Special-assistance fund aids student-athletes in tough times

By Kathryn M. Reith
SPECIAL TO THE NCAA NEWS

Here is today's NCAA rules quiz: John Smith, student-athlete at State University, has had a death in his family but neither he nor his family can afford to pay for his plane ticket home. If that ticket is paid for any other way, an NCAA rule has been broken. True or false?

Answer: False. The NCAA's special-assistance fund can pay for that ticket without breaking any rules. In fact, it was created to meet such needs of student-athletes. About $3 million each year from television revenues generated by the Division

I Men's Basketball Championship goes into the fund.

The fund was created because of a concern that certain NCAA rules leave some student-athletes with financial needs that cannot be fulfilled otherwise.

On one hand, student-athletes are limited to a financial aid package, including pay for any work, that does not exceed the normal cost of attendance. (The cost of attendance includes tuition and fees, room and board, and books, and depending on financial need, can include additional money to pay for expenses.)

On the other hand, they are not allowed to accept money or gifts because of a belief that student-athletes should not receive special benefits unavailable to other students. But trying to treat them the same as other students actually can put student-athletes at a disadvantage.

Hence the special assistance fund. Student-athletes can apply to the fund for a variety of purposes, including travel expenses in a family emergency. Other expenses the fund can pay for are school supplies like notebooks and pens, glasses or contact lenses, hearing aids, clothing, rental of any equipment needed for a course, and medical expenses and off-campus psycho-

Search for I-A administrators for peer-review teams continues

The good news is that the first 24 peer-review teams for the NCAA athletics certification program have been selected.

The bad news is that the lack of Division I-A athletics personnel, especially athletics directors, in the pool of peer reviewers is causing concern about whether Division I-A institutions can be matched up with peer reviewers having similar characteristics.

As a result, the NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification again is asking Division I-A athletics administrators—especially those representing large programs—to volunteer to serve as peer reviewers.

The next meeting of the full committee, which is the next opportunity to add qualified peer reviewers, is May 11. The next round of assignments for spring 1995 evaluation visits will be later that month.

To apply to be a peer reviewer, an individual must submit a candidate form to the committee. To be considered for placement in the pool, an individual must be from a Division I institution or conference (or have retired recently). Among the guidelines for selection is five years of campus experience, including three in Division I. An individual will not be considered if found to have committed a major violation of NCAA rules in the last five years.

Trademark infringement picks up come tournament time

By Ronald D. Mott
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

"March Madness" symbolizes the highs and lows, winners and losers, dunks and three-pointers, cheerleaders, and crowds of the NCAA Division I Men's and Women's Basketball Championships. But it also is a season of trademark and licensing infringements of NCAA property by individuals, companies and even states.

Infringements of NCAA trademarks and licenses generally are more prevalent immediately before or during the basketball championships. Because of the championships' high visibility and public interest, many individuals and companies seek to promote products that will be advertised with an often-clear connection to the NCAA or its championships.

In the past month, several gambling ventures made inferences to the NCAA and its trademarks and property.

At issue were a "Final Four" promotion by a riverboat casino in Joliet, Illinois; a "March Madness" game sponsored by the Missouri Lottery, and a college basketball stock-market game that involved what Francis M. Canavan, NCAA group executive director for public affairs, called "...nothing more than a gambling scheme that trades on the goodwill of the NCAA tournament."

In addition, Host Communications, Inc., which administers the NCAA's corporate-partner program,

Division I-A football

Players from top programs to meet with research group

Student-athletes, probably representing teams that played in the most recent New Year's Day bowl games, will meet March 20 with the research group that is collecting information about a Division I-A football playoff.

This will be the third meeting for the research group, which will turn its findings over to a special committee later this spring. That committee is expected to be announced later this month or early in April.

At its first meeting, the research group met with representatives from the three major television networks, plus Fox, Turner Broadcasting and ESPN. Later, it met with Division I-A coaches and representatives from several organizations whose membership would be affected by a playoff.

Those in the research group are University of California, Los Angeles, Chancellor Charles E. Young; University of Oklahoma athletics director Donnie Duncan; NCAA Executive Director Cedric W. Dempsey, and Thomas W. Jernstedt, NCAA chief operating officer.

For more detail, see the March 2, February 23 and January 19 issues of The NCAA News.

Regional seminars

NCAA regional seminars scheduled for May, June

The NCAA membership services group will conduct three regional seminars in late May and early June in an effort to provide a continuing-education forum for Divisions I and II institutional and athletics administrators.

The seminars will provide information about NCAA legislation and interpretations and will address the roles of various campus constituents in establishing and maintaining institutional control of intercollegiate athletics programs.

The 1994 seminars will be conducted May 11-13 in San Francisco; May 25-27 in Arlington, Virginia, and June 1-3 in New Orleans.

The resource center, a popular feature introduced at the 1993 regional seminars, will be open again throughout the seminars.

BCA concerns

NCAA, BCA officials conduct second session

The second mediation session between the NCAA and the Black Coaches Association was conducted March 15 in Chicago.

This was the first in-person session between the organizations, which are meeting under a mediation arrangement supervised by the Community Relations Service. The first discussion between the NCAA and the BCA was a March 1 telephone conference.

The parties have agreed that no public statements will be made about the progress of the mediation until the talks are concluded.

Briefly in the News

After absence, a winner again

Seven years ago, Hiag Brown won an NCAA Division II wrestling title. And now, the Portland State University wrestler has returned to glory with a second Division II title for the school.

Brown won his first championship wrestling at 126 pounds after finishing the 1986-87 season with 31 consecutive victories. The next season, a series of injuries hampered his dreams of repeating, although he still managed to finish third that year.

Then, Brown transferred to Virginia State University, where he was redshirted for a year. At the 1990 championships, Brown placed fourth at 134 pounds.

Brown quit school at the end of the year and returned home. But three years later, he got the urge to compete again.

He weighed 185 pounds when he approached Portland State coach Marlin Grahn in September about enrolling there and wrestling. When he began workouts, he worked in the 177-pound division.

"Even though he was overweight and rusty, he was still extremely quick and explosive," Grahn said. "It was just a matter of him losing weight; wanting to do it."

Brown dropped to 158 pounds by the start of the wrestling season and then dropped to the 150-pound class by the beginning of February. That's where he won his second crown.

Coaches fight cancer

Men's basketball coaches at Southern Conference institutions joined forces during the league's postseason basketball tournament March 3-6 to help the American Cancer Society.

"Our group is very happy to be playing a part in the fight against this dreaded disease," Appalachian State University coach Tom Apke said. "Our coaching fraternity, like all walks of life, has been touched by cancer. We sought out a way to get involved after the National Association of Basketball Coaches named the American Cancer Society as its national charity of choice at our latest national coaches convention."

The Asheville, North Carolina, unit of the American Cancer Society operated two booths at the tournament that allowed fans to make pledges for every three-point shot made. Pledge totals were not immediately available.

"We are extremely excited to have the Southern Conference coaches as part of our team," said Sam Decker, president of the Asheville unit of the cancer society. "The latest statistics show that three out of four people will be affected by cancer at some point in their lifetimes."

One message

While they come from different parts of the world and speak different languages, several Florida Atlantic University student-athletes have the same message for local fourth- and fifth-grade students at Boca Raton (Florida) Elementary School: Stay in school and get good grades.

Six Florida Atlantic international student-athletes told students what life is like in their native countries, while also explaining the importance of education and the opportunities it brings.

The university is making plans for student-athletes to "adopt" a school or class for the 1994-95 academic year.

Decent proposal

Fairfield University assistant women's basketball coach Tricia Sacca probably was not expecting a white horse to storm the court before a recent game. But that is what happened February 20 when her fiancée, Paul Fabbri, came by Alumni Hall to pop the big question.

Clad in a gladiator helmet, a "Beauty and the Beast" robe and multicolored T-shirt, Fabbri entered the gym escorted by several friends dressed in togas. After dismounting, Fabbri recited a poem to his longtime girlfriend, fell to one knee and asked Sacca to marry him.

After a teary "Yes!" from Sacca, Fabbri mounted the horse and trotted out of the building.

Facilities

West Chester University of Pennsylvania held a ceremony February 5 for the Robert W. Reese Memorial Conference and Memorabilia Room, which is located on the first floor of the university's Hollinger Field House. Robert W. Reese, who died in 1980, served as athletics director at West Chester from 1960 to 1979. The Reese room will host meetings and receptions and will be used by coaches to entertain recruits.

John Carroll University will rename Varsity Gymnasium the Don Shula Sports Center at a dedication ceremony May 17. Don Shula, head coach of the Miami Dolphins, is a 1951 graduate of the institution. Shula played football at John Carroll, where he still holds the school record for yards per carry for a single season.

This summer, the Jersey City State College athletics department will move into the new 71,000-square-foot Athletic, Recreation and Fitness Center. The facility is designed to serve the college's general student body as well as intercollegiate and intramural athletics. It will feature an 1,800-seat basketball arena, a 3,800-square-foot fitness center, a 25-meter swimming pool, three racquetball courts and a 1/10th-mile elevated jogging track. The center will open for basketball competition November 19.

Fact file

Three games played during the first or second rounds of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship have attracted attendance of more than 10,000 fans. The record for those rounds was established at a 1993 second-round game in which Ohio State University hosted Rutgers University, New Brunswick, before 12,000 fans. Also surpassing the 10,000 mark were second-round games in 1988 at the University of Iowa (11,336 attendance) and in 1989 at the University of Colorado, Boulder (11,199).

Big Eight gets big boost with $100 million TV deal

The Big Eight Conference, recently bolstered by the addition of four Southwest Conference schools, has received a five-year, $100 million football television contract believed to be the largest ever.

The combined package with ABC and Liberty Sports includes a maximum of 39 annual appearances—18 on ABC—and more than $20 million each year in football TV revenue.

"From what we're able to tell, this is the largest football-only TV deal a conference has ever negotiated," University of Kansas athletics director Robert E. Frederick told The Associated Press.

Corrections made regarding committee nominations

The following corrections have been made to information that appeared in a recent story in The NCAA News soliciting nominations for vacancies on the NCAA Men's and Women's Committees on Committees and Nominating Committee.

The corrections of information appearing in the March 9 issue of the News are as follows:

Men's Committee on Committees: Three of the individuals elected must be from Division I, instead of two from Division I.

Nominating Committee: In Division I, Warner Alford of the University of Mississippi is not eligible for reelection because his term on the Council expires in January 1995. In Division III, Dolores A. Bogard, State University College at Cortland, is not eligible for reelection because her term on the Council expires in January 1995.

Big East invites two into league

Rutgers University, New Brunswick, and West Virginia University were invited to join the Big East Conference full-time March 9 in a move that left Temple University and Virginia Polytechnic Institute as strictly football members.

The expansion to 12 schools was a compromise, with the 15-year-old conference facing the prospect of adding schools or breaking up over football.

"For all of us who have been dealing with it for the last four months, we're glad it's over," Big East Commissioner Michael A. Tranchese told The Associated Press. "We're excited about Rutgers and West Virginia and disappointed for both Temple and Virginia Tech. There just wasn't the support for the move to 14 schools."

The presidents of the conference made the decision in the face of indications from the league's football schools that they were prepared to form their own all-sports league if expansion was voted down.

The addition of the two teams for basketball will not take effect until the 1995-96 season since Rutgers and West Virginia are committed to the Atlantic 10 Conference for next season.

Syracuse University, Boston College, the University of Pittsburgh and the University of Miami (Florida) are current all-sports Big East members that play Division I-A football. Three years ago, they were joined in a Big East football conference by Rutgers, West Virginia and Temple—all members of the Atlantic 10 for other sports—and Virginia Tech, a member of the Metropolitan Collegiate Athletic Conference.

Seven votes of Big East member schools were required for expansion, meaning that support was needed from at least three of the conference's six schools without Division I-A football programs.

Tranchese said the school presidents took over the decision-making process on expansion in February.

"They talked about going to 14 and what it meant and going to 13, and voted on both separately, and both had support but couldn't get the required seven votes," he said. "The move to 12 passed by a 7-3 vote."

Recently, the football schools negotiated a five-year, $65 million contract with CBS that takes effect for the 1996 season.

West Virginia athletics director Ed Pastilong said the expansion will strengthen his school's position in negotiating television contracts while generating fan rivalries and easing scheduling.

"It appears for the future big is better," he said. "And in this particular invitation, this new conference has teams of excellent tradition and will be one of the finest conferences in the country."

Added Rutgers President Francis L. Lawrence, "Our goal all along was to become a member of a conference in all sports."

Program rewards academic ambition

By Don A. Aripoli

SOUTHWEST MISSOURI STATE UNIVERSITY

As someone involved directly with a university, I find it difficult to pick up a publication, almost any publication ranging from a local newspaper to a national magazine, without finding an article about higher education and its failures, problems and challenges.

My reaction to become defensive is followed closely by efforts to explain the various causes of the observed phenomenon. Among issues that currently are being discussed are the following: a change in behavior of students; the failure to assess outcomes adequately; the lack of plans to return the collegiate experience to a four-year endeavor, and the relatively low graduation rates of students, including athletes.

In fact, there have been so many criticisms of academic performance that Congress has passed Student Right-to-Know legislation to begin to address the issue of graduation rates. However, in 1988, before the media exposé and government involvement, the NCAA recognized the need to be proactive in its efforts to assist athletes with the completion of the undergraduate degree.

In March 1988, a small group representing faculty, administration, the NCAA, coaches and athletics directors met in St. Louis to lay the groundwork for the NCAA degree-completion program. This program was developed and conceived as a vehicle to provide an opportunity for student-athletes who had exhausted their institutional eligibility and athletics scholarship to return to school to complete the undergraduate educational experience.

Under NCAA rules, institutions could not fund sixth-year scholarships. However, by financing the scholarship program, the NCAA put all institutions and all athletes on a level playing field by providing the opportunity to apply for scholarships from the degree-completion fund.

Since the beginning of the program in 1988-89, and continuing through the 1993-94 academic year, 651 students from 164 member institutions have received funding. More than 90 percent of the recipients have completed baccalaureate degrees, and that is a conservative estimate.

What is of interest is the success rate that former athletes who are involved in the Role models for a new generation

By Lisa Dubois

NASHVILLE BANNER

Twenty years ago, when I was in public high school in Greenville, South Carolina, the only organized sport available to girls was tennis. Although my first loves were basketball and volleyball, I joined the tennis team.

One year, my doubles partner and I won the state championship in our flight, for which we received a one-sentence mention in the school newspaper.

It never crossed my mind to expect more.

Back then, the only female athletes available to us were Billie Jean King and distant Olympians participating in events that eluded the Deep South. Those girls who tried to fight the barriers were renegades or loners.

The rest of us assumed the hollow stance of emulating movie stars and beauty queens.

For my 9-year-old daughter, it's different. Here is the first generation that accepts female athletes as role models.

For two years she has been a member of the Vanderbilt University Black and Gold Club (previously known as the "Little Lady Commodores"), and what she has received in return has nothing to do with her current or potential athletics ability, and is far more than a team poster and an ink pen. She has become affiliated with the very women she idolizes.

