was $938 to $39,710 for the national groups. The NCAA's range is $225 to $1,800.

Gender equity fits in education context

By Michael F. Adams
CENTRE COLLEGE

Much attention recently has been given to the NCAA reform movement and issues related to gender equity. While few, if any, coed schools, including Centre College, could be said to be currently in total compliance, the objective is still desirable.

Adams

The most difficult part of the problem, like many problems, is definition. By gender equity, do we mean exact 50/50 ratios across the board? Do we mean equal opportunity? Or proportional-ity?

The NCAA Gender-Equity Task Force says that an athletics program can be considered "gender-equitable" when the male and female participants would gladly accept the program of the other. On the affirmative side, some take the position that until a sport using as many women as football uses men is created and sponsored by every college and university nationwide, gender equity cannot be said to exist.

On the other hand, there are coaches, mostly male, who argue that gender equity likely will kill the current national sports structure. They basically are making "separate-but-equal" arguments like we used to hear on the civil rights movement. Those opinions are just as wrong today in regard to gender equity as they were 40 years ago in regard to racial equity.

Of course, there is the whole matter of cost and survival. It will be expensive to achieve gender equity. Women now are attending colleges in percentages roughly equivalent to men and paying equal tuition. From a financial-equity standpoint, greater resources are going to have to be expended to benefit female competition across the board.

Why then should the NCAA be moving toward this increased focus on gender equity that so many of the coaches, especially Division I coaches, are questioning?

One reason is that if we in colleges and

Proposal out in favor of another

On behalf of the American Baseball Coaches Association, I would like to clarify a statement in an article that appeared in the September 20 issue of The NCAA News ("Second publication of proposals mailed").

The article states that the volunteer-coach proposal for baseball was withdrawn before the second publication, which is indeed true.

However, this was done with the express understanding of the proposal's 15 sponsors that their support would shift to Proposal No. 2-15, which seeks traveling and coaching privileges to away sites for volunteer coaches in all sports other than football and basketball. Implementation of that proposal would satisfy the same intent as the one for baseball coaches alone that was withdrawn.

□ Letter

This was not mentioned in the article, allowing readers, particularly baseball coaches (several of whom have contacted the ABCA national office), to infer that a proposal on their behalf was eliminated without reason.

The American Baseball Coaches Association has endorsed Proposal No. 2-15 and is urging voters at the 1994 NCAA Convention in San Antonio to do the same.

□ Opinions

Cutting coaches could boost equity

Thomas O'Brien, director for research
Horizon Institute for Policy Solutions

The Chronicle of Higher Education

"Recent statistics show that 93 percent of NCAA schools had deficits in their football programs. In Division I-A, the epitome of big 'successful' athletics programs, 45 percent of schools ran deficits.

"Why all the recent talk about cutting sports teams in order to establish gender equity? Why reduce scholarship opportunities for students at all when huge coaching staffs eat so much university money? For example, in 1990-91, the University of Virginia paid 10 assistant football coaches, most of whom each received salaries of $50,000 to $70,000. Even just one of these salaries could provide a wealth of new women's athletics scholarships. Cutting five assistant coaches could raise over $250,000 in new student scholarships.

"Colleges need to assert control over this huge 'win at any cost' enterprise and use the savings to provide equal opportunities for young women."

Robert Lipsyte, columnist

The New York Times

"Twenty years later, the gong Billie Jean King hit is still ringing, although the sound tends to be muffled by the supercolliders of sport, young men in leather and plastic armor running into each other. King Football is the basic barrier, socially, financially and psychologically, to women's getting an equal share in American sports.

"Nevertheless, there has been enormous progress, although not nearly enough. Just look at all the news about women in the sports pages.

"Women's soccer, beach volleyball and mountain biking were announced as events in the 1996 Atlanta Olympic Games. Soccer was approved as a permanent event, in response not only to its worldwide popularity but to a concerted effort by the Women's Soccer Foundation and other grass-roots organizations.

"Meanwhile, the boom in women's college soccer is at the heart of various Title IX lawsuits and the jostling for numerical gender equity."

Grades

Greg Hilley, tennis coach
University of Texas, Pan American

Discussing why student-athletes in so-called "country-club sports," such as golf, tennis and swimming, tend to do better academically:

"It's more than just the money. I feel that the reason those 'club-sport' athletes do better is because of the family support they receive.

"Usually, it takes support from the family for a boy or girl to play golf or tennis. The high schools pay for team sports equipment. But in tennis, for example, the players must buy their own racquets, shoes and equipment.

"I'm not denying that it does take a lot of money from the family to develop a tennis player. Kids start out at ages 8, 9, 10, taking lessons, playing at clubs, going to tournaments.

"If parents support you in a sport like tennis or golf, where you have to pay for it, sometimes through sacrifice, the parents usually support their children in other areas. Family support and interest make students do better academically. That's what so many teachers are yelling about. Teachers know it's tough to teach an unmotivated kid. It goes back to the family. If they support a student with an individual sport, they are likely to support their kids with books, magazines, newspapers and other aids to learning."

Graduation rates

Alexander W. Astin, director
Higher Education Research Institute
University of California, Los Angeles
The Chronicle of Higher Education

"It is unfortunate that the Student Right to Know Act was passed in its current form, but we need to realize that educational researchers and measurement specialists have been encouraging policy makers to use just such 'outcomes only' assessments for many years.

"Practically every school district in the country uses standardized tests to provide output measures, and the public is encouraged to believe that schools generating the highest (outcome) scores on statewide or district-wide tests are the 'best' while those with the lowest scores are the 'worst.'

"Such quality judgments are meaningless without 'input' data on the students when they first enroll. In fact, 'outcome' scores are probably telling us much more about the population recruited by the school than they are about the effectiveness of the school's academic program. The same mindless form of one-shot testing also characterizes the National Assessment of Education Progress and the testing now being proposed by the National Educational Goals Panel.

"It is a shame that educational researchers continue to support (and profit from) such simplistic and naive assessment practices and that we continue to encourage policy makers and 'consumers' to use the questionable results generated by them. The assessment community must produce and disseminate to policy makers and parents much better tools for evaluating the quality of our colleges and universities."

Coaching

George F. Killian, executive director
National Junior College Athletic Association
Athletic Management

"You can't berate kids anymore. You have to treat them like adults. They are inquisitive and come to college better prepared than ever before. They're not as gung-ho about athletics as before. The object for them is to get an education. They want to get a degree and get a job."

Eve Atkinson, athletics director
Lafayette College

Athletic Management

"The days of the 'X and O' coach are gone. Coaches have to be jacks-of-all-trades today. They have to be excellent recruiters and salespeople for the school. They have to stay up on the latest strategies and still be an academic adviser because they are being judged on the academic successes of their student-athletes.

"They also have to make their players realize their roles off the field and court...and they have to fund-raise. Coaching used to be a nine-month-a-year job. Now, it's 12 months."

Need-based financial aid explored

Committee to look at model's potential cost and competitive impact

The NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism made plans for study of a tuition-and-fees, need-based financial aid model during its September 22-23 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee, responding to a recommendation to the NCAA Council by the Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics, established a subcommittee to work with the NCAA national office's research staff in evaluating the potential cost and competitive impact of a need-based financial aid system on intercollegiate athletics in Divisions I and II.

