Dempsey: Embrace the certainty of change

By Jack L. Copeland
MANAGING EDITOR, THE NCAA NEWS

SAN DIEGO—Setting the stage for the coming year's examination of the Association's governing structure, NCAA Executive Director Cedric W. Dempsey opened the 1995 NCAA Convention January 8 with a call for the membership to again rise to the challenge of change.

■ Complete speech: Page 6.

Presenting the executive director's annual "State of the Association" address, Dempsey expressed pride in the NCAA's growing commitment to ethnic and gender diversity and its willingness during the past year to "openly and critically" examine initial-eligibility standards.

But despite those and other recent successes, the Association faces further challenges, he told delegates in San Diego. "Change is not optional," Dempsey said. "It is happening all around us."

He suggested that the NCAA's future

A complete review of the 1995 NCAA Convention will appear in the January 18 issue of The NCAA News. Included in that issue will be a summary of all legislation that was considered.

Also, the text of all legislation that immediately becomes effective will appear in the January 25 issue of the News.

"depends on our willingness to address the changing needs of student-athletes" — a reminder of the theme of this year's Convention — "and our ability to create a more responsible and responsive governing structure."

Presidential control

Focusing on the restructuring effort, Dempsey noted agreement among three division task forces currently studying the issue that the authority of presidents must be enhanced within the NCAA.

"I am convinced that this one issue — that of presidential responsibility for intercollegiate athletics — must be the linchpin of restructuring," he said.

He recalled the Association's decision 12 years ago — in response to calls to increase the role of presidents in governance — to create a mostly advisory panel of chief executive officers, rather than grant presidents authority over policy making.

"As we know, the membership elected to create a Presidents Commission," he said. "For the most part, the Commission has been a success. While it cannot enact legislation unilaterally, Conventions have overwhelmingly passed most of the legislation it has recommended...."

However, it is time to go further, he said.

Division I to implement Prop 16 scale in '96

Partial qualifiers still eligible for three years; aid legislation changes

By Jack L. Copeland
MANAGING EDITOR, THE NCAA NEWS

SAN DIEGO — Division I delegates swept aside impassioned efforts to enact freshman ineligibility and soften the impact of standardized tests on minority student-athletes — and then rejected the NCAA Presidents Commission's attempt to deal with test-score concerns — during debate of initial-eligibility proposals on Presidential Agenda Day at the NCAA Convention.

The delegates, however, adopted other key components of the Commission's proposed revisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 16, including a delay in implementation of the new standards until August 1996 and a provision permitting partial qualifiers to receive athletically related financial aid and to practice (but not compete) as freshmen.

They also rejected — by only 12 votes — another effort to provide partial qualifiers with the opportunity to earn a fourth season of athletics eligibility.

The approximately two-hour debate over initial-eligibility proposals dominated attention in the January 9 sessions of the Convention, which drew a record 2,619 attendees to San Diego. The previous record attendance was 2,447, set last year in San Antonio.

Presidential Agenda Day also featured adoption of most of the proposals of the NCAA Special Committee on Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity.

Proposals prompt lobbying

Voting on initial-eligibility proposals came after several days of intensive lobbying in pre-Convention meetings.

A forum January 8 for chief executive officers revealed that Division I members remained split on the issue of providing a fourth year of eligibility for partial qualifiers. Votes on that issue at previous Conventions have been close.

Advocates of the fourth year said such legislation would provide partial qualifiers with an incentive for academic achievement after college enrollment.

Opponents, however, said the potential of losing a year of eligibility is strong motivation to perform academically in high school. Some also expressed fear that adoption of the fourth year would result in "institutionalized redshirting," or encouragement for student-athletes to use five years to complete four years of eligibility — all the while gaining practice experience and conditioning even when ineligible to compete.

When the measure came to a vote the next day, the fourth year of eligibility was rejected, 164-152 (with seven abstentions). A motion for reconsideration was defeated by a wider margin.

Another measure producing considerable pre-Convention discussion was the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference's proposal to make freshmen ineligible for intercollegiate competition.

Advocates of that proposal — notably Presidents William B. DeLauder of Delaware State University and Frederick

Gavitt named new president of Foundation

The NCAA Foundation has named Dave Gavitt, vice-chairman of the board of the Boston Celtics and former commissioner of the Big East Conference, as its new president. Gavitt will begin the position in June.

"Dave is unusually qualified for this position," noted James Morris, chairman of the NCAA Foundation board and president of the Indianapolis Water Company Resources Corporation. "As a former coach, athletics director and conference commissioner, he has a tremendous background in college sports. His leadership abilities have been proven in college, Olympic and professional sports."

Restructuring

Delegates discuss task force reports

The chairs of each of the three task forces studying NCAA membership restructuring made formal presentations at the general business session of the NCAA Convention January 9.

Although the topic was discussed briefly by delegates in that forum, most of the review of the task force work took place January 10 in the division business sessions. A complete report of those discussions will appear in the January 18 issue of The NCAA News.

Those reporting to the Convention's general business session were Kenneth A. Shaw, Syracuse University, Division I; Adam W. Herbert, University of North Florida, Division II; and Edward G. Coll Jr., Alfred University, Division III.

Initial eligibility

Division I maintains Prop 16 standards

Delegates at the 1995 NCAA Convention voted January 9 to maintain the stricter academic provisions of 1992 Convention Proposal No. 16, but they also agreed to delay the primary impact of the legislation for one year.

The only change effective this year will be an increase from 11 to 13 required core courses.

Beginning August 1, 1996, the following changes will become effective (in addition to the requirement of 13 core courses):

■ An initial-eligibility index establishing grade-point-average and standardized-test-score boundaries for qualifiers. Students with a grade-point average of 2.000 (4.000 scale) in the core courses will have to score at least a 900 on the SAT or 21 on the ACT. For each

The minimum SAT score to remain a full qualifier will be 700 and the lowest a qualifier can score on the ACT will be 17. ■ A provision permitting partial qualifiers to receive institutional financial aid, including athletically related aid.

■ A provision allowing partial qualifiers to practice on campus, but not compete, during the first academic year in residence.

■ A provision permitting a nonqualifier — regardless of whether that student was recruited for athletics — to receive institutional financial aid that is not from an athletics source and is based on financial need.

Revenue

New responsibilities for Budget Subcommittee

The NCAA Administrative Committee, in its January 5 meeting in San Diego, decided to disband the Special Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues and transfer that group's responsibilities to the Budget Subcommittee of the Executive Committee.

The Administrative Committee made the decision after a discussion regarding appointment of new members for the revenue-distribution committee. The committee's membership included individuals who held various positions within the Association's governance structure at the time of their appointment, but no longer hold those positions. The Administrative Committee discussed various options, including appointing to the committee individuals currently holding key Association positions, but decided that the Budget Subcommittee could efficiently handle those duties.

