Commission seeks more suggestions on ethical behavior

Member conferences, selected NCAA committees and officiating organizations are being asked by the NCAA Presidents Commission to offer additional suggestions for promoting ethical behavior in college athletics.

The suggestions are being sought in response to recommendations recently made by the Presidents Commission Advisory Committee on Ethical Behavior in College Athletics. That committee presented a report to the Commission in January suggesting a variety of actions that might be taken at the institutional and conference levels to curb unsportsmanlike conduct among student-athletes, coaches and fans.

The Commission approved the report and directed the copies be sent to chief executive officers at member institutions, NCAA sports rules-making committees, conference and officiating organizations, and coaches' associations.

The text of the report appears on page 21 of this issue of The NCAA News.

The committee's recommendations include:

- Development of institutional policies and codes of conduct governing appropriate conduct by all persons involved in intercollegiate athletics programs, including fans.

- Assignment of responsibility to presidents and chancellors for hiring athletics directors and coaches who have a philosophy consistent with those policies and codes of conduct, and assignment of responsibility to athletics directors and other institutional officials for controlling all aspects of event management.

- Asking that sports committees with rules-making authority be directed to develop sanctions for participants in fights during competition and that conferences and officiating organizations constantly and consistently apply those sanctions.

- Asking that rules-making committees study the need for more stringent rules addressing other forms of inappropriate and abusive behavior in competition.

Remembering a legend

Bud Wilkinson (right), who built the University of Oklahoma football team into a national powerhouse, died February 9 of congestive heart failure. He is remembered for being more than just an outstanding football coach. See page 3.

Geiger added to Forum

Ferdinand A. Geiger, director of athletics at the University of Maryland, College Park, has been added to the list of panelists for the 1994 College Football Forum.

Geiger

Geiger joins NCAA Secretary-Treasurer Prentice Gautt and eight prominent coaches for panel discussions at the 18th annual forum, scheduled February 20-22 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Discussion topics will include cost containment, academic standards, violence in sports and a Division I-A football playoff (see February 9 issue of The NCAA News for information about other scheduled panelists).

Geiger is in his fourth year at Maryland. During his tenure, he has overseen the completion of a new training facility at Byrd Stadium, the renovation of locker facilities for several varsity sports and a resurgence of the men's basketball program, which sold out every home conference game last season.

The 1961 graduate of Syracuse University became director of athletics at Brown University in 1972 and moved to another Ivy Group school—the University of Pennsylvania—in 1975. Before going to College Park, Geiger was director of athletics at Stanford University for 11 years, a period in which Stanford teams claimed 27 NCAA championships.

Geiger currently serves on the Special Events Committee.

Women's participation numbers increase again

The number of women participating in varsity sports at NCAA institutions grew more than 3.5 percent in 1992-93, bringing the number of female competitors to the threshold of the 100,000 mark.

The NCAA's annual participation study showed that 99,589 women competed in varsity sports in 1992-93. That is the largest total ever and is the third consecutive annual increase. The total increase for women over 1991-92 was 3,392 participants (3.52 percent).

A total of 187,041 men participated, the most since 1986-87.

Men's participation increased by 996—or 54 hundredths of one percent—from 1991-92.

The combined participation total of 286,900 is the highest since 1985-86, when 295,382 took part in NCAA sports. Of the 1992-93 total, 65.2 percent were men and 34.8 percent were women.

The total number includes competitors in crew and squash, which are sponsored by 10 or more schools.

The sports with the biggest participant gains were women's soccer

Efforts continue to set date for mediation meeting

The Community Relations Service of the U.S. Justice Department is attempting to schedule a mediation session before the end of February for the NCAA and the Black Coaches Association.

Among the issues to be discussed during such a session, which would be the first face-to-face meeting between the groups since the January NCAA Convention, will be academic standards for eligibility, gender equity, limits on access to student-athletes and minority opportunities in athletics.

The groups were scheduled to meet February 6, but the meeting was postponed because NCAA Presidents Commission Chair Judith E. N. Albino was unable to attend.

The mediation is in response to the controversy resulting from the defeat of 1994 Convention Proposal No. 42. That proposal would have increased the number of permissible scholarships for Division I men's basketball programs from 13 to 14.

For more detail, see the January 19 and January 26 issues of The NCAA News.

Restructuring

New deadline established for submitting proposals

The deadline for submitting proposals for restructuring the NCAA membership has been extended from March 1 to August 31.

The NCAA Joint Policy Board took the action at its February 2 meeting.

The Board noted that although restructuring legislation still can be proposed for the 1995 NCAA Convention, it recommends that the 1995 event be used instead as a forum for discussing the matter. If so, restructuring legislation likely would be considered at the 1996 Convention.

Playoff group meets with television executives

Members of the group charged with collecting information about the viability of a Division I-A football playoff met February 3-4 with representatives of the major television networks, plus Fox, Turner Broadcasting and ESPN.

The research group has scheduled another meeting February 21-22 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Those in the group are University of California, Los Angeles, Chancellor Charles E. Young; University of Oklahoma athletics director Donnie Duncan; NCAA Executive Director Cedric W. Dempsey, and Thomas W. Jernstedt, NCAA chief operating officer.

The research group will pass its findings on to a special committee. At its February 2 meeting, the NCAA Joint Policy Board authorized NCAA President Joseph N. Crowley and NCAA Presidents Commission Chair Judith E. N. Albino to appoint such a committee, probably in late March or early April.

Basketball shooting trends

It doesn't matter if you measure basketball shooting from the foul line or from the field or if the person doing the shooting is a man or a woman. All shooting percentages for Division I men and women for the last 11 years are in a slide.

Although declining free throw percentage has received abundant publicity the last two years (see the January 26 issue of The NCAA News), men's field goal percentage has fallen every year since 1989, and women's field goal percentage has dropped every year since 1986.

The 1994 figures in the accompanying tables represent totals through games of January 16.

Briefly in the News

Coach values her freedom

For many native-born Americans, freedom often finds itself clumped into a bundle that usually is taken for granted. But for Anh Dao Nguyen, women's tennis coach at San Jose State University, freedom is perhaps the most valuable of all of life's offerings; having it is a privilege, not a right.

Nguyen is from what once was South Vietnam, where in 1975, freedom was merely a notion. One night that year, while eavesdropping on a conversation between her parents, Nguyen learned something that put a lot of fear into her 12-year-old heart.

"I overheard my dad say to my mom that he would kill all the children, and then my mom and himself," Nguyen told the Oakland Tribune. "He said he would rather have us die that way than have the communists torture us."

"My dad had what he called his 'suicide gun.' We lived in what was a military camp. I grew up with tanks around me. You just kept thinking, 'When are they going to bomb you?' In one of our homes, we lived on the third floor of a building. We'd hear a noise, and we'd run down to the basement to hide."

Nguyen's father was a colonel in the South Vietnamese army, and with her father's status came a life of relative wealth. But even that did not make for a desirable life. Her family, having decided that communist rule was its nation's destiny, climbed on a ship and began the voyage to America.

"(In South Vietnam), we were like kings and queens," she said. "We were wealthy. I don't remember my mom doing the dishes. But I'd rather live poor and have my freedom than live in wealth and not have it."

A life saver

What began as an ordinary van ride from another meet to their campus in Easton, Pennsylvania, turned out to be a lifesaving trip for members of the Lafayette College men's and women's track teams.

The team was heading home January 15 after competing in the Colgate University Invitational when they noticed a man frantically waving his arms on Route 380 near Tobyhanna, Pennsylvania. The man, whose small child was choking and unable to breathe, got the attention of one of the Lafayette vans. Of the van's 10 occupants, only one person—Lafayette women's volleyball and track and field student-athlete Stacy Durbin—had the emergency-training skills to aid the child.

Another team member went to summon help while Durbin assessed the situation and began performing a variety of the Heimlich maneuver adapted for small children. Durbin successfully cleared the small girl's airway after she had stopped breathing for about 15 seconds. The child swallowed the object, which was believed to be a piece of hard candy.

"It didn't really hit me until I got back to campus," Durbin said. "I just did what I knew had to be done. I didn't have time to get upset. The dad offered to give me money but I said, 'Just send me a picture of (your daughter) when she feels better.'"

Durbin learned first-aid techniques for children last summer during her tenure as a recreation staff worker in her hometown of Oil City, Pennsylvania.

Living legacies

A new documentary on the lives and legacies of four prominent African-American sports figures has been produced and syndedicated nationally this month in recognition of Black History Month.

"Foundations of a Legacy" is a one-hour piece hosted by ESPN's Robin Roberts that profiles Eddie Robinson, Grambling State University football coach; Leroy T. Walker, president of the United States Olympic Committee; Clarence "Big House" Gaines, former men's basketball coach at Winston-Salem State University, and John McClendon, regarded as the pioneer of basketball's fast-break and four-corners offensive schemes.

"(It's) a must-watch program," Roberts said. "I learned a lot. ESPN is the total sports network, and I think of myself as being very knowledgeable. I knew the basics, but after meeting these four men, I wanted to know the history."

The program is produced by Focus Marketing Inc.

"Foundations of a Legacy" is available on videotape for $19.99. Orders can be placed by calling 800/488-3883 or writing to "Foundations of a Legacy," 3342 Melrose Avenue N.W., Roanoke, Virginia 24017.

Facilities

Kiel Center, the new 18,500-seat sports and entertainment arena currently under construction in downtown St. Louis that will be home to the St. Louis University men's basketball team, now is slated to open ahead of schedule—in time for the start of the 1994-95 season. The 12-story facility also will be used by the St. Louis Blues ice hockey team and the St. Louis Ambush indoor soccer team.

The board of trustees of Franklin and Marshall College has authorized construction of a new athletics facility on the college's north campus. Groundbreaking ceremonies were December 8. The 54,000-square-foot fieldhouse portion of the complex will feature an all-purpose synthetic floor that will accommodate five courts for tennis, volleyball or basketball and a six-lane, 200-meter indoor track. The facility also will house a fitness center, an aerobics/dance area and a suspended 15-foot-wide walking/jogging track. An aquatics center with a 50-meter by 25-yard pool and a two-story spectators gallery will be built along with the fieldhouse. Total cost of the construction project is estimated at $12.7 million.

The University of North Texas broke ground January 27 for an expansion of Fouts Field. The institution is adding 10,500 seats to the stadium in preparation for a move to Division I-A in 1995. Once completed, seating capacity will be 30,500.

Fact file

A total of 59 institutions won NCAA team championships in 1992-93, and 13 of them won more than one. Topping the lists in all divisions was Stanford, with four (men's golf, Division I men's swimming, Division I women's swimming, Division I women's volleyball). Institutions with three team titles were Arkansas and Louisiana State in Division I, Abilene Christian in Division II, and Kenyon and Wisconsin-La Crosse in Division III. The seven institutions winning two each were North Carolina and Virginia in Division I; Adams State and Cal State Bakersfield in Division II, and Central (Iowa), Cortland State and Lincoln (Pennsylvania) in Division III.

Wilkinson provided lessons both on, off football field

By Ronald D. Mott
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Prentice Gautt always will remember Bud Wilkinson as more than just a football coach. He will remember Wilkinson as more than just the man behind the outstanding football teams at the University of Oklahoma in the mid-1940s, 1950s and early 1960s.