From watching their games and participating in their summer camps, my daughter has learned how to handle victories with pride and losses with dignity. She has realized the self-discipline required to both make good grades and play good basketball.

She has seen Heidi Gillingham publicly respond with grace to the tragic death of her father.

She has seen Leslie Smith, long sidelined with an injury, voluntarily suit back up to provide, if nothing else, another warm body on the injury-depleted team.

And she has seen Rhonda Blades — for whom she has a profound, unshakable admiration — leave last year's Ohio State game bruised and bloodied, and then return later, with fresh stitches, to play the second half.

From all of those instances, my daughter has learned how much courage and inner strength it takes to spring back from adversity.

Such invaluable life lessons are not limited to Vanderbilt women's basketball.

Other little girls who are following other women at other schools playing other sports are having the same experiences.

The point is that in every child's journey toward maturity, a crucial component is the development of self-esteem. Studies repeatedly show that as boys enter adolescence, their self-esteem increases dramatically, but as girls enter adolescence, their self-esteem plummets.

I have no doubt that because my daughter has worthy, accessible role models, her journey has been made much easier.

Opinions

Change creating a new athletics world

Don Beck, sports-values columnist

The Dallas Morning News

"The NCAA Division I-A elite...is separating itself from other schools so it can protect its revenue streams. Those shut out either will hit the alumni welfare lines or radically change their approach to intercollegiate sports. The I-AA schools, especially, are in a deep financial crisis. They are being cut off from enjoying an occasional big payday by booking a I-A team looking for an easy win.

"See the pattern? The elites are pulling away from the masses as the niches narrow. What has gone largely unnoticed, however, is how the mandates for gender equity are challenging the traditional male edifice in intercollegiate sports. This new reality, backed by threats of litigation, is driving the big-time schools to hoard all the resources they can from television and bowl revenues. Left-out schools are in pure panic since they face the reality of having to scrap or reduce their big-ticket programs. They will then lack the resources to fund additional women's programs.

"So, what's the solution? We will need to redesign and reengineer collegiate sports from top to bottom. New and innovative Ivy League-type conferences might form which may actually capture the imagination and support of faculty and students. Special-interest groups, such as the historically black colleges, could leave the NCAA or NAIA and do their own thing. Individual and team sports such as wrestling and rugby could become popular....

"Every now and then, we encounter a magnitude of change in our lives that shakes us out of our comfort zones and forces us to venture into new worlds. Such a time calls for academic, sports, business and political leaders to rise to the challenge."

Legislation

Jim Dimick, baseball coach

St. Olaf College

"A concern regarding legislative action that the NCAA might consider is that of voting procedure. Is it proper, or ethical for that matter, for delegates at the annual Convention to vote on proposals affecting sports that are not sponsored by their respective institutions?

"Do schools that do not sponsor football or ice hockey, for example, have the right to vote on proposals relating to those sports? I am assuming that delegates in such cases choose to abstain, but should they even have a possible 'yes' or 'no' vote on such issues?

"The voting record on Proposal No. 51 at the 1994 Convention affecting Division III baseball reveals the potential dangers of such voting procedure. Although Proposal No. 51 was soundly defeated, I was appalled to discover approximately one-seventh of the votes were cast by institutions not sponsoring baseball, including one negative vote by a women's conference. Most schools not sponsoring baseball abstained, but how about the one-seventh?

"Wouldn't it be logical to pass legislation in the future to prevent this type of voting? If so, I would challenge the NCAA Council to include such a proposal for the 1995 Convention."

Commercialism

Tom Cushman, columnist

San Diego Union

"As we were in the process of exporting Harding-Kerrigan to the white-capped countryside north of Oslo, a member of the Canadian delegation suggested that our problem with enjoying spectator sports is rooted in the Vince Lombardi mandate, 'Winning isn't everything; it's the only thing.'

"I would think," the Canadian said, 'that it's time American people reevaluate that comment.'

"Instead, what we've done is buttress it with a sports economy that replaced the sheer joy of achieving with the necessity of winning for the decimal point. Beginning with an athlete seeking a scholarship, moving to the school that covets his services so it can reap the financial rewards of bowl or NCAA tournament participation....on to agents, corporate sponsors, multimillion-dollar contracts, Jeff Gillooly — almost everything about our athletics mosaic is dollar-driven.

"We ask fans to underwrite the greed, promise them victories for generosity and — in an effort to appease their appetites — have pretty much disassembled the basic value system athletics were supposed to promote. Lombardi may not have intended it, but interpretation of his law has become, 'Just win, baby.'"

Visibility of athletics

"It helps the university develop a regional and/or national reputation (in athletics) because it's what people write and talk about. We wish people would write and talk more about physics research and environmental science research. But what achieves visibility ultimately for the institution happens to be our participation in athletics."

Murray Sperber, professor

The Dallas Morning News

"These schools (Southwest Conference members who were not included in the Big Eight Conference expansion) are going to have to decide whether they're going to stay in the athletics arms race at a tremendous cost or scale it down. (If they choose the latter) they'll give a clear signal that they are in the education business. It's a signal to parents that here's a school where their kids can get an education."

■ State legislation relating to college athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending before state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes of NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 21 bills from 13 states. The report includes nine bills that have been introduced, and 12 pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (March 2 issue of The NCAA News). Newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills identified by previous reports on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

The State Legislation Report is based largely on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of March 10, 1994. The bills selected for inclusion in this report were drawn from a larger pool of measures that concern sports and therefore do not necessarily represent all of the bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending before the governing bodies of the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on an on-line basis and are not included in this report.

The NCAA has not independently verified the accuracy or completeness of the information provided by Information for Public Affairs and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

The bills set forth below address the following subjects:

Subject	Number of Bills
Safety/medical exams	3
Scalping/tickets	3
Clearinghouse applications	2
Funding mechanisms	2
State universities	2
Taxes	2
Athletics trainers	2
Alcoholic beverages	1
Athlete agents	1
Gender equity	1
Mascots	1
Payments to student-athletes	1

A bill relating to sales tax has become law in Mississippi since the last report.

Program

Degree-completion vehicle proves highly successful for student-athletes program experience (however, success should be expected because of the selection criteria used to screen the large number of applicants) and the breadth of sports represented. Clearly, football and basketball players are involved in the recipient pool, but so too are athletes from wrestling, lacrosse, volleyball, field hockey, swimming, track, gymnastics, baseball, tennis, soccer and golf, among other sports. In fact, recent data show that 25 sports have been represented among the 651 awards. The NCAA should be commended for developing the funds needed to support the degree-completion scholarship program. This program has encouraged student-athletes to return to school and has provided the necessary resources to convert motivation into academic success. Athletes, like other students, face personal challenges, changes in academic majors and developmental delays. Their lives also are complicated by the pressure of competition and the resultant time demands associated with athletics. The NCAA has developed a program in which all student-athletes, regardless of gender, sport or institution, can apply for the support needed to complete the educational experience. The NCAA became involved in this project before public concern about graduation rates was widespread and popular. As an organization, the NCAA has recognized its responsibility to athletes.

On behalf of the individuals who have served on the NCAA Special Degree-Completion Program Committee, we are proud of the part we have played in this endeavor and are pleased to be associated with the NCAA in its efforts to continue to take proactive steps to enhance the graduation rate of athletes. Don A. Aripoli is vice-president for student-affairs at Southwest Missouri State University and is chair of the NCAA Special Degree-Completion Program Committee.

No foul play found in gambling case, board says

An investigation by state gaming agents of unusual betting on an Arizona State University-University of Washington basketball game has turned up no evidence of wrongdoing, according to the Nevada Gaming Control Board. Board chairman Bill Bible said agents interviewed three men who bet about $250,000 on the March 5 game between the Sun Devils and the Huskies and found nothing wrong. Bible told The Associated Press that the investigation was complete and no criminal charges will be filed. "There is nothing further to be done at this point," Bible said. Bible stressed that Arizona State and Washington were not targets of the investigation. Instead, he said, the probe focused on the wagers themselves. "We were concerned about the wagering pattern," he said. "The amount of the wagers and the way they were being placed created quite a bit of interest within the industry and certainly it created some interest with us."

"We were concerned about the wagering patterns."

The men, two from Phoenix and one from New Jersey, reportedly had been in Las Vegas in January and February betting against Arizona State in two other games and winning. The Sun Devils opened 10½-point favorites at Las Vegas sports books, but heavy betting on Washington forced the odds down to as low as 3½ before most books took the game off the boards. Arizona State beat Washington, 73-55, and the bettors lost their wagers.

Lacrosse enjoys field day at world's biggest tournament

By Martin T. Benson
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Spring break is no vacation for Feffie Barnhill, women's lacrosse coach at the College of William and Mary—but it is a celebration of sorts. It's time for inviting 750 of her closest friends over to shake the cobwebs off the sticks.

In the world's largest gathering of adult women lacrosse players, thirtysomething teams gather at the William and Mary Invitational to play more than 100 preseason half-game scrimmages. Sixteen equipment vendors join the party.

Traditionally held the first weekend in March, the roots of this rite of spring are traced to the old "Southern Holiday," which was limited to mostly Virginia teams and moved around the Commonwealth before settling briefly at James Madison University in the early 1980s.

It now has been held at William and Mary for the last 11 years—rain, snow or, as Barnhill and all those friends hope, shine. The promise of good, or at least better, weather and improved facilities made it a fixture in Williamsburg.

'Why don't we try it there?'

"The Southern Holiday wasn't nearly as large," Barnhill said. "The weather was frigid at JMU, so I said 'it's always nicer in Williamsburg; why don't we try it there?'"

James Madison coach Dee McDonough was open to the idea, although the original plan was to have alternating hosts.

"They had more space and better weather and did a great job with it, so we decided to keep it there," McDonough said.

Soon this once cozy coming-out party grew into a monster, although the population explosion was not by design. Virtually everyone who is someone in women's lacrosse, as well as all the "wannabes," wish to experience the festival atmosphere and competitive play.

"I'm not good at saying no," Barnhill said.

This year, 31 teams—including three new programs—came from as far away as Vermont. In coming years, though, some of the newer teams may be limited to every other year, since 31 appears close to the saturation point, in terms of facilities and playing time.

If Mother Nature cooperates, most teams play six games Saturday and four games Sunday. With the distances traveled, Barnhill feels she owes the teams that many games. Having more teams might thwart that plan.

Powerhouse lineup

This year's typically powerhouse lineup included all six members of last year's NCAA National Collegiate Championship field, NCAA Division III champion Trenton State College and semifinalist Franklin and Marshall College, and the U.S. elite and developmental squads.

First-year participant Franklin and Marshall is coached by William and Mary graduate Sue Shafritz, who—having played in the invitational both as a collegiate and club athlete—knows its value.

"We were competitive without going (to William and Mary) and this can only help," Shafritz said. "We used to hold our own mini-tournament this time of year, but our players never got a chance to see lacrosse played at such a high level."

The games are played on five fields on three campus sites. Barksdale Field, a Bermuda grass expanse adjacent to Colonial Williamsburg, has three fields; a soccer practice field two miles from campus also is used, as is the four-year-old artificial turf of Busch Field, in the heart of the campus.

Participating coaches submit a list of teams they want to play and those they want to avoid—namely those they play during the regular season. Most strong teams want to test their mettle against the U.S. teams. Barnhill grants most wishes.

Eye on the weather

Minor problems can become nightmarish when the weather turns foul. As nice as the weather can be, it's still a far cry from Southern California. Two years ago, heavy rain on Friday night and Saturday morning limited teams to Busch Field and Old Dominion University's artificial carpet, 40 miles down the road.

But while weather might abbreviate the invitational, Barnhill vows to never cancel. Too many teams depend on it.

In many other sports, the problem of getting enough officials to cover such an event might prevent it. Not here. The United States

The William and Mary Invitational is the world's largest tournament for adult women lacrosse players, complete with more than 30 teams, 100 half-game scrimmages and 16 equipment vendors (above).

Women's Lacrosse Association offers a pre-season clinic for experienced officials in conjunction with the event. More than 40 officials make the trip each year to tune up their whistles.

Passersby who may not know what's going on can't resist stopping. Once they do, they want to know the score. But there's none to be found.

"I have no intention or desire to have a scoring system," Barnhill said. "For many of these teams, this is the first time they get to practice outside, especially this year. The purpose is to experiment."

One experiment that has worked wonderfully is the now-traditional participation of the national squad, for which Barnhill is one of the coaches. The squad is made up of the nation's top 60 players, all of whom are former collegiate players. Barnhill said that since many of the coaches are national team players, the squad's involvement is a natural.

"It's one of the rare times where college athletics and the national governing body have worked together that I know of, and it has greatly benefited both sides."

McDonough said the event is part of what makes lacrosse special.

"We're probably the only sport that still has this kind of weekend," she said. "There is a camaraderie among coaches that is unique and that makes it possible."

Ninety-one percent graduate in NCAA degree-completion program

More than 91 percent of the student-athletes who received NCAA degree-completion grants between June 1990 and October 1992 — 314 of 344 recipients — have earned their diplomas.

The program began in 1988 with the objective of aiding former Division I student-athletes who have a desire to return to college to earn undergraduate degrees.

In 1994, the NCAA has set aside $500,000 for the awards. To qualify, a student must be within two terms of finishing his or her degree. Those interested in applying should contact Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research, at the national office. Applications for awards that will be made in June must be postmarked by May 2. More awards will be made in October.

The NCAA Special Degree-Completion Program Committee considers several factors in awarding the grants, such as the student's grade-point average and need (based on factors such as the size of any professional athletics contract, size of family, age, etc.).

Most students who received awards in 1993 are still in school, although 27.9 percent of the 83 students who received grants last June already have graduated.

Records from 1988 and 1989 do not include how many student-athletes actually accepted the grants, so accurate statistics begin with the June 1990 group.

At its February 28-March 1 meeting in Monterey, California, the Special Degree-Completion Program Committee reviewed data profiling those who have received the awards.

Of those receiving grants:

■ 74.8 percent have been male. [That number is consistent with the percentage of applicants. A factor in the greater demand for males is that females graduate within five years of enrollment at a significantly higher rate (68 percent vs. 52 percent in the most recent graduation-rate survey).]

■ Approximately 57 percent have been white and about 16 percent have been Black (racial information is unavailable for almost 13 percent of the recipients).

■ More have competed in football (29.0 percent) than any other sport. Baseball is next at 12.8 percent, followed by men's basketball (9.0 percent), women's basketball (7.8 percent), men's track and field/cross country (7.7 percent), women's track and field/cross country (4.7 percent), wrestling (4.4 percent), women's volleyball (3.5 percent) and men's swimming (3.2 percent).

■ More have come from San Jose State University, 43, than any other institution. Other institutions with 20 or more students having received scholarships are the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, 32; the University of Wyoming, 30; the University of Kansas, 24, and Arizona State University and Brigham Young University, 20 each.

Nebraska, West Virginia to play in Kickoff Classic

For those disappointed that the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, and West Virginia University didn't play in a bowl game for college football's national championship last year, there's now a minor consolation — the Kickoff Classic.

The Cornhuskers and Mountaineers accepted invitations March 14 to open the 1994 season by playing in college football's traditional opener at Giants Stadium August 28.

