I-A football playoff panel reviews research report

The NCAA Special Committee to Study a Division I-A Football Championship, meeting for the first time, has begun considering a research report concerning the state of college football prepared for it by a special research group.

The report includes a description of five playoff format options, as well as all aspects of a potential playoff — from academic calendars to the weather.

The May 5-6 meeting in Indian Wells, California, was devoted to studying the material in the report. The committee will meet again June 2-3 in Kansas City, Missouri. Soon after that meeting, it will determine whether to recommend to the NCAA Presidents Commission and Executive Committee that the Association's membership should consider legislation that would create a I-A football playoff.

At the May 5-6 meeting, the committee formed three subcommittees that will report back to the full committee at the June meeting.

The first subcommittee will explore the potential impact that a championship would have on the student-athletes involved. That subcommittee will be chaired by J. Dennis O'Connor, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh.

The second subcommittee will study the distribution of revenues to be raised by a championship. Vincent J. Dooley, director of athletics at the University of Georgia, will chair that subcommittee.

The third subcommittee will study potential formats for a championship. Christine A. Plonsky, associate director of men's athletics at the University of Texas at Austin, will chair that subcommittee.

Format options

The report contained format options presented by the research group to facilitate discussion only; they are options to be used only if the committee decides a championship is both feasible and desirable. Those formats are:

■ A two-team, one-game national championship contest, with the two teams determined after the conclusion of the January 1 bowl games, which could continue in their present form along with other bowl games.

■ A four-team, three-game tournament, with the four teams selected after the conclusion of the January 1 bowl games. The two semifinal games could be scheduled on the second Saturday after January 1, with the championship game played the next weekend.

■ An eight-team, seven-game tournament, with the eight teams participating in four quarterfinal games on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. The bracket would include a combination of automatic and at-large berths.

■ A 12-team, 11-game tournament. Four teams would receive first-round byes and the eight others would be matched in four first-round games on the first Saturday of December; the winners of these four games then would be matched with seed Nos. 1 through 4 in the quarterfinal games on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day and continue thereafter as in the four-team format.

■ A 16-team, 15-game tournament. All teams would play in eight first-round games on the first Saturday of December; the winners of those games would advance to the quarterfinal games on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day.

The report includes more than 300 pages. In addition to facts and figures, the report summarizes opinions expressed by student-athletes representing 10 Division I-A and one Division I-AA institutions, officials of five major bowl associations, representatives of the Collegiate Commissioners Association and the National Association of Collegiate Directors of

Executive Committee postpones action on interests survey

In preparation for its annual budget review in August, the NCAA Executive Committee considered various funding requests at its May 2-5 meeting in Indian Wells, California.

As a matter of policy, the Executive Committee reviews all such requests annually at its May meeting.

One of the most significant funding items related to a proposed survey to assess interest in sports, which has been put on hold by the Executive Committee pending additional study.

The proposed survey was the result of an August 1993 directive from the NCAA Council to the NCAA Research Committee to "develop one or more instruments that member institutions can use and that also can be used by the Association for the purpose of analysis."

The Council approved a Research Committee recommendation for the survey at its April meeting, but the Executive Committee chose to have the matter studied more before it approves $500,000 in funding. The committee noted the unusually large expense as a reason for seeking additional study.

The Executive Committee also deferred acting on a proposed national summer sports program for girls and on an "NCAA Fellows" program. The NCAA Presidents Commission had recommended both at its most recent meeting, but the Council, at its April meeting, recommended that the programs be studied more before any action is taken. The NCAA Committee on Women's Athletics, the NCAA Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee and the NCAA National Youth Sports Program Committee will review the proposed girls sports program.

Division I-A football

Committee conducts first discussions about playoff

The NCAA Special Committee to Study a Division I-A Football Championship conducted its first of two scheduled meetings May 5-6 in Indian Wells, California.

A review of that first meeting appears on page 1 of this issue.

The second meeting of the committee will be June 2-3 in Kansas City, Missouri. The committee will recommend whether the Association's membership should consider legislation that would create a Division I-A football playoff.

For more information, see the April 20, March 23 and March 2 issues of The NCAA News.

Staff contact: Thomas W. Jernstedt.

Next meeting: June 2-3 in Kansas City, Missouri.

Proposal No. 174

Special committee seeks thoughts from membership

The Special Committee to Review Initial-Eligibility Standards has asked for viewpoints from the membership that can be considered at its May 31-June 1 meeting in San Francisco.

Those interested in commenting to the committee are asked to write or fax correspondence to Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research, at the national office. The fax number is 913/339-0035.

The committee is charged with a comprehensive review of initial-eligibility standards but especially with examining 1992 Convention Proposal No. 16, which is scheduled to go into effect in August 1995. The January 1995 Convention will be the last opportunity for the Association to amend or delay that legislation.

William B. DeLauder, president of Delaware State University, and Richard E.

Peck, president of the University of New Mexico, are co-chairs of the special committee.

Athletes can aid institutional role

By Richard Kacmarynski
CENTRAL COLLEGE (IOWA)

The "year of the student-athlete" has been, and will continue to be, a busy and exciting time for the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

Many issues have been addressed and will need further action by our committee in preparation for the January 1995 Convention. Great strides were made at the past Convention in representing student-athletes in the legislative process. We worked hard to identify key issues that affect student-athletes and to help enact legislation that will better the collegiate and athletics experience. We appreciate the consideration that the membership has shown, and we look forward to even greater student-athlete input in future NCAA governance.

Members of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee are active in the workings of the NCAA Special Committee to Review Welfare, Access and Equity. Two of our members sit on that committee, and many others worked in various subcommittees. The report of the special committee (published in the April 27 issue of The NCAA News) makes clear that input from student-athletes will continue to be emphasized.

How is this best accomplished?

Recommendations from the special committee, endorsed by the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, urge that the national student-athlete committee take a more active role in the legislative process by widely articulating our stance on legislation well in advance of the annual Convention. Additionally, it strongly advocates the creation and strengthening of student-athlete advisory committees at the conference and institutional levels. It is this issue of institutional student-athlete advisory committees that I would like to address.

Historically and legally, the NCAA has operated through a system of institutional control. The Association exists for the institutions that make up its membership and formally cast the votes on all legislation. In recent years, however, there has been a growing development of special interest groups (coaches, athletics directors, faculty athletics representatives, women, minorities, etc.) that represent people of similar job descriptions or interests.

In 1988, the NCAA Committee on Review and Planning published a report on the

Prof's quote brings back memories

The quote by professor Hugh Witemeyer of the University of New Mexico about how athletics on college campuses should be abolished (The NCAA News, April 6) brought to mind the following opinion from a previous era.