To former Sooner running back Gautt, Wilkinson is nothing short of an icon who played a major role in his life.

Wilkinson, the coach who built Oklahoma into a national power and guided the Sooners to three wire-service national championships and a record 47-game winning streak, died February 9 of congestive heart failure in St. Louis at the age of 77. He recently underwent surgery to repair a heart defect.

"People knew this man as a football coach," said Gautt, associate commissioner of the Big Eight Conference and NCAA secretary-treasurer. "But his essence transcended more than that for me. As I think back, this guy was a confidant, father figure, a person who I have never heard use abusive language. He treated all of his players the same way—with dignity."

Unique bond

While many players develop strong relationships with their coaches that last a lifetime, Gautt's relationship with Wilkinson went a step beyond. The two had a unique bond that grew out of a unique situation. Gautt was the first black player to play football at Oklahoma, lettering in 1957, 1958 and 1959.

With the racial climate as it was in the late 1950s, Gautt's presence at Oklahoma was met with acrimony and resistance by fans and even some Sooner players.

But Wilkinson, being the kind of coach and man that he was, found a way to help bridge the gap that he noticed developing within his football team.

Gautt recalled the afternoon that Wilkinson halted practice and addressed the issue.

"He blew the whistle and brought everybody in and told us, 'There is something wrong here. If any of you are what I think you are as men with a backbone, you'll say something.'"

"At first, I felt a little uncomfortable. Guys started popping up and saying to me things they were saying about me behind my back. There were some hugs and that kind of thing. I don't think I've ever seen a coach do this."

Expected excellence

That, Gautt said, was classic Wilkinson. Gautt said his coach made it quite clear from the beginning of his unprecedented arrival at Oklahoma that he expected nothing but excellence from Gautt.

"I think he was very sensitive to that," Gautt said. "The spring of my freshman year...he called me in one day before practice. I admit I was not putting out my best, and he said, 'If you continue as you are, you are not going to make our travel squad.'"

"It almost shocked me. I know he had never told anyone that. It was like he wanted me to do well. I would spend Wednesdays talking to him as if it were my time on the couch."

Gautt didn't let Wilkinson down. He led Oklahoma in rushing in 1958 and 1959 and was named most valuable player of the 1959 Orange Bowl, in which the Sooners hammered Syracuse University, 21-6. He became an all-American and was a two-time all-Big Eight and academic all-American selection.

Wilkinson was not known as a man who sat on his laurels. He never stopped trying to motivate his players to be their very best.

And his players responded. He coached 32 all-Americans during 17 seasons at Oklahoma, from 1947 to 1963. Wilkinson's teams were 145-29-4 during that stretch—including a winning streak unrivaled to this day that began with a 19-14 victory over rival University of Texas at Austin in the third

Six challenges confronting SWAs

By Marilyn McNeil

CALIFORNIA POLYTECHNIC STATE UNIVERSITY,
SAN LUIS OBISPO

The senior woman administrator originally was created as a category in the governance system to assure participation of women in NCAA procedures. It now is defined by the NCAA as the "highest ranking administrator involved with the conduct of a member institution's intercollegiate athletics program."

The National Association of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators (NACWAA) is committed to defining this position and describing this person. In my own recent research, I found rich information and detail about our college SWAs. The NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, with its soon-to-be-released SWA survey, will serve to foster even more understanding of the ever-important SWA.

But for the moment, the SWA faces six challenges.

Her first challenge. She must move beyond a category. Her birth was a fourth mailbox for the NCAA mailings. She must become a deliverer of the NCAA mail, not just a receptacle.

Her second challenge. She must change the statistics of the NCAA. R. Vivian Acosta and Linda Jean Carpenter continue to relate the bad news! Almost 28 percent of women's programs have no females involved in their administration. Eighty-three percent of women's programs have males as athletics directors, the same percentage as existed 10 years ago. Thirty-two percent of NCAA programs have not identified a senior woman administrator.

Her third challenge. She must be meaningfully involved in issues that affect women in athletics. SWA does not mean Superior Workmanlike Attitude. Being an SWA does not automatically pronounce you as the superior form-filler-outer! The SWA is too often involved in the back end of women's issues, reporting the gender inequity. She must be involved in the front end, when decisions are being made. What do those decisions about policy mean to gender and to gender equity? Not "my gosh, we've screwed up...look at this report...now, how can we make this right!"

Her fourth challenge. To become the primary interface in all issues affecting women's Clearinghouse needed for everybody?

The guest editorial by B. J. Skelton in the January 26 issue of The NCAA News was helpful in dispelling some of the misconceptions that have arisen concerning the NCAA Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse.

schools and member institutions when dealing with instances in which there might be some question as to a prospective student's eligibility.

However, why should a young man or woman who has SAT scores totaling 1200, has a secondary-school grade-point average of 3.500 in core courses and is paying the total cost of his or her college education have to pay an additional $18 to verify eligibility?

□ Opinions

Life on the road always a danger

Charlie Spoonhour, men's basketball coach
St. Louis University

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

"It (winning on the road) is difficult. The reason is the home crowd. I'm not so sure the home crowd rattles the visitors as much as how it gets the home team going. Officials are like players. A roar is not going to bother them. They like the atmosphere.

"With travel being what it is now, teams are going longer distances. Basketball used to be regionalized. Now, we're going all over the globe. You can get into situations in which you're not ready to go or you're distracted. Teams are too similar, too close to each other that there's just not that doggone much difference. Everybody has players who can play. On a night when you're not ready to play and the other team is and has the home crowd behind it, you've got a mess."

Paying athletes

William C. Rhoden, columnist

The Sporting News

"Paying (college) players across the board won't work. Not now, not in the current climate of reform and cutbacks.

"My thinking is that a restricted form of revenue sharing — tied to bowl games and the Final Four — would be an effective first step.

"Under any system, graduating seniors on teams participating in bowl games would receive a percentage of the profits generated by the game — this would either be a percentage of the payout or a percentage of merchandise sold or a combination of both. Last year, bowl-related merchandise generated more than $10 million in sales.

"The key is that only graduating seniors will be eligible to receive the percentage share; if they graduate after their fifth year, the check will be waiting. Otherwise, they're out of luck — and eligibility.

"I'd use the same general plan for teams that reach the Final Four: Graduating seniors receive a percentage of the profits, whether from advertisements, tournaments or merchandising....

"Granted, this proposal doesn't solve the problem of stipends or players surviving from year to year. It also has a limited reach and a narrow focus: The plan rewards winning and players who graduate in four to five years."

14th basketball grant

Bob Knight, men's basketball coach
Indiana University, Bloomington

St. Petersburg Times

Discussing the Black Coaches Association's reaction to the NCAA not reinstating a 14th grant for Division I men's basketball teams:

"I would've preferred that complaints be aired under the banner of the National Association of Basketball Coaches, to which all of us belong. That would've made for bigger, better clout.

"What coach doesn't want the return of a 14th scholarship? What coach doesn't want a system that's fairer to all? Why get splinter groups involved? If we need a Black Coaches Association, do we also need a White Coaches Association, or maybe a Chinese Coaches Association?...

"Nobody's more for all our athletes than I am, but if there's no 14th scholarship for some black kid, he'll surely wind up at an NCAA Division II school. He'll still be offered an education.

"It is fact that not everybody is qualified to go to college. If I could've hit a curve ball, I would've played major-league baseball. But I couldn't, so I went elsewhere.

"I supported Proposition 48, which increased academic demands on athletes. We just cannot allow shooting a basketball or dribbling or jumping to be a part of our entrance exams....

"Not having a 14th scholarship is asinine, but we all know that athletics budgets are pulled in many directions. Money is the problem, and I've got ideas to ease the financial strain.

"Nonrevenue sports, which means everything but football and basketball, need restructuring. Why couldn't schools merge their men's and women's teams in track, tennis, golf, swimming and some other nonrevenue sports? You'd have one coaching staff instead of two. Equal number of athletes, male and female. They'd travel together and compete at the same time: men against men, women against women."

John Terry, writer

Chicago Tribune

"...There's a whole world of black nerds out there — kids who are good at math and science and history — who, athletically speaking, can't walk and chew gum at the same time. What justification is there for depriving these kids of scholarships in favor of those who jump, run and shoot better? How does it make sense to give preference — again, assuming your entire argument centers on the need to make college accessible to the children of the disadvantaged — to poor jocks as opposed to poor nonjocks with equal, and in many cases far better, academic credentials?

"What's happening, and what has been happening for a long time, is that needy students are being displaced by needy jocks. (And, of course, many of the latter aren't even needy, since in the conferring of most athletics scholarships no distinction is made between need and non-need, but only between athletics prowess and the lack of it.)"

Recruiting

John Chaney, men's basketball coach
Temple University

Los Angeles Times

"You've got to get players. I think the thing that gives you players, the thing that opens the doors in the homes of young people, (is) the fact that you're able to talk to them about something they're familiar with. They're familiar with having seen you on TV.

"(University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill coach) Dean Smith does not leave his door — and I know he doesn't leave his door. He's got assistant coaches out there working their tails off and the only thing he's got to do is get on a phone and say, 'Did you get the letter of intent?' That's all he's got to ask. He just mentions his name, 'This is Dean Smith.' That's all he's got to ask. He just mentions his name, he's a household word in this business.

"Any time a guy can come in at the 11th hour — the 11th hour — and who was not even in the picture and recruit the top recruit in the country...that does not happen because somebody is looking at the radio."

"One of the reasons some people don't support women in sport is that through sport we shatter into a million pieces the stereotypes portraying women as weak, helpless, dependent and passive."

"Whether it's your daughter or your son, you are going to expect the operating budget within their program to allow them to eat and travel properly. The Western Athletic Conference holds us accountable to play home and away, and the pink seats are not cheaper than the blue seats. That's important to understand.

"We're talking about the reasonable, fair and equitable treatment of student-athletes, and that's a different issue than income."

■ State legislation relating to college athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending before state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes of NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 31 bills from 16 states. The report includes 18 bills that have been introduced, and 13 pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (February 2 issue of The NCAA News. Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills identified by previous reports on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

The state legislation report is based largely on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of February 10, 1994. The bills selected for inclusion in this report were drawn from a larger pool of measures that concern sports and therefore do not necessarily represent all of the bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending before the governing bodies of the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on an on-line basis and are not included in this report.

The NCAA has not independently verified the accuracy or completeness of the information provided by Information for Public Affairs and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

The bills set forth below address the following subjects:

To be most effective, senior woman administrators must face challenges athletics and to fulfill the expectation of advocacy for women athletes and coaches. These are silent responsibilities and thusly described by one SWA: "Although I have no official duties overseeing the budget and scheduling, as the SWA, I must give input and get involved if there is a problem. Therefore, the SWA is a silent responsibility. You do a little bit of everything."

I found that SWAs described themselves as watchdogs, sensitizers, nurturers, integrators, placaters and consensus builders. The ideal SWA is a person who would "act as a safeguard for women and gender equity, monitor equity progress, be a spokeswoman in administrative meetings and have review rights for budget issues."

Her fifth challenge. This applies not so much to her but is instead a particular challenge for her female superior — that is, that uncommon, but highly qualified, female athletics director. They cannot be both the AD and the SWA.