The selection came after a proposed game between the University of Miami (Florida) and the University of Wisconsin, Madison, fell apart when Wisconsin elected not to play, sources close to the game told The Associated Press.

Nebraska and West Virginia both went undefeated in the 1993 regular season, but each saw dreams of a national title fall apart in January 1 bowl games.

Nebraska, third in the final

Associated Press poll, lost, 18-16, to then No. 1 and once-beaten Florida State University in the Orange Bowl, missing a long field goal in the final seconds.

The University of Florida ripped West Virginia, 41-7, in the Sugar Bowl, dropping WVU to No. 7 in the final poll.

Nebraska's decision to play in the Kickoff Classic comes after it turned down an offer to play California State University, Fresno, in the Pigskin Classic.

The appearance will be Nebraska's third in the Kickoff Classic. The Cornhuskers played in the inaugural game in 1983, beating Pennsylvania State University, 44-6, and they returned in 1988 and defeated Texas A&M University, College Station, 23-14.

Each team is guaranteed a minimum of $650,000 for playing.

Florida State defeated the University of Kansas, 42-0, in last year's game.

■ Championships previews

Division I Men's Ice Hockey

Colorado College stages comeback

Event: 1994 Division I Men's Ice Hockey Championship.

Overview: In one of the remarkable turnarounds in college ice hockey history, Colorado College, led by first-year coach Don Lucia, captured its first Western Collegiate Hockey Association regular-season title in 37 years after finishing last in 1993. Colorado College became the first WCHA school to go from last to first since Michigan accomplished the feat in 1963-64. Michigan, the top-ranked team for most of the season, won its second Central Collegiate Hockey Association regular-season championship with a 24-5-1 record. The Wolverines have a potent offensive attack that has averaged 4.92 goals per game, and the defense ranked second in the CCHA at 2.67 goals per game. Some of the other contending teams include Harvard, Boston U., Clarkson, Lake Superior State, Massachusetts-Lowell, Michigan State, Minnesota, New Hampshire and Wisconsin.

Field: Twelve teams will be selected March 20. Automatic qualification has been granted to the champions of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and the Central Collegiate Hockey, Hockey East and Western Collegiate Hockey Associations.

Dates and sites: The single-elimination playoff begins at two predetermined regional sites (East in Albany, New York, and West in East Lansing, Michigan), with six teams assigned to each site. The East regional will be March 25-26 and the West regional will be March 26-27. The two highest-seeded teams at each regional site will receive first-round byes. Two teams will advance from each regional to the semifinals March 31 in St. Paul, Minnesota. The final will be April 2 in St. Paul.

Results: Championship results will appear in the April 6 issue of The NCAA News.

Television coverage: NCAA Productions will produce all games from both regionals. The semifinal games will be produced by NCAA Productions and televised live on most Prime Sports-Channel Network affiliates. The championship game will be televised live by ESPN at 7 p.m. (Central time) April 2.

Championship notes: In the past 10 championship games, nine have been decided by two goals or less, including four overtime games....Three of the last five championship games have ended in overtime....Minnesota has appeared in the tournament 20 times—the most in Division I.

What they are saying

Don Lucia, head coach
Colorado College

On his team's regular-season championship after finishing in last place a year ago:

"I couldn't be happier for our players and the fans of Colorado Springs who really have stood by this program through the good times and the bad."

Division I Men's Swimming and Diving

Stanford on top in meet of streaks

Event: 1994 Division I Men's Swimming and Diving Championships.

Overview: Stanford stopped Texas' streak of four consecutive team titles in 1992 and now is working on a streak of its own. With a team that includes defending individual champions Derek Weatherford, Tyler Mayfield and Ray Carey, the Cardinal is favored to make it three victories in a row. Texas and Michigan again will be the primary challengers, returning between them three freestyle champions. Southern California, California and Auburn should battle to complete the top five.

Field: The maximum number of participants allowed is 270. All qualifiers who have met the "A" time standard will be admitted in the meet; those who have met the "B" time standard will be considered until the event is filled. No team is allowed more than 18 competitors. An entrant who swims is counted as one competitor, an entrant who swims and dives is counted as one competitor and an entrant who dives only is counted as one-third of a competitor.

Dates and site: The championships will be March 24-26 at Minnesota.

Results: Championships results will appear in the March 30 issue of The NCAA News.

Television coverage: The championships will be broadcast tape-delayed by CBS at 2 p.m. (Eastern time) April 24.

Championships notes: Ohio State and Michigan have won the most team titles with 11 and 10, respectively, although neither has claimed the crown since 1962. Southern California and Indiana dominated from 1963 through 1977, winning 14 of 15 championships. Stanford and Texas are the latest dominant tandem, having combined to win the last nine titles....During Stanford's current two-year reign, the Cardinal has won eight of 10 relay events—including a sweep in 1992 that helped Stanford rack up a championships-record 632 points.

What they are saying

Jon Urbanek, head coach
Michigan

"The entire nation is a level up from previous years. Stanford with its great senior class looks unbeatable on paper. But thank God we don't swim on paper. Once you get to the NAAs, things can change."

Yann deFabrique of North Carolina is expected to contend in both the 200-yard butterfly and the 200-yard freestyle.

Walter Byers Scholarship finalists announced

Four women and three men are finalists for the two Walter Byers Scholarships that will be awarded to student-athletes later this month by the Association.

The finalists, who were selected by the Walter Byers Scholarship Committee, will travel to St. Louis for interviews with the committee April 10 and 11. The two recipients of the annual awards are expected to be named at that time.

Three finalists are volleyball standouts, including NCAA Today's Top Six finalist Kathleen Elizabeth Haller of the University of Southern California and Division III first-team all-American Amy Marie Sullivan of three-time defending champion Washington University (Missouri). Melinda Danielle Everhart of Ohio Northern University, a three-time letter winner in volleyball, also has lettered four times in softball.

The other finalists are basketball player and Rhodes Scholar finalist Christa Marie Gannon of the University of California, Santa Barbara; football player Frank Augustus Baker, who was awarded a 1993 NCAA postgraduate scholarship for football; three-time soccer team captain Marc Andrew Riedl of Valparaiso University, and track and field athlete Randal D. Pinkett of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, a USA Today and GTE academic all-American.

Each Byers scholar receives a $10,000 scholarship from the Association. The awards were established in 1988 to recognize the contributions of the former NCAA executive director by encouraging excellence in academic performance by student-athletes.

Award recipients are required to have at least a 3.500 grade-point average (4.000 scale), show evidence of superior character and leadership, and demonstrate that participation in athletics has been a positive influence on personal and intellectual development, among other qualifications.

Morehead State votes to eliminate football grants by 1998

Morehead State University ignored pleas from its football coach and voted unanimously March 7 to eliminate the team's 63 scholarships by 1998.

Ronald G. Eaglin, the institution's president, said the move could save the school up to $450,000 a year. With waning interest in the program, he said other programs took precedence.

Coach Cole Proctor said the idea was hatched without his input, and he begged that it be rejected.

"Don't deprive a young man of the opportunity to get an education because he happens to play football," Proctor asked the board of regents.

Following the decision, Proctor asked to be reassigned to other duties at the school.

The board's vote gives Eaglin authority to negotiate the proposal with the Ohio Valley Conference. He will ask the OVC to allow conference members to move to nonscholarship football but still compete as full OVC members in all other sports, thus preserving NCAA Division I status.

Football takes up a large portion of the school's athletics budget. The program took up $650,000 of the $1.7 million budget in the 1989-90 year, and $792,000 of the $2.4 million budget for 1993-94.

One more time: Arkansas men win 11th indoor title

Earlier this year, Arkansas men's track coach John McDonnell said his 1994 Razorbacks had the ingredients to be his best team ever.

Arkansas' performance at this year's NCAA Division I Men's Indoor Track Championships March 11-12 at Indianapolis left little doubt that the Razorbacks were everything McDonnell thought they could be.

Arkansas won six individual titles, including two by field-events star Erick Walder, and racked up a championships-record 94 points to easily win its 11th consecutive team title.

Led by Walder, who became the first individual to win long- and triple-jump titles in three consecutive years, the Razorbacks easily outdistanced runner-up Tennessee, 94 to 40. The Razorbacks' point total was 18 more than the previous record, set by UTEP in 1980 and 1981, while the 54-point margin of victory also set a championships record.

UTEP, with 36 points, finished third, followed by UCLA (25) and Rice (24).

Calvin Davis, Niall Bruton and Jason Bunston also won individual titles for Arkansas. Davis captured the 400-meter dash; Bruton won his second consecutive mile-run title, and Bunston claimed the 5,000-meter-run crown.

■ See championships results: Page 14.

The Razorbacks' quartet of Bruton, Davis, Brian Baker and Graham Hood accounted for the Razorbacks' sixth individual crown, winning the distance medley relay in a championships-record time of 9 minutes, 30.07 seconds. The time also is a collegiate record. The previous collegiate best was 9:33.72, set earlier this year by Michigan.

Lawrence Johnson of Tennessee also set a collegiate record in winning the pole-vault title. Johnson vaulted 19-1½ inches, eclipsing the previous mark of 19-1 set by Istvan Bagyula of George Mason in 1992.

Chris Nelloms of Ohio State and Josephat Kapkory of Washington State joined Walder and Bruton as repeat winners. Nelloms claimed his second consecutive 200-meter dash title, while Kapkory won his second 5,000-meter run in three years.

Abilene Christian sweeps II indoor crowns again

Wildcat women's team takes second straight title behind Campbell, Samuel Revoli Campbell and Bigna Samuel smashed championships records in the 400-meter dash and 1,500-meter run, respectively, to lead Abilene Christian to its second consecutive NCAA Division II Women's Indoor Track Championships team title March 11-12 at North Dakota State.

The Wildcats, who now have claimed a record six team titles, captured five individual championships in all and scored 78 points to outdistance runner-up

Norfolk State (42 points) for the second consecutive year. The Wildcats have won six of the last seven team championships.

St. Augustine's, Adams State and host North Dakota State placed Nos. 3 through 5, respectively.

Campbell claimed her first individual title with a time of 53.73 seconds in the 400-meter dash. The performance beat the record of 54.49 set by Yolande Straughn of Abilene Christian in 1991. Campbell also anchored the Wildcats' winning 1,600-meter relay team.

Samuel won her second consecutive 1,500-meter-run crown with a time of 4:24.25, nearly six seconds better than the championships record of 4:30.14 set by Julie Bowers of West Chester in 1985.

Hermin Joseph and Kim Bartec also claimed individual crowns for the Wildcats. Joseph won her second consecutive 55-meter-dash title, while Bartec won her first high-jump title.

The Wildcats' 1,600-meter-relay team of Donna Hinkson, Yvette Wickham, Mary Tombiri and Campbell gave Abilene Christian its second consecutive title in that event with a time of 3:46.22.

Chandra Sturup of Norfolk State, Karin Grelsson of Seattle Pacific and Janet Hill of Cal State Los Angeles also won for the second consecutive year in their respective events. Sturup claimed the long-jump, Grelsson the triple-jump and Hill the shot-put.

Men's squad rolls up championships-record 99 points to outdistance field

The NCAA Division II Men's Indoor Track Championships were supposed to be a showdown between Abilene Christian and St. Augustine's, but they turned out to be an Abilene Christian showcase.

Brian Amos and Mike Edwards set championships records in the 55-meter hurdles and pole vault, respectively, and Savieri Ngidhi won two individual titles to lead Abilene Christian to its second consecutive indoor team title March 11-12 at North Dakota State.

■ See championships results: Page 14.

The Wildcats accumulated a championships-record 99 points, nearly double St. Augustine's output of 54. The Wildcats topped the previous championships mark of 98 points, set by St. Augustine's in 1991.

New York Tech placed third with 42 points, followed by Ashland (20) and host North Dakota State (19).

Amos, who won his second consecutive 55-meter-hurdles title, clocked in at 7.15 seconds. The mark shattered the previous record of 7.21 set by Derrick Knowles of St. Augustine's in 1988.

Edwards, who also claimed his second consecutive title, vaulted 17 feet, 4½ inches to better his own record of 17-2½ set in 1993.

Ngidhi was the championships' only two-event titlist, winning the 800- and 1,500-meter runs. His time of 1:49.39 in the 800 shattered the meet record of 1:50.97 set in 1985 by Carl Bell of Southeast Missouri State.

Oddly, Louisiana State grabs I women's indoor crown in an even-numbered year

So much for Louisiana State's even-numbered-year jinx at the NCAA Division I Women's Indoor Track Championships.

Entering this year's event, Louisiana State had won four team titles—all in odd-numbered years. But Daphnie Saunders won a second consecutive long-jump title and Danyel Mitchell and Cheryl Taplin earned runner-up finishes in the shot put and 55-meter dash, respectively, to pace Louisiana State to its second consecutive indoor team title March 11-12 at Indianapolis.

Louisiana State, which scored in eight events, totaled 48 points to win back-to-back team titles for the first time. Louisiana State has won a championships-record five team titles.

Alabama, which recorded 29

■ See championships results: Page 14.

points, posted its best team finish in earning runner-up honors. Seton Hall and Texas tied for third place, while Arizona and Nebraska tied for fifth.

Saunders, who also placed third in the triple jump, won the long jump with a record leap of 22 feet, 1 inch. The mark bettered the previous record of 21-10 $\frac{1}{2}$ set by Angela Thacker of Nebraska in 1984.

Holli Hyche of Indiana State stole the individual spotlight, winning repeat titles in the 55- and 200-meter dashes. Hyche's second 200-meter victory came in a championships-record time of 22.90 seconds. The mark eclipsed the record of 22.96 set by Dawn Sowell of Louisiana State in 1989.

Wisconsin's Amy Wickus and Texas' Eileen Vanisi also inserted their names into the championships record book, breaking meet marks in the 800-meter run and shot put, respectively. Wickus, who earned her second consecutive title in the 800, finished in 2:02.05—shattering the record of 2:02.77 set in 1990 by Meredith Rainey of Harvard.

Vanisi's put of 58-1 $\frac{1}{2}$ not only broke the championships record but the collegiate mark. Regina Cavanaugh of Rice set the previous standards with a throw of 57-11 $\frac{1}{2}$ at the 1986 championships.

Louisiana State's Danyel Mitchell finished second in the shot put this season.

Prediction proves right in III men's race

Two weeks before this year's NCAA Division III Men's Indoor Track Championships, Wisconsin-La Crosse coach Mark Guthrie predicted it would take 50 points to win the team title.

Guthrie's squad didn't need quite that many points, but that's exactly what it scored to edge Nebraska Wesleyan (42 points) and win its fourth consecutive team championship March 11-12 at Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Rounding out the top five were St. Thomas (Minnesota) with 37 points, North Central with 24 and Haverford with 20.

Wisconsin-La Crosse, which has won a record six team championships, received points from 10 individuals, including David Coates and Mike Schnurr. They recorded first-place showings in the 400-meter dash and pole vault, respectively.

■ See championships results: Page 15.

Schnurr's pole-vault performance was a championships record, setting the mark at 16 feet, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Chad Thomas of Muskingum held the previous record of 16-7, set in 1992.

Leonard Jones of St. Thomas (Minnesota) turned in the championships' most impressive individual performance, winning a record three individual events.