The financial aid committee hopes to review a plan for conducting research on the model at its next meeting in February 1994 and begin developing a need-based-aid proposal for eventual consideration by the membership.

Intentatively setting a timetable for its work, the committee noted that the NCAA Council and several member institutions are sponsoring a resolution at the 1994 NCAA Convention (No. 2-155 in the Second Publication of Proposed Legislation) that would direct the committee to prepare legislation pertaining to need-based aid in time for consideration at the 1995 Convention.

The financial aid committee expressed concern that 1995 may be too soon to permit adequate study of the issue and development of a proposal. Therefore, it recommended to the Council that, at the least, a status report on the committee's work be scheduled for the 1995 Convention and that any proposals be presented no later than the 1996 Convention, with the understanding that legislation could be proposed in 1995 if ready.

Other highlights

In other actions at its September 22-23 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism:

■ Discussed concern among Division III institutions about the absence of a uniform, commonly accepted methodology for use in determining need in granting financial aid to student-athletes, and recommended to the NCAA Council that an institution be permitted to utilize its own methodology for determining need, as long as it conforms to written institutional guidelines and it is consistent with the method used for all students at that institution. The Federal government no longer produces methodologies for determining need, resulting in a lack of consensus among institutions as to how need shall be determined for purposes of awarding financial aid.

■ Reviewed results of the second year of a trial period for permitting the awarding of moneys from the Special Assistance Fund to full-grant student-athletes who are not eligible for Pell Grants, and recommended to the NCAA Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues that it make the provision permanent. The committee also recommended that foreign student-athletes continue to be eligible for moneys from the fund under that provision, but that an institutional official advising foreign students be permitted to certify a foreign student-athlete's need for assistance, rather than a financial aid officer. The committee believes it is impractical for a financial aid officer to provide such certification, because existing need methodologies produce meaningless results for foreign students.

■ Recommended to the Council that NCAA Bylaw 15.2.4.2, which exempts specified government educational grants from consideration in determining the permissible amount of a full grant-in-aid for a student-athlete, be amended to include benefits addressed in Federal legislation but not in the NCAA bylaw, as well as certain benefits (such as specific veterans benefit programs) that are consistent with those currently exempted by the bylaw but not currently addressed in NCAA legislation.

■ Recommended to the Council that Bylaw 15.2.4.1 be amended to make the maximum Pell Grant award of $900 for Divisions II and III institutions applicable only in Division II. The recommendation is based on the committee's belief that, because the definitions of a full grant-in-aid and cost of attendance are the same, the legislation is unnecessary in Division III.

■ Discussed whether the Special Assistance Fund for student-athletes should be used for health-insurance premiums for a student-athlete and recommended to the Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenue that it complete its study of whether the fund should be used in this manner. In a related action, the financial aid and amateurism committee also asked the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee for input on whether legislation should be proposed to permit institutions to pay premiums for student-athletes who are not covered by a family insurance plan or other private coverage.

Americans alarmed by education costs

Most Americans fear that rising costs are putting a college education out of reach for many students, according to survey results released September 28.

Three-fifths of those polled for the California Higher Education Policy Center said qualified students are kept out of college because of the cost. Ninety percent said cost should not be a hindrance.

"Americans perceive higher education in much the same way they perceive health care," Patrick Callahan, the center's executive director, told The Associated Press. "What alarms Americans is not a lack of quality. They fear that escalating costs will prevent those in need from participating in the system."

The College Board, the Princeton, New Jersey-based group that administers the Scholastic Aptitude Test and other exams, reported recently that the cost of a college education is outpacing inflation, income gains and growth in financial aid.

Inflation was 2.8 percent from last fall to this fall. But average tuition, room and board climbed six percent, to $6,207, at four-year public universities, and rose five percent, to $15,818, at four-year private colleges, the College Board said.

The increases were about the same, or slightly less, than last year's as colleges face sharper competition for a shrinking pool of students.

Between 1980 and 1990, Federal financial aid rose 47 percent and individual disposable income rose 63 percent, while the cost of higher education went up 126 percent.

The California Higher Education Policy Center said its poll was commissioned to measure public sentiment about the cost, quality and availability of higher education.

Two men's lacrosse teams reprimanded by committee

The NCAA Men's Lacrosse Committee has issued public reprimands to the Salisbury State University and Washington College (Maryland) men's lacrosse teams for an altercation before their 1993 NCAA quarterfinal contest.

The committee also has issued a public reprimand to a Salisbury State University student-athlete, Todd Cliggett, for his verbal misconduct. Cliggett will be banned from participating in the first contest of the next NCAA championship in which Salisbury State competes and in which he is eligible to participate.

In addition, the committee has withheld $500 of per diem from each institution.

"The unsportsmanlike conduct displayed prior to the Salisbury State-Washington game undermined the principles of fair play, and discredited the championship and intercollegiate men's lacrosse," said William E. Scroggs, chair of the men's lacrosse committee and assistant athletics director at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. "The committee strongly believes that conduct of this nature should not occur."

Gender equity

Commentary: Society has stake in majority gender getting equity universities don't reform ourselves in this area, the government is going to do it for us. My experience has been, both in education and government, that we are better off when we take the initiative rather than sit back and respond to Federal mandates.

Another reason is that there also is a great deal of good to be accomplished through female athletics competition. Many of the lessons that are learned on the playing fields are as valuable to women as to men, as women increasingly move into the marketplace. Gender equity has educational value. That is a message that we have lost in big-time college athletics, which is increasingly seen as part of the total entertainment—not educational—picture. If gender equity helps put the whole process back into perspective for some of the coaches and major-college athletics programs, so much the better.

Finally, and most importantly, by any standard of ethical reasoning, this simply is the right thing to do. We long since have crossed the bridge in this society where specific groups can be excluded from participating fully in society because of race, gender or religion.

While I don't think we have to do an exact male/female body count in intercollegiate sports, a college or university that offers 11 male sports and four female sports is clearly out of compliance and ought to be judged so. Next year at Centre, for instance, while we still have more male athletes participating than females, with the addition of women's golf we will have nine women's sports and nine men's sports. Clearly, there are more male athletes at Centre playing football and baseball than women playing field hockey or volleyball, and that may require some redress down the road. I am driven more by what is good for students than I am by the bean counters on either side.

Our society has a major stake in seeing that 52 percent of its citizens—that is, women—are treated equitably. People have a way of rising to the standards that we set, and I am convinced that once the NCAA takes the position that application of gender equity is a wise thing to do, then the colleges, universities, high schools and society in general will transform in a fairly equitable and positive way.

Screening system in place for binding interpretations

A system that will allow the NCAA legislative services staff to evaluate inquiries and issue binding interpretations only for significant issues has been implemented after approval by the NCAA Council at its August meeting.

The system includes a review by the chair of the NCAA Interpretation Committee of all binding staff interpretations.

The "screening" system was recommended to the Council by the NCAA Legislative Review Committee after it spent the past year reviewing 1993 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 150, which would have made all staff interpretations nonbinding and advisory in nature. The proposal was referred to the committee by the Convention.

