Consent package contains 11 proposals

Number this year beats all-time low by one

This is the first of six articles on legislation that has been submitted for the 89th annual NCAA Convention January 7-11, 1995, in San Diego. In addition to announcing the mailing of the Official Notice of the Convention, the article reviews the 11 proposals in the consent package. In the next five issues of The NCAA News, the other groupings of amendments will be reviewed in the order in which they appear in the Convention agenda.

Another relatively small consent package heads a total of 159 proposals appearing in the Official Notice of the 1995 Convention, which will be mailed to the membership November 15.

The consent package features only 11 proposals — one more than last year's package, which was the smallest in Convention history. The consent package typically has been small since the NCAA Council received the authority to enact noncontroversial but necessary legislation between Conventions.

Proposals in the consent package are considered noncontroversial or "housekeeping" in nature.

Three of the proposals in this year's package deal with the administration of various forms that institutions are required to submit, and three others would increase the size of sports committees.

Other proposals involve approval of limited outside compensation for athletics personnel, permissible evaluation of prospective student-athletes who have made a commitment to an institution, provisions for exceptions to eligibility and transfer requirements, and clarification of requirements for nonrenewal of institutional financial aid.

The consent package will be disposed of with a single motion and a single vote, unless a delegate asks that a given proposal be removed for a separate vote.

Order of business

Although the consent package is the first grouping of proposals appearing in the Official Notice, it will not be the first legislation considered by the Convention.

Again this year, the Convention first will consider proposals identified by the NCAA Presidents Commission as being of significant interest to chief executive officers. Sessions Monday, January 9 — designated as Presidential Agenda Day — will

Arizona's Hughes selected NCAA Woman of the Year

Tanya Hughes, a four-time NCAA high-jump champion from the University of Arizona, was announced as the 1995 NCAA Woman of the Year November 14 in Washington, D.C.

Hughes was selected from among 10 national finalists who were chosen by the NCAA Special Advisory Committee on Women's Corporate Marketing. The award recognizes excellence in athletics, academics and community leadership.

Hughes earned a 3.435 grade-point average (4.000 scale) in interdisciplinary studies at Arizona. She was a three-time Pacific-10 Conference high-jump champion; a member of 1992 U.S. Olympic Team and 1993 World University Games Team; 1992 NCAA Female Athlete of the Year in track and field; a GTE Academic All-American; and the top-ranked American high jumper in 1991 and 1992.

She also is a member of the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, a spokesperson for Arizona's NCAA CHOICES Alcohol Awareness Program, and a member of the University of Arizona Minority Advisory Committee.

The 10 finalists for NCAA Woman of the Year were announced at the annual meeting of the National Association of Collegiate Women Athletic Administrators September 18 in San Diego.

Study: Athletes disproportionately involved in campus assaults

A recent study concludes that athletes appear to be disproportionately involved in incidents of sexual assault on college campuses.

However, the study — "Male Student-Athletes Reported for Sexual Assault: A Survey of Campus Police Departments and Judicial Affairs Offices" — also questions a myth in popular sports journalism and scholarship that one-third of all sexual assaults on college campuses are committed by athletes.

The research used two data sets, the first of which was from campus police reports at 20 Division I institutions. The researchers — Todd W. Crosset and Mark A. McDonald of the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and Jeffrey R. Benedict of Northeastern University — determined that male student-athletes made up 3.7 percent of the student population at those 20 institutions but were named in 5.2 percent of the sexual assaults (two of 38). However, they concluded that "we cannot state with confidence that collegiate athletes are reported to campus police at a higher rate than noncollegiate athletes."

The second data set was collected from "judicial affairs offices" at 10 institutions. Researchers found that athletes showed up in reports to those judicial affairs offices much more often than nonathlete students.

Of 69 reported assaults at 10 institutions with a male student population of 261,359, 13 involved athletes from men's intercollegiate sports teams. Put another way, athletes at those institutions composed 3.3 percent of the male student body but were involved in 18.8 percent of the sexual-assault complaints.

In both cases, the sample sizes were small, a problem acknowledged throughout the study.

The "judicial affairs offices" data set includes a broader definition of sexual assault (rape, attempted rape, unwanted touching of intimate parts of another person, or the use of threats or intimidation to gain an advantage in nonconsensual contact).

A link also was drawn between sexual assaults and men's basketball and football athletes. "Although the sample size was small," the study said, "the data hinted that sexual assault was not endemic to all sports. Contact sports like football and basketball were over-represented, raising the possibility that athletes trained to use physical domination on the field are more likely to carry these lessons into their relationships."

The study did not address the guilt or inno-

Restructuring

Next round of meetings set for end of November

The three task forces responsible for examining NCAA restructuring each will meet again at the end of November.

The Division I task force will meet November 30 in Chicago, while Division II will gather November 28 in Dallas and Division III November 28-29 in Dallas. Divisions II and III also will conduct a joint meeting the afternoon of November 28.

It will be the second meeting for each group.

The oversight committee of the Special Committee to Review NCAA Membership Structure will meet for the first time December 13 via a telephone conference. It will hear reports from each of the division task forces at that time.

Staff contacts: Tricia Bork and Stephen R. Morgan (I), Stephen A. Mallonee (II) and Daniel T. Dutcher (III).

For more information, see the November 7 issue of The NCAA News.

Graduation rates

Federal guidelines unavailable, so reporting method unchanged

The 1994 Division I Graduation-Rates Disclosure Form (94-6a) will be distributed to Division I members by December 1, while the Divisions II and III Enrollment and Persistence-Rate Disclosure Form will go to Divisions II and III institutions by January 15.

The United States Department of Education has not yet published final guidelines for the Student Right-to-Know Act, so the NCAA will proceed with reporting graduation rates as it has in the past.

tive and senior woman administrator at every member institution. The delegate-appointment form will be sent to each chief executive officer, along with his or her copy of the Official Notice.

Delegates attending the Convention, which will be in San Diego, are requested to pick up their voting units at the Convention site as early as possible and no later than Sunday, January 8.

If voting equipment is picked up early, the Convention staff will be able to test and replace defective units in a more orderly manner. If delegates wait until Monday, time pressures resulting from the division business sessions could cause a problem.

A flat registration fee of $100 per person will be charged at the Convention. The only exception will be for individuals representing commercial enterprises, in which case a $200 fee will be assessed.

The registration fee covers delegate entertainment costs, such as the delegates reception, luncheons and the honors dinner.

Registration fees will be collected at the registration counters at the San Diego Marriott Hotel and Marina. American Express, MasterCard and Visa credit cards will be accepted, along with personal or institutional checks.

The dates of the Convention are January 7-11, 1995.

Television ratings comparison

Television ratings for postseason football games have fallen sharply over the last two decades while ratings for the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Championship game have been generally stable.