Making history at Convention

Monmouth College (New Jersey) made NCAA history at the 89th Annual Convention.

Before this year, no Division I institution had been represented entirely by more than two female administrators since the Association's membership began holding its annual Convention in 1906.

Monmouth changed all that when it sent four administrators to this year's Convention, which took place January 7-11 in San Diego.

Those attending: President Rebecca Stafford, athletics director Marilyn McNeil, senior associate athletics director Joan Martin and faculty athletics representative Marilyn A. Parker.

He'll take Sports for 100

Basketball isn't the only game for Mike Koehler, a sophomore on the South Dakota State University men's basketball team.

There is also "Jeopardy," the popular game show hosted by Alex Trebec.

After initially applying for Jeopardy's March college championships, Koehler was one of 150 hopefuls randomly selected for two days of testing in Milwaukee.

Trebec wasn't there, but his voice did read prerecorded questions in the Jeopardy format.

"They didn't tell us what score we need," said Koehler, who has a 4.000 grade-point average. "Those of us who did well on the tests played a mock game, which was a secretive process."

"People from Los Angeles were there, and they didn't want to give away any show secrets."

Despite his efforts, Koehler was not one of the 15 people who eventually qualified for the college championships.

"There were some real brainy types there," he said. "It was a good experience. Watching at home, the questions come real quick, but when you are there, the pressure makes it hard to respond."

Koehler said trying to qualify for Jeopardy's adult show, which selects 450 annually, would be easier than trying to become one of only 15 for the college championships. But to do so, he would have to try out in Los Angeles.

"I won't go there specifically for that purpose," Koehler said, "but Jeopardy has not heard the last of me."

Good hands

Dallas Dickerson, a tight end on the North Carolina State University football team, embraces Lindsey, a 4-year-old at the Tammy Lynn Center in Raleigh, North Carolina. The center provides residential, educational and family support services to children and adults with developmental disabilities. Dickerson was one of 10 Wolfpack student-athletes to visit the center.

Like father, like son

Most valuable player awards seem to run in the Stier family.

Mark Stier, a middle linebacker and cocaptain on the 1968 Ohio State University football team, was named the squad's most valuable player after the Buckeyes won Big Ten Conference and Rose Bowl titles that season. Stier and teammates John Brockington, Rex Kern and Jack Tatum, all of whom later played in the NFL, defeated O. J. Simpson and the University of Southern California in the Rose Bowl.

Now Matt Stier is following in his father's footsteps. Matt, who just completed his senior season as an outside linebacker and cocaptain at Wheaton College (Illinois), recently was voted the team's most valuable player. Stier, a four-year starter, set school records with 346 career tackles and 225 solo tackles.

Sports is also a family affair for the Robinson family. Jeremy Robinson, a 6-foot-4 junior from Loveland, Colorado, is the third of three brothers to play on the Chadron State College men's basketball team.

Robinson currently is averaging 22 points and eight rebounds a game. His older brothers, Josh and Jason, scored 2,041 and 1,581 points, respectively, to rank first and fourth on the Chadron State career-scoring chart.

Fighting for a cause

Purdue University's wrestling team will face two tough opponents when it takes on Central Michigan University January 14 in its first home match of the season.

The team has joined in the fight to help 2-year-old Allison Jackson of Lafayette, Indiana, who has been diagnosed with Wilm's Tumor, a childhood kidney cancer. The team is soliciting pledges for each takedown it records during the match. Last season, the Boilermakers recorded 15-30 takedowns per match.

The team has set a $1,000 fund-raising goal to help Jackson, whose disease currently is in remission. She has had her right kidney removed and must undergo radiation and chemotherapy treatments every three months.

"The wrestlers have been very enthusiastic about that match, not only because it's our first home match, but because of the opportunity to help Allison," Purdue assistant coach Scott Hinkel said. "We have always enjoyed getting out and working with the kids in the area. Our guys really like getting involved with the community and trying to make a difference in people's lives."

Fact file

The largest NCAA geographical district in terms of total member institutions is District 2 — including the states of Delaware, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, as well as Puerto Rico. The district includes 220 active members (57 institutions in Division I, 45 in Division II and 118 in Division III). District 3 (the Southeast) has the largest number of Divisions I and II members (80 and 81, respectively).

NACDA forced to change convention site to Las Vegas

The National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics has announced that its convention, which had been scheduled June 11-14 in New Orleans at the Fairmont Hotel, has been forced to move. Las Vegas will be the new site, with the event now beginning June 18.

According to NACDA, the Fairmont Hotel Corporation chose the time of the NACDA convention to remodel its New Orleans property and took 350 rooms from NACDA's block. That resulted in an overflow from the Fairmont that would have required the use of four other hotels in New Orleans to meet NACDA's needs.

A poll then was conducted of other hotel chains to find a property with the proper number of rooms. The best solution NACDA could achieve was to move the convention back one week with a room block of 1,000 at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas. The site selection committee met during the NCAA Convention in San Diego and approved the move.

NACDA officials say the move will result in the same amount of space for exhibits, more room for meetings and a lower rate for guest rooms.

The new dates for the convention and accompanying events are:

- NACDA convention, June 18-21.
- National Association of Collegiate Marketing Administrators, June 17-18.
- National Association of Athletic Development Directors, June 17-18.
- Management Institute, June 22-24.

The NACDA membership will be notified with a first-class mailing sent by January 13 and will receive complete details on the convention and program agenda in mid-March. Individuals with questions may contact Matt Wolfert or Dorothy Sikkila at 216/892-4000.

Students the losers in gambling boom

By Arnie Wexler

With the explosion of legalized gambling in the last few years, we are sending a message to our youth that pulling a slot machine or buying a lottery ticket can make their dreams come true. More advertising dollars are spent on the benefits of "winning big" than on the benefits of getting an education.

They also are led to believe that gambling is acceptable and therefore they see nothing wrong with illegally betting on sporting events on campuses throughout this country.

The statistics coming from the "1-800-GAMBLER HOTLINE" indicate that 12 percent of the calls for help last year came from youth under the age of 21. Most youth who become compulsive gamblers are bright, energetic young people with a great deal of potential. Once the gambling becomes the primary focus with them, it will ultimately destroy their motivation and, in time, it will impact on all the important areas of their lives.

In my role as a counselor, I am at this time working with a young man who was an all-American and played in the National Football League. His gambling started before college and eventually became an addiction. It has cost him his career, his family and, most recently, his freedom as he is now incarcerated.