This appeared in the December 15, 1958, issue of Sports Illustrated:

"Dr. Peter Karpovich is a renowned expert on and an ardent proponent of weight lifting. When the physicians attached to New England's colleges met for their annual convention in Springfield, Massachusetts, recently, Dr. Karpovich suggested to the medical men assembled that they unite with institutions forthwith. Dr. Karpovich didn't say where football might go; he merely insisted that it was no proper part of education.

Letter

"As college physicians, you have to take an active part covering the medical aspects of football," he declaimed. "Prohibit playing before the public, and see how many will choose football as a means of physical education! When a man has to wear armor for protection, when a doctor and an ambulance have to be present, is it a type of activity a man wants to choose for his son? Doctors and educators should unite in driving football out of educational institutions to free adolescent slaves from a demanding activity which steals their time without giving in return anything educationally tangible."

Opinions

The other side of March Madness

Bill Wedo, guest columnist
The Dallas Morning News

"I finally found the other side of March Madness.

"Trying to follow the (NCAA Division I) women's tournament, I was forced into the painful lesson of futile channel-flipping and newspaper-skimming.

"And, oh yes, the painful lesson of a full bladder.

"One morning, I chanced upon ESPN SportsCenter, which bills itself as a roundup of the previous night's events.

"I was anxious to make a trip to the bathroom, but didn't want to miss the scores of the basketball tournaments. That's tournaments with an 's.' I was looking for the results of both men's and women's games.

"I squirmed through NBA highlights and NHL scores and pro tennis and WBC welterweight action and ... the show was over. I barely had time to curse the closing credits while I dashed to the bathroom.

"That is just part of the pain of March Madness. In our house, we have taken on the task of trying to follow the women's tournament.

"We call each other to the tube on those rare occasions when any scores pop up. We pass around the newspapers with instructions on what page to turn to.

"But you adapt. You learn to negotiate sports agate — where most of the women's news is — and to seek out those little boxes that say 'Women's action. Page 137.' You also learn to buy USA Today, which — despite all those five-paragraph Roseanne Arnold stories — made a commitment to covering both tournaments.

"It's a corporate decision, aimed at luring female readers, but who cares?

"You ask, 'What's his angle?' I confess, my wife was a jock (jockette?) in high school and college who received her varsity letter before me. I also have two daughters who play various sports, including basketball.

"No, this has more to do with fairness and balance and all that sticky ethical stuff. In our household we also watch the men play and have even been known to pump a fist in the air when 'Big Dog' Robinson jams one home. Also, we're real-world types who understand that by sheer force of numbers, the men are more popular. More people watch them, more buy tickets for them. Fine.

"But I know something else. I've seen dozens gather together to watch girls play in a recreational league. Hundreds show up at a high-school game. At Richmond, more than 12,000 people crammed into the coliseum (and millions more on network TV) saw the greatest finish in the history of NCAA title games — men's or women's.

"File this under 'Irony.' In the world of newspapers, executives are wringing their hands, scrambling around trying to figure out why they're losing women readers.

"As my 11-year-old would say, 'DUHH.'"

No women's pro opportunities

Steve Marcus, columnist
Newsday

"The void that a female athlete like Crystal Boyd feels is an emptiness no one should have to endure. Boyd is in her senior year at Hofstra. Her All-America softball career will not take her to any pro level, and that is a shame. Given her skills to hit and field, only her gender stands in the way.

"Someone in athletics once said to me that after seeing Michael Jordan air walk his way to the basket, what exhilaration can be derived from seeing a woman shoot a basketball or play any sport. In his case, ignorance is not bliss. It is damning because it can become the prevailing attitude toward the games women play.

"Think of an athlete you admire — probably a male — and what he would miss if he never had the chance to compete at the highest level. Then think of Boyd.

"There is no pro draft in her future. 'She'd be worth millions,' Hofstra softball coach Bill Edwards said. 'She'd be a No. 1 draft choice coming out of college. She'd be worth a lot of money. And I'd love to be her agent. I could retire just on her...'

"Boyd, an Olympic hopeful, knows that the minor league Silver Bullets are a novelty team, that trotting out 25 women in uniform does nothing for the millions of others who have no professional outlet. She says, 'A lot of times people will see the final NCAA [softball] game on ESPN and they will come back and say, "Oh my God, I saw this girl throwing so hard, they play like men." And I'm like, "What do you think it is, this little arc ball pitching?" And it gets me angry because I really think people would be interested in watching it. I'd love if we could get a team together on Long Island, we have so much talent.'

"For Boyd and so many others, college is the final stop of their competitive athletics career. Consider them being finished at age 22. 'They would love to have somewhere to go because they are so competitive and so good and they have every aspiration that every boy has,' Edwards said. 'And they've worked just as hard, if not harder, to overcome the stereotyping and the image of women sports.'

"They've worked so hard at what they do and are so proficient, but when they get to a certain level, it terminates. And it's final. Women have always played for the love of the sport. It's probably why they are more dedicated than the guys because the guys, you know, always have the dollar signs in front of their faces. The women just have "love of game" in front of them.'

"Sometimes that just is not enough."

Football money

Lou McCullough, former commissioner
Trans America Athletic Conference
The Atlanta Journal

"Having spent 43 years in college athletics as a coach, director of athletics and division commissioner, I am appalled at attempts to compare women's gymnastics and basketball salaries to those in football.

"College football is the moneymaker for most Division I-A schools. Good coaches are highly sought after to win games and bring in more money. There is an extreme amount of pressure on college football coaches. This money is not necessarily used in the football program. It is used for all other sports, with the exception of the men's basketball program.

"Where does the money come from to pay (for deficits) in women's gymnastics and basketball? No doubt, football has to pay it....

"(At the University of Georgia) college football sky boxes sell for $50,000 or more. The seat-option program brings in donations of up to $10,000. This is big business and causes a tremendous amount of pressure to win.

"There definitely will be a major crisis in college athletics in the near future because the sport of football cannot keep footing the bills. Think for a moment what would happen to college athletics if football were dropped tomorrow. (At Georgia) about $15 million in revenue and donations would be missing.

"It is certain that some coaches wouldn't need lawyers to negotiate salaries because there would be no money available to negotiate."

■ State legislation relating to college athletics

This report summarizes legislation currently pending before state legislatures that could affect, or is otherwise of interest to, the intercollegiate athletics programs and student-athletes of NCAA member institutions. Set forth below is a list of 14 bills from 10 states. The report includes two bills that have been introduced, and 12 pending bills on which action has been taken, since the last report (April 27 issue of The NCAA News). The newly introduced bills are marked with an asterisk. Pending bills identified by previous reports on which no action has been taken do not appear in this report.