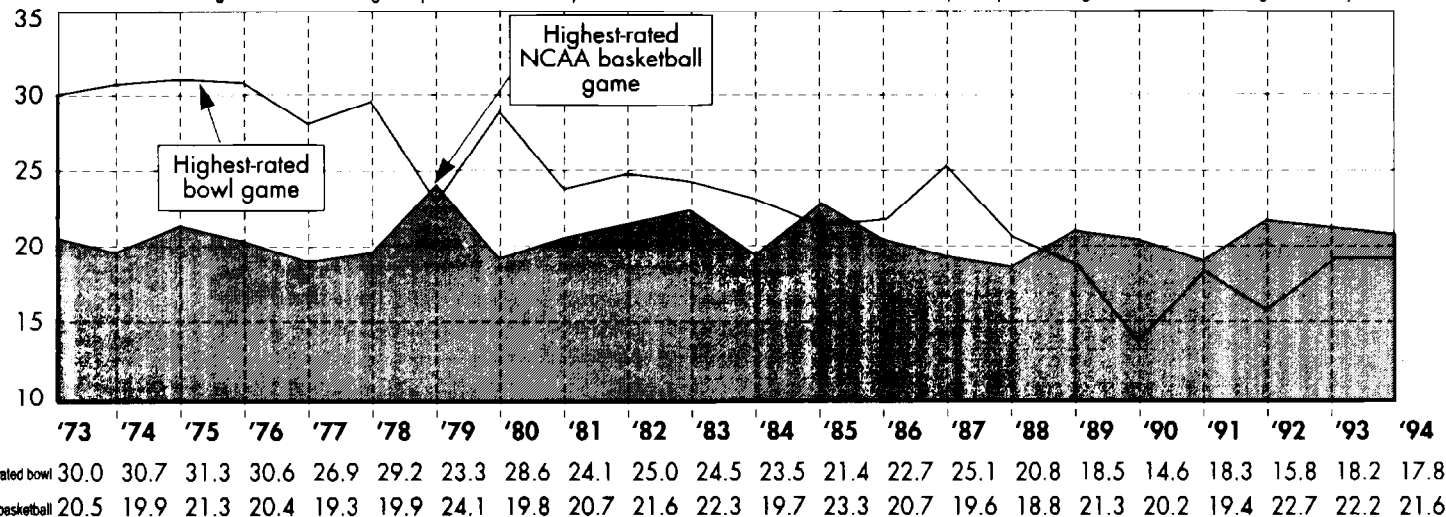

The highest rating ever for a college postseason football game was 31.3 for the 1975 Rose Bowl, when the University of Southern California defeated Ohio State University.

The best rating for a men's basketball championship game was in 1979 when Michigan State University's victory over Indiana State University drew a rating of 24.1.

Over the last two decades, the rating for the basketball championship never has fallen lower than 18.8 (1988), but the top bowl game has gone as low as 14.6 (1990).

Briefly in the News

Wrestler finds dream after all

Andy Salamone realized a dream last December. The quiet, unassuming 126-pound Lock Haven University of Pennsylvania wrestler competed in his first college wrestling match.

There is nothing remarkable or extraordinary about that. But the fact that Salamone is blind makes it a special achievement. Although he did not win the match, Salamone's accomplishment of a seemingly insurmountable quest proved to benefit many people, including the wrestler.

"Andy is a special part of our team," Lock Haven coach Carl Poff said. "But he is just like any other wrestler we have. He must do the running, the wrestling, the training. If the team is moving mats or getting ready for a tournament, then he must help, too."

That kind of just-one-of-the-guys treatment is what Salamone has wanted most out of life. He lost the gift of sight at age 3 when he was stricken with retina blastoma, a rare cancer of the eye. When extensive chemotherapy and radiation treatments failed to contain the cancer, Salamone's eyes were removed.

"Because I lost my sight at such a young age, I never really remembered what it was like to see," he said. "As a kid, I never wanted to be treated any differently than other kids."

Salamone began his wrestling career at Spring-Ford High School in Pennsylvania. He competed mostly at the junior-varsity level, but did get some action in at the varsity level. He was second at the U.S. Association of Blind Athletes' national championships.

"Andy came to visit us as a high-school senior, and I was so impressed with him as a person that I wanted him to be a part of our team," Poff said. "I'm proud to be his coach and honored to be his friend."

Anything but Bland

You can call him "salt." You can call him "pepper." You even can call him "allspice." But just don't call him bland, even though that's his name.

Missouri Southern State College running back Albert Bland has been everything but dull and boring this season. He has been the seasoning that has flavored the Lions' offense this year.

In the first nine games this year, Bland

Missouri Southern State College running back Albert Bland gained some yards, then lost some hair. Bland told his offensive linemen he would shave his head if they helped him gain 1,000 yards this season. When Bland reached the goal October 29, his teammates were more than happy to help him keep this promise.

rushed for 1,284 yards, which placed him second all-time among school single-season rushing leaders. Karl Evans set the school record in 1992 with 1,586 yards. The team's final regular-season game was November 12 against Northwest Missouri State University.

For his efforts this season, Bland's offensive linemen held the junior to a preseason promise that he would shave his cranium if the beefy guys up front helped him reach the 1,000-yard plateau. Bland reached that milestone October 29 when he rushed for a school-record 321 yards in a 38-16 victory over Washburn University of Topeka.

"I told those guys they could do it," Bland said about his public hair cut. "I'm a man of my word. They told me at the beginning of the year this would come. I don't regret it. It was fun. It will grow back."

CPR saves another

Carie Kaniszewski is not certified to perform cardiopulmonary resuscitation, but the techniques she saw over and over on television and in books on CPR were enough to help save a man's life recently.

The Northern Michigan University women's basketball player was on her way to the grocery store with her roommate when she saw a man collapse while pumping gas into his car.

"My roommate said, 'You've got to do something,'" Kaniszewski told Jim Lajoie of the Marquette (Michigan) Mining Journal. "The guy's wife got out of the car and just panicked. I asked, 'Does anyone know CPR?' No one did, so I had someone call 911."

Just the night before, Kaniszewski joked with her boyfriend — who is certified to perform CPR — that he should teach her the basic techniques used to revive someone who has lost consciousness. It came in handy.

"I rolled him over and he was blue," she said about the man, who had suffered a heart attack. "I thought he was dead."

"Another guy helped me and we did (CPR) about three times. The weirdest thing ever was seeing that guy's eyes before he took a breath and then after he took a breath. First there was nothing there, and then, boom, he was there again. It was so weird."

After the experience, Kaniszewski's emotions overcame her.

"After it was over, I just bawled," she said. "His wife came over, hugged me and said thank you. It was unbelievable...almost like a dream."

She said the incident taught her a valuable lesson.

"More than anything, it has to tell you that God works in mysterious ways. You're looking at a person who is clueless when it comes to (CPR). Out of the blue, I ask to learn it. And then, in less than 24 hours, I'm doing it on someone."

Fact file

A comparison of the new legislative calendar — featuring later deadlines for proposals — with the calendar used during the previous four years reveals that there are fewer proposals for the 1995 NCAA Convention (159, including amendments-to-amendments) than were on the agendas for the four previous Conventions. During those four years, the numbers of proposals were 189, 187, 176 and — last year — 197.

Punishing success is not a solution

By Alonzo Freeman
ARKANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY

I recently read a sociology textbook that described Herbert Spencer's "Survival of the Fittest." Spencer believed if you don't meet society's demands or its rules, you're a failure. You will not be a part of the "better" society made by those who do survive or conform and reach the limits that society asks for.