Before the implementation of the screening system, the staff issued binding interpretations whenever a question was asked that was not answered by existing legislation or interpretations.

The staff will continue to respond to all requests for assistance in applying NCAA rules.

Under the screening system, when a school or conference has a question that is not answered by legislation in the NCAA Manual or by an existing interpretation, the legislative services staff has two options.

First, if the issue is determined by the staff to be of national significance, the staff will issue a binding interpretation.

If the staff believes that the issue is not of national significance and is one for which it seems reasonable to allow schools and/or conferences to make their own decisions, it will provide advice that is not binding on the school asking the question. In doing so, the staff will work through the legislation with a school or conference to review the intent of the rule and to see how it might apply to the situation. Such responses will be shared with other staff members to assure continued consistency in information provided to the membership.

Review of proposal

The committee began its review of Proposal No. 150 by listing the reasons it was introduced to the membership. The committee concluded there were five basic reasons for the development of Proposal No. 150:

- The volume of interpretations (both official and staff interpretations) made it difficult for schools to monitor compliance with legislation and interpretations.

- Concern that staff interpretations were binding only on those schools that requested the interpretation.

- Concern that binding staff interpretations created a dependence by the membership on the legislative services staff, as well as a hope that schools and conferences would take greater responsibility for the proper application of NCAA rules.

- The sense that eliminating binding staff interpretations would allow some schools and conferences to feel more comfortable making good-faith decisions regarding rules application without the fear of being considered to have acted contrary to NCAA legislation.

- The sense that binding interpretations made it appear that the staff directed the membership as opposed to working with and helping schools arrive at correct and reasonable interpretations.

The Legislative Review Committee agreed that Proposal No. 150 did not adequately address those five issues. It developed the screening system as an alternative and recommended the process to the Council.

Reintroduced

Proposal No. 150 was reintroduced by 12 member schools as an amendment for the 1994 Convention and can be found in the 1994 Second Publication of Proposed Legislation as Proposal No. 2-8.

David Price, chair of the Legislative Review Committee and associate commissioner of the Pacific-10 Conference, believes the screening process will take care of many of the concerns that led to the sponsorship of Proposal No. 2-8.

"We believe there is a lot of merit to the decentralization concept contained in Proposal No. 2-8," Price said, "but we also feel that it is imperative that the staff retain the authority to provide binding interpretations in isolated cases. We think the new screening process incorporates the best of both worlds."

In addition to the staff screening process, the committee's plan contains an opportunity for review of binding staff interpretations.

When the staff considers an issue significant enough to warrant a binding interpretation, the interpretation will be reviewed by the chair of the Interpretations Committee. The chair then will decide if the issue is important enough to be included on the committee's agenda for full committee review. If the full committee agrees with the staff's interpretation, the interpretation will be published in The NCAA News as part of the committee's minutes and will be binding on all member schools. If the full committee disagrees with the staff's interpretation, it will issue an interpretation that also would be published in the News.

'Checks and balances'

"There is a checks-and-balances system built in so that the membership, through the Interpretations Committee, will review the interpretations we are giving," said Nancy L. Mitchell, NCAA assistant executive director for legislative services. "We don't believe this changes our day-to-day operations or service to the membership. We still will answer all questions posed to us. It just gives us the latitude to allow an institution or conference to make its own decision in an instance in which the issue is not of national significance and there is not a significant recruiting or competitive advantage to be gained."

Second Publication of Proposed Legislation corrected

The Second Publication of Proposed Legislation, which was mailed to the membership September 15, contains errors in Proposal Nos. 2-82 and 2-118 and in Proposal No. 7 from the recruiting deregulation package (Appendix A).

The effective date for Proposal No. 2-82 (Financial Aid—Division I-AA Football) should read:

"August 1, 1994, for Division I-AA football programs that were reclassified as Division I-AA on September 1, 1993, as a result of multidivision classification legislation; August 1, 1994, for all football programs first established and classified in Division I-AA as of September 1, 1993, or September 1, 1994, and September 1, 1995, for all other Division I-AA institutions."

The intent statement for Proposal No. 2-118 (Division III Playing and Practice Seasons) should read:

"Intent: In the sports of Division III cross country, field hockey, soccer and volleyball, to permit 16 preseason practice opportunities prior to the first contest in the traditional segment, or to begin practice on September 1, whichever is later, and to establish September 1 as the first date of competition in the traditional and nontraditional segments for all sports other than football, basketball and ice hockey. [Note: The following proposal is presented in a nontraditional format.]"

In Proposal No. 7 (Recruiting Materials) of the recruiting deregulation package, section (i) of By-law 13.4.1 should be in italics (indicating language to be deleted). Also, the section would not be given new lettering as section (d). The section should appear as follows:

"(i) Publications (Athletics). In addition to game programs, an institution may produce either a recruiting brochure or media guide (but not both) in each sport it sponsors and provide it to a prospect. The publication may have only one color of printing inside the covers.

"(1) Nonrecruiting Publications.

An institution may produce additional athletics publications (other than an additional media guide or recruiting brochure) unrelated to the recruitment of prospective student-athletes.

"(2) Additional Media Publications. An institution may produce additional media publications (e.g., postseason media guide, preseason prospectus, spring football practice guide), provided the additional publications are not provided to prospects."

In addition, new sections (e), (f) and (g) in Proposal No. 7 should now be lettered (d), (e) and (f).

Community service

The junior and sophomore classes on the Otterbein College football team worked at the Mid-Ohio Food Bank during preseason camp for one of the team's community service projects. The senior class visited a children's hospital in Columbus, Ohio, and the team's freshmen organized a welcome-to-Otterbein party for the school's entire freshman class.

Goalie's sorrow finds release on athletics field

Field hockey team provides emotional salve after death of player's mother

By Martin T. Benson
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Mary Kay Perkins didn't plan to be a student-athlete when she enrolled at the University of the South.

She had tried the sports scene when she was in high school in Sneads, Florida, but never found a fit.

"There was a core group that played sports well and I wasn't in it," she said. "The sports I tried, I didn't do very well, so they weren't very fun for me."

Sneads High School didn't have field hockey. Sewanee (University of the South) did, but by the end of her freshman year, Perkins still hadn't seen a game. She had other things on her mind.

Needed to belong

Her mother died in a car accident in Florida over Parents Weekend that fall. Perkins' father had died of cancer when she was 4 years old.

She needed to belong somewhere. She needed an outlet for tension. She found it her sophomore year when her dormitory's assistant proctor, who played field hockey, asked her to come to practice.

Perkins joined the team but still didn't play much; however, she had found her sport, as a reserve forward.

"The players made me feel at home even when I was on the bench," she said. "I had done all sorts of therapy. Everything else felt wrong at that time. Field hockey was something that felt right."

"It's a way of being aggressive but being protected because you're part of a team. There aren't many outlets like that for women."

Back in school

She took the next semester off to blow off some steam and figure out if she really belonged in school. She said it was field hockey that convinced her to return.