Jones won the high jump, long jump and triple jump, giving him seven career individual championships.

His long-jump title came via a record-breaking leap of 25 feet, 1 $\frac{1}{2}$

Karl Paranya of Haverford edged out a close field in the 800-meter dash finals, winning by three-tenths of a second.

inches to eclipse the mark of 24-11 $\frac{1}{2}$ set by Jan Cado of North Central in 1989.

Record-breaking performances also were turned in by Dan Mayer of North Central in the 5,000-meter run and Dave McLaren of Wisconsin-Oshkosh in the shot put.

Host team takes title in III meet

Wisconsin-Oshkosh never had hosted the NCAA Division III Indoor Track Championships before this year, but its women's team may want to do so from now on.

In front of the home crowd, Wisconsin-Oshkosh got first-place showings from Tricia Haralson and Melissa Mueller and edged Christopher Newport by five points (41 to 36) to win its first Division III team title March 11-12.

■ See championships results: Page 15.

Mueller won the high jump and was co-champion in the 55 meter hurdles. Haralson claimed the shot-put title to pace the Titans, who were runners-up at three of the last four championships.

Christopher Newport, which has won a championships-record four titles, was runner-up for the first time since 1987. Cortland State, St. Thomas (Minnesota) and Wisconsin-La Crosse placed Nos. 3 through 5, respectively.

Mueller, who posted a mark of 5 feet, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches in the high jump, shared the 55-meter-hurdles crown with 1993 champion Jennifer Green of Baldwin-Wallace. Both finished in 8.33.

Eleena Zhelezov of Brandeis shattered the meet record in the triple jump. Zhelezov, who has won three consecutive triple-jump titles, leaped 40-5 to eclipse the mark of 39-7 $\frac{1}{2}$ set by Sarah Lenchner of Stony Brook in 1990.

Second no more: Oakland wins II men's swimming

Oakland ended 15 years of frustration and stopped Cal State Bakersfield's longtime dominance by winning the NCAA Division II Men's Swimming and Diving Championships March 9-12 at Canton, Ohio.

The Pioneers had finished second 10 times in the last 15 years and had been runner-up six times during an eight-year championships reign by Cal State Bakersfield that began in 1986.

Oakland used freshman David Paxton's victory in the 1,650-yard freestyle—the first event of the meet's final session—to vault past the Roadrunners in the closest meet in six years and give coach Pete Hovland his first men's team crown.

Oakland trailed Cal State Bakersfield by five points after three days of competition, but scored 241½ points on the fourth day to wrap up its second team championship overall and first since 1980. UC Davis finished third, followed by Edinboro and South Dakota.

Paxton's victory was his second in the meet. He also won the 500-yard freestyle earlier en route to becoming the Pioneers' second-highest point scorer behind sophomore Chris Zoltak, who won the 100-yard butterfly and finished second in both backstroke events. Darren DiFazio swept the diving events and Morgan Bailey was the Pioneers' other individual winner with a victory in the 50-yard freestyle.

■ See championships results: Page 12.

Oakland also was bolstered by sophomore Arthur Albiero, a transfer from Cal State Bakersfield, who scored 60 points. His second-place finish in the 200-yard individual medley broke up Cal State Bakersfield's bid to sweep the top five spots in that event.

Albiero also finished third in the 400-yard individual medley and the 200-yard backstroke.

John Keppeler from UC Davis was named swimmer of the meet after winning four events for the second consecutive year. His record time of 1:46.29 in the 200-yard backstroke came only 22 minutes after he fell just .03 seconds short of another record in the 100-yard freestyle.

Oakland had plenty to celebrate at the Division II men's championships. After finishing second 10 times in the last 15 years, the Pioneers finally won the team title.

Keppeler also won the 200-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke.

Cal State Bakersfield's David

Huston also scored 80 points, winning both breaststroke events and both individual medleys.

He became the first four-time winner in the 200-yard breaststroke with his record time of 1:59.15.

Huston now has won nine career individual championships.

Standing in the winner's circle is nothing new for Oakland's women's team, which won its fifth consecutive team title.

Oakland women make big splash with fifth consecutive championship

Oakland won eight of 15 individual events and four of five relays to cruise to its fifth consecutive team title in the NCAA Division II Women's Swimming and Diving Championships March 9-12 in Canton, Ohio.

Senior Amy Comerford and sophomore Kristen Nagelkirk won three events each for the Pioneers, who totaled 630 points to easily outdistance second-place Air Force. Clarion—last year's runner-up—finished third, North Dakota placed fourth and Northern Michigan edged Cal State Bakersfield for fifth.

Nagelkirk won three freestyle events and finished fifth in another to become the meet's top individual scorer with 74 points. Her victory in the 200-yard freestyle was her second in a row.

Comerford won the 100- and 200-yard backstrokes and the 200-yard individual medley to push her career championships total to five.

Other Oakland winners were Ellen Lessig, who successfully defended her 50-yard freestyle title, and Debby Nickels, who became the first Oakland swimmer to win the 1,650-yard freestyle.

Air Force, which recorded its best finish since 1983, was paced by swimmer-of-the-meet Erika Schenavar, who won the 400-yard individual medley and placed fourth or better in the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyles and 200-yard individual medley.

Junior Tanja Hauber and freshman Maiya Anderson also won individual events for the Falcons—Hauber in the 100-yard breaststroke and Anderson in the 200-yard breaststroke. The Falcons also won their first relay, edging Oakland by .19 seconds in the 400-yard medley.

North Dakota's Andrea Rudser won both butterfly events, making her the fourth 100-yard butterfly champion from North Dakota in the last five years. Kim Stanfield of Cal State Bakersfield also was a double winner, sweeping the diving events over Clarion's Kim Strawbridge. They split the diving titles last year.

Kenyon women work magic for 11th straight year in III swimming

■ See championships results: Page 13.

Kenyon senior Jessica Berkowitz won the longest race in the NCAA Division III Women's Swimming and Diving Championships to help the Ladies establish the nation's longest women's team-championships streak.

Berkowitz's fourth consecutive victory in the 1,650-yard freestyle helped Kenyon pull away from the field and win an unprecedented 11th consecutive team title at the championships March 10-12 at Williams.

The string is the longest compiled by any women's team in any division, surpassing the 10 consecutive cross country championships won by Cal Poly San Luis Obispo from 1982 through 1991.

Kenyon entered the final evening of the meet with an 87-point lead over Hope, then scored 61 points in the 1,650-yard freestyle to seal the victory. Hope held on to second place, its best finish ever. Host Williams finished third, followed by UC San Diego and Denison.

Kenyon's Carla Ainsworth was the meet's top individual scorer, sweeping the three freestyle sprints to bring her career individual-championship total to eight. Her time of 50.67 seconds in the 100-yard freestyle broke a meet record she established last year. Ainsworth also swam on all three of Kenyon's winning relays.

Ainsworth's freshman teammate, Kathryn Petrock, swept the 200- and 400-yard individual medleys, besting runner-up Deborah King of Wooster by at least two seconds in each. She also placed third in the 200-yard backstroke to total 56 points for the meet.

Other double winners were UC San Diego's Julie Goldstein, who swept the diving events; Susan Looman of Hope, who won both backstrokes, and Wesleyan's Holly Sorensen, a winner in the 200-yard butterfly and 500-yard freestyle—thus ending Berkowitz's bid for a third consecutive championship in the 500. Sorensen's titles were the first for Wesleyan.

Vermont outlasts Utah to win ski championship

Vermont used strong performances in both the women's and men's freestyle cross country events to overtake Utah on the final day of competition and win the National Collegiate Men's and Women's Skiing Championships March 9-12 at Sugarloaf Mountain in Carra-basset Valley, Maine.

Nina Hamilton and Karianne Opgard finished first and second, respectively, in the women's 15-kilometer freestyle race and teammates Aki Partanen and Trond Nystad were top-10 finishers in the men's 20-kilometer freestyle competition to help Vermont overcome a 36-point deficit heading into the last day of competition.

■ See championships results: Page 12.

Hamilton finished the 15-kilometer event in 46:20.1. Opgard crossed the finish line in 46:21.7. Both women also were strong in the five-kilometer classical, finishing third and fifth, respectively. Teammate Ivana Radlova was fourth in the classical.

Defending team champion Utah held first place by a commanding margin after each of the first three days of competition. Vermont found itself in sixth place after the first day, in second place after two days and in third after the slalom events were completed on the third day.

The Catamounts' Gibson Lafontaine won the women's slalom in 1:36.77. Brett Grabowski finished second for Vermont in the men's giant slalom, and Nystad placed second in the men's 10-kilometer classical.

Utah had three individual winners—Christl Hager in the women's giant slalom (2:07.06), Harvard Solbakken in the men's 10-kilometer classical (30:39.2) and Louis-Francois Gagnon in the men's slalom (1:36.23).

The championship is the fifth for coach Chip LaCasse's Vermont squad and its fourth in six years.

Alaska Fairbanks finally grabs that first rifle title

Alaska Fairbanks claimed its first National Collegiate Men's and Women's Rifle Championships team title March 12 at Murray State, ending West Virginia's string of five consecutive championships.

The Nanooks, who finished second at each of the past three championships, shot 4,657 in smallbore and 1,537 in air rifle for a total of 6,194. West Virginia was second with 6,187 (4,642 and 1,545).

■ See championships results: Page 12.

In the team smallbore event, coach Randy Pitney's championship squad was paced by Cory Brunetti, who shot 1,178; John Shook, 1,165; Jennifer O'Neal, 1,161, and Oleg Seleznev, 1,153.

Kentucky recorded the highest air rifle team score, paced by Nancy Napolski's 394—one short of the championships record. West Virginia was second in team air rifle, followed by Murray State (1,541). The Nanooks were fourth.

Until this year, only West Virginia (nine), Tennessee Tech (three) and Murray State (two) had won team championships since the event began in 1980.

In individual competition March 11, Napolski shot a 391 to win the air rifle title. Brunetti won in smallbore, shooting 1,173. That mark tied him with West Virginia's Jean Foster, but Brunetti had 78 inner tens to Foster's 75 to claim the crown.

It was the first time since 1989 that West Virginia failed to win at least one of the individual events.

Napolski shot scores of 100, 98, 98 and 95 en route to the air rifle victory.

In smallbore, Brunetti shot 396 prone, 382 standing and 395 kneeling. Foster shot 399 prone, 381 standing and 393 kneeling.

Bemidji State goes to overtime to win II ice hockey crown

After more than 15 minutes of overtime, Jason Mack beat Alabama-Huntsville goaltender Derek Puppa with a wrap-around shot that gave Bemidji State a 2-1 victory March 12 in the minigame of the NCAA Division II Men's Ice Hockey Championship in Huntsville.

The teams played to a 1-1 deadlock during the initial 15-minute minigame period. Mike Scanlan of Alabama-Huntsville scored the first goal 3:31 into the period on a feed from Brian Richard and Ryan Wood. Bemidji State tied the score with a goal by Eric Fulton at the 12:33 mark of the minigame.

Mack's championship-winning shot came at the 15:48 mark of the overtime, after an assist from Kris Bjornson.

It was the third consecutive Division II championship for Bemidji State, including the title it won in 1984 before the championship was discontinued.

Garry Symons scored two goals as Alabama-Huntsville won the first game of the two-game-plus-minigame series, 5-3. The Chargers also were aided by Tony Guzzo, who had one goal and two assists, and Graham Fair, who assisted on two goals.

Bemidji State tied the series with a 2-1 victory in the second game. Two second-period goals by Chris Morque and Jeff Sobh were all the Beavers needed to force the minigame tie-breaker.

Bemidji State ended its championship run with a 22-9-3 record, while Alabama-Huntsville finished with a 20-6-1 mark.

Nothing unusual about big upsets in men's tournament

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA STATISTICS COORDINATOR

The prospect of upsets in the 1994 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship—bolstered by a rash of lower-seeded teams beating higher seeds in recent years—is not as surprising as it once was. In fact, upsets seem to bring out the underdog booster in many college basketball fans.

A major upset is defined as one involving teams separated by at least five places in the seedings (such as No. 11 over No. 6 or No. 7 over No. 2) because that means the two teams were at least 16 places apart in the rankings used for regional seeding. By that definition, there were four major upsets in the first round of the 1993 tournament alone.

Last year, the jinx struck Arizona's Lute Olson, as his No. 2-seeded Wildcats dropped a 64-61 decision to No. 15 Santa Clara in the West region. The margin between seeds matched No. 2 Syracuse's loss to No. 15 Richmond in the first round of the 1991 championship as the biggest upset.

Ironically, No. 3 Arizona also dropped an 87-80 decision to No. 14 seed East Tennessee State in the first round of the 1992 tournament.

Only six No. 1 seeds have won the championship since team seeding began in 1979. In 1993, No. 1 seed North Carolina won the championship and, for the first time in the 15 years of seeding, three No. 1 seeds reached the Final Four. North Carolina was joined by No. 1 seeds Michigan and Kentucky and No. 2-seeded Kansas.

Never have all four top seeds in a region survived the opening round of a tournament since the field expanded to 64 teams in 1985 and byes were eliminated.

Top coaches

Dean Smith, coach of defending champion North Carolina, again leads an impressive field of coaches into the championship. Smith, the most victorious active coach (801 victories), has the most all-time tournament appearances (24), most consecutive appearances (20) and most all-time tournament wins (55).

Does it seem that the top coaches dominate the tournament? Well, only four active coaches have won more than one NCAA championship. Indiana's Bob Knight has three titles (1976, 1981, 1987), and Smith (1982, 1993), Louisville's Denny Crum (1980, 1986) and Duke's Mike Krzyzewski (1991, 1992) have two each. Other former title winners in the field are Georgetown's John Thompson, Michigan's Steve Fisher and Michigan State's Jud Heathcote.

Oklahoma State's Eddie Sutton is the only coach to take four different teams to the NCAA championship. He began with Creighton in 1974 and has taken Arkansas, Kentucky and Oklahoma State since then.

Played and coached

Two of this year's coaching field are in a select group of five men who have both played and coached in a Final Four. Smith played on Kansas' 1952 championship team and 1953 second-place squad, while Knight was a player on Ohio State's

Women begin tournament march with bigger field

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA STATISTICS COORDINATOR

The biggest field in the history of the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Championship, 64 teams, was unveiled March 13.

Since the beginning of NCAA women's championships in 1982, the Division I women's basketball bracket has expanded from 32 teams to 40 in 1986 to 48 in 1989.

All conference champions except the East Coast Conference titlist received an automatic bid to this year's championship—a total of 32. Two leagues—the Big Ten and Pacific-10 Conferences—determine their automatic qualifier through regular-season competition rather than a postseason tournament.

Of the 16 additional berths in the bracket, only eight accommodate at-large selections, increasing to 32 the number of teams that must be selected by the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee.

Because of the elimination of first-round byes, the number of first-round games doubles from 16 to 32. For that reason, second-round sites will not be determined until the conclusion of first-round games at campus sites (although second-round matchups generally will be played at the site of the higher-seeded team).

Top coaches

Coaches of the past eight champions are back for the 1994 party—Stanford's Tara VanDerveer (1990 and 1992), Tennessee's Pat Summitt (1987, 1989 and 1991), Louisiana Tech's Leon Barmore (1988), Texas' Jody Conradt (1986) and Texas Tech's Marsha Sharp (1993). Summitt is the only three-time winner.

