CEO participation vital to certification efforts

By Stephen R. Hagwell THE NCAA NEWS STAFF

The key to the success of any program is support and involvement from individuals at the highest levels.

Athletics certification is no different.

The NCAA athletics certification program was developed as a means to increase campuswide understanding of athletics through institutional self-study. As such, the Division I certification program that was adopted at the 1993 NCAA Convention requires participation of chief executive officers.

The NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification so strongly believes in CEO participation that it set as a goal the involvement of each Division I CEO as chair of a peer-review team at least once during the program's first five-year cycle.

As the first year of the peer-review process comes to an end, many individuals who have experienced the athletics certification process first-hand agree that CEO involvement has been critical to its success. CEOs have brought, among other things, integrity, stability and experience to the process.

More participation sought

While CEO involvement has been well-received, it also is lacking in some ways. To date, only 147 of 302 Division I CEOs have volunteered to serve as peer-review team members. With 60 peer-review evaluation visits scheduled each year during the first fiveyear cycle, additional CEOs clearly are needed to ensure the program's success.

Gee appointed to Commission

E. Gordon Gee, president of Ohio State University, has been appointed to the NCAA Presidents Commission as the representative of the Big Ten Confe-

He replaces Hunter R. Rawlings III of the University of Iowa, who resigned from the Commission. Rawlings will become president of Cornell University July 1.

Gee has been president at Ohio State since 1990. He previously was president of West Virginia University from 1981 to 1985 and the University of Colorado System from 1985 to 1990.

He also has been an assistant law dean at the University of Utah, was a judicial fellow and senior staff assistant in the chambers of the Chief Justice of the Uni-ited States from 1974 to 1975, and served as associate law dean and professor of law at Brigham Young University.

Gee was dean of the law school at West Virginia when he was appointed to that institution's presidency at age 37. He received a bachelor's degree in history at Utah and a law degree and doctorate in education at Columbia University. At Columbia, he was a Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar and Kellogg Fel-

He is the author or coauthor of six books, including "Information Literacy: Revolution in the Library," which won the American Library Association's G. K. Hall Award in 1990 for outstanding contribution to library literature.

Eighteen bowl games certified

Committee also requires tiebreaker for bowls in 1995-96

The NCAA Special Events Committee has agreed to recommend that the NCAA Council certify 18 bowl games for 1995-96 as meeting NCAA requirements for postseason competition.

The committee, meeting May 9-12 in Pasadena, Galifornia, also certified the Haka Bowl in Auckland, New Zealand, for the 1996-97 season. The game will be played January 1, 1997, and is the first international bowl game to be cer-

The committee asked one bowl. the Freedom Bowl, for more information. The Freedom Bowl's certification will be reconsidered in mid-June.

The 1995-96 certified bowls include the Builders Square Alamo Bowl, Carquest Bowl, CompUSA Florida Citrus Bowl, Cotton Bowl Classic, Federal Express Orange Bowl, Fiesta Bowl, Toyota Gator Bowl, Plymouth Holiday Bowl, Jeep Eagle Aloha Bowl, Las Vegas Bowl, Nokia Sugar Bowl, Outback Bowl, Peach Bowl, Poulan/Weed-Eater Independence Bowl, Rose Bowl, St. Jude Liberty Bowl, Sun Bowl and Weiser Lock Copper

NCAA member institutions cannot participate in football postseason competitions that are not certified. The certification process ensures that bowls meet specific standards in terms of officiating, insurance, distribution of funds and other aspects of the event.

The Special Events Committee also mandated the use of the NCAA tiebreaker format for all certified bowl games this season. The NCAA Football Rules Committee had given its approval in February to the use of the tiebreaker in bowl games.

The tiebreaker (see story on page 5) gives both teams a chance to score after regulation has expired. In an overtime period, each team gets an offensive possession beginning on the opponent's 25yard line.

A team's possession ends when it scores, turns the ball over, or fails to convert a fourth-down play.

Certification

Second round of decisions to be announced June 1

Another round of decisions by the NCAA Committee on Athletics Certification will be announced June 1.

This will be the second group of certification decisions for Division I schools. Decisions for the first class of certifying institutions were announced March 6. In that group, five institutions were certified and three were certified with conditions.

In a related matter, the Special Committee to Study Division II Athletics Certification has completed a legislative draft for a certification program for Division II. That draft will be submitted to the NCAA Presidents Commission, which will consider it at its June 19-20 meeting, and to the NCAA Council, which will meet August 7-9.

The Division II committee also discussed a tentative schedule for making presentations at conference meetings, primarily in late summer or early fall. The NCAA staff will be in contact with Division II conferences to confirm dates and interest in such presentations.

Staff contacts: David A. Knopp or Kevin C. Lennon (Division I) and Gary F. Karner (Division II).

Restructuring

Presentations available for related organizations

Organizations interested in a presentation on the proposed NCAA restructuring plan are encouraged to call the national office for assistance

The NCAA can arrange for a speaker from the appropriate division task force, coordinate the speaker's travel and hotel arrangements, and pay for the presenter's travel expenses. NCAA legislative assistant Mike L. Racy emphasized that arrangements can be made on short notice.

The Executive Committee also increased the two "broad-based" funds (sports-sponsorship and grants-in-aid) to a total of $40 million. Those funds will be distributed in August

Honors program

Winter, spring nominations to be submitted by July 1

Nominations folders for winter and spring sports candidates for the 1996 honors program must be received at the NCAA national office by July 1.

Nomination folders were mailed in March to athletics directors, faculty athletics representatives and sports information directors at all member institutions.

The folders contain nomination forms for the 1996 Today's Top VIII, Theodore Roosevelt and Silver Anniversary Awards. The awards will be presented during the honors dinner at the 1996 NCAA Convention in Dallas.

A second folder to nominate Top VIII Award candidates participating in fall sports and candidates for the Award of Valor will be sent this summer.

Winter/spring Top VIII Award nominees must be varsity letter-winners who will complete their intercollegiate athletics eligibility in the winter or spring of 1995. There is no set male-female ratio, and at least one winner will be selected from both Divisions II and III.

For more information, see page 3.

Nominations

Membership invited to submit Council, committee nominations

Administrative personnel at NCAA member institutions are invited to submit nominations for upcoming vacancies on the NCAA Council.

Nominations must be submitted to Fannic B. Vaughan, executive assistant, at the NCAA national office (fax 913/339-0035) and must be received no later than August 25.

The NCAA Nominating Committee will review nominations and make recommendations to fill the Council positions, as well as vacancies for NCAA officers.

Nominations for vacancies on the NCAA Executive Committee, general committees appointed by the Council and sports committees also are being accepted. Those nominations must be submitted to Vaughan and are due July 14.

Under the terms of a new policy adopted by the NCAA Council, committees may not add to the nominations received from the membership. If the members of a committee want to consider certain individuals, they should make certain that someone in the membership sends a nomination letter to Vaughan by the deadlines.

For more information, see the April 12 and the April 5 issues of The NCAA News.

■ Briefly in the News

An obsession with homers

Psychologists and psychiatrists generally will prescribe staying as far away from obsessions as possible. But in the case of Tim Jorgensen, they likely would tell him to exploit his obsession to the fullest extent pos-

Jorgensen is the offensive muscle that propels the University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh, baseball team, and he has an obsession for home runs.

His 37 four-baggers are the most by a player in Division III, as are his 111 runs batted in. He helped power his team to the Midwest regional of the NCAA Division III Baseball Championship by peppering the University of Wisconsin, Eau Claire, with six homers and 16 RBI during a doubleheader sweep May 14.

