Wooden wins 'Teddy'

John R. Wooden, six-time NCAA coach of the year and builder of the most recognized dynasty in collegiate basketball history, has been named winner of the Theodore Roosevelt Award, the most prestigious honor bestowed on an individual by the NCAA.

Wooden established a legacy as the head men's basketball coach at the University of California, Los Angeles, where he led the Bruins to 10 NCAA Division I men's basketball championships — including seven in a row from 1967 through 1973. Wooden's UCLA teams also won titles in 1964, 1965 and 1975.

In all, Wooden won 885 career games as a coach. He guided the Bruins to 88 consecutive wins from the 1971 season through most of the 1974 season and helped UCLA claim 16 Pacific-10 Conference championships during his 27-year tenure.

As a basketball player, Wooden was a three-time all-American at Purdue University and was named college basketball's player of the year in 1932.

He captained the Boilermakers in 1931 and 1932 and led Purdue to Big Ten Conference titles both years, as well as the national championship in 1932. Wooden also won the Big Ten medal for most outstanding merit and proficiency in scholarship and athletics in 1932.

Wooden was inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame as a player in 1960 and as a coach in 1972, and is the only person to be inducted in more than one category. He was named Sports' Man of the Year by The Sporting News in 1970 and was Sports Illus-trated's Sportsman of the Year in 1973.

He also won the first annual Dr. James Naismith Peach Basket Award in 1974 for outstanding contributions to basketball.

An Indiana native, Wooden graduated with honors from Purdue in 1932 and began a career in teaching at a high school in Dayton, Kentucky, where he also coached a variety of sports. Two years later, Wooden returned to Indiana, where for nine years he coached basketball, baseball and tennis and taught English at South Bend Central High.

World War II interrupted Wooden's coaching career, and from 1943 to 1946, he served in the U.S. Navy with the rank of lieutenant. After his discharge, Wooden went to Indiana State University as director of athletics and basketball and baseball coach for two seasons before taking the basketball coaching position at UCLA.

Wooden is involved in church and charity work. He limits his speaking engagements to 18 per year through John Wooden Enterprises, Inc., and he donates most of his honorariums to charities and churches.

Proposal seeks to adjust aid limits in women's sports

This is the third of six articles on legislation that has been submitted for the 90th annual NCAA Convention January 6-10 in Dallas. This installment features the nine proposals of the amateurism/awards/benefits grouping and the five proposals of the financial aid grouping.

Division I institutions will consider proposed adjustments in financial aid limits for several women's sports during the 1996 Convention.

The proposal, one of five included in the financial aid grouping of legislation for the Convention, would increase limits in several sports but also would decrease limits in a few emerging sports.

The proposed adjustments were recommended by the NCAA Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism, which studied grant-in-aid limits in NCAA sports.

The study, which included consultation with coaches associations, NCAA sports committees and other groups, resulted in the development of several basic principles for use in determining appropriate grant limits.

Using those principles, the financial aid committee determined that the following increases are appropriate — in most cases for gender-equity purposes:

■ Increase the maximum head count in women's gymnastics from 10 to 12 counters.

■ Increase maximum grant-in-aid equivalencies in cross country/track from 16 to 18; in field hockey from 11 to 12; in lacrosse from 11 to 12; in soccer from 11 to 12; and in softball from 11 to 12.

■ Increase from five to six the maximum equivalency in women's cross country at institutions that do not sponsor track.

The committee also determined that some grant equivalencies were set "inappropriately" high two years ago when the Association established several emerging sports for women. As a result, the committee recommended reducing equivalencies in badminton from eight to six; in squash from nine to five; and in team handball from 12 to 10.

Adoption of the proposal would not affect limits in other women's sports or in any Division I men's sport.

Other proposals

Two other proposals would affect elements of a grant-in-aid.

One of the proposals, recommended by the financial aid committee, would increase the amount attributable to books in the calculation of a grant in equivalency sports. The amount would increase from $200 to $400.

The other proposal, sponsored by the Pacific-10 Conference, would permit inclusion of course-related supplies (in addition to books) in a full grant-in-aid. Such supplies could not exceed $450 per academic year.

The financial aid grouping also includes proposals that would:

■ Include the AmeriCorps program among sources of government grants exempted from consideration in the calculation of institutional aid.

■ Extend to Division II a rule currently used in Division I that permits a multiple-sport student-athlete to practice in football without being a football counter. Such an individual would become a football counter only upon participating in intercollegiate competition in that sport.

Amateurism/awards/benefits

Delegates to the 1996 Convention also are scheduled to consider nine proposals in a legislative grouping pertaining to amateurism, awards and benefits.

At least one of those proposals, however, will be withdrawn — a proposed definition of professional athletics teams and leagues that was designed to assist member institutions in determining whether individual student-athletes have jeopardized their eligibility through involvement with such organizations.

Executive Committee to discuss '94-95 budget surplus

The NCAA Executive Committee is expected to determine how to apply unallocated excess revenues from the 1994-95 fiscal year when it meets December 7-8 in Kansas City.

The unallocated surplus for 1994-95 is slightly more than $24 million. At this meeting, the Executive Committee will determine how much of that money will be returned to the Division I membership. Also, if the committee approves a supplemental distribution, it will determine the means by which it will be distributed.

In recent years, such distributions have been made through the basketball and "broad-based" (sports sponsorship and grants-in-aid) funds of the NCAA revenue-distribution plan.

Other financial matters at the December meeting will include a report on the status of federal funding for the National Youth Sports Program; the report of the treasurer for the fiscal year that ended August 31, 1995; an analysis of 1994-95 NCAA championships; and a status report on the location of the NCAA national office.

Other business

The Executive Committee also will hear a report from the Focus Group to Consider Possible Financial Aid and Benefits for Student-Athletes. That group reported to the Presidents Commission in September, and the Divisions I and II subcommittees of the Commission had the following reactions:

■ Any proposal to increase benefits to student-athletes should not result in increased costs to campus budgets.

■ Increases in grants-in-aid up to the cost of attendance in all sports probably would not be supported, but support may exist for addressing the financial need of student-athletes up to the cost of attendance.

■ The subcommittees expressed considerable sentiment for providing additional benefits to student-athletes through existing special programs (such as the special-assistance fund).

■ Some sentiment was expressed for benefits that would apply to student-athletes in all divisions.

The Executive Committee is expected to discuss those reactions and probably will focus on questions involving cost of attendance and use of existing programs.

Another key committee — the NCAA Special Committee to Review NCAA Marketing, Promotional and Licensing Activities, chaired by Robert Lawless of Texas Tech University — will report for the first time. That committee will conduct its first meeting December 5 in Kansas City.

Other general and special committee reports will include the following: Student-Athlete Advisory, Minority Opportunities and Interests, and Olympic Sports Liaison Committees; Oversight Committee on the NCAA Membership Structure; and the Committee on Women's Athletics.

NCAA News DIGEST

A weekly summary of major activities within the Association

Initial eligibility

Justice Department examines learning-disability question

The Justice Department is investigating whether the NCAA is discriminating against student-athletes with learning disabilities. The case was prompted by a swimmer who has a learning disability. According to The Associated Press, the student meets grade point and test-score requirements but does not meet the 13-core-course standard. He is pursuing relief under the provisions of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). "This is by no means a cut-and-dried violation," said John Wodatch, chief of the disabilities rights section of the department's civil rights section. "We are trying to understand how this policy works and whether it violates the disabilities act." Wodatch also said, "We will look at the rules from the point of view of this kid. But there are reasons these systems were created. The act does not require that we destroy those goals. It requires reasonable accommodation short of a fundamental alteration." The Association's staff has consulted with government officials for the past two years to achieve ADA compliance in eligibility matters.

Registration

Registration fees will be collected at the registration counters at the Wyndham Anatole in Dallas. American Express, MasterCard and Visa credit cards will be accepted, along with personal or institutional checks. The dates of the Convention are January 6-10. Staff contact: Louis J. Spry.

Restructuring

Knight Commission supports proposed restructuring plan

The Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics is urging college presidents to work for adoption of the membership restructuring plan at the 1996 NCAA Convention. A guest editorial by the coauthors of the Division II Task Force to Review the NCAA Membership Structure appears on page 4. Commentary from the Division I task force will appear in the December 11 issue, and a guest editorial by Joseph N. Crowley, chair of the Oversight Committee on the NCAA Membership Structure, will appear December 18.

Equipment

Executive Committee to consider bat standard

The NCAA Baseball Rules Committee has voted to recommend a maximum level of baseball bat performance for the 1996 season to the NCAA Executive Committee. If approved, the standard would affect the performance of bats for regular-season and NCAA championship baseball competition in 1996. The rules committee agreed to recommend that a bat with a maximum Bat Performance Factor of 1.14, with a .01 margin of error, may be used in intercollegiate baseball competition in 1996. The Bat Performance Factor is the increase in the liveliness of a ball hitting a bat compared to throwing a ball against a solid wall. In this case, a ball that hits off a stationary bat that has a BPF of 1.15 will rebound 15 percent faster than a ball that hits off a solid wall (a solid wall has a BPF of 1.00).

Convention

Flat $100 fee to be used for delegates to '96 event

A flat registration fee of $100 per person will be charged for the 1996 NCAA Convention in Dallas. The only exception will be for representatives of commercial enterprises, in which cases a $200 fee will be charged. The registration fee covers delegate entertainment costs, such as the delegates reception, luncheons and the honors dinner. Chief executive officers are reminded that NCAA Bylaw 5.1.3.1 stipulates that institutions or conferences that designate both a male and a female as voting or alternate delegates on the appointment-of-delegates form will be allowed to appoint four accredited delegates. In all other circumstances, institutions will be limited to not more than three delegates. They may have any number of visiting (nonvoting) delegates.