Other coaches in this year's field who have coached Women's Final Four teams are Connecticut's Geno Auriemma, Western Kentucky's Paul Sanderford, Auburn's Joe Ciampi, Virginia's Debbie Ryan, Southwest Missouri State's Cheryl Burnett, Iowa's Vivian Stringer and Vanderbilt's Jim Foster.

Tennessee's Summitt leads in Women's Final Four appearances with seven, while Louisiana Tech's Barmore is next with six (he also was an assistant coach in another one). Stanford's VanDerveer, Auburn's Ciampi, Western Kentucky's Sanderford and Virginia's Ryan all have three each.

In tournament victories, Tennessee's Summitt has 36, followed by Barmore with 29, Ciampi with 20, and Conradt and VanDerveer with 19 each.

Summitt also has the best winning percentage in the championship among active coaches at .800 (36-9), and she trails only former Louisiana Tech coach Sonja Hogg's .824 (14-3) percentage.

Summitt also holds the distinction of being the only coach to have a team in every Division I women's championship, while Barmore, Conradt, Penn State's Rene Portland and Mississippi's Van Chancellor have missed only one tournament.

First-timers

With 16 new slots in the championship, it would figure that the number of first-time teams in the tournament would go up.

Seven teams were in the tourney for the first time in 1993; this year, that number increases to 19.

The new teams in 1994 are Alabama-Birmingham, Boise State, Brown, Florida International, Fordham, Grambling, Loyola (Maryland), Marquette, Minnesota, Mount St. Mary's (Maryland), North Carolina A&T, Portland, Radford, Seton Hall, Southern Methodist, Tennessee State, Texas A&M, Virginia Tech and Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Twenty-three coaches also are making a first appearance in the big show. They are Alabama-Birmingham's Jeannie Milling, Boise State's June Daugherty, Brown's Jean Marie Burr, Creighton's Connie Yori, Florida International's Cindy Russo, Fordham's Kevin Morris, Grambling's Patricia Bibbs, Indiana's Jim Izard, Loyola's (Maryland) Pat Coyle, Marquette's Jim Jabir, Mount St. Mary's (Maryland) Bill Sheahan, North Carolina A&T's Tim Abney, Oregon's Jody Runge, Portland's

Jim Sollars, Radford's Lubmyr Lichonczak, Seton Hall's Phyllis Mangina, Southern California's Cheryl Miller, Southern Methodist's Rhonda Rompola, Stephen F. Austin's Joe Curl, Tennessee State's Teresa Lawrence-Phillips, Vermont's Pam Borton, Virginia Tech's Carol Alfano and Wisconsin-Green Bay's Carol Hammerle.

Fordham's Morris, Oregon's Runge, Southern California's Miller, Stephen F. Austin's Curl and Vermont's Borton made the 1994 field in their first year as a Division I head coach.

Miller joins Montana State's Judy Spoelstra and former Ohio coach Amy Prichard as the only individuals who both played and coached in the women's Division I championship.

Miller was a three-time winner of the Naismith Trophy at Southern California and is the only former tourney participant to guide her alma mater in the tournament. Spoelstra played in the 1983 cham-

■ Institutional secondary infractions

In addition to the secondary cases summarized below, several violations were found involving members of the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay, men's soccer program. Specifically: (a) during their unofficial visits, seven prospective student-athletes participated in tryouts conducted by the head coach and an associate director of athletics; (b) a student-athlete who was a partial qualifier was provided transportation (on the team bus) to his hometown so he could spend the weekend with his parents; (c) the head coach provided his automobile to a student-athlete for one-way transportation between the young man's hometown and the institution's campus, and occasionally to other student-athletes to run local errands, and (d) a high-school coach participated on a radio program prior to one of the university's contests.

In regard to the case, the institution took the following actions: (1) reduced the number of expense-paid visits to five for the 1993-94 academic year and to 10 for 1994-95; (2) reduced grants-in-aid by one each for 1993-94 and 1994-95; (3) eliminated off-campus recruiting for a three-month period in 1993-94; (4) restricted off-campus recruiting to one coach for the next two years; (5) removed the head coach involved in the violations from all athletically related responsibilities at the institution; (6) employed a full-time compliance coordinator; (7) established an administrative committee to oversee compliance within the athletics department; (8) implemented a rules seminar for staff members that will be conducted by the conference office; (9) implemented a rules-education program for prospective and enrolled student-athletes regarding applicable NCAA legislation for official and unofficial visits to the institution's campus; (10) mandated monthly rules seminars directed by the compliance coordinator, and (11) required maintenance of recruiting logs, official-paid-visit records and financial aid awards, and a review of the certification of eligibility procedures, and that such information should be forwarded to the conference office.

Although the NCAA determined that the case was secondary and accepted the university's actions, it also was determined that it was appropriate to make a public announcement of the case.

DIVISION I

How reported	Sport	Citation	Facts	Institutional action	NCAA action
Conference	Women's track, women's cross country	B 10.1-(d), 17.4.6.1 and 17.18.6.1	Head coach conducted workout sessions during the summer with several student-athletes even though the young women did not request guidance from the coach. When initially questioned, the coach denied involvement in the violations, but when confronted with the provision of other information, she admitted to knowingly violating the legislation.	Withheld involved student-athletes from similar amount of practice time; reprimanded the coach and withheld her from coaching duties for three days (remainder of regular season); intensified rules education for coaches and student-athletes, and publicly announced the case. Conference suspended coach from cross country coaching duties for 20 more days, including national championships; placed her on probation for one year, and issued a public reprimand regarding her involvement.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's ice hockey	B 11.02.6	Volunteer coach rode on the team bus to an away contest.	Reprimanded head coach.	No further action.
Self-reported	Women's soccer	B 11.3.2.8	Head coach signed a contract with an athletics apparel company without prior approval from the institution's chief executive officer. The institution had implemented an extensive compliance program (which detected the violation) immediately before the discovery of the violation. Chief executive officer subsequently approved the contract.	Reprimanded the coach.	No further action.
Conference	Women's basketball	B 11.5.1.1	Newly appointed head coach conducted off-campus recruiting activities before passing coaches certification test. No contact was made with prospects, only with coaches. Coach subsequently took the test and passed.	Precluded coaching staff from off-campus recruiting activities for two days during next contact period.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 11.6.2.1	Undergraduate student assistant coach scouted an opponent.	Reviewed legislation with the coaching staff.	No further action.
Conference	Men's basketball	B 11.7.1.1.3 and 11.7.4	Institution exceeded coaching staff limitations in that a consultant, intended to be utilized by the coaching staff only, also interacted with student-athletes.	Reviewed legislation with coaching staff; sent written notice to all head coaches regarding the legislation, and will include a review of the legislation at the next departmental meeting.	No further action.
Conference	Men's basketball	B 11.7.4.9	Restricted-earnings coach had off-campus recruiting contact with a prospect in that he transported the young man to his home after his official paid visit with the approval of the head coach. Prospect will not attend the college. The violation was reported to the athletics office by the business office when the coach applied for reimbursement for expenses.		Required the institution to review legislation with coaching staff, and expressed concern that head coach was not aware of basic coaching-staff restrictions and recruiting regulations.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 13.1.2.1	While team was on a foreign tour, its interpreter met with a prospective student-athlete on two occasions regarding attending the university and brought his transcript back to the head coach. Prospect enrolled at another institution.		Advised institution to review correct application of legislation with all coaching staff members to avoid a similar violation. Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Men's ice hockey	B 13.1.6.2	Head coach had contact with the parents of a prospect at the site of the young man's competition. The parents approached the coach and asked him a couple of questions. The coach indicated that he exited as soon as it was politely possible. Prospect has committed to attend another institution.	Sent letter of caution to the coach.	Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Conference	Men's tennis, women's tennis	B 13.12.1	Head women's coach provided private lessons for a male prospective student-athlete. Lessons began before the young man entered the ninth grade.	Required coach to cease lessons; precluded recruitment of the prospect, offering of financial aid to him or allowing him to walk on, and conducted a rules-review session with the coach.	Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Conference	Men's tennis, women's tennis	B 13.12.1	Assistant coach gave private lessons to five local high-school students. Institution is not seeking restoration of prospects' eligibility. Violation was reported after a weekly rules-education session.	Sent letter of reprimand to coach, reviewed legislation with him and implemented an orientation process for new coaches.	Prospects are ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Women's volleyball	B 13.4.5.1.1	Camp coordinator placed a full-page advertisement for a camp in a high-school game program that also did not contain multiple listings. Coaching staff was unaware of the placement of the advertisement.	Reminded camp coordinator of application of NCAA rules.	No eligibility consequences. No further action.
NCAA inquiry	Women's tennis	B 14.1.6.1 and 16.12.2.1	On one occasion, assistant coach provided local transportation to two student-athletes. On several occasions, individuals who were not full-time enrolled students practiced with the team.	Reprimanded head coach, conducted rules review with her and reduced her salary increase from four percent to two percent.	No further action.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 14.11	Student-athlete participated in one contest (for 30 seconds), even though he was not properly certified as eligible. The institution did not follow its established procedures to ensure certification. The young man was otherwise eligible and subsequently was certified.	Withheld student-athlete from one contest; reprimanded head coach and director of certification; reminded coaches to check for certification before competition, and will not issue uniforms until verification of certification has occurred.	Advised institution that inasmuch as the violation involved administrative procedural error only and the young man was otherwise eligible, it would not be the NCAA's position to withhold the student-athlete from competition. No further action.

Conference	Women's track, indoor	B 14.2	Two student-athletes competed in a fifth season of competition (including postseason competition). Young women did not provide complete information to the university regarding previous participation.	Implemented additional form requesting previous competition information, reduced grants by one-half of one grant for 1993-94, and forfeited points earned by the young women during the fifth season of competition and adjusted team standings accordingly.	Advised institution that individual points and records will be vacated from championship competition, and team standings will be adjusted accordingly.
Self-reported	Women's cross country	B 14.2	Student-athletes competed in three contests during a fifth year of competition. Young woman had run "unattached" during first year of competition after an interpretation from the conference that she would not use a season of eligibility. Conference failed to note to the institution that such competition could only be open, not strictly intercollegiate, in order for interpretation to apply.	Forfeited points earned by the young woman in the three contests during the fifth year.	No further action.
Conference	Men's rifle	B 14.2.1	Student-athlete competed in one contest even though five calendar years had elapsed since her initial enrollment in a four-year collegiate institution. Young woman competed individually, and her score did not impact team scoring. Young woman's name was on the institution's eligibility list, which is what coaches use for permission to allow participation.	Reminded individuals involved in certification process of seriousness of such errors.	Advised institution that future similar violations will result in more serious actions being taken.
Conference	Men's tennis	B 14.3.5.1.2 and 14.11	Transfer nonrecruited walk-on student-athlete competed in two contests before being properly certified by the institution. Young man was otherwise eligible.	Withheld student-athlete from one contest for a three-day period; issued a written reprimand to the coach, and required him to have squad lists approved before future competition.	No further action.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 14.6.6 and 14.6.6.2	Transfer student-athlete was certified as eligible and competed for one year even though she did not earn an associate of arts degree. Institution secured an interpretation on two occasions to ensure that she could be certified. Junior college indicated that it would award the AA degree retroactively, but ultimately did not. Institution did not seek restoration.	Reduced scholarships by two for 1993-94 and by one for 1994-95, and increased monitoring and checks system for certifying eligibility and securing interpretations.	No further action.
Conference	Men's track, indoor	B 15.3.5.1	Institution did not notify a student-athlete in writing by July 1 that his financial aid (one-third of his education costs) would not be renewed. It provided a hearing, at which time it was determined that the young man had not been truthful, and the financial aid was not reinstated.	Revised forms and renewal policies.	Requested a written report regarding a review as to whether other student-athletes were not notified by July 1. Advised college that such violations are considered serious in that they affect the welfare of student-athletes, and the college should make every effort to avoid a recurrence.
Conference	Baseball	B 15.5.3.1	Institution exceeded team financial aid limitation by .28 of one grant. It had omitted out-of-state tuition waiver for one student-athlete from calculation of total financial aid. No student-athlete exceeded individual financial aid limit.	Reviewed legislation with head coach; compliance coordinator will monitor awarding of aid; installed compliance software, and reduced aid for following year by .28 of one grant.	No further action.
Self-reported	Baseball, women's cross country	B 15.5.3.1 and 15.5.3.3	Teams exceeded financial aid limitations (baseball by 3.6 and cross country by 1.89) in that "awards of circumstances" provided to some student-athletes were not included in the calculation of equivalency grants-in-aid. No student-athlete exceeded individual limitations. Awards are available to all students.	Required extended rules education, and reduced baseball grants by one for 1994-95 and one for 1995-96.	Required institution to reduce initial financial aid by 1.8 for 1994-95 and 1.8 for 1995-96 in baseball, and by 1.89 in cross country (rather than by amount proposed by the university).
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 16.12.2.1	A student-athlete was provided cost-free lodging and most of her meals in the home of one of the team's physicians for three months, and the head coach provided a one-way airline ticket (by using her frequent-flyer points) for the young woman to travel home. Young woman had exhausted her eligibility when the violations occurred. Head coach thought that the student-athlete had graduated (although she had not).	Institution required the young woman to repay the cost of the airline ticket, lodging and meals; reviewed Bylaw 16 with entire coaching staff, and developed a system to ensure that coaching staff members and the director of athletics are notified of graduation status of all student-athletes.	Required institution to reprimand coach and team physician and advise them that similar violations in the future will result in more serious actions by the NCAA.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 16.12.2.1 and 16.12.2.3-(b)	Head coach and physical education instructor accepted collect calls from a student-athlete who was in jail, and instructor took young man's homework to him on one occasion, posted his bond, took him on his family's vacation and paid his expenses for four days; allowed the young man to eat meals with his family, and provided local transportation to him. Head coach had told the instructor not to post bond. Student-athlete has been dismissed from the institution.	Precluded recruiting for two days; held rules seminar for all coaches and representatives; hired compliance representative, and requested repayment of some of the costs of the extra benefits.	Expressed concern regarding possible lack of institutional control and required written report regarding continued education programs for staff members. Young man is ineligible.
Conference	Football	B 16.2.1.2	Several student-athletes who were not competing were issued hard tickets to sit in the stands during a contest.	Reviewed ticket procedures, issued a letter of reprimand to the involved administrative assistant and required him to take a test on extra-benefit legislation.	No further action.
Conference	Baseball	B 16.5.1-(b)	Institution provided three nights' lodging and four meals for a student-athlete who had arrived on campus for preseason practice, but was not officially admitted. Admissions office delayed official admittance due to nonreceipt of a junior college transcript. The violation was discovered during a routine check for athletics financial aid eligibility.	Advised coaches (including the involved head coach) to double-check admissions status before student-athletes arrived on campus for preseason practice.	Advised institution that future similar violations may result in actions being taken by the NCAA.
Conference	Men's golf	B 17.1.5.1	One occasion, the team exceeded four-hour daily and 20-hour weekly practice limitations.	Reprimanded head coach, reviewed legislation with him, reduced spring season by three days and required the coach to provide a review of the legislation at the next staff rules-education meeting.	No further action.
Conference	Women's basketball	B 17.1.5.1	One occasion, the team exceeded the four-hour daily practice limitation by 15 minutes. Coach normally used the start of men's practice as a signal to end women's practice, but on the involved day, the men's team did not practice. None exceeded 20-hour weekly practice limitation.	Required institution to develop a reliable monitoring system and method of noting practice times.	No further action.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 17.1.5.3.2.1	One three occasions, the team was required to lift weights after competition.	Reprimanded coaches and reviewed the legislation with them.	Required institution to reduce practice by three hours.