His home-run prowess obviously frightens the opposition. But the six-homer output in the two games against Wisconsin-Eau Claire nearly had Jorgensen pinching himself to determine if this season is some kind of soap-opera-like dream.

"I'm to the point that I'm starting to amaze myself a little bit," he told The Associated Press. "It is a little unbelievable. I mean, you don't see that every day. I guess I just go out to play and have a lot of fun — and when you hit six home runs in one day, you have quite a lot of fun."

Even more fascinating about Jorgensen's effort against Wisconsin-Eau Claire was that he hit for a home-run cycle in the second game — posting solo, two-run, three-run and grand-slam homers.

"He's on pace to shatter every national record there ever was," said Tom Lechnir, Jorgensen's coach. "It's not even fair to say he's going to be the standard that everybody else is measured by. After you've seen that many home runs, you actually think every time he's going to hit one out."

Retiring a trio

The University of Missouri, Columbia, recently retired the jerseys of three of its former football greats.

Kellen Winslow, who played tight end at Missouri from 1976 to 1978 and starred for the San Diego Chargers for nine years, had his No. 83 jersey retired. Also, jersey No. 23 was retired in honor of two players who wore that number — Johnny Roland, the NFL's rookie of the year in 1966 as a

Millikin mentor

Julie Roe, a member of the Millikin University women's basketball team and a GTE academic all-district selection, and her sixth-grade partner visit a biology class as part of "The Millikin Project: The Power of One." The goal of the project, which provided one-on-one interaction for 54 sixth-graders in Decatur, Illinois, schools, was to introduce the students to the college environment, encourage them to do well in school and give them a positive role model.

running back for the St. Louis Cardinals, and Roger Wehrli, who also enjoyed success with the Cardinals as a defensive back. Roland played at Missouri in 1962, 1964 and 1965, and Wehrli competed for the Tigers from 1966 to 1968.

"As we continue to direct this program toward the future, we want to remain ever mindful of the past successes and the persons who helped establish the University of Missouri's proud traditions," said Joseph R. Castiglione, Missouri athletics director. "Perhaps it's symbolic that as we return to our roots by returning to a grass playing surface on Faurot Field, we honor three of the greatest players who starred on that turf. And all three continue to make contributions to the university as MU graduates who are prominent residents in the state of Missouri."

Stretchhhhhhhhed!

Talk about being stretched thin. Rusty LaRue has been very busy during the 1994-95 academic year at Wake Forest University. He recently became the first student-athlete in Atlantic Coast Conference history to compete in football, basketball and baseball in the same academic LaRue completed the triple crown by appearing in a May 10 baseball game against Furman University as a relief pitcher. The first batter he faced doubled and another hit a single. LaRue gave up one run in that seventh inning, then retired the next eight batters to pick up the save in Wake Forest's 10-1 win.

"Growing up, I had always played all three sports and to get a chance to play all three at this level is incredible," LaRue told the Winston-Salem (North Carolina) Journal. "It's a dream come true."

"Once Rusty got rid of the jitters he threw some good curveballs, spotted his fastball and had a great change-up," Wake Forest coach George Greer said. "What we wanted was to see him do a lot of the same things he had done in practice. He passed the test with flying colors."

Title IX application needs further review

By Billy Joe AMERICAN FOOTBALL COACHES ASSOCIATION

The recent hearing on Title IX by a U. S. House of Representatives subcommittee is a good sign that the message of the American Football Coaches Association and other groups is getting across.

That message is one of concern about what the interpretation and application of the law is doing to male sports at the college level.

The AFCA board of trustees issued a statement in January asking Congress for a full review of the application and implementation of Title IX, calling the interpretation of the law by the Office for Civil Rights "illogical, unfair and contrary to congressional intent." This public stance played a large part in bringing about congressional hearings.

Those at the hearing heard — some for the first time — exactly why the AFCA, the College Football Association and various male coaches' associations are concerned about the effect proportionality guidelines are having on male participation opportunities.

This hearing is a first step. The AFCA will continue to present its case in various forums in order to receive a fair hearing by those who are charged with the implementation and application of the law.

In any discussion of Title IX and its effect, it must be emphasized exactly what the AFCA is asking for. There are two misconceptions that need to be addressed:

- (1) The AFCA is not attempting to dismantle or amend Title IX, nor is it asking that football be excluded from the law as "a third sex," as gender-equity advocates like to put it. The AFCA is simply asking for a full review of the implementation and application of the law by OCR, especially as it pertains to the concept of proportionality, which we believe has superseded the remaining two tests for Title IX compliance: progress and interest.
- (2) The AFCA is not against women's sports. The board of trustees in its statement clearly pointed out that the Association "supports full and fair access to intercollegiate sports for women and is committed to the principles that prompted Title IX."

The reason hearings by Congress are important is to crystallize the issues, clear away the rhetoric and misinformation of

Another view of hearing on Title IX

I would like to supplement your article in the May 10 issue of The NCAA News about the congressional Title IX hearings. I was sitting ringside and drew slightly different inferences.

If a consensus was reached by everyone I talked to who was present at the hearings, it was the following:

- 1. The males did not come to petition Congress to abolish Title IX.
- 2. The issue was not football's trying to get out of the scope of Title IX interpretation and enforcement.
- 3. The real issue was (and is) the Office for Civil Rights and its arbitrary and capricious rules interpreting Title IX, particularly its gender quota.
- 4. Norma Cantu, the assistant secretary of education and OCR director, testified about these rules in a manner that was equivocal and disingenuous at best.
- 5. It is wrong to eliminate male student-athletes to create a gender quota.

 Let me explain.

Many of the militant women's groups, in anticipation of the hearings, informed the media — and the media reported — that the petitioning males consisted of mean old football coaches who were going to try to abolish Title IX. This was, of course, hogwash, and the women who fed this misinformation to the media knew that. I have watched this movement for two years, and I have yet to meet one male who does not support Title IX. All males also favor "gender equity." They oppose gender quotas.

The thrust of the males' position was that male athletes are suffering "reverse discrimination" in that OCR's proportionality rule is nothing but a gender quota that is being used to eliminate □ Letter male athletes. Further, male athletes (and administrators) believe that the other two related OCR rules (which ostensibly protect males and administrators) are simply window dressing — or facades — to avoid the proscriptions of the United States Supreme Court in Bakke (which prohibits quotas).

Educational administrators testified, too. Whereas the primary message of the male athletes was that the OCR was misinterpreting Title IX, the university presidents objected to both OCR's arbitrary interpretations and its oppressive enforcement of the rules. The New York Times subheaded its article about the hearing as follows: "Brown's president says he is frustrated by bureaucracy and by lawyers." (I'm sure most college administrators whisper "amen" as they read those words.)

All congress(wo)men were greatly relieved to hear that the issue was simply one of bureaucratic incompetence and oppression. The problem, then, for Congress was not the law; the problem was, and is, OCR and Norma Cantu. Ms. Cantu is a bureaucrat who is notorious for her indifference to the imminent extinction of male sports programs and her slippery responses to questions that the males have posed to her in the past. Suffice it to illustrate her abilities as the consummate evasive bureaucrat/lawyer with the following anecdote that arose in the meeting.

Rep. Steve Gunderson, R-Wisconsin, asked Ms. Cantu (in essence) for her opinion of the Brown decision as the case relates to her OCR rules. Ms. Canturesponded that since she had not seen the record in Brown, she did not have an opinion. (Most of us watching this felt a little bit like we did when Clarence Thomas testified that he had never discussed Roe v. Wade.) Later, during dialogue with another congressman, Ms. Cantu began to discuss the Brown case and explain her analysis of the decision. Not surprisingly, Gunderson interrupted and read Ms. Cantu the "riot act" for her apparent disingenuous response to his earlier question.