Consider the SWA as one of the coaches. She must be focused and tunnel-visioned, perhaps a little ornery about what women need in athletics. She must continually put before decision-makers the considered opinions of how policies and decisions will affect women. Just as ADs would like to have football coaches consider how their wishes might affect the soccer program, we all know that doesn't happen. Football coaches, as all other coaches, must consider their programs first.

SWAs must consider women first. ADs must consider the whole program: football to diving, men to women, revenue to nonrevenue, academic all-Americans to academic risks, and so on. To ask the AD to be the SWA is compromising both positions and asking for mediocre performances from both.

Her sixth challenge. To erase the erroneous perception that senior woman administrators administer only women's programs. Not so. Many, if not all, in dual programs have oversight responsibilities for both men and women. This quote from one SWA describes the erroneous perception: "Some male coaches think I'm really biased toward women, and I am...but I don't treat the men unfairly. There is a faulty perception that women will work harder for women and will think only about them."

By the way, it's senior woman administrator, not women's administrator!

Why take the challenge seriously? Because the SWA is here to stay. As one of our interviewees so aptly said about the position: "It won't be able to phase out because equity will never be a no-questions-asked, no-holds-barred, 'here-it-is' thing. It will never be taken for granted."

New judging rules to alter gymnastics scoring

By Steven R. Hagwell
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Each year since 1988, the squad that has claimed the team title at the National Collegiate Women's Gymnastics Championships has done so in record-breaking fashion.

From the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, with a then-record score of 190.05 points in 1988 to the University of Georgia with a near-perfect score of 198.000 points in 1993, championships performances year after year have approached perfection—at least by the numbers.

That trend is likely to end in 1994.

It's not that this year's teams are not as capable; it simply is because this year's teams face much more stringent requirements.

Federation changes rules

Changes in Federation of International Gymnastics (FIG) rules used by the NCAA will increase skill-difficulty levels, lower the value of current skills and eliminate the principle of value-raising. The result is likely to be lower scores and a greater separation of teams.

"It's obvious that changes needed to be made," said Greg Marsden, women's gymnastics coach at the University of Utah. "The rules had become antiquated. The old system simply was not distinguishing between an excellent routine and one that was very good."

That should not be a concern this year.

Although a gymnast will begin a routine with a base score of 9.6 as in the past, she must perform more difficult skills to gain bonus points.

The most prominent change is the addition of an E value to the skill-difficulty level.

Under the old rules, gymnasts' skill levels were graded at a value from A to D, with D being superior. The addition of E as the superior value reduces the value of the other skills. Thus, gymnasts' skills that in the past have been valued at D are now valued at C, and so forth.

Record-setting team scores like the one the University of Utah tallied at the 1992 National Collegiate Women's Gymnastics Championships could become a thing of the past when rules changes that will increase skill-difficulty levels and lower the value of current skill take effect next season.

In addition, the elimination of value-raising dramatically will affect the awarding of bonus points. Under the principle of value-raising, a gymnast could perform two C level skills during a routine and the second C skill would be upgraded to a D value skill. That is no longer an option. Two C level skills will be judged at C, and so forth.

"All things being equal, under the old rules if two gymnasts had excellent execution, they were given the same score even if one routine was much more difficult. It's not like you could award extra, extra bonus points," said Debbie Yohman, women's gymnastics coach at the University of Pittsburgh and National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches (Women) representative to the Women's Technical Committee of USA Gymnastics. "I think judges will be able to separate performances more under the new rules."

Disagreement

Not everyone agrees with the changes. While agreeing that a separation of routines is needed, many coaches believe the old rules, with some fine-tuning, were adequate.

"The problem I see is that judges reward things that need not be rewarded," said Jim Gault, women's gymnastics coach at the University of Arizona. "I'm not sure judges are separating excellent from kind of excellent. It's kind of the way things have developed with the emphasis on team scores. I'm not saying the right teams don't win, but I think in some cases it's a little overdone by the judges. I agree that you can't keep things on an easy level, but I think we need to take a strong look at execution and how things are done and separate things that way."

Marsden says that was not possible under the old system. He offers the 1993 championships as an example. At those championships, 13 10s were recorded during team and individual competition. By comparison, before 1993 only one 10 was recorded in 11 championships.

"At our national championships it became a joke," he said. "We had a two-way tie on bars with 10s and a three-way on floor (exercise) with 10s, which is ridiculous. We can't have a situation where everyone scores 10. Everyone may love it, because it's easy. They get to say their team did this. But what did we accomplish? When rules aren't tough enough to distinguish between performers, it's time to change them."

International focus

Leah Little, women's gymnastics coach at the University of Kentucky and a member of the NCAA Women's Gymnastics Committee, agrees, but says the new changes aren't the answer. She believes the FIG rules are too extreme and that they were implemented without concern for collegiate gymnasts.

"The kids who are going to compete at the international level, that's who these changes are directed toward," she said. "(The FIG) is making upcoming kids do the same things as kids who are competing internationally. These changes are going to hurt college kids in that they don't have the time to train like elite gymnasts."

Little believes that the only way to protect collegiate gymnastics from similar changes in the future is by allowing collegiate coaches to govern the sport themselves. It's her belief that gymnastics needs a rules-making body like other NCAA sports.

"I have been a proponent of sport-specific legislation from the NCAA. I think we need it," she said. "There seems to be a small movement in that direction. The biggest problem we have is that women's gymnastics doesn't have a rules committee."

Marsden disagrees. He says coaches already have the ability to change rules through the NACGC and the NCAA Women's Gymnastics Committee.

"Why do we want to break away from (the FIG)?" he asked. "They're making rules that apply to international gymnastics. They do know gymnastics. The coaches association and the (NCAA) committee have watered down the rules and made them easier for kids. What more do you want? Why would we want to get into writing a rules book? In my opinion, we need to stay in the international body."

Marsden acknowledges the concerns of coaches opposed to the changes, but says the changes are for the good of the sport.

"Everybody is complaining about the changes because they're an adjustment," he said. "I think as time goes on everyone will get used to the new rules. I think they'll do what they were designed to do and that's allow judges to do a better job of evaluating performances through the championships process."

Division III basketball bracket to air February 27

Announcement of the field for the Division III Men's Basketball Championship will be broadcast live via satellite February 27.

The championship bracket will be aired at 7 p.m. (Central time). Satellite coordinates for the broadcast, which will originate from the studios of Public Broadcasting System affiliate KCPT-TV in Kansas City, Missouri, are Galaxy 7, Transponder 13.

The audio for the show will be on 6.2 and 6.8.

Championships corner

Division III baseball: The NCAA Division III Baseball Committee is soliciting bids from potential hosts for the NCAA Division III Baseball Championship in 1995 and beyond. Further information can be obtained from Thomas A. Jacobs, NCAA assistant director of championships, at the national office. The deadline for submission of bids is June 15. Potential hosts wishing to make in-person presentations can do so at the committee's annual meeting June 5-8 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Division I men's tennis: The Division I men's tennis subcommittee of the NCAA Men's and Women's Tennis Committee is soliciting bids from potential hosts of regional qualifying tournaments for the 1995 Division I Men's Tennis Championships. Further information can be obtained from Jacobs at the national office. The deadline for submission of bids is June 15.

Convention sets several voting records

The 1994 Convention in San Antonio rewrote the Convention voting records, except for one that was impossible to reach.

The records for total-membership vote and the records in every division and subdivision but one were bettered this year. The one exception couldn't be helped: Division I-A has an all-time record of 117 counted votes, and there were only 116 possible votes in that subdivision this year.

In fact, there weren't 117 when the record was set in 1992, either. It was a mistaken count. But it was recorded, so there it stands.

The San Antonio gathering recorded the seven highest counted votes of the total membership in Association history, topped by 809 on a resolution to study the idea of permitting five seasons of competition. There were five other votes that exceeded 800, the first time for any vote that high.

The old total-vote record was 796 a year earlier in Dallas.

In all, eight of the highest 10 counted votes in NCAA history occurred in San Antonio.

Before 1990, there had been only one counted vote of more than 700. And before that, the all-time record had been 641, set in 1984 on the unsuccessful proposal to establish an all-powerful Board of Presidents.

Appropriately, the NCAA Presidents Commission was established instead, and most of the record votes in the 1990s have come on roll-call (and thus guaranteed to be counted) votes mandated by the Commission.

The other voting records established in San Antonio:

■ Division I-AA: 119, three times. Those came on proposals dealing with a preseason football squad limit, Division I-AA football coaching limits, and official visits by football prospects. The old record of 96 was bettered every time this group voted because of the large number of institutions now classified in I-AA that used to be in I-AAA.

■ Division I: 331, proposal to prohibit scouting of opponents in basketball. The old record of 330, set in Nashville, Tennessee, in 1991, also was tied three times.

■ Division II: 216, proposal to deregulate the recruiting-materials legislation. The old record of 213, set a year earlier, also was tied once.

■ Division III: 276, proposal regarding the starting practice date in basketball in that division. The old record of 268 had been set in 1991, and it was bettered five other times and tied twice in San Antonio.

■ Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 1 January 20, 1994

Acting for the NCAA Council, the Interpretations Committee issued the following interpretations:

Amateurism/professional team

1. Professional team providing expenses to camp/clinic participants. It is permissible for a professional team or organization to provide financial donations and assist in the selection of participants (based in part on athletics ability) to attend a private camp/clinic (unrelated to a professional tryout) conducted on a member institution's campus under the following conditions:

a. The camp/clinic is part of a community outreach program not designed to evaluate the abilities of the participants.

b. The camp/clinic is conducted for individuals who have not started classes for the ninth grade.

c. The institution or any of its athletics department staff members are not involved in the conduct of the camp/clinic or in the selection of participants to attend the camp/clinic.

d. Camp/clinic participants do not receive in excess of actual and necessary expenses to attend the camp/clinic.

Tryouts

2. Observation of prospective student-athlete involved in individualized practice sessions. It is permissible for an institution's coach to observe a prospect participating in an individualized practice session with the prospect's coach only if such a session is part of the prospect's team's normal practice session. [References: 13.12.1 (tryouts—prohibited activities) and AdComm 7/16/85, item q]

Contact/telephone calls/recruiting

3. Contacting high-school coaches to organize unofficial visits for prospects who have not begun their junior year in high school (Divisions I and II). Inasmuch as an institution may not correspond with a prospect for purposes of recruitment until September 1 at the beginning of the prospect's junior year in high school, an institution's coach may not contact prospects' coaches for the purpose of inviting specific prospects who have yet to begin their junior year in high school to attend an institution's contest (with a complimentary admission). Further, an institution may not host a reception specifically organized for such prospects. The committee recommended that the Recruiting Committee review the issue of providing complimentary admissions to prospects who make unofficial visits to determine whether it wishes to propose legislation to preclude such admissions for prospects prior to September 1 at the beginning of their junior year in high school. 1994 Convention Proposal No. 70

4. Satisfactory progress—enrollment as full-time student during portion of term (Division I). For purposes of meeting satisfactory-progress requirements, a student-athlete who enrolls anytime during a term as a full-time student may use credit hours earned during that term when using either the "24 hour" and/or the "averaging" method. [References: 14.5.4 (eligibility requirements for competition) and new Bylaw 14.5.4.2 (part-time enrollment—Division I)]

1994 Convention Proposal No. 76

5. Issues related to 1994 Convention Proposal No. 76 (Division I). The committee reviewed the provisions of Proposal No. 76, effective August 1, 1994, and determined the following:

a. A student-athlete (in sports other than basketball) may compete as a member of an outside amateur team during an institution's official vacation period published in the institution's catalog that occurs prior to the completion of the institution's playing season but during an official vacation period that is not considered part of the institution's playing season [see 17.1.9(d)]. The committee recommended that the Legislative Review Committee incorporate this interpretation into the appropriate legislative provisions governing Division I student-athletes participating in outside competition.

b. When an institution's final examination period immediately precedes the institution's official vacation period as published in its catalog, a student-athlete may not compete outside the playing season as a member of an outside amateur team until the completion of the institution's final examination period (as opposed to the completion of the student-athlete's final exams).

