Committee recommends restricting postseason play to NCAA events and bowls

By Ronald D. Mott THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

If a recommendation that has been forwarded to the NCAA Council becomes legislation, a team's season will end if it is not selected for an NCAA championship or NCAA-certified football bowl game.

The NCAA Special Events Committee, at its April 27-29 meeting in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, voted to recommend to the Council that postseason competition for NCAA members be restricted to NCAA championships and NCAA-certified football bowl games. In addition, the committee suggested that participation in "exemption" events included in NCAA Bylaws 17.3.5 and 17.7.5.2 be restricted to once every four years or three times every 12 years.

The Council in August 1993 asked the Special Events Committee to study all pre-season and postseason nonchampionship contests in terms of missed class time for student-athletes and in terms of cost containment. A Special Events Committee subcommittee examined the issue, and its recommendations were met with widespread support from the full committee.

'The feeling was that there is a proliferation of other events (currently operating or forming) that are unlike the NCAA tournaments in that they are not financially rewarding," said Pacific-10 Conference Commissioner Thomas C. Hansen, who noted that the recommendation does not necessarily reflect the views of the entire membership. "You can't budget for that. All of these events extend the season and are injurious acade-

The NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, which recently received authorization for the study from the NCAA Council, is asking various NCAA sports committees and representatives of coaches and athletics associations to provide input.

The committee proposed the study in March after it received various questions relating in one way or another to sport-bysport grant-in-aid limits in Divisions I and II.

Specifically, the study was prompted by the following:

Certification committee refines peer-review training

The NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification devoted much of its May 11-12 meeting in San Francisco to reviewing and refining the peer-reviewer training program.

Peer-review teams are responsible for reviewing the institutional self-study that is required of each Division I member by the certification program. Visits by pcer-review teams to the first group of participating institutions will begin this

Peer-review training will begin May 25 with a session in Arlington, Virginia, in conjunction with an NCAA regional rules-compliance seminar. Other spring sessions will be June 1 in New Orleans, June 7 in Chicago and June 20 in Dallas. Only those reviewers who have been assigned to make a campus visit in the fall have been invited to those sessions.

Training for peer-review team chairs, all of whom will be institutional chief executive officers, will be conducted by means of a video conference August 16.

Most of the first group of peerreview teams will contain a chief executive officer, an athletics director and a faculty athletics representative, and will feature ethnic and gender diversity.

The pool of potential peer reviewers has been deficient with regard to Division I-A athletics administrators, but the committee approved 72 additions to the pool at its most recent meeting and more than half of those represented Division I-A institutions.

However, representation from historically black institutions continues to be low, and the committee continues to solicit volunteers from that segment of Division I.

Committee prepares for second playoff discussion

The second meeting of the NCAA Special Committee to Study a Division I-A Football Championship will be conducted June 2-3 in Kansas City, Missouri.

The committee's first meeting was May 5-6. It spent much of the time at that meeting reviewing the research report specially developed for this examination of whether the Association's membership should consider legislation that would create a Division 1-A football championship.

At the second meeting, the committee is expected to make its recommendation about how the membership should proceed.

For more information, see the May 11, April 20, March 23 and March 2 issues of The NCAA News.

Proposal No. 174

Special committee asks membership for viewpoints

Individuals at member institutions have until May 25 to provide any observations to the Special Committee to Review Initial-Eligibility Standards.

That committee has solicited viewpoints from the membership in advance of its May 31-June 1 meeting in San Francisco.

Those interested in commenting to the committee are asked to write or fax correspondence to Ursula R. Walsh, NCAA director of research, at the national office. The fax number is 913/339-0035.

The committee is charged with a comprehensive review of initial-eligibility standards but especially with examining 1992 Convention Proposal No. 16, which is scheduled to go into effect in August 1995. The January 1995 Convention will be the last opportunity for the Association to amend or delay that legislation.

The first session for training peer reviewers for the NCAA athletics certification program will be May 25 in Washington, D.C.

The Committee on Athletics Certification spent a significant portion of its May 11-12 meeting refining and reviewing the training program.

Peer review of the first group of participating institutions will begin this fall. Training for peer-review team chairs, principally chief executive officers, will be done by a video conference August 16.

Financial aid

Committee requests input from key groups

The NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism is asking various NCAA sports committees and representatives of coaches and athletics associations to provide input into its study of the formulation of principles for determining grant-in-aid limits for all Divisions I and II men's and women's sports.

The committee has set a deadline of August 15 for responses. The study is not connected to other work currently underway in the Association related to membership restructuring, student-athlete welfare, or development of models for need-based financial aid.

The committee is asking that recommendations be restricted to principles that could fit into a framework for all sports, rather than focusing on specific numbers of grants for a given sport.

California: The championship state

The 1993-94 NCAA championships season is winding down and the state of California probably will have more team champions than any other state when the year is complete.

Entering the spring championships, California teams already had won six championships in 1993-94 — and the title haul usually grows in the spring. (Men's volleyball normally would be included in the California spring championship rush, but Penn State broke the West Coast stranglehold on that event earlier this month.)

The Golden State has dominated NCAA championships for some time now, especially since the beginning of the decade. Not counting this year, California institutions have won 58 NCAA team championships since the 1989-90 academic year — more than twice the number won by second-place New York and more than three times those won by third-place Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

To put it another way, no matter what happens in this year's spring championships, almost 20 percent of all NCAA team champions over the last five years have come from California.

Major accident didn't stop her

Perhaps the only force strong enough to break Aimee Mooney's love for the sport of lacrosse is death.

The Villanova University student-athlete was seriously injured in a December 1992 automobile collision in which another person was killed. Mooney lay in a coma for the next 11 days at Hahnemann University Hospital. She suffered numerous injuries, including fractures to 80 percent of her facial bones and blindness in her right eye. She also had a collapsed lung.

After six operations to reconstruct her face, Mooney was eager to begin her life again. Just one month after the accidentdespite a severely swollen and scarred face, a jaw wired shut and a tracheotomy tube in her throat to help her breathe—Mooney returned to Villanova for the spring semes-

"No one at the school could believe it when Aimee came back for the first day of the semester," said the Rev. Arthur Chappell, a faculty member at Villanova.

Mooney earned perfect marks that semester. But the general-studies major, who carries a 3.640 cumulative grade-point average (4.000 scale), wanted to begin earning marks on the lacrosse field again. Time after time, however, her doctors kept repeating what they had said all along: She could not play the sport ever again.

"That just crushed me," said Mooney, a junior. "This was a sport that I had played since first grade, and now it was being taken away.'

Mooney, however, proved the doctor's predictions incorrect when she returned to the field this spring with an NCAAapproved tae kwon do helmet to protect her face. She said the accident has changed things, on and off the field.