Fortunately, Ms. Cantu and the OCR soon will be only a bad memory for all of us. Americans and now (finally) Congress and college administrators are tired of these bureaucracies, bureaucrats and all of their stupid bureaucratic rules.

Dale Anderson Michigan State University

EDITOR'S NOTE: Anderson, a law professor at Michigan State University, has been working with a coalition of men's nonrevenue sports coaches associations in seeking to stop the elimination of men's nonrevenue sports as a means of satisfying Title IX.

The May 10 story in The NCAA News did not say or suggest in any way that men are petitioning Congress to abolish Title IX. Also, the story did not say or suggest that football interests are trying to remove the sport from the scope of Title IX interpretation or enforcement (they frequently have said they do not believe football should be exempt from Title IX but that all three parts of OCR's test, including the interest test, should apply when assessing compliance).

Opinions

RPI a useful aid in baseball selections

Ron Maestri, athletics director University of New Orleans Chair, NCAA Division I Baseball Committee

New Orleans Times-Picayune

"A lot of times when a club doesn't get in, the coach says the committee met in a smoke-filled room where deals are cut. That's far from the truth. In 1981, the NCAA started the RPI (ratings percentage index) in basketball. We adopted the same procedure in 1988. Basically it breaks down a team's record against Division I opponents. How strong were the opponents and how strong of a schedule did the opponents play? It's a tool and only a tool, but it's been a very accurate tool to determine the strength of a team. For the first time this season, RPIs will be released to every school. In the past, only commissioners received rankings of teams in their conference."

Title IX

Editorial

Chicago Tribune

"If any good can be said to have come from the recent court ruling that Brown University discriminates against women in its athletic programs, it is that it may lead to an examination of the intent of the law Brown supposedly violated and a reassertion of common sense in interpreting it.

"In 1992, nine women sued Brown for violating Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, which forbids schools that receive Federal funds from discriminating against students on the basis of sex.

"They based their case on Brown's decision to strip the women's gymnastics and volleyball teams of varsity status to cut costs, even though the school also axed the men's varsity golf and water polo teams.

"In a stunning decision that reflects a basic misunderstanding of the intent of Title IX and of human nature as well, U. S. District Judge Raymond Pettine ruled that Brown had violated the law because while 51 percent of its students are women, only 38 percent of its athletes are. According to Pettine, the proportion of women on athletics teams must 'mirror' the total proportion of women students. If women students outnumber men students, then women athletes must outnumber men athletes

"Anyone who has ever been to a Super Bowl party knows what's wrong with that logic. While many women are interested in sports and while women participate in increasing numbers, far more men than women make sports part of their lives.

"Ironically, Brown University is considered a leader in women's collegiate athletics opportunity: It offers 17 varsity sports for women and 16 for men. But only 338 women participate compared with 555 men. And though the school submitted surveys showing that fewer women than men students were interested in participating, the judge wasn't buying it.

"To be fair, Judge Pettine didn't pull the notion of athletics 'gender parity' out of his hat. It is one of three tests established by the Education Department's Office for Civil Rights by which schools can prove they are complying with Title IX.

"However, the other two tests — showing a growth of women's sports programs over time and proving that the sports program effectively meets the interests and abilities of female students — are vague and were given short shrift in the Brown

"It's one thing to offer any one of three ways to prove compliance with the law and quite another to make parity the only way, which happened in the Brown decision. If it is upheld on appeal, Congress should take a new look at Title IX, not to repeal it but to clarify its intent and refine its guidelines.

"The law's intent was to assure women the same opportunities as men on college campuses, and that is still a valid concern. It was never intended to create a numbers game that inhibits, rather than enhances, campus athletics."

Bowls

Committee certifies 18 games for 1995-96 season

untimed procedure is repeated until the score no longer is tied at the end of an overtime period.

In another significant action, the committee reaffirmed the requirement that teams must have six victories against Division I-A opponents in order to qualify for bowl competition. The committee devoted considerable discussion to the concept of counting one win against a Division I-AA team that awarded an average of 60 football grants-in-aid over a rolling threeyear period but agreed that the current requirement should be retained.

Other highlights

In other actions at its May 9-12 meeting in Pasadena, California, the Special Events Committee:

- Voted to ban gambling interests from sponsoring official bowl activities or holding title sponsorships. Organizations promoting gambling already are restricted from sponsoring official NCAA championships.
- Agreed to require bowls to give game officials their first pay increase in a decade, raising the officiating fee from $450 to $600. That compares to the highest regular-season conference fee of $575. The committee also approved in principle the addition of stand-by officials for each bowl. A procedure for accomplishing this will be determined at the committee's August meeting.
- Discussed a growing problem with sideline control at bowl games. Postseason games must adhere to the regular-season limit of 40 nonuniformed persons in the team area. The committee challenged bowl sponsors to enhance sideline management and asked for cooperation from participating institutions to ensure that the bowl is representative of in-season games.
- Agreed to require any new bowl not conducted in North America to distribute a minimum of $1.5 million to each participating institution.

- Urged its representatives on the NCAA Special Committee to Review Contest Exemptions to emphasize cost containment and missed class time in the group's consideration of exceptions to contest limitations and playing-season dates.
- Determined that it could not mandate a policy regarding the sale of alcoholic beverages in the stadium at bowl games because doing so could interfere with contracts involving bowl sponsors or stadiums. The committee noted that alcoholic beverages are prohibited at NCAA championships.
- Agreed to ask the NCAA legislative services staff to determine if current legislation would permit a sponsoring agency to provide "reasonable" entertainment (for example, a meal) for parents of student-athletes participating in a bowl.
- Urged bowl sponsors to place value and priority on gifts for participating student-athletes and indicated that bowls needing to adjust their budgets to accommodate rising expenses should consider reducing the value of gifts as a last resort. It also asked bowls to consider eliminating other activities in order to raise the value of student-athletes' gifts closer to the $300 maximum.
- Voted to require sponsoring agencies to pay their bowl-certification fees on or before November 1.

Tiebreaker procedure not at all confusing

Elements similar to regulation play

Because it has not been used in high-profile Division I-A games, the NCAA tiebreaker procedure remains a mystery to many fans — and to some coaches, players and officials.

Those who have not seen it in operation may be surprised by its similarity to regulation play.

The tiebreaker — mandated for use in all NCAA-certified bowl games this season — begins with a coin toss at the 50-yard line. The captain of the team that wins the toss has two options:

- Select which team will have possession first, or
- Select the end of the field in which the overtime period will be conducted.

The choice cannot be deferred to a later period. The captain of the team that loses the toss will exercise the remaining option and have the first choice of options in following even-numbered periods.

The team that has the ball first will start an untimed offensive possession at the 25-yard line in the chosen end of the field; the other team will defend the goal line in that end of the field. Play then proceeds as usual, with minor changes in penalty enforcement, as if the offensive team had just made a 75-yard kickoff return from its goal line.

The team retains the ball until it scores, loses possession or fails to convert on fourth down. The other team will then take possession at the 25-yard line and begin its series.

Play continues until one team is ahead at the end of an overtime period, which consists of one possession for each team.

Scoring is the same as in regulation play; thus, the defense can score after an interception, fumble or blocked kick. In an overtime period, such a score would end the game. The defense also can score on a conversion attempt after a touchdown, although that would not necessarily end the game.

Application hurts small programs gender-equity advocates, and make our lawmakers aware that current application of the law is not gender equal. Testimony at the hearings has confirmed that Title IX interpretations by OCR (1) have had a reverse effect on the original intent of the law by doing away with thousands of male participation opportunities and (2) have put in jeopardy hundreds of football programs in Divisions II and III and the NAIA because capping squads or eliminating football is the easy way out when it comes to balancing numbers.