[References: New Bylaw 14.8.1.1 (outside competition, sports other than basketball—exception), 17.1.1 (playing season), 17.1.9(d) (holiday, vacation, exam periods) and 17.3.5.3.2.1 (vacation-period exception)]

1994 Convention Proposal Nos. 105 and 106

6. Division I contest exemptions in the sport of basketball (Division I). The committee reviewed the application of Proposal Nos. 105 and 106 (contest exemptions—Division I basketball) and determined the following:

a. A Division I institution located outside of Hawaii that has used its once-in-four-years exemption against or under the sponsorship of an active Division II institution located in Hawaii during the 1992-93 or 1993-94 academic year is not permitted to exempt basketball contests against or under the sponsorship of an active Division II member located in Hawaii until four years have elapsed since the institution's previous participation against or under the sponsorship of an active Division II member located in Hawaii.

b. A Division I institution located outside of Hawaii that participated during the 1992-93 or 1993-94 academic year against or under the sponsorship of an active Division II member located in Hawaii may use any of the remaining exceptions set forth in 17.3.5.3.2.1 (i.e., San Juan Shootout, Preseason National Invitation Tournament, Alaska contests other than the Great Alaska Shootout) during the 1994-95 academic year, inasmuch as participation against or under the sponsorship of an active Division II member located in Hawaii no longer is included in that once-in-four-years cycle.

c. A Division I institution that has exempted contests in the Great Alaska Shootout during the 1992-93 or 1993-94 academic year has used its once-in-12-years exemption and, thus, is not permitted to exempt basketball contests in the Great Alaska Shootout until 12 years have elapsed since the institution's previous participation in that event.

d. A Division I institution that participated during the 1992-93 or 1993-94 academic year in the Great Alaska Shootout may use any of the remaining exceptions set forth in 17.3.5.3.2.1 (i.e., San Juan Shootout, Pre-

■ Compliance briefs

General information

Post-Convention meeting. The 1994 NCAA annual post-Convention meeting for Division I conference administrators was conducted February 10-11 in Kansas City, Missouri. The format of the meeting was streamlined to allow the NCAA legislative services staff to concentrate primarily on a review and discussion of 1994 Convention legislation and related interpretations. The meeting also included updates on athletics certification, coaches certification, the initial-eligibility clearinghouse and the legislative services database/CompuServe.

Coaches certification. The NCAA coaches-certification task force recently completed work on three practice tests and answer keys. The practice tests are intended to serve as rules-education tools for member conferences and institutions, and study guides for coaches preparing for the 1994-95 coaches certification examination.

Copies of the practice tests will be mailed to Divisions I, II and selected Division III conferences during the upcoming weeks. Questions concerning the tests or the coaches-certification program should be addressed to Garnett H. Purnell or Athena Yiamouyiannis of the compliance services and legislative services staffs, respectively.

The 1994-95 coaches-certification program, including certification procedures, recruiting examinations, answer keys, Scranton sheets and other materials, is scheduled for distribution to Divisions I, II and selected Division III commissioners February 28.

Faculty athletics representative materials. Carla Hay, the chair of the Faculty Athletics Representatives Association (FARA), mailed resource materials to recently appointed faculty athletics representatives to assist in their orientation to their new positions. Other faculty athletics representatives who would like to receive the material, which was mailed November 24, should contact the compliance services staff at the NCAA national office.

Graduation-rates disclosure form. The 1994 graduation-rates disclosure form (94-6a) is due at the national office no later than March 8, 1994.

Upcoming meetings

College Football Association (CFA). NCAA national office members from the compliance services, enforcement and legislative services staffs will be involved in four CFA regional recruiting seminars. The seminars will be conducted February 28 in Atlanta; March 1 in Baltimore/Washington; March 7 in Kansas City, Missouri, and March 8 in Dallas. The sessions are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 4 p.m. The tentative agenda includes updates on newly adopted legislation, enforcement restructuring, compliance services, the initial-eligibility clearinghouse and the coaches-certification program. A portion of the agenda also includes roundtable discussions, as well as a discussion concerning the recruiting coordinator. Last year's seminars attracted representatives from 59 CFA member institutions, plus 17 Division I-AA football institutions and conferences.

Attention—financial aid administrators. Representatives of the NCAA compliance services and legislative services staffs will be participating in the following February regional association meeting: Southern Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (SASFAA) in Orlando, Florida, February 22. NCAA staff participants are scheduled to provide an overview of NCAA financial aid legislation and a demonstration of the Compliance Assistant software program (and its ability to apply NCAA rules and generate the squad list) from 1:45 to 3 p.m. February 22. The discussion will focus primarily on Divisions I and II financial aid legislation.

This material was provided by the NCAA compliance services staff as an aid to member institutions and conference offices. Institutions or conference offices with questions or issues regarding the content addressed in this column may contact John H. Leavens, assistant executive director for compliance services, at the NCAA national office.

game of the 1953 season and ended four seasons later with a 7-0 loss to the University of Notre Dame in 1957.

His Sooners finished as the No. 1-ranked team in the nation in 1950, 1955 and 1956.

'Made this what it is'

Said former Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer, who also coached wire-service national champions at the school: "He made this (Oklahoma football) what it is. I think he was truly not only a great coach, but a fine gentleman and a guy who touched a lot of people's lives."

After leaving Oklahoma in 1963, Wilkinson ran an unsuccessful campaign for a U.S. Senate seat in 1964. He returned to coaching in 1976 with the St. Louis Cardinals, where he remained for less than two seasons before being replaced.

Wilkinson is a member of National Football Coaches Hall of Fame and was the first director of the President's Physical Fitness Council. The football dormitory at Oklahoma is named in Wilkinson's honor.

Men's, women's soccer differ in injury-rate patterns

Injury Surveillance System report also covers fall sports of football, field hockey, volleyball

Men's and women's soccer are showing slightly varying injury patterns, according to a report of 1993-94 fall sports injuries from the NCAA's Injury Surveillance System (ISS).

In the women's game, the practice-injury rate of 6.4 injuries per 1,000 athlete-exposures remained higher than the eight-year average of 8.2 injuries, while the game-injury rate of 15.5 was well below the eight-year average of 16.5. The upper leg was the most commonly injured body part, followed by the knee and the ankle.

Men's soccer showed one-year practice- and game-injury rates (4.6 and 18.7, respectively) that were below the sport's eight-year averages of 4.8 for practices and 20.1 for games. In contrast to the women's game, the ankle was the most common body part injured, followed by the upper leg and the knee.

Meanwhile, football showed practice-, game- and overall-injury rates that were higher than both the previous year's values and the sport's 10-year averages.

In particular, the sport's game-injury data have shown a cyclical trend over this 10-year time period (see accompanying charts).

As has been true in each of the 10 years in which data have been recorded, knees and ankles are the two most common body parts injured.

Women's volleyball recorded slight increases in the previous year's practice-, game- and overall-injury rates, pushing the 1993-94 values above the sport's 10-year averages. Ankles (29 percent) and knees (12 percent) accounted for the majority of injuries reported.

Both the practice- and game-injury rates for field hockey were higher than the eight-year averages. The game rate was similar to the previous year's value, which was the highest recorded in the sport in four years.

The upper leg, knee and ankle continue to be the most common body parts injured.

The survey, conducted as part of the ISS, provides a base line of injury data from a national sampling. Researchers should be cautious when comparing the results with injury data from other studies.

"No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics-injury literature," said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences. "Therefore, the information contained in this summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the ISS."

The ISS was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics. Injury data are collected yearly from a representative sample of NCAA member institutions and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The committee's goal continues to be reducing injury rates through suggested changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques, based on data provided by the ISS.

Sampling

Exposure and injury data were submitted weekly by athletics trainers from institutions selected to represent a cross-section of the NCAA membership. The cross-section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and the four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions.

Dick said it is important to note that this system does not identify every injury that occurs at NCAA institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross-section of NCAA institutions.

Exposures

An athlete-exposure (A-E) is one athlete participating in one practice or game in which he or she is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury. For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury in the ISS is defined as one that:

- Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game, and
- Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and
- Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation or performance for one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Injury rate

An injury rate is a ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete-exposures in that category. This value is then multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete-exposures. For example, six reportable injuries during a period of 563 athlete exposures would give an injury rate of 10.7 injuries per 1,000 athlete exposures [(six divided by 563) times 1,000].

Additional information on the report is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

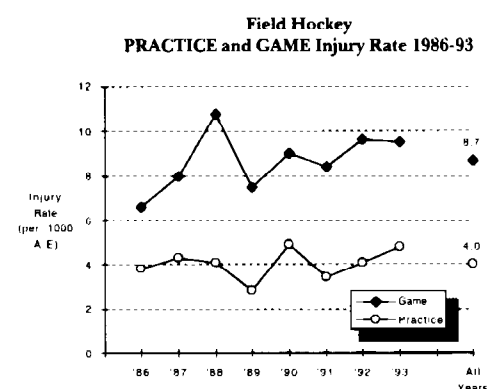

The accompanying tables highlight selected information from the fall 1993 Injury Surveillance System. When appropriate, injury rates and game-practice percentages are compared to an average value calculated from all years in which ISS data have been collected in a specific sport.

Convention roll-call votes

This is a summary of 43 of the 86 roll-call votes that were conducted at the 1994 NCAA Convention in San Antonio. The votes published below include Proposal Nos. 11 through 30 (except for proposals that were withdrawn or not moved for consideration).

Each column represents a roll-call vote at the Convention. The number at the head of each column is the proposal number. Where letters are indicated, the reference is to parts of multipart proposals included in that vote. Proposals considered in more than one division business session are reported in separate columns labeled by division.

A summary of the other 43 roll-call votes—involving Proposal Nos. 31 through 53 and Proposal No. 174—will be published in the February 23 issue of The NCAA News.

Following are descriptions of the proposals included in this issue of the News.

Proposals

No. 11: Establish a principle of gender equity in the Association's principles for the conduct of intercollegiate athletics. Sponsored by the NCAA Council and Presidents Commission. General business session.

No. 12: Establish maximum financial aid limits in emerging sports for women and permit institutions to utilize the emerging sports in order to meet the Association's minimum sports-sponsorship and financial aid award criteria. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. Divisions I-A, I-AA, I, II and III business sessions.