"I don't worry about petty things anymore," she said. "I think the accident has made me appreciate what I have and has made me less selfish. I think of others more than I used to, especially because of all that others have done to help me get through all of this."

Two student-athletes from each state are awarded $1,000 postgraduate scholarships in math and science as state winners. The top male and female receive an additional $2,000 scholarship as tri-state winners.

Other recipients for 1994 were James Christopher Oliver, a football player and mechanical-engineering major at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville; Amy C. Sports festival

Athletics directors at South Atlantic Conference member institutions voted recently to locate its spring sports festival in Salisbury, North Carolina, for a three-year period beginning im 1995.

The sports festival will bring all five conference spring tournaments (baseball, men's golf, women's softball, and men's and women's tennis) to the Salisbury communi-

"All of us in the South Atlantic Conference are excited about the potential for this event in the Salisbury/Rowan County community," said Doug Echols, commissioner of the conference. "The commitment from virtually every aspect of the community to embrace the festival concept makes this location an excellent choice for our member institutions, student-athletes, coaches and supporters.

"Our hope is that by bringing together more than 500 student-athletes representing eight schools and 39 teams, we will be utilizing very fine sports facilities in creating an environment that will be both enjoyable for participants and the community at large."

I Facilities

Construction of a six-court, indoor tennis center at Hope College is underway and expected to be completed this spring. The 40,000-square-foot, $1 million DeWitt Tennis Center will include men's and women's locker rooms and parking for 40 vehicles. Gary and Joyce DeWitt provided funding through the college's "Hope in the Future" endowment campaign.

Sacred Heart University recently received the first of three payments on a $50,000 pledge made by Fleet Bank for use in the university's new Health and Recreation Center, now under construction. The center will provide indoor athletics facilities for the university's intercollegiate teams as well as for intramurals and recreational athletes. The building's sports arena will have four basketball courts, including a 2,500-seat center court; three tennis courts, and a running track. Other planned features include a wrestling arena, four racquetball and two squash courts, a multipurpose health/exercise room, and a weight room.

Brigham Young University completed a $1 million renovation of its outdoor tennis court facility in time to host the Western Athletic Conference's men's and women's championships this spring. Work on the new courts began last fall with the removal of the old surfaces, fences and lights. During the winter, concrete was laid, fences installed, and light poles and fixtures erected. Three storage buildings and a pavilion were added to enhance the function of the 14-court facility.

The athletics department at St. Olaf College recognized the late Mabel Shirley by naming its varsity softball field in her honor. Shirley, a 1923 graduate of St. Olaf, began what would become a 40-year teaching career at the college in 1930. She served as head of St. Olaf's women's physical education department for 30 of those years, retiring in 1970. In addition to dedicating the softball field in her name, St. Olaf also annually provides two endowed scholarships in physical education and dance in Shirley's honor. She died May 19, 1992, at the age of 92.

State University College at Cortland formally dedicated its athletics training room in the Bessie L. Park Center in honor of the late John L. Sciera, who founded the athletics training program at Cortland State in the 1970s. Sciera, a 1952 alumnus of the school, designed the training room at the college and in the mid-1970s became the first president of an association of collegiate athletics trainers in New York State.

Ice hockey committee changes rule

In an attempt to add more excitement and skill to the game, the NCAA Men's Ice Hockey Rules Committee voted to allow four-onfour play after coincidental minor penalties beginning next season.

At its May 10-13 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the committee voted to change Rule 4-2-e so that when one minor penalty is assessed to one player of each team at the same stoppage of play, these penalties will be served without substitution, provided there are no other penalties in effect and visible on the penalty clock.

The committee, however, reject-

Postgraduate grants merit more money

By Allen Sack UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAVEN

Another academic year is winding down, and the public's attention is shifting from college sports to the games of summer.

Yet, if college sports actually are an integral part of education, June graduation — and not the heroics reported in the sports pages — represents the high point in a student-athlete's college career. This is the time of year when athletes reap the real rewards: college degrees, interviews for jobs, and, for some, the opportunity to pursue postgraduate degrees. Only a handful will make it as professional athletes.

This spring, I was proud to find that one of our female athletes at the University of New Haven had been awarded an NCAA postgraduate scholarship. This is a tremendous honor for the athlete and speaks well for our university and for our athletics program. But I also was somewhat dismayed when I discovered how few of these awards are actually given. Of all the programs the NCAA funds, the postgraduate scholarship program is most consistent with the mission of wedding college sport with academic excellence. Yet, the modest amount of money set aside for these scholarships makes one wonder if this is yet another case of the NCAA's confused priorities.

The NCAA's postgraduate scholarship program was established in 1964 to honor outstanding student-athletes. In that year, the NCAA awarded 32 scholarships worth $1,000 each. By 1993-94, those numbers had increased to 125 grants worth $5,000 each. In 1994-95, 154 postgraduate scholarships will be awarded.

These scholarships are provided to athletes in all three NCAA divisions, making for a fairly large pool of potential applicants. Yet, Division I football, the source of millions of dollars of revenue, is allocated only 10 scholarships, plus most of the nine at-large football grants. Divisions II and III women basketball players must share five scholarships.

The money that the NCAA currently spends on this program, $625,000, suggests that when it comes to dividing up the profits of the college sports industry, the educational needs of athletes are a mere afterthought. Although $625,000 may seem like a great deal of money, one must consider that it

Athletes open up for paper's survey

The Charlotte Observer recently surveyed Division I men's basketball players to determine their attitudes on a number of subjects. The survey also contained several open-ended questions, which produced the following responses (among others):

If I could change one thing about the recruiting process, I would:

- Allow parents to visit along with students.
- Show the student-athlete the real side of school, not just the glamour.
- Have a dead period (perhaps several weeks) before the signing period so that players would have time to think without all the pressure.
- Cut the bull. There is too much mail by colleges who aren't even interested or know who you are.
- Limit phone calls! Restrict coaches from telling lies to convince players to come to school!
- Stop them from calling players at night or late.
- Give players a way to better research the school, coaches and program they are considering.
- Loosen up some of the rules. For example, expand summer viewing times for camps. Before my senior year in high school, I went to three weeks of camp straight. It was terrible, but I had to do it to get noticed. I lost 20 pounds and never will forget it.
- Let the coaches talk to the recruits any time.
- Allow more interaction between the recruit and nonathletic students of the school.
 - Give coaches the opportunity to recruit anyone from anywhere. I think they have too many unnecessary rules to follow.