Executive Committee

Supplemental distribution to be discussed at December meeting

The NCAA Executive Committee is expected to determine how to apply unallocated excess revenues from the 1994-95 fiscal year when it meets December 7-8 in Kansas City, Missouri. The unallocated surplus for 1994-95 is slightly more than $24 million. At this meeting, the Executive Committee will determine how much of that money will be returned to the Division I membership. Also, if the committee approves a supplemental distribution, it will determine the means by which it will be distributed. In recent years, such distributions have been made through the basketball and "broad-based" (sports-sponsorship and grants-in-aid) funds of the NCAA revenue-distribution plan. For more information, see page 1. Staff contacts: Tricia Bork and Frank E. Marshall.

Legislation

35 proposals to be considered on Presidential Agenda Day

A total of 35 proposals will be considered January 8 during Presidential Agenda Day of the 1996 NCAA Convention. Presidential Agenda Day features proposals identified by the NCAA Presidents Commission as being of significant interest to chief executive officers. Sessions January 8 will be devoted to those proposals, first in an early morning general business session dedicated to restructuring and then in midmorning subdivision and division business sessions. The day will continue in afternoon division business sessions and then conclude with a second general business session. In all, 133 proposals are contained in the Official Notice of the 1996 Convention, which was mailed to the membership November 15. Staff contacts: Nancy L. Mitchell or Daniel T. Dutcher.

Briefly in the News

Calm restored after 'madness'

Tyrone Pierce decided to throw a party after the Midnight Madness event that officially tipped off the 1995-96 men's basketball season for the University of California, Los Angeles — the defending Division I champion.

Pierce, a member of the Bruins football team, did not quite expect the early-morning madness that ensued. A crowd of about 300 people milled around Pierce's apartment — where the party was held — breaking bottles and refusing police orders to disperse.

After 16 members of the university police department and another dozen Los Angeles police officers could not persuade the partiers to go home, Pierce asked officers if he and several teammates could help restore peace and order.

Thirty minutes after getting the OK from officers, Jonathan Ogden, Tommy Bennett and Pierce moved into the crowd and were successful in dispersing the horde.

"We just did what was necessary," Pierce told Steve Springer of the Los Angeles Times.

"We didn't do anything anybody else wouldn't have done," said Ogden, whose 6-foot-8, 310-pound frame might have been a persuasive factor. "I might (have been) a little bit more effective."

Said Bennett: "We're not heroes. We didn't save anybody's life. We were just good Samaritans."

For their assistance, UCLA police chief Clarence Chapman and seven members of his squad paid the three players a visit at practice November 9. The players were awarded commendations for helping diffuse a potentially dangerous situation.

Excelling despite disorder

Reading never has come easy to Mary Prescott.

But despite the obstacles presented by dyslexia — a learning disorder — Prescott has succeeded in the rigorous academic environment at Rochester Institute of Technology, where she also plays varsity tennis.

Mary Prescott hasn't let dyslexia keep her from excelling in the classroom. Prescott, a senior on the Rochester Institute of Technology women's tennis team, received the A. Stephen Walls scholarship, which is awarded to a student-athlete who demonstrates outstanding leadership.

Prescott's ability to overcome dyslexia has not gone unnoticed. The senior, who is working toward a degree in imaging and photographic technology, received the A. Stephen Walls Memorial Scholarship last year. The award, named for a physical education professor at Rochester Institute of Technology, is presented to a student-athlete who demonstrates outstanding leadership.

"Mary's first priority is on her demanding academic studies," said Rochester Institute of Technology women's tennis coach Ann Nealon. "The challenge of dealing with learning difficulties has made her realize that she has to work harder than her peers."

"RIT has given me the opportunity to play tennis and fulfill a dream," Prescott said. "They've been very supportive to the special needs of the learning-challenged. If I told my high-school classmates I was going to college, they would have laughed in my face. But when I got to RIT, I knew nothing would stop me from graduating."

One-of-a-kind network

Canisius College and Niagara University have joined to establish a radio network that will cover both schools' men's basketball programs this season.

The Basketball Net is composed of two Niagara Falls, Ontario, stations — CJRN-AM and CFLZ-FM. The tentative schedule calls for 46 games to be broadcast during the 1995-96 season.

"We're delighted to have (them) broadcast our basketball games," Niagara sports marketing coordinator Chris Brinza said. "With our proximity to southern Ontario, these two stations only will enhance our presence in the region."

Said Canisius sports information director John Maddock: "We are very excited about the arrangement. It keeps us in western New York and opens up the southern Ontario market for us. We have two Canadians on our basketball roster and a total of 25 Canadian student-athletes in our program."

First one always sweetest

Albright College's football program finally has experienced the thrill of a postseason football victory.

For the first time in the 87-year history of the program, the Lions won a game after the regular season. Albright defeated Salisbury State University, 20-10, to capture the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Southwest Region championship November 18. Albright quarterback Bryan Snyder set ECAC records for pass completions (26) and pass attempts (44) in a championship game.

"This was a great moment for our football program," third-year Albright coach Kevin Kiesel said. "It was an important season for the kids as well as for the college."

Earlier this year, the Albright baseball team earned a postseason berth for the first time in the program's 100-year history.

Looking back

5 years ago: The NCAA Executive Committee approves recommendations December 3, 1990, for distribution of revenues from the Association's television contract with CBS. Among features of the plan — which will eliminate distribution of net receipts based on performance or participation in championships — are catastrophic-injury insurance for student-athletes, distributions to Division I conferences based on recent performance in the Division I Men's Basketball Championships, distributions based on sports sponsorship and athletically related grants-in-aid, financial enhancement for Division II, an academic-enhancement fund, and a needy student-athlete fund. The Executive Committee delays approval of details of the grant-in-aid component of the distribution plan, pending further study. (The NCAA News, December 10 and 19, 1990)

60 years ago: The NCAA agrees at its 1935 Convention December 27 to appoint a committee to study the effects of radio broadcasting on attendance at intercollegiate athletics contests. The study is prompted at least in part by recent declines in football attendance; attendance was down 34 percent in 1934, although it staged a slight recovery in 1935. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

70 years ago: The Association agrees at its 1925 Convention December 30 to appoint a special committee to study the overemphasis of football and effects of professional football on the intercollegiate game. ("NCAA: The Voice of College Sports")

85 years ago: The Intercollegiate Athletic Association of the United States agrees during its 1910 Convention December 29 to change the name of the organization to the National Collegiate Athletic Association. The membership also divides itself into seven geographic districts and votes to expand the Association's governing body — the Executive Committee — to include one representative from each athletics conference consisting of seven or more members. Seventeen football players receive scholar-athlete awards

National Football Foundation awards $18,000 to each honoree for postgraduate study

The National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame has announced its 1995 class of Scholar-Athlete Award winners.

Seventeen scholar-athletes — including 16 at NCAA institutions — were chosen by a committee to receive postgraduate scholarships from the foundation. Each student-athlete, currently in his final year of athletics eligibility, will receive $18,000 for postgraduate study.

Additional scholarships will be awarded to some of the recipients during the foundation's awards dinner December 12 at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City. Among awards to be presented then are the $25,000 Draddy Scholarship, to be awarded to the top scholar-athlete. Overall, the foundation's scholarships total more than $340,000.

The foundation also announced that some of the scholar-athletes will receive supplemental postgraduate scholarships totaling $29,000.

Criteria for selection as a scholar-athlete include a grade-point average of 3.000 or better (4.000 scale), superior academic performance, outstanding performance as a first-team football player, and outstanding leadership and citizenship.

This year's scholar-athletes have an average GPA of 3.637. The foundation's awards committee received a record 152 nominations for the scholarships.

Restructuring answers Division II's questions

BY ADAM W. HERBERT AND LYNN L. DORN
DIVISION II TASK FORCE TO REVIEW
THE NCAA MEMBERSHIP STRUCTURE

As cochair of the Division II Task Force to Review the NCAA Membership Structure, as a member of the Division II subcommittee of the NCAA Presidents Commission and as the Division II vice-president, we wholeheartedly support the membership-restructuring proposal (1996 NCAA Convention Proposal No. 7) that will be considered in Dallas this January.

Herbert

We realized early in our discussions with colleagues from Divisions I and III that restructuring has to be a combined effort of all three divisions. After 18 months of compromises and resolutions, we believe that we have provided Division II with the absolute best plan to maintain current Association services, programs and championships while providing our division with the opportunity to address membership needs for the next several years.

Dorn

During the last six months, members of the Division II task force have traveled the country to attend Division II conference meetings. We believed it was important to communicate developments with our constituencies and to provide our membership with an opportunity to participate in developing this restructuring plan. This campaign has been rewarding and valuable.

Through our travels, we have developed a list of the various issues and concerns expressed by the Division II membership. Listed below are the most-asked questions regarding restructuring and the answers to these questions.

Q: Is the current Division II legislative process drastically altered by restructuring?

A: No. Division II, like Division III, will maintain its current system of "one institution/one vote." There are a few minor adjustments that will occur in the requirements to sponsor legislation. For example, 15 institutions must agree to sponsor a Division II legislative proposal in the restructured

Agents a problem, but not the only one

Letter

Limiting contact by agents with student-athletes is a wonderful idea, but let's first acknowledge that the lack of agent regulation is not the only problem in collegiate athletics and it is not the source of all the problems that exist.