The State Legislation Report is based largely on data provided by the Information for Public Affairs on-line state legislation system as of May 5, 1994. The bills selected for inclusion in this report were drawn from a larger pool of measures that concern sports and therefore do not necessarily represent all of the bills that would be of interest to individual member institutions. Bills pending before the governing bodies of the District of Columbia and U.S. territories are not available on an on-line basis and are not included in this report.

The NCAA has not independently verified the accuracy or completeness of the information provided by Information for Public Affairs and is providing this summary as a service to members. For further information regarding a particular bill, members should contact the state legislature concerned.

The bills set forth below address the following subjects:

Subject	Number of Bills
Athletics trainers.....	2
Funding mechanisms.....	2
Payments to student-athletes.....	2
Tickets/scalping.....	2
Anabolic steroids.....	1
Assaults on sports officials.....	1
Athlete agents.....	1
Gender equity.....	1
Liability.....	1
Sports gambling.....	1

A bill relating to trainers has become law in Iowa since the last report.

The legislatures of three states — Hawaii, Nebraska and Tennessee — have adjourned since the last report, bringing to 20 the number of state legislatures that have done so. Pending bills in these three states died at the conclusion of the legislative session if they were not cleared for the governor's signature.

Former NCAA Executive Director Richard D. Schultz has been chosen as the 1994 recipient of the James J. Corbett Memorial Award by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics.

Schultz

Schultz, now president and chief executive officer of Global Sports Enterprises, a Westwood, Kansas, sports consulting firm, will receive the 28th Corbett award, which is presented annually to the athletics administrator who "through the years has most typified Corbett's devotion to intercollegiate athletics and has worked unceasingly for its betterment."

Schultz served as the Association's executive director from 1987 to 1993. Before that, he spent six years as athletics director at the University of Virginia. From 1976 to 1981, he served as athletics director at Cornell University. Schultz also served on numerous NCAA committees, including serving as chair of the Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

"I always have felt that the most prestigious awards and honors come from your peers," Schultz said. "It is because of this that this award is so special to me. I can remember attending my first Corbett awards luncheon many years ago as a young and ambitious athletics director and wondering if I had the ability to accomplish half as much as that year's recipient."

"When I received the letter congratulating me on becoming the 1994 James J. Corbett award recipient, I felt humility at joining such a prestigious group and great honor and satisfaction that this award was coming from my friends and peers. To receive this award has to be the highlight of an athletics administrator's career."

Proposal 12

Interpretation pertaining to emerging sports for women is rescinded

1994-95 NCAA Manual.

During its April 18-20 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Council again discussed the interpretation and concern was expressed that:

■ A more gradual process was needed to bring emerging sports for women into compliance with NCAA regulations. The Council directed the NCAA staff to develop alternative approaches, including a schedule for phasing in the application of NCAA regulations to these sports, for review by the Council during its next meeting in August.

■ The opinion of the NCAA Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse regarding the impact of the volume of student-athletes in emerging sports who would be seeking certification for the first time should be evaluated.

The Council tentatively agreed to present the changes in Constitution 3.2.4.4(a) to the membership for a vote at the 1995 Convention. The Council also decided to continue its review of the matter for possible additional or alternative legislative amendments for consideration at that Convention.

Accordingly, the Administrative Committee, meeting in conjunction with the May 2-5 meeting of the NCAA Executive Committee, rescinded the interpretation so that member institutions could be notified that all NCAA rules would not become applicable to the newly identified emerging sports September 1, 1994. The provisions of 3.2.4.4(a) will remain in effect as they appear in the unrevised version of that paragraph in the 1994-95 Manual.

■ Championships previews

Arizona's title defense rests in part on the arm of pitcher Susie Parra, who won 23 of her first 24 games. Parra pitched every tournament game in the Wildcats' championship run last year.

Division I Women's Softball

Same favorites set to contend in extended bracket

Event: 1994 Division I Women's Softball Championship.

Overview: A bracket that once was 20 teams has expanded to 32. That is a plus for the sport, but it doesn't change who the favorites are in this year's event. Arizona is the defending champion and currently the top-ranked team in Division I. The Wildcats, who have won two of the last three titles, return six starters from last year's championship team, including Amy Chellevoid and Susie Parra. Arizona, which won 48 of its first 50 games, boasts a team batting average of .392 and a team earned-run average of 1.57. Chellevoid is the team's top hitter, sporting a .497 average. Laura Espinoza supplies the power with 25 home runs and 84 runs batted in. Parra, who pitched every inning of Arizona's five championship games a year ago — she won four — won 23 of her first 24 decisions. Southwestern Louisiana, the only team to beat Arizona in last year's championship, is the nation's No. 2 team with a 55-3 mark. Kathy Morton sets the pace for the Lady Cajuns. Morton, an all-tournament selection last year, is batting .448 and has driven in a team-high 66 runs. Oklahoma State, Cal State Northridge and UCLA round out the top five.

Field: The championship provides for a field of 32 teams. Four teams will compete at each of eight regional sites in double-elimination tournaments. The finals will be an eight-team, double-elimination tournament featuring the eight regional champions. Thirteen conferences have been granted automatic qualification. The remaining teams will be selected at large. The Division I subcommittee of the NCAA Women's Softball Committee will select teams from each of six regions: Northeast, Mideast, Midwest, Pacific, South and West.

Dates and sites: Teams will be selected for the championship May 15. Regional competition will be May 20-22 at on-campus sites. The finals will be May 26-30 at the Amateur Softball Association Hall of Fame Stadium in Oklahoma City; Oklahoma will serve as host.

Television coverage: The two semifinal games will be broadcast tape-delayed by Prime Network at noon (Eastern time) May 30. The championship game will be broadcast live by ESPN2 at 3 p.m. (Eastern time) May 30. ESPN will rebroadcast the championship game at 1 p.m. June 6.

Results: Scores from regional play will be published in the May 25 issue of The NCAA News. Results from the finals will appear June 1.

Championship notes: UCLA (four titles) and Arizona (two) have combined to win the last six titles....The losing team in the championship game never has scored more than one run.

What they are saying

Arizona

"Personally, I think it will come down to the UCLAs, USLs, Arizonas, Oklahoma States and Northridges. If I had to pick five right now, those would be my five consensus picks to get to the (Women's College) World Series."

Division II Baseball

Florida Southern displays balance

Event: 1994 Division II Baseball Championship.

Overview: Top-ranked Florida Southern (43-7) clinched at least a tie for the Sunshine State Conference title and has secured a bid to the championship tournament. Coach Chuck Anderson, who won his 500th career game in April, has two fine starting pitchers and an outstanding closer. Senior righthander David Harris, who led the nation last year with 143 strikeouts, is 10-2 with a 1.47 earned-run average and 126 strikeouts in 97²/₃ innings. Junior lefthander Phil Harris, no relation, is 8-2 with a 1.54 ERA, while closer Tom Szimanski is 2-0 with five saves and a 0.59 ERA. Junior first baseman James Vida leads the attack with a .475 batting average, nine home runs and 72 runs batted in. Across the country at Cal State Dominguez Hills, catcher/designated hitter Robert Harris (.320, 28 RBI) would like nothing better than to face his brother, Florida Southern's David Harris, at the championship tournament in Montgomery, Alabama. The Toros are led by senior rightfielder Eric Martin, who is hitting .384 with seven home runs and 42 RBI. Other teams that will contend for the title include UC Davis, UC Riverside, Central Missouri State, Lewis, Delta State and Mansfield.