Coming out of high school, I was one of the most highly recruited running backs in the South, and right before my eyes, I saw it mean nothing to anyone. As a football player, my only dream was to play big-time college football, and I committed to a major football school. However, I missed the NCAA ACT test requirement by one point. After listening to all the jokes that were said about me, I became depressed and upset. At one point, my telephone was ringing every second of the day, then two days before the signing date, I was forgotten. Society and the big-time college-football schools left me behind and moved on to the next successful running back.

In "Survival of the Fittest," Spencer suggests that those who survive will continue to make society a better place because they are superior. I believe as long as you're trying, you'll survive and you'll still have a chance to make society better.

After the national signing date, I was very disappointed and embarrassed that I didn't make my required score, but I still went to college at Arkansas State University hoping to reach my dream. Then, after sitting out my first year of football, I realized that football wasn't everything. I learned to put my school work first and football second. True enough, those times became depressing and hard for me because I was so used to being spoiled and happy. At one time, college seemed all work and no fun because society took something away from me: football. But I didn't give up. I just kept on praying and hoping things would get better for me.

In today's society, the dreams of so many student-athletes fall right before their eyes, and it is because they didn't meet the NCAA's eligibility requirement.

At the 1995 Convention, the NCAA is going to vote on whether to give "partial qualifiers" like me an extra year of eligibility. If I were granted another year of eligibility,

Cross country timing a job for the pros

Picture it: A beautiful October day, and your team is participating in a cross country meet in a neighboring state. Everything appears to be moving smoothly when suddenly the situation that all coaches dread occurs.

And what is this monster lurking at most cross country meets? It's the slow tabulation of race results. I assert that the sport of cross country is suffering and meets cannot continue to be run in this fashion.

The answer to (slow tabulation) is professional computerized timing. Why not get rid of the antiquated system of handing out place cards and having coaches tabulate scores? Coaches are at meets to coach. Why not allow them to do that? Hire a private company to do the timing and scoring. These companies are out there looking to assist you, and they are inexpensive.

Granted some may say, "We don't have the money to hire a professional timer." But, can you afford not to? The lack of electronic and computerized professional timing causes a number of problems. First, results are not available immediately after a race, so teams must wait. What a way to discourage teams (especially teams that have to travel a distance) from attending your race next year.

Also, it is not only frustrating but also discouraging to leave a meet with incomplete results. This is happening at more and more meets.

Recently, I had the opportunity to listen to a group of coaches gripe about the slow tabulation of results. It doesn't have to be that way. A professional timer can handle the chute set-up and the start, provide an electronic clock and have all of the results available within 15 minutes of race completion. All that needs to be done then is to hand out copies of the results. What a great achievement — all within a reasonable amount of time!

Cross country is in need of local and national exposure. What better way to promote the sport than by having immediate results so that the coaches or sports information directors of each team can return to their area and notify the local media outlets?

I request that when each coach organizes an invitational meet, he or she should take a moment and evaluate the scoring system. If it needs to be modernized, do so immediately. It's easy and well worth the investment. Team entry fees can be used to pay the costs, if need be.

Let's all strive to make cross country meets efficient and enjoyable.

Robinson: JC players pose no extra risk

John Robinson, football coach
University of Southern California
Los Angeles Times

"I refuse to accept the premise that junior college players pose more of a risk as a group. I don't agree that players from junior colleges are any more of a risk. You take risks with everyone."

"We want to give second chances back to some of the kids who have made mistakes but have shown the commitment and will to change and deserve a second chance. If a junior college player is eligible to transfer out, that means he has completed 48 units' worth of work and graduated with a degree, and that says something about his character."

"The cynical person says that we take some of these risks because they're great athletes and because we want to win. Yes, we want to win, but that's only one part of why we do it."

"You consider where this school is located . . . in a disadvantaged area, and as part of the community we owe it to the kid that hasn't been given a lot of breaks, and allow him to put those past mistakes behind him."

"I do want to win, but all coaches want to say when we see our players after they've graduated or gone on in their lives, 'Hey, my God, I helped do some of that. I made a difference.'"

Moving up to I-A

Comments on whether the University of Connecticut should change its football classification from Division I-AA to I-A:

Bruce M. Stave, chair
Department of history
University of Connecticut
The New York Times

"Athletics is an important part of academic life, but in some cases it puts the emphasis in the wrong place."

"It's nice to be known for your athletics, but it's even more important to be known for your academics. You have to ask whether a kid is coming to UConn because of the excellent education it offers or to go to a basketball game. The real question is balance. If we're going to upgrade the football team, I personally would like some guarantees. For example, for every dollar put into upgrading football, I'd like to see three dollars go toward academic needs. And I'd also like to be assured that academic standards won't be lowered for football players."

report about upgrading football
The New York Times

"Upgrading the football program is a mechanism to get our name before the public on a broader scale. It will give UConn greater national visibility, and it will better enable us to focus on the excellence of our faculty and our academic programs. In the long run, it will help us improve our physical plant and increase our research, among other things. If I and the committee as a whole didn't think it would do these things, we would not have recommended that the football program be upgraded."

Initial-eligibility standards

Editorial
The Seattle Times

"The common lament of coaches and others is that Proposition 16 and its predecessor, Proposition 48, deny poor and minority athletes a college education. It is a lament that isn't backed by facts."

"It is a disservice to aspiring African-American athletes to portray the tougher standards in black-and-white terms. Only 1.2 percent of the 1.2 million African-American undergraduates depend on athletic scholarships, according to the Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics."

"More importantly, the commission reports that there are more African-American student-athletes participating in college sports today than before Proposition 48 went into effect a decade ago. Graduation rates of athletes also have climbed."

"Colleges need to worry less about keeping athletes eligible and more about ensuring them a meaningful education. Proposition 16 does that. Whether in sports or in the classroom, higher standards yield higher performance."

Alternative to pro sports

Tara VanDerveer, women's basketball coach

The Atlanta Journal

"We're at a time right now where professional athletics is seen sometimes as a greedy business really. Here's college athletics and women excited to play. They're young, fresh and like the opportunity. Maybe we're coming up at the right time."

"I thought a lot about that (the potential for a gambling scandal) during my tenure on the committee. "There are First Amendment issues, including freedom of speech and freedom of the press, and also common-sense issues. As soon as you launch into something like this, you run into a gray area bigger than a cumulus cloud, and I don't think there's any way the NCAA is going to be able to pull this off."

Wrestling action no longer emphasizes the pin — arguably the most exciting move in wrestling — contend some coaches who want falls to play a bigger role in matches again.

Pinning their hopes on a fall guy

Wrestling coaches lament a decrease in pins

By Martin T. Benson
THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

Nothing brings a wrestling crowd to its feet like a pin. Trouble is, the fans seem to be doing a lot of sitting lately.

"It's all takedowns and tilts now and the fall has almost disappeared," said John Reese, who has coached at Wilkes College for the last 42 years.

Reese referred to a photo in his office of one of his former student-athletes, Jimmy Weisenfluh, who won the 1976 Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association tournament's outstanding wrestler award. He pinned all four opponents.