- Make it so players aren't treated like a commodity a piece of meat.
- Take away early signing. (It) creates ultimatums and pressure on 17- and 18-year-old kids.
- Give more than five official visits. It limits an athlete. Also, let the schools recruit how they want. As long as they are going to take care of an athlete, it shouldn't matter what they do.
- Allow for boosters to be involved because it says something about the strength of the community and alumni.
- Allow recruits to scrimmage with some team members during visits.

If I could change anything about college basketball, I would:

- Pay players, because what they do is a job.
- Play more games and pay the player a little extra since we're not allowed to work for spending and entertainment money
- Allow student-athletes to get a parttime job. If not, I feel the coaches should be able to help their own players out, especially kids who come from a poor situation and (are) from a long distance away from home.
- Give players two round-trip tickets to fly home, give them an additional $100-$200 a month for expenses, cut practice time to 15 hours a week, including pre- and postseason conditioning.
- Definitely allow married studentathletes to work during the school year, if possible — especially those married couples who have children.

- Let players be involved in more decision making.
- Condense rules ... to where everyone can understand if they are breaking rules or not. There are so many rules (that) if you break one, it can be purely innocent.
- Make it easier to transfer without a penalty.
- Deemphasize it. Let's face it: College hoops is now a big business. People forget the true goal: You're at college to get a degree. Kids make big money for their schools and coaches and don't see it. Either pay student-athletes or cut back on things.
- Reduce coaches' salaries. Decrease the amount of control television has over the sport (money, scheduling of games). Encourage players to graduate without isolating them from cogent classwork.

Other comments:

- I love this game!!!
- Take Dick Vitale off the air.
- I have had a wonderful time. The coaches have been great, and I have grown on and off the court.
- Coaches should not be allowed to lie about playing time.
- The NCAA and other unneeded pressures often take the enjoyment out of the experience.
- I feel the NCAA needs to make some changes to help the college athlete instead of hurting them. The NCAA has been ridiculous.
- There is too much pressure on athletes and coaches to win. School work is often lost in the shuffle.

Coaches jump, but players grounded

Jeff Gordon, columnist

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

"Isn't college basketball great? Players are supposed to scrape quarters together to buy pizzas, but the hot coaches jump from school to school to sign for million-dollar deals.

"Players are bound by their scholarships, but coaching contracts break like peanut brittle. Players must settle for an education, but the top coaches are riding the greatest gravy train of athletics history — the ludicrous sneaker deals.

"Shoe companies pay middle-aged doughboys millions of dollars to ensure that their players wear the right sneakers. The players get squat. This exploitation is so shameful that some of our coaching giants hid like criminals when a '60 Minutes' crew questioned this.

"But the coaches are just the product of an insane environment. We really can't blame (them) for chasing the dollar because: 1) This is America; 2) Coaches get fired if they go 13-15, even if all their players are bound for grad school....

"Our major universities must ease the pressure on coaches and take better care of the players. The idealists who prattle on at the NCAA Conventions must awaken and bring some decency to the sport.

"Several reforms come to mind:

- "—Division I players should earn, say, $500 a month in addition to their scholarship money and room and board. This is what an ordinary student could earn working on the side; currently the NCAA prohibits players from holding jobs during the school year. I made $200 a month running a really bad campus newspaper back in 1978-79, and I couldn't even touch the rim. If these schools have the big money for coaches, then they can take care of the kids. Those schools currently paying players out of slush funds are doing an honorable thing.
- "—All Division I basketball scholarships should include one extra year to allow players to finish their degrees. Also, coaches shouldn't be allowed to yank scholarships for nonperformance.
 - "-If a coach leaves a program, the players should be free to transfer anywhere without sitting out a year.

- "—Coaches should put one-half of their shoe contract earnings into a scholarship fund for ex-players who want to return to school and finish their course work.
- "—Coaches should put one-half of their summer camp money into an academic development fund to help athletes prepare for college. As it is, some programs go to comical lengths to forge transcripts and orchestrate test fraud to get guys in school.
- "—If a coach graduates more than 50 percent of the players during his tenure, then his institution should owe him additional severance pay if it fires him. He should get one year's pay in addition to whatever settlement he reaches with the school.

"Despite all my complaints, I know college basketball is a great sport — so great, in fact, that just a little more integrity won't ruin it."

Paying athletes

Hubert Mizell, columnist

St. Petersburg Times

"Florida State, Florida, Miami, Notre Dame, Michigan and dozens of other universities can afford to pay football and men's basketball players $100 or even $1,000 a month. But what about women athletes? What about males in nonrevenue-producing sports? Challenges have multiplied since the laundry-money days.

"What about the shortstop at Florida A&M, the pole vaulter at Northern Iowa, the diver at UCLA or the snow skier at Minot State? Their schools and/or programs may have money problems already. Adding costs would be ludicrous. But do those young people deserve any less than football or basketball celebrities for the big, famous, lavishly financed college programs?

"I think not.

"So much to consider; no real solution."

represents only .44 of one percent of the $143 million the NCAA receives annually from its television contract with CBS. And it is less than the gate receipts from a single big-time college football game. In 1985, according to Murray Sperber's book "College Sports Inc.," the University of Georgia spent nearly $600,000 just for travel related to recruiting and scouting.

Many big-time coaches receive yearly salaries and benefits in excess of $1 million. Duke University basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski made a deal last year with Nike worth several million dollars. The athletes wear shoes. The coaches make the money. With so many people making so much money from the efforts of college athletes, it strikes me as unconscionable that the NCAA and its member institutions can come up with only $625,000 to help exceptional student-athletes pursue postgraduate degrees.

It is true that revenue-producing college athletes already receive financial compensation in the form of room, board, tuition and fees. However, the financial and other contributions college athletes make to universities and to their surrounding communities far exceed the value of their scholarships. Some would argue that college athletes should be paid salaries just like the pros. Perhaps. But, at the very least, their efforts justify a significant expansion of programs that help them further their educations.

There is nothing, apart from an adjustment of priorities, to prevent the NCAA from further increasing the number of postgraduate awards. A figure like 300 seems perfectly reasonable. The major source of funding for this venture might be a bowl game or a game like the preseason football Kickoff Classic. The $1.5 million needed for the scholarship program could come in part from such a game and in part from NCAA basketball revenues.

In 1988, the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics, the College Football Association and the College Football Hall of Fame each received substantial payments from the Kickoff Classic. If money generated by athletes can be diverted to those organizations and causes, there is no reason why $1.5 million cannot be found for postgraduate educational expenses. These scholarships would be a tremendous incentive for women and minority athletes who have been underrepresented in professions such as law, medicine and higher education.

African-Americans are overrepresented on college sports teams but underrepresented in leadership roles in both collegiate and professional sports. More black lawyers, MBAs and Ph.Ds might help to reverse those trends.