It is ironic that because of the cuts in male sports to help balance the percentages of male/female participation opportunities, Title IX rulings also are failing to create very many new participation opportunities for females.

Gender-equity advocates target the policies of athletics departments of Division I-A institutions, but that's missing the point. What's happening at 107 Division I-A schools is not the real issue, since however the die is finally cast, they will survive in some form.

The real tragedy beginning to happen is that many football programs — and other male sports — at the Divisions II and III levels will not survive unless Congress intervenes and solves the emphasis on proportionality that now exists, in both court cases and in enforcement procedures on campus.

There are some 560 schools below Division I-A. Most do not gen-crate large revenues from football and offer few or no athletics scholarships. Schools at this level — based on current Title IX interpretations — will have no alternative but to cut back squads severely or eliminate football entirely because of the numbers game forced upon them by proportionality. These schools already are dropping male sports such as wrestling, gymnastics, tennis and track, attempting to even the percentages of male and female participation opportunities.

America's football coaches are not asking for preferential treatment. We are asking for fair and important treatment for a sport that is unique in its makeup because (1) it is the most physically demanding sport played at the collegiate level, (2) it takes large numbers to play and (3) it has no comparable sport in women's athletics.

Billy Joe is head football coach at Florida A&M University and is 1995 president of the American Football Coaches Association.

Titanium bats banned in championship

I softball committee makes decision because of safety concerns

The NCAA Division I Women's Softball Committee voted unanimously to disallow the use of titanium bats in this year's NCAA Division I Women's Softball Championship, which began May 19.

The NCAA Administrative Committee ratified the decision, which was made because of safety concerns. The Administrative Committee stressed that the decision is limited, covering only this year's championship.

"There is growing concern that the current field specifications and official ball when combined with the titanium bat may result in unsafe situations," said committee chair Cindy Cohen, Princeton University softball coach. "This decision affects only this year's championship. We felt that we must choose the safest option until we have more complete information that can help us resolve the entire issue of bat performance."

Cohen continued, "Several teams that have used the bat this season are among the 32 that qualified for the championship, and we recognize that this decision may put them at some competitive disadvantage. However, we weighed that factor with the safety issue and came down on the side of safety."

Cohen stressed that the committee will work with the American Softball Association (ASA), Sporting Goods Manufacturers Association (SGMA) and individual manufacturers in examining the issue. The ASA and SGMA are working together on a research program to create a standard for testing bats. Results could be available as early as next fall.

The NCAA joins a number of other organizations, including some of its own member institutions and conferences, that have taken action with respect to the bat. The committee's action came after it reviewed reports and correspondence from manufacturers and other sources about the bat's level of performance, and after it considered how such performance might affect the safety and competitive balance of the championship.

The National Softball Coaches Association voted last fall to ask the committee to ban bats with a wall thickness that would be less than that found in titanium and some other high-performance bats. During the college softball season, some coaches requested that other teams refrain from using the titanium bat against their teams. In at least one case, a coach opted not to play a game rather than put her team on the field against a team using titanium bats.

Titanium bats also were disallowed in the recent Pan American Games. Manufacturers have placed strong warning labels on the bats.

"The issue is of great concern because of the nature of the game," noted Cohen. "Softball pitchers are much closer to the plate than in baseball. First and third basemen often play in close to home plate. The faster a ball comes off the bat, the greater the challenge for infielders to react."

The committee asked for the Administrative Committee's concurrence on the decision because of concerns over any appearance of conflicts of interest. Of the six members of the Division I Women's Softball Committee, three are coaches who have contracts with one bat manufacturer, Louisville Slugger. Two members are administrators whose institutions or softball coaches for their institution have contracts with Louisville Slugger. The final member is an administrator with an institution whose softball coach has a contract with Easton's titanium bat has been in use this season. Louisville Slugger has just released its first titanium bats.

"Many Division I institutions have some connection to a bat manufacturer," Cohen said. "That's why we felt that we needed a unanimous vote by our committee, as well as putting the vote to scrutiny by the Administrative Committee."

The Divisions II and III Women's Softball Championships also are underway. The committees governing those championships voted to disallow the use of the bat in the championships finals, and that decision also was ratified by the Administrative Committee.

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics also disallowed use of the bat for its 1995 women's softball championship.

TRUE TO FORM

Stanford puts an exclamation point on a perfect season by shutting out Mississippi in Division I men's tennis final Few teams are fortunate enough to go wire-to-wire as the nation's No. 1-ranked team. Fewer are fortunate enough to do so and remain undefeated.

This year's Stanford men's tennis team did both.

Displaying the talent and tenacity that kept it undefeated and earned it the No. 1 ranking, Stanford shut out Mississippi, 4-0, May 16 and claimed its 13th NCAA Division I Men's Tennis Championships team title at Georgia.

In individual competition, Sargis Sargsian of Arizona State won the singles title and Mahesh Bhupahti and Ali Hamadeh of Mississippi claimed the doubles crown. The individual-event titles were the first for both schools.

Stanford, the team championship's No. 1 seed, is the only team that has posted a shutout in the final since adoption of a dual-match, single-elimination format in 1977 — but this year's blanking was not Stanford's first. The Cardinal also shut out Notre Dame, 5-0, in 1992.

Stanford, which finished with a 27-0 record, is the first team to complete a season undefeated since the Cardinal's 1978 squad finished 24-0.

Mississippi, which was unseeded, finished at 20-7. The Rebels — who advanced to the final by upsetting No. 3 Pepperdine in quarterfinal action and No. 2 Georgia in semi-final play — never previously had advanced beyond the round of 16

The team championship featured the "3-6" match format, in which three eight-game, pro-set doubles matches were played for one team point, followed by six best-of-three-sets singles matches worth one point each.

"I've never been quite as nervous going into a match as I was today," said Stanford coach Dick Gould. "I have a tremendous amount of respect for Mississippi. They're an awfully good team not to have gotten straight in."

Stanford set the tone of the match by dominating doubles play. Paul Goldenstein and Scott Humphries posted an 8-4 triumph at No. 1 doubles and Grant Elliott and Jeff Salzenstein teamed up for an 8-2 victory at No. 3 doubles to give the Cardinal a 1-0 lead.

The Cardinal quickly put an end to the Rebels' title hopes as Humphries, Goldstein and Ricky Becker posted two-set triumphs at Nos. 2, 3 and 6 singles, respectively. Humphries, ranked No. 10 nationally, ousted Johan Hede, 6-4, 6-0, while Goldstein defeated Hamadeh, 6-1, 7-5. Becker disposed of Van vanLingen, dropping only five games.

"(Stanford) really jumped on us in doubles and put us behind the eight ball," said Mississippi coach Billy Chadwick. "It was obvious our guys were a little fatigued, but they put up a good fight. Even though it was 4-0, we were knocking on the door the whole time."

Sargsian, the championships' No. 1-seeded singles player, rallied from a one-set deficit to defeat Southern California's Brett Hansen in the first all-Pacific-10 Conference final since 1981. Sargsian became the first collegian to win four "collegiate grand slam" titles — he also won the 1993 Skytel Clay Court Championships, the 1994 Intercollegiate Tennis Association All-American and the 1994 Rolex National Indoor titles.

Bhupathi and Hamadeh, the championships' No. 3-seeded doubles team, needed two sets to defeat Texas' duo of Chad Clark and Trey Phillips. The Rebels' twosome advanced to the final by knocking off No. 2-seeded Goldstein and Humphries of Stanford in semifinal play.