"You never see that anymore — you rarely see someone with two pins in that kind of tournament," he said. "It's taken a lot of excitement out of wrestling."

The University of Central Oklahoma's 126-pound Division II champion Brian Melchiori came close last year, pinning three of four opponents — including the other finalist — en route to that tournament's outstanding wrestler award. But he was the exception; no other 1994 NCAA wrestler won his championship bout by fall.

Bruce Baumgartner, fifth-year coach at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania, a two-time Olympic gold medalist and still one of the world's top super heavyweights, would like to see a comeback of the sport's most exciting moment.

"You can win on points but when you're going out to pin, you're reaching the absolute pinnacle and the fan knows that," he said. "It's like a knockout or home run. It's what it's all about."

Many explanations

Everything from rules changes to coaching technique to simple parity and wrestlers meeting each other too many times has been blamed for the drought.

No national statistics are kept for the regular season, so it is difficult to verify an actual decrease in pins. Complete statistics exist for championships competition, but because talent is more even at that level, they paint only a clear picture of postseason.

The NCAA Wrestling Committee, at its 1994 meeting, agreed it is time to encourage more pins and targeted the technical fall as a possible culprit.

Since its implementation in 1984-85, the technical-fall rule has stated that if a 15-point differential occurs, the match is terminated. When that happened, the victor's team got five points (a pin was worth six) in a dual meet and three-quarters point (one point for a pin) in a tournament — not much incentive to go for the fall, which sometimes can result in the offensive wrestler getting pinned.

The new "technical fall" implemented by the Wrestling Committee is called "match termination." The point-value has been reduced to four in a dual meet — the same value as a major decision, which is an eight- to 14-point victory.

In tournaments, a pin earns two bonus points; one will be scored for a major decision or match termination. In other words, the match still ends, but the wrestler gets no extra bonus points. It is a circumstance that encourages the individual to go for the pin and the extra points, and — the committee hopes — creates more excitement.

"(Before the change) it was easier to earn points by taking your opponent down, letting him up and taking him down again, instead of taking the individual down, and attempting to put him on his back," said Robert G. Bubb, current secretary-rules editor and longtime coach at Clarion University of Pennsylvania before retiring two years ago.

AJ Baxter, coach for 17 years at Division III Buena Vista College, said he's excited to see how the match-termination will work, especially in tournaments.

"I think (coaches and wrestlers) will do everything they can to get those extra points," he said.

Better coaching, fewer pins

Division counterpart Don Murray, who has coached at State University College at Brockport for 25 years, isn't so sure. He thinks the low number of pins is simply a byproduct of even talent.

"Wrestlers are more knowledgeable and better-coached, and they just don't get themselves in the position to be pinned as much," he said.

After the match-termination decision was made, Wrestling Committee member and Stanford University coach Chris Horpel was asked to do a study of pinning, using the Division I championships as a model. Beginning in 1970, when the number of weight classifications dropped from 11 to the current 10, Horpel studied both main and consolation brackets and found that pins had indeed decreased, but not as much as some thought.

"I thought the changes in dual-meet scoring, redefining back-point criteria, etc., would have had a bigger impact," he said. "Instead, I found only three rules changes that had any significant impact — the seven-minute match, the tech fall and the 275-pound limit (on heavyweights, a class that previously was unlimited; since 1978-79, heavyweights had to weigh at least 177 pounds)."

The biggest factor was shortening the matches from eight minutes to seven (1981-82), which decreased pins by 19 percent. Implementation of the technical fall (1984-85) reduced pins by 12 percent. The 275-pound limit decreased pinning in the heavyweight class — consistently the class with the most falls — by 40 percent.

Although these changes decreased pinning, Horpel viewed all of them as positive, since they increased action. He also wants more pinning, but contends that the biggest problem is the increase in holds being called illegal or potentially dangerous, since those are the very moves that lead to falls. Horpel contends that many referees err on the side of caution, stopping moves as being potentially dangerous when in reality, they're safe — they just may not look like it.

'Acceptable discomfort'

"Our rules should better reflect what is acceptable discomfort in attempting the pin," he said. "Referees stop many things that they never stopped 25 years ago (and the number of injuries does not appear to have increased significantly)."

Baumgartner concurred, but he doesn't see an easy way out.

"In today's society, there is a larger tendency to sue, so there is more of a tendency for the referee to stop a match when someone appears to be in pain," he said. "Wrestling used to be a tougher sport."

Bubb thinks coaches are part of the problem, but hopes the match-termination change has gotten their attention.

"The top pinner becomes so because he's had a coach that emphasizes it," he said. "I've always felt that the best pinners had an aggressive, gregarious personality also, so it's a combination of coaching and personality. But if it's not taught, you won't have pinners."

Bucky Maughan, who is entering his 31st year as coach at North Dakota State University in Division II, said that even without an added incentive, his peers should concentrate on teaching what Baumgartner called the "ultimate goal."

"If you know how to pin, you're never out of a match," he said.

And neither are the fans.

Fourth year

Student-athletes who succeed academically should be allowed to earn an extra year of eligibility

I would have a better chance to graduate from college. Speaking for all partial qualifiers, I think we need some kind of reward for doing well in our school work, because sitting out that one year is tough. I feel we should be punished, but we should not lose a year of eligibility if we prove we can do our college work.

I truly believe earning back a year of eligibility will not decrease the impact of the NCAA's initial-eligibility legislation because the problem starts in elementary school. That's where some kids get left behind. You have to get kids while they are young and find their interests, goals and dreams. Then you have to explain the requirements and determine the attitude you have to have to reach them. Taking away a year of eligibility doesn't solve the problem.

If the NCAA grants my fifth year back, it would erase the "Prop 48" label that society has given me. I have proven to society that I can do college work, but without that year, I will not graduate.

Put yourself in my situation. The object is to graduate, but it's almost impossible for a "Prop 48" student to do it in four years. I can't pay for my fifth year without financial aid. I already owe the school a substantial amount of money for my first year. I know I'm going to need another year, and earning another year would motivate me athletically and academically. If I don't get an extra year, I go home without a degree or a job.

Spencer believed once you fail, you're down for good. Personally, I think that theory doesn't define anything in life. I'm in college working to get a degree in criminal justice. As for football, I'm still working on that dream, hoping to play in the National Football League some day.

I baseball wants four games not to figure in RPI

The NCAA Division I Baseball Committee will recommend to the NCAA Executive Committee that it allow Division I institutions to schedule four non-Division I baseball opponents that will not be considered in computing teams' ratings percentage index (RPI).

The plan was submitted to the committee by the American Baseball Coaches Association.

The committee, which met November 1-4 in Kansas City, Missouri, cited economics, potential missed class time, a desire to preserve traditional rivalries and the well-being of the college game as reasons to allow the four non-counters.

The RPI is a computer program that assists the committee in determining automatic-qualification and play-in conferences and selecting at-large teams for the championship. The program provides the committee with information about an institution's Division I winning percentage, opponents' success and opponents' strength of schedule.

The formula for the RPI is as follows: 25 percent for a team's won-lost record; 50 percent for its opponents' won-lost record and 25 percent for the records of its opponents' opponents.