These are some of the personal stories I have heard from college students:

- Paying someone else to take exams or write papers so as not to interfere with time needed to gamble.
- Betting on games they were playing in.
- Gambling under age in legal gambling establishments.
- Robbing a convenience store and a bank for money with which to gamble.
- Using fake credit cards, bouncing checks and creating phony checking accounts to get money for gambling.
- Selling drugs and their bodies to pay gambling debts.
- Stealing objects and money from other students.
- Selling or pawning property that belonged to the college they were attending.
- Athletes shaving points (in high school and college).
- Running bookmaking rings, football pools or card games in college.

What happened to the spearing rule?

The National Football League and national media are raising concerns about head injuries and the use of the head as a weapon. A few years ago when Dennis Byrd, formerly of the New York Jets, seriously injured his neck, a great deal was made of neck injuries.

Whether we look at concussions and neck injuries separately or jointly, one common denominator binds these conditions: leading with the head to make a hit.

Officials who work the games my teams are involved in grow tired of my insistence that spearing occurs, and they do not call it on either team. (I confront my players immediately when I witness them leading with their heads to make hits.) Finally, this year, an official told me he wasn't going to call it "until they call it in the NFL and the Big Ten. When they start calling it, I will call it," he said.

As I thought about his comments, I concluded that he might be right. I watch at least one NFL game a week and the equivalent of at least one college game, plus the one I work as an athletics trainer, every week. I cannot remember the last time I heard an official announce, "Personal foul, spearing against the defense. 15 yards."

Furthermore, before my games, I am asked to assure that rules concerning uniforms and padding are carried out. As the athletics trainer, I have been asked by officials to assure the following: 1. The sleeves to the players' jerseys are not tied in a knot; 2. The towels are of a specific size and do not have markings on them; 3. That there are not writings or symbols on the tape placed on the players' wrists; 4. All pads and splits are safe and legal; 5. That the players are wearing their tail-bone pads. This year, officials concerned themselves with the "excessive celebration" rule. Players were penalized for celebrating after making a good play or scoring a touchdown.

Yet when it comes to what I regard as the most important rule to prevent injuries, officials do not enforce the calls.

I believe the NCAA should reinforce the spearing rule. I believe that the NCAA needs to ensure stricter enforcement of spearing and incidents where the athlete leads with the head to deliver the initial hit, regardless of whether the player is on offense or defense.

Finally, the NCAA should assure that this is occurring at all levels of competition. If players see it occur in the Big East or Big Ten, they will do it in the Pennsylvania State Athletic Conference as well. If officials in the major conferences do not enforce the rules, it becomes difficult for our officials to enforce the same rules.

□ Opinions

Byers: Amateurism's time is passed

Walter Byers, former NCAA executive director
The Associated Press

"Amateurism is a nostalgic term applied as an economic principle to control the marketplace for colleges. I proposed changes before I left. I argued the point unsuccessfully in the NCAA..."

"I believe the athletes should have the same access to the commercial marketplace that the supervisors and overseers as well as other students have. In light of the hypercommercialization of today's college athletics, dramatic changes are necessary to permit athletes to participate in the enormous proceeds..."

"The people who are profiting most from the present system will be the ones who most strongly oppose any change. It is a disservice to these young people to remain committed to an outmoded code of amateurism for economic controls."

Discussing the benefits that currently are provided for student-athletes:

"That's only elaborate money laundering. As long as the colleges or the NCAA control the money and decide how it should go, it's clean money because the colleges and the NCAA have laundered it. Any money from any other source is dirty money and makes athletes ineligible."

Reaction to Byers' remarks (from the Rocky Mountain News):

Bill Marolt, athletics director
University of Colorado, Boulder

"(In terms of) philosophy and a direction and a new look at what we're doing, what he's saying is pretty interesting. My position on this whole issue is that I think we do need to take better care of our student-athletes."

"We talk about pay and so forth, (but) I'm not sure that's something I'm in agreement with..."

"(In addition to tuition and books, universities) could cover the full cost of education...clothing, entertainment, travel home on vacation. They all would be built into the scholarship, (giving student-athletes) an opportunity to come here and have all their educational expenses paid for."

Tom Jurich, athletics director
Colorado State University

"For an institution of our size (21,600), it would be very difficult. I don't know how we would be able to stay afloat or stay in business. That's about as simple as I can get."

Minority hiring

Pat Forde, columnist
Louisville Courier-Journal

On the University of Louisville hiring Ron Cooper to replace

Howard Schnellenberger as its new football coach:

"(Louisville's) surprising 11th-hour maneuvering to pluck this 33-year-old dynamo from Eastern Michigan has given us an intriguing possibility."

"It gives Louisville the youngest head coach in Division I-A. It gives Louisville a personality that will not be topped in enthusiasm and energy (seems like a good stadium salesman to me, although winning will help more than grinning). And it gives Louisville the public relations boon that goes with being part of the solution, not part of the NCAA's terminal problem of African-American underrepresentation on the sidelines."

"The yahoos already are grumbling about this choice — grouching to the university, to the newspaper, to the call-in shows about hiring a coach with a 9-13 career record simply because he is black."

"'Anything the NAALCP (sic) wants, they get,' one valedictorian drawled on WHAS-AM."

"What this urban university got was a proper fit, considering the strong tradition of athletic support from Louisville's black community. One look yesterday at the beaming face of Lenny Lyles — a former U of L star and member of the selection committee — hinted at what this hire will mean in the West End and other areas."

"And, by the way, if black coaches really are getting preferential treatment, why do they keep ending up in dead-end jobs?"

"The NCAA coaching ranks are at their lily-whitest in programs that have winning traditions. Blacks get hired at Temple (Ron Dickerson) and Oklahoma State (Bob Simmons). Whites get hired at Colorado (Rick Neuheisel) and Oklahoma (You Know Who)."

"In 1992 there were no black head coaches in America's 100-plus Division I-A programs. In 1995 there will be six, but only one will be coaching a program that had a winning record at that level in 1994."

"Ron Cooper."

"Good to see a black coach given a chance to win at a program that has won — at least a little."

Endangered sports

Roy Johnson, men's gymnastics coach
University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Chicago Tribune

"Universities have financial constraints on men's Olympic sports, and not just gymnastics. An athletic director needs to listen to his loudest constituents, basketball and football. The sports taking the hit are men's Olympic sports, gymnastics, wrestling and swimming."

"People aren't losing interest — it's that schools aren't putting money into it."

CELEBRATING ACHIEVEMENT

Honors dinner pays tribute to current and former athletes

By Jack L. Copeland
MANAGING EDITOR, THE NCAA NEWS

SAN DIEGO — It was a night on which a high-jump champion sang and a football lineman-turned-singer/songwriter spoke with gentle eloquence, and a night on which one of this century's greatest athletes looked beyond a full life of spectacular achievement to focus on the simple, sheer joy of competition.

All in all, the 30th annual NCAA honors dinner January 8 in San Diego celebrated a diversity of talents and accomplishments.