Self-reported	Wrestling	B 17.1.5.5.2	Institution conducted a preseason intrasquad scrimmage off campus. Coach believed a "wrestle-off" constituted a scrimmage.	Compliance officer advised coach of correct application of NCAA legislation.	No further action.
Conference	Women's basketball	B 17.3.3.1-(c)	Team played an exhibition game one day before first permissible date.	Director of athletics now must approve all scheduling of contests	Required institution to delay exhibition games by two days for 1994-95 season.
Conference	Baseball	B 14.1.6.2.2	Two student-athletes practiced and competed in two contests even though they had dropped a course and were enrolled in less than 12 semester hours.	Reprimanded head coach and installed computer system that will note when student-athletes have dropped a course.	Required institution to forfeit two contests in which student-athletes participated while ineligible. Young men are ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
DIVISION I-A
Self-reported	Football	B 13.1.6.2	Assistant football coach had contact with a prospect on the day of his basketball contest. Coach was unaware that the young man was a two-sport athlete.	Ceased recruitment of prospect.	Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Conference	Football	B 13.7.5.2	During an official paid visit, a host took a prospect to the sidelines to watch part of the game.	Ceased recruitment of prospect and will emphasize education of student hosts regarding NCAA legislation.	Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
DIVISION II
Self-reported	Football	B 13.02.4.3	During a quiet period, an assistant coach picked up information regarding prospects at a high-school recruiting service that was conducting a workout session. No contact or evaluation occurred.	Conducted rules-education workshop for coaching staff members.	Young men are ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 13.1.1.3	Head coach had a recruiting contact with a student-athlete from another institution without obtaining written permission. Student-athlete's institution had given verbal release for the young woman.		Required institution to preclude coach from off-campus recruiting contacts for one day in that legislation clearly requires written permission. Young woman is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Conference	Women's softball	B 13.9.1	Assistant coach purchased a meal for a junior college coach. The institution is not recruiting any prospects from the junior college.	Required coach to reimburse the institution for the cost of the meal, reviewed the legislation with the head coach and admonished him to avoid similar violations in the future.	No further action.
Self-reported	Wrestling	B 14.3.2.1.2 and 14.11	Ineligible student-athlete was transported and allowed to compete, and he had not been certified as eligible. Young man was not eligible and did not win his matches.		Required institution to submit a written report that outlines specific actions taken to avoid a similar violation in the future. Young man is ineligible unless restored through NCAA appeals process.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 14.3.2.2.1	Student-athlete participated in preseason practices and one contest before meeting the basic athletics qualifier requirements pertaining to the core curriculum and minimum SAT/ACT scores. In addition, the young man's total enrollment of 12 hours was reduced to 11 hours when he changed his class schedule. Young man played only the last 57 seconds of the game and scored no points.	Revised procedures for certification and verification of eligibility.	Required institution to reprimand head coach and advise institution that there was considerable concern regarding the violation and that it should take precaution to avoid similar violations.
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 16.12.2.1	During the summer, at the request of student-athletes, the head coach opened the gymnasium for the young men to participate in pickup games. At other times, other individuals had requested the gym be opened, and other individuals were present during the games.	Precluded coach's participation in two practice sessions.	No further action.
Self-reported	Women's basketball	B 17.1.5.3.2.1	Team viewed its game film after competition.	Reprimanded head coach and precluded film-viewing for one day.	No further action.
DIVISION III
Self-reported	Men's basketball	B 13.4.5.1.1	Summer camp advertisement that was placed in a high-school game program was not a part of multiple listing. ■ Infractions case: South Carolina State University

I. Introduction.

South Carolina State University is a Division I member institution, Division I-AA in football, and a member of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference (MEAC). It has an enrollment of approximately 5,000 students and sponsors seven men's and seven women's sports.

This case involved violations of NCAA recruiting, eligibility, ethical conduct and institutional control legislation in men's and women's track and field and men's tennis.

A. Case chronology.

On July 18, 1990, the president of South Carolina State University sent a letter to the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement and eligibility appeals stating that the university had initiated an internal investigation into the men's tennis program and that the university's legal counsel would conduct the investigation. On May 10, 1991, the university's legal counsel forwarded to the NCAA the university's preliminary report, which indicated that an ineligible student-athlete participated in the tennis program. On May 30, 1991, an NCAA enforcement representative sent a letter to the university's legal counsel acknowledging receipt of the preliminary report and noting that she awaited the final report. On January 16, 1992, the NCAA enforcement representative sent a second letter requesting the university's final report. On January 17, 1992, the interim president replied in a letter to an NCAA director of enforcement that a final report would be forwarded shortly. On February 3, 1992, the university's legal counsel sent a correction to the preliminary self-report in a letter to the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement and eligibility appeals. The enforcement representative, assuming that this correspondence from the university's legal counsel indicated that the institution's self-report was final, initiated the enforcement staff's review of the report.

On May 5, 1992, the interim president sent a letter to the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement and eligibility appeals self-reporting violations of NCAA legislation in the men's and women's track programs concerning the travel and competition of ineligible student-athletes. On July 21, 1992, the university self-reported that a men's track student-athlete had competed under an assumed name.

The enforcement staff reviewed this information and conducted numerous interviews. On April 2, 1993, the enforcement staff sent a letter of official inquiry to the institution. South Carolina State elected to utilize the summary-disposition process, and prepared and submitted exhibits that were appropriate for a response to an official inquiry.

On July 20, 1993, the NCAA enforcement staff and the university, with the consent of the former head track and field coach who was named in several violations, jointly submitted a report to the NCAA Committee on Infractions for summary disposition of the university's infractions case involving its men's and women's track and field programs and men's tennis program. This report contained a description of the violations that the enforcement staff and university agreed occurred and the corrective actions and penalties taken by the university.

In the report, the enforcement staff indicated that the university's internal investigation was complete and thorough and that, from the onset of the investigation, the university had cooperated with the NCAA. The enforcement staff and the university agreed with the findings contained in the report and that the case was major in nature. The head men's and women's track and field coach agreed to the summary-disposition procedure. In view of these facts, the enforcement staff recommended that the case qualified for summary disposition.

The Committee on Infractions considered the summary-disposition report at its July 31/August 3, 1993, meeting. Noting that the former head track and field coach had not clearly assented to the findings in the report, as required by the summary-disposition procedures, the committee did not issue a decision. On August 20, 1993, the coach specifically agreed to the findings of violations in which he was named.

During a November 2, 1993, telephone conference, the committee accepted the findings of violations in the summary-disposition report but decided to impose additional penalties. On November 3, 1993, the committee notified South Carolina State of the decision to impose additional penalties and of the institu-

Case summary

The NCAA Committee on Infractions has placed the athletics program at South Carolina State University on probation for two years for violations of NCAA recruiting, eligibility, ethical-conduct and institutional-control legislation in the men's and women's track and field and men's tennis programs.

Among the violations, a South Carolina State coach allowed track and field student-athletes to travel and compete while ineligible during the 1992 season. The tennis violations took place in 1989 and 1990. South Carolina State reported the violations to the NCAA.

The Committee on Infractions found NCAA rules violations, as reported by the institution, including:

- Allowing four track and field student-athletes to travel and compete while ineligible.
- Allowing one of those student-athletes to compete under an assumed name.
- Allowing a student-athlete to travel and compete even though he was not officially enrolled at the institution.
- Improperly admitting a prospective student-athlete, providing lodging and meals to that prospect, and allowing him to compete for the university.

The former men's track and field coach's involvement in and knowledge of the impermissible travel and competition by members of his team was a violation of the NCAA's principles of ethical conduct. South Carolina State failed to exercise appropriate institutional control and supervision of those programs.

The case was handled under the summary-disposition procedure, which the institution and the NCAA enforcement staff can agree to follow in major infractions cases. This process may be used if the member institution, involved individuals and NCAA enforcement staff agree on the facts and that those facts constitute major violations of NCAA legislation. The institution proposes penalties, which the Committee on Infractions can accept, reject or change.

In this case, the committee accepted the findings of the violations in the summary-disposition report but decided to impose additional penalties. South Carolina State elected not to accept the penalties and requested an expedited hearing before the committee, which took place February 6, 1994. Following the hearing, the committee imposed its penalties.

The committee adopted the following penalties that were self-imposed by South Carolina State:

- Declared the involved student-athletes and prospective student-athlete ineligible for competition.
- Required student-athletes who competed while ineligible to return any awards received and adjusted team and individual records accordingly.
- Forfeited the 1992 Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Indoor Track Championship and returned championship team and coaching trophies.
- Reduced the number of men's and women's indoor track and field grants-in-aid by two for each squad during the 1992-93 academic year.

The committee imposed the following additional penalties:

- Placing the university on probation for two years and requiring the implementation of a comprehensive education program for athletics.

- Requiring recertification of current athletics policies and practices.

■ Imposing a requirement on the former head men's and women's track and field coach that during a five-year period, any NCAA member institution that hires the coach must appear with him before the committee to determine if his athletically related duties should be affected as a result of his involvement in NCAA violations found in this case.

The committee's findings normally would subject the institution to minimum penalties prescribed by the NCAA membership for major violations. These penalties include a two-year probationary period, elimination of expense-paid recruiting visits for one year, elimination of off-campus recruiting for one year, possible termination of the employment of all staff members who condoned the violations, and the loss of postseason competition and television opportunities for one year.

The NCAA membership has, though, given the committee the authority to impose lesser penalties if it determines that the case is unique. The committee concluded that this case was unique and therefore imposed less than the minimum set of penalties. In imposing its penalties, the committee took into consideration the following factors:

- The detection of violations by the university.
- Thorough investigation and reporting of violations to the NCAA.
- Cooperation in the processing of the case.
- Initiation of strong disciplinary and corrective actions.

As required by NCAA legislation for any institution in a major infractions case, South Carolina State is subject to the NCAA's repeat violator provisions for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

South Carolina State took the following corrective actions, which were considered by the committee in imposing its penalties:

- Designated a staff member in the Office of Enrollment Management to process applications for foreign student-athletes.
- Hired a compliance officer to handle compliance issues and to monitor compliance.
- Instituted periodic institutional rules compliance workshops for staff in the athletics department and from other departments that interact with athletics on a regular basis.
- Removed the director of athletics at the time of the violations and appointed a new athletics director in July 1990.
- Removed the involved head men's tennis coach from his coaching duties. He is no longer employed by the institution in any capacity.
- Removed the involved head men's and women's track coach from his coaching duties. He is no longer employed in the athletics program.

South Carolina State admitted the violations of NCAA rules under the summary-disposition procedure. Because South Carolina State did not accept all of the penalties imposed by the committee and participated in the expedited hearing, it can appeal the penalties to the Infractions Appeals Committee.

The university must notify the NCAA within 15 days of the release of the report if it wishes to appeal.

tion's right to appear before the committee if it did not accept the new penalties.

The university elected not to accept the penalties and requested an expedited hearing before the Committee on Infractions. On February 6, 1994, university representatives appeared before the committee at an expedited hearing on the penalties. After considering the information provided by the university, the committee adopted the institution's proposed penalties and imposed the other penalties contained in this infractions report.

B. Summary of the findings of violations.

The violations primarily concerned:

- Impermissible competition and travel in the men's and women's track and field programs.
- Recruiting violations in the men's tennis program.
- Lack of institutional control.
- Unethical conduct by an institutional staff member.

The competition, travel and ethical-conduct violations involved a coach who allowed academically ineligible student-athletes to represent the institution at several track and field competitions. The coach also permitted an ineligible student-athlete to compete on behalf of the university under an assumed name.

The recruiting violations in the tennis program involved the improper admission and enrollment of a prospective student-athlete and the subsequent provision of lodging and meals in the university's dormitory to the prospect. Further, despite never being properly admitted to the institution, the prospective student-athlete received some academic credit and was permitted to compete on behalf of the institution.

C. Summary of the penalties.

In imposing the following penalties, the committee considered the corrective actions taken by the university, as detailed in Part III-A of this report.

1. The committee adopted as its own the following penalties self-imposed by the institution:

- Declared the involved student-athletes and prospective student-athlete ineligible for competition.
- Required student-athletes who competed while ineligible to return any awards received and adjusted team and individual records accordingly.
- Forfeited the 1992 MEAC Indoor Track Championship and returned the championship team and coaching trophies.
- Reduced the number of grants-in-aid in men's and women's indoor track for one year.

The committee imposed the following additional penalties:

- Placing the university on probation for two years and requiring the implementation of a comprehensive education program for athletics.
- Recertifying current athletics policies and practices.
- Imposing a show-cause requirement on the former head men's and women's track and field coach.

II. Findings of violations of NCAA legislation.

A. Travel and Competition by Ineligible Student-Athletes [NCAA Bylaws 14.01.1, 14.01.2, 14.4.1 and 14.13.1]

During the 1992 spring semester, the head men's and women's indoor and outdoor track and field coach allowed several student-athletes to travel to and compete in intercollegiate competition on behalf of the institution when he knew that the student-athletes were academically ineligible to compete. He also allowed an ineligible student-athlete to represent the institution under an assumed name and permitted another individual, who was not officially enrolled in the institution, to travel to two meets and to compete in one as if he were a properly enrolled student-athlete. Specifically:

1. The head coach allowed four ineligible student-athletes to compete and travel by permitting: (a) one student-athlete to travel to and compete at a relay and the MEAC championship even though he did not meet institutional grade-point-average requirements; (b) a second student-athlete to travel to and compete at the same relay and to travel to the MEAC championship even though she did not meet institutional grade-point-average requirements; (c) a third student-athlete to travel to and compete at two relays and to travel to the MEAC championship even though he did not meet institutional grade-point-average requirements; and (d) a fourth student-athlete to travel to and compete at the MEAC championship and to travel to a relay even though he did not meet institutional grade-point-average requirements.
2. A student-athlete competed under an assumed name. The individual was permitted to travel to the MEAC championship even though he had not been certified as eligible. When he approached the head coach about competing in the event, the head coach told the student-athlete to look in the head coach's briefcase and to put on his number and compete if the student-athlete's number was there. The young man did not locate his number, but he did see the number of another student-athlete who had not traveled with the team to the meet. The first student-athlete then competed under the second student-athlete's name in the preliminary competition. The head coach learned that the first student-athlete competed under another's name after the first student-athlete qualified for the finals; nevertheless, the head coach permitted the student-athlete to continue to compete in the finals under the assumed name.

3. The head coach permitted a student-athlete to travel to and compete at a relay and to travel to the MEAC championship, even though he was not officially enrolled at the institution.