The Executive Committee will address a related issue — whether to release RPI data for all sports committees that use the program — during its December 3-5 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri.

Other highlights

In other actions at its November 1-4 meeting in Kansas City, Missouri, the Division I Baseball Committee:

■ Reviewed and approved umpire selections for 1995 regionals and the College World Series as proposed by Jon Bible, national coordinator of umpires, with input from the eight regional umpire evaluators.

■ Approved a recommendation by the umpire evaluators that would require all but "elite" umpires to sit out a year after three consecutive years of regional assignments. The committee added that an umpire might not be assigned a regional due to performance or conduct issues.

■ Declined to accept a proposal from the city of Richmond, Virginia; Virginia Commonwealth University; and the Richmond Metropolitan Sports Backers to conduct a regional in the 1995 NCAA Division I Baseball Championship. The committee noted that it had not experienced difficulty in selecting sites in that region of the country and that it will continue to encourage the use of on-campus sites.

■ Tabled until a future meeting the idea of conducting a "Fan Fest" at the College World Series.

■ Discussed preliminary plans for the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Division I Baseball Championship in 1996.

The Division I Baseball Committee also agreed to conduct a panel discussion regarding the RPI at the 1995 American Baseball Coaches Association convention January 5-8 in Chicago.

Olympic liaison committee meets with USOC leaders

The NCAA Olympic Sports Liaison Committee continued efforts to maintain and improve communication between the Association and the United States Olympic Committee and affiliated national governing bodies (NGBs) during a November 7-8 meeting in Nashville, Tennessee.

The liaison committee, which met before the fourth annual United States Olympic Congress in Nashville, discussed a variety of issues with representatives of the USOC and nine NGBs. Among those who met with the committee was John Krimsky Jr., USOC interim executive director.

Since its inception in 1991, the committee has conducted its annual meeting at the site of the Olympic Congress to promote contact with the USOC and the NGBs.

As one result of this year's meeting, the committee is considering recommending to the NCAA Council several legislative proposals related to applications of the Association's amateurism legislation. The proposals — intended to create greater consistency in specific applications of legislation — possibly will be recommended for sponsorship at the 1996 NCAA Convention.

In addition to meeting with USOC and NGB representatives, the committee discussed various subjects related to the relationship between those organizations and the NCAA:

■ Those organizations' interest in assisting with NCAA integration of emerging women's sports.

■ A recent appearance before the USOC Athletes Advisory Council by NCAA Executive Director Cedric W. Dempsey, who discussed the possibility of Association/USOC cooperation in exploring alternative models for supporting the development of athletes in Olympic sports.

■ The availability of USOC grants

In other actions at its October 7-8 meeting in Nashville, Tennessee, the Olympic Sports Liaison Committee:

■ Reviewed proposed legislation for the 1995 NCAA Convention in San Diego, including Proposal No. 71 (as it appears in the Official Notice of the Convention), which would require use of a standardized form for determining the eligibility of foreign student-athletes. The committee, which originally recommended the proposal to the NCAA Council for sponsorship after a 1½-year study of foreign student-athlete amateurism concerns, reviewed a draft of the form developed by the NCAA staff and made recommendations for revisions. If the legislation is adopted, the committee intends to forward the form to the Council in early 1995.

■ Reviewed 1995 Convention Proposal No. 73, also recommended by the committee. The proposal would permit individuals to receive educational expenses from the United States Olympic Committee, provided that the assistance counts against an institution's sport-by-sport financial aid limitation and against the individual's full grant-in-aid limit.

■ Discussed 1995 Convention Proposal Nos. 104 and 105, which would extend the moratorium on discontinuation of National Collegiate Championships through 1996-97 and retain through 1998-99 women's championships in which institutional sponsorship falls below minimum requirements, respectively.

■ Reviewed a proposed new definition of a professional athletics team, which resulted from the committee's effort to devise a definition that can be applied more easily to foreign as well as domestic student-athletes. The committee reviewed reactions to the new definition from the NCAA Professional Sports Liaison Committee and Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism. After making revisions, the Olympic Sports Liaison Committee plans to forward its definition and related legislative modifications for consideration by the Council as proposed legislation for the 1996 Convention.

for support of NCAA institutions' programs in men's Olympic sports threatened by the loss of sponsorship and in emerging women's sports.

■ The possibility of scheduling the committee's fall meeting during, rather than immediately before or after, the Olympic Congress. The committee believes such scheduling, which requires USOC approval, would improve opportunities to confer with USOC and NGB representatives.

The committee also discussed its improving relations with NGBs — relations forged by the committee listening to the concerns of NGBs and finding ways to accommodate their interests without compromising the Association's principles.

Committee members discussed inviting Dempsey to the committee's fall 1995 meeting in Atlanta to discuss the NCAA's role related to the work of the USOC and NGBs.

Division I-AA Football

Youngstown State bounces back

Event: 1994 Division I-AA Football Championship.

Overview: Things got off to a rocky start for defending champion Youngstown State September 1 when the Penguins tied Stephen F. Austin, 10-10, in the first game for both teams. The graduation of running backs Tamron Smith and Darnell Clark, who combined for 7,409 career yards and 83 touchdowns, and the prospect of a tough schedule that featured two more 1993 Division I-AA playoff teams and two Division I-A foes caused some concern in Youngstown. But two months and eight wins later, the Penguins have regained their familiar top ranking and once again will be a force in the playoffs. Keys to success this season have been a stingy defense that ranks second in total and scoring defense (through November 5) and the steady play of junior quarterback Mark Brungard, who has completed 60 percent of his passes with just five interceptions....The Penguins could be headed for a title-game date with second-ranked Marshall for the fourth consecutive year. If it wins the rest of its games, Marshall is likely to have the home-field advantage throughout the playoffs, and the Herd is 10-1 in playoff home games since 1991. Key returnees from last year's runner-up squad include senior quarterback Todd Donnan, who ranks fourth in the division in passing efficiency (158.8), and junior tailback Chris Parker, who has averaged 114 yards per game....A high-scoring offense (49.4 points per game, ranked first), paced by top-rated quarterback Kendrick Nord (173.5), has put third-ranked Grambling in position to make some noise in the playoffs for the first time....Montana had risen to the top spot in the poll before being upset, 38-14, by Boise State November 5. The Grizzlies once again are led by quarterback Dave Dickenson....Other contenders include Idaho, Boston U., Eastern Kentucky and Troy State.

Field: The 16-team field will be selected November 20. Six conferences have been granted automatic qualification: Big Sky, Gateway Football, Ohio Valley, Southern, Southland and Yankee. The remaining 10 teams will be selected at large.

Dates and sites: First-round (November 26), quarterfinal (December 3) and semifinal (December 10) games will be played on the campuses of competing institutions. The championship game will be December 17 at Marshall.

Television coverage: The championship game will be televised live by CBS at noon (Eastern time) December 17.

Results: Scores and pairings from preliminary rounds will be published in the November 28, December 5 and December 14 issues of The NCAA News. Results from the championship game will appear in the December 21 issue.