By increasing opportunities for graduate training, the NCAA would be helping to address some major social problems. In my opinion, increasing the number of postgraduate scholarships would be far more significant than adding another Division I basketball scholarship if the goal is really educational opportunity for athletes.

Rather than giving a winning edge, those postgraduate awards will give former athletes an edge in their careers and in their lives.

New rule to allow four-on-four play ed a proposal to play three-onthree if additional coincidental minor penalties are assessed.

"After reviewing the feedback we received from the (American Hockey Coaches Association) convention, the rules committee felt there was considerable interest to change the rule in hopes of adding the excitement of four-on-four hockey while also placing more emphasis on skill," said Sidney J. Watson, director of athletics at Bowdoin College and chair of the committee.

"I think coaches, players and fans will be happy with the new rule."

Last season, if players on opposing teams were issued coincidental minor penalties, they could be replaced on the ice immediately.

Helmet proposal

In another action, the committee — reacting to Injury Surveillance System head and concussion data for ice hockey and a request from the NCAA Committee on Competitive Safeguards and Medical Aspects of Sports — voted to propose to the NCAA Executive Committee that all players be required to wear a Hockey Equipment Certification Councilapproved helmet that does not include ear flaps.

HECC will meet next month and is expected to approve such a helmet. If approved by the Executive Committee, the rule would take effect for the 1995-96 season.

The committee also voted to reinstate the mouthguard as a piece of equipment that can be challenged by a coach, in an attempt to emphasize better enforcement of the mandatory rule. If, after a challenge, a player is not wearing the mouthguard, the player will receive a warning, be sent to the players' bench and be replaced on the ice. If the same player is challenged a second time and found not to be wearing a mouthguard, he will receive a misconduct penalty.

In other actions involving major playing rules, the committee made the following changes:

■ Agreed to emphasize strict enforcement of interference at regional officiating clinics, based

THE GTE ACADEMIC ALL-AMERICA HALL OF FAME.

In college, Anne Donovan, Dr. Richard Mayo, Lee Roy Selmon and Bill Walton were members of the Academic All-America® team. One of the highest honors a student athlete can achieve. After graduation, each has continued to excel. In sports. In life. In service to the community. And in service to our country. With great pride we induct five extraordinary people into the GTE Academic All-America® Hall of Fame, including legendary coach and former Purdue star John Wooden, our honorary inductee. Achievers all, they heard another voice through the cheering crowds. One from inside.

Division I Baseball

Talented ACC teams lead a large pack of potential contenders in Division I field

Event: 1994 Division I Baseball Championship.

Overview: Flip a coin to predict a champion, although it's likely that the Atlantic Coast Conference which has six ranked teams, including three in the top five — will be well represented among the contenders. Georgia Tech (38-11) is looking to make its first trip to the College World Series after 11 Division I championship appearances. Two all-Americans — catcher Jason Varitek and shortstop Nomar Garciaparra — lead the Yellow Jackets offensively. Varitek is hitting .424 with 11 home runs and 60 runs batted in, while Garciaparra is hitting .459 with nine homers and 48 RBI. Despite one of the toughest schedules in the country, Florida State (41-17) has been ranked in the top five in nearly every poll this season. Florida State has a dominant pitcher in hard-throwing righthander Paul Wilson (10-3, 2.16 ERA) and also has Doug Mientkiewicz, who leads the team in almost every offensive category. Cal State Fullerton (39-10) has been ranked at or near the top of the polls most of the season, thanks to some outstanding pitching from Mike Parisi (9-3 won-lost record, 2.02 earned-run average), Matt Wagner (10-1, 1.73) and Dan Ricabal (6-0, 2.97). Other teams that will challenge for the title include Arizona State, Clemson, Louisiana State, Miami (Florida), Oklahoma State and Wichita

Field: A maximum of 48 teams will be selected to compete in the championship; 18 will receive berths through automatic qualification, six via play-in competition and 24 as at-large selections. Eight regional champions will advance to the College World Series.

Dates and sites: Regional competition will be May 26-30 at on-campus sites. For the 45th consecutive year, the College World Series will be at Rosenblatt Municipal Stadium in Omaha, Nebraska, with Creighton serving as host. The CWS is set for June 3-11.

Television coverage: CBS-TV will provide live coverage of a preliminary College World Series game June 4 and of the championship game June 11. ESPN and ESPN2 will provide live coverage of all other College World Series games.

Results: Scores and pairings from regional competition will appear in the June 1 issue of The NCAA News, and championship results will be published June 15.

Championship notes: Defending champion Louisiana State has won two of the last three College World Series titles. The Tigers will try to become only the fourth school in Division I baseball history to repeat as champion.

What they are saying

Jack Leggett, head coach Clemson

Currently ranked No. 1

"I really don't think this team has peaked yet....We are not the most talented team, but we have a lot of heart and a lot of battle and the kids never give up."

Florida State's title hopes rest in part on the strength of its pitching staff, which is led by Paul Wilson. Wilson has a 10-3 record and 2.16 ERA. But the favorite's role may belong to Atlantic Coast Conference rivals Georgia Tech or Clemson.

National Collegiate Women's Golf

Arizona State appears to be best

Event: 1994 National Collegiate Women's Golf Championships.

Overview: Defending champion Arizona State should have enough talent to win both the team and individual championships, but San Jose State and Southern California will put up a fight. Arizona State coach Linda Vollstedt doesn't hesitate to say she has the best group of five golfers ever assembled in women's collegiate golf. "And that's not just me saying that," she said. "Other coaches will tell you that, too." The Sun Devils return all-Americans Wendy Ward and Emilee Klein, along with Tracy Cone from last year's team, and have added freshman Heather Bowie to their top four. That foursome has won eight tournaments among them this year. At one point this spring, Arizona State golfers were a combined 66 over par for the season,

Arizona State's Tracy Cone is one of four Wildcats who have a shot at the individual championship.

92 strokes better than runner-up San Jose State.

Field: A total of 204 golfers representing five districts participated in two regionals to determine the championships field of 102 competitors.

Dates and site: The championships finals will be May 25-28 at the Oregon Golf Club, Portland, Oregon. Oregon will serve as the host institution.

Television coverage: The third round will be telecast live on Prime Network beginning at 4 p.m. (Eastern time) May 27. Live final-round coverage will begin at 5 p.m. May 28.

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 1 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: The last three team championships have gone down to the wire. After UCLA defeated San Jose State in a sudden-death playoff in 1991, San Jose State won the title by four strokes the following year and Arizona State won by two strokes last year....Arizona and Georgia are the only schools to have produced two medalists. Susan Slaughter and Annika Sorenstam won back-to-back individual titles for the Wildcats in 1990 and 1991. Georgia's Vicki Goetze was the medalist in 1992, eight years after Cindy Schreyer won the Bulldogs' first title.