To begin, collegiate athletics is a multi-billion dollar business. Take for instance the NCAA and its eight-year, $1.725 billion contract with CBS for the Division I men's basketball tournament. This clearly indicates that colleges — and the NCAA, the governing body of college athletics — are making money off student-athletes. It's no wonder that student-athletes are looking to eat a slice of the pie.

The only difference between the NCAA, its member institutions, sports agents and student-athletes is that student-athletes are not allowed to share in the profits. So now, many agents see an opportunity to fatten their coffers by enticing student-athletes with some sort of compensation. Not out of the kindness of their hearts, but for self-serving reasons.

I am not saying that unscrupulous agents are not to blame because they are. Agents as a whole, both respectable and unscrupulous, need to be regulated. That, however, is more within the domain of the players associations. The current rules on the books need to be enforced. However, student-athletes need to make sure they are not part of the problem.

It's very easy, athletes. Set your criteria early in the selection process, like Mike Alstott from Purdue (see The NCAA News, November 13). If you want to respond only to mail, then do so. Don't take gifts or money from strangers. This includes your family, too. Involve your family and those to whom you feel closest in your selection process. This will help alleviate some of the pressure.

Calling all athletes: As a former tutor for the University of Pittsburgh's Academic Support Service for Student-Athletes, I stressed to my students the importance of education and information. Now I do the same for you.

Calling all agents: As Mr. Alstott mentioned in his article, the focus should be to inform and educate the student-athlete and his family, not sign him or risk spoiling his eligibility.

It is high time for agents to be regulated. Approximately 23 states require that agents register with them, and certain colleges do, as well. However, federal laws need to be put on the books. Student-athletes can do only so much to stop agent corruption. Colleges can do only so much to stop agent interference. The federal government, however, can do a great deal more to bring about uniform laws that apply to all.

It is time for intervention. Let's hope it comes sooner and not later.

Now, of course, it would be nice if agents could regulate themselves, but obviously, that's not working. Too bad many of them can't go back to kindergarten and learn what they should have learned: Don't lie, don't cheat, wait until it's your turn and be considerate of others.

Big winner will aid acceptance of black football coaches

Ron Brown, receivers coach
University of Nebraska, Lincoln

Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Discussing the lack of minority football coaches:

"In our country, you don't see a lot of black men getting put into a position of leadership. How many black coaches are entering the profession? It just doesn't seem that there are that many.

"The (NCAA) rules have limited the number of people who can be on a staff, which in most cases means limiting the number of black coaches. It's going to be interesting with the decline of affirmative action. Not so much that the numbers might be excluded, but the mentality that, 'We don't need to give this guy a chance; we've done enough.'

"That's subjective. We keep talking about objective standards. But we fail to realize that the job doesn't always go to the most qualified candidate. You meet certain criteria to become a candidate. From there it becomes subjective....

"Perceptions are that people measure the final results. We're talking about men who are doing well, considering the obstacles. There are many ways to measure progress. Just because it's not easily identifiable doesn't mean it isn't being made. When somebody emerges as a recognizable, national-winner type, then perceptions around the country will be, 'Well, this is working.'"

Jim Caldwell, head football coach
Wake Forest University

Knight-Ridder Newspapers

"When one guy does move up, they're not being replenished. So in some areas, we're losing ground. Areas of importance. And if you look at the overall numbers, they're also declining. And we're losing guys to the pros. We need to establish a foundation in terms of the big picture. We need to have resources in place to draw from....

"The minute you stop pursuing it and say everything's OK, when indeed it's not, I think you see it reverse itself and you're back in the past."

Women's athletics

Linda Wells, softball coach
Arizona State University

Minneapolis Star-Tribune

Discussing the NCAA's creation of women's championships in the early 1980s and the subsequent demise of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women:

"What happened was, women became molded into the male model....

"When I was young, I was part of the collective optimism in a break-the-bank theory. I thought the whole model would have to change, that (men's pro sports) couldn't keep being big revenue, big money, big deal. I lost that optimism a long time ago.

"We never address how strong we're tied economically to men's professional entities. The average person has no idea what contributions they make, willingly or unknowingly. Look at the money involved: It comes from me and you having to pay $130 for a pair of tennis shoes, from car-rental taxes, restaurant taxes paying for new stadiums. We sell out education and families; we will sacrifice anything for our men to play whatever sport. We just continue to be as dumb as rocks when it comes to our sports culture."

Chris Voelz, women's athletics director
University of Minnesota, Twin Cities

Minneapolis Star-Tribune

"In 20 years, we will have filled stands in volleyball, gymnastics, soccer, basketball, softball and ice hockey. We will be more competitive. Athletics will take on a different role in terms of making money, while still maintaining our values. I think, in 20 years, you'll have little Minnesotans, little girls, dreaming of being Golden Gophers. That will be a real thing, more so than it is now....

"Nothing is more permanent than change, and we are being told it must be an economic-driven model. That's not unlike the rest of this university.

"It's about, 'Can we make a profit?' We used to think we had the corner on the purist amateur. There's a need for us to go with the mainstream, and the mainstream expectations of us are to generate gate receipts and donations."

Football success

Gary Barnett, football coach
Northwestern University

Chicago Sun-Times

"I wish there was some heavy formula I could tell you about.

"There's no simple answer, and it just doesn't happen. More than anything else, we've gone after (good players). When I got here, I felt like they had not gone after the best. We've heard mostly nos, but we've gotten just enough yesses to where we now have a combination of role-playing kids and a couple of real good players.

"You've got something to recruit with: a school that arguably has the No. 1 (academic degree) in Division I....I saw something I could sell."

Revenue

Duane Simpkins, basketball player
University of Maryland, College Park

The Washington Post

Discussing corporate partnership arrangements and other revenue-producing ventures:

"Of course, it's a part of college sports. This is a money-making business. But at the same time, I think it will hit everyone in a couple of years that this isn't 100 percent right that the school benefits so much from revenue....and student-athletes don't get a penny, really. I think they'll realize they are getting away with robbery."

Restructuring

Division II's interests have been kept in mind with development of NCAA membership-restructuring plan

Association, as opposed to the current requirement of eight institutions. However, the Convention setting and institutional vote system of conducting business will remain the same for Division II. The Division II administrative structure does change. Division II, like Divisions I and III, has attempted to streamline and simplify its governance structure. Presidents will be vested with the direct and ultimate control of governing Division II. The Division II Presidents Council will have broader powers than the current Division II subcommittee of the Presidents Commission. Subordinate to this presidential body will be the Division II Management Council. This Council, which will be composed of athletics administrators and faculty athletics representatives, is expected to conduct the day-to-day operations for the division. An organizational chart describing each Council's composition and responsibilities appears elsewhere on this page.

Q: Does this restructuring plan provide each division with too much authority?

A: No. All three divisions have agreed for many years that greater divisional autonomy was needed to properly address issues specific to each division. While greater efficiency and responsiveness will be a reality through this enhanced federation, the restructuring proposal maintains an Executive Committee composed of CEOs to oversee Association-wide issues and to ensure that each division operates consistent with the basic purposes, fundamental policies and general principles of the Association. This proposed Executive Committee is an example of the simplification of the Association's administrative structure. Instead of the three governing entities that exist in the current system (Council, Commission and Executive Committee), the new structure will feature just one Association-wide governing group (Executive Committee).

Q: Is Division II guaranteed representation on this proposed Executive Committee?

A: Yes. Two members from the Division II Presidents Council will represent the division in Association-wide deliberations. This guarantee gives Division II a representative voice consistent with the number of Division II members serving on the current Executive Committee. In addition, the chair of the Division II Management Council will serve on this Executive Committee as an ex-officio member. It also should be noted that the proposed Executive Committee will be composed exclusively of CEOs. Historically, CEOs have demonstrated an ability to set aside divisional boundaries to work through Association-wide matters.

Q: Will the schedules of Division II presidents allow them to participate in a restructured Association?

A: Yes. History shows us that many Division II presidents have dedicated an enormous amount of time to Association business. For example, many CEOs have spent concurrent time on the Presidents Commission, the NCAA Council and various NCAA committees. Also, in recent years, presidents have demonstrated a commitment to a more hands-on approach in intercollegiate athletics by "leading the charge" in the Association's reform movement. This proposed governance change does not necessarily mean an increased time commitment. Instead, it merely makes presidents accountable by vesting them with ultimate and direct authority. While it is true that presidents will have increased responsibilities in this new structure, we think you will see many of their tasks and assignments delegated to the Management Council to perform. Thus, the Division II Presidents Council will function primarily in an oversight capacity.

Q: Will Division II benefit financially in this new governance structure?

A: Yes. We entered the restructuring negotiations with care and prudence. While we did not want to be viewed as an obstacle to restructuring, we did want to protect Division II's programs and to ensure its future. Our colleagues in Divisions I and III have consistently cooperated in meeting our needs and requests. First, Division II will receive a budget allocation for championships and enhancements at a constitutionally protected rate that the division currently receives (4.37 percent). This guarantee is of all existing sources of revenue and will include any modified, extended or successor contract for such sources (e.g., a new basketball television agreement). As a result, the division will receive a substantial increase in dollars due to the addition of funds to the Association's budget from the new CBS television contract.

Second, the Association's overall budget will continue to provide for basic administrative services and programs through the national office, the costs of governance, the costs associated with administering the drug-testing program and the costs associated with catastrophic-injury insurance. These guarantees may be altered only by a two-thirds vote of the membership in all three divisions.

Q: Will the new governance structure feature common committees with Association-wide functions and responsibilities?

A: Yes. All divisions have agreed to a preliminary list of 11 current general committees that will be maintained as Association-wide in the new structure. Additional committees may be added to this preliminary list following review by the new governance system's transition teams. Legislation establishing the Association's new substructure will be considered by the membership at the 1997 Convention.