Tanya Hughes, a four-time NCAA champion in the high jump for the University of Arizona, expressed in song the gratitude of student-athletes honored this year as the NCAA Today's Top VIII. She used a tune familiar to the Association's membership as the theme for CBS Sports' coverage of the Division I Men's Basketball Championship to thank the membership for providing student-athletes "One Moment in Time."

But 1970 Pennsylvania State University Outland Trophy winner Mike Reid, who 25 years later makes his living as a composer and singer of popular songs, chose to sum up his feelings as one of six Silver Anniversary Award winners with the words of a playwright.

Reid spoke of taking time to reflect on lessons learned from life's "ongoing battle" between ambition and compassion for others.

"Come tomorrow, when I'm on my way home and I'm thinking about what I might do with the next 25 years of my life, I'm going to think about what the great writer Tennessee Williams said near the end of his life," Reid said. "A man asked him, 'Tennessee, do you believe in a life after death?' 'I do,' he replied, 'in the hearts and minds of those who love me.'"

Following the example set by Hughes and Reid, two-time Olympic decathlon gold medalist and Theodore Roosevelt Award recipient Robert B. Mathias drew from memories of one-on-one competition — rather than better-known experiences as an advocate for amateur athletics and as a congressman and actor.

"The plays you always remember are the tough ones, where you've really got to do it by yourself — sort of one on one," said Mathias, who also played football at Stanford University.

He recalled a race against world-class hurdler Jack Davis of the University of Southern California — a low-hurdles race that Mathias looked forward to for months.

"We started off," he said. "Jack was in the lane right next to me. I just took off — I was so excited and so hyped up — and after eight hurdles I was ahead; I didn't see Jack."

"About a step out after the eighth hurdle, out of the corner of my eye, I saw Jack. About that time, he hollered at me: 'Bob!' For just a brief moment, I looked over at Jack and he looked over at me, and he just said, 'Let's go.'"

Davis won, but Mathias has never forgotten the race.

"When all you go back home to your different positions...I hope that sometime during this year, on some occasion, you'll look at somebody who needs a little extra push — maybe somebody that needs to be helped over the last couple of hurdles — and say, 'Let's go.'"

Serving as master of ceremonies for the honors dinner was Harry Smith, coanchor of "CBS This Morning" and a former football player at Central College (Iowa).

Joining Hughes as Today's Top VIII were volleyball player Amy N. Albers of Washington University (Missouri); heptathlete Kelly

Blair of the University of Oregon; football players Derrick Brooks of Florida State University, Christopher Hatcher of Valdosta State University and Rob Zatechka of the University of Nebraska, Lincoln; and swimmers Lisa Anne Flood of Villanova University and Lea Loveless of Stanford University.

Silver Anniversary Award recipients, in addition to Reid, were teacher Lesley L. Bush, a diver at Indiana University, Bloomington; politician Larry EchoHawk, a football player at Brigham Young University; professional basketball coach Bob Lanier, a player at St. Bonaventure University; pediatrician Kwaku Ohene-Frempong, a track and field and soccer player at Yale University; and businessman Mike Phipps, a football player at Purdue University.

Administrative Committee minutes

Conference No. 26 December 28, 1994

1. Acting for the NCAA Council, the Administrative Committee:

Appointed Dan Fitzgerald, director of athletics and men's basketball coach at Gonzaga University, to the Men's Basketball Rules Committee, replacing Roland V. Massimino, no longer at an NCAA member institution.

2. Acting for the Executive Committee, the Administrative Committee:

a. Discussed the composition of the Special Committee to Review Recommendations Regarding Distribution of Revenues, noting that members of that committee served largely by virtue of the positions they held within the Association's governance structure at the time the committee was appointed; and agreed to appoint a new committee at the Administrative Committee's January 5 meeting.

b. Approved a recommendation from the chair of the Presidents' Commission's Subcommittee on Minority Issues that the NCAA fellows program, which was approved in concept by the Executive Committee at its December 4-5 meeting, be structured differently than originally proposed; noted that the revised format would provide for the NCAA to conduct from two to four seminars annually to which member institutions would be invited to send minority administrators (as opposed to administrators experiencing a year-long fellowship away from their own campus); and directed the staff to advise the Executive Committee of this change.

c. Designated Ohio State University as the host institution for the 1997 National Collegiate Men's Volleyball Championship, May 2-3.

3. Report of actions taken by the executive director per Constitution 4.3.2.

a. Acting for the Council:

(1) Granted a request by Clemson University to replace a football coach on a temporary basis per NCAA Bylaw 11.7.1.1.1.2.

(2) Granted blanket waivers per Bylaw 14.7.6 to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in qualifying tryouts for competition with the U.S. national ice hockey team in the following events: IIHF World Junior Championships, Women's National Team, USA National Men's Select Team, IIHF Pacific Women's Championship and the IIHF World Championships.

(3) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.7.6.1 (a) to permit student-athletes from an institution to participate in qualifying tryouts for competition in the Pan American Games.

(4) Granted waivers per Bylaw 14.7.6.1 (c) to permit student-athletes from various institutions to participate in competition involving national teams in basketball, cross country, fencing, field hockey, ice hockey, lacrosse, rifle, soccer, softball, swimming, track and field, and volleyball.

(5) Granted waivers per Bylaw 16.13.1 to permit institutions to provide incidental expenses in these situations:

(a) To student-athletes to attend funerals of members of the student-athletes' families.

(b) To student-athletes to attend funerals of members of teammates' families.

(c) To student-athletes to return to their homes to visit members of their families who were seriously ill or seriously injured.

(d) To family members of student-athletes who were undergoing major surgery.

(e) To provide flowers to families of those injured in serious accidents.

(f) To student-athletes to attend awards dinners where they will be honored.

(g) To a student-athlete who had suffered a career-ending injury to attend a football bowl game as a former member of the team.

(6) Approved expenses for a one-day meeting of the Council Subcommittee on Initial Eligibility waivers.

b. Acting for the Executive Committee: (1) Approved an honorarium per Bylaw 31.4.4.1 for Old Dominion Athletic Conference, which served as host conference for the 1994 Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl.

(2) Approved a request from the Division III Football Committee that the city of Salem, Virginia, continue to host the Division III Football Championship through 1997.

■ State of the Association address

The text of the State of the Association address presented at the opening business session of the 1995 NCAA Convention by NCAA Executive Director Cedric W. Dempsey:

President Crowley, Secretary-Treasurer Gautt, delegates of the 1995 Convention, colleagues and friends. Welcome to the 89th annual Convention of the NCAA.

As executive director of the Association, I have the privilege of delivering my second State of the Association address.

Before I begin my formal remarks — which the Chronicle of Higher Education informs me are eagerly awaited — I want to recognize two individuals who have been instrumental in assuring that the state of the Association is sound.