What they are saying

Linda Vollstedt, head coach Arizona State

"We have the top four players (by stroke average) in the country on our team. We work a lot on setting both team and individual goals and there's no question that the chemistry among these players is the best I've ever seen. San Jose State is always our top competition-always, always, always."

Division I Men's Golf

Cowboys' sights set on title this time

Event: 1994 Division I Men's Golf Championships.

Overview: Oklahoma State is poised to make a run at its first team title since 1991 and rebound from last year's uncharacteristic 12th-place finish. The Cowboys had to survive a three-team playoff just to make the two-round cut last year and finished lower than fourth for the first time since 1975. This year's team features juniors Chris Tidland and Alan Bratton and sophomore Chris Cox, who have combined to medal in five tournaments. Defending champion Florida will challenge, along with Arizona State, which returns defending medalist Todd Demsey. Other contenders include Wake Forest, Texas and Stanford.

Field: A total of 156 golfers representing nine districts will compete for Television coverage: ESPN will provide live coverage of the June 2 round beginning at 2 p.m. (Eastern time). The June 3 round will be telecast live on ESPN2 beginning at 4 p.m. The final round will be telecast live on ESPN at 5 p.m. June 4. A 30-minute preview on ESPN will precede the final round.

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 8 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: The championships return to the state of Texas for the first time since 1984, when Houston hosted and won the team title. The Cougars' 16 championships is second to Yale's 21 on the all-time list, but Houston has not won since 1985. In the eight years since, seven schools have won titles, with Oklahoma State being the lone repeat champion during that span....Golfers from Arizona State and Oklahoma State have dominated the list of medalists for the last eight years, winning seven individual titles. Arizona State's Phil Mickelson accounted for three.

What they are saying

Jimmy Clayton, head coach Texas

"We're starting to play well. We've had a good spring, finishing first, second or third in all but one tournament and winning the Southwest Conference championships. I don't think any team will have an advantage because of the course—I guess the Central region teams might, but it's our turn (to host the championships)."

Division II Men's Outdoor Track

As usual, team race again should be between two

Event: 1994 Division II Men's Outdoor Track and 236 student-athletes. Field Championships.

Overview: St. Augustine's and Abilene Christian have combined to win the last 12 titles—St. Augustine's has won the last five. A year ago, St. Augustine's edged the host Wildcats by seven points (110 to 103) in the closest finish in more than a decade. This year, the Falcons will play host, and once again the bid for the team title should be very close. St. Augustine's will rely on a balanced sprint and field-event squad led by Randall Evans (100- and 200-meter dashes), Joseph King (800-meter run and 1,500-meter run) and Marco Morgan (110- and 400-meter hurdles), and Emmitt Higgins and Chris Coleman (triple jump). Abilene Christian, which outdistanced St. Augustine's by 45 points (99 to 54) to win the indoor title in March, will counter the Falcons with an equally talented and balanced squad. Brian Amos, two-time defending champion in the 110-meter hurdles, and Mike Edwards, defending pole-vault champion, are the top performers. Sean Adams (200-meter dash); Savieri Ngidhi, indoor champion in the 800- and 1,500-meter runs; Joseph Tengelei, defending 1,500-meter run champion, and Stacy Brown (long jump) also will play vital roles in the Wildcats' bid for the title.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows for a maximum of

Dates and site: The championships will be May 26-28 at St. Augustine's.

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 1 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Sean Robbins, a sophomore from Ashland, has posted the nation's top marks in the 100- and 200-meter dashes and long jump. Robbins has clocked in at 10.28 in the 100 and 20.85 in the 200, and leaped 7.88 meters (25-101/4)....Abilene Christian's Brian Amos is the only athlete to post a sub-14.00 mark in the 110-meter hurdles this year. Amos' best mark is

What they are saying

Wes Kittley, head coach Abilene Christian

"They (St. Augustine's) have one of the best teams they've had. I think we're better than we were last year. We're both very well-rounded. You have to have quality to win at the national championships and we both have that. I think the deciding factor will come down to the nickel-and-dime points."

Brian Amos of Abilene Christian is vying for his third straight 110-meter hurdles title.

Division III Men's Outdoor Track

Wisconsin-La Crosse eyes sweep

Event: 1994 Division III Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Overview: Wisconsin-La Crosse has swept the indoor and outdoor titles for three consecutive years. With the indoor championship already secure, the Eagles aim for a fourth consecutive sweep. They may get it. As has been the case for three years, the Eagles' fortunes rely on depth. David Coates (200- and 400-meter dashes) and Mike Schnurr (pole vault) headline the Eagles' attack, but individuals such as Travis Erickson (long jump), Mahdi Omar (5,000- and 10,000-meter runs) and Robert Glynn (hammer) must score if Wisconsin-La Crosse is to repeat. Lincoln (Pennsylvania), runner-up at the last three championships, once again will be in the title hunt, as will Nebraska Wesleyan and St. Thomas (Minnesota). Lincoln (Pennsylvania) poses the greatest threat to the Eagles' reign. Paced by Don Waldron (100-meter dash), Jeff Taylor (400-meter dash) and Keith Falconer (400-meter hurdles), the Lions have more than enough talent to enter the winner's circle. St. Thomas (Minnesota) has the championships' top individual in Leonard Jones, a threetime individual-event champion indoors, while North Central's title aspirations rest on the shoulders of Dan Mayer, defending champion in the 5,000- and 10,000-meter runs.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows for a maximum of 344 student-athletes.

Dates and site: North Central will serve as host of the championships

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 1 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Leonard Jones of St. Thomas (Minnesota) has seven indoors and two outdoors.

What they are saying

Mark Guthrie, head coach Wisconsin-La Crosse

"If it takes 55 points or less to win (the team title), we're in the meet. If it takes more than 55, then Lincoln (Pennsylvania) is going to be favored. I think you're going to see the traditional teams that are always at the top: (Nebraska) Wesleyan, Lincoln, North Central, St. Thomas and us. I think those five will slug it out, some with better title hopes than others. Again, if it's a low-scoring meet, that will favor

Division III Women's Outdoor Track

Next goal: A sweep for Titans

Event: 1994 Division III Women's Outdoor Track and Field Champion-

Overview: Wisconsin-Oshkosh finally broke through to win its first indoor championship. The Titans hope to parlay their indoor success into an outdoor sweep. It isn't out of the question. Talented and experienced, the Titans have more than enough to claim the crown once again - Wisconsin-Oshkosh won the title in 1990 and 1991. Melissa Mueller is Wisconsin-Oshkosh's top performer. The defending champion in the high jump, Mueller likely will challenge for top honors in that event and the 100-meter hurdles. In addition to Mueller, coach Deb Vercauteren's squad will count heavily on Trish Haralson (throws) and Tara Harding (long jump), among others. Christopher Newport, a fourtime champion, is the Titans' biggest obstacle. Traditionally, the Lady Captains boast one of the nation's top sprint and jump teams. This year is no different. Led by Antoinette Bass (200meter dash, long jump), Lai Madden (triple jump), Dominique McLaughlin (100-meter dash) and Cusetta Corridon (400-meter dash), the Lady Captains are formidable.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows for a maximum of 315 student-athletes.