Field: A maximum of 24 teams will be selected to compete in the 27th Division II championship. Ten automatic qualifiers and 14 at-large selections will fill the bracket.

Dates and sites: Regional competition will be conducted May 19-22 at on-campus sites. For the 10th consecutive year, the eight regional champions will advance to double-elimination championship play May 28-June 4 at Florida Southern's David Harris led the nation last year with 143 strikeouts.

Montgomery, Alabama, where Valdosta State will serve as host.

Results: Scores and pairings from regional competition will appear in the May 25 issue of The NCAA News. Championship results will be published June 8.

Championship notes: Jacksonville State's Ted Barnickle set the championship record for strikeouts in a game (20) in 1975....Teams from 145 institutions have appeared in the tournament since its inception in 1968.

What they are saying

Chuck Anderson, head coach Florida Southern
Currently ranked No. 1

"Our guys really dedicated themselves to do well this season after not making the tournament last year. It's a good feeling to know we are back in the tournament."

Division III Baseball

Battling Bishops enjoying great year

Event: 1994 Division III Baseball Championship.

Overview: Top-ranked North Carolina Wesleyan (35-1) has had an amazing season. Its only loss was to Chowan in a 13-inning game, 11-10. The Battling Bishops finished the Dixie Conference regular season and conference tournament with a 14-0 record. Sophomore first baseman Chris Bryant, who won conference player-of-the-year honors, is hitting .435 with nine home runs and 45 runs batted in. All-American Troy Yeager (7-1 record, 2.97 earned-run average, 45 strikeouts) and freshman John Cinnamond (7-0, 2.12 ERA) head an impressive list of pitchers. Second-ranked UC San Diego (28-4) is led by senior pitchers Ryan Flanagan (8-2, 2.12 ERA) and Kurt Luhrsens (5-0, 1.00 ERA, six saves). Offensively, junior shortstop Chris Miyake is hitting .400 with three home runs and 41 RBI. Other contending teams include Cal Lutheran, Marietta, Southern Maine, Trenton State and Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Field: A maximum of 32 teams will be selected at large to compete in the championship.

Dates and sites: Regional competition will be conducted May 19-22 at on-campus sites. Albion will host the May 26-31 finals, which are set for C. O. Brown Stadium in Battle Creek, Michigan.

Results: Scores and pairings from regional competition will appear in the May 25 issue of The NCAA News. Championship results will be published June 8.

Championship notes: Teams from 107 institutions have appeared in the tournament since its inception in 1976....Ithaca and Marietta have been selected for the championship field every year....Through the first 18 years of championship competition, only one no-hit complete game has been turned in. Rowan's Norm Charlesworth accomplished the feat in 1980, although he did give up a run in his team's 4-1 victory over Johns Hopkins.

What they are saying

Mike Fox, head coach
North Carolina Wesleyan
Currently ranked No. 1

"It's been a magical season so far. Overall, we have played consistently well for 36 games....We have seven seniors who lead our team, and this is probably the most highly motivated, hard-working group of seniors that I have ever had, and I think that makes a difference."

Senior shortstop Tim Kemp and his North Carolina Wesleyan teammates are top-ranked in Division III.

Eastbound title: Penn State puts an end to West Coast supremacy and claims men's volleyball crown

West is no longer best.

After 24 years of West Coast dominance, Penn State became the first team from other than California to win the NCAA National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship, upsetting top-ranked and heavily favored UCLA before a record-crowd May 7 at Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne.

The Nittany Lions' 9-15, 15-13, 4-15, 15-12, 15-12 victory came against a Bruin team that had won 27 straight matches after a season-opening loss to Brigham Young. UCLA (27-2), the defending champion and winner of 14 titles overall, had spent the entire season atop the coaches poll and had breezed into the championship match with a three-game sweep of host Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne in the semifinals.

But Penn State (25-3) was building a streak of its own. The Nittany Lions were making their fourth straight tournament appearance and had won nine consecutive matches going into the championship, including a 9-15, 15-7, 15-10, 15-6 semifinal victory over Ball State.

After trailing UCLA two games to one in the championship match, Penn State all-American outside hitter Ramon Hernandez, named the tournament's most outstanding player, turned the match around with 17 kills in the fourth game to bring the Nittany Lions back from deficits of 6-0 and 11-4.

Penn State then took command in the fifth and rally-scored deciding game, although UCLA fought back to tie the game at 12 on an ace by Stein Metzger. After a Penn State timeout, the Nittany Lions scored the final three points, the last on a kill by Byron Schneider.

"We made history," said Penn State head coach Tom Peterson, who earlier was named the 1994 coach of the year by the American Volleyball Coaches Association. "You can always do incredible things, but to make history, that's something even more special."

"I hope people will realize what these guys accomplished. I've said many times that the best thing that could happen for men's volleyball would be to have someone other than a West Coast team win the national championship. I hope this can change a few things to make men's volleyball grow."

Peterson said that during the fourth game he wasn't sure whether his team would be doing much celebrating at all.

"I have to admit, I thought just for a fleeting moment,

SPECIAL TO THE NCAA NEWS

So you're a high-school student who gets calls from college coaches and you think you have a pretty good shot at a full scholarship. Or you think you'd like to play sports when you get to college but you're not sure if there is anything special you need to do. The 1994-95 NCAA Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete can answer your questions.

The guide, which is free from the NCAA, can help prospective student-athletes see if they are on track to meet the academic standards for student-athletes who want to play sports as freshmen. Much of the booklet, in fact, concentrates on academic requirements. It also

Injury rate for women's basketball increases sharply

Women's basketball showed a dramatic rise in its game injury rate and a more subtle increase in its practice injury rate during the past season, according to data from the NCAA's Injury Surveillance System (ISS).

Game injury rates increased from 8.4 to 11.3 injuries per 1,000 athlete-exposures (A-E) over the past year. The practice injury rate increased more subtly, a trend that continued from the previous year. Ankle, knee and lower back injuries were the most common, continuing a trend that has been apparent for most of the six years that data for the sport have been collected.

Men's basketball also showed an increase in the trend for game injury rates over the six-year sampling period, as noted in the accompanying graphic. The practice injury rate of 4.6 injuries/1,000 A-E this past season is similar to the six-year average. Ankle and knee injuries were the most common injuries.