The head coach acknowledged that he was aware of possible questions concerning the eligibility of a number of the individuals involved in the above violations and that he had not secured proper eligibility certification for all members of his track teams. However, he permitted the individuals to compete because he believed this method would enable him to field the 14-member team that the university needed to satisfy the sports-sponsorship criteria.

B. Participation of and Benefits Provided to a Prospective Student-Athlete [NCAA Bylaws 13.2.1, 14.01.2 and 14.1.5]

During the 1989 and 1990 spring semesters, athletics department staff members provided lodging and meals in the university's residence hall to a men's tennis prospective student-athlete at no cost. They also allowed the young man to practice and compete in several intercollegiate contests even though he was ineligible for competition and financial aid because he did not meet the university's admission requirements.

Specifically, although the university conditionally admitted the prospective student-athlete as an international student and allowed him to register and attend classes, he never met the requirements for admission to the university since he never completed an admissions application for international students, graduated from high school, took the SAT exam, nor produced the necessary immigration form.

The prospective student-athlete was allowed to reside in university housing during the 1989 and 1990 spring semesters and receive meals at the university cafeteria during the 1990 spring semester even though staff in the athletics department raised questions in the fall 1989 concerning discrepancies in his enrollment and admission.

The university allowed the prospective student-athlete to compete while ineligible at the MEAC 1989 tennis championships and at least two other matches during the 1990 spring semester.

C. Lack of Institutional Control [NCAA Constitution 2.1, 2.6.1 and 6.01.1]

The scope and nature of the violations that occurred in the track and field program during the 1992 spring semester, as indicated in Part II-A of this report, demonstrate a lack of institutional control. University officials did not appropriately monitor and supervise the institution's intercollegiate men's and women's indoor and outdoor track and field teams since ineligible student-athletes were allowed to compete.

During the 1988-89 and 1989-90 tennis seasons, the institution failed to exercise institutional control by not undertaking appropriate supervision of the institution's intercollegiate men's tennis program. As detailed in Part II-B of this report, university procedures were not followed and a prospective student-athlete, who was not officially admitted to the university, was permitted to receive meals and lodging, to practice, and to compete in intercollegiate competitions.

D. Unethical Conduct [NCAA Bylaw 10.1]

The former head men's and women's track and field coach acted contrary to the principles of ethical conduct. He did not, on all occasions, deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics. His involvement in and knowledge of the violations reported in Part II-A demonstrate a knowing effort on his part to operate the institution's men's and women's track and field programs contrary to NCAA legislation.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties.

The Committee on Infractions agreed with the NCAA enforcement staff and the institution that this case involved several major violations of NCAA legislation that occurred after September 1, 1985. NCAA Bylaw 19.5.2.2, as adopted by the Association's membership, requires prescribed minimum penalties, "subject to exceptions authorized by the Committee on Infractions in unique cases on the basis of specifically stated reasons," that include: (a) a two-year probationary period (including a periodic, in-person monitoring system and written institutional reports); (b) the elimination of all expense-paid recruiting visits to the institution in the involved sport for one recruiting year; (c) a requirement that all coaching staff members in the sport be prohibited from engaging in any off-campus recruiting activities for one recruiting year; (d) a requirement that all institutional staff members determined by the Committee on Infractions knowingly to have engaged in or condoned a major violation be subject either to termination of employment, suspension without pay for at least one year or reassignment of duties within the institution to a position that does not include contact with prospective or enrolled student-athletes or representatives of the institution's athletics interests for at least one year; (e) one year of sanctions precluding postseason competition in the sport; (f) one year of sanctions precluding television appearances in the sport, and (g) institutional recertification that the current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

The Committee on Infractions determined that this was a "unique" case in which the institution should receive less than the full set of minimum penalties otherwise required by NCAA legislation. The factors that made this case unique include: the detection of violations by the university; thorough investigation and reporting of violations to the NCAA; cooperation in the processing of the case, and initiation of strong disciplinary and corrective actions, including the establishment of administrative procedures designed to ensure that the institution will comply with the principles of institutional control and rules compliance in the future.

The Committee on Infractions would have adopted even more severe penalties, including prohibiting South Carolina State from competing for an NCAA championship in any of the involved sports for at least one year, had an employee of the university department of enrollment management and the director of athletics at the time of the violations not taken immediate action. Upon learning that ineligible student-athletes were competing or about to compete in the MEAC track championships, they notified the head coach that the student-athletes should not compete. When they learned that ineligible individuals had nevertheless participated in the meet, they reported the matter at once to the appropriate university officials.

A. Corrective actions self-imposed by the university.

In determining the appropriate penalties to impose, the committee considered the institution's self-imposed corrective actions. Specifically, the university:

1. Designated a staff member in the Office of Enrollment Management to be responsible for processing the applications of foreign students. This individual also coordinates the processing and tracking of international students.

2. Hired a compliance officer to handle compliance issues and to monitor compliance with institutional, conference and NCAA rules and regulations within the athletics department.

3. Instituted periodic institutional rules compliance workshops for athletics department personnel and the staff in departments that interact with the athletics department on a regular basis.

4. Removed the director of athletics at the time of the violations and appointed a new athletics director in July 1990.

5. Removed the involved head men's tennis coach as coach of the men's tennis program. He no longer is employed by the institution in any capacity. Tennis currently is coached by a full-time member of the university's athletics staff.

6. Removed the involved head men's and women's track coach as head coach of men's and women's track. He is no longer employed in the athletics program. A new full-time track and field coach has been employed.

B. Penalties self-imposed by the university.

The Committee on Infractions adopted as its own the punitive actions that the university took to correct problems that existed and to ensure that further violations would not occur. Specifically, the university:

1. Declared a student-athlete, who was not properly enrolled, ineligible for athletics competition at the university and barred him from attending classes unless and until he satisfies the institution's admissions requirements.

2. Prohibited student-athletes who competed while ineligible from further competition unless and until the NCAA restores their eligibility.

3. Required student-athletes who competed while ineligible to return any medals/awards for the 1992 regular-season spring meets in which they competed and removed their names/places from any records kept. The institution reduced team points accordingly for the 1992 spring season.

4. Forfeited the individual and team men's track standings for the 1992 MEAC Indoor Track Championships.

5. Returned the 1992 MEAC championship trophy.

6. Required the involved head men's and women's track coach to return the Outstanding Coach Award for the 1992 MEAC championship.

7. Reduced the number of equivalency grants-in-aid in men's and women's indoor track by two for each squad during the 1992-93 academic year.

C. Additional penalties imposed by the Committee on Infractions.

Although the Committee on Infractions agreed with and approved of the actions taken by the institution, the committee decided to impose additional penalties. After receiving notification of the additional penalties, the institution, pursuant to Bylaw 32.6.1.4.3, elected to participate in an expedited hearing on the penalties.

The university and NCAA enforcement staff appeared before the Committee on Infractions at an expedited hearing February 6, 1994. After the hearing, the committee decided to impose the following minimum penalties:

1. The institution shall be placed on probation for a period of two years, effective July 20, 1993. During this period of probation, the institution shall: develop and implement a comprehensive educational program (e.g., seminars and testing) to instruct coaches and athletics department personnel on NCAA legislation; submit a written preliminary report to the administrator for the NCAA Committee on Infractions by April 15, 1994, setting forth a schedule for establishing this compliance and educational program, and file annual progress reports with the committee's administrator by July 1 of each year during the probationary period.

2. The institution shall recertify that all of its current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

3. The former head men's track coach shall be informed in writing by the NCAA that, due to his involvement in certain violations of NCAA legislation found in this case, if he seeks employment or affiliation in an athletically related position at an NCAA member institution during a five-year period (December 4, 1993, to November 30, 1998), he and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions in order for the committee to consider whether that member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.5.2.1-(m), which could limit the former coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

If the involved former head men's track coach had still been employed in an athletically related capacity at the institution, the university would have been required to show cause, in accordance with Bylaw 19.5.2.1-(m), why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it did not take appropriate disciplinary action against him.

As required by NCAA legislation, South Carolina State shall be subject to the provisions of NCAA Bylaw 19.5.2.3, concerning repeat violators, for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case.

Because the university participated in the summary-disposition process and agreed to the findings of violations in this report, the university has waived its right to appeal the findings.

Should South Carolina State appeal the penalties imposed in this case to the NCAA Infractions Appeals Committee, the Committee on Infractions will submit a response to the members of the appeals committee. This response will include an expanded report and additional information, in accordance with Bylaw 32.9.5, and a copy will be provided to the institution prior to its appearance before the appeals committee.

The Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that when the penalties in this case become effective, the institution should take every precaution to ensure that their terms are observed. The committee intends to monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as for imposing more severe sanctions in this case.

Should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.

year. Indiana, which has not been in the tournament since 1983, also is back, as well as long-missing Oregon State (1984), Missouri (1986) and Oregon (1987).

Twenty-three women's teams that received bids in the 64-team field are from schools that also are sending teams to the Division I men's tournament. Loyola (Maryland) received first-time berths for both men's and women's teams, while Purdue became the first team in history to garner a No. 1 seed in the men's and women's tournaments in the same year. Connecticut just missed matching that achievement; the women won a top seed while the men claimed a No. 2 seeding.

For the first time in basketball championships history, first-round matchups in both tournaments pair the same schools—George Washington and Alabama-Birmingham.

Missouri becomes only the second team since 1982 to enter the women's tournament with a losing record. The Tigers are 12-17, but won the Big Eight Conference automatic berth by winning the post-season tournament. The only other team with a losing record was Notre Dame in 1992, and it lost in the first round.

Seeding facts

A return to seeding all the teams in the 64-team bracket will make tracking upsets a little easier in the women's field. A major upset is defined as one involving teams separated by at least five places in the seedings (No. 6 upset by a No. 11, or a No. 5 by a No. 10).

The women's committee has had phenomenal success picking the top seeds every year. All 12 championship teams since 1982 were seeded either No. 1 (nine times) or No. 2, and of the 48 teams that have appeared in the 12 Women's Final Fours, 47 were seeded No. 4 or higher.

Quick facts

■ The Naismith Trophy, given since 1983 to the best women's player in the nation, has gone to a player on the NCAA championship team only three times. Texas

Tech's Sheryl Swoopes in 1993, Stanford's Jennifer Azzi in 1990 and Southern California's Miller in 1984 were the championship-team players to receive the award.

■ There are no undefeated teams in this year's tournament, and only four have appeared in the tournament since 1982. Texas (34-0) in 1986 is the only team to win the national title with a perfect record. Interestingly, Vermont, which was undefeated heading into the last two championships, is 19-10 this season.

Hawaii (1972) also have been away for a while.

Others that have been missing for a few years include James Madison, Ohio and Washington State, all gone from the field since 1983; Boston College (1985), and Drexel and Texas (both 1986).

UCLA's Larry Brown (1980), Indiana State's Bill Hodges (1979), Louisville's Crum (1972), Wichita State's Gary Thompson (1965) and DePaul's Ray Meyer (1943).

Most-improved teams

Loyola (Maryland), in the NCAA tournament for the first time, currently is the leader in the men's 1994 most-improved team list.

The Greyhounds have improved 14 games over last season, going from 2-25 in 1993 to 17-12 so far this year (see chart on page 16). To determine games improved, add additional victories in the second year and subtract losses from the previous year, then divide by two.

Team notes

Five teams are in the tournament for the first time in school history. They are Central Florida, Charleston (South Carolina), Liberty, Loyola (Maryland) and Southwest Texas State.

Thirty-three teams that played in the 1993 tournament are back this year. Some teams, however, have waited a long time to return to the championship. Wisconsin's last trip was 1947, and St. Louis (1957) and logical counseling.

'One of best concepts'

James Frank, commissioner of the Southwestern Athletic Conference, says that in his experience, "the fund is providing assistance to student-athletes who really, really need it."

James C. Andrus of the Western Athletic Conference calls the fund "if not the best, one of the best concepts" in NCAA programs. He notes that it is the one way that money legally can be transferred to those students who need it the most. Andrus cites examples of student-athletes who never have received proper dental care and who, as a result of the fund, now are able to get their teeth fixed.

Andrus also notes examples of student-athletes from warm-weather climates who go to a university in a cold climate. "They might not own a coat," Andrus notes. "They might not have a pair of shoes appropriate for winter. We're meeting a basic need."

In fact, clothing was the most often-cited reason for application to the fund in the 1992-93 academic year. Clothing is the only item that has a dollar limit: up to $200 per student-athlete. Other often-cited purposes were medical expenses, vision therapy (glasses or contact lenses) and expendable course supplies (notebooks, paper, pens, etc.).

The fund is administered by the conferences. Conferences receive amounts based on the number of students at member institutions who qualify for Pell Grants, Federal grants based on financial need. Any student-athlete who meets the financial needs guidelines can apply to the fund, however, not just those who are receiving Pell Grants.

Some conferences have been more aggressive than others in promoting the existence of the fund. The Southwestern Athletic Conference, for example, gave out 99 percent of its funds in grants to 789 student-athletes in the 1992-93 academic year.

Other conferences have used less than half of their funds. The NCAA Special Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues recently decided to contact those conferences to determine the reasons for lack of use and whether there are better ways to handle need.

earlier won a restraining order judgment in Kentucky against Kellogg's for unlawful use of the NCAA's marks and goodwill in a promotion the cereal company recently had begun.

Games of chance

The Illinois High School Athletic Association owns rights for the phrase "March Madness." The NCAA works closely with the Illinois association with regard to defending the phrase.

In the Missouri Lottery's "March Madness" promotion, lottery players could enter nonwinning scratch-off lottery tickets in a drawing for tickets to the 1994 Final Four in Charlotte, North Carolina. The NCAA contacted the Missouri Lottery Commission and the office of the Missouri attorney general and succeeded in halting the promotion.

The Missouri Lottery recalled 4.8 million "March Madness" scratch-off lottery tickets that were to be used with the promotion, said John S. Black of the Association's legal counsel, the Kansas City, Missouri, firm of Swanson, Midgley, Gangwere, Kitchin and McLarney.

Two college students in Michigan began promoting the First Annual College Basketball Stock Market Challenge, a computer game in which players were to take a fictional $100,000 and "invest" in teams in the Division I Men's Basketball Championship. The game, however, required a real $69.95 entry fee.

The NCAA acted swiftly in those cases to inform the violators of their infringements, Black said.

"All (of these cases) were of particular concern with the NCAA because they all involved gambling in some form," Black said. "The NCAA always reacts fast, but with these the NCAA was especially quick because of the gambling aspect."

Popular events

The basketball championships make for a busy spring for John T. Waters, NCAA director of licensing. Waters annually works with Federal and local law enforcement officials at the sites of the Final Four and the Women's Final Four to crack down on vendors who violate NCAA licensing agreements.

"Throughout the year, we are involved in these issues," Waters said. "Beginning in February, it really begins to heat up. Our licensees will tell us (of violations) they see in the marketplace and the staff here helps us as well. There are different avenues by which we are alerted. We're always on the lookout."

Popular events such as the Final Four and Women's Final Four are attractive to advertisers because of their name recognition, said Kathryn M. Reith, NCAA director of public information.

"There's always ambush marketing," Reith said. "People will try and trade on a big event without mentioning it."