Dates and site: North Central will serve as host of the championships May 25-28.

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 1 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: North Central is hosting the championships for the sixth time....Wisconsin-Stevens Point's Jessie Bushman, the defending 800meter-run champion, has posted the nation's best times in both the 400meter dash and 800-meter run....Jennifer Green of Baldwin-Wallace is trying to become the first athlete to win three consecutive 100-meter-hurdles

What they are saying

Deb Vercauteren, head coach Wisconsin-Oshkosh

"Last weekend, we won (the Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic) conference meet, and we're very pleased with that. We're waiting to get some good weather and hopefully get a few more qualifiers in. (The indoor title) gave our team some confidence because we had been struggling earlier in the year. Hopefully, we'll be able to build on that."

Carrie Luis of Cal State Stanislaus won the 800- and 1,500-meter-run titles at last year's championships.

Division II Women's Outdoor Track

Team title chase expected to go down to the wire

Event: 1994 Division II Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Overview: The showdown has finally arrived. Alabama A&M and Abilene Christian were supposed to battle for supremacy indoors, but the Lady Bulldogs did not compete at the indoor event. They will compete outdoors, and the battle could result in the closest championships finish ever. If there is an edge, it could go to Alabama A&M simply because it is the defending champion. If that's not enough, the Lady Bulldogs also have the talent. Olga Robinson (100and 200-meter dashes), Shelly Beckford (400-meter dash), Georgia Harrison (400-meter hurdles), Elechi Oluchi (long jump), and Chinweoke Chikwelu (shot put and javelin) make the Lady Bulldogs a formidable defending champion. Abilene Christian, the 1994 indoor champion, is equally imposing, showcasing the talents of Hermin Joseph and Mary Tombiri (100meter dash), Revoli Campbell (400-meter dash), Bigna Samuel (1,500- and 3,000-meter runs), Ruth Jaime (5,000- and 10,000-meter runs), Chelsa Istre (100meter hurdles) and Kim Bartee (high jump). Cal State Los Angeles, Norfolk State, Adams State and Seattle Pacific should battle for positions at the top.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows for a maximum of 220 student-athletes.

Dates and site: The championships will be May 26-28 at St. Augustine's.

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 1 issue of The NCAA News.

Championships notes: Janet Hill of Cal State Los Angeles has registered the top marks in both the shot put and discus. Hill won both events last year....Carrie Luis of Cal State Stanislaus, defending champion in the 800- and 1,500-meter runs, is trying to become only the second athlete to win both events in consecutive years. Teena Colebrook of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo completed the feat in 1989 and 1990.

What they are saying

Joe Henderson, head coach Alabama A&M

On the Alabama A&M-Abilene Christian showdown:

"Everyone's been asking me about that, saying, 'Are we going to see it?' We're going to be there.

"We've come along quite a bit. I look for a great meet. I think there will be several teams, teams like Adams State, that will be right up there. We're young, and we're hoping to go out and represent our school well and defend our title."

Three additional summer basketball events certified

To date, 58 events have been approved

Three additional summer basketball events have been certified in accordance with legislation regulating Division I men's and women's basketball coaches' attendance at camps.

In accordance with NCAA Bylaw 13.13.5, basketball coaches at Division I institutions may attend only institutional summer basketball camps as defined in Bylaw 13.13.1.1 and noninstitutional organized events held during the July evaluation period that are certified under Bylaw 80.15

The Division I summer evaluation periods are July 5-31 for men and July 8-31 for women.

To date, 58 events have been certified by the Association. Other certified events were reported in the April 20 and 27 and May 4 and May 11 issues of The NCAA News.

More information about certification can be obtained from Christopher D. Schoemann, NCAA legislative assistant, at the national office.

Following is the men's summer event and two women's events certified most recently, with sites and dates of camps and the name, address and telephone number of the principal owner.

North Florida women win II tennis title in their first season of NCAA competition

It's not too often that a team competing in its first year of NCAA competition enters the championships as the No. 1 seed. North Florida's women's tennis team did, and the Ospreys lived up to the expectations.

Leigh Ann Tabor and Kendra Pascoe posted two-set victories at Nos. 2 and 5 singles, respectively, and the Ospreys blanked Cal Poly Pomona, 6-0, to win the Division II women's tennis team title at Industry Hills, California. Cal Poly Pomona served as the host institution for the NCAA Division II Women's Tennis Championships May 6-12.

Stacy Moss of Rollins claimed the singles title and Francis Marion's Mary Hirst and Lee Whitwell captured their second consecutive doubles crown.

North Florida, which finished the season with a 25-3 record, became only the second team in championships history to post a shutout in the final. Cal Poly Pomona defeated Grand Canyon, 5-0, in 1992.

Cal Poly Pomona, the No. 3 seed, finished as runnerup for the second time. The Broncos have advanced to the final in four of the last five years, winning the See complete results: Page 10.

team title in 1991 and 1992 and finishing second in

The Ospreys advanced to the final by beating Northern Colorado, 5-0, in quarterfinal play and Grand Canyon, 6-2, in semifinal action.

Moss, the championships' No. 2 singles seed, gave Rollins its first championships crown, defeating Florida rival and No. 1 seed Adriana Isaza of North Florida, 6-4, 6-3. Moss earned her final appearance by outlasting Rebecca Huereque of Cal Poly Pomona, 7-6, 6-5, in the semifinals. Isaza advanced by knocking off No. 4 seed Ana Golubovic of Grand Canyon, 6-4, 6-0.

Hirst and Whitwell became the third doubles tandem to win consecutive titles and the first since 1988. They defeated Grand Canyon's duo of Ana Golubovic and Denise Valentin, 6-1, 7-5. After cruising to victory in the opening set, Hirst and Whitwell rallied from an 0-3 deficit to successfully defend their title.

North Florida's Adriana Isaza finished second in the individual singles competition.

UC San Diego cruises to III women's tennis crown

UC San Diego won five of six singles matches and rolled past Williams, 7-2, to win the NCAA Division III Women's Tennis Championships team title May 10-16 at Kalamazoo.