It also should be noted that the 1993-94 anterior cruciate ligament (ACL) injury rate in the women's game was almost four times higher than that for the men's game.

Men's ice hockey continued to show a practice injury rate (2.5 injuries/1,000 A-E) among the lowest of sports monitored in the ISS. The game injury rate of 18.9 was higher than the eight-year average (16.8). Knee and shoulder injuries continue to be the most common in that sport.

The 1993-94 match injury rate for wrestling was lower than the nine-year average for the sport, while the practice injury rate was slightly higher. The knee and shoulder continue to be the most injured body parts.

Skin infections, however, accounted for more than 20 percent of wrestling's time-loss injuries for the second consecutive year. Most of those occurred in practice. The 1993-94 practice injury rate value without skin infections would be 6.2 injuries/1,000 A-E.

Women's gymnastics showed a 1993-94 practice injury rate (8.8) higher than the nine-year average and a meet injury rate that dropped below the nine-year average. The decline in the meet injury rate continued a trend that has been apparent for the last three years. Ankle, lower-back and knee injuries were the most common.

Men's gymnastics also showed a 1993-94 practice injury rate (5.7) higher than the eight-year average and a meet injury rate (14.3) lower than the eight-year average. Unlike most other monitored sports, men's gymnastics showed similar injury rates in the preseason, regular season and postseason. Ankle, finger and wrist injuries were the most common.

Base line of data

The survey, conducted as part of the ISS, provides a base line of injury data from a national sampling. Researchers should be cautious when comparing results with injury data from other studies.

"No common definition of injury, measure of severity or evaluation of exposure exists in the athletics injury literature," said Randall W. Dick, NCAA assistant director of sports sciences. "Therefore, the information contained in this summary must be evaluated under the definitions and methodology outlined for the ISS."

The ISS was developed in 1982 to provide current and reliable data on injury trends in intercollegiate athletics. Injury data are collected yearly from a representative sample of NCAA member institutions and the resulting data summaries are reviewed by the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports. The committee's goal continues to be to reduce injury rates through suggested changes in rules, protective equipment or coaching techniques, based on data provided by the ISS.

Construction begins on College Football Hall of Fame site

By Dick Kishpaugh
SPECIAL TO THE NCAA NEWS

Construction is now underway on the new home of the College Football Hall of Fame in downtown South Bend, Indiana.

The long-awaited groundbreaking ceremony, originally scheduled in 1993, was April 23 with officials from the National Football Foundation and the city of South Bend taking part.

Site preparation had begun even before the groundbreaking, with the original asphalt parking-lot surface skimmed away so that actual digging could begin immediately after the ceremony. The 58,000-square-foot facility will be located across the street from South Bend's highly successful Century Center convention facility. It is expected to be completed in August 1995.

The unusual building design calls for the interactive visitor facilities to be located below ground level, with the street-level surface in a park-like setting resembling a football field. The building at one end of the site is being built to resemble a stadium, and will house a lobby, cafeteria, gift shop and archive facilities.

Later this summer, construction will begin on a pedestrian tunnel under St. Joseph Street, between the hall and the Century Center. The link between the two buildings is appropriate, since the Century Center professional staff — under the guidance of Executive Director Brian Hedman — will supervise the financial, marketing and general business operations of the hall.

At the groundbreaking, the National Football Foundation was represented by Chairman William Pearce, a graduate of Miami University (Ohio); President Francis "Reds" Bagnell, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and Vice-Chairman Jon Hansen, a graduate of Colgate University.

Other familiar names taking part in the ceremony were the winner of the first Heisman Trophy, Jay Berwanger of the University of Chicago; Tom Scott, from the University of Virginia, and University of Notre Dame greats Leon Hart, Creighton Miller, George Connor and Jerry Groom.

Brigham Young places five wrestlers on academic team

Brigham Young leads the National Wrestling Coaches Association's Division I all-academic team with five honorees — including one first-team, two second-team and two honorable-mention selections.

The Cougars also had the highest team grade-point average in Division I, 3.250 (4.000 scale).

All-academic teams also were named for Divisions II and III.

To receive an individual award, a Division I wrestler must have a 3.000 GPA or better and meet one of the following criteria: (1) Win at least 60 percent of matches, (2) place in the top four at the conference meet, and (3) qualify for the NCAA championships. The wrestler also must be a varsity team member who is not a freshman or first-year transfer.

The top 25 teams are determined by counting the 10 wrestlers who competed for that institution in an NCAA qualifier plus two student-athletes who wrestled in at least one varsity match. True freshmen and first-year transfer students are eligible for this team.

Wisconsin-Parkside recorded the highest team GPA in the inaugural Division II wrestling all-academic team. The figure is derived from the GPA of 10 wrestlers, eight of whom must have competed in their team's national qualifier.

Ashland and Wisconsin-Parkside led the NCAA Division II wrestling all-academic team with three first-team honorees each. Southern Colorado, Ferris State, Gannon, Springfield and South Dakota had two first-team honorees.

In Division III, Brent Loken of Augustana (South Dakota) made the team for the fourth time. Dave Lovy and Darin Tiedt, both from Wisconsin-Parkside, and Eric Wickham from Ashland made the team for the third time.

Division III nominees must have a minimum 3.000 GPA, be in at least their second full year of school, be on the varsity team, demonstrate a high degree of skill and have a minimum of two letters of recommendation (academic advisor and coach) submitted on their behalf.

Wisconsin-Stevens Point and Cornell College lead the Division III all-American scholars with five honorees. Albany (New York) had four honorees.

The 1994-95 NATIONAL DIRECTORY of COLLEGE ATHLETICS

The personnel change/update forms have been mailed to all schools to update our database for printing the 1994-95 editions of the directories. Please process these forms as your staff now exists, then fax or mail to us any subsequent changes.

The National Directory of College Athletics is the official directory of The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics (NACDA). Continued support of the directories benefits your professional organization because only our directories give back to college athletics through the sale of every book.

Every year we endeavor to make the best directories in the college athletic market even better. Your help in this effort is necessary and very appreciated.

Thank you in advance for your cooperation. We welcome your comments.

Injury

Women's basketball shows a dramatic rise in its game injury rate during the past season selected to represent a cross-section of NCAA membership. The cross-section was based on the three divisions of the NCAA and the four geographical regions of the country. The selected institutions composed a minimum 10 percent sample of the membership sponsoring the sport; therefore, the resulting data should be representative of the total population of NCAA institutions.

Dick said that it is important to note that this system does not identify every injury that occurs at NCAA institutions in a particular sport. Rather, it collects a sampling that is representative of a cross-section of NCAA institutions

Exposures

An athlete-exposure (A-E) is one athlete participating in one practice or game in which he or she is exposed to the possibility of athletics injury. For example, five practices, each involving 60 participants, and one game involving 40 participants would result in a total of 340 A-Es for a particular week.