Q: Are there contingency plans to address issues regarding the influx of new members to a division?

A: Yes. It is acknowledged that the new budget process empowers the Executive Committee to allocate resources to assist with extraordinary circumstances affecting a division. In fact, the restructuring oversight committee's report specifies that significant growth in membership in a division is an example of an Association-wide issue and an exceptional situation that would require the Executive Committee to give serious consideration to approving additional funds requested by a division. Also, the NCAA Council adopted noncontroversial legislation (effective immediately) at its August 7-9 meeting that establishes a moratorium on accepting provisional members until the Association's restructuring efforts are completed. This action will permit Divisions II and III to move forward with restructuring the Association's governance system at the 1996 Convention and address divisional membership issues at the 1997 Convention.

As you can see, Division II's concerns have been adequately addressed by this restructuring plan. While some issues remain on the horizon, we are confident that this plan provides the Association and our division with the best system to address these issues. Therefore, we urge your attendance at this year's Convention and we encourage your support of Proposal No. 7.

Lynn L. Dorn is Division II vice-president and director of women's athletics at North Dakota State University. Adam W. Herbert is president of the University of North Florida and chair of the Division II subcommittee of the NCAA Presidents Commission.

■ Administrative Committee minutes

Conference No. 21 November 15, 1995

1. Acting for the NCAA Council, the Administrative Committee:

a. Denied a request by Central State University (Ohio) for a waiver of the membership moratorium to permit the institution to apply for Division II provisional membership in September 1996, inasmuch as the institution indicated in September 1992 that it was suspending plans to apply for membership and had not contacted the national office again until after the moratorium was established.

b. Approved an amendment to Bylaw 11.02.3.4.1 to specify that the Council (rather than the Administrative Review Panel) be authorized to grant requests to allow a restricted-earnings coach to temporarily replace a head or assistant basketball coach when that individual no longer is employed by the institution (e.g., the coach resigns to accept a position at a different institution).

c. Approved a request by Boston College for an incidental-expense waiver to permit the institution to reimburse two football players for items stolen from their residence hall while they were on a team trip.

d. Denied a request by Duke University for an incidental-expense waiver to permit the institution to purchase health insurance for a basketball student-athlete.

e. Denied a request by Marquette University for an incidental-expense waiver to permit the institution to provide expenses for a basketball student-athlete to have her wisdom teeth removed, inasmuch as the student-athlete's family insurance will cover the expense if it is done in her hometown.

f. Approved a request by Tulane University for an incidental-expense waiver to permit the institution to pay a student-athlete's registration fee for the computer-based Graduate Record Examination, inasmuch as the student-athlete missed the written-based exam due to competition.

■ Interpretations Committee minutes

Conference No. 15 November 7, 1995

Acting for the Council, the committee issued the following interpretations:

Unethical Conduct/Fraudulent Academic Credit

1. Arranging for Fraudulent Academic Credit. The provisions of NCAA Bylaw 10.1(b) are applicable to a student-athlete or prospective student-athlete who engages in academic fraud (e.g., cheating on course work) in an effort to meet applicable eligibility requirements at either a two-year or four-year collegiate institution, regardless of whether such course work is actually used to satisfy such eligibility requirements. [Reference: Bylaw 10.1(b) (unethical conduct)]

Nonscholastic-Based Basketball/Athletics Department Staff Members

2. Athletics Department Staff Members' Involvement With Nonscholastic Basketball Teams. The committee recommends that the NCAA Council consider reversing a previous Council-approved committee decision (reference: June 6, 1991, telephone conference, Item No. 5) and, thus, permit an institution's athletics department staff member who is not involved in any coaching responsibilities to be involved in coaching activities with a nonscholastic-based basketball team, including teams that involve participants who have reached prospect age. [References: 13.12.1.4 (nonscholastic-based basketball) and IC 6/6/91, Item No. 5]

Amateurism/Awards/Scholar-Athlete

3. Donation Forwarded to an Institution Based on Student-Athlete's Recognition as Scholar-Athlete. An institution may receive a cash donation based on one of its student-athletes being recognized by a non-professional organization as a recipient of a scholar-athlete award, provided the student-athlete's academic performance ultimately is the only criterion used in selecting the recipient of the award. The committee noted that the recipient may be selected from a predetermined pool of candidates whose selection is based on objective criteria that may relate in some manner to athletics performance (e.g., participants must be on the institution's first team), provided the award is not based in any manner on the student-athlete's athletics performance in a particular event or sports season. [References: 12.1.2(l) (forms of pay), 12.6.2.3 (academic performance) and 16.1.3.4 (transfer of nonpermissible award), and IC 3/16/95, Item No. 2] ciple.

The proposal would specify small or inconsequential — or "de minimis" — violations that primarily occur as a result of institutional error and therefore should not affect a student-athlete's or prospect's eligibility.

Institutions still would be required to report such violations, even though they no longer would have eligibility implications.

Another proposal resulting from an Eligibility Committee recommendation would permit institutions to administer an "amateurism exception" in cases involving

The Council agreed to withdraw the proposal after concerns were expressed about a section of the proposed definition that would have deemed a team professional if any of its members receive compensation beyond actual and necessary expenses. The definition would have been inconsistent with the NCAA Eligibility Committee's position that a student-athlete's eligibility should not be affected by the impermissible actions of a third party.

The Eligibility Committee is the source of another proposal in the grouping that is based largely on that prin-

1995 Column No. 43

NCAA Bylaw 14.1.6.2.1.2

Eligibility between terms

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with NCAA Bylaw 14.1.6.2.1.2, a student-athlete is eligible for intercollegiate competition that takes place between terms under the following conditions: (1) a student-athlete who is continuing enrollment must have been registered for the required minimum full-time program of studies at the conclusion of the term immediately preceding the date of the competition, or (2) a student-athlete who is either continuing enrollment or beginning enrollment must have been accepted for enrollment as a regular full-time student for the regular term immediately following.

NCAA Bylaw 14.1.7.2

Eligibility for competition and practice following student-athlete's final semester or quarter

NCAA institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaw 14.1.7.2, a student-athlete who is eligible during the term in which degree work is completed (or eligible as a graduate, pursuant to Bylaw 14.1.7) remains eligible for any NCAA championship, and in Division I for any postseason certified bowl game or National Invitation Tournament, that begins within 60 days after the end of the term in which the student completes the requirements for the degree (or graduate eligibility). The NCAA Council, or a committee designated by the Council to act for it, may waive the 60-day requirement when an NCAA championship, postseason certified bowl game or National Invitation Tournament is conducted at the conclusion of the traditional playing season but more than 60 days following the end of the said term. During its June 30, 1992, telephone conference, the NCAA Interpretations Committee determined that a student-athlete who completes his or her degree requirements may participate in regular-season competition that precedes an NCAA championship (in that sport) that begins within 60 days after the end of the term in which the student completes the requirements for the degree (or graduate eligibility), provided the student-athlete has not exhausted his or her five years or 10 semesters/15 quarters of eligibility. Further, inasmuch as a student-athlete who is eligible pursuant to Bylaws 14.1.6.2.1.3 and 14.1.7.2 for any NCAA championship, and in Division I for any postseason certified bowl game or National Invitation Tournament, the student-athlete also may participate in practice activities during that time.

NCAA Bylaws 14.4.3.2.1 and 14.4.3.2.2

Satisfactory progress — fulfillment of percentage of degree requirements

NCAA Division I institutions should note that in accordance with Bylaws 14.4.3.2.1 (50 percent requirement) and 14.4.3.2.2 (25/50/75 percent requirement) (for student-athletes entering a collegiate institution on or after July 1, 1991, but prior to August 1, 1992), a student-athlete who is entering his or her fourth or subsequent year of collegiate enrollment shall have completed successfully at least 50 percent of the course requirements in the student-athlete's specific degree program in order to be eligible for intercollegiate competition. In accordance with Bylaw 14.4.3.2.2 (for student-athletes entering a collegiate institution on or after August 1, 1992), a student-athlete who is entering his or her third year of collegiate enrollment shall have completed successfully at least 25 percent of the course requirements in the student-athlete's specific degree program. Such a student-athlete who is entering his or her fourth year of collegiate enrollment shall have completed successfully at least 50 percent of the course requirements in the student-athlete's specific degree program. Finally, such a student-athlete who is entering his or her fifth year of collegiate enrollment shall have completed successfully at least 75 percent of the course requirements in the student-athlete's specific degree program. For purposes of determining the applicable rule governing the minimum percentage-of-degree requirements, institutions should count the number of full-time semesters or quarters in which the student-athlete has been enrolled in a collegiate institution. Further, a student-athlete who begins his or her third, fourth or fifth year of collegiate enrollment at mid-year must be certified pursuant to the applicable percentage-of-degree requirement even though the student-athlete was certified pursuant to Bylaw 14.4.3.1 (credit-hour requirement) at the beginning of the fall term.

In this regard, during its April 20, 1994, meeting, the Council approved a recommendation made by the NCAA Academic Requirements Committee specifying that when a student-athlete qualifies for a waiver of the application of satisfactory progress to a term of attendance pursuant to Bylaw 14.4.3.6, that term (or terms) does not count as a term of collegiate enrollment for purposes of applying the percentage-of-degree and grade-point average requirements.