That next year, Sewanee had a void at goalkeeper. Not having been able to recruit someone for the position, coach Chapman Kern had tried to get another field player to guard the cage, but Perkins said that she wanted the job. It has been another place that fits for her, this time as a starter.

"There's more I can give the team there," she said. "It's more fulfilling and I can release more tension. I felt I could go further as a goalie than as a forward."

She was right. With Perkins in goal, the Tigers went 15-2 last year, including six shutouts, and won their second consecutive KIT Conference championship. The only college with a field hockey team in Tennessee, Sewanee also was ranked third in the Great Lakes Region—not bad for a team that had played at the club level until Kern took over as coach in 1990.

Driven by desire

"By the end of last year Mary Kay was one of the best goalies in the conference," Kern said. "She's still raw, but most of her success comes from desire."

It has had to be that way. Kern admits she is no goalie coach. She has no assistant coach, so Perkins has had to learn from books and from watching others.

Her style is emotion charged.

"There is never any hesitation for her to say what she feels," Kern said. "Sometimes she stops practice to say it. There will be times when she worries that she is being too aggressive and she apologizes. She's got a lot built up inside her, and that's how she lets it out."

Elected captain

At the end of last year, Perkins got the recognition of acceptance she has been dreaming of since she started playing. She was elected one of the team's three captains by her teammates. Last year's captain and one of her role models, Anne Steilberg, ceremoniously passed Perkins the Tigers' traditional captain's bandanna.

"When it happened, it put me in a good mood for about four months," she said.

The emotional scars from her mother's accident remain, but field hockey gets Perkins through that tough anniversary every year, and fills the need for sports she has felt since high school.

"I love the sport and the people I play with," she said. "More than anything, I have fun."

Unbeaten Terry Bowden tops new I-A coaches

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA ASSISTANT
STATISTICS COORDINATOR

Auburn's Terry Bowden, Washington's Jim Lambright, Arkansas' Danny Ford, Baylor's Chuck Reedy and Nevada's Jeff Horton are the most successful so far this season of the 15 Division I-A coaches who are new to their current jobs.

Other first-time head coaches with good starts (in addition to Lambright, Reedy and Horton) this season include Eastern Michigan's Ron Cooper and North Carolina State's Mike O'Cain.

Bowden's team jumped to 5-0 after a 14-10 victory over Vanderbilt October 2. He leads the 15 first-year coaches, nine of whom never have been head coaches before.

Bowden, of course, became the answer to a trivia question when he took the Auburn job: What father-son combination is the first to be head football coaches at the same time at Division I-A institutions? Bowden joins his father, Bobby Bowden, in that historic pairing.

Lambright took over Washington's fortunes unexpectedly from Don James when the long-time Husky mentor resigned in late August. Lambright was a long-time assistant for Washington (24 years, including 15 as defensive coordinator). Lambright is 3-1 after a 52-17 win over San Jose State October 2.

Ford took over the Razorback program after stepping down as head coach at Clemson in 1989, and has led the Razorbacks to a 3-2 mark, including a 20-10 victory over Georgia last Saturday.

Reedy replaced long-time Baylor head man Grant Teaff after running the Bears' offense for three seasons. His record is 3-2 after a 24-3 loss to Houston October 2. Nevada's Horton is 3-2 after a 49-14 victory over Nevada-Las Vegas. He took over from Chris Ault, the most-victorious head coach in Wolf Pack history.

Eastern Michigan's Cooper is one of three new black head coaches this year and has a 2-2 mark after a 15-7 victory over Miami (Ohio) October 2. The other black head coaches are Temple's Ron Dickerson and Wake Forest's Jim Caldwell, both 1-3.

Auburn's Terry Bowden is one of two undefeated new coaches in Divisions I-A and I-AA.

North Carolina State's O'Cain, also 2-2, took over last June when Dick Sheridan was forced to resign for health reasons.

I-A first-year history

Since 1948, only 13 coaches have won 10 or more games in their first year as a Division I-A head coach. Ten of those coaches also won bowl games in their initial seasons and several led teams to undefeated years.

Bowling Green's Gary Blackney in 1991, Southern California's John Robinson in 1976 and Tennessee's Bill Battle in 1970 each led their squads to the most victories by a first-year coach, with identical 11-1 records.

Miami's (Ohio) Dick Crum in 1974 and Oklahoma's Barry Switzer in 1973 each had 10-0-1 records in their first outings as I-A head coaches. The only first-year coach to win a national championship was Michigan's Bennie Oosterbaan in 1948, with a perfect 9-0 record.

The other first-year head coaches with at least 10 victories were Houston's John Jenkins (1990), Ball State's Dwight Wallace (1978), Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks (1967), Louisiana State's Mike Archer (1987), Southern Mississippi's Curley Hallman (1988), Oklahoma State's Pat Jones (1984), Tampa's Earle Bruce (1972) and Mississippi's Billy Kinard (1971). Only Switzer, Jenkins and Wallace did not pick up a bowl victory.

The 1984 season was the most successful for first-year coaches, as that year's group of seven posted a 47-28-1 record (.625 winning percentage). Oklahoma State's Jones (10-2) was the leader that year, followed by Florida's Galen Hall (8-0), who took over from Charley Pell after three games; Louisiana State's Bill Arnsparger (8-3-1), Air Force's Fisher DeBerry (8-4), Rutgers' Dick Anderson (7-3); Long Beach State's Mike Shepard (4-7) and Wichita State's Ron Chismar (2-9).

I-AA leaders

In Division I-AA, Southern-Baton Rouge's Pete Richardson has the most victories for a first-year coach with a 5-0 record, including a 14-13 win over Mississippi Valley October 2. He formerly coached at Winston-Salem, which reached the Division II playoffs three times and posted a 41-14-1 (.741) record in five years under Richardson.

Samford's Chan Gailey has gone from positions in professional football—where he was a Denver Broncos assistant in the NFL and a World League of American Football head coach with the Birmingham Fire—to collegiate head coach. The former Florida quarterback also has coached at Troy State. He has the next best start among I-AA coaches with a 4-1 record after a 21-6 victory over Nicholls State October 2.

Duquesne's Greg Gattuso has a 3-1 mark after an October 2 loss to Gannon, 7-0. Rhode Island's Floyd Keith and Tennessee-Chattanooga's Tommy West each have 3-2 records. Keith's squad drilled Brown, 30-7, and West's team upset defending Division I-AA champion Marshall, 33-31, October 2.

Other I-AA first-year coaches off to good starts include Colgate's Ed Sweeney, Cal State Sacramento's Mike Clemons, Davidson's Tim Landis and Maine's Jack Cosgrove, all at 2-2, and Georgetown's Bob Benson at 1-1.

First-time head coaches

In 1992, four first-time coaches with no previous head-coaching experience posted a 15-20-1 record for a .431 winning percentage.

This season, nine new I-A coaches are in their first head-coaching positions at the four-year level. This group has started 17-22 (three have winning records and two are at .500).