Injuries

A reportable injury in the Injury Surveillance System is defined as one that:

■ Occurred as a result of participation in an organized intercollegiate practice or game, and

■ Required medical attention by a team athletics trainer or physician, and

■ Resulted in restriction of the student-athlete's participation or performance for one or more days beyond the day of injury.

Injury rate

An injury rate is a ratio of the number of injuries in a particular category to the number of athlete-exposures in that category. This value is then multiplied by 1,000 to produce an injury rate per 1,000 athlete-exposures. For example, six reportable injuries during a period of 563 athlete-exposures would give an injury rate of 10.7 injuries per 1,000 athlete-exposures [(six divided by 563) times 1,000].

Additional information on the report is available from Dick at the NCAA national office.

The tables on page 9 highlight selected information from the winter 1993-94 ISS. When appropriate, injury rates and game-practice percentages are compared to an average value calculated from all years in which ISS data have been collected in a specific sport.

Athletes

Advisory committees strengthen institutional position

dangers inherent in this informal politicization of the legislative process. By coincidence, at the same meeting, that group recommended that a national committee of student-athletes be created.

It is somewhat ironic that while suggesting that the "erosion of the institutional position in legislative and policy issues" was something to be resisted, the action of the committee created another special interest group made up of student-athletes.

But, in my opinion, that is only fair! If coaches, athletes directors, faculty representatives, women and minorities need a national association to wield political power, then in the best interests of student-athletes, a viable national network of student-athletes must exist in order to bring the last and most crucial group into the political/legislative arena.

In its report, the Committee on Review and Planning offered help for this "broad-scale operational problem" of politicization of the membership: "It is important that the leadership of the Association seek to harmonize and integrate these special-interest viewpoints, but the crucial avenue for including such insights must be in the process of hammering out the particular positions of each member institution. The ultimate authority and responsibility for creating institutional athletics policies should focus on the office of the president....In seeking to deemphasize special interest groups, the Presidents Commission should be viewed by the membership as an agent that facilitates the development of the best possible institutional positions, not as a group that represents a presidential perspective in opposition to that of athletics directors, coaches, faculty reps....The Committee on Review and Planning resolved to ... urge that member institutions, the internal agencies of the NCAA and outside groups be alert for remedial actions that can be undertaken through educational and orientation activities (to strengthen institutional control) and be sensitive to these matters in an enlightened pursuit of their regular deliberations and actions." (The NCAA News, October 17, 1988)

I propose that one such "remedial action" is the formation and strengthening of institutional student-athlete committees. Healthy institutional committees provide two basic constructive outcomes. First, they provide a mechanism for student-athlete issues to be resolved on the institution's campus, long before legislation can be proposed, amended, voted on and put in the NCAA Manual. Second, the institutional student-athlete committees provide much-needed student input in the legislative process. If student-athletes are involved in this process at the institutional level, they will form the kind of large grass-roots constituency that lies at the heart of the democratic process.

I urge that each president and athletics director consider the positive results of the creation or strengthening of a student-athlete advisory committee, not because it may be mandated in the future or because other conference schools are doing it, but because a properly operated institutional student-athlete advisory committee will improve the academic and athletics experience available to students. And that should be the fundamental goal of every institution in the membership.

Will the national Student-Athlete Advisory Committee continue to represent the student-athlete in the legislative process? Yes, as long as the existence of other special-interest groups continue to exert political influence, it will be necessary to maintain the national Student-Athlete Advisory Committee. However, in the "year of the student-athlete," it seems reasonable and timely to strengthen the institutional position and enhance the welfare of student-athletes by universally vitalizing the institutional student-athlete advisory committee.

Richard Kacmarynski is a student-athlete at Central College (Iowa) and is a member of the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

Volleyball

Penn State ends West Coast reign

"Well, at least it's not getting too bad," he said. "And then we came back. We've talked all year about having confidence to win the national championship, and that's exactly what happened during that game."

Penn State's defense was key, said UCLA coach Al Scates.

"Penn State really played great perimeter defense and kept digging everything we hit," he said. "They're a difficult team to score on because they run a very quick attack, and when they're allowed to move the ball around they can be very deceptive."

Penn State's Schneider and Ed Josefowski joined Hernandez on the all-tournament team. Jeff Nygaard, Erik Sullivan and Paul Nihipali represented UCLA.

Ball State, which finished 28-10, won the third-place match with a 15-10, 15-12, 15-11 victory over Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne (20-8). Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne was not playing at full strength because of an injury suffered by all-American setter Lloy Ball earlier in the week.

Ball broke his left index finger in two places and did not practice all week. He started as an outside hitter in the semifinal loss to UCLA before assuming his regular role as setter in the third-place match.

The crowd of 15,135 during the two-day championship established a tournament record, surpassing the mark of 13,102 set at Ball State in 1992.

Survey

Executive Committee puts proposed interests survey on hold; reviews other funding requests

approve funding in a number of other areas, including:

■ Year-round drug-testing in Division II football. With this program, the NCAA will conduct year-round testing in Divisions I and II football and Division I track and field (men and women). Testing also is performed at all championships sites.

■ Two regional seminars on gender equity and Title IX compliance during 1994-95, to be conducted by the Committee on Women's Athletics.

■ A per-institution increase of $10,000 for the academic-enhancement fund of the NCAA revenue-distribution plan. The change, which was recommended by the NCAA Special Advisory Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues, increases to $40,000 the amount that every Division I institution will receive from the academic-enhancement fund in 1994-95.

■ A total of 29 additional NCAA postgraduate scholarships that will be designated for women. With the change, the NCAA postgraduate scholarship program annually will provide $5,000 grants to 154 athletes (77 men, 77 women).

■ A one-year arrangement to fund the NCAA Woman of the Year banquet. The Sara Lee Corporation has funded the event in the past but is not renewing its corporate-partner agreement. The Executive Committee directed the staff to attempt to identify a corporate partner that is willing to fund the event in future years.

The Executive Committee also acted on recommendations from sports and rules committees.

A notable change involved the expansion of the Division I Women's Soccer Championship from 16 to 24 teams.

When the Executive Committee approved the championships-enhancement program in May 1993, it noted that the size of the field for team championships would be tied to the number of institutions sponsoring a given sport. At its May 2-5 meeting, the Executive Committee noted a projection that almost 200 Division I institutions will be sponsoring women's soccer by 1996 and decided that because of that explosive popularity, an immediate increase in the size of the bracket was justified. The committee noted, however, that this is a unique situation and that it did not reflect a relaxation of the standards that must be met for championship expansion.