Prentice Gautt will soon complete one of the shortest yet most action-packed tenures of any secretary-treasurer of the Association. Throughout his career in athletics — as a student-athlete, a professional athlete and as an administrator — Prentice has set a high standard for commitment and sound judgment. His work as secretary-treasurer has been no exception. Prentice, I want you to know how much we appreciate what you have done in the past 12 months. On behalf of the Association, thank you for your service to intercollegiate athletics.

We also say good-bye to our president at the end of this Convention. It is hard for me to imagine a time when Joe Crowley was not president of the Association. In reviewing his tenure, I'm reminded of the Chinese curse, "May you live in interesting times." The last two years have certainly been interesting. Joe led us through one of our most difficult and challenging periods. He did so with equal doses of warmth, wit and wisdom. It is often said that Joe doesn't have an ego. I have to shatter that myth. Joe Crowley does have an ego. An ego that is so strong it doesn't have to win every time, it can see both sides of an argument and it doesn't need a press release to know it's the right thing to do. Joe would be the first to remind us that no one is irreplaceable and that we will continue in his absence. That is certainly true. But Joe, no leader of this Association — past, present or future — will have earned more love and respect than you have in this room. Thank you for your friendship, your example and your service to the NCAA.

For all of the challenges faced by Prentice and Joe during the past year, there is ample evidence of the Association's success. The positive impact of reform is reflected in the graduation rates of student-athletes. The certification program in Division I — a central feature of the reform movement — is well under way. The ability of member institutions to provide athletics opportunities was enhanced by record distributions of Association revenue.

Last year, over 23,000 student-athletes competed in NCAA championships. Over 290,000 student-athletes, including over 100,000 female student-athletes, participated in intercollegiate competition — all record numbers. Attendance records at regular-season games and our 79 championships continue to be shattered.

The popularity of intercollegiate sports — in particular, the national championships of the NCAA — is reflected in the new television agreements reached with CBS and ESPN. These agreements will provide needed revenues to member institutions and welcome exposure for some of our most exciting contests.

The strength of the Association is evidenced by more than the success of our championships. It is also demonstrated by the manner in which we are addressing some of the critical issues of the day.

One year ago, we were challenged to examine our commitment to ethnic and gender diversity. Our approach to that examination was difficult and controversial, including as it did a mediation process involving the Federal government. We approached the mediation process with some misgivings. The results, however, were positive. Lines of communication that had been closed for too long were opened.

We know the struggle to assure fairness and equity in intercollegiate athletics is far from over. Men and women of good faith are still learning to trust one another — but we are learning. We may disagree, but we are closer to the day when even our most vigorous debates are about ideas rather than motives.

Our review of initial-eligibility standards is also evidence of the Association's strength. This too has been a difficult process, but it is one of which we should be proud.

Some have criticized the Association's review of the Proposal 16 standards, suggesting that it indicates a weakening of our commitment to reform. This concern is genuine and well-intentioned, but it is wrong. When Proposal 16 was adopted in 1992, the membership also agreed to continue to review these standards so that any appropriate changes could be made before the standards went into effect. Our willingness to openly and critically examine these issues is a sign of strength, not weakness.

We are engaged in an honest attempt to balance twin goals of improving access to educational opportunity and eliminating the exploitation of student-athletes. The goals are not at issue. The difficult question is how best to achieve them. On this question, there is reasonable disagreement. The debate has been marked by strong arguments and a healthy, if not heated, exchange of ideas. In short, it is remarkably similar to the academy's approach to any other important question — an approach that has worked well for higher edu-

NCAA Executive Director Cedric W. Dempsey said the membership's future success will depend on its ability to accept the challenges that change offers.

No matter what the result of tomorrow's voting, the foundation of reform laid by the presidents will be as firm as ever, and the Association will be stronger for our approach to the critical issue of academic integrity.

Despite its many strengths, the Association is at a critical juncture in its history. Critical because, despite our success, we must change. Change is not optional. It is happening all around us.

Our future depends on our willingness to address the changing needs of student-athletes and our ability to create a more responsible and responsive governing structure.

The first challenge, to meet the changing needs of student-athletes, is reflected in the theme of this Convention — student-athlete welfare, access and equity. This theme should guide us every day of every year, not just at our Convention. This year, the theme has not only influenced the legislative process, it has resulted in important changes in our national office and on our individual campuses.

Last January, the national office staff was reorganized. We formed a new staff group, education services, to better coordinate a number of Association programs serving student-athletes. These include sports sciences, research, professional development, diversity enhancement, youth programs and the Life-Skills Program. The new group will assist and complement the work of conference and campus offices.

An example of this partnership is the development of the Life-Skills Program, funded by the NCAA Foundation and promoted by the Division I-A athletics directors. There are now 46 institutions using the life-skills materials on their campuses. Another group of 50 will participate in the next training sessions and implement the program this fall.

Campus and conference initiatives to assist student-athletes will also be enhanced by the actions of this Convention.

I want to congratulate President Don Behrend and the Special Committee to Review Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity for their work over the past year and a half. The committee developed six principles of student-athlete welfare to be incorporated into the NCAA constitution. I encourage the adoption of these principles. More importantly, when you return to your campus and conference offices, I urge you to evaluate your programs with these principles in mind.

Additionally, I encourage you to adopt Proposal 13, to require each institution to establish a student-athlete advisory committee. I hope more conferences establish student-athlete boards. Campus and conference bodies can serve as a vital link to the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee.

This past year, student-athletes played key roles on the Special Committee to Review Initial-Eligibility Standards and on the Special Committee to Study a Division I-A Football Championship. We must continue to assure that student-athletes participate in the Association's decision-making process.

Several Convention proposals address the financial needs of the student-athlete. Whether these particular proposals are adopted or not, we must continue to examine this issue. Despite the serious financial constraints facing our member institutions, intercollegiate athletics does generate large amounts of revenue — at the institutional, conference and Association level. While I strongly disagree with those who advocate paying student-athletes to play, I do believe we need a fresh review of our rules governing appropriate benefits.

Student-athletes are changing. Their academic, financial and social needs are changing. The very definition of a student-athlete is being debated. We must lead this debate, not just observe it. And we can't lead if we are afraid to change.

Over the course of its history, the Association has responded to new challenges and changed circumstances. We are engaged in that process once again.

During the past four months, division task forces and an oversight committee have been evaluating our governing structure. I'm encouraged by how quickly the task forces reached consensus on key issues. Their preliminary recommendations will be discussed in the business sessions tomorrow and, I am sure, in more casual settings over the next few days.

The three task forces have all agreed we need to enhance the authority of the presidents within the NCAA. While any restructuring plan will raise many issues, I am convinced that this one issue — that of presidential responsibility for intercollegiate athletics — must be the linchpin of restructuring.