COMEBACK KIDS

Down 4-2, Texas sweeps doubles and pulls off an unprecedented rally in I women's tennis

It is said that everything is bigger in Texas.

These days, nothing is bigger in the Lone Star state than Texas women's tennis.

Recording the biggest come-from-behind victory in Division I Women's Tennis Championships history, the Longhorns defeated Florida, 5-4, and won their second team title May 16 at Pepperdine.

Texas, the team championship's No. 2 seed, swept its three doubles matches in the final to overcome a 4-2 deficit and knock off the No. 1-seeded Lady Gators. The Longhorns became the only team in the championships' 14-year history to win the title after trailing, 4-2.

UCLA swept the individual championships, knocking off Texas players in both finals. Keri Phebus claimed the individual singles crown and then teamed with Susie Starrett to win the doubles title.

Two years ago, Texas became the championships' lowest-seeded team, at No. 5, to claim a team title.

"This team has a way of playing inspiring tennis...sometimes too inspiring for the coach," said Texas coach Jeff Moore. "Florida won fairly quickly at four, five and six singles, but our seniors (Lucie Ludvigova and Kelly Pace) got us back in the match. Lucie did not win her match, but she extended (Dawn) Buth to a tough third set, and Kelly's win at No. 1 singles really shifted the momentum."

Pace, the nation's No. 3-ranked singles player, prevented Florida from clinching the team title in singles play when she held off Jill Craybas, the No. 8-ranked player, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3.

"The key to the match was that I started attacking more midway through the third set," Pace said. "I knew that I had to be a lot more aggressive."

Sparked by Pace's victory, the Lady Longhorns pulled even at 4-4 with victories from its No. 1 doubles tandem of Cristina Moros and Pace and its No. 3 duo of Ashley Johnson and Ludvigova. Moros and Pace dropped only four games in defeating Bonnie Bleecker and Buth, while Johnson and Ludvigova ousted Lori Ann Freedman and Cathrine Insteboe, 6-4, 6-4.

■ See complete results: Page 12.

Texas then capped the championships' most memorable come-from-behind victory when Anne Pastor and Farley Taylor outlasted the Lady Gators' Craybas and Divya Merchant in three sets at No. 2 doubles.

"This was only the fifth match of the season for us that was decided in doubles, so we have not played that much doubles with a match on the line," said Florida coach Andy Brandi. "Texas outplayed us in doubles. They got out to a quick lead in all three matches and sustained the momentum. We managed to fight back and split sets at No. 2, but Texas seized the advantage in the third set by winning the first five games."

Phebus became only the second player in championships history to win both individual-event titles in the same year. Linda Gates of Stanford won both singles and doubles crowns in 1985.

The No. 2-seeded Phebus, UCLA's first singles champion, knocked off Pace, the No. 1 seed, while dropping only five games. Phebus cruised to a 6-2 triumph in the first set, then rallied from a 3-1 deficit in the second set to claim the title. The appearance in the final was the second in a row for Phebus, who was runner-up to Georgia's Angela Lettiere in 1994.

Phebus and Starrett proved why they were the championships' top-seeded doubles team as they defeated Texas' Moros and Pace and became the fourth UCLA doubles team to win the championship. Phebus and Starrett dropped only six games in defeating the championships' No. 2-seeded tandem.

Despite her unhappiness on this play, UCLA's Keri Phebus went on to claim the singles title and teamed to win the doubles event.

Maryland breezes past Princeton in lacrosse

Maryland raced to an 8-1 firsthalf lead and never looked back in its 13-5 victory May 21 over defending champion Princeton in the title game of the National Collegiate Women's Lacrosse Championship.

The teams played at Trenton

Maryland finished the season 17-0 in winning its third title. The Terrapins avenged last year's championship-game loss to the Tigers, who finished 14-3.

Maryland had edged the Tigers in a regular-season meeting, 9-8 a game that Terrapin coach Cindy Timchal reflected upon after the championship win.

"Things just kind of fell together for us," she said. "In the first game, I thought we were a little (too) emotional. Today we played with a confidence we didn't have then."

Junior center Kelly Amonte, who led Maryland with four goals, said her team wanted to set the tone ear-

"I thought it was very important that we got off to a good start," she said. "We thought it was important to get their confidence down ear-

Timchal credited the defense especially that of senior goalkeeper Jamie Brodskey, who had 10 saves and allowed four goals while playing all but one minute.

Princeton coach Chris Sailer, who led her team to a third consecutive title game, echoed Timchal's claim.

"They did a good job of shutting us down when we challenged the goal. We were able to get in front of the goal in the first half and things didn't go our way.

"We didn't have very good luck, but I guess good teams make their own luck."

The Terrapins' 17 victories set a school record and also clinched Maryland's first perfect season. Maryland won 16 games each in 1980 and 1984. The Terps' previous national championships came in 1992 under Timchal and in 1986 under Sue Tyler.

team for the second consecutive year, as did teammate Laura Harmon. Other Terps honored were Cathy Nelson, Randall Goldsborough, Tami Riley and Liz Downing. Amory Rowe and Cristi Samaras of Princeton also made the team, as did Dartmouth's Lauren Holleran and Sarah Devens and Penn State's Jill Pearsall.

AGAIN: Trenton State beats William Smith in III lacrosse

Host Trenton State won its third consecutive Division III Women's Lacrosse Championship May 21, edging William Smith, 14-13, in a matchup of undefeated teams.

William Smith, runner-up to the Lions in each of the past three years (including last year's 29-11 title-game loss), had fashioned a 13-10 lead with 9:28 left in the game, prompting Trenton State coach Sharon Goldbrenner-Pfluger to take a time out.

"I told (our) players that they needed to attack at the top of the crease," she said. "They could not see that their attack was not working, and we needed to impress upon them to attack from the top, поt the side."

No one received the message more clearly that Jennifer Hart, who already had scored three goals. She scored unassisted goals at 6:52 and 5:17, then was assisted by Monica Atwell on the shot that tied the game with 2:26 remaining.

Melanie Vasofski's third goal of the day with 1:59 remaining won the game.

"We played an exceptional team in William Smith," Goldbrenner-Pfluger said. "We needed to play an exceptional game to win. Unfortunately, we did not play a strong first half."

Heron coach Pat Genovese, after watching her team come up short again, compared this year's loss to

"I think they are both painful in different ways. This year's team, like any that works its way to (the semifinals or championship game), gives a lot of heart and soul, and I really feel this team has done all that and they truly deserved it today. They are champions in my heart."

The win enabled Trenton State (17-0) to post its third consecutive undefeated season. The Lions have not lost a game on the field since April 13, 1991, a 5-4 loss to Ithaca (a 1992 championship victory was vacated). Trenton State now has won seven national championships all but one under Goldbrenner-Pfluger.

William Smith finished at 16-1. It has not lost to any team other than the Lions in the past two years.

Trenton State's Pam Pluguez's two scores in the title game gave her a Lion-record 212 career goals, one better than Repy Hattersley (1979) through 1982), now an assistant coach at the school.

In the semifinals, the Lions' Iennifer Mazzucco scored a tournament-record eight goals to lead the Lions over Middlebury, 24-12.

The previous record of seven was held by four players, two of whom (Pluguez and the Herons' Jennifer Bertsch) played in this year's tour-

Hart, Mazzucco, Pluguez, Leslie Lehr and Beth Watov of Trenton State made the all-tournament team, as did William Smith's Amy Hoover, Bertsch, Terri-Lee Fiedler, Kristen McCarthy and Sarah Daniels and Middlebury's Amy DiAmado and Kelly Hefner.