Championship notes: This will be the third year in a row that Marshall has hosted the title game. The first game, in 1992, drew a championship-record crowd of 31,304....Last year's title game, a 17-5 Youngstown State victory over Marshall, was the lowest-scoring final in Division I-AA history.

Men's Water Polo

Golden State trio leads the way

Event: National Collegiate Men's Water Polo Championship.

Overview: Stanford, Southern California and California have dominated the top-20 rankings, holding the Nos. 1, 2 and 3 spots among them for the entire season. All three teams were semifinalists in last year's championships, where Stanford edged Southern California in the championship game. This year's championship again could showcase the trio. While Stanford has occupied the No. 1 slot all season, only eight points separated the teams in a recent poll. If that isn't enough to indicate a close championship, consider that Stanford and California split a pair of games this season, Southern California beat California four times, and the Cardinal swept the Trojans in four meetings....If one team has an edge, it may be Stanford, the defending champion. The Cardinal has won 19 of 20 contests, outscoring its opponents by more than 100 goals. Seniors Wolf Wigo and Frank Schneider, junior Jeremy Laster, and sophomore Brian Wallin lead the offensive charge for the Cardinal. Wigo is the team's top offensive threat, with 43 goals through 18 games....Southern California, in search of its first title, managed to win 12 of its first 17 contests, including the four victories over California. Sophomores Hrvoje Cizmic and Marko Zagar are the Trojans' top offensive weapons, registering a combined 73 goals. Uzi Hadar, co-most valuable player at the 1993 championship, has amassed 26 goals, including six two-point goals....California is the only team that has won three consecutive titles — the Bears have accomplished the feat twice — and hopes to add to its championships-record 11 team titles. The Bears' biggest strengths may be team depth and goaltending. Eleven players have scored 11 or more goals. Defensively, the Bears rely on standout goaltender Sean Nolan....Leading the East title hopefuls are Navy and Massachusetts. Bolstered by a strong showing at last year's championship — Massachusetts finished sixth and Navy seventh — the two squads have solidified themselves as top-10 teams....Navy, the highest-ranked East region team at No. 9, is both experienced and deep. Doug Munz is the team's leading scorer, amassing 137 points, including 98

Stanford senior Wolf Wigo (bottom) helped the Cardinal hold off Southern California in last year's championship game. Through 18 games this season, Wigo had a team-leading 43 goals for No. 1-ranked Stanford.

goals....Massachusetts, ranked No. 11, sports a 27-6 mark. Javier Gonzalez and Luis Limardo are the Minutemen's offensive stars, combining for 207 goals and 305 points.

Field: Eight teams will compete in the single-elimination format. Two teams each from the East and West regions will qualify automatically. The remaining teams will be selected at large without geographical restriction.

Dates and site: The championship will be November 25-27 at the Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool in Long Beach, California. Long Beach State and Water Polo, Inc., will serve as cohosts.

Championship results: Results will appear in the November 28 issue of The NCAA News.

Championship notes: No non-California team has advanced to the championship final....The 1994 championship will be the last to feature an eight-team field. Beginning in 1995, the championship will include four teams.

Abdul-Jabbar leads Hall of Fame nominees

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who dominated American basketball in the late 1960s, 1970s and early 1980s, has been nominated for selection to the Basketball Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility.

Abdul-Jabbar, who was known as Lew Alcindor when he led the University of California, Los Angeles, to three NCAA titles, was one of 11 former players or others nominated for selection.

"He was the most amazing player ever," Hall of Fame President Joe O'Brien said of Abdul-Jabbar. "Players usually peak at a certain level...but Kareem was great at every level — high school, college and the pros. He's the NBA all-time scoring leader, but he was also a defensive force and a better passer than many realize."

Franklin Pierce, Trenton State grab women's soccer titles

Ravens shut out Regis (Colorado), 2-0, in II

Franklin Pierce scored two goals in a seven-minute span midway through the first half and blanked Regis (Colorado), 2-0, in the Division II Women's Soccer Championship November 13 at Franklin Pierce.

Raven midfielder Amy Hanlon connected on a cross from freshman forward Nathalie Geeris 19 minutes into the game, and Geeris assisted Petra Lostelius on an insurance goal with 19:05 remaining in the first half.

The title is the first for Franklin Pierce in any sport and ended Barry University's two-year reign. Goalkeeper Jeanette Smith posted the shutout for Franklin Pierce, which finished the season 19-0.

"I'm so proud of everyone associated with this program," said Franklin Pierce head coach Mark Krikorian. "The effort and dedication that our players and coaches applied toward the season showed on the field today."

Franklin Pierce outshot Regis, 11-3, continuing a season-long trend. The Ravens had outshot their opponents, 395-33, coming into the title match, and had outscored the opposition, 112-3.

Geeris, the Ravens' top scorer throughout the season with 24 goals and 23 assists, was named the tournament's most valuable offensive player. Raven sophomore Karolina Divert took home defensive most valuable player honors.

Franklin Pierce advanced to the championship match by ousting Mercyhurst, 2-1. Mercyhurst (13-2) scored first, but Hanlon tied the score at the 15-minute mark of the first half. Geeris scored the game-winner nine minutes later.

Regis (14-8-1), making its first tournament appearance, posted a 3-1 semifinal victory over Quincy (13-4-1). Amy Giltner scored with less than six minutes remaining to give the Rangers the win.

Joining Geeris and Divert on the all-tournament team were Lostelius, Ewa Bergsten and Susanne Bergstrom of Franklin Pierce; Glitner, Dani Campbell, Jen Marguia and Katie Crespo of Regis; Tracy Cross, Claire Scanlon and Becky Miller of Mercyhurst; and Quincy's Jenny Hackett.

"I'm so proud of everyone associated with this program."

Lions successfully defend championship in III

Trenton State became the third school in the nine-year history of the Division III Women's Soccer Championship to successfully defend a title when the Lions downed host UC San Diego, 4-3, November 14.

Junior forward Kerri Shembari's second goal of the game in the third overtime period lifted Trenton State (22-1) to its second championship in only the Lions' fifth year as a varsity program.

The championship was Trenton State's 25th team title in six different sports.

Shembari had scored with just under 10 minutes to play in regulation to knot the score at 3-3. The two teams then battled through two scoreless overtime periods before Shembari took a pass from Tracy Pear and scored past Triton goalkeeper Cari Schwartz in the first sudden-death overtime.

Pear gave the Lions a quick lead by converting a corner kick just two minutes into the game. Trenton State made it 2-0 a minute later when Jennifer Hart cashed Pear's cross for a score.

But UC San Diego (14-1-3) rallied behind Diana Muchowski, who tied the game with under 15 minutes to play in the first half and put the Tritons on top, 3-2, with a goal 18 minutes into the second half.

"This was the best final there's ever been in Division III women's soccer," said UC San Diego head coach Brian McManus, whose Tritons have appeared in seven semifinals.

Trenton State breezed into the championship match with a 6-0 victory over Geneseo State (17-4-3) in the semifinals. Five different Lions scored second-half goals in the rout.

The Tritons won their semifinal match, 2-0, over North Carolina Wesleyan (15-3-3) by scoring both goals in a two-minute span of the first half.