The Executive Committee also approved a proposal from the NCAA Men's and Women's Golf Committee to sponsor legislation for the 1995 NCAA Convention to create a Division I Women's Golf Championships and to reconstitute the current National Collegiate Golf Championships as the Divisions II/III Championships. If approved, the first such championships would be played in spring 1996.

Volleyball seeding

Regarding women's volleyball, the Executive Committee approved recommendations pertaining to regional realignment and seeding for the Division I championship. Effective in 1995, the country will be realigned from four regions into eight districts, each containing between four and six conferences. The districts would feed into the East, Central, Mountain and Pacific regions, with district pairings for regional tournaments being rotated. Eight teams will be seeded nationally (four No. 1 and four No. 2 teams), and the remaining teams will be seeded regionally.

The Executive Committee denied a request from the NCAA Division I Women's Softball Committee to change from a Thursday-Monday format to a Wednesday-Monday format.

Regarding Division I-AA football, the Executive Committee approved expansion of the official traveling party from 85 to 100 for preliminary competitions and from 100 to 115 for the championship game. The NCAA Division I-AA Football Committee noted that as a result of the May 1993 cutback in per diem from $120 to $80 and the reduction of the traveling party, most of the institutions participating in the 1993 championship incurred financial losses. A survey will be conducted after the 1994 season to gather more information about the traveling parties in Division I-AA football.

The Executive Committee also accepted the recommendations of the NCAA Football and Men's and Women's Basketball Rules Committees regarding rules changes in oversight areas and agreed to maintain current Division I criteria regarding automatic qualification and play-ins.

Minutes of the Executive Committee meeting will appear in a late May issue of The NCAA News.

Special Committee to Study a Division I-A Football Championship reviews research report

Athletics, officials of six major television companies, and representatives from The Associated Press Sports Editors and the Football Writers Association of America.

The report includes a history of discussions about a Division I-A football championship; extensive bowl-game history; football attendance and television ratings for the past 10 years; a history of Divisions I-AA, II and III football championships; and competitive results for major conferences. It also includes comparisons between the bowl games and the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship as well as relevant information concerning the National Football League. Other chapters review academic calendars, game scheduling concerns, injury rates and weather patterns.

Among the facts included in the report:

■ Game attendance and television audience ratings for college football reached a plateau in the 1980s, after steady growth from the '50s through the '70s.

■ The current bowl structure provides a large number of postseason play invitations — 38 in 1993-94.

■ Gross receipts of all postseason football games have increased by 33 percent in the past six years while gross receipts of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship have increased by about 120 percent in the same period.

Key discussions in the report involve student-athlete and coaches' issues.

The research group's session with the student-athletes revealed their belief that football student-athletes should receive greater compensation than their athletics grant-in-aid, though that compensation could come in several forms, including liberalizing current NCAA programs. They also expressed concerns about the effect a playoff might have on the length of the season and suggested a reduction or elimination of spring practice as a possible tradeoff. They suggested that the championship be determined on the field rather than by polls but supported the bowl concept as a reward for athletes who played on good teams that were not competing for the No. 1 ranking.

Some of the coaching representatives who discussed the prospect of a playoff with the research group said a 16-team format would eliminate controversy over which teams belong in a championship bracket. Others, however, indicated a 16-team structure was less important than maintaining a healthy "bowl-game" structure, although they said they were open to a championship concept. Coaches have been concerned that the sole criterion for coaching success could become whether their teams "make the playoff."

The report notes that the responses of television network representatives varied according to their perspectives. However, the representatives agreed that a Division I-A football championship is "long overdue," would "immediately become one of the four or five highest-watched televised sports events of the year" and would "reestablish postseason college football as a premier event in the U.S. sports calendar." The current postseason college football structure was described as chaotic and confusing to the television sports audience and to major advertisers.

Abridged copies of the report were mailed to Division I-A chief executive officers, athletics directors, faculty athletics representatives, head football coaches and conference commissioners.

Guide

Book available for college-bound students

describes how to register with the NCAA Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse.

The guide explains what student-athletes and their families can and cannot do during the recruiting process, including the different rules for each of the NCAA divisions. Even more important, it warns the student-athlete about what coaches and other representatives of the college or university can and cannot do. All of the time periods when coaches can contact student-athletes are explained.

Other sections include how to maintain amateur status, which the NCAA requires, and advice on how to find out graduation rates for colleges and universities.

Special Events Committee recertifies 19 bowls

The NCAA Special Events Committee devoted a significant portion of its recent meeting to discussing postseason football bowl games. The committee agreed to recertify 19 bowl games for 1994-95 and adopted a policy prohibiting the issuance of press credentials to professional scouts at these games.

Meeting April 27-29 in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, the Special Events Committee also voted to preclude sports agents who participate in activities organized by the bowls' sponsoring companies from having any access to student-athletes.

In another action, the committee agreed to recommend that institutions be permitted to increase the student-athlete per diem from $10 to $20. The committee said the justification for an increase is due to the more expensive incidental fees charged by the resort-type properties to which participating teams are assigned.

Finally, the committee reported that bowl-game revenue from 1993-94 totaled $89,082,879 and payments to participating teams equaled $70,756,732.

Correction

1994-95 NCAA Coaches Recruiting Guide

Institutions should make the following corrections to the 1994-95 pocket recruiting guides:

1. In the subsection entitled "Prohibited Coaching Activities" under the section entitled "Private Camps" in the recruiting guide for Division I sports other than football and basketball and in the guide for Division III sports, Divisions I and III institutions should delete the phrase, "in which senior prospects are enrolled or employed, or...." Accordingly, the first paragraph in Section 16-b-(1) on page 22 in the recruiting guide for Division I sports other than football and basketball should read as follows:

"Prohibited coaching activities — coaches may not be employed or lecture, either on a volunteer or salaried basis, at a private camp in which a high-school, preparatory school or two-year college athletics award winner is employed."

Paragraph 1 in Section 11-b-(1) in the recruiting guide for Division III sports should read as follows:

"Prohibited coaching activities — coaches may not be employed or lecture, either on a volunteer or salaried basis, at a private camp in which a high-school, preparatory school or two-year college athletics award winner is employed."

2. In the subsection entitled "Prohibited Coaching Activities" under the section entitled "Private Camps" in the recruiting guide for Division II sports, Division II institutions should delete the phrase, "in which senior prospects are enrolled, participate or are employed, or...." Therefore, paragraph 2 in Section 16-b on page 23 of the guide for Division II sports should read as follows:

"An institution's coach may not be employed or lecture, either on a salaried or volunteer basis, at a private camp in which a high-school, preparatory school or two-year college athletics award winner is employed."