No. 12-1: Amend No. 12 to preclude Division II institutions from utilizing emerging sports to meet minimum sports-sponsorship requirements. Sponsored by the Council. Division II business session.

No. 13: Resolution directing a special committee, after appropriate review and dialogue, to present what it deems to be the most acceptable models of membership structure for review, reaction and possible action at the 1995 Convention and for final action no later than the 1996 Convention. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. General business session.

No. 14: Create a three-year provisional-membership category for prospective NCAA member institutions. Sponsored by the Council. General business session.

No. 15: Establish a two-year notification requirement for institutions that intend to reclassify from Division II to Division I; exclude those institutions from eligibility for any NCAA Division II championship, and exempt from this legislation institutions that petition not later than June 1, 1994, to reclassify from Division II to Division I, effective not later than September 1, 1995, provided the exempted institutions are not eligible for Division II championships during the transition period. Sponsored by the Gulf South Conference. Division II business session.

No. 16: A resolution directing the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism to prepare legislative proposals for the 1995 Convention involving need-based financial aid models under which student-athletes could receive athletics grants for tuition and fees and financial assistance awarded solely on the basis of need for room and board, books, supplies and indirect costs, which could not exceed the cost of attendance. Sponsored by the Council and 10 member institutions. General business session; Divisions I and II members voting.

No. 16-1: Amend No. 16 to direct that the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism report on the issue of need-based financial aid at the 1995 Convention and prepare appropriate legislation for action no later than the 1996 Convention. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. General business session; Divisions I and II members voting.

No. 17: Permit student-athletes in Divisions I and II to engage in five seasons of intercollegiate competition within the five-year/10-semester eligibility period; delete legislation related to the hardship waiver and season-of-competition waiver; permit partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers to participate in not more than four seasons of competition in Division I and five seasons in Division II, and specify that partial qualifiers and nonqualifiers who have exhausted four seasons of competition in Division I shall not be eligible for further seasons of competition in Division II. Sponsored by 12 member institutions. Divisions I-A, I-AA, I, II and general business sessions.

No. 18: A resolution directing the Council to conduct a study of all issues involved in permitting student-athletes to participate in five seasons of intercollegiate competition, and to prepare appropriate legislation for consideration at the 1995 Convention. Sponsored by eight member institutions. General business session.

No. 19: Revise the Association's legislative calendar by establishing later submission and publication dates for legislative proposals. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission; all members of the Metro Atlantic Athletic, Missouri Valley and Pacific-10 Conferences and the Patriot League, and five other member institutions. General business session.

No. 20: A resolution directing the Council and Presidents Commission to study the concepts of establishing a biennial Convention or biennial legislative Convention, including the potential cost savings to the Association and the NCAA membership, as well as the interest of the Association's member institutions and conferences in this concept. The resolution also directs that legislation based upon the results of this study be proposed, if appropriate, for the 1995 Convention. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. General business session.

No. 21: Specify that in major infractions, the NCAA Committee on Infractions may refer a case or part of a case to an independent hearing officer, who will review disputed facts concerning any alleged violation and present findings of fact to the committee. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. General business session.

No. 22: Reduce from 75 percent to 62.5 percent the amount of satisfactory-progress credit hours that a student-athlete must earn during the regular academic year, and to increase from 25 percent to 37.5 percent the amount of satisfactory-progress credit hours that a student may earn during the summer. Sponsored by 10 Division I members. Division I business session.

No. 23: Establish travel-squad limitations for regular-season varsity competition in Divisions I and II when an overnight stay or air travel is involved. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 23-1: Amend No. 23 to increase the proposed travel-squad size limitations. Sponsored by the Ivy Group. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 23-2: Amend No. 23 to increase the proposed travel-squad limitations in men's and women's basketball from 12 to 13. Sponsored by the Council. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 23-3: Amend No. 23 to permit an unlimited number of players to travel on one spring-break trip conducted during the traditional segment when classes are not in session. Sponsored by the Ivy Group. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 23-5: Amend No. 23 to permit two additional student-athletes to travel when an away trip involves more than one contest date in the sports of baseball, field hockey, ice hockey, soccer and softball. Sponsored by the Ivy Group. Divisions I and II business sessions.

No. 24: Eliminate off-campus, in-person scouting of opponents in Divisions I-A and I-AA football and Divisions I basketball. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. Divisions I-A, I-AA and I business sessions.

No. 27: Specify that a restricted-earnings coach in Division I basketball shall not have been employed previously as a head or assistant basketball coach in Division I and that the individual shall complete the period of employment as a restricted-earnings coach within three calendar years of the date of initial employment in the position. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. Division I business session.

No. 27-1: Amend No. 27 to specify that a restricted-earnings coach in Division I basketball shall complete the period of employment as a restricted-earnings coach within five calendar years of the initial date of employment in such a position. Sponsored by 12 Division I institutions. Division I business session.

No. 28: Stipulate that all athletics department staff members in Divisions I and II annually must receive prior written approval from the institution's chief executive officer for all athletically related income and benefits from sources outside the institution; also, specify that the staff member's report of the amount and the source of the income be in writing. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. Divisions I, I-A and II business sessions.

No. 30: In Divisions I-A and I-AA football, specify that all recruiting-coordination functions (except routine clerical tasks) shall be performed by the head coach or one or more countable assistant coaches. Sponsored by the Council and Presidents Commission. Divisions I-A and I-AA business sessions.

Volleyball format finalized

The NCAA Division III Women's Volleyball Committee spent most of its annual meeting February 7-10 in Kansas City, Missouri, finalizing details of a new proposed format for the 1994 Division III Women's Volleyball Championship.

The committee will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that the country be realigned from six to eight regions—a proposal that was endorsed by the membership last fall. The 1994 championship field would consist of eight regional brackets with four teams per region. Teams would be seeded within regions, with consideration given to geographical proximity with regard to hosting. There would be no automatic qualification into the 1994 championship bracket.

Eight regional winners would advance to the quarterfinal round at four on-campus sites November 18-19. After taking Thanksgiving weekend off, the tournament would resume with the championship semifinals and final December 2-3 on the campus of a participating institution.

Last year's championship was the first with the expanded bracket of 32 teams. Regions were formed on the basis of the alignment of conferences, the number of teams within a region, geographical concerns and parity of strength between regions.

Two coaches, university reprimanded

Southwest Conference Commissioner Steven J. Hatchell issued public reprimands to Texas Tech University and head men's basketball coach James Dickey and censured Texas A&M University, College Station, basketball coach Tony Barone in the wake of a scuffle after a February 5 game between the teams at Texas Tech.

In a related matter, two Texas Tech basketball fans filed a lawsuit February 14 against Barone and three Texas A&M players, alleging "wanton, willful and malicious" attacks during the confrontation that erupted as the Aggies were leaving the court after the game.

Hatchell admonished Texas Tech for having "inadequate crowd-control procedures to ensure protection for the visiting team." Dickey was reprimanded for his postgame conduct relative to the officials.

The commissioner also censured Barone, who "while protecting his team and staff from abusive fans, should have confined his

Louisville's Crum elected to hall of fame

Three coaches—including Denny Crum of the University of Louisville—and two players have been elected to the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame and will be inducted May 9 in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Joining Crum as honorees will be coaches Chuck Daly of the New Jersey Nets and Cesare Rubini of the Simmenthal Club of Milan, Italy, and players Carol Blazejowski of Montclair State College and Harry "Buddy" Jeannette, a star in the old National and American Basketball Leagues.

Blazejowski, Crum, Daly and Rubini won election in their first year as nominees; Jeannette has been nominated in the past. Rubini is the third-ever inductee from the International Screening Committee—the first-ever coach—while Blazejowski's selection came from the recently formed Women's Screening Committee. Jeannette was nominated from the Veterans Committee.

In the history of college basketball, only John Wooden and Dean Smith have coached more NCAA Final Four teams than Louisville's Crum, who has taken the Cardinals to six Final Fours (1972, 1975, 1980, 1982, 1983 and 1986). Crum, who led Louisville to NCAA Division I championships in 1980 and 1986, also was an assistant coach under Wooden at the University of California, Los Angeles, for three NCAA titles.

Crum's 518-192 record includes 13 straight 20 or more-victory seasons (18 overall) and three seasons of 30 or more victories.

Blazejowski is the most prolific scorer in women's basketball history, ranking second overall in the college game behind only Pete Maravich. Known as "The Blaze," she tallied 3,199 points during her career at Montclair State College from 1974 to 1978.

The first-ever recipient of the Wade Trophy as the women's basketball player of the year, Blazejowski was a three-time all-

American selection.

Daly coached the Detroit Pistons to back-to-back National Basketball Association championships and also coached the 1992 U.S. Olympic team before taking over as head coach of the Nets. He also served stints as head coach at Boston College and the University of Pennsylvania, and he played at St. Bonaventure University and Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania.

Jeannette, perhaps professional basketball's premiere backcourt player from 1938 to 1948, played collegiate basketball at Washington and Jefferson College. He also coached for four seasons at Georgetown University.

■ Presidents Commission ethical-behavior report

Following is the report of the NCAA Presidents Commission Advisory Committee on Ethical Behavior in College Athletics, which was approved by the Presidents Commission at its January meeting in San Antonio.

The advisory committee, chaired by President Eamon M. Kelly and including seven other members of the Presidents Commission and three representatives of the athletics community, met November 29 in Dallas and reviewed its charge:

■ To recommend to the Commission in January 1994 specific short-term actions that might be taken to address concerns regarding sportsmanship and proper conduct in intercollegiate athletics, including sports other than football.

Subsequently the committee adopted this document in fulfillment of that charge, and it hereby submits these recommendations and comments to the Presidents Commission.

Defining the problem

Unsportsmanlike conduct, violence, and lack of respect and civility, in a broad sense, represent an offense against a civilized society and a deterioration of our status as a people. More specifically, such practices are contrary to the essence of a university, which is to foster education and reason. Good sportsmanship must be an integral part of every sport sponsored under the aegis of a university because it is part of the educational process. The ethical environment of a university must assert and reflect the primacy of human dignity, must encourage growth and achievement, and must insist on respect in all interpersonal relations. (See "The Leadership Compass: Values and Ethics in Higher Education," ASHE-ERIC Higher Education Report No. 1, 1992, The George Washington University.)

More specifically, facets of the current problem in intercollegiate athletics include the following:

■ Coaches—treatment of student-athletes, control of players' actions, attitude toward officials, effects on crowd behavior, use of profane and vulgar language, encouragement of disrespectful attitude toward opponents (e.g., intimidation).

■ Fans—use of profane and vulgar language, treatment of opponents, treatment of officials.

■ Student-athletes—fighting, taunting, trash-talking, profane and vulgar language, inappropriate "celebrations," disrespectful attitude toward opponents.

■ Institutional administrators—lack of policies and enforcement thereof to assure control in these areas.

The need for a change in philosophy has been cited increasingly, including a recent statement in that regard by the College Football Association.