UC Santa Cruz reclaims winner's circle in III men's tennis

A team on a mission.

That's the best way to describe UC Santa Cruz and its approach to the 1995 NCAA Division III Men's Tennis Championships

Five years and four runner-up finishes after winning its first team title in 1990, UC Santa Cruz was on a mission to end its runner-up string. Mission accomplished.

Led by Andre Herke and Ryan Witt, who combined for a victory at No. 3 doubles and then posted singles triumphs, the Banana Slugs ended their title drought May 18 at Kalamazoo.

■ See complete results: Page 12.

No. 1-seeded UC Santa Cruz defeated defending champion Washington (Maryland), 4-1, at Kalamazoo — the same place where the Banana Slugs won in 1990.

Host Kalamazoo defeated Emory, 5-0, in the third-place game.

Damian Polla of Washington claimed the singles title, and Redlands' Todd Born and John Weston won the doubles crown.

If there was any doubt that UC Santa Cruz was focused on its objective, it was quickly put to rest as the Banana Slugs opened the match by dominating doubles play.

Noah Ripper and Jonathan Harper, the championships' No. I doubles tandem, outlasted the Shoremen's No. 2-seeded duo of Polla and Robin Sander, 8-5, at No. 1 doubles. UC Santa Cruz also won the other two doubles matches to win the doubles point in the "3-6" format. Josh Vining and Bryan Shapiro combined for victory at No. 2 doubles, and Herke and Witt dominated Miroslav Beran and Chandragupta Soysa at No. 3 doubles.

UC Santa Cruz then quickly won at Nos. 4, 5 and 6 singles to clinch the crown.

Herke, Witt and Jaisurya Nettimi accounted for the Banana Slugs' three singles points. Herke and Witt both rallied from one-set deficits to beat Mike Kember and Soysa at Nos. 4 and 6 singles, respectively. Nettimi needed only two sets to beat Andrew King at No. 5 singles.

Despite finishing as runner-up,

Washington did not go home empty-handed. Polla claimed the school's second individual singles title by beating teammate Sander, the championships' No. 1-seeded singles player, in an all-Washington final. Polla, who rallied from a one-set deficit, dropped only one set in six match-

Born and Weston claimed their first individual doubles title in comefrom-behind fashion. After dropping the first set, 6-1, Born and Weston dropped only seven games in the final two sets to claim Redlands' second doubles title.

First-time fortune

Kennesaw State bounces back and captures softball championship in its inaugural year in Division II

After opening tournament play with a loss, Kennesaw State reeled off five consecutive wins — including a 3-2 decision over Bloomsburg in the title game — to win the Division II Women's Softball Championship May 21 in Salem, Virginia.

The Owls, competing in Division II for the first year, become the first team to lose an opening-round game and finish as champion.

The score was 2-2 heading into the top of the eighth inning in the final against Bloomsburg. Catcher Colleen Thorburn hit a two-out single and scored on a double by Cara Dornstauder to give Kennesaw State the lead.

Owl pitcher Kelly Rafter then forced Bloomsburg batters to ground out twice and pop up once to secure the win.

"There is simply so much I could say about Kelly," Kennesaw State coach Scott Whitlock said. "I thought she was slowing down in the second game, but each time I think that, she comes back with more. She has the courage and determination to be a great pitcher. She handles pressure situations very well."

Rafter pitched six complete games for the Owls. She scattered eight hits in the championship game while striking out three and walking four batters.

After losing the opener to Wisconsin-Parkside, Kennesaw State defeated defending champion Merrimack (4-3), Wisconsin-Parkside (9-1), Humboldt State (4-2) and Bloomsburg (3-0) to force a second championship game. The Owls finished the year with a 53-5 record.

Bloomsburg, which finished 53-6, opened the tourney with a win over Wisconsin-Parkside (8-0) and then defeated Humboldt State (2-1) before its two losses to Kennesaw State

Members of the all-tournament team were: Thorburn, Kennesaw State, catcher; Jennifer Fritz, Humboldt State, first base; Nada Hlohovsky, Kennesaw State, second base; Jen LeFever, Bloomsburg, shortstop; Tonya Carlisle, Kennesaw State, third base; Shannon McDonough, Kennesaw State, outfield; Michelle LeFebvre, Merrimack, outfield; Emily Brown, Bloomsburg, outfield; April Paoli, Bloomsburg, pitcher; Rafter, Kennesaw State, pitcher; Dornstauder, Kennesaw State, designated player; Jackie Aiken, Wisconsin-Parkside, at large; and Paige Wofford, Kennesaw State, at large.

Chapman bumps defending champs from throne in III

Chapman scored four unearned runs in the first inning and held off an almost single-handed comeback by Trenton State's Michelle Carlson to defeat the Lions, 4-2, in the championship game of the Division III Women's Softball Championship May 21 in Storm Lake, Iowa.

Two throwing errors by Trenton State allowed Chapman's Jennifer Martinez and Christy Guidorizzi to score in the bottom of the first. Shortstop Lisa Cancilla followed Kathy Donovan's single with a two-run home run.

Guidorizzi struck out nine batters while walking just one in seven innings. She allowed five hits, three of which came off the bat of Carlson, the Division III player of the year.

Carlson doubled in the top of the first, stole third base and scored Trenton State's first run on Sunny Montas' single to center.

Carlson added another run for the Lions when she led off the fourth inning with a home run. Trenton State's only other threat came in the sixth inning after Carlson and Montas each singled with one out. Robin Selbst grounded into a fielder's choice and Chris Owens bunted back to Guidorizzi to end the inning.

LUCKY 7: Florida Southern wins record seventh title in II golf

Valdosta State's Briny Baird (left) and Florida Southern's John Curley were all smiles after Baird won his second consecutive individual title and Curley finished tied for second.

This year's Division II Men's Golf Championships signaled the end of collegiate careers for two of the spon's biggest winners.

Florida Southern's Charley Matlock coached his Moccasins to a record seventh team title in his final year and senior Briny Baird of Valdosta State became only the second player in championships history to successfully defend an individual title during the May 16-20 tourney at Cedar Creek Golf Club in Aiken, South Carolina.

Matlock, retiring after 24 years at the Moccasin helm, saw his squad overcome an early deficit and win going away with consistently low rounds throughout the tournament. Three Moccasins fired the low round during each of the tournament's first three days and at least one Florida Southern golfer beat par during each round.

John Curley bested par twice for the tournament, including a second-round 68, and tied for second place individually, one stroke behind Baird. Chad Lucovsky and Dan Konieczny finished in the top 10 for the second consecutive year and helped Florida Southern post rounds of 301, 300, 303 and 300 for the crown.

Matlock had labeled his last year as "the year of the past." In 24 seasons, Matlock had won six titles, all since 1981.

"I think our kids felt like we were going to win," Matlock said after the Moccasins wrapped up their first championship since 1991. "We felt like the good ghosts were on our side and the bad ghosts were going to jump out of the woods on our opponents."

Second-place finisher South Carolina-Aiken, attempting to become the first host school since 1982 to win, bolted to a two-shot lead after the first round but posted a third-round 312 to fall out of contention.

Baird won medalist honors for the second consecutive year, joining Tampa's Jeff Leonard as the only golfers to win back-to-back championships. Baird blistered the field by six strokes last year but had to withstand a final round 68 by South Carolina-Aiken's Brian Kassel to win this year's crown.

Baird trailed by a shot after the first round, but built a three-stroke lead after firing a second-round 69. He padded his lead to four strokes going into the final round.

Valdosta State finished third, five shots behind South Carolina-Aiken. Rollins edged Abilene Christian for fourth place.