Finally, during its May 21, 1992, telephone conference, the Interpretations Committee determined that a student-athlete satisfies the applicable percentage-of-degree requirements set forth in Bylaws 14.4.3.2.1 and 14.4.3.2.2 if the student-athlete has completed the necessary percentage of the total credit-hour requirements for the student-athlete's degree program, as opposed to the student-athlete's major. For example, if a student-athlete is pursuing a baccalaureate degree in secondary education with a designated major in English and the student must complete 128 hours to receive the baccalaureate degree in secondary education, upon entering his or her fourth year of collegiate enrollment, the student must have completed successfully at least 64 credit hours applicable toward the student-athlete's degree in secondary education (as opposed to a percentage of hours applicable toward the English major).

receipt by student-athletes of actual and necessary expenses based on place finish in an event.

The proposal would permit the institution to grant the exception if the expenses do not exceed $1,000 per event and accrue during a period not exceeding one year. It would eliminate the need for the Eligibility Committee to handle such cases, although the institution would be required to maintain files documenting use of the exception.

Other proposals

Other proposals in the grouping pertain to participation in Olympic-level competition.

The NCAA Olympic Sports Liaison Committee is the source of proposals that would permit a student-athlete to compete in two-person sand volleyball alongside persons who are competing for cash or a comparable prize and that would permit participation by student-athletes in World Championships and World Cup competition (on the same basis as for Olympic, Pan American and World University Games competition).

That committee also recommended a proposal that would permit institutions to provide softball student-athletes with actual and necessary expenses to participate in tryouts for United States Olympic Festival softball competition — although the United States Olympic Committee since has decided to discontinue the festival.

Other proposals in the grouping would:

■ Increase from the regular-season limit of four to a limit of six the number of complimentary admissions that an institution participating in an NCAA championship or football bowl game may provide for that event to a participating student-athlete. The proposal was recommended by the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

■ Permit Divisions I and II institutions to pay expenses for a student-athlete to travel during a vacation period from campus to the site of a regular-season contest and back to campus. The proposal would permit the individual to travel separately from the team and stop somewhere other than the contest site. The student-athlete would be required to pay the difference in cost associated with traveling to a location other than the contest site.

■ Permit a professional sports organization to publicly host a student-athlete or collegiate team during a professional sports contest and recognize that individual or team for an extraordinary achievement.

Summary

Following is a summary of the 14 proposals — and one amendment-to-amendment — in the amateurism/awards/benefits and financial aid groupings. The summary indicates sponsors of the proposals, positions (if any) taken by the Council and Presidents Commission, actions resulting from committee review of a proposal (if any), and the business session in which a proposal will be acted upon.

Sponsored by the Council; recommended by the Professional Sports Liaison Committee. Division I business session.

Financial aid

Sponsored by the Council; recommended by the Committee on Financial Aid and Amateurism. Division I business session.

Next week: The 28 proposals in the eligibility and playing-and-practice-seasons groupings.

Meeting

Executive Committee to set final positions on legislation

The Executive Committee also will conduct a final review of legislation proposed for the January Convention. At its August meeting, the committee took positions on the following proposals:

■ No. 85 (continuation of a championship that has existed for 10 years or more, regardless of the number of sponsors) — oppose.

■ No. 87 (creation of a protected status for Olympic sports championships) — oppose.

■ No. 88 (establishment of a moratorium on field-size reductions for National Collegiate championships through 1998-99) — oppose.

■ No. 89 (would permit the Executive Committee to apportion and distribute net receipts derived from NCAA championships in emerging and threatened sports directly to institutions that sponsor those sports) — oppose.

■ No. 94 (increase in size of Division I-AA Football Committee from four to eight members, with guaranteed representation for each conference with automatic qualification to the championship) — oppose.

■ No. 95 (increase in size of Division I-AA Football Committee from four to eight members, with no specified requirements for regional representation) — support.

At this meeting, the Executive Committee also is expected to decide on a position on Proposal No. 86, which would extend the moratorium on the discontinuation of any NCAA championship through 1998-99. The committee also will review Proposal No. 91, a resolution that would direct development of a plan for implementing automatic bids and play-ins for the 1997 Division I Women's Soccer Championship.

On August 20, 1993, the NCAA enforcement staff received a telephone call from the mother of a former men's basketball student-athlete concerning potential NCAA rules violations in the institution's men's basketball program. On September 17, 1993, the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement and eligibility appeals received a letter from a former women's volleyball student-athlete outlining potential rules violations in women's track and field and women's volleyball.

Beginning in May 1994 and continuing through the summer and fall of 1994, the enforcement staff conducted numerous interviews with former university men's basketball and women's volleyball student-athletes. Numerous former student-athletes refused to be interviewed or to speak on the record.

On November 14, 1994, at the time of the enforcement staff's initial on-campus interviews, an NCAA director of enforcement and an NCAA enforcement representative hand-delivered a letter of preliminary inquiry to the university's president. This letter formally notified the institution that the enforcement staff had initiated a preliminary inquiry into the operation of the university's men's basketball, women's volleyball, and women's track and field programs.

Infractions case: Alabama State University

A summary of the following case was published in the November 20 issue of The NCAA News.

I. Introduction

This case involved the women's volleyball, women's track and field, and men's basketball programs at Alabama State University and concerned violations of NCAA bylaws governing eligibility, recruiting, extra benefits, playing and practice seasons, ethical conduct and institutional control.

Alabama State is a Division I institution and a member of the Southwestern Athletic Conference. The university has an enrollment of approximately 4,160 students and sponsors eight men's and seven women's intercollegiate sports.

In March 1985 and again in March 1987, the NCAA Committee on Infractions released infractions reports regarding major violations in the institution's football program primarily involving student-athlete initial and transfer eligibility. In the 1987 infractions report, the committee commended the institution for steps taken to cure the deficiencies identified in the 1985 case but noted that the new violations indicated further improvements were needed. It is obvious from the violations in this case, which occurred from the fall of 1990 through the spring of 1994 and involved a lack of institutional control in the administration of three athletics programs, that the institution did not implement adequate procedures after the 1987 case. During the period of the most recent violations, many administrative positions had been filled by interim appointments.

The institution's current president took office June 1, 1994. Since then, in response to the violations in this case, he has taken a series of significant actions which are outlined in Parts III-A and B of this report. The committee also notes his cooperation throughout the processing of the case, from his receipt of the preliminary letter of inquiry through the investigation and at the hearing before the committee. The president's active participation set a tone that enabled the NCAA enforcement staff and institutional representatives to reach agreement on the majority of the allegations presented to the committee.

On August 20, 1993, the NCAA enforcement staff received a telephone call from the mother of a former men's basketball student-athlete concerning potential NCAA rules violations in the institution's men's basketball program. On September 17, 1993, the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement and eligibility appeals received a letter from a former women's volleyball student-athlete outlining potential rules violations in women's track and field and women's volleyball.

A. Case chronology.

On August 20, 1993, the NCAA enforcement staff received a telephone call from the mother of a former men's basketball student-athlete concerning potential NCAA rules violations in the institution's men's basketball program. On September 17, 1993, the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement and eligibility appeals received a letter from a former women's volleyball student-athlete outlining potential rules violations in women's track and field and women's volleyball.

Beginning in May 1994 and continuing through the summer and fall of 1994, the enforcement staff conducted numerous interviews with former university men's basketball and women's volleyball student-athletes. Numerous former student-athletes refused to be interviewed or to speak on the record.

On November 14, 1994, at the time of the enforcement staff's initial on-campus interviews, an NCAA director of enforcement and an NCAA enforcement representative hand-delivered a letter of preliminary inquiry to the university's president. This letter formally notified the institution that the enforcement staff had initiated a preliminary inquiry into the operation of the university's men's basketball, women's volleyball, and women's track and field programs.

As a result of the death in January 1995 of the university's director of athletics, the staff's return to the university's campus for follow-up interviews was delayed until the week of March 7, 1995.

In accordance with NCAA Bylaw 32.5, on April 13, 1995, the enforcement staff sent official letters of inquiry to the university's president, the head men's basketball coach, two assistant men's basketball coaches, the head women's volleyball coach and the head women's track and field coach. The university requested, and the Committee on Infractions granted, extensions for its response to the letter of official inquiry on three occasions. The university's response was received July 28, 1995. The women's volleyball coach, the women's track and field coach, and the head men's basketball coach also responded in writing to the Committee on Infractions.

On August 28, 1995, the enforcement staff and university representatives held a prehearing conference by conference call. On August 29, the enforcement staff conducted separate prehearing conferences by telephone with the head men's basketball coach and the counsel for the women's track and field coach. The women's volleyball coach did not elect to have a prehearing conference.

On September 30, 1995, representatives of the enforcement staff and the institution appeared at a hearing before the Committee on Infractions. The head men's basketball coach and two assistant men's basketball coaches involved in this case also were present.

B. Summary of the findings of violations.

The violations found by the committee were as follows:

- The head women's volleyball coach involved in this case:
 - Allowed four ineligible women's volleyball student-athletes to travel and compete in intercollegiate athletics competition;
 - Provided impermissible local and long distance transportation to prospective student-athletes;
 - Allowed enrolled student-athletes to assist with recruiting;
 - Arranged for impermissible tryouts of prospective student-athletes;

- Permitted out-of-season practices;
- Failed to document or monitor recruiting visits to the institution's campus by prospective student-athletes, which resulted in an inability to determine whether the visits were official or unofficial and the extent to which impermissible meals and transportation were provided to prospective student-athletes;
- Permitted a former student-athlete to participate in team practices.

■ The head women's track and field coach involved in this case:

- Allowed five ineligible women's track and field student-athletes to travel or compete in intercollegiate athletics competition;
- Permitted four ineligible track and field student-athletes to compete under assumed names.

■ There was unethical conduct by the head women's volleyball coach and the head women's track and field coach involved in this case.

■ The institution provided impermissible extra benefits to a men's basketball student-athlete by allowing his relatives to receive complimentary hotel rooms on four occasions.