Recommended short-term solutions

The Presidents Commission is most effective when it identifies problems and suggests appropriate policies to deal with those problems, leaving consideration of detail to the appropriate constituent entities. Toward that end, the advisory committee suggests that the Commission call on the following to address possible solutions as indicated:

Institutions (chief executive officers and other institutional administrators)

1. University presidents and chancellors should assume the responsibility to ensure that each institution adopts a comprehensive policy and code of ethics governing appropriate conduct by all persons involved in its intercollegiate athletics program, including fans. All such persons should be made aware of the policies, which should be published in appropriate campus publications, including the student newspaper and the game programs. The chief executive officer and the athletics director at each institution should assure that all parties understand that violations of the provisions of the policy are not acceptable.

2. University presidents and chancellors should take the responsibility for hiring athletics administrators and coaches who have a philosophy consistent with the policy and code of ethics specified in Item No. 1 above, and assessment of their adherence to that philosophy should be included in the evaluation of their performance. All coaches in all sports should be expected to teach student-athletes to respect their opponents. Teaching or tolerance of intimidation tactics, celebratory acts that demean the opponent, use of inappropriate language regarding opponents and similar abusive behavior is unacceptable.

3. The director of athletics and other institutional officials, with appropriate assistance from the head coach of the sport involved, should be expected to control all aspects of event management at the institution, including crowd behavior and the logistical considerations affecting crowd behavior. Printed and oral announcements in advance of an event, and public-address announcements when inappropriate conduct occurs during an event, should be used consistently by the appropriate officials of the institution.

4. Institutional officials should assure that all students involved in athletics activities—including student-athletes, band members, cheerleaders, mascots and students as fans—are informed of the acceptable behavior that is expected of them as students at that institution and are expected to demonstrate such behavior.

The NCAA and its appropriate organizational entities

1. Each NCAA sports committee with rules-making responsibilities should be directed to develop within the playing rules appropriate sanctions for any participant in that sport who engages in a fight in connection with competition. If fighting is to be eliminated from college athletics, there must be constant, consistent and considerable penalties. In addition, representatives of the rules committees in the various sports should confer to determine if there is a way to achieve comparability or equity in such sanctions among the various sports (e.g., current basketball rules specify that a player ejected by an official specifically for fighting is suspended for the next game as well, and a second incident of being ejected for fighting results in suspension for the rest of that season).*

2. Each sports committee with rules-making responsibilities should be directed to review all current rules and the need for more stringent rules regarding inappropriate and abusive behavior in competition in that sport, including not only fighting, but other forms of improper conduct within the rubric set forth in this document in defining the problem.

3. The NCAA Committee on Infractions should be asked to comment on desirable steps to broaden and increase the application of the existing ethical-conduct legislation in the NCAA Manual (i.e., Bylaws 10, 11.1 and 19.01.1); e.g., could repeated violations of proper-conduct standards be construed as a major violation for purposes of the NCAA enforcement procedures?

4. The NCAA Executive Committee and the NCAA Communications Committee should be asked to consider funding and developing a public-information program in which announcements would be made during televised athletics contests to promote the concepts of sportsmanship, proper competitive conduct and respect for opponents. The support of the networks, their announcers and event sponsors should be solicited in this regard.

Conferences and officiating organizations

1. As noted in Item No. 1 in the preceding section, there must be constant, consistent and considerable penalties if fighting is to be eliminated from college athletics. While the rules committees can establish appropriate penalties—and are encouraged in these recommendations to do so—their constant and consistent application rests with the officials of the contests involved. Therefore, all officiating organizations are urged to join in the review of existing rules and the evaluation of more stringent rules regarding inappropriate behavior in the sports in which they are involved. Such organizations should recommend to the rules-making committees any adjustments in the rules that they believe would be effective.

2. The Collegiate Commissioners Association and any other conferences involved in assigning and supervising officials should instruct their officiating supervisors to support officials steadfastly in applying any and all rules to assure good sportsmanship and appropriate competitive behavior. In sports in which there is a national officiating coordinator, all conferences or other entities that supervise officials should insist that the coordinator is supported in the effort to assure that the rules in these areas are applied as consistently and continuously as is possible within the other responsibilities of officiating the contest involved.

3. In addition to suggesting possible rules changes to the rules committees, officiating organizations should be asked to recommend to the Presidents Commission other actions that might be taken to aid in developing proper respect for and treatment of officials by all parties involved in intercollegiate athletics.

Coaches associations

Each coaches association affiliated with the NCAA should be asked to submit to the Presidents Commission ideas for addressing the problems identified in this document as they relate to the sport involved.

Timetable

The committees and organizations that are being asked herein to submit recommendations and suggestions to the Presidents Commission should do so by June 1994, in time for the Commission's meeting late that month. Any entity that does not believe it can comply with that timetable should request an extension from the Commission and propose a date by which it would be ready to submit its recommendations.

Longer-term actions

The advisory committee believes that the problems identified in this document—fighting, abusive behavior, erosion of good sportsmanship, increasing acceptance and even glorification of violence—are eroding public confidence in athletics to the extent that the value of sport in society, not to mention its proper role in higher education, is in question. On a long-range basis, it behooves the NCAA to take a leadership role in addressing these increasingly serious problems. Toward that end, the advisory committee suggests the following:

1. The Presidents Commission and the NCAA Council should reemphasize their commitment to the integrity and sportsmanship project that has been identified in the Commission's strategic plan as the primary topic between now and the 1996 NCAA Convention. The Commission and the Council should express their unwavering support for that project, and they should assure that the project itself addresses the basic philosophical questions regarding the components of integrity that are necessary to position athletics properly as a part of higher education.

2. As one means of providing appropriate leadership in this area, the committee that will direct the integrity and sportsmanship project should collect and analyze institutional policies and codes of ethics governing proper conduct by those in athletics and develop a suggested common set of values for institutions to incorporate in developing such policies and codes.

3. The NCAA should expand and emphasize its involvement in the National Sportsmanship Committee, which, in turn, should raise the level of both the dialogue and the representation in that committee. The National Sportsmanship Committee involves collegiate, professional and high-school organizations, and if it operates at the appropriate executive level, it offers an opportunity to treat these concerns holistically and consistently at all levels of competition.

PRESIDENTS COMMISSION ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON ETHICAL BEHAVIOR IN COLLEGE ATHLETICS

*As examples, the advisory committee asks if it would be appropriate, under certain circumstances, to (1) specify that a contest will be terminated if fighting occurs, or to (2) specify that a head coach will be suspended for one game if any student-athletes under the coach's charge leave the bench area to engage in fighting on the field of play. A second violation might bring suspension for the remainder of the season. Similar penalties on the head coach might be considered for any violation of bench decorum in basketball (by any individual in the bench area, for example). Some form of suspension might be considered for any basketball coach who is called for more than a certain number of technical fouls during a season. Finally, institutions might consider permanent suspension or termination of a coach who repeatedly is involved in instances of inappropriate conduct.

Temple president suspends Chaney for postgame outburst

Temple University suspended men's basketball coach John Chaney for one game February 14, one day after an emotional outburst at a news conference in which he was heard by news reporters to threaten University of Massachusetts, Amherst, basketball coach John Calipari.

Chaney apologized for the incident, which occurred after Temple's 56-55 loss to Massachusetts, but Temple President Peter J. Liacouras still suspended Chaney from a February 16 game at St. Bonaventure University.

"Coach Chaney overstepped the line this time," Liacouras said in a statement. "I believe the university must pursue the highest standards in competition, and even his (Chaney's) sincere apology, he agrees, is insufficient in these circumstances."

Liacouras added, "Coach Chaney should steer clear of these emotional encounters after such an emotional game. No basketball game is a life-or-death matter."

In a statement released February 14 by Temple's athletics department, Chaney extended his apology "to everyone for yesterday's unfortunate incident following the basketball game...to the Atlantic 10 Conference, the University of Massachusetts, the teams, those persons who were present and those who witnessed the incident, everyone."

Chaney appeared at Calipari's postgame news conference and accused Calipari of trying to intimidate officials during the game.

Chaney then charged the podium where Calipari stood. Three Massachusetts players moved quickly to intervene and Chaney was restrained before reaching Calipari.

Atlantic 10 Conference Commissioner Ron Bertovich said the league is investigating the incident. He declined further comment except to say he planned to "talk to everyone involved." He did not specify a time limit for the investigation other than to say it would be concluded "in a timely fashion."

■ Presidents Commission minutes

Meeting January 9, 1994

Following are the minutes of the January 9, 1994, meeting of the NCAA Presidents Commission, which was held at the Marriott Riverwalk Hotel in San Antonio. All actions taken by the Commission are included. The meeting was conducted in conjunction with the 1994 NCAA Convention; coverage of the Convention and related activities appeared in the January 12 and 19 issues of The NCAA News.

1. Opening Remarks.

a. Chancellor Gregory M. St. L. O'Brien, Presidents Commission chair, extended the Commission's welcome to President Hunter R. Rawlings of the University of Iowa and Chancellor Kenneth A. Shaw of Syracuse University, the Commission's newest members. Also attending the meeting were Presidents John C. Hitt, University of Central Florida, and Donald W. Wilson, Pittsburg State University, who will be joining the Commission in April. Chancellor O'Brien also welcomed NCAA President Joseph N. Crowley, Secretary-Treasurer Prentice Gault, Division I Vice-President R. Elaine Dridame, Division II Vice-President Charles N. Lindemann, Division III Vice-President John H. Harvey, and Wilford S. Bailey, Asa N. Green and Bernard F. Sliger, consultants retained to assist the Commission in gaining support for its reform initiatives.

b. Chancellor O'Brien also noted for the record that he and seven other members of the Commission would complete their service at the conclusion of this meeting, and on behalf of the Commission, he expressed gratitude for the contributions of Presidents Alice Chandler of State University College at New Paltz, Thomas K. Hearn Jr. of Wake Forest University, Rodney C. Kelchner of Mansfield University of Pennsylvania and Arend D. Lubbers of Grand Valley State University. Chancellor Frederick W. O'Beare of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, President Jon C. Strauss of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, and Chancellor Charles E. Young of the University of California, Los Angeles.

2. Previous Minutes.

It was voted that the minutes of the September 28-29, 1993, meeting be approved as distributed.

3. NCAA Convention.

a. The Commission reviewed the 1994 NCAA Convention schedule. Chancellor O'Brien noted the Chief Executive Officers Forum scheduled later in the day, followed by a reception for chief executive officers and the Association's honors dinner in the evening. Chancellor O'Brien also noted the scheduled breakfast for chief executive officers attending the Convention Monday, January 10, and a luncheon for chief executive officers of Division II member institutions the same day. Chancellor O'Brien encouraged Commission members' attendance at those functions.

b. The Commission turned its attention to legislative proposals in the Commission grouping.

(1) Chancellor O'Brien noted that the NCAA Council had taken action in its pre-Convention meeting to support Proposal No. 27-1 and had requested that the Commission join the Council in supporting the proposed amendment-to-amendment.

(a) The Division I subcommittee recommended that the Commission join the Council in support of the proposed amendment, on the condition that the Convention agenda not be reordered to permit consideration of Proposal No. 27 before Proposal No. 25.

(b) It was the sense of the meeting that the Commission support Proposal No. 27-1, subject to the condition described by the Division I subcommittee.

(2) Chancellor O'Brien noted that the Council also had requested in its pre-Convention meeting that the Commission reconsider its opposition to Proposal No. 42.