Methodist reigns in rain at III men's golf championships

Methodist waited out two days of rain and overcame a nine-stroke first-round deficit to win its second consecutive Division III Men's Golf Championships team title May 16-19 at Hulman Links Golf Course in Terre Haute, Indiana.

Senior Ryan Jenkins paced the Monarch attack, capturing medalist honors for the second time in three years. The team title was Methodist's fifth in six years.

Rain forced the tournament to be shortened to 54 holes for only the third time in championships history. The first round was delayed one ■ See complete results: Page 13.

day, and the second round was canceled after a steady rain developed on the afternoon of May 17. Rain stopped play again the next day, but players were able to complete the final two rounds May 19.

Jenkins was five shots behind Otterbein's Mark Paluszak after the first round, but fired rounds of 73 and 72 to finish the tournament two over par and seven shots ahead of Paluszak and two other players. Methodist's Jim Nickerson and Jamie Hurless, top-10 finishers a year ago, contributed again this year, finishing seventh and 11th, respectively. The Monarchs' final-round 296 topped the field by nine strokes and enabled Methodist to finish 18 shots ahead of second-place Otterbein and 25 in front of third-place John Carroll.

Methodist's final round included Jenkins' even-par 72, scores of 74 from Hurless and Ben Van Ness, and a 76 from Nickerson.

Paluszak's first-round 68 was the low round of the tournament and was part of an Otterbein team total of 293, also a tournament best. But the Cardinals faltered to 21 and 27 over par in the final rounds and could not stave off the Monarch charge.

John Carroll's third-place finish was buoyed by Steve Voinovich, who tied for second after tying for 20th place last year. Voinovich posted rounds of 77, 75 and 73 to tie Paluszak and UC San Diego's Alex Behrend.

Division I Women's Track and Field

Strong LSU seeks ninth straight crown

Event: 1995 Division I Women's Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Overview: This championship has become an LSU showcase. For eight straight years, coach Pat Henry's Tigers have been crowned champions, and odds are that LSU again will reign supreme this year. LSU's bid for a ninth team title is powered by sprinters. With D'Andre Hill (100- and 200-meter dashes), Youlanda Warren (400-meter dash), Kwajalein Butler (100-meter dash), Zundra Feagin (100- and 200-meter dashes), Kim Carson (100-meter hurdles) and the nation's top 400- and 1,600-meter relays, the Tigers have the talent and depth to retain the crown....UCLA should be LSU's primary competition in the team-title race. In contrast to LSU, the Bruins — who finished third last year rely heavily on the field-events squad. UCLA showcases Amy Acuff (high jump), Karen Hecox (1,500- and 3,000-meter runs), Dawn Dumble (shot put and discus throw), Valeyta Althouse (shot put and discus throw) and Suzy Powell (javelin and discus throw)....North Carolina, George Mason and Texas are among other teams that should battle for a topfive spot. North Carolina is paced by Marion Jones (100-meter dash and long jump). George Mason's hopes hinge on the performance of Diane Guthrie-Gresham, defending heptathlon champion. Meanwhile, Texas looks to defending 200-meter dash champion Merlene Frazer (100- and 200-meter dashes) to set the pace.

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows for a maximum of 357 participants. Dates and site: The championships will be May 31-June 3 at Tennessee. Television coverage: The championships will be broadcast tape-delayed by CBS at 4:30 p.m. (Eastern time) June 4.

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 7 issue of The NCAA

George Mason's Diane Guthrie-Gresham is the defending heptathlon champion.

Championships notes: Gillian Russell of Miami (Florida), two-time defending 100-meter hurdles champion, is vying to become the first championships competitor to win three consecutive titles in the event....LSU has registered the top three qualifying marks in the 400-meter relay....UCLA's Dawn Dumble has posted the top qualifying mark in the discus throw (59.68 meters) and the second-best mark in the shot put (17.79)....George Mason's Diane Guthrie-Gresham, defending heptathlon champion, owns the event's top qualifying mark (6,271 points), which is more than 500 points better than the second-best mark.

Division I Men's Track and Field

Arkansas faces a trio of challengers

Event: 1995 Division I Men's Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Overview: Arkansas has won the last three championships. A year ago, the Razorbacks amassed 83 points to outdistance runner-up UTEP by 38 points. This year's team race should be closer. UCLA, LSU and Tennessee all have their sights on the top spot. Until somebody proves otherwise, however, the Razorbacks are the class of the field. Arkansas' drive for a fourth consecutive team title is led by Arkansas' Graham Hood will vie for the 1,500-meter title.

Graham Hood (1,500-meter run), Jason Bunston (1,500- and 10,000-meter runs), Ray Doakes (high jump), Brandon Rock (800-meter run), Godfrey Siamusiye (5,000- and 10,000-meter runs) and Jerome Romain (triple jump)....UCLA, which finished 65 points behind the Razorbacks last year, may be Arkansas' biggest challenger. The Bruins' strength lies in the sprints and throwing events. Leading the way are John Godina (discus throw and shot put), Greg Johnson (javelin), Mark Parlin (shot put) and Ato Bolden (100- and 200-meter dashes).... Host Tennessee, which claimed the 1991 team title, hopes to claim its third title in front of its home fans. The Volunteers, who finished third last year, rely on the pole-vault duo of Tim Mack and Lawrence Johnson, Stewart Ellington (10,000meter run), Darius Pemberton (long jump), Rob Carlson (shot put), and Chad Smith (decathlon)....LSU, vying for its third men's team title, bases its title hopes on Rohsaan Griffin (200-meter dash), Milton Mallard (400-meter dash), Passmore Furusa (1,500-meter run) and Mario Sategna (decathlon).

Field: The NCAA Executive Committee has approved a qualifying procedure that allows for a maximum of 388 participants.

Dates and site: The championships will be May 31-June 3 at Tennessee.

Television coverage: The championships will be broadcast tape-delayed by CBS at 4:30 p.m. (Eastern time) June

Results: Championships results will appear in the June 7 issue of The NCAA Championships notes: Georgia's Brent Noon is vying to become the first shotput competitor to win four consecutive event titles. Noon and UCLA's Godina are the only shot-put competitors this year to exceed 20 meters in the event.

Groups wanting more restructuring information can request presentation

Groups interested in a presentation on the proposed NCAA restructuring plan can take care of their needs with a single phone call to the national office.

Although restructuring presentations already have been arranged for almost every Division I, II and III conference meeting this spring, NCAA legislative assistant Mike L. Racy said that other related organizations may desire more information on the subject. Such organizations include coaches associations and other administrative groups.

Representatives of such groups are requested to call Racy. After discussing the group's needs and learning its scheduling requirements, he will arrange for a speaker from the appropriate division task force. He will coordinate the speaker's travel and hotel arrangements, and the Association will pay for the presenter's travel expenses. Racy emphasized that arrangements can be made on short notice.

Racy said that the individuals making presentations will be asked not only to provide information to the group but also to deliver any substantive feedback to the appropriate division task force. The NCAA Presidents Commission will consider draft legislation on restructuring at its June 19-20 meeting.

Packages of restructuring educational material also are available for groups to request. Those packages include copies of the restructuring reports, summary information on the restructuring plan and relevant press releases. They are provided in both paper and overhead-transparency formats. The packages are customized by division.

Deaths

Tommy Prothro, the football coach who took Oregon State and UCLA to the Rose Bowl in consecutive years, died May 14 in Memphis, Tennessee, after a three-year struggle with cancer. He was 74. Prothro, a 1991 inductee into the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame, was the only coach to lead different teams to the Rose Bowl in consecutive years — Oregon State in 1965 and UCLA in 1966. His Oregon State teams compiled a 63-37-2 record through 10 seasons. He then compiled a 41-18-3 record at UCLA through 1970 - good for the third-best career winning percentage in UCLA history. Prothro went on to the professional level, coaching the Los Angeles Rams for two seasons. He resigned in 1978 from the San Diego Chargers.