Pear was named the tournament's most valuable offensive player, while Hart was recognized as the defensive most valuable player. Others on the all-tournament team included Jennifer Mazzucco, Lisa Cesaro, Missy Blaney and Kim Faust of Trenton State; Muchowski, Amanda Johnson, Dawn Lee, Carrie Peer and Ele Johnson of UC San Diego; Kim Crawford of Geneseo State; and North Carolina Wesleyan's Trish Parker.

Cortland State retains III field hockey crown with 2-1 win

Red Dragons one of only two teams to repeat as champs

Cortland State joined Trenton State as the only Division III field hockey champion to repeat, downing the previously undefeated Lions, 2-1, November 13, at Messiah.

The Red Dragons' Carol Merchant scored her second goal with 9:46 left in the game to give the eventual champions a 2-1 lead.

Goalkeeper Aimee Jones and the Cortland State defense then turned away a flurry of Lion attempts to gain the victory.

Cortland State, which finished 24-1, advanced to the championship game with a 2-1 penalty-stroke defeat of host Messiah, while Trenton State disposed of Middlebury, 4-1.

Barb Hieb, who had the Lions' only goal in the championship, also scored against Middlebury.

In the third-place game, Mes-siah's Cindy Toms, assisted by Joan Ginder, broke a scoreless tie with Middlebury with 55 seconds left in the first overtime for the win.

Merchant was joined on the all-tournament team by fellow Red Dragons Dani Innerst, Denise Taber and Amie Jones; Trenton State's Hieb, Sharon Ruppe and Robin Selbst; Middlebury's Sarah Martin and Marnie Virden; and Messiah's Joan Ginder.

Merchant, Taber, Selbst and Hieb also made last year's all-tournament squad.

NOT KICKIN' UP A STORM

Recent rules changes continue to produce tough times for kickers

By Richard M. Campbell
NCAA STATISTICS COORDINATOR

The past five years arguably have been the roughest on place-kickers of any period in college football history.

Two major rules changes have gone into effect since 1989 that have made life more difficult for college kickers.

Because kicking had become a larger part of scoring and field-goal accuracy was at an all-time high in the 1980s, college rules makers decided to make kicking more difficult by taking away the two-inch kicking tee in 1989 and then narrowing the goal posts from 23 feet, 4 inches, to 18 feet, 6 inches in 1991.

Of course, the field-goal explosion in the 1970s and early 1980s was fueled by two-platoon football, which evolved from unlimited substitution. In 1978, to curb the kicking explosion, the NCAA Football Rules Committee decided that on all field-goal attempts from outside the 20-yard line, the ball had to be returned to the original line of scrimmage if the kick missed.

One other rule change may have helped the offenses as well as kickers. The movement of the hash marks closer to the center of the field in 1993 has opened up the offenses.

Since those changes, kicking accuracy in Division I-A has not been affected as much as field-goal attempts and kicking as a part of scoring. Here is a chart of the kicking accuracy each of the past five years compared to so far in 1994:

FIELD-GOAL ACCURACY, 1989-94
Year	Under 20	20-29	30-39	40-49	50+	Total
1989*	50-53	497-565	471-655	319-573	52-160	1389-2006 .692
1990	29-42	477-546	454-626	319-625	59-172	1348-2011 .670
1991	31-32	395-519	366-612	254-531	46-137	1092-1831 .596
1992	32-38	464-569	447-673	294-577	51-129	1288-1986 .649
1993*	23-25	490-599	407-617	224-488	38-103	1182-1832 .645
			(FIVE-YEAR AVERAGE)			6299-9666 .652
1994	32-33	399-462	385-570	239-492	36-122	1091-1679 .650

*First year after kicking tee illegal. First year after goal posts width narrowed to 18 feet, 6 inches from 23 feet, 4 inches. #First year after hash marks narrowed to 60 feet from each sideline.

Kicking and scoring

Field-goal points had increased from just 1.02 percent of all points scored in 1959—first year of the 23-4 width—to a record high 15.65 percent in 1984.

During the past five years, field-goal kicking has accounted for about 13 percent of total scoring (both teams, per game).

Both teams combined in 1994 so far are averaging less than two (1.98) field goals made per game, the third time in the past 13 years that has happened. Although scoring per game is near record levels, field goals are becoming less a part of scoring in spite of consistent accuracy.

Field-goal scoring is 12.1 percent of total scoring so far in 1994, compared to 14.1 percent in 1989 and an average of 12.9 percent over the past five years.

Field-goal accuracy has been steady at 65 percent since 1989 and is right at that point in 1994. In 1994, kickers in I-A games have made 65 percent of their attempts. The only exception was 1991, the first year after the narrowing of the goal posts, when the overall percentage dropped to 59.6, the lowest since 1980. The percentage rebounded to 64.9 in 1992 and 64.5 last year.

Here is how field goals compare to total scoring per year since 1989:

FIELD GOALS AS PART OF SCORING (Per Game, Both Teams)
Year	FGs/Game	Points/Game of Scoring	FGs Percent
1989	2.26	48.2	14.1%
1990	2.16	48.8	13.3%

Division I-A place-kickers are making 65 percent of their field-goal attempts so far this season.

1991	1.77	46.2	11.5%
1992	2.08	45.8	13.6%
1993	1.93	48.8	11.9%
(FIVE-YEAR AVG.)	2.04	47.6	12.9%
1994	1.98	49.0	12.1%

Field-goal attempts

Are college kickers attempting fewer field goals since the goal posts were narrowed and the kicking tee eliminated? That may be a more realistic result of the rules changes than accuracy or even scoring.

In the five years since the rules changes, even though field-goal accuracy has remained up, attempts have gone down. In fact, total attempts went from 3.23 per game (both teams) in 1990 to 2.99 in 1993 and 3.05 so far this year. As a comparison, in 1984 the rate of field-goal attempts per-game was 3.43.

Longer field-goal attempts, that is, those 40 yards or farther, went from 1.28 per game in 1990 to 0.96 in 1993 and 1.11 in 1994. In 1984, both teams tried 1.38 longer field goals per game.

That could indicate that coaches are reluctant to attempt as many longer field goals, especially with the yardage given up if missed.

Other trends

Last year was the first after the hash marks on both sides were moved 6 feet, 8 inches closer to the center of the field (college hash marks now are 40 feet apart)—closer to the National Football League's narrower lines (the NFL's hash marks are just 18 feet, 6 inches apart)—reducing the kicking angle on field-goal attempts as the ball advances toward the goal line.

The change by the Football Rules Committee was made partly in response to statistics revealing a gradual, but steady, decline in total offense and touchdowns per game over the previous three seasons. The committee also was concerned that the increasing size and mobility of players over the past decade has made it difficult to use the "short side" of the field when the ball is snapped from the hash mark.

The committee hoped to give the offense more opportunity to use both sides of the field since the spotting of the ball created less of a "wide side" of the field for the offenses, much like the NFL.

In 1993, the first season in which the new hash marks were used, offensive trends increased more than at any other time in NCAA statistical history. So far in 1994 the trends established last year are holding true in almost all offensive categories.