In reviewing the history of the Presidents Commission, I recently reread an article written in 1983 by then President Derek Bok of Harvard. Bok stated that for the NCAA to function harmoniously and effectively, chief executives must find a way of working within the organization and not go on indefinitely as an outside group.

At that time, two proposals emerged to increase the role of presidents in the NCAA governing structure. The American Council on Education (ACE) proposed a board of presidents that would have authority over important policy issues affecting the academic standards, financial integrity or reputation of the member institutions. Under this proposal, known as Proposal 35, the board could propose new bylaws or suspend existing rules. Such actions would stand unless overruled by two-thirds vote of the NCAA Convention.

The NCAA Council developed Proposal 36, creating a Presidents Commission. It differed significantly from the ACE proposal in that the Commission did not have independent legislative authority. It could call for studies and propose rules changes, but for the most part it was advisory.

As we know, the membership elected to create a Presidents Commission. For the most part, the Commission has been a success. While it cannot enact legislation unilaterally, Conventions have overwhelmingly passed most of the legislation it has recommended. The Commission has exercised great influence over the actions of the Council and other deliberative bodies of the Association. The Commission officers, serving with the Association officers as the Joint Policy Board, are involved in the most important affairs of the Association.

Because of the Presidents Commission, CEOs are no longer "outside the organization." As it has evolved, the Commission has become a stronger and more influential voice in the Association. It is now time to complete the evolution.

The Council and the Commission have worked very well together. But in sharing authority, they have obscured responsibility. To clarify and strengthen the role of presidents — within divisions and in the oversight of the entire Association — the structure of the Association must vest unequivocal responsibility for intercollegiate athletics in presidents, elected by and responsible to their peers.

We must also have a governing structure that is responsive — able to act in a more timely manner. The responsible presidential bodies must be empowered to administer and change the rules of the Association. Such changes should be subject to repeal by the membership, but only by a super-majority. This would fundamentally change the nature and powers of our Convention — but it is a change whose time has now come.

The restructuring effort is not just about governance but about values. Although the task forces recommend near total autonomy among divisions, they believe that certain core values are common to all divisions. Affirming those core values

Student-athlete welfare principles overwhelmingly adopted

By Jack L. Copeland
MANAGING EDITOR, THE NCAA NEWS

SAN DIEGO — The Association adopted six principles related to student-athlete welfare and approved most of the other proposals recommended by the NCAA Special Committee on Student-Athlete Welfare, Access and Equity at the NCAA Convention.

Acting during Presidential Agenda Day January 9, delegates approved incorporation of those principles — dealing with the overall educational experience; cultural diversity and gender equity; health and safety; the student-athlete/coach relationship; fairness, openness and honesty; and student-athlete involvement in matters that affect their lives — into the NCAA constitution. The principles were adopted, 796-4, with two abstentions.

Other proposals of the special committee adopted by the membership:

■ An amendment of the constitution requiring each institution to establish a campus student-athlete advisory committee.

■ Legislation permitting Division I institutions to provide on-campus expenses such as meals and lodging for student-athletes to attend institutional orientation sessions conducted for all students. (Divisions II and III, however, opted not to provide such expenses.)

■ A provision excluding Pell Grants from inclusion as part of an athletics grant-in-aid in Divisions I and II. Delegates also established the cost of attendance as the cap on the amount of financial aid that Pell Grant recipients may receive.

■ Legislation permitting institutions to pay for local-transportation expenses in various instances.

■ A proposal to permit institutional staff members to provide reasonable, occasional local transportation to student-athletes.

■ A provision permitting coaches to be involved at student-athletes' request in two hours of skill instruction weekly — involving no more than three student-athletes in the same activity — outside the playing season in Division I sports other than football. (The proposal was defeated, however, in Division II, as were similar proposals for Divisions I and II football.)

■ A measure adding student-athletes in an advisory capacity to five key NCAA committees.

■ A resolution to conduct a study of student-athlete welfare, access and equity.

Another special committee proposal to permit student-athletes participating in the sports of Division I football, basketball and ice hockey to use the one-time transfer exception encountered opposition from the NCAA Council and elsewhere. Division I delegates agreed to refer the proposal to the NCAA Student-Athlete Advisory Committee for further study.

Several other proposals dealing with student-athlete welfare also were on the presidents' agenda January 9.

Most notable was a proposal that would have permitted Division I athletes to earn up to $1,500 beyond a full grant-in-aid in an on- or off-campus job during the academic year. The Council proposal — based on a recommendation by the NCAA Minority Opportunities and Interests Committee — was defeated by schools that feared the measure would impose an obligation to monitor the legitimacy of jobs provided to athletes and create conflicts with Federal financial aid policies.

The membership adopted resolutions related to ensuring the establishment of student-athlete grievance procedures and enhancing professional development of coaches.

Standards

Division I agrees to delay implementation of Prop 16 initial-eligibility index until 1996

S. Humphries of Florida A&M University—promoted freshman ineligibility as the most equitable alternative to the use of standardized-test scores as a component of initial-eligibility standards.

In the end, however, an overwhelming majority of delegates agreed with opponents' assertions that freshman ineligibility would be — as Wake Forest University Chancellor Thomas K. Hearn Jr. said — a "budget-buster" at odds with recent Association actions to cut costs. The measure was defeated, 311-17.

Earlier proposal adopted

Pre-Convention discussions also produced evidence of concern by a significant number of chief executive officers that the Presidents Commission's proposed revisions of "Prop 16" might "water down or weaken" academic standards.

Still, few openly predicted that Division I members would reject the Commission's proposal to define a partial qualifier as a student who does not meet the requirements for a qualifier but presents at least a 2.500 grade-point average in 13 core courses and a minimum ACT or SAT score as required for admission by the student's institution.

Delegates did just that, defeating the proposal, 168-155 (with six abstentions). They opted instead for a provision originally proposed last summer by the Commission but abandoned when that group was persuaded that greater opportunity for educational access could be provided for minority student-athletes without compromising principles.

Under that provision — adopted 255-72 with three abstentions — the Association will define a partial qualifier beginning in August 1996 as a student who does not meet the requirements for a qualifier but posts a core-course GPA and corresponding standardized-test score that falls within an index based on a core GPA of 2.750 (4.000 scale) and scores of 600 SAT/15 ACT.

New standards

As the smoke clears from the battle over initial eligibility, the Association is set to enact the following standards:

■ An increase from 11 to 13 required core courses, effective in August 1995 (the only new provision that will go into effect this year).