The Tritons, who ended a fouryear title drought in winning the crown, now have won a championships-record four team titles.

Trinity (Texas) defeated Gustavus Adolphus, 5-1, in the third-place match.

In individual competition, Claire Turchi of Pomona-Pitzer won the singles title and Williams' duo of Becky Mallory and Julie GreenSee complete results: Page 10.

wood claimed the doubles crown.

Michele Malephansakul, Hilary Somers, Michele Wilbur and Lisa Monachino each posted two-set singles triumphs to help UC San Diego to its first team title since 1989. Diane Chandler accounted for UC San Diego's other singles victory, overcoming a one-set deficit to defeat Mallory at No. 1 singles.

Pomona-Pitzer's Turchi, the championships' No. 4 singles seed, earned her school's second individual singles title in three years by beating No. 3 seed Nao Kinoshita of Rhodes, 6-2, 6-3. Turchi earned a spot in the final by knocking off two seeded players, including No. 6 seed Kaelie Rivers of St. Olaf in quarterfinal play.

Mallory and Greenwood, the No. 2-seeded doubles team, gave Williams its first championships title, defeating Jackie Aurelia and Billee Lightvoet of Kalamazoo, 6-4, 6-4, in the doubles final. The Williams duo advanced to the final by beating No. 3 seed Turchi and Kristina Lott of Pomona-Pitzer.

Michele Malephansakul (far left) and Diane Chandler were instrumental in helping UC San Diego win its championships-record fourth Division III team title. Both players posted singles victories in team competition, helping the Tritons beat Williams, 7-2. UC San Diego last won the team title in 1989. Trinity (Texas) placed third in the team competition by beating Gustavus Adolphus, 5-1.

Springfield knocks off unbeaten New York Tech to win II lacrosse

Anastas, Smith and Felt lead the way for Chiefs with four goals apiece

Springfield jumped to a 5-1 firstquarter lead and survived a late surge by previously undefeated New York Tech to claim its first NCAA Division II Men's Lacrosse Championship, 15-12, May 14 at Long Island-C. W. Post.

The Chiefs' Bob Felt broke a 1-1 tie with the first of his four goals of the day with 4:48 left in the first quarter. Springfield never trailed after that. At half time, Springfield was ahead, 9-5.

But New York Tech wasn't finished. With the score 11-6 in the third quarter, the Bears scored four consecutive goals — two each from Terrence Vetter and Mike Besio to close to 11-10 with 3:25 left in the

New York Tech closed to within one goal one more time, 13-12, on Besio's fourth goal with 6:39 remaining in the game, but could get no closer.

With four goals and two assists apiece, Mark Anastas and Jared Smith led coach Keith Bugbee's Chiefs, who finished 12-2.

Gerald Mule had four goals and two assists for New York Tech, which dropped to 12-1.

Sean Quirk had 25 saves for Springfield, including eight in the fourth quarter.

Committee studying possible grant-in-aid limits in Divisions I, II requests input from groups financial aid limitations for selected Divisions I and II women's sports.

■ A recommendation by the NCAA Special Committee to Review Financial Conditions in Intercollegiate Athletics that the financial aid committee consider establishing initial grant-in-aid limitations but eliminating overall grant limits for Division I football and basket-

Coordinated study

"The financial aid committee is committed to exploring these concepts fully but believes it is wise to consider all grant limits in a coordinated study," said Charles S.

Harris, director of athletics at Arizona State University and chair of the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, in a recent letter soliciting input.

"The committee," he continued, "is convinced that developing universal principles for determining the number of grants to be awarded in each sport will contribute to more rational and justifiable financial aid maximums for the Association."

The committee has set a deadline of August 15 for responses from groups. Harris emphasized that the study is not connected to other work currently underway in the Association related to membership restructuring, student-athlete welfare, or development of models for need-based financial aid.

The committee is asking that recommendations be restricted to principles that could fit into a framework for all sports, rather than focusing on specific numbers of grants for a given sport.

Example of criteria

As an example of how principles could be formulated, the committee cited criteria proposed by the Gender-Equity Task Force for modifying current limitations on Divisions I and II grants-in-aid for

The task force suggested that, in addition to promoting gender equity, criteria should:

■ Be based on reasonable numbers of athletes needed to both sport.

- Be sensitive to the injury rates reported in a sport.
- Consider common player-personnel strategies and practices currently employed in a sport.
- Consider current maximum financial aid limitations in a sport.
- Discourage "stockpiling" of athletes.
- Be responsive to and reflective of the number of institutions sponsoring a sport.
 - Consider racial equality.
- Be attentive to the number of athletes wishing to participate in the given sport.
 - Allow all athletes, regardless of practice and compete in a given sport, to qualify for the same maximum amount of aid.

> The financial aid committee is asking respondents to react to the Gender-Equity Task Force's concepts and to suggest other principles for consideration. The committee also is seeking input on the question of which sports should use an equivalency methodology, rather than head count, for counting grants-in-aid.

> Responses to these questions can be submitted by letter or facsimile to David A. Knopp, NCAA director of compliance services, at the NCAA national office (fax number 913/339-0033).

> The committee will review responses at its September 12-13 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Basketball coach in II reprimanded

The NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Committee has reprimanded Bruce Pearl, head coach from the University of Southern Indiana, for failure to follow administrative procedures at the 1994 NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Championship. The championship was played March 23-26, 1994, in Springfield, Massachusetts.

Pearl failed to attend the mandatory prechampionship meeting March 21. The NCAA Division II Men's Basketball Committee determined that this behavior constituted misconduct as identified by NCAA bylaws.

The penalty prescribed by the committee is a public reprimand. Pearl did not appeal the decision.

on total support for enforcement by coaches at the American Hockey Coaches Association convention. The committee will emphasize the elimination of all interference from the game.

■ Added to the note after Rule 6-35-c a statement that a referee may stop play along the boards if allowing play to continue will lead to unnecessary contact surrounding the puck.

■ Agreed to allow the Hockey East Association to experiment with a shoot-out for all conference games that end in a tie after regulation play and the five-minute overtime period.

■ Added a crowd-control announcement that should be read before all NCAA contests: "The NCAA Men's Ice Hockey Rules Committee promotes good sportsmanship by student-athletes, coaches and spectators. The committee requests your cooperation by supporting the participants and officials in a positive manner. Profanity, racial or sexist comments, or other intimidating actions directed at officials, studentathletes, coaches or team representatives will not be tolerated and are grounds for removal from the site."