■ The head men's basketball coach involved in this case permitted an ineligible men's basketball student-athlete to participate in practice and to travel with the team.

■ There was a lack of institutional control over the women's volleyball, women's track and field, and men's basketball programs.

C. Summary of the penalties.

In imposing the following penalties, the Committee on Infractions considered the corrective actions taken by the university, as detailed in Part III-A of this report.

1. The committee adopted as its own the following penalties proposed and self-imposed by the institution:

- Prohibition from participating in postseason competition in women's volleyball during the 1995-96 and 1996-97 academic years.

■ Prohibition from participating in post-season competition in women's track and field during the 1995-96 and 1996-97 academic years.

■ Forfeiture of the matches in which ineligible women's volleyball student-athletes competed during the 1991-94 seasons.

■ Forfeiture of all records from contests in which ineligible women's track and field student-athletes competed during the 1993-94 academic year.

■ Reduction by two in the number of permissible official visits in men's basketball for an unspecified period, but at least for the 1995-96 and 1996-97 academic years.

■ Reduction by one in the number of permissible financial aid awards in men's basketball during the 1996-97 academic year.

■ Delay in the start of basketball practice for the 1995-96 and 1996-97 academic years.

2. The committee imposed the following additional penalties:

- Public reprimand and censure.
- Three years of probation.
- Requirement that the institution develop a comprehensive athletics compliance education program, with annual reports to the committee during the period of probation.
- Recertification of current athletics policies and practices.
- Show-cause requirement regarding the head women's volleyball coach for three years.
- Show-cause requirement regarding the head women's track and field coach for one year.

II. Findings of violations of NCAA legislation

A. Impermissible travel and competition by ineligible student-athletes. [NCAA Bylaws 14.01.1, 14.2.1, 14.2.1.1, 14.3.1, 14.4.1, 14.4.3.1-(b) and 16.8.1.2]

During the fall of 1991, the head women's volleyball coach allowed four women's volleyball student-athletes to travel and compete in intercollegiate athletics competition on behalf of the institution at a time when the head coach knew that the student-athletes were either academically ineligible to compete, or already had exhausted their eligibility under NCAA legislation. Specifically:

1. The head women's volleyball coach permitted one women's volleyball student-athlete to travel and compete for the institution even though she had not met NCAA initial-eligibility requirements.

2. The head women's volleyball coach permitted two other women's volleyball student-athletes to travel and compete for the institution even though they did not meet NCAA satisfactory-progress legislation.

3. The head women's volleyball coach permitted a fourth volleyball student-athlete to travel and compete for the institution even though she had exhausted her athletics eligibility. The student-athlete initially enrolled in the institution as a full-time student in the fall of 1986 and was not within her five-year eligibility period.

B. Impermissible transportation and use of student-athletes during recruiting. [Bylaws 13.01.4, 13.1.2.3-(f)-(1), 13.2.1, 13.6.1, 13.7.5.5.3 and 16.12.2.1]

On numerous occasions during the 1991-92 and 1992-93 academic years, the head women's volleyball coach provided local and long-distance automobile transportation to four prospective student-athletes between their high schools or homes and the institution's campus that was not in conjunction with the prospective student-athletes' official paid visits. On some of these visits and on other occasions, the head coach arranged for four women's volleyball student-athletes to accompany him during off-campus recruiting visits to the homes and high schools of prospective student-athletes for the purpose of having them assist him with recruiting for the institution's women's volleyball program.

On one occasion, the head coach improperly provided use of an automobile to a women's volleyball student-athlete for the purpose of transporting four prospective student-athletes around campus during their official visits.

C. Impermissible tryouts of prospective student-athletes and out-of-season practices. [Bylaws 13.12.1, 13.12.1.1, 17.19.6, 17.19.6-(a)-(2), 17.19.10 and 17.19.10.1]

On numerous occasions during the spring and summer of 1991 through 1994, the head women's volleyball coach arranged for nine women's volleyball prospective student-athletes to demonstrate their athletics abilities in workouts or scrimmages with members of the institution's women's volleyball team at the institution's athletics facilities, C. J. Dunn Arena, for the purpose of evaluating their athletics abilities during unofficial visits to campus. Enrolled women's volleyball student-athletes participated in these workout sessions and the head women's volleyball coach frequently observed, participated and provided instruction. These workout sessions constituted out-of-season practices not permitted under NCAA legislation.

D. Inadequate monitoring of recruiting visits and impermissible provision of meals and lodging to prospective student-athletes. [Bylaws 13.2.1, 13.2.2-(e), 13.7.1.2.1 and 13.8.2.1]

During the spring and summer of 1991 and 1992, and the spring of 1993, the head women's volleyball coach failed to document or monitor the recruiting visits of prospective student-athletes to the institution's campus. This failure made it impossible to determine whether the prospective student-athletes' visits were official or unofficial. Official visits, during which the institution may provide prospective student-athletes meals and lodging, require written notification to the prospective student-athletes of their five-visit limitation. The head coach did not provide this notification to the prospective student-athletes or document that these visits were official. Institutions are not permitted to provide food or lodging during unofficial visits.

The failure of the head coach to provide the appropriate notification to the prospective student-athletes regarding official visits and to appropriately document the visits resulted in the provision of impermissible lodging and numerous meals to six prospective student-athletes during unofficial visits to the institution's campus. The lack of documentation also precluded the institution and the NCAA enforcement staff from determining whether any prospective student-athlete made more than one official visit to the institution's campus, in violation of Bylaw 13.7.1.1.

E. Impermissible practice by a former student-athlete. [Bylaw 14.1.6.1]

On numerous occasions during the 1992 through 1994 women's volleyball seasons, the head women's volleyball coach arranged for a former women's volleyball student-athlete to participate in practice sessions with the women's volleyball team.

F. Unethical conduct by the head women's volleyball coach. [Bylaws 10.01.1, 10.1-(c) and 10.1-(d)]

The head women's volleyball coach involved in this case failed to deport himself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct and administration of intercollegiate athletics. He violated the principles of ethical conduct by his involvement in the violations in the volleyball program described in this report and by his encouraging student-athletes to provide false and misleading information to enforcement staff representatives during on-campus interviews. Specifically:

1. The head women's volleyball coach demonstrated a knowing effort to operate the institution's intercollegiate women's volleyball program contrary to NCAA legislation by his overall involvement in findings II-A through F.

2. On March 6, before the enforcement staff's scheduled on-campus interviews with two women's volleyball student-athletes, the head women's volleyball coach instructed the two student-athletes to report falsely to the staff that he did not arrange cost-free lodging for them during their recruiting visits to the institution's campus in the spring of 1993 and that they secured lodging on their own with friends and/or relatives in the area.

G. Impermissible competition by ineligible student-athletes and use of assumed names. [Bylaws 10.01.1, 14.3.1, 14.4.1 and 16.8.1.2]

During the spring of 1994, the head women's indoor and outdoor track and field coach allowed four women's track and field student-athletes to travel and compete in several track and field meets on behalf of the institution even though they did not meet initial-eligibility requirements. The head coach knew that the student-athletes were academically ineligible to compete. The head coach also permitted the four student-athletes to represent the institution under assumed names. These student-athletes used the names of four eligible enrolled women's volleyball student-athletes and a former track student-athlete.

The head coach also allowed another student-athlete to travel with the institution's women's track and field team, and to be ge with the team at away competitions, even though the head coach knew the student-athlete did not meet initial-eligibility requirements.

H. Unethical conduct by the head women's track and field coach. [Bylaw 10.1-(c)]

The head women's track and field coach involved in this case failed to deport herself in accordance with the generally recognized high standards normally associated with the conduct of intercollegiate athletics. She violated the principles of ethical conduct by her knowing involvement in the NCAA violations described in finding II-G. The track and field coach knowingly allowed student-athletes to compete under assumed names in response to instructions from the director of athletics at that time to field a women's track and field team with enough participants to maintain the institution's Division I status.

I. Impermissible lodging provided to relatives of a student-athlete. [Bylaws 13.2.1, 16.02.3, 16.6.2.1 and 16.6.2.4]

On four occasions, during the period from 1990 through 1992, the institution provided lodging at no cost for several relatives of a men's basketball student-athlete. This lodging occurred during the student-athlete's initial enrollment at the institution and on several subsequent occasions when family members visited the student-athlete. The institution provided a total of five nights of complimentary lodging at a local hotel and two nights of complimentary lodging at the team's hotel during an out-of-town competition.

J. Impermissible practice and travel by an ineligible student-athlete. [Bylaws 14.3.1, 14.3.2.1.1, 14.3.2.4 and 16.8.1.2]

During the 1990-91 academic year, the head men's basketball coach permitted an ineligible men's basketball student-athlete to participate in regular-season practice sessions and to travel with the men's basketball team to at least one away game, even though the student-athlete did not meet NCAA initial-eligibility requirements.

K. Lack of institutional control. [NCAA Constitution 2.1.1, 2.1.2, 2.7.1 and 6.01.1]

The scope and nature of the violations in this report demonstrate a lack of appropriate institutional control and monitoring in the conduct and administration of the women's volleyball, women's indoor and outdoor track and field, and men's basketball programs. The institution failed to:

(a) Monitor the eligibility of student-athletes and the participation of ineligible student-athletes in intercollegiate athletics competition and team practice sessions in women's volleyball and women's indoor and outdoor track and field;

(b) Maintain documentation regarding the recruiting visits of women's volleyball prospective student-athletes, resulting in an inability to determine whether the visits were official or unofficial visits;

(c) Monitor the out-of-season athletics activities of the women's volleyball program;

(d) Monitor the athletics activities of visiting prospective student-athletes in the women's volleyball program and the use of enrolled volleyball student-athletes in recruiting;

(e) Maintain accurate squad lists in the women's volleyball and women's indoor and outdoor track and field programs;

(f) Monitor the participation of ineligible student-athletes in team practice sessions in the men's basketball program;

(g) Monitor the use of complimentary hotel rooms in men's basketball;

(h) Conduct periodic compliance audits.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties

For the reasons set forth in Parts I and II of this report, the Committee on Infractions found that this case involved several major violations of NCAA legislation.