"The public event of the moment is what advertisers call a good opportunity for a stretch," Black said. "You get more for your money if you don't pay the person whose goodwill you are exploiting."

Black said the NCAA should not be misconstrued as an inflexible and angry association for pursuing violators of its intellectual property rights.

"The NCAA is very protective of its ownership of marks and championships," Black said. "But it knows the difference between innocent mistakes and intentional ambushes."

Black said individuals and companies need only place a phone call to the NCAA when they are unsure about the permissibility of a promotion they wish to use. He said that while many people will call Waters about a project, others are not as cautious.

"The NCAA is not trying to play tricks on anybody," Black said. "This is not a guessing game. All you need to do is pick up the telephone and ask."

"The ones who are violating NCAA marks and property rights on a calculated basis know they are taking a risk. We work really hard to make sure people who misappropriate our marks do not get away with it."

Certification

Athletics personnel needed to round out pool of peer reviewers

Candidate forms, along with other requirements and guidelines for peer reviewers, can be obtained by contacting David A. Knopp, NCAA director of compliance services, at the national office.

Lacking ADs, SWAs

On the surface, Division I-A seems well represented in the peer-reviewer pool with 295 individuals, compared to 178 for I-AA and 95 for I-AAA.

However, only 23 of those 295 are athletics directors and 29 are senior woman administrators. In fact, athletics directors and senior woman administrators are the least-represented categories in I-A, trailing chief executive officers (57) and faculty athletics representatives (44). The rest are individuals with other job descriptions, inside and outside athletics.

"We've discussed this as a committee," said Marcia L. Saneholtz, senior associate athletics director at Washington State University and chair of the peer-selection subcommittee. "Our perception is that a lot of athletics personnel were not really supportive of the certification legislation. I suspect that has impacted their decision to participate. We would like for them to take part so these institutions can be reviewed by their peers. But if they don't, it ties our hands."

She said some athletics administrators may be resisting because of impressions they have about the workload associated with being a peer reviewer, and she also said some may be concerned about what participation might mean for their own program, although she added "the way to counteract that is to participate."

Another factor, she said, is that some athletics personnel may feel that the program was pushed upon them by chief executive officers, who now may not be as involved in the process as many believed they would be when the certification legislation was approved at the 1992 Convention.

"Right now," Saneholtz said, "we have only 118 CEOs on board for all of Division I. We once had hoped to chair all the review teams with a CEO, but that's going to be difficult now. So, I would say there is a lack of representation for CEOs, as well."

Institutions have indicated they want to be reviewed by teams made up of individuals from comparable institutions (for example, same subdivision, public/private, large/-small). Athletics directors and senior woman administrators obviously offer a valuable perspective for the process, but with so few to choose from, the peer-selection subcommittee had trouble finding suitable matches when it met March 8-9 in Denver.

Further, to assemble a suitable team, the subcommittee in a few cases had to fill spots with reviewers located outside the geographical districts contiguous to the institution undergoing review. For instance, a peer reviewer from the West Coast was assigned to a team reviewing an institution in the upper Midwest. The institution under review is responsible for the travel expenses of the peer-review team, so the extra distance most likely means extra expense.

Requests for additional athletics administrators will be made through a mailing to Division I-A conferences.

after he was named the nation's outstanding amateur athlete for 1993.

Ward, 23, was among 10 finalists for the Sullivan, presented each year since 1930 by the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union.

He also is the first football player to win the Sullivan since U.S. Military Academy teammates Doc Blanchard in 1945 and Arnold Tucker in 1946.

"Let's touch bases before the meeting."

"There are a lot of hurdles on your career path. I'm one of them."

"Give them the one-two punch: gross revenues then earnings."

"How many at-bats do we get on the new business pitch?"

"Your promotion was a slam dunk."

"I need a quarterback for this project."

Deaths

Eugenia Conner, a standout basketball player at Mississippi in the 1980s, died of a heart attack March 3 in Gulfport, Mississippi. She was 30. A coroner's report concluded that Conner had a hyperactive thyroid, which ultimately led to heart failure. A 6-foot-2 center for Mississippi from 1981 to 1985, Conner is the only player in school history to be named to the all-Southeastern Conference team four times. She is the third-leading scorer at Mississippi with 1,993 points. After college, Conner played professionally in Europe for four years and was working for the Mississippi State Department of Human Services at the time of her death.

Vern Smith, athletics director at Toledo for 16 years and a former member of the NCAA Council, died January 20 after suffering a stroke. He was 70. Smith retired from Toledo in 1986 and later served for one year as a consultant to the athletics department there. He served as chair of the NCAA All-Star High School Committee and the NCAA Committee on Committees. Smith established the Rocket Club, the fund-raising unit of the Toledo athletics department.

Five hundred radio stations to cover basketball tournaments

As many as 500 radio stations will be part of the NCAA/CBS radio network for the 1994 NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship and the 1994 Women's Final Four.

In addition to men's and women's tournament action, the radio network features two call-in shows.

Jim Hunter and Bill Raftery will man the NCAA/CBS radio broadcast center during the tournament. The radio network will cover all rounds of the men's tournament. John Rooney, Marty Brennaman and Raftery will call action from the Final Four in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Bob Davis and Nancy Lieberman-Cline will provide play-by-play and commentary from the Women's Final Four in Richmond, Virginia.

A Selection Sunday call-in show, hosted by Ron Franklin and Davis, aired live March 13 from Kansas City, Missouri.

Franklin, Rooney, Brennaman, Raftery and Hunter will be teamed as hosts of another call-in show April 1, the eve of the Final Four. The show will be from 9 p.m. to midnight (Eastern time).

Following is a list of stations (listed by state) that will carry men's and/or women's tournament action over the NCAA/CBS Radio Network. Those stations marked with a (w) will originate at least one game of the Women's Final Four. Those stations designated with an (m/w) will carry action from both the men's and women's tournaments. All other stations will carry games from the men's tournament only.

Director of Athletics

Northern Arizona University invites applications and nominations for the position of Director of Athletics. The director will report to the president through the vice-president for student services.

RESPONSIBILITIES: The individual will be responsible for the management and direction of all aspects of the athletics program. In addition, the applicant will provide leadership for a long-range plan for the program, develop a competitive athletics program, prepare and administer budgets, be involved in fund-raising, insure compliance with NCAA and conference regulations, supervise and train athletics staff personnel, and provide leadership in developing and maintaining athletic programs for both men and women.

QUALIFICATIONS: Minimum requirements for this position are five years of successful athletics administration experience at the Division I level with at least three years at the Assistant or Associate Athletic Director level. Bachelor's degree is required; master's degree is preferred. The candidate must have demonstrated commitment to both men's and women's programs and must possess a sensitivity to gender equity issues. The individual must have a thorough knowledge of NCAA rules and regulations, possess good communication and interpersonal skills, and show evidence of sound fiscal, operational and personnel management. The applicant must be able to interact with constituents both on and off campus. The candidate must have a strong commitment to the academic achievement and personal growth of student-athletes.

SALARY: The salary is competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications; comprehensive benefits are included.

APPLICATION: Interested persons should submit a letter of application, resume and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of three references. Nominations and applications will be accepted until the position is filled. ONLY COMPLETE FILES WILL BE CONSIDERED. First consideration will be given to those applications received by April 15, 1994. Applications and nominations should be sent to: Athletics Director Search Committee, Dr. Sam McClanahan, Chair, Northern Arizona University, P.O. Box 4095, Flagstaff, Arizona 86011.

Northern Arizona University, Flagstaff, Arizona, enrolls approximately 18,000 undergraduate and graduate students in nine colleges and schools. The university competes at the Division I level (IAA football) in seven men's and women's sports and is a member of the Big Sky Conference for all sports except men's and women's swimming and diving, where NAU competes in the Pacific Collegiate Swimming Conference.

Northern Arizona University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Minorities, women, persons with disabilities and veterans are encouraged to apply.

Bowling Green State University DIRECTOR OF ATHLETICS

BOWLING GREEN STATE UNIVERSITY invites nominations and applications for the position of Director of Intercollegiate Athletics that becomes available upon the retirement of the current director. The director reports to the university president and is responsible for the overall management and coordination of the university's intercollegiate athletics program, which currently includes 19 men's and women's NCAA Division I sports competing in the Mid-American Athletic Conference, as well as the Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

The university maintains a very competitive and growing intercollegiate sports program. In 1991-92, and 1992-93, university teams won conference championships in a total of seven men's and women's sports, had two bowl appearances and twice won the Jacoby Cup for the outstanding women's program in the Mid-American Conference.

BGSU, a member of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, is one of Ohio's nine Ph.D.-granting public universities, with an enrollment on two campuses of 19,150. The main campus is residential, located in the city of Bowling Green about 20 miles south of Toledo, about 75 miles from Ann Arbor and Detroit, Michigan, and about a two-hour drive from both Cleveland and the state capital of Columbus.

In its Director of Athletics, the university seeks a dynamic leader and motivator with proven communications, marketing and budgeting abilities. The athletic director coordinates the activities of intercollegiate athletics with the educational programs of the university and assists in the creation of an environment that upholds, promotes and instills multicultural values in the campus and larger communities. Candidates must demonstrate dedication to the academic success of student-athletes, commitment to diversity and gender equity, and adherence to the highest ethical standards. Candidates should possess a bachelor's degree (master's preferred), and their previous professional experience should document success in progressively responsible positions in athletics administration. Consideration also may be given to candidates who have appropriate, related management skills and experiences.

The preferred starting date is July 1, 1994. Salary will be competitive and commensurate with qualifications. BGSU offers an excellent benefits package to its employees, including a first-rate state retirement program. Screening of applicant files will begin on April 4, 1994, and continue until the position is filled. To be guaranteed full consideration, completed applications should be received in Bowling Green by April 4. Send a letter of application, a resume and the names, addresses and telephone numbers of at least three references to: Mr. William J. Lloyd, Chair of the Search Committee, c/o President's Office, Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio 43403. Questions about the position and the university may be directed to: Dr. Lester Barber, Executive Assistant to the President, 419/372-7795.

BGSU is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer and specifically encourages women, minorities, persons with disabilities, disabled veterans and Vietnam-era veterans to apply.

1994 Column No. 11

1994 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 93

Required day off during playing season

Institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 93 (effective immediately), the required one-day-off-per-week restriction during NCAA championship participation has been eliminated. During its February 17, 1994, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed Proposal No. 93 and determined that an institution is not subject to the one-day-off-per-week restriction during the week (i.e., the seven-day period as designated by the institution) in which the championship begins until the institution has concluded its participation in the championship.

1994 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 12

Emerging sports for women

Division I institutions should note that with the adoption of Proposal No. 12 (as amended by No. 12-1) (effective September 1, 1994), Division I institutions are permitted to use the following emerging sports in order to meet the Association's minimum sports-sponsorship criteria and appropriate financial aid requirements, as well as for revenue-distribution purposes: archery, badminton, bowling, crew, ice hockey, squash, synchronized swimming, team handball and water polo.

The following maximum financial aid limits have been established for Divisions I and II in the emerging sports for women:

Sport	Maximum Equivalency Limit
Archery	5
Badminton	8
Bowling	5
Crew	20
Ice Hockey	18
Squash	9
Synchronized Swimming	5
Team Handball	12
Water Polo	8

Further, the following minimum-contests and participants requirements for sports sponsorship have been established for Division I:

Team	Minimum Sports Contests
Women's Crew	6
Women's Ice Hockey	20
Women's Synchronized Swimming	8
Women's Team Handball	10
Women's Water Polo	10
Individual Sport	Minimum Contests	Minimum Participants
Women's Archery	8	5
Women's Badminton	8	6
Women's Bowling	8	5
Women's Squash	8	9

Division II institutions should note that it is not permissible to use an emerging sport to meet minimum sports-sponsorship requirements.

Finally, during its December 15, 1993, in-person meeting, the NCAA Interpretations Committee reviewed Proposal Nos. 12 and 12-1 and determined that an institution that conducts an emerging sport as a varsity intercollegiate sport is subject to the constitution, bylaws and other legislation of the Association, even if the Association does not conduct a championship in the sport, and the institution does not meet minimum-contests and participants requirements for sports sponsorship in the sport. The NCAA Council will be reviewing, during its April meeting, the issue of what requirements within Bylaw 17 (playing and practice seasons) should apply to these emerging sports.

High-school all-star games NCAA Bylaws 14.7 and 30.2.1.1

Institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 14.7, a student-athlete shall be denied the first year of intercollegiate athletics competition if, following completion of high-school eligibility in the student-athlete's sport and prior to the student-athlete's high-school graduation, the student-athlete competes in more than two all-star football contests or two all-star basketball contests. In this regard, per Bylaw 30.2.1.1, a high-school all-star contest is any contest in the sport of football or basketball that meets the following criteria:

1. The teams participating in the contest involve individuals who have completed their high-school eligibility in the sport and have not yet enrolled in and attended classes during a regular term at a collegiate institution.
2. The contest is scheduled and publicized in advance.
3. The competition is sponsored and promoted by an individual, organization or agency.
4. The individuals are selected for participation in the contest on an invitational basis and have not competed together previously as members of a team that played a regular schedule of games in an organized recreation or interscholastic program.

During the February 23, 1981, telephone conference of the NCAA officers (the group that was responsible at that time for issuing official interpretations between meetings of the Council), it was determined that all-star contests involving prospective student-athletes would be subject to the high-school all-star game criteria even if other individuals whose eligibility is not affected (i.e., prospective student-athletes who have not exhausted their eligibility for high-school competition) are involved as participants. Accordingly, if a high-school basketball all-star contest involves 10 individuals who have completed their high-school eligibility in the sport and additional individuals who have not exhausted eligibility for high-school competition, the participants who have exhausted high-school eligibility would be subject to the limitations set forth in Bylaw 14.7.

Women's volleyball attendance hits three-million high Attendance for women's intercollegiate volleyball in 1993 topped the three-million mark for the first time, according to a recent attendance summary released by the American Volleyball Coaches Association.

It marked the fifth consecutive year that attendance levels surpassed one million. The AVCA reported that attendance has more than doubled from 1992.

The University of Florida drew 37,072 fans to lead Division I institutions in overall attendance. The University of Illinois, Champaign, was the Division I leader in attendance average with 2,657 fans at 13 home matches.

California State University, Bakersfield, runner-up in the Division II women's championship, and Division III champion Washington University (Missouri) were the attendance average leaders in their respective divisions.

In Division I, 23 matches drew more than 3,000 fans each, includagreement, Liberty Sports also acquired exclusive rights to the league's women's sports. That group, a family of regional cable entities operating under the banner of Prime Network, has indicated that it plans to develop a network featuring conference women's sports.

The football and women's sports agreements pleased both broadcasting officials and league representatives.

"ABC Sports is extremely pleased that we'll be able to continue to televise top quality Big Eight Conference football through the year 2000," ABC Vice-President for Sports David Downs said. "The addition of Baylor, Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech to the existing member institutions makes it that much more attractive to ABC and its affiliated stations."

"This is a unique opportunity that will complement the outstanding women's programs of the 12 institutions," said Gerald M. Lage, Oklahoma State University faculty athletics representative.

Liberty Sports also will televise nonrevenue sports as part of the deal.