1994 Column No. 20

Summer basketball leagues and state games Player limitations

Divisions I and II institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 30.14-(e), all Divisions I and II players must limit their summer basketball competition to one team in one NCAA sanctioned league. Each team may include on its roster not more than one player with intercollegiate basketball eligibility remaining from any two- or four-year college. Please note that a student-athlete who is listed on the roster of a team and withdraws or is injured and will not continue to practice or compete may be replaced for the remainder of the season by another basketball student-athlete from the same institution. The institution is permitted only one replacement per team. Further, if a student-athlete (two- or four-year college student) is transferring and has been accepted officially for enrollment in a second institution, and the previous institution certifies that the student has withdrawn and does not intend to return to that institution for the next term, the student-athlete is not countable on the summer-league roster as a representative of either institution. Under such circumstances, written permission to participate in the sanctioned summer league must be obtained from the institution to which the student-athlete is transferring. Also, a high-school or two-year college prospect, including one who has signed a National Letter of Intent, is not counted against any institution's limit of one player per team, inasmuch as he or she is not a student-athlete per Bylaw 12.02.6.

Further, because there are no restrictions on the participation of Division III student-athletes in outside basketball competition during the summer per Bylaw 14.8.5.2-(b), there are no limits on the number of student-athletes from any one Division III institution who may participate in an NCAA sanctioned or nonsanctioned summer bas-

Finally, basketball student-athletes from Divisions I, II and III institutions may participate in state or national multisport events sanctioned by the NCAA Council; however, not more than two student-athletes from the same Division I or II institution may participate on the same team. There are no restrictions on the number of studentathletes from a Division III institution who may compete on the same team in state or national multisport basket-

Bylaws 13.12.3 and 14.7.6.1 Exceptions and waivers for state games

As set forth in Bylaw 14.7.6.1-(d), a student-athlete who wishes to participate in officially recognized state and national multisport events must be sure, prior to such participation, that the event in question is sanctioned by the Council. The Council's approval is necessary in order to waive the prohibition against outside competition set forth in Bylaws 14.7.1 (sports other than basketball) and 14.7.2 (basketball), and, where applicable, to permit a coach and a student-athlete from the same institution to participate on the same team. In accordance with the provisions of Bylaw 14.7.6.1-(d), the following state games have received approval from the Council to permit student-athletes with eligibility remaining to participate in all of the event's sports:

- Badger State Games (Wisconsin)
- Bay State Games (Massachusetts)

- Big Sky State Games (Montana)
- Commonwealth Games of Virginia
- Cornhusker State Games (Nebraska)
- First Security Games of Idaho
- Florida Sunshine State Games
- Grand Canyon State Games (Arizona)
- Keystone State Games (Pennsylvania)
- Nutmeg State Games (Connecticut)
- Ohio Games State Games of Ohio
- Prairie Rose State Games (North Dakota)
- Show-Me State Games (Missouri)
- State Games of Oregon
- Utah Summer Games
- White River Park State Games (Indiana)

Further, student-athletes with collegiate eligibility remaining who wish to participate in state-games competition not listed above should contact the institution with which they are affiliated or the applicable state-games organization to request that the organization submit the necessary waiver request to the NCAA legislative services staff. Please note that state-games competition must be sanctioned by the Council annually.

Finally, the use of an institution's facilities for state games and the participation of an institution's department of athletics staff member(s) or representatives of its athletics interests would be permissible in accordance with the provisions of Bylaws 13.12.3.3 and 13.12.3.4.2.

Committee recommends limiting postseason play to NCAA events, certified bowl games mendation was last spring's restructuring of NCAA championships, which has created new opportunities for competition.

Christine A. Plonsky, senior woman administrator at the University of Texas at Austin and a member of the Special Events Committee subcommittee, said the committee's primary concern is, where possible, reducing demands on student-athletes and eliminating events that threaten to place unnecessary strain on them.

"We're trying to evaluate the time demands that we put them through," Plonsky said. "We're trying to say, 'Are these the best things for our student-athletes?' Is it necessary for student-athletes, coaches and programs?

Certification

At its recent meeting, the committee also discussed to what extent institutions will "get credit" for plans they identify for improvement during the self-study process.

At the conclusion of the process, an institution is certified, not certified or certified with conditions. However, the committee noted that it may designate a program as certified even though serious problems have been identified, with the understanding that the institution will need to follow through on its plan. The committee will base this decision upon a number of factors, including the seriousness of the problems, whether the institution discovered the problems, whether the plan to remedy those problems is solid and whether the committee has confidence the institution will follow through on its solution in a timely and effective manner.

"I think what we're dealing with is trying to look at this landscape where our student-athletes are competing. It is not an indictment on any single event. We were asked to evaluate the impact these events have. None of us wants to preclude opportunities."

Ferdinand A. Geiger, newly appointed athletics director at Ohio State University, said he thinks the committee's recommendation is

"In general, I think the committee has moved in the right direction," he said. "Every so often, the checks and balances that are in place need to be looked at. ('Exemption' events) become ways to schedule more games."

The subcommittee also expressed concern about the mounting pressures placed by the exis-

In other actions at its April 27-29 meeting in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, the Special Events Committee:

- Recertified 19 postseason football bowl games and adopted a policy regarding authorization of press credentials for professional scouts at those games (see May 11 issue of The NCAA News).
- Agreed to recommend to the NCAA Council changes in Bylaw 17.3.5 regarding exemptions for basketball contests. The committee recommended that contests against club teams be added to the list of annual exemptions in Division I and that the Tip-

Off Classic be removed from the list. The committee further recommended that teams be permitted a maximum of two home games against foreign, USA Basketball or club teams. It recommended that the once-in-four-years exemption for Division I competition in Alaska, Hawaii or Puerto Rico be changed to once in 12 years, similar to the current exemption for the Great Alaska Shootout.

Other highlights

In other actions at its May 11-12 meeting in San Francisco, the Committee on Athletics Certification:

- Approved fall 1994 peer-review training sites and dates: September 20 in Greensboro, North Carolina; November 10 in Orlando, Florida; December 7 in San Francisco; December 15 in Nashville, Tennessee, and January 6 in San Diego.
- Confirmed that it is appropriate for each institution's chief executive officer to serve on the institution's athletics certification self-study steering committee. The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, which has a formal agreement with the NCAA regarding the athletics component of its accreditation program, does not require CEOs to serve on its self-study committees.
- Noted that no historically black institution is represented on the Committee on Athletics Certification and agreed that this deficiency would be considered when filling future routine vacancies.
- Referred to the committee's executive committee the responsibility for examining the process by which the certification committee will make its certification decisions. The full committee will discuss the matter further at its August 1 meeting.
- Noted that institutions in the 1994-95 certification class will be advised in the next month of dates for orientation visits.