Joe Vetrano, former assistant football coach at his alma mater, Southern Mississippi, died from heart failure May 10 in San Francisco. He was 76. Vetrano, known as "The Little Toe" and later as just "The Toe," was a place kicker with the San Francisco 49ers in the 1940s. Vetrano kicked 108 consecutive extra points during his four years there, an All-American Football Conference record. After he was cut from the team in 1950, Vetrano worked as an assistant coach and scout.

NCAA Bylaw 30.14-(e) Summer basketball leagues and state games — player limitations Divisions I and II institutions should note that in accordance with 30.14-(e), all Divisions I and II players must limit their summer basketball competition to one team in one NCAA-sanctioned league. Each team may include on its roster not more than one player with intercollegiate basketball eligibility remaining from any two- or four-year college. Please note that a student-athlete who is listed on the roster of a team and withdraws or is injured and will not continue to practice or compete may be replaced for the remainder of the season by another basketball student-athlete from the same institution. The institution is permitted only one replacement per team. Further, if a student-athlete (two- or four-year college student) is transferring and has been officially accepted for enrollment in a second institution, and the previous institution certifies that the student has withdrawn and does not intend to return to that institution for the next term, the student-athlete is not countable on the summer-league roster as a representative of either institution. Under such circumstances, written permission to participate in the sanctioned summer basketball league must be obtained from the institution to which the student-athlete is transferring. Also, a high-school or two-year college prospect, including one who has signed a National Letter of Intent, is not counted against any institution's limit of one player per team, inasmuch as he or she is not a student-athlete pursuant to 12.02.6.

Further, because there are no restrictions on the participation of Division III student-athletes in outside basketball competition during the summer pursuant to 14.7.5.2-(b), there are no limits on the number of student-athletes from any Division III institution who may participate in an NCAA sanctioned or nonsanctioned summer basketball league.

Finally. basketball student-athletes from Divisions I, II, and III institutions also may participate in state or national multisport events sanctioned by the NCAA Council; however, not more than two student-athletes from the same Division I or II institution may participate on the same team. There are no restrictions on the number of student-athletes from a Division III institution who may compete on the same team in state or national multisport basketball competition.

Bylaws 13.12.3 and 14.7.6.1 Exceptions and waivers for state games

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with 14.7.6.1-(d), a student-athlete who wishes to participate in officially recognized state and national multisport events must make sure, prior to such participation, that the event in question is sanctioned by the Council. The Council's approval is necessary in order to waive the prohibition against outside competition set forth in 14.7.1 (sports other than basketball) and 14.7.2 (basketball), and where applicable, to permit a coach and a student-athlete from the same institution to participate on the same team. In accordance with the provisions of 14.7.6.1-(d), the Council has issued a blanket waiver for specified 1995 state games. Please note that each institution's director of athletics must give written permission to the coordinator of the event in order for a student-athlete from that institution to be permitted to participate in the event.

In sports other than basketball, written permission is required only for events that take place during the academic year. In basketball, written permission is required for events that take place during the academic year as well as for events that take place during the summer.

Certification

CEO's involvement deemed critical to program; more volunteers sought for peer-review teams

unteer support to keep it running," said William E. Kirwan, president of the University of Maryland, College Park, who already has chaired two peer-review teams. "I'm a little bothered that we haven't received a larger number of offers (from presidents) to serve on site visits.

"This is a very important process. If we want to convince ourselves and the public that we have our house in order, we all have to be willing to contribute the time and effort to make this thing work."

The Committee on Athletics Certification, like Kirwan, is concerned with the low volunteer numbers. It also is at a loss to explain why a greater number of CEOs have not volunteered for the process, considering the NCAA Presidents Commission's influential role in adoption of the program.

In an effort to increase volunteer numbers among CEOs, the committee has asked the Division I subcommittee of the Presidents Commission to consider several alternatives, including:

- Sending a letter from the chair of the Presidents Commission and/or the Division I subcommittee to CEOs who have not yet volunteered.
- Asking conference commissioners to encourage CEOs to participate as chairs.

"We're sort of struggling to find out what it is that we haven't done to convince our colleagues," said Frederick W. Obear, chancellor of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga and a member of the Committee on Athletics Certification. "We're sort of puzzled why the number (of volunteers) isn't larger than it is.

"Given the fact that we need to have a large (volunteer) pool because of the restrictions

"I'm not going to deny that presidents are extremely busy, but busy people can always find time to do one additional thing. We have to remind ourselves that we have a common interest. All of us have a role in ensuring public confidence in the way intercollegiate athletics conducts itself."

■ Arthur K. Smith

President, University of Utah

we've put on ourselves — appropriately so — in picking chairs, once you start crossing names off the list, it gets thin very quickly."

Those restrictions include matching CEOs with division and subdivision institutions, if at all possible. In other words, the committee prefers to have a CEO from a Division I-A public institution chair a peer-review evaluation team of a similar institution.

So far, due to low volunteer numbers, the committee has had to ask approximately 10 CEOs to serve as chairs twice in a 1½-year period.

Recruitment efforts aside, the question remains: Why haven't more CEOs volunteered?

Obear cites many factors, including president turnover and job uncertainty, that may prevent a number of presidents from volunteering. He also believes that the committee has been a little slow — in relation to that turnover — contacting new presidents and informing them of the program.

Time is a factor

In many instances, however, the issue is time — or the lack of it.

The chair of a peer-review team is responsible, among other things, for reviewing the institution's self-study report, assigning team members to the four certification areas, overseeing the peer-review evaluation visit on campus, conducting the exit meeting on campus, and drafting the final peer-review team report. Each visit typically lasts three to four days.

Given time demands already placed on CEOs, many may feel that serving as chair of a peer-review team is all but impossible.

But CEOs who have served, either as a chair or a peer-review team member, say it is not.

"I'm not going to deny that presidents are extremely busy, but busy people can always find time to do one additional thing," said Arthur K. Smith, president of the University of Utah and chair of a peer-review team. "We have to remind ourselves that we have a common interest. All of us have a role in ensuring public confidence in the way intercollegiate athletics conducts itself."

Similar to accreditation

To presidents who have volunteered and to those who already have served as chairs or as members of peer-review teams, athletics certification is a means to ensure that confidence. Many liken it to regional accreditaion.

"As presidents, we participate in self-studies that deal with the accreditation of the university," said Frederick S. Humphries, president of Florida A&M University. "What I found in working with athletics certification is that it was very akin to the work we do when we serve on accreditation teams.

"The work was just as demanding, but just as you learn from working with accreditation, the same thing is true of the certification process.

"Yes, there is a time commitment. But I think that's all canceled out by what you learn"

To those who have volunteered and already served, the benefits gained through the process far outweigh drawbacks, such as time demands. Further, CEOs who have served as chairs say that the benefits extend beyond the institution under review to one's own campus.

"The process was time well-invested and educational for me," Smith said. "I learned some things that I was able to bring back to my own institution. I wouldn't want to do it every six months because it is a real time commitment. But I think if people are willing to make a commitment so that we all take our turn and all recognize that we have a common interest, this process will be very beneficial to us all."

Kirwan says participation not only is beneficial, but critical.

"We're almost at a crossroads with intercollegiate athletics," he said. "There are a lot of questions being raised about the way we conduct our business. I think this is a process that goes a long way toward restoring credibility. I just feel that it's very important. So much so, that I'm willing to carve out time to do it."