Seven I-AA coaches are in their first head-coaching season, and have posted a 15-13 mark so far. The coaches, listed by college in alphabetical order:

Division I-A (9)	W-L-T
John Bobo, Arkansas St.	1-4-0
Chuck Reedy, Baylor	3-2-0
Ron Cooper, Eastern Mich.	2-2-0
Kim Helton, Houston	1-3-0

Bob Benson, Georgetown	1-1-0
Jack Cosgrove, Maine	2-2-0
Houston Nutt, Murray St.	2-3-0
Tommy West, Tenn.-Chatt.	3-2-0

Auburn's Bowden and Southern-Baton Rouge's Richardson are the only coaches with undefeated records remaining among either the 16 I-A/I-AA first-time head coaches or the 13 I-A/I-AA new coaches with head-coaching experience.

The first-year I-A coaches with experience stand 29-39-0 and the I-AA coaches are 31-29-0:

Interesting facts

Several of the coaches in new positions have interesting backgrounds. Arkansas' Ford resurfaced in Fayetteville this season with a sparkling 12-year career record of 96-29-4 (.760 winning percentage). He played for and coached with Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama, and his coaching debut at Clemson was against Ohio State's Woody Hayes in that legendary coach's final game, the 1978 Gator Bowl.

Pittsburgh's Johnny Majors, runner-up for the 1956 Heisman Trophy at Tennessee as a player, is making his second run for the Panthers. From 1973 to 1976, Majors led Pittsburgh to a 33-13-1 record, including a 1976 wire-service national championship.

This year's group includes several coaches who are returning to college after head-coaching stints in professional football. Southern California's John Robinson left the Trojan program in 1982 to spend nine years at the helm of the Los Angeles Rams. He returned to Southern California with a 67-14-2 (.819) record, tops among active I-A mentors.

San Jose State's John Ralston, a long-time college and professional head coach, took over the Spartans' program at the age of 66. He had previously coached at Utah State and Stanford, as well as Denver in the National Football League.

Among new I-AA coaches, Boise State's Pokey Allen forged a 62-26-2 (.703) record in seven years at Division II power Portland State, while Colgate's Sweeney was highly successful (56-22-3 in eight years) at Division III Dickinson.

Nicholls State's Rick Rhodes returns to service as a head coach after posting a 32-14-1 mark in stints at Troy State and Southern Illinois. Southern-Baton Rouge's Richardson got his chance in I-AA after leading Winston-Salem to a 41-14-1 (.741) record in five years.

Houston's Kim Helton took over his first collegiate head job after stints as an assistant in the NFL with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Houston Oilers, Los Angeles Raiders and Miami Dolphins.

Postgraduate scholarship nominations due October 25

NCAA postgraduate scholarship nominations for football are due to district selection committee chairs by October 25, 1993. Nomination folders have been mailed to the faculty athletics representative at each member institution, along with an instruction memorandum and a list of district selection committee chairs.

The NCAA will award postgraduate scholarships of $5,000 each to 29 football players. Of the winners, 10 will be selected from Division I, 10 from Divisions II and III, and the remaining nine will be selected at large.

Following are the criteria for nominating a student-athlete:

1. The student-athlete must have an overall minimum undergraduate cumulative grade-point average of 3.000 (4.000 scale) or its equivalent.

2. The student-athlete must be enrolled in the academic year in which his or her final season of eligibility under NCAA legislation occurs.

3. The student-athlete must have performed with distinction as a member of the varsity team in the sport in which he or she has been nominated. The degree of the student-athlete's athletics achievement will be weighed at least equally with the degree of academic performance.

4. The student-athlete should intend to continue academic work as a full-time graduate student within five years from the date of the award.

5. The student-athlete must have behaved, both on and off the field, in a manner that has brought credit to the student-athlete, the institution and intercollegiate athletics.

It is suggested that institutions nominate one but no more than two student-athletes for football. To nominate a student-athlete, the school's faculty athletics representative must coordinate the completion of five forms included in the nomination folder.

The eight district selection committees will screen nominations from their respective districts and forward the names of the finalists to the NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship Committee, which will make the final selections.

Following is a list of district chairs that includes information that has been updated since the nominations folders were mailed.

National defense

If your opponent is Dickinson College, don't plan on scoring too many points. At least that's what recent results should tell you. Dickinson is allowing just 2.0 points a game -- which ranks behind Middlebury College and Trinity College (Connecticut), which both have played just one game this season. Below are the top scoring defenses in each division through September 25.

Officiating videos available

Basketball officiating video cassettes are available from the NCAA for use in preparing for the 1993-94 season.

Instructional videotapes for the men's and women's games can be ordered by using the form that accompanies this story. The instructional tapes are available in VHS format for $15.

The 1994 women's instructional video demonstrates the principle of verticality, post play and free-throw contact situations, in addition to miscellaneous situations.

The 1994 men's instructional video highlights blocking and charging, hand checking, screening, hanging on the rim, post play, the principle of verticality, and traveling, in addition to other special situations.

Videotapes of one of the men's or one of the women's regional officiating clinics can be purchased for $20 after November 8.

In their ninth year, the regional clinics are administered by the NCAA Basketball Officiating Committee. All supervisors of officials, officials and a full-time head or assistant coach from each school in Division I are required to attend one of the clinics for 1993-94.

The women's clinics will be conducted by Marcy Weston, secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Women's Basketball Rules Committee and coordinator of women's basketball officiating. Weston will be assisted by Bill Stokes, supervisor of officials for the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference, the Atlantic Coast Conference and the Big South Conference.

The men's clinics will be conducted by Henry O. Nichols, secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee and coordinator of men's basketball officiating. Nichols will be assisted by Don Shea, a former Division I basketball official.

Instructional video cassettes from previous years and from past clinics also can be purchased by using the accompanying form.

Lengthy testimony presented in Drake wrestling suit

U.S. District Judge Harold Vietor heard testimony September 27 in a lawsuit asking for a temporary injunction to prevent Drake University from eliminating its wrestling program.

The suit, filed by five wrestlers, contends elimination of the program violates their constitutional rights and also Title IX. Drake officials say financial constraints forced the move and contend the school still offers males ample opportunity to participate in sports.

After hearing 6½ hours of testimony that included an appearance by University of Iowa wrestling coach Dan Gable, Vietor said he would rule within two weeks, according to The Associated Press.

"I don't think anybody in this room is the least bit happy about the elimination of the wrestling program at Drake," Vietor said in his Des Moines, Iowa, courtroom.

Vietor also said that while he was sorry to see that wrestling programs across the country are being dropped, he would not grant the injunction unless the plaintiffs

"Drake has effectively accommodated the (male) students' interest."

■ Attorney Inga Bumbry Langston

could show that Drake violated Title IX.

Arguing for the wrestlers, attorney Lawrence Marcucci contended that Drake was indeed violating Title IX because it gives more scholarship money to women athletes than to men athletes, even though there are more male participants.

"Dropping the wrestling program exacerbates the level of violation," Marcucci said.

Attorneys for Drake countered that even without wrestling, men still have plenty of chances to compete in athletics at the school. Citing similar cases, attorney Inga Bumbry Langston said courts have ordered a sport reinstated "only when they found schools didn't offer proper accommodation."

"Drake has effectively accommodated the students' interests," she said.