(a) The Division I subcommittee reported that it had considered the Council's request and recommended that the Commission not change its position in relation to Proposal No. 42; further, that the Commission join the Council in its planned study of the implications of recent grant-in-aid reductions on minority students' access to higher education.

(b) It was the sense of the meeting that the Commission's position remain unchanged in relation to Proposal No. 42 and that the Commission join the Council in its study of recent grant-limitation reductions.

c. Chancellor O'Brien reported action taken by the Council during its pre-Convention meeting to sponsor a resolution that would require the Council to direct appropriate NCAA committees to undertake a review of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 16 (Bylaw 14.3), including a review of all available research on its impact, particularly its impact on minority student athletes, and a review of the level of understanding among prospective student-athletes and high school coaches and counselors of the Association's initial-eligibility standards; further, that such committees report to the Council and the Presidents Commission by June 1994 the results of their review and, if deemed appropriate, any recommendations to maintain or to amend, delay or otherwise change 1992 Convention Proposal No. 16.

(1) The Division I subcommittee recommended that the Commission support the resolution, with the understanding that the Commission's statement of support make clear that its action bears no relationship to the actions of the working group that analyzed NCAA academic-performance data and that the Commission's action is not intended to signal in any way a softening of its position in relation to increased academic standards for initial eligibility; further, that the resolution be considered on Presidential Agenda Day by roll-call vote.

(2) It was the sense of the meeting that the Commission support the proposed resolution, subject to the conditions set forth by the Division I subcommittee.

4. Division Subcommittees.

The Commission's division subcommittee chairs reported actions of the division subcommittees that had not been reported earlier in the meeting.

a. President Lubbers, Division II chair, reported the following actions of the Division II subcommittee:

(1) Reviewed a report of the joint subcommittee of the Commission and Council that had been formed to study the concept of athletics certification in Division II and agreed to encourage a discussion of the contents of that report during the Division II chief executive officers luncheon.

(2) Discussed possible restructuring of the Association and heard concerns expressed about a restructuring proposal that had been circulated at the Convention site by a number of Division I-A conference commissioners. President Lubbers reported that the subcommittee took no formal action in this regard.

b. President Claire L. Gaudiani of Connecticut College, Division III chair, reported that the Division III subcommittee also discussed restructuring and agreed to revisit the topic during the Commission's spring meeting. President Gaudiani reported that the subcommittee also had discussed the possibility of inviting a consultant to advise the subcommittee in its continued consideration of this topic; further, that the subcommittee had requested that it be represented on any formal restructuring committee that is established by the Association in the months ahead.

5. Status Reports by Special Committees and Commission Subcommittees.

a. Chancellor O'Beare reported on the continuing work of the Committee on Athletics Certification to implement a certification program in Division I. Chancellor O'Beare indicated that an initial pool of approximately 600 peer reviewers had been established and that a series of five one-day training sessions would be conducted in the spring 1994 to prepare selected individuals to participate as peer-review team members on campus evaluation visits in the second half of the year. Chancellor O'Beare also encouraged Commission members to commit to serving as chairs of peer-review teams at least once during the program's initial five-year cycle. The Commission received the report without taking formal action.

b. Chancellor Donald F. Behrend of the University of Alaska Anchorage presented information concerning the work of the Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity. Chancellor Behrend noted that the committee had identified six principles to guide the committee in its work in the months ahead and had established smaller working groups to consult with representatives of coaches associations and selected standing NCAA committees to identify specific actions that might be taken by the Association to address identified concerns in each of the topic areas. Chancellor Behrend indicated that the special committee intended to prepare a more detailed report for the Commission's April meeting.

c. President Hearn reported that the formal appointment of a committee to continue development of the integrity and sportsmanship topic for the 1996 Convention had been delayed by the NCAA executive director search but that representatives of Major League Baseball, the National Football League, the National Basketball Association and the National Federation of State High School Associations had agreed to participate and that the concept of "life lessons" had received a favorable response from those organizations. The Commission took no formal action in this regard.

d. The Commission reviewed the report of the Presidents Commission Advisory Committee on Ethical Behavior in College Athletics. The report suggested a variety of actions that might be taken at the institutional and conference levels to curb unsportsmanlike conduct among student-athletes, coaches and fans and requested that selected NCAA committees and member conferences and officiating organizations offer suggestions as to additional specific means by which to promote ethical behavior in college athletics. The report recommended that suggestions be received from these various groups by June 1994. [Note: A copy of the advisory committee report appears elsewhere in this issue of The NCAA News.]

It was voted that the Commission accept the advisory committee's report.

6. Recognition of Richard D. Schultz as Executive Director.

Chancellor O'Brien commended the efforts of Schultz during the time of his service to the Association as executive director in fostering a cooperative atmosphere among the many constituent groups of the NCAA and in encouraging presidential leadership within the Association.

It was voted that the Commission direct that a resolution be prepared to recognize the outstanding service of the Association's second executive director.

7. Elections.

The Commission reviewed the membership of the 1994 Presidents Commission. It was noted for the record that Presidents Eamon M. Kelly of Tulane University and Judith A. Ramaley of Portland State University will assume the chairs of the Divisions I and II subcommittees, respectively; that President Gaudiani will continue to chair the Division III subcommittee, and that President Judith E. N. Albino of the University of Colorado will serve as the Commission's chair. The Commission expressed its appreciation for the leadership that President Lubbers and Chancellors O'Brien and Young provided to the Divisions I and II subcommittees and the Commission.

8. Dates and Sites of Future Meetings.

The Commission noted the following future meeting dates and sites for the record: a. 1994: March 31-April 1, Omni Hotel, Charlotte, North Carolina; June 28-29, Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Kansas City, Missouri; September 27-28, hotel to be determined, Kansas City.

b. 1995: January 8 (NCAA Convention), March 30-31, June 27-28, September 26-27, sites and hotels to be determined.

Number of CEOs attending Convention hits all-time high of 254

Previous high of 250 was set one year earlier

A record 254 presidents and chancellors of colleges and universities attended the 1994 NCAA Convention in San Antonio, bettering by four the previous high established a year earlier in Dallas.

It marked the fourth consecutive year that CEO attendance at the Convention exceeded 200. There were 236 in 1991 in Nashville, Tennessee, and 212 in 1992 in Anaheim, California, preceding the 250 in Dallas in 1993.

Those are the only Conventions at which the 200 level has been reached. The previous high was 199 at the special "integrity" Convention in June 1985.

Of the 254 in San Antonio, 157 were from Division I, which means that more than half (52.2 percent) of the 301 institutions in that division had their CEOs in attendance. The highest Division I percentage ever was 54.7 (162 of 296) in 1991 in Nashville.

Within that Division I total, 61 of the 106 CEOs in Division I-A were there (57.5 percent, well under the 67 percent in 1991).

Other CEO attendance figures:

■ Division I-AA: 65 of 115, or 56.5 percent, all-time highs for both number and percentage.

■ Division I-AAA: 31 of 80, or 38.8 percent, well under the best-ever 44 percent in 1991.

■ Division II: 68 of 245, or 27.8 percent, records for both number and percentage.

■ Division III: 27 of 346, or 7.8 percent, below the record number of 31 and record percentage of 9.0 in Dallas a year earlier.

In addition, two presidents of institutions applying for membership were in attendance.

For the membership as a whole, the figures meant that 28.5 percent of all member institutions had their CEOs attending the Convention, just a shade under the record 28.9 percent in Dallas in 1993.

Nominations for scholarships from NADCA/Disney due soon

The deadline for nominations for the fifth annual National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics/Disney Scholar Athlete postgraduate-scholarship award program for sports other than football is February 25. All nominations must be in NACDA's possession—not only postmarked—but by that date.

Athletics administrators and coaches are encouraged to nominate student-athletes who have grade-point averages of at least 3.000 (4.000 scale) in undergraduate course work and who have been named to at least an all-America or all-conference team in a sport.

Ten winners—five to be selected from among 21 football finalists who already have been named and five from all other sports—each will receive a $5,000 grant to be used toward postgraduate studies. The $50,000 in scholarships is funded by the Walt Disney Company.

Nomination forms may be acquired by calling Laurie Garrison, NACDA director of public relations, at 216/892-4000. Nomination forms may be completed by any member of the athletics department, but must be signed by the athletics director.

Because of the fast-approaching deadline, completed nomination forms should be faxed to 216/892-4007 or sent by overnight delivery to NACDA, 24651 Detroit Road, Westlake, Ohio 44145. Nomination forms that are faxed do not need to be mailed.

"Let's touch bases before the meeting."

"There are a lot of hurdles on your career path. I'm one of them."

"Give them the one-two punch: gross revenues then earnings."

"How many at-bats do we get on the new business pitch?"

"Your promotion was a slam dunk."

"I need a quarterback for this project."

Deaths

Presley Askew, who coached baseball and basketball and also served as athletics director during a 12-year stay at New Mexico State, died February 7 in Denver at age 84. Askew served as New Mexico State's men's basketball coach from 1953 to 1965, leading the Aggies to a 135-146 record. He led the baseball program from 1955 to 1965 and was athletics director from 1954 to 1957. Earlier, he served as men's basketball coach for four seasons at Arkansas, registering a 71-46 mark.

Bob "Horse" Reynolds, who played in three Rose Bowl games during his playing career at Stanford from 1933 to 1936, died February 8 at his home in San Rafael, California. He was 79. Reynolds played every minute of those three Rose Bowl games, competing on offense and defense. He later played professionally for the Detroit Lions before becoming an executive for the California Angels and the Los Angeles Rams. In 1952, Reynolds founded Golden West Broadcasters with Gene Autry. He was inducted into the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame in 1961.

George Sauer, former head football coach at New Hampshire, Kansas, Baylor and Navy, died February 5 at a veterans' home near Waco, Texas. He was 81. He spent five years as coach at New Hampshire and compiled a 22-18-1 mark. As a player, he was an all-American running back at Nebraska and played one year for the Green Bay Packers before beginning his coaching career at New Hampshire in 1937.

actions to removing quickly his team from the arena."

He credited Texas Tech officials with subsequently taking steps relating to crowd control that are designed to protect visiting teams from future incidents, and added, "The Southwest Conference appreciates the cooperation of the athletics departments of both universities throughout this investigation. However, any further behavior of this nature by any member institution or their fans will not be tolerated."

The scuffle at the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum started when Texas Tech fans tangled with Barone and several players after the Aggies' victory. At least one person was injured and no one was arrested.

Some Texas A&M players had been escorted to their locker room, but Barone and the rest of the team had to wade through the fans, according to The Associated Press.

The lawsuit was filed by Charles Ewing Jr. and his 16-year-old cousin, who is represented in court documents by his mother, Mary Catherine Ewing.

The suit claims that one of the Texas A&M players, without provocation, struck the 16-year-old youth in the chest. It also alleges that another player struck Ewing in the face when he attempted to aid his cousin.

Ramifications of pro draft proposal examined

Discouraging NBA from negotiating after 30-day window is discussed

The adoption of 1994 Convention Proposal No. 120 and how it will affect collegiate basketball players and current professional-league draft rules was a primary topic of discussion at the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee's February 3-5 meeting in Tucson, Arizona.