Passing attempts per game (57.2) compares to last year's record 57.4 and pass completions (31.1) is close to 1993's 31.7. The 54.4 completion percentage per game is second all-time to last season's 55.1. Touchdowns scored per game at 6.20 is ahead of 1993's record 6.18, and scoring at 49 points per game also is on a record pace.

Unbeatens dwindle

Only three undefeated, untied teams remain in Division I-A: Alabama, Nebraska and Penn State. Auburn and Texas A&M have only a tie to mar their seasons.

Auburn's second-year head coach Terry Bowden still has yet to lose a game since taking over the Tigers 21 games ago. The 23-23 tie with Georgia November 12 did stop Auburn's quest for back-to-back unbeaten, untied seasons.

Since 1937, only nine teams have accomplished that feat. They were Minnesota in 1940-41, Army in 1944-45, Michigan in 1947-48, Michigan State in 1951-52, Oklahoma in 1954-55 and 1955-56, Penn State in 1968-69, Toledo in 1969-70 and 1970-71. No team has done it since 1971.

Penn State now has the longest I-A winning streak at 14 games. Alabama and Nebraska each have 11-game streaks.

Unbeatens and schedules

Because going undefeated and untied in college football is so difficult, the factors that go into it generate interest. The combination of talented players, good coaching, schedule strength and, of course, luck, all go into the mix.

Only two national champions (or cochampions) have faced the nation's toughest regular-season schedule—Penn State in 1982 and cochampion Colorado in 1990—and neither finished undefeated. In fact, since the NCAA schedule-strength system began in 1977, none of the 31 undefeated, untied (before the bowls) Division I teams had the toughest schedule, and only three faced schedules ranking in the final regular-season top 20.

This year, through the November 12 games, Penn State's nine I-A opponents have a .593 winning percentage vs. other I-A teams when not playing the Nittany Lions (ranked 10th nationally). Other undefeated, untied teams' past opponents are Nebraska's .527 (ranked 35th) and Alabama's .487 (ranked 68th). It is interesting to note that in future opposition charts, Alabama is ranked fifth because it faces Auburn, whose record is 8-0-1 vs. I-A opponents. Texas A&M is ranked 34th (6-3-0) and Penn State is 61st (8-11-1).

Mickens mention

Some note must be made of Butler's I-AA rushing phenom Arnold Mickens, who finished his season November 5 against Alabama-Birmingham. He gained 144 yards vs. the Blazers, a good running day for anyone other than the 6-0, 200-pound Mickens.

In fact, the 144-yard performance broke Mickens' I-AA record-setting string of eight consecutive games in which he rushed for more than 200 yards. That eight-game, 200-plus streak ties the NCAA record set by Simpson's Ricky Gales in 1989.

Mickens, a transfer from Indiana, also turned in the third-best NCAA rushing yardage total with 2,255 yards, trailing only Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders with 2,628 in 1988 and Southern California's Marcus Allen with 2,342 in 1981. His 225.5 yards per game is behind only Sanders' 238.9 in 1988.

He also set an NCAA record for carries in a season with 409, eclipsing the 403 by Allen in 1981.

With his season ended after 10 games, Mickens had the lead in three I-AA individual categories—rushing, scoring (10.8 points per game) and all-purpose running (226.2 yards per game).

Records

Prairie View A&M got into the I-AA records book November 12 with its 45th consecutive loss, a 52-7 battering by Jackson State. That breaks the old mark of 44 consecutive defeats set by Columbia from 1983 through 1988....Pennsylvania tied the I-AA win streak mark of 20 consecutive victories November 12 in 33-0 romp over Harvard. The Quakers tied Holy Cross at 20, set in 1990-92....Coe's Carey Bender moved into second place on the NCAA Division III career rushing list with 6,125 yards after 347 yards in the Kohawks' 63-48 win against Beloit November 12. He trails only Texas A&M-Kingsville's Johnny Bailey, who gained 6,320 yards from 1986-89. His 224.2 rushing yards per-game average in 1994 is third on the all-time NCAA list behind Oklahoma State's Barry Sanders with 238.9 in 1988 and Butler's Mickens with 226.2 this season.

Former track star Rudolph, 54, dies

Wilma Rudolph, the inspirational sprinter whose swift legs conquered polio and carried her to three gold medals at the 1960 Olympic Games, died November 12 of brain cancer.

Rudolph, shackled with leg braces as a child that kept her from walking until age 9, became an international heroine by becoming the first American woman to win three gold medals in track and field at one Olympics.

She battled through polio to become one of the greatest athletes in history. She capped her recovery with a triumphant performance in the 1960 Olympics at Rome.

First, she won the 100-meter gold medal in a wind-aided 11.0 seconds after having tied the world record of 11.3 in the semifinals. Then she won the 200 meters in 24.0.

Finally, she joined Tennessee State University teammates Martha Hudson, Lucinda Williams and Barbara Jones to win the 400-meter relay in 44.5.

She won an NCAA Silver Anniversary Award in 1987, the first woman to be so honored.

1994 Column No. 41

NCAA Bylaw 16.8.1.2 Departure/return restrictions

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 16.8.1.2, an institution may provide actual and necessary travel expenses to a student-athlete to represent the institution in athletics competition, provided the student-athlete is eligible for collegiate competition and provided the student-athlete departs for the competition not earlier than 48 hours prior to the start of the actual competition and remains not more than 36 hours following the conclusion of the actual competition. During its June 16, 1994, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that in a situation where the 48-hour departure limitation is applicable, an institution that is participating in a multicompetition event may depart 48 hours prior to the event's first round of competition (as opposed to 48 hours prior to the institution's first scheduled competition).

Bylaw 14.1.7 Eligibility between terms

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 14.1.7, a student-athlete is eligible for intercollegiate competition that takes place between terms under the following conditions: (1) a student-athlete who is continuing enrollment must have been registered for the required minimum full-time program of studies at the conclusion of the term immediately preceding the date of the competition, or (2) a student-athlete who is initially enrolling at the institution midyear must be accepted for enrollment as a regular full-time student for the regular term immediately following.

Correction 1994-1995 NCAA Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete

NCAA Divisions I and II institutions should note that there is an omission on page 5 of the 1994-1995 Guide for the College-Bound Student-Athlete related to national testing dates for the ACT/SAT examinations. November 5, 1994, should be included as a national testing date.

Sponsored by the Council, as recommended by the Academic Requirements Committee.

No. 6: Permit Division III transfer student-athletes to use the two-year nonparticipation exception to the transfer residence requirement. Sponsored by the Council and the Wisconsin State University and Wisconsin Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Conferences.

cence of those reported to campus police or judicial affairs offices and did not seek to examine whether they are overreported because of factors such as notoriety or socioeconomic status.

The researchers did address a prevalent myth that athletes commit one-third of all sexual assaults on campus.

"This study contributes to a small body of empirical research on an issue that is much discussed, yet rarely studied," the study said. "Popular sports journalism and scholarship alike have attributed one in three sexual assaults committed on college campuses to athletes.

"However, after extensive review of the literature, there does not appear to be any empirical evidence to substantiate this claim, which appears consistently in both academic and sport-journalism publications."