Evidence presented at the hearing shows that Drake is spending $967,000 on scholarships for five women's sports and $824,000 on scholarships for six men's sports. Currently, the percentage of athletes at Drake is 65-35 in favor of men, testimony showed.

Drake athletics director Lynn H. King said more scholarship money is available for women because the NCAA allows more scholarships in those sports than in the men's sports offered at Drake.

King also noted that in three of the women's sports, each athlete must receive a full scholarship, following standing and special committees: the Academic Requirements, Executive, Infractions Appeals, Legislative Review, Student-Athlete Advisory and Two-Year College Relations Committees; the Administrative Review Panel; the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism; the Committee on Review and Planning; the Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers; the Special Committee to Review 1990 Convention Proposal No. 24 (graduation-rate disclosure), and the Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity.

Also on the agenda are the usual review of governmental affairs activities, Administrative Committee and Interpretations Committee actions, membership applications and requests, and routine or non-controversial legislation.

One change in the fall meeting is that the Council no longer makes its appointments to fill vacancies on Council-appointed committees in this meeting. Those actions now will be taken in the Council's January meeting.

In conjunction with the Council sessions, the Administrative Committee and the Nominating Committee will conduct separate meetings October 10.

The highlights of the Council meeting will be reported in the October 18 issue of The NCAA News, and the complete minutes of the meeting will appear in a November issue.

Montclair State baseball reprimanded for damages

The NCAA Division III Baseball Committee has reprimanded the Montclair State College baseball team for damages that occurred at the headquarters hotel at the 1993 NCAA Division III Baseball Championship last spring in Battle Creek, Michigan.

The committee took its action after receiving reports from the Stouffer Battle Creek Hotel and after discussions with representatives of the college.

In addition to the public reprimand, the committee also decided to withhold transportation and per diem reimbursement to the college for seven individuals—the number of rooms that were damaged. Also, Montclair State paid the hotel for the damages incurred.

Ex-assistant coach sanctioned

The NCAA Men's Lacrosse Committee publicly has reprimanded Terry Mangan, a former assistant men's lacrosse coach at Washington College (Maryland).

The sanction comes as a result of Mangan's actions during the semifinal contest of the 1993 NCAA Division III Men's Lacrosse Championship. The committee determined that Mangan's public actions toward the crowd were unacceptable.

"The committee recognizes that participants in championship competition may experience certain frustrations," said William E. Scroggs, assistant athletics director at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and chair of the committee. "Such frustrations, however, should not escalate to an unsportsmanlike level."

which in effect limits the squad size. Scholarships in all but one men's sport can be divided, allowing more athletes to take part, he said.

"You're saying there are more opportunities for males than females?" Drake attorney Jim Swanger asked.

"That's correct," King replied.

When Drake announced its decision to drop wrestling on March 11, officials said the school could no longer afford the program. Marcucci, however, noted that aside from scholarship money and salaries, wrestling cost Drake $40,000 last season.

That figure is "infinitesimal" compared with the university's overall budget, he said.

Marcucci also elicited testimony showing that while Drake spent $136,000 on wrestling scholarships last year, those athletes paid the university $215,000 to cover costs beyond their scholarship money.

Gable and California State University, Bakersfield, coach T. J. Kerr both told Vietor of their concerns over the decline of collegiate wrestling. Noting that the number of NCAA wrestling programs has fallen from 374 in 1980 to 265 now, Kerr said wrestling has become a convenient activity to drop because it is defined as a nonrevenue sport and has no female counterpart.

At the same time, Kerr said, participation in wrestling has increased at the youth and postcollegiate level and remained stable in high schools.

"I'm mankind's oldest sport, and I'm afraid it's just going out the window," said Kerr, president of the National Wrestling Coaches Association.

Gable said Drake officials asked him a few years ago to help in their effort to lure the headquarters of USA Wrestling from Stillwater, Oklahoma, to Des Moines.

"I don't understand why in a short period of time they're going from wanting to be the No. 1 institution in wrestling in this country to eliminating it," Gable said. "Because of the dramatic change, I'm very confused."

greater federation in the Association be by institution, rather than by sport.

Strategic plan

The Commission's Subcommittee on Strategic Planning, which recommends in the fall meeting each year the next major topic in the Commission's rolling three-year strategic plan, reported this time that it does not intend to identify a specific new topic for the time period ending with the 1997 Convention.

Instead, the subcommittee believes that it will be appropriate in that year to review and take any necessary additional actions in the topics identified for earlier years in the plan, as well as on issues that have arisen in addition to those topics.

For example, additional actions may be warranted in the areas of presidential authority and institutional control (the 1993 Convention focus); financial conditions (1994); student-athlete welfare, access and equity (1995), and ethics and integrity issues (1996), as well as the membership structure and gender-equity concerns.

Other highlights

In other actions at its September 28-29 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Presidents Commission:

■ Reviewed the legislation submitted for the 1994 Convention, as well as an analysis of proposals that might erode the progress made in the reform movement in recent years. The Commission took tentative actions to support or oppose a number of proposals but authorized its four officers to take final action in that regard after the NCAA Council's October 11-13 actions are known. It is the Commission's basic intent to join with the Council in opposing proposals that clearly would add grants-in-aid, add coaches or extend playing seasons.

■ Heard a presentation by Henry O. Nichols, secretary-rules editor of the NCAA Men's Basketball Rules Committee and national coordinator of men's basketball officiating, on efforts that have been made and additional steps that might be taken to address concerns regarding trash-talking, taunting, bench decorum and crowd behavior at basketball games.

■ Received reports from its Subcommittee on Minority Affairs; the Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity; the Presidents Commission Liaison Committee, and the Executive Director Search Committee.

■ Received a presentation by the Athletic Issues Task Force—which includes representatives of the Division I-A Athletic Directors Association, the Division I-AA Football Issues Committee, the National Association of Basketball Coaches, the American Football Coaches Association, the Collegiate Commissioners Association and the College Football Association—that primarily emphasized the desire of coaches and athletics administrators to be involved more effectively in the deliberations and decisions of the Presidents Commission.

Financial conditions

In addition, the Commission officers, in their capacity as the group's executive committee, reviewed the seven longer-term concepts that were developed by the Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics. In order to assure continuing attention to those recommendations, the Commission's executive committee:

■ Referred to the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism the proposals regarding need-based aid models and the concept of keeping initial grant-in-aid limitations but eliminating overall limitations in football and basketball.

■ Referred to the NCAA Recruiting Committee the possible elimination of off-campus recruiting and the idea of limitations on off-campus housing during a prospect's official visit to campus.

■ Urged the NCAA Legislative Review Committee to continue and increase its efforts to simplify or eliminate NCAA legislation in appropriate areas.

■ Noted that the concept of five years of eligibility for all student-athletes will be voted upon at the 1994 Convention and did not need committee referral at this time; further, the Presidents Commission will strongly oppose that proposal.

■ Agreed that the study of the membership structure that has been proposed by the Commission will include an opportunity for members to propose development of different minimum numbers of required sports for men and for women in all divisions, as well as to pursue the concept of greater flexibility in classifying sports, including liberalized access to the Division I-A football classification.

ffective and creative efforts through the program to serve as an example for other conferences.