NCAA Bylaw 15.2.7.1.1

Enrolled student-athletes — summer financial aid (Division I only)

Division I institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 15.2.7.1.1 (enrolled student-athletes), subsequent to initial full-time enrollment during a regular academic year, a student-athlete may not receive athletically related financial aid to attend the institution's summer term or summer school unless the student-athlete received such athletically related aid from that institution during the student-athlete's previous academic year (as opposed to the institution's previous academic year). Thus, a student-athlete who attended an NCAA institution during the 1992-93 academic year, but did not attend the institution during the 1993-94 academic year, would be permitted to receive athletically related financial aid during the 1994 summer term. In addition, such aid may be awarded only in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid received by the student-athlete during the student-athlete's previous academic year.

During its April 26, 1991, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that an institution that awards athletically related financial aid to a student-athlete who received athletically related aid during the previous academic year to attend the institution's summer term may award the financial aid on an element-by-element (i.e., tuition and fees, room and board, books) or equivalency (i.e., countable aid) basis. For example, a student-athlete who is enrolled as a full-time student for the entire academic year and receives a full athletics grant-in-aid for only one of the institution's terms would not be entitled to receive a full athletics grant-in-aid for the institution's summer term. Such a student-athlete would be entitled to receive only 50 percent of the student-athlete's actual educational expenses to attend the institution's summer term. Similarly, a student-athlete, who is enrolled full-time during the entire academic year and receives athletically related aid covering tuition and fees during the institution's first semester and no athletically related aid for the second semester, would be entitled to receive athletically related aid to cover one-half of the student-athlete's actual cost of tuition and fees for the institution's summer term or athletically related aid based on the student-athlete's equivalency value for the entire academic year to cover actual educational expenses for the summer term.

In addition, in accordance with Bylaw 15.2.7.1.1.3 (Pell Grant reduction), if an institution provides a student-athlete with a full athletics grant during the academic year, but is required to reduce the grant in accordance with Bylaw 15.1.3

(reduction when excess aid is awarded) because the student-athlete is receiving additional Pell Grant or other noninstitutional assistance, the institution may provide the student-athlete full athletically related financial aid to attend the institution's summer term. Further, a nonqualifier or partial qualifier may receive athletically related financial aid to attend an institution's summer term or summer school subsequent to the first academic year in residence under the following conditions:

1. The student-athlete has satisfied the NCAA satisfactory-progress requirements and, thus, would be eligible for competition for the succeeding year (e.g., the student-athlete must have completed successfully 24 semester or 36 quarter hours during the previous academic year and have a grade-point average that places the student-athlete in good academic standing at the institution);

2. The student-athlete has been awarded athletically related financial aid for the succeeding academic year, and

3. The student-athlete receives athletically related financial aid to attend the institution's summer term or summer school only in proportion to the amount of athletically related financial aid the student will receive for the succeeding year.

Finally, once a student-athlete has exhausted his or her eligibility, an institution may award financial aid to attend the institution's summer term or sessions that exceeds the proportion of athletically related aid received by the student-athlete during the previous academic year, provided the student-athlete is enrolled in courses that will allow the student-athlete to complete his or her degree requirements at the conclusion of that summer term.

Six students win Mashburn scholarships

Former University of Kentucky men's basketball player Jamal Mashburn presented six eighth-graders with scholarships May 3 through the Kentucky Excel Incentive Scholarship program, which he endowed for $500,000.

"I wanted to see others get that same opportunity (to attend college)," Mashburn said. "College makes you a better person."

Kentucky basketball coach Rick Pitino said his former player's athletics skills were obviously well known to people and now his character is showing.

"The public has long known that Jamal is a great basketball player," Pitino said. "Now people will know what a special person he is."

The students — Nanita Johnson, David Douglas Allen, Taquoya Lavette Owens, LaTonya Maria Robinson, Adrian Lee Pannell and Carlton Lee Kendrick — each will earn a year's full tuition at Kentucky for each year of high school in which they earn a 2.500 cumulative grade-point average.

Athletes contribute 30,000 hours of time

With little fanfare, dozens of Sacred Heart University student-athletes have contributed thousands of volunteer hours to the university's 30th anniversary goal of performing 30,000 hours of community service.

By mid-April, the cumulative total of hours — amassed by Sacred Heart students, faculty, staff and alumni — stood at slightly more than 35,000 hours. The university revised its goal to 40,000 hours.

A significant portion of these hours was provided by student-athletes. Members of the women's softball team accumulated more than 200 volunteer hours at the Jewish Home for the Elderly, helping to transport residents to physical therapy and other activities and providing friendship.

UCLA's Nygaard named volleyball player of the year

Penn State's Peterson receives national coach-of-the-year honors

Junior middle blocker Jeff Nygaard of UCLA has been named the 1994 NCAA men's volleyball player of the year by the American Volleyball Coaches Association (AVCA).

Nygaard is UCLA's first player-of-the-year recipient and heads a list of 18 student-athletes named to the fourth annual AVCA all-America team.

Nygaard helped spark the Bruins to 27 consecutive victories before a loss to Penn State in the 1994 National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship.

Nygaard, also named the 1994 Mountain Pacific Sports Federation player of the year, was among national leaders in blocks per game, kills, service aces and hitting percentage.

Penn State head coach Tom Peterson, whose Nittany Lions became the first team from other than the West Coast to win the national championship, was named the AVCA coach of the year. Peterson, with a career record of 127-49, ranks third in AVCA annals in all-time winning percentage. Penn State has made four consecutive NCAA postseason appearances.

Penn State outside hitter Ramon Hernandez, who was named the most outstanding player in the 1994 National Collegiate championship, represented the Nittany Lions on the first team.

Southern California placed outside hitters Jason Mulholland and Chris Underwood on the AVCA squad and was the only school to place more than one member on the first team.

Others named to the first team were Lloy Ball of Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne; Matt Fuerbringer of Stanford; John Hyden of San Diego State; Chip McCaw of Pepperdine and Ethan Watts of Brigham Young.

Nygaard is the only repeat member of the first team. Ball, Mulholland and Watts were second-team members in 1993.

The following is a list of the 1994 AVCA all-Americans:

First team: Outside hitters—Matt Fuerbringer, Stanford; John Hyden, San Diego State; Ramon Hernandez, Penn State; Jason Mulholland, Southern California; Chris Underwood, Southern California; middle blockers—Jeff Nygaard, UCLA; Ethan Watts, Brigham Young; setters—Lloy Ball, Indiana/Purdue-Fort Wayne; Chip McCaw, Pepperdine.

Second team: Outside hitters—Jose Luis Estrada, Rutgers-Newark; Mike Lambert, Stanford; Todd Reimer, Ball State; Erik Sullivan, UCLA; Kevin Wong, UCLA; middle blocker—Ivan Contreras, Penn State; setters—Canyon Ceman, Stanford; Jason Watson, Brigham Young.

Coach of the year: Tom Peterson, Penn State.