■ An initial-eligibility index establishing grade-point-average and standardized-test-score boundaries for qualifiers, effective in August 1996. Students with a grade-point average of 2.000 in the core courses will have to score at least a 900 on the SAT or 21 on the ACT. For each 110-point drop in the SAT score, a corresponding increase of .025 in the student's GPA will be required. The minimum SAT score to remain at full qualifier will be 700 and the lowest a qualifier can score on the ACT will be 17. (Administration of the initial-eligibility index remains subject to modification that may be necessary as the result of the planned "recentering" of SAT scores.)

■ A new definition of a partial qualifier, as determined by the index adopted January 9. That index becomes effective in August 1996.

■ A provision permitting partial qualifiers to receive institutional financial aid, including athletically related aid, effective in August 1996.

■ A provision allowing partial qualifiers to practice on campus, but not compete, during the first academic year in residence. That provision becomes effective in August 1996.

■ A provision permitting a non-qualifier — regardless of whether that student was recruited for athletics — to receive institutional financial aid that is not from an athletics source and is based on financial need. That provision will be effective in August 1996 and will replace the current restriction on providing institutional financial aid to a recruited student-athlete during the first academic year in residence.

Dempsey speech

will be an essential element of our restructuring effort.

Jerry Porras, who is in our audience today and faculty athletics representative at Stanford University, recently coauthored with James Collins a book, "Built to Last, Successful Habits of Visionary Companies." The authors argue that "a visionary company almost religiously preserves its core ideology—changing it seldom, if ever. Core values in a visionary company form a rock-solid foundation and do not drift with the trends and fashions of the day....Yet, while keeping their core ideologies tightly fixed, visionary companies display a powerful drive for progress that enables them to change and adapt without compromising their cherished core ideals."

The authors found that firmly established core values are not inconsistent with the need to change. In fact, for the most successful organizations, such values encourage and guide change.

The best expression of our core values can be found in the NCAA constitution. It states: "The competitive athletics programs of member institutions are designed to be a vital part of the educational system. A basic purpose of this Association is to maintain intercollegiate athletics as an integral part of the educational program and the athlete as an integral part of the student body and, by so doing, retain a clear line of demarcation between intercollegiate athletics and professional sports."

These words are the foundation upon which the Association was established — and upon which we must continue to build. They express an ideal that can be realized at the smallest Division III institution to the largest Division I program. They have guided the decade of reform and now they must guide us into a new century — one in which it is clear that responsibility for intercollegiate athletics is exercised by presidents, for student-athletes.

Our challenge is as difficult and as simple as that, and it is one that I am confident that we can meet.

Thank you.

Pacific-10 showdown

The outcome of the NCAA Division I Women's Volleyball Championship was a close one for Pacific-10 Conference rivals Kim Krull (left) of the University of California, Los Angeles, and Kim Coleman (right) of Stanford University. In the end, Coleman had reason to celebrate, as Stanford edged the Bruins, 15-10, 5-15, 16-14, 15-13, to win its second crown in the last three years.

Positions Available

Athletics Director

Colorado Christian University invites applications for the position of Director of Athletics. The director provides leadership for an NCAA II intercollegiate program in the Colorado Athletic Conference. We are seeking an individual who can continue the success of the athletic program in all areas: academic achievement, achievement in competition and community service, and continued fund-raising. The position reports to the vice-president for student development. The successful candidate will be committed to Christian higher education as well as being a dynamic leader with excellent interpersonal communication skills. The candidate will have at least five years experience in athletic administration as well as having experience with the rules and regulations of the NCAA at the Division II level. In addition, the candidate will be a proven fund-raiser and have the ability to develop a strong relationship with the public and all media outlets. A master's degree is required. Salary will be commensurate with experience. Application deadline is February 15, 1995. Please submit resume and application letter to: Kevin Landers, Colorado Christian University, 180 South Garrison Street, Lakewood, CO 80226. Director of Athletics. The Colorado School of Mines invites applications and nominations for the position of director of athletics. This position has oversight of all aspects of intercollegiate and intramural sports as well as serving as head of the department of physical education and athletics. Responsibilities include but are not restricted to: supervision of seven full-time and several part-time coaches; management of the departmental budget; assisting coaches in recruiting of top quality student-athletes; help coaches in awarding scholarships, fund-raising, and NCAA rules compliance. C.S.M. is an engineering and applied science-based institution that maintains high academic standards and at the same time recruits and encourages highly qualified athletes to compete in intercollegiate sports. The school participates in nine men's and eight women's intercollegiate sports at the NCAA Division II level and is a member of the Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference. The school has an enrollment of approximately 2,300 undergraduate and 750 graduate students of which about 25 percent participate in either intercollegiate or intramural athletics. Four semesters of physical education courses are required of all undergraduates and are taught by the full time staff. Minimum applicant requirements include a bachelor's degree from an accredited institution as well as at least three years experience in intercollegiate athletics administration. The successful candidate should have a demonstrated involvement with students, experience with the management of fiscal, human and physical plant resources, knowledge of NCAA rules and gender equity, and a thoroughly developed plan for successful recruiting. S/he should display a zest and determination for developing a premier athletic program and exhibit other leadership qualities, demonstrate an ability to develop a rapport with faculty, alumni and the media, as well as possess high academic and ethical standards. S/he should have an appreciation for the small technical college environment and be able to promote the importance of competitive athletics at such an institution. Coaching experience is preferred. Interested parties should send a letter of application, resume, and names and addresses of three references to: Colorado School of Mines, Director of Athletics Search #95-666, 1500 Illinois Street, Golden, CO 80401. 1995 Column No. 2

NCAA Bylaws 14.3.1.1-(a) and 14.3.1.2-(a) Home-schooling — Certification of academic credentials

NCAA Divisions I and II institutions should note that the NCAA Council Subcommittee on Initial-Eligibility Waivers will consider home-schooling programs on a case-by-case basis for prospective student-athletes who wish to use home-schooling coursework to fulfill the core-course requirements set forth in Bylaws 14.3.1.1-(a) and 14.3.1.2-(a). Thus, those prospects whose high-school education was completed entirely through home-schooling programs are not required to register with the NCAA Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse. Rather, member institutions should submit the prospects' educational materials to the subcommittee for determination of the initial-eligibility status of that prospects.

Bylaws 13.6.2, 13.6.2.9 and 13.6.2.3.1 Transportation of prospects on official paid visits

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 13.6.2, a member institution may pay a prospect's actual round-trip transportation costs for his or her official visit to its campus, provided a direct route between the prospect's home and the institution's campus is used. However, in accordance with 13.6.2.9, it is not permissible for an institution, its athletics department staff members or representatives of athletics interests to pay, provide or arrange for the payment of transportation costs incurred by relatives or friends of a prospect to visit the campus or elsewhere except as specified in 13.6.2.9-(a) and (b). Further, as set forth in 13.6.2.3.1, an institution may not arrange payment of the airline ticket to allow a prospect (or the prospect's relatives or friends) to take advantage of ticket bonuses, rebates, refunds or other benefits connected with the purchase of the ticket. Therefore, it is not permissible for an institution to reimburse a prospect for any portion of a ticket to visit an institution's campus for an official visit if the ticket involves a benefit for the prospect (or the prospect's relatives or friends).