"We are not trying to throw new rules out there," Whitcomb said. "We support the notion of flexibility and the notion of accountability. You may have conferences doing these things already. There may be some great models out there that we would like to have made available for others to see."

Other highlights

In other actions at its September 26-28 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee:

■ Announced a joint meeting with the NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics in January to determine how the two committees may consolidate efforts. The Committee is particularly interested in determining how the exposure of women's sports in certain communities may serve to strengthen gender equity at NCAA member institutions. The committee met with Richard A. Rasmussen of the University Athletic Association, a member of the Committee on Women's Athletics.

■ Continued organizational efforts in the creation of the pilot diversity workshop. The committee is interviewing companies that have submitted bids, and committee chair Charles Whitcomb said the committee likely would choose the company within the next few months.

■ Heard a report from Betty B. Norrie, NCAA Foundation program coordinator, on the NCAA Life-Skills Program, for the purpose of examining the possibilities of utilizing the diversity program within the life-skills program.

■ Met with Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research, regarding NCAA data on Proposition 48 and current graduation rates as they relate to minority student-athletes.

■ Agreed to request approval from the NCAA Council of a study regarding the number of ethnic minorities currently serving as graduate assistant football coaches in Division I-A.

■ Agreed to explore the concept of creating programs similar to the ACE Fellow program, recognition programs for institutions that have advanced minority enhancement, and ways to further ethnic-minority and women's officiating enhancement.

Resolution on fighting

Following is a resolution adopted by the NCAA Presidents Commission at its September 28-29 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri:

Resolution

Whereas, the intercollegiate athletics events of the NCAA member institutions must reflect high institutional and social standards on the part of players, coaches and staff; and

Whereas, the Presidents Commission of the NCAA on previous occasions has expressed its concern about the decline of these standards and, specifically, about the increasing levels of violence in intercollegiate athletics; and

Whereas, the current football season provides disturbing evidence of the disregard of sportsmanship and adherence to essential standards of competitive and personal conduct;

Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved, that the Presidents Commission deplores this conduct and calls upon every member institution, every conference and every appropriate entity of the NCAA to take prompt action to prevent any recurrence; and

Be It Further Resolved, that every campus CEO is requested to convene a meeting with the athletics director and the football coaching staff to discuss the standards of deportment expected by the university; and

Be It Further Resolved, that conference officers instruct football officials to take decisive, prompt and, when necessary, severe steps to enforce proper competitive behavior; and

Be It Further Resolved, that the NCAA Football Rules Committee should promptly review the present rules governing proper deportment to ascertain their efficacy and severity; and

Be It Further Resolved, that the Presidents Commission asks the American Football Coaches Association to advise the Commission and the NCAA regarding appropriate means of maintaining sportsmanship and high levels of proper competitive conduct; and

Be It Finally Resolved, that the urgency of this matter to the NCAA and its member institutions be emphasized at every opportunity and by every means.

Colorado, Miami (Florida) set policies on fighting

Football coaches at the University of Colorado and University of Miami (Florida) announced new policies for their teams September 28 in the wake of a bench-clearing brawl between the two squads the previous Saturday.

Colorado coach Bill McCartney and Miami (Florida) coach Dennis Erickson said the new policies will not be retroactive to the September 25 game in which dozens of players from both teams' benches ran onto the field to join in the fighting, according to The Associated Press.

Seven Miami (Florida) players and five from Colorado were ejected.

The fight was one of several that occurred during games that weekend. Fights also occurred in three games involving Atlantic Coast Conference teams. However, because the Colorado-Miami (Florida) game was nationally televised, it attracted the lion's share of attention across the country.

One-game suspension

The new guidelines at Colorado and Miami (Florida) include a one-game suspension for any player leaving the bench to participate in a fight.

Coaches at both schools declined to take action against players who were involved in the brawl that prompted the actions.

"I looked extensively at the (game) film and I looked to see if we had anyone flagrantly out of control where he was jeopardizing the health of others," McCartney said in a news release. "I just didn't see it. I just in good conscience couldn't suspend anybody unless I suspended everybody."

Erickson said virtually the same thing of his players.

Colorado President Judith E. N. Albino said she had met with both McCartney and athletics director Bill Marolt.

"I am deeply disappointed by what happened," she said. "...I have approved the coach's swift, strong and appropriate actions to ensure that no such incidents occur in the future."

Colorado senior captain Ron Woolfork said of the incident, "With the magnitude of the game, tempers flared up and it just got out of hand. We've learned our lesson, we've just got to move on."

Keep players on bench

In the wake of the game, Erickson said his top priority was to stop players from leaving the bench area to join a fight.

"We're going to start getting control of that type of thing," he said.

Coaches of several Atlantic Coast Conference teams made similar statements after fights September 25 in three games: Duke University vs. University of Virginia; University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, vs. North Carolina State University, and University of Maryland, College Park, vs. Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Duke coach Barry Wilson was the most emphatic of the league's coaches in warning against a recurrence of fighting.

Wilson revealed during the ACC's weekly coaches' teleconference September 29 that he mailed a letter outlining his feelings on the situation to the other head coaches.

Deaths

Dottie Kelso, an assistant women's basketball coach at Alabama for the past four years, died September 18 at age 31. A native of Lewisburg, Tennessee, Kelso lettered as a player at Alabama in 1983 and 1984. She coached at a high school and at Chattanooga (Tennessee) State Technical College before joining the Crimson Tide staff.

John Pennel, the first man to clear 17 feet in the pole vault and a standout athlete at Northeast Louisiana in the early 1960s, died of cancer September 26 at St. John's Hospital Medical Center in Santa Monica, California. He was 53. Pennel, who was hired earlier this year as vice-president and general manager of Mills Sports in Atlanta, set the first of his eight world records in 1963 with a pole vault of 16 feet, 3 inches. He later improved that to 17-10 1/4 in 1969 before a series of injuries ended his career a year later. Pennel competed at the 1964 and 1968 Olympic Games.

ESPN2 rolls dice with younger set

By John Nelson

ESPN2 set out on its maiden voyage October 1, hoping to reach about 15 million homes and look good doing it.

It is a younger cousin of the old standby, ESPN, and its founders hope it will act it, too.

"Some people just won't get it," said Jim Rome, a West Coast radio talk show host who was hired to star in ESPN2's "Talk2" on late nights. "If you're looking for the safe route, you can find that just about anywhere."

"Our direction is a little more dangerous, a little more difficult. And, as for all the old fogies, will they understand? I think there will be a little culture shock."

Keith Olbermann, a former "SportsCenter" and ESPN Radio announcer, and Suzy Kolber, hired from WPEC-TV in West Palm Beach, Florida, are cohosts of the three-hour "SportsNight," which ESPN2 hopes will be the cornerstone of its new network.

SportsNight is followed each weeknight by "Talk2," and a fixture called "Jock and Roll," statistics set to new-wave music, takes over in the early morning hours.

ESPN2 also will feature National Hockey League and college basketball games, as well as sports aimed at a young audience such as snowboarding, parasailing, windsurfing and mountain biking.