The committee, which met with the executive director of the National Basketball Players Association (NBPA), discussed the ramifications of Proposal No. 120 and related issues that may be part of collective bargaining-agreement negotiations between the National Basketball Association and the NBPA. The current agreement expires June 1.

The proposal, adopted at the 1994 Convention, permits a student athlete in the sport of basketball to enter a professional league's draft one time during his or her collegiate career without jeopardizing eligibility in that sport, provided the student-athlete declares his or her intention to resume intercollegiate participation within 30 days after the draft.

As a means of assisting in applying the legislation, the committee discussed with the NBPA executive director ways to discourage NBA teams from negotiating with stu-

Other highlights

In other actions at its February 3-5 meeting in Tucson, Arizona, the Professional Sports Liaison Committee:

■ Approved the staff's development of an educational brochure titled "Making the Transition—Preparing for a Career in Professional Sports." The brochure, which was presented to the committee in draft form and will be distributed to student-athletes, coaches, professional sports counseling panels and others, as well as current student-athletes, provides information on preparing for a professional career, things student-athletes can and cannot do while in college, the importance of a college education and the likelihood of becoming a professional athlete.

■ Met with a representative from Nike Sports Management to discuss the roles of shoe and apparel manufacturers and affiliated sports-management firms.

■ Recommended to the NCAA Council that the Pro Sports Counseling Panel forums be discontinued in light of the development of the "Making the Transition" brochure.

■ Withheld endorsement of the NCAA Olympic Sports Liaison Committee's proposed definition of professional athletics teams, and requested additional review and development of a definition by the national office staff for the professional sports liaison committee's next meeting.

■ Expressed support for the continuation of efforts by the Ad Hoc Committee on Professional Baseball Issues to work with Major League Baseball to find ways to increase the graduation rates of baseball student-athletes and to reduce costs on both the collegiate and professional levels.

■ Endorsed funding allocations for summer baseball leagues and approved increased accountability measures for the operation of various leagues.

■ Requested that the staff distribute information to the membership on Proposal No. 120 to clarify how the rule works.

dent-athletes after the expiration of the 30-day window. The committee also met with NBA representatives, as well as representatives of the National Hockey League and major junior hockey leagues, to discuss NCAA bylaws regarding eligibility of student-athletes.

The committee's discussion pertaining to hockey centered on the NCAA's classification of athletes who compete in major junior hockey leagues as professionals, thus rendering them ineligible for intercollegiate hockey competition at an NCAA member institution. A committee member was appointed to study the issue with NCAA national office staff assistance and submit a report to the committee at its July meeting.

In a related matter, the committee also discussed the ramifications of expanding opportunities for student-athletes competing in football in a manner consistent with those in basketball. Currently, football student-athletes cannot determine their market value in the professional draft without losing their eligibility. The committee noted that several factors, including the current signing period for recruiting and the date of the National Football League draft, pose problems for such a measure.

1994 Column No. 7

NCAA Bylaw 14.8.6

Waivers for outside competition

In accordance with Bylaw 14.8.6.1, the NCAA Council may grant waivers to permit student-athletes to participate in outside competition in the following events for all sports:

1. Official Pan American Games, tryouts and competitions;
2. Officially recognized competition directly qualifying participants for final Olympic Games tryouts;
3. Official tryouts and competition involving national teams sponsored by the appropriate Group A members of the U. S. Olympic Committee, and
4. Officially recognized state and national multisports events sanctioned by the Council.

In accordance with the new policy, it now is permissible for a waiver to be granted for each event during the academic year that is sponsored by a national governing body (NGB) as well as state and national multisport events. This would allow an institution to know in advance whether a certain event had been granted a waiver, and the director of athletics (or his or her designee) would be required to send a letter to the appropriate NGB granting permission for each student-athlete to participate in the event. This will alleviate the need for each institution to submit a waiver request to the NCAA national office on behalf of each individual student-athlete participating in a particular event.

Please note that for this new policy to be effective, the NGB as well as sponsors of state and national multisport events will be contacted for a list of all events that would qualify for a waiver per Bylaws 14.8.6.1 and 14.8.6.2 for each academic year if the organization has that information available. At that time, the Council may grant a "blanket waiver" for all events that meet the criteria.

Finally, a "blanket waiver" will be granted only for events sponsored by an NGB and for state or national multisport events. All other waiver requests should be forwarded to Shawna L. Hutchins at the national office on behalf of each student-athlete involved in competition outside of the institution's regularly scheduled events. Hutchins also may be contacted for a list of events that have been granted "blanket waivers."

Bylaw 13.16.1.5

Donation of equipment to high schools

Institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 13.16.1, an institution or a representative of its athletics interests shall not offer, provide or arrange financial assistance, directly or indirectly, to pay (in whole or in part) the cost of the prospective student-athlete's educational or other expenses for any period prior to his or her enrollment, or so that the prospect can obtain a postgraduate education. Thus, it would not be permissible for an institution, in response to requests from high school groups, to provide items (e.g., autographed balls, jerseys, institutional memorabilia) to assist high schools in raising money for the high schools' athletics (or other) programs. In addition, Bylaw 13.16.1.5.1 precludes an institution from providing athletics equipment to a high school. Please note, however, that during its February 24, 1993, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that an institution may donate used athletics equipment to a nonprofit foundation or organization established to distribute such equipment to a high school(s), provided the request for such donations is initiated by the foundation and the institution is not involved in selecting which high school(s) are to receive the equipment.

Bylaw 12.2.1.2

Tryout with professional team after enrollment

Institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 12.2.1.2, a student-athlete shall not try out with a professional athletics team in a sport or permit a professional athletics team to conduct medical examinations during any part of the academic year (i.e., from the beginning of the fall term through completion of the spring term, including any intervening vacation period) while enrolled in a collegiate institution as a regular student in at least a minimum full-time academic load, unless the student-athlete has exhausted eligibility in that sport. The student-athlete may try out with a professional organization in a sport during the summer or during the academic year while not a full-time student, provided the student-athlete does not receive any form of expenses or other compensation from the professional organization.

Please note, however, that in accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 12.2.1.2.1 (medical examination exception), a professional league's scouting bureau is permitted to conduct one medical examination per student-athlete during the academic year without jeopardizing the student-athlete's eligibility in that sport, provided the examination does not occur off campus. Further, during its January 11-12, 1993, meeting, the Council reviewed the provisions of 1993 Convention Proposal No. 140 (now Bylaw 12.2.1.2.1) and confirmed that the provisions of Bylaw 12.2.1.2.1 permit medical exams to be administered only by a single scouting bureau recognized by the professional league in a sport.

Ethical

Commission seeks more suggestions

■ Asking officiating organizations to recommend to rules-making committees any adjustments in rules they believe would be effective in addressing ethical behavior.

In addition, the committee recommends that the following groups respond to its recommendations:

■ The NCAA Committee on Infractions, regarding "desirable steps to broaden and increase the application of the existing ethical-conduct legislation in the NCAA Manual."

■ Officiating organizations, which are being asked to recommend to the Commission additional actions to develop "proper respect for and treatment of officials by all parties involved in inter-collegiate athletics."

■ Coaches associations, which are asked to submit ideas for addressing ethical-conduct problems in their respective sports.

The Commission is asking those groups to submit recommendations by June or to request an extension of the deadline from the Commission if more time is needed.

Quake-damaged coliseum receives LA city funds

The Los Angeles City Council has allocated $10.9 million toward repairing the quake-damaged Memorial Coliseum, while expressing concern that danger signs about the stadium may have been ignored before the tremor.

The Coliseum sustained an estimated $35 million damage in the January 17 Northridge quake. The $10.9 million allocated by the council represents a share of $75 million in Federal aid received so far by the city.

Site of two Olympics, the Coliseum is home to the National Football League's Los Angeles Raiders and the University of Southern California football team. The facility requires $17 million for repairs and another $18 million for seismic upgrading, renovation project Don Webb told The Associated Press.

The 71-year-old Coliseum south of downtown Los Angeles has cracks running through the stands, and a section of the Olympic torch was dislodged. Support pillars and peristyle arches were badly damaged.

The council launched a probe February 9 into whether the Coliseum's private managers were negligent in their handling of a 1991 report concluding the stadium did not meet current seismic safety standards.

"I think there could well be a legal duty to disclose and if there is there could be substantial liability," Councilman Joel Wachs said.

The Coliseum is managed by Spectacor Management Group, a Philadelphia-based company.

I-A conferences move to negotiate new TV pacts

Two Division I-A conferences that currently are participants in the College Football Association television plan—the Southeastern and Atlantic Coast Conferences—have announced agreements for separate television contracts beginning in 1996, and three other conferences have acknowledged that they are negotiating for similar pacts.

The Southeastern Conference made the first move February 4, announcing a five-year contract with CBS for football and basketball television rights. League officials did not reveal the value of the contract, but an athletics director in the conference told The Associated Press that CBS had offered $17 million annually for football rights.

Three days later, the Atlantic Coast Conference announced an agreement in principle for a five-year contract with ABC and ESPN, combined with a three-year extension of its existing contract with Jefferson Pilot.

Representatives of the Big East, Southwest and Big Eight Conferences said that they also have been negotiating with networks for television-rights agreements.

Negotiations continue

Big East officials confirmed that the league has been negotiating with CBS and ESPN, while several athletics directors in the Southwest and Big Eight Conferences acknowledged that those leagues are negotiating with ABC for rights to games involving both conferences.

In both of those cases, there was widespread speculation that agreements could lead eventually to restructuring of the leagues. Big East athletics directors are considering inviting its four football-only members to become full members of the league, while Southwest and Big Eight Conference officials have had discussions on a possible merger or other form of alliance between those leagues.

CFA Executive Director Charles M. Neinas, in a statement issued after the Southeastern Conference

"...these circumstances (negotiations between conferences and television networks) allowed us the opportunity to find our value in the open marketplace."

■ Eugene F. Corrigan
ACC Commissioner

agreement was announced, said the organization was "disappointed" to lose the league from its plan, which expires after the 1995 season.

"The CFA will move with dispatch to determine the preference of the remaining members relative to a future television plan and be prepared to respond accordingly," he said.

SEC terms

The CBS contract with the Southeastern Conference grants exclusive network rights to SEC football games. Between 18 and 20 men's and women's basketball games also will be shown annually, beginning next season.

Under terms of the football agreement, each conference team can appear a maximum of five times during a season, and every SEC member is guaranteed at least one network appearance during the life of the contract.

However, the contract does not include the SEC championship game or any postseason appearances, SEC Commissioner Roy F. Kramer said. ABC owns rights to league-championship games through 1996.

Most games under the contract will be televised to about half of the nation's viewers, but the SEC is guaranteed two national broadcasts, Kramer said. Last year, only one regular-season SEC game was broadcast nationally by a television network.

Wider ACC coverage

The ACC contract also is expected to result in wider coverage of league contests. Under the current CFA contract, ACC games have been available to between 11 and 18 percent of the nation's television homes, but that figure is expected to increase to between 25 and 30 percent.

"While we would have much preferred for the College Football Association to have stayed together as one bargaining unit, these circumstances (negotiations between conferences and television networks) allowed us the opportunity to find our value in the open marketplace," said ACC Commissioner Eugene F. Corrigan.