Gambling

Editorial: Growing problem of gambling on campuses must be addressed

- Using tuition money for gambling.
- Using financial aid or other loans for gambling.
- Conning their parents to send additional money, which was used for gambling.
- Stealing cars, items or money from employers for gambling.
- Selling personal property for money to gamble with.

The list could go on and on, but the point is there is a serious problem of compulsive gambling in our colleges. The following quotes indicate an awareness of how the problem is increasing:

"The problem of gambling on campus has increased in recent years. It's probably more pervasive than we thought." (Robert E. Frederick, chair, NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee)

"One of the problems with gambling is no one thinks it's their problem." (David E. Cawood, NCAA assistant executive director for marketing and broadcast services)

"Colleges need to attack the problem of gambling on campus with education." (Paul Anger, president of the Associated Press Sports Editors)

I have spoken on many college campuses and know, first hand, that there is a major gambling problem on campus. The problem must be addressed in a serious way. It will not go away. On the contrary, it gets worse.

I believe we need to encourage Gamblers Anonymous meetings to start on campus. Education and information should be offered to all students. The subject should be included in any discussions focused on addiction. Literature and information about help that is available should be offered. Counseling services should include help for compulsive gamblers.

I recently resigned my position as executive director of the Council on Compulsive Gambling of New Jersey in order to spend more time lecturing on the subject of compulsive gambling, especially on college campuses. Together, we can offer help to young people before they destroy their lives.

Address

Be open to change, Dempsey tells delegates presidents — within divisions and in the oversight of the entire Association — the structure of the Association must vest unequivocal responsibility for intercollegiate athletics in presidents, elected by and responsible to their peers," Dempsey said.

He added that the "responsible presidential bodies" must have the ability to administer and change rules of the Association in a timely manner — subject to repeal only by a "super-majority" of the membership.

"This would fundamentally change the nature and powers of our Convention — but it is a change whose time has now come."

Core values

Dempsey also told delegates that "the restructuring effort is not just about governance but about values," and noted that the task forces also agree — even as each division pursues almost total autonomy — that "certain core values are common to all divisions."

He advised the membership to look to the NCAA constitution for "the best expression" of values.

He quoted the constitution's statement that "the competitive athletics programs of member institutions are designed to be a vital part of the educational system. A basic purpose of the Association is to maintain intercollegiate athletics as an integral part of the educational program and the athlete as an integral part of the student body and, by so doing, retain a clear line of demarcation between intercollegiate athletics and professional sports."

Dempsey said those words are the foundation upon which the Association was established and upon which it must continue to build.

"They express an ideal that can be realized at the smallest Division III institution to the largest Division I program. They have guided the decade of reform and now they must guide us into a new century — one in which it is clear that responsibility for intercollegiate athletics is exercised by presidents, for student-athletes."

Gavitt

Former Big East Conference commissioner named Foundation president

"During the course of my career, the two things that have always motivated me were winning basketball games — which was always a necessity in the 21 years that I served as a coach and the past four years in professional athletics — and, I think even more importantly to me...to try to do something that would make it better for the young people who play these games...." Gavitt said at a January 7 news conference announcing his appointment at the NCAA Convention in San Diego.

"This NCAA Foundation challenge is, to me, right down my alley."

The NCAA Foundation — a non-profit tax-exempt corporation that works closely with the NCAA but is a separate organization, aims "to generate and award funds in support of programs that enable student-athletes to participate fully in the college community, to achieve successful academic and athletics experiences, and to prepare to be effective citizens and productive contributors to society." The Foundation was created in 1988.

To achieve its mission, Foundation resources are used to support programs such as Degree-Completion Awards; CHOICES (an alcohol-education program); the Life-Skills Program, focusing on academic and personal development; Winning for Life (scholarships in the "sciences"); and Sports Journalism Scholarships.

As president, Gavitt will be responsible for the administration and operation of the Foundation. Major areas of responsibility include fund-raising, personnel management, budget development, and building and maintaining working relationships with Foundation partners and supporters.

Veteran coach

Gavitt began his career in collegiate sports as a basketball and baseball player for Dartmouth College. He moved into coaching at Dartmouth and went on to guide the men's basketball team at Providence College to eight consecutive 20-win seasons.

Gavitt served as director of athletics at Providence for 10 years, expanding the program from seven to 24 sports. While at Providence, he was involved in founding the Big East Conference in 1979 and served as its commissioner until 1990.

Gavitt became chief executive officer of the Boston Celtics in 1990 and served in that capacity until the summer of 1994.

Gavitt's involvement in sports leadership has included service on the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee, which he chaired from 1982-84. He has also served as a member of the U.S. Olympic Committee board and of the FIBA central board. He was also president of USA Basketball.

The Foundation is governed by a board of directors of nationally prominent leaders in education, business, sports, and entertainment and is funded by contributions from the NCAA and the private sector.

II women's indoor track qualifying standards corrected

Several errors were discovered recently in the qualifying standards for Division II women's indoor track as listed in the 1995 NCAA Men's and Women's Track and Field/Cross Country Rules and the 1995 NCAA Men's and Women's Indoor Track Handbook.

Specifically, the automatic-qualifying standards for the 400-meter run, the 1,600-meter and mile relays, and the triple jump are incorrect. Also, the provisional times for the 400-, 800-, 1,500- and 5,000-meter runs and the mile run are incorrectly listed in both the rules book and handbook.

The automatic standards for the 400-meter run are 57.10 (tracks under 200 meters), 56.20 (tracks of 200 meters) and 55.50 (tracks over 200 meters). Provisional standards are 59.60, 58.70 and 58.00, respectively. All times are for fully automatic timing devices. Manual times are achieved by deducting .30 seconds.

Automatic standards for the 1,600-meter relay are 3:52.60 (tracks under 200 meters), 3:50.00 (tracks of 200 meters) and 3:47.40 (tracks over 200 meters), while mile relay times are 3:53.80 (tracks under 200 meters), 3:51.20 (tracks of 200 meters) and 3:48.60 (tracks over 200 meters).

Provisional standards for the 800-meter run are 2:19.00 (tracks of 200 meters or less) and 2:18.20 (tracks over 200 meters), while the 1,500-meter run standards are 4:47.00 and 4:45.60, respectively. The standards for the mile and 5,000-meter runs are 5:07.00 and 5:05.60, and 18:25.00 and 18:21.90, respectively.

The automatic qualifying standard for the triple jump is 12.04 meters (39 feet, 6 inches).

A correct version of the standards appeared in the September 19 issue of The NCAA News.