"There are a lot of people who like sports but could care less about dry statistics," Kolber said. "I think there are a lot more of them than there are so-called hard-core fans. But maybe what they're really into is cycling, or mountain biking, or skiing.

"And there have been a lot of studies on the increasing involvement in sports of women who want to see figure skating or gymnastics, and you don't see these sports on shows dedicated to the hard-core fan."

While ESPN2 might be aimed at a younger audience, it is not intended for the hip-hop set exclusively, Olbermann said.

"In the mix of this attempt to make the world of sports understandable and enjoyable to a younger audience, we're not simply going to forget the older sports fan," Olbermann said.

Nelson is a sportswriter for The Associated Press.

"I'm taking a hard-line step. I hope they take the same stance," said Wilson, whose players will now face suspension for fighting or leaving the bench.

Wilson and Clemson University coach Ken Hatfield said they have instructed their video crews to "hone in" during fights, so coaching staffs can hand out proper punishments later.

North Carolina and North Carolina State players were involved in a helmet-swinging fight along the Tar Heel bench, and two assistant coaches later were suspended for one game for their involvement in a postgame scuffle.

Bradley Faircloth, supervisor of ACC football officials, commended the initiative by coaches.

"I think this is a great opportunity for us to police ourselves and make sure nothing else like this happens in the future," Faircloth said.

1993 Column No. 35

NCAA Bylaw 11.7.5.1.1

Limitations on the number of coaches who may recruit prospects at any one time

Division I institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 11.7.5.1.1, if the limit of coaches who are permitted to contact or evaluate prospects off campus at any one time is reached, another coach in that same sport may not leave campus to engage in off-campus contacts or evaluations until one of the other coaches who is off campus actually returns to campus. Please note, however, that per Bylaw 11.7.5.1.1.1, if the maximum number of authorized coaches is recruiting off campus and another coach is scheduled to depart for recruiting purposes when one of those coaches returns, that coach may depart at the scheduled time if the incoming coach encounters a transportation delay (e.g., flight difficulties), provided the departing coach does not leave prior to the time that the incoming coach is scheduled to return to the home transportation site (e.g., airport terminal, bus terminal), and the coach who is encountering the transportation delay does not engage in any additional recruiting activities during that trip. Further, per Bylaw 11.7.5.1.1.2, a coach who combines nonrecruiting travel (e.g., vacation, speaking engagement) with a recruiting trip may be replaced for purposes of recruitment with another authorized coach, provided the coach being replaced does not engage in additional recruiting activities until after he or she has returned to the institution's campus. The coach leaving campus may depart no earlier than the time the replaced coach normally would return to the home transportation site (if the coach had been returning to campus).

Finally, during its May 21, 1992, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that during the summer, if an institution has reached its limit of coaches who may recruit prospects off campus "at any one time," and one of those coaches has a summer residence that is not in the locale of the institution, it is permissible for another of the institution's authorized coaches to depart the campus for recruiting purposes once the coach returns to his or her summer residence. The committee noted that this standard is applicable only during the institution's summer vacation period (i.e., the period after the institution's last day of examinations for the spring term until the first day of classes or the first day of practice for the fall term, whichever is earlier).

NCAA Bylaw 17.3.3

First contest date in basketball—all divisions

Division I institutions should note that an institution may not play its first contest (game or scrimmage) with outside competition in basketball prior to the Friday immediately after Thanksgiving. Divisions II and III institutions should note that the first permissible contest date is the Friday immediately preceding Thanksgiving. All institutions should note that, per Bylaw 17.3.3.1, the following basketball contests (games or scrimmages) may be played prior to the first contest date specified in Bylaw 17.3.3:

1. In Divisions I and II, informal practice scrimmages with outside competition, provided they are conducted in privacy without publicity or official scoring, and provided they are counted against the maximum permissible number of contests, and

2. In Division III, a maximum of two informal practice scrimmages with outside competition (conducted in privacy without publicity or official scoring).

In addition, the following basketball games may be played after November 15 by Division I institutions and after November 1 by Division II or III institutions:

1. One game against a "club" member of USA Basketball;
2. One game against a foreign team in the United States;
3. The Basketball Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic Game;
4. For Division II institutions only, one game against a foreign team in Canada;
5. For Division I institutions only, all games in the Great Alaska Shootout men's basketball tournament sponsored by an active member located in Alaska, or
6. For Division I institutions only, all games in the Maui Invitational men's basketball tournament sponsored by an active member located in Hawaii.

Further, during its May 4, 1993, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that an institution's women's basketball team may participate in the Hall of Fame Tip-Off Classic sponsored annually by the Women's Basketball Hall of Fame after November 15 and exempt such a contest from the institution's basketball-contest limitations.

Creighton club raises money for homeless

The Pride Club, an organization at Creighton University designed to increase awareness of and raise funds for the homeless, presented four checks totaling $3,200 to homeless shelters in the Omaha, Nebraska, and Council Bluffs, Iowa, area. Since the program's creation five years ago, the Pride Club has helped raise more than $18,000 for homeless shelters.

"As much as the Pride Club enables us to put a positive dent into the homeless problem, it is equally beneficial for our players," said Rick Johnson, men's basketball coach at Creighton.

"Our campus is pretty much isolated from the real world. Our players receive full scholarships, have a roof over their heads and have comprehensive meal plans. The Pride Club shows our players that there are real problems in the world and that life is very much different outside of their own settings."

Players help sickle-cell fund-raiser

Two Baylor University football players and the school's all-time leading rusher, Walter Abercrombie, helped raise more than $2,500 in donations for sickle-cell anemia research during a fund-raiser this past summer. Abercrombie, now an academic adviser to Baylor football players, got quarterback J. J. Joe and fullback Bradford Lewis to assist him in raising funds for the Central Texas Sickle-Cell Anemia Foundation.

"Since this is a disease that afflicts predominantly young black people and takes away any chances of them enjoying athletics, we feel it is appropriate that these athletes help the cause," Abercrombie told The Dallas Morning News.

Hospital program starts at South Carolina

The University of South Carolina, Columbia, in coordination with Richland Memorial Center for Cancer Treatment and Research, announced a new student-athlete volunteer program, 'Team Gamecocks: Athletes Who Care,' during a kickoff event August 23.

Through the program, South Carolina student-athletes are visiting children and adult cancer patients at the hospital every Tuesday throughout the academic year. The first set of visits was September 7.

"Our athletics program is certainly looking forward to our involvement with the Richland Memorial Center for Cancer Treatment and Research," said Michael B. McGee, athletics director at South Carolina. "Through this wonderful new project of 'Team Gamecocks: Athletes Who Care,' our student-athletes will have the opportunity to have personal interactions with the patients in hopes of making a positive and lasting impression on each individual they come in contact with. I believe our student-athletes will benefit from this program just as much as the patients they will interact with."

Volleyball team takes on MS

Peggy Martin, head women's volleyball coach at Central Missouri State University, brought a group of her former players back to campus for a scrimmage against her current players and then donated proceeds from the match to the fight against multiple sclerosis.

Martin's current squad beat the alumni team, which was coached by the institution's acting president, Judy Vickery. In the process, the players helped raise more than $400.