A. Corrective actions taken by the university.

In determining the appropriate penalties to impose, the committee considered the institution's self-imposed corrective actions. Specifically, the university:

1. Terminated the employment of the head women's volleyball coach, the head women's track and field coach, and the head men's basketball coach.

2. Removed two assistant men's basketball coaches from the basketball program.

3. Instituted a requirement that all women's volleyball, women's track and field, and men's basketball travel itineraries and the names of each member of the travel party be reviewed, approved and signed by the director of athletics no later than two days before the planned travel and no earlier than three weeks before the planned travel.

4. Instituted a policy that the director of athletics or his/her representative will conduct unannounced, random travel with the women's volleyball, women's track and field, and other university athletics teams.

5. Instituted a policy requiring all track and field squad and participation lists to be reviewed and approved by the director of athletics and compliance officer before the beginning of season competition.

6. Required all requests for recruiting trips and campus visits in men's basketball to be reviewed by the director of athletics before the trips or visits.

B. Penalties proposed and self-imposed by the university.

The Committee on Infractions adopted as its own the following penalties proposed and self-imposed by the institution:

1. The institution's women's volleyball team shall end the 1995-96 and 1996-97 seasons with the playing of the last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in any postseason competition or take advantage of any of the exemptions provided in Bylaw 17.19.9.

2. The institution's women's track and field team shall end the 1995-96 and 1996-97 seasons with the playing of the last regularly scheduled, in-season contest and shall not be eligible to participate in any postseason competition or take advantage of any of the exemptions provided in Bylaw 17.18.5.2.

3. The institution shall forfeit all contests in women's volleyball in which ineligible student-athletes participated during the 1991-94 seasons.

4. The institution shall forfeit all medals, awards or team placements in women's track and field where ineligible student-athletes participated during the 1993-94 academic year.

5. The number of expense-paid visits to the institution's campus in men's basketball shall be reduced by two each year for an unspecified period, which limits the institution to 10 visits per year under current rules. The committee adopts this penalty on the condition that the reduction be imposed during at least the 1995-96 and 1996-97 academic years.

6. During the 1996-97 academic year, the number of athletically related financial aid awards in men's basketball shall be reduced by one, which limits the institution to 12 under current rules.

7. The institution shall delay the start of men's basketball practice by two days during the 1995-96 academic year and by one day during the 1996-97 academic year.

C. Additional penalties imposed by the Committee on Infractions.

Although the Committee on Infractions agreed with and approved of the actions taken by the institution, the committee decided to impose the following additional penalties:

1. Public reprimand and censure.

2. Three years of probation from September 30, 1995.

3. During this period of probation, the institution shall:

a. Develop and implement a comprehensive educational program on NCAA legislation, including seminars and testing, to instruct the coaches, the faculty athletics representative, all athletics department personnel and all university staff members with responsibility for the certification of student-athletes for admission, retention, financial aid or competition;

b. Submit a preliminary report to the administrator for the Committee on Infractions by December 20, 1995, setting forth a schedule for establishing this compliance and educational program; and

c. File with the committee's administrator annual compliance reports indicating the progress made with this program by September 1 of each year during the probationary period. Particular emphasis should be placed on monitoring the eligibility of student-athletes for practice and competition and the official and unofficial visits of student-athletes. The reports must also include documentation of the university's compliance with the penalties adopted and imposed by the committee.

4. The institution's president shall recently that all of the university's current athletics policies and practices conform to all requirements of NCAA regulations.

5. If the head women's volleyball coach involved in this case had still been employed at the institution, the university would have been required to show cause in accordance with Bylaw 19.6.2.2-(l) why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it had failed to take appropriate disciplinary action against him.

6. If the head women's track and field coach involved in this case had still been employed at the institution, the university would have been required to show cause in accordance with Bylaw 19.6.2.2-(l) why it should not be subject to additional penalties if it had failed to take appropriate disciplinary action against her.

7. The head women's volleyball coach involved in this case will be informed in writing by the NCAA that, due to his involvement in findings II-A through F of this report, if he seeks employment or affiliation in an athletically related position at an NCAA member institution during a three-year period (August 24, 1995, to August 24, 1998), he and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions to consider whether the member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.6.2.2-(l), which could limit the coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

8. The head women's track and field coach involved in this case will be informed in writing by the NCAA that, due to her involvement in findings II-G and H of this report, if she seeks employment or affiliation in an athletically related position at an NCAA member institution during a one-year period (August 18, 1995, to August 18, 1996), she and the involved institution shall be requested to appear before the Committee on Infractions to consider whether the member institution should be subject to the show-cause procedures of Bylaw 19.6.2.2-(l), which could limit the coach's athletically related duties at the new institution for a designated period.

As required by NCAA legislation for any institution involved in a major infractions case, Alabama State shall be subject to the provisions of Bylaw 19.6.2.3, concerning repeat violators, for a five-year period beginning on the effective date of the penalties in this case, September 30, 1995.

Should Alabama State or the coaches named in this report appeal either the findings of violations or penalties in this case to the NCAA Infractions Appeals Committee, the Committee on Infractions will submit a response to the members of the appeals committee, with a copy to any party who may appeal. This response may include additional information in accordance with Bylaw 32.10.5.

The Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that it should take every precaution to ensure that the terms of the penalties are observed. The committee will monitor the penalties during their effective periods, and any action contrary to the terms of any of the penalties or any additional violations shall be considered grounds for extending the institution's probationary period, as well as imposing more severe sanctions in this case.

Should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.

NCAA COMMITTEE ON INFRACTIONS

Infractions case: University of California, Berkeley

A summary of the following case appeared in the November 13 issue of The NCAA News.

I. Introduction

This case involved the men's basketball program at the University of California, Berkeley. The university is a Division I institution and a member of the Pacific 10 Conference. The university has an enrollment of approximately 21,100 students and sponsors 11 men's and 13 women's intercollegiate sports.

The letter of official inquiry issued in this case alleged major violations of NCAA rules. As a result, the NCAA Committee on Infractions reviewed this case under its procedures for major infractions cases. However, after considering the testimony at the September 29, 1995, hearing and the written information submitted by the institution, the head men's basketball coach, the involved student-athlete and the NCAA enforcement staff, the committee determined that the violations in the case were secondary in nature.

This case involved the recruitment of one prospective student-athlete during August and September 1994. The violations concerned the involvement in the prospective student athlete's recruitment of an individual who recently had befriended the prospective student-athlete and his family. This individual, who is a graduate student at the institution, met the prospective student-athlete through basketball channels but developed a friendship because of common religious beliefs. Most of the contacts between the individual and the prospective student-athlete and his family were permissible under NCAA legislation. However, when the individual actively participated in the prospective student-athlete's unofficial visit to the institution's campus with the knowledge of the head men's basketball coach, he became a representative of the institution's athletics interests by assisting in the recruitment of a prospective student-athlete. As a representative of the institution's athletics interests, this involvement in the prospective student-athlete's recruitment violated NCAA recruiting bylaws.

Although there were a number of prior contacts between this individual and the prospective student-athlete, the violations were limited to one weekend and were inadvertent. Because of the limited nature of the violations, the committee decided that the violations were secondary. The committee also determined that the involved student-athlete should not be affected by the violations.

The committee commends the student-athlete and his mother for taking appropriate steps to avoid NCAA violations by initiating contact with and providing information regarding his recruitment to the NCAA enforcement staff. In addition, the student-athlete's testimony at the hearing was very helpful to the committee.

Given the inadvertent nature of the violations and the student-athlete's cooperation, the Committee on Infractions recommends that the NCAA Eligibility Appeals Committee allow the student-athlete to have four years of NCAA eligibility at the institution and that his initial eligibility not be affected in any manner. It is unfortunate that the activities of others caused the prospective student-athlete to be involved in an infractions case when he and his mother had done everything possible to comply with NCAA rules.

When this case was being processed, the enforcement staff did not issue a preliminary letter of inquiry, as required in NCAA Bylaw 32.2.2.4. The institution, the head men's basketball coach and the student-athlete argued in the written materials submitted to the committee and later in testimony at the hearing, that the enforcement staff did not follow NCAA procedures when the letter of official inquiry in May 1995 was issued without first providing notice of the preliminary inquiry and that the committee should not consider this case.

The enforcement staff responded that the institution knew of the investigation in October and November 1994 and that when information warranting a preliminary letter of inquiry was available, there was sufficient information available to issue a letter of official inquiry. The Committee on Infractions recognizes that in most cases the enforcement staff will begin an investigation without first notifying an institution. This is often necessary as a first step in an investigation. However, once the initial inquiry has been completed, Bylaw 32.2.2.4 requires that the enforcement staff send to the institution's chief executive officer a letter notifying the institution of the NCAA investigation. In this case, the preliminary letter should have been sent when information was developed that indicated that violations of NCAA rules might have occurred which would require further in-person investigation. Although the enforcement staff failed to issue a preliminary letter of inquiry in this case, the committee found that the failure to send such a letter was not a defect that affected the jurisdiction of the committee to consider this case.

A. Case chronology.

During the summer of 1994, the student-athlete involved in this case, who had just completed his junior year in high school, and his mother contacted the NCAA to join the Big Brother/Big Sister program. The NCAA enforcement staff administers this program to provide highly recruited prospective student-athletes with information on NCAA recruiting rules and eligibility requirements. As part of this Big Brother/Big Sister program, and in an attempt to avoid any violations, the prospective student-athlete and his mother informed the enforcement staff of all recruiting contacts during August and September 1994, including the ones involved in this case.

On September 20, 1994, the prospective student-athlete's mother informed the enforcement staff that the prospective student-athlete had made an unofficial visit to the University of California, Berkeley, with a friend of the family, and was planning to announce his decision to attend the university. On September 20, the enforcement staff also received a telephone call from an assistant men's basketball coach at another member institution reporting that he was concerned with the institution's and another member institution's recruitment of the prospective student-athlete. The prospective student-athlete announced his decision to attend the institution and later signed a National Letter of Intent with the institution on November 9, 1994.

In late September, a Pacific-10 Conference associate commissioner contacted the enforcement staff to inquire about the prospective student-athlete's unofficial visit to the institution. From October 1994 through February 1995, the associate commissioner and the enforcement staff conducted interviews regarding the circumstances of the prospective student-athlete's recruitment and the involvement in his recruitment by a graduate student at California who had become a friend of the prospective student-athlete.

In late April, after reviewing the available information, the enforcement staff determined that it was reasonable to expect that the Committee on Infractions would find that violations occurred in the young man's recruitment. On May 15, 1995, the enforcement staff sent a letter of official inquiry to the chancellor of the institution. After tentatively scheduling the case for consideration at its August meeting, the Committee on Infractions granted the institution's request to extend the deadline to respond to the official inquiry. The institution responded to the official inquiry August 15, the student-athlete involved in this case August 16 and the head men's basketball coach August 17.

The enforcement staff conducted pre-hearing telephone conferences with the head men's basketball coach September 12, and with institutional representatives and the student-athlete September 14.

On September 29, 1995, representatives of the enforcement staff and the institution appeared at a hearing before the Committee on Infractions. The head men's basketball coach and the student-athlete were included among the institution's representatives.

B. Summary of the findings of violations.

The secondary violations found by the committee may be summarized as follows:

■ A representative of the institution's athletics interests made arrangements for and participated in the unofficial visit of a prospective student-athlete by accompanying the prospective student-athlete on his trip to the campus and assisting him during the unofficial visit.

C. Summary of the penalties.

In imposing the following penalties, the Committee on Infractions considered the fact that the violations were secondary in nature and determined that the involved student-athlete's eligibility should not be affected.

■ Public announcement of the case.

■ Reduction by two in the number of permissible official visits in men's basketball during the 1995-96 academic year.

II. Finding of secondary violations of NCAA legislation

Impermissible recruiting by a representative of the institution's athletics interests during an unofficial visit. [Bylaws 13.1.2.1, 13.2.1, 13.6.1 and 13.8]

During September 1994, a representative of the institution's athletics interests made arrangements for and participated in an unofficial visit to the institution's campus by a men's basketball prospective student-athlete. His involvement included accompanying the prospective student-athlete on the airplane from his home to the institution's campus, showing the prospective student-athlete around the institution's campus, arranging for the prospective student-athlete to receive local automobile transportation, arranging for the prospective student-athlete to visit with the head men's basketball coach, and arranging for the prospective student-athlete's mother to receive reimbursement for the return segment of the prospective student-athlete's airline ticket.

In July 1994, the institution's head men's basketball coach observed the prospective student-athlete at a summer basketball camp and asked one of the camp counselors, who was an AAU coach in Oakland, California, to determine if the prospective student-athlete was interested in the institution. The AAU coach reported to the institution's head men's basketball coach the prospective student-athlete's interest in the institution. The AAU coach also informed a friend of his, who was a graduate student at California and who later became the representative of the institution's athletics interests involved in this case, of the prospective student-athlete's strong Muslim faith and his basketball abilities. This graduate student, who assisted the AAU coach with the community youth basketball leagues in Oakland, is a practicing Muslim and an Islamic leader on the institution's campus.

During the rest of July and August 1994, this graduate student, as a result of a mutual devotion to the Muslim faith, developed a friendship with the prospective student-athlete and his family. This occurred through a series of lengthy telephone calls and a one-week visit to their home. A professional basketball player also became acquainted with the prospective student-athlete through the graduate student. This professional basketball player, who is a Muslim, visited the prospective student-athlete at his home in Atlanta. It is important to note that the professional basketball player attended another Division I institution and had no connections or ties to California. The evidence introduced indicated he did not attempt to recruit the prospective student-athlete for California or any other institution, although he provided financial assistance to the family of the prospective student-athlete.

In the recruitment of the prospective student-athlete, the men's basketball coaching staff gathered information on Islam from several sources, including substantial information from the graduate student. During the week of September 12, 1994, this individual again visited the prospective student-athlete's family. While staying with the family he was present for recruiting visits by men's basketball coaches from three NCAA institutions, including the head men's basketball coach from California.

On September 15, 1994, the prospective student-athlete indicated he wanted to commit to California but desired to visit the institution that weekend before making a final decision. Because the prospective student-athlete was not a qualifier at that time, the institution could not provide an official paid visit under NCAA bylaws. On September 16, the prospective student-athlete's mother purchased a one-way airline ticket for her son to travel from their home to San Francisco that evening. The graduate student, who was still visiting the prospective student-athlete, postponed a scheduled trip to Washington, D.C., to accompany the prospective student-athlete to California. The prospective student-athlete made two telephone calls to the head men's basketball coach to discuss the visit to the institution's campus. During one of these conversations, the graduate student talked with the head coach to discuss the location on campus where he, the prospective student-athlete and the head coach could meet to begin the unofficial visit.

At this point, because the head men's basketball coach at California became aware the graduate student would be assisting the prospective student in traveling to the institution's campus, would be assisting in his unofficial visit and would be making arrangements for him to visit with the head men's basketball coach, the graduate student became a representative of the university's athletics interests by assisting in the recruitment of a prospective student-athlete.

During the unofficial visit, the AAU coach, who was a friend of the graduate student, transported the prospective student-athlete and the graduate student, now a representative of the university's athletics interests, around the institution's campus and community. On September 17, the AAU coach, the representative of the institution's athletics interests, the prospective student-athlete, the head coach and several other men's basketball prospective student-athletes attended a university football game.

On September 18, the AAU coach transported the prospective student-athlete from the hotel to the campus to meet with the head men's basketball coach, who showed him the campus and the Oakland Coliseum, where the institution played its home basketball games. The head coach then returned the prospective student-athlete to the AAU coach and the representative of the institution's athletics interests, who transported the prospective student-athlete to the Oakland airport for his return flight. On the evening of September 18, the head coach telephoned the representative of the institution's athletics interests and discussed the prospective student-athlete's visit.

Several weeks after the unofficial visit, the athletics representative told the professional basketball player about the cost of a return airline ticket for the prospective student-athlete that his mother had purchased while he was in Berkeley. The professional basketball player sent approximately $1,000 to the representative of the institution's athletics interests, who then sent a $400 money order to the prospective student-athlete's mother to reimburse her for the return airline ticket.

Although the athletics representative developed a friendship with the prospective student-athlete's family because of their common interest in the Muslim religion, this relationship initially arose because of basketball. Most of the contacts between the athletics representative and the prospective student-athlete and his family during the summer of 1994 were permissible under NCAA legislation, including his visits to the home. Conversations centered on the Muslim religion, not basketball.

Had the head men's basketball coach disassociated himself from any involvement in the unofficial visit, the graduate student would not have become a representative of the university's athletics interests. However, because the head men's basketball coach had previously relied upon the graduate student to gather information for him about the Muslim religion and about activities of Muslim students on the institution's campus, was aware the graduate student was in the prospective student-athlete's house when he conducted his official visit to the home, knew the graduate student would travel with the prospective student-athlete to the university's campus, knew the graduate student would be actively involved in the unofficial visit, made arrangements with the graduate student as to how he would meet the prospective student-athlete, and then called the graduate student to discuss the visit, the graduate student assisted in the recruiting of the prospective student-athlete and became a representative of the university's athletics interest.

III. Committee on Infractions penalties

For the reasons set forth in Part Nos. I and II of this report, the Committee on Infractions found that this case involved secondary violations of NCAA legislation. The committee imposed the following penalties:

1. The Committee on Infractions shall make a public announcement of its decision.

2. During the 1995-96 academic year, the number of permissible expense-paid visits to the institution's campus in men's basketball shall be reduced by two, which limits the institution to a maximum of 10 visits under current rules.

The Committee on Infractions wishes to advise the institution that it should take every precaution to ensure that the terms of the penalties are observed. The committee will monitor the penalties during the effective period, and any action contrary to the terms of the penalties or any additional violations shall be considered grounds for imposing more severe sanctions in this case.

Should any portion of any of the penalties in this case be set aside for any reason other than by appropriate action of the Association, the penalties shall be reconsidered by the Committee on Infractions. Should any actions by NCAA Conventions directly or indirectly modify any provision of these penalties or the effect of the penalties, the committee reserves the right to review and reconsider the penalties.

Eligibility appeals

Because recruiting violations involve the possibility of an advantage being obtained in the recruitment of a prospect, those cases are published separately from other matters. Also, please note that any actions taken by the institution, conference or NCAA Committee on Infractions regarding the institution's responsibility for the occurrence of the violation that caused the ineligibility of the student-athlete are reported along with the publication of the particular eligibility case.
